From the pages of Satellite Week & Mobile Satellite Reports...
...the NEW companion Special Report to MOBILIZING THE FUTURE:
The Evolution of Mobile Satellite Service...

THE FUTURE IS NOW: Mobile Satellite Service Takes Off

"Air, land and maritime systems, one by one, are fitting applications to unattended user demand, like the pieces of a grand jigsaw puzzle. Already visible are the shapes and colors. What remains is to fit the missing segments to the existing gaps."

—from the Preface

For years now, satellite professionals have agreed on the promising future of Mobile Satellite Service (MSS), but that future has seemed a long time coming. Until now. MSS is no longer an industry identified chiefly by references to "bright tomorrows" or "unlimited potential." Rather, it is an industry forcing billion-dollar battle lines to be drawn and redrawn because of the threat to entrenched terrestrial communications systems.

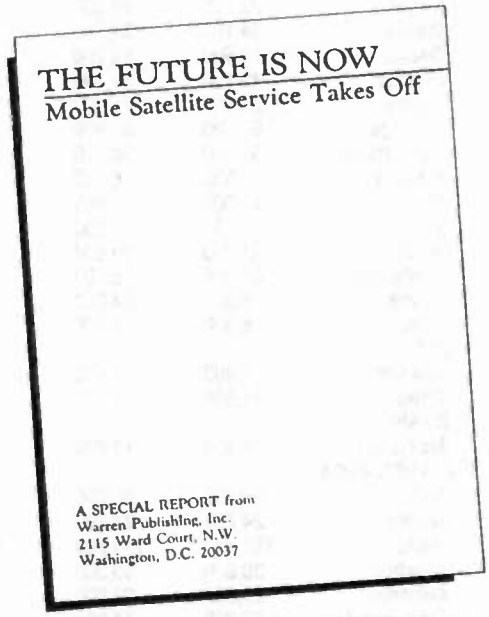
Mobile communications make a perfect fit with satellites. Although cellular communications work well in densely inhabited regions, the high cost of such services in sparsely populated areas prevents their more widespread use. To quote the Preface of our earlier Special Report, MOBILIZING THE FUTURE: The Evolution of Mobile Satellite Service, "MSS may have the brightest long-term future of any segment of the satellite industry because it is permanently immune to competition from cable, even fiber optic cable. The potential market—millions of cars, trucks, railroad cars, ships and aircraft—dwarfs any other satellite market."

Whether by land, air or sea, Mobile Satellite Service providers are racing to be the first to offer new services and fill-in coverage gaps across vast areas. Many thousands of vehicles in North America alone are already being serviced by C-band and Ku-band positioning and 2-way messaging. Aeronautical mobile satellite services have finally come alive and are jockeying for position to tap into previously untouched global airline passenger markets. Maritime mobile satellite services currently serve 9,000 shipboard terminals and it is forecast there will be 500,000 users of Standard-C mobile earth station terminals by the year 2000.

THE FUTURE IS NOW: Mobile Satellite Service Takes Off—another significant Special Report from the publishers of Satellite Week and Mobile Satellite Reports—offers you the real inside story of the explosive development of Mobile Satellite Service during the blossoming, MSS—active years 1988 and 1989 (actual coverage goes from January 1988 through January 1990).

THE FUTURE IS NOW shows you progress already made and alerts you to troublesome problems of the future...

Strong demand will certainly exhaust the 29 MHz of L-band spectrum assigned to MSS—what is being done to find additional band width?



What progress is being made toward the establishment of a voice-coding standard and toward the development of phased-array, low-profile aircraft antennas?

What new regulatory standards will be formulated and which regulatory barriers will be broken down?

THE FUTURE IS NOW will help you place in perspective this fascinating, mushrooming industry. Find out what happened when AND find clues to the future of MSS. Order your copy of this essential Special Report today! Only a limited number of copies have been printed.

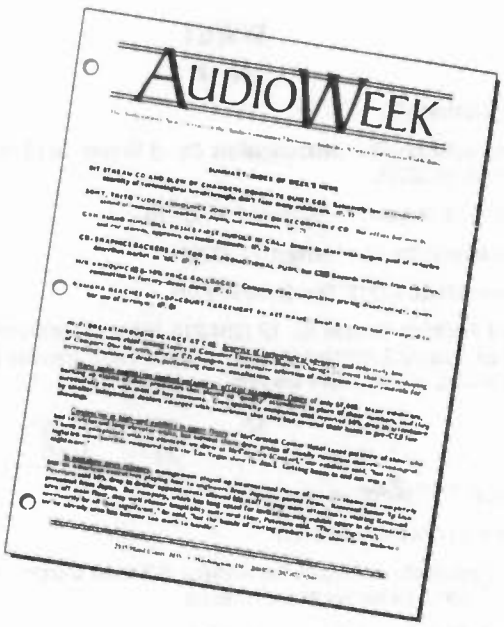
Become a Subscriber to the information service—from the publishers of Television Digest—that will keep you informed about the consumer AUDIO industry in less than 20 minutes per week...



