CORPORATE STRUCTURE

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. (CBC) is a publicly-owned corporation established on November 2, 1936 by an Act of the Parliament of Canada to provide a national radio and television broadcasting service in the country's two official languages, English & French. Under this legislation, the CBC is responsible to Parliament, to which it reports each year on its operations through the Minister of Communications.

The CBC is financed mainly by public funds voted annually by Parliament. Supplementary revenue is obtained from commercial advertising on CBC Television. CBC Radio is virtually free of commercial advertising.

The CBC operates an English television network; a French television network; English and French AM radio and FM stereo networks; and the National Satellite Channel which delivers to Canadians the proceedings of the House of Commons via satellite & cable. As well, CBC operates Newsworld—a 24-hour national satellite-delivered English language news and information specialty service. The CBC Northern Service, broadcasting in English, French and seven native languages and dialects, serves the special radio and television needs of Dene, Indian, Inuit, Metis and non-native groups in the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and Northern Quebec. Radio Canada International is Canada's voice abroad. Broadcastiong on shortwave, RCI's information programming reflects Canada's political, economic, social and cultural spectrum to an international audience. RCI also produces programs for use by leading broadcasters in the world's major radio markets.

CBC transmission methods include leased channels on the Canadian space satellite Anik, plus more than 100,000 kilometres of microwave and landline connections.

Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) is the national membership organization of 174 public television licensees, which operate 341 stations. It serves as the national distributor of public television programming, obtaining its programs from member stations, American independent producers & distributors, and foreign TV systems and distributors; PBS is not a production entity. The member stations support the private, non-profit corporation's service-oriented functions through annual programming and membership assessments. PBS services include: Program acquisition, distribution and scheduling; education services and video marketing; national program promotion; development & fundraising support; broadcast & technical operations; engineering & technology; audience research. PBS is governed by a 35-member Board of Directors, which includes 16 lay directors representing stations' governing boards and 13 professional directors from station management, elected by PBS member stations to three-year terms; five general directors, elected by the lay & professional directors to three-year terms; and the PBS President.

Television Translators

As of September 4, 1991
VHF and UHF Channels

Asterisk (*) preceding a listing indicates construction permit(s). Dagger (†) preceding a listing indicates application only. All others are licenses. Transmitter power output (TPO) is given at end of each listing; all translators are one watt (1-watt) unless otherwise indicated. Channel numbers are contained in call letters. For example, Ch. 4 is indicated for Adak Alaska by K04LY. Call letters and location of station repeated are in parentheses. This listing includes all existing & proposed translator stations, including those which are owned & operated by television stations.
