Acme Claims Code Illegal

LNVT-AEA say ducat pact protects public — testimony reveals highlights

NEW YORK, March 11.—During the four days of hearings before Referee Morris Cooper Jr., in the injunction suit against the theater ticket code, plaintiff Acme Theater Ticket Office sought to prove the code an illegal conspiracy to deny brokers the right to do business, while the League of New York Theaters and Actors Equity Association defended their pact as a producer's business right and as a measure in the interest of the public. Disposition of the litigation is expected about April 1, both sides planning to submit briefs within a week, before the referee makes recommendations to the court.

Highlights in testimony included William McBride's admission that he was contributing to the cost of the litigation; statement drawn from William Deutsch, treasurer of the Associated Theater Ticket Brokers, that the code saved the public $1,000,000 a year; revelation that the Acme, an unaccredited brokerage, received $25 for a pair of $4.40 tickets; that digging and ice continue to some extent; that the League collected $11,942.75 via the 3½-cent tax from the brokers; that about $6,000 was in arrears, and that $1,600 was spent by the League in policing the code.

Frank Gillmore, president of Associated Actors and Artists of America, and Paul Dullzell, executive secretary of Actors' Equity Association, attacked buys and associated evils, charging the advance sales established unreasonable premiums which cut run of shows and hurt the theater as a whole. Brokers charged intimidation in signing of the code.

Tax Proposal Again Rears Its Ugly Head in Pennsy

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 11.—A proposal to again levy an amusement tax in Pennsylvania was introduced in the House of Representatives this week despite Governor James' budget promise that there would be no new taxes imposed by the present Legislature.

Youngsters Dominated Top Tunesmiths Last Year

NEW YORK, March 11.—A summary of the outstanding songwriters of 1938, discussed in detail in a story on this page, reveals that those tunesmiths and lyricists who turned out the greatest number of hit songs belong mostly to the younger generation of Tin Pan Alley, bred during the last couple of years.

Prominent among the consistent hit writers are Frank Loesser, Johnny Mercer, Terry Shand and Jimmy Eaton, Frank Churchill and Larry Moray, and Eddie DeLange and Jimmy Van Huesen, most of whom are comparatively new to the words-and-music business. Of the veteran songsmithing contingent Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, Hoagy Carmichael, Irving Berlin, Cole Porter and Mack Gordon and Harry Revel number among the most prolific and successful writers of last year.

Play Activity In Film Ranks Cheers B'way

NEW YORK, March 11.—Three developments this week—the first sale of film rights to a play on the film-royalty basis, reports that Warner Brothers may seek release from the film producers' pact not to finance shows under terms of the Dramatists' Guild contract in order to subsidize a new play next year, and resumption of negotiations for the establishment of a contract to supplement the present Guild basic agreement for Hollywood—raised hopes of Broadway that Hollywood angels would be more plentiful next season.

Sidney R. Fleisher, play negotiator for the Guild, announced the sale of film rights to Philip Barry's The Philadelphia Story, now on tryout tour, to a buyer whose name is not included in the contract. Gossip that Katharine Hepburn, who is starring in the production, is buying it herself.

Warner Brothers' interest in financing Sidney Kingsley's The Outward Room marks the first weakening of picture companies since their revolt against the DG terms three years ago. If the deal materializes, backbone of solid opposition would have been cracked, opening way for return of other picture producers to Broadway.

After many postponements, J. Robert (See PLAY ACTIVITY on page 21)

TMAT Levies 1% Salary Tax To Make Up Treasury Deficit

NEW YORK, March 11.—Unrest and tribulations, which are mounting for the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers' union as contract expirations loom, appeared clearly at a monthly meeting Thursday, when the union voted to levy a 1 per cent tax on salaries of employed members to patch up a treasury deficit. Threats to prevent transfer ability within the union from press agent

Oldtimers Shaded by Young Blood in Quantity of Hits

Frank Loesser is top man with five best selling songs last year—Rainger and Robin equally potent—Johnny Mercer lyrics on four hits

NEW YORK, March 11.—Within the short space of a year Frank Loesser, Paramount Pictures' staff lyricist, was responsible for the words of five best selling song hits, entitling him, according to a survey by The Billboard of last year's tunes and their writers, to the nomination of 1938's outstanding songwriter. The breakdown was based upon the copy-selling strength of songs released during the year, as evidenced by The Billboard's weekly listing of the 15 sheet-music leaders, rather than the radio plugs list, inasmuch as the former is more truly indicative of the general public's acceptance of a song, whereas the air plug situation is largely the result of the efforts and expense accounts of the music publishers' professional staffs.

Almost tied with Loesser for the honor of being the country's most consistent 1938 hit provider is the team of Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, until recently, under contract to Paramount as staff writers. This duo climaxed an association with the studio of several years by turning out five numbers during the year that made The Billboard list—the same number of tunes that bore Loesser wordage—but no one of them achieved first place. Loesser's Says My Heart, with music by Burton Lane, was a No. 1 seller for three weeks, giving him the edge. The five Rainger and Robin tunes were Ebb Tide, Thanks for the Memory (which won the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award as the outstanding film song of the year), You Took the Words Right Out of My Heart, What Goes On Here? and What Have You Got That Gets Me? Loesser was represented by Houdja Like To Love Me?, music by Burton Lane; Heart and Soul, Two Sleepy People and Small Fry, with Hoagy Carmichael tunes, and by the already-mentioned Says My Heart.

Toppers Stay Tops

NEW YORK, March 11.—Since the start of the new year eight of the songwriters who distinguished themselves by contributing a liberal supply of hits during 1938 have continued to demonstrate why they are entitled to top ranking among the tunesmithing gentry.

During January and February, new songs from the pianos and pens of Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, Johnny Mercer, Irving Berlin, Cole Porter and Hoagy Carmichael have come along to join the best sellers these writers turned out last year.

Finding places among The Billboard's weekly listing of the 15 best sheet-music sellers since January 1 to date have been three Rainger-Robin numbers from Bing Crosby's Paris Honeymoon film, I Have Eyes, You're a Sweet Little Headache and The Funny Old Hills; the Gordon-Revel title tune from 20th Century-Fox's Thanks for Everything; Could Be, another Mercer lyric, this time to a Walter Donaldson melody; Berlin's God Bless America; Porter's My Heart Belongs to Daddy from the musical comedy smash, Leave It to Me!, and Carmichael's I Get Along Without You Very Well, for which Hoagy did the unusual (for him) by penning the words as well as the music.

Also since 1939 got under way, Peter De Rose stepped out with a ballad that in the future will be to him, in all probability, what Stardust is to Carmichael. Deep Purple is the De Rose hit, in a dance arrangement of an instrumental number the composer wrote several years ago and which has been available under that title as a piano solo since its first publication by Robbins in 1934. Simplified and embellished by a Mitchell Parish lyric (Parish performed the same service for Stardust), the Robbins reissue of Deep Purple as a pop song has become a No. 1 tune and gives every indication of turning into a standard of Stardust caliber.

RADIO'S SYNDICATED BLAH

Radio Only Field Where P. A.'s Pen Widely Syndicated Columns

NEW YORK, March 11.—At least four press agents in radio, two of them independent and two of them with stations, write radio columns used in a total of 1,500 to 2,000 newspapers. In no other field of entertainment does a situation of this nature exist, and one of the principal reasons it does exist is because of newspapers' attitude towards radio. This attitude is largely that they will not spend money to cover the field if they decide to cover the field at all. It is also one of the reasons why, with the exception of Charlie Butterworth's syndicated Associated Press radio column, Homer Canfield's Coast radio column published in about 18 papers and one or two other radio pillars used by a few papers, no individual or syndicate has ever been successful in selling a radio column. There have been several unsuccessful attempts along these lines.

Earle Ferris, Tom Fisdale, Leon Goldstein and Al Simon are the radio p. a.'s writing columns various sheets publish. Ferris and Fisdale are independent press agents; Goldstein is press agent for WMCA and Simon for WHN, both New York stations. Columns go out to the papers in mat form.

Understood that Ferris' column goes to between 800 and 900 papers. Formerly written under the byline of R. F. Service, taken from Ferris' Radio Feature Service publicity organization, it now appears under his own name.

Fisdale has a tie-up with the Western Newspaper Union syndicate whereby a column he writes is matted by them and sent to about 1,085 publications.

Simon's column goes to about 100 newspapers in the area fairly close to New York. Goldstein's column goes to 25 papers in the same territory.

Most of the press agents follow the same policy in not limiting the material to their own clients or stations but using the run of radio names.

Advantage to independent press agents of such deals is obvious, since it assures clippings.

TA Reorg Issue Up; Four A's Frowns on AFA Policing Idea

NEW YORK, March 11.—A constitutional amendment which will switch control over allocation of funds from the charity groups to the unions will probably be voted on at the April 6 meeting of the governing board of the Theater Authority. The subject has been under discussion for the past two months. Under consideration, too, is plan for administering relief for the newer members—Screen Actors' Guild, American Guild of Musical Artists and American Federation of Radio Artists—which now do not have relief funds of their own in the East. Responsibility for policing benefits will probably remain under direct supervision of the TA's executive secretary despite dissent of the American Federation of Actors, which has proposed that policing be done thru the unions rather than directly with performers.

At present, the Catholic, Jewish, Episcopal and Negro actors' guilds and the Actors' Fund and the Stage Relief Fund—recipients of the Theater Authority intake—outvote the unions whose members bring in the dough.

Having met that issue, unions will then decide on affiliation with present charities to administer funds to their members rather than set up new boards which would only be a costly duplication of existing bodies. Already AGMA has appointed a committee to investigate the Musicians' Emergency Fund with a view to getting that fund to look after its members. On West Coast, Motion Picture Fund acts for all the unions. Suggestion has been made that a central body, under direction of Associated Actors and Artists of America, operate in the East. State laws which forbid transfer of charity moneys beyond their borders may require TA's establishing branch offices—another costly item.

AFA's stand that policing or disciplining of members must be done thru communication from its headquarters instead of directly to members was not supported by sister unions of the Four A's.

Frank Gillmore, speaking as a TA executive rather than in his capacity as head of Four A's, viewed it as impractical. The AFA's raising that issue has been discussed informally by Four A's reps, and it may be taken up by the International Board, but as yet the Four A's has not taken an official stand. However, Mrs. Florence Marston, of Screen Actors' Guild, said, "We couldn't tolerate such a thing. The present policy of policing will not be changed." AGMA and Actors' Equity spokesmen concurred, holding that the indirect method of policing would defeat the purpose of TA by impeding its speed.

CLEANED BY MEMBERS OF THE BILLBOARD STAFF

The purpose of this department is to benefit producers, bookers, agents and others concerned with the exploitation of talent in the major indoor fields thru The Billboard's coverage of every branch of the show business.

SHOWMEN INTERESTED IN SPECIFIC "POSSIBILITIES" MAY ADDRESS THEM IN CARE OF THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF THE BILLBOARD, 1564 BROADWAY.

For FILMS

DICK ROGERS—comedy vocalist caught with Will Osborne at the Strand Theater, New York. Was formerly with Bob Murphy's act in vaude. A little fellow with a tremendously dynamic delivery, he has been a regular show-stopper for years. Does hoke comedy singing and, with the aid of his forceful personality and excellent salesmanship, clicks heavily. Recommended for feature musical films. Has already appeared in shorts as a part of the Osborne crew.

For LEGIT MUSICAL

JOHNNY BARNES—young blond lad caught in Frank Fay's vaude show at the 44th Street Theater, New York. Has been in show business only a short time but already shows terrific promise. A fancy tap dancer who suggests Bill Robinson in his technique, he knocks out a multitude of fast and clean taps and has a variety of easy, flowing routines. Should develop into a top-flight tapper. Is ready for a revue spot now.

LTC's Offices Moved to N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Headquarters of Arthur M. Oberfelder's Legitimate Theater Corp., formed to block-book legit for one-nighters, have been moved to New York, where Fortune Gallo, concert and operetta impresario, will manage the block-booking, guaranteeing showings of Golden Boy, On Borrowed Time, What a Life and either Hedda Gabler, or Master Builder, starring Eva Le Gallienne.

Gallo is now general manager and chairman of the board. Oberfelder continues as president of the corporation and agent on the road lining up dates. Sixty-two cities have been signed to date, Gallo announced, correcting impression, also that the LTC was confining its activities to the West Coast. Contracts cover all parts of the United States and Canada, he explained. Each date returns sponsors $1,250 per play per night. Matinees will net additional profit, corporation varying terms from percentage basis to flat sums.

Bookings are now spreading in the South, Nashville having signed last week.

Equity-AGMA-Chartok Plan

NEW YORK, March 11.—Committees from Actors' Equity and the American Guild of Musical Artists are mulling a plan submitted by S. M. Chartok for a sponsored radio program whose financial returns would revert to the unions' coffers. Equity officials indicated there was little likelihood of the plan's going into operation this season at any rate, because radio's summer lull was too close at hand.

Coincidentally, the Dramatists' and Radio Writers' guilds are considering a similar project submitted by B. Franklin Kamsler.

IT COMES to us from sources of unimpeachable reliability that there is a powerful movement on foot within the ranks of the American Federation of Musicians to bring up on the floor at the convention in June the proposition of limiting band bookers' commission to 10 per cent. It is important at this time—when there is still plenty of opportunity for the matter to be discussed pro and con before rash action is taken—that the issues be made clear. It would be a grave misfortune both for musicians and the music business in general if such an important step were taken without every possible angle being discussed fully and dispassionately—and with the interests of all factors in mind.

Along very general lines we highly approve of limiting commissions on talent bookings. In fact, this is a proposition we have favored in the vaudeville booking business as far back as we can recall without referring to dusty files. But the band booking business is quite different from any seemingly similar branch of the talent industry. What applies to vaudeville, circus, radio, burlesque and other branches cannot apply in most cases to the band business. And the reverse also holds true.

If the AFM were to legislate in favor of a limitation of 10 per cent commission on bookings it would help considerably many of the tanktown bands that are now suffering greatly from the greed of bookers who rule their little kingdoms with iron fists. But the bands that have torn themselves away from the lower strata; that are on their way up the ladder—these bands will be hurt irreparably. So will the big bands at the top of the heap, the bookers who are largely responsible for the success of most of the bands and the band business generally.

In the larger centers, and particularly in New York, there are few cases of exorbitant commissions. Commissions vary, of course, with bands and offices, but it is possible to strike an average that takes in at least 90 per cent of the booking business carried on in these centers. The small-city bookers and bands have long been operating on a basis of from 20 to 30 per cent commission. It is conceivable that this condition will continue to prevail regardless of AFM legislation. The result would be, as we see it, that the passage of a law or resolution limiting commissions to 10 per cent would be followed by strict enforcement on the part of the responsible elements in the business with the attendant hardships and a definite impediment in the path of bands near the top of the heap and still climbing.

The bands that have big-name potentialities and are now being pushed by far-sighted bookers owe their good breaks to the present elasticity of commissions permitted by the hands-off policy of the musicians' union in matters of this kind. A booking office handling a firmly established band that is holding its own has a comparatively easy selling job on its hand as far as expense is concerned. The worst part of the job is behind the booker. He can concentrate his skill on bartering for increased salaries and various concessions that are important and peculiar to the band booking business.

On the smaller bands, however, the booker has to go to great expense and trouble. He has to be more agile and versatile than the protean actor. He has to wine and dine talent buyers; he has to spend money on publicity, long-distance calls, wires, transportation; he has to be a salesman, an entertainer, a Mercury, a dramatic artist all rolled into one. We'd like to meet the booker who, with all of these qualifications, is still dumb enough as a business man to go thru the routine in anticipation of an absolute maximum of 10 per cent commission on the dates he delivers. The unassailable fact is that he doesn't exist. No ruling of the AFM or any body will (See SUGAR'S DOMINO on page 26)

MILTON J. CROSS (This Week's Cover Subject)

MILTON J. CROSS was born in New York City. His high-schooling took place at De Witt Clinton, and then his fondness for music propelled him into the Damrosch School of Musical Art, from which he graduated as a duly accredited musical supervisor for public schools. He has never made use of that diploma, for chance started him in radio, even tho his whole background of training had been pointed toward music, and radio at that time was in its swaddling clothes.

Cross sang with the Paulist Choristers on a country-wide tour, was a soloist at the First Presbyterian Church in Manhattan and a member of the quartet at the Progressive Synagogue in Brooklyn, and then fate, in the form of a friend with an early receiving set, stepped in and Milton stepped out of music as a career. Cross listened to his friend's static-filled radio, became fascinated by it, hurried over to the Newark station whose growing pains he had heard on the set, and got himself a job, first as a singer and later as an announcer. His debut as the former took place in September, 1921; his first program as a word-slinger occurred in March, 1922. And the station was WJZ, before it joined the National Broadcasting Co.

Milt concentrated on his announcing with the intention of making it as much of an art as singing. How well he succeeded may be adjudged by the fact that he won a medal for diction from the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1929, the first time such an award was made. Another distinction came to him when the Poor Richard Club, well-known organization of advertising men in Philadelphia, awarded him a medal.

The two broadcasts Cross is most fond of are the Metropolitan Opera performances and NBC's Children's Hour "Coast to Coast on a Bus," which he has conducted for more than 13 years every Sunday morning on WJZ. And when he can get away from these and other programs he goes in for his favorite exercise, horseback riding.

Broadway Beat

By GEORGE SPELVIN

A CERTAIN radio columnist felt not too good the other evening when he was introduced at a night club opening as a celebrity and the boos and hisses overshadowed the applause. . . . There'll be a battle of billing in orkdom's royal house next week; sign painters are tagging Jimmy Dorsey, "the King of the Saxophone," for the Strand Theater lobby when Jimmy opens at that house March 24—while further down the street, two days earlier, when Charlie Barnet starts his stretch at the Paramount, marquee lights will herald "the New King of the Saxophone." . . . Another civil war, huh? . . . A pair of press agents who divide their earnings 50-50 will eat this week; one of them's doing jury duty, and the check goes into the common coffers. . . . The Beethoven Society, when it gives its annual concert of archaic string quartets and such April 2 at Town Hall, will go way out on the classical limb: the shade of Beethoven will be overshadowed by "boogie-woogie"—for Meade Lux Lewis and Albert Ammons, exponents of that brand of pianology, will be the featured artists at the concert. . . . There's talk now that the John Barrymore-Elaine Barrie show will never see the lights of Broadway; at any rate, Barrymore's reading other scripts, one of which is the not entirely new Coriolanus, by Bill Shakespeare, a guy who wrote a couple of other shows that have been smashes this season. . . . An outfit called the Brooklyn Civic Theater is in the works, to be run along stock company lines but with a list of guest stars that includes Jane Cowl and Helen Hayes—at least according to the plans. . . . Speaking of the Barrymore show (see above), the casting office has been flooded with more than twice the usual number of applicants (which is quite a few applicants), most of them admitting that they want a job primarily so that they can say they've played with John Barrymore.

The World's Fair nude question is getting hot, with a news-printed battle on between Eleanor Holm and Sally Rand concerning their figures (what a thing to fight over!) and with talk that Dorothy Lamour may do an au naturel mermaid in the Billy Rose pool—but there's just a chance that an unknown may cop the honors. . . . It may be that the shocker to stimulate the fair gate will be Eve Arden, last seen doing a Lady Godiva in a Paradise Restaurant floor show. . . . Charlie Barnet, the sax title claimant, has been made an honorary member of the National Swing Clubs of America, an honor bestowed on only nine other hot hornists. . . . The Frairs' annual frolic is set for April 30 at the Alvin Theater. . . . Kelcey Allen says he hasn't written his memoirs yet because, after giving every friend, relative and acquaintance a cuffo copy, he'd get a sinking feeling when he walked into a bookshop and saw a stack of the tomes in the pile labeled "19 cents each." . . . Marie Dumont, owner of the Crisis Club, is making The Place her rendezvous these days; most night club owners have favorite hangouts—usually other night clubs. . . . All the bartenders at Cafe Society, down in the Village, are vets of the Spanish civil war. . . . Dale Carnegie devoted his March 3 syndicated column to Bernard Zuffall, mentalist. . . . The former Casa Cubana may reopen soon as the Hollywood Terrace. . . . Belle Dow, who heard plenty of jitters talk from kid patrons when she had Artie Shaw's band playing the Paramount, Newark, is still trying to figure it out.

CRANBROOK, B. C., March 11.—People of Cranbrook, Kimberley and the surrounding small communities would rather have liquor than be amused; in fact, they'd five times rather, an unofficial survey of the area shows. Investigators found that for every dollar the public spends on attending visual amusements, movies, plays and concerts, it spends $5 at the two government liquor stores.

E. O. Sykes Resigns Commission Post

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Commissioner Eugene O. Sykes revealed today he had submitted his resignation from the FCC to the President. He told Roosevelt that "after 12 years continuous service as a member of the Radio Commission and its successor, the Communications Commission, I have the honor to tender my resignation as a member of the Communications Commission. If agreeable to you, I would like to have it effective at the close of the business day, 31st instant."

The President declared he would accept the resignation.

The judge, it is reported, will enter private law practice here with a former general counsel of the FCC. However, he would not comment on his future plans tonight, expressing his attitude as one of waiting for official acceptance before making any comment on his resignation.

Washington observers, however, immediately concerned themselves over the chances of Chairman McNinch in retaining his present control of the commission since Sykes has been in most instances voting with the chairman. The question now asked in Washington is whether the administration will consider an immediate appointment to succeed Sykes in order to maintain McNinch's power or whether it will strictly observe its philosophy that fewer commissioners are better for peace and tranquility.

½-Hour Lads' Rehearsal Pay

NEW YORK, March 11.—Assistant stage managers are entitled to full salaries from the start of rehearsals if they then report for work, just as are stage managers, Council of Actors' Equity will announce in forthcoming number of Equity Magazine. Issue arose recently when a producer failed to make payments during rehearsal, interpreting the Council's ruling for stage managers as applying only to the heads.

AEA Finds Barton Guilty

NEW YORK, March 11.—James Barton, former Yeeter Lester of Tobacco Road, was found guilty, as charged by fellow members of the cast, at a special meeting of Actors' Equity Council yesterday, and will receive a letter of reprimand Monday. Charges included use of abusive language off stage to Cynthia Arden, conduct which cost jobs of two members of cast, and additional costs to the management.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Paul Munro, radio director and producer, joined Lambert & Feasley advertising agency this week to handle Listerine's Grand Central sketch series. Munro, recently with Transamerica and previously with CBS and on Lucky Strike's Hollywood Parade, was selected out of over 360 candidates for the job.

St. Louis Benefit Nets 2G

ST. LOUIS, March 11.—The Variety Club, Tent No. 4 of this city, netted approximately $2,000 at the benefit dinner dance and midnight show held here last Saturday, March 4, according to Louis Ansell, chief Barker. Charity effort was in behalf of the German refugee children.

Paul Whiteman played to 350 guests at the dinner-dance held at the Coronado Hotel at $5 per plate. Following the dinner, Whiteman also appeared at a midnight show at the Fox Theater, for which 5,400 tickets were sold at $1 per. A variety of specialty acts and two feature pictures were also on tap. Johnny Perkins emceed the show.

E. Roosevelt Impresses at FCC; Hits Webs' Talent, Wax Business

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Another Roosevelt voice rang out in Washington this week to demand a change in the Communications Act. This time it was Elliott Roosevelt, speaking as a broadcaster. Occasion for the President's second son to speak against current regulations by the Federal Communications Commission was the closing days of the FCC hearings on regional broadcasters. As head of the Texas State Network, Roosevelt asked the FCC to request of Congress the power to grant radio licenses on an indefinite basis. Six months, three years or any specified period wouldn't mean anything to the security of the broadcasting business, he declared, since bankers in loaning money like to consider the borrower safely established in a permanent business.

It took the FCC two days to satisfy itself that it could write no more from him in sessions that were the first reporters from the general press attended in weeks of "monotony" hearings.

Censorship, license life, sale value of broadcast stations, network contracts, the Havana Treaty, transcriptions, artists' bureaus and ASCAP all received some of his attention. Censorship—there shouldn't be any and the Commission should steer clear of it. License life—should be indefinite and given as a certificate of convenience. Sale value of broadcast stations—its going business value, whether a dime or a million. Network contracts—should be rigidly supervised by the FCC, as exclusivity clauses violate the purposes of radio licenses. Havana Treaty—the State Department hasn't been forceful enough and should resort to pressure. Trans-

FTP Doom Looms

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Byrne's bill, S. 1265, now being considered by the Senate Special Committee to Investigate Unemployment and Relief for the Committee on Appropriations, dooms the arts and educational projects of the Works Progress Administration by omitting them in its program of activity for the Department of Public Works which it seeks to create. Unless amended, or unless other federal legislation to the contrary is introduced, the Federal Theater, Music and Writers' projects will be dismissed by July 1.

Lunts' 3G in Jackson; Sock N'Orleans Acoustics

JACKSON, Miss., March 11.—The Lunts, doing a single performance of Idiot's Delight in the Bailey Auditorium March 1, drew a gross of $3,000 in this city of 48,000, with hundreds turned away after SRO sign was forced out. Armand Coulet, manager of Jackson Music Association, sponsor of appearance, said that addition of several rows of special seats in aisles of auditorium failed to fill demand for seats. Coulet hopes to land more Broadway successes for next season following big receipts. Lunts drew high praise from Jackson press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 11.—Following four well-attended performances in huge Municipal Auditorium here March 2 and 3, Alfred Lunt was loud in his complaints of poor acoustics of "fixit" legit spot.

"If New Orleans only had a theater. We had to scream things in that big auditorium that should not be screamed. It almost spoiled our performances." He was joined in his complaints by Miss Fontanne. Both expressed the belief that New Orleans would be a good show town if the city would build a legit theater instead of forcing shows into a big solid concrete building of 12,000 seats.

Last of city's legit houses fell under ax several years ago when the old Tulane was removed for a parking lot.

scriptions—were very good for small stations; the FCC rule requiring identification before and after was an aid to networks; talent was just as good and was only used once. Artists' bureaus—networks should be forced out of the business (same recommendations in regard to transcriptions). ASCAP—music fees plus talent unions were taking too much from stations.

All of these recommendations interest. (See E. ROOSEVELT on page 9)

Summary of The Billboard's Surveys

RECAPITULATION OF DAYTIME SURVEYS REVEALS PERCENTAGES CONSIDERABLY LOWER THAN NIGHT SHOWS, MAINLY BECAUSE OF DIFFERENT LISTENING CONDITIONS... "MA PERKINS" LEADS

By JERRY FRANKEN

THE second portion of the recapitulation of the 10 radio program surveys conducted for The Billboard by the Market Research Corp. of America covers daytime programs. In making these 10 surveys, 25,000 radio listeners were interviewed, half of that number for evening programs (published in last week's issue of The Billboard) and the other half on daytime programs. The 10 cities or towns in which the surveys were made will be found on top of the chart on page 7, the cities being listed in the order in which the surveys were made. The locations were chosen primarily for geographical coverage of typical American centers.

The daytime program listing, as might be expected, consists largely of the various five-times-a-week serial "strips." In all the daytime programs, the highest percentage of listening runs to 11%, a low figure when compared to the nighttime leaders. On this page are boxes showing both the daytime and evening leaders, so that comparisons may easily be made. The program with 11 per cent is Father Coughlin's series, over which there has been so much controversy lately. However, it must be noted that only two cities reported hearing the priest's program, and the general rule is that percentages tend to decrease as the number of cities increases. This is perhaps borne out by the fact that the second ranking program, the Radio City Music Hall's Sunday morning series, with 10%, was also mentioned in only two cities.

The leading daytime commercial is another Sunday NBC offering, RCA's "Magic Key" variety session on Sunday afternoons, which returned a 9 per cent rating and was heard in seven cities. Following this is a tie, at 7%, between "Ma Perkins" and Major Bowes' Sunday morning series on CBS.

Serials' Free-for-All

Because the serials are on daily, a number of them, such as "Ma Perkins," "Pepper Young" and others, totaled more mentions, comparatively, than many others less frequently broadcast. But because, by the same token of broadcast frequency, so large a number of people were interviewed to provide these scores for the program mentions the percentages are low. Whether in view of the frequency of broadcast the accompanying number of mentions represents a satisfactory share of the radio audience cannot be said, although the answer would seem to be in the negative.

It may be that the daytime serial is its own worst enemy because so many are broadcast. This may be even more true because the serials are so much alike in their general "hokey" nature and since practically all of them rely on material which is more or less alike in nature.