AUDIO WEEK

Finally, your chance to receive focused consumer audio coverage. Coverage that's supervised by Television Digest editorial director Dave Lachenbruch, "recognized by those in the press and at the major hardware companies as the dean of electronics reporters" (Videography) and by Audio Week managing editor Paul Gluckman, formerly editor of Audio Times magazine. They lead a team of veteran correspondents in New York, Washington, Tokyo, Frankfurt and London, and bring you the same caliber of audio news coverage as has won Television Digest such widespread recognition in covering television, cable and video consumer electronics.

Audio Week's sole purpose is to inform you, the consumer audio decision-maker. Audio Week carries no advertising. Our intent is strictly to provide you with the one "must-have" information tool that will give you a leg up on your competition. Every week in Audio Week, you'll get up-to-the-minute coverage of all major audio issues. Forthright, hard-hitting, independent reporting! Audio Week is responsible only to its subscribers. Responsible only to you. Responsible for producing the facts, without coloration or outside influence. Just as we've done with our other information services for the 44 years we've been in business.

Audio Week is already developing a one-of-a-kind Audio Industry Index of Leading Economic Indicators with the help of The Verity Group, a noted Los Angeles-based market research and consulting firm. Audio Week and Verity systematically canvass a predetermined sample of audio retailers representing a cross-section of the industry, and report each week on various trends in unit sales, inventories and store traffic (the very information that has been so difficult to come by in the past!). Each week's Index offers insights into the ups and downs of major audio product categories. Audio Week also brings you the latest export and Commerce Department statistics. And plans are in the works for the near future to track factory unit sales and inventories as well.

11 WAYS YOU WILL BENEFIT PERSONALLY FROM SUBSCRIBING TO AUDIO WEEK...

1. You'll stay on top of your fiercely-competitive industry with weekly "focused" coverage.

2. You'll be part of a weekly forum of other executives who make audio their number one priority.

3. You'll be better informed—your business decisions will be more solidly based—your subscription will pay for itself again and again.

4. You'll get the news ahead of your competitors who depend on slower and less independent news sources.

5. You'll keep up with audio retailing week-by-week by following the Industry Index of Leading Economic Indicators that Audio Week will carry as a regular back-page feature.

6. You'll get weekly reports of personnel changes throughout the audio industry—you'll follow the careers of the movers and shakers.

7. You'll receive independent, provocative reporting from a publication supported only by its subscribers.

8. You'll be in touch with all major audio issues, providing you with an impressive and continuous grasp of your industry.

9. You'll take advantage of our wealth of editorial experience, sustained over nearly half a century of communications and high-technology journalism, giving you trustworthy information.

10. You'll receive comprehensive weekly coverage for a whole year at a cost that is probably less than you would spend for a very brief business trip.

11. You'll have the option of receiving Audio Week via first class mail or via electronic or facsimile delivery anywhere in the world on the day of publication.

Program an ad message here next year

Our most recent study of some 4,000 subscribers to the Television & Cable Factbook has shown that the programming section of both volumes of our industry resource is the second most used of all. It ranks just behind the sections on station or cable ownership in number of times to which it is referred.

Almost 80% of those responding to the survey were in the top six categories of job responsibilities: Chairman, President, Vice President, General Manager, Manager or Director. Television stations, cable systems and MSOs and equipment manufacturers and distributors comprise the largest segment of buyers of the Factbook...in fact, they account for about half the sales each year.

Programmers, advertising and consulting organizations also buy and use the Factbook regularly. And they buy it four out of five years. Most have been buying it an average of nearly 10 years.

Point is, if you want your advertising message to reach the key people who refer to this section daily or weekly every month of the year, you need to put the Television & Cable Factbook at the top of your media list. You'll reach some 23,705 different decision-makers and influencers who will refer to information in the Program Sources and Pay TV sections as many as 241,000 times every month. Your message will receive nearly 3 million impressions in the course of a year!

It makes sense to plan right now for a position in next year's book. A single page ad, spread, even inserts and specialty packaging can be a part of your media plan to reach the people in our business who say ''Yes'' and buy!

For a comprehensive media kit, to make reservations or for any information you'd like to have about the survey, contact Gene Edwards, Advertising Sales Director, 202-872-9200.
