Irreverance Marks MMVAs

Tuned In: The Tube™

By Carla Hay
chay@billboard.com

The MuchMusic Video Awards show has established itself as Canada's more spontaneous and irreverent counterpart to the nation's Juno Awards. This year's 14th annual MMVA event—which MuchMusic televised live June 22 from its Toronto headquarters—was no exception.

With two awards each, Avril Lavigne, Our Lady Peace and Treble Charger were the big winners.

Before going onstage to present an award, Lavigne dropped her pants. One handler then scribbled "MMVA" on Lavigne's bare bottom with a ballpoint pen.

Once onstage, Lavigne turned around and pulled down her pants to reveal a glimpse of the MMVA graffiti. She later performed a raucous version of "Losing Grip" to close the awards show.

Lavigne's "Sk8er Boi" video was honored with prizes for best international video by a Canadian and the people's choice award for favorite Canadian artist.

LAVIGNE: BOTTOM'S UP

Treble Charger's "Hundred Million" won the awards for MuchLOUD best rock video and best director.

Our Lady Peace's "Innocent" clip won best video and best cinematography. The group performed twice at the awards show, including the opening festivities.

Other performers were Ashanti, Michelle Branch, Disturbed, Sean Paul, Sam Roberts and Simple Plan.

About 6,000 fans gathered outside MuchMusic headquarters to watch the live performances. Inside, about 1,800 people mingled, including Mya, Sum 41, Glenn Lewis, Ray Romano, Rascalz, Swollen Members and Shawn Desman.

"Last year's show drew an audience on average of one-half million viewers per minute," MuchMusic GM/VP David Kines tells Billboard.

At press time, MuchMusic was unable to provide information on how many people watched the event this year.

A complete list of MMVA winners may be found at billboard.com/awards.

SCORSESE'S MUSIC DOCS: Acclaimed director Martin Scorsese is immersed in two high-profile music TV projects.

"The Blues," a documentary miniseries on blues music, will air on PBS this fall (see story, page 7).

In addition, Scorsese is directing a still-untitled Bob Dylan documentary that will air in 2004 or 2005 on PBS's "American Masters" series and in the U.K. on BBC. The biography will cover the years 1963 to 1966, and it will feature the first filmed Dylan interview in 20 years.

2003 MTV VMA SHOW: MTV has tapped Chris Rock to host the 2003 MTV Video Music Awards, which will be presented Aug. 28 at New York's Radio City Music Hall. Rock previously hosted the VMAs in 1997 and 1999. The latter show remains the highest-rated VMA event to date, with an 8.0 rating/14 share, according to Nielsen Media Research. Nominees for the 2003 VMAs will be announced sometime this month.

In related news, if you received a Phase 1 ballot for the 2003 VMAs and were wondering why the category for best new artist in a video was missing, MTV says it is because this year, the category's nominees are being selected by an internal MTV committee. The category will be on the Phase 2 ballots.

According to MTV, about 1,000 of these will be sent to industry members and pre-selected MTV viewers.

Additional reporting by Larry LeBlanc in Toronto.

A Summer Of Jam

ple will mark on their calendars. [It is] not so much driven by headliners," says Jonathan Mayers, president of New Orleans-based Superfly Presents, which co-produced the event with A.C. Entertainment.

Mayer admits his branding orientation was influenced by the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival. "People don't say they're going to see a particular band at Jazz Fest. They say they're going to Jazz Fest."

Still, some jam band fans prefer the intimacy of smaller, local gatherings.

AGAINST ALL ODDS

Against that backdrop, some think this will be a summer of natural selection for jam fests.

"I think a lot of folks feel it's easy to just throw a lot of money at a festival, buy huge talent and pull off a successful event the first year," says Mark Hays, president of festival producer Terrapin Presents.

"Is that possible? Yes, and Bonnaroo proved that in Tennessee," Hays continues. "But the odds are stacked against you. Unfortunately, the big events may survive, but some of the smaller ones may fall."

Festival producer Andrew Stahl of Gamelan Productions adds, "The learning curve is tremendous. You don't know shit until you go through it. You learn from your mistakes, or you're not going to be in business very long."

There have already been some casualties, including the Bonnaroo spinoff fest, Bonnaroo Northeast (Billboard Bulletin, June 11). The festival, which was to feature the Dead, Tom Petty, Bob Dylan and others, was scheduled for Aug. 8-10 at Enterprise Park in Riverhead, N.Y., but organizers apparently became skittish when Field Day, another festival scheduled for the same location, was forced to change locations at the 11th hour because of permit problems.

"When the dust settled [after Field Day], we told [county officials] we needed some immediate answers, and they couldn't provide them," Mayers says. "This was a tough decision, but the right decision."

Although organizers did not divulge ticket sales to Bonnaroo NE, the event had not sold out, which might have made the decision to pull the plug easier.

UNDER THE RADAR

Despite such setbacks, the jam scene remains vital. Festivals are the main avenue for exposure for most of the acts involved, as well as their best opportunity to make money.

"This scene is big and robust, and the demographic is perfect," Metropolitan's Scher says. "The record industry would be well-served to figure out why collectively millions of fans are buying tickets to jam bands, [but] only a fraction of them are buying records.

"In fact," Scher adds, "most jam bands don't even have major-label record deals."

Festivals routinely book outside their genre—witness soul titan James Brown and bluegrass trio Nickel Creek at Bonnaroo. But the main cast of characters remains relatively stable.

Bands such as the Dead, Widespread Panic, String Cheese Incident, Gov't Mule, the Allman Brothers Band, Karl Denson's Tiny Universe, Galactic, G. Love & Special Sauce, Deep Banana Blackout, Big Wu and others can be found on festival bills from coast to coast.

Sanctuary Records has taken note of the attention paid to these bands. The Sanctuary releases "Hittin' the Note" by the Allman Brothers and "Ball" from Widespread Panic have sold 103,000 and 61,000 units, respectively, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

Now Sanctuary has signed Blues Traveler and Ween and is said to be in talks with Galactic and G. Love & Special Sauce (Billboard Bulletin, June 23).

The reigning champ of the genre, even if tilted more mainstream than most jam bands, is Dave Matthews Band. The RCA act grosses $50 million annually from touring and seldom plays festivals.

Similarly, Phish—having returned from a two-year hiatus—headlines its own tours and festival.

Bonnaroo is by far the biggest of the multi-act fests, but there are plenty of other players, many of which have been around much longer than Bonnaroo. Most draw between 10,000 and 20,000 fans for a multi-day event.

Among them are Gathering of the Vibes in Waynesburg, N.Y.; High Sierra in Quincy, Calif.; High Land Jam in Elkins, W.Va.; the Northeast Kingdom Music Festival in Albany, Vt.; Endless Mountains Music Festival in Uniondale, Pa.; Floydfest in Floyd, Va.; the Berkshire Mountain Music Festival in Great Barrington, Mass.; and the Mid-Atlantic Music Experience in Lewisburg, W.Va.

And then there is the return of the legendary one-band Phish-fest, which sells out at more than 60,000 in each incarnation. In many ways, the Elektra act pioneered the modern jam fest model with its self-styled festivals, beginning with the Clifford Ball in 1996 and including the Great Went, Lemonwheel and this year's It—set for Aug. 2-3 in Limestone, Maine.

"We like to think that the Phish festivals are unique," says Dave Werlin, co-producer with the band of the fests. "Besides being centered on one band, the experience goes beyond what the band plays musically and encompasses a whole artistic vision and audience interaction, with a noncommercial aspect that is pervasive."

Phish manager John Paluska is among those who feel the market is becoming saturated. But he is confident that the Phish fest is safe.

"Our festival is so much a manifestation of the band's crazy ideas that it is a completely different vibe and experience. It is a very specific and fully fleshed-out vision."

Werlin adds, "Everybody's copying everybody, but we like to believe we're the groundbreakers in all of this."

Tickets for It are selling "very, very well," Werlin says. "We expect to sell out."

Bonnaroo got out of the gate early this year, selling out in 16 days on the Internet before many festivals ever went on sale. And all without the benefit of traditional advertising.

"That takes a lot of money out of the market," observes Buck Williams, agent/co-manager for Widespread Panic, one of the superstars of the genre. "Most of these festivals charge pretty much the same: about $125 for three days of music and camping. Kids can't do that every weekend."

Bonnaroo's numbers have not gone unnoticed, and several festivals seized the opportunity to promote their own events on-site through fliers, handouts and ads in the Bonnaroo program.

Mayers does not seem overly concerned about others riding the crest of the Bonnaroo wave.

"We need to be aware of what's out there, but we're staying focused on our own event," he says. "People look at our formula and try to build something [similar], but it's a tough market out there."

Of course, Bonnaroo did not pioneer the jam fest concept. The Grateful Dead is rightfully given credit for spawning the genre, Phish broke new ground in producing festivals and other multi-act jam fests existed well before Bonnaroo.

Gathering of the Vibes, for example, can be traced back to an event saluting the late Dead mastermind, Jerry Garcia. The festival, which drew 15,000 to upstate New York last year, has been around eight years under the Gathering banner.

"Our fans call themselves the 'Vibe Tribe,'" event producer Hays notes. "Our foundation has been to start small and build."

The first Gathering drew 3,500, and the event built to 27,000 in attendance for 2001. "Then we intentionally brought it down in size and scope," Hays says. "I think you lose the integrity of the event in larger numbers. There is a point of diminishing returns in regard to the quality of the vibe."

Likewise, Gamelan's Stahl started small with the Berkshire Mountain Music Festival in 1998. "It rained 20 inches our first year," he says. "We drew 1,000 people to see String Cheese Incident, Los Lobos, Galactic and the Funky Meters. I lost a tremendous amount of money. I ate a lot of mac and cheese."

The second year, Stahl says, he lost less, and last year the festival built to 10,000, which he considers large enough. "I've had opportunities to take it to big fields, but I think it would lose a little bit in aesthetics," he says.

This year, Gamelan debuts the Mid-Atlantic Music Experience in Lewisburg, having learned many lessons from Berkshire. "We found out that if you're in it just for the money and you cut corners, it can blow up in your face."

GOOD PROBLEM?

Some see the plethora of jam band festivals as a good thing. The artists enjoy hooking up with like-minded players and receptive audiences, and production and paydays are usually top-notch.

"I like playing [festivals], and oftentimes there are a lot of musicians to play with, in surprising combinations," the Dead's Weir says. "I was gonna sit in with Spearhead at Bonnaroo, but it took us three times as long as we expected to get there, so I couldn't."

According to Bonnaroo's Mayers, "Artists want to play here and people want to come and see something new. Obviously, music is the key ingredient, but so are all of the other elements, all of the surprises."

Weir's criteria for what makes a good fest is simple. "A good sound system—and it was at Bonnaroo," he says. "Plenty of water. And a diverse lineup."

Does he feel the market is saturated? "Not for my tastes."

Widespread Panic regularly plays the jam festivals but also performs at mainstream rock festivals and headlines its own tours. Such a wealth of opportunities presents its own set of problems for a band that makes its living on the road.

"We have to be careful and not compete against ourselves," agent/co-manager Williams says. "Sometimes you want to play something because it would be fun to do, but you have to think about your career."

Then again, that's not such a bad problem. "Lots of bands don't have as many choices and opportunities [to perform] as Widespread Panic," Williams says, adding that touring is the only outlet for exposure at Panic's disposal, outside of concert-tape trading.

"Live performance and the tape trading is our PR, and a band like Widespread Panic has to get their PR where they can," Williams says. "Rolling Stone and Spin don't care, although I don't see how they can avoid it."

THE 10 COMMANDMENTS OF JAM BAND FESTS

I
Thou Shalt Come Up With a Cool Name. Like Bonnaroo, Gathering of the Vibes or the Great Went.

II
Thou Shalt Secure a Boatload of Money. A first-rate festival costs millions to produce.

III
Thou Shalt Put Together a Staff of Professionals. The importance of experience cannot be overstated.

IV

V
Thou Shalt Secure All Permits. Clear the way with federal, state, county and local authorities. Avoid unnecessary surprises.

VI
Thou Shalt Nail Down Anchor Headliners. Three or four acts drive the train and provide instant credibility. Know your audience.

VII
Thou Shalt Create an Awesome Web site. The right site will generate traffic, move tickets and merchandise and provide all key information.

VIII
Thou Shalt Clean Up. If you want to come back, leave the area as you found it. Or better.

IX
Thou Shalt Be Prepared to Lose Money. Many festivals do not make money in their first couple of years. The stakes are extremely high. Don't lose your house.

X
Thou Shalt Cross Thy Fingers. Many factors, including weather, bad press, accidents, artist cancellations, traffic, politics and world events, are out of producers' control.

RIAA Executive Search

size of a house on anyone who's stolen the industry's ruby slippers.

No wonder the search committee is still looking.

"I think what they're looking for is a warmer, fuzzier Hilary Rosen," a fellow lobbyist says. "That's going to be tough."

Despite facing many huge issues, the incoming RIAA chief may be spared from pursuing any immediate legislative remedies, an RIAA spokesman says.

Much can be achieved outside the halls of Congress, thanks to the landmark cross-industry agreement in January among the RIAA, the Business Software Alliance (BSA), and the Computer Systems Policy Project (CSPP), the spokesman says.

The groups pledged to resolve differences without pursuing legislation on such issues as how content owners should be able to use technology to protect their property.

The signers include such BSA heavies as Adobe, Apple, Dell, Hewlett-Packard, and Microsoft, as well as CSPP members Intel, IBM, Motorola, and Unisys (Billboard, Jan. 25).

The agreement may prove to be one of the major achievements of Rosen's tenure.

Some insiders think that when better economic times come, the new RIAA leader may consider pursuing a full performance right in sound recordings. Under such a deal, traditional radio and TV would pay royalties to artists and labels in addition to forking over song royalties.

"Every other major country has one," says a veteran industry player here. "It would be a big fight, but if they had the money, why not try?"

Rosen plans to leave at the end of this month, when her contract expires, but will continue as a consultant for one year.

The original January departure announcement said she would step down "by the end of the year," but an RIAA spokesperson now says the phrase meant "at any time before the end of the year."

Rosen says she wants to devote more time to her family. Additionally, at press time it was learned that CNBC has hired Rosen as an on-air commentator, effective Aug. 1. She will be discussing politics on the cable network's Capitol Report and industry issues on the shows Power Lunch and Squawk Box.

Until a successor to Rosen is found, RIAA president/general counsel Cary Sherman will head the group, taking on the temporary title of CEO.

The search committee—which includes Sherman, Universal Music Group president/COO Zach Horowitz, and Sony Music executive VP Michelle Anthony—met June 17 in New York with the executive search firm Korn/Ferry International to discuss another round of possible candidates.

Sources say that none of the candidates that have been mentioned in published reports or industry circles are actively being considered for Rosen's job.

These include Reps. W.J. "Billy" Tauzin, R-La., and Jennifer Dunn, R-Wash.; former New York mayor Rudolph Giuliani; and TV anchor and former New York congresswoman Susan Molinari.

Victoria Clarke, who resigned June 15 as U.S. assistant secretary of defense for public affairs and Pentagon spokesperson, also has been mentioned. Before her Pentagon job, Clarke did outside public-relations work for the RIAA.

The committee has apparently not considered Rep. Mary Bono, R-Calif., who has some experience with the industry both as a lawmaker and widow of the late Sonny Bono. An aide to Bono told Billboard that the lawmaker would be interested in the job (Billboard Bulletin, June 13).

Like all RIAA executives hired in the past decade, Rosen came to the trade group without any record industry experience. She was one of the first execs hired by her predecessor Jay Berman, serving initially as the RIAA's first government relations chief.

In 1994, she was promoted to president/COO. When Berman left to take the chairmanship of the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry in 1998, Rosen was promoted to president/CEO. She got the chairman/CEO title in 2002.

Rosen's top-level bosses, the senior executives of the five major U.S. record companies, were quick to laud her tenure upon the announcement of her resignation in January (Billboard, Feb. 1). Rosen fulfilled the industry's agenda for dealing with mounting international trade and piracy concerns and free-speech issues.

Most important, she and her team convinced Congress that updated legislation was necessary to protect the industry's intellectual property in the digital age.

After a two-year effort, the Digital Millennium Copyright Act (DMCA) was enacted in 1998. The RIAA then used the new law to pursue copyright infringers on the street, in the backrooms of warehouses, and on the Internet at a time when peer-to-peer services fostered an explosion in piracy.

This aggressive agenda made Rosen the lightning rod for criticism from consumer and tech advocates who believe the DMCA tilts too much to copyright holders and should have offered wider fair-use protections to Web users and music fans.

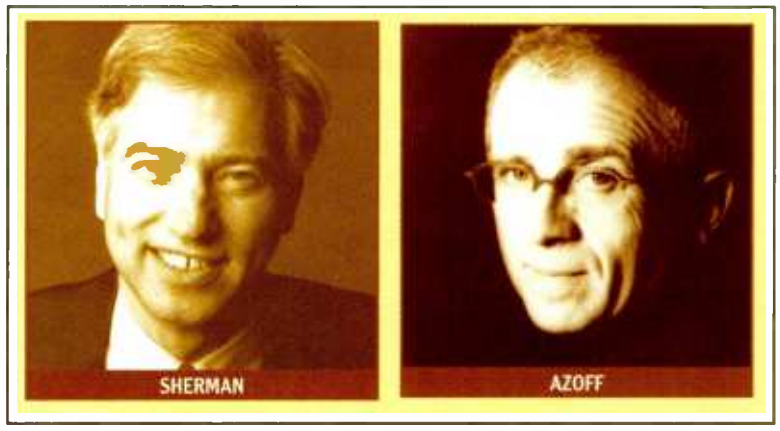
Manus Cooney, who worked with Napster's Washington, D.C., team after a career on Capitol Hill as the majority counsel for the Copyright Committee, thinks Rosen fulfilled the major job duty for the head of a trade group, which is to serve as a shield to protect the companies the group represents.

"They let her take the heat," he says. "Whether it was the marketing of inappropriate material to young people or suing online music services, you can't put all those decisions in the lap of Hilary Rosen. It's what the companies wanted." Cooney is now CEO of the Potomac Counsel lobbying firm.

Colleagues here describe Rosen as rough-and-tumble on the job, although in the past year, they have noticed a toned-down approach. According to those who experienced Rosen's in-your-face demeanor, the difference in style between her and her predecessor was apparent.

"Back then, we found her not to be all that effective for her client, because she was inflammatory, too partisan and confrontational," a former senior staffer on the House Judiciary Committee recalls. But with the passage of time, the source admits, "she's done a hell of a job."

For Rosen, a staunch advocate of First Amendment rights, one of the toughest times on the Hill was defending the industry's parental advisory sticker.



Lawmakers were pressing for a "one size fits all" sticker that offered parents specific warnings about inappropriate language or content. She also took fire when Federal Trade Commission reports revealed that record companies were marketing adult content recordings to minors and shouldered the effort to initiate some changes.

During Rosen's tenure, the RIAA's budget grew three-fold. It currently stands at about $43.6 million, holding steady since 2001, despite the downturn in member revenue in the past two years.

By contrast, the budget for the Motion Picture Assn. of America, which represents the major movie studios, was $41.3 million in 2001, the most recent year budget figures are available.

Rosen's reported salary is $1.2 million, plus expenses and bonuses.

"The downturn has clearly affected us," Rosen tells Billboard. "Obviously, it makes our job more focused and more important."

Rosen recalls the "significant layoffs" at the RIAA last year, where there were cuts affecting "about 15% of our staff. "What we did [subsequently] is to consolidate programs and drop certain activities like our marketing research arm.

"This year, though," she adds, "we've added more people to anti-piracy, particularly at the street level. But we don't have the resources to do the kind of things it would be nice to be doing."

That would include more public education about the value of music, a parental advisory label, and lyrics education.

"The majority of our resources are focused on piracy. And the legislative efforts are focused there too," she says.

Cooney says he does not believe the downturn in the industry has put the RIAA "in dire straits."

Now more than ever, he says, the trade group merits sizable funding. "Copyright law, the trade and international issues, are so much more critical to the workings of the recording industry that they can't afford to abandon Washington."

The traditional divide between the artist community and the labels has also dogged Rosen. She first ran into a hornets' nest when the group moved to change the copyright law to codify sound recordings as "works made for hire" and convinced lawmakers to insert a provision in an unrelated 1999 budget bill.

Rosen defended the action because in her view, it was just a technical change in the law.

Opponents claimed the change was substantial because it took away a right given to all copyright owners except those creating works for hire—the right to reclaim their works after 35 years of exploitation.

Rosen decided to step away from the controversy, and Congress repealed the change in 2000.

Jay Rosenthal, a Washington, D.C.-based co-counsel for the Recording Artists' Coalition, says in retrospect, "I do not believe Hilary is anti-artist at heart. But she never quite understood the depth of artist dissatisfaction, and perhaps that is why she felt betrayed by artists."

Last year, the RIAA and some of its member companies also angered artists with their efforts to keep in place an amendment in the California labor code that exempts recording artists from the state's seven-year limit on personal service contracts.

Eagles manager and former record label boss Irving Azoff says the industry made "a tactical error" in not embracing artists and getting them on their side in the fight over piracy, which is the biggest issue threatening their existence.

"Labels are getting clobbered and artists are getting clobbered," he says.

Artists Cold To Digital

such artists as Will Smith and Alanis Morissette.

Perhaps even more frustrating to the digital service providers and their consumers are the holes in the catalogs of artists that otherwise are available.

Sean Ryan, chief executive of listen.com, says the biggest content problem facing digital services is the "mishmash of rights that are available artist by artist, depending upon the artist's relationship with the label."

That means some artists' music is available for streaming only, some is for download only, some is download album only, and some just isn't available—even if it used to be. For example, Kid Rock's latest album, Cocky, was recently pulled from the digital services.

As a partial solution, the labels are looking for ways to make other content available for digital distribution while they hammer away at clearance deals with their holdout stars.

Consistency in clearing artists' material for digital distribution varies from label to label. Internet music executives say that success hinges on the strength of leadership inside the label, as well as its commitment to digital distribution.

BMG, for example, is winning praise from the digital services for its recent success in clearing music by key artists including Avril Lavigne, Britney Spears, Justin Timberlake, and Christina Aguilera.

A variety of acts, from today's stars—like 50 Cent and Norah Jones —to veteran entertainers—such as the Beach Boys—now have music available for sale in digital form.

While Apple has sold more than 3 million downloads through its Mac-only iTunes Music Store, the absence of such veteran acts as the Beatles and the Rolling Stones is increasingly conspicuous.

Industry hopes are running high that the pay-per-download business will morph into a mainstream phenomenon once it hits the PC market. That, they believe, may convince the biggest and best acts to be represented in digital services.

But exactly when music from missing A-list acts will be available for download—on sites other than unlicensed file-sharing networks like Kazaa—is anyone's guess.

Myriad financial, contractual, and creative issues are holding up commercial distribution of superstar content. This promises to continue for some time.

Not only do artists have less control over how the consumer experiences their music in the digital realm, but the economics are radically different as well.

Instead of divvying the spoils of a $12 to $18 CD sale, record companies, artists, and songwriters are vying for nickels and dimes from 99-cent downloads.

Artist representatives say that the hit to the bottom line is significant for artists in a singles-oriented model—especially for those writing their own material.

Rather than collecting songwriting mechanicals on as many as 14 tracks, plus an artist royalty on the album sale, payment is being parsed on a per-track basis.

Theoretically, the revenue will be made up by the volume of singles sold.

A Bite Of The Apple

independently distributed labels and free-standing, major-distributed imprints.

Attendees estimate that representatives of between 80 and 100 labels were among 200 people who filled an auditorium at Apple's Cupertino, Calif., headquarters June 5 for a presentation on iTunes (see story, this page).

Thus far, iTunes has only featured content from the major labels. But that may change quickly.

IGNITING AN INDIE BOOM

With Apple reporting download sales of roughly a half-million tracks per week, excitement for iTunes is high in the indie sector.

"When they roll this out on PC, they're going to have all this independent product," says a representative of one prominent indie label, who declines to be identified. "It's also going to be the holiday season . . . It's going to be an explosion. We want to be a part of that."

Los Angeles-based Lakeshore Records and Delvian Records in San Francisco, among others, have already pledged to supply content to Apple.

Sources present at the meeting say the terms offered to the indies were identical to those granted to major-label participants: a 65%-35% split of proceeds from the 99-cent downloads, favoring the labels, with payments every month.

A host of other services are expected to court indies and majors in similar fashion in the near future.

Microsoft is already showcasing a demo of its service to the labels, according to a recent published report in the Los Angeles Times. Microsoft declined to comment.

AOL is readying a digital singles program with integrated shopping functionality that is expected to bow in six to nine months.

Mtv.com and vh1.com, which are currently without a digital distribution partner, also expect to relaunch a commercial digital-music initiative this year.

Amazon, which sources say is looking into launching an à la carte store, has long maintained an interest in the download business.

Talk in the press of Amazon entering the digital music fray has been on the rise since the bow of the iTunes service.

To date, the e-commerce giant has held back on a download store, citing concerns about the quality of the user experience with existing digital rights management rules.

Amazon declined to comment.

SALES RECORD

The rise in the development of pay-per-download services comes as sales of digital downloads through iTunes are stabilizing.

An attendee of Apple's recent presentation for potential indie label content partners says Apple reports that iTunes is now selling about 500,000 songs per week.

In its first week, iTunes claimed it had sold more than 1 million downloads.

Apple also says it has sold more than 3.5 million songs through iTunes since the service launched in April.

In other chatter from the meeting, attendees say Apple reports that 45% of all songs have been bought as an album—which has helped the service sell more than 75% of the songs in its catalog at least once.

Apple also told attendees that 90% of sales through iTunes are one-click downloads, meaning consumers are storing their credit-card information on the service so they do not have to re-enter it with every purchase.

Companies targeting the PC market view the early performance of iTunes—which is only available to a limited segment of Apple computer users—as a potential sign of much larger demand there.

Indies Say They Like The Sound Of iTunes

Apple's iTunes Music Store is receiving high marks from independently distributed labels and free-standing, major-distributed imprints that have been briefed on the service.

Apple is looking to add music from indie labels to iTunes. It currently only has wholesaler agreements with the majors.

Apple chief executive Steve Jobs, the key figure in selling the iTunes concept to the majors, is taking a similar approach in the pitch to the independent community.

Jobs; senior director, office of the CEO James Higa; and other top company execs hosted a 2½-hour presentation June 5 outlining iTunes for an estimated 80-plus labels, according to meeting attendees.

SIVERS

Other guests included reps from technology firms and such industry organizations as the Americana Music Assn. and the Future of Music Coalition.

The independent sector is no stranger to digital distribution. Independent label content is distributed through services such as Liquid Audio, Emusic, and listen.com.

But Apple is not offering any upfront money for participation in its service—a motivator for indie label participation in other digital distribution offerings.

All the attendees polled by Billboard expressed enthusiasm for the iTunes system.

Indie-label observers who attended the demonstration praise the iTunes system for its one-click ease of use, its egalitarian treatment of content (no payment for positioning or banner advertising is allowed), its attempt to supply a comprehensive offering, its emphasis on exclusive tracks, and the freedom of use it affords consumers.

Brian McNellis, VP/GM of Los Angeles-based Lakeshore Records, says, "I went up there lukewarm" about iTunes. But, he adds, "I drove back from there, and it's a six-hour drive, and all the way back I felt like the top of my head had been unscrewed."

McNellis says Lakeshore has already signed its Apple contract to supply music to iTunes.

"This thing, it's more addictive than crack, and it's easier to use," McNellis says. "I can see people who haven't bought music in two years spending 200 bucks a month on music . . . When iTunes drops on Windows, it's all over."

Derek Sivers, whose online store, CD Baby, sells self-released albums by 38,000 artists, says the iTunes store "was only mildly impressive until I bought a couple of tracks. That's when you realize the magic of the one-click . . . It's amazing. It's so easy."

Sivers continues, "To me, the singularly most important thing was, 'We won't ever sell our space on iTunes.' Jobs said, 'Will we ever whore ourselves out? No.' "

Benjamin van der Wel, president of Delvian Records in San Francisco, will also supply content to Apple.

"We've been waiting for a couple of years for someone to come up with a system like this that really works," van der Wel says. "This is going to sell a tremendous amount of music."

Stephen Levy, president of Moonshine Music in L.A., says the iTunes store is "so far ahead of the game—even stuff that Kazaa promises to be, they deliver it."

While some majors are billing iTunes as an "experiment" because of minimal restrictions on consumers' ability to copy tracks they buy through the service, the indie labels are not voicing the same reservations.

Levy expresses no concern about the liberal use that iTunes allows: "I see it as being just another format. You can play pretty fast and loose with a CD right now. The premise they're operating on is that 90% of the people out there are honest . . . They're essentially treating the audience like they're adults."

Nancy Quinn, senior director of artist development at BMG-distributed Dualtone Records in Nashville, says, "We're very much looking forward to becoming a part of iTunes . . . [It's] legal, subscription-free, easy to use, everybody gets paid. There's finally a viable option for digital music consumers."

MCA Braces For Merger With Geffen

merger, and the long-expected naming of Schur as the new operation's head, have not been made but are expected soon. The MCA brand will disappear under the new structure, sources say, although MCA Nashville will retain its name and remain a separate entity under Luke Lewis.

A picture of the new company is emerging. The new Geffen, which remains part of the Interscope Geffen A&M (IGA) family, will be a standalone label with its own A&R, marketing, and promotion staffs. It will share some services with the other IGA labels and will still fall under the purview of IGA chairman Jimmy Iovine.

MCA came under Iovine's umbrella in mid-January after Boberg's departure. Boberg had reported to Universal Music Group (UMG) chairman Doug Morris, and UMG president/COO Zach Horowitz.

A number of executives are poised to join the entity, according to sources. Fred Croshal, former GM of Maverick Records, is expected to come aboard in a high-level marketing capacity.

Also headed to the label are Garnett March, former urban promotion executive at DreamWorks, who will head the R&B promo department, and former Interscope urban promo exec Chauncey Bell, who will be East Coast regional.

Among the top-level MCA staffers who are staying with the new company and possibly may take on increased roles are senior VP of sales and marketing Jayne Simon, senior VP of business and legal affairs Jeffrey Harleston, and senior VP of publicity Lillian Matulic.

Some artist managers say they have expectations for the new entity that weren't met by MCA.

Roots manager Richard Nichols stresses that the Roots rely much more on touring than record sales but adds that he hopes his act gets more attention than it did under the previous regime.

"They spent a lot of money on a lot of different projects, and it wasn't effective," Nichols says. "Some bands were underfinanced, and that's where the Roots fell. The Roots want to sell records, and, hopefully, we'll get the tools from them to do it."

Live manager Kurfirst has similar expectations, saying he hopes the new company "learns to become artist-friendly . . . I didn't think MCA cared very much."

One source says the transition period from Boberg's departure until now has been rocky. "Once Jay was gone, there was a certain amount of people who were fearful, and that kind of fear is paralyzing. For this to finally be happening is a big relief."

However, both Nugent and Wayne Isaak, manager of new MCA band Fiction Plane, have nothing but praise for the label.

"Even though a lot of staffers were waiting for the next shoe to fall at MCA, I found them extremely helpful," Isaak says. "We got a chance to tour and play shows, meet radio and retail; the publicity effort was strong. I'm sorry for the people who are leaving, but Jordan Schur has a tremendous track record as a guy who can break rock artists, and that's what Fiction Plane needs."

Schur inherits a struggling label, though it has a number of commercial strengths. The roster includes R&B powerhouse Mary J. Blige and pop/ punk rockers Blink-182, but the only current MCA act in the top half of The Billboard 200 is Live, whose Radioactive/MCA album, Birds of Pray, is No. 88 this issue. The Roots' Phrenology is No. 120, and new Drive-Thru/MCA act Finch stands at No. 134 with What It Is to Burn.

MCA's current album market share, according to Nielsen SoundScan, is 1.87% for 2003 year-to-date. Its overall market share, including catalog, is 2.21%.

Among the departing staffers are senior VP of promotion Craig Lambert, who had run MCA since Boberg's departure; CFO Paul Satenstein; VP of sales Mike Regan; and VP of marketing Jeremy Hammond.

One of the hardest-hit divisions was MCA's A&R department; the only remaining staffers are A&R execs Joel Mark and Charlie Adams. The high-profile departures include senior VP of A&R Gary Ashley and VPs Tom Sarig, Marc Nathan, and Hans Haedalt.

IGA representatives declined to comment on the changes but issued a statement June 9. It stated, "We have begun a restructuring process at MCA Records. Further details about the structure and staffing of the label will be announced shortly. We are grateful for the contributions made by the employees affected by these changes."

The Perfect Storm

But as hot as he is right now, concern is already running through 50 Cent's camp.

For one, at least one writer is questioning his image. He claims that the crack-cocaine epidemic that spawned gangsta rap has long passed and that 50 Cent's whole scene is more than a little contrived.

"At its core, the hubbub around Get Rich and the return of gangsta rap is crack-era nostalgia taken to the extreme," Ta-Nehisi Coates wrote in last week's edition of New York's Village Voice.

Of course, 50 Cent has nine bullet wounds to prove otherwise, but according to Coates, his "handlers have played the angle magnificently.

"The attempts on his life come up repeatedly in interviews, and 50 is happy to provide embellishment," Coates wrote.

Others note that those buying the music are mostly suburban white kids, who fantasize about gangsta life as they would about the X-Men and other cartoon characters.

And at this stage of the game, 50 Cent's management team has another worry: oversaturation.

"There is always that fear that we are doing too much," says Chris Lighty, chief executive of Violator Management, which handles 50 Cent's career. "But in reality, we haven't done anything but allow him to display his artistry."

Rock-solid talent is certainly part of the equation, but how 50 Cent became the breakout music story of 2003 is also a case study in hype and hip-hop's renewed obsession with thug violence.

Good timing and savvy marketing also played a role—not to mention a lot of luck. After all, his ticket to success was punched when he survived an assailant's wrath and those nine slugs.

Indeed, the incident marked a turning point in more ways than one. 50 Cent was shot in front of his grandmother's house in Queens in April 2000. While he was recovering, Columbia Records dropped him from the label.

After that, he began marketing his music on his own and other DJs' mix tapes (Billboard, Feb. 15). 50 Cent gained attention in the industry and among consumers, especially on the East Coast.

With an emerging fan base, a bidding war erupted. 50 Cent signed with Eminem's Shady imprint, which is aligned with Universal Music Group's Interscope label.

Interscope began its campaign with the release last summer of the single "Wanksta" from the 8 Mile soundtrack.

"I don't think anyone expected it to go this far, this quick," Shady Records chief executive Paul Rosenberg says.

" 'Wanksta' was a runaway hit. It happened really organically. Once it started to happen, we got behind it and put the official push on it," he says. "The market was so thirsty for a new guy like him that any one of his great mix-tape songs would have blown up for him as his first record."

By the beginning of 2003, Interscope followed "Wanksta" with "In Da Club," the first single from Get Rich or Die Tryin'.

"Moving on from 'Wanksta' to 'In Da Club' really made it official," Rosenberg says. "This was his first single with the big video. From there, the explosion started.

"I don't want to discount any of the initial groundswell that occurred from 50 and his camp," he adds. "They built a strong following for 50 on their own, mostly in the East Coast area. It was a foundation that 99% of the artists coming out now don't have. Beyond that, 'In Da Club' was the moment when we pushed the button."

The combination of the infectious, hook-driven single and video that featured a host of hip-hop heavyweights, including Eminem, Dr. Dre, and Xzibit, proved to be a recipe for success.

By early February, "In Da Club" was climbing the top 10 of the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart and The Billboard Hot 100.

The market was now primed for the album's release. The title sold 872,000 copies in its first week, according to Nielsen SoundScan—the best opening frame for any album this year.

The album's second single, "21 Questions," which features Nate Dogg, has kept up the momentum. It is now in its seventh week at No. 1 on Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks and in its third week atop the Hot 100.

In recent weeks, the rapper has had as many as nine singles on the Billboard charts at once, including "Magic Stick," a top 10 hit from Lil' Kim that features him as a guest artist.

According to Rosenberg, radio chose the latest single. "We were going to wait on '21 Questions' initially. We wanted [to] make sure that he didn't get too big, too quick, but we couldn't stop radio.

"They're going to play what they want to play," Rosenberg continues. "This is one of those rare albums where radio starts playing stuff because they know their fans want to listen to this artist. So they pick what they think should be the next single and run with it."

With all that under 50 Cent's belt, already there are signs that the second act could be a lot different from his first.

50 Cent's reported beef with Kenneth "Supreme" McGriff could well be over, or at least put on ice. McGriff, a convicted drug dealer under investigation for murder, was sentenced to 37 months in prison last week in Maryland for illegally possessing a handgun.

Federal investigators are looking into whether McGriff was involved in 50 Cent's shooting, according to court records.

But the rapper is still beefing with Ja Rule, who has been linked with McGriff through his record label, Murder Inc., which is headed by McGriff's childhood friend Irv Gotti.

Some close to 50 Cent and Eminem worry that the dispute could get uglier and possibly violent, according to published reports.

But Coates questions that. "Gangsta rap today is about as reflective of reality as, well, a reality show. And yet still it lumbers across the landscape of pop, shouting, 'I'm real.' "

Coates blames the record companies—and, by extension, 50 Cent—for "perpetuating the myth of black male violence" to sell records.

Interscope/Geffen/A&M chairman Jimmy Iovine is unfazed by the criticism. "That's always being said about television, movies, books, and records. That's just one person's opinion. I don't pay much attention to it," he says.

Apparently, major manufacturers are unfazed as well.

Last week, 50 Cent signed a long-term deal with Reebok to distribute the artist's collection of athletic footwear, the G-Unit Collection by Rbk.

In that role, the rapper sounds more like an advertising executive. The artist, Reebok says, will help develop an "integrated marketing and advertising campaign" for the shoes.

"Reebok's Rbk Collection is the real thing when it comes to connecting with street and hip-hop culture," 50 Cent said in a prepared statement.

Some wonder, however, whether the deal could be jeopardized if 50 Cent were to get caught in a flare-up of gang violence.

Still, the deal adds up to another success, and it could signal the emergence of a more buttoned-down 50 Cent. But either way, he is on a roll.

The artist is the top finalist for this year's Billboard R&B Hip-Hop Awards, where he will compete in 10 categories (see story, page 1).

Next, he will attempt to conquer the touring circuit with co-headliner Jay-Z on the Rock the Mic summer trek across America.

And if you ask his label, Interscope, this is just the beginning.

"In reality, we're only into our second single," says Steve Berman, Interscope's head of marketing and sales. "This album is deep enough to keep going strong through Christmas. That's our goal. We want to make sure that we do a great job on the tour and then setting up this record for the fall and going into Christmas."

Interscope sees the summer tour, which kicks off June 25 in Hartford, Conn., as an opportunity to create further excitement around the rapper. Advance ticket sales have been strong.

"The tour will create an explosion in every city it goes into," Berman says. "We want to be right underneath that with 50 and [his group] G-Unit. Not only selling both albums but setting up the streets for his upcoming projects—that will be the biggest pull."

Hip-Hop, R&B Finalists Named

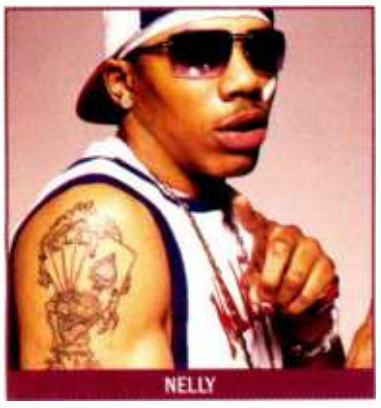
Urban Radio Networks R&B/Hip-Hop Conference. The gathering runs Aug. 6-8 at the Roney Palace in Miami Beach.

Close behind 50 Cent are Nelly, who is up for eight awards, and R. Kelly, a finalist in seven categories. Also up for multiple honors are Eminem (five) and the late Aaliyah (four).

50 Cent has been making chart headlines since the February release of his first Shady/Aftermath/Interscope album, Get Rich or Die Tryin'. With a tally now at 4.8 million copies sold, according to Nielsen SoundScan, the album debuted atop the Top R&B/Hip-Hop Albums chart and The Billboard 200, with 872,000 copies sold. That figure remains the best sales week for any album in the U.S. this year.



NELLY

The rapper's CD/DVD follow-up, The New Breed, also debuted at No. 1 on Top R&B/Hip-Hop Albums. It has sold 460,000 copies, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

Nelly is another contender for top R&B/hip-hop album and top R&B/hip-hop artist. His album Nellyville (Fo' Reel/Universal/Universal Motown Records Group [UMRG]) has sold 5.7 million copies, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

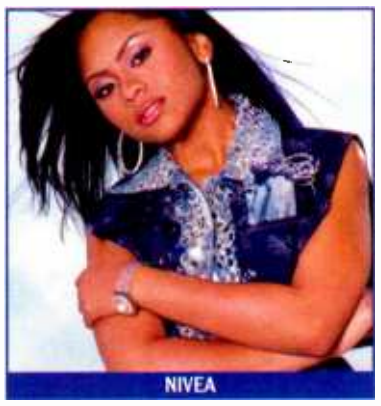
"This is really a blessing," Nelly says of his multiple honors. "It's hard to believe that [the St. Lunatics] are still receiving nominations for this album."

Jive/Zomba artist R. Kelly is vying for top R&B/hip-hop album award as well. He is also up for top songwriter and top producer. His Chocolate Factory album stands at 1.8 million copies sold.

"I am honored and appreciate my fans who have always supported me and my music," Kelly says.

First-time finalists include Amerie (for top new R&B/hip-hop artist and top R&B/hip-hop female artist) and Nivea (for top R&B/hip-hop single [sales] for "Don't Mess With My Man").

"It's one thing to dream about being nominated," Amerie says. "But to actually be a part of it . . . it's unreal."



NIVEA

"It's been a long time [getting this album to retail]," Jive's Nivea adds. "But when it happened, it really happened."

Thanks to its success with dancehall reggae artists Sean Paul and Wayne Wonder, VP Records is a first-time finalist for top independent label of the year.

"We've been having a good year," VP Records VP Randy Chin says. "Our partnership with Atlantic is part of the reason. Then there's reggae. It's been growing organically. But this year, it exploded beyond our expectations."

The Billboard R&B/Hip-Hop Awards comprise 17 categories. They are based on sales data from Nielsen SoundScan and airplay information from Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems.

Finalists, and the eventual winners, reflect the performance of recordings on the Billboard R&B/hip-hop and rap charts for the 12 months ending with the issue dated May 24.

Piracy Reigns As Hot Topic At MIDEM

"The heads of the record labels don't know what to do about it."

In a keynote speech, Berman retorted, "Despite what Robbie says, [piracy] is an issue on which, more than ever before, we must stand united as a sector if the music business is to remain vibrant and in the business of making music." He noted that although Williams seems to think piracy is OK, the Escapology CD carries copy-protection technology in most markets.

Williams was not alone in straying from the party line. The dissension between the creative community and the industry at large regarding the piracy issue was further underlined by comments from artists performing Jan. 20 at the British at MIDEM showcase. That event was sponsored by U.K. trade bodies the British Phonographic Industry, British Music Rights, and Phonographic Performance Ltd. R&B-oriented English singer/songwriter Geoffrey Williams expanded on Robbie's remarks. He told Billboard, "If my songs are going to be downloaded, that means a hell of a lot more people are going to know who I am.

"Maybe now that Pandora is out of the box, we should be looking for some way of working with the situation," Williams continues. "People are still going to download—you're not going to stop it. If they're downloading you, you've got good promotion: It's like bringing back word-of-mouth. But there's definitely a negative side to it as well."

ZILK

David Holmes, frontman of the Free Association—another act appearing at the showcase—was unconditional in his endorsement of the EMI superstar's remarks. "Actually, I'm all for [free] downloading," he said, "because there's a lot of poor [potential consumers] in the world that haven't got a pot to piss in. If I can make enough money to live, that's all that matters to me."

NEW FAN BASE POTENTIAL

That view is shared by Danny Hunt of British electronic act Ladytron. "Fair enough, they might not be buying our CDs. But it means that when we tour, people might have been turned on to our music from hearing it on the Internet, and that gives us a fan base that might not otherwise have existed."

Determined to express the devastating effect that piracy is having on the global music business, Berman reminded attendees that in the U.S., 225 retail stores are closing this month alone. "The people not getting paid are the people that make the music," Berman said, adding that the IFPI would be stepping up its public-awareness campaign about the dangers of piracy.

Rosen echoed Berman's stance, calling for more educational campaigns to inform the public that not paying for music online is illegal. "We found that people don't know their behavior is illegal," Rosen said. "We've been focusing too much on the illegal aspects [of what's available], instead of the legal parts. Therefore, it's important to educate people."

Keen not to dwell on the industry's problems, Berman continued: "Let us not overdo the pessimism. There are positive stories to tell. In Europe, local music repertoire is strong and diverse—particularly here in France, a market that has defied the downward global trend in the last two years."

That statement was backed up by the release during MIDEM of the French sales figures for 2002 by industry trade body SNEP. The French market posted a 4.4% rise in the value of music shipments to 1.3 billion euros ($1.39 billion), on the back of shipments rising 3.3% from 2001 to 171 million.

LADYTRON

"The recovery we enjoyed in 2001 was confirmed in 2002," SNEP head of economic affairs Antonie Cartier said, adding that the gains came despite a poor fourth quarter.

France is expected to surpass Germany and emerge as the world's fourth-largest music market when complete 2002 sales figures are available. SNEP director general Herve Rony cited the strength of local repertoire, which accounted for 58% of sales last year.

Meanwhile, though British independent labels exhibiting at MIDEM acknowledged that the event was somewhat subdued, they said they did not see a downturn in activity. "The fact that the weather's been so bad might have been good for business," Cherry Red Records managing director Iain McNay said, "because it's kept people in the hall." McNay said that his company, which had its most successful year in 2002, had taken some 40 meetings during MIDEM.

Graham Betts, A&R manager of reissue specialists Pickwick, said the company had a busy MIDEM, advancing deals and partnerships with a number of U.S. and fellow British labels.

Although senior U.S. industry executives were conspicuous by their absence, some 55 U.S. companies exhibited at MIDEM 2003, a figure second only to the U.K. total of 73. For the first time, a regional booth dedicated to U.S. independents, the California Pavilion, was in operation, representing the 41 indies in attendance. Most were West Coast firms, but a number of other American companies also took part, leading to plans for a more inclusive U.S. Pavilion at MIDEM 2004.

CHINA DEBUT

Also significant was the presence of the Chinese, who visited MIDEM for the very first time to deliver the message that China's music market is open and ready to welcome foreign investors to capitalize on the potential of the world's most populous country.

Daxin Zhao, GM of state-owned China Record Corp. (CRC), said his nation's acceptance in the World Trade Organization has led to strengthened copyright laws. The government is actively seeking foreign investors to drive China's music industry.

Pulay Talent Agency chairman Gary Chen said, "The music industry is a numbers game, and one thing that China has is huge numbers." But Chen added that China is missing two vital ingredients: specialist retailers and music publishers. He said, "There are tremendous opportunities for foreign partners in these sectors."

In a related development, Los Angeles-based consulting and licensing company AIM signed a joint venture at MIDEM with CRC to market the Chinese label's 60,000-title catalog in the U.S. and Europe.

Meanwhile, U.K. trip-hop band Morcheeba confirmed plans to tour China. The move follows an invitation from cultural-relations body the British Council, which is launching a series of arts events in China. Morcheeba's eight-date tour begins March 3 with two free shows in Chongqing (see Global Music Pulse, page 55).

Commenting on China's fledgling music market, MIDEM CEO Paul Zilk said, "The Chinese are delighted to be here. It's their first time, but they've already put forward a proposal to us to consider taking the MIDEM brand to Shanghai. We've also received a similar proposal from Jamaica, and it's a proposal I would like to explore—taking the MIDEM brand around the world."

Zilk reported that overall attendance at this year's MIDEM was down from last year's 9,000 to "between 8,700 and 8,800." The number of countries here fell to 92 from 94 last year, but encouragingly, the number of exhibiting companies was up 7.8% to 2,140, an increase of 155 companies from last year.

"We've also had more Americans than last year," Zilk said, "with the total number of U.S. companies up by 17% to 617, while Canada and Australia also had healthy increases of 24% and 33%, respectively.

"The music industry is going through a tough time, but the feedback I've had from people this year at MIDEM is that they are all still signing deals and doing business," Zilk concluded. "And I don't believe that MIDEM as an event has hit its potential, so we'll continue working hard with our partners in the city of Cannes to improve our service to our clients and create better value for the music industry going forward."

Copeland, Magic Slim Corner W.C. Handy Noms

BY CHRIS MORRIS

Singer Shemekia Copeland and singer/guitarist Magic Slim lead nominees for the 24th annual W.C. Handy Awards—which acknowledge excellence in the blues field—with five nominations apiece.

The Handys, mounted by the nonprofit Blues Foundation, will be presented May 22 at the Orpheum Theater in Memphis.

Copeland is in the running as blues entertainer of the year and contemporary female artist of the year; her group is up for blues band of the year, and her Alligator album Talking to Strangers was named in the blues album of the year and contemporary blues album of the year categories.

SLIM PICKINGS

Slim is competing for blues entertainer of the year; he was also selected in the traditional male artist of the year and blues instrumentalist (guitar) categories. His unit the Teardrops is up for blues band of the year, while his Blind Pig album Blue Magic was nominated in the traditional blues album of the year category.

Vocalists Solomon Burke and W.C. Clark and harp player/singer Charlie Musselwhite each collected four Handy nominations.

Burke and singer/guitarists B.B. King and Deborah Coleman round out the blues entertainer of the year field. Other nominees in the blues album of the year slot include Burke's Don't Give Up on Me (Anti-/Fat Possum), Clark's From Austin With Soul (Alligator), Musselwhite's One Night in America (Telarc), and Big Jack Johnson's The Memphis Bar-B-Que Sessions (M.C.).

Bob Dylan garnered his first Handy nomination in the blues song of the year category for "Stepchild," on Burke's album.

Handy nominees are selected by a committee of blues industry professionals. Winners are determined by Blues Foundation members and voting readers of blues-music publications and blues societies across the country.

Labels Hope To Dial Up Wireless Windfall

anti-piracy for the U.K., Ireland, and Continental Europe. "That 'now' culture is alive and well with the internet feeding it to people with PCs and broadband connections and so on. If the mobile phone can service that in a commercial way, then that could be a real win for us. That's the potential gold mine."

Universal Music International senior VP of strategic marketing and commercial affairs Bert Cloeckaert agrees. "Mobile phones are a huge business, and on the demographic side, for us it's certainly an extremely important business. It coincides very much with our core audience, who are using their mobile phones every hour of the day."

THE BOOM IN MOBILE USE

U.K.-based wireless-research company EMC forecasts that the number of mobile-phone subscribers in Western Europe will jump to 364 million in 2004 from the current 304 million. The number in Eastern Europe will leap to 76 million from 55 million during the same period and to 188.5 million from 148 million in North America. The Asia-Pacific region will surpass Western Europe as the largest single market next year, with more than 399 million cell-phone users there compared with the current 302 million.

U.S. wireless-content service provider Moviso states that 550 million consumers internationally will be subscribing to wireless entertainment by next year, increasing to 775 million in 2005.

Dominic Pride of Ear to Earth, a consultancy to the music and mobile industries, says: "The mobile operators have reached saturation point in terms of peer-to-peer [P2P] voice traffic and also peer-to-peer text messaging. The market going forward is in premium content revenue—picture messaging, music clips, and the like."

Explaining why the telcos are homing in on music, Pride continues, "Mobile operators are keen to look at music to grow average revenue per user, and they are looking to engage with the music business from two angles: The first is to use music as a tool for acquiring and retaining customers, and the second thing is to grow revenue from the user base."

One barrier to both the music and mobile industries reaping the benefits of these new markets is how to split the money.

Universal Music eLabs business-development director Dan Whiley tells Billboard, "In the U.K., the people I've spoken to at our company, as well as other companies elsewhere in the music industry, believe that if the telcos were not so aggressive about the revenue splits, the market would be much bigger. It's just not economically viable for us to do many of the services."

But Pride believes intransigence exists in both camps. "The mobile-phone companies and the music companies want to work together, but they work to different agendas, and they work to different time frames," he says. "If this relationship is to be fruitful, both sides have to understand more about the business models that each other has, and they have also got to show some flexibility."