At any rate, with the exception of such programs as the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra broadcasts (6%), U. S. Marine Band (5%), Farm and Home Hour (3%), Breakfast Club and Club Matinee (3%), the remainder of the list of daytime programs is made up of the daily serials.

As noted, "Ma Perkins" returned the highest serial strip percentage, 7, with "Women in White" the next highest, 6%. Three serials each have 5%, these being "Guiding Light," "The O'Neills" and "Pepper Young's Family." In view of high positions held by the "Pepper Young" series in the individual surveys, its final position is somewhat lower than was expected.

At 4% are four programs, "Mary Marlin," "Stella Dallas," "Affairs of Anthony" and "The Gospel Singer." These in turn are followed by a dozen shows, each with 3%. This list, as well as those programs which returned 2%, 1% and "LT" (less than 1%) will be found both in the page 7 chart and the box listing daytime programs on page 6.

Daytime Factors

In considering and studying the daytime figures certain essential factors must be borne in mind. According to research experts, daytime surveys are exceedingly difficult to analyze, especially as compared to nighttime programs. Daytime serials, for instance, have widely assorted types of coverage, in that they resort to rebroadcasts, electrical transcriptions and split networks of unusual design. Equally, if not more important, is the difference in (See SUMMARY OF on opposite page)

Spot Showmanship; Rubinoff, Boran Set

NEW YORK, March 11.—Street & Finney have set a 13-week wax series with several radio names, program marking the return to commercial radio of Dave Rubinoff, orchestra leader, who recently recovered from a long illness. With Rubinoff are Arthur Boran as featured comic and emcee; Buddy Clark, singer, and Graham MacNamee, announcer.

Over 200 stations are expected to get the series, plugging Untied Drug and Rexall products. Boran has also been set by Street & Finney for a one-minute transcription campaign for Carter's Little Liver Pills, with the stunt to be used marking one of spot broadcasting's smartest wrinkles. Boran, a mimic, will start the platters off doing an imitation of some star. Announcer will then explain that what the listener heard was not the McCoy, but an imitation, and that while imitations are good, not to buy substitutes, etc.

NBC Retrieving Lost Network Biz

NEW YORK, March 11. — Network switches following the Amos 'n' Andy program going to CBS for Campbell soups, away from the NBC Red after 11 years with NBC, have NBC retrieving enough business to make up for the loss, partially at least. NBC has just about clinched a deal for the Amos-Andy spot, with Chesterfield Cigaretts the new time buyer. Ciggie firm will probably use a sports resume for five or six nights a week. Last year Paul Douglas did this show for Chesterfield and very likely will repeat. He is now on the Coast but due back with Burns and Allen, who head east soon.

NBC also landed the Old Gold ciggie account for the Blue, to follow Information Please Tuesday evenings, the Betty and Bob series moving up half an hour. Doc Rockwell's recently inaugurated sustainer may move to another spot or perhaps fold.

CBS has announced a new summer policy, allowing advertisers time reservations and a new discount system in accordance with total time and network purchased.

Biz Gets Biz

NEW YORK, March 11.—Charlie Wilshin, of the WMCA Artists' Bureau, recently booked a club show for the Bellevue Hospital attendants' annual affair. They liked the show so much they told their friends, and a week or so later Wilshin got a call from one of those to whom the Bellevue gang spoke. New customer was the city morgue employees' group.

Understood the actors who played for the morgue workers were warned to use plenty of make-up and so avoid possible confusion.

of one or the other network stations in that territory was considerably weaker than it is at night. This is due, of course, to the fact that nighttime radio coverage is larger than during the day. These differences in reception and listening conditions should be remembered in studying daytime programs and comparing them with evening programs.

The listening percentages shown are arrived at by dividing the total number of program mentions by the total number of interviews covering the periods during which the programs were broadcast. If a program was mentioned less than five times in a city the mentions were not credited and the city did not figure in the program's tabulations.

Song Pluggers Burn at H'w'd Brush and So Do the Brushers

HOLLYWOOD, March 11.—Friction between song pluggers and artists and producers of Coast-to-Coast air shows hitting the lanes from Hollywood is rapidly drawing to a head. Both sides are defiant, pluggers declaring artists won't give them a break and artists and radio producers stating that song pluggers have brought the situation on themselves.

One producer declared that song pluggers have become thick as termites and that they drop out of trees on hapless artists. A radio ork leader stated, "Every time I lift a coffee cup I expect a song plucker to crawl out and try to sell me a tune."

On the other side of the fence, song pluggers bemoan that, since radio has become a top entertainment medium, the artists have become injected with that "gone Hollywood" serum. It was pointed out that NBC here only allows song plucker in the studios from 11 to 1 in the afternoon and that they are barred during other hours. One plucker pointed out that nobody of any importance was on hand during those hours and that unless they resorted to devious methods to get their songs before the noses of the artists they would never get a break.

While NBC has taken steps to curb the plucker's activities in its studios, CBS has opened up its buildings, barring song merchants only in studios where rehearsals are being held. This has apparently caused more confusion, as it leaves the hallways and lobby the only possible place for the pluggers to contact artists and producers.

Only method ever worked out in Hollywood whereby pluggers and radio people could talk biz was worked by Raymond Paige when he had Hollywood Hotel. After several months of having pluggers do everything but sleep with him, Paige called them together and stated he was tired of being started at all hours of the day and night by having a professional copy stuck under his nose in the most unexpected places. A deal was worked out whereby pluggers could contact Paige once a week and get a chance to sell their wares. Once a week all the pluggers met Paige at a cafeteria and had lunch. Paige declared if the plucker was flush he could buy lunch, if he had the shorts he could still go for a cup of coffee and manage to get in on the bidding. This system assertedly worked out to the best interest of both parties. With 30 or 40 pluggers around him once a week, Paige was able to pick the tunes he wanted and give all the boys a chance to tell their stories.

Same situation is and has been true in New York as to pluggers. Fred Waring started the cafeteria lunch idea about three years ago and still uses it when broadcasting.

Benton-Bowles Due Hollywood Scram

HOLLYWOOD, March 11.—At the completion of their present commitments this month the Joe Penner and Jack Haley shows will be dropped. Joe E. Brown airer has been inked for an additional 13 weeks. What future plans Benton & Bowles have for Hollywood radio production is not known, but surface actions would indicate that the agency is considering leaving the flicker capital. Burns Lee, head flack for Benton & Bowles on the Coast, goes to New York on April 1 to act as assistant to Helen Strauss, of the agency's Eastern office.

Altho it has been stated that MGM is definitely due to bow out of Good News, it is believed that Maxwell House, bankroller, is taking steps now to whip a show into shape to replace.

Reasons given for the Penner bow-out were that General Foods was not satisfied with air time and heavy overhead incurred due to necessary rebroadcast of the show.

Report that General Foods was dropping its Coast radio shows was first published in The Billboard several weeks ago.

WIP, WPEN Sells Socks Hunks of Night Business

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Two of the largest sales in local radio history were consummated here last week when WIP sold a single block of 34½ hours and WPEN obtained a sponsor for a 12-hour weekly program. Dawn Patrol, WIP's all-night program, was purchased by Pep Boys, a chain of automobile accessory stores. Running from 1 to 6:45 a.m. Wednesday thru Monday, the broadcast, presided over by Fred Wood, features request recordings, news and weather reports and comment. Inaugurated last December.

The Parisian Tailors, thru the J. M. Korn Agency, are sponsoring WPEN's Night Club of the Air, with Joe Dillon at the helm, heard between 10 and 12 p.m. six days weekly. Previous participants on this program were shifted to other spots.

WDAS reports the sale of two sportscasts. The talks of Harold (Buzz) Davis have been purchased by Kahn's Department Store, while the 15-minute spot of Lane McCurley, Daily News sports editor, has gone to a tailoring firm. No agencies participated.

WBBM's Earlier Schedule

CHICAGO, March 13.—WBBM here advances its morning schedule 45 minutes with the introduction of its Farm Journal hour today from 6 to 7 a.m. Feature, which hasn't been used on the local CBS outlet for years, will pipe in Bobby Cheshire's National Hillbilly Band from St. Louis and use staff announcers in reporting farm news, stock reports, sports and news of neighbors.

Sears Follows Field

CHICAGO, March 11.—Musical Clock, one of WBBM's oldest morning transcription shows, will be sponsored by a new firm on the eve of its 10th birthday when Sears, Roebuck & Co. takes over the reins March 27. Marshall Field & Co., local department store, had this 7:30 to 8:30 show for nine consecutive years, employing Halloween Martin for time announcements and using a variety of recordings.

Placed thru McDunkin Agency on a 52-week contract.

Radio Talent

By JERRY LESSER

THE passing of Bob Hague has cast a gloomy pall over the Lambs Club. Bob was vice-president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, and for the many years of the depression was the financial wizard of the Lambs. If not for his many generous contributions this actors' club might have gone the way of many other grand clubs. He loved the actors and was in return loved by all who knew him. One of his many generous deeds was to allow any member of the club in ill health to travel on Standard Oil freighters free of charge for as long a voyage as was necessary to regain his health. The list of signatures expressing condolences to Bob's family is one of the longest ever to be posted on the Lambs' bulletin board. May he receive as many blessings in heaven as he bestowed here on earth.

WELL, I'm making another prediction, and we'll see whether my batting average stays 100 per cent. The prediction this time is that you will be hearing a great deal about Eudice Shapiro in the near future. Miss Shapiro is a graduate of Curtis Institute of Music, where she now teaches violin. She has been offered work with one of the better symphony orchestras and has turned it down to do concert and radio. I heard her as a guest artist on a recent Ben Bernie broadcast and predict a great future. . . . Jay Jostyn's first radio show was done on the Coast for Irving (BBDO) Mitchell in 1932, and his first New York air show was also for Irv on Renfrew in 1936. . . . Jimmy Tranter was originally cast in the role of Dick Stanley on Lorenzo Jones. Then it was found that his voice was more suitable for Henry, Lorenzo's nephew, so he's playing that part now. . . . One of the finest examples of teamwork in radio is given by Eleanor Phelps and Fred Baron in the new serial, Dr. Susan. . . . Bill Wright is back east with Al Pearce and his Gang. He has revived an act with Al called Eb and Zeb, which they did many years ago. While on the Coast Bill was heard as the city editor on Eddie Robinson's show, Big Town.

WARD WILSON, who does the Man in the Box on the Phil Baker show, resumes his old role of Beetle this week. Ward will double both parts from now on. . . . Harry Neville, who played the role of Bunthorne on last week's Patience (NBC's Great Plays), traveled thru the Orient with the Bandman Comic Opera Co. 34 years ago, and this was his first performance of the role since that date. Altho Harry is one of radio's oldest actors, this was his debut as a singer. . . . Blanche Field, who, besides radio, does ballet work with the Metropolitan Opera, received praise from the critics for her scene in which she directs the ballet in Thais. . . . Secret Agent K-7 Returns is back as a recorded series with George Zimmer doing K-7. Mitzl Gould plays Rita Drake, Dwight Weist is B-9, and Charlotte Chayne is also in the cast. Johnny Holbrook announces. . . . Eunice Hill has returned from a week's visit with her folks in Cleveland, O. . . . Jimmy Bachus, radio actor, has married Alice Keene, a Philadelphia girl who is making good on Broadway. . . . New Columbia Series To Plug Wax Subsid

NEW YORK, March 11.—CBS is understood to be planning a big-time variety program to replace the Swing Club it is canceling in two weeks. New sustainer will be used as a medium to plug the recently acquired CBS subsidiary, American Record Corp. Before the show starts a sustainer out of KMOX, CBS station in St. Louis, will fill in, it is said.

Talent on the show for ARC will very likely vary somewhat each week to give listeners an idea of the different phonograph records available. This is somewhat along the lines of RCA's Magic Key series on NBC, which plugs all RCA companies, including Victor.

Swing Club was a champ sustainer, aired almost four years. One of the reasons the network is dropping it is because of budget curtailments. Web has received quite a number of squawks from jitterbugs who want the program continued. Swing series was unique in that the biggies of the field came over and worked at strictly union rates.

Program Reviews

EST Unless Otherwise Indicated

"Welcome, Neighbors"

Reviewed Wednesday, 8:30-9 p.m. Style—Interviews. Sustaining on WOR (MBS network).

This new series featuring interviews by Jerry Danzig and Dave Driscoll. WOR's Let's Visit duo, is a tie-up with the New York World's Fair. Until the fair opens, interviews will be in the station's studio, after April 30 from the grounds. People working at and visiting the fair will be interviewed. Inaugural program had Mayor La Guardia and several of his cabinet. Health Commissioner Rice, License Commissioner Moss and Police Commissioner Valentine. Program is a large hunk of free advertising for the fair; it couldn't have been more of a commercial for the expo if it had been paid for.

Hizzoner the mayor provided a lively 5 or 10 minutes in his breezy personable style and can probably get a job as a radio emcee any time he wants to get out of politics. The Little Flower is strong on personality, whether for radio, pictures or administration. However, one comment he made is wide open for controversy—when he said lodging rates had not and would not go up during the fair period. If that's true the hotels have rescinded recently announced rates and rescinded them secretly. The mayor said that if any rental hijacking went on to let him know.

The mayor rather paled his associates, whose mike and showmanship styles do not measure up to his. Commissioner Valentine, however, spoke with considerable punch. Each city department head told of the steps he had taken to handle the influx of visitors, as well as issuing warnings on how to take care of yourself while in New York. Commissioner Rice warned, among other things, against sore feet from excessive perambulations around the fair grounds.

There's also a question and answer spot, gal from the fair staff giving info on costs of tickets when fair opens and the like.

"Time To Chat"

Reviewed Friday, 2-2:15 p.m. Style—Talk. Sponsor—Co-Operative. Station—WEBR (Buffalo).

Succeeding Mary Manners' Hostess Club on this daily spot, this program is a decided improvement. Instead of indulging in housewifery advice and hints this new commentator gives her female audience credit for some interest in the higher things in life, and conducts her spot in a clever and impressive yet humorous way. Ruth Paige does not in all instances claim to be original in the use of her material, but uses gal of several columnists, such as Walter Winchell or other news and movie commentators, to spike up her repertoire of human-interest stories. The incidents used in her script all had some amusing twist and included a yarn about a marriage ceremony that was halted at the crucial moment for a most unusual reason.

Style of presentation is an intimate, gossipy, light chatter that skips along at a fast pace. Miss Paige's voice is pleasant. By using original quips and sarcasms which are above the average routine stuff dished out to daytime dialers, she holds her audience interested even thru the commercials, which are well worded and snappy. Her way of working them in with the rest of her script is admirably smooth.

When heard, Miss Paige plugged for the Dexter Rumsey real estate firm, advertising a new apartment building, which she described so attractively that even the reviewer felt tempted. Other sponsors were the O'Rourke Baking Co., advertising Blue Seal Bread, and Hess & Benant, plugging homogenized milk. Sponsors vary with each broadcast. Warner.

Model Minstrels

Reviewed Monday, 8:30-9 p.m. Style—Comedy and music. Sponsor—United States Tobacco Co. Agency—Arthur Kudner, Inc. Station—WABC (New York).

Encouraged apparently by the success of Tom Howard and George Shelton on a couple of guest shots recently, Model Tobacco (did you say 10 cents?) has acquired them regularly for its Model Minstrels show, replacing Pick and Pat on the comedy end (did you say comedy?).

For cominess and age, the Howard-Shelton collection of alleged gags is unbeatable. Theirs is the brand of humor that, more than any other one factor, is responsible for denying to radio the universal respect and admiration for its entertainment quality that it should and could achieve. Far-fetched, elaborately built-up but pointless gags (90 per cent of which have whiskers down to there) don't belong in radio, circa 1939, and the sooner Howard and other comedians still living in the comedy past but fortunate enough to rate a network show realize it the better for a great entertainment medium. A performance like this makes one wonder if possibly the FCC isn't investigating the wrong things.

The only listenable part of the Model (did you say model?) show is the male chorus, which luckily is given more to do than it might have been. Choristers handle everything from The Caissons Go Rolling Along to I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen, stopping along the way to pick up a pop or two, and do a fine job of glee clubbing. After Howard and Shelton, the vocalizing was like a cold shower in July. Even the commercials were a welcome interlude.

"Manhattan Mother"

Reviewed Wednesday, 9:15-9:30 a.m. Style—Dramatic serial. Sponsor—Procter & Gamble. Agency—Pedlar & Ryan. Station—WABC (CBS network), New York.

Manhattan Mother has a broader thematic range than the title suggests. Its crux is the problem of the leisure class to keep busy and out of mischief. This installment packed away a lot of good copy adequately administered when it uncourtained a young matron who retires professionally for a wealthy second marriage. Restless for lack of activity and faced with her husband's frequent business trips, she makes easy prey for floating males. Her only daughter, her husband's valet and her old family physician visualize the catastrophe and hint of doing something about it.

Only Patricia Locke, played by Margaret Hillias, shapes up clearly at inauguration. The intruder, husband and daughter should take on fascinating color as the plot unfolds. Unsophisticated Bump, the valet, has possibility of becoming a favorite supporting member because he's the type of character who will preserve the earthy genuineness of a show. Weiss.

Comment

This column is devoted to brief reviews of programs which have been on the air for some time, as well as shows, which, already reviewed, rate further mention. Basis is that a one-time program review is inadequate for a production that varies each time it is presented.

IF A competition were held to award some sort of prize for radio's crummiest and most annoying program, it would probably go hands down to EDWARD PARRISH, whose morning health talks are heard on WOR. Both in the content of his comments and in his microphone technique, Dr. Parrish has an amazing ability to gripe and annoy. Voice is grating and anything but dulcet, and while it certainly isn't necessary to be dulcet, some sort of harmonious vocal qualities would help and are conspicuous by absence.

Program sells, among other things, a product called Cal-Par. It is supposed to do wonderful things.

And on the other hand, one of radio's best programs is, of course, the weekly FRED ALLEN madhouse. NBC's recent gift to the sponsor, Bristol-Myers, in putting the show on WJZ at midnight, when it rebroadcasts to the Coast, affords an excellent opportunity to get a load of Allen's many ad lib. nifties. Whether because it's late at night, or the company is more relaxed, or for some other mysterious reason, the star of the program invariably breaks up practically everybody on the show by his ad libs. They're worth tuning in just for themselves. That makes the whole show a little more worth listening to.

There also is much to be said for the commercials on this series. Its always been more or less acceptable to have the quality of a radio program much higher than the quality of the commercials, but this is not in effect on the Allen series. Written by Young & Rubicam's Joe Moran, the sales spots for Ipana and Sal Hepatica are invariably excellent. They're almost always novel, frequently exceedingly ingenious and pretty certain of not only holding listeners' interest, but, more important, selling the stuff.

Vic, of Stella Dallas, has just jumped off some high place or something and unquestionably is going to get himself hoited. My, my.

HENRIK WILLEM VAN LOON, despite a rather furry accent and a none-too-good microphone technique, makes his commentaries on NBC really worthwhile listening. Coming to the mike with a considerable reputation as writer and historian, his remarks on the program caught concerning the new Pope shed considerable light on the position of the pontiff, past and present, and the relationships between that office and important nations. His account of the schisms in the church made for rapt listening and his comparisons between the hardness of the church and democracy were really striking.

Of course, the accent cannot be remedied, it would seem, at this late date. However, overly noticeable breathing and script rattling should be easily checked. The point is however, that VAN LOON makes the listener forget those minor detractions as soon as he gets going on his comments.

Also many sustaining shows try to maintain a bantering air, few of them succeed. In most cases the scripts bogging down like the one-hoss shay in a swamp. NBC's fantastically titled The Saturday Morning Sitting, Standing and Jumping Club does a much better than average radio sustaining job. Paced by ALLEN PRESCOTT, whose own fault it is that he is known also as the wife saver, the show dishes out a satisfactory and occasionally downright good mess of stuff. NORMAN CLOTTER, NBC staff radio leader, sees to it that his crew does not fall into the usual drab sustaining category, a feat he usually manages to do on all of his many non-commercial spots. BRICK HOLTEN does a good job on his vocals, with FRANCES ADAIR not quite as satisfactory. A stooge billed as UNCLE OSCAR helps PRESCOTT in dishing out nonsense and in a sketch burlesquing travel adventure yarns. PRESCOTT has a lot on the ball and can easily stand as emcee on a major commercial. The entire program, for that matter, could stand a sponsor. J. F.

spersed between direct and cross-examination were given with an unmistakable confidence. Because his father is perhaps the most studied individual in the world today, the mannerisms of young Roosevelt were subject to constant comparison with those of the White House incumbent, even to his grin and habit of consuming rather than smoking cigarettes.

Networks, he argued, needed close supervision of the FCC both in contracts and in their subsidiary fields. The negotiations between World Broadcasting and the Columbia Broadcasting System gave him the impression that Columbia was "trying to catch up to NBC," and he added that NBC rules prohibited connection between independent transcription companies and NBC studios. Advertisers, he said, had to give their transcriptions to NBC if they wanted to put their NBC radio programs in other parts of the country.

Criticizes Chains
His words provided the commissioners present (McNinch, Sykes and Walker) with much food for thought as he pointedly declared that network operations, altho in the public interest, under certain conditions violated the purpose of radio when engaged in artists' bureau and transcription businesses. Another objection he had to network operations was the exclusivity clause in affiliate contracts. He declared that local advertisers have to shift their time on 28 days' notice to accommodate some advertiser in New York, Chicago or Los Angeles.

Washington observers now anticipate longer radio licenses before the end of the year, but they do not believe that either Congress or the Commission is willing to go as far as the recommendations of Roosevelt fill. His other views, it is believed, will find more acceptance, especially those concerning network operations. The chains in time will find the contracts with affiliates face to face with "special regulations" covering their conflict with local service. The capital does not believe that the webs will be forced to divest themselves of holdings in artists' bureaus or transcription firms. However, if embarrassment comes in these quarters it is possible that the webs will take voluntary steps to restrict activities to broadcasting.

Next week the Commission will begin to hear the American Civil Liberties Union, the American Guild of Musical Artists, Norman Baker (the Iowa broadcaster who lost a bout with the FCC over KTNT), Congress of Industrial Organizations, L. L. Corwell & Son, IRNA and the National Committee on Education by Radio.

Network contracts will be a feature of the Independent Radio Network Affiliates' testimony.

CLUB BOOKERS NAT'L ISSUE

Weber Studies Agent Practices For Convention Consideration

May propose policing for all club bookers—club work constitutes 62 per cent of music employment in New York—Arons has more bookers on the carpet

NEW YORK, March 13.—With 31 orchestra leaders before the trial board over the weekend for interrogation, at which time their contracts with club bookers were sifted, Local 802 is ready to submit another batch of names of agents to Bert Henderson, of the AFM, with the recommendation that their booking licenses be revoked. All on the same charges of underscaling and cutting, club bookers caught in this newest trap include Hal Gorman, operating as Times Square Artists' Bureau; Evans & Lee, Billy Perch; Fred Walker, operating as Walker Entertainment Bureau; Harry A. Shea, Lew Sharp, Al Dell, Dan Harrington, Brown & Lissman; George Arken, operating as Continental Amusements Co.; Bill Robbins and Al Romano.

Max Arons, trial board chairman, indicated that the investigation is far from being finished and that the union execs are meeting with Joe Weber, AFM prexy, this week to discuss the entire club booking industry. Member musicians of the union have been notified that any, who either by fraud or deceit, submits a contract signed by a dance committee running an affair in which any revoked agent has any interest whatsoever, will automatically expel himself from the union.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Because of wholesale chiseling and underscaling revealed by Local 802's probe of the club booking biz in New York, it is expected that Joseph N. Weber, AFM prexy, will make a detailed study of the entire industry. And if conditions in other cities warrant it he will make it one of the major issues of the annual convention this June in Kansas City. Desire to force a thoro clean-up of the agents stems from the fact that such bookings are the chief economic mainstay of rank and file union members. In New York club bookings account for at least 62 per cent of the membership's employment, and union execs hold that this proportion is even greater in other key cities throughout the country. Union has no intention to exclude club agents from band bookings (See CLUB BOOKERS on page 12)

Lincoln Ops Plan on Summer Shutterings

LINCOLN, Neb., March 11.—Undercurrent of feeling here among the dance ops that an agreement should be made for the good of the business may soon arrive at conference table status.

R. H. Pauley, manager of the class Trumpke Casino, and Matt Kobalter, of the stag-line Pla-Mor, are willing to drop the three months' summer operation to Harry King, of King's Ballroom on the Capitol Beach amusement park grounds, if he'll stay out the nine months. Consensus of opinion is that biz would be better all around.

Childs Gets CRA Release

NEW YORK, March 11.—Reggie Childs, ork leader, secured his release from Consolidated Radio Artists today from Charlie Green, CRA prexy. Band has been one of the agency's biggest one-night attractions during the past year. With his severance complete, Childs will sign up with another management office this week. Cress Courtney, formerly with CRA's already shuttered Dallas office, is band's personal manager.

Hellzapoppin' for Pops

NEW YORK, March 11.—When Paul Whiteman celebrates his birthday on March 27 it's going to be a caper-cutting party rather than a cake-cutting.

Whiteman is affectionately known to his intimates as "Pops," and Olsen and Johnson will turn their Hellzapoppin' hysteria at Winter Garden into a Hellzapoppin' for Pops that birthday night. Whiteman and his entire band are making it a theater party, ostensibly to enjoy the show. But Olsen and Johnson have some celebrating-a-birthday ideas of their own.

Planned Program At Det. Dansant Booms Dance Biz

DETROIT, March 11.—The modern generation not only demands excellent dance music when patronizing a ballroom, but is also "entertainment hungry," observes Paul Strasburg, operator of Ballroom Grande, who marks his 30th year as owner and operator of ballrooms in and about Detroit.

"In ballrooms or dance halls where beer and liquor are not served," he said, "the ballroom has in the past offered practically nothing except about four hours of straight dancing. It is difficult to create a night club or cabaret atmosphere in any ballroom with capacity for from 2,000 to 4,000. Analyzing this situation, I determined to find a band which could incorporate entertaining features throughout the evening. I found that novelties and little acts were met with great enthusiasm, and attendance increased immediately. It broke the monotony of straight dancing.

Song Theme Each Set

"With this definite program before me, we incorporated a 'Planned Program' for each evening, each dance set having its own characteristic features. My orchestra leader, by verbal announcement, advises my dancers at intervals during the evening the program which will ensue during the following hour. In this manner the dancer will know just what is coming and can plan his program so that he will dance his rumba set, or his sweetheart set, or the jam session set, etc., with the girl most proficient in that style of dancing. On other nights are incorporated such novelties as The March of Time, nursery rhymes, a complete set of mountain music, etc. Each selection carries out the definite theme adopted for that set, which virtually makes each set an individual 'little presentation.'

"We in the ballroom business realize that the dancing public today is extremely music wise and music conscious. They are educated by radio and phonograph and definitely know, expect and demand good music. Consequently, my leader has to build the entertainment novelties and acts around good substantial danceable music that will compare favorably with the popular bands my patrons hear on the air.

Plan Varies With Crowds

"The adaption and proper presentation of the various rhythms and tempos into a 'Planned Program' has not only held my old customers but has brought in thousands who like a diversified, planned program of dancing and entertainment. We, of course, change the program on various evenings. On Friday night, when we are catering to the younger dancers, the leader uses more swing and ride sets. On Saturday night, when a more adult crowd attends, swing is replaced by sweet, and more waltz sets are added. However, without the help of a competent leader and an excellent orchestra no ballroom operator could hope to make this type of program a success."

Holding down the band-stand post for Strasburg for the past two seasons is Ben Young, who brought his band in here from Texas.

Mills to Europe On Platter Deal

Seeks royalty share from RPS—may license Master label on indie basis

NEW YORK, March 11.—Irving Mills, head of Mills Artists and managing director of Master Records distributed by American Record Corp., sailed today (11) for London to confab again with Louis Sterling, England's platter mogul, to arrange for the release and distribution of his recordings abroad. Mills' deal with American gives him a 50 per cent control on foreign distribution of Master records. On his previous visit matter of sharing in the royalties derived from the Royal Performing Society stymied negotiations. About three months ago Mills made an independent deal with the British Broadcasting Co. permitting his labels to be aired by that network.

In England radio stations pay RPS royalties for airing platters, money going to the phonograph companies, which in turn give a portion of it to the artists and to the music publishers. Since his catalog includes waxings of Duke Ellington, Raymond Scott and dozens of other outstanding swing personalities, Mills feels that RPS would enjoy increased royalties in which he should enjoy a proportionate share.

