by Michael Ellis, Publisher

As a follow-up to last week's column, we'd like to give you more information on the major technological upgrade planned for BDS later this year. The new system will improve BDS' already high level of accuracy in identifying currents and recurrences in several ways.

The most obvious improvement will be the new procedure for identifying titles which have not been encoded, such as special mixes or songs otherwise altered by local stations. All unidentified songs will be stored digitally and identified later the same day by either the master computer in Kansas City or by a staff of music experts who will listen to the unidentified songs.

Another improvement is that under the current system, whenever a local monitor goes down for a significant period of time, the previous day's plays are reused. Under the new system, the audio digitizer in effect will serve as a backup in each market. The digitized information can be listened to by the computer in Kansas City, thereby virtually eliminating the need to ever apply reuses. And by utilizing the digitizer we will be able to double check time periods in which no detections are recorded, thus distinguishing between special programming (e.g., oldies weekends in which none of the titles are encoded) and monitor malfunctions. With the new system all suspected downtime (i.e., any period in which no detections are registered) will be stored and listened to manually if necessary to correctly identify what the station was playing.

We take very seriously our responsibility to provide the industry with the most complete and accurate monitoring possible. As you can see, this major upgrade of BDS will go a long way to eliminating as many potential sources of errors as possible.

Records showing an increase in detections over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A record which has been on either chart for more than 20 weeks will not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections. Airpower awarded to those records which attain 800 detections (album) or 400 detections (modern) for the first time. If two records are tied in number of plays, the record being played on more stations is placed first. Records below the top 20 are removed from the charts after 26 weeks.