Highlighting one of the major benefits of using mobile-phone technology, Gara comments, "For us, it's potentially a much more secure environment [than the Internet], as the culture of mobile phones is one of paying every time you touch the buttons. There are a few unique factors there that could make it a lucrative market."

MYERS

That's a point not missed by the dotcoms, which are also getting in on the game. Paul Myers, CEO of London-based P2P music-subscription company Wippit, says, "What we are hoping to do is offer our services as part of the mobile-phone service; it would still be branded Wippit, but it would extend our capabilities to reaching you while you are mobile.

"We are also looking at the possibility of doing streaming from one phone to another or [from] your PC to your mobile. So if we know you've already downloaded a song, there's a possibility you can actually stream everything you've downloaded to your PC onto your mobile phone. But it's very early days."

One company with which Wippit has already forged a link is Shazam, the U.K.-based mobile song-identification service that enables users to learn the name of a song and its artist when an audio sample is "tagged" from a mobile-phone handset.

Shazam marketing director Vijay Solanki says the company is developing its service to boost music sales. "Anybody who has tagged a track on Shazam can be sent a message reminding them when that particular track is released. As technology progresses, we will be able to say to people, 'Take this message into a particular retailer and receive a discount.'

"We are launching a new service [this spring] called SongMail," Solanki continues. "Basically, when you hear a cool new track in a bar or a club, for instance, SongMail allows you to send a 30-second clip of that track to your friends. Also we can target people who tagged certain tracks with that artist's next single, sending them a 30-second clip of the new single a day before it goes to radio."

MARKETING MUSIC CONTENT

One company acting as a middleman between the music and mobile-phone industries is wireless music player Musiwave. The Paris-based company has provided content to mobile-phone companies in seven European markets, including Vodafone, Europe's biggest operator; France Telecom and its Pan-European service, Orange; Spain's Telefonica; and Germany's Deutsche Telekom and its T-Mobile unit.

According to CEO Gilles Babinet, Musiwave is supplying such content as polyphonic ring tones and screensavers to Vodafone Live, the new multimedia service Vodafone is offering in Europe on the latest color-screened phones, which also have an integrated digital camera. Additionally, on some handsets made by French manufacturer Sagem and German company Siemens, subscribers to Musiwave's MusiTone service can download clips of full-recorded tracks.

With this scenario and the fast-growing ring-tones market, the music industry has started to generate income from wireless distribution.

Whiley explains, "The real market at the moment is in very simple technology—and this you have in the U.S. as well—like ring tones and also what are called interactive voice-response services, which are basically like your telephone banking procedures that ask you to 'press 1 to go here, press 2 to go there.' In our scenario, that's 'press 1 to listen to rock songs, press 2 to listen to pop songs, and press 3 to send that song to a friend.' "

Regarding the revenue that ring tones can generate, Whiley reveals, "Our company in the U.K. has just released a [dance] compilation CD [Clubland II], where every track on the artwork has a code allowing you to buy the ring tone of that particular track. Tens of thousands of pounds of ring tones have been sold so far."

For copyright owners, ring tones break down into both mechanical and performance rights. The mechanical right applies to the reproduction and download of a ring tone, while the performance kicks in during streaming and listening of the ring tone before it is purchased.

To date, most ring tones have been covers of original music, and fees have been paid for use of the composition only. Recently, more sophisticated polyphonic ring tones have emerged based on original sound recordings. These trigger an additional royalty stream, which the record companies can claim themselves or through such third parties as the U.K.'s Phonographic Performance Ltd.

"Where more direct business starts to come in is in the evolution of ring tones," Gara says. "Slowly emerging are actual audio ring tones that use the master recording, and that's where the intellectual property of the recording companies comes into play."

In the U.K., the Mechanical-Copyright Protection Society has collected "well in excess" of £1 million ($1.6 million) in mechanical fees for ring tones since 1999. The revenue has stepped up considerably during the past two years; for the first two years of the period, it had collected a mere £150,000 ($240,000).

Moreover, sister organization the Performing Right Society has installed a system for collecting royalties for the public performance of ring-tone tunes and calculates earnings of about £100,000 ($160,000) to date.

According to the new "Mobile Music" report from London-based telecoms-research company Baskerville—part of the Informa Media Group—authors' societies collected $71 million worldwide from ring-tone sales in 2002. This represented a 58% jump from $45 million in 2001.

BABINET

$1.5 BILLION FOR RING TONES

However, the fees taken by the collection societies appear to be a drop in the bucket when it comes to ring-tone revenue. Informa Media Group music analyst Simon Dyson says the total revenue generated from ring tones internationally could be as much as $1.5 billion last year, with the bulk of the copyright income going to dedicated composers whose works are not necessarily registered with copyright organizations.

Baskerville says the pricing varies from $1.83 per ring tone from mobile operator Vodafone in Australia to $1.55 from Orange in the U.K., 99 cents from Cingular Wireless in the U.S., and 33 cents via Telemig in Brazil.

The use of music should continue to increase, as telcos try to recoup their outlay on new technology. Europe's leading mobile operators have paid more than $100 billion for their third-generation (3G) mobile-phone licenses. They hope to pass along some of the cost to customers in the form of high-speed wireless Internet services on the high-resolution color display screen that 3G promises.

That massive investment is a bonus for the music industry, Gara contends. "Because so much money has been invested in licenses and all the rest of it, they've got to find ways to get that back. That's going to be about making mobile services in the broader sense all the more attractive."

But he is skeptical about the introduction of 3G having a significant impact soon. "The [launch] of 3G seems to be longer as a time scale, but the upside of that is that the companies seem to be getting more pragmatic about getting the best out of what they've got now."

NTT DoCoMo, Japan's biggest wireless-phone operator, proved there was a demand for Internet-enabled wireless content with the huge popularity of its iMode service on 2G phones. It is working with such European operators as Dutch company KPN to bring iMode to Europe.

NTT DoCoMo was also the first operator to launch a 3G service, Foma, in October 2001, although media reports indicate the take-up has been rather slow in Japan, with users complaining that the first 3G phones are too heavy and the battery life too short. This is a lesson that its European 3G counterparts, including Vodafone, France Telecom, Deutsche Telekom, and Dutch group KPN will have to bear in mind when they roll out their 3G services from 2004 onward.

The first 3G operator expected to hit European retail shelves is Hutchison 3G, a subsidiary of Hong Kong-based telco group Hutchison Whampoa. It has asked Moviso to provide licensed music for its services.

Gara adds, "One of the ideals that people talk about is delivering a short message that says, 'The new Radiohead single is out now, do you want it?' And you just click 'yes,' and it comes down the line into your phone. But in truth, moving big chunks of data [around] mobile networks is still a theory and not a reality."

Myers concurs, referring to Apple's portable MP3 player: "The ideal situation would be an iPod that can make phone calls or a phone with an iPod-type capacity built in. But in 2003, that isn't going to happen."

Looking ahead, though, Gara is confident that the building blocks are slowly falling into place. "If you look at the new [mobile-phone] handsets, their graphics capability is immensely improving, and the devices are all of a sudden becoming much more music-friendly, because the way music is marketed today is very much an audiovisual experience."

But Pride warns the music companies that they will need to be innovative to start reaping the rewards. "You can't just send out a prereleased clip and a picture of the artist and hope that is going to be a sustainable revenue model," he says. "[The music companies] have to get hold of the devices, look at how consumers use those devices, and give the consumers something they didn't know they wanted in the first place."

Can 'Chicago' Spell A Comeback For The Movie Musical?

The box-office figures for Chicago are already off to a spectacular start. In its opening weekend, the film's U.S. take was $2.1 million: a hefty number, considering its initial limited release in 77 theaters.

That bodes well for the movie musical, which had been considered all but dead since the 1970s. The long dry spell ended with the international success in 2001 of 20th Century Fox film Moulin Rouge and its accompanying Interscope soundtrack, which seemed to kick start the notion that movie musicals could experience a resurgence. It is inevitable that Chicago is being compared to Moulin Rouge. But the projects differ in many respects.

The Moulin Rouge soundtrack—which has sold 2.3 million copies in the U.S., according to Nielsen SoundScan—consisted primarily of cover versions of top 40 favorites from recent decades sung mostly by artists who did not appear in the movie. The Chicago soundtrack, inspired by the musical's Roaring Twenties-style jazz, is taking the more traditional route by relying mainly on the film's stars for its musical numbers. Chicago's top-billed actors—Renée Zellweger, Catherine Zeta-Jones, and Richard Gere—carry the majority of the soundtrack with their lead vocals. Queen Latifah and John C. Reilly, who have supporting roles in the movie, are also on the album.

WAKE

But both soundtracks feature an all-star cover song positioned as the breakout single. For Moulin Rouge, Christina Aguilera, Lil' Kim, Mya, and Pink teamed up for their version of "Lady Marmalade," which became an international hit and won a 2001 Grammy Award for best pop collaboration with vocals. The Chicago soundtrack includes an updated version of "Cell Block Tango (He Had It Comin')" from Queen Latifah, Lil' Kim, and Macy Gray.

While critics either loved or hated the flashy Moulin Rouge film, the critical reaction for the grittier Chicago has been almost universally positive. Adding to the accolades, Chicago leads the nominees for the 60th annual Golden Globe Awards, which will be presented Jan. 19. The film received eight nods, including best picture, best actress for Zeta-Jones and Zellweger, and best actor for Gere, all in the subcategory of motion picture musical or comedy. Chicago's other Golden Globe nominations in the motion picture category are best supporting actress for Queen Latifah, best supporting actor for Reilly, best director for Rob Marshall, and best screenplay for Bill Condon.

Set in the 1920s, Chicago focuses on wannabe cabaret performer Roxie Hart (played by Zellweger), who idolizes headlining entertainer Velma Kelly (Zeta-Jones). Through twists of fate, both end up in jail for murder and become rivals in their quest for fame. Gere plays their publicity-hungry attorney, Billy Flynn; Queen Latifah has the role of opportunistic prison warden Matron Morton; and Reilly is Amos Hart, Roxie's naïve husband.

QUEEN LATIFAH

Chicago is a captivating film that effectively wraps a movie within a movie: the reality of what happens in the characters' world, interwoven with the idealized version that plays out in Roxie's mind. The musical numbers spring from her imagination, in which she sees life as one big performance.

Chicago, the Broadway musical, came to fruition in large part because of late director/choreographer Bob Fosse, songwriter John Kander, and lyricist Fred Ebb. Inspired by a 1920s play of the same name, the Broadway show first opened in 1975 and has enjoyed a successful revival since 1996.

Miramax president of motion picture music Randy Spendlove says, "The diehard Chicago fans will appreciate how Rob Marshall has respect for Kander and Ebb in this movie. It holds true to the Broadway show, but he filmed it in a way that will capture a whole new audience."

CAN THESE ACTORS SING?

Critics and fans are clearly responding well to Hollywood's version of the Broadway material. But it remains to be seen if this enthusiasm will make a hit of the Chicago soundtrack, especially considering that the film's top-billed stars are not widely known for their singing talents.

Kander, for one, has confidence that the film's casting works for the music. "I'm kind of a snob about a lot of film performers," says the Broadway veteran, who has also written the music for award-winning stage musicals Cabaret and Kiss of the Spider Woman. "But what astounded me about the [Chicago] cast was that they could all sing and dance so well. They're all so terribly gifted that they could step into the Broadway production and do us all proud."

Chicago music supervisor Maureen Crowe says, "We recorded all of the vocals for 15 songs in a week, which is not a lot of time. The [cast members] all brought their own specific styles to the songs that came out of the individual characters and their experiences as actors. They were all outstanding. To work with all these talented people was a music supervisor's dream."

In addition to boosting the box office, industry insiders expect the film's star power to increase public awareness and drive soundtrack sales.

"Awareness for the movie Chicago is incredibly high, just based on the press it's been getting," says Anita Bond, GM of Tower Records in Sherman Oaks, Calif. "People have already come in the store asking about the soundtrack. The Chicago soundtrack has the potential to be huge, because I've been hearing how fabulous Renée Zellweger and Catherine Zeta-Jones are with the singing in the movie."

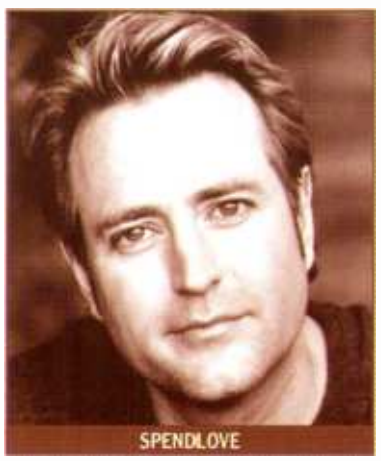
"I've heard a lot of good things about the movie," says Jim Ogletree, director of new releases for Norcross, Ga.-based retail chain the Music Network. "But I haven't heard much about the soundtrack. I think the soundtrack will only do well if the movie is a hit."

As for the stigma that many actors face when they start a recording career, Bond says: "People will think it's OK if someone like Renée Zellweger wants to sing, because it's part of a movie. But if she were to put out an album on her own, it might not be taken as seriously."

Zellweger says recording the songs for Chicago was "fantastically liberating. I didn't really grow up around musical theater or have any reason to sing except in the shower, having my brother down the hall screaming for me to please shut up. [For Chicago,] I worked on the vocals every day. It was like school . . . Chicago camp. In so many ways, collaborating with this extraordinary group of people was unbelievable."

While Zellweger had virtually no previous professional experience as a singer, Zeta-Jones first achieved fame in her native U.K. as a performer in musical theater, in such productions as Annie and 42nd Street.

"We had to get into the studio and record the songs before we even shot a frame of film, and it was like doing it live, like rock'n'roll," Zeta-Jones says. "I really enjoyed this whole experience. To think of how long people take to make albums, we were really quick. We were, like, banging them out. There's kind of an idea of musical comedy sometimes being fluffy, and the great thing about Chicago is that it's dangerous, it's sexy, it's kind of dark."



SPENDLOVE

Audiences may be most surprised by Gere's performance, since few fans are aware of his extensive musical background in theater. He also writes music and is an accomplished pianist.

Gere says of working on Chicago, "The idea of telling stories with music is an astonishingly healing element of life. As long as the form has that kind of archetypical way of telling your story, it's going to have a lot of weight."

Miramax's Spendlove—a producer on the Chicago soundtrack—says that the film's contemporary sound is vital to expose the music to a wider audience. He adds: "We took the original score and made it hotter and jazzier and really adrenalized the music. We wanted the whole film to be sexy and the music to reflect that."

As proud as the soundtrack's creators are of the album, the process of making it came with its share of challenges. Janet Jackson had done recording sessions for an original song for the movie, but those plans were canceled (Billboard Bulletin, Sept. 20, 2002). Miramax and Epic declined to discuss the cancellation.

So the responsibility of creating an original song for the Chicago film went to longtime collaborators Kander and Ebb. They wrote "I Move On," a duet between Zellweger and Zeta-Jones. Kander says "I Move On," used over the movie's closing credits and featured on the soundtrack, is a "tough song about survival."

"Class," which is in the stage version of Chicago but not in the movie, is also on the soundtrack. Kander says "Class" did not "quite fit the flow of the movie, so it was left out." In addition, the soundtrack features "Love Is a Crime," a new song from pop singer Anastacia, as well as instrumentals from composer Danny Elfman.

Epic senior VP of A&R Ric Wake, a producer on the Chicago soundtrack, says of the music: "We wanted to take it out of Broadway and get more out of it for the movie but still keep the jazzy feel. We wanted the right arrangements that would match the bigger-than-life view of the movie. I know a lot of people are cynical about actors trying to be singers, but this Chicago cast is amazing."

Epic VP of worldwide marketing Ceci Kurzman says that the label is releasing a Chicago promotional soundtrack sampler that will include the remake of "Cell Block Tango," "Love Is a Crime," "I Move On," and signature Chicago song "All That Jazz."

Kurzman adds, "All relevant radio formats will be serviced, including top 40, adult formats, and R&B stations. We want this project to have synergy between the film studio and record company, in the sense that the marketing of the film will emphasize that the movie is a vehicle for the music. We want people to think of the soundtrack as their souvenir to the film, as opposed to a one-single album."

The updated "Cell Block Tango" will be the soundtrack's emphasis track at radio, Kurzman says. For the new version, she adds, "we had to tone down the original lyrics, since they talk about murder." A music video for the song is due out early this year.

Miramax and Epic have joined forces in the promotion and publicity for Chicago, which will include a Chicago contest on E! Entertainment Television and its Web site, eonline.com; Chicago specials on VH1 and Starz; and appearances by the film's stars on Today, Live With Regis & Kelly, Dateline, Late Show With David Letterman, and The Tonight Show With Jay Leno.

A PLACE FOR MOVIE MUSICALS?

So will Chicago ignite a significant comeback for movie musicals? "I hope there's a resurgence," Kander says. "I think it depends on the talents of the people who bring these things to the screen."

Queen Latifah adds, "I'm hoping that with the success of a movie like Moulin Rouge, Chicago will have a place. I think it's been a long time coming for musicals to come back. I want that to happen, because I think it's good for business. And it's good for artists—not just actors, but singers and dancers. It gives you a chance to discover new talent."

Gere says there will be an interest in movie musicals "as long as they make money. Musicals became too tame, even on Broadway. They weren't as witty. They became like television with music, the widest-common-denominator kind of stuff. And I think as long as it's challenging and you feel like you're seeing something new and fresh, it will be alive. If it becomes a formula, then it dies, like everything else."

Kander concludes, "The music business and theater took separate paths in the 1960s. If soundtracks to musicals become popular again, a lot of it will really depend on the music business."

Blockbuster Sequels Ensure DVD's Sales Saga

WHV is helping build excitement for the product by releasing a number of Matrix projects prior to The Matrix Reloaded's in-store date, including a new $27.95 two-disc package April 29 that reissues the movie and The Matrix Revisited (a collection of behind-the-scenes material and other extras that was originally released in November 2001 as a stand-alone disc). On June 3, WHV unleashes The Animatrix, a group of computer-generated animation and Japanese anime shorts that delve into the world of The Matrix. The Animatrix is priced at $19.98 on VHS and $24.98 on DVD.

"The dual theatrical release window and the video products are being released fairly rapidly," WHV executive VP of worldwide marketing Mark

ALDER

Horak says. "It helps build momentum to a super level without stringing the fans along for too long and lets retailers get behind the property and maintain their interest."

Retailers also expect great things from New Line Home Entertainment's The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers. The title, which will be released in multiple versions starting this summer, is top-of-mind because of its box-office success and recent Academy Award nominations, including nods for best picture and best visual effects. According to Billboard sister publication The Hollywood Reporter, the fantasy film has earned more than $325 million in the U.S. since its Dec. 5, 2002, opening.

Part one of the trilogy—The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring—was New Line's best-selling DVD of 2002, moving 11.3 million units, according to the company. The strategy of releasing multiple versions of the film, starting in August 2002 with the theatrical edition and ending in November with the release of an extended edition and a collector's set, will likely be mimicked with The Two Towers, according to New Line senior VP of marketing Matt Lasorsa. "We had such a difficult message to communicate with our dual-release strategy, so to alter that in any kind of way will be confusing. I think consumers will still have different options this year."

Peggy Munnagle, movie merchandise manager for the Minneapolis-based Best Buy chain, says, "The Two Towers will be huge. It has a great buzz going for it, and it will be released right before the third one is in theaters." The Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King, which completes the trilogy, will debut theatrically Dec. 17.

Another WHV title, Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets, also has magical powers for retailers. WHV says it has earned more than $260 million at the box office, and it will arrive April 11 on DVD ($29.95) and VHS ($24.99). The two-disc DVD includes 19 additional or extended scenes; cast interviews; a tour of the Chamber of Secrets, Dumbledore's office, and Diagon Alley; and 15 DVD-ROM-accessible extras.

Alder says, "Warner has done such a marvelous job to treating Harry Potter [and the Chamber of Secrets] to a full campaign" that he thinks the title should be a big draw. WHV will soon launch a broadcast, print, online, and radio advertising campaign, and spots will play in theaters.

The first Harry Potter film—Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone—sold 6 million units on DVD in its first sales week last May, according to WHV. The fifth installment in the book series, Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix, is expected June 21.

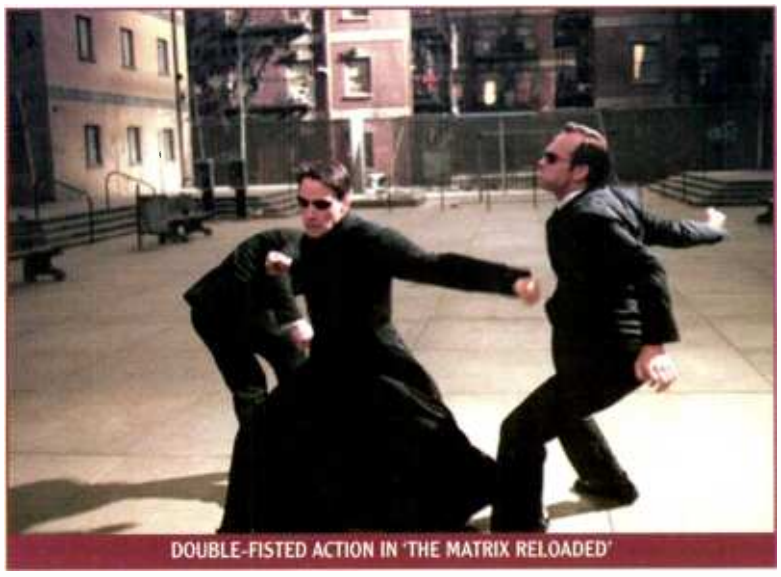
MORE COMING ATTRACTIONS

There are other film sequels coming to theaters this year that retailers expect to make a splash when they are released on DVD later in 2003 or early 2004. Among those they anticipate doing well are Columbia TriStar Home Entertainment's Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle (hitting big screens June 27) and Bad Boys II (July 18), MGM Home Entertainment's Legally Blonde 2: Red, White & Blonde (July 2), Paramount Home Entertainment's Lara Croft and the Cradle of Life: Tomb Raider 2 (July 25), Twentieth Century Fox Home Entertainment's X-Men 2 (May 2), Universal Studios Home Video's 2 Fast 2 Furious (June 6), and WHV's Terminator 3: Rise of the Machines (July 2). The latest movie in the James Bond franchise, MGM 's Die Another Day, is slated for a second-quarter DVD release.

Munnagle says she is "interested to see how 2 Fast 2 Furious does theatrically. This doesn't have Vin Diesel, but there's a lot of expectations for it."

Stefan Pepe, group merchandising manager for amazon.com's DVD/video store, says X-Men 2 is one of his top picks. "A lot of these sequels have had very successful first releases in theaters and on DVD," he notes. "We are reintroducing customers to product that they are already interested in."



DOUBLE-FISTED ACTION IN 'THE MATRIX RELOADED'

NOT A SEQUEL? NOT A PROBLEM

Though there are fewer non-sequel titles cited by retailers as potential top-sellers this year, they note that theatrical favorites and Oscar-nominated projects from 2002 are likely to pique consumers' interest throughout the year.

For example, the just-released My Big Fat Greek Wedding (HBO Home Video) is expected to be a strong seller. According to The Hollywood Reporter, the independent project starring Nia Vardalos has earned more than $240 million at the box office.

"We anticipate that it will do well, given the amount of buzz surrounding the movie," Pepe says. "We think it will be big throughout the year."

Pepe also favors the outlook for Catch Me If You Can (DreamWorks Home Entertainment) because of its box-office strength (more than $159 million so far, according to The Hollywood Reporter) and Chicago (Buena Vista Home Entertainment [BVHE]), because of its 13 Academy Award nominations.

LASORSA

Both are expected on DVD by the end of the year.

The Eminem vehicle 8 Mile, set for a March 18 release by Universal, is also a favorite of retailers. The inclusion of an exclusive music video is expected to drive a lot of store traffic (Billboard, Feb. 15). Retailers are also banking on Universal's The Hulk, which will be in theaters June 20. Universal home-video president Craig Kornblau says that a massive marketing campaign, including an "event-style" launch in the fourth quarter, will support the DVD.

While studios agree with retailers' picks for 2003, they hope consumers will endorse a number of other films. For example, BVHE expects DVD customers to greet its new Pixar film, Finding Nemo, with great interest this fall. It will reach theaters May 30. Columbia TriStar tips Maid in Manhattan, set for a March 25 DVD release, as a key title this year. DreamWorks is banking on Road to Perdition (Feb. 25 on DVD) and The Ring (March 4). Fox thinks consumers will be excited by Daredevil, which has just been released theatrically, and the Russell Crowe project Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World, which will debut in theaters June 6. Both are expected on DVD this year.

Bowling for Columbine from MGM may also make an impact upon its May 13 release. New Line says Final Destination 2 may be a top-seller by year's end. Paramount's The Hours, which garnered nine Academy Award nominations, and the current theatrical hit How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days also hold promise for 2003. Universal will also offer Jim Carrey in Bruce Almighty, which will be in theaters May 23, and Seabiscuit, debuting at the box office June 25, in the fourth quarter.

KEY CATALOG PRODUCT

A few highly anticipated catalog titles are also likely to make waves. BVHE reports that the DVD debut of The Lion King is expected this fall. On VHS, the title has sold 31 million units—the most individual units a video has ever sold, according to BVHE.

BVHE president Robert Chapek says that given the requests for the title on DVD, it may be "the king of all DVDs this year." He also expects the March 25 DVD release of Who Framed Roger Rabbit? to pique consumers' interest as a two-disc, Vista series DVD set ($29.99).

Cynthia Lin, spokeswoman for the Bentonville, Ark.-based Wal-Mart chain, notes that when Disney releases one of its classics on DVD, "it just flies off the shelf. These are films popular with adults and kids, and people want to keep them in their libraries."

Additionally, retailers are hopeful that the Indiana Jones trilogy (Paramount) will be released on DVD this year. On amazon.com's "most-requested DVDs" section, Raiders of the Lost Ark ranks third, Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade ranks fifth, and Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom ranks seventh. The Lion King ranks sixth.

"The Indiana Jones titles have a lot of interest among consumers," amazon.com's Pepe says. "I anticipate that if they are made available, they will do very, very well."

Paramount would not comment on any DVD release plans for the long-awaited Indiana Jones films.

In addition to theatrical catalog product, retailers also believe that the TV-on-DVD category will grow in 2003. For example, Virgin's Alder picks C.S.I. Crime Scene Investigation: The Complete First Season (Paramount) as a top draw among his customers. He says, "We're going to see some growth in the category this year, with all of the interesting product coming out."

Retailers also say that Angel: Season One (Fox, Feb. 11), Friends: The Complete Third Season (WHV, April 1), *M*A*S*H*: Season Three* (Fox, Feb. 18), The Osbournes: The First Season (BVHE, March 4), and Six Feet Under: The Complete First Season (HBO, Feb. 4) could be among the year's top-selling TV sets.

With the Los Angeles-based DVD Entertainment Group predicting that DVD players will be in more than half of U.S. homes—more than 55 million—by the end of this year (Billboard, Jan. 18), there is reason for such optimism about this year's software offerings. "I think we'll see growth over 2002's numbers," Pepe says. "The great selection of titles, combined with the fact that DVD-player sales continue to grow at a steady pace, will lead to a healthy sales year, year over year."

Radio Execs Battle 'Bad Rap'

Channel did not launch a third hip-hop station in Miami to serve a new audience but to take a bite out of a market segment already served by two other stations. "You don't have a God-given right to the airwaves," she said. "They are a public trust."

Brett Sokol of Miami entertainment weekly New Times pointed out that "radio has gotten an incredible free ride for decades." Only in the past year or so have "a handful of media outlets" shown some teeth in portraying today's corporate, consolidated radio environment. Until now, "a vast amount of writing on radio has been puff pieces." Sokol also felt it was to be expected that as the radio industry becomes bigger and more consolidated, it is going to attract more media attention.

Entercom VP of programming Pat Paxton encouraged radio to develop a relationship with the local and national consumer press. Sokol urged PDs to get on the phone with the press and suggested that they use less jargon. "If a writer is calling you from a mainstream paper, try and put things in a manner as if you were talking to your listeners."

MONEY MATTERS

Levin's contention, first seen in a recent Herald story, that "payola of one kind or another largely drove what got on the air" in Latin radio diverted the panel to a discussion of whether monetary considerations rule music decisions and whether those considerations constitute payola. Co-moderator Daniel Glass, president of Artemis Records, said he remains shocked by "the somersaults and flips we'll have to do" to get airplay. With a new Pretenders album and tour in the wings, stations would call for 10 to 20 pairs of Pretenders tickets but would not play the new album. But Glass was outspoken in his defense of independent promoters, saying that he believed they were "music purists" and sometimes "more effective than label promotion people."

Paxton acknowledged, "There's no question some stations will add a record for the wrong reasons, but there's bad people in every industry." Like other broadcasters, Paxton said he cannot be expected to turn down an independent promoter who pays "$100,000 to $200,000 [per year] to talk to us for 15 minutes a week." But Barnes called it "dubious" to suggest that a promoter pays $100,000 a year solely for a series of 15-minute phone calls. The promoter pays for the relationship, and, Barnes suggested, the radio station gets the money to mitigate the risk of playing unfamiliar music.

So are labels going to make the independent promotion issue moot in 2003? At the seminar's opening panel, "The VPs Speak," Warner Bros. VP of promotion Dale Connone said, "We are cutting back on indie deals. We'll still pay for a good relationship, but it's not like it was the last two years. I'm not going to pay an indie if they don't even talk to the PD."

Universal VP of pop and crossover promotion Dave Reynolds said the expense of indies will be the next-to-last item cut; it is not going away until it is otherwise necessary to cut a label's own staff. But he also said that spending on indies "will diminish if they are ineffective. I actually had one indie say to me, 'Dude, I'm just the toll taker.' We need to just say no to them."

Even without the indies, radio may take it upon itself to push for label money. Cumulus is attempting to take its independent promotion deal in-house, and Connone says he is willing to spend more money marketing through radio directly; the label is planning a Madonna campaign that will address her traditional problems in callout research with a series of spots that will precede the release of the single.

Reynolds also brought up the challenge of reaching the next generation of record buyers. He said his 10-year-old daughter "get[s] her music directly on the Internet. She can choose what song and which artists she wants to hear, when she wants them. She doesn't have to wait to hear them on the radio. So how are we as labels going to reach those consumers? There is an entire generation out there who doesn't care about radio or, in essence, what we do in promotion."

Yahoo's Frank challenged radio to look to the other media that are attracting radio's potential audience. "I haven't heard production that has changed much in the last 10 years," Frank said. In contrast, he pointed out that Fox integrated elements from the John Madden football videogame series into its coverage and saw ratings increase.

Bringing new listeners into the tent was also on the minds of PDs at the Feb. 8 mainstream top 40 panel. One particularly vivid reality check came from Clear Channel/Miami regional VP of programming Rob Roberts, whose teenager, despite a lifelong legitimate access to free music, has downloaded more than 800 MP3s—the point being that it is not about CD prices being too expensive but the hobbyist's enjoyment of finding and downloading new music.

WBLI Long Island, N.Y., PD J.J. Rice agreed, citing a story he recently heard from a record exec about a child going to school where everyone was bringing in burned CDs to share. When the exec gave their child a brand-new CD to bring in, the child balked, saying that it's not cool to bring in commercial CDs and that they would be picked on if they did. And WKZL Winston-Salem, N.C., PD Jeff McHugh said he sensed some cynicism from listeners, who ask if Eminem is paying the station to play his songs so often.

Even among listeners still amenable to radio, there are increasing problems maintaining a mother/daughter coalition when, in the words of KMXV (Mix 93.3) Kansas City, Mo., PD Jon Zellner, "adults think we're for kids, and kids think we're not cool."

Finding the best ways to serve the audience also commanded the three hours of rock sessions Feb. 7. Whether it is shows by such developing bands as Midtown or AFI selling out in Austin or computer-savvy listeners calling in for songs that they've downloaded, modern KROX Austin PD Melody Lee said that the audience is super-informed and the average listener does not know or care about an impact date—they just want to hear music they are passionate about.

The proliferation of new acts at rock radio means a need for nurturing more of them past that first chart record. Panelists agreed that it is sometimes hard to develop new acts because of label priorities and all of the traffic at radio. Archway Broadcasting Group's Brian Krysz, VP of marketing and programming, faulted labels for quick turnover without artist development. "When I started in radio, there were 80 acts that had more than four songs that would be heard on a radio station," he said. "There's maybe 30 now. That's because A&R will sign a band for one song."

Modern WPLY (Y100) Philadelphia music director Dan Fein said that bands need more than a song—they need a face. Be it performing at one of his station's live "Sonic Sessions" shows or staying after a show to sign autographs, artists that get larger have worked to make that happen.

For R&B PDs, the battle among heritage Miami R&B outlet WEDR, rhythmic top 40 WPOW (Power 96), and newcomer WMIB (the Beat) was symptomatic of what they are going through in their own markets. Increased competition between both stations and owners was addressed during the "The Battle for Miami" panel.

Damon Williams, PD for cable TV provider Music Choice, stated that if everyone is playing the same music and you have all these other choices besides radio to hear music like "satellite or cable or Internet, and you have a competitor, what makes people want to tune in to you instead?"

Mark McCray, PD of WMBX/WJBW West Palm Beach, Fla., adds that when he is with his girlfriend driving in the car, she's "hitting the buttons on the radio dial whenever a jock talks too much or a song comes on she doesn't know. We as programmers need to understand the way listeners actually listen to us and what's important to them."

Consolidation was also a concern discussed at the panel "Who Took the R&B out of R&B and Hip-Hop?" Clear Channel/Memphis director of urban programming Nate Bell explained, "I can't play Luther Vandross, because he needs to play on my adult R&B, KJMS; I need to drive listeners there. If I'm playing him on my mainstream [WHRK], what reason do listeners have to tune in to KJMS?"

Adult R&B WHQT Miami PD Derrick Brown said most companies now plan that way: "You think in terms of cluster." Sister WBHJ Birmingham, Ala., PD Mickey Johnson added, "We even have a new term when we talk about programming strategy . . . 'cluster cooperation.' That means the whole cluster needs to work together and not compete."

Arista Records VP of promotion Ce Ce McClendon said labels are to blame. "Somewhere along the way, we lost the artist development of R&B acts and lost being able to market them to the next generation, and that's totally our fault."

Meanwhile, country programmers were feeling positive about their format's state. Asked if country music could possibly be in the middle of an unrecognized boom right now, attendees at the "Country Community Caucus" session seemed to universally agree that it is.

SAME SETUP

With all the high-profile, late-2002 releases generating so much media attention, KILT Houston assistant PD/music director John Trapane said "it's the same setup" as the early '90s, when country began to take off.

"The stars are lining up again like they did in '89-'91, leading up to the boom years," WKIS Miami PD Bob Barnett agreed. "There are a lot of young women who can drive the format up again. Are we prepared to take advantage of them because we're so safe and tightened down?"

Epic/Monument Records senior VP of promotion Larry Pareigis noted that in those boom years, Garth Brooks "left a huge footprint. Maybe now we're just getting out from under that footprint and looking around and realizing we have all these great artists."

Trapane said, "Country is our own worst enemy," because it builds stars up, then "beats them down."

"You can't play Faith Hill and Shania Twain, but you're reaching out for Kid Rock and Bruce Springsteen?" Harnen asked rhetorically. "Why is that?"

Part of the discussion centered on whether country, with so many records crossing over to AC, is growing the AC and top 40 stars of the future. Grantin said the abundance of pop crossovers suggested to him that pop formats are "searching for hits" and that those hits are "right here" at country.

But Barnett said he is "fundamentally opposed" to country acts crossing over to other formats, because when they do, country loses its "exclusive reason for listening" among consumers.

Consultant Jaye Albright said, "If we stop playing songs just because they get popular somewhere else, our cume is going to go down . . . If we get too elitist and refuse to play certain things, we're going to limit our success."

KZKX Lincoln, Neb., PD Brian Jennings said he will take ownership of crossover acts in his market this spring with a billboard campaign patterned after the "Got Milk?" ads that asks, "Got Faith? Got Chicks?"

Country radio consultant Larry Daniels cautioned against going too far in the pop direction. "Country has a unique sound," he said, "and I honestly feel that if we lose our uniqueness, we won't be as big. I have to ask myself when I hear 'Cry' and [Faith Hill's] latest one, 'Is it country?' A lot of people will say, 'Does it matter?' I think it does."

"Everybody in country is always trying to protect what country was," Harnen said. "That's the death of any artistic [genre]." Harnen decried the programmers' tendency to call labels and say, "I want something different, as long as it fits right here."

Praise And Worship Blessed With Global Growth

praise and worship genre has doubled in units sold. In 1997, the sales were about 2.2 million, and in 2002 there were sales of 4.5 million units."

Often referred to as "vertical music" because the songs are sung directly to God as praise, the worship-music movement is a global phenomenon with especially active communities in the U.K., Australia, and the U.S. During recent years, sales have been spurred by such factors as aggressive marketing, increased distribution avenues, and because a number of major contemporary Christian artists have recorded worship albums, providing star power to what was once predominantly a faceless, concept-driven genre.

"It is definitely one of our best-selling genres," says Bob Rush, senior music buyer for the 322-store, Grand Rapids, Mich.-based Family Christian Stores chain. "We've seen huge growth over the last three years."

The genre is not only faring well in the Christian retail market. "We're seeing an upside. It is growing," says Jim Stella, Christian music buyer for the giant Trans World Entertainment chain. Stella says artist-driven worship projects by Michael W. Smith and Third Day are the genre's top sellers.

For many years, the majority of praise and worship albums were live recordings of church services with a worship leader directing the congregation. Integrity, Maranatha, and Vineyard have long been the leading labels in the genre, marketing song-driven rather than personality-focused titles.

But in recent years, top artists with worship records on leading contemporary Christian labels have included Rebecca St. James, John Tesh, and trio Phillips, Craig & Dean, in addition to Third Day and Smith. In fact, of the top 10 praise and worship albums last year, six were by individual artists. Smith's platinum-selling Worship album (released Sept. 11, 2001) was the top-selling praise and worship album in 2002 and has sold 1.2 million units; the follow-up, Worship Again (released Oct. 22, 2002), was No. 3 for the year, with 393,000 units sold. (All sales figures are from Nielsen SoundScan.)

"I love it," says U.K. worship leader Matt Redman of the Christian pop/rock acts that have cut worship albums. "In fact, I found Michael's Worship album one of the most inspiring things I listened to last year. But that's not surprising, in that he's been leading worship for years at his home church."

Songwriter/worship leader Lenny LeBlanc, (who had a '70s pop hit, "Falling," as part of the duo LeBlanc & Carr) sees increased participation as positive. "I believe artists like Michael W. Smith and Third Day are recording worship products not so they can sell more records but [because] I believe their hearts have been so touched by the Lord that they desire to see all people experience God's presence and know him in that same intimate way."

DAVIS

Georgia rock band Third Day helped redefine modern worship with its guitar-driven Offerings album, which has sold 716,000 units to date. Essential Records will issue Third Day's Offerings II—All I Have to Give March 4. "We want to challenge people," Third Day's Tai Anderson says. "Musically it's a little more intense than what they are used to hearing on Sunday morning, and I think it's going to attract a whole rock audience."

For 20 years, Don Moen has seen the impact of praise and worship music in his dual role as a songwriter/worship leader and as executive VP/creative director for Integrity Media. "The one thing that differentiates the praise and worship genre is it does encourage participation from the listener," he says. "Not that you can't sing along with the contemporary Christian song, but many times in praise and worship, the message is more interactive between man and God."

Former Gospel Music Assn. president Frank Breeden agrees. "Praise and worship is the most honest expression of Christian music," he says. "It's out-front, confessional, and expressive Christian music, and if you're not an adopter of the faith, not a member of the home team, you can't fake this."

FROM PEWS TO CD PLAYERS

Long before the influx in artist-driven worship records, marketing directors at praise and worship labels devised methods for moving product that do not rely on radio or other traditional means of promotion. "In an artist release, they have to focus on the face and the tour and the name and the artist. With us, we focus on the song," says Randy Alward, GM/COO of San Clemente, Calif.-based Maranatha Music. The 31-year-old company recently opened a Nashville office and hired veteran Christian publishing executive Steve Rice and producer Phil Silas to helm the new operation.

ALWARD

"Maranatha is a publisher, a song-focused company first and foremost, because we are about the songs," Alward says. "It makes concept records much more acceptable when people hear the song and learn the song. There's over 180 million Christians who go to church on any given Sunday morning that are singing."

For Maranatha, which is distributed to the Christian retail market through Provident Music Distribution and to the general market through WEA, making church leaders familiar with Maranatha product is key. "We have thousands of churches on our database that we send not only prereleased copies to, but we also send free copies of our music to churches and primarily to worship leaders," Alward says. The label also offers its repertoire for sale via its Web site.

The Internet has proved to be a valuable tool for praise and worship music, because church leaders and the average consumer can avail themselves of the music. EMI Christian Music Group has been successful with its worshiptogether.com site, which offers a library of downloadable sheet music, interviews with worship leaders, bible studies, worship service planning tools, links to Scripture reference material, and other resources. The site has more than 130,000 registered users.

As vital as the Internet has become, brick-and-mortar retail continues to move praise and worship product. Integrity is preparing to launch a promotion with the Hastings chain. Maranatha is doing an exclusive 10-CD series with Wal-Mart titled Sanctuary, which will launch in May. "Wal-Mart and Target are making assertive efforts to turn a significant portion of their shelf space to Christian music," Alward says, "and because of the growth of praise and worship, they've really been receptive to new product."

Valerie Davis, director of Christian Booksellers Assn. marketing for the 25-year-old Vineyard Music label, admits there are challenges to moving concept-driven product in a personality-focused world. She says Vineyard founder John Wimber's vision "was not to elevate the worship leader but to elevate the Lord, but on the other hand people want to connect with people." She says that in the past year or so, "I've gotten permission to get a little bit looser with promoting worship leaders like Brian Doerksen, because you really want to know when you are buying a worship album what flavor you are getting."

McGuffey says direct mail traditionally has been a strong avenue for marketing praise and worship music: "Early on, we perfected the art of marketing and packaging our product through direct mail." But he says with the general decline in the direct-mail business, Integrity needed to try other media.

In addition to Songs4Worship (which has spawned several product-line extensions, including the Songs4Worship—Devotions, Songs4Worship—Gospel, and Songs4Worship—Kids series), Integrity has seen success via TV marketing with the iWORSHIP brand, which debuted last fall. "Each CD is a double-CD with approximately 33 songs, and then each double-CD represents five individual DVDs which are released with seven songs each from that product," McGuffey explains. "So we have two in release right now and three more coming out in the next six months, DVD-wise. We have a songbook and individual accompanying tracks to the songs, as well."

McGuffey says iWORSHIP is a "retail brand. We use TV as a driver for retail. It's sort of the same model that they use for [the] Now! That's What I Call Music [series]. We initially ran about 10 weeks of 60-second and 120-second spots on national cable outlets from Fox to Court TV to MSNBC to Pax to ABC Family."

Integrity is distributed to the general market through Epic and to the Christian retail market via Word. "We felt like if the brand got out in front of consumers it would do well, and we were right," Epic Records Group VP/GM Steve Barnett says of iWORSHIP. "We really believe in this genre. We see tremendous growth potential, and we're committed to it."

ZSCHECH

Touring has also helped strengthen worship music in the marketplace. A multi-artist cast took the Songs4Worship brand on tour in 2001. Last year, one of the most successful Christian outings was the pairing of Michael W. Smith and Third Day for the Come Together and Worship tour, which was sponsored by Chevrolet. That tour will continue with West Coast dates this spring. Additionally, Integrity is launching an iWORSHIP tour in March featuring Moen, LeBlanc, Chris Tomlin, Lincoln Brewster, Darrell Evans, Paul Baloche, and Sara Groves.

In addition to those types of tours, worship music is also an integral part of Christian conferences and such events as Women of Faith and the Christian men's group Promise Keepers, for which Maranatha has been providing the music for 10 years.

GLOBAL WARMING

The growth in the praise and worship genre is not limited to the U.S. One of the most visible faces in the movement is Australian worship leader Darlene Zschech, who wrote "Shout to the Lord," one of the most popular and frequently recorded worship songs. "There is a hunger for truth on the earth," Zschech says, "and as is historically a fact, a musical revolution often voices the desire of humanity."

Among the popular worship leaders in the U.K. are Matt Redman, Graham Kendrick, and the band Delirious, all of whom also have international followings. Redman says of his native U.K.: "It's one of the places this renewal in worship music started."

Redman also cites U.S. releases. "Louie Giglio, Chris Tomlin, David Crowder, and Charlie Hall are writing some of the freshest and deepest material I have heard in a while. That stuff has started to fly all around the world, and we've been majorly impacted by it in the U.K."

Moen says praise and worship songs quickly spread around the globe through use in churches and worship events. "When I arrived in the Philippines for the first time, we had all the press and cameras," he recalls. "It was a huge deal, and I remember thinking, 'Why are these people here?' I had never toured there—but guess what? The songs had toured there."

The labels obviously realize the international potential. Integrity has offices in Singapore, London, and Australia; Vineyard has offices in Brazil, New Zealand, South Africa, Holland, Germany, the U.K., Scandinavia, and India. "It's really neat," Davis says, "because they are all doing recordings of what is coming out of their areas."

Not that there will be a shortage of U.S.-spawned releases this year. In addition to Third Day's Offerings II, Phillips, Craig & Dean just released Let Your Glory Fall Down, and singer/songwriter Twila Paris will release House of Worship March 11 on Sparrow. And the next installation of the popular WoW series, WoW Worship Yellow, is due March 18 on Reunion, with seven new songs.

Country's New Reality: Stars Without Label Deals

and 29 gold albums, as well as 154 top 10 singles, including 49 No. 1 hits. Mike Dungan, president/CEO of Capitol Records' Nashville division, says he's been approached by many of the country free agents looking for new deals but can't offer them what he says most are looking for. "A lot of them have good, solid fan bases and solid touring," Dungan says. "If all they were looking for was national distribution, that could be profitable, but I haven't found that to be the case with any of them. They all want to be back on the radio. They want to be visible at retail."

That gets costly in a world where Dungan says even a gold seller is often now a money-loser. "It's nothing to spend $100,000-$200,000 at radio for a single," he says. "If you play the game the way the majors play the game, it's very expensive."

DUNGAN

Some of these acts are still viable and will likely find new major-label deals down the road. Others may follow the lead of numerous other contemporaries—also gold and platinum sellers in the '90s—who have either signed with such smaller Nashville labels as Audium and Dualtone, gone outside of Music Row (as Kathy Mattea did in signing with Navarre), or formed their own labels. These artists—with 17 platinum and 25 gold albums among them—include Joe Diffie, Dwight Yoakam, Steve Wariner, David Ball, John Berry, Sammy Kershaw, Doug Stone, Tanya Tucker, Lari White, and Mattea.

Not all of country's free agents are still actively pursuing record deals, particularly if they continue to make a living on the road. In a December 2001 interview with Billboard, Morgan said, "It's really not pressing to find a label right now. If one comes along, amen. We're not closing our ears and eyes, but we're not frantic about it, because I'm working and getting shows and have for the last two years without a label."

For the rest, whether they can land a new deal with a major is, in Dungan's words, "simply a matter of economics." For Capitol and other labels, he says, the top criteria in deciding who to sign and who to keep on the roster is "if the artist you're looking at has a chance to sell platinum or better, then it's worth it." Dungan also says that "the economics are such that there is no more leeway for vanity projects" or for keeping artists on the roster for sentimental reasons.

For artists whose sales have dropped off, "You have to have a strong A&R person and/or label head who is fighting to hold onto that artist for a little longer," says artist manager SheliaShipley Biddy, the former head of Decca Records. "[But] unless they are achieving top chart success and selling records . . . even the strongest label head and A&R head can only fight the passion battle so long. Then, it comes down to profitability."

Renee Bell, senior VP of A&R at RCA Label Group (RLG), says, "As long as an artist is making hit records—meaning, having hits at radio and, more importantly, selling records—they will have a record deal. [Labels] only make our money on record sales, so if an act is not selling, especially for several years in a row, it makes it almost impossible to keep them on the roster."

Scott Siman, president of Rpm Management, says, "With marketing costs growing, the number of sales [needed] to justify going forward [with an act] goes up. The cold hard truth is sometimes a label has to let go [of] an act that sells a couple hundred thousand to make room for a new act that might sell a couple of million."

While the list of country free agents suggests that the format chews up and spits out hit artists at an alarming rate, it is also clear that there are plenty of country acts that have achieved longevity at radio and continued to sell records for their major-label homes. Every up-and-comer aspires to have a career like that of Alan Jackson, Brooks & Dunn, Tim McGraw, Kenny Chesney, George Strait, or Toby Keith.

Gill is one of those artists who has enjoyed impressive longevity. He points out that the '90s were hardly the norm for the format, calling that decade "the biggest boom in the history of country music, sales-wise. Because the business had exploded, [you could have] a hit or two and you would sell platinum." Still, Gill has concerns about today's country music industry. "I don't think there's enough attention being paid to the longevity of artists these days."

RADIO'S FICKLE FINGER

Dungan agrees that radio and the industry as a whole "certainly seems a lot more fickle. It's a here-today-gone-tomorrow, what-have-you-done-for-me-lately attitude. Having a couple of hit singles doesn't guarantee any facet of the business is going to support you on the third one."

BIDDY

Among the key factors explaining why so many once-popular artists lack label deals is the significant decline in the number of country labels in Nashville. Local operations that have shuttered in recent years include Atlantic, Asylum, Giant, Virgin, Rising Tide, A&M, MCG/Curb, Curb/Universal, Decca, Imprint, and Almo Sounds. And most of the remaining labels' rosters are significantly smaller than they once were.

BELL

High turnover in label personnel may also be a factor. "With the label business in the state it's in, there is not much room for loyalty," artist manager Mike Robertson says. "Often the people at the top that enjoyed the financial success with some of those artists are no longer there. When the new people look at the deal, they may see a large recording fund and soft sales."

Siman, who manages Tim McGraw and several other country acts, points out that "the number of acts a label can work has gone down based upon several factors, [including] less staff . . . and the ever-increased time period to break singles and establish new artists [at radio]. When I went to work at Sony in the early '90s, we could work 10 to 14 artists per label. I think that number is probably closer to six or seven these days."

SIMAN

Industry veterans offer other explanations as to why so many once-popular country acts no longer have record deals. Manager Gary Borman, president of Borman Entertainment, says there is "only one reason: They don't sell records. It doesn't necessarily have to do with talent or the amount of people that love their music; it just has to do with . . . record sales."

The criteria for keeping a deal, according to David Corlew, president/CEO of Blue Hat Records and Corlew Music Group, is a simple formula. "You have to have success at radio. Your sales . . . have to be in that 500k-plus [range], and you better not stumble . . . The minute they stumble, they're gone, especially if the airplay is not translating to retail."

CHURN AND BURN

For Borman, whose clients include Faith Hill and Lonestar, the bigger issue is why some acts no longer sell records in significant numbers. He cites a variety of potential reasons. "For some, the muse has simply moved on. Some may have become exhausted by the business process." Among other factors: "Consumer tastes changed, research deemed their music unplayable, they keep making the same record over and over, [or] they self-destructed or forgot their job is making music for their audience."

The churn and burn in the country format, Siman thinks, has always gone on but is "more noticeable [now], because more acts are getting the axe who sold a decent number of records. Periodically, I look at the charts and wonder who on that list will be gone in a year. It's the cruel nature of our business."

"Our format had an incredible number of artists that broke through in the early '90s," Robertson says, pointing out that those artists are "now 10-12 years into their careers. As we have continued to break artists, and chart space and shelf space at retail have shrunk, something had to give. It seems that only our multi-platinum superstars from that era had enough sales insulation to protect their deals. Unfortunately, some true artists wound up without a place to record."

Radio consultant Keith Hill says "tastes change. The face and sound of country continues to evolve, and some of these acts simply got left behind."

For consultant Joel Raab, "the attrition is normal. Most of the [free agents] are 'B-level' acts from the early to mid-'90s, and they have a shorter life cycle than 'A' acts. There needs to be a natural evolution in order to keep the format fresh."

Dungan agrees. "Every artist, at some point in their career, runs the last lap. Even their fans say, 'I have seven or eight albums by this artist. Do I really need another?' "

"Certainly, if an act could sell enough records, the pure greed within this fine free-enterprise system would ensure that some imprint would have them," Hill says. "[The] bottom line [is a] lack of long-range vision. Loyalty to artists is something that only happens when you sell a bunch of records."