Unless he can work out an equitable deal with RPS, Mills will arrange to license independent record companies and free-lance distributors to release his Master recordings and collect performing fees direct from the radio stations.

Names for Harlem Casino

PITTSBURGH, March 11.—Harlem Casino, only black-and-tan hottery in Smoky City wooing the palaface mid-night rouders, changes its entertainment policy to make way for the name septia bands. McKinney's Cotton Pickers tee off March 24 on a two-week stretch. Lew Mercur, nabob, angling for fortnight follow-uppers in Fletcher Henderson, Earl Hines, Erskine Hawkins and Chick Webb.

Toppi Has B.-O. Blues

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Jimmy Toppi, new operator of Dance Box Ballroom, is banking on a battle of swing next Saturday to stimulate biz. House band, Kimmy Pettis, will square the stand with Jimmy Gorham, local septia senders. Lent and wet skies have been giving Toppi the box-office blues since lighting up this dansant a few weeks ago. Operating on Tuesday and Saturday, with Pettis for the music, past week's attendance netted only 692 paid admissions at 40 cents per for a losing gross of $276.40.

NOT ONLY are the other recording companies ganging together to keep Eli Oberstein from securing a recording license, but sources close to Joe N. Weber tip that the AFM prexy is not eager to grant any recording license to any combine that includes automatic music machine men . . . music chief, they say, doesn't want to put the union in the middle when the NAPA, comprising the union's maestri, start levying a license fee on the automatic vics . . . Willard Alexander, of MCA, is working out a deal with Joe Glaser to take over Andy Kirk, Glaser continuing as personal manager . . . Willard is also building a band around trombonist Jack Jenney, their first date a recording date at the American waxworks . . . Jimmy Dorsey gets his release from Decca and may switch to the Brunswick-Vocalion label . . . Raymond Scott is mulling the idea of building a band around his Quintet . . . Gray Gordon accomplished the almost impossible in inking a new recording binder with RCA . . . moves up from the cheaper priced Bluebird to the six-bit Victor label . . . It's usually the other way around . . . after all these years, the cats are beginning to congregate at the Swing Club on 52d swing street . . . reason being Sally Shannon and her Dixie Debs, a paleface gal fronting four copper-colored gals going gushy on the gut-bucket.

Chicago Chat

FREDDY MARTIN, due to the sudden shuttering of the Coconut Grove on the Coast, takes in an early return to Andrew Karzas' Aragon Ballroom . . . opens Saturday (18) with DICK JURGENS moving over to the twin Trianon, where BILL CARLSEN closes a two-month stretch the previous night . . . both Martin and Jurgens swap stands on April 9, carrying on till the end of the month . . . JOE VENUTI was originally set for four weeks at the Trianon, starting April 9, and his stretch will undoubtedly be pushed back . . . Karzas, also, will be hosting ARTIE SHAW for the first time, the swingmaster piping at the Aragon April 15 and 16 . . . Carlsen, incidentally, has been set to start the summer at Oh Henry Park Ballroom . . . the WEEMS BROTHERS Art and Bob, are back at their R-O-K booking desks after confabs with the home office in New York . . . ROGER PRYOR broke up his band temporarily after completing his week-stand at Chicago Theater returned to the Coast with frau Ann Sothorn . . . BERNARD KREISLER, brother of CRA's Ed, leaves the Loop for a managerial post in Washington at the Universal Pictures exchange . . . JACKIE HELLER is expected back here to build a new band after his South American vacash . . . rumors ridin' the Loop have FRANKIE MASTERS severing his MCA managerial tie.

Doings in Dixie

JIMMY LOSS opens this week for MCA at El Patio Marino, new niter in Daytona Beach, Fla. . . . GAIL OLSEN, Meyer Davis unit, draws a second hold-over at Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, N. C. . . . closing at Century Room, Tulsa, Okla., BOB STEPHENSON goes touring in Southern towns . . . deal is on fire for R-O-K to service the Surf Beach Club, Virginia Beach, Va., with band-stand attractions every four weeks thruout the summer . . . figure on BERT LOWN as a starter May 27, with follow-uppers in Will Osborne, Al Donahue and Larry Clinton . . . Lown, incidentally, may sign his band with the office, having previously booked for the agency . . . depends on R-O-K setting him to follow Glenn Miller into Glen Island Casino, Long Island, N. Y., midsummer.

Cocktail Combos

Reports are all of the rave variety on the THREE SUNS, new strolling unit current at De Witt Clinton Hotel, Albany, N. Y. . . . as a result MCA is setting the Suns for a stroll around the Statler Hotel circuit . . . head stroller, incidentally, is ARTIE DUNN, brother to the Dunn of vaude's Cross and Dunn . . . MARIA KARSON, at Hotel Onesto, Canton, O., is mailing a smart promotional piece on her Musicales . . . brochure is well-tailored and her story well told, more persuasive than some of the big-band pieces that hit our desk . . . there's a new band and a new show at the Glass Hat of Belmont Plaza Hotel, New York, but the ADRIAN ROLLINI TRIO carry on . . . JOE PACHECO brings his cocktail combo into Sir Francis Drake Hotel, San Francisco, Thursday (16), strolling thru April 11 . . . CLUB BOOKERS but will keep close check on their practices so that they are in full compliance with union rules and regulations in every instance.

With Max Arons and the 802 Trial Board continuing to examine every club date booked the past year, those agents already found guilty are now operating under close surveillance of union stewards. Money is being paid to the local in advance for all dates on their books, and the local is holding a portion of it in escrow. Today (11) Arons is examining a steady parade of club agents who were called before the board for interrogation, with more license revocations expected.

Agents Relent

This week a committee of three, representing the Associated Entertainment Directors' Association, 14 of whose 21 members had their band booking licenses revoked, called upon the union and offered to co-operate in cleaning up chiseling within their own ranks. In other words, according to the local, they admitted their guilt and even went so far as to ask the union to suggest changes in their association's by-laws.

That Child Is Here Again

In line with the booking probe, 802 execs this week began negotiations for a closed-shop agreement with the National Hotel Men's Association. Next round robin is scheduled for March 20, and drastic action on the part of the union is expected in the event the hotel managers are not amenable. Chief plaint of the hostelry tycoons is that they don't want to be responsible for guaranteeing Again representatives for Childs Restaurants attempted a settlement on their kickback case involving $24,000. Previous week they offered to settle for $5,000. This week they raised the ante to $7,500. And again the local has rejected the offer, holding out for the full amount.

DUDLEY L. WILSON was re-elected president and business manager of the Spokanc, Wash., musicians' union. R. L. McMullen was re-elected secretary. Other new officers are Charles Reemer, v.-p., and Leslie Taylor, treasurer.

From C's to C's

PITTSBURGH, March 11.—It was only two years ago that Artie Shaw first came to town as a virtual unknown for 15 century notes a week at the Willows, suburban nitery. This week Shaw is back in Smoky Town. But this time he'll grab off 13 grand notes for the seven-day stretch. Income takes in $7,000 for his week at the Stanley Theater, $4,000 for his commercial air show and $2,000 for a private dance at William Penn Hotel after stage hours.

Clinton's $2,376 Click

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 11.—Making his third return trip this season to Ritz Ballroom last Sunday, Larry Clinton proved a decided hit. Last time here box office was scaled at 99 cents. Tariff this time was 88 cents, and 2,700 shoved and pushed their way thru the turnstiles to pile up a beaut take of $2,376. Only bands drawing a larger attendance at the Ritz were Horace Heldt and Sammy Kaye.

Hutton TNT at Rose Bowl

CHICAGO, March 11.—Ina Ray Hutton attracted $4,300 in cash trade at the Rose Bowl here in the first five days of her initial Chi cafe engagement. Minimum is $2.50, and while room seats only 125, heavy spenders have been turning out. Hutton aggregation, including band and two floor acts, is in for $2,100 a week and recently drew a holdover thru March 26. Stand marks the first for a name band attraction at the Bowl.

En Route to Texas, PW Leaves Trail of Beaut B.O. Draws

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 11.—En route to the Southwest Exposition and Rodeo, which started last night, Paul Whiteman left behind a string of sizable box-office takes. After a fairish start at Parkersburg, W. Va., where the Lions Club just about broke even last Tuesday, Whiteman jumped to Athens, O., for the Ohio University prom on Friday night. Collegians shelled out $5 per couple, and with 1,200 dancers making a $3,000 box office, campus dance committee reported profits on the prom.

Following day, Saturday, in St. Louis under auspices of the Variety Club, with refugee orgs benefiting, 600 turned out at $10 per plate for the dinner dance at Hotel Coronado. And that same midnight, under the same sponsorship, 7,000 persons jammed the Fox Theater at $1 a ducat for a single concert and show performance. On Sunday and Monday at Belvedere Club, Hot Springs, Ark., dance the take hit over $3,000. Dining room of the club holds about 500, and the room was filled to capacity both nights at $3.36 per head.

Rain Holds Breese to $560

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 11.—Despite inclement weather, Lou Breese was able to bring 850 dancers last Sunday into the Rink Ballroom here. Attendance was an average figure, and with ducats peddled at 66 cents gross was $561. Rink brings in traveling names each Sunday, box-office scale remaining the same for each attraction.

When a Band's Manager Sets Records, It's News

NEW YORK, March 11.—Harold Oxley, Jimmie Lunceford's manager, took a flying trip to Memphis last week, where the band was playing a date, and returned after setting what must be a couple of records. Record A established Oxley as the first person, probably, to be injured in a plane without benefit of a crash. Trip down was so bumpy he was tossed out of his seat and injured a rib so badly he required hospital treatment in Washington.

Record B occurred when, en route again, the plane made a routine landing at Nashville, Tenn., at 3:38 p.m. Stretching a leg, Oxley quite unexpectedly ran into Harry Gest, local dance promoter. The ship took off again at 3:55, and in the interim Harold had sold Lunceford to Gest for two dance dates.

Martone's Big Sat. Night

DAYTON, O., March 11.—Johnny Martone gave Lantz's Merry-Go-Round its biggest Saturday night biz of the season last week. Band attracted 1,404 door admissions at two bits each, making it $351 before the patrons started shelling out for sips and snacks at the tables. Martone is winding up his second month at Lantz's, Ohio's largest nitery, and is held over for a third.

BOB ALVARDO, bowing out of the shuttered Venice Cafe, Vicksburg, Miss., locates in the same city at Ace Club. Maestro was formerly pianist-arranger for Herbie Holmes.

$900 No Gravy With Garber; Dixon Dandy For a Two-Day $610

LINCOLN, Neb., March 11.—Jan Garber pulled a fairish $900 into the Turnpike Casino gate, $1.35 top, on Thursday billing, which is a hard day to get a terp crowd out. R. H. Pauley, in selling the band, leaned hard on Lee Bennett, Garber's vocalist, who once sang here on KFAB, where he was an announcer.

Gene Krupa, at the University Junior-senior prom on Friday, stole the spotlight from all the affair's traditional stuff. Did neat business and broke the committee even. Had the night all to himself, since none of the other dance spots ran in opposition.

Lee Dixon, at Turnpike, topped the Saturday-Sunday play in spite of bad weather. Dixon, repeating back from last week, took 125 more admissions in the two days than the same period a week previously for a two-day gross of $610, very nice.

Smith Stuffs $2,300 Net

CHICAGO, March 11.—"Stuff" Smith and his hot combination played to the most profitable January trade the Blue Fountain Room of the La Salle Hotel enjoyed since opening for business several years ago. Booked in on a gamble due to the decidedly different types of bands employed in this hotel spot, the Smith bunch netted the room $2,300 profit in January. Smith is current here.

Music in the Air

By DANIEL RICHMAN

BC Alumnus

FOR a swing band maestro, HARRY JAMES (Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, WABC) shows good sense in handling his radio moments in a way that is bound to please his jitterbug following, earned thru his yeoman service in the Benny Goodman trumpet brigade, without alienating those listeners who like their music a little less explosive—listeners sufficient in number, incidentally, to be a big factor in the future of a new budding band.

With an out-and-out swing combo of the James voltage, the usual air routine takes in a succession of wild musical rides, more or less unintelligible to the average listener unsteeped in the technique and fine points of swing. It's usually an expert musical performance but it means nothing as entertainment for the majority of radio audiences. James, however, leavened his swing with variety in the form of Sweet Little Headache, Begin the Beguine, Stardust and the oldie I'm in the Market for You, and even le jazz hot was applied in a showmanly way to Sweet Georgia Brown, Chouquette, Merry Widow Waltz and a James original. The superb James trumpeting lent a final distinctive touch to a really listenable 30 minutes.

Straight Stuff

DICK STABLE (Hotel Statler, Cleveland, WABC) contributed nothing more than acceptable straight music-making to nighttime networks. This is the sort of remote that provides a nice, pleasant musical background to conversation or reading in bed. With the exception of something called the Cincinnati Hop, the broadcast caught was made up of pops, all but one embellished by vocals.

The net result leaned slightly to the monotonous side as far as concentrated listening was concerned, with but one eyebrow-raising interlude during the whole half hour. That was the excellent work of the five saxes featured in the Hop original, which came late enough in the show to make this listener at least wish that Stable had included something similar in the routine and lack-luster first half.

Hill Hits Record $1,300

RIVERSIDE, Ill., March 11.—Tiny Hill, current at Melody Mill Ballroom, chalked up the highest take of the new year last Saturday when 2,400 dancers made their way thru the tills to deposit $1,300 at the box office. It was the best dance-night biz since last Halloween, when the band attracted 3,100 persons.

"Over There" Now "Here"

BOSTON, March 11.—Inspired by the present wave of patriotism sweeping the nation, Al Maister, Boston lyricist, collaborating with Chick Floyd, pianist with Leighton Noble's Ork, completed a flag-waving song entitled Over Here.

The Reviewing Stand

Eddy Brandt and the Rhythm Boys Orchestra

(Reviewed at Continental Room, Stevens Hotel, Chicago)

AN EIGHT-PIECE rhythm combo organized by Brandt, former member of the piano team of Brandt and Fowler, using two sax and one trumpet for solo tootling, the others pounding out rhythm. As is, boys fit nicely in smaller hotel rooms and intimate smart spots where, in addition to dance incentives, special novelty material is desired. Flock of original comedy stuff peeps up both dance sessions and floor bills and the proper personalities are there to deliver it.

Brandt uses one of the twin pianos, pipes an even-registered tenor voice at the mike and joins the quartet for the vocal varieties. Jules Mendelson is a versatile drummer, shining on the floor with clever impersonations. Most of the material is composed by George MacDonald, saxophonist.

While only stock dance arrangements are used, they measure up with the desires of an average hotel room couple. They are played with suitable reserve and alternate between popular waltzes, fox-trots and rumbas and tangos. Ork was organized only some 18 months ago in New York, after Brandt, during a trip abroad, picked up Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys. Aggregation makes a youthful appearance and the pale blue coat outfits are becoming. Hontigberg.

Gay Claridge

(Reviewed at Grand Ballroom, Medinah Club, Chicago)

A young 11-piece dance organization that has been making the Windy City environs for the last couple of years and stems as a brighter item among new outfits. Concentrating mainly on good dance arrangements, it leans heavily on sweet stuff in the Kempian manner, employing the "telegraphic" trumpet feature for added effect.

The boys play solid stuff and swing out when the patrons demand it. While the basic instrumentation includes four sax, four brass and three rhythm, doubling permits six sax and four brass sections, and on certain arrangements as many as nine clarinets are employed.

Leader is a young and likable-looking chap and fairly commercial during all sets. He fronts playing a sax or trumpet and also sings with a pleasing voice. Vocal assistance is also furnished by Charles Conti, trumpeter, and another lad who helps compose a singing trio.

Judging by the reaction of the young crowd, band entertained when viewed. Outfit is billed as the "Romance and Rhythm Orchestra." Hontigberg.

Don DeVito

(Reviewed at Berkeley Bar of Berkeley Carteret Hotel, Asbury Park, N. J.)

PACED by DeVito's vibraphone hammerings, with Ray Prye on sax and supported by four rhythm, it's a swing combo that holds itself in restraint for dinner patronage and then lets out for the dance hounds, tempos changing to incandescence by the time jitterbugs take over. Outstanding with this unit is Marion Dugan, whose husky pipes fit the rhythm ditties to a T. Maestro, saxer and canary also make an adequate vocal threesome. Unit has a neat appearance and musically is more than adequate for this assignment. Abbott.

Jack Crawford

(Reviewed at Turnpike Casino, Lincoln, Neb.)

SINCE he was 13, when he first started banging drums for Jules Stein, MCA prexy, more than 20 years ago, Crawford has been associated with the music biz. Once used the tag line Clown Prince of Jazz but dropped it when they changed jazz to swing.

By doubling, Crawford is able to present at times four saxes (normally three), three violins, three brass and three rhythm. Music is on the soft side and nicely played. Also a generous sprinkling of novelties. Jimmy Engler and Dixie Dale creditably handle the vocals. Stan Fleck, skin beater with Crawford for more than five years, gets a spot of clatter in once in a while, neatly sold. With Crawford three saxes step up front for some instrumental work—Carl Miller, Conn Humphries and Stubby Goforth.

Shorn of the mustache which adorned his upper lip for many years, but still crowding 300 pounds, Crawford looks a spot younger than he used to. He's still a jovial band-stand personality, bubbles with an air of hearty welcome and suggests he's ready to help everybody have a good time. Oldfield.

Emil Flindt

(Reviewed at Paradise Ballroom, Chicago)

A VETERAN from way back, this baton heaver heads one of those formulated and staple outfits which is capable of garnering a territorial name chiefly by just playing around the same vicinity long enough so that the name sticks. Oh and environs is the backdrop for the Flindt ork in this case.

It's a 12-piece combo split into equal parts of brass, reed and rhythm—and therein lies the band's trouble, because the three sections are literally split, failing entirely to blend in and work together as a unit. Boys are all strictly sheet readers and don't seem to be at all conscious of what each is doing during the arrangements. Result is that the stuff seaws back and forth in a very monotonous way, killing any true dance tempo that should be forthcoming as a natural sequence to the arrangements.

Several of the lads pitch in for vocal turns, but these too are uninspired. Flindt fronts the boys and he, too, needs some snap and lilt in his stick waving. Maybe this bunch just hasn't been cating their grapenuts or something, but a shot of pep of some kind is sorely needed. Humphrey.

Red Heggen

(Reviewed at King's Ballroom, Lincoln, Neb.)

HEGGEN's gang offers music beat out in very danceable rhythm, but short of polish. It's a swingeroo outfit, little known save in Iowa-Nebraska territory. Sprang up two years ago, after Red bounced out of Doc Lawson's sax section.

Manned on a three to each section basis, with Red playing sax on his feet, and piano player Tom McCray doubling on accordion, it satisfies in the country halls. Harold Nelson, tenor sax, mixes the vocals and Walter Batte is featured front row on the bass. It's a busy gang, short of rests, banging out plenty of foot-fight rhythms. Oldfield.

"Deke" Moffitt

(Reviewed at Raghskeller of the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati)

LONG popular in local theater ork hereabouts as an able composer, Moffitt, who until recently batoned the pit crew at the Shubert, local vaude emporium, has finally realized a long-felt ambition—to head his own dance crew. Using his Shubert pit tootlers as a nucleus, the "Deke" has fashioned a dance combo that does remarkably well considering its newness and the fact that playing show music is one thing and knocking out dance rhythms is another. With a few more weeks of seasoning Moffitt should find himself with an outfit capable of bucking better-than-average competition.

Stressing the counterpoint, Moffitt has labeled his product Counter Melodic Music. In reality it's a sweet brand of swing with a Henry Busse rhythm lurking in the background. Using an instrumentation of four saxes, five brasses and three rhythm, the Moffitt bandsmen beat out a socko rhythm and tempo that induce dancing. Moffitt has done a good job, too, of gauging the room's acoustical qualities, the band's offerings lending a pleasing effect to the ear despite the handicap of the spot's low ceiling and lack of drapes on the band stand. Brass section shows up unusually

Ride, Red, Ride

REGINA, Sask., March 11.—Now that they have learned to play, members of the newly formed band of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are learning to ride. Bandsmen will eventually be expected to play and ride at the same time in the same way as the original band of the Northwest Mounted Police. Most of the bandsmen were recruited without any previous police training.

Music Items

Songs and Such:

Santly-Joy-Select acquired Iddy Biddy Poo from Hal Kemp and Saxie Dowell. The Kemp Band, with Saxie doing the comedy vocal, features the ditty. Afraid of Love is the latest release from Handy Brothers' Music Co. lyric by Lewis Fenderson, tune by James Miller and Maurice Spitalny.

Strange as It Seems (Now We Are Mr. and Mrs.) is being issued by Roy Music. Title was suggested by John Hix, creator of the Strange as It Seems syndicated feature; melody and lyrics penned by Hugo Rubens, Jimmy Franklin and Bob Burns. Song will be tied in with Hix's exhibit at the World's Fair. Roy is also publishing a new rumba, Rio De La Plata, by Rubens, Charles French and E. P. La Priere.

Music Men and Matters:

Vernon Duke, protege of the late George Gershwin and considered by many critics as his logical successor, has been signed by Robbins to an exclusive contract. Firm also has pacted Mill Herth, with his first book to be published called Mill Herth's Instruction Method for the Electric Organ.

Alfonso Diaz is in charge of the new New York store of Castellanos-Molina Corp., dealer in Spanish recordings and sheet music. Jerry Vogel plugging George M. Cohan's Harrigan as a natural for St. Patrick's Day broadcast. Vogel firm also is pushing A Lemon in the Garden of Lore, by M. E. Rourke and Richard Carle, currently featured in the Center Theater spectacle, The American Way.

Taking Up a Lost Cause

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Raymond Gathrid, Daily News radio columnist, started a one-man campaign to bring to music publishers' attention the commercial possibilities of pop songs by local hopefuls. His first columnar blast carried laments by amateurs charging they are denied even the courtesy of an audition. Gathrid suggested an alternative, whereby local song pluggers devote some time to the hearing of new compositions and forwarding the best of them to their home offices.

Suesse Score for Casa

NEW YORK, March 11.—Dana Suesse has been pacted by Billy Rose to write an original musical score for his new Casa Manana show. well, with Wally Johnson, Pierson De Jager and Norwood Carey taking off at intervals on some pleasing solo licks. Moffitt wields the stick in a personable fashion and draws attention with his solo efforts on the sax, clarinet and bass sax.

Wendy Bishop, blond doll with a voice and personality, is spotted frequently and handles her chores nicely. Male warblings are taken care of by "Slim" Overman and Larry Woods. Latter is equipped with a romantic and soothing voice that registers solidly. Bob Miketta has done a good job with the band's arrangements. Band lads are well groomed and make a good appearance. Sachs.

American Academy Students Present "Let Us Be Gay"

NEW YORK, March 11.—Last Friday the American Academy of Dramatic Arts presented Rachel Crothers' three-act comedy, Let Us Be Gay. The cast indulged in a great deal of overacting.

Acting becomes an art when its mechanics cannot be discerned by the audience. Over-reading, over-accented movements and obviously deliberate pacing display the mechanics of the actor as plainly as an unhooded motor shows its component parts. The man who wants a motor to drive him and the audience that sits before the unfolding of a play both want performance.

Helen Gunderson, whom we had been eager to see again after her fine work in Hay Fever, acted the part of Mrs. Boucicault with a capital A. Some of her lines came thru beautifully, but for the most part she gave an overstudied performance, much too slow and deliberate. The soft heart under the caustic tongue of Mrs. Boucicault never had a chance, and the caustic quality emerged as a sort of hardness, and all the time you know that "Boucy" was just Miss Gunderson made up to look like an old lady.

We are sure that when Miss Crothers wrote the part of Kitty Brown she didn't write in the affected brightness that we got from Margaret Paine; Miss Paine's smile is quite lovely enough (we've seen it in the lobby) and doesn't need putting on with her make-up. Charles Telford didn't overact, but he was stiff and looked as tho he would be glad when it was all finished. Madge Livingston could not possibly have been as obvious as Norma Alley made her; even Mrs. Boucicault wouldn't have stood it. She was a burlesque. Otis Morse was just too, too man-about-townish as Townley Town; the sincerity of the character was lost in his cat-of-the-devil attitude.

Marjorie Lynn, as Dierdre Lessing, was somewhat an enigma. She overdid her drunk scene and yet managed her frequent crying bits very well indeed; her straight scenes in the first two acts made us feel that she was carrying her script in her hands, but her scene with Bruce in the last act was lovely. Ray Colcord was really amusing as Wallace Grainger. We can't say a great deal about Guy Tortora as Bruce Keen, since in such a part his accent is a handicap. Paul Talbot left nothing undone to show us that he considered the perfect maitre-d'hotel. Marian Munroe and Charles Lang played the bits.

Feagin School Presents "Hay Fever," "Black Sheep"

NEW YORK, March 11.—Last Friday evening at the Mercury Theater two plays were presented by the senior students of the Feagin School of Dramatic Art. The first was an act of the Noel Coward comedy, Hay Fever. Cast included Erin-Jo Gwynne, Mitchel Meyers, Thea Wood, Rita Scandore, Andrew White, Donald Harman, Marjorie Dickens, Miles Winslow and Nancy Boyle.

Rita Scandore and Nancy Boyle did very well as Judith Bliss and Jackie Coryton respectively. Miss Scandore having shown considerable improvement since her last appearance. Also deserving mention are Andrew White, Erin-Jo Gwynne and Donald Harman.

The second play, Black Sheep, by Elmer Rice, included in its cast Annette Canter, Verbeth Stuart, Marjorie Dickens, Andrew White, Miles Winslow, Patricia Harris, William Hollenbeck, Carolee Sheldon, Donald Harman, Elizabeth Young, Mitchel Meyers and Jane Evans. Thru no fault of the cast, Black Sheep proved to be quite a disappointment. The plot was so full of complications that it kept the audience wondering what it was all about.

William Hollenbeck and Carolee Sheldon, as Euddy Porter and Kitty Lloyd, deserve a big hand for really splendid performances. Also deserving mention are Annette Canter, as motherly Mrs. Porter; Andrew White, as Alfred Porter; and Verbeth Stuart, as Dorothy Woods. Mitchel Meyers does not click too well because of his lack of naturalness and ease.

London Lyceum Goes

LONDON, March 4.—Third building of name to occupy site in 150 years, Lyceum Theater here will be demolished to make way for flats and shops in June. For last 30 years under Walter and Frederick Melville, both now dead, it was stronghold of melodrama and pantomime. (See LONDON LYCEUM on page 16)

From Out Front

By EUGENE BURR

It is hardly news by now that the Broadway drama this season is selling Americanism like mad. In a chaotic and medieval world the enlightenment of true democracy (which does not mean the "democracy" that slides by easy stages into bureaucracy or jingoism) is sorely needed; and the fact that Broadway is doing its part is a patriotic phenomenon that should be greeted with other cheers than those that emanate from the box offices of patriotic hits. But in Broadway's excellent reawakening to the benefits and needs of the democratic ideal there are two dangers that this corner has tried to stress in the past. One is the danger to the theater and the other to the democratic ideal itself—and even at the risk of upsetting Robert Rice and other similar Grandsons of the American Revolution I feel that they must be re-emphasized.

The danger to the democratic ideal is obvious to anyone who has made an unimpassioned study of the growth of Fascism and Nazism—and even of Communism, for that matter. When Italy and Germany were first impregnated by the virus it spread under the most patriotic colors; it was "Italy for Italians" and "Germany for Germans," together with tentative and seemingly innocuous means toward achieving such ends. Slowly it grew—but always featuring the sort of surface patriotism that comes so easily to demigods and boob-baiters—until finally it had achieved sufficient power to emerge under its true colors. Then those who had seen no danger in its small, insidious beginnings, even those who had encouraged its nationalistic and "patriotic" ideals, were appalled. Many who had immensely aided its initial progress had done so with the best intentions.

Certainly Moss Hart and George Kaufman, for example, wrote The American Way with the best intentions in the world. But The American Way advocates a mild form of 100 per-centism, and it by implication advocates the silencing of anti-democratic minorities—an advocacy which in itself is as anti-democratic as anything well could be. The dangers of 100 per-centism are obvious; the most thro' 100 per-centism in the known world is Hitler's disgusting "Aryan" folderol. And the entire point of the democratic ideal is free expression to minorities of any sort. The real danger comes not from the ridiculous mouthings of subversive morons (witness the public's splendidly indignant reaction to Nazi schweinerel at the recent Bund meeting), but from those who advocate suppressing them. It is appallingly easy to pass from suppression of one group to suppression of another—and so on and on and on.

