How Airplay Monitor Works . . .

Airplay Monitor and Billboard Magazine utilize the data provided by our sister company Broadcast Data Systems for all of our radio airplay charts. BDS currently monitors over 1100 radio stations broadcast in more than 125 markets, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. In each market, BDS uses a patented computer technology that "listens" to these broadcasts, identifying songs as they are aired. The electronically monitored station information provides Monitor with the industry's most accurate and credible charts. Here's a thumbnail sketch of the technology and its use in Airplay Monitor:

In each market, individual monitors store thousands of unique electronic "fingerprints", the pattern created by BDS' computers for each song in the system. As a station plays a song, the digitized broadcast signal is compared with the patterns loaded into the monitor's computer. Once the computer has recognized a song pattern, the system identifies the time, date and station for that play. At 10:00 PM each evening, the local pattern library is updated and the day's detection history is transmitted from each monitor to BDS' central operating facility in Kansas City. By early morning, BDS electronically redistributes the information in report form to their customer's computers, and to Airplay Monitor.

Once received from BDS, this data is used to compile the many airplay charts in Monitor and Billboard. Charts are ranked either by total detections or by audience. The detection charts tabulate the amount of times a song was played. The audience charts are computed by cross-referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data. This provides an overview of total gross impressions for a song among radio listeners.

How can my record get detected?

A song can only be detected once there is a pattern or "fingerprint" made of it. BDS encodes every piece of media it receives free of charge. New technological advances have allowed BDS to be able to “encode on the fly”-selectively creating new patterns for songs that are not in their library. This is not available in every market, however, so it always best to send BDS a copy of anything that might be played. This is especially important for any local music and special mixes. Send CDs, tapes, DATs, or 12" vinyl to BDS at 8100 NW 101 Terrace, Kansas City, MO. 64153, ATTN: Encoding Department.

How can my station be monitored?

Each individual monitor has 10-15 slots available - each accommodating a different broadcast signal. Each of these stations needs its own library of song patterns. These libraries range from approximately 1500 patterns for the Country format to over 4000 for Top 40 stations.

Whenever we look at adding a new station to Airplay Monitor's format panels, the following issues exist: First is whether the existing monitor can physically receive the new station's signal. The next issue is whether there is enough capacity remaining on that monitor to add the new signal and whether there is room in the computer's memory to store the new station's library.

Assuming there is a clear signal and additional capacity, the next issue is a matter of priority. We constantly strive to monitor every significant station in the marketplace. We assign each prospective reporting station a priority level, the highest priority given to those stations with the highest ratings in the market in the formats that Airplay Monitor covers.

There isn't enough room here to describe every nuance of this incredible system. If you have more questions about BDS or how it is used in Airplay Monitor, please feel free to contact me at 646-654-4624 or spietroluongo@airplaymonitor.com or Monitor's Publisher Jon Guynn at 323-525-2306 or jguynn@airplaymonitor.com.