KMPS Seattle PD Becky Brenner takes a more positive spin. "While it is sad for the industry," she says, "I do not think it is a negative commentary on the format. New artists have come along to take their place. Country is hotter than ever in Seattle. We have had success [lately] in selling albums for Rascal Flatts, Keith Urban, Chris Cagle, Pinmonkey, and others. Acts like this are less expensive for the label and still sell albums."

ROBERTSON

So is country—where artists could once count on longevity after a few hits—now cycling through artists as fast as other formats?

Bell says, "We sign our acts with a career in mind, not for short term, and 99% of the time we stick with an act as long as we can—as long as it financially makes sense for us."

But Corlew thinks the churn and burn of country artists is at "an epidemic stage." And the bottom line, he says, is that "great artists . . . are losing their deals."

From a manager's perspective, Robertson says, "I believe you have to manage careers like anything over eight years is a gift. In that window you need to create a financial and creative parachute for your client . . . The days of having hits, getting your music positioned at retail, and touring every year for 20 years is gone but for the rare few."

Nevertheless, Brenner is hopeful that longevity is still possible for country acts. "We find that the audience still wants to bond with the artist," she says. "If all we are turning out [are] one-hit wonders, then we lose the sense of family that has always been a strength in country music."

Synch Deals Boost Latin Acts

are making much more money in synch uses than in sales."

Kinky's "drama" is not uncommon. In today's difficult sales environment, synch-licensing opportunities in film, TV, and advertising—as well as corporate branding deals—have become increasingly important in all genres of music.

"Record sales keep declining, and publishers need to have additional sources of income," says Iván Alvarez, VP of Latin America for Universal Music Publishing Group (UMPG).

Lynette Brehm, who heads Univision Music Publishing in Los Angeles, adds, "The potential earnings for a well-placed song in a major film can easily surpass mechanical royalties from record sales."

While the synchronization of Latin music is nothing new, publishers and labels have seen synch opportunities multiply in recent years, thanks to the growth of Spanish-language media, film, and advertising and to the mainstream market's increasing willingness to license Latin repertoire.

"On a scale of one to 10, we're at an exploitation level of four," EMI Music Publishing Latin America regional managing director Nestor Casonú says. He confirms that the number of opportunities for Latin repertoire, from ring tones to Hollywood films, is rising—and becoming more lucrative.

"Nowadays, the fees are important," he adds. "Not previously, because the Latin market was measured as a local niche. Now, people who would have paid $50,000 for a synchronization may pay $100,000-$150,000."

POPULATION EXPLOSION

The reason for the leap, quite simply, is in the numbers. According to the U.S. Census, Hispanics are now the largest minority in the U.S., with a population that has exploded from 21.9 million in 1990 to 37 million in 2001. According to the Assn. of Hispanic Advertising Agencies (AHAA), the Hispanic advertising industry has grown at an average rate of 19% per year during the past three years. Ad spending on the Hispanic market rose from $333 million in the mid-'80s to $2.52 billion in 2001, according to a study by Magnet Communications.

Still, according to an AHAA study, the leading U.S. marketers spent an average of only 3.2% of their advertising dollars targeting Hispanics. The study, titled "Missed Opportunities," indicated that that number almost doubled the average of 1.8% allocated in 1999.

The increased spending means that some agencies can now afford to license a well-known track instead of commissioning a jingle, which can be done at a fraction of the cost.

General Motors, for example, reportedly paid a six-figure sum to license the Bacilos track "Mi Primer Millón" (My First Million) with newly recorded lyrics for use in a Corvette campaign.

Other high-profile examples of Latin acts in recent national ad campaigns include Enrique Iglesias, who performs his single "Don't Turn Off the Lights" on a Doritos campaign (for Spanish and English TV); Shakira, who has a significant deal for Pepsi ads in English and Spanish; Mexican diva Thalía, who is featured in a Dr Pepper campaign; Maná, whose track "Muelle de San Blas" (The San Blas Dock) has been featured in a Coors beer campaign (Coors also sponsored the act's concert tour); and Fito Paéz, whose track "Y Dale Alegría a Mi Corazón" (And Give Happiness to My Heart) was used for a Coca-Cola campaign.

Recognizing the potential, Warner Music Group (WMG) is putting together a synchronization sampler of Warner acts and Warner/Chappell songs that will be sent to ad agencies nationwide.

"It will include tracks that we deem priorities for us," Warner Music Latin America senior director of strategic marketing Carlos Tabakof says. The joint synchronization sampler, he says, "will add opportunities with a more homogenous price structure, so there isn't a big gap between the master fee and the publishing fee."

Similarly, Universal Music Publishing, Latin America, has what it calls a "quick synch" sampler, which includes compositions that can be cleared quickly.

"One of the challenges of synchronization in Latin America is that they take forever for the companies to get back with approval," Alvarez says. "So here, they have a portion of our catalog that they know they can clear."

Latin acts have an even greater presence in film. Several high-profile projects and accompanying soundtracks have emerged in the past year, including Y Tu Mamá También (And Your Mama Too) and Frida, for which Elliot Goldenthal's score recently earned an Academy Award. Both films' soundtracks include original music and licensed songs.

In the U.S., both albums were released by non-Latin labels—Volcano for Y Tu Mamá También and Decca/Universal Classics Group for Frida. Neither album was heavily promoted to the Latin audience.

Frida's sales soared after its Oscar win, and this issue it is No. 9 on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart. It has scanned 96,000 copies so far in the U.S., according to Nielsen SoundScan; Y Tu Mamá También has sold 21,000 units and has never charted.

Even in Mexico, where it was released by indie Discos Suave and distributed by Virgin, the soundtrack to Y Tu Mamá También sold only 70,000 copies, according to the label—not a level that befits the most-watched film in Mexico's history. But the use of one song—"Si No Te Hubieras Ido" (If You Hadn't Left) by Marco Antonio Solís—is an example of how the exposure provided by a film can drive an artist's album sales. The track, from Solís' album Trozos de Mi Alma (Pieces of My Soul), was played on a jukebox during one of the film's final scenes.

"Our release had been quite timid. We had the highest-grossing film in the nation, and you couldn't find the album," Discos Suave founder and director Jose Enrique Fernández says. But Fonovisa—Solís' label—relaunched Trozos and moved an additional 300,000 copies, according to the label.

KINKY

Selling albums, promoting artists, and generating licensing revenue for its own catalog is what Sony Discos wants to accomplish with the release of the soundtrack to Chasing Papi, a 20th Century Fox film produced by Forrest Whitaker that will be released April 16 in 1,100 theaters nationwide. The film is in English but stars Latin actors Eduardo Verástegui and Sofía Vergara, as well as Sony Music artist Jaci Velásquez in her first film role.

"For Discos it is a welcome project, because it's the first soundtrack release we'll handle fully," Sony Discos chairman Oscar Llord says, noting that other Latin-themed film soundtracks have been released through Columbia or Epic.

More than 50% of the music on the Chasing Papi soundtrack—which was produced by Emilio Estefan Jr.—is Spanish-language; it straddles various formats, a factor that Llord plans to maximize in promoting the release and the participating artists' own albums.

The album will feature three singles: the movie's theme, written by rapper Fat Joe and recorded by Fat Joe and Huey Dunbar, which will be promoted on urban radio; a Latin pop track performed by Shalim, which will be the first single from his forthcoming album on Crescent Moon (a Sony joint-venture label with Estefan); and "I Don't Need a Man," a track performed by Velásquez, which will be promoted at top 40 radio. Further, the Spanish-language version of Velásquez's song—"No Necesito Un Hombre"—will be the first single from the upcoming Spanish-language album by the artist on Sony Discos.

"I really felt this soundtrack could be a platform to bring additional attention to Jaci as a recording artist," Llord says. "I think the true fans of each artist will look to their particular release. And another public that doesn't necessarily have the connection could be enticed by the soundtrack, which features a combination of many great tracks."

Long before Chasing Papi, Sony was mining the soundtrack field through a deal with Brazilian network TV Globo and U.S. network Telemundo that enables Sony to release the soundtracks to soap operas produced by Globo. Although tracks from other labels can also be licensed, Sony releases the albums in the U.S. and other markets where the soap airs, including a Portuguese version for the Brazilian market.

PROMO USE VS. SYNCH FEES

Although the Sony/Globo deal is unusually broad, the release of soundtracks tied in with soap operas or TV series is common in Latin music. Additionally, labels typically use singles during soap operas to help promote their artists. These promotional uses were often available free of synch fees. Today, music companies are attempting to reverse that practice.

"Looking back over the last 10 years in Latin America, it went from very poor in the synchronization business—in the sense that no one was paying for it—to optimistic," UMPG's Alvarez says. "The days when record sales drove everything are not around anymore."

In mainstream film and TV, opportunities for Latin music, while still relatively scarce, are growing. Upcoming Latin-themed film projects that are expected to use substantial amounts of Latin repertoire include Havana Nights: Dirty Dancing 2 from Artisan Entertainment/Miramax Films and Sueño (Dream) from Lions Gate Films.

Havana Nights, which is due out in February 2004, takes place in Cuba in the 1950s and will include authentic Cuban tracks, original music, and new versions of older tracks. An English-language version of an Aterciopelados track reportedly is in the works.

The J Records soundtrack is being supervised by Bud Carr, who worked on 1998's Dance With Me, which featured Chayanne and Vanessa Williams. Like that film, Havana Nights will feature live performances, including, according to published reports, one by singer/songwriter Donato Poveda.

"I'm a kid in a candy store," Carr says of the repertoire available to him, both from Latin and mainstream labels, which are looking "at how they can best take advantage of this opportunity."

Sueño is the story of a Mexican-American singer in Los Angeles in search of the American dream. Although the film is not yet in production and music is far from being finalized, music supervisor Howard Paar has commissioned original material and is also licensing tracks in hopes of providing a "broad palate of the music coming from Mexico," from alternative to more traditional. A soundtrack deal has not been finalized.

There also are projects—including national ad campaigns—that require a Latin "feel" but aim for a more universal appeal.

In this regard, such Mexican electronic/hip-hop acts as Kinky and Control Machete—which have simple, repetitive lyrics (Kinky's single "Más y Más" [More and More] is essentially a repetition of those words) and a hip sound—are perfect. "Music supervisors will now say: 'We want something like Kinky,' " EMI's James says. "They have really combined the best of both cultures: loops and beats and Mexican rap. Control Machete—whose single 'Sí Señor' [Yes Sir] was featured in a national Levi's ad—kind of subscribes to the same rules."

Fernando Briceño, who heads EMI's publishing office in Mexico and who first took Kinky's music to James, says that during the past two years, all of this interest has resulted in an increase of more than 50% in synch requests originating from the U.S.

Alvarez says, "Film and TV are ahead of the curve" when it comes to using Latin alternative music. "Where we can't sell any alternative rock music, I have tons of synch uses," he says. "We had an opportunity to put songs in CSI Miami. At first, they didn't find anything they liked. And our guy in Miami placed [Argentine rap band] Sindicato Argentino del Hip Hop, and they loved it."

He adds, "You've got to look at it from [the filmmakers'] perspective, [which is] 'I don't want American music. I don't want Latin music. I want music that goes with my scene.' "

In Eastern Europe, Pirates Prevail As EU Entry Nears

Federation of the Phonographic Industry (IFPI). "We have [to contend with] a predominance of judges trained under the Soviet system, and they don't see copyright infringement as a crime."

Nonetheless, if those countries are to join the continent's more prosperous band of 15 EU states, they will have to adhere to regulations on intellectual copyright that are set in Brussels by the European Commission (EC), the body that drafts EU policy. While the relevant copyright legislation that is required for EU admittance has already been adopted by the governments of all eight countries, several legal deficiencies still exist. More important, enforcement remains poor.

Labels cite a lack of understanding among politicians, police, crime investigators, prosecutors, judges, and customs officials. Additionally, weak border controls allow pirated products from Russia, Belarus, and the Ukraine to enter other Eastern European states with relative ease.

'SOFT TOUCH' COUNTRIES

Organized crime groups, often with links to the illegal arms, drugs, and prostitution trade, use such countries as Lithuania—perceived as "a soft touch"—as their entry points for moving pirated product westward.

"Police have cleaned up the center of [Lithuanian capital] Vilnius, but all around the country in marketplaces and especially in Kaunas [Lithuania's second-biggest city], you can find a trade outlet selling pirated recordings every 100 meters," says Rimas Alisauskas, chairman of Lithuanian record-industry trade body FGPA.

Not only is Lithuania flooded with pirated repertoire, mostly from international artists, but criminal gangs use the country as a transshipment route to the other Baltic nations and further west to Poland, Germany, and Scandinavia.

In its latest report (which was published October 2002) on the countries scheduled for admission (or "accession," as it is called), the EC chastised them for weak border controls and poor coordination among the customs, police, and judiciary, calling these deficiencies "matters of priority." The report said that virtually all the countries in the region need to intensify measures to combat all piracy.

While the EC concedes that "satisfactory" steps are being made in the adoption of necessary legislation, it says that accession countries like the Czech Republic and Lithuania need further alignment with the EC Copyright Directive.

The process is complicated because most EU countries have yet to adopt all the relevant copyright legislation hatched by the EC in Brussels. As one Brussels insider puts it: "We can't give the accession countries too much of a hard time, when the member states themselves aren't all up to scratch."

The Czech Republic and Lithuania were among the first 30 countries across the globe to put the two 1996 World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) treaties into force, and earlier this year Poland ratified the WIPO Performances and Phonograms Treaty, although it still has to ratify the WIPO Copyright Treaty. Indeed, of the accession countries, only Estonia has yet to put either treaty into force. Still, shortcomings exist.

Currently, the courts throughout the Eastern European region will not allow a "presumption of ownership" to apply regarding sound recordings. In practice, that means an independent specialist must examine every seized CD to determine if it is a bootleg. That obligation can be extremely daunting when the authorities make a large seizure, and is terribly time-consuming.

In late February, the Lithuanian government attempted to raise its copyright law to the standards of the WIPO treaties and the EC directives. Instead, a watered-down amendment was passed, after lobbying from small-business associations, whose members include market traders and kiosk owners that often sell pirated product.

The amendment means that in any one case, the music industry can be awarded compensation through the courts of up to a maximum of $40,000 (an amount determined by scaling up from the national minimum wage). Previously, under the country's 1999 Copyright Act, compensation was scaled upwards—by between 200% and 300%—from the total retail value of legal versions of the seized pirated product. "For the pirates," Alisauskas complains, "this [new compensation level] will mean nothing—just a little bite."

Court procedures throughout Eastern Europe are notoriously cumbersome. In Poland, for example, it can take up to five years for a civil copyright-infringement case to be heard. Lithuania's two major seizures of pirated music in recent years—a haul of 100,000 CDs in 2000 and another of more than 200,000 in December 2001—are still awaiting prosecution in the courts.

In addition, fines are low across the region, and any prison sentences are usually suspended for one or two years. Even when legislation allows for stiff penalties—under Poland's amended copyright law of 2000, for example, punishment includes maximum fines of $175,000 and five-year prison terms—the judges fail to impose them.

CORRUPTION AND FEAR

Corruption also plays a role, such as in the Czech region of western Bohemia, where a Vietnamese "mafia" runs market stalls filled with pirated produce in several border towns close to Germany. Customs and police officers seized 13,000 discs from a warehouse owned by a local mayor last December. But the Washington, D.C.-based International Intellectual Property Alliance (IIPA) reports that the case is still pending because the mayor—the defendant in the case—is on holiday. In Vietnam.

Fear of repercussions from organized crime gangs is also a factor, especially in the notorious Warsaw Stadium in Poland. Located in an old sports arena, the market is crammed with hundreds of stalls that often sell pirated products. It also serves as a centralized distribution point for pirated music CDs throughout Poland.

"The place is riddled with organized crime—so much so that police officers are afraid to do raids there," Krawczyk says. "We guess there are 25,000 copies of copyrighted material being sold there every day. It's open every day, so multiply that by 365—then we're talking millions of units. It has a massive impact on the industry."

Krawczyk blames "indecisive action by the Polish parliament" for the failure to close down the trade in illegal recordings. He adds, "One day the police are arresting everyone, the next day, they're all back selling their products."

While token police raids do take place almost daily in the stadium, but pirates are notified as soon as a raid starts and hide their illegal goods. Polish IFPI affiliate ZPAV says that last year, 270,000 sound carriers were seized at the stadium, more than one-third of the total seized throughout Poland.

The local music industry has called on the Polish government to impose a ban on the sale of music CDs, videos, DVDs, and CD-ROMs of videogames and software in the Warsaw Stadium and all similar markets in Poland. But at the same time, the municipal and state authorities are directly involved in the ownership and administration of the stadium, which they lease to a private company called Damis.

Despite intense lobbying from the EU and U.S. trade officials, the Polish government has done nothing to tackle the Warsaw situation. The authorities argue that several thousand legitimate traders also operate at the stadium and that tax and license revenue from the traders constitute 40% of the annual budget of the local Praga Poludnie district authority.

ZPAV head Marek Staszewski says that cooperation with police and customs officials is continuing against the stadium's pirates. But despite filing several hundred copyright-infringement cases with authorities and offering "hundreds of kilograms of evidentiary material . . . including photos of the actual traders [and] detailed blueprints of trading places," results have been poor, and the pirates' activity is typically suspended for a couple of weeks at most.

The regional battle against piracy is hampered by a perceived lack of effort from the police authorities, although enforcement has improved in some territories, such as the Czech Republic, where the number of raids and seizures reached record levels last year, with 370,000 pirated units confiscated in 763 raids.

A lack of manpower and resources across the region keeps anti-piracy raids low. In Lithuania, a three-man team of the economic crime unit of the police deals with the nation's intellectual-property rights enforcement; last year no substantial seizures were made.

In neighboring Latvia, despite a government promise last year to set up a 10-man team to focus solely on intellectual-property infringements, only three officers at the state police's financial crime division deal with the issue—as well as with smuggling and money laundering.

"They look at the issue three times a year," says Elita Milgrave, president of the Latvian Music Producers' Assn. and managing director of Mikrofona Leraksti, national licensee for EMI and a Sony Music distributor.

However, Milgrave insists the police do not have far to look. While most pirated product in Latvia is sold in open-air markets, some traders now e-mail offices with catalogs of illegitimate CDs and personally visit them to collect orders.

IFPI Slovakia managing director Slavomir Olsovsky says he is in talks with the interior ministry there about creating a police unit that will deal with intellectual-property issues on a nationwide level by the end of June. The unit would work alongside a new five-man customs directorate that began focusing on the issue in January.

Until now the Slovak authorities have focused on individual regions, efficiently concentrating on western and central Slovakia but neglecting the eastern part—where the regional capital Kosice is home to a notorious flea market and a main shopping mall that boasts a CD-burning service.

Not only do resources need to be strengthened, but police and judges also need to be retrained in order to effectively tackle the pirates—something that the EU financially supports throughout the accession countries.

Staszewski complains, "Despite hundreds of training sessions conducted over the last 10 years [in Poland], an unsatisfactory level of knowledge on intellectual-property rights issues is still noted. This is often related to frequent staff changes within the police, prosecution, customs, border guards, and judiciary."

Poor purchasing power and low wages are major reasons why consumers are all too happy to buy pirated music. In Lithuania, for example, pirated CDs cost 3 euros ($3.20), or one-fifth of the minimum legitimate price; in Latvia, a pirate CD sells for one-third of the legal price.

Milgrave says, "It's difficult to convince [Latvian] people to buy legally when they're earning an average of $400 per month and a legitimate CD can cost nearly $20. It's 5% of your salary; it's very expensive."

But piracy levels are devastating. According to local industry bodies, they range from an estimated 70%-85% in Lithuania, 70% in Latvia, 60% in Estonia, 50% in the Czech Republic, 46% in Slovakia, and 41%-45% in Poland to a relatively low 30% in Hungary and less than 25% in Slovenia.

PIRACY PRIORITIES

The IIPA says it may elevate Poland and Lithuania to its Priority Watch List in its Special 301 Report for this year, ranking the two countries among the world's 21 worst copyright offenders. The Czech Republic and Hungary will be added to the lower-category Watch List; Estonia and Latvia are already listed and will remain there.

In the Baltic nations and Poland, counterfeit product smuggled from Russia and the Ukraine accounts for most of the illicit market. In Slovakia and the Czech Republic, however, the main problem is an increased domestic level of illegal CD-burning. According to the IFPI, in the Czech Republic, such activity accounts for 80% of seizures.

The effect of all this activity is tangible. In Poland, ZPAV says trade shipments in 2002 totaled $84.1 million, nearly half the value generated in 1997. The freefall is worse in the Czech Republic, where the value of shipments in 2002 totalled 743 million koruna ($25.4 million), or around one-quarter of the 1997 level.

IFPI Czech Republic managing director Karel Kucera says, "If the situation does not improve in 2003, I'm afraid some of our member companies will get into troubles that threaten their existence."

The IFPI's Krawczyk sounds particularly concerned about the situation in Poland, "because it has big borders, with bad neighbors including Lithuania, Ukraine, and Belarus."

For the music business, Krawczyk concludes, Poland represents "a major liability entering the EU."

Big Publishing Advances Dry Up For Most New Acts

record labels are signing fewer new artists and making fewer new recordings."

In the past, artists often depended on music-publishing advances as a sort of financial spawn pool as they began their swim upstream, vying for record-sales success. The new music-publishing reality presents yet another obstacle for new acts to overcome.

With the decline of these advances, attorney Jay Rosenthal says, "it's even more treacherous out there for new bands." He says publishers generally make an offer based on "50% or maybe 70% of what they anticipate the record sales will be. If they anticipate a million in sales, that used to turn into deals of anywhere from $300,000 to $500,000 to maybe a million. Now that's changed. It's half, maybe less. If the act is already 'through the door,' they'll survive on publishing. If they aren't, it's a bleak world."

Artist attorney Bob Donnelly puts the decrease in what is being offered to new acts at 15%-20% in the past 18 months. Warner/Chappell Music chairman Les Bider thinks that industry-wide, the figure is a bit higher. "I'd say for [new] 'buzz bands,' it's down more, maybe 35% to 40%."

Artist attorney L. Lee Phillips, who also polled his colleagues, believes that in some instances, the downturn could be as high as 50% in the past 12 months. Universal Music Publishing Group (UMPG) worldwide president David Renzer agrees. "It's half of what it was," he says, "if they get an offer at all."

Of course, there are exceptions, especially in the cases where a bidding war breaks out for a new act. Until recently, such action could yield advances in excess of $1 million. Today, these deals might produce advances in the $350,000-$600,000 range.

The new economics of publishing deals stem from the shrinking of the business in general and mechanical royalties in particular. For new writers, most initial publishing income is derived from the mechanical royalties on records sold. And, as everyone knows, fewer records are being sold.

Bider says 90% of the publishing revenue for some young bands can be mechanical-driven. "So, when managers and lawyers come to you and say, 'Well, this should still be a million-dollar deal,' you've got to say, 'Excuse me, the business model that we lived in, where the record company we knew would sell "x" hundreds of thousands of records and we knew we had "x" dollars of protection of mechanical royalties coming in, is no longer in place.' So we think that's not where we should be taking a risk.' "

Phillips has a similar view. "In my discussions with the publishing executives, they are definitely feeling the reduction in mechanical royalties, which has to affect the offers made, since for a new artist, the mechanical income is so critical—it takes a while for [separate music publishing] performance and synch income to become relevant."

Artist attorney Stan Soocher agrees. "Music publishing has long been idealized as the 'cash cow' of the industry, but with record sales down—and thus mechanical royalties income down—a big piece of hide is being skinned off the cow. That necessarily has translated into fewer publishing advances going into fewer artist wallets."

NOT IMMUNE TO DOWNTURN

Renzer says music publishers have had a "delayed reaction" to the business downturn, "because we were somewhat insulated because of our multiple revenue streams." Now, he says, "with most major publishers, almost half of our revenue is coming from mechanicals, [so] you're not immune to the decline in sales domestically and globally . . . Performance income has held up, but a lot of that reflects the significant one-time, long-term ASCAP and BMI rate settlements with the big cable companies like HBO and Viacom, and in '03, you're not going to see that."

BMG Music Publishing chairman/CEO Nick Firth says, "We didn't ramp up as much in the good times, so we're not suffering as much in bad times; we aren't suffering as much from the excesses as the record companies did.

"The very best-selling albums—top 10, top 20—are still selling well around the world, [though] not as well," Firth adds. "But the also-rans aren't running. So I think it's reasonable to say that [publishing] companies are being cautious in signing newcomers and not being as free-spending. What has surprised me is that for those acts who are highly in demand, there's a lot of money being thrown around. And some of that is irrational. Some of these acts are not yet stars."

FIRTH

EMI Music Publishing Worldwide chairman/CEO Martin Bandier uses the word "realistic" in characterizing his company's business dealings amid the industry downturn. He says, "It's a reality check."

Bandier believes that big publishing deals for new acts in the last decade "made no sense," adding, "How many new bands are going to sell 1 or 2 million records?" With the new realism, Bandier says, "there are no more million-dollar 'retirement' deals for new bands." Instead, the deals are "developmental—sufficient for them to write and work and hone their careers."

Renzer says managers should look at publishers "more as a partner than a bank."

Lawyers, who act as agents for bands, say they are bound by duty to ask for the sky. Until recently, music pubs often obliged. One publishing executive offers this scenario: "I've known this [lawyer] 20 years. I asked him, 'Why are you asking for such a ridiculous price for this band knowing how things have changed?' The guy tells me, 'I've got to. You can always say no.' "

PARTNERS IN RHYME

All of the publishing execs pointed to the reduction of mechanical royalties as a big factor in the changing paradigm. Still, music-publishing operations are doing quite well. Bandier says, "This will be the best year we've ever had."

Execs at the other major publishers chime in that their businesses are also well in the black. Their economic health is largely attributable to ever-increasing film, TV, and advertising synchronization licenses and growth in a variety of new revenue streams, including Internet, cable, and satellite performances, toy and videogame licenses, and fees for cell-phone ring tones.

Sony/ATV's Russell says, "Although our mechanical income is generally flat and declining in some markets, increases in performance and synch income have more than compensated. Although as yet there is no significant income from digital services, [royalty fees for new uses, such as ring tones, are] beginning to kick in, particularly in Asia."

Renzer adds, "The trend of using contemporary and classic songs in commercials has held up. We're actually getting more revenue from commercials than we are from film and TV right now, although they've also remained strong."

Leaders of the big-five music publishers say they are still willing to be partners with talented young songwriters, if not cash cows, offering them demo time, tips on artists needing material, leads on acts that want an emerging artist to open for them on tour, and aggressively going after film, TV, and other income possibilities. But for now, and perhaps for years to come, they are mostly negative on big advances—with exceptions.

For example, Renzer says he signed the rapper 50 Cent "significantly before the album came out. It was a very significant publishing deal," he admits. "I went to the video shoot, and Eminem and Dre were in the video, and you could feel the buzz. We decided to be aggressive. Thank goodness we were right."

In some cases, the new reality can be a potential windfall for emerging artists. Soocher says, "Instead of a record company wanting rights to the artist's songs from the get-go, when the value of the songs is less-known, talent who become successful recording artists and still control their publishing may be in the position of demanding better publishing deals once success strikes."

Further, large publishing advances are still flowing when competing companies sense hit-producing newbies and catalog artists trolling for new deals. Officials at EMI, UMPG, and BMG particularly made it clear they still consider themselves aggressive and competitive when going after songwriters that appear to have the goods. Attorney Owen Sloane says, "I had an established act I negotiated a publishing deal for, and there was no problem in securing a seven-figure advance."

Renzer mentions the recent UMPG deals for the Heart and Prince catalogs: "Those are different kinds of deals—you can look at historical earnings."

Patriotism Lifts Pro-War Songs; Chicks Suffer

because a country song older than 20 weeks is removed from the chart when it drops out of the top 20, "Travelin' Soldier" effectively falls off the country chart from No. 3. There were, however, a small handful of spins (less than 20 combined) for Bruce Robison's 1999 original version of the song and Tyler England's cover from that same year.

By March 21, the Dixie Chicks boycott appeared to be in effect at 74 of Billboard's 148 country reporters—or literally half the panel—now showing no airplay on any song by what had been arguably one of their more prominent core acts. On March 24, after several days of war, the Chicks were off 51 Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems-monitored stations.

But Jones Radio Networks VP/GM Jim LaMarca says 160 of the 180 affiliates of its syndicated Lia evening show have opted for the regular version of the show rather than the Dixie Chicks-free version the network began offering after losing six Cox-owned affiliates because of its initial refusal to stop playing the Chicks.

On the top 40 side, Dixie Chicks' "Landslide" falls 15-32 on Airplay Monitor's Mainstream Top 40 chart, with a 44% decline in airplay—although that song had already begun its decline at that format before Maines' comments. At adult top 40, it is down 3-13 (off 41%). At AC, the song goes 1-11, losing more than 50% of its 1,915 spins.

The top 40 trend could change direction in the coming week. WRVW Nashville PD Rich Davis tells Billboard that his station took "Landslide" off the air after the Maines controversy flared up. "I was getting complaints on the song," he says, and his sister country station WSIX got "really negative" call-out research March 20. "That solidified my decision to take them off the air."

But when WRVW's research came back March 25, "Landslide" was in demand. In fact, after taking Dixie Chicks off the air, Davis reports that he received complaint e-mails concerned that the station was interfering with Dixie Chicks' freedom of speech and accusing WRVW of censorship. Davis says, "Now it's back in power."

WBLI Long Island, N.Y., PD Jeremy "J.J." Rice had the song in power rotation at the beginning of March, but his audience showed burn in research. He admits the negative research could have come from listeners upset by Maines' comments but maintains "the reason we're not playing it is research." Still, an informal WBLI morning-show poll showed that

Williams Seeks To Break In U.S.

April 1 U.S. release of Williams' latest album, Escapology. The set, released in most markets Nov. 18, 2002, has already topped the charts in many European territories; it is No. 6 on the Music & Media European Top 100 Albums chart this issue.

Much is riding on this release, particularly in view of Williams' much-discussed new global contract with EMI, which is estimated by various sources as being worth between £50 million and £80 million ($78.3 million-$125.3 million). In addition to blocking in the artist's recordings, the six-album agreement stipulates that EMI will also share in revenue from Williams' touring, publishing, and merchandising activities. Additionally, the deal states that all recording masters revert to Williams on recoupment plus three years.

"Except for EMI, Robbie, and his management, everyone is operating in the dark in terms of the actual figures of the deal," says Helen Snell, a media analyst at UBS Warburg in London. "There are many figures being mentioned, but I don't believe that breaking Robbie in the U.S. is an integral part of the contract."

Still, she adds, "all industry observers are closely watching to see if EMI can make it happen for Robbie in the U.S., which is currently one of EMI's weakest markets."

According to other analysts, if EMI paid £80 million, it would need to sell 7 million units worldwide per contracted album to break even; that calculation is based on a 20% royalty rate. A more workable amount, these analysts say, would be £40 million ($62.6 million); in this case, EMI would require sales of 3.3 million units to break even. Typically, Williams' CDs sell 3 million copies each in the U.K. alone.

"The deal was done based on my international success, excluding America," Williams says. "I'm hoping for 600,000 in Escapology sales in the U.S."

Snell adds, "Since the deal extends beyond his recordings, it's very difficult to place a value on Robbie. When he tours [in the U.K.], he sells out 8,000-12,000 capacity venues very quickly.

"I think EMI can recoup without the U.S." Snell continues. "I can't believe [EMI Recorded Music chairman/CEO] Alain Levy would sign a contract where the U.S. is the make-or-break market."

EMI Recorded Music North America chairman/CEO David Munns says, "EMI will only sign artist deals that we believe are good for EMI's business, as well as, of course, for the artist. EMI's agreement with Robbie Williams reflects the artist's commercial value in the marketplace. Leading up to Escapology, Robbie sold 20 million albums in just five years. When we signed this deal, we were confident that Escapology would be his best album yet.

"The marketplace response around the world has been terrific," Munns continues. "The record has already sold nearly 6 million copies, and we feel very optimistic about his prospects in the U.S. as well."

Snell points out that EMI's main area of weakness in the past two years has been the U.S. market. She says, "This is the challenge for the U.K.-based EMI: to take good talent and market it successfully in the U.S. But it did work last year with Kylie Minogue."

Whatever levels he reaches in the U.S., Williams has a remarkable track record to live up to. Since embarking on his solo career, he has taken home a record-breaking 14 Brit Awards. Worldwide, Williams' sales are fast approaching the 25 million mark, according to the label, with five solo albums to his credit. Two albums—The Ego Has Landed (a compendium of the artist's first two solo albums, Life Thru a Lens and I've Been Expecting You) and Sing When You're Winning—have been released in the U.S. and have sold, respectively, 569,000 and 126,000 units, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

Clearly, Williams' previous U.S. label, Capitol, struggled to find him an American audience in proportion with his U.K. base. Now, the powers-that-be at EMI are looking for a big break on Virgin—regardless of how long it takes.

Munns says, "We will allow the record to grow at its own pace—just as EMI is doing with the second Coldplay album [A Rush of Blood to the Head] and as we did with the Norah Jones record [Come Away With Me]."

BREAKING INTO AMERICA

Williams offers several explanations as to why U.S. success has eluded him in the past: "I'm very British. My sense of humor is very British. Maybe my writing is too colloquial. Or perhaps Americans simply don't like me.

"There's also the fact that America is a massive country," he continues. "To cover the area properly, you must be fucking ambitious to do all the necessary touring, radio visits, and TV shows. But my first [U.S.] album [The Ego Has Landed] went gold, and we didn't do much to make that happen."

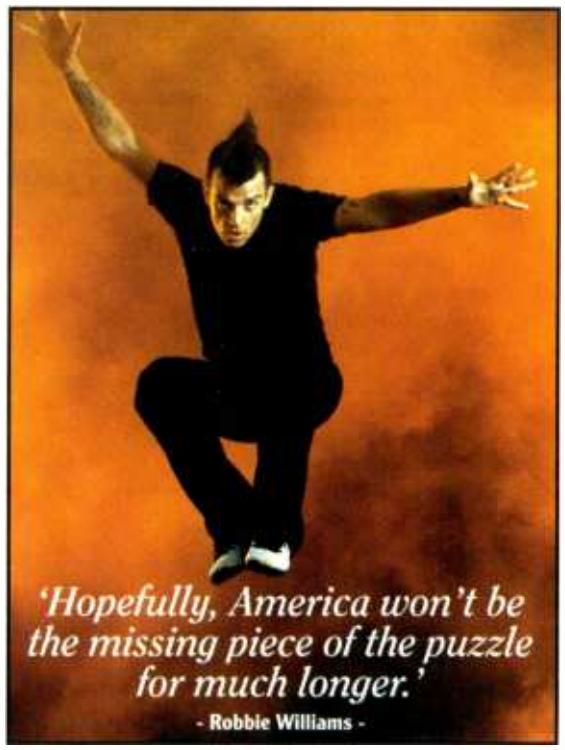
Indeed, Williams has managed to build a core following in the U.S., selling out venues with capacities for 2,000-3,000 people in such major markets as New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

"We need to spread the news about Robbie—and we will," Virgin chairman/CEO Matt Serletic says. "The idea of Robbie as a worldwide star continues to move closer. Worldwide artists are becoming more important than ever.

"We're not looking for overnight success in the U.S.," Serletic adds. "This is about artist development."

Mark Collen, senior VP of global marketing at Capitol Music in London—who has worked with Williams since "day one"—concurs. "We're not expecting this to be an overnight anything here," he says. "But we believe the timing is right."

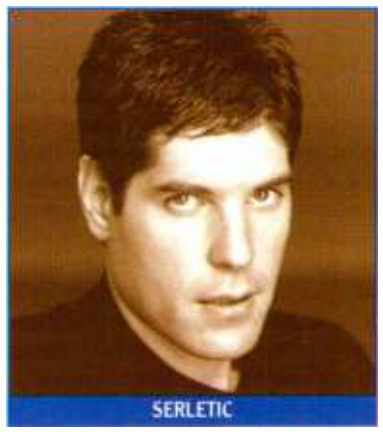
The U.S. version of Escapology will differ from its European counterpart in several ways. Brand-new songs "One Fine Day" and "Get a Little High" have replaced "Hot Fudge," "Cursed," and "Song 3." Also, for a limited introduction period, the album will have a suggested list price of $9.98.



According to Collen, because of his career trajectory in the rest of the world, Williams previously could not focus on America. "To make it in America, international artists need to make a commitment to the U.S. market," Collen explains. "British acts want to break in America, and they may think it's easy to do—but it's not."

MCT/Bold! co-president/artist manager Marci Weber, who oversees the careers of U.S. and European artists, agrees. "You must combine the traditional means of promotion, like touring, with newer methods, like the Internet and lifestyle marketing. But the U.S. is a huge market to crack. Timing is everything. Fortunately, Robbie appears very committed to making it happen in the U.S."

Collen says that Williams is making the necessary adjustments for breaking in the U.S. "An artist must make a few allowances, like play smaller venues and spend more time in the States, for example. When you live in America, you become part of the culture, you live the American life." Williams has begun to make these changes. He played some small venues in support of his last album. And 12 months ago, he moved to Los Angeles.



SERLETIC

Williams has not been an overnight sensation in any territory, Collen is quick to point out. In the U.K., Williams' first solo album, Life Thru a Lens, took several months to take off. It was not until the set's fourth single, the anthemic power ballad "Angel," that the public took significant notice of what the ex-Take That member was up to.

THE ROAD AHEAD

For the past few months, Virgin and Williams have been laying down a foundation for Escapology in the U.S. The label is making Williams readily available to radio and the media. Earlier this year, he appeared on an episode of MTV's Cribs, and most recently, he performed during the pre-Grammy Awards Rock the Vote concert at New York's Roseland Ballroom.

At the end of January, Virgin delivered the lead single from Escapology, "Feel," to modern AC radio. The track's Vaughan Arnell-directed video has been added to MTV2.

The week of the album's release, Williams is confirmed to appear on NBC's Last Call With Carson Daly (April 1) and ABC's Good Morning America (April 4). On the Internet front, Williams' official Web site (robbiewilliams.com) features, among other items, a U.S.-focused mini-site, which includes an online jukebox.

Already, "Feel" has been embraced by many stations, including KLLC San Francisco, WBMX Boston, and KFMB San Diego. "We're starting to get phone calls about the track," KLLC San Francisco PD John Peake notes. "The buzz is definitely starting to happen."

Peake observes that "both Virgin and Robbie are fully committed to making it happen. Everybody involved is making sure that Robbie is available to radio, the press, and TV."

Jen Sewell, assistant PD/music director of KFMB San Diego, agrees but goes one step further: "It's a real shame that he's not a huge star here. I wish other programmers would take a chance on his music."

The week of March 24, Williams is scheduled to visit several stations, including KLLC and KFMB, where he will do on-air interviews and acoustic performances, according to Virgin executive VP of promotion Hilary Shaev.

The label's reason for initially approaching modern AC stations is simple. "Top 40 is young and rhythmic," Shaev explains. "In some ways, the format is very impatient in terms of reaction. While our ultimate goal with the single is top 40, the base is somewhere else."

Jim Kaminski, pop/rock buyer for Tower Records in New York's Greenwich Village, believes the label should first establish credibility with the rock contingent. "Robbie needs to be marketed to a younger, hipper crowd—not the mature album rock audience," he says. "But 'Feel,' which is a very good pop song, may be too European for the American market."

One modern AC music director, who spoke on condition of anonymity, is "convinced 'Feel' will not be a radio hit. It's almost too good, a brilliant piece of work. Robbie is too progressive, too complex an artist for Americans."

Collen seems unfazed by this scenario. "If 'Feel' doesn't ignite in the U.S., we'll still be building a base. This album is several singles deep." Collen adds that internationally, "Feel" is the biggest airplay single of Williams' career.

Regardless of what happens at radio, the base that Collen speaks of is set to expand, when Williams embarks on a two-month North American tour in September. Depending on the market, Williams will play venues with capacities of 1,500-plus. This tour immediately follows the artist's headlining summer trek of European stadiums. Williams is managed by Tim Clark and David Enthoven of ie Music in London; his bookings are handled by Marty Diamond of Little Big Man in New York.

Serletic says, "Something amazing happens when Robbie is performing live onstage. As an audience member, you connect with him and become much more involved. He is an entertainer in the classic sense of the word."

Williams is humbled by such remarks. "I simply do what I do," he says. "And I can't change my personality or my music to fit a specific market. Hopefully, America won't be the missing piece of the puzzle for much longer."

Reflecting on Escapology, Williams—whose songs are handled by BMG Music Publishing—remarks that "in the past, I often regarded myself as not being good at anything. This album is me doing my best at a certain point in my life. Lyrically, I was forced to be at the top of my game. Eminem inspired me to write such great lyrics."

He continues, "Contrary to what's been written in the British press, I did not set out to make an American-sounding record. I'm not Ryan Adams, Avril Lavigne, Limp Bizkit, Vanessa Carlton, or John Mayer. I like big pop choruses. The sun was always shining when I made this record. For me, it's a joyful record. Perhaps a few Americans will agree."

At the end of the day, "Robbie must have America," Collen says. "It's a pride issue for him. He wants to be a true global superstar."

Acts Line Up On Both Sides Of War Debate

troops in the Middle East. This issue, "Have You Forgotten?" leaps from No. 22 to No. 9 in its third week on the Billboard Hot Country Singles & Tracks chart. Many country stations report that it is their most-requested song, and its video has also been getting airplay on CMT and Great American Country.

"It's one of the biggest records we've had in the last three years," says Johnny Gray, music director of Atlanta country stations WKHX and WYAY. "It speaks to a lot of people who aren't speaking up right now."

Hot on Worley's heels, Clint Black—who has no current label affiliation—digitally sent a song to country stations March 11, while offering it as a free download via his Web site, clintblack.com. The song, "I Raq and Roll," supports possible military action and advises not to "ignore the devil . . . he'll keep coming back for more."

"Have You Forgotten?" is the first single and title track of Worley's new album. DreamWorks Nashville says that the popularity of the song, which will not be released as a commercial single, has led the company to move up the release of Worley's album to April 15 from its original street date of May 20.

Worley says the song was inspired by his visit with U.S. troops in Afghanistan toward the end of last year. "The song has been categorized as pro-war, but it's more of a pro-American military song," he tells Billboard. "I've been so touched by all the support the song has been receiving [from] radio and fans. The positive reaction is a sign that country music listeners are hungry for songs about real life and real people."

Worley adds, "I personally believe that George W. Bush is doing his best to try to protect the American people. I hope the conflict in Iraq can be resolved in a peaceful manner, but under the present conditions I would support a war against Iraq."

Worley says a substantial portion of the proceeds from the album will be donated "to the families of American soldiers." The exact charitable channels will be determined in the future.

DreamWorks Nashville principal executive James Stroud says the label is giving its full support to Worley's song. "We decided that the American people needed to hear a song that reminds [us] of what we are as Americans. It's obvious from the response to this song that a lot of people feel the same way."

Scott Borchetta, senior executive of promotion and artist development at the label, adds, "Darryl felt a huge urgency to put out the song right away. The country genre is leading with these sentiments, because country music speaks to the heartland of America."

Gray believes that pro-military songs tend to come from country music more than other genres because "country people tend to be very patriotic. That's the way a lot of country artists and their fans were raised."

Jeff Garrison, operations manager/PD of country station KILT Houston, adds: "Country music has been about wholesome entertainment and telling real-life stories. Listeners ultimately decide what we play."

At the same time, Stroud says his label would not stop any artist who wanted to make an anti-war statement, noting, "We would handle it in the same manner as a pro-war statement."

ANTI-WAR SUPPORT

While some artists are standing solidly in favor of U.S. action against Iraq, others are squarely in the anti-war camp.

Musicians United to Win Without War, a new nonprofit organization, recently placed full-page anti-war ads in The New York Times and Rolling Stone. The ads listed the names of more than 40 acts that support the organization, including Sheryl Crow, David Byrne, Jay-Z, Dave Matthews, R.E.M., Massive Attack, Fugazi, Kronos Quartet, Missy Elliott, Lucinda Williams, Ryuichi Sakamoto, OutKast, and Lou Reed. A concert to support the cause is reportedly being discussed, but the organization's reps say that nothing has been finalized yet.

Def Jam co-founder and Rush Communications CEO Russell Simmons, one of the key recruiters for the anti-war organization, tells Billboard that the group transcends political affiliations: "This is an organization operating from love and compassion. All we're saying is that there are peaceful alternatives to war."

Musicians United to Win Without War is funded by nonprofit activist organization MoveOn.org, which has created a Web site for the cause (moveon.org/musiciansunited). MoveOn.org executive director Peter Schuerman says, "While MoveOn.org strives to [get] regular people's voices heard, music stars have the ability to be heard much more quickly. The support of so many amazing musicians has given a tremendous lift to the anti-war cause." Although the organization has no concrete, immediate plans for anti-war events, Schuerman adds, "We're always considering our options."

A host of anti-war songs are in the offing (see story, page 35). Clear Channel Radio (CCR), the largest owner of U.S. radio stations, tells Billboard that it will not have a company-wide policy on certain songs if war breaks out. According to CCR VP of programming Sean Compton, the company "will allow its individual stations to make their own decisions on what is appropriate." At press time, national music video networks had no plans for special programming addressing a possible war in Iraq.

Like Black, many artists are turning to the Internet to get their musical views heard. Among those lending his voice to the anti-war movement is 2001 Billboard Century Award honoree John Mellencamp, whose new song, "To Washington," criticizes the policies the Bush administration has regarding Iraq (Billboard, March 15). The song, which will be on Mellencamp's next album, due in May or June on Columbia Records, is available on the artist's official Web site, mellencamp.com.

Mellencamp tells Billboard, "My song really isn't a protest song but a song in the traditional troubadour manner." At press time, it had not been decided if "To Washington" would be released as a single, according to Columbia senior VP of marketing and media Larry Jenkins.

Beastie Boys are the latest big act to join the fray, offering free downloads of a new anti-war track, "In a World Gone Mad," on their Web site (beastieboys.com) as of March 11. According to their representative, the song will not be serviced to radio.

Madonna has been making news with her "American Life" video, which reportedly has anti-war themes. "American Life" is the first single and title track from her new Maverick/Warner Bros. album, due April 22. The video is scheduled for release at the end of this month, and, at press time, it was still unfinished. MTV and VH1 had no comment on whether they would play the video, because they have not seen it. Madonna's spokeswoman had no comment on the project.

Although the "American Life" video reportedly features violent images, sources say a toned-down version will go to video outlets, while an uncensored version will likely be released on DVD. Meanwhile, the song will be released March 24 as a digital single and distributed via e-mail. The artist's official Web site (madonna.com) is taking pre-orders for the single, which has a $1.49 price tag.

SIMMONS

Additionally, George Michael has recorded a cover version of Don McLean's "The Grave" as an anti-war statement. Michael performed the song on the March 7 episode of the BBC's Top of the Pops and has released the song as an MP3 download on georgemichael.com, his official Web site. It is undecided if the song will be released commercially.

Also expressing anti-war sentiments is '70s pop singer Cat Stevens, now known as Yusuf Islam. He has re-cut his hit "Peace Train" and a new anti-war song, "Angel of War," the first new pop song he has recorded in more than 25 years. The new version of "Peace Train" is available on the Web sites catstevens.com and yusufislam.org.uk. "Angel of War" will be available on both sites on an undetermined date.

Emotions appear to be rising on both sides of the debate. On March 4, country veteran Charlie Daniels released an open letter heavily criticizing anti-war celebrities, whom Daniels describes as "hypocritical, idiotic mugwumps." Daniels tells Billboard, "I'm not pro-war as much as I am anti-Saddam Hussein. I'm old enough to have lived through several wars, and I know that it's dangerous to let things pass without doing anything. Most of the people who've contacted me about my open letter have had a positive response."

Tough Time For Austin's Recording Studios

hands. It is a development that is hurting studios everywhere (Billboard, Feb. 15), but for secondary markets such as Austin, which cannot depend on business from major labels, the impact is particularly troubling.

"It's been a very, very challenging time for a lot of people," says Stuart Sullivan, a veteran Austin engineer and owner of Wire Recording Studios.

HUDSON

"Besides a downturn in the economy and the 9/11 situation, we're also dealing with . . . the realization of the home-recording world, because there are a million studios in town at this stage."

FEELING IT MORE THAN MOST

The growth of home recording can be attributed to the computer-based digital audio workstation (DAW), a recording medium dominated by Digidesign's Pro Tools platform. The technology has steadily improved in quality and flexibility as it has fallen in price, enabling artists as well as independent producers and engineers to record at home. This bypasses not just record labels but also, at times, the recording studios that serve those labels.

As in other markets, Austin's recording studios incorporate and make substantial use of the DAW, which provides power, convenience, cost benefits, and flexibility—assets to any studio. But the adverse affects of the DAW on their businesses have been profound.

True to their retro musical traditions, Austin recording professionals were once reluctant to leave behind the world of 2-inch analog tape and tube equipment. Many engineers, in fact, continue to use tape for its sonic characteristics, a perceived warmth that lends itself to the tube-amp-driven electric guitars and acoustic instruments favored in Austin. But with tighter label budgets, fewer musicians can even afford the multiple reels of tape needed for an album project. In today's milieu, hard drive, not tape, is often the storage format.

Still, there is optimism as commercial studios adjust. "As long as I can keep my overhead down and weather these times, I think it will come around a bit," says producer Mark Hallman, owner of Congress House Studio. "But the days of always recording records in studios are gone. Fortunately, I made the change to Pro Tools pretty fast when I saw the writing on the wall."

Jay Hudson, owner of the Hit Shack, adds, "Last year was pretty tough. Home studios obviously hurt commercial studios, especially in a [secondary] market like we're in. I can say that I got Pro Tools about a year ago, and that really saved me from going down. As hard as last year was, I think if I hadn't switched to Pro Tools at some point and been able to offer it, I'd be completely out of the game."

Well-established facilities with a loyal client base have been hurt less by the home-studio phenomenon. Cedar Creek Recording, founded in 1982, is one such enterprise. The studio has long served producers like Lloyd Maines; a recent project for Maines, father of Dixie Chicks singer Natalie Maines, was the Chicks' Grammy Award-winning Home.

Studio owner Fred Remmert has enjoyed an 18-year working relationship with Maines. "We've done hundreds of records together—Texas kind of music, mostly local clients," Remmert says. "It's a fairly small studio, but we've done projects of all different kinds and sizes, and it was perfect for what they were trying to accomplish."

Freddy Fletcher, who owns Arlyn Recording Studio and manages Pedernales Recording Studios (Willie Nelson's facility in nearby Spicewood), says, "Most of what we do is probably on the higher end of the Austin market. The whole music business has been in the tank; we've been really lucky. But we've had some fairly long-standing clients, and I feel like for the most part, if people from this area are going to do records with a budget, we get a lot of that."

Home studios have had an impact on the market, Fletcher says, but "you're only going to get the quality of what you're dealing with if you have an acoustically designed or really well-designed room, good microphones, things like that. You're not going to get that in a house."

KEEPING UP WITH TECHNOLOGY

The combination of an entrenched analog/retro vibe with the computer as the primary recording tool is best-exemplified by Blue World Music in Dripping Springs, just outside Austin. After eight years in New York, Texas native Gina Fant-Saez relocated to Austin in 1996 and built Blue World, the first Pro Tools studio in the area, combining 64 tracks of digital audio with a Solid State Logic (SSL) analog console.

Fant-Saez says Pro Tools did not enjoy a warm reception. "When I first moved here, everybody came here to mix with the 2-inch [tape machine] and the SSL," she recalls. "Nobody cared about Pro Tools. Now, it's completely the opposite."

Now equipped with Pro Tools HD, Digidesign's highest-resolution workstation product, Blue World Music has worked with such diverse clients as U2, Shawn Colvin, Sting, Nelly Furtado, and Deepak Chopra by continuing to exploit new technology, such as T1 lines and Rocket Network, a collaborative technology that enables multiple users to have simultaneous access to files stored on secure servers.

"I do a lot of work over the Internet," Fant-Saez says. "The song we did with Sting for a Disney film, The Emperor's New Groove, was sent from London over the T1 to my server. We edited and sent it to Disney from here. We do a lot of stuff like that." Yet she says business at Blue World has been slow, especially since Sept. 11, 2001.

At the Congress House Studio, which features three cutting rooms and a control room, owner Mark Hallman hopes that low overhead and the addition of Pro Tools will help him "weather these times."