The American Way, is, of course, a tremendous popular success; as such it is to be commended as a business stimulant. But it is by no means to be commended as an expression of the American ideal. Its much-vaunted "patriotism" is merely that of the peddler who sells American flags to crowds awaiting a parade.

And so with almost all of the other examples of Broadway interest in the American ideal. We must watch—and watch carefully—or else shallow and boob-baiting "patriotism" will turn to out-and-out jingoism. I could cheer a good deal more enthusiastically and sincerely for the current crop of "patriotic" plays if it weren't for the fact that only one of them—Maxwell Anderson's Knickerbocker Holiday—has managed to express the real and fundamental American ideal.

As for the other danger—the danger to the theater—inherent in the present flood of histrionic flagwaving, it is even more imminent. The plays under discussion are all of them, to some extent at least, propaganda plays—and propaganda is always a very real danger to the theater, particularly when it concerns itself with subjects that lead to enthusiastic acceptance. Audiences (and sometimes even, believe it or not, critics) are prone to let their artistic standards crumble away beneath their wholehearted acceptance of a play's purpose. And a theater that has traded its artistic standards for a set of propagandistic aims is a theater that is sterile and dry. Witness the state of the drama in Germany, Italy and Russia.

Propaganda plays are dangerous in two ways: artistic standards tend to sink in direct proportion to the amount and enthusiasm of the propaganda; and enthusiastically propagandistic dramas tend to defeat their own ends thru their own virulence and enthusiasm. Reasons for (and examples of) both processes have been given endlessly in this column over a long period of years.

The second, as a matter of fact, is a danger to both the theater and the ideal. Enthusiasm strong enough to become obviously biased nullifies its own effect, as was seen in countless left-wing dramas. The reasons have been discussed here in detail many times; but Paul Vincent Carroll recently phrased the reaction perfectly when he wrote, "Plays of obvious propaganda always drive me into perverted sympathy with the villains." That may be an unfortunate reaction, but it is both real and universal.

It is a reaction that may be encountered by our so-called patriotic plays if they continue upon the way they have chosen; it is a reaction that was finely taken into account, in another field, by Eleanor Roosevelt when she said she was against the playing of The Star-Spangled Banner in theaters and night clubs because she was afraid that people might get used to it or even annoyed with it, and so lose entirely the thrill and beauty of its symbolism. It's a thought to which our rabid radio and columnistic patriots should lend the entire weight of their fine intellects—both ounces.

As for the increasing danger to art in a theater that is increasingly propagandist, that has been discussed here so often that neither time, space nor inclination warrants going into it again. But a couple of its facets are excellently suggested by a couple of additional quotes. Sir Cedric Hardwicke recently expressed the danger of a current frame of mind when he wrote, "The theater, being the most explicit of the arts, demands ideas and truths in their most abstract form; poetic truths. Since Ibsen, however, playwrights have been more pleased to enlighten us than to stir us. . . . The theater for its own sake seems just a little shameful and not quite worth the attention of an intelligent individual." That, from a theatrical viewpoint, is a tragic situation—and it is appallingly true.

Mr. Carroll provides pungent comment upon a different angle. "I realized," he says, "how essential it is in any country for an artist to swim against the popular current." A whole volume of criticism could be written with that sentence as the theme.

But don't worry; I'm not going to write it.

Equity To Protest "Lincoln" Shutdown

NEW YORK, March 11.—Actor's Equity Council will seek thru protest to Robert E. Sherwood, head of Dramatists' Guild and member of Playwrights' Co., to show the harm to the trade if Sherwood cuts short the run of successful Abe Lincoln in Illinois to accept a motion picture contract. Show would close so that Raymond Massey could make the picture. Any attempt on part of Equity to incorporate such a prohibition in a new basic agreement with producers would be "a gross trespass of personal freedom," Equity official held, tho the provision of the old NRA Code had decreed that a "motion picture of a currently playing legitimate attraction shall not be permitted to be released until such attraction has had the fullest opportunity to complete its run and enjoy road showing." Plans for Abe Lincoln are contrary to the spirit of that trade practice rule, Equity maintains.

Sherwood's defense cites his plans to reopen the show after the picture is finished and follow thru with road showing. Equity is still displeased, even with his modest and patriotic argument that the country is ready for the message of his play, arguing that a simultaneous showing of picture with run of play has always shortened life span of legit production, as exemplified by Jazz Singer, Dinner at Eight, You Can't Take It With You and others.

Sherwood's partners in the Playwrights' Co., according to reports, also feel that he is wrong in insisting on closing the play.

OUT-OF-TOWN OPENINGS "West of Broadway"

WILBUR THEATER (Boston)

Ruth Chatterton's return to the stage at the Wilbur Theater here was greeted by a heavy turn-out which welcomed Miss Chatterton but held tongue in cheek in speaking of the play. Not that West of Broadway is not entertaining. It is at times hilariously funny, but Miss Chatterton, strive as she does to make the most of her role, is unable to overcome the very apparent weaknesses of a play which at times must depend upon such stale and questionable material as the plumbing fixtures for its laughs.

West of Broadway begins with a scene from Camille. When Camille dies, you learn this is the farewell performance of the Trents, a famous actor and actress who are man and wife off stage. They and a Mr. Seward go to the farm in Iowa, the couple to soak in the sunshine, the playwright to work on his next masterpiece and to coax them back to the spoken drama.

Into the picture comes a 16-year-old farmer's daughter who falls in love with the star. Up to this point the play founders in rather swampy ground, impeded by a heavy burden of dialog and occasional nasty naughtiness; but it suddenly comes vividly alive in a scene which is played with real brilliance, in which the principal lady and gentleman "tell all" and begin, with the aid of applause, to discover their characters. What they find is something less than edifying.

The playing is excellent thruout, and there is not an actor who does not give more to the play than did the author. However, with intelligent pruning and a bit of clever work here and there West of Broadway may still be a hit on Broadway.

Miss Chatterton plays with delicate feeling and sharp authority; Walter Abel gets every possible value from the part of the male star; and the peak of the play, the scene mentioned above, is the triumph of these two, a masterpiece of restrained acting. James Bell impersonates the playwright-pal and does it well. Eva Condon is the vulgar mother of the male star and in this thankless role does exceedingly good work. Jeanne Dante is the charming, blunt and bold farmer's daughter.

Family Portrait, the Lenore Coffee-William Joyce Cowan drama that Cheryl Crawford, in association with Day Tuttle and Richard Skinner, presented Wednesday night at the Morosco Theater, is a deeply religious play that will probably arouse shocked protest from those pharisees hamstringed by theology who consider themselves most deeply religious; it is a profoundly Christian play that will probably fail to meet with the approval of the church which, taking its Founder's name in vain, inexplicably calls itself the Christian. For Family Portrait goes back to the teachings of Jesus Himself, those beautiful, ignored, magnificent, pitiful guides toward a way of life that are despised and forgotten by the world—and particularly by those who have reduced the glorious Man into a bleeding, sterile god.

The tenderness and compassion, the love, humility, freedom and joy that He taught return in Family Portrait; and so the play will hardly be admired by those who turn the beauty and freedom

He died to win into a set of warping, cruel, binding creeds. And the play's interpretation of "Son of God" as Son of Man—and Son of all humanity—its interpretative glorification of the dignity of life rather than the chill sterility of death—will hardly be relished by the modern distorters of His teachings.

It is the drama's aim to emphasize His humanity—and therefore His courage and the other gloriously human qualities that hung about Him—along with the original rather than the interpreted teachings. But obviously He must never appear on the stage—an Equity member in greasepaint. The purpose is accomplished by a brilliant and startlingly simple stroke of the imagination. Miss Coffee and Mr. Cowan describe the years of the preaching, the stable stroke of betrayal and even the abyss of utter forgetfulness into which He so quickly and permanently descended, all thru the eyes of His family, and more particularly thru the eyes of Mary, His mother. Everything in the play tends toward simplicity and humanity. The dialog is earthy and colloquial, and even the costumes avoid any special place or time. Eschewing esoteric robes and breastplates, they are in modern eyes merely the fitting clothes of peasants.

The play opens immediately after His departure upon His mission, with His brothers petulantly complaining that He has left all the carpenter work to them, and His mother calm in her love and faith. Later we see the public adulation and mob acclaim that followed the first miracles (beautifully allied in the script to conjuring tricks that He necessarily uses but discards contemptuously as soon as possible), the joy of His brothers before His return to Nazareth (because His popularity may boost the business), their rage after He has been stoned from the town, and His mother's pitiful search for Him in Jerusalem on the night of the betrayal as danger gathers about Him like a cloud. A scene that is an epilog shows the family years later living down the memory of an executed criminal, yet a bit proud of Him, too, now that His ideals no longer affect their lives.

And thru it all goes Mary, serene in her faith, buoyed by her belief in the genius of this eldest Son who is apart from the rest. Miss Coffee and Mr. Cowan have written the role with honesty, pathos and touching effect; their Mary is the eternal mother, proud, worried, filled with belief in the teachings of her Son and at the same time smiling gently upon His follies. In the end she asks that her new grandson be named Jesus—just to keep His memory alive.

The understanding and sympathy of humor go hand in hand with the serious implications; for humor is obviously inherent in the basic idea of treating the story in tenderly commonplace terms.

There are faults in the play, of course. Once the startling central idea is grasped many of the episodes tend insistently toward uninspired and stodgy routine; cutting could and should have been done in many places; and weaknesses in the theatrical structure sometimes become painfully evident when James Harker or others of the less skillful players are holding forth. But, fortunately, two very great assets manage to cover almost completely such defects as these are.

These assets are the direction of Margaret Webster—understanding, vibrant, detailed and stunningly effective as always—and the magnificent playing of Judith Anderson in the central role. Miss Anderson has achieved many very fine things, but her Mary seems to me the greatest achievement of her career. Discarding all vestiges of the merely theatrical, bringing tear-evoking sincerity and breathtaking mastery of simple and unstylized technique, she offers a performance that ranks easily with anything our stage has seen in seasons. Miss Webster herself plays Mary Magdalene in one brief scene with fine authority and effect. Evelyn Varden does beautiful work thruout as Mary's faithful sister-in-law, and minor roles are excellently played by Tom Ewell, Philip Coolidge, Kathryn Grill, Hugh Rennie, Philip Truex and various others. There are also several performances that are a good deal less than excellent, but except for that of young Mr. Harker they fail to do any appreciable harm.

Clifford Odets' second produced play, presented back in 1934 and revived in 1935 as part of a double bill with Waiting for Lefty, is here revived again, this time alternating with Odets' Rocket to the Moon.

Half of the original Group Theater cast is in this production—Art Smith, Phoebe Brand, Morris Carnovsky, Luther Adler, J. Edward Bromberg and Sanford Meisner. All turn in excellent performances. New are Alfred Ryder, as Ralph (Jules Garfield's role), and doing a competent job: Julia Adler, making her Group Theater debut in the role created by Stella Adler and turning in a moving, deeply emotional characterization, and William Challee in the original Roman Bohnen role.

Direction and setting, etc., is in the same hands as the original production, but the play has gained new vitality and power. It seems now to be so much clearer. The dialog still leaps with tremendous vigor and the acting is without fault.

Once more the story of the Bronx household struggling for economic security, for peace of mind, for love and the ordinary satisfactions of life becomes a living thing that will hold you spellbound. The Odets gift for vital, conversational, colloquial dialog gives the story such tremendous movement. It lays bare the inner longings of every character in trip-hammer style. It produces comedy effects that highlight the inevitable tragedies that ensue.

Looking back on all of Odets' work, this play begins to shape up as his best. To those who are city bred and city bled, it carries a double impact.

CLOSE QUARTERS

A play adapted by Gilbert Lennox from "Attentat" by W. O. Somin. Staged by Leo Bulgakov. Settings designed by Watson Barratt, with executor uncredited. Press agent, Rowland Field. Stage manager, James Gelb. Presented by Ann Seranne and Edmund L. Anderson (by arrangement with Select Theaters Corp.). Liesa Bergman.....Elena Miramova
Gustav Bergman.....Leo Chalzel

ACT I—The Kitchen-Living Room of the Bergmans' Flat in a Working-Class Tenement in a Continental Capital. About 8:30 One Evening in Early November. ACT II—The Parlor of the Bergmans' New Flat in a Model Block of Workers' Dwellings. The Following Evening. ACT III—The Same as ACT II. Early the Following Morning.

Evidently concurring in the opinion of certain playwrights who consider actors merely necessary evils in the production of a play, Gilbert Lennox adapted W. O. Somin's Attentat and so cut the evil down to a minimum. The adaptation (which has been kicking around for quite a few seasons) opened at the Golden Theater Monday night under the sponsorship of Ann Seranne and Edmund L. Anderson—with just two people in the cast.

There have been two-people plays before, of course (in one of them, Under Orders, Effie Shannon and the late Shelley Hull had quite a success, albeit they gipped a bit by each playing both ends of a set of twins and so raising the number of characters to four), and several seasons ago there was even a one-character play, written, I think, by Irving Kaye Davis, which caused several commentators to suggest that his next drama be written with no characters at all. But the two-character play is rare enough to give Close Quarters whatever glamour there is inherent in a novelty and a tour de force. In its own right it is a psychological melodrama, with psychology that never delves very deeply and melodrama that is sometimes painfully trite but more often frank and extremely effective. The lack of subsidiary characters causes dullness at times, the plot is telegraphed far ahead, and the play, short as it is, seems an undue lengthening of what is by rights a two-scene, 40-minute one-acter, but in terms of theatrical effectiveness it seems a good deal better than most.

It tells of Gustav Bergman, a minor labor leader in a foreign country, and his loving wife, Liesa, as they are faced with the murder of a political bigwig of the opposition. Bergman might have committed the murder—the circumstances are such that it is extremely difficult to prove his innocence—but he didn't. All clues, however, seem to lead to him, and he and his wife, stewing, conjecturing and fearing, alone in their flat, feel their nerves fraying away to raw, red wisps. In the end, when it seems that the piling up of adverse evidence is complete, the wife admits that she herself committed the crime, for reasons so tritely melodramatic that it seems common kindness to omit them here. And so the two of them go into the bedroom and indulge in double suicide, just before the exonerating evidence is broadcast over their radio.

Leo Bulgakov directed, and it is largely due to his efforts that the dull stretches are as infrequent as they are. That so much of the play is tight and tense and hair-raising. His effects need no crowded stage to smash across; as a matter of fact, the ending, with no one on the stage at all, is as blood-curdling and theatrically powerful an episode as any within recent memory.

Mr. Bulgakov is similarly successful in his work with Leo Chalzel, who plays Gustav. Mr. Chalzel has never been one to underplay a role—but he underplays much of this one, and to excellent effect, offering his best job so far. Directing Elena Miramova as Liesa, however, Mr. Bulgakov stubbed his toe: he calls for her to indulge in emotional spasms that seem as flimsy as the extremely flimsy second setting, to contort her body, to fall unconvincingly upon her knees and to cry enthusiastically and often, with a maximum of bravura and a minimum of effect. It is to be remembered, however, that Miss Miramova is faced with by long odds the worst of the Lennox writing—a "big" speech that can be predicted, sentence by sentence, by any customer familiar with Dion Boucicault—and it is to be further recalled that she has in the past given us several of the finest performances seen on Broadway in our generation. The two-character aspect of the piece seemed to weigh on her thruout, making her tense and sometimes stilted; and the direction, as indicated, was of no help to her. But even with all of that hers is often an emotionally compelling performance.

Close Quarters is much more theatrically effective than most of the shows with which reviewers are afflicted, but one can't help lamenting that its effect was repetitiously dissipated by the full-length form. It might have been an outstanding one-acter.

London Casino Sold; To Reopen; Fischer Return?

LONDON, March 11.—Closed since December 31, the London Casino has found a set of new owners, who have purchased the spot for 250,000 pounds ($1,172,500) and will unshutter it in approximately two weeks and again offer a produced revue.

The spot was closed down by the old owners after they had been assessed an additional $70,000 in back taxes because of a government ruling that spot had to pay the tax requirements of a theater.

Clifford C. Fischer was producer of the floor show and was also said to have had an interest in the place. Purchase of the goods and property was made by a syndicate represented by Alfred Eisdale, managing director of the Prince of Wales Theater, and Charles Clore, financier.

It is held likely that Fischer may be called in to produce shows for the new owners.

Cambil charged he was injured while taking part, against his will, in a wrestling show at the club. He testified he was unconscious for several minutes the night of October 21, 1937, after the wrestler, known professionally as "Killer Rothschild," and the referee had pulled him into the ring and mauled him for the entertainment of patrons.

CHICAGO, March 11.—American Federation of Actors crashed the local hotel field over the week-end when the Sherman Hotel signed a closed-shop agreement. This is the first hotel to come under the AFA fold after being a hold-out for several months with the rest of the spots using entertainment. Development is significant to the AFA, as it probably means that the other hotels will sign up within the next week or so and will place the union in a reigning position over talent in Chicago. Some 30 night clubs here already signed in the last six months of AFA's organization drive.

AFA Crashes Hotel Field in Chi; Sherman Signs Closed Shop Pact

The contract, signed by Attorney Charles Aaron, who represents Ernest Byfield and Frank Bering, of the Sherman, and Guy Magley, local AFA head, stipulates that only AFA talent be employed in the hotel for any occasion and that acts engaged for the Sherman be limited to 21 performances a week. The latter stipulation permits acts to fill that number of shows in the hotel's public rooms only and not in banquet halls, which are listed as club dates. According to the contract, an additional $10 must be paid for each club date if one of the regular hotel acts is employed. Attorney Aaron, who also represents other Loop hotels, including the Bismarck, La Salle, Morrison, Stevens, Congress and Palmer House, suggested to Magley that he inform each of them individually of the Sherman Hotel's action and that they, too, proceed with the formalities of signing AFA contracts. Magley stated that the Drake and Edge-water Beach hotels, which are not represented by Aaron, will be contacted at the same time for closed-shop agreements. Sherman opened its new Panther Room of the College Inn Saturday with Gene Krupa's Band and no floor show outside of entertainment by members of the orchestra. Rumors were circulated that the hotel did not want to use acts because of its differences with the AFA, but these were later discounted when the management reported that the high price paid for the band also consumed the act budget.

Latest of the night spots to join AFA is Anne Millstone's, a neighborhood account.

Casa Manana Was Heaviest 1938 Advertiser in New York Papers

Defunct Int'l Casino second—next were Cotton Club, Rainbow Room & Grill, Leon & Eddie's, Paradise, Riviera, Cafe Loyale, Havana-Madrid, Versailles—talent angle

NEW YORK, March 11.—Despite slack business conditions, New York's 10 leading night spots placed 275,496 lines of paid advertising in 1938 in the eight local daily newspapers, according to Needham & Grohmann, advertising agency. This represents an estimated cost of $307,500, exclusive of paid ads in magazines, special promotion, neighborhood publications and air time. The biggest spender for daily newspaper advertising during the year was Billy Rose, who placed 87,500 lines advertising the Casa Manana. The defunct International Casino ran a close second with 86,988 lines. Others were the Cotton Club with 21,640 lines; Rainbow Room and Grill, 16,427; Leon and Eddie's, 14,440; Paradise, 14,061; Ben Marden's Riviera (to reopen next month), 10,927; Cafe Loyale, 9,797; Havana-Madrid, 7,503, and Versailles, 6,253.

AFA, Labor Dep't Get After Penny Unlicensed Agents

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The local branch of the American Federation of Actors, headed by Thomas Kelly, in co-operation with the Pennsylvania Department of Labor, has instituted a campaign to drive all bookers from the State who do not have Pennsylvania licenses.

The campaign was made necessary, Kelly claims, by complaints from performers that chiseling on their salaries was prevalent. Most of the offenders, he said, came in from Baltimore and operated in the western part of the State.

On a four-day trip, Kelly conferred with Department of Labor officials and was assigned Victor Girard, the Department's local agent.

Harriet Cross and Helen Holmes. Jim Maglio managing. . . MARIAN SEIZER, Terry Kane and Ronardo and Rinette are at Club Belvedere, Hot Springs, Ark.

BILLY CULLEN, formerly for a year and a half emcee at Berghoff Gardens, Fort Wayne, Ind., is now in his sixth week at Lowell Bernhart's Blue Lantern Club, Detroit, in the same capacity. Also on the current bill there are Senorita La Canpasita, Esther DeRoy and Joe Norris and his six jivers. . . DR. MARCUS, the "mad magician," is doing his stuff at the Lookout House, Covington, Ky. Maura and Martyn, ballroom dancers, are playing a return engagement at the same spot, and Faith Hope, Chris Gerald and Douglas Hoage and Freddie Fisher's Schneckelfritzers round out the bill. . . CAT AND FIDDLE, Cincinnati, has a new bill comprising Princess Nadja, Mme. Elmira, the Clair Sisters, Countess Ariel and Nora Ford. . . TOPPER BALLROOM, in Music Hall, Cincinnati, closed last week-end. . . ESTRELLITA LUCAS opened at the Le Flores Hotel, Greenwood, Miss., March 13. . . FREDEZ AND LAURENZA recently finished five weeks at Hotel Philadelphia, Philadelphia, and moved into Silver Lake Inn, Clementon, N. J., for an indefinite stay.

CHICAGO, March 11.—American Federation of Actors crashed the local hotel field over the week-end when the Sherman Hotel signed a closed-shop agreement. This is the first hotel to come under the AFA fold after being a hold-out for several months with the rest of the spots using entertainment. Development is significant to the AFA, as it probably means that the other hotels will sign up within the next week or so and will place the union in a reigning position over talent in Chicago. Some 30 night clubs here already signed in the last six months of AFA's organization drive.

The contract, signed by Attorney Charles Aaron, who represents Ernest Byfield and Frank Bering, of the Sherman, and Guy Magley, local AFA head, stipulates that only AFA talent be employed in the hotel for any occasion and that acts engaged for the Sherman be limited to 21 performances a week. The latter stipulation permits acts to fill that number of shows in the hotel's public rooms only and not in banquet halls, which are listed as club dates. According to the contract, an additional

Night Club Reviews

Screwball Oasis Club in Baltimore Not So Screwy; 14 Years of Money-Making

Down in the cellar one finds this Eighth Wonder of the World, where sables and sailors rub elbows, the sables slumming and the others seeking diversion. All, however, receive entertainment in one way or another.

The general set-up is against all routine principles for traditional cabaret operation and yet herein may lie the secret of its success. It is now in its 14th year and still packing them in.

Located one flight down in the tainted section of the city, this unique spot attracts the famous from far and wide. Upon entering one's life is placed in the hands of two bouncers, Machine-Gun Butch and Tiny Jack Horner (six foot six). A dimly lighted but cozy atmosphere is revealed, as well as the nude murals decorating the walls. Despite all indications to the contrary, the place is spotlessly clean, with the food and drinks as fine as served anywhere.

The entertainers can be spotted sitting at tables imbibing with the stags. But at the sound of the gong for the floor show they hurriedly take leave of their partners for the side of the band stand and, still in full view of the customers, strip their evening gowns down to the abbreviated dancing costumes, with the audience enjoying this unusual "privacy" of the dressing room. The free for all then begins.

Blondes, brunets and redheads, 16 in all, appear in assorted shapes, sizes and costumes. Ranging in age from 20 to 50, this noble troupe makes no attempt at uniform dance steps and has nothing but utter disrespect for anything smacking of unison.

Clever introductions are offered by emcee Willie Gray, who holds a record of 12 years in that capacity here. Typical announcements of "If you think that was lousy wait'll you hear the next one," or "No applause is necessary, our girls know they're rotten," is a frank admission of the facts. The singing, as presented by the girls, is atrocious but loud, while the dancing consists of little more than stripping, bouncing and sensuous muscle rippling on various portions of the anatomy.

The singing contingent includes Battleship Maggie Gray, a cute little number of 250 pounds; Alma White, on the bawdy song side; Ann Dyckler, Mary Fox, Helen Burke, Lois Baker and Mickey Mathews, who didn't do so badly. Among the dancing group are Marie Henderson in a Salome number; Patty Berg, who gave up in the midst of her dance because she was fatigued; Jean Parker, bumper extraordinary; Laura Lee, tap dancer; Pitt Denny, Julie Brent, Gypsy LaMont, Naomi Gilbert, Joan Davis, Virginia Clark and Frances Denny.

The floor show is a knock-down drag-out affair which goes on until exhaustion interferes, and you either can take it or leave it. Really a high-class low-down affair. The girls are recruited from various walks of life; some from the waterfront joints, others from burlesque, some from wardward homes and still others from old-age institutions. Nonetheless, several of them are fairly easy on the eyes.

Max A. Cohen, owner, is on hand nightly to greet the customers, while entertaining the more famous in an anteroom. Cohen is quite a personality in his own right, being an ex-race-horse owner, but now owing all the real estate in his block. He has been appointed justice of peace and resigned, ran for city council but withdrew. He believes in the old adage of advertising and in the daily press proudly flaunts the fact that his is the worst joint in town with the lowest down entertainment but still a flopping place to forget worries in a troubled world. He refers to his assistant, Mike Goldstein, a carnival man, as his Charlie McCarthy stogee who was left at his post because he found the horses too slow and the women too fast. He claims his bartenders, who are geared for rapid-fire mixing, are living on the installment plan, but behind all this tomfoolery he is a very clever business man, operating a big-time enterprise on an efficient basis with a large and capable staff of employees. He has 24 waitresses who readily mingle with the guests. An air of geniality exists thruout under the rough surface where anything goes.

Many similar ventures have made their appearance in the vicinity, attesting that this club has been a real money-maker consistently over a period of years and would be well worth investigation by night club owners the world over.

Policy is never a cover or minimum, with moderately scaled prices on food and drink. Band is Jack Hyatt's Hurricane Boys.

Phil Lehman.

Radio Franks, New York

Opened around a year ago, this East 55th street club has done so well that it opened an extension Wednesday. The club now is a combo bar and dining room, with a platform on one end for the continuous entertainment.

Entertainment runs from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. There's always somebody either singing or playing the piano and the patron may either listen or not. It's a good idea and gives the club an informal atmosphere—in fact, a patron pulled out a harmonica the night this show was caught and he played a few tunes while Jimmie Burns played the piano.

There are plenty of entertainers and each does three or four numbers. In about an hour and a half they repeat, Blond and handsome Dorothy Whitney lent her contralto voice to songs of the My Reverie type and also a German number. Interesting voice and appearance, but delivery can be improved.

Plumish brunet Rita Shaw ripples off pop and standard tunes at the piano and also accompanies some of the singers. Brunet and charming Wynn Ralph is doing a return here and singing pop tunes in easy flowing soprano. His poise and a knowing delivery. Ethel Gilbert is another deft soprano singer of musical comedy tunes.

Small brunet, suggesting Irene Bordoni in personality, is Rita Renaud, a Frenchy chanteuse offering foreign and English ditties in confident, intimate style. A definite attention-arrester.

Freddie Blshop, high tenor, appeared ill tonight and hardly in good form. Gus Wickie, a favorite of the Gay Nineties Club, is now a veteran here. His basso voice gets attention easy in novelty numbers. Rubber-Face Gallagher brightens up the proceedings with comedy lyrics. Six of the colored waiters join for occasional harmony sessions. They swing spirituals and pop tunes.

Owners Frank Bessinger and Jerry White are always around to glad-hand their old friends; also top the show with their own singing.

At the bar is Teddy Burns, who amuses patrons with sleight-of-hand tricks while filling up their glasses. Victor is the friendly maitre d'hotel.

Room is very attractively lighted and decorated. No mike is used. Dinner is from $2, but the heavy crowd comes for supper time.

Milt Rubin is the p. a. Paul Denis.

Nappo Garden Restaurant, Chicago

The chief attraction here in Little Italy. A well-known native restaurant for years, it was recently converted into a novel, roomy night spot that is ballyhooed principally for its aquatic features.

Main dining room is set against the background of a picturesque Venice scene painted on the entire back wall and a rock garden located in the immediate vicinity. Cocktail lounge has a diving pool in which mermaids stage exhibitions after each floor show (an angle to get the customers near the bar) and are topped by a diving beauty whose bathing suit disappears before your eyes, no less.

The stock type of floor show presented is rather out of place in this environment. Acts with more flavor of romantic Italy and total informality would be far more suitable. Run of the mill entertainment, after all, is available in any spot.

The Italian dishes are excellent and reasonably priced. Only a 75-cent minimum to keep the non-spending kids out; never a cover.