For Fant-Saez and many colleagues in the Austin recording community, the seeming redundancy of offering professional audio recording services when artists can provide their own has fueled much anxiety. "From my point of view," Sullivan says, "having the means of production in everyone's hands has a lot of benefits. Obviously, there are downsides: I've got a big nut to pay, and the fact that people are not going into big studios nearly as much has made it a little bit more difficult."

Fant-Saez says that Austin and its commercial recording community must do more to embrace mainstream music. "I always say Austin bites itself in the foot for not being a commercial town. I think that's a main reason why the studio business doesn't do well here, because they don't nurture commercial music. That's the lifeblood of recording studios."

Hudson says, "We have so much great talent here. The thing that we really don't have is the monetary funding to do projects and keep people busy. We need record-label support, but the labels are obviously having a hard time, too."

Home notwithstanding, studio owners do not anticipate capturing a greater share of country projects—the vast majority of which are recorded in Nashville, a recording market renowned for its superior studio infrastructure. "Over the last 20 years, we haven't had access to the kind of budgets that they've had in Nashville or the record-company support," Remmert says. "There, you have a lot of studios put together by people who had a lot of money to begin with. Most of the studios in Austin are run by people who are making a living off selling studio time. Right there, you have a pretty big difference in terms of what you have available."

With the decline in album sales, label recording budgets have been reduced, causing problems for audio professionals everywhere. In the past, cheaper studio rates made Austin an attractive alternative to costlier facilities in Nashville, Los Angeles, and New York. But given the music industry's woes, studio rates in every market are facing downward pressure, decreasing Austin's leverage.

"In the mid-90s, I was doing a lot of major-label, long-term records," Sullivan recalls. "At that stage, it was, 'We like to come to Austin because we can get this room for $500, $600 a day that would cost $1,000 or $1,200 in L.A.' But since I opened [Wire], the market has been really shifting, and I'm less confident with my judgments. I'm very focused on what the future is holding and how I can position myself and cushion my movement into the future. To get too specific is very difficult, whereas three years ago, I'd have confidently told you exactly what was going down."

Faced with that uncertainty, Sullivan sees more of his future in such indie acts as Back Porch Mary, a band he produced at Wire, which is realizing a measure of success without label affiliation.

"They borrowed a bunch of money and made a record, put the record out, and are selling it by themselves," he says. "The upshot is that now they've got a pretty steady touring base, they're making a decent income, and they can support their band members. They've got a record out and four songs on an independent movie [Screen Door Jesus, opening in May], which basically will put the record in the black. The record sold about 1,000 copies in the first two months, off the stage.

"I am aligning myself with people like that, because that's stability," Sullivan continues. "Rather than aiming at the big-dollar work that's not happening as much . . . I'm aiming at self-sufficient bands that are willing to go out and work their ass off for themselves and are happy to make $30,000 a year rather than have a one-in-a-million shot at $300,000 a year. I get a little percentage of each of these records, so you make a little change here, a little there, but my theory is, if I can get a dozen of these bands working, that means I'm doing at least six records a year with these people. I've got bits and pieces of money trickling in, but it's an annuity. If I trickle in $10,000 a year extra, I'll take it."

Will Satellite Radio Soar?

seemingly unending commercials. The music industry feels their pain.

But the two satellite radio services, Sirius and XM, claim to provide at least 100 channels each of music and other programming with limited commercials in one unending, never-fading, static-free broadcast from space.

After near-brushes with bankruptcy and financial rescues, both intend, during the next 12 months, to battle for the attention—not to mention the dashboards—of tens of millions of car and truck owners nationwide.

"The challenge," says Steve Mather, a research analyst with Sanders Morris Harris, is reaching "the average consumer who is not aware of satellite radio and not aware of the benefits of it."

Actually, that's only the half of it.

Sirius and XM also will have to fight a multitude of other entertainment choices, from cassettes and CDs to DVDs. In fact, these days, a family can take along its entire music collection on an iPod or MP3 player.

Wireless Internet is also on the way. When it gets here, a whole wide world of information and entertainment will breach the car door.

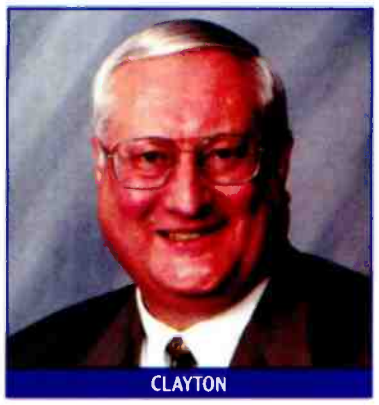
Even traditional radio, upon which commuters have relied since the dawn of the traffic jam, is changing.

Terrestrial broadcasters are working to implement HD Radio. Such digital-quality broadcast technology is already available from a handful of stations.

All of which begs the question: Can XM and Sirius gain a foothold in the market, or will they end up in the junk heap of failed technologies next to 8-track decks, the Betamax, and quadraphonic sound?

The answer to that question may lie with the corner car dealer.

Currently, upwards of 80% of satellite radio subscribers have walked into a consumer electronics store, purchased a satellite radio receiver for about $300, had it installed for another $50, and signed up for the monthly subscription fee ($9.95 for XM, $12.95 for Sirius—see chart, this page).



CLAYTON

That's a lot to ask, especially in this lean economy.

When a person goes to an automobile dealer ready to purchase a car and is shown the satellite radio option as part of a package, the sale should become a whole lot easier.

"When you buy the car, it's there like a regular radio," says Jimmy Schaeffler, a Carmel Group analyst.

Given that XM's two largest shareholders are General Motors (GM) and Honda Motor, that reality is just around the corner. Both plan to add factory-installed satellite radios in select 2003-2004 models.

Sirius, meanwhile, has deals with DaimlerChrysler, Ford, BMW, and other automakers. The service is going in most Mercedes cars in 2004, and BMW plans to install it in its Mini-Cooper cars. Ford plans to follow suit in 10 models, including its Mustang, Lincoln, Thunderbird, and Mercury cars.

"When you really make it easy for the consumer just to say 'yes,' then you drive not just millions but tens of millions [of subscriptions]," Schaeffler says.

Sirius also expects an "oh wow" from people who rent certain Hertz cars, which also offers the service.

XM, meanwhile, has signed on Avis. It announced only last week that Wal-Mart will stock its popular SKYFi XM Receiver and vehicle adapter in all its automotive departments.

But the real key remains factory-installed satellite service.

If automakers embrace satellite radio, "it's not hard to see how this whole product category [gets] a lot of credibility real fast," Sirius president/CEO Joseph P. Clayton says.

At Sports and Specialist Cars, a Saab and Lotus dealer in well-to-do Princeton, N.J., only one Saab has come in with satellite radio, according to service manager Alan Herkert: "I haven't come across anyone who has asked outright if it can be done." But he admits that because much of the current sales are after-market, these units may be placed in vehicles off-site.

Herkert also voiced concern that some Saab models have a fiber-optic audio system that would prevent installation of an after-market audio product.

GM is the only manufacturer to offer satellite radio as a factory-installed option across its broad lines, says Mike Merrick, a spokesman for GM's OnStar division.

Forty-four of 54 GM models for 2004 will offer XM as a factory-installed option. Merrick says the company will "continue the ramp-up until it's available on all American cars and trucks in the GM portfolio."

XM is already standard on the Cadillac Escalade line and such GMC full-size trucks and utility vehicles as the Yukon Denali in the 2004 model year.

The GM customer can roll the price of the hardware and the subscription into their loan or lease through GM's financing arm, GMAC. GM dealers are offered incentives to move XM packages, though Merrick would not specify the nature of such programs.

Of the 2003 models with the XM option, 15% of sales included the satellite package.

Unlike GM and XM, Ford does not hold an equity position in Sirius, the satellite provider with which it is exclusively aligned. Ford spokesperson Emily Foley says that more than one-third of the 29 models offered for 2004 by the Ford, Lincoln, and Mercury lines will have the Sirius option that can be dealer-installed.

"It's a normal first step," Foley says. "Dealer installation is no better or worse" than factory installation. There is no time line for bringing Sirius in at the factory level. "If dealer-installed really works, we may stick with dealer-installed."

Dealers are "in extensive training" right now to prepare for introducing customers to the Sirius option in the 2004 models.

YOU DON'T SCARE ME

Traditional broadcasters scoff at the notion that anyone will pay for a service that they already get for free.

But satellite advocates say that commercial load and lack of format diversity are the Achilles' heels of terrestrial radio.

"They should be scared, but terrestrial radio isn't," Yankee Group analyst Ryan Jones says. "We'll see them start to wake up in 2005, when there are 10 million satellite subscribers."

David Bank, RBC Capital Markets equity research director, is not worried about satellite displacing terrestrial radio. "People will listen to satellite radio, but you won't see the kind of fragmentation you see in cable or DBS" satellite TV vs. broadcast TV.

The Sirius "Manifesto" ad campaign specifically targeted radio with lines like "Commercials off, music on; radio off, groove on."

Lee Abrams, XM senior VP/chief programming officer, likens the situation to FM radio. It came along in the late '60s and early '70s and gutted AM radio. It is no coincidence his service is called XM.

Like AM in the '60s, he would suggest that "terrestrial stations are just really in denial."

Representatives for Infinity and Clear Channel declined to comment for this story. The former chose not to because of corporate policy not to comment on competition, the latter because it holds an equity position in XM.

But National Assn. of Broadcasters spokesman Dennis Wharton says that while satellite radio is "certainly new competition for radio . . . radio's proved incredibly adaptive over the years when new technologies have emerged—TV, cable, Internet. Radio is still a strong, vibrant industry."

Wharton says, "There is a market for satellite radio, apparently, but the question is [whether] it [is] large enough to make it a viable business. That's an open question."

Schaeffler counters that "satellite radio has taken the bar that much higher. They've not only given you perfect quality, but they've given you new content."

But when someone wants to know the weather, traffic conditions, or the latest sports scores, nothing beats local radio. Satellite radio cannot touch that.

Schaeffler admits that localism is "a very big factor" in favor of terrestrial radio. But satellite radio "circumvents that for the time being by being so much better and constantly reminding people of that."

Schaeffler says he uses local radio for a quick news update and then tunes to the satellite service.

Satellite offers more genres than traditional radio, so listeners can select the type of music they like but not have to do all the work of programming, he says.

But Abrams cautions, "To really create fans out of consumers, it's got to be more than a jukebox. The combination that defines 'compelling' is more than music. It's a great personality, great production, live programs, [and] specials."

Jones believes that if terrestrial broadcasters play their HD radio card correctly, they could have an advantage. The digital platform could enable users to shift their favorite programs to match their schedules. (Think Tivo.)

Should HD Radio bring that to the game, that platform stands to bring new value to an old medium.

Right now, however, no one has a monopoly on technology, and satellite radio may have a stealth weapon.

"We showed our capabilities about doing video at the Consumer Electronics Show," Clayton says. "The automotive industry is very interested in video, and we're adept at bringing it in the vehicle."

So what will be the deciding factor?

MARCH TO A MILLION

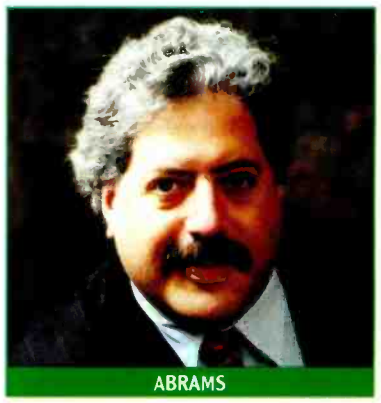
The magic number that echoed across almost every interview conducted for this story is "1 million." Once the services reach 1 million combined subscriptions, growth will take off.

That's a lofty goal, considering Sirius only has little more than 68,000 subscribers. XM, which has been operating about a year longer, has 500,000; it expects to have 1.2 million by the end of the year.

Both services currently lose money and recently went through their own financial crises.

XM was saved from certain bankruptcy last year when GM agreed to recapitalize the company with $450 million in financing in exchange for common stock.

Sirius pulled off its own refinancing in early March, after 90% of its creditors swapped $636 million in debt for shares of newly issued stock. Plus, they provided $200 million more in working capital.



ABRAMS

"This hill is no different from the same hill we went over in VCR or CD or DVD or satellite television," Clayton says.

Schaeffler cites satellite TV as a precedent. When it was starting out, 100 million households were targeted and were expected to spend at least $30 a month on services.

Today, satellite radio is courting a universe twice that size—200 million registered autos—at a maximum subscriber price of $12.95 per month. That is a stronger foundation than satellite TV had.

U.K. Indies Blossom

some might say such industry veterans should know better than to jump in at this juncture. But each has enthusiasm for his new endeavor, despite the uncertainty of the moment.

Still, the new labels are entering the fray with caution, in terms of both staffing and rosters. None has signed more than a handful of acts.

The labels vary in their approach to marketing and distribution partnerships. In some markets, they have indie partners; in others, they might work with a major. In all cases, flexibility seems to be the key.

Conroy, who operates the Adventure Records label with his wife, former EMI director of international promotions Katie Conroy, has started the label with what he describes as a "patchwork quilt of companies around the world" to handle distribution.

In the U.K., Adventure Records is coordinating its own marketing but has a distribution agreement with indie powerhouse Pinnacle. The label, which is self-funded, has set sail with two album releases. Former Squeeze member Chris Difford's I Didn't Get Where I Am was issued last November, and Danish modern-rock act Nu's AlphaBravoShockpopDisco is due June 16.

Adventure Records has completed label deals for some additional territories, including fellow independents Gresham for South Africa and Liberation in Australia and New Zealand. Individual deals for Nu are in place with UP for France, ARS in the Benelux market, and Skeye in Italy, with "more offers coming in," according to Paul Conroy.

Instrumental in creating this patchwork, he says, has been General Overseas, a U.K. licensing and international office for indie labels and production houses that watches out for the business affairs, marketing, and promotion aspects of the deals it brokers. Active for more than 10 years, General Overseas has represented such labels as Gut, All Around the World, Inferno, and Ministry of Sound.

Some of Adventure Records' label partners have major distribution deals, such as UP and Liberation with Warner and Skeye with BMG, while others handle their own releases. What's important, Conroy says, is not so much physical independence but independent thinking.

"That can sometimes be found in the structure of a major. Dare I say, that's what Virgin had, or what we strived for, during my tenure.

"On marketing, it's hard for us in the U.K., as Pinnacle just distributes us. We have to put in the marketing bucks. Abroad, the labels we've chosen to go with have certainly presented us with excellent marketing plans. You have to live and breathe what you're working on, and you certainly push yourself harder when it's your own money."

Similarly, Hucknall, a global hitmaker as the frontman of Simply Red since the act's 1985 debut, has stitched together label and distribution deals that are already reaping rewards.

Hucknall and management company Silentway have taken their time putting together the new enterprise, called simplyred.com. The process began after Simply Red's departure from Warner-owned EastWest Records, which issued the act's last album, It's Only Love, in 2000.

The new label, which is funded by Hucknall and Silentway, began rolling out the group's new album, Home, in March.

In the U.K., the album appears through heavyweight dance indie Ministry of Sound, with distribution by TEN.

Across Europe, it has been released chiefly via a network of hand-picked independents, such as SPV in Germany, V2 in Holland, and Nun in Italy. But in other territories, including France, Australasia, and Latin America, simplyred.com is going with major distribution through Universal Music International.

"In 75% of our market, we're taking the independent approach," Silentway's Ian Grenfell says of simplyred.com. "This was the chunk we put in place first. Then we looked for a major to help in Latin America and Asia, where we found it harder to do the independent deals we wanted to do."

In the U.K., where Grenfell says Home has shipped 350,000 copies, the album enjoyed first-week sales of 87,000 units and debuted at No. 2. It also debuted at No. 3 in Italy, No. 4 in Holland, and No. 5 in Germany, where Grenfell says shipments total 150,000.

Grenfell adds that European shipments will surpass 800,000 when France becomes the last market in the region to issue the album in early June. He expects an initial shipment there of 40,000-50,000.

A U.S. release of the album is expected in August, with distribution now being finalized.

Hucknall has found the early results of the label to be liberating. "This is one of the most exciting times in my life," he says. "I feel so much more involved in my career and motivated to make this project work. Everything's great right now."

Grenfell says there are no plans to sign other artists to simplyred.com, which he describes as "a template rather than a label." But he is "very open" to a future advisory role for established acts that want to take a similar route. "There's no reason this model shouldn't work for anyone with a quantifiable global fan base."

Ian Brown, who operates indie label Flying Sparks, agrees that the independent route is preferable for certain artists, especially those with an established fan base.

"Majors don't work well because they're corporate, and the nature of corporates is to devalue the product so they can control it," Brown says with trademark candor.

"It's like, 'If one act ain't selling, fuck it: We've got another.' Sanctuary and other [indies] win because they take established artists of quality and don't overspend to get market share. Because the artists are quality, they sell."

Brown will shortly launch a new label, Hungry Dog, as a vehicle for English singer/songwriter Thea Gilmore and her upcoming Avalanche album, which is due Aug. 11. "She's gigged forever, she's had great press and got a great fan base, and now she's ready to sell records," Brown says. "I haven't made any money from her yet, but I will."

Brown, who also is funding his own label, says "a couple" of other signings will follow Gilmore. He has yet to announce any marketing and distribution affiliations but acknowledges he may seek alliances at home and abroad with a major—if he can maintain creative autonomy.

Meanwhile, pursuing a fully independent path in the U.K. is Mike Stock, who, as part of SAW, helmed countless hits for Kylie Minogue, Jason Donovan, Rick Astley, and many others.

Stock's new label, Better the Devil Records, will launch June 9 with the novelty single "Fast Food Song" by Fast Food Rockers (Billboard, May 10). Domestic U.K. distribution will be handled by Nova through Pinnacle.

"The reality is, it's always been difficult to be an independent label, [but] I don't believe it's noticeably harder to launch a label now than before," Stock says. "Our philosophy is to release hit singles that appeal across the age groups that will develop into album projects. We won't be spending ludicrous sums to sign an 'album artist' and then throw money at recording an album that the public may or may not show interest in."

Better the Devil commercial director Bob Patmore has secured substantial private investment for the label. "The level of funding is significant, because there's no point launching a label with insufficient fiscal power," he says.

The label has also signed British pop vocalist Natalie Powers for the world and New York-based band the Hazzards for the world outside North America.

As for marketing Better the Devil releases outside the U.K., managing director Graham Stokes says discussions are under way with foreign indies, "with a view to them licensing our tracks and us obtaining the U.K. license for their products." He says he also will talk with majors about "more long-term relationships."

For all of these new indies, keeping costs down is the key to viability.

Brown offers specific insights into the cost structure of working an album as an independent. For a dealer album price of around £8 [$13], he estimates distribution expenses of £1.20 [$1.96], with manufacturing, copyright fees, and artist royalties accounting for a further £3.80 [$6.22]. "That leaves £3 [$4.90], which has to cover all your marketing, and so on. [You should] try to keep marketing to £2 [$3.27] initially, so you have a bit up your sleeve."

Regarding simplyred.com's structure, Grenfell says, "Break-even point is substantially lower, as the overhead costs are small compared to a major. After break-even, we're looking at three to four times the profit per CD. Also, synch licenses and other uses give us a greater profit, and most importantly the artist owns the masters."

"Indies do have lower break-even points, because we cut better deals. We have to," Brown says. "Do we have less marketing clout? The best marketing is a great record on the radio and in the shops. A retailer wants to sell records as much as I do, so if you've got radio and a genuine public demand, you're away."

McKee Embodies Indies' Spirit

Longstanding American critical favorite Maria McKee is receiving a firsthand education in small-business practices with the launch of Viewfinder, the label she runs with husband/producer Jim Akin.

"We're not going to make millions of dollars, but it's a great way to keep going," McKee says. She is currently touring internationally behind her new album, High Dive, which Viewfinder issued April 22 in the U.S. and other markets.

McKEE

McKee had spent all of her recording career at Geffen, first with Lone Justice in the 1980s and then as a solo artist.

The new label has U.S. affiliation with Jimmy Buffett's Mailboat and international distribution by Windsong. McKee is particularly pleased to have hooked up with Buffett, who she describes as "a patron of the arts."

McKee and Akin operate Viewfinder from their home in Los Angeles, with Akin acting as engineer/photographer/video director in this lean operation. Viewfinder has only one other employee, artist liaison/tour manager Lauren Murphy.

For McKee, the experience of running a label is "exhilarating," especially because of the creative freedom it allows.

"When I think about it, it's like, 'Oh, my God, I can do anything I want,' " McKee says. "People may not buy it, but I can put it out there."

Greater awareness of her finances has also been eye-opening.

"When we were on Geffen, we would go into the hole tremendously on touring, and we've organized this [tour] so that we are actually going to make a little money. We're staying in [small apartments], driving in a van. We're interning people . . . We splurged on a sound man, because that's important."

With reduced overhead, the difference in earnings potential is dramatic. "It's amazing," McKee says. "On a major label we would make 15% of the profit. Here, we make 80%."

Akin says he is not averse to working with a major in some capacity, but only in the right creative circumstances.

"Generally, any time you hold hands with someone, you lose control, and when you lose control, you basically go insane," he says.

Hot Tickets Fuel Fight For $$$$

otherwise should be theirs.

"The record labels sat around for a long time and ignored the downloading and burning process," says Terry Barnes, CEO of ticketing giant Ticketmaster. "We, as a ticketing service, didn't want to sit around and watch that happen in our business."

The secondary ticketing market for all forms of live entertainment—including sports and concerts—amounts to as much as $30 billion in annual sales, according to Addante and Associates, a consulting firm.

On eBay alone, enough tickets are posted for resale every 36 hours to fill Madison Square Garden, says Doug Galen, the site's VP of tickets.

With the stakes so high, Ticketmaster and others are looking for ways to claim a share of the resale riches.

In fact, many U.S. sports teams are already participating in the bonanza by offering to resell tickets that the original purchaser wants to unload.

MATCHBOX TWENTY

Ticketmaster, for example, is using its sports-oriented Team Exchange system as the basis for Ticket Exchange, a service it is developing for the institutionalized resale of returned concert tickets.

Rival agencies tickets.com and Paciolan are also shopping to their venue clients concert-ticket resale programs patterned after their sports ticket exchanges.

"Why would you let brokers trade on your assets? You're giving up revenue. We are building the technology to take it back," says Bob McAuliff, VP of advanced ticketing services at Paciolan.

TicketsNow, another Web-based ticket reseller, adds steep markups on "premium seating" for in-demand events. The broker posted tickets with prices as high as $5,400 each for the Rolling Stones' Madison Square Garden show last September (Billboard, Aug. 31, 2002).

And stubhub.com, yet another competitor, charges a service fee to users who advertise tickets. The tickets are usually sold at a flat price, at auction, or on a declining scale—where prices fall as an event nears. The site's investors include Alanis Morissette manager Scott Welch.

In addition, the National Assn. of Ticket Brokers has more than 150 licensed online and offline members.

And then there are such endeavors as Craig's List, which operates as an online exchange for tickets and other items. The items are often unloaded at face value or below. The site appears to benefit solely from fees for job postings.

Against this backdrop, the traditional ticketing services are seeking their piece of the secondary pie.

Paciolan, for example, is negotiating deals with two arenas (the names are under wraps until contracts are signed) to handle the resale of concert tickets held by suite owners.

Details are still being worked out on how the Paciolan program would apply to concerts, but for sports events, the original ticket holder gets 80% of the resale price from tickets that are sold either at face value or in an auction on the venue's Web site.

The method of sale is based upon scalping laws and venue and team policy. The remaining 20%—the service fee—is split between Paciolan, the venue, and sometimes the team. The new buyer picks up the tickets at the venue.

"When the Dixie Chicks [tickets] went on sale for their 2003 tour, we quickly sold out the Greensboro Coliseum. That demand creates the perfect environment for the secondary market," says Carl Thomas, executive VP of marketing and sales for tickets.com.

"The venue can manage the situation with Replay Ticket Exchange [the company's resale program]. The venue can deploy the rules of the game," he adds.

Ticketmaster's music program, which is still in its formative stages, would work much like its Team Exchange service.

Season-ticket holders for Team Exchange's 17 client teams can resell game tickets for face value or for profit. Sellers post the ticket information on Ticketmaster's Web site. Once sold, the ticket's old bar code is voided and replaced. The buyer then prints out the new encoded ticket from his computer.

Although the bulk of the resale money for concert tickets—even if it is hundreds of dollars over face value on a ticket—would go to the original seller, venues, promoters, and acts could share in the service fees. Depending on client wishes, the fee could be charged back to the original ticket holder or to the new buyer.

Barnes says Ticketmaster can work with touring groups, whether that means selling a ticket at face value, a capped amount over face value, or for an unlimited amount determined at auction.

Ticketmaster has discussed its reselling service with a number of its building clients, Barnes says. "We have the software [to control the secondary market], but it is up to the industry to decide if they want to use it."

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

Venue operators, managers, promoters, and artists remain torn about entering the ticket resale market.

For House of Blues (HOB) Concerts executive VP Alex Hodges, there are more questions than answers—including how resale tickets could affect artist guarantees, which are set prior to a show's on-sale date.

"It could be fighting fire with fire if Ticketmaster [and others] are using [a resale site] as a real profit center," Hodges says. "I do not want to unintentionally become an enabler to scalping."

THOMAS

BROWN

But Hodges says he has spoken with another ticketing company, still in its infancy, that is drumming up a buzz for its own secondary ticket management program.

Though he declines to name the company, Hodges thinks it boasts "an unbelievable formula . . . and they are planning on including the artist in the equation."

Phish manager John Paluska thinks his famously fan-oriented act will nix the reselling of its tickets, because they don't want to create the impression that the band is profiting twice—from primary and secondary sales.

Still, he does leave the door open to the possibility: "Anything that puts a wrench in scalpers' [efforts] is better than scalpers getting their hands on all those tickets."

Even some venue executives say this is an area they should avoid.

Comcast-Spectacor Ventures president Peter Luukko is dead set against resale programs. "Maybe I'm stubborn, but this is just scalping in another form."

Luukko sees sports and concerts as apples and oranges: "The resale for teams is really just a service to help season-ticket holders use all their tickets . . . they can't make all 81 baseball games [typically in packages]."

Brenda Tinnen, VP of event and guest services at Staples Center, says that artists—who are sensitive to fan opinion—will not be interested in carving off a piece of the secondary market through service fees.

"The Bruce Springsteens of the world will want the same ticket price from front to back [of the house]," she says. "I don't think you can entice them with an extra $1 or 50 cents."

Others are intrigued by the resale concept. Dave Brown and Tim Ryan, GMs at the American Airlines Center in Dallas and Arrowhead Pond in Anaheim, Calif., respectively, say they are ready to embrace Ticketmaster's resale program if given the chance.

"We want to give it a shot," Brown says. "It makes sense for us to participate in revenues [by] taking better control of the mechanics of ticket exchange and making sure people aren't getting taken advantage of."

Mike Garcia, GM of the Greek Theatre in Los Angeles, is researching with Ticketmaster whether Greek concert-season subscribers could resell tickets to non-subscribers or to other subscribers through an institutionalized system with the blessing of acts and promoters.

A key element in initiatives from Ticketmaster and other venue-aligned companies is their guarantee of all resales. Buying off a scalper at a badly lit street corner is risky business. But logging on to eBay from the safety of home computers is a gamble, too. As a third-party broker, eBay has "no control over the quality, safety, or legality of the items advertised," per its user's agreement.

Galen of eBay says fraud accounts for less than 0.01% of all the auctioneer's transactions.

Some artists are willing to referee ticket resales if limits are set on the resale amount.

Paul Doucette, drummer with Matchbox Twenty, admits to an oddly sentimental attachment to the seedy sight of scalpers on concert nights.

"It's part of the whole experience of going to the show," Doucette says. But, he adds, "I am not opposed to Ticketmaster setting up an eBay kind of thing. I would put a cap on what you could do with each ticket. You can't sell it for over $500 [for instance]."

Further, Doucette is not concerned that the initial ticket buyer would make the bulk of the money from any ticket sold for more than face value. "If I buy a blender, pay $10, and then sell it for $20 on [the Web], well, good for me."

NAME YOUR OWN PRICE

Along with the resale market, the concert industry is looking closely at in-house ticket auctions, such as that held April 25-May 3 by Staples Center and Ticketmaster for the Los Angeles arena's June 21 Lennox Lewis/Vitali Klitschko boxing match.

Eyes are also on Third Eye Blind, which sold tickets for its 20-date club tour via an auction on eBay with mixed results (see story, page 17). The band saw the move as a way for fans to name their own price for shows. But because many major arenas have exclusive contracts with Ticketmaster, the eBay model is limited in its scope.

Industry observers view the auction of first-sale tickets as a possible way to squeeze out scalpers, because a sanctioned auction would set the show's true market value.

Glen Mon, senior VP at venue management company SMG, is excited by the auction idea. "It's a fascinating concept: letting the market decide what the price should be."

EVERCLEAR

For the Lewis bout at Staples, 82 two-ticket packages out of 200 were bought through the Ticketmaster online auction.

Bids for the packages, each of which also included an autographed Lewis glove and valet parking, started at $3,000 apiece; the highest ticket bundle sold for $5,500. Revenue is expected to be shared between Staples and Ticketmaster after squaring away deals with the boxers.

Besides Third Eye Blind, no other act is known to be ready to try an auction for the first sale of tickets.

Everclear frontman Art Alexakis worries that presiding over a primary market auction will hurt his fans. "Ticket prices are astronomical the way they are," he says.

But giving to charities any money garnered over a ticket's minimum bid could be an option, he adds.

AEG Live CEO Randy Phillips is concerned about public perception: "The last thing that we want to look like we're doing is price gouging."

But what many venues can agree on is that they are tired of watching outsiders run to the bank with money to which they feel entitled.

"Ticketmaster is doing the right thing addressing this market and coming up with tools to combat this evolution. But that is only part of it," HOB's Hodges says.

"They must also address and respond to the remaining questions that each involved party has," he adds.

Small Labels Are Jarred By Indie Promo Ban

(or any staff). Now, they say, they'll lose access as a result of Clear Channel's decision last month.

"If I'm really going to take a record to radio . . . [indies] do the nuts and bolts of my work," says Tom "Smitty" Smith, senior director of promotion at Spitfire, an independent label.

Smith says he is currently getting airplay on rock radio stations for the band Black Label Society.

Nashville-based Dualtone has had a number of country chart records in recent years, even though it hasn't had any promotion staff of its own.

"We're going to have to put [some indies] on retainer and have them call as the Dualtone promo person and do it that way," co-owner Dan Herrington says. He also says he may hire an in-house promotion person in the near future.

Similarly, Smith says that he lets one of his independent promoters say that she's his local, "because in effect, she is."

Dave Rosas, who heads artist George Duke's BPM Records, says independent labels have always had to work harder, and the decision is not going to change things that much. But he has recently hired two promo staffers for BPM, one based in Los Angeles and the other in New York, "who officially work for the label."

"Right now we're sitting back to watch . . . before we would consider adding staff,' says Frank Murray, VP of promotion at Robbins Entertainment in New York. "Perhaps Clear Channel will rethink some aspects of the decision . . . We'll just have to wait and see."

And at least one other indie-label rep tells Billboard that the Clear Channel door may not be completely closed. The rep says that an independent promoter recently delivered his record to a Clear Channel station and got an add.

'DIMINISHING IMPORTANCE'

On April 9, Clear Channel bowed to pressure from several members of Congress and announced that its radio stations would no longer work with independent promoters.

With more than 1,200 stations nationwide, Clear Channel is by far the biggest radio chain. The company's new policy meant that independent promoters suddenly lost access to a sizable chunk of the U.S. radio market.

Independent promoters are hired by labels to work specific records. In turn, the indie promoters often pay radio stations for the right to talk to their programming personnel about those records. In some cases, the indies pay for an exclusive right that blocks other indies from contacting that station. (Last fall, the 79-station Cox Radio chain ended its exclusivity deals with independent promoters.)

Senators John McCain (R-Ariz.) and Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) had previously raised concerns about whether radio stations' retainer contracts with independent promoters affected the amount of air-play given to particular songs.

In an internal memo to staff obtained by Billboard, Clear Channel Radio COO John Hogan positioned the company's move as a way to "eliminate even the appearance of an improper relationship between Clear Channel Radio and independent promoters." He also cited "the diminishing importance to us of the independent promotion system."

TOUGH MOMENT

Industry groups are also weighing in on the potential effect of Clear Channel's decision.

"The real problem was not the existence of indie promoters—it was always the explicit or implicit, ever-increasing monetary demands made by Clear Channel," says Jay Rosenthal, co-counsel of the Recording Artists' Coalition.

"Even when they used indie promoters," he says, "indie labels were always at the bottom of the food chain because of their lack of major-label resources.

"This may be a tough moment for the indie labels, because they have to figure out how best to use their minimal resources without having the direct indie promoter connection to Clear Channel," Rosenthal adds. "But if payola is outlawed, in the long run, indie labels will benefit, even if they have to hire some in-house promotional staff."

Recording Industry Assn. of America chairman Hilary Rosen says it just made sense for Clear Channel to end the exclusives on indie promotion.

She says, "We appreciate their responsiveness when the issue was raised in Washington. I think this levels the playing field significantly for radio promotion. And when the playing field is leveled, it helps indie [labels] as well as majors."

Jenny Toomey, an independent artist and executive director of the Future of Music Coalition, says absolutely nothing was good about the indie radio promotion business.

"Even while some independent labels are concerned about the impact of Clear Channel's decision," Toomey says, "there is nothing to be lost there."

Toomey also says she is "suspicious" of Clear Channel's motives.

"They're cleaning it up because it's become prohibitive," she says. "They realize they're becoming bad guys on the scope of Darth Vader."

Hogan did not return phone calls seeking comment for this story, but he previously told Billboard that Clear Channel has a "zero tolerance" for any form of play-for-consideration.

OPPORTUNITIES STILL EXIST

Indie labels see some positives in the Clear Channel decision.

Ultra/Sequence Records president Patrick Moxie believes an opportunity exists to work with individual Clear Channel stations.

"With the major labels becoming more conservative in what they sign," he says, "radio groups like Clear Channel will be looking to the independent labels for new, fresh, and exciting music."

Ultra/Sequence currently has the Panjabi MC record breaking at R&B and rhythmic top 40.

Herrington adds the new policy "may bring the cost of doing business with some of these stations down.

"The nature of the beast dealing with indies and radio is that there are associated costs with that. If you can cut out some of those . . . for us, that's definitely a good thing. On the other hand, [Clear Channel] not talking to indies, for us, is a bad thing, and we're trying to figure out how to react in this new world."

Rosas thinks Clear Channel's new policy "may force labels large and small to go back to the basics of creating a buzz in the marketplace or in a specific region by building the song in the clubs and in the streets."

Rosas says such a move would then force a radio station in the market to recognize the record. "Maybe that's the better way of doing it anyway, because for most small labels, it's about record sales, not the reported 'add.' "

Thomas Anderson, VP of Magnatar Records in New York, thinks Clear Channel's new policy won't affect his label. "We'll be hitting the streets, record pools, clubs, etc.," he says. "Working smarter and efficiently will be the priorities."

As a joint venture with Columbia Records, DMZ Records has the advantage of being able to use Columbia's promotion team to work its projects. That label's former president, John Grady—who recently took over the helm at Sony Music Nashville (see story, page 5)—also takes a more positive approach to the new Clear Channel policy.

"Anything that strengthens the communication between record companies and radio stations will ultimately be a positive," Grady says. "I don't necessarily think it will be less expensive, but it will increase communication. Nobody can hide from anybody anymore."

Indies Consider Their Place In Radio

BY PHYLLIS STARK

For independent promoters, the new Clear Channel policy has become a test of their ability to adapt and survive.

But even as they adjust to the new reality, some promoters are just plain angry about a decision they think was based on the actions of a few wrongdoers.

"As a new independent radio promoter who operates a very legitimate and hard-working business, the issue that Clear Channel has taken with independent radio promoters is unfair and will damage the future of the radio promotion business as well as the future of the music industry," says Cheryl Dellamedaglia of Nashville-based Totally Connected.

GARBER

"I have worked very hard making great relationships and friendships with the radio folks and have adds and possible adds on a project I am currently working on," Dellamedaglia says. "Now I am told I am no longer able to call my business associates and follow up. That is wrong and very unfair. To make everyone pay for the wrongdoing of a few radio stations' involvement in the 'payola' nonsense is ridiculous."

Like the independent labels facing new challenges as a result of Clear Channel's policy (see related story, this page), some independent promoters are already learning how to adapt to the new reality.

"All around, it's tough," says veteran indie promoter Issy Sanchez of ADM Marketing in New York. "We're preparing by being smarter. As labels look at ways of spending money more wisely, people like us with strong relationships are going to endure . . . We've spent years developing relationships . . . Opportunities still exist."

Other promoters agree. One R&B independent, who asked to remain anonymous, says the new Clear Channel policy has not been a problem. The promoter says, "I can still communicate with the folks I need to.

"I think Clear Channel hasn't really figured out exactly what it's going to do yet. It's still feeling its way through and working on some plan way up on the corporate ladder. We won't know the real impact on the independent promotion industry until they do finally figure it out. As long as I can still talk to the programmers, I'm happy.

The promoter adds, "I look at our jobs as part of the setup on a record, so even if there are some stations we can't reach, there are other things we will be doing in any given market."

"Just because Clear Channel needed to clean their act up on paper does not automatically necessitate a change in practice," one indie rock promoter says. "The bottom line is that everything is basically status quo."

Jesus Garber, president of Los Angeles-based adult R&B promotion firm the Jesus Garber Co., says, "A good promotion person is like a chameleon and can adapt to any new challenges the industry sets forth. And so we shall deal with this as well.

"Most indies are former record company executives, with 20 or 30 years of experience," Garber adds. "We also have the relationships with programmers . . . that go back that long. So, people are still going to take our calls. And if you have an artist who has a long history at the format and you're the person working them, again, they will have to talk to you."

Indie Koch Entertainment Grows Into A 'Mini-Major'

BY ED CHRISTMAN

NEW YORK—At a time when the major labels are contracting, Koch Entertainment has blossomed into what the company likes to call a "mini-major."

Like other indies, it is chasing brand-name acts that can no longer land, or have ceased to be interested in, a major-label deal. But it's doing so across multiple imprints covering most of the key music genres.

Added to that is the real muscle, Koch Entertainment Distribution (KED). Formerly called Koch International, the distribution arm is a big factor in the company's success, according to Koch Entertainment president Bob Frank.

He says, "It's a major benefit to have a great distribution company behind us."

The New York-based company, which started as a small classical label in 1990, now comprises Koch Records, Audium, In the Paint Records, DRG, and Koch International Classics. Company executives claim the group has generated between $30 million and $40 million in each of the past three years.

"And that's net sales, not gross sales, which everyone in the record industry typically uses when talking volume," says Koch Entertainment founder and CEO Michael Koch.

BIGGEST INDEPENDENT

KED has also evolved into the leading U.S. independent distributor. Revenue this year is expected to top $150 million.

"Koch is the biggest of the independents," artist attorney Bob Donnelly says. "It's almost a misnomer not to consider them a major."

Koch Entertainment ranks second among independent labels based on market share, with 0.58%. But when its distribution arm is added in, Koch Entertainment tops all other indies with 1.58% of the market, according to year-to-date figures from Nielsen SoundScan.

Its closest competitor, Madacy Records/Excel, has 1.13% of the market.

Despite its size, however, the company has its critics. Some question Koch Entertainment's tendency to sign acts that appear to be past their commercial prime. Further, they say the operation has not developed acts of its own.

"I don't see one artist developing out of this camp," a distribution executive says. "I don't know what the purpose of the label is; what's the center of music gravity? It's all over the place. Is it a hodgepodge of things that make a business? But you are not making an enduring program of quality if you are not developing artists."

The label, of course, also has its defenders. On the rap front, an R&B buyer with a large account says, "The majors have snapped up every decent rap artist, but there's room for what Koch does. They have a nice roster, filled with good B-level artists."

Koch Entertainment senior VP of A&R Cliff Cultreri concedes that the criticism about developing new artists may be true to a point.

He asks, "Are we in the business of finding the new flavor of the week?

"We will take a few of those shots every now and then, but a lot of what we are doing is working with artists that have a niche in the marketplace," Cultreri adds. "And then we create deals that allow [those artists] to make money without having to be gold and platinum."

In fact, some observers say Michael Koch has displayed a new willingness to invest in growth.

This is a change from the 1990s, when Koch was known for being more conservative with label expenditures, according to one industry executive who is familiar with the company.

Nowadays, Koch knows you cannot do deals "without spending money, but he just spends smart money," In the Paint label president Alan Grunblatt says.

But Koch insists there has been no change in his approach. "We have been serious from the beginning. We put out the Lucinda Williams album in 1998 that has sold 100,000 units; we put out a Little Rascals record that sold 35,000 units, and we did the [World Wrestling Federation (WWF)] albums."

Another major factor in the Koch success story is the WWF/World Wrestling Enterprises (WWE) franchise. (The WWF is now known as the WWE.) The five Koch albums in the series have scanned 3.8 million units to date.

But some industry insiders suggest that Koch may have lost the WWE property to Sony Music, which released an album in April 2002—WWF Forceable Entry—for the wrestling enterprise. That title was a various-artist CD that has scanned 488,000 units. Subsequently, Koch issued its triple-CD WWF compilation album.

Frank says Koch hopes to get the next WWE theme collection. The WWE did not return calls seeking comment.

Whatever happens with the WWE, Michael Koch says the most important thing about the label is that "since the beginning, every year we have been profitable, except for 2000 and 2001." He explains that was when the company was gearing up after the Velvel acquisition and getting In the Paint and Audium off the ground.

The company may have also been hurt in 2000-2001 by a tendency to over-ship new releases. Wherehouse Entertainment director of urban music Violet Brown acknowledges the problem but says the label is getting better at initial outlays.

> 'What we are doing is working with artists that have a niche in the marketplace. Then we create deals that allow [those artists] to make money without having to be gold and platinum.'

At first, "the return rate was high, but we got it all in line," Frank says. "Now, I would rather ship less upfront; ship 35,000 and get reorders than to ship 150,000 and get 75,000 in returns."

In general, Frank says that Koch aims to sign acts that can sell at least 50,000 units and maybe reach 250,000 if the label can make it happen or get lucky.

"Every once in a while, we can sell more," he explains. "On Dwight Yoakam, we have big expectations. He is still mainstream with a great-sounding record."

MARKETING MODEL

But the Koch marketing model is built so that it does not try to break a record overnight. Frank says, "As a record develops, our plan develops with it."

"When a record gets legs, then we will back it up with dollars at radio" or whatever marketing angle makes sense. "We have built the model so that we can make a net profit of 15% to 20%."

For established artists, the company tries to build a model where break-even is between 25,000 and 50,000 units.

Frank says there is plenty of opportunity to sign acts that fit the Koch model. As the majors drop acts and the larger independents go away, "we are in a place to take advantage of what's going on, and there are so many opportunities out there now that we are passing on things, because we wouldn't be able to release it this year with our lineup."

As it is, the label group intends to release about 40 albums, the same amount it put out last year.

Right now, the company leads all indies year-to-date (from April 2002 to April 2003), with 22 records on the Billboard charts. Epitaph, its closest competitor, has 16.

Koch created his umbrella company in June 1999, after he bought Velvel Records from legendary music executive Walter Yetnikoff. That deal was engineered by Frank, who was then Velvel's GM.

Even before that deal, Michael Koch had diversified Koch Records beyond its classical roots. He issued theme-music albums from the WWF starting in 1998, as well as a self-titled album by Williams.

That year, Koch Records had sales of about $10 million, according to Frank.

With the creation of Koch Entertainment, the company began to set up other labels. Each targeted a different genre to complement Koch Records, which now mainly issues rock, R&B, and children's titles.

In late 1999, it launched Audium, a Nashville-based label pursuing the country music market and headed by industry veteran Nick Hunter. In 2001, it kicked off In the Paint Records, a rap/hip-hop label, naming Alan Grunblatt as president.

Koch Entertainment added DRG to its classics stable when it acquired a majority interest in the theatrical music label in 1994. It joined Koch International Classics, which formed in 1990. GM Susan DelGiorno heads Koch International, while DRG founder Hugh Fordin heads and retains equity in his former company.

Only a few of Koch Entertainment's 45 staffers work for a specific label; the rest are shared, Frank explains.

Outside North America, Koch now has licensing arrangements in all its foreign markets, although it once had labels in the U.K. and Benelux (Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg).

"Maintaining our own operations is not cost-efficient or time-efficient from a management perspective right now," Frank says. "In time, of course, that may change."

The company's licensing partners include Shock in Australia; JVC in Japan; Edel in France, Spain, Italy, Portugal, and Scandinavia; Universal in the U.K., Germany/Switzerland/Austria, Benelux, Russia, Poland, and Israel; and Gresham in South Africa.

All three mainstream Koch labels are dominated by heritage acts with established fan bases, although each also has developing artists as well.

The Koch Records roster includes Joan Baez, Carole King, Ringo Starr, Chico DeBarge, Bob Geldof, Steve Forbert, Jeffrey Osborne, and Dave Knopfler. Counted among the newer acts are the Kennedys, Laura Love, and Some Girls (featuring Juliana Hatfield).

Koch Records also markets and distributes Suge Knight's Tha Row catalog, and it has a relationship with U.K. death-metal label Music for Nations, from which it licenses U.S. rights to titles by such bands as Godflesh and Entombed.

It also has a children's stable, with titles built around such characters as Bob the Builder, Pokémon, Barney the Dinosaur, the Wiggles, and Strawberry Shortcake (see related story, page 44).

Last year, Koch Records' best-selling title was the three-CD WWE: The Anthology, which has sold 300,000 copies, according to Nielsen SoundScan. So far this year, the label's best-selling new release is Starr's Ringorama, which has scanned 24,000 copies.

Upcoming Audium releases include titles by Yoakam, Kentucky Headhunters, Ray Benson, Charlie Daniels, Jimmy Fortune of the Statler Brothers, and new act the Larkins. Also on the roster is Ray Price, John Anderson, the Tractors, Sammy Kershaw, and developing artists Rodney Redman, Rodney Hayden, and Danni Leigh.

Like Audium in country, In the Paint has emerged as a leading independent hip-hop label. Its roster includes KRS-One, B.G., Kool G Rap, the Goodie Mob, Public Enemy, Inspectah Deck, and the Turks.

Country Acts Feed Fans' Hunger For Patriotic Tunes

of sales was 42,500 (see Over the Counter, page 63).

While country's patriotic bent clearly benefits the format, particularly in times of national strife, labels and artists often must walk a fine line between sincere expression and the appearance of opportunism. Meanwhile, country radio programmers—who are lately deluged with flag-waving anthems during every national crisis—face the challenge of determining which songs will connect with their audiences.

Country artists have long used music as a platform for social and political views, generally reflecting the emotional current of the country music audience. It is a tradition that stretches from Merle Haggard's "Okie From Muskogee" and "The Fightin' Side of Me" to Lee Greenwood's "God Bless the USA."

The connection between patriotism and country music dates back at least as far as World War II, which inspired such recordings as Ernest Tubb's 1944 hit "Soldier's Last Letter." So what is at the root of this connection?

Curb Records senior VP/GM Dennis Hannon attributes patriotic music's dominance in the country market to the fact that it appeals to the "silent majority that typifies middle America, which then typifies the country consumer. Country music has never been driven by the East Coast or the West Coast. It's driven by middle America, the heartland. That's where the more conservative approach comes in; the more patriotic approach."

DreamWorks Records senior executive of sales and marketing John Rose says country artists "have always spoken out on social issues that are important to the common man, and because of that, the patriotic value seems to come to the surface quicker with a country audience."

Worley—who wrote "Have You Forgotten?" after visiting U.S. troops in Afghanistan last December—says, "People that listen to country music are hard-working, working-class American people, and they typically lean in that [patriotic] direction. The country listeners tend to back us guys when we put out something pro-America [or] pro-military."

In the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, Greenwood's "God Bless the USA" was embraced all over again and landed the veteran singer/songwriter a new deal with Curb Records. The song first reached No. 7 on the Billboard Hot Country Singles & Tracks chart in 1984 and peaked again at No. 16 in 2001. The commercial single is No. 4 on the Billboard Country Singles Sales chart after 80 weeks on that chart.

Greenwood recently recorded an updated version of the song, "God Bless the USA 2003," which has been serviced to country radio and will be on his forthcoming album. (Meanwhile, another version of the song recorded by the current American Idol finalists stormed onto the Hot 100 Singles Sales chart at No. 1 this issue on sales of 101,000 [see story, page 3].)

The many other patriotic songs currently vying for radio's attention include Clint Black's "I Raq and Roll" and the Warren Brothers' "Hey Mr. President." Lonestar recently reshot the video for its 2-year-old hit "I'm Already There" to recast the song as a tribute to the military.

WALKING THE LINE

Country music executives obviously want to feed the public's appetite for patriotic music, but no one wants to appear to be capitalizing on often tragic circumstances. "It is a fine line that you have to walk," admits Hannon, who says the label chose not to advertise the new version of Greenwood's single. "You simply have to make that music available, and people will make their choices." To advertise it, he says, "would have done an injustice to the artist. You never want to take advantage of a situation or be perceived as taking advantage of a situation. You take the high road. Maybe it's a quieter road, but at the end of the day, [you hope] radio will discover it and the consumer will discover it or rediscover it."

RCA Label Group executive VP Butch Waugh says of the patriotic trend, "It's not that we're capitalizing on it; the artists are writing songs that are true to their heart. The Warren Brothers felt like they needed to say something because they were touched by this [war]. This is not something that was calculated. ["Hey Mr. President"] was a song they brought in [that] touched us emotionally."

EMI Music Publishing Nashville executive VP/GM Gary Overton does not think the country songwriting community has penned the current crop of patriotic tunes in an effort to cash in but rather as a reflection of the national mood. "Songwriters, being creative people, are antennas," he says. "They are so sensitive. We have a lot of songwriters who have written things that are in the catalog because of the Sept. 11 events or because of the war. I don't think any I've heard has been 'Gee, I'm going to capitalize on the emotion of this thing.' "

Rose agrees. "We don't really sit down and say, 'OK guys, let's write some songs about patriotism.' Our artists are passionate, creative artists, and they brought us music [that happened to be patriotic]. In the case of both of these songs ["Courtesy of the Red, White & Blue" and "Have You Forgotten?"], people wanted them, and our job as a label is to figure out how to deliver them."

DreamWorks rush-released the album Have You Forgotten? to stores April 15 after the single caught fire. It contains four new songs, including the single, and 12 tracks from Worley's previous two albums.

Lyric Street was one label that tried to carefully walk the line between patriotic and profiteering last year, when it renamed a planned Tippin album Stars & Stripes and changed the release date to coincide with the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks.

GOODMAN

"I didn't feel at that point in time that we were doing anything that felt wrong-spirited," label president Randy Goodman says. Still, the label muted any such accusations by donating all proceeds from the commercial single for Tippin's post-Sept. 11 hit "Where the Stars and Stripes and the Eagle Fly" to the Red Cross and its relief efforts for the families of Sept. 11 victims. Goodman says the single raised about $250,000.

As for decisions about the album title and release date, Tippin says, "If anybody wants to whup up on me about that, they'll have to check my financial statements to see how much I donated to the Red Cross."

Goodman admits that for any other act, the timing may have appeared to be an effort to capitalize on tragedy, but Tippin is an artist who has been associated with patriotism and working-class values for his entire career, beginning with the first Gulf War, when he performed with the USO and Bob Hope for U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia. "I've been called 'the little flag waver' from way back," Tippin says. "I guess some people think you can be too patriotic."

Goodman says that making the Red Cross donation was its own reward. "How much better can it be than to be able to make music that touches people's lives and helps healing and [to] take all of that and on the back end of it to be able to write a check and give it to the people who really need it?"

Likewise, Worley and DreamWorks plan to donate a portion of the proceeds from Have You Forgotten? to a charity that benefits military families, although the charity and exact percentage had not been determined at press time.

In delivering Worley's album, Rose says the label shipped nearly 900,000 copies in anticipation of strong demand on the heels of an aggressive presale campaign. The album's title track was available for download to consumers who preordered the album at Trans World Entertainment's fye.com, amazon.com, and other Web sites. There were also 25,000 copies of the single available at select brick-and-mortar stores for consumers who prepurchased the album.

"It's definitely been striking a nerve," Trans World country music buyer Tim Peterson says of Worley's single, adding that the presale campaign was "definitely bigger than anything I've ever done so far [including] the Dixie Chicks and Toby Keith. Certainly it's his career song, no doubt about it."

ATTRACTING NEW FANS

In addition to driving sales on select country artists, the patriotic bent brings other benefits to the format. "Country radio is the beneficiary—wittingly or unwittingly—of having artists who think this way and are not afraid to say what they believe," says Goodman, who thinks patriotic hits may draw non-country fans to the format. "Nobody else is going to play that kind of music. If people are of that mind-set, they may be looking at country and saying, 'I'm going to go to that format, because those people are speaking to the patriotism I feel right now, and my regular station is not.' That bodes well not just for country radio but for us as a format. Let's face it: There are a lot of people who are discovering Darryl Worley now that had never heard of him before."

Another benefit is increased media exposure. "I turned on Fox News [recently], and Donald Rumsfeld was introducing Darryl Worley at the Pentagon," says Brett Warren of the Warren Brothers. "It's funny how a song can change your life."

He should know. The Warren Brothers parted ways with the BNA label a year ago and recently were resigned to the label, partly on the strength of "Hey Mr. President" (see Nashville Scene, page 41).

"The cool thing about this song is we weren't bandwagon-jumping," Warren says. "It was written a year ago, and we didn't even write it. I thought it was an artistic way of being patriotic and paying homage to the office of the president."

FOR RADIO, A MATTER OF GUT

Radio programmers were flooded with flag-wavers after Sept. 11, again on the first anniversary of the terror attacks, and yet again since the start of the war in Iraq. But only a percentage of these singles strike the programmers as sincere; others seem crass.

WUBE Cincinnati operations manager Tim Closson puts the credible vs. crass figure at 50/50 and says of the difference, "You can feel it when you listen."

KZLA Los Angeles assistant PD/music director Tonya Campos says, "The percentage [of songs] we feel are ready for airplay is low. There will always be a small percentage of material sent in that is an attempt to get publicity, and we basically use our gut feelings to seek those out."

WUSN (US99) Chicago PD Justin Case thinks "most songs that try to take advantage of a situation sound that way. PDs must choose the most relevant songs for their audience. You can't play them all, so find the standouts."

Waugh praises country radio for reflecting what he sees as the desires of its listeners. "I have a lot of friends that program pop radio stations, and they tell me they want to be an alternative to the war, where people can go to escape the news. But I'm not sure Americans want to escape the war. Country radio is addressing that. Some of the other formats are not."

Goodman and Waugh do not see the patriotic-song deluge ending any time soon. Goodman says, "The bottom line is, as long as people can continue to come up with [songs] that are poignant, profound, and moving, then maybe the sky's the limit."

Waugh says, "These are powerful songs with a point of view that people want to hear. As far as being a patriot and feeling good about America, I think if you write songs about that, they are still going to get played and people are still going to react."

Music Biz Seeks Boost For Ailing Catalog Sales

There's the reallocation of space from music product to movie DVDs. There's piracy."

"In the immortal words of Bob Dylan, you don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows," Sony Legacy senior VP Jeff Jones says. "It's right in the paper, what's happening at retail. It's getting smaller and smaller and harder and harder and more challenging to have retail continue to stock, carry, and promote catalog."

The challenge to catalog execs is two-fold: They must create incentives for beleaguered retailers to stock their product in a constricted marketplace, while attracting consumers with new marketing twists.

"We have to find, first of all, creative ways to get our product into the main, basic accounts," Resnikoff says. "On a secondary basis, we have to find new ways and new channels to sell our product."

When it comes to catalog, pricing and terms are retailers' central concerns. In the case of recent catalog, labels are attempting to bring retailers on board through permanent price reductions or deals affecting a rotating list of titles.

Sony Music—which established its long-running $11.98 Best Value midline series more than 15 years ago, when frontline CDs were priced at $14.98-$15.98—established a new $13.98 line, Hit Savers, in late 2001. The series includes 150 recent titles by such acts as Dixie Chicks, Lauryn Hill, Celine Dion, and Korn.

Sony Music Distribution senior VP of label and catalog sales Dave Curtis says, "This was really in response to what our customers were telling us and a response to what our competition was doing with some of their programs, where they would offer rebates on selected frontline catalog titles, bringing them down to a price point so that the retailer could promote them below $10. We felt that it was more advantageous for everybody to make a permanent price reduction, as opposed to a temporary promotional price."

Werre takes a dimmer view of permanent price reductions.

"I believe in pricing as a promotional strategy," he says. "I'd much rather go out there and offer retail a set number of titles at a sharp price point—where they can offer value to the consumer and they don't have to eat all of the margin themselves—but freshen it up, bring many different titles . . . So I say, 'What would you rather have—30 titles that are permanently reduced in price, or, over the course of a year, 120 or 150 titles in three-month increments?' "

In the case of deep catalog, where inventory turns are slower, the answer is simple, according to George Scarlett, chief merchant at 96-store Tower Records in West Sacramento, Calif.

"Just about everybody in the business is in a cash crunch," Scarlett says. "We're all going after more dating. Sure, discounts are nice, and we'll never turn 'em down, but what we really need, especially on the deep catalog, is a reason to want to bring in product that we would otherwise wind up paying for before we sold it."

Curtis says, "What we were really being told at [the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers convention] by our accounts, time and time again, is that we need specific catalog programs designed to reward those accounts that carry the depth of catalog . . . so we're looking at extended dating for the deep catalog and maybe additional discounts as well, because those are the two concerns—when do I have to pay for it, and how much money am I making on the product."

One chain executive who asks to remain unidentified believes that no matter what the incentives might be, recent catalog may continue to decline, since many titles' commercial legs are not as long as they once were.

"You look back at a lot of '60s, '70s, and '80s artists that came through—you knew that the quality of that music in the first place was just going to live and live, part of it because radio was going to support it," the executive says. "You still hear Led Zeppelin on the radio. Are you still going to hear Nickelback on the radio in five or six years? I don't know . . . As an industry, I don't think we're good at actively cultivating new artists, where we know there's going to be a long-term investment in catalog."

BUILDING CATALOG BRANDS

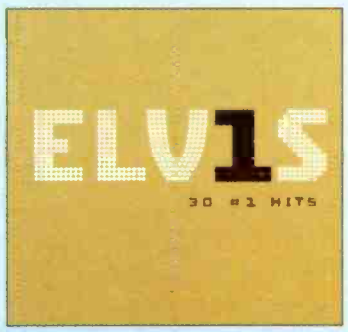
The branding of price-tiered catalog product addresses both the sales concerns of retailers (especially mass merchants) and the industry's consumer-marketing needs, according to Resnikoff: "One of the things we've done that hasn't been done before is to establish strong recognizable brands. An example is what we've done with the 20th Century Masters Millennium series."

That long-running Universal line, priced at $11.98 and now up to 200 titles, was, according to Resnikoff, "a way to build sort of a super-brand around those artists. That's been incredibly effective, particularly with the shift from the traditional retailer to the mass merchandiser."

Sony Legacy's The Essential Willie Nelson is part of a year-long catalog-marketing event celebrating the singer's 70th birthday.

At 200 titles, Universal's 20th Century Masters Millennium series is one of the biggest and longest-running branded catalog lines.

EMI has rereleased Pink Floyd's best-selling The Dark Side of the Moon as a hybrid Super Audio CD disc, playable on conventional CD decks.



Last year, BMG sparked sales on a breadth of Elvis Presley catalog titles with the heavily marketed release of Elvis 30 #1 Hits.

Warner Strategic Marketing is supporting the DVD-Audio format with the rerelease of such titles as R.E.M.'s Automatic for the People.

BMG Strategic Marketing, the new corporate umbrella housing BMG Entertainment's catalog enterprises (Billboard, Dec. 21, 2002), is formulating a new slate of branded, price-tiered lines. Executive VP Joe DiMuro says, "One of the first issues is segregating [product] by price point but also from a branding perspective, from a marketing perspective, developing product lines that have a unique, compelling proposition, a unique look to them."

To that end, BMG will this year introduce the Ultimate series (comprising single-disc, 20-track greatest-hits sets, priced at $18.98), the Anthology series (a two-disc set of 34-36 tracks, priced at $24.98), and the midline Platinum & Gold series (a single-disc hits package of 10-12 tracks, priced at $11.98).

BMG also mounted a campaign last year that serves as an effective example of what might be termed "event catalog marketing," with its release of the Elvis Presley compilation Elvis 30 #1 Hits (Billboard, Aug. 24, 2002).

"We basically were managing a portfolio of about 50 Elvis catalog and deep catalog reissues," DiMuro notes. "We experienced double-digit [percentage] increases in all of those reissues." Knowing a good thing when they see it, BMG executives decided to follow up with another heavily marketed Presley hits package this fall.

Sony's Jones says his company has seen similar success with year-long campaigns devoted to some of its top catalog acts: "Last year we had Johnny Cash's [70th] birthday. The year before we had Miles Davis. This year we're celebrating Willie Nelson's [70th] birthday. The concept of marketing catalog as events, I think, has proven very successful for us. We've had a tremendous boom in Cash and Miles sales."

Catalog divisions are increasingly looking at marketing opportunities in film and TV to push new releases. Resnikoff notes that for last year's Elton John set Greatest Hits 1970-2002, "we had a very effective marketing campaign that was built in part around the TV commercial that we created, but additionally by placing Elton John songs in TV shows, movies, trailers, and promos for TV shows."

EMI's Werre says, "The one thing you're going to see us leveraging very, very much this year is in synch [licensing]. To me, synchronization isn't just a profit source, it's a great marketing vehicle. But you have to be very proactive, in terms of targeting specific companies you want to work with or programming that you want to get acts included in."

Retailers say the labels' application of more creative marketing techniques will help end a long-running reliance on distributors' blow-out catalog sales, which appear to be a thing of the past.

"We rarely do a catalog promotion that only features one label or distributor," says Dave Alder, senior VP of product and marketing for the 28-store Virgin Entertainment Group in Los Angeles. "I think for too long it's just been individual label promotions out there, and I think the public gets tired of seeing that."

Scarlett says, "Distributor-oriented stuff . . . didn't make sense to the consumer. The consumer, what do they care what WEA is, or Sony? We're really going after genre-based programs now."

WILL NEW FORMATS HELP?

While executives believe such new formats as Super Audio CD (SACD) and DVD-Audio and the online distribution of catalog will fire sales, no one is certain about their short-term sales impact.

Some are optimistic about the new configurations. At Warner Strategic Marketing, where some 100 DVD-Audio titles have been released, president Scott Pascucci says, "The sales so far have been modest but encouraging . . . We think that DVD-Audio is going to gain rapid acceptance. I think we're finally starting to get the massive titles out there that will make people become familiar with the format and try it."

Sony Legacy plans to issue 15 Bob Dylan titles on hybrid SACD in July and August. "Right now, those 15 [Dylan] titles generate about half a million units a calendar year," Jones says. "I would expect to at least double that."

SCARLETT

EMI has releases either out or in the works in both formats: On March 25, it issued Pink Floyd's The Dark Side of the Moon on hybrid SACD, and a DVD-audio of the Beach Boys' Pet Sounds is set for this fall.

"The best way to describe our strategy is, we're agnostic," Werre says. "We'll support all formats, and our view is, 'Let the consumer decide which one they like the most.' "

Universal has issued SACD titles (notably by the Police) and plans DVD-Audio titles later this year. But, Resnikoff says, "whether any of these configurations will have the impact that the CD had when it was introduced remains to be seen."

Currently, the future of online distribution looks murky to most. "I can't handicap [online sales]," Pascucci says with a laugh. "I'm not prescient enough . . . People want to buy the music, and they want it to be a reasonable experience at a reasonable price. I think that we're getting closer to that. We're not there yet."

Veteran chart manager Anthony Colombo adds Modern Rock responsibilities. He continues to coordinate chart recaps for Billboard spotlights, including those in its Year in Music and Year in Video issues. Airplay Monitor's Active Rock, Heritage Rock, Mainstream Rock and Triple-A charts remain on his desk.

R&B/Hip-Hop charts manager Minal Patel adds Top Reggae Albums, Latin and Dance manager Ricardo Companioni picks up Billboard's classical charts, and Top Electronic Albums manager Gordon Murray assumes the jazz charts, Top World Albums and Top New Age Albums.

In Nashville, Mary DeCroce, longtime administrative assistant to the charts and editorial departments, is promoted to manager of Top Blues Albums and Top Kid Audio.

Regarding changes to the country reporting panel, for the past several months, Billboard and Airplay Monitor have engaged in extensive discussions with country label executives and radio programmers about a collective and emphatic call from the Nashville label community to reduce the size and composition of our country reporting panel of 147 stations monitored by Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems.

The new policy brings our country charts in line with the same current-music percentage required for our reporting stations in the mainstream top 40 and rhythmic top 40 formats.

The new policy addresses industry concerns regarding stations that contribute to Billboard/Monitor's national current-music sample but depend largely on older titles to populate their most-played-song inventory.

Under this new policy, effective with the Oct. 18 issue of Billboard, 18 country stations will be removed from the panel. An additional three stations that have been determined "too close to call" have been notified of their pending status on the panel. Those three stations will be re-evaluated before year's end to determine their continued eligibility for the reporting panel.

The stations being removed from the panel are KCYY San Antonio; KKBQ Houston; KSD St. Louis; WBBS Syracuse, N.Y.; WBUL Lexington, Ky.; WCKT Fort Myers, Fla.; WCTO Allentown, Pa.; WDRM Huntsville, Ala.; WDXB Birmingham, Ala.; WKCQ Saginaw, Mich.; WKHK Richmond, Va.; WKKT Charlotte, N.C.; WKSJ Mobile, Ala.; WMSI Jackson, Miss.; WQIK Jacksonville, Fla.; WTQR Greensboro, N.C.; WYAY Atlanta; and WZZK Birmingham.

One additional station, KTOM Monterey, Calif., will be removed from the panel based on the results of the spring 2003 Arbitron ratings, having fallen below the established minimum criteria for reporters of a 3.0 share or 100,000 weekly cume (TSA, 12-plus).

The 60% current-music analysis was conducted by examining weekly playlists during the past few months. Current titles are defined as those that are (a) on the chart that corresponds with each individual week of airplay data, (b) any new titles that have not yet appeared on the current chart or (c) any album tracks from unreleased or current albums not more than 2 years old.

Gaither

Vocal Band's latest album, "A Cappella." Former Gaither Vocal Band singer/comic Mark Lowry follows in November with "Some Things Never Change," along with Hispanic contemporary Christian group El Trio de Hoy releasing a set of Spanish hymns before year's end.

Gaither Homecoming staples Lynda Randle and the Isaacs will have their GMG debuts next year, Randle's being a January tribute to Mahalia Jackson, and the Isaacs' a second-quarter bluegrass/gospel collection.

Additionally, the new label will release audio and video product associated with a forthcoming Bill Gaither-hosted PBS series, "Classic Gospel." Citing Randle and El Trio de Hoy, Gaither marketing consultant Bill Carter adds that GMG artists will exhibit "the potential to expand the format" of Gaither's core audience. Rather than rely on traditional gospel producers, he says, "We've picked mainstream producers like Barry Beckett [Randle] and Don Cook [the Isaacs] to make competitive records [that] we look to break in the general market."

TV, which has served the marketing of Gaither Homecoming product so well, will again be the major thrust behind the new GMG releases. Jennings notes that promo videoclips will be available supporting the Isaacs and Randle releases. Both acts are also prominently featured on the "Classic Gospel" series.

PBS has a one-year, 26-episode commitment to the series, which was to have been called "Gaither Homecoming Classics" until PBS came aboard, Carter says.

"Bill Gaither has recorded some 2,500 songs in 10 years and was picking his personal favorites from the Homecoming series," Carter says. "Then PBS got interested and is having him host each show and introduce the songs and artists."

"Classic Gospel" begins airing this month, with the audio and video product versions available in the first quarter of next year. Carter says PBS will also show "A Gospel Bluegrass Homecoming," starring Gaither, Marty Stuart, the Isaacs, Ralph Stanley, Del McCoury and others, in December, with associated product being released Nov. 4.

Cuba's Musical Ambassador Dies At 95

BY HOWELL LLEWELLYN

Compay Segundo, the person most responsible for the resurgence of traditional Cuban music in the '90s, died July 13 at his Havana home of kidney failure. He was 95 years old.

COMPAY SEGUNDO: 80-PLUS-YEAR CAREER

An accomplished multi-instrumentalist, he played with most of Cuba's legendary names of the 20th century in a career that spanned more than 80 years.

But significant recognition eluded him until 1995, when he signed with Warner Spain imprint DRO East-West. He recorded six albums for the label that sold more than 2 million units, probably making him the only person to sell 1 million-plus albums of new recordings after the age of 88.

Compay enjoyed international fame with the 1997 release of the sublime Ry Cooder-produced album "Buena Vista Social Club," followed by a Wim Wenders documentary of the same name. Cooder describes Compay as "the life and soul" of "Buena Vista."

"We made a record that presented him properly and made him sound really good," Cooder says. "He knew it was a beautiful sound and that it reached more people than any of us could ever have imagined. And I think that gave him a thrill. Compay was an original. A one-off. To be allowed to catch a glimpse of him toward the end of his life was a rare and special thing for me. He was the last of the best."

Curiously, Compay started his career as a clarinet player, which he played in later recordings. But he is best-known for his own invention—a seven-string hybrid between the Cuban tres and a Spanish guitar—which he named the "armónico."

Compay was born Francisco Repilado Nov. 18, 1907, in Siboney, Cuba. He gained his stage name when he formed the duo Los Compadres in 1942 with Lorenzo Hierrezuelo. His was the "second" or "segundo" voice, and "compay" is eastern Cuban slang for "compañero" or "companion."

He won considerable fame in the 1940s and 1950s, traveling to Europe and the U.S., but the 1959 revolution had more important priorities than music.

Segundo fell into what his Spanish manager Luis Lázaro calls "an unjustified oblivion." For 17 years, he rolled cigars in a Havana factory, "without taking a single day off," as he recalled in a 1998 visit to Madrid.

In the 1980s, Compay began playing again, traveling in 1989 to the Smithsonian Institution in the U.S. with the Cuarteto Patria. But it was not until 1994 that he was "rediscovered," when he was invited to a "musical encounter between Spanish flamenco and Cuban 'son' " in the Spanish city of Seville.

Compay had played only rarely since 2001, when he received emergency treatment for fatigue during the Cubadisco music trade fair in Havana. At the time of his death, DRO EastWest was preparing an anthology of new Compay music, although he does not sing on it.

In 1998 in Madrid, wearing his famous hat and smoking a cigar, Compay smiled and said, "I'm from a romantic age. Young men would walk down the street, and when they passed a beautiful señorita, they would tip their cap and say, 'How pretty.' "

Asked about the secret of his long life, Compay said with a laugh, "Moderation in sex, rum and cigars."

Muchas felicidades por tus 20 años aniversario.

Que sean muchos más.

Sinceramente,
José José

Anniversary Collection Includes New Ruiz Material

When salsa singer Frankie Ruiz died in 1998, he left a vast catalog of recordings behind, along with at least one track that never saw the light of day.

"I was in the studio with Vinny Urrutia—one of Frankie Ruiz's producers—and he told me, 'Look, I have an unfinished DAT here,' " says Eddie Fernández, Universal Music Latino VP of A&R.

It was a rough mix of a track recorded shortly before Ruiz's death from liver failure. "It was great, even though his voice was a little tired," Fernández says. "It was pure salsa, Frankie Ruiz-style."

The song, written by Chein Garcia and titled "Que Siga la Fiesta," will be the first single from a Ruiz compilation due for release Aug. 12 by Universal.

Titled "Exitos Eternos," the album's arrival is tied to the fifth anniversary of Ruiz's Aug. 9 death.

According to Fernández, no major work was required on the track, except for remastering and cleaning to improve the sound and extending the length by repeating some of the soneos and choruses.

ILEGALE MOVES: After a long association with BMG U.S. Latin, party band Los Ilegales moved to EMI Latin last year. But after one album, the group is returning home.

The band has signed a three-album deal with indie Mock & Roll, whose president, Francisco Villanueva, originally signed Ilegales to BMG when he headed that company.

Villanueva plans to release a compilation album featuring two new tracks in September.

"It's a history of Ilegales with two guests," Villanueva says. The first is Johnny Ventura on "Si Eso Es Tuyo," a merengue "ripiao" where Ventura sings while Ilegales' Vladimir Dotel raps. The second is Miami-based rapper Don Dinero, featured on the track "Tú No Sabes." Dinero is also set to release the follow-up to his indie effort, "Cuban Connection," this fall on Protel/Universal.

ANIMATED DUET: Luis Fonsi and newcomer Christina Valeni were in the studio this week recording "La Fuerza de Mi Corazón," the theme song for upcoming animated feature film "El Cid."

Produced by Spanish production company Filmax, the movie is based on the Spanish literature classic "El Cid Campeador." Fonsi and Valeni—whose debut album is due this fall on Universal—also recorded an English-language version of the track for the English-language version of the movie, titled "The Power of a Broken Heart." In Spain, a different version of the song, featuring Valeni and Spanish "Operación Triunfo" star Bustamante, will be released and featured in the movie.

"We wanted international artists who had a Latin slant," says composer Jordi Cubino, who penned both the English and Spanish versions of the song. "Because 'El Cid' is so Spanish in subject matter, we wanted artists who could perform the song in Spanish and English." Valeni, of course, is not known at all. But, Cubino says, "her voice and image were what we wanted."

ALARCÓN HONORED: The Latin Entertainment Industry for City of Hope will present the Spirit of Life Award to Raul Alarcón Sr. Nov. 5 at the Intercontinental Hotel, Miami.

The award, first presented last year to Tomás Muñoz, recognizes contributions to the Hispanic community across the country. Alarcón Sr. is the founder of radio network Spanish Broadcasting System, which celebrates its 20th anniversary this year (see spotlight, starting on page 25).

Billboard Has Grand Honor For Flash

Beats & Rhymes™

By Rashaun Hall
rhall@billboard.com

With endorsements under his belt and an autobiography on the way (Words & Deeds, Billboard, June 21), Grandmaster Flash has been getting busy lately. He can now add "attending the Billboard R&B/Hip-Hop Awards" to his hectic schedule. The legendary DJ will be honored with the Hip-Hop Founders Award at this year's show. Flash follows fellow pioneer Afrika Bambaataa, who was honored with last year's inaugural award.

Taking place Aug. 8 at the Jackie Gleason Theater in Miami, the Billboard R&B/Hip-Hop Awards show is the crown jewel of the fourth annual Billboard/American Urban Radio Networks R&B/Hip-Hop Conference & Awards.

BEWARE! With his Jay-Z-featured single, "Beware of the Boys (Mundian to Bach Ke)" blowing up at radio earlier this year, it was only a matter of time before Panjabi MC made his stateside debut. The Coventry, England-based DJ/producer did just that July 1 with "Beware" (Sequence).

Already a success overseas, Panjabi signed an album deal with Sequence after the success of the single. It peaked at No. 21 on the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart.

"Sequence is one of the leading independent hip-hop labels in the United States, and with their strong promotions team they were able to get the single [high] on the charts," Panjabi says. "This is why I decided to work with them."

PANJABI MC: COMING TO AMERICA

BOSTON'S NEW BEAT: When people think of Boston, they rarely think hip-hop. But that may soon change. West Roxbury, Mass.-based indie hip-hop label Inebriated Rhythm and the city of Boston have teamed to organize the inaugural Hip-Hop Peace & Unity Festival. Sponsored by the city, Pepsi, Dunkin' Donuts, LG clothing and Grit Records, the festival is scheduled for July 19 at City Hall Plaza.

"The mayor's office called us with the idea of doing a concert to dispel the notion that Boston doesn't care about hip-hop," Inebriated Rhythm president Mahlon Williams explains. "The last couple of events that the city tried to do weren't done correctly, because they didn't care. They were just trying to play catch-up and involved acts that weren't really about positivity in hip-hop."

The upcoming event lineup includes KRS-One, Pharoahe Monch, Big Daddy Kane, Skillz, PMD and EDO.G, among others.

"Given the history that Boston has with hip-hop, we thought it was time to set a precedent," Williams adds. "A lot of people only know of Boston because of the beef between Benzino [who is from Boston] and Eminem. There's a lot more to Boston than what you may see in the media. We wanted to give an accurate representation of the talent that Boston has, as well as a lot of the artists that come to Boston to work."

Related events are also planned for the festival weekend. There will be a fundraiser July 18 at the Strand Theater in Dorchester to benefit Boston youth programs. During the fundraising event, KRS-One, Pharoahe Monch and Big Daddy Kane will lead a roundtable discussion on the "real meaning of hip-hop."

Midi Mafia Puts Hit On The Charts

Beats & Rhymes™

By Rashaun Hall
rhall@billboard.com

The meteoric rise of 50 Cent has been well-chronicled by Billboard and other media. As the production team behind 50 Cent's recent Billboard Hot 100 and Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart-topper "21 Questions," Midi Mafia played a pivotal role in that success story. The duo also produced the response track, Lil' Mo and Free's "21 Answers."

Midi Mafia's Bruce Wayne and Dirty Swift teamed up more than one year ago after meeting through a mutual friend while working out of a studio in Brooklyn, N.Y.

"We did a song together and we jelled, so we kept working together," Wayne says. "One thing led to another, and here we are."

The recent success of "21Questions" has Midi Mafia in high demand. It has recently produced tracks and/or remixes for G-Unit, Tamia, Baby, Mos Def, Busta Rhymes and Angie Martinez.

"It's been a blessing that '21 Questions' blew up the way it did as 50's second single," Swift says.

"That's what was really unexpected. When they released 50's album, it wasn't slated to be the second single, but spins at radio doubled every week, so it was forced.

"With everything else we were already doing, that just really helped us," he adds. "It gave us a lot more legitimacy."

Wayne and Swift are also artists in their own right and are currently planning their debut set.

"We respect the architects," Swift says. "We're trying to do something different, but we still take a lot of elements from back in the day. He's the MC, and I'm the DJ. We're taking it back, but the way we're doing it is completely different."

Midi Mafia has offers on the table for both a production deal and an artist deal, according to Wayne. However, the duo would like to find a "situation" for all its future endeavors.

"Midi Mafia is a movement," Swift says. "We have the production company, Family Ties, us as a group, as well as the other groups we'll be cultivating, like Shakespeare. We want to do everything, and we want to find the right home for that."

HERE & THERE: While my sources at Jive have been unable to confirm it officially, the hip-hop community is abuzz about the possible reunion of A Tribe Called Quest. Stay tuned to see how this one turns out.

In the meantime, if you need your fix of Tribe—and who doesn't?—check out the recently released "Hits, Rarities & Remixes" (Jive). The 18-track set features previously unreleased songs like "Mr. Incognito" and "The Night He Got Caught" as well as my favorite Tribe track, "Jazz (We've Got)."

Vocab Records recently inked an exclusive distribution deal with Caroline Distribution. The label's first release under the new deal will be Chops' "Virtuosity." The album—which features Raekwon, Talib Kweli, Ras Kass, Kanye West and Mystic, among others—will be released as a joint venture with GoodVibe Recordings.

Following the success of its mix-tape sessions series, Sequence Records is getting into the compilation game with "Sequence Hip-Hop Vol. 1." Mixed by DJ Kut, a WPWR (Power 105) New York on-air personality, the 17-track set features songs from 50 Cent, Mobb Deep, Lil' Kim, T.I., Panjabi MC and King Gordy, among others.

Marsden Has Been 'Busy' On The Charts

One of the architects behind reggae's recent mainstream popularity is producer Steven "Lenky" Marsden. He manned the boards for both Sean Paul's "Get Busy" and Wayne Wonder's "No Letting Go."

The former recently topped the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart and The Billboard Hot 100. The latter song is currently No. 14 on the Hot 100.

"I made those songs for Diwali," Marsden says, referring to their inclusion on his compilation, released on the Greensleeves label. "I did some different overdubs on them to give each song a different identity.

"With Sean, I added more strings to give a more mystic feel to the track. For Wayne, I did a more R&B-driven track."

MARSDEN

The success of both singles came as a surprise to Marsden. He sees that success not only as an accomplishment for the artists but for the genre as a whole.

"I'm very happy for artists like Sean and Wayne," Marsden says. "As for dancehall, those guys being in the front will help other guys in Jamaica get a break. It's good for up-and-coming Jamaican artists and the reggae/dancehall business."

The singles' success has benefited Marsden as well. The producer recently completed a remix with pop/rock group Smash Mouth. He has also produced a track that features Cam'ron and Buju Banton.

In addition, Marsden is an artist in his own right. He recently served as tour keyboardist for Banton. He plans to release his own album sometime in the near future.

In the meantime, fans can check out Marsden's latest Greensleeves compilation, Masterpiece.

Beats & Rhymes™

FLASH FORWARD: The legendary Grandmaster Flash is still moving the crowd. The New York-based DJ is penning his memoirs with Daily News reporter/biographer Chris Coleman. A title and publisher for the biography are still being determined.

Flash—who is managed by Mark Green at Celebrity Talent Agency—is also jumping into the endorsement game. He has inked deals with Pro-Keds footwear and the American Eagle Outfitters (AE) clothing store chain.

He begins shooting the Pro-Keds ads shortly. That campaign is slated to launch in the fall. Under the AE banner, Flash will promote a T-shirt line targeting college kids. More than 700 stores will begin stocking the line in November.

In the meantime, Flash will join fellow DJs Kid Capri, DJ Premier, and Funkmaster Flex in an all-star tribute to the late Jam Master Jay at this year's BET Awards. The event, which will be telecast live, takes place June 24 at Los Angeles' Kodak Theatre.

FOR THE RECORD: In the May 10 issue, I noted that Martin Luther is one of several musicians sitting in as a guest guitarist with the Roots on their recent tour. But I forgot to mention that the San Francisco-based singer/songwriter is signed to GoodVibe Recordings.

In the May 24 column, I wrote that Fantom of the Beats produced tracks for Inspectah Deck's The Movement (I.N.S. Productions/Koch/In the Paint). Unfortunately, because incorrect information was provided, I misspelled Fantom of the Beats' name.

Two To Watch Among New Breed Of Tropical Pop/Rockers

BY LEILA COBO

MIAMI—The success of Juanes and Bacilos has ushered in a new breed of Latin pop, one that often mixes pop and rock elements with Caribbean Latin rhythms.

That tropical element heard in much of the music gets it airplay not only on traditional Latin pop stations but also on tropical stations.

Much of this tropical pop/rock is performed by singer/songwriters who pen their own material, which makes for highly personalized content.

Billboard takes a look at two new faces to watch out for this fall.

OBIE BERMÚDEZ

Technically speaking, Obie Bermúdez is not a new artist. Some years ago, he released a tropical album on BMG U.S. Latin. But neither his nor the label's hearts were in it, and it came and went with little notice.

That has not been the case with "Confesiones," Bermúdez's debut on EMI Latin. Released July 22, the album is this issue's greatest gainer—from 55 to 29—on the Top Latin Albums chart, an excellent showing for a relative unknown. His current single, "Antes," is No. 4 on the Hot Latin Tracks chart this issue.

Consisting entirely of songs written or co-written by Bermúdez, "Confesiones" is truly a collection of confessions, compellingly told and beautifully executed.

"They're all my experiences," Bermúdez says. That includes "4:30 a.m.," named after the time Bermúdez had to wake up every morning to go to his job in a laundromat, and "4 de Julio," a song co-written with Rubén Blades.

"It's dedicated to my brother, who's in jail," Bermúdez says. "I wrote it as if I were inside with him."

Jorge Pino, president/chairman of EMI Latin USA, says he signed Bermúdez because he was "the real deal. The magic is in how he tells the stories. He's the new storyteller."

Bermúdez had most of the 10 tracks on "Confesiones" completed when he approached producer Sebastian Krys (Carlos Vives, Rabanes). He helped him finesse some of the material and appears as a co-writer on some of the tracks.

Krys says that the entire recording took only five weeks and was "a very quick and organic process."

Much of Bermúdez's promotion is being done through live performances; the level of response from the media has been extremely "emotional," according to EMI staff. Bermúdez's first focus was Puerto Rico, where he spent several weeks, before he moved to Miami and then to New York, where Blades introduced him to audiences.

TERESO: FROM CARPENTRY TO SONG CRAFTING

JORGE CORREA 'TERESO'

Tereso. The name is a bit strange. Even executives at his label, Universal Music Latino, admit it.

But then again, his real name is Jorge Correa, which is kind of dull, and everybody knows him as Tereso. A compromise, then: Jorge Correa "Tereso" reads the cover of his upcoming CD.

Tereso is the first artist to be released on Alfanno Music, the joint-venture label created last year by songwriter/producer Omar Alfanno and Universal Music Latino.

Set for release Sept. 9, Tereso's debut, "Corazón Ilegal," is an acoustic pop/rock blend. Four of its tracks were penned by Alfanno, one was penned by Tereso and the remainder were co-writes between Alfanno, Tereso and co-producer Andrés Castro.

The catchy material benefits from Tereso's distinctive, multi-range vocals and from Alfanno's crafty songwriting. The album is a priority for Universal, which wants to jump-start Alfanno's label—in which it reportedly has made a significant investment. And of course, it's a priority for Alfanno, who manages Tereso and signed him.

"The problem is when an artist is handled by someone who has no notion of his career," Alfanno says. "Having signed the artist and produced the album gives us a great advantage."

Born in Mexico, Tereso fronted several bands there before deciding to try his musical luck in Miami. He did not land a record deal but instead got hired by a carpenter. While delivering a door to Alfanno's house, he seized the moment and auditioned for him. Nine months later, "Corazón Ilegal" was finished.

"It was an interesting mix, because on the one side, I'm stuck on rock'n'roll," Tereso says. "On the other, Omar [Alfanno] has his salsa, and Andrés Castro has produced Carlos Vives. So what came out was very interesting."

Tereso adds that writing with such a varied cast of characters has broadened his horizons.

"I would say, 'I can't sing that. I'm a rock'n'roller,' " he says. "But the incredible thing about the process was that it opened my ears to other rhythms and sensations."

Because Tereso's sound is not traditional pop, Universal plans to attack on all fronts.

"The only thing is organic growth," Universal Music Latino president John Echevarría says. "We're going to work the Internet and Columbia House hard, and we're going to take it to all radio stations."

Pérez Funds Latino Songwriting Scholarship

Songwriter/producer Rudy Pérez, who was Billboard's 2002 Latin producer of the year, has donated $25,000 to launch a scholarship program for new Latino songwriters and composers through the ASCAP Foundation. He is the first Latin ASCAP member to do so. The first ASCAP Foundation Rudy Pérez Songwriting Scholarship will be formally announced Sept. 4 at a luncheon in Miami.

Scholarships will be rotated yearly to students at five universities in key Latino markets: the Juilliard School of Music in New York, the Conservatorio Nacional de Musica in Puerto Rico, the University of Miami School of Music, the Los Angeles County High School for the Performing Arts and the music department of the University of Texas at San Antonio. The first recipients will be Miami students.

"The songwriting scholarship was something that I wanted to do to give back to the world of music, which has given so much to me," says Pérez, who was born in Cuba but grew up in Miami. "When I was growing up, I didn't have the money to go to college, and I feel that if I can help at least one aspiring songwriter succeed, then I've accomplished my goal."

According to Karen Sherry, senior VP of industry affairs for ASCAP, Pérez himself approached ASCAP with the notion of contributing to its scholarship fund.

PÉREZ: 'GIVING BACK' TO MUSIC WORLD

"And we came up with some ideas," she says. "Now we will look to expand the funding and maybe eventually have a Latino fund, hopefully with others contributing to it. I absolutely hope this will encourage others."

Although the ASCAP Foundation oversees multiple scholarship and fund programs, this is the first targeted specifically toward Latin songwriters.

TRIPLE GRAMMY: The Latin Grammy Awards really are new and expanded—from the CD perspective, at least, thanks to a deal cut with Universal Music International Latin America.

The company is releasing three Latin Grammy nominee CDs. Each will feature a different genre of music and will be marketed to separate audiences.

The first set will feature pop, rock and tropical acts and will initially be marketed to the East Coast and Puerto Rico. A second CD will focus on regional Mexican and Tejano music, with marketing efforts concentrating on the West Coast and Mexico. A third will feature only Brazilian nominees and will be released in Brazil by Universal Music Brazil.

All CDs will be released Aug. 26.

In other Latin Grammy news, Ricky Martin, Bacilos, Molotov and Thalía (yet again) are the first confirmed performers for the Sept. 3 Latin Grammy Awards.

Brazilian singer and multiple nominee Alexandre Pires will also perform, alongside Kelly Clarkson. More pairings are expected to be announced in the next two weeks.

IN BRIEF: As part of its ongoing Operación Frontera (Operation Border), Mexican customs authorities seized four containers containing 5.3 million blank CD-Rs at the end of last month. The containers, seized on their way from Tijuana and Nuevo Laredo, were headed toward Mexico City. The contents came from Asia.

Operación Frontera is an anti-piracy border operation developed by Mexico's local anti-piracy group, APDIF Mexico, in conjunction with the Latin American branch of the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry. Information provided by APDIF led to the seizure. To date, Operación Frontera has yielded seizures of more than 31.8 million blank CD-Rs.

Former BMG U.S. Latin publicist Mayna Nevárez has launched her own PR firm, based in Miami. Nevárez, who also worked as editor of Teen Magazine en Español, currently counts José Luis Rodríguez and Raúl Di Blasio as clients. She can be reached at maynanevarez@hotmail.com.

ERRATA: Kate Ramos' position was misstated in the Aug. 9 issue of Billboard. She is regional VP of Vívelo, which at the time was called Clear Channel Entertainment/Televisa.

Brenda Vallecilla is the company's VP of national sales and marketing.

Rhythm, Rap, and The Blues™

by Gail Mitchell

GRAMMY BUZZ: Internet and phone lines were buzzing because the ubiquitous Neptunes weren't nominated for producer of the year, non-classical, for the upcoming 45th annual Grammy Awards. But it turns out that the Neptunes' name was never submitted for consideration. And while noting that two of the biggest-selling rappers in 2002, Eminem and Nelly, did net nods in the prestigious record and album of the year categories, others—including yours truly—questioned several of the nominations in the R&B and rap fields.

Given all that buzzing, I checked in with Angelia Bibbs-Sanders, regional VP and executive director for the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (NARAS), which presents the Grammys. One of her goals during the past several years (Billboard, Feb. 3, 2001) has been to increase R&B/hip-hop membership and boost the participation of those members in the awards process.

"We're disappointed by the Neptunes' omission," Bibbs-Sanders says. "However, being members of our New York chapter, they should certainly be aware of this process. Members have the right to enter product themselves. It's hard to put the onus on one label here, as we're talking about submitting a specific body of work. It's about relying on someone who has knowledge of what the Neptunes have done. That's one reason why managers and attorneys join, to make sure their clients are covered. And I encourage publicists to join so they can receive the mailings and reminders."

In the nominations process, academy members and record companies submit entries (from June 1 to Sept. 30) that are screened for eligibility (this year, it was Oct. 1, 2001-Sept. 30, 2002) and category placement by 150 music business professionals. This year's 15,000 entries were narrowed down to about 10,000 on the first-round ballot. It was sent in mid-November to the 13,000 voting members who can nominate in the four major categories (best new artist plus record, album, and song of the year) and nine out of 28 fields. Special committees determine final nominations in such categories as producer of the year.

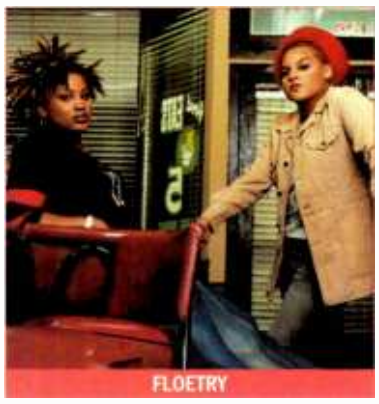
"It's one thing to join and another to vote. Anyone who is a member could have entered the Neptunes," says Bibb-Sanders, who adds that Nelly and Eminem's major-category nods "directly reflect on the outreach and work we've done on a national level. I see a tremendous amount of growth in the urban membership.

"It's not perfect by any means. But we've seen a major increase from this community, especially on the elected-leadership side. Jermaine Dupri is our Atlanta chapter president and attends the trustee meetings. Jimmy Jam, Rodney Jerkins, and Nile Rodgers are also very involved. You can't affect anything without becoming involved and active."

Billboard CHARTS THE GRAMMYS

Having staged previous urban music forums on women in power and the state of R&B music, NARAS—in association with Def Jam—is presenting an "Up Close and Personal" session with Russell Simmons Feb. 6 in New York. For more info about this and membership criteria, visit grammy.com.

GOIN' WITH THE FLO': That's what Floetry's Marsha Ambrosius and Natalie Stewart are doing since becoming first-time Grammy nominees. The London duo—slated to tour soon with Common, Gang Starr, and Talib Kweli and to also join India.Arie on an international junket—is up for best R&B song ("Floetic"), best contemporary R&B album (Floetic), and best urban/alternative performance ("Floetic"). The last two categories were introduced this year.



FLOETRY

For the DreamWorks newcomers, it's about being able to "strive for your dreams, and you can get what you wish for," Ambrosius says. "We first came to the U.S. for a two-week holiday and ended up recording an album and signing with DreamWorks.

"We feel like the kids who sneak backstage for an autograph, getting the chance to work with people like Michael Jackson and Glenn Lewis. We're so very much fans of this industry and very grateful for the recognition."

DJ Envy Comes To The 'Party'

Desert Storm/Epic Artist Ready To Move From Mix-Tape DJ To Major-Label Act

BY RASHAUN HALL

NEW YORK—Mix-tape DJs have long been considered to have the ear of the streets. Many of today's top artists made names for themselves on mix tapes. And DJs like Funkmaster Flex, DJ Clue, and Tony Touch have all parlayed early mix-tape success into lucrative recording careers with major labels. Next up to bat is DJ Envy. The Queens, N.Y., native makes his Desert Storm/Epic debut Feb. 11 with The Desert Storm Mixtape: DJ Envy Blok Party Vol. 1.

Epic aims to translate DJ Envy's mix-tape popularity into a broader commercial vein via his association with hip-hop imprint Desert Storm.

"The idea is to use the Desert Storm brand to our advantage because it has the street credibility that, obviously, Epic does not have," Epic Records product manager Amberdawn Mickle says. "So the idea is to connect Envy with that. For instance, there's the title of the album. In addition to that, he has an A-list of artists on this record. We want to let consumers know that they can get all these artists on one great album."

For DJ Envy, it was a natural transition from independent mix-tape DJ to major-label recording artist.

"With mix tapes, there's only so much you can do, because mix tapes are illegal. They're more of a promotional item to give away to boost your parties and to get a deal," he explains. "We wanted to get a deal so we could take it outside of the country and to places where my mix tapes don't reach."

Similarly, DJ Envy's concept for DJ Envy Blok Party Vol. 1 was about expansion. "I wanted to go into every 'hood and take a piece of that life," he notes. "I called it Blok Party because every neighborhood has block parties. You might have a block party in New York, New Orleans, or North Carolina. I wanted to take a piece of everybody's life and have the album be this huge block party."

A mix tape in the truest sense, the album features unreleased tracks from Jay-Z, Busta Rhymes, and the St. Lunatics, among others.

"It was all through relationships," DJ Envy says of how he recruited artists for the set. "I've been in this industry for a while, and most of the artists and I have mutual respect for each other. So it wasn't that hard to get the artist. The hard part came with the politics at the labels and getting the artists cleared."

On the radio front, Epic has decided that rather than take a traditional single to mainstream radio, it will focus attention on the mix-show format.

"Traditionally, these mix-tape CDs don't always have one single that drives it home. We feel very strongly that we have an album full of great material," Mickle notes. "We would much rather spend the money getting out five or six singles at a time than being streamlined and focusing only on one single. This way we can expose the consumer to all the great songs we have. The best and most efficient way to do that is to give it to mix show[s] and college, and then let it branch out. If you have a hit in there in terms of something that can go well beyond what we're expecting, we can always capitalize on that at a later time."

DJ ENVY

In addition to DJ Envy being a well-known mix-tape DJ, the two-time TDK Just-O Mix Tape Award winner is also an on-air personality for WQHT (Hot 97) New York and operates his own talent, management, and production company, BLOK Entertainment. DJ Envy, who serves as BLOK's president/CEO, has produced tracks for Foxy Brown, Def Squad, Fabolous, and DMX, among others.

Given his many ventures, some might speculate that DJ Envy is spreading himself too thin. But he just sees it as giving the people what they want.

"I had a lot of people in the record industry hating on me. But as much as they would hate, my sales of the mix tapes and parties would keep moving up," says DJ Envy, who is managed and booked by Sean "Wonderful" Trotter for New York-based Babyone Entertainment. "They weren't affecting that [momentum]. So I call myself 'the people's choice'—I'm what the people want to hear."

UMVD Top R&B, Rap Distributor

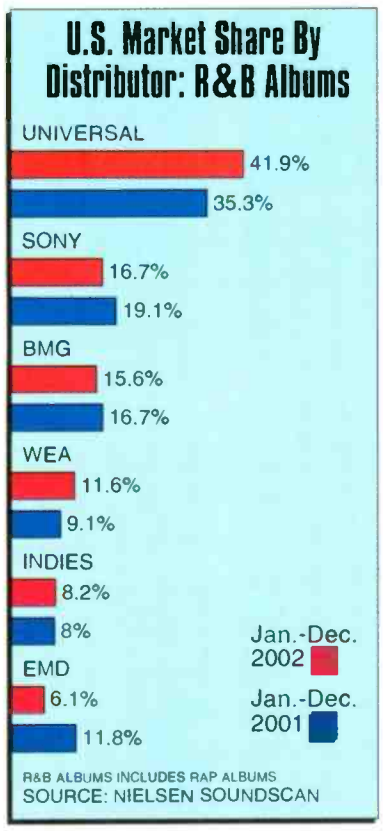
BY GAIL MITCHELL and ED CHRISTMAN

The year-long sales momentum propelled by Eminem, Nelly, and Ashanti secured Universal Music & Video Distribution's (UMVD) 2002 reign as the top R&B album and rap album distributor, earning 41.9% and 51.8% in the respective genres. (Rap album sales are included in the R&B albums totals, also.) Those shares also represent increases of six and four percentage points, respectively, over the corresponding period last year, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

Outpacing rival distributors throughout 2002, UMVD has more than a 2-1 R&B lead over second-place finisher Sony with 16.7%, which dipped more than two points from 19.1% in 2001. And, in rap, UMVD has more than a 4-1 lead over the second-place indie labels' 12.4% share (down from 13.6%).

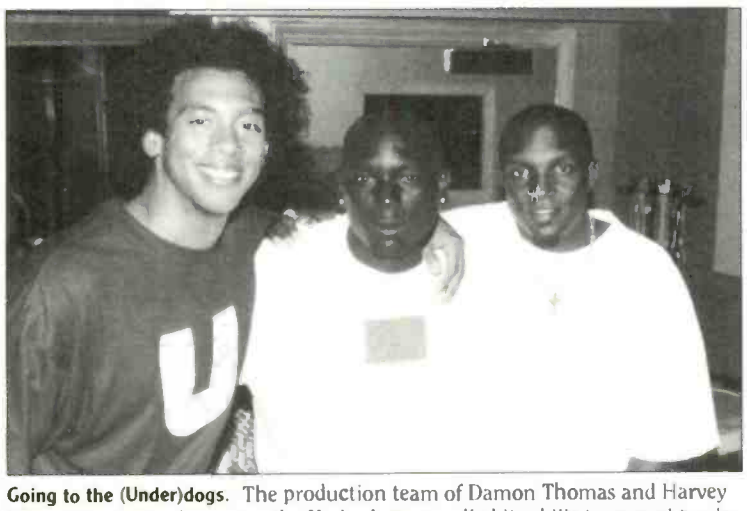
Rounding out R&B albums, BMG finished third at 15.6% (down from 16.7%), WEA fourth at 11.6%, (a two-point drop from 9.1%), independent distributors fifth at 8.2% (down from 8%), and EMI Music Distribution (EMD) sixth at 6.1%, a five-point drop from 11.8% in 2001.

Claiming third in rap albums is BMG, with 11.5% (up from 10.4%). Sony is fourth (10.6% to 10.9%); WEA is fifth, with 8.1% (down one point); and EMD is sixth; its 5.4% share is a 50% drop from 10.9% in 2001.



FOR THE RECORD

Gail Mitchell's Rhythm, Rap, and the Blues column will return next week.



Going to the (Under)dogs. The production team of Damon Thomas and Harvey Mason Jr.—better-known as the Underdogs—applied its skills to several tracks on Tyrese's new J Records album, I Wanna Go There. The pair produced several tunes on the set, including first single "How You Gonna Act Like That." Taking a break in the studio are, from left, Mason Jr., Tyrese, and Thomas.

Cantrell Is Back With 'Breathe'

The Next Chapter In The Arista Artist's Songbook Is 'Bittersweet'

BY JEFF LOREZ

NEW YORK—Plucked from Atlanta-based producer Chris "Tricky" Stewart's Redzone Entertainment production company to help lead the charge of the new Antonio "L.A." Reid-led Arista Records regime, Blu Cantrell scored immediate success with the Dallas Austin-written and -produced single "Hit 'Em Up Style (Oops!)." The quirky, jazzy anthem for scorned women spent two weeks at No. 2 on The Billboard Hot 100 and earned Cantrell a Grammy Award nomination. The 2001 album from which it was taken, So Blu, proved to be a credible start for the Rhode Island native, who now calls Atlanta home. According to Nielsen SoundScan, So Blu, which peaked at No. 8 on The Billboard 200, has sold 603,000 units.

Cantrell's stellar follow-up, Bittersweet, is due Feb. 11. Lead commercial single "Breathe"—another tongue-in-cheek piece, this time written and produced by Andrea Martin and Ivan Mattias—is No. 83 on the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart. Other highlights include the melancholy ballad "Unhappy," the breezy "Home," and the dramatic Shep Crawford-written and -produced "Sleep in the Middle." Joining returning producer Stewart on the production dais was the team of Soulshock & Karlin. Cantrell (whose publishing company, Tootie Blu, is administered by ASCAP) co-wrote many of the selections.

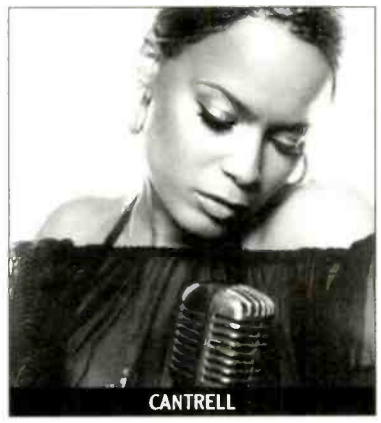
Bittersweet was originally scheduled for a fourth-quarter 2002 release, when it would have faced competition in a crowded female-driven arena that included Mariah Carey, labelmates Toni Braxton and Whitney Houston, and the ongoing momentum of such newcomers as Ashanti and Amerie. Cantrell, however, is unfazed by the competition.

"The public is very fickle," she says. "There's always going to be competition. So all I can do is the music that I feel and like. That's what we did on the first album, and I've tried to follow a similar path this time.

"Most of the songs are tracks that have been presented to me," she continues, "and I'll write to them right then and there. Sometimes I'll be presented with a song written by someone else that I just love, like 'Sleep in the Middle.' That's something I would have said myself."

Though not strictly autobiographical, Bittersweet contains songs Cantrell feels she and her audience can relate to. "I challenge myself with every song I sing to make it exceptional. There are a lot more uptempos on this album than the first. This is a chapter in a story. If anyone's having issues in their relationship, this album is for them."

"Blu has really come into her own on this project," Arista executive VP Lionel Ridenour says. "Bittersweet gives her fans a closer look at who she is, both as an artist and a woman, through introspective songwriting and strong vocal delivery."



CANTRELL

Among those who feel Cantrell has sidestepped the second-album jitters is Tony Phillips, owner of Vision Quest in Yonkers, N.Y. "By sticking to her guns," he says, "she has maintained her playful sound with adult themes and strong songs. 'Breathe' is a good start for the album."

To further propel advance notice about Bittersweet, Arista has coordinated a month-long promotional tour covering major and secondary markets. Targeting radio stations and regional press, the jaunt kicked off Nov. 20, 2002. Print ads will be placed in Honey and Sister 2 Sister, and 15- and 30-second TV spots will run on BET, MTV, and VH1 highlighting the Hype Williams-directed video for "Breathe." On Dec. 8, 2002, Cantrell joined singer/songwriter Syleena Johnson in a benefit performance at New York's Cheetah Nightclub on behalf of nonprofit organization AID for AIDS, hosted by Vibe editor-in-chief Emil Wilbekin.