Show was emceed by Dave Malcolm, straight type of act builder-upper who is better off when he dances. Has a good specialty in the Evolution of the Tap Dance and executes it well. His talk is too formal for an average night spot.

The Wharton Sisters, recently with a Major Bowes unit, are a cute tap dancing pair and fit in nicely in show opening and closing assignments. Do familiar rhythm stuff, but it's easy to take. Mary Mack has a strong acro waltz, and Kay Norre, torch singer, did a couple of tunes in strong voice and properly reserved delivery. Kid has improved in the last year.

Jane LaVonne is a graceful and plenty rhythmical tapstress. Her body movements work harmoniously with her light steps. Honey Lee is the strip parader and a diving beauty in the neighboring pool. Sally Sharret, attractive and young prima donna, is a Nappo Garden veteran. She has a pleasing voice and variety in her offerings. A finale is whipped into shape by Malcolm with the return of the entire line-up.

Emil and his orchestra, six-piece outfit, play for the shows and dance sets, but only in a mild way.

Henry Catalano, member of old-time piano team which included Jack Denny, the orchestra leader, is managing the room. Sam Honigberg.

Hawaiian Gardens, San Jose, California

Spot is in a most picturesque setting, glass-enclosed on one side and a garden with streams, etc., highlighting the view. It is the only night club in town.

Show features dance team of Pierre and Paulette, smooth as spun glass and really top ranking. Went over with a bang. Their routines are novel, and Pierre is really an exponent of spinning. They contributed two numbers, a waltz and a robot dance. Wardrobe has class. Pierre wears white tails, and Paulette, a blonde, sports a net dress with four different colored skirts.

Jerry Dunn is emcee. He knows a few eggs and songs and tries hard to put them over. Two girls of the line variety present hulas as an act and a specialty.

S. Baron Long, manager, is always on hand to do the greeting.

Edward Murphy.

Club Tivoli, Juarez, Mexico

This border spot has a hit show, mainly because of Barbee and Gray, comedy team, and Jimmy Oakes, youthful emcee, now in his 40th week.

Joyce Carlton, young tap dancer, opened show to fair hand and took second turn later. Girl is curvaceous brunet whose dancing is pleasing but not spectacular.

Catalina Pavone, soprano, sang in Spanish and English. Patrons were impressed, but not enthusiastic.

Oakes followed and got good hand and emceed with fast tap.

The comedy team, Joan Barbee and Eddie Gray, got best applause heard in this spot in many months with their turn, slightly risqué patter, but certainly crowd-pleasing. Gray, dead-pan comic, warms up slowly but wins crowd strongly. His partner works with him easily.

Jacento Vargas has taken over baton of club ork. Thomas Pavone is handling publicity. Hal Middlesworth.

Old Vienna, Carew Tower, Cincinnati

This attractive basement bistro, located just a few feet off one of Cincy's busiest corners, has enjoyed a sensational spurt in business since boosting its ork budget and bringing in the merry Buddy Fisher bandsmen some five weeks ago.

Since repeal and prior to the debut of the Fisher aggregation here Old Vienna has been operating spasmodically with a band policy, using largely local combos, with an occasional act or two to build the entertainment end. It took the Fisher outfit, however, to put the dinner and supper dance sessions into the paying brackets, and Vienna's manager, Paul Penny, gives the Fisher lads full credit for the joyous results.

Under the new set-up Old Vienna has become one of Cincinnati's most popular downtown rendezvous for the middle masses who demand a run for their money, and its neighborhood contemporaries have admittedly felt the Fisher influence. Turnaways have been the rule over the week-ends, with the week nights showing up unusually well. Spot remains dark on Monday nights.

Old Vienna can comfortably accommodate 350 but stacks in around 500 on the big nights. Only objection is the massive pillars that mar the view of the band stand for too many customers. Old Vienna features daily luncheon periods, with an 85-cent dinner the standout in the evening. Other dinners are scaled to $1.50. Drinks are marked in the popular brackets, cuisine is top-notch and service is above par. There's a 75-cent minimum after 10 p.m. Altho located in the same building with Cincinnati's well-known Netherland Plaza, Old Vienna operates its own kitchen.

Buddy Fisher's Band is Vienna's sole entertainment feature. Combo supplies a better-than-average brand of dance music, but the thing that has made it a top-heavy favorite here is its frequent and hilarious entertainment sessions. (Band was reviewed in Music Department March 4 issue.)

Originally set here for a fortnight's stay, band was handed six more weeks before its first week's run had expired.

Bill Sachs.

Hawaiian Blue Room, New Orleans

Maintaining its position as No. 1 spot of the Crescent City, the room takes another stride forward in bringing Henry King and ork. Except for a recent stay in Memphis, King has never played in the South before, but you can bet New Orleans will do its utmost to see more of him again. His band has definitely clicked.

King's brand of music is the soft, rhythmic type which has always been popular with New Orleans dancers. When the keyboards of the piano and a celeste under the leader's nimble fingers pace a band which permits two pianos and an accordion to carry the melodies, with the strings predominating in support and the wind instruments muted, the result-

The routine, idea and talk used by

ANN O'CONNOR

Known as an "Exhibition of the Epidemics," a satiric strip tease. Introduced for the first time in New York at Leon & Eddie's, Aug. 11, 1938, and previously at other cafes, was originated and developed by me and any imitations, even in part, are a direct infringement on my idea. Said routine is registered with The Billboard's Material Protection Bureau.

ing music has the double virtue of being good to listen to and ideal for the slow Southerner's dance. It is likewise soft and mellow enough to permit talking.

Majority of floor show acts were carried over from Frankie Masters' nine-day engagement, but a welcome addition was Taylor Waldo, native lad making his first local pro appearance. Waldo sings two numbers for much applause.

Moore and Revel, back in the spot for the umpteenth time, continue to draw encores with their funny routines. Harmonica harmonizing by Jimmy and Mildred Mulcahy, which includes a difficult duet on Carroll in Venice, and tapping of Edna Sedgwick, fills out the show. Miss Sedgwick's everyday routine is offset by a fine pair of tibias.

Missing from the room for the first time in 20 weeks were the Six Jitterbugs. It seemed strange to see the place minus their strange antics. Phil Muth.

Town Club, Cicero, Ill.

Edging the outskirts of Chicago's West Side, this five-year-old spot is a late hour rendezvous for neighboring suburban rounders.

In front it has a large cocktail lounge that leads into the main room, which seats over 300 and has a presentable elevated stage.

Formerly a haven for Negro talent, it has recently switched its policy and changed to white performers. Nude angle is emphasized, due, probably, to Ralph Marco, operator of the spot, who has been close to burlesque people here when that branch of the show business was in its bloom.

Shows run a good hour and pack enough flash to satisfy. Hal Barber, a pleasing-looking chap with an easy style of delivery, does a neat job as emcee. Is also a good tap dancer, but is more of an individual when resorting to gags and heckler comebacks.

Five Gold Coasters, tall and good-looking line, do three numbers which are okeh for this type of spot. Kids seem to enjoy their work and that is half of the battle.

Barbara Bow, sexy brunet, is on twice with disrobing specialties, one preceded by a talking song. She has plenty of umph. Mae DePill, torch singer, is a veteran. K.d warbles with feeling and has a winning sort of personality.

More nude work later on from Val Irwin, who has hula and interpretative routines. Shapely blonde. Jean Carroll, of the line, singles with a comedy song specialty, and Chet Boswell, youthful rhythmic singer, goes over good with swing versions of popular tunes.

Frankie Quartell, well-known trumpeter and band leader here, moved in with a six-piece combination which, in addition to himself, includes three sax, piano and drums. Outfit plays with good rhythm and supports show nicely.

Several singers entertain at the bar. Wednesday, Dividend Night, brings prizes to customers holding the lucky tickets distributed to the imbibing traffic during the week.

Mortie's Cellabar, Long Branch, N. J.

After a recess of several weeks Mortie Corn's Cellabar is now offering Davey Pierce, accordionist and pianist. He is well known, along the shore.

Pierce starts off the night at the piano. As the spot fills up, he takes to the accordion and works the tables, playing request numbers. Microphone allows patrons in the upstairs bar to enjoy the tunes. Pierce is a capable artist and knows what and how the patrons want their music. Uses some music but carries unlimited library in his head.

Food is under direction of Joe Mercurio. Drinks are pop priced and dinner is from 35 cents up, believe it or not. No cover. Sam Abbott.

Arabian Nights, New York

After many postponements Joe Zelli has finally opened his new Broadway Oriental bistro on the site of two floppos in the past year, the Yumuri and El Bongo. This spot carries with it a sort of pseudo-Arabian-Broadway motif—Oriental decor and caricatures of Broadway personalities.

The spot itself has a curiosity value which may bring in some customers, but there is nothing of sustaining interest to keep one there or bring him back. Show is presented as a revue entitled Bagdad Over Broadway, and the only thing typical of either Bagdad or Broadway are some Arabian costumes and some old and corny Broadway jokes.

Show has little life and as a consequence drags almost thruout the entire bill. Lew Dolgoff appears to be high muck-a-muck and head of the harem but contributes little in the way of humor. Don Mario is credited with writing the musical scores, staging the show and heading the relief band. His forte seems to be in the latter. Gypsy Romaje does an exotic dance and then breaks into song with I Got Ants in My Pants. She closes the show with a spiel on the Sunday dinner special but is unheard over the din of people leaving.

Roberta Jonay was pleasing in a peacock dance and the best in entertainment of the evening was Albenice, a magician who does several tricks well. Serge Abagoff does a dance with flaming daggers, and George Chah-Baronian plays an instrument called the Tariste, which sounds like an off-tone uke.

The most impressive of all were the six dancing girls (every one of them good lookers) and Arthur Ravel's Band, which gave the show good musical accompaniment and plays Cuban music that makes one feel ashamed they can't run.

Lacking in the show seems to be a little spice, showmanship and any effort toward giving the patrons a well-rounded program. Perhaps some good singing, some comical effects and a tip-top dance team could give the show the lift that it needs. And all those corny introductions only gives the entertainment more drag.

But, basically, the idea is good and may be just nutty enough to attract some of the World's Fair crowd expected soon. Food runs along the Oriental style and prices are average. No cover, but $1.50 weekly and $2 Saturday holiday minima.

Rusty Glickman is press agent. Sol Zatt.

Hi Hat, Chicago

This Rush street niterly which, incidentally, is now redecorated in gay colors for the spring, brought in Lou Holtz and business picked up again. Holtz heretofore has been playing at the Chez Paree when working after-dark hours in Chicago and this is his initial tryout on the local 52d street.

It is almost a one-man show, Holtz doing an act between acts with an act and some in his own spot. He is terrific in front of a Jewish audience and doesn't even have to change his material to go over. They keep asking for the same stories just to hear his murderously funny dialect and individual delivery. Club should do all right while he is around.

Muriel Kretlow's line (five girls were working when caught) sandwich in the show with a good sight waltz and aerobic finish to Umbrella Man and a swing finale in which they wind up with customers assisting them in their cut-ups. Kids are attractive and are good workers.

Betty Atkinson, breezy soubret, struts thru a couple of tap routines in refreshing style. Girl makes a nice appearance.

The high soprano voice of Jean Travers, rates a more classy spot where a better voice is appreciated. Her warbling does real justice to such pieces as Say It With Music, Deep Purple, Sweetheart, Sweetheart, and Zing Zing. Makes a bright showing.

Minimum for this show is $2. Never a cover. Art Goldie doing the press work. And Sid Lang's Ork is still on the band stand. Sam Honigberg.

Glass Hat, Hotel Belmont Plaza, New York

With the departure of Joe Venuti and his swing fiddle, Ernie Holst returns from El Morocco, bringing along his smooth dance music and his smart set following.

Holst opening (7) also marked a change of floor show. New additions to the 40-minute entertainment are the Smoothies and Jane Claire. Latter, an attractive brunet, brings a vital song-selling style to a too-old repertoire of swing ditties. Old Man Mose (in the approved Patricia Norman manner) and Stop Eatin' 'Round the Mulberry Bush are a bit too ancient to be repeated in a spot like this, and Miss Claire could easily find worthier fodder for her type of song projection than A-Tisket A-Tasket's weak follow-up, I Found My Yellow Basket.

Smoothies are aptly named. With a background that includes several years with Fred Waring and a radio show of their own, Charlie and Little Ryan, aided by a new Babs (Johnson), handle their first night club assignment with the ease and excellence associated with their stage and air appearances. Harmony trio has some fine arrangements of pop and novelty numbers and delivers them with humor and personality. Three-some's version of Begin the Beguine in particular is a worth-while addition to the other current arrangements of a difficult number.

Holding over is the Adrian Rollini trio, a guaranteed highlight of any floor show. Not much more can be said about Rollini's virtuoso vibraphone playing other than that it continues to be one of the most interesting and effective items in the entertainment field today. Three Blind Mice and Raymond Scott's Minuet in Jazz are two of the better Rollini renditions.

Belmont Balladeers, group of the room's waiters, continue to close the show with their choral efforts on behalf of semi-classics like Old Man River and Lonesome Road. Burt Shaw, on the front end of the bill, starts things off nicely with a ballad or two. Shaw also handles some of the vocals for Holst.

Review of Unit "Hawaiian Paradise"

(Reviewed Monday Evening, February 27, at Kibburn Empire Theater, London)

Hawaiian Paradise is unit produced under direction of Forsythe, Seamon & Farrell.

Good all-round show, with Peters Sisters outstanding. When viewed this bulky trio registered a show-stop with their pleasing harmony and comedy.

Sharing top, but not making such a hit despite name-value, Stanley Holloway relied on off-heard character studies. A good artist, but more suited to some audiences than others.

Americans Olsen and Joy made a hit with their unusual dance offering. The man's contortionist feats strike entirely new note for this class of work. They should do well with any audience this side.

Ross and Bennett found audience-appreciation easy to get with their light comedy routine in which Joey's acro dancing stood out.

Providing vocal background to production numbers and as a separate feature, male voice quartet, the Four Jacks, made as big a hit as anyone apart from Peters Sisters.

Joey Porter and Co., British comic team, took care of broad comedy and had no difficulty getting laughs. Nothing particularly outstanding about dancing and patter act of Smeddie Brothers. Their hoofing is better than the talk.

Showgirls, Eight Valdettes, proved good workers in smart dance routines. Appearing as near nude as permissible in Britain, Marquee features as solo dancer in dramatic episode Sacrifice to Mauna Loa.

All in all, Hawaiian Paradise is a show which should have no difficulty in satisfying all tastes, being true vaude served up in palatable fashion. Edward Graves.

Nelson Framing New Unit

MACON, Ga., March 11.—Morris Nelson, whose Revue Magnificent is currently touring this territory, launches his new unit, One Golden Hour, for the Kemp Circuit in the South April 1. On March 2 Nelson produced a 50-people show for the local police department at Macon Auditorium, building the revue around his Magnificent unit, comprising the Avalons, Gordon and Olivia, Milo Vagge, Pam Perry, Caroline Silliman, the Arnold Entertainers, Billy Henderson, Helen McClure, Florence LaLoux, the Lingerie Girls and Paul Monty's Ork. Nelson does the emsinging.

GEORGE HANNEFORD AND FAMILY are appearing at Frank Fay's Vaudeville at the 44th Street Theater, New York, and not Poodles Hanneford, as erroneously listed in last week's review of the Fay show. George is brother of Poodles.

Talent Agencies

RAY S. KNEELAND, Buffalo, after having been laid up with a broken leg for over a month, resumed activities. He has lined up bookings for the State Teachers' College Prom, March 24, featuring Austin Wiley's Band; St. Bonaventure Club's dance on April 9, with Gayle Brown and his Pennsylvanians, and the Notre Dame Club dance April 8, with Charles Freeman and band. He still books the Hollywood Theater, Gowanda, N. Y., for vaude. . . . MANTZ KILGORE, Buffalo, who plays the bass fiddle in the Buffalo Broadcasting Co.'s regular staff band and also books both bands and acts, has closed his downtown office and now operates out of his home. The booker-musician reports dates for the Buffalo Athletic Club Saturday night dances for his own 12-piece band. April 8 brings a date for the 121st Cavalry Officers' Club dance at the Armory. Kilgore books David Cheskin's Band and Bunny Wilson's a good deal, and supplies vaude to the Capitol Theater, Niagara Falls, N. Y. . . . FRANK (RAGS) MURPHY, Buffalo, who was married last week, specializes in bookings for banquets and private parties and has 12 acts lined up for the Bowling Leagues' banquet in Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 24; also supplies talent for the American Legion banquet, Dunkirk, late this month. He also handles acts for the Showboat, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and the Riverview Hotel, Salamanca, niteries.

House Lines Back In 3 Out of 4 Loop Vaude Spots

CHICAGO, March 11.—House lines are back in the spotlight in three of the four Loop vaude theaters. The Chester Hale Girls (24) clicked big with the four-week run of Gunga Din and were brought back in two weeks to play a fortnight with the Bergen-McCarthy picture, You Can't Cheat an Honest Man. Kids have enough new costumes and routines to hold on for a number of weeks.

For the first time since changing to double features the Oriental is using a line of girls. Joe Keith's dozen, which originally worked in the State-Lake, came in yesterday for two weeks and, if feature clicks, will be held indefinitely. Idea is to build numbers with the girls and Verne Buck, the emsinging maestro, who cuts up in line offerings.

The Chicago, once a regular market for a ballet line, picked up Marie Kuhlman's 16 girls to background the work of Harriet Hector, who came in yesterday for two weeks with options. Here, too, the kids may stay longer if proven a box-office stimulant.

Int'l Casino Set To Reopen June 1

NEW YORK, March 11.—International Casino, which folded about two months ago and its assets subsequently sold at auction, has been reported leased to open June 1 with a girl show under the backing of a group of New England financiers, and will be managed by Joe Moss, one of the original partners who built the palatial night club.

Several weeks ago a press release was issued rumoring that Joe Moss would take over the spot, backed by a Hungarian syndicate.

The latest development prior to the current report was that Mrs. Maria Kramer, owner of the Lincoln and Edison hotels, was dickering with the City Bank Farmers Trust Co. to take over for the possible world's fair date. Understand that the bank was willing to work out a deal but required a bond of $100,000 as evidence of financial responsibility. According to the latest report, the Boston backers will pay a rental of $100,000 annually against 8 per cent of the gross.

Night Club and Vaude Routes must be received at the Cincinnati offices not later than Friday to insure publication.

Gov't Probes Night Clubs' Tax Chiseling

NEW YORK, March 11.—Having already subpoenaed the books of 73 night clubs, Jesse Moss, assistant United States attorney, together with 12 Internal Revenue agents, has started a special investigation into tax frauds by night clubs and theater ticket speculators who, it is charged, chisel $2,000,000 annually from tax returns via bookkeeping manipulations.

Moss was appointed special prosecutor for the investigation by Attorney-General Frank Murphy when an initial check by the revenue department revealed widespread abuse of the income tax laws.

Investigation, which will extend to jurisdictions adjacent to New York, will pay particular attention to "mushroom" clubs expected to spring up during the run of the New York World's Fair. Federal law calls for a 3 per cent tax on tabs over $2.50. Revenue department charges proprietors with having destroyed waiters' checks to evade the tax.

Arcadia Folds; $60,000 in Red; Padula in Pickle

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The clamping down of a restraint order upon the Arcadia by the United States Marshal on Tuesday dissipated talk that the nitery would reopen. The huge federal claim was reported to have scared off all prospective operators.

The day before the order was served, a constable at the insistence of the landlord, realized about $1,100 from the sale of linens, silverware, fixtures and liquor. The indebtedness of the corporation amounted to $60,000. The furnishings were left untouched.

Arthur Padula, operator of the spot, was negotiating to reopen the place upon a co-operative basis, profits to be shared by management and employees. However, the plan was nixed by the landlord. Others interested in the venture were two syndicates, one of them headed by Phil Barr, operator of the 500 Club in Atlantic City, N. J., and Enoch (Nucky) Johnson, a Jersey politico. Johnny D'Augustino, of the Renault Wine Co., was reported to be the financial backer for the offer of Frankie Palumbo, also in the field.

Padula is being sued for $1,200 salary owed Bill Honey's Orchestra for four weeks at the Anchorage, also managed by him, together with a $1,097 balance from the Arcadia. The suit was entered by Oscar Moldauer, attorney for the musicians' union.

Padula claims that the debts owed by the Arcadia cannot be charged to the account of the Anchorage, since each spot was operated separately. The fact that he was president of both firms, he insists, is merely coincidental. Since he, instead of the club, was put on the unfair list, he refuses to pay the money owed to Honey until the situation was cleared. He claims that he is holding Honey's funds in escrow and is willing to settle in full when he is removed from the unfair list. A non-union band is now playing in the Anchorage.

Zelli's Debuts; Cotton Club Ready

NEW YORK, March 11.—Joe Zelli's Arabian Nights, the night club that went into bankruptcy before it opened, finally debuted Thursday after three postponements. Another new club to make its appearance is the Bourbon Room, in the Hotel Elysée.

The Cotton Club closed for several weeks March 6 to rehearse the new World's Fair show which will preem March 22, headlining Bill Robinson and Cab Calloway. The show which just closed grossed $350,000 in its 22-week run, according to the club.

Billy Rcese has engaged Dana Seusse, who did original musical scores for him for the Fort Worth Fair and Cleveland Aquacade, to compose the music for his new show at the Casa Manana, which opens early in April.

"Chestnut Tree" New Rage?

NEW YORK, March 11.—A possible successor to the Lambeth Walk is seen in the pop song, Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree, on which is based a new ballroom dance from England. Rosalean and Seville are illustrating the steps at the Trion Room of the Hotel Ambassador and Dick Gasparre's Band is playing it.

Scott MacLean and His Royal Scots Band are featuring the number at the Victoria Bar, Victoria Hotel.

ABC, Paris, $60,000 Gross In 10-Week Run

PARIS, March 6.—Mitty Goldin, owner of the ABC, is carrying one of his rare smiles. Going into the last week of revue, he finds he has tucked away a neat gross of over 2,000,000 francs ($60,000) in the 10-week run.

Very poor, with nothing to carry it but exceptional talent, this show has established a new high for this small house (900 seats).

Jean Sablon heads the new bill opening March 10. Sablon has just returned from two successful years in the United States.

The Cirque Medrano, which has been showing a musical fantasy since Christmas, will also start its regular policy of vaude March 10.

A new vaude house is to be opened soon. The former headquarters of the Stavisky Gang, the gambling club, Cercle Grammont, is being remodeled and entirely done over to be the first local house to show six-a-day. To accommodate the artists a dining room and kitchen have been installed, also showers, beauty salon and reception room. Estimated time of shows will be one hour and 45 minutes.

RKO Flushing 2 Days

NEW YORK, March 11.—Two-days-a-week vaude will be instituted at RKO's Flushing Theater starting March 21. Ford Crane is set for permanent emcee post for the five-act bill Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Billy Jackson booking.

O'Connor Heads Catholic Drive

TMAT LEVIES

check further on relation of treasurers to the code. Same subject is expected to be brought before the board of governors of the League of New York Theaters.

The 1 per cent levy supplements the $300 initiation fee and $3 monthly dues TMAT members are already shouldering. The old differences between the press agents and the other groups in the union, never having been completely smoothed out, are coming to active life again, according to reports from the group committee meetings. Still jealous of the high p. a. salaries, treasurers and managers are seeking to block possibility of a p. a. doubling in any other post during a slack season. Press agents say the movement is a contradiction of the basic purposes of the whole union.

Fuss made by box-office people against the League police system to discover code violations has been condemned by other organizations. At recent huddle between Equity and League the previous TMAT threat of strike brought a rebuke from Equity and a promise to ask the union, as a sister group in the AFL, to co-operate with the new project. Move is unlikely, however, since some feel overture would be interpreted as meddling.

That there are leaks in the code and that brokers admit paying ice to treasurers may work against the TMAT in renewing its contract with League. TMAT has been accused not having been consulted in drawing up code, but that excuse, producers feel, is lame. They show no signs of consulting TMAT in future code plans. Governors are likely, tho, to revise contract stipulations with TMAT to fill up the ice hole.

Vaude Grosses

Fay's 1st Week Does $12,662; Other N. Y. Houses Do Fair

NEW YORK.—Frank Fay's vaude venture at the 44th Street Theater at a $2.75 top has a fairly good chance of existence, the first week's take having been $12,662, which caused Fay to just about break even or perhaps take a little dent in the pocketbook. The show, however, is catching on, and the house anticipates a gross this week of $13,000 to $14,000, based on the advance sale. If a sellout business comes along the house is geared to gross $22,000 a week.

In the presentation houses three holdovers were current last week. Hal Kemp and Tony Martin, along with Cafe Society, at the Paramount had a second-week gross of $35,000, compared with $50,000 the first week.

At the Strand Yes My Darling Daughter was held over for an additional six days, but Will Osborne's Band, Sheila Barrett and the Milt Herth Trio went in on its initial week and did a week $24,000.

Roxy's holdover with Henny Youngman, and Peg Leg Bates heading the stage bill plus Wife, Husband and Friend, did $34,500.

Radio City Music Hall had a good take of $22,000 with Stage Coach as the pic attraction and the regular stage show including Gene Murphy.

Milton Berle and Mary Jane Walsh did a good $26,000 at Loew's State, along with The Shining Hour.

On March 10 Loew's Valencia, Jamaica, did the best business in its history, selling 5,300 ducats at the b. o. Reason was presentation of awards to Long Island Jitterbug champs, Charlie Barnett's Band was on the stage.

LOS ANGELES.—Paramount, with Maxine Sullivan, Fanchon & Marco Revue, Smith Ballou Orchestra and pic, St. Louis Blues, fell to $12,000 gross, six grand below average, for week ending March 8.

MONTREAL.—Loew's, with Benny Davis and Stardust Revue of 1939, grossed $6,500 as against average of eight grand for week ending March 4. Pic, Little Tough Guys in Society. Previous week's gross was $7,500, with Ann Sothern, Roger Pryor and band and pic, Secrets of an Actress.

SEATTLE.—Palomar for week ending March 3 knocked off $5,200, a couple of hundred above average, with Pepito heading the vaude bill. Two pic, Flirting With Fate and Mysterious Miss X.

CLEVELAND.—RKO Palace, week ending March 3, upped its take to $16,000, one G above average, with Crazy Show vaude unit and pic, The Three Musketeers.

DETROIT.—Fox, with Benny Goodman Band, jumped to $33,000, way above normal gross of $20,000, week ending March 2. Pic, Three Musketeers. Week ending February 24 house grossed $19,000 with Lambert, Trixie, Motter and Davis, 16 Dansonettes and pic, Little Tough Guys and Youth Takes a Fling.

PHILADELPHIA.—Earle, week ending February 23, jumped to $19,000 compared to average $14,000, with Eddy Duchin Band and pic, Great Man Votes.

KANSAS CITY.—Fox Tower fell one G below $7,000 average, week ending February 23, with Aunt Jemima and pic, Newsboys' Home.

CHICAGO.—Palace opened strong with its new Edgar Bergen-W. C. Fields picture You Can't Cheat an Honest Man and a five-act stage show featuring again the 24 Chester Hale Girls. Gross points to a strong $25,000. Last week's combination turned out a nice $17,200 considering the absence of Bobby Breen, who canceled his p. a. due to illness. Chicago is hopeful of another good fortnight with the ballyhooed Yes, My Darling Daughter and a Harriet Hooter-Ethel Shutta stage bill. Opening was only fair, but initial week should bring around $29,000. Preceding bill with Roger Pryor and Ann Sothern, with Cafe Society on screen, fell off to $25,800.

State-Lake has another strong flesh chapter headed by Johnny Perkins and Hal LeRoy and together with the screen's Off the Record will probably garner a strong $15,000. Vaude showing feature Wednesday is proving a help, too. Last week's combo of eight acts topped by Mitzl Green and White New York Sleeps rolled up a good $14,000 average. Oriental's figure was similar with two pictures and five acts and another repeat is in evidence with this week's fare. Rumors of house switching to a straight picture policy due to poor biz are discounted. Acts have already been set thru May.

PHILADELPHIA.—Ted Weems' session at the Fox tallied a sensational $31,000, topping the Artie Shaw figure by a G. However, the film Yes, My Darling Daughter must be given credit for the terrific biz. The New York censorship row provided the ballyhoo that jammed the house.

NEWARK, N. J.—John Boles proved to be a surprise hit at the Shubert week ending March 10, and house turned in a nice $13,400. Screen fare was Pride of the Navy (Republic).