Despite the Grammy nomination, Cantrell is aware that success is by no means guaranteed the second time around. "[Debut success] was a big surprise," says the artist, who is managed by Michael "Blue" Williams for Family Tree Entertainment. "But I feel this business is like a grab bag. You never know what you're going to get, so you should expect the unexpected. I have a passion and a love for what I do, and that gets me through. I love the fans and making music."

by Gail Mitchell

VIOLATOR, CAA PACT: Violator Management is now being represented by Creative Artists Agency (CAA). As part of this new association, CAA will begin repping Violator artists Missy Elliott and Busta Rhymes for motion-picture, TV, and marketing projects. At the start of the year, Violator partner Chris Lighty was named a senior VP in Jive Records' A&R department (Billboard Bulletin, Jan. 7), with the Violator label also joining the Jive fold.

JAY-Z'S TAKEOVER: Jay-Z stars in Heineken's latest installment in its It's All About the Beer ad campaign. Titled "The Takeover" and taped in January, the ad will debut during Sunday's (23) Grammy Awards telecast. The Roc-a-Fella rapper will also appear in a public-service announcement for the Heineken Music Initiative, a separate, nonprofit organization that raises funds for urban music-education programs.

In other small-screen activity: Joining the 17th annual Soul Train Awards lineup are Jennifer Lopez, comedian Chris Rock, and Dru Hill. The special airs live Saturday (1) from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium in California.

BISHOP HITS WITH 'MISS': Having scored a multi-week No. 1 Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles & Tracks chart hit with Aaliyah's "Miss You," songwriter/producer Teddy Bishop says he wants to change what's happening in music, especially on the R&B front. "R&B is actually somewhat in a slump due to the quality of the music," the Atlanta-based Bishop says. "It seems to be more about making money vs. quality music. I want to change that. Everyone talks about downloading, but if you give them good music, they will buy it."

BISHOP

Born in Detroit, Bishop was a member of Arista R&B group Kiara prior to his behind-the-board switch. Relocating to Atlanta in 1991 and signed to LaFace as a producer by mentors Antonio "L.A." Reid and Babyface, Bishop worked with Toni Braxton and Usher. With a sound he describes as "melodic, bassline-driven with nice chords," Bishop has compiled a production résumé that includes projects with Whitney Houston, B2K, Ginuwine, Jagged Edge, Montell Jordan, and others.

Under his Groove Factor Productions banner, Bishop plans to do more work with up-and-coming artists, producers, and songwriters. He's currently in the studio with new R&B singer Courtney Copeland, whom he calls his next "priority." As to whether a Bishop-helmed label is in the offing, he says, "I'd like to do a label situation but not right now. I want to stay creative. Running a label is a whole different animal."

ON THE RECORD: The Isley Brothers' new DreamWorks album is slated for a May 13 release . . . While in New York for the Grammy Awards, the Trackboyz production duo (Nelly's "Air Force Ones") will be shopping a deal for its latest find, R&B group Denim.

DJ SEARCH: Afrika Bambaataa and De La Soul's Posdnuos are among the 10 judges who will evaluate the four finalists in the national DJ search, On the 1 and 2's. Sponsored by arts-and-entertainment organization Gen Art and Eclipse Flash breath strips, the finale will be staged Wednesday (26) at New York's Supper Club. Part of the Eclipse Flash: Fresh Talent Grant Program, the competition will award $10,000 in grants.

DINNER DATES: The National Assn. of Black Owned Broadcasters honors LL Cool J, Diana Ross, jazz saxophonist Benny Carter, and others during its 19th annual Communications Awards dinner. The March 27 event takes place at Washington, D.C.'s Marriott Wardman Park Hotel (646-424-9750) . . . The fifth annual Impact Record Pool Awards convenes Tuesday (25) at Los Angeles' Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Host George Daniels will welcome honorees Cecilia "CeCe" McClendon (Arista), Jon "Big Jon" Platt (EMI Music Publishing), and Kevin Black (Interscope) (818-981-3730).

Crusaders Still On A Mission

After 20 Years, Act Returns With 'Rural Renewal' On PRA/Verve

BY GAIL MITCHELL

LOS ANGELES—"They're back." That slogan is a cornerstone of the marketing campaign behind the Crusaders' first new album in 20 years, Rural Renewal. Set for release worldwide March 4, the PRA/Verve set features original members Joe Sample (keyboards), Wilton Felder (sax), and Stix Hooper (drums).

"Our first target is the 35-plus male audience, the people who were listening to them in the '70s during their heyday," Verve senior director of marketing John Newcott says. "We want to reach the Crusaders' core audience and let them know the group is back."

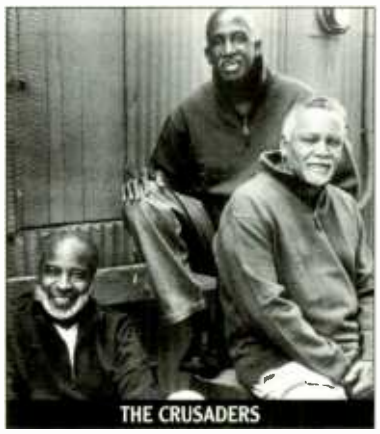
T-shirts emblazoned with the slogan and packaged with the new album, three classic Crusaders sets, and a personalized note were mailed to retail tastemakers this month. Targeting the Crusaders' earlier bastions of smooth jazz and urban radio, Verve has tagged "Viva de Funk" as the lead single. It was sent to radio Feb. 20.

That cut and the title track prove that the boys are back in town, recapturing that same old feeling with their signature horn mix, percussive piano, and body-moving melding of jazz and soul. Honorary Crusaders saddling up for the mission include Eric Clapton, Ray Parker Jr., Freddie Washington, and gospel's Donnie McClurkin (who does a strong turn on "A Healing Coming On" with the Sounds of Blackness).

Sample is quick to point out that Rural Renewal is more about picking up where the group left off than a reunion. "The four of us [including former member Wayne Henderson, who left in 1975] actually met 10 years ago about doing another album," says Sample, who also records as a solo artist with PRA/GRP. "But we decided not to do it, because we were looking at it as a reunion. A reunion to me meant we were simply going to rehash what we had done, and I didn't want to do that. Ten years later, Wilton, Stix, and I realized that a lot of what prompted us to become musicians in the first place was gone, things we loved like the Staple Singers, Marvin Gaye. So we decided not to have a reunion but to do a continuation of what we loved."

Felder adds, "Like Joe, I recognized the void. The musicianship of most musicians trying to play Crusaders' music was not there. The only way we could get the real Crusaders music was to get back together and play it the way we feel it and hear it."

Hailing from southeast Texas, the Crusaders evolved from the Swingsters and the Modern Jazz Sextet in the '50s into the Jazz Crusaders in the '60s. Dropping "jazz" from their moniker, they hit their stride in the '70s with such fan-pleasers as "Keep That Same Old Feeling" and "Street Life" while on the ABC/Blue Thumb and MCA rosters.



THE CRUSADERS

The members also backed acts, together and individually, including Gaye, Steely Dan, and Joni Mitchell, and the Crusaders' rich catalog has provided the backdrop for a diverse array of contemporary artists' projects, including 2Pac, Queen Latifah, Ice Cube, Tyrese, and Destiny's Child.

As Rural Renewal's release date approaches, such Crusaders performances are being lined up as a May 4 appearance at the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival and one at the Hollywood Bowl Aug. 17 as part of the JVC Jazz Festival. An ad campaign is also being launched, encompassing Jazziz and other publications.

Lauren Watt, director of national advertising for Tower Records, says, "What with Clapton and other guests on this album, a lot of fans will be excited. With positioning in key jazz stores and [in-store] play at listening stations, we expect to be a huge part of what happens with this CD, helping people rediscover this band."

While Felder, Sample, and Hooper hope the album sells well, all are busy with various solo projects: Sample is working on another set, Felder expects to release his own solo album later this year, and Hooper is operating his own label from his Seattle home base.

Whatever happens musically for the trio, it will always be about the feeling. "The music industry is now run by businessmen," Sample says. "Everything is manipulated; nothing is a natural flow. What we missed is music's spiritual, rhythmic, and soulful value and getting people to feel that. It has meant a lot to us to do this album."

by Gail Mitchell

BACK IN STRIDE: Miami's Roney Palace is once again the locale for the fourth annual Billboard R&B/Hip-Hop Conference and Awards Show, to be held Aug. 6-8 in association with American Urban Radio Networks and Heineken. We're looking forward to presenting another strong lineup of panels and performances. Stay tuned for additional details in the coming weeks.

SECOND COMING: For those who don't know, William "Mickey" Stevenson was the man who put together Motown's first A&R department and helped assemble the label's infamous backing band, the Funk Brothers. But rather than rest on those laurels, Stevenson is busy overseeing the launch of his latest venture, Stevenson International Entertainment Group (SIE), working in tandem with SIE Group VP B'Anca Henderson.

STEVENSON

The Los Angeles-based firm comprises three divisions. Mikim Music is a publishing company/recording facility whose catalog of live old-school sessions, which spans 30-plus years, has been sampled by Jay-Z and others. B&W Management, which represents signed and unsigned artists, is working with, among others, Rawkus/MCA newcomer Novel, whose album bows in May. Stevenson Productions produces stage shows and concerts. Past projects include Sang Sista Sang and Glory Glory.

Stevenson has also been chosen by the Stronghold Group to represent Motown music legends in licensing their names and images. "Artists like the Four Tops, the Temptations, and Smokey Robinson could be around for a lot more years because of this venture," he says, "and they deserve it."

Stevenson—who was with Motown for eight years—says his best memories are about "the love we had as a family for each other that is still going on." That will be the premise of the book he's currently penning.

"I'll be talking about what made the company tick," he says. Dismissing other Motown books like Gerald Posner's new Motown: Money, Power, Sex and Music, he observes, "That's people outside talking about what happened inside. I [know] it from all angles. I was inside." Contact: 818-888-6870.

BACK ON BOARD: Amerie and Ashanti tie with the most nominations for the 17th annual Soul Train Music Awards. Their three nominations apiece include vying against each other in the best R&B/soul single, female; and best R&B/soul album, female, categories. Walking away with two nods each are Musiq, Justin Timberlake, B2K, Floetry, and Nelly. Winners are determined by radio programmers, artists, and retailers.

This year's special award honorees are Dionne Warwick and LL Cool J, who will both be presented with the Quincy Jones Award, and Nelly, who will be given the Sammy Davis Jr. Award for entertainer of the year.

The awards special rolls out live March 1 in first-run syndication from the Pasadena (Calif.) Civic Auditorium with hosts Queen Latifah and Arsenio Hall. Thus far, performances by LL Cool J, Nelly, Mariah Carey, and Timberlake have been confirmed. For a complete list of nominees, see billboard.com/awards.

RADIO KUDOS: Speaking of awards, legendary radio personality Hal Jackson will receive the Rhythm & Blues Foundation's first Special Recognition Pioneer Award for Broadcasting at the organization's 13th annual Pioneer Awards. Jackson, who is the first African-American inducted into the Radio Hall of Fame, joins a Pioneer honoree roster that includes the Supremes, Koko Taylor, and George Clinton. The event is set for Feb. 20 at New York's Manhattan Center.

ON THE RECORD: Another new indie label jumps into the game: Miami-based Truth Records. The label will initially concentrate on hip-hop under the guidance of partners Greg Susoreny and David Schutzman; contact 305-375-0710 . . . Ginuwine's new Epic album is now slated for April 8 . . . ABB Soul artist Peven Everett crosses over into ballet with performances Feb. 14-15 at Chicago's Athenaeum Theatre. He plays three compositions in the ballet Duets for My Valentine. His ABB debut, Studio Confessions, is in stores now.

Lattimore, Moore: 'Lovers' On & Offstage

Arista Capitalizes On Married Couple's Play Run To Promote New Album

BY DAVID NATHAN

Continuing a time-honored tradition of R&B duos that includes the couplings of Marvin Gaye & Tammi Terrell, Peaches & Herb, and René & Angela, contemporary soul singers Kenny Lattimore and Chanté Moore celebrate love on Things That Lovers Do. The Arista set arrives in stores Tuesday (11).

In a different marketing twist, Arista is taking advantage of a ready-made promotion, thanks to the married pair's current roles in a play that shares the album's title. During its first run, Things That Lovers Do is stopping in Atlanta (Feb. 5-9), Washington, D.C. (Feb. 10-16), New York (Feb. 18-23), Detroit (Feb. 24-March 2), Philadelphia (March 3-16), and Baltimore (March 17-23). West Coast dates may be added later in the year after Moore gives birth to the couple's first child in the spring.

"We could have done a conventional tour," says Lattimore, an Arista artist. "The thing is, I kept getting scripts for various plays. The perception is that if you do a play, your career must be [stagnant]. Chanté and I both felt that if we could do a play together, we could get rid of that stigma, bring some validity to the art form, and focus on good black theater."

Working with a script written by Javon Johnson, the pair brought in renowned Broadway choreographer/director George Faison. "Javon listened to 18 songs, including some of my hits, some of Chanté's, and songs from the album," Lattimore says. "He had a story in mind and placed the songs we presented into that story."

Arista director of marketing Tyrone Murray says the company is doing an all-out promotion around the play's dates, including radio contests in each market, tie-ins with local jewelry stores in some cities, an appearance at a major hair show in Atlanta, and listening parties for consumers on and around Valentine's Day. Further tying into the label's lifestyle campaign—in which Lattimore and Moore are tagged as "R&B's hottest new couple"—the twosome will be featured in the February issue of Essence.

"We're doing listening events at 200 hair and nail salons and giving out samplers at T.G.I. Friday restaurants," Murray says. "We also have a spot running on Fox's syndicated show The Hughleys, which offers the prize of dinner with Kenny and Chanté."

Moore and Lattimore, who celebrated their first anniversary Jan. 1, say manager Michael Mauldin conceived the idea of their pairing up. "You can be in love with someone all you want, but it's a whole different thing when they're also in your work space," Lattimore observes. "So one of the first questions we considered was how it would work once we recorded and were asked to perform together. We actually did a few appearances on awards shows to see how it would be."

While the album primarily is a tribute to classic duets (i.e., Billy Preston & Syreeta's "With You I'm Born Again," René & Angela's "You Don't Have to Cry"), it also features two new songs by Jimmy Jam & Terry Lewis: the title track and "Loveable." Among the standout tracks are two classics by another famed duo, husband-and-wife team Nick Ashford and Valerie Simpson: "You're All I Need to Get By" and the pair's own 1978 hit "Is It Still Good to Ya." Besides Jam & Lewis, producers include Daryl Simmons, Jamey Jaz, Jamie Hawkins, and James Poyser. First single "Loveable" went to radio last September. At press time, a second single was being chosen.

Tyrone Lyons, GM of New Bate Records in New York, expects "a lot of the younger audience who knows Kenny and Chanté won't know songs like 'Close the Door' or 'Is It Still Good to Ya.' So those will be new to them. The older demo will buy it, [because] they know those songs. The album will get a good response, provided consumers know about it."

Moore, who left MCA Records at the end of 2001, says, "No one has my signature yet as a recording artist." In the meantime, the duo—managed by Atlanta-based Artistic Control—is considering a Christmas album together and preparing material for future solo projects.

Words &Deeds™

by Rashaun Hall

MY BROTHER'S KEEPER: How does a North Carolina-based rap group get signed to West Coast-based indie staple ABB Records? Just ask Little Brother. The trio—MCs Phonte, Big Pooh, and DJ/producer 9th Wonder—makes its ABB debut with The Listening.

LITTLE BROTHER

"We got hooked up with ABB via our man DJ Bum Rush," Phonte says. "We put up four of our tracks online via thejawn.com for comments and criticisms. Those songs were then posted on okayplayer.com, and the word spread. Ian Davis over at ABB heard the tracks and reached out to Bum Rush to contact us. We contacted Ian and went from there."

Streeting Feb. 25, Little Brother credits early-'90s hip-hop acts as the inspiration for The Listening.

"At first we started with our knowledge of hip-hop," 9th Wonder says. "We grew up on albums like [A Tribe Called Quest's] Midnight Marauders and [Dr. Dre's] The Chronic, so our album The Listening is reminiscent of those albums, because that's what we listened to growing up."

The inspiration is so apparent that the group is already drawing comparisons to De La Soul and the aforementioned Tribe Called Quest. "I love that," Phonte says of the comparisons. "No one wants to big up their influences anymore. If someone tells a singer he sounds like Stevie Wonder, that singer will say, 'Oh well, I'm trying to do my own thing.' What the fuck? Someone just said you sound like Stevie Wonder! Take the compliment and keep it moving. If cats want to compare us to them, that's cool. We welcome that, because that's how people draw you closer to them. If it takes that to understand Little Brother, that's fine."

The trio is already generating interest with its first single, "Whatever You Say." "That was the first one that caught a buzz," Phonte says. "It was one of those first four songs we put online. Out of those four, our favorite was 'Speed.' But everyone loved 'Whatever You Say.' Whenever our name came up, people mentioned that song."

HEAVYWEIGHT DJ: Japanese beatsmith DJ Krush brings his next set of instrumental hip-hop stateside this month with The Message at the Depth (Red Ink). Due Feb. 11, the album is the follow-up to 2001's Zen.

"When I made Zen, I had a message: 'All of the problems of the world were caused by human beings, so why don't we clean it up?' " Krush explains. "So when the tragedy of Sept. 11 [2001] happened, I thought, 'What? Not again.' I didn't put deep thought into making this album. I just let out the feelings that I had."

The Message at the Depth features guest appearances from indie acts Anti-Pop Consortium and Anticon, among others. "I felt close to them, because what I do is also not mainstream," Krush says of the collaborations. "I'm trying to express my feelings regardless of commercial success, and I know they feel the same way. That's why I thought they would be perfect to work with. I sent them the album concept and said, 'If you agree with what I feel or want to join this work, then please do so.' I left it open, and luckily they replied."

SUPER BOWL BASH: Def Jam president Kevin Liles recently teamed with prominent sports agent Leigh Steinberg for Def Con '03. Held at San Diego's Blue Tattoo, the party, hosted by Russell Simmons, brought together the worlds of sports and music in a novel way.

"My NFL clients are enormous music and hip-hop fans," Steinberg says. "So for a number of years I've tried to establish a bridge between music and sports. Obviously, they are two heads of the hydra that is entertainment. We looked around for an entertainment partner and were impressed by the quality and consistency of Def Jam. As a kickoff to this marriage, we thought the Super Bowl, which is a convention of Americana, would be appropriate."

Steinberg, whose clients include the Miami Dolphins' Ricky Williams and the New York Jets' Chad Morton, is establishing a think tank of sports- and music-industry insiders to spin off future projects that embody both music and sports, which would in turn spin off other entertainment products.

Rhythm, Rap, and The Blues™

by Gail Mitchell

ON THE RECORD: Singer/songwriter Brenda Russell signs a worldwide pact with London-based Dome Records, headed by president Peter Robinson. Her most recent album was the 2000 release Paris Rain on Hidden Beach Recordings. Set to record in both London and Los Angeles, Russell is also co-writing music for the 2004 Broadway production of The Color Purple with Allee Willis and Stephen Bray.

Luther Vandross drops his second J Records set, Dance With My Father, June 17. Guests include Beyoncé Knowles, Queen Latifah, Stevie Wonder, Busta Rhymes, and Foxy Brown.

R&B/pop singer lauren joins the roster of Atlanta-based NME Records. Formerly signed to Jive and Interscope, the 22-year-old is aiming for a first-quarter 2004 release. She'll be working with NME A&R consultant Kim Smith, who helmed lauren's first project when Smith was A&R director for Perri "Pebbles" Reid's Savvy Records. Indie NME is a member of New York-based holding company the Deveron Group . . . Jeffrey Osborne (LTD) marks 30 years in music and launches his own label, Jay Oz Records, with new album Music Is Life. The June 10 release is distributed via Koch Entertainment.

On May 6, Koch and Miramax Films issue the soundtrack to the documentary tribute Only the Strong Survive. Featured artists include Jerry Butler, Sam Moore, Wilson Pickett, and Carla and Rufus Thomas.

TO THE VIKTER: Once he wraps promotion for his February-released debut Hollywood set—International Affairs V2.0—songwriter/producer Vikter Duplaix will be cranking up several other projects, including a label through Sony. Duplaix's partners in that venture are his Axis Music Group colleagues James Poyser (Erykah Badu) and Chauncey Childs (Vivian Green). They hope to release a fall project that they are currently working on with a spiritual soul group.

DUPLAIX

"We're still working on a name for the label," Duplaix says. "But we're trying to get the music done first. We hope to have a single in late summer."

But first things first. Acknowledging that his album—with selections shifting from futuristic to uptempo dance to ballads—doesn't fit a specific category, the Philly native says his aim was to make a "record of beautiful-sounding music that will hopefully make a lot of people feel good. Music has to go back to that. To have a long and prosperous career, you have to give people emotional food. That's what they're missing: quality and vision.

"I'm out to show that there's something that can be done that's not necessarily formatted and still be successful," he adds. "I plan to have a career at this—not a short-term situation."

SCREEN SCENE: UPN premieres Platinum, a one-hour drama set in the hip-hop music industry, 9 p.m.-10 p.m., ET/PT April 14. The program's main characters are brothers Jackson and Grady Rhames—the guiding forces behind Sweetback Entertainment—played respectively by Jason George (Barbershop) and Sticky Fingaz (Onyx). After its premiere, the series will begin airing Tuesdays at 9 p.m.

Marc Dorsey follows up his vocal stint on LL Cool J's No. 1 hit "Luv U Better" with a turn as host of a new national cable show, Marc Dorsey's R&B Live & Unplugged. Slated to air this summer—spotlighting established, up-and-coming, and unsigned acts—the program's pilot was taped April 2 at New York's Soul Café with performances by Will Downing, Syleena Johnson, Dani Stevenson, Raheim, Felicia Adams, and Latif.

SPRING BREAK: Charli Baltimore, J.T. Money, and 54th Platoon are among the national and local acts performing during the 15th annual Texas Beach Party April 10-13 on Galveston Island. It is presented by Countdown Promotions, headed by CEO Kenny Talton; Urban Authority Promotions & Marketing, operated by Derrick McKinney, is consulting. For more details, contact McKinney at 713-723-7607.

Bone Crusher Gets 'Attenchun!'

So So Def/Arista Rapper Broadening His Fan Base With Major-Label Debut

BY MOIRA McCORMICK

When Atlanta MC Bone Crusher signed with So So Def/Arista, his pile-driving, electronica-edged independent hip-hop single, "Never Scared," had already made a dent at local radio. Now his debut album, Attenchun!, is ready to drop April 29.

Arista senior VP Jermaine Dupri was quite familiar with the physically imposing rapper (who is 6'3" and weighs 300 pounds), as the artistically inclined Bone Crusher had designed a logo for Dupri, among other things.

"He's been around the Atlanta scene," Dupri says. "He was in a group called the LGs [Lyrical Giants], who were signed to Erick Sermon's Death Squad label, and a band called the Chronicle." (The Chronicle included Bone Crusher's current producers A-1 [Avery Johnson], Billy Hume, and L-Roc, along with Lil Jon of Lil Jon & the East Side Boyz.)

The veteran producer/label entrepreneur was equally impressed by Bone Crusher's dedication to self-promotion. Dupri says, "I saw Bone Crusher at a club one night [in late 2002] and watched him hand out CD singles of 'Never Scared' to people, right out of the box."

Dupri, who hosts So So Def Radio on Atlanta's R&B/hip-hop WVEE (V-103), immediately decided to air "Never Scared" (which features fellow Atlantans Killer Mike and T.I.) "as my Atlanta pick of the week. It has that street grind. I wasn't thinking about signing him yet, since my deal with Arista wasn't 100% done."

But Dupri quickly came to realize Bone Crusher's potential and suggested Arista should pick him up ASAP. He recalls, "I said to L.A. [Arista president/CEO Antonio Reid], 'Even if I don't get a deal with you, sign him anyway and I'll oversee [the project].' "

The partnership was ultimately forged (Billboard, Jan. 25), with Bone Crusher (born Wayne Hardnett) becoming its flagship artist. Though Attenchun! is the rapper's first major-label-starring vehicle, he is no stranger to the big leagues. He has provided hooks for such acts as Too Short, Bow Wow, and Clipse. In fact, Attenchun!'s original title when it was released last fall on Atlanta indie Break 'Em Off Records was Bone Crusher and His Industry Friends. Break 'Em Off is co-releasing Attenchun! with So So Def/Arista.

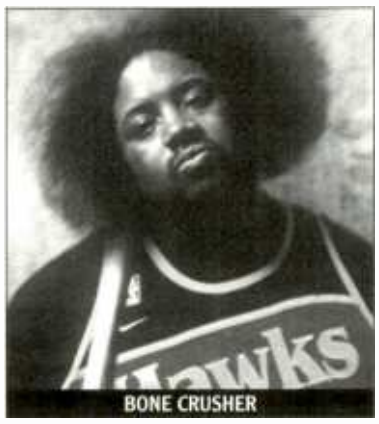
The MC, who is managed by Atlanta-based Lance "Scatter" Rieves and publishes through Bone Crusher Music (ASCAP), says Attenchun!'s aggressiveness reflects "a period of darkness to enlightenment [in my life]. It's a prime example of persistence—I've been in the game 10 years."

In breaking Bone Crusher out of the South, Dupri says it's a matter of recognizing there are distinct styles of rap and tailoring marketing plans accordingly. "There's a difference between Mos Def and Jay-Z," he points out. "You have to make sure their particular audiences are buying their record first before taking it to crossover."



BONE CRUSHER

Dupri sees Bone Crusher's immediate audience as the "fans of crunk. It's grittier, meaner, more hyper—it's mad music, like black people's version of slam dancing. Bone Crusher has already got the crunk fans; now we have to cross him over."

According to VP of urban marketing Phillana Williams, Arista is in the process of doing that. "We started promoting 'Never Scared' to the mix shows," she says. That was followed by a Southeast promotional tour in early March with a second tour (primarily the Midwest) scheduled for April. "He's done radio shows and club dates in Atlanta and other Georgia cities, Tennessee, and the Carolinas," Williams adds. Dupri has also gone on the road with Bone Crusher to help introduce him.

The label is also trading on Bone Crusher's "larger-than-life" physique, using promotional visuals from the "Never Scared" video for point-of-purchase materials. Added to BET's "rated next" category, the video features Bone Crusher striding through Atlanta. In keeping with that theme, Arista is "doing life-size blowups for retail and clubs and postcards with oversized footprints," Williams says. "We need to keep him on the road and visible. The more people see him, the more they fall in love with him. Bone Crusher sells himself."

by Gail Mitchell

ON THE MOVE: Blackground Records welcomes three acts to its roster. R&B/pop songbird Toni Braxton joins the fold after 10 years with Arista (Billboard Bulletin, March 14). A new Braxton album is tentatively slated for Sept. 16 through Blackground/Universal, preceded by a first single in June or July. Also new to the Blackground family: former Motown artist Rasheeda and Playa, previously signed to Def Jam.

"Toni is one of the most distinctive and powerful voices to come out in the last 25-30 years," says Blackground founder Barry Hankerson, who also manages Braxton. "With most artists you look to put out one or two albums. With Toni, you know she will have a career for decades to come."

The six-time Grammy Award winner's last Arista album is 2002's More Than a Woman, which has sold 379,000 units, according to Nielsen SoundScan. Signed to Arista imprint LaFace in 1991, Braxton bowed in 1993 with Toni Braxton.

In other news, sources say Ron Gillyard's last day as J Records senior VP of urban music will be March 21. That leaves the door open for his long-rumored move to Interscope Records. At press time, neither J nor Interscope executives could be reached for comment.

KEEPING THEIR WORD: The Promise is the title of Earth, Wind & Fire's (EWF) first new studio album in six years. And judging by what I heard in founding member Maurice White's Santa Monica, Calif., studio, the collective definitely delivers on said promise.

The signature EWF motif is here—love songs, Philip Bailey's distinctive falsetto, harmonizing horns, guest vocals by the Emotions. But there's also a contemporary veneer that should please old and new fans alike. The album arrives May 20 on White's RED-distributed Kalimba Records, grounding rumors of the group signing with Def Soul's proposed classic artists division. Co-produced by White, The Promise is being introduced via lead single "All in the Way." Additional tracks include "Wonderland" with Angie Stone and the raw "Dirty."

The Promise features none of the songs from the group's unreleased Columbia collaboration with Wyclef Jean. "That was close to rap, and that's not our cup of tea," White says. "We're not trying to sound hip-hop. We want to stick to our guns and do what we do best. This music will speak for itself; we've got a few more records in us."

Headed by industry veteran Ron Ellison, Kalimba Records is planning an EWF summer U.S. tour. Future label projects include albums by the Emotions and Deniece Williams.

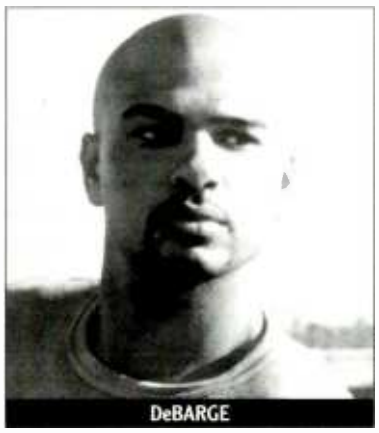
A 'FREE' MAN: Hitting the promo tour trail in April on behalf of his new album, Free, is Chico DeBarge. The March 25 Alove/Kock release is his first since his fourth album, 1999's The Game, on Motown. Following his amicable split with the label in 2000, DeBarge is now running his own label, Alove Entertainment. (Pronounced "olive," it is named for the fruit's healing properties.)



DeBARGE

Paced by midtempo first single "Not Together" (No. 29 on the R&B Adult chart in sister publication Airplay Montior), Free reflects a recharged DeBarge who used the project "to do some soul searching and reflect who I was musically. I want to be much more passionate and sensual musically; less sexual, less contrived."

The result of that personal journey is Free, written and produced by DeBarge in his Grand Rapids, Mich.-based home studio. Among the set's 12 cuts are the moving ballad that is the title track and "Home Alone," an ode to single mothers.

Koch president Alan Grunblatt says of the label's first R&B artist, "Chico is the perfect artist to team with our roster of bangin' hip-hop artists."

With an upcoming appearance on Soul Train and a Bille Woodruff-directed video for "Not Together," DeBarge hopes to build more momentum. "Hip-hop is ruling because radio isn't giving soul music a chance. But there's an audience out there. Word-of-mouth still goes a long way."

Directors Control Robot

Film Production Entity Provides Creative Outlet For People Behind The Lens

BY RASHAUN HALL

Whether via its eye-catching, message-driven videos for Nas and the Roots or fast-moving commercials for athletic shoe manufacturer And1, Robot Films is quickly making a name for itself. Founded in 2000 by longtime video director Chris Robinson, Robot was created as an outlet for directors who felt stifled.

"Launching Robot was a reaction to wanting to be creative at whatever budget we were given by the labels," Robinson says. "We wanted to have the freedom to be inventive, to bring a vision to the screen. As Robot matured, our vision expanded," he adds. "[The company now comprises] a marketing firm, consulting, advertising, feature films, and TV."

To aid his vision, Robinson knew he needed to bring in like-minded directors. The first one he approached was Jessy Terrero. A former casting director, Terrero has created videos for the Roots ("Break You Off") and 50 Cent ("Wanksta").

"I was shooting a video for Prospect, one of Fat Joe's artists, while Chris was shooting one for Terror Squad [another Fat Joe act]," Terrero says. "Joe mentioned to Chris that I was shooting a video for him. Chris came to me later and wanted to see that [Prospect] video. I presented it to him with some of the other videos I'd shot. Three months later he called and said, 'I'm thinking about starting a company called 'Robot,' and I want you to be my first director.'" The rest of the Robot roster consists of Kevin DeFreitas, Risa Machuca, and Vinny Harris.

Among Robinson's recent videos is Snoop Dogg's "Beautiful." The clip shows the veteran rapper in a whole new light, having him leave his usual West Coast trappings for the sunny beaches of Brazil. According to the artist, it was a feat only Robinson could create.

"I chose to work with Chris because of our chemistry," Snoop says. "He brings my ideas to life while touching it with his own magic."

Snoop isn't the only one singing Robot's praises. Between Robinson and Terrero, the company has been nominated for multiple MTV Video Music Awards (VMA) and Grammy Awards. Most recently, Terrero was nominated for a 2001 VMA for Jill Scott's "Gettin' in the Way," while Robinson was nominated last year for Nas' "One Mic." That clip also earned him a Grammy nomination this year. "I never really think about it," Robinson says of the accolades. "It's really not about me but [of] making an interpretation of the music."

Robot recently branched into commercial work with a series of Robinson-lensed And1 commercials featuring NBA all-star MVP and Minnesota Timberwolves forward Kevin Garnett.

"We chose to work with Chris because of the great work he's done on music videos in the past," And1 director of public relations Errin Cecil-Smith says. "We were looking for a 'short film' feel for the [Garnett] spot that would effectively tell the story of where he came from and who he is now. Chris condensed a long story into a visually extraordinary 30-second film."

In addition to commercials, Robinson and Terrero are working on film projects. Robinson is developing Girl, while Terrero aims to make his feature-film debut with Soul Plane. "It's an urban remake of Airplane," Terrero says. "It's very similar to the original, except the cast is full of people of color."

If the past two years are any indication, the future seems bright for Robot.

"We all have different life experiences, but we all love film—whatever the given format," Robinson says. "We challenge ourselves to be on point."

Terrero agrees: "We're making our own path, coming from a music video standpoint and going into features, commercials, and TV shows. We're trying to become a mini-DreamWorks."

FOR THE RECORD

Terry Ross—together with Henry "Noonie" Lee, Christopher Hicks, and Ryan Glover—is a partner in Atlanta-based production team Noontime (Words & Deeds, Billboard, March 22). Noontime also has more than 300 songs in circulation.

Reba Gives Herself Some 'Room' On New CD

BY PHYLLIS STARK

NASHVILLE—Energized by a long break from recording and touring, Reba McEntire returns to the country market Nov. 18 with the much-anticipated album "Room to Breathe."

Other than a greatest-hits project in 2001, the longtime MCA Nashville artist hasn't released an album in four years. But McEntire has hardly been taking it easy.

She followed a critically acclaimed run on Broadway starring in "Annie Get Your Gun" with her own sitcom, "Reba." Now in its third season, "Reba" is the WB network's highest-rated comedy. McEntire is the show's executive producer as well as its star.

APTLY NAMED ALBUM

McEntire says her long hiatus between albums was partly by design.

"The reason I named the album 'Room to Breathe' is because I needed a little room to breathe" after 25 years of nearly nonstop touring and recording, she says.

But McEntire admits that another part of the delay between albums was because of the regime change at MCA earlier this year. Chairman Bruce Hinton retired and was replaced by Luke Lewis, who installed an almost entirely new staff.

"We wanted to make sure everyone was in place and had their stuff together before we came [out] with an album," she says.

"Room to Breathe," produced by Buddy Cannon and Norro Wilson, contains a diverse mix of songs and styles that McEntire calls "very eclectic" and "almost autobiographical."

The album's first single, "I'm Gonna Take That Mountain," is the kind of strong-woman song McEntire is known for. It got off to a quick start at radio and this issue climbs from No. 19 to No. 14 after just 10 weeks on Hot Country Singles & Tracks.

It is McEntire's 67th charting single, which includes 19 No. 1 hits.

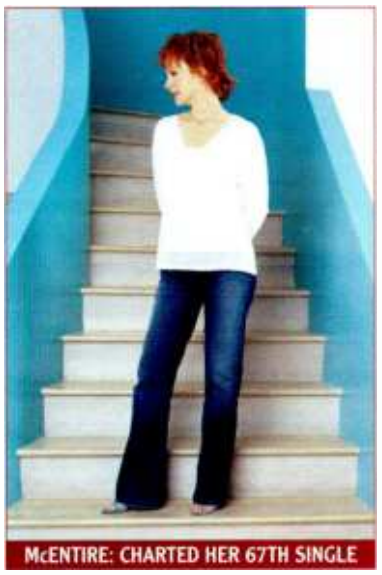
McEntire's résumé also includes 13 platinum or multi-platinum albums and eight gold-certified titles. It's no surprise that radio programmers say they are glad to have one of the format's best-known female stars back with a new hit.

"Reba transcends the format," country WWYZ Hartford, Conn., PD Justin Case says. "Her success on Broadway, on TV and in the movies makes her a recognizable name and face. Her voice is immediately recognizable to the core audience. She is a great ambassador for country music."

Brad Hansen, PD of country KTTS Springfield, Mo., agrees.

"She's still one of the best performers of any format," Hansen says. "Reba has star power and class; she stays true to country but has mass appeal."

Among the standout tracks on "Room to Breathe" are the touching "Moving Oleta," the gospel rave-up "Love Revival" and the duet with her longtime friend Vince Gill, "It Just Has to Be This Way." In addition to Gill, guest performers on the album include Alison Krauss, Dan Tyminski, Linda Davis and Sonya Isaacs.



McENTIRE: CHARTED HER 67TH SINGLE

When it came time to record again, McEntire, who is not a songwriter herself, had plenty of great outside material to choose from.

"It was the greatest batch of songs that I'd ever received," she says, noting that she could have recorded a second album with all the material she had at her disposal.

Finding songs is her favorite part of the recording process. "It's like fishing in a diamond mine," she says.

But the album's diversity of styles was not planned. McEntire says she simply selected songs that touched her heart the most.

LOGICAL CROSS-PROMOTION

The Grammy Award-winning singer will be visible promoting the album this fall with appearances on "Access Hollywood," "CNN Headline News," "The Today Show" and "The View."

She plans to tour to support "Room to Breathe" during her TV show's April-through-August hiatus next year.

Derek Simon, VP of marketing for MCA and Mercury, says label executives "spent a lot of time with the folks at the WB to try to find ways to cross-promote that show to Reba's country audience and market the record to her TV audience.

"Fortunately, we have a really, really cooperative partner in the WB," adds Simon, who says the album's marketing plan is "just a matter of building off her visibility."

He notes that it is a unique opportunity to put a face from TV with a fairly aggressive consumer advertising platform that targets country and mainstream media and several radio formats.

"When your artist is the star of a major sitcom, there is a natural connection, and it would be negligent not to try to reach fans of her television show," Simon says. McEntire is being marketed as "someone who has a presence well beyond music because of the mass medium of television."

Among the more creative cross-promotions is a tie-in with TV Guide.

McEntire will be featured on the cover of a mid-November issue, and an insert in that issue will direct readers to a Web site, where they can stream the audio and video for "I'm Gonna Take That Mountain" and download the single.

MCA also partnered with the WB for a sweepstakes to win dinner with the cast of "Reba." The new CD will contain contest information, which can also be found on the WB Web site.

All of these efforts are bolstered by McEntire's close involvement in the efforts to promote her project.

"Reba is so focused and locked in," Simon says of her participation in the marketing plan. "It's a pleasure to work with an artist who understands the big picture."

Dualtone Gets Moore Involved In Promotion

Dualtone Music Group is branching out into publishing and adding staff in the record-promotion and publicity areas.

The label, launched 2½ years ago by partners Dan Herrington and Scott Robinson, has achieved success with its cautious business model of adding staff only on an as-needed basis.

DUALTONE MUSIC GROUP

They recently hired Andy Moore from Vector Management and Vector Promotions to head Dualtone's record-promotion efforts.

Until now, the label exclusively relied on independent promoters, many of which will continue to be used to augment Moore's efforts. Prior to joining Vector, Moore worked at Lost Highway Records.

In addition, the label's independent publicist, Kissy Black, will join the staff Nov. 1.

Dualtone is also launching a music publishing company in partnership with Cal Turner's Cal IV Entertainment. Cal IV will handle all back-office functions for Dualtone Publishing, according to Herrington. No songwriters have been signed yet.

DRUM CORPS: Artist managers Larry Fitzgerald and Mark Hartley of Fitzgerald-Hartley have teamed with two other partners to launch TV production company Different Drummer Productions in Nashville.

Their first project is "Country Music Across America," a 30-minute weekly country music news program that will debut Nov. 4 on Great American Country.

Fitzgerald and Hartley are co-executive producers of the show, along with their Different Drummer partners Greg Travis and Storme Warren. Travis, a veteran producer, owns Travis Television in Nashville. Warren, a radio/TV veteran, will host "Country Music Across America."

The show will feature a different celebrity guest host for each episode. Vince Gill will co-host the debut. The show originates from the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum.

ON THE ROW: Lauren Murphy will exit her position as senior VP of media and artist relations at Universal Music Group Nashville by the end of the year to launch a Nashville-based media consulting company. Lost Highway artist Ryan Adams will be among her first clients.

John Burns' recently launched CBuJ Distribution has inked two new distribution deals. The company will distribute "John Conlee Classics" on RCR Records, as well as the debut album "Stand Up" from Nashville-based band Hilljack on Crop Circle Records. Conlee's set includes three new songs and 19 of his hits. Hilljack comprises former Little Texas member Porter Howell, former Almo Sounds artist Paul Jefferson and musicians John Putnam and John Riffe.

Good Will Rocks Al Parque In Ninth Year

BY LEILA COBO

BOGOTA, Colombia—Despite a lack of corporate sponsorship and a restricted budget, the ninth annual Rock al Parque fest concluded on a high note.

MEXICAN SKA BAND INSPECTOR PERFORMS AT ROCK AL PARQUE

Nearly 100,000 fans attended three straight days of concerts featuring 24 local and international bands.

The success was particularly sweet for event organizers, who last year saw dwindling attendance and interest for what is considered the largest and longest-running free rock fest in Latin America.

"It's a new beginning and a new infusion of energy," says Héctor Mora, who coordinated the fest from 1998 to 2001 and this year served as general advisor.

Rock al Parque, which took place Oct. 11-13 and featured everything from ska and punk to hard metal, is produced and financed by the mayor's office in Bogotá through the city's Institute of Culture and Tourism (IDCT).

That it is funded almost entirely with public monies is an oddity in the rock world and Latin rock in particular.

NEW GENRES

The fest launched in 1995 under a city initiative to open new spaces to various genres of music. The city also funds Jazz al Parque and Hip-Hop al Parque fests.

"The best-known and best-regarded rock festival in Latin America is Rock al Parque," says Gabriel Ruiz Díaz, lead singer of Argentine hard rock band Catepecu Machu, which played Oct. 12.

Catepecu Machu—which was flown in from Argentina by its label, EMI—was not paid for its performance. Nor was labelmate and Mexican rock/electronica outfit Plastilina Mosh, which also gave a free lecture to music students.

Members of Argentina's Mississippi Blues Band also gave a free lecture prior to their show. "It's a real honor to be able to participate in this," Mississippi drummer Juan Carlos Tordó said.

That kind of good will enables Rock al Parque to survive.

A few years ago, when city officials threatened to cancel the fest, rock fans signed a massive petition to keep it alive.

In its decade-long tenure, the festival has been held on multiple stages, has lasted as long as eight days and has featured as many as 63 bands in one year, including such major acts as Café Tacuba, Aterciopelados and Manu Chao.

This year's fest, which organizers describe as "average" in size, took place on two stages: at the Media Torta amphitheater, which seats 7,000, and at the massive Simón Bolivar park, which could accommodate up to 60,000 people per day.

The budget for the festival was a lean 350 million pesos ($140,000), which covered all promotion, production and organizational costs.

Given that Rock al Parque employed approximately 500 staffers—including security, production and logistic personnel—the talent budget was slim.

This was one of the reasons the event lacked big, international names. That may have contributed to the lower-than-expected attendance (approximately 30,000) on the last day of the festival.

Perhaps such names would have been secured with the help of corporate sponsorships. But none were in evidence, in part because the IDCT has strict policies on sponsorship deals and how they are used.

But festival organizers say they would be open to such deals in the future.

Colombian Amigos Stage Show

Latin Notas™
By Leila Cobo
lcobo@billboard.com

In an unusual display of solidarity, five Colombia-based acts shared a stage Oct. 9 in Bogotá to kick off what many say is the first tour of its kind in the country.

Colombia en Concierto: Andrés Cepeda y Amigos featured popular singer/songwriter Andrés Cepeda along with Fonseca, Julio Nava, Celedón and Maía.

All five are scheduled to play 14 more shows throughout Colombia in the coming months.

"This is a concert by Colombians for Colombians," Cepeda says. "We want to show people that we don't need special consideration, nor do we need to play with international acts to get support. We enjoy wide support."

That support was evident. Nearly 20,000 fans stood through three hours of rain as they watched the show at Bogota's Campín Stadium.

But equally impressive was the corporate support the event generated.

All costs associated with Colombia en Concierto were picked up by Gillette, which used the concert to launch its new Prestobarba razor.

Having a brand fully sponsor a massive show is unusual, according to Hernán Orjuela, owner of event promotion company Prime Time, which produced the show and pitched it to Gillette.

"But their product is massive," he says, "and they decided to target an event that young men and women would remember."

Although Gillette originally wanted to tie the launch to a performance by an international act, it finally decided to capitalize on October being Colombian Artist Month.

In a move to push sales, Gillette offered every person who purchased a Prestobarba razor (approximately $4.50) a free concert ticket. "And it worked," Orjuela says. "Plus, it generates brand recognition."

The concert opened with a 20-minute laser show and spectacular fireworks announcing the Prestobarba brand. Gillette also invested in TV campaigns. Sources say the entire production and marketing of the show cost approximately $500,000.

Although Gillette will not sponsor future Colombia en Concierto stops, Orjuela has booked the show at 14 other venues nationwide starting in November.

"This is a good time for artists in rapid development," Orjuela says.

This also seems to be a good time for concerts in Colombia. About 20 shows will take place in Bogotá through November.

In addition to Colombia en Concierto and the Rock al Parque Fest, there will be appearances by Juan Gabriel, La Ley, Ricardo Arjona, Ana Torroja, Pablo Milanés and David Bisbal.

COLOMBIA IN BRIEF: Capitalizing on Spain's increasing Colombian population, Sony Spain will release albums by vallenato artists Diomedes Díaz and Celedón this fall.

Vallenato star Díaz's album will be a compilation of greatest hits, while Celedón will release "Canto Vallenato," the studio album that has made him popular in Colombia.

According to Sony Colombia president Carlos Gutiérrez, Celedón will visit Spain to promote his album and perform. Díaz is currently in jail in Colombia, serving a murder sentence.

Meanwhile, Andrés Silva, executive VP of Santander Music, will vacate his post Nov. 1 to launch his own Miami-based management/entertainment firm. Silva will handle TV and music artists.

IN OTHER NEWS: Songwriter/producer Byron Brizuela has signed a co-publishing deal with Univision Publishing, a division of the Univision Music Group. Brizuela, who is currently producing several urban regional acts, will develop new material and new talent under the deal . . . Brazilian singer Alexandre Pires will make his English-language debut in a duet with Rod Stewart. The duo will sing the standard "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," which is included on Stewart's forthcoming album, "The Great American Songbook: Volume 2."

As Local Markets Tumble, Latin Biz Pleads For Help

BY LEILA COBO

Despite a crushing three-year downturn in the region's music market, local governments in Latin America have done little to address the problem, particularly in terms of enforcing local anti-piracy laws.

Latin America, which in 1998 accounted for 6.5% of the world music market, now accounts for only 2.4%, according to the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry's recently released midyear numbers (Billboard, Oct. 11).

And for the first six months of the year, the Latin American marketplace fell in value by 21.1%, while units sold slid 16.9%, the largest drop among all world regions.

"I'm extremely concerned," says Raúl Vázquez, regional director of IFPI Latin America.

"We're facing a full-fledged crisis. If we're going to save at least some of the key countries—like Mexico and Brazil, which are repertoire-generating—I think it will require international pressure," Vázquez says.

Brazil, once a music powerhouse, dropped 21.2% in retail value and 26% in units sold. It is not even in the top 10 music markets worldwide.

Worse still is Mexico, which two years ago was the eighth-largest market in terms of value. It has now dropped to 10th. Mexico experienced a 32.4% drop in value and a 17.6% drop in units.

For labels, those numbers signal not just lost revenue but lost culture.

"If governments don't take serious steps in the coming months, our industry will be a step away from disappearing as a producer of local product, and it will become a mere distributor of foreign imports," says Jesus López, chairman of Universal Music Latin America/Iberian Peninsula. "That is an irreparable loss for local music."

The culprit behind declining sales in Latin America is physical piracy, insiders say. And it's not the kind that involves copying a disc for a friend but the industrial type that early this year led the Mexican government to declare music piracy a federal crime, on par with drug trafficking.

Similarly, in July, the president of Brazil signed an anti-piracy law that imposes stiff penalties on both manufacturers and vendors of illegal CDs.

But having tough laws and actually enforcing them are two different things.

In Mexico, for example, there have been several government border raids that have led to the seizure of illegal shipments of millions of blank CDs.

But at the street level, these efforts have barely scratched the surface. According to a study by marketing surveyer Bimsa, Mexico has 55,000 different points of sale for pirated music, including street vendors and flea markets. In contrast, there are only 1,000 legitimate points of sale nationwide.

"It's not that pirates have replaced legitimate sale points," Vázquez says. "They've displaced them."

What is needed, Vázquez adds, isn't merely federal involvement at the border but "a federal, state and municipal effort. They all have to be involved. I don't think any one authority has enough resources to clean up this problem."

Likewise, in Brazil, anti-piracy efforts have been concentrated in such major cities as Sao Paulo and Rio de Janiero. In other sectors of the country, there are entire regions that sell almost no legitimate CDs.

Industry executives agree that awareness has been raised and that governments are even taking steps to remedy it. But, with few exceptions—notably Chile—they are simply not enough.

As a result, labels have pulled back on signing local acts, focusing instead on selling and distributing products imported from other markets.

Universal and Sony have consolidated their operations into clusters of countries. Those countries that have declined to take up the anti-piracy fight have seen music companies pack up and leave.

The most glaring example is Venezuela, a country of 24 million, where a meager 200,000 legal CDs were sold in the first six months of the year—an astounding 83.7% drop in units sold and a 74.3% drop in value. No wonder BMG and Warner have closed shop there.

"The last stage is, you close the offices," Vazquez says.

"Yes, there is a political and economical crisis in Venezuela, to a larger degree than other Latin countries. But it goes beyond that. When the government tells you they're not going to do anything against piracy, this is what happens."

In the current climate, Lopez says, it's necessary to constantly re-evaluate A&R, marketing and overhead strategies.

"It's impossible to think of long-term strategies if we want the cultural music industry to survive in our region," he says.

Sadly, what Vázquez and Lopez are saying today is strikingly similar to what they said two years ago, when unit sales of recorded music in Latin America fell a stunning 24.5% in the first half of 2001, more than in any other region in the world.

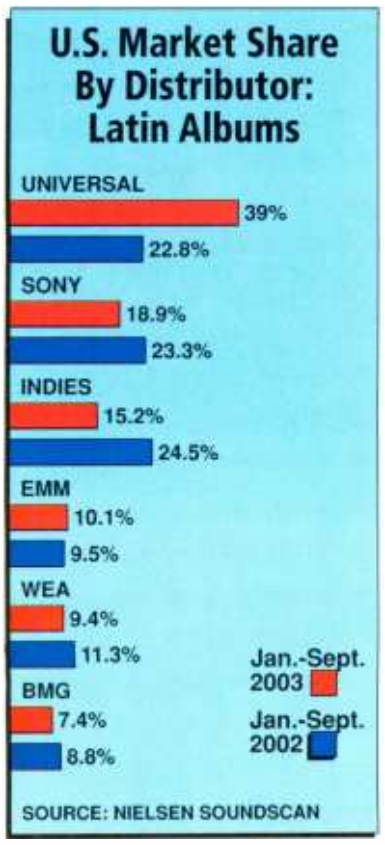
UMVD Remains Top Latin Distributor In U.S.

Universal Music Video & Distribution remains the top distributor of Latin albums in the U.S.

UMVD holds a 39% market share, outpacing Sony, which came in second at 18.9%, according to third-quarter data released by Nielsen SoundScan.

The numbers are a continuation of first-half figures for 2003, which UMVD led with a 36.1% market share ahead of Sony's 19.9%.



Sony, which has long dominated Latin music distribution in the U.S., has been gradually losing ground to UMVD since last year.

The clincher was UMVD's deal late in 2002 to distribute Fonovisa Records, the largest indie in the U.S., now part of Univision Music Group.

The latest third-quarter numbers are startling, because UMVD's market share more than doubled that of Sony, which dipped from the second quarter. And it nearly doubles UMVD's third-quarter market share of one year ago.

The only other distributor that also grew was EMM, which rose to 10.1% this year from 9.5% in 2002.

SBS SALES: Spanish Broadcasting System has announced it will sell its San Francisco station, dance/top 40 KPTI-FM, for $30 million cash.

The news follows SBS' announcement late last month of the sale of its two San Antonio radio stations to Border Media Partners.

SBS says the sales are part of its strategy to focus on its primary markets.

Border Media Partners, a Hispanic-owned radio company, will purchase Latin pop/regional Mexican KLEY-FM (94.1 FM) and regional Mexican KSAH-AM (720 AM) for $24 million.

Both stations will continue to operate their regional Mexican formats.

In San Francisco, KPTI was a departure for SBS; the station featured an English dance format. It is being sold to Three Point Media San Francisco.

While SBS is selling, Univision Radio (formerly Hispanic Broadcasting Corp.) is buying.

The company's first acquisition since the Univision/HBC merger will be WLIR-FM (92.7 FM), which serves Long Island, N.Y., and the New York metropolitan area.

Univision will buy the station from Jarad Broadcasting Co. and the Morey Organization for about $60 million cash. Modern rock WLIR will move to another number on the dial.

At press time, there was no decision as to what WLIR's new format would be, but it will be Hispanic-targeted.

The transaction is expected to close by first-quarter 2004.

SO MANY GREAT HITS: Coinciding with its U.S. tour, Maná is releasing a collection of greatest hits Nov. 18.

But in a twist, the group is putting out not one but three albums.

Latin Notas™

"Sol," "Luna" and "Eclipse" will be issued separately and sold at a list price of $18.98 each.

"Sol" will feature upbeat tracks, plus videos of "Oye Mi Amor" and "Angel de Amor." "Luna" will feature Maná's slower songs and includes videos of "Vivir Sin Aire" and "El Muelle de San Blas."

"Eclipse" is being billed as "the best of the best," featuring 14 tracks and a video of "Eres Mi Religión." Maná's new, previously unrecorded, single, "Te Llevaré al Ceilo," is included on all three discs.

According to label manager Claudia Guevara, the albums will be promoted through Maná's ongoing tour and a national TV campaign, among other strategies.

IN PREMIOS PLACE: Bacilos, a non-Mexican group, is the major nominee for Mexico's Premios Oye! National Music Awards, set to take place Nov. 15 at Mexico City's Auditorio Nacional.

Bacilos, which won a Grammy Award for best Latin pop album last year, received four nominations, including song, album and best new artist of the year for its sophomore album on Warner Bros., "Caraluna."

The group's first, self-titled album was not released in Mexico.

Other top nominees for the awards are Spaniard David Bisbal and Mexican rock bands Elefante and Maná, with three nods each.

Avril Lavigne also received three nominations in international categories.

Awards are given in general, international and popular categories.

R&B/HIP-HOP

Words &Deeds™

by Kwaku

NEW CAFÉ MENU: Things are moving slow but steady for South London-based Café Recordings. Three-MC crew Thee Absent dropped its "Magic Days/The Gym" 12-inch promo as an "album sampler" last November.

"The album is untitled and scheduled for a June/July release," says group member Valu, who is also the label's CEO. Additional summer Café releases include P.A.C and Valu teaming as the Dynamic Duo for the Real Organic Food EP and the multiple-artist compilation Set Menu No. 3.

THEE ABSENT

Despite the challenges facing the U.K. underground scene, Valu remains optimistic. "The future is looking bright," he says. "Labels are doing a lot better, DJs are playing British hip-hop, the quality has improved, and people are buying it."

BLOWING UP: Hot British singer/MC Ms. Dynamite won two gongs at February's Brit Awards, for best British female solo artist and best British urban act (Billboard, March 8). The latter is a new category in which such rap/MC acts as Roots Manuva, Romeo, So Solid Crew, the Streets, and South London R&B/rap sextet Big Brovaz were nominated.

"African hip-hop deserves its place in the world market," says Big Brovaz writer/producer Skillz, who is also known as JJC in his guise as an African hip-hop artist. He is impressed by Senegalese duo Positive Black Soul and Nigeria's current hotshot: rapper Ruggedman, whose Ehem is out on Silvertone. The title track criticizes American-imitating Nigerian rappers who fast-rhyme gibberish instead of proper lyrics. JJC says, "Ruggedman is just blowing up in Nigeria."

MARCHING FORWARD: March hip-hop releases from Sony Records France include Stomy Bugsy's IV Round and Fonky Family's Live au Dome de Marseille (Live From the Dome of Marseille). Fonky Family member Don Choa's November 2002 release, Vapeurs Toxiques (Toxic Vapors), is nearly gold (100,000 copies) in France, according to Sony . . . France-based sister duo Les Nubians follows up its 1998 trailblazing debut, Princesses Nubiennes (Nubian Princesses) with the March 25 Virgin France release One Step Forward. The single version of the delightful and funky English-sung "Temperatures Rising" features guest rapper Talib Kweli.

Island/Mowax is further promoting DJ Shadow's folk-inflected hip-hop single "Six Days" by servicing the new single-sided, "Soulwax Mix" version of the song . . . Veteran U.K. rapper Rodney P will finally drop his solo debut, The Future, in late April . . . Russian singer Nelli Rees' eclectic and enigmatic, jazz-tipped fusion album, Jazz Noir, arrives in April on London indie Zone 7/Candi Records. The track boasts bits of scratching and cool French rap by Magda Philips over a rhythmic yet mellow jazz groove . . . After scoring a top 40 hit in 2000 with the radio- and child-friendly "Nursery Rhymes" on Polydor, London rapper Iceberg Slimm presents himself as a partying "Bad Boy" by celebrating the thug lifestyle on his new single. Due late this month, it marks Iceberg Slimm's debut on his own Frojak label via Urbanstar.

SENERAP FEST: The Senerap compilation brand has now evolved into a two-day Senerap international concert in Dakar, Senegal (March 14-15). Among those scheduled to appear are Passy (from France), Tata Pound (Mali), Ardiess (Benin), Yelen (Burkina Faso), and Dancehall Masters (Gambia).

OUTLANDISH NEWS: The sophomore set from RCA/BMG Denmark trio Outlandish, Bread & Barrels of Water, is slated for an April release in Britain. A bhangra-flavored (bhangra is South Asian folk-pop fusion) remix of first single "Guantanamo" is making the rounds on Brit-Asian playlists.

STREET MUSIC: Having created a stir in the U.K. with his Dome Records release Street Troubador, Chicago-based singer/songwriter/producer Andreus (born Deandreus Abdullah) and manager Eric Parris want to put together a U.S. release for the album. Mixing soul, hip-hop, rock, and reggae influences (think Marvin Gaye, Santana, Bob Marley, Curtis Mayfield, and Rakim), Street Troubador paints a vivid picture of street life. Singles from the set include "Mississippi" and "Hey Young World."

De Passe Speaks Out

CEO Keeps Her Finger On The Pulse And Her Ear To The Ground

She learned from one of the masters.

Suzanne de Passe, chairman/CEO of de Passe Entertainment, was Motown founder Berry Gordy's creative assistant before ascending to the Motown Productions presidency. Since then, the Emmy Award-winning executive producer has been a guiding light behind various TV series (Lonesome Dove, Sister, Sister), biopics (The Temptations), and specials (the NAACP Image Awards).

She still keeps a hand in music, managing such acts as Latin pop group Soluna. And last year, the Harlem, N.Y., native began executive-producing the syndicated Showtime at the Apollo. On the eve of producing her second Essence Awards (honoring Mary J. Blige and Mos Def June 6 at Los Angeles' Kodak Theatre), de Passe talked to Billboard.

What has changed about the music industry?

What I'm struck by more than anything is how the Internet has impacted so many aspects of our business. Before that became rampant, I was amazed at the change in how long it takes to do a project and the impact that technology has had in good and not-so-good ways.

I'm also struck by the waste. I see a lot of waste of time—and time, of course, is money. Back in the day, studio time was sacred. You wouldn't dream of being late for a session. Now there's a whole lot of booking a session for 8 p.m. and the producer showing up at 2 a.m.

Did you ever have the desire to run a label?

I don't know what running a label means today, I swear to God. I don't know how you quantify and evaluate if you're making money or not.

You could have a hit, but now there's a whole generation of folks who don't believe in paying for music. And that can be a problem for someone running a label.

DE PASSE

Now that smaller clubs where people could practice have dried up, an artist is expected to go to an arena and excite a crowd. I'm wild about many new artists who are coming along. But many of today's artists who are capable of having hit records . . . some of them just don't kill me live. I don't see an overabundance of real artistry.

I've never lost my passion for music, though. I still love the creative aspects of finding and working with a great artist.

What lured you to TV?

I don't think anyone today thinks of music only. Berry Gordy really did understand how TV and film could amplify an artist's career. So I got a chance to put my toe in that water early.

Records gave me a wonderful foundation for all aspects of other media. I love the marriage of music and visuals—the storytelling aspect of film. I find TV particularly exciting, because it's another way to access the audience, make a statement, entertain, and educate.

How would you assess your first year producing Showtime?

I'm excited. We [in conjunction with Heritage Networks] were just given the next five years to do it. There's a certain amount of creative freedom in syndication vs. network TV. I'm enjoying that, too, in terms of other projects that may manifest at the Apollo.

One we're excited about is doing six shows this season branded by record labels—Showtime at the Apollo: The X Records special. We're working now to figure out those six labels. It's an opportunity to give a label an hour of time to reach [its] target audience, bring on baby and name acts, and talk about itself.

The average consumer has so many choices for leisure activity and disposable income. It's not enough to do something good. How do you let people know you're there?

Did you see the film Standing in the Shadows of Motown?

I saw an early version. I was very happy for the guys [the Funk Brothers]. I feel they deserve a great deal of credit.

But at same time, I feel as though some of what the process really was was lost. To wit, the producers were very much a part of how those records got made.

My recollection is it was a real team effort: musicians, producers, arrangers, engineers, executives. It's hard sometimes to get a balanced portrait. Everyone is entitled to their point of view. But when I do my movie, it will be different.

Are there other music-oriented films in your future?

Yes. I'm working on a big movie that involves many music acts. I can't talk about it now, but [I will be able to] in three to four months.

I'm also the AOL-Time Warner [endowed chair] professor at Howard University's school of communications. People come into this business extremely naïve about what's expected and what's necessary.

Thanks to Berry Gordy, I have very high standards. I want to make sure anyone I come in contact with is up to the task. For so long I've been told, "We want more minorities, but we can't find anybody." I want to help. GAIL MITCHELL

HDH Does the Rockwalk. Before receiving BMI's 2003 Icon Award, hitmakers Holland-Dozier-Holland were inducted into Hollywood's Rockwalk. The Motown songwriting pioneers were saluted by the Supremes' Mary Wilson for their "significant contribution to the rock'n'roll art form." Stopping in the name of history are, from left, Eddie Holland, Lamont Dozier, and Brian Holland.

CONFAB UPDATE: Awards finalists for Billboard's third annual R&B/Hip-Hop Awards show will be announced in the next issue (June 14). Last year's top award winners were Alicia Keys, Usher, and Ginuwine.

The Aug. 8 show caps the fourth annual Billboard/AURN R&B/Hip-Hop Conference. It will be held Aug. 6-8 at Miami's Roney Palace.

HOT TIME IN THE CITY: Not only is songwriter/producer Mike City staying busy behind the boards, he is also working on his own singing debut.

Titled Sing Along, Vol. 1, the set features a singing City with a tentative guest list culled from his growing résumé.

"I'll be recording the album this year for release next year," City says.

City produced the first single on the Nappy Roots' Sept. 2 sophomore set, Wooden Leather. "Around the World" bumps with an infectious hook ("the whole damn world is country") that has the potential to become a national anthem.

His current production slate includes Sunshine Anderson, Brandy, Blu Cantrell, Carl Thomas, LSG, Isyss, Jon B., and Calvin Richardson.

City is also juggling several independent projects, including one by former Channel Live member Tuffy.

SCREEN SCENE: In an interesting side note to last issue's cover story about brand marketing and R&B/hip-hop artists (Billboard, May 31), Missy Elliott's Reebok commercial heads the top five most-liked hip-hop- and R&B-endorser TV spots.

Elliott—who has also done spots for Vanilla Coke and the Gap—is followed by Jadakiss (Reebok), Mya and Common (Coca-Cola), Usher (Twix), and LL Cool J and Run-D.M.C. (Dr Pepper).

This ranking comes courtesy of the Intermedia Advertising Group. The survey covers TV ads breaking between Jan. 1, 2002, and April 30, 2003.

Also, last issue's story included a non-inclusive list of R&B/hip-hop artists pitching products. The act listed for MasterCard should have read Jurassic 5.

Mom and Pop Winans, the progenitors of the musical Winans Family, join Mary J. Blige, Mos Def, and Tom Joyner as honorees at the 16th annual Essence Awards. Queen Latifah will receive the magazine's Readers Choice entertainer of the year award. The two-hour special will be taped June 6 in Los Angeles and will air June 27 on Fox.

UP AND COMING: Keep an ear out for Cherish, a new sister quartet on Warner Bros. Twins Felicia and Fallon (16 years old), Neosha (18), and Farrah (19) are currently represented on the charts as guests on Da Brat's "In Love Wit Chu."

The rapper returns the favor on the foursome's own lead single, "Miss P.," due at radio in June/July. Debut album Cherish . . . The Moment will arrive later this year.

CHERISH

Cherish possesses strong harmonies and a stage presence belying its youth. That's no doubt thanks to dad Charles King, former lead guitarist for veteran R&B groups the Chi-Lites and the Stylistics.

INDUSTRY BRIEFS: Three Keys Music keyboardists Marcus Johnson and Bobby Lyle join Kevin Harewood's L.A.-based Edclectic Entertainment for management. Johnson also doubles as CEO of Three Keys; a key investor in the label is BET founder and CEO Robert Johnson (no relation).

Macy Gray, Rahsaan Patterson, Jamey Jaz, and DJ Spinna are among the guests on Edclectic client Jimmy Sommers' Lovelife. The Gemini Records/Higher Octave Jazz set will be released Aug. 5.

Rhythm, Rap, and The Blues™

by Gail Mitchell

HOUSTON ON HOLD: Sources say Marques "Batman" Houston is no longer with Interscope. There was no official comment at press time regarding the fate of his self-titled solo album on T.U.G./A&M/Interscope.

The unreleased set's lead single, "That Girl," peaked at No. 24 on the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Singles chart. The singer/actor—formerly of IMx—is managed by Chris Stokes.

Houston was recently named a national spokesperson for the Coca-Cola Apollo Theater Academy. He joins Hidden Beach artist Jill Scott in visiting New York tri-state schools in support of the academy's educational outreach program. A special summer academy series, Apollo Amateur Night in the Park, kicks off in June.

A SURE BET: Missy Elliott, Erykah Badu, and Nelly lead the list of nominees for the third annual BET Awards with three nods apiece. The trio was individually nominated for best female hip-hop artist, best female R&B artist, and best male hip-hop artist, respectively. The three are also nominees for video of the year and best collaboration, a new BET award category.

Among the acts with two nominations each are 50 Cent, B2K, Floetry, Eminem, and Snoop Dogg. Special honorees are lifetime achievement award winner James Brown and humanitarian award winner Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

The BET awards will be broadcast live June 24 (9 p.m. ET/PT) from Hollywood's Kodak Theatre with host Mo'Nique. For a complete list of nominees, visit billboard.com/bb/awards/index.jsp.

PATTERSON'S NEXT MOVE: Rahsaan Patterson sees jazz and rock in his future since exiting MCA. The R&B artist signed with the label in 1995. His output included a 1997 self-titled debut and 1999's Love in Stereo.

PATTERSON

"With [president Jay Boberg] leaving and a new president coming in, that gave me the opportunity to be open to the idea of not being there anymore," Patterson says. "Actually, my contract was up last year before the new person came in. So I had already been preparing which way I would go.

"At this moment, I have no need to jump back into a controlled environment," he adds. "I don't do well in those situations. Fortunately, MCA has given me the masters to the last album I did. Wherever I go and whatever I do, I'll have the music from that album."

The album was inspired by the recent passing of Patterson's father. With his newfound freedom, the singer/songwriter now wants to branch out beyond conventional R&B. He says, "I want to be able to make whatever kind of records I want. Jazz. Rock. As an artist, that's what you live for."

Patterson has no specific plans yet as to when and how he will release the untitled set. But he's leaning toward a more alternative route.

"If I were [to put this album out tomorrow], it would be my own thing affiliated with whoever understands where I'm trying to go. The challenge, if you see it as a challenge, is to stand up for yourself and go the route you feel you need to go."

ON THE RECORD: Monica's long-anticipated J set, After the Storm, arrives June 17 . . . Mya's Mood Ring (Interscope) lands in-store June 24. Lead single is "My Love Is Like . . . Woah."

JS, the DreamWorks female duo managed by Ronnie Isley, bows July 1 with Ice Cream. Labelmate Mystic is traveling the national promo trail on behalf of new single "Breathe." The title of her July 22 album has been tweaked to Learning to Breathe . . . Cuts for Luck and Scars for Freedom.

Sean "P. Diddy" Combs' Bad Boy Entertainment inaugurates its new Universal Records pact with the soundtrack to Bad Boys 2. The album arrives July 15. The film, starring Will Smith and Martin Lawrence, bows July 18.

The soundtrack features lead singles by Jay-Z ("La La La [Excuse Me Again]") and P. Diddy/Nelly/Murphy Lee ("Shake Your Tail Feather"). Also included: "The Realest" with 50 Cent and Notorious B.I.G.

'Church' Gives Gospel A Twist

Diverse Lineup Of Acts Gives Pop, R&B Tunes An Inspirational Flavor

BY GAIL MITCHELL

Universal TV Records (UTV Records) is targeting the under-served adult market with its release Church: Songs of Soul & Inspiration. But don't judge the record by its title: This isn't your ordinary gospel project.

A post-concert comment made by a young fan of opera singer Denyce Graves—"I hear church in your voice"—was the impetus behind Church. The result is the pairing of R&B and pop hitmakers who grew up singing in the church with classic R&B and pop songs produced with a gospel vibe.

Graves and partner Tena Clark—a songwriter/producer who has penned songs for Gladys Knight, Dionne Warwick, and others—produced the set. It is a joint venture between Universal Music Enterprises' UTV, Graves' Carmen Productions, and Clark's DMI Records. (DMI Records is a subsidiary of Clark's Disc Marketing firm, which provides custom CDs and audio programming for Air Force One and other clients.)

The spirited collection arrives June 3. It includes Jennifer Holliday (doing Elvis Presley's "The Wonder of You"), Stephanie Mills ("Reach Out and Touch"), Chaka Khan ("Love Me Still"), and En Vogue (Bee Gees' "How Deep Is Your Love"). Graves herself sings "Ave Maria." A 17-member group of session singers dubbed the Fire Choir provides the gospel thread.

Rounding out the $18.98 package is a spoken-word composition by Dr. Maya Angelou, liner notes by author Toni Morrison, and a "making-of" CD-ROM that includes performance footage and artist interviews.

"This project is about where these incredible women started and where they ended up," Clark says. "If we approached someone and she said, 'I didn't grow up in the church,' it wasn't right for this CD. I wanted each one to go back to that little girl in church and bring me to where she is now."

Former Sounds of Blackness lead singer Ann Nesby, who contributes Leon Russell's "A Song for You" to the album, says the Church concept is special.

"Gospel music has finally taken its rightful place in the industry as the mother music," the singer notes. "All music has derived from gospel. It no longer has to take a back seat to the prime time it deserves."

UTV senior VP Bob Mercer calls Church a priority record. The label will mount an aggressive, mainstream campaign during the next 2½ months. In addition to major print, TV, radio, and Internet coverage, UTV is developing a marketing initiative with House of Blues, which has a weekly gospel brunch soiree.

On- and off-line street marketing teams, which will target urban independent and lifestyle accounts, are also being pressed into service. So are the core gospel/Christian audiences and artist sites. To spur word-of-mouth, samplers were handed out at Academy Awards parties.

Working with Mercer on the multifaceted campaign are Jeff Moskow, UTV head of marketing and A&R, and Adam Starr, the label's head of TV and Internet.

"Now and then you get an inherently powerful record that generates its own buzz, like O Brother, Where Art Thou?" Mercer says. "What we're doing [to market] Church is comparable to what we did on the first NOW [compilation series] record. The level of support behind this is in the area of a major artist's greatest-hits release."

Clark hopes to parlay her and Graves' labor of love into an ongoing series. As examples of possible follow-ups, she cites collections of black male artists and country female and male artists. In the meantime, her energies are focused on Church.

"I wasn't trying to cut an authentic gospel record," she says. "What I was trying to do was stay in the genre of music where each of these artists lived.

"This is a mass-appeal record, something for my friend or co-worker who never walks into a church or gospel store. This is the record I've been waiting to cut my whole life."

Estéfano Wins BMI, Billboard Awards

BY LEILA COBO

MIAMI—For the second consecutive year, songwriter/producer Estéfano was the winner of BMI's songwriter of the year award, marking two years of prolific composing that obtained airplay in all genres. Estéfano—who also won the songwriter award at the Billboard Latin Music Conference (see stories, page 1)—had three songs on BMI's most-performed list: "Necesidad" and "Usted Se Me Llevó la Vida," performed by Alexandre Pires, and "Tú y Yo," recorded by Thalía. Those tracks helped Pires win the Latin tracks artist honor at the Billboard Latin Music Awards.

Estéfano received his award during BMI's 10th Annual Latin Awards on May 5 in Miami Beach, kicking off the Billboard Latin Music Conference & Awards. Other notable winners were Peermusic for publisher of the year and Tim Mitchell and Shakira, whose track "Suerte" ("Whenever, Wherever"), won the BMI song of the year award. The track, from Shakira's album Laundry Service, became a hit in both English and Spanish and was the most-performed song in the BMI Latin catalog.

" 'Suerte' was never supposed to be a single or be in English, and then it started to get everyone's ears. Tommy [Mottola] said, 'Oh, you should do some English lyrics,' " Mitchell says. "But I never thought it would be the first single. I think [it worked because] people are always open to new sounds, something that sounds different."

ESTÉFANO

In turn, Peermusic won its fourth BMI publisher of the year award with a record 12 songs on BMI's most-performed list, from the classic "Amor, Amor, Amor," performed by Luis Miguel, to "Entra en Mi Vida," performed by Sin Bandera. The two tracks exemplify the success of Peermusic, which has a strong Mexican and regional Mexican music catalog but has also signed a host of new acts, including Juanes.

Peermusic president/COO Kathy Spanberger says, "When we have the catalog coupled with current success, that gives us an edge."

BMI honored a total of 50 songs, based on their performance on radio and TV as detected by a BMI sample survey, which BMI assistant VP of Latin music Diane Almodovar described as "scientific." Other multiple winners included Los Tucanes de Tijuana lead singer Mario Quintero, who had two winning songs.

Although nearly half of the tracks were regional Mexican, they ran a wide gamut of styles, and Almodovar says she is also seeing rock moving continuously upward at radio.

"In the Latin department in particular, it's encouraging to see that Latin music continues to grow and thrive, even though we're going through a difficult economic time," Almodovar says. "Truly our music is an integral part of the international language, regardless of economic times."

Marco Antonio Solís a entregado su talento al público de Latino América por mas de 25 años. Con mas de 20 álbumes y más de 300 temas escritos y millones de discos vendidos. Ha recibido 1 disco de Platino (RIAA) por "Trozos De Mi Alma", y 8 discos de Oro (RIAA), incluyendo él ultimo álbum "Mas De Mi Alma".

Germany Goes To Cubadisco

BY HOWELL LLEWELLYN

For the first time, a non-Latin country—in this case, Germany—will be the invited nation at Cuba's music trade fair, Cubadisco, when the event takes place May 14-18 in Havana.

Internal changes in Germany concerning managerial shake-ups at Cologne-based trade fair Pop-Komm mean that a very reduced German music lineup will travel to Cuba. Even the normally abundant presence of Spanish artists through Spain's authors and publishers society, SGAE, is down from other years. But just about anybody who is anybody in the contemporary Cuban scene will be performing, including Charanga Habanera, Issac Delgado, Paulo FG, X Alfonso, NG La Banda, Sampling, Chucho Valdés, and Pancho Amat. There will also be the inaugural Cubadisco Cuban rap evening.

The main performing German act is Berlin electronic duo Rechenzentrum. Hans-Jürgen Ploenes—director of the only official German presence at Cubadisco, music export office Music Export Cologne—points out that Cologne is the capital of German electronic music, and he hopes German DJs will take plenty of electronic music—little-known in Cuba—to play at the event.

Latin Notas™

RADIO READY: Axé Bahía conquered the Chilean market through TV. That's where it all started in 1991, when the then-unheard-of group of Brazilian dancers became mainstays of a popular afternoon show.

Axé Bahía's take on the rhythms of Northern Brazil became so popular that the band was signed to a record deal on Warner Chile, and its debut album, Tudo Bem, went on to sell more than 100,000 copies, an extraordinary number in Chile.

Now, indie label Musart/Balboa is seeking to repeat that successful pattern in the U.S. and Mexico, but with a twist. Rather than simply rereleasing Axé Bahía's first two albums—Tudo Bem and Tudo Bem 2—the label has mixed and matched the best tracks from both discs and re-edited them on a new disc, also called Tudo Bem, released April 1.

A month later, the first single, "Beso en la Boca," is already playing on nearly a dozen stations nationwide—quite a feat, considering Spanish-language radio's reluctance to play new artists and new styles.

"In pop, we could have a surprise with Axé Bahía," says KLNO/KVXX/KESS Dallas PD Herminio "Chayan" Ortuno, who added the track to his playlists last month. "The song is doing well in research. It's something new. It's a mix between samba and pop, and it's very nice and well-arranged. Young listeners get into it."

Balboa Records VP of operations Frank White says, "[The band's manager] really believes in the visual. I want to show him we can do the same with radio."

Which is not to say that the visually friendly Axé Bahía is out of sight. The band, which was showcased at the Billboard Latin Music Conference (see stories, page 1), is preparing to make the TV show rounds. In addition, the group was tapped to record the theme song of the upcoming music festival Acapulco Fest, which takes place May 20-24 and is broadcast by the Televisa network. Axé Bahía—which moved from Chile to Mexico for the time being in order to better promote its album—will be taking full advantage of the exposure provided by Televisa.

In the U.S., the group is launching a promotional tour in June sponsored by retailer Ritmo Latino. Although details are yet to be finalized, Axé Bahía is slated to travel to cities with Ritmo Latino stores, where performances in local venues will be cross-promoted with autograph signings and in-store appearances.

A.B. TO SIGN WITH UMPG: At press time, Kumbia Kings co-founder A.B. Quintanilla III was about to sign an exclusive, worldwide publishing deal with Universal Music Publishing Group (UMPG). According to Iván Alvarez, UMPG senior VP of Latin America, the deal encompasses all of Quintanilla's compositions, including those found on the Kumbia Kings' latest album, 4.

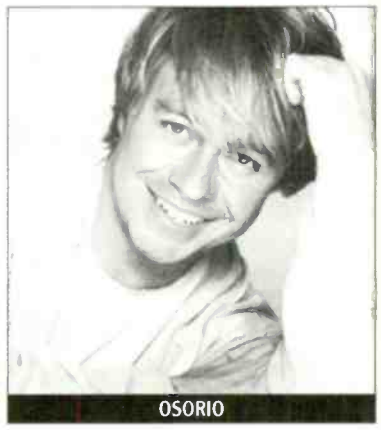
As for new projects, Quintanilla is working on two tracks for Paulina Rubio's upcoming album. He also says discussions are under way for a possible reality show or a feature film.

The subject? Quintanilla says, "A young, struggling, Tejano band that makes it big."

BRIEFLY: In other publishing news, singer/songwriter Fernando Osorio, who has co-written hits for the likes of Marc Anthony ("Viviendo") and Celia Cruz ("La Negra Tiene Tumbao"), has signed a global, co-publishing deal with BMG Music Publishing U.S. Latin. Osorio had two winning tracks—"La Negra Tiene Tumbao" and "Sobreviviendo" (co-written with Jorge Villamizar)—at the BMI Latin Music Awards, which took place May 5 in Miami (see story, this page).



OSORIO

But aside from writing for others, Osorio is focusing on his own material and is looking for a new record deal, following his departure from Warner Music Latina.

"I'm waiting for the moment to get back into the ring," he says. "I'm at an important moment which will launch a new stage in my career."

Leslie José Zigel, who has overseen BMG Entertainment's Latin division in Miami since 1996, is leaving the company. As of June 16, Zigel will launch the Miami entertainment practice of law firm Greenberg Traurig. Zigel will be in charge of developing the firm's entertainment practice in music, TV, film, and new media, with a focus on the Latin arena.

KRS-One Discusses The State Of Hip-Hop

KRS-ONE

The sixth annual Hiphop Appreciation Week is scheduled for May 18-25 in New York. The event is sponsored by the nonprofit Temple of Hiphop, whose manifesto states its purpose is to "continue decriminalizing Hiphop's public image and promote the unity of the Hiphop Kulture."

The organization's founder is a pioneer of both hardcore and socially conscious rap, KRS-One. His latest album, Kris Styles, drops June 24 on Koch Entertainment. The former Reprise/Warner Bros. VP of A&R also has a new book, Ruminations. It is due in July from Welcome Rain Publishers.

Why do you capitalize the "H" and delete the hyphen in "hip-hop"?

We spell it as one word because it signifies our unity as a culture, which we spell with a "K." [The K is in deference to the fact that many African languages do not use the letter "C."] Manipulating the English language to spell hip-hop the way we want to spell it gives us our sovereignty, our self-governing power, our autonomy.

What is the current state of hip-hop?

I presented the idea of hip-hop being a culture 10 years ago in pieces for Fresh, Source, XXL . . . even when I was ethics editor at Blaze. Now the mainstream has accepted hip-hop as a culture. Harvard University is now doing a hip-hop archive. For the next five years, it will collect all of the hip-hop artifacts and knowledge it can to begin teaching a legitimate cultural studies course.

What we're moving toward is self-government. That's very scary to the entertainment industry, which just wants to use us as slaves: "Give me your talent, and I can fling you whatever bone I think you're worth."

So this is the struggle. Are we product to be bought and sold? Or are we a free self-governing people who happen to have this resource that includes breakin', MCing, graffiti art, DJing, beatboxing, fashion, and language as our intellectual property?

Why did the rap debate between you and Nelly get so heated?

The battle with Nelly was an attack by the entire music industry, [saying], "Who does he think he is?" I wasn't being attacked; hip-hop was being attacked. And the attack could stop if I said, "OK, y'all got it. It's just about hoes, bitches, and thugs."

Hip-hop is beyond entertainment—it's a behavior, a consciousness, a way to view the world. That's where the attack comes from. What I'm saying is very violent to the existence of today's music industry, where rap represents 60% of sales.

What is your take on Eminem?

I praise Eminem's efforts, actually. I'm quite sure he gets a lot of criticism being white—"the new Elvis," as he's called. But he is the sum of the hip-hop equation: Hip plus hop equals Eminem.

Today, white youth feel they have not struggled enough to get what they got. White kids who come from what we perceive as a good home—balanced family, wealth, influence—would rather hang out in the projects to get that sense of struggle. Eminem points this out in 8 Mile as he's getting his ass kicked by blacks. It signifies that "I earned what I got. I'm not just here because I'm white."

This is going to do wonders for white youths' self-esteem and blacks' understanding of the white struggle. More hip-hop movies have to come out now that Hollywood sees it can make money on hip-hop without people getting shot in theaters.

Why is a rapper's career only three to five years long?

Between chart visibility, record-company support, and radio and video exposure, three to five years is a successful career. After that, the ones who aren't killed or incarcerated are thrown away. The rapper is different from the MC or DJ. The rapper is a creation of corporate interests, [and his] career usually ends in scandal like R. Kelly or death like Jam Master Jay.

The general relationship between the recording industry and the artist keeps the rapper in debt and poverty—the average rap royalty is 50 cents per album. The rapper eventually has to resort to illegal, unhealthy lifestyles.

The minimum royalty should be $2, with 50 cents going to a hip-hop guild for health insurance, legal aid, psychological [counseling], family planning. The other $1.50 would be yours.

What is ahead for hip-hop?

Our day is coming. It's inevitable that the president in another five years will be a hip-hopper. The mayor of Chicago will be somebody who has grown up on N.W.A, Chuck D, even Lil' Kim and Foxy Brown. All of it will make sense then.

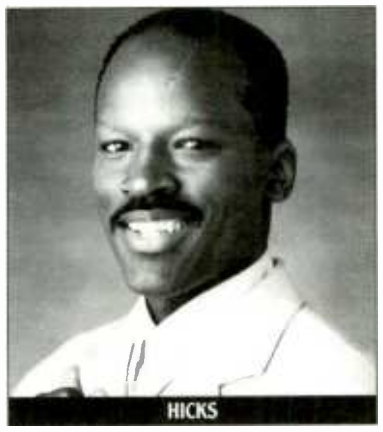
Rhythm, Rap, and The Blues™

by Gail Mitchell

ONE-STOP SHOPPING: Many people affix an assembly-line mentality to today's music industry. Veteran label executive Hiriam Hicks wants to change that perception with his new company, Artist Factory.

The company's goal is to help artists build long-term, successful careers, with an emphasis on artist development. To accomplish this, Hicks envisioned a one-stop whose various services include promotion, graphic design, publicity, marketing, and A&R, plus vocal, media, and stage training. And it's all housed in a 28,000-square-foot facility in Atlanta.

"I saw the direction the music business was going in," Hicks says. "I knew it couldn't be successful doing the same kind of deals. This [Artist Factory] is the business model for financially successful entertainment entities for now and the future."



HICKS

Hicks describes Artist Factory's 20-member team as "seasoned professionals." The roster includes COO and Atlanta entertainment attorney Monica Ewing, former Columbia executive/lawyer Vernon Slaughter (business affairs), Greg Johnson (independent promotion), and Ron Byrd (touring).

Hicks is mum when asked about the client roster. "We're in the midst of negotiating some major deals right now. We should be announcing signings in June."

He does allow that Artist Factory will contract its services with major and independent labels. It will also secure deals for the company's roster of artists, songwriters, and producers.

"The industry's major problem is the lack of quality music, not giving consumers their money's worth," Hicks says. "We're not just focused on R&B and hip-hop; there's Latin, reggae, gospel. That's all part of this new business model."

Hicks draws upon experience that includes artist management (TLC, Keith Sweat) and several label posts. Following a two-year stint as president of Island Black Music in 1999, he created a joint venture label with Capitol in 2000.

ON THE RECORD: Ice-T's Final Level Entertainment has signed an exclusive, multi-year distribution pact with PAL/Ryko. PAL is the acronym for Penalty Associated Labels, which inked a distribution deal with Ryko in 2002.

Slated as Final Level's first release is the June 17 soundtrack Ice-T Presents Pimpin' 101. The album features Busta Rhymes; Kool Keith; and Ice-T's new group, Sex, Money & Gunz (Ice-T, Smoothe Da Hustler, and Trigga tha Gambler), among others. Future Final Level releases include the Jam Master Jay Presents Scratch DJ Academy DVD.

Kim Hill has signed with Houston-based 2400 Records/Universal Records. Her debut set, Suga Hill, bows late summer/early fall. Formerly with Interscope, the Los Angeles-based singer/songwriter has built a devoted following—most notably as the Black Eyed Peas' former vocalist. Hill, who kicks off a 10-city promotional tour July 29 in New York, is working on five additional tracks.

William Traylor III is founder and CEO of 2400. His management team includes president Matthew Hooper and VP of A&R Paris Rose. Rapper Khalil rounds out the label's current artist roster.

J Records still plans to release Luther Vandross' sophomore set, Dance With My Father, June 10.

A GOOD CAUSE: Another benefit on behalf of the Rhythm & Blues Foundation takes place May 18 at L.A. club the Mint. Mixing it up during the Philly Soul Explosion tribute will be such marquee names as Brenda Holloway, Evelyn "Champagne" King, Freda Payne, and Kim Weston. Former Miracle and foundation board member Claudette Robinson hosts the affair.

SCREEN SCENE: Only the Strong Survive, Miramax's salute to '60s and '70s soul, gets its major-market premiere May 9. Among the cities where the film is playing are New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and Atlanta. Featured artists appearing in the concert movie and on the Koch Entertainment soundtrack include Carla and Rufus Thomas, Wilson Pickett, Sam Moore, and Isaac Hayes.

U.S. Biggest Latin Market Amid Regional Slump

BY LEILA COBO

MIAMI—Bad news is relative. Take the global music sales figures recently released by the International Federation of the Phonographic Industry (IFPI), which indicate that the retail sales value of music in Latin America dropped by 12.7% in 2002.

The dramatic decline is far worse than the 7.6% downturn experienced by the global market as a whole. But it is still far better than the appalling 22% drop in value registered for the region in 2001. And taking into account the 115.4% rise in retail value for music video and DVD sales, the retail value for video and music sales dropped 9.8%, with a 5.4% drop in units sold.

Still, this 2002 figure is far from being a cause for celebration. While sales in Brazil were up 4.4% in retail value, that rise represents only a partial recovery from the drastic 25% decline of 2001. Meanwhile, sales in Mexico—the 10th-largest music market and the largest Latin American market—continued to suffer, with an 18.6% decline in value. This leaves the U.S. Latin market as the largest market in the world for Spanish-language music, with a retail value of $551 million despite a drop from 2001 of 14.3%, according to the Recording Industry Assn. of America (RIAA).

That is bigger than the Spanish and Mexican markets ($542 million and $445 million, respectively). The U.S. is the leading market in terms of retail value, even though Mexico and Brazil outrank the U.S. in units sold.

As has been the case for the past two years, industry officials attributed Latin America's slippery decline to political and economic factors, as well as rampant piracy.

IFPI Latin America regional director Raúl Vázquez says, "The region's economy and social conditions haven't favored the recording industry at all, but even more alarming is the attack of organized crime in the form of piracy."

Vázquez says a prime example is Brazil. Sales are up, thanks to massive catalog releases and low pricing. But the country suffers from the importation of millions of blank CD-Rs through Paraguay, which are used to illegally copy CDs. Brazil's piracy rate now stands at approximately 53% of the total market, with 95 million pirated units sold.

In Mexico, the piracy rate is approximately 68% of the total market, which translates to 99 million pirated units sold. And the Argentine market suffered a 23% loss in retail value (compared with 36.5% in 2001) and a 45% drop in units sold—higher than the 30.7% registered in 2001. The country's biggest musical impetus in 2002 was the Popstars phenomenon, which spawned girl group Bandana and boy band Mambrú. But the piracy rate is astronomical, at 60%.

Other notable market declines were registered by Peru (98% piracy rate and 65% drop in retail value), Ecuador (90% piracy, 15% drop in retail value), Paraguay (99% piracy—the largest rate in the world—and 36% drop in retail value), and Venezuela (75% piracy, 49.5% drop in retail value). The one bright spot is Chile, which saw a 22.47% rise in units sold and a 3.7% rise in retail value.

The decline of the music market in Latin America has become a Catch-22 situation. Because sales are not significant in many countries, international and Latin artists have less incentive and justification to travel to promote their albums, and labels have fewer resources to promote local acts.

At the same time, the Latin U.S. market has experienced a decline in sales and a rise in piracy, with some label heads comparing the situation to that of Mexico five years ago. In response, the RIAA is stepping up its efforts to specifically target Latin music piracy. Most recently, the RIAA board approved $2.5 million in new anti-piracy funds that will be used exclusively toward that end (Billboard, March 22). The new funds came into effect April 1.

According to RIAA VP of Latin music Ralph Fernández, the RIAA is in the process of filling four new positions in the anti-piracy unit on the West Coast, where pirates are using street gangs to protect their territories.

In Argentina: Argentine rock icon and Latin Grammy Award winner Fito Páez has not renewed his contract with Warner Music Argentina. Instead, he will release his new album, Naturaleza Sangre (Blood Nature), through his own imprint, Circo Beat. The album, due in May, will be distributed in Chile, Uruguay, and Bolivia through Warner Music Chile . . . Pop band La Mosca has completed Tango Latino, its new album for EMI-Argentina. Produced by Cachorro Lopez, the disc is slated for local release April 22. It will be released one month later in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Spain, Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Paraguay, and Uruguay. MARCELO FERNANDEZ BITAR

In Chile: Warner Music Chile is set to begin distributing the 18-album catalog of highly popular Cuban troubadour Silvio Rodriguez. Until last month, the catalog was in the hands of indie label Alerce. The reissues will include remastered versions and new liner notes. MARCELO FERNANDEZ BITAR

In Mexico: Café Tacuba has finished recording Cuatro Caminos (Four Roads), its first all-new album with MCA Records, set for release in July. Produced by Gustavo Santaolalla, the disc features 14 tracks. The band intends to play several festivals in the U.S. and Mexico during the coming months. As is always the case with a new Café Tacuba album, its lead singer has changed his name, this time to Elfego Buendía. TERESA AGUILERA

by Leila Cobo

CHARTING PEPE: Pepe Aguilar is such a household name in the Latin world that it raised few eyebrows when he peaked at No. 1 on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart in April with Y Tenerte Otra Vez (And Having You Again).

AGUILAR

After all, Aguilar's 1998 Balboa Records album, Por Mujeres Como Tú (Because a Woman Like You), scanned 240,000 copies, according to Nielsen SoundScan. And regional Mexican music is vastly undercounted by SoundScan, so the figure is likely to be significantly higher. It is so undercounted, in fact, that despite his sales figures, Aguilar had not only previously never topped the Billboard Latin Albums chart, but he had never even made it onto The Billboard 200.

This changed with Y Tenerte Otra Vez, currently at No. 3 on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart and Aguilar's first album on Univision Records after a long tenure with Musart/Balboa. A key reason for this sudden good showing is that Univision product is distributed by Universal Music and Video Distribution (UMVD), which ensures that Aguilar gets racked at the major retailers, where he hasn't been found before.

"We had sold thousands—millions—of albums in the past, but they wouldn't show up on SoundScan because they were sold in places like swap meets," Aguilar says. Being able to say he's at No. 1 is important, "because this is a business of news. A new album is news. A new sale is news. Everything has to be trumpeted."

Univision's initial approach to marketing Aguilar was to let hardcore fans know that a new album was on its way after two years. Univision's second aim was to entice new fans to buy his music.

Aguilar was featured on all major shows on the Univision TV network, and he was also featured on a univision.com campaign. "We used Univision online to work on getting him further reach—further exposure out there with people who wanted to just sample the music," Univision Music Group VP of marketing Lupe de la Cruz says, adding that the vast majority of respondents were under 30 years old.

In addition to recording and promoting his own music, Aguilar—who has produced a total of 22 albums—is expanding his activities in that field by venturing into styles beyond regional Mexican.

"I got my start in this business producing a rock band," he says. "Now, I'm going to produce a regional Mexican track for [alternative singer] Ely Guerra, which will be used in a Mexican movie, and another for Julieta Venegas that will be included on a tribute to Jose Alfredo Jiménez." Aguilar is also in discussions to launch a regional Mexican label and a rock label, and he plans to bring new acts to Univision.

These are ambitious plans, given the current climate, but Aguilar is unfazed. "Indie labels have a huge advantage," he says. "We don't have as many expenses or obligations. And we have authentic product, whose only obligation is to be successful."

In other Univision Music Group news, for the third week in a row, four of the five top titles on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart belong to Univision, Disa, or Fonovisa acts—all part of the UMG family. Topping the chart for the second week in a row is 20 Inolvidables (20 Unforgettables), a joint compilation by Los Bukis and Los Temerarios.

CEREAL SUPPORT: In another indication of rising interest in the U.S. Hispanic market, Kellogg's has announced it will sponsor a six-city U.S. tour this summer featuring a wide array of Latin acts. The MusiKellogg's Tour 2003 kicks off June 13 in Chicago and travels to New York, Miami, San Antonio, Houston, and Los Angeles. Featured acts include Grupo Límite, Jennifer Peña, Marisela, Bacilos, Olga Tañón, and Cabas. Kellogg's will make a donation in support of music education on each stop. The tour is supervised and managed by CIE USA. Miami-based local promoter NYK will assist with tour logistics.

BILLBOARD LATIN CONFAB UPDATE: The Billboard Latin Music Conference and Awards' inaugural Billboard Bash, the pre-awards show taking place May 7 prior to the Billboard Latin Music Awards, has confirmed performances by Alexandre Pires, Grupo Manía, Tito Nieves, Hector & Tito, and Area 305. Marcos Witt, one of the biggest-selling Latin Christian acts in the U.S., has confirmed his participation on the May 8 Latin Christian Music panel, a first for the conference.

Universal Music Latino Pacts With Guitián

BY LEILA COBO

MIAMI—In an effort to expand into the Latin hip-hop market, Universal Music Latino has agreed to a joint venture with Miami-based urban label Guitián Brothers Music.

Under the deal, Guitián will sign and produce artists; financing will come from Universal, which will distribute the releases.

The two-year partnership calls for three studio albums per year. Guitián already has six acts on its roster, including Cuban rapper Mr. Haka, Cuban-American artist UB and Puerto Rican R&B artist Kasper.

Guitián is headed by CEO Oscar Guitián. He is the brother of and partner with Cuban hip-hop artist Don Dinero, who will be A&R director of the label.

The deal is the latest in a series of joint ventures signed by Universal Music Latino. But this is the first time Universal will target the urban market with its own label.

"We believe an opportunity exists for Latin hip-hop," says Universal Music Latino president John Echevarría, who approached Guitián. "We want to take advantage of [Guitián's] credibility."

Earlier this year, the major went into business with producer/songwriter Omar Alfanno with a joint label called Alfanno Music.

And Universal Music and Video Distribution distributes Puerto Rican hip-hop/reggaetón label VI Music.

Echevarría's interest in Guitián stems from the success of Dinero, who is on Protel, a label recently picked up for distribution by UMVD. Guitián, in turn, is co-owner of Protel and will continue his association with that label.

But, Echevarría says, the funding provided by Universal will allow him to embark on far more ambitious projects.

"Guitián Brothers is the next generation," Guitián says. "The same thing that happened in 1980 with urban music is happening with Spanish [urban music] now."

Guitián promoted and marketed his brother's 2002 indie album, "Que Bola," whose singles "Pana Pana" and "Qué Bola" managed to get significant airplay and sales in Miami and other East Coast markets despite the album's lack of national distribution.

Guitián's first release will be a compilation titled "La Calle," which debuts Oct. 28, and a DVD compilation titled "La Calle 1." The first studio album on the label will be by Mr. Haka and is slated for a May release.

Miami Grows Live Music Scene

BY LEILA COBO

MIAMI—After a surge in popular Latin music events during the past year, Miami is quickly emerging as a live music capital and a key niche market.

Three more events are set for this fall, underscoring the sponsorship boom for all genres of Latin music.

First up is Soulfrito, the Pontiac Urban Latin Music Festival, which takes place Oct. 5 at Bayfront Park Amphitheater.

Less than two weeks later, on Oct. 18, El Arca: The Unauthorized Music Festival, featuring electronica and Latin alternative music, takes place at the AmericanAirlines Arena. And on Nov. 16, also at Bayfront Amphitheater, is the Bud Light II Rock en Miami fest, featuring Charly García, Miguel Mateos, La Secta and Bersuit Bergarabat.

This year's lineup has attracted more sponsors than last year, according to producer/promoter Enrique Kogan, who launched Rock en Miami last year.

"Sponsors like rock en español, because the audience is mostly university students, and that's a niche sponsors don't know how to reach," Kogan says.

GILES: FESTIVAL FOUNDER

Some 7,000 people attended the first Rock en Miami last year. This year, attendees will again be deluged by a stunning array of products and brands during the 12-hour event.

Bud Light is the title sponsor. Other sponsors include Coca-Cola, McDonald's and Toyota.

The viability of niche markets depends on the way they are promoted. "You have to do very targeted marketing," says Kogan, who also produces the annual Argentine Festival in Miami, which this year attracted more than 10,000 people.

Meanwhile, a totally different niche audience is the target of Soulfrito, which premiered last year. The event brings together urban Latin and hip-hop acts and audiences. Confirmed performers include Lumidee, Magic Juan, Frankie J, Huey Dunbar, Aventura and Gang Starr.

"We incorporate mainstream hip-hop as well as Latin hip-hop," festival founder Melissa Giles says. "This year we plan to have international hip-hop acts, as well as Latin.

The festival is expected to grow exponentially, thanks to sponsorship from such giants as General Motors, GMAC Financial Services and Jack Daniel's.

Last year's event had media sponsors but no corporate sponsors. This year's media sponsors include Urban Latino magazine, Urban Latino Television and radio stations 103.5 FM (the Beat) and El Sol 95 FM. All target a younger, urban audience.

Latin Acts Attract More Corporate Interest

Hennessy has launched a new ad campaign featuring Saúl Hernández, frontman of Mexican rock band Jaguares.

Hernández is the first Latin face of Hennessy's Never Blend In campaign, which highlights "independent-minded artists," Hennessy Cognac brand manager John Santos says.

The move is unusual for Jaguares, which tends to shy away from visible corporate sponsorships. The Hennessy deal is a fully integrated print and radio campaign.

October print ads have already broken in select publications, and radio spots are being edited to air this month as well.

Although the ads and spots are in Spanish, the campaign's "Never Blend In" tag line will remain in English.

Hernández is the first Latin face of the campaign, but he won't be the last, according to Santos. "The Hispanic marketplace is much more diverse than one type."

Starting Oct. 23, the brand will sponsor a series of invitation-only events at clubs in four U.S. markets, featuring up-and-coming Latin DJs.

Hennessy calls the events "Urban Movida." The Urban Movida nights will spotlight new DJs in Chicago, Miami, New York and Los Angeles.

"They don't have national recognition, and hopefully we can play a little part in bringing their name to the forefront," Santos says, explaining the brand's choice of music.

The events will be promoted locally at various radio stations, including KSSE-FM, Super Estrella in Los Angeles and WCAA-FM (Latino Mix) in New York.

Santos is looking for new Urban Movida markets in which to showcase next year. Five events are already set for next spring.

In other news, Kraft Foods and Universal Music Special Markets have partnered to release a Latin music compilation in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month.

"Los Sonidos del Sabor" is a five-track album featuring Luis Fonsi, Kevin Ceballo and Celia Cruz.

Consumers who buy three Kraft products included in the initiative can receive a free CD at the point of purchase. They can also enter a sweepstakes through Kraft's Web site to win the CD through Dec. 31. With the CD, consumers also get a Kraft booklet with recipes and artist information.

DISA AIMS FOR KIDS: Mexican singer Tatiana, known as the Children's Queen, is gearing up for a new stage in her career.

Following a bitter, two-year legal battle to divorce her husband and sever her management contract with him, Disa Records has tapped Tatiana to help launch a new children's label, Disa Niños.

Tatiana has also signed a three-album deal with Disa. Her first record will be a children's album, set for release Nov. 20.

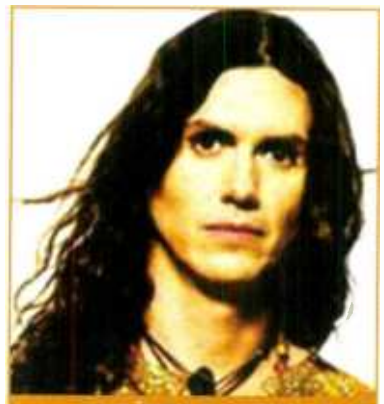
Although Disa Niños will be fully owned by Disa, Tatiana will be the face of the label and will oversee talent recruitment for its roster.

Tatiana is also working with other artists, whose projects will be released on the label next year.

ALTERNA FAMOUS: Famous Music has beefed up its alternative music roster with a series of high-profile signings.

The lineup includes producer Jason Roberts (Control Machete, Cypress Hill, Plastilina Mosh). Tracks to his credit include Control Machete's "Sí Señor," which he co-wrote.

Also signed to Famous is Chilean rock band Lucybell, which is the first rock en español act on the publisher's roster.



HERNÁNDEZ: LAUNCHING HENNESSY CAMPAIGN

MTV UPDATE: Dido, Control Machete, Café Tacuba and the Mars Volta have been confirmed to perform at the MTV Video Music Awards Latin America 2003.

The ceremony will take place Oct. 23 at the Jackie Gleason Theater in Miami Beach; it will air live on MTV Latin America and MTV2 in the U.S.