Paramount, on the other hand, fizzled badly with what everyone expected to be sock stuff, a battle of swine between Red Nichols and Mal Hallett orchestras. Screen featured Cafe Society. No plausible explanation has yet been offered. $12,600 gross.

Shubert had a well-paced show that started with an outstanding Deep Purple overture by Buddy Page and the house band. Steve Evans, mimic, turned in a great performance. Boles, however, took the house by storm. Audience, 80 per cent women, went for the guy in a big way and called him back for several curtain calls each show.

Empire, burlesque, collected quite a few shekels with its Mary Joyce show. Gross for the week should be well over $4,000.

TAX PROPOSAL

Winner, provides for a $1 permit fee and a tax of 1 cent on every 25 cents or fractional part thereof on the price of tickets of admission to any place of amusement, entertainment or recreations, including theaters, movies, sports events, dance halls, bathing pools, baseball games and similar events.

Two bills to tax Bank Nights were also introduced in the Generally Assembly. Representative Reuben E. Cohen proposed that permits be obtained from county treasurers who would fix the fees for a month or a single night, and Representative Rosenfeld suggested in his tax bill that a $100 fee be paid by the theaters for each Bank Night.

A bill reducing the annual fee of $10 to $2.50 on shooting galleries, shuffle boards and poolrooms has been introduced by Representative Seif.

PLAY ACTIVITY

Rubin of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Fleisher got together on the first draft of the contract designed to give film producers a better break than they claim they are getting now. New contract covers exclusively plays produced with picture money and will not supplant agreement in effect now. Attorneys expect to have compromise ready for Council's approval within a few weeks.

Loew's State, New York

(Reviewed Thursday Evening, March 9)

Current vaude bill is good but not exceptional. Kitty Carlisle, who's been in pictures, radio and musical comedy, is the headliner, with Walter Powell's Band featured. Film is Topper Takes a Holiday, which is n. s. g.

Bill gets off to a typical opener start with Al Gordon's dog turn. Gordon paces the several mutts as they run on and off for quick tricks. There's comedy and, of course, the dogs' cutness always gets the audience.

Benny Ross, who emceeds the bill, makes a nice impression with the mike heckling bit and then Rolf Holbein socks over his pantomimic novelty turn. He does quick cartooning on a white backboard that soon becomes alive. It's a distinct novelty and a swell sight comedy act.

Miss Carlisle, lovely in a strapless red gown, has no trouble selling herself. Offers This Can't Be Love, Summertime, Hallelujah and It's a Great Day and, for encores, Gianina Mia and Two Sleepy People. She has appearance, graciousness, fine stage presence and an attention-holding singing contralto. A class act.

Ross returns, this time with blond Maxine Stone, for a fairly amusing session of banter and gagging. Miss Stone plays a lazy gal who can get up only enough ambition to do a high kick number. They got quite a few laughs.

Walter Powell and his 12-man band offered 23 minutes of comedy music that was so-so. Powell opens blowing a neon-lighted trombone, the lights going up to reveal the band (piano, string bass, guitar, four sax and four brass). After Begin the Beguine there's a comedy number, and then blond and vivacious Bobby Trotter swings a couple of tunes in lively fashion, followed by the band turning glee club for an interesting version of All the Friends I Know. Guitarist's fine tenor dominates. Larry Powell does a comedy fiddle and the band goes in for seltzer squirting and wet pants, winding up with Larry getting a bucketful of water on his face. It's that kind of comedy. We don't think it's funny, but the audience responded nicely. Walter Powell paces the act, doing a lot of trick tromboning and a few comedy bits. (Cloviss Rogers and Johnny Gassaway billed but not announced during act.)

Next week: Idiot's Delight, and George Hall's Band and Dolly Dawn heading the vaude. Paul Denis.

Chicago, Chicago

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, March 10)

Harriet Hctor and Ethel Shutta cop the featured honors on the stage and will hold the favored positions for two weeks, thanks to the ballyhooed and censor-conscious screen version of Yes, My Darling Daughter.

Miss Hctor has never been in better grace and balance and her ballet work on as big a stage as this is at its peak. She is capably backgrounded by Marie Kuhlman's line of 16 dancers, shapely in body and light on their feet. The ballerina frames the bill with a moody and expressionistic fantasy and a novel flea circus routine in which the entire ballet in fitting costumes stage an amusing show. Miss Hctor's toe efforts and circular spins bring a noted climax to these scenes.

The Three Trojans, in white flannels and red sweaters, have a snappy and solid tumbling exhibition. The tricks, some of them off the beaten path, are real hand-getters and the boys accomplish them with comparative ease.

Ethel Shutta follows and wears one of those new two-color spring gown creations that flatters her appearance. She is still the showman of old and while some of her new stuff is not of show-stopping proportions her old favorites turn up to do the trick. She delivers Sticks and Stones, satire on Ferdinand, I Get Along Without You, parody on Get Out of Town and returns for her best, The Ozarks Are Calling Me Home. She has a personality and voice that sell.

Lowe, Hite and Stanley, good comedy sight act, precede the closing ballet routine. Talk is kept at a minimum and the laughs come mainly from the amusing bits of business developed from the vast difference in their heights. Timing is fine and few incidents are sprung without bringing back some audible response from the house. Still close with their military tap number.

Business was average second show opening day, meaning a fairly well populated orchestra floor. Sam Honigberg.

Paramount, New York

(Reviewed Friday Evening, March 10)

After several weeks of "extra added attractions" in the form of Hollywood satellites, the Paramount is back on a straight band diet garnished with only three filler acts. Big in-person lure is Chick Webb, along with his drums and his swing crew, starting another theater tour after a month and a half at the Park Central Hotel.

Webb is synonymous with swing, and the heat that's being generated thru the theater this week isn't coming from the furnaces alone. It's a first-rate band performance thruout and climaxed by a torrid jam session—using the St. Louis Blues as a base—that met with a deserved rousing reception from the pew-holders. This little item was pure swing all the way, featuring trumpet, trombone, sax and the Webb drumnastics, and was something to delight the most captious listener.

Close behind the Webb outfit in billing and popular appeal is Ella Fitzgerald. Sepia songstress is in great form here and does a job of selling several current rhythm tunes in a manner that might well be used as lesson No. 1 in a course for aspiring vocalists. Repertoire included Hold Tight, F. D. R. Jones, My Heart Belongs to Daddy and Taint What You Do, each one a gem of song delivery, especially the latter two. Miss Fitzgerald also adds her bit to the whirlwind finish.

With Chick at the drums, the band, as usual, is fronted by Bardu All with more aplomb than that shown by many of his ofay conferees. No fault can be found with either his conducting or his emceeing, his handling of the latter assignment being particularly effortless.

Rest of the bill is sepia, opening with the Lindy Hoppers. Three boys and three girls are down from Harlem's Savoy Ballroom for the week and go thru their heated routines with the customary hooping abandon of their race. The Southerners, from the NBC studios, supply a few quieter moments with a collection of spirituals, offering good contrast to the protechnics of the rest of the line-up. The Zephyrs offer something a little different with their pantomime and slow-motion routine. The ease with which the two boys work is such that it almost conceals the basic difficulty of their stuff.

On the screen is Paramount's Bob Hope-Martha Raye vehicle, Never Say Die. House three-quarters filled at the show.

Daniel Richman.

Shea's Buffalo, Buffalo

(Reviewed Thursday Afternoon, March 9)

Buffalo theatergoers ask for a very simple flesh menu, music and voice. This is borne out by the paucity of shows in local theaters. There is only one burly, and so it is that Shea's Buffalo, the only movie house presenting so-called vaudeville, dishes out with this light recipe of Marchelli and his 22-piece orchestral ensemble plus seven vocalists.

New to this theater and to Buffalo is Ulderich Marchelli, conductor, who two weeks ago replaced D'Artega. A youthful version of Adolphe Menjou, and with the build of a star halfback, this Italian has been publicized as possessing extreme capabilities in most any kind of music. When reviewed swing was noticeably absent. Marchelli chose to be symphonic, and even ventured the classical touch to such pops as Begin the Beguine, Rio Rita and If You're in Love. His love for violin combinations was apparent in his semi-classical arrangements of gypsy fantasies.

What should make Marchelli extremely popular here is his dignified manner. The audience shows him warm admiration.

Entitled Melodic Sketches, Marchelli's program was delivered in three sections. The first, Rio Rita melodies, consisting of four numbers interwoven by the fading and strengthening theme of Rio Rita thruout, lacked diversification. Begin the Beguine, which followed, was the only current pop tune on the program. Here, it seems, Marchelli missed a safe bet by not going to town, instead of his straight, conventional interpretation. Consisting of five numbers, all very closely allied in name and tune, such as Play, Fiddle, Play; Play Gypsy and When a Gypsy Makes His Violin Cry, the Gypsy Fantasy chapter had the same shortcomings as the first, but in arrangement only. Spirit ran high and sentimentality flourished in almost a genuine Hungarian manner.

In the line-up of musicians are organ, Maurice Nicholson; violins, Simon Nieman, Max Miller, Frank Plagge, Meyer Balsom, Wallace Michalski and Harry Slick; piano, Norman Wullen; bass, Theodore Mayer; guitar, Anthony Miltello; trumpets, Vincent Impellittero, Gene Bishop and Lawrence Albano; saxes, Stephen Lisakoff, Donald Whipple, Nicholas Allico, Jules Piller; flute, Bert Lapina; trombones, George Breckenridge and Santolo Carliero; arrangers, Cal Janowitz and Ivan Beaty; drums, George D'Anna.

The Four Bufalonians (Eddie Manguso, Art Steffen, Al Colthurst and Warren Hardy) offered some very stimulating glee club arrangements. Solos were given by Hardy and Steffen, with the latter the more impressive.

A very statuesque brunet, Audrey Ely, possesses a very high range with plenty of power. Her gypsy renditions were accompanied by talented gesticulations and good poise. In the finale the chorus of the above mentioned singers was augmented by Marion Walter and Ruth Nichols.

A very fitting atmosphere was created by the Little Red Riding Hood jackets worn by members of the orchestra.

Vincent R. McPaul is general manager of the 12 Shea theaters in Buffalo and suburbs. William Brett is manager of Shea's Buffalo. Charles Taylor is in charge of publicity.

The picture, Yes, My Darling Daughter (Warner).

Ted Lewis, with band and floor show unit, moved in here March 10. Film, Wife, Husband and Friend.

Harold J. Warner.

Palace, Chicago

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, March 10)

Definitely a better than average revue this week, augmenting the new McCarthy-Fields picture. You Can't Cheat an Honest Man, in for two weeks. It is nicely paced and flavored with colorful routines by the locally popular Chester Hale Girls who are back for another return engagement.

The 24 line kids open with a brisk tap diversion, neatly outfitted in green briefs and Robin Hood hats. Design in modern and commercial.

Gilbert Brothers scored as usual with their bar gymnastics and hand-balancing session. Two clean-cut chaps who work with a maximum of smoothness and never fail to retain their grace regardless of the size of the tricks.

Jean Carroll and Buddy Howe, familiar act to Palace audiences, also went over with their flowing chapter of nonsense, novelty and tance exit. The girl is a clever personality and has a sense of humor that is projecting and pleasing. Buddy helps out nobly with talk and strong tap and acro steps.

Line returns with their interpretive Lights and Shadows display that has some interesting formations and presents a generally soothing picture.

Doris Rhodes, talented singer who lately has been climbing via the CBS airwaves, did three numbers and netted an impressive reception. She started with This Can't Be Love, revealed a fine dramatic voice in Deep Purple, her theme song, and closed with a swing arrangement of Umbrella Man.

Bud Harris and Co., probably one of the best colored comedy turns around, had little trouble stopping things in this next-to-closing spot. Harris takes care of the comedy end in a fine manner and his assistants supply straight talk, song and dance relief. Harris is a naturally funny-looking guy and the bits with his two male and one girl cohorts are dotted with good laughs.

Line finishes with a flashy military parade, the colorful costumes emphasizing the streamlined shapes of the spirited participants.

Business was good first show opening day. Sam Honigberg.

(Reviewed Friday Evening, March 10)

Nice flesh layout here, and likely to draw well with Shirley Temple pic, The Little Princess (20th-Fox).

Top billing to Johnny Woods, who has been seen fairly recently around this section. Woods does a satire on radio programs, using his skill in impersonation for take-offs on Allen, Vallee, Laugh-ton, Crosby and many others. Idea is that of an amateur show, with Allen emceeing. The burlesque is measurably enhanced by a strong comedy dialog, and act has no waste effort.

Andy Mayo did his Pansy the Horse comedy turn. Has another man helping inside the prop animal and a gal to do the pacing and talking. The horse somehow gets knowing expressions on his painted phiz. A bit of the comedy verges on the risque side but gets plenty of chuckles. Mayo also does Percival the Bull but when caught devoted the entire act to Pansy, a good novelty.

Wally and Verdyn Stapleton, dancers, played the State not so long ago. They very definitely have style, adapting tap technique to ballroom turns. Their manner is eccentric and staccato, and they can use panto to good effect. Footwork is exceedingly nimble, and instead of simply hoofing in unison, they synchronize" vaied routines. Did well enough here for an encore.

Helen Reynolds and her World Champion Skaters are eight femmes. Their whirls and twirls are fast and showy, often making use of striking contortionistic postures. Turn gets a much better effect than the more usual two or three-member skating act, owing to greater possibilities of mass skating stunts. Paced very fast and goes off well.

Jayne Dover, vocalist, spotted in production numbers with Gae Foster girls. Best tune was Old McPherson Is Rehearsin', used by way of introducing Foster line in a beautifully done Scotch military turn. Foster line in this was tops, production making use of a couple of bagpipers.

Late show had a good house.
Paul Ackerman.

Paramount, Long Branch, New Jersey

(Reviewed Friday Evening, March 3)

Patrons welcomed Walter Reade's booking of something in addition to pictures. House makes policy of catering to citizens who remain at summer resort during winter. Manager is Thomas Phelan.

Altho citizenry believes itself sophisticated and metropolitan, Tom Emerson and his Hillbillies scored a decided hit. Three performances a day were played to well-filled houses. Emerson's radio audience was undoubtedly on hand to see him and his hicks in person.

Show lags half hour and is flashy but a bit weak at the finish. Wreck of the 97, with Tom leading with flashlight on belt for headlight and Kaye with red light on her seat as back end of train, is not in keeping with the rip-roaring opening.

Outstanding is Gerald Liston's Impersonations. His take-offs on Fred Allen, President Roosevelt and the late Will Rogers are commendable.

Stan Siroy does a tap dance with average ability. His steps are nothing new. Is quite young and indicates remarkable latent talent.

Tom Emerson has good rural tone to his voice which befits his leadership of the "mountaineers." Drawl is natural and unaffected. Sarah Jane and guitar do swell on cowboy numbers. Cicero Hemsley with his accordion does good job. His part in Cocktails for Two is standout of the act. Jerry Gerard supports unit with his bass fiddle and comes to the fore when he puts the bull on the floor.

Hank Allen does his best to aggravate Emerson with his antics, and audience goes wild when leader drives ruralist off stage. His crying gag, altho not new, wowed the kids. Tex Kenton appeals to the adults with his When It's Springtime in the Rockies and his yodeling.

Burton and Kaye, boy and girl dance team, making first appearance with unit here do some comic steps and then get themselves into a mess. Graceful acro dancing closes their turn. Act fits well into show.

On screen, The Son of Frankenstein.
Sam Abbott.

Coliseum, London

(Week of February 27)

France and America share headline honors.

Former star of Cochran revues, Alice Delysia awakened memories with a medley of numbers made famous by her in those shows, but scored best with spicy monolog.

There is much to be commended in the dancing, acro, hokum offering of the Three Diamond Brothers. That the boys did not register tops in applause may be due to novelty of their style of comedy wearing a trifle thin with British audiences.

In opening spot Three Hugos registered mildly with mixture of song, music and dance. Outstanding features of their routine were toe tap on piano and tap on xylophone by one of two girls.

Three Dixi Brothers did almost as well as anybody with their simultaneous stepping and comedy of near-slapstick class.

Hughie Green rendered faithful impersonations of British vaude and musical comedy stars, plus—the best of the lot—Lionel Barrymore. He had assistance of diminutive Sadie Corrie for cross-talk, and a young crooner, Jean Ray.

In her burlesque vocal impressions, Helen Binnle did best and registered strongest with impersonation of a vent dummy.

Laugh honors of entire show went to Three Bo Brummels. Their offering is one of the funniest burlesques of musical acts seen here for many a day.

First half closed on Ivor Moreton and Dave Kaye playing hot on two pianos. Boys registered well, despite having to work in setting more suited to an exotic dancing number. Peter Marwoode and Beatrix Richards opened second half with vocal numbers. Voices good, but offering marred by lack of stage deportment.

Opening to a reception second only to that accorded Delysia, Reba proved herself to be still one of the outstanding lazy jugglers of the age. Ben Dova closed bill, his antics on swaying lamp-post winning him a well deserved hand.

Edward Graves.

Fox, Detroit

(Reviewed Friday Evening, March 10)

This week's program of all-quality acts, but without any sock personality appeal, drew a good house, with probably more credit going to the film, Wife, Husband and Friend. Sam Jack Kaufman's Band opens in a slight swing tempo with a series of Stephen Foster numbers, which might have been helped by some vocalizing.

Nichols Brothers, colored tapsters, offer some duo and solo novelty numbers. They close with a couple of difficult splits, which the crowd liked.

The Reddingtons, trampoline act, open with a mother and daughter number; invite persons from the crowd and draw a "stooge" who turns out to be an ace trampoline comedian. His unique falls and turns garner him plenty of laughs and a good hand. June Reddington does a couple dozen backward somersaults in as many seconds.

Miss Cass Daley, radio comedienne, does hotcha vocalizing with plenty of pep and noise. Her stage promenading adaptations of hits from popular songs panicked 'em.

Patricia Bowman opens with a realistic caricature of a tennis player and returns with a swanlike Blue Danube number, which indicates rare versatility in a ballerina.

The 16 Dansonettes do a number accompanying the Bowman finale and also appear in a revival of their excellently costumed and practiced Florodora number, as well as in a novelty tap item. Program was slightly overloaded with comedy, altho each act is good in its own class.

H. F. Reeves.

Paramount, Los Angeles

(Reviewed Wednesday Afternoon, March 8)

Altho this week's bill is short, it clicks with patrons. Fanchonettes start things off with a marionette dance, and their precision work is as good as any seen here in recent years.

Smith Ballew's Ork, now in its second week, perked up its opening stand and turned out some good stuff. Ballew is still jittery before the mike, but his stuff is smoothing out considerably. His rendition of Night and Day, with backing from three boys from the band, was adequate. We Three, band trio, fiddle, guitar and bass, did I Must See Annie Tonight and Stardust. The latter, heavy with showmanship, clicked with the crowd.

Seven Cressonians offered a teeter-board act which had its moments. It's spectacular stuff, with five men and two gals doing some first-rate tumbling, while all members kept up a line of chatter during the routines. It kept the audience's interest until the climax. Finish found a femme going off teeterboard, looping three times in the air and landing on her partner's shoulders. A sock close.

King Sisters, four femmes, long on looks and warbling, offered some unique song arrangements. They opened with a swing version of Umbrella Man, and their renditions of Mr. Paganini and an Indian War Dance were tops.

Cliff Nazarro, who came on after a build-up by Ballew, knows how to sell his stuff no matter how moth-eaten the gags. His stuff at the piano was far from original but went over. He finished with Make the Most of Each Day a la Jolson. Most of the crowd figured he'd cut loose with more of the double talk which he uses on the air. This was his biggest selling feature, and except for bits here and there, he neglected it. Finish found the Fanchonettes doing a shadow turn. Biz was off at the afternoon show. Pic, Cafe Society.

Robitschek Vaude Grosse $3,600; Bond Pays Acts

NEW YORK, March 11.—Kurt Robitschek's second American vaude venture, at the Maryland Theater, Baltimore, last week, which lasted for one week, did a total gross business of $3,600, netting Julian Fuhs, who fronted the show, $231 and the house approximately the same amount. With this over, Robitschek said that he's thru trying to revive vaudeville in America.

Robitschek took exception to the reports that the show folded, saying that he only intended to run it a week anyway, and that Maurice Schwartz's road show of Three Cities had been booked for last Saturday several weeks in advance. He pointed out, tho, that for the first time in years Baltimore's three legit houses were operating and he had the tough luck to step in that week, which slackened things no end. Price policy for the week was 25 cents to $1.

All the acts were paid off, however, from the bond which was posted with the American Federation of Actors. Fuhs was the first vaude producer to post a bond since the new AFA ruling went into effect. This rule followed the recent flop at the Majestic Theater which left many acts holding the bag for a week's salary.

The show at the Maryland carried the same title as Robitschek's Majestic turkey, Laughter Over Broadway, but the cast consisted of Buck and Bubbles, Nat Nazarro Jr., Don and Bud Gilbert, Ginger Dulo, Maurice and Maryea, Kathleen Harris, Elaine Arden, Benny Ross and Maxine Stone, Ruth Landi, and the Royal Whirlwinds.

Attractions Draw Business in Akron

AKRON, O., March 11.—Akron has fared far better than many cities its size for variety shows. The Palace here has had 18 band-vaude attractions on its stage since last Labor Day, and has presented 42 units since August, 1937.

According to Manager Bud Sommers, there are plenty more in the booking files. Eddy Duchin's Band and a supplementing vaude bill opens at the local house March 10; Major Bowes' Swing School, March 18; John Boles p. a. with Joe Rines Orchestra March 24. Al Donahue's Orchestra March 31 and Jimmy Dorsey's Orchestra May 5.

Four other units are booked, but the dates are not definitely set, Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Kay Kyser and Blackstone.

AFA Grabs Load Of Publicity With Ban on WPA Jokes

NEW YORK, March 11.—The American Federation of Actors fell into a load of publicity this week when its council passed a resolution warning members that they would be fined or suspended if caught using gags derogatory to the WPA. AFA explained that it didn't feel it was right for the more fortunate privately employed AFA members to razz their fellow members on the WPA.

Story of the resolution landed on four front pages locally Tuesday and was followed by editorials kidding the AFA the following day. Story went out on the wires, too. The newspapers contacted the other performer unions, which promptly denied they would follow the AFA's action.

WPA officials were overjoyed, of course, and thanked the AFA. The reaction in the trade, however, was that the AFA was censoring its members right of using whatever material they wished. Sensing this, the AFA executive secretary, Ralph Whitehead, on Thursday issued a statement denying censorship and insisting no member would be suspended for violating this new rule. He said he hoped AFA members would voluntarily cease razzing the WPA.

Vode-Visions May Slap Suit on AFM

NEW YORK, March 11.—Vode-Visions will give Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, 10 days in which to answer its offer and threat sent Wednesday. The letter asks for withdrawal of restrictions placed on musicians for the recordings, but threatens a million-dollar damage suit should Weber refuse to come to more amiable terms.

Penthouse, Boston, Closing for Season

BOSTON, Mass., March 13.—The Penthouse, atop the Hotel Bradford, will close for the season. Tommy Maren found himself too occupied with his Dinty Moore's restaurant.

The night club Ken, which closed for renovations, is again open.

Dave Lillenthal will import a couple of big names from New York for the 1939 edition of the I. J. Fox Follies locally.

Lou Walters projected night club on Cape Cod which will seat 400—he says the four hundred—will be circular in design.

The Latin Quarter Club has restored the chorus line.

The Ritz Carlton Roof will open May 1 with Benny Goodman's Band and Adelaide Moffett the first two weeks. Larry Clinton will follow Goodman.

MILWAUKEE, March 11.—The Empress, which has been playing sex films, has switched to daily burlesque with I. B. Hamp and his show, featuring Marion Rose, along with a feature flicker. Prices are 15 cents to 12, 25 cents to 6, and 35 cents thereafter.

Burly Show for Women Only

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—A burlesque show for women only, sponsored by the Philadelphia Junior Consumptive League for the benefit of the Los Angeles Sanatorium, Tuesday at 150 North Broad street, resulted in a gross of $1,267.50 and an attendance of 1,950. No comps were issued.

Show followed a regular burlesque layout, Paula being the featured strip artist. Other entertainers included Margie Smith, the Three Lunatics and a chorus of hefties, the Beef Trust.

Harry Biben supplied the talent.

Chevrolet, Dealers Split Nut of Unit; 6 Wks. of I-Niters

BERKELEY, Calif., March 11.—Possibility of commercial industries employing more vaude talent was indicated, following recent conclusion of a series of engagements for Chevrolet Motor Co. George West, Three Novelaires, Don Amato and a pianist played six weeks of one-nighters, giving one evening show in the showroom of a Chevrolet dealer in each town. Playing to an average of 850 people per night, show ran two and one-half hours, with nut split by Chevrolet Co. and individual dealer. Six shorts, educational in nature, also used.

Acts were paid $15 per day and transportation.

Claimed that this form of direct contact advertising has brought tangible sales results and considered likely that other industries will follow Chevrolet's lead.

Shubert, Philly, Closes

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Shubert Theater here will close for the season after tonight's performance. Mediocre grosses since its opening caused operators to decide not to buck the Lenten season. Lester Schwartz, publicity man, says the house will be given a thorough renovation before its September revival. Operated by Joseph Hurtig, formerly of Hurltig & Semon.

Last year's operation of this house ended disastrously for Max Wilner. Mrs. Wilner and the former manager, Thomas Germaine, are still under bail for evasion of federal taxes.

Nickens at Roxy, Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 11.—Frank Nickens is the new house manager at the Roxy, local tab-burly emporium. He began this week on changes in the house lighting equipment, and also is adding new seats. Business is reported as satisfactory. Jack Keating and Renee Mahar are producing the Roxy shows. Others in the cast are George B. Hill, Lorraine Tumblyn, Pearl Lawson, Virginia Watts, Sue Jordan and Norman the Great.

Burlesque Review

Gayety, Baltimore

(Reviewed Sunday Evening, March 5)

Valerie Parks brought her own show here this week and unfolded a particularly entertaining burly review. Altogether following usual lines, this production by John Ensley is cleaner than the average, has its novel twists and moves along at a fast clip.

Comedy is the main theme and in the capable hands of Toothless Billy (Boob) Reed and Billy (Scratch) Wallace. With few exceptions, skits are clean. Reed presents some original gags and clicks in a clever musical bit. As a combination, the boys execute a number of amusing blackouts, assisted by Grace Gordon, a good talking woman. Help is also given by straight men Harry Ryan and John Ensley, while Ryan goes comedian to bring the house down with a "strip tease." Also in the comedy vein, vaude team of Levan and Bolles gives the customers plenty of reason for boisterous laughter and receives an ovation.

The stripping, while short in number, is long in quality. Possessor of good looks and body beautiful, blond Valerie Parks, a terrific box-office attraction here, has the boys gasping. With a swell wardrobe the talented Parks, by her graceful but sensuous movements plus vigorous bumping and cute pouting, stamps definitely her right as a top-notch. At this reviewing she stopped at no halfway measures. Voluptuous Anna Smith handles the other disrobing spot and received a good hand for her wiggling rapid-fire strip.

Altogether the routines are regular the 12 chorus girls are streamlined and the majority are easy to look at. The girls are freshly costumed and for the most part are very happy. Nydia fronts the chorus for veil, fan and balloon dances. She has poise and grace, used to good advantage. Wilbur Rance handles the singing chores with a pleasant tenor voice and also doubles as straight man for several scenes.

An additional strip would lend more balance to unit. Walter Lester leads pit band. House, operated by John (Hon) Nichols and managed by Gus Flagg, uses Hirst shows with three-day policy. Phil Lehman.

Carpenters, painters, mechanics and scene builders are busily engaged in framing what promises to be one of the most attractive tent theaters on the road.

"Crazy Ray" Reminisces On Old Showboat Days

Editor The Billboard:

I never finish reading Billyboy until I give the rep page the second time over. I'll never forget my showboat days. Those were the happy days. I caught the death of Ted Goodwin, of Goodwin and Goodwin, recently in The Billboard. I was on Wiley McNair's New Era Showboat the winter of 1910. I joined at the old home town, Paducah, Ky. and we went south and stayed in Bayou La Fourche, La., down in the cane belt, and the Goodwins and Dr. Morris and his trained monkey, Jock-O, were also on board.

On the Greater New York Showboat, which Steve Price's father had just bought from Ralph Emerson, Horace Murphy, of Murphy's Comedians, had the band and was the producer about 1911. On the boat at that time in the band were Horace Murphy, leading with an old-time E-flat cornet; Glen Brunk, Joe Baird, callopie and trombone; Chic Pellette, baritone and general business actor; Gordon Hays, doing heavies and alto in band; myself, trap drums and assisting Joe Baird on callopie.