Other confirmed performers include Alejandro Sanz, La Ley, Natalia Lafourcade, Iggy Pop and Sum 41.

Colombian Label Takes Steps To Ensure Survival

BY GUSTAVO GOMEZ

BOGOTA, Colombia—It isn't easy for a record label to survive nowadays in Colombia, a country that has been exposed to every calamity that could befall the music industry.

It's harder still if its catalog and roster are built upon local acts that have to duke it out for sales against major, international pop acts.

Such is the situation faced by Codiscos de Colombia, a label that—like others that only release Colombian product—must compete against majors like Sony, EMI, Warner and Universal.

"When a Colombian dies," says Alvaro Zuleta, Codiscos' new president, "we lose a buyer of Colombian music. When a Colombian is born, we acquire a buyer of American music."

According to Zuleta, the influence of the American marketplace is more damaging to the local record industry than piracy or a lack of technology.

Since Colombia was hit by a recession some five years ago, local labels like Codiscos—a major indie whose acts include Binomio de Oro de America and Los Diablitos—have registered a 40% decline in both sales and profit.

Where 15 years ago Codiscos had a 37% market share in Colombia, according to company data, today its market share is down to 8%. Meanwhile, the majors have seen their combined market share rise to 70%.

Zuleta, who assumed the Codiscos post Oct. 15, has developed a series of precise strategies that are changing the way his music is distributed, sold and marketed and which are designed to allow his label to stay in the business.

On the distribution end, Codiscos has added various alternative paths.

These include direct, door-to-door sales, telemarketing and the launch of a series of Internet stores in conjunction with other labels.

These are revolutionary concepts in Colombia, where there's very little Internet penetration.

But at the same time, Codiscos is looking to boost sales and offer a competitive alternative to pirated CDs by introducing a new DG4 format (a four-track CD). Although in the U.S., several major Latin acts have released EPs in the past year, in Colombia they're a novelty.

And they're cheap.

While a full-length CD retails for about 38,000 pesos (roughly $14, a major investment in a developing country), Codiscos' DG4s are being sold at about $3.60. The format gives retailers a profit margin of 35% and distributors a profit margin of 11.5%.

Most of the discs feature new recordings of previously unreleased material.

Gold Loses Value In Latin America

BY LEILA COBO

What do gold and platinum certifications now represent in Latin America? A whole lot of effort and very few sales.

For the past two years, local record-producer associations throughout the region have been lowering the number of copies needed to receive certifications. The move is in response to plunging sales, attributed to the widespread economic crisis and ever-growing piracy.

The latest country to lower its certification requirements is Mexico.

After a vote from its board of directors, the Mexican Assn. of Record Producers (Amprofon) last month cut the number of albums needed for gold certification to 50,000 from 75,000. Likewise, requirements for platinum certification also dropped, to 100,000 from 150,000.

While other countries have also seen their certification numbers drop (see chart, page 35), the blow is particularly notable for Mexico, the 10th-largest music market in the world.

"We had to rectify [the numbers] because the market has dropped 40%," Amprofon director Fernando Hernández says. "The country is going through a very serious economic crisis, and it was too hard to sell product in the quantities we had formerly certified."

Mexico's crisis was compounded by rampant physical piracy and the aftermath of Sept. 11, 2001, as the country's economy is closely linked to the U.S.

In addition, Hernández says, members of Amprofon's board felt that Mexico's certifications should be comparable to those of similar markets, like Spain and Italy, where a gold album is awarded for shipments of 50,000.

This does not take into account that Mexico's population is much larger than that of Spain or Italy. Or that as recently as five years ago, gold certification required a demanding 150,000 in shipments.

It does take into account that in the past few years, the number of

Chayanne Chafing For Another Tour In The Spring

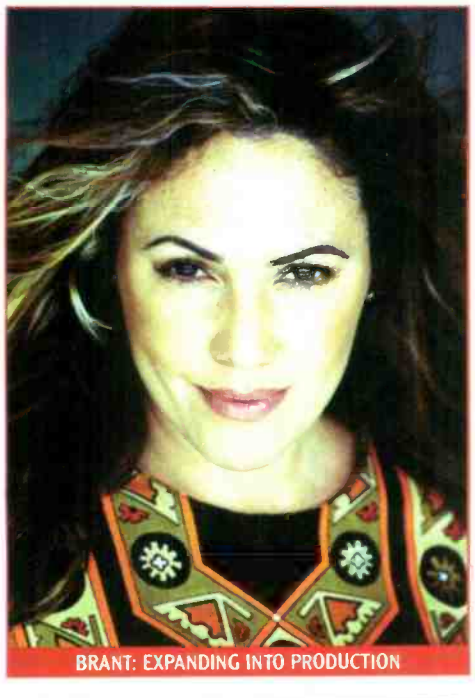
Barely a year after he finished an 11-month world tour, Puerto Rican singer Chayanne is ready to do it all over again.

According to manager Patricia Bolivar of Chaf Enterprises, Chayanne is getting ready to kick off another tour this spring.

"We usually tour every three years, but we've had so many proposals, and our [album] sales have been very strong," Bolívar says.

Chayanne's latest album, "Sincero," debuted at No. 1 on Billboard's Top Latin Albums chart.

The tour, which will be put together by Chaf Enterprises, with different promoters in different markets, will probably kick off in Latin America.



BRANT: EXPANDING INTO PRODUCTION

Bolivar says she's also considering going to new territories such as Australia, Romania and Russia.

Meanwhile, Chayanne continues to be seen on a Dentyne TV commercial designed for the English-speaking market.

The commercial, which began airing in September, will run for one year.

BRANT TO PRODUCE: Songwriter Claudia Brant is one of the few women writing Latin pop these days.

And she's certainly the only one that has not one, but two songs on Billboard's Hot Latin Tracks chart, both co-written with Luis Fonsi.

"Si No Me Amas," also performed by Fonsi, is No. 10 on this week's chart, while "Quién Te Dijo Eso," performed by Ednita Nazario, is No. 36.

It's the most recent in a string of hits that have been performed by everyone from Olga Tañón and La Onda to Josh Groban and Santana.

Now, Brant is preparing to expand her horizons. She will co-produce approximately nine tracks for the upcoming solo album of Kumbia Kings' singer DJ Kane.

"The idea is to begin to co-produce and not be involved only as a songwriter," Brant says. "It's the obvious next step."

Brant, who lives in Los Angeles and writes solo as often as she co-writes (with Mark Portmann, among others), also has another plan in mind.

"I'm thinking of recording an album," she says. "Not with a major or anything like that—but just for the pleasure of doing so."

JUAN TO PAY UP: Juan Gabriel has been ordered to pay $2 million and complete 45 performances in the U.S. and Mexico during 2005.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge James Dunn ruled Nov. 7 that a settlement reached last July between Mexican superstar Gabriel and event promoter Hauser/CIE Entertainment is valid.

The preliminary agreement contemplated the $2 million payment and an injunction to prevent Gabriel from performing with other promoters.

Gabriel—whose real name is Alberto Aguilera—filed a lawsuit in November 2002 to get out of his 10-year contract with Hauser/CIE.

"Alberto Aguilera filed a lawsuit to get out of an onerous contract with Hauser/CIE," then-attorney George Braunstein said at the time.

Hauser/CIE countersued, claiming Gabriel owed it money. The promoter also filed for an injunction to keep Gabriel from being booked by other parties for concerts in the cities stipulated in the agreement.

Gabriel will be paid for his 45 performances. The $2 million payment is due immediately.

AND: Eddie Fernandez has been named VP of Sony/ATV Music Publishing.

Fernandez replaces Carmen Alfanno, who is now collaborating with husband Omar Alfanno in Alfanno Music. Fernandez was previously VP of A&R for Universal Music Latino.

In a sense, he returns home. Prior to his Universal gig, Fernandez was director of A&R for Sony Discos and prior to that, creative director at Sony Publishing.

Online music store karnivalmusic.com, which specializes in Caribbean music of all genres, has teamed with Grupo del Norte Records (GDN), which focuses on Cuban music.

Karnival already features Cuban music, but GDN's catalog will broaden Karnival's offering.

Artists whose works are on GDN include Omara Portuondo, Los Van Van, Pío Leyva and Irakere.

No Spanish Rock For U.S.

SGAE-Initiated Tour Scraps Stateside Dates

BY HOWELL LLEWELLYN

MADRID—Spanish authors and publishers society SGAE, organizer of the annual Rock en Ñ tour of the Americas, has dumped the U.S. leg of the trek from the schedule.

SGAE attributes the decision to budget problems and the "deaf ear" turned by the industry and media toward rock en español. The tour starts Nov. 9 in Caracas and ends Nov. 29 in Buenos Aires.

The U.S. has been the first stop for Rock en Ñ since its 2000 launch as an SGAE initiative to promote rock en español in Latin America and the U.S. It has staged past events in New York; Los Angeles; Anaheim, Calif.; and Chicago.

"The main problem is our budget," SGAE's Rock en Ñ coordinator Xavier Novaes says. "If you don't have a sponsor, it's really hard to arrange concerts. But there is a wider problem of the press and media turning a deaf ear to rock en español."

And in a mild swipe at Miami-based Latin divisions of the major labels, Novaes adds, "It would be good if the majors had experts in Spanish-language rock. There is a clear lack of label staff with a real idea of what rock product is available, how to promote it and where the market is.

NOVAES: MAJORS NEED SPANISH ROCK EXPERTS

"Rock has returned in a big way to the English-language market, but the Latin divisions in Miami don't seem to have noticed," Novaes says. "We at SGAE know there is a big underground market for rock en español—especially in Mexico and much of South America—but the majors take no risks and are interested only in recognized artists."

Novaes says he hopes the situation will change and that the tour can return to the U.S. next year.

Rock en Ñ takes in nine concerts in five countries: Venezuela, Chile, Mexico, Colombia and Argentina.

A blockbuster concert will take place Nov. 22 in Mexico City's 22,000-capacity Palacio de Deportes, featuring Mexico's Control Machete, Julieta Venegas, Jumbo, Zoe and four other local groups, plus Colombia's Aterciopelados and L.A.-based Pastilla.

The 14,000-capacity Parque Puerto Madero in Buenos Aires will host the final concert, with Spain's Piratas, Puerto Rico's Mimi Maura and Flavio Calaveralma, the bassist from Argentina's Fabulosos Cadillacs.

But Rock en Ñ is commercially low-profile, with an emphasis on discussions and workshops. This year, the tour broadens its scope by embracing electronic music through a program called Electro Ñ.

Novaes says that through its offices in the U.S., Mexico, Cuba, Argentina and Brazil, SGAE knows "that there is a strong underground electronic music scene, and [there is] every reason for us to envelop other music [aside] from rock."

Electro Ñ has its first presentation Nov. 9 at Club Electro in Caracas with Barcelona-based Mexican Professor Angel Dust, who gives an electronic music workshop at the city's Corp cultural center the next day.

Other Electro Ñ events will take place in Santiago, Chile, and Bogotá, Colombia.

"We have increased the number of workshops and debates this year, because there is a hunger for this in these

CD/DVD Packages See Popularity Grow In Latin Market

BY LEILA COBO

CD/DVD combos, long considered a luxury for the Latin market, have been the lead players on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart during the past months.

This week alone, the top three spots on the chart belong to titles that are available as CD/DVD packs.

They include Los Temerarios' "Tributo al Amor" (Fonovisa) and A.B. Quintanilla III & Kumbia Kings' "La Historia" (EMI), which both debuted at No. 1. Also, Marco Antonio Solís' "La Historia Continúa" and Los Tigres del Norte's "Herencia Musical: 20 Boleros Románticos," both on Fonovisa, are at No. 3 and No. 7, respectively.

ADDED VALUE

"It doesn't surprise me that people are willing to pay [the extra money] for the packs," says Jorge Pino, president/CEO of EMI Latin USA.

"The difference in price isn't that exorbitant, and the added value is important," he says. "The packs have increased our sales, and they've helped us fight piracy."

EMI has been at the forefront of CD/DVD releases in the Latin realm, with more than 20 such titles released in 2003. The label's first combo was Selena's "Ones," released in fall 2002.

For 2004, the label plans to put out 40 packs. For the most part, the average price is $1 to $3 more than a regularly priced CD, although some combos retail for as high as $19.99 or $20.98.

"As the format becomes more accepted, people shift toward the CD/DVD combo," EMI marketing VP Guillermo Page says. "In the beginning, the CD would sell more, but little by little, it's evening out."

For the purposes of the Billboard charts, Nielsen SoundScan combines sales of the CD/DVD combos and CD-only versions if the CD/DVD is a limited edition. SoundScan also tracks sales of combos for the music video sales chart if the DVD contains music videos or concert footage.

This week, the four combo titles riding high on the Latin albums chart are also on the Top Music Videos chart.

The success of the combos signals the willingness of Latin consumers in general—and regional Mexican consumers in particular—to venture into new formats.

Fonovisa, for example, is second to EMI in the number of combos released this year. Its first combo was Los Tigres del Norte's "Herencia Musical: 20 Corridos Inolvidables," which debuted at No. 1 on the Top Latin Albums chart in July.

"I think people value the fact that they have a luxury edition in their hands," Fonovisa marketing VP Roberto Arciniega says. "There are so many albums in the market that you have to provide some additional value to the product to stand out from the rest."

Most Fonovisa CD/DVD packs include six to seven videos in addition to interviews, biographies and interactive material. The two Los Tigres combos, as well as the newly released Los Temerarios combo, also included one new track.

The label's first release for 2004 will be a combo featuring Los Bukis and Bronco. Eighteen more combos are scheduled for 2004.

SKYROCKETING COSTS

At first blush, it would appear that slapping together CDs and videos is simple. But it can get complicated and costly, when synchronization fees for the videos, which are not regulated like mechanical licenses, are brought into the equation.

"When it's compilations and you're dealing with several publishers, it becomes a nightmare, because everyone wants to charge as much as possible," one executive says. "There have been projects where we've been forced to remove a video because it would make the project prohibitive."

Videos aren't the only content that can be included in a combo. Vico C's current release, "En Honor a La Verdad" (EMI), for example, is available as a CD/DVD combo with a 25-minute documentary chronicling the rapper's release from prison and the making of his album.

The DVD can be an intrinsic part of the release. Control Machete's "Uno, Dos: Bandera"(Universal Music Latino), for example, includes a DVD with 12 videos, one for each track on the album.

The Masterful Marketing Of Manuel's 'Serenata'

Latin Notas™

By Leila Cobo
lcobo@billboard.com

What drove the high debut of "Serenata," the new album by Puerto Rican merenguero Manny Manuel?

Management and label execs at Universal Music Latino attribute the album's No. 11 placement on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart last week to a well-timed TV special.

"Serenata," an album of 12 bolero standards on which Manuel is accompanied by a traditional trio, spawned a TV special of the same name. It aired Nov. 27 on Univision Puerto Rico, two days after the album's release.

"Two days after that special, we had no albums left in stores," says Walter Kolm, senior VP of marketing/A&R for Universal Music Latino.

Initial shipment of "Serenata" was 30,000 copies. But Kolm says Universal had banked on the album's success and had enough copies on hand to ship out immediately. Indeed, the album rose to No. 9 on the chart this week. To date, Kolm says shipout of "Serenata" is 82,000 copies.

MANUEL: SALES BENEFITED FROM TV SPECIAL

"Serenata," the special, was conceived by Manuel's manager, Angelo Medina, formerly Ricky Martin's manager. It was filmed Nov. 20 in front of an audience that included winners of a contest sponsored by Univision, radio station Sistema 102, daily El Nuevo Día and retailer La Gran Discoteca.

The first 200 fans who brought in a cover of El Nuevo Día and reserved their copy of "Serenata" at La Gran Discoteca got free tickets to the show.

The publicity, plus viewership of the special, propelled sales.

FELIZ KEEPS PLAYING: A recent survey by ASCAP indicated that "Feliz Navidad" is one of the most-performed Spanish-language holiday songs, based on performance data for the first three years of the 21st century.

The bilingual classic, penned by José Feliciano, is No. 14 on ASCAP's top 25 holiday song list, ahead of classics like "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" and "Frosty the Snowman."

"I wrote it bilingually so radio stations couldn't say, 'We can't play it because it's in Spanish,' or Spanish stations couldn't say, 'We can't play it because it's in English,' Feliciano recalls.

"The song was ahead of its time, but I didn't know that," Feliciano adds. "When you write things, you don't realize the impact they may have. And that's what happened with 'Feliz Navidad.' "

"Feliz Navidad" was written in less than five minutes in the summer of 1970, while Feliciano was recording a Christmas album. He says he used the traditional Puerto Rican cuatro to give it authentic flavor.

Today, the song is a Christmas standard used in commercials for Papa John's Pizza and the Discover Card.

GRAMMY TRADITION: The durability of Celia Cruz's last album, "Regalo del Alma" (Sony), can be seen in two vastly different arenas this week.

On the one hand, the album's lead single, "Ríe y Llora," debuted at No. 21 on the Billboard Dance Radio Airplay chart.

And "Regalo" is a Grammy Award nominee in the best salsa/merengue category.

"Ríe y Llora" is a stalwart in a category dominated by stalwarts, save for the surprise appearance of Truco & Zaperoko's "Música Universal" on indie Libertad Records.

In fact, there were few surprises among the strong field of nominees in the Latin categories for the 2004 Grammys.

But a few names point toward changing perceptions. Los Angeles-based rap/banda outfit Akwid (Univision), for example, is a finalist in the best Latin rock/alternative album category.

Its inclusion helps dispel the notion that it's "impossible" to break a new act in the U.S. And it also helps propagate the notion that there are many kinds of alternative music.

And then, some things stay the same. The best traditional tropical Latin album category is an exercise in Cuban nostalgia.

Yes, the music is beautiful and evocative, but where are the other traditional tropical rhythms of the Latin region? Do labels know this category exists?

Live Scene Props Falling Music Sales In Spain

BY HOWELL LLEWELLYN

MADRID—The magic of live concerts is proving to be a bulwark against falling album sales in Spain. The live music scene is healthier than ever this simmering summer, and top Latin America-based executives are taking note.

Spanish booking companies are pioneering the latest streamlined concert tour methods so that artists and fans end each evening with a warm buzz. As the album sales crisis seeks to heal itself, fans are more willing to pay large sums to see their idols onstage.

"Our aim is to give a global service to the artist, from management, arranging the tour, promotion, legal cover, merchandising—the full works," says Rosa Lagarrigue, founder and director of management and booking companies RLM Spain and RLM International. The businesses have offices in Madrid and in Miami and Mexico City, respectively.

"RLM has to become stronger than ever, aggressively organizing concerts in and outside Spain," she says, citing the difficult climate for music sales. "The key to this is offering a complete global service and obtaining the best sponsorship."

Among artists managed by RLM are Alejandro Sanz—whose next album arrives in September—Ana Torroja, Miguel Bosé, Miami-based Bacilos, Mexico's Inspector, Malú, Mexico's Natalia Lafourcade (in Spain only) and Pedro Guerra.

Forward tour planning is essential, especially with top artists. Sanz's tour of Latin America, the U.S. and Spain next year "is already very well-defined," Lagarrigue says.

At the same time, RLM is arranging tours this year in Latin America by La Oreja de Van Gogh, Guerra, Torroja and Alex Ubago; this November it will arrange a tour by the most successful of Spain's "Operación Triunfo" ("OT") TV talent show participants, David Bisbal.

From August into the fall, RLM has also booked Spain tours for "OT" acts Manu Tenorio and Hugo & Nika. All are managed by Academia de Artistas. Academia was specially created to manage 29 of the 32 "OT" participants who have appeared in the shows' two editions and to arrange a historic "OT" series 1 and 2 combined tour, which took place July 3-Aug. 3.

ROTONDO: IN A 'WIN-WIN SITUATION'

An average of 10,000 fans attended each show on the 17-concert tour. (Barcelona had ticket sales of 17,000.) Academia director Eva Cebrián explains that fans who spend the winter following the almost daily "OT" shows leapt at the "unrepeatable" chance of seeing those artists live.

"The effect of 'OT' artists appearing live is electric for many fans, and in turn it generates more CD sales," Cebrián says.

All artists appeared at least once, and Bisbal, who is busy with promotion in Latin America and the U.S., performed at two of the 17 concerts.

Another big Spanish booking agent is Planet Events, part of the music conglomerate Gran Vía Musical, which unlike RLM has no management service even though RLM owns 49% of it. Director Sandra Rotondo says, "We mainly bring Latin American artists to tour in Spain, such as Maná, Chayanne, Juanes or Shakira, and concert-going is definitely increasing this year."

She says 250,000 people saw Mexico's Maná at 15 concerts earlier this summer. "Part of the secret is that every show is different, geared to the local conditions and usually with a local artist as an opening act.

"When you choose the right moment and use radio to your advantage, you're in a win-win situation," Rotondo says. "Take Juanes, for example. His records started selling well last November as a new artist here, but now we have a 25-concert tour lined up from late July through August that will be sold out."

Latin America-based record executives agree that touring and concert activity provide a temporary salvation to the record industry. "Music itself is not in crisis," says Iñigo Zabala, president of Warner Music Latin America. "What is in crisis is the CD format. But the consumption of music is growing all the time."

Jesús López, chairman of Universal Music Latin America/Iberian Peninsula, remarks that "concerts cannot be pirated like CDs. The ritual of meeting up with other people in a common space to enjoy music and admire an artist makes us feel less isolated—concerts help to break the solitude."

Another leading Spanish tour operator, Iñigo Argomaniz—who manages La Oreja de Van Gogh and Ubago, among others—says this year has seen a "spectacular" rise in international touring in Spain. "Springsteen and the Stones sold out quicker than ever," he says. "The Bilbao concert [with 40,000 fans] sold out in two days. In 1998, they played the same venue, and it took three months to sell out.

"I think the explanation has to do with the uncertain political climate, wars and so on—people have to go out and have fun," Argomaniz continues. "Also, Spain used to be slow about selling concert tickets. All that has changed."

The key to a successful tour is sponsorship, Lagarrigue says, and the fine tuning needed to decide which product is appropriate for which artist. Lagarrigue says she is now working on sponsors for Sanz's 18-gig May 2004 tour. "In the U.S., you have to have the tour first before a sponsor will jump on board. For Spain, we had [mobile-telephone company] Moviestar signed up before Alejandro's August-September [2004] dates were finalized."

In July, Lagarrigue signed a deal with telephone company Nokia for the summer/autumn tour by new chill-out/flamenco Sony Music Spain signing Chambao. "Trademarks are a fantastic vehicle [to sell concerts], and we are making ourselves more European," Lagarrigue says, pointing out that Spain is behind most of Europe in the sponsorship aspect of touring.

Selena Lives On With DVD Of Last Concert

Last year, EMI Latin rereleased her entire catalog.

Next month, Image Entertainment will put out a DVD of Selena's last concert, taped at Houston's Astrodome Feb. 26, 1995, in front of 64,000 fans.

"Selena Live: The Last Concert" will be the first live DVD of Selena released in the marketplace. Given the circumstances of the singer's death—she was shot by the president of her fan club March 31, 1995—it will also be a historical document that further preserves the image of one of the most popular and beloved Latin artists in the U.S.

"To be honest with you, I don't know why they filmed it," says Selena's sister, Suzette Arriaga, who is now VP of Q Productions, the Quintanilla family's label and production company. Q licensed the material for the DVD to Image.

"It was just something that happened. And that was the year she set the attendance record at the Astrodome, which she held until maybe a year ago. [The concert] is in surround sound, and it sounds incredible. You feel like you're right there, and she feels alive."

Set for release Sept. 2, "The Last Concert" features 55 minutes of concert footage plus a

For Image, the Selena DVD is new territory.

The company has previously released Latin jazz DVDs and a Los Super Seven DVD, but this is its first foray into more mainstream Latin pop in general and Tejano music in particular.

"While we believe that Selena certainly has a huge fan base within the core Latin market, we also know that she appeals to an even broader demographic as well," says Garrett Lee, VP of marketing for Image. "Her music lives on, and the repurposing of Selena's audio catalog through EMI wins new legions of fans for the singer every passing year."

Aside from price and positioning at retail and some radio promotion, Image has put together a separate mailing to more than 2,000 targeted retailers.

According to Arriaga, Q Productions has been working on perfecting the DVD for at least three years. Now that it's done, Arriaga—who was the drummer in her sister's band—has only one regret.

"In that particular concert, I was sick and I wasn't able to play," she says. "It was her last major concert before she passed away, and it bothered me for a long time. But now, I think I spent 17 wonderful years with her."

MARTIN MOVES: Ricky Martin will launch his next worldwide tour in Latin America in May 2004, according to his manager, Angelo Medina. Medina wouldn't specify where the tour will kick off or who would produce it, but preparations are already under way.

In related news, Medina has signed on to handle new singer/songwriter Ana Victoria, whose debut album is set for release on Arista. Medina, who has previously concentrated solely on handling Puerto Rican artists, such as Martin and Robi Rosa, has a link with the Mexican-born Victoria. She is the daughter of singers Diego Verdaguer and Amanda Miguel, whom Medina managed in Puerto Rico years ago. Victoria records in English.

DRIVE ON: El Premio de la Gente Awards have a new title sponsor in Chevrolet. Formerly, the awards were sponsored by retailer Ritmo Latino.

This year's show will take place Oct. 16 at Las Vegas' Mandalay Bay Resort & Casino.

Since its inception five years ago, El Premio de la Gente (the Award of the People) has allowed fans to vote for the winners. Finalists, who were announced Aug. 14, are determined by Nielsen SoundScan numbers.

Previously, fans voted at Ritmo Latino and Vons stores nationwide.

This time around, El Premio has ventured into a comprehensive marketing partnership with Spanish-language Web portal Yahoo en español.

Yahoo en español and El Premio producers are in the process of building a Web site that will enable fans to vote online. The site is expected to launch this month.

Bandana Launches Multimedia Assault With Third Set

BY MARCELO FERNANDEZ BITAR

BUENOS AIRES—The past two years have taken Bandana—the girl group created by the first Argentine edition of "Popstars"—on a wild ride.

Snubbed by many critics and artists, the quintet nonetheless emerged as Argentina's best-selling act since 2001. Now, with the release of a third album and an accompanying film, Bandana's success shows no signs of slowing. And the group that critics once viewed as a flash in the pan is gaining new respectability.

The plot of the movie "Vivir Intentando" is not based on the "Popstars" show. Instead, it is a tale of how five girls with musical aspirations become friends and end up together in a pop band. To make things easier for their fans, the characters use their real names: Ivonne, Lissa, Lourdes, Valeria and Virginia.

Lissa says, "We first learned about the movie shortly after the release of our second album. We were so shocked and terrified [by the idea] that we secretly hoped our producers would forget about the whole project."

Since its June 26 release in 70 theaters, "Vivir Intentando" has drawn more than 800,000 people. It is currently the third-highest-grossing film in Argentina, second only to "Finding Nemo" and "Terminator 3," respectively.

"In [a time] where reality shows have reached a point of saturation, our goal was to consolidate the band's popularity and show that they are true artists," RGB Entertainment head Gustavo Yankelevich says. The company produced "Popstars" in Argentina and currently produces, promotes and manages Bandana.

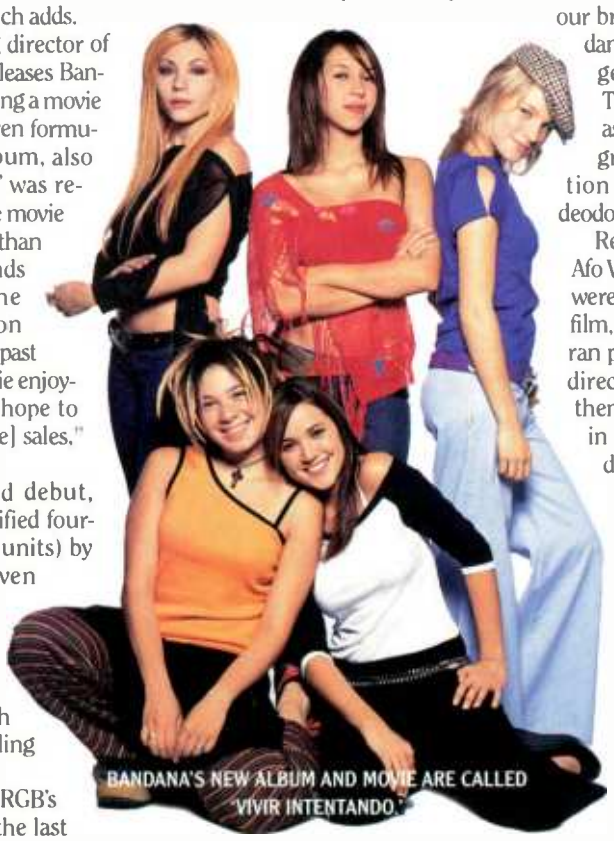
"A movie was also the perfect vehicle to renew the enthusiasm [of fans] to see them perform live during their next nationwide tour," Yankelevich adds.

Roberto Piay, managing director of BMG Argentina—which releases Bandana's albums—says, "Making a movie with a pop artist [is] a proven formula." He notes that the album, also called "Vivir Intentando," was released one month before the movie and has already sold more than 60,000 units on newsstands and at record stores. The album has been No. 1 on Argentina's sales lists for the past eight weeks. "With the movie enjoying so much success, we hope to double or even triple [those] sales," Piay says.

The group's self-titled debut, released in 2001, was certified four-times platinum (160,000 units) by industry body CAPIF. Given Argentina's economic situation, that is an extraordinary number. Its sophomore effort, "Noche," went three-times platinum, with 120,000 copies sold, according to CAPIF.

Hugo Piombi, director of RGB's record division, says that the last time a pop act hit the Argentine film screen was in the late 1970s. Then, Mario Kaminsky produced a series of movies featuring acts on the roster of his independent label, Microfon.

"Vivir Intentando" was filmed last January. It was directed by Tomas Yankelevich—Gustavo Yankelevich's son—and produced by RGB and Patagonik Film Group. Buena Vista distributed the movie.



BANDANA'S NEW ALBUM AND MOVIE ARE CALLED "VIVIR INTENTANDO."

The film received additional support through a tie-in with McDonald's. Happy Meal boxes feature images of Bandana, and a contest offers such prizes as a chance to meet the band.

McDonald's marketing director Maximo Lorenzo says, "We wanted to relate our brand with pop music, and Bandana was perfect because their target [market] is similar to ours. This is the first time that we have associated with a local artist." The group is also lining up a promotion with Impulse perfume and deodorant.

Record producer/main composer Afo Verde says that the movie's songs were created independently from the film, although the recording process ran parallel to the film shoot. "The director overviewed the songs and then decided which worked better in the script," he says. "We then drew up a tight schedule, where each girl spent the days filming or recording."

The members of Bandana started taking acting lessons late last year, after finishing a promo tour in Spain. According to Valeria, they met the director and read the script with him, "giving our opinion about the dialogue to feel more comfortable and [make it] more realistic."

In January, the group performed two concerts for 80,000 fans at Velez Stadium in Buenos Aires. The group has not performed since, but a tour will kick off this month.

The first single from the new album is "Sigo Dando Vueltas." Although only a snippet is featured in the movie, the song is already enjoying heavy airplay and video rotation. Some tracks show the band exploring new musical directions, from reggae ("Canto Con Vos") to blues ("Con Eso Tengo Seguro tu Amor") and rock ("Qué Pasa Con Vos"); other songs feature their trademark infectious pop.

Gustavo Yankelevich hopes the movie will continue to broaden the group's appeal outside Argentina.

"In theory, our strategy is to reach countries where their albums have already been released," he says. "Or even [to] release the movie as a vehicle to ignite enthusiasm for the local release of their albums. We will find out if this is feasible during the next months."

Marketing and merchandising efforts aside, this Bandana boom is bringing the group newfound respect. Piay says that anyone who thinks of Bandana as a TV phenomenon is mistaken. "The girls have proved their talent and can only be seen as a band of true artists."

Verde concedes that there is a saturation of TV-born artists and that only a selected few will go as far as releasing a third album, as Bandana has done.

"These five girls are undoubtedly leading the pack of a new generation of pop artists in Argentina," he says.

Giselle Returns To Merengue Base

After a long association with BMG U.S. Latin, pop/merengue singer Giselle has signed a three-album deal with Universal Music Latino. Giselle, who had been veering into pop territory, is planning to release an all-merengue album in the fourth quarter.

This comes even though merengue sales have been declining steadily during the past several years and Giselle's last, mainly pop, album for BMG, "En Alma, Cuerpo, y Corazon" (2002) sold only 19,000 copies, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

GISELLE: SIGNS WITH UNIVERSAL

"Merengue is her base," says Eddie Fernández, VP of A&R for Universal Music Latino. "We believe that she'll sell much more with an all-merengue album."

According to Fernández, a recent poll in Giselle's native Puerto Rico found that a majority of listeners prefer merengue to pop by a wide margin. If merengue is dead, he adds, "it's because no one is doing anything."

Several years ago, Giselle—like Olga Tañón before her—decided to expand from her merengue base into pop in search of a wider audience. Now she has expressed her interest in returning to merengue. That makes her a good fit for Universal, according to label president John Echevarría.

"The polls show that Puerto Ricans want to listen to merengue, and Giselle wants to do merengue," he says. "So [signing] her seemed an obvious choice."

Although a producer for the album has not been chosen, Fernández says that recording will probably take place in the Dominican Republic.

'SUPER' EXPOSURE: El Gran Silencio's "Super Riddim Internacional," from the 2003 album "Super Riddim Internacional, Vol. 1," will be featured in a Heineken TV campaign from August through December. The spot will air on Spanish-language TV and also on CBS during the Latin Grammy Awards. The same track is also featured in "Gigli," the film featuring Jennifer Lopez and Ben Affleck.

CELIA ON TOP: As expected, Celia Cruz's last studio album, "Regalo del Alma," is the Greatest Gainer on the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart, moving from 51-1. The album, released July 29, is one of a plethora of Cruz titles currently on the Billboard charts.

Also released July 29 is "Exitos Eternos" on Universal Music Latino. The compilation includes 14 tracks and a video of the song "Que Le Den Candela." The featured tracks—including "La Vida Es un Carnaval," "La Negra Tiene Tumbao" and "Guantanamera"—were selected from Cruz's recently released albums on Sony as well as from her previous RMM releases. "Exitos Eternos" will only be available for three years.

Trio Offers Training In Hip-Hop 101

Looking for an education in the ever-changing world of hip-hop? Well, look no further than "Hip Hop 101: The Game."

Due Sept. 30 through Win Media, the DVD is the first installment in a series of "how to" guides for the hip-hop music industry.

The DVD is divided into five parts—101, Team, Affiliation, Demo and Deal—and features appearances from Fat Joe, Master P, Nelly, Scarface and Ghostface Killah, among others.

Producer Yves Salomon describes the DVD's genesis.

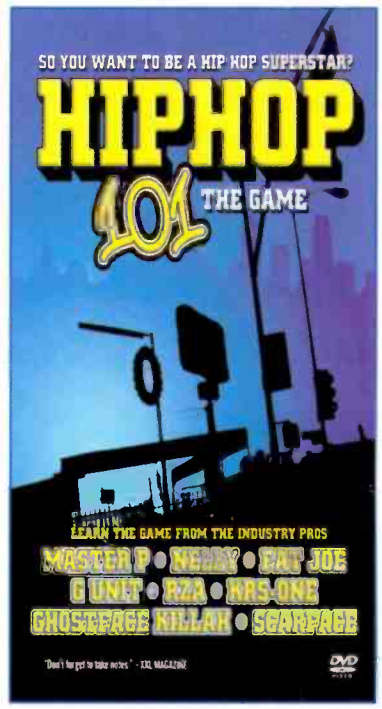
"Conrad Dimanche, one of my partners, approached Greg Cassagnol and I about doing a [guide on] how to be successful in the entertainment industry. The minute he raised the issue, the idea crystallized. Greg and I picked it up and ran with it. We created a script and a wish list of people that we wanted to talk to to bring the idea to fruition. A year-and-a-half later, it's coming out."



Salomon and his LTG Productions partners Cassagnol and Dimanche have had their share of experience in the business. Dimanche is in A&R at Bad Boy, while Salomon was a format manager at Launch Radio.

"A lot of what you need to be successful is common sense, but you would be surprised at how many people don't have that," Salomon says.

"There's also a level of general ignorance. Things are a little better thanks to the information age, but nine times out of 10 a lot of these artists still don't know what kind of deals they're getting into. They have very limited information on the music industry and [therefore] put a lot of trust in their managers and lawyers. If they don't have the right one, that speaks for itself."

While the next installment is slated for February 2004, LTG Productions will be spreading its message on the road even sooner. It will conduct seminars at Learning Annex locations in New York (Oct. 9), Minnesota and California (both in November).

"We're also planning a 'Hip Hop 101' conference, which will be in the same vein as [the now-defunct] New Music Seminar," Salomon says. The conference is targeted for early next year in Washington, D.C.

MAGIC PULLS NEW TRICK: Bishop Don "Magic" Juan, former pimp and current spiritual adviser to Snoop Dogg, has signed a "multimillion-dollar" recording deal with Los Angeles-based Avatar Records (Billboard Bulletin, Sept. 10).

The first offering from the Chicago-based preacher will be "Bishop Don 'Magic' Juan Presents: Green Is for the Money, Gold Is for the Honies Vol. 1." The compilation, due next spring, will be accompanied by a DVD that gives insight into the "pimp game" from the Bishop himself.

VIVE LA SOURCE: The Source magazine has notched a licensing agreement with Paris-based Arcadia Editions to launch The Source France, a French version of the U.S.-based hip-hop magazine. Making its debut this month, the premiere issue of The Source France will feature selected translated content from the U.S. edition, as well as original features and reviews.

Chilean Scene Gets New Boost From 'Rojo'

BY MARCELO FERNANDEZ BITAR

SANTIAGO, Chile—Almost one year after the Brazilian pop strains of axé music became the single biggest-selling phenomenon in Chile (Billboard, April 5), the country has embraced a new and unexpected musical formula.

TV show "Rojo—Fama Contra Fama" is generating such a tremendous volume of music sales that by the end of the year, some believe it could lift the local record industry out of the worldwide slump.

Like "American Idol," "Rojo" is a talent search; it debuted last September. As is usual in this format, the winner secures a record deal, and others may also be inked to a major record company.

Show producer Jaime Roman Canales, an executive with Musicavision—the production company that runs the show with national network TVN—decided to release a monthly series of themed albums featuring all the finalists, who have become overnight stars.

"Our original idea with the albums was to provide another vehicle of exposure for the singers and help boost TV ratings, but it became an overnight success that we never even imagined," Canales says. "Only then did we realize that the immense popularity of the whole cast could work really well with a series of theme-based albums."

The first two compilations, which were released in January and March, respectively, sold 80,000 units each through newsstands.

That initial success led to a gold-plated joint venture between the show and Warner Music. A collection of popular love songs, "Rojo el Color del Amor," has sold 28,000 units since its release in April; the classic rock'n'roll hits of "Rojo & Roll" have sold 20,000 since May; popular party song disc "Fiesta al Rojo Vivo" has sold 12,000 since June; and the compilation "Los Singles de Rojo" shipped 2,000 units to retail in mid-July. All albums are certified by Chile's record industry association, APDIF. A gold album in Chile is 10,000 units.

Monthly releases will continue through November. Upcoming albums include a tribute to Latin rock of the '80s, a disco music album and a collection of traditional Chilean folk songs.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORTS

Argentine-born singer Maria Jimena Pereyra, winner of the first season of "Rojo," released her debut in May. "Dedicado" has already sold 40,000 units and has been certified double platinum. Pereyra decided only a year before the show to try her luck in Chile. "I had recorded two albums in Buenos Aires when I was a teenager," she says, "but this was completely new because in Chile, I was starting from zero."

Gaspar Dominguez, A&R and strategic marketing manager for Warner Music Chile, says, "We are convinced that Maria Jimena is a true artist that will have a great career and that her appearance in a TV show was only the first step in obtaining international success."

PEREYRA: FIRST-SEASON 'ROJO' WINNER

Her album will now be released in Peru, Colombia, Argentina and Uruguay.

The biggest winner from the show has been first-series finalist, 13-year-old Maria Jose Quintanilla. She became the best-selling artist in Chile for the first half of 2003 when her Sony Music album of traditional Mexican songs, "Mexico Lindo y Querido," sold more than 140,000 units, according to APDIF.

In late July, Quintanilla flew to the Argentine state of Cordoba on the first step of a promotion plan that also included Colombia and Mexico.

Coming soon are solo albums from second-season winner Mario Guerrero and finalists Daniela Castillo and Montserrat Bustamante, who like Guerrero are signed to Warner Music. Another finalist, Leandro Martinez, is signed to BMG.

"Rojo" has become a national success story that has boosted record sales in a country where both the economy and the levels of piracy indicate that sales should drop.

"The total sales [in units for the entire country] of the first [quarter] are only 1% below last year's figures," says Francisco Nieto, head of APDIF. "The albums released by this TV show have indeed been positive and helped to avoid a greater fall. The second [half of 2003] calls for more releases by 'Rojo' and similar programs on competing channels Mega and Channel 13."

The plans for "Rojo—Fama Contra Fama" were laid out last year by TVN and Musicavision, an independent company that oversees music production for soap operas and other programs.

The initial selections for season one took place in September with more than 4,000 initial applicants. Since December, the two-hour show has aired Monday through Friday in a 6 p.m.-8 p.m. slot that has drawn a strong following among a younger demographic.

An elimination process that enabled viewers, a jury and the contestants themselves to vote resulted in a final cast of 12 singers and 12 dancers. While the winning singer receives a record contract, the winning dancer will perform with famous Israeli company Mayumana in one of its shows during a Chilean tour.

The first album was released in January directly by Musicavision to newsstands. This collection of show highlights sold 20,000 copies in a matter of hours.

In March, another compilation featuring finalists from both the first and second editions of "Rojo" sold 80,000, and the Warner Music joint venture was born. The only exceptions were Quintanilla, who is on Sony Music because of a prior agreement with Musicavision, and Martinez, who is on BMG.

Latin Grammys: Who Will, Who Should Win

Latin Notas™

By Leila Cobo
lcobo@billboard.com

With the Latin Grammy Awards merely days away on Sept. 3, it's time for our yearly predictions.

First, however, several caveats: Predictions of who will win are educated guesses, based on past voter behavior; my preferences are purely personal.

These predictions will not sway voters, as ballots have already been counted. Finally, these are predictions, meaning they won't necessarily come true. Enjoy.

RECORD OF THE YEAR: Should Win: "Frijolero." This daring Molotov track works thanks to artful production and execution. In other hands, it might have been inconsequential.

Will Win: "Es Por Tí." It's by Juanes, the darling of the moment. But wasn't he nominated last year in this category for "A Dios le Pido?" Yes, it's terribly repetitive.

ALBUM OF THE YEAR: Should Win: "Un Día Normal" by Juanes.

Will Win: "Un Día Normal." Global hit, great album.

SONG OF THE YEAR: Should Win: There are some great contenders. But "Caraluna," penned by Jorge Villamizar for Bacilos' album of the same name, is fresh, catchy and exuberant. Unfortunately, it's competing against "Mi Primer Millón," penned by Villamizar with Sergio George for the same album.

Will Win: "Tal Vez." Because it's penned by Franco de Vita, whose wonderful "Y Tu Te Vas" was completely ignored last year. Because it's sung by Ricky Martin. Because it's a solid track. Because the Bacilos vote will be split in two.

BEST NEW ARTIST: Should Win: They all deserve it, but my vote goes to Alex Ubago, a compelling songwriter who managed to sell more than 1 million copies in Spain despite being unknown. He'll last for a while. So will Tiziano Ferro, but he's lesser-known in the Latin region.

Will Win: David Bisbal. The "Operación Triunfo" alumnus is a superstar in Spain who has been heavily promoted throughout Latin America. And he has star quality.

BEST MALE POP VOCAL ALBUM: Should Win: Alexandre Pires' "Estrella Guía" is everything a pop album should be. Easy to listen to but challenging and full of good songs. Ricardo Arjona's "Santo Pecado" is a personal favorite ("El Problema" really should have been up for song of the year). Both are deserving.

Will Win: David Bisbal's "Corazón Latino," for the reasons listed before.

BEST RAP/HIP-HOP ALBUM: Should Win: An inspiring selection. Vico C's "Emboscada" and Orishas' "Emigrante" are polished and exciting albums.

Will Win: If U.S. and Puerto Rico voting dominates, Tego Calderón's "El Abayarde." He has had more press than any Latin rapper in recent memory.

BEST ROCK SONG: Should Win: What a tough call. "Amate y Salvate" is the best track on La Ley's new album, and "Mala Gente" by Juanes is hugely amusing for its sheer meanness. But "Frijolero" by Molotov is the truest rock track here, in spirit and execution.

Will Win: Even split between "Mala Gente" and Shakira's "Te Aviso, Te Anuncio (tango)," even though the latter is a Spanish version of an English track on an English pop album.

BEST SALSA ALBUM: Should Win: The least adventurous list of nominees ever. Gilberto Santa Rosa's "Viceversa" is an album that mines traditional material but also looks to new songwriters for inspiration.

Will Win: "Viceversa." Widely promoted, widely recognized.

BEST TROPICAL SONG: Should Win: There is a reason tropical music is in trouble: Radio only plays five tracks. And here they all are! I'll go for Bacilos' "Mi Primer Millón," which makes me laugh.

Will Win: "Por Más Que Intento" by Gilberto Santa Rosa. Classic.

BEST GRUPERO ALBUM: Should Win: Jennifer Peña's "Libre" raised new awareness of the genre. Límite would have been on this list, but a lead singer who threatens to leave every week (and finally does it) is no help.

PEÑA: IS 'LIBRE' FREE AND CLEAR TO WIN?

Will Win: "Libre" can rally both the Texas and the pop vote.

BEST RANCHERO ALBUM: Should Win: Pepe Aguilar's "Y Tenerte Otra Vez." Best album wins should go to studio albums with new material. "Y Tenerte" has that and sales to boot.

Will Win: Vicente Fernández, long spurned by Grammy voters, finally won this category last year. His strongest contender, Aguilar, is a past Grammy winner (not Latin Grammys). It's a toss-up, but Aguilar's sales have been far stronger.

Trio Of DVD Releases Savors Cruz's Sweetness

Celia Cruz would have been 78 years old Oct. 21. But nearly four months after she succumbed to cancer July 16, the legendary Cuban singer remains as alive as ever.

Not only are Cruz's albums still selling strong—"Regalo del Alma" and "Exitos Eternos" remain on the top 10 of the Billboard Top Latin Albums chart—but a series of DVD titles are set to open up new markets for the late singer.

Already out is "La Cuba Mía," a DVD/CD package released in September by Sony Norte.

Produced by longtime Cruz collaborators Oscar Gómez and Emilio Aragón, it was conceived as a 78-minute documentary on Cuban music hosted by Cruz and Spanish clown Miliki, who lived in Cuba for many years. In addition, the set incorporates a Miami concert that features Albita, Willy Chirino and Donato Poveda, among others.

"La Cuba Mía" was originally licensed by BMG, which released the album last year.

When BMG's license expired, Sony took over and released the CD/DVD set, which in addition to the documentary features videos and interviews.

The set will get a second wind when the documentary begins airing in November on PBS stations in Florida.

"Depending on audience reaction, PBS plans to release it on a national level," says Jorge Fonseca, A&R manager for Sony Norte.

Also in November, Havana Caliente will debut a DVD focusing on Cruz's life, "Celia Cruz: An Extraordinary Woman . . . Azucar!"

The DVD features interviews with Cruz, her friends and other musicians and is the brainchild of María Zenoz, president of Caliente Entertainment. Zenoz conducted most of the interviews during the past year and licensed dozens of musical tracks—35 in all—for the project.

The Cruz release is part of Caliente's strategy to expand into the DVD marketplace. In November, the label will also release a three-disc set (two CDs and a DVD) titled "Los Van Van Live in Miami." The set chronicles the Cuban group's 1999 performance at the Miami Arena.

"I see myself being more involved in the film side of things," Zenoz says. "It's far more interesting, and it captures the music better."

A third Cruz release is "Celia Cruz . . . Azucar!," a DVD that features a tribute of the same name that TV network Telemundo staged and aired last March.

Telemundo will release the DVD Jan. 27, 2004, while Image Entertainment will handle distribution. It will mark the first time the network has commercially released a DVD.

"We're doing a strong promotional push [during] our shows and through the network," says Emilce Algarresta, senior VP of production for Telemundo.

The network will donate all proceeds from sales of the DVD to the Celia Cruz Foundation. Telemundo did the same with proceeds from the original tribute.

However, Algarresta says, the DVD is not a mere replay of what audiences saw last spring.

"There are many, many things that weren't on the show," she says. "There's amazing behind-the-scenes footage of the rehearsal—Celia talking, and she sings [and] dances. She is amazing. It sends chills down your spine."

CRUZ: THE LATE LATIN LEGEND'S CAREER IS DOCUMENTED ON DVD

FOR KIDS: In other Celia Cruz news, the Celia Cruz Foundation gave $25,000 in scholarship money to seven New York City-area school children, ranging in age from 10 to 17.

All are music students recommended by their respective schools.

Following the scholarship ceremony, guests at the gala danced to a band led by Cruz's longtime friend, Johnny Pacheco. He summed up the occasion with these words: "The two best things in the world have the initials CC—Coca-Cola and Celia Cruz."

MTV SHINES: Muchos bravos to the MTV Video Music Awards Latin America for delivering an awards show rich in excitement and entertainment.

Biggest kudos goes to the brilliant opening medley, which featured rock and pop songs. Ricky Martin closed the opening number with his version of Fabulosos Cadillacs' "Matador," demonstrating that pop and rock can indeed coexist.

Meanwhile, best pop artist winner Natalia LaFourcade said in her acceptance speech, "I'd like to dedicate this award to good pop, because [it has] opened many doors."

IN BRIEF: Journalist Ed Morales, author of "Living in Spanglish," has written a book detailing the history of Latin music. "The Latin Beat: The Rhythms and Roots of Latin Music From Bossa Nova to Salsa and Beyond" (Da Capo Press) will be published Nov. 1 . . . After a year of "freelancing," Fulanito has re-signed with his label, New York-based Cutting Records, according to Ernie Nieves, the label's domestic/international licensing director. The three-album deal calls for a new release by year's end or first-quarter 2004.

NEWS FROM SOUTH OF THE BORDER

In Chile: The Web site of dominant Chilean retailer Feria del Disco (feriadeldisco.cl) has been selling songs by legendary protest singer Victor Jara since Sept. 15. Tracks are available for downloading for about $1 each as part of a joint venture with Warner Music Chile and the Victor Jara Foundation. Observers say the arrangement will help test the possibility of adding more songs by other artists and record companies.

In Puerto Rico: Venezuelan singer Ricardo Motaner and his manager, Topy Mamery, have ended their 15-year professional relationship. Mamery, the husband/manager of Puerto Rican singer Yolandita Monge, had until recently managed Motaner's stepdaughter, Noelia, who is Monge's daughter. Mamery continues to manage Montaner's two sons, Alejandro and Héctor . . . With an estimated audience of 20,000, rap/reggaetón act Don Omar performed two sold-out concerts Oct. 16-17 at the Roberto Clemente Coliseum in San Juan. The shows marked the first time a reggaetón act has played two consecutive dates at the venue. The 30-song performances included duets with guest artists Andy Montañez, Tego Calderón, Hector y Tito, Frankie J and Daddy Yankee.

RANDY LUNA

In Spain: Colombian pop star Shakira was appointed a goodwill ambassador for Unicef in a ceremony held Oct. 24 in Madrid. At 26, she is the youngest person to hold the post. Shakira "is young, committed and, like us, believes that things can really be changed," says Maria Zanca, head of Unicef's goodwill ambassador and special events programs. Shakira says, "I grew up thinking that one day I could help improve the world, and Unicef has given me that opportunity." The singer plans to release two albums in 2004, one in English and one in Spanish.

In Argentina: After 17 sold-out shows at the 7,200-seat Luna Park arena in Buenos Aires during September and October, popular folklore band Los Nocheros has launched a 40-date tour of Argentina. During a Luna Park presentation, the group received a series of certificates from Argentina's Assn. of Record Producers (Capif) for recent album sales. The group's latest release, "Estado Natural," and its 2002 live album, "En Vivo Teatro Colona," were both certified double-platinum for sales of more than 80,000 copies. For its 2001 release, "Señal de Amor," Los Nocheros was awarded a platinum certificate for sales of more than 250,000 units.