On the W. R. Markle's Golden Rod, about 1912, James Hayden had the band; Charles Smith, trombone, and myself, drums and callopie. I knew Norman Thom well. He was baritone singer and part owner of Cooley & Thom's Wonderful Floating Theater. I also knew Mr. Isenbarth, owner of Isenbarth & Henderson's Floating Theater, out of Marietta, O. Those were the happy days, and when I passed Cincinnati I always serenaded. Homer Denny then played the callopie on the Island Queen with The Billboard March. Walter Falkenstein, I guess, was the oldest callopie player on the river at that time. He played many years for Capt. E. A. Price, Steve's father, on French's New Sensation Boat. I often wonder who of the above are living today.

I caught a note in your column of Chic Pellette, and I guess it's the same Chic I knew. He played a hot baritone. I bought the callopie last fall off the Water Queen Showboat and have it overhauled. I expect to frame a large motor callopie outfit to play fairs as a free act after the close of the circus season. I hope the old showboat days come back. I see where Jim Bonnell is back with the showboat and I hope he makes a go of it and brings the good old showboat days back. I expect to be with Mr. Adkins on the Cole Bros.' Circus this season, making my 17th year with him.

L (CRAZY RAY) CHOISSER.

Charley Brunk Improving

WACO, Tex., March 11.—Charley M. Brunk, who suffered severe head injuries, neck bruises and a fractured hip in a head-on collision near here recently, has shown improvement the past week, and physicians at Providence Hospital here, where he is confined, have given him an even break for his life. He was unconscious for two days after the accident and physicians had given him little hope for recovery. Brunk was advance agent for Brunk's Comedians, playing near here.

Show Biz of the Open Spaces

By E. F. HANNAN

RECENTLY an inquiry was answered in The Billboard as to who wrote the play version of Quincy Adams Sawyer. This brought to mind the thought that plays and players of the so-called sticks are not entirely overlooked. Corse Payton once said that his name would be remembered when the names of so-called big-city stars of his day would be forgotten. Payton facetiously styled himself "the world's best bad actor," but those who knew him in his heyday have always taken this remark to be a bit of deep satire. He made 'em weep with his Over the Hills to the Poorhouse and oldtimers will remember an enjoyable evening spent watching Payton put over his Dora, a classic of its kind in the way that only he could do it.

The idea that only the great come off Broadway has been dashed to pieces so often that the public now gives credence to talent wherever it is found, forgetting where or how the performer came by it. Olsen and Johnson are an instance at hand. In the small city of Belfast, Me., a retired actor takes it easy and thinks of the days when he did The Bells, Michael Strogoff and The Hunchback's Daughter. Thomas E. Shea spent most of his life in show business, appearing mostly in what we now dub the sticks. He seldom appeared in New York, still very little while some writer eager for copy calls to interview him for a story. He is not forgotten.

Oldtimers will remember a clever actress of the repertoire days named Ullie Ackerstrom. She is still remembered, to a close late this month. They open the tent season in May to play their Iowa territory. . . . AL W. CLARK has been signed by Al Cooper, manager of the Dixie Queen Showboat, now in Kansas City, Mo. Clark will direct the production, and rehearsals are scheduled to begin March 26. Others who have signed include Wayne and Loretta Huff and Bradford Crandall. . . . NONA NUTT, after a visit with relatives in Northern climes, has returned to her home in Independence, Mo. . . . DOROTHY DUMAS, former repertoire leading woman, is now dramatic director in an Oklahoma high school. . . . VIOLA AND JERRY BRUCE have joined the Dick Shankland Players in North Dakota. . . . H. V. DARR, trail blazer, has signed with Ward Hatcher's Comedians for the tent season.

JIMMIE AND LOUISE JUKES, rep team, are said to be organizing a med show in Texas. . . . DICK SHANKLAND Players have returned to their former base town—Valley City, N. D. . . . CHANCE CORBIN, formerly with Augler Bros., is now a resident of Kansas City, Mo., where he is doing band work. . . . HERSHELL C. WEISS is rehearsing his play, The Nazarene, which he will present at Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City, Mo., Easter week. . . . KING AND HAZEL FELTON have joined Jim Warren's Comedians in Louisiana, where the troupe recently opened under canvas. . . . LOUIS FITZROY, after closing with the Lyons circle in Arkansas, is now sojourning in Texas. . . . WALTER PRICE and Helen Gentry recently joined the Georgia Lewis Players circling in Arkansas. . . . ALICE RICHEY and Co. are playing in the auditorium of the May Co. department store, Los Angeles, for General Electric. . . . BLANCHE BRADLEY, after severing her connection with the Sid Kingdon Players in Northern Missouri, jumped into Kansas City, Mo.

. . . STARK ROBINSON, rep comic and character man, is producing amateur shows in Missouri. . . . FRANK JONES, musician and actor, has signed with the Shankland Players for the sixth season. . . . MR. AND MRS. JIMMIE MURPHY, now playing dates around Sioux City, Ia., are planning to reopen their Northwestern Iowa circle soon. . . . GIL JENSEN PLAYERS, who have been showing in and around Aberdeen, S. D., all winter, have changed their base town to Minot, N. D. . . . ALICE ELLIS, stock and rep character woman, has been drafted into the cast of the Kansas City, Mo., Resident Theater for its forthcoming production. . . . E. R. MISNER Players have returned to Kansas City, Mo., to play return dates with their lyric attraction. Troupe will head south from the Missouri city, then west to California. . . . AL SPAHT is now director of athletics with the University of Kansas City.

Kinseys Quitting Indoors for Tent

CANTON, O., March 11.—Madge Kinsey Players, who opened at the Grand Opera House here Christmas Day, will conclude the local engagement of 12 weeks Sunday, March 19. Harry Graf, business manager of the troupe, announced this week.

Troupe has been playing seven nights a week since it opened in addition to three matinees, with two changes of bills weekly. Same admission prices of 15 and 25 cents have prevailed thruout the run here, with business reported as satisfactory. Week-end patronage on several occasions has been sellout. Company will take to the road under canvas late in April. Mr. and Mrs. Graf (Madge Kinsey) will vacation for two weeks before readying the tent show for the new season.

Tolbert Show May Not Tour in 1939

DOTHAN, Ala., March 11.—It is authoritatively reported here that the Milt Tolbert Show will not open its tent season until August this year due to the settling of the estate of the late H. D. Hale, former owner of the show, who passed away October 4 last.

If the estate isn't settled by August it is likely that the show will forsake its season's canvas trek altogether.

Buddy Hale, manager of the show, is now the owner of and taking active interest in a restaurant here.

done honor to the stage of the sticks. Love of the work, more than greed or glory, kept them going. They were a part of American life in the so-called Gay '90s, worthy predecessors of the small but active group who carry on today. It's a tough disease to shake off—when once you're thoroly inoculated with it—this show business of the open spaces.

BLACKSTONE and Company, current this week at the Palace, Columbus, O., plays the Senator, Pittsburgh, next week. . . . DON AND THELMA GREENWOOD, now fooling the West Coast populace, played the Golden Gate Theater, San Francisco, March 1. Don and Thelma are doing a new double gig routine as a finish to their regular magic turn. . . .

March 7. On the same date Madame Olga took over the mental duties in the Room. Fairfax recently closed at the White to make the Normandie's cruise to South America. Miss O'Dell recently did a five-month stint in the Raleigh Room of the Hotel Warwick, New York, and prior to that put in six months at Ben Riley's Arrowhead Inn, New York. . . . CASSANDRA, blond mentalist, is holding forth these days in the Patio of the Everglades Hotel, Palm Beach, Fla. . . . JACK W. THOMAS, the Jack Frost Sugar magician, who has been playing thru Ohio all winter, will appear with the Columbus Minstrels in Columbus, O., March 15-17. . . . KING FELTON closed a week's engagement with the Monroe Hopkins Players in Houston March 1 and left the next day to join an opy in Louisiana. . . . EL DORADO, magician, and his troupe have been set for a four-day show to be held soon at the Armory, Kokomo, Ind., under sponsorship of the Enlisted Men's Club of the National Guard. In the company, besides El Dorado, are Sue Christie, Margorie Marshall, Reggie Laurence, the Kokomo Jr. Hot Shots and the Sage Brush Burners.

HARDEEN, appearing with Olsen and Johnson's Hellzapoppin at the Winter Garden, New York, was tendered a birthday party by the members of the Parent Assembly, SAM, and the girls of the Hellzapoppin Co. at China Garden Restaurant, New York, March 9. His birthday is really February 29. . . . MAGIC HOBBY CLUB of Ohio, composed of business and professional men, was organized in Columbus, O., March 5 with 15 charter members. Membership is expected to reach double that number within the next 60 days. Bob Nelson, of Nelson Enterprises, Columbus, was elected president; Frank Knoderer, first vice-pres.; Dr. V. H. Finsterwald, second vice-pres.; and Robert Fillmore, secretary-treasurer. The club will meet monthly in the Variety Club's quarters in the Ohio capital. This gives Columbus three magic clubs. . . . MYSTERIOUS HOLLENBECK, mentalist, and company concluded a long stay in the Twin Cities with an engagement at the RKO Seventh Street Theater, Minneapolis, March 11 and moved from there to the Orpheum, Madison, Wis., with the Palace, Rockford, Ill., to follow. Miss Alma is Hollenbeck's business manager, and Jean LaMarr, secretary. Hollenbeck and his troupe are slated to play the summer at the Plaza Hotel, Lake Geneva, Wis., opening June 1. . . . THE GREAT

VIRGIL is currently touring the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, carrying four people and a ton of equipment. Show travels in a large semi-trailer truck equipped with baggage compartment and two Pullman-like staterooms. His full-evening program includes Burned by Satan, the levitation, guillotine, substitution trunk, Den of Living Nightmares and many other nifties. A new lion is being shipped to Virgil to be used in a new jungle illusion just completed. Henry Hudson Davis is blazing the trail for the Virgil troupe. . . . JEAN FOLE is still holding forth at the Club Delavan, Buffalo, with Art Shaul's unit.

SUGAR'S DOMINO—(Continued from page 4) bring him into being. The answer in practical terms is that as soon as such a ruling is passed the bookers that really amount to something will avoid the up-and-coming bands like the plague. They will concentrate their efforts instead on the established bands that are comparatively easy to sell and where speculation or long-shot gambling is not involved.

We feel that due to the peculiar character of the band business the AFM, because of the important part it plays, should have its finger in the regulation of commissions. A blanket ruling on commission restrictions is definitely not the solution. There are many cases indeed where bookers have the upper hand and impose unreasonable commission demands. These can be controlled somehow either by the international or locals. The union can help the industry considerably, for example, by looking into the commission situation in sections where grass grows tall and bookers squeeze the bands to the wall. A good percentage of these bands aren't worth bothering about. They'll never amount to more than a roll of plus in the business. But the small percentage consisting of the promising bands represent the band business of tomorrow. They need the protection and encouragement of the AFM. They should get it. But not in a way—as thru a blanket commission restriction—that would injure critically the cream of the business.

We advise action on the commission situation at the next AFM convention. But we warn the delegates for the good of their union and the business to think twice and three times before they act to restrict commissions universally.

BUCK LEAHY, former minstrel performer, was a visitor at the desk last week, accompanied by his partner, Pearl Fern. The pair are currently playing club dates in the Cincy area. Eddie info that he recently enjoyed a visit with Charley Willen in Elyria, O. The latter, formerly with the Guy Bros.' Minstrels, is now plunking hot piano with a dance ork in the Elyria sector. And Eddie tells us it's a riot to watch Charley wax hot on the ivories.

BUCK LEAHY is playing night clubs in and around Providence these days with his novel hand-balancing turn.

AL TINT scribbles from Chicago under date of March 7: "Sam Gill must be doing Rip Van Winkle on the Coast or Hi-Brown Bobby Burns made up his own story of having a letter from him. Or maybe Sam is all out of ink. Something's wrong somewhere. Guess we'll have to put the lie detector on Hi-Brown, or maybe Union News on the Coast has run out of The Billboard."

"RUSTY" WILLIAMS, veteran minstrel blackface, posts that he's doing okeh in the South with his tent vaude show. "Hope Al Tint and all the boys are okeh," Williams scribbles. "Let's hear from you fellows."

BOB TURNER letters from Baltimore that he was injured in an auto crash recently while en route to the Hal J. Ross show in Dayton, Ky., but has recovered. Until he can catch another good show, Bob is now bartender in the new Florida night club, Baltimore, opened recently by Francis Dimuro, a walkie fan. Bob reports he hasn't made a show since the last one in Hagerstown, Md., and would like to read a line here on the contestants in that one.

ERNE SCOTT, former endurance dancer, types from Kinston, N. C., that he is now an announcer and emcee at Station WFPT there. Ernie promoted a show some time ago in Danville, Va., which he says turned out fairly well. "I am now married and getting along well in life," says Ernie, "but still have a feeling of appreciation and fond memories for my past work. More power to all concerned, and I still follow each show by means of The Billboard." Ernie would like to read a line here on Bill McDaniel, Powell Nellies, Austy Dowdell, Joe Purtell, Mickey Thayer, Skippy Williams, Jimmy Kelly, Archie Gayer and any other old friends.

THE KINGS, Donny, Naomi and Jean, erstwhile endurance contestants, are now on tour with an iron lung thruout the West but expect to be back in the field soon.

LEN VANDONE, former marathoner, pens from Baltimore that he hopes to resume where he left off in 1931, as many of his friends are anxious for him to do so. Len is now working at Club Ha Ha, Baltimore.

FRANK FEE posts from Louisville that he has temporarily given up endurance shows, having joined up with a traveling road show.

By BOB EMMET
(Cincinnati Office)

AFTER A PLEASANT vacation tour south, Prof. and Mrs. Walter B. Leonard have returned to the snow and ice of their home village, Glens Falls, N. Y. Leonard reports that he had a letter last week from that veteran minstrel lad and baton juggler, Charles Leedy, now a columnist with The Youngstown (O.) Vindicator, who told how he recently produced a minstrel for the Rotary Club there that netted $3,500 for the crippled children's fund.

EDDIE LEAHY, former minstrel performer, was a visitor at the desk last week, accompanied by his partner, Pearl Fern. The pair are currently playing club dates in the Cincy area. Eddie info that he recently enjoyed a visit with Charley Willen in Elyria, O. The latter, formerly with the Guy Bros.' Minstrels, is now plunking hot piano with a dance ork in the Elyria sector. And Eddie tells us it's a riot to watch Charley wax hot on the ivories.

As a young jewelry salesman he attracted the attention of J. J. Murdock, of the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Circuit, with whom he eventually became associated. He became prominent for importing Hollywood picture stars for appearances on the Keith Circuit. Later he became associated with the Albee-Weber-Evans office. Upon dissolution of that partnership he opened his own agency in 1922. In the heyday of vaudeville he had one of the largest booking offices, handling the most important acts in the country.

The Harry Weber Agency, upon tying up with the Simon Agency, became known as the Weber-Simon Agency. Weber's brother, Herman, assisted him in the business. In 1926 he moved to Hollywood, where he is credited with building up Mickey Rooney and Clara Kimball Young.

His widow and brother survive.

Ernest Hare

Ernest (Ernie) Hare, 55, pioneer radio performer and member of the "Happiness Boys" harmony team, died in Queens General Hospital, Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y., March 9 of bronchopneumonia after a lingering illness.

With Billy Jones, Hare made history October 18, 1921, when they started singing over the Westinghouse Co.'s experimental station WJZ, Newark, N. J. They are credited with being the first successfully sponsored radio comedy team.

The advent of vaudeville comedians in radio affected the popularity of the Happiness Boys, but they staged a comeback in 1933 and booked a personal appearance tour from Coast to Coast. At time of Hare's death the team was on Sunday afternoon programs over Station WJMA, New York. During Hare's recent illness his 16-year-old daughter, Marilyn, had substituted for her father.

Before entering radio Hare sang in Broadway productions back in 1909. In Sinbad he understudied for Al Johnson. Twenty years ago he teamed with baritone Jones for Brunswick recordings. They then formed a permanent partnership. In 1927, at the height of their popularity, they introduced their signature song, How-Do-You-Do, Everybody, How-Do-You-Do? Their Happiness Hour, scheduled originally to run for five weeks over WEAF, ran for five and one-half years. Back in 1933, when booked for a two-week engagement at the Roxy Theater, New York, they remained for 19 weeks. In 1936 they were recalled by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Besides his daughter, he is survived by his widow; his mother, Mrs. Thomas H. Hare, and a sister, Mrs. J. C. Morgan. Burial in Norfolk, Va.

NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

FLUSHING, LONG ISLAND

APRIL 30 TO OCTOBER 31

MIDWAY'S $22,000,000?

14 Mil Take, 4 Mil Divvy on Nut and Fair P. C.; Erection 7 Mil; 600 Thou for Ground

See $750,000 from sub-leases with net on 40 items 3 mil—each to gather in $75,000?

NEW YORK, March 11.—The 40-odd outright amusement concessions (shows, rides, etc.) in the World's Fair fun area represent a ground rental investment of about $600,000. This is exclusive of construction costs, figured to hit the $7,000,000 mark with ease.

A typical show, which claims construction expense as $75,000, expects to get a take of between $50,000 and the construction figure from strip tickets. This same show uses about 7 per cent of its budget for lighting, 13 per cent for scenery, about 38 per cent for building, about 3 per cent for architect's fee, 16 per cent for the front, 7 per cent for installation, 8 per cent for space, 5 per cent for contingent fund for insurance, social security, and balance divided among organizing, office and miscellany.

This particular enterprise is geared for 2,500 admissions an hour or 25,000 a day for a total of 4,000,000 admissions based on 160 days. As there are approximately 185 days from April 30 to October 31, this is taken to mean that 25 days will be lost due to weather, overcast skies, etc. Anticipated draw is 8 per cent of fair's expected 50,000,000 (or take of $1,000,000 at two bits, less strip ticket basis), both expectations being plenty high, according to veteran exhibitionaires. Fair gets 20 per cent of take. Weekly nut is gauged at around $1,200.

Old New York Not Out; Gets New Sponsorship

NEW YORK, March 11.—Old New York Village, major amusement project originally submitted by Messmore and Damon and George Jessel, will probably become a part of the midway under new sponsorship following M. & D.'s inability to obtain financial backing. Syndicate has been formed to take over project and includes Theodore Backer, theatrical figure, and Martin Sweeney, hotel man. Jessel is expected to be interested on a percentage basis. Details of new firm will be ironed out next week, when Jessel returns from Florida.

Change in Amusement Zone Financing Set-Up

NEW YORK, March 11.—Amusement zone financing set-up took on a new aspect this week when the fair corporation itself apparently entered the money-lending picture, and New York Syndicate, Inc., semi-official firm formed a week ago, moved into the background. Syndicate, supposedly formed thru the aid of financial heads of the fair by a private group, will continue to function, tho without the close co-ordination of the fair corporation as originally planned.

A substantial sum, on the other hand, is reported to have been appropriated by the fair with which to finance projects in the amusement area. Paul Massman, W. S. McHenry and Frank D. Shean, three veteran exposition showmen, appearing at such fairs as Chicago, San Diego and Cleveland, changed affiliation this week, entering the fair administration offices as amusement consultants, a position they were to fill in the syndicate set-up. It will be their responsibility to investigate all ventures needing fair money aid from a showmanship and public-appeal standpoint. At a late hour today group had not as yet functioned officially. Fair had previously stepped into the finance picture, however, by backing the Wild West Show project in Plot T to be presented by John Ringling North, circus exec.

ODDITY TALENT: Sketched front for Dufour & Rogers' Strange as It Seems, with freaks and such featured by John Hix in his column of that title. Dufour & Rogers also hold contracts for "Gang Busters," a crime show, and Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, which is their famous "Life" exhibit.

On the Flushing Front

By ROGER LITTLEFORD JR. and LEONARD TRAUBE

Despite vigorous protests on the part of concession operators, who almost without exception regard the plan as silly, the fair's projected "tunnel" covering certain parts of the midway will become a reality. Construction has been started and very little hope is held for cancellation of the project. Concessioners feel that midway covering would tend to confine patrons to a central avenue and defeat free circulation on the grounds.

Concession department had few new contracts to announce this week, altho the desk of George P. Smith Jr. is piled high with written negotiations that are nearing the completion stage. By next week between 8 and 10 new concessioners should be a part of the midway. Largest allocation this week, of course, was Plot T, which went to John Ringling North for a Wild West show. Construction was launched on several projects, including Dufour & Rogers' Life and Gang Busters shows; Maurice Piesen's Skeeroll and Chimeball alleys, and the Brooks Restaurant, which found a location almost directly across the midway from "Strange as It Seems."

Apparently the joint drive by the concession department and Concessioners' Association to obtain the fireworks feature in Fountain Lake rather than Lagoon of Nations is meeting with success. Altho executive offices have not confirmed it as yet, report is strong that lagoon will feature its fountains and electricity display early in the evening, with the really big pyrotechnic, water and sound show being presented on the lake adjacent to the amusement zone later in the evening. A good break for the zone.

President Whalen will entertain his favorite delegations to the fair in special quarters currently being constructed in the Hall of Pharmacy building. Terrace Club will be used, too, but it will be the Pharmacy spot for the really exclusive shindigs. Reported, too, that the prez has leased a yacht for occasions when the fairgrounds and even his private headquarters become crowded. . . . Plot T has been a headache to the entire fair for two years. It's dated now, tho the headaches have probably just begun. . . . Horticultural Gardens, in the exhibit zone, is on the strip-ticket plan which was supposed to be restricted to front gate and amusement concessions. . . . That New York man reported replacing the current conch department head at Frisco's expo apparently is not a part of New York World's Fair.

It's reported the advance ticket sale, started last week, is not setting the town on fire. Quoted from full-page ticket-sale ads by the department stores and fair appearing in New York dailies. . . . If a friend of a friend has whispered that you can "fix it up" to get in free—forget it; the wise, democratic and businesslike fair corporation has only one motto: "They shall not pass"—no free tickets, no special favors to the few."

Loew's theaters have effected a deal whereby their local pix houses appear on the official World's Fair map. Houses are spotted on pages depicting approaches to the fairgrounds from all over New York City. Tony Sarg handled the drawings. . . . Accommodations For the Fair, Inc., has been formed by local realty men to assist home owners in obtaining desirable tenants during the fair season. Working on the same basis as the American Express Co., altho on not such a large scale. . . . First concession to actually go into operation will be Ballantine's Three-Ring Restaurant. (See FLUSHING FRONT on page 68)

THIS CAN ONLY BE George P. Smith Jr., "trouble shooter" in the amusement concession department of the fair. Smith is show-wise, witty and all but worn out by his labors. His expression as he brings back a rejected amusement contract for the fun zone is of the poker-face variety. If the zone is not up to snuff come April 30 it won't be his fault. (He has built and supervised everything from terrifying toboggans to toy trains in the park-resort-recreation industry.)

Hotels, Houses Also Big Users Of Acts, Music During WF Span

Nights clubs, vaudeville theaters and hotels will use more talent than usual before, during and after the run of the New York World's Fair.

Night clubs will probably gain most because clubs, more than hotel spots and theaters, cater to transients—and the bulk of the World's Fair crowds will be composed of out-of-towners, judging from experiences of other world's fairs.

Night clubs, being essentially informal, carefree and gay spots, will draw a large portion of the visitors to the World's Fair. And, of course, there will be night clubs to attract tourists of each income class. Influx of out-of-towners means night clubs in the New York area will start competing for this new trade—and that will lead to more and better talent and music. Competition should boost salaries, and with the American Federation of Actors being in a stronger position than ever before to enforce minima scales and to prevent chiseling, the outlook is good for talent. Bands, on the other hand, have musicians' Local 802's current drive against underscaling to help them.

There is hardly any doubt that the night clubs will emphasize girl shows. It is traditional that girlie shows attract the visiting firemen. New York night clubs are already thinking of adding girl lines, girl specialty dancers, girl singers and girl mixers. Those clubs that already have a lot of girls employed will undoubtedly increase them if they feel they can attract out-of-towners. Those clubs with variety bills will undoubtedly add girl lines. And those intimate clubs that have no space for regular floor shows will probably employ girl entertainers—mixers—albeit these are expressly forbidden by the liquor board and the police department.

Nude, semi-nude and other flash girl dancers, especially those with good appearance, will be in demand in night clubs during the World's Fair.

Novelty turns, not ordinarily seen in smaller towns, will also be in demand. Snappy, spicy and colorful emcees will also be sought, as night club owners anticipate noisy out-of-town crowds, and smart emcees who can handle crowds will get preference.

Novelty acts will come into their own because night clubs will be competing so much that they will want acts that are different.

As for the hotels, it is probable that all hotels of any decent size will feature some sort of talent. Strollers (two and three-piece instrumental and vocal combos) will be in especial demand for bars and grillrooms and also as intermission entertainment in main dining rooms.

A few hotels will probably experiment with girl shows just to be different, especially the flashier hotels catering to transients. No doubt hotels already using talent will augment their shows in order to meet competition, the not as much as the night clubs.

As for vaudeville, it is probable that the larger theaters now running straight pictures will add some sort of stage attraction—the angle being that out-of-towners can see all the latest films in their home town but expect something different when they get to New York.

The Capitol, for example, which dropped stage shows a few years ago, plans to restore fancy pit overtures, plus occasional personal appearances of MGM names, during the spring and summer.

Other downtown de luxers may be forced into some sort of flesh attractions during the World's Fair period. Downtown house in Brooklyn, all former vaudeville spots and now straight films, may also be compelled to offer something "special."

Local burlesque houses are hoping for the best, too. Burlesque for years has cashed in on out-of-towners, who are usually on the lookout for "something hot" and for something they can't get at home. Spicy, girlie burlesque is a good answer to the visiting firemen's hopes.

There are five New York City burlesque houses now, but there will probably be at least two or three more operating this summer.

Summing it all up, the coming World's Fair should increase employment opportunities for talent and music in the entire New York area. In addition, the World's Fair shows themselves will employ a terrific number of entertainers. New York City will undoubtedly draw the greatest number of name bands, attractions and good acts during the spring and summer in its history. There will be a lot of money spent—and talent ought to get a large chunk of it.

10 by Concessioners

With estimated cost of the fair set at $155,000,000, here's how the pot of gold is contributed: $50,000,000 borne by fair corporation; United States Government, $3,500,000; New York State, $6,500,000; New York City, $20,000,000; States and territories, $5,000,000; foreign governments, $25,000,000; exhibitors, $35,000,000; concessioners, $10,000,000. It really adds up to $155,000,000. We thought you'd like to know who pays the freight. No profit expected except by fair corporation and concessioners, who are bearing about 60 per cent of the nut. Others not set up for revenue producing—strictly good will and propaganda.

Exhibitors Presenting Entertainment

Following is line-up of commercial and industrial exhibitors housed in their own buildings, with name of advertising agency (in New York unless otherwise indicated) representing each where accredited and known. Asterisk preceding exhibitor name indicates that entertainment, in some form will be presented either as outright attractions independent of products or to illustrate such products. The Billboard does not guarantee completeness of list, and entertainment, where indicated, is not certified, as information has been gathered from dozens of sources rather than official channels, which do not exist as far as this subject is concerned. At the same time The Billboard feels that it is the most exhaustive talent-using list on record thus far. It has taken weeks to compile. Figures in parentheses opposite names of certain exhibitors indicate number of separate companies which are joint participants in exhibit project.

Foreign Cafes

State, federal and foreign exhibits are not entirely out of the attractions picture. A sizable number are expected to employ singers, dancers, models and tableau groups for their particular patterns on the scale of progress, culture and contributions.

Several foreign government buildings, for example, will have native restaurants, a fact which suggests talent. It should be noted, too, that several nations, noting an absence of a substantial number of typical villages in the amusement sector, will attempt to give the visiting population an inside of life, habits and customs obtaining in their countries. There will be about 24 restaurants in foreign section, 80 thru out the grounds. Some foreign pavilions will open in May and June.

Countries with taverns or restaurants serving native foods are as follows: Belgium, restaurant; Cuba, food, singing, dancing; Denmark, food and drinks; (See FOREIGN CAFES on page 68)

TALENT'S GOLDEN CHANCE

Ad Agencies Key to Door; Exhibs Shelling Out Big

Talent merchants also vital in set-up as exhibitors scout suitable act fare under strain of competition from other display combinations

NEW YORK, March 11.—Gotham's great World's Fair represents a golden opportunity for talent in all categories. Opportunities for employment are wide, practically unlimited. At the same time it is important to remember that talent is more often than not "sold" rather than "bought." That is, the talent agent is a very important part of the picture. It is he who is or should be in a position to know what the multitude of exhibitors and concessioners require for their set-ups and layouts. If he is in more or less constant touch with advertising agencies his information on the subject will be substantial enough to make him the key point with acts on his books.

Advertising agencies, committed to the task of obtaining the right kind of flesh for the products or firms they represent both nationally and locally, will be the principal focal point for bookings. Such agencies, with constant or even occasional radio programs will very likely use radio artists' bureaus for obtaining performer material. But material emanating from such bureaus is necessarily limited to unseen audience appeal despite studio audience programs. Ad agencies will therefore have to go elsewhere.

That's where the talent agent comes in. His contacts and connections will here stand him in good stead. The independent artist or unit without an agent can either make arrangements to seek one or, if he or they have business acumen or are self-managed, can handle their destiny direct with ad agencies.

Commercial and industrial exhibitors are spending millions of dollars on their buildings and displays. It follows that they will release heavy sums on talent. These exhibitors will be represented at the fair largely on the basis of institutional advertising or good will, meeting, as they will, the ultimate consumer face to face. There will be no charge for their exhibits. This puts every one of them in direct competition with one another on a more or less equal basis, since there will be no price disparities or price barriers.

Huge expensive buildings, inside and out, with gigantic murals and brilliant display material based on the World of Tomorrow may lure the folks, but Mr. and Mrs. America will have to be given something to keep them there, seeking entertainment of a definite character while they are there. That's where en-

There is no magic formula wherein to guide acts on who is expected to employ what. Some exhibitors have announced both their themes and the types of talent or entertainment atmosphere to be utilized in executing these themes. It is up to acts and their agents to keep pushing for results.

Complete list of commercial and industrial exhibitors, with their advertising agencies, if any, is published elsewhere in this section.

maximum of $850,000. D-R company bases take on fair's 40,000,000 attendance, the most conservative figure advanced.

If interested in more telephone numbers, draw up a chair, count each of the 40 attractions as worth $350,000 in revenues at the gate, or $14,000,000, plus $750,000 in subconcessions space, for a subtotal yield of $14,750,000. Then add construction costs and ground rentals. Presto! You have a $22,000,000 midway before your very eyes, not counting overhead.

Not included in the magic count are games, refreshments, scales and the like on the midway and elsewhere. Also not counted is revenue to showmen from subconcession sales. Fair itself expects about $600,000 from this end.

Summary

Official release from fair gives ten-billion-dollar fillip to business activity in United States this year, according to an analysis of effect of expo on nation's economy. Sixty-two participating nations shipping large amounts of materials and exhibits, providing additional work for industry on foreign soil. Analysis of "World's Fair trade dollar," based on correlation of standard trade statistics with experience of past world's fairs, indicates fair visitors will spend one billion dollars in New York City during operating period. Figure described as "just the center of the snowball." Each fair trade dollar expected to roll over 10 times, "and by the time re-spending process has been completed it may have traveled as far as Maine or Texas or the Pacific Coast." Following is table showing incidence of initial dollar:

Of the Dollar	Channel	Of the Billion
20c	Housing	$200,000,000
23c	Food and Drink	230,000,000
20c	Entertainment	200,000,000

Wild West Show Lands Section T

John Ringling North to present fair-financed show in large arena

NEW YORK, March 11.—Amusement zone's No. 1 problem child—six-acre Plot T at the southernmost end of the midway that originally was designated as site for "the most appealing and spectacular project in the fun area" was finally allocated this week. Appearing late in the picture and with the aid of allied banking interests, the Ringling-Barnum circus corporation practically closed the deal this week to present a Wild West show. All sorts of enterprises, ranging from historical pageants to automobile thrill shows, have been considered for the section, but in each instance the fair and prospective operators found it impossible to arrive at workable terms.

Negotiating chiefly thru William P. Dunn Jr., vice-president of the Manufacturers' Trust Co. and secretary-treasurer of the circus corporation, John Ringling North was expected to return signed contracts to the fair late this week in which he agrees to present a "Cavalcade of Centaurs" Wild West spectacle, operated by his circus-trained assistants and financed directly by the fair. Show will be presented five times a day, will last 45 minutes at a 40-cent admission charge in an arena seating between 6,000 and 7,000 people. Details of the performance, personnel, acquisition of stock, etc., have not been developed. Dunn and North working out particulars in the circus' winter headquarters at Sarasota, Fla., during the next few weeks.

Contract calls, however, for an introductory spec titled Rough Riders of the West and it is assumed performance in general will be patterned after the old touring Wild West show of other days.

CABARET TALENT ON PARADE: Draftsmen's design for the Casino of Nations, Ehhard M. Oemichen's contribution, complete with "sunshine roof," open-air dancing, entertainment, accommodations for 1,500-plus, "largest umbrellas in the world," orchestra over a huge bar, etc., all patterned after a similar enterprise at the 1937 Paris International Exposition. With American food but waiters of various nations. Spotted opposite Communications Building in main exhibit area.

Project will occupy about six and a half acres at the lower end of the midway, and tanbark arena will be approximately 235 feet long and 120 feet wide. Construction work on the 6,500-seat stadium was launched immediately following President Grover Whalen's assurance that the project would become a reality. Other features in the area will be a Forty-Nine Camp, restaurant and bar and quarters for hands.

History of Plot

Story behind sale of Plot T goes back to more than two years ago, when the final plot plan (lot layout) was selected by the fair corporation. At that time it was pointed out that to insure patronage to concessioners located at the end of the midway farthest from the exhibit sector it would be necessary to establish an outstanding attraction at the southern terminal.

Entertainment department, under John Krimsky, undertook to interest theatrical producers in colorful spectacles of various sorts, but met with no success. Later the concession department and George P. Smith Jr., in particular, were given "T" responsibility, and again it was impossible to seal a contract. Concession department went after thrill attractions, outdoor-type extravaganzas, etc. When it became apparent a couple of months ago that allocation of the area would be a particularly difficult task, front office of the fair, Krimsky and conchess department joined forces in a frantic drive to interest practically anybody with big ideas in the Plot T venture.

It was then that idea of a Wild West show entered the picture. Several names of prominence in outdoor show circles were linked with negotiations, including Frank Wirth, Milt Hinkle, Col. W. T. Johnson and finally John Ringling North.

It is generally understood in some quarters that North and the Ringling family are not especially enthused over the project, being encouraged to operate the show by the Manufacturers' Trust Co., which also holds a large note on the Ringling show. Program outlined in the initial contract calls for little more than a typical circus concert program, with usual fancy riding, roping and specialty numbers. At present Ringling family seems unwilling to attach its name to a project that might not compare favorably with attractions in other parts of the amusement area.

World's Fair concessioners are looking at the entire situation as a typical instance of lack of co-ordination within the fair corporation adversely affecting type and quality of an amusement project. Had the fair's treasury and legal departments been more practical and lenient in contract stipulations chances are Plot T would have been allocated many months ago. Unfamiliar with the details of World's Fair concession operation, the fair corporation itself is being blamed for prolonged delay and ultimate acquisition of an attraction that seems none too strong from a public appeal and showmanship standpoint.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Developments over the week-end indicated that John Ringling North has not yet actually signed a contract to present a Wild West Show in Plot T of the fair's amusement zone. It is reported that North is unwilling to enter the World's Fair picture and that he is attempting to convince Manufacturers' Trust Co. to permit him to drop plans for a ranch show.

Concessioners Win Point and Press Others

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Having already won one point in its contentions for more equitable treatment, the 1939 World's Fair Concessionaires' Association evidently intends to follow thru on other requests made to the expo management.

Concessioners have received copies of a circular letter assuring them that they can have the reduced rate of 5 cents each way on the San Francisco and Oakland ferry that previously had been granted to exposition employees. Concessioners' employees, of whom there are several thousand, had been compelled to pay 10 cents. The cut came as a result of a conference on March 7 between the board of management and the WFAA committee, H. A. Illions, chairman; President C. L. Cameron and E. S. Bender.

Expo Director Harris Connick is said to have agreed to attend the next association meeting on March 13 to hear arguments for dismissal of warehouse charges of 50 and 25 cents per 100 pounds. Concessioners also have been assured that the east end ferry discharging passengers onto the Gayway will be operating soon. It is pointed out that when Gayway space was first taken it was understood by concessioners that this ferry would operate. Later a boat crashed into piling of the slip. Meyers Framing Motorized Show

Will open early in April near Louisville—10 or 12 trucks to be used

AKRON, O., March 11.—A motorized circus will be launched by W. M. (Bill) Meyers, local horse dealer, opening about April 8 in a town near Louisville, Ky., he announced here this week. Show will move on 10 or 12 trucks and will carry a personnel of about 60, according to Meyers. He said he planned to make about 15 Ohio stands early in the season, then go into West Virginia, Virginia, the Carolinas, Louisiana and Texas.

Meyers left here last fall as part owner of the Newton Bros.' motorized circus, which was reorganized at Minerva, O., shortly after it closed at Willoughby, where it was hard hit by a rain and wind storm. The show continued thru Ohio and then south using several titles, the first Camel Show. Meyers is said to have invested money in the former Newton-controlled show. Much of the equipment of the original show was stored here following the closing in Willoughby.

Meyers continued on tour with the reorganized show thruout the fall and winter and returned to Akron recently to ready the No. 2 unit. He is reported to own the former Newton show big top, poles, seats and some props. He said he planned to remain here the remainder of the month to buy several jungle cats and other animals necessary to round out his menagerie, also other show property.

"The former Newton show is playing the smaller cities in Texas and will continue on tour of the Southern States," Meyers said. "We made money with the first show and that's why I am back in Akron to organize a second unit," he added.

Much Activity at Downie Quarters; Line-Up of Staff

MACON, Ga., March 11.—Work at the shops of Downie Bros.' Circus is going along at a brisk pace. Bennie Walsh is head painter and has seven assistants. George Engles is in charge of carpenter department and has a number of assistants. Slim Saunders and helpers are working on the rolling stock and Mickey O'Brien is looking after the wardrobe. Carlos Carreon has the menage and Liberty horses ready. Jack Fitzgerald and August Kelly are in charge of dining room. Color scheme of show will be orange and black. Plenty of new paper will be used. Albert Yarborough keeps the gilly car on the run from quarters to town.

The program will be almost entirely new. Among performers engaged are Carlos and Etta Carreon, Jeanette Wallace, Marion Shuford, Ruby Hoyt and Susie Kerwin. Buck Owens will have charge of the Wild West. Robert Spear will again be with the side show. Sam Crowell and Harry Nelson will have the concessions.

On the staff will be William M. Moore, manager; Charles Katz, assistant; Clint Shuford, treasurer; James Beach, general agent; Lee S. Conaroe, car manager; A. C. Bradley, legal adjuster; Art Miller, (See MUCH ACTIVITY on page 39)

Ingham's Indians in S. C.; Dot Shores Out as Agent

UNION, S. C., March 11.—Ingham's Congress of American Indians has been here the past two weeks working city and county schools, also in adjoining counties. Rex M. Ingham and Chief Frank Canoe were guests of the local Lions' Club February 25.

Mrs. Dot Shores is no longer piloting the organization, the advance being taken over by Ingham at Lancaster, S. C. Mr. and Mrs. Ingham recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Freeland at Charlotte, N. C. Freeland was Ingham's business associate at Rex's at Efffin, N. C., last year. While in Charlotte they also visited Miller's Museum. Texas Joe Clark was a recent visitor at Ruffin headquarters.

GEORGE L. MYERS, who will direct the program of the Parker & Watts Circus this season. He has been connected with indoor and outdoor shows for many years. He began his circus career with the Hagenbeck-Wallace show in 1917 and has been with Sells-Floto, 101 Ranch, Gentry Bros., Kay Bros., Rice Bros., Jack Horie and World Bros. shows.

Detroit Shrine Attendance 25% Over Last Year

DETROIT, March 11.—Attendance at the Shrine Circus here jumped about 25 per cent over last year, a preliminary check-up with Manager Tunis (Eddie) Stinson indicated. With crowds running about 32,000 to 38,000 daily—practically capacity, with about 3,000 extra seats placed in the ringside, attendance figures for the last few days were not yet available. Careful check of available figures indicated about 340,000-350,000 for this year, compared to 280,000 for last year.

This figure sets a 14-year record for the show, exceeded only by the pre-depression circus of 1925.

Tavlin Wins Suit Against Del Rios

CHICAGO, March 11.—Jack Tavlin, former manager of the Del Rio midgets, won a verdict for $1,155 against Paulino and Martha Rodriguez, parents of the midgets, in Municipal Court here on Tuesday.

Tavlin claimed that altho he had a contract with the Del Rios that called for them to work seven days a week while traveling with a circus, they refused to perform on Sundays or sell (See TAVLIN WINS on page 39)

Anderson Will Feature Animals; Big Top To Be Air-Conditioned

EMPORIA, Kan., March 11.—"Every animal an actor—every actor an animal." This time-worn slogan will ring true again when the Bud E. Anderson Jungle Oddities and Three-Ring Circus opens this spring. A faint nostalgia is felt in the hearts of old-time circus folk here for the immortal Al G. Barnes by the presence of many of the old Barnes people and the framing of a wild animal circus.

Bert E. Rickman, equestrian director, in a recent interview, in part, stated: "Bud E. Anderson, with able assistance, is devising many of his own acts, which are daringly original and are radical innovations in the form of circus entertainment."

Outside operations at quarters were interrupted when a severe storm swept Central Kansas. The quarters were blanketed by two feet of snow. Inside work, however, went on, with 20 men building more wild animal cages, wagons and ring curbs. The carpenter shop finished two pole wagons this week and

Globe Gets R-B Paper

Is installing new plant equipment—Chi Ringling offices move

CHICAGO, March 11.—The Globe Poster Corp. has been awarded a large printing contract for season of 1939 by Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows and is now turning out thousands of sheets of paper for the New York engagement of the Big One.

To take care of this and other business the firm is installing considerable new and up-to-date equipment, including several presses of latest design. It also has found it necessary to largely increase its space.

Since opening the plant here five years ago Globe has made remarkable progress. Starting with about 5,000 square feet of floor space, the firm has increased this to 20,000 square feet and has found it necessary to repeatedly add to the equipment.

For convenience in handling shipments of paper the Ringling offices are being moved to 633 Plymouth court. Modern air-conditioned offices adjoining those of Globe Poster Corp. are being prepared and will be occupied within the next few days.

An inspection of the paper being turned out for the Ringling show by Globe reveals some beautiful work.

Opens Early in April

NEW YORK, March 11.—Ringling-Barnum's 1939 season opens at Madison Square Garden here April 5, 6 or 7, dependent on termination of the usual hockey league playoffs, and closes Saturday, April 29, the day previous to the World's Fair opening. Show moves to Boston over Sunday, opening at the Garden there Monday, May 1 and closing May 6.

Route following Boston remains uncertain, the usual Brooklyn canvas date being still in the unsettled stage. Fact that the engagement would meet competition from the near-by World's Fair and lack of a suitable lot in that section of Long Island, has postponed definite action. If Brooklyn is dropped from the route this season, show will proceed either to Philadelphia or Washington. Contracting agents are also experiencing lot-finding difficulties in Washington and other cities thruout the East.

Will Move on 80 Cars

SARASOTA, Fla., March 11.—The Ringling-Barnum circus will pull out of quarters here March 31 or April 1 for New York. Reliable sources indicated last week that the show would move on 80 cars, thus more or less spiking the (See GLOBE GETS on page 43)

R-B Wild West at Fair

NEW YORK, March 11.—John Ringling North, president of the Ringling-Barnum circus interests, this week contracted to present an immense Wild West show and pageant as one of the feature attractions of the amusement zone of the New York World's Fair. For complete story see World's Fair department, this issue.

Conklin, Anderson Buy Property of The Tom Mix Show

EL PASO, Tex., March 11.—Disposal of property of the Tom Mix Circus was practically completed here this week.

J. W. (Patty) Conklin came in from the West Coast to meet Dall Turney, general manager of the Mix show, and purchased all chairs, seats, light plant, big top, menagerie top, poles and rigging. Equipment will be shipped to Canada. Conklin left for Chicago and Turney returned to the West Coast.

Bud E. Anderson was in town to purchase the show's stake driver, water wagon, cookhouse trailer and two semi-trailers from Karl Goodman, used-car dealer, who had purchased the rolling stock. Anderson was reported to have bought the p.-a. system and other equipment.

Meanwhile the show's trained horses and ponies remained under attachment by a court order on suit of Gladstone Shaw, former superintendent, for about $600. Deputy sheriffs said they have been unable to serve Mix, cited as owner of the show. They said service may be sought by publication in time for trial of the suit by May 1.

Want Corporations Declared Bankrupt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 11.—Petitions to force two Rochester, Ind., circus corporations into bankruptcy were filed March 8 in the United States District Court here.

One, against the Robbins Bros. Circus, Inc., was filed by three persons who claim to be creditors of the circus by reason of sums owed them for work, labor and other services. The alleged creditors are Floyd King, who seeks a judgment of $1,302.89; Eugene Scott, who claims $141.41; John H. Smith, who asks $306.06.

In the second suit Edward Rowe and Ford Johnson, doing business as the Johnson Dairy in Rochester, and Val Zimmerman, also of Rochester, claim to be creditors of the Indiana Circus Corp., Rochester. Merchandise for which the alleged debtor is said to have refused to pay was furnished by Rowe in the amount of $386 and by Johnson in the sum of $236. Zimmerman claims $138.25 is due him for services.

Clyde Beatty, Wife Return To Rochester; Other Notes

ROCHESTER, Ind., March 11.—Clyde and Harriett Beatty, attaches, elephants and cats arrived from the Detroit Shrine date. Mervyn (Scotty) Cramer, cat man, clawed about his legs in Detroit, is recovering.

Joseph Becker is contracted as superintendent of pullmans. Edgar Howard is contracted with Becker.

Charles Luckey, superintendent of train and lot property, is busy with help in millwright department. Harold Nickolson, woodworker, is here from North Carolina winter stay.

It is stated that Frank Siegler, trainmaster of the McCoy show last season, will be superintendent of transportation of the Cole show.

Mike Tabor and Mike Malas, who worked winter dates on props, arrived and are waiting the Cole opening.

Eric Kessler and wife, who made winter shows, are here and stated they are contracted with Cole show. Kessler is a ticket seller and his wife an aerialist who also does menage.

Jorgen M. Christensen, horse trainer, received much press comment when he appeared as guest speaker before the civic club of Fulton, Ind., with theme, The Circus and My Experiences Over the Globe. Christensen and troupe will leave soon for the New York World's Fair, where contracted.

ROCHELLE, Ill., March 11.—Dr. David E. Reid, of Lebanon, Ore., writes: "Have returned from a wonderful week spent mostly at the Golden Gate International Exposition. While there renewed acquaintances with Jack and Martha Joyce and Capt. Rudy Wilhelm. Jack is working a January act, assisted by a clown and Mrs. Joyce. Captain Rudy is working his act of Jumbo and pals."

About 400 persons attended the two performances February 25 of the annual Pat Valdo Tent winter vest-pocket circus held in the Binghamton Recreation Hippodrome. Fans attending were English, Barlow, Scholderer, Georgia and Larkin. Back drop for stage was a 20-sheet Ringling interior big-top poster. A 15-foot ring was used on stage. Clayton Circus furnished the acts. John Telow, CFA of Peoria, was a White Tops visitor.

The sympathies of members of the CFA are extended to Charles Sparks in his bereavement. The Norwich, Conn., Tent is named in honor of him. Downie Bros.' Circus played that city a number of times. In 1934 the annual convention of the Fans was held in Norwich with the Downie circus as the convention show and Mr. and Mrs. Sparks as guests of honor.

Judge Frost Woodhull, who was president of the Alfredo Codona Tent, San Antonio, Tex., recently died in that city. Burial was in the Alamo Masonic Cemetery. Survivors are the widow, son, daughter, mother and sister.

Circus Folks
Attend Raising Of Nelson Tent

DETROIT, March 11.—Tent raising of the Robert Nelson Tent No. 28 was held March 2 at the Hotel Detroit, with many members of the Shrine Circus present to assist. The tent is named after the late Robert Nelson, brought to this country by P. T. Barnum in 1889, who made his home at Mount Clemens, Mich. Among those present were his son, Arthur; wife and their daughter, Theol, who was at the Shrine Circus, and their son, Paul Nelson, and his wife.

Frank W. Magin is president of the Tent but was absent, in Jamaica, and J. F. Lee Johnston, veteran trouper and now a Detroit publicist, presided. Henry Morgan, business associate of Magin's, spoke after Arthur Nelson officially pronounced the tent raised.

Fred L. Shaw, who headed the national CFA Save the Circus Committee last summer, spoke as secretary of the Tent. Impromptu entertainment, outside their professional routine, was put on by several, with Johnston as emcee. The Gretonas did a tap dance, assisted by Antoinette Concello; Orrin Davenport, an operatic baritone number; Emmett Kelly, story telling. Other circus people present included Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rooney, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Evans, Fred Bradna, Mrs. Davenport, Rudy Rudyhoff and Shorty Flemm.

CFA members and friends attending included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Corcoran, Charles W. Brooke, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Weadock, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Shaw, Lewis Bredin, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Breuer and Don Smith. Smith, a collector of circus posters and articles, provided posters and decorations.

IF YOU OWN a show you surely can afford letterheads. Circus business is a business.

WILLARD J. OAKLEY arrived in Sarasota, Fla., March 6 after 90 days in Miami. He visited the Rodeo and Hollywood Tropical Fiesta. Art Boden won a prize for trick riding and roping. He goes with the Big One, Barnett Bros.' Circus furnished the big top for the Roller Derby. Circus reserved seats were

JAMES F. (JIM) O'CONNOR, assistant city clerk in the office of Frank A. Hass, Davenport, Ia., died of a heart attack March 4. In his office he contacted many circus and carnival agents and was well acquainted with their wants and requirements. He was ever willing to lend assistance and do his best for the cause of the showman—to give the agent the inside of what might be able to guide him in his endeavors.

WILLIAM M. MOORE, general managing director of Downie Bros.' Circus, states that Howard Y. Bary, for whom he worked on the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, has no connection with the Downie show. As mentioned in a recent issue, the circus is incorporated under the State laws of Georgia by the Southern Circus Corp., the incorporators being T. Leo Moore, H. A. Decker, W. M. Moore and Paul M. Conaway.

EVERYBODY KNOWS how to grumble a complaint, but few can express a graceful compliment. It's a matter of practice.

FROM BERT COLE: "Was shocked to read in The Billboard of the death of John O. Talbott. In 1901 he, Jerry Mugiwan, Tom Monahan and I joined the B. E. Wallace show. Of the four I am the only one remaining. Talbot and I were together for about 15 years with the Wallace, then the Hagenbeck-Wallace show. In all that time he never spoke an unkind word to me and was a gentleman at all times. I considered him the highest class legal adjuster I ever was with."

IN THE HOME of Doc Waddell at Chilliwothe, O., with a goodly number of showfolk from surroundings, he held a remembrance service for James Clendenin, who recently passed on at his home in Huntington, W. Va. He was managing editor of The Daily Herald-Dispatch there and one of the best known newspaper men to circus people and other showfolk, especially to the publicity purveyors. Waddell is now a member of the Chilliwothe Ministerial Association.

Excellent Biz For the WPA Show At Jamaica Arena

NEW YORK, March 11.—The WPA Federal Theater Circus closed its engagement at the Jamaica Arena night of March 5 to excellent business. Saturday and Sunday matinees were turnaways and capacity houses on Saturday and Sunday nights. Ernest Enger Jr., who took his father's place in the lion act when the latter was attacked and sent to the hospital by the beasts, is going over big. Publicity department has landed many features and pictures of the young star and a broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up. Regan McCrary, who does the "Only Human by Candle" feature in The New York Daily Mirror, devoted his entire column to young Enger.

A visitor here was Major Charlie Paterno, director of employment for Federal Project No. 1. He is a member of the staff of Paul Edwards, administrative officer of the Federal Arts Projects. Other visitors were Ralph Finney, traffic manager of the show, and Jerry Franken and a group of friends. Franken is on the local staff of The Billboard.

Managing Director Burns O'Sullivan will confer with his staff on final plans for the tenting season, reports Wendell J. Goodwin.

MRS. PEARL BIRON has signed to present her clown act with the G. V. Adams Rodeo.

TOM KING, of King Bros.' Rodeo Co., is playing theaters in Oklahoma and Arkansas with Al Doss.

LADIES' AUXILIARY of the Cowboy Turtles' Association, organized during the 1936 Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth, Tex., will meet during this year's Fort Worth show to elect officers.

JOHN STRYKER, bound for Oklahoma City, recently boarded the first bus that came along in Seminole, Okla., and after sitting a while, an acquaintance asked him if he was going west. "Sure," was the reply. "Then you'd better get the bus that's pulling in because this one is bound for McAlester and Fort Smith."

PONY EXPRESS of 109 miles, re-enacting pioneer mail-carrying days, will be staged as ballyhoo for the annual Gatesville (Tex.) Rodeo this summer. Sixteen riders will cover the distance thru Central Texas, with invitation to attend the event from Governor W. Lee O'Daniel to mayors of each town on the circuit.

SEMINOLE ROUND-UP CLUB, of Seminole, Okla., will stage a three-day rodeo at the local ball park there this summer. Col. John Stryker, manager of the Seminole Club, has been signed to publicize and announce the event, making his third year there in the same capacity. American Legion will co-operate with the Round-Up Club to make the rodeo an annual event. Event, this year, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the famous Oklahoma Run of 1889.

MRS. JEAN ARNOLD, of New York, scored on February 22 as the only woman rodeo producer in this country when she staged a one-afternoon amateur event in Eau Gallie, Fla., showing to over 4,000. Fifteen Florida cowgirls entered a beauty contest and Patsy Johnson, of Kissimmee, was named winner. Mary Parks, professional, rode bucking horses. Buddy Mefford was arena director. Stock was furnished by Chip Stewart, local cattle rancher. Events included dogging, calf roping and steer and bronk riding.

CHARLES A. SCHWARTZ scribes the following from Amarillo, Tex.: "With a desire to co-operate with contestants with proper livestock and ability, several managements of rodeos held in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma and Iowa held a meeting in Ft. Worth, Tex., during the week of March 10, while the Ft. Worth Rodeo Association and the Cowboy Turtles Associations held their annual convention and election of officers. Object is to form a new managers' association, which will guarantee purses, use fair uniform rules, award titles and issue points. This will permit season's winners to receive some worthwhile cash purses and trophies. The proposed new organization will co-operate with the Turtles on all matters and endeavor to straighten out fairly and sensibly the points the RAA doesn't seem to be able to handle."

ATTENDANCE at the rodeo held in connection with the Houston Fat Stock Show, February 25-March 5, was 30 per cent above that of last year. About 160 (See CORRAL on page 57)

Rinks and Skaters

By CLAUDE R. ELLIS (Cincinnati Office)

ONLY last year's champions to hold their places in the 1939 Michigan State amateur roller figure-skating championships on March 2-5 in Fred Martin's Arena Gardens Rink, Detroit, were Lloyd Young and Virginia Mount, who again won the dance championship. In the men's figure-skating contest, competition ran high, the first five place skaters ending within a few points of one another. Walter Stokosa replaces H. I. Johnson, last year's champion, who was ineligible. Stokosa will enter the national championships to be held in Arena Gardens during April. Jane Holcombe replaced Helen Brundza as State champion, winning by a small margin. Both will enter the United States meet. Pair-skating contest showed excellent possibilities for Michigan skaters in the coming national championships, their work being praised by Harry Martin and Laura Jane Brown, Midwestern place winners and Wayne County ice-skating champions, who judged the meet. William Best and Eldora Andrews were winners. On the afternoon of March 4 junior and juvenile championship races were held under sanction of the Roller Skating Rink Operators' Association of the United States. Winners were awarded medals.

M. S. LEWIS, operator of Rainbow Gardens Roller Rink, Mt. Morris, Mich., is vacationing in Miami, Fla., and visited many rinks on his trip south, officials report. He has been gone three weeks and plans to open his Crystal (Mich.) Rink shortly after his return. The Mt. Morris spot is under management of J. H. Spencer during absence of Mr. Lewis and sellouts were reported at a sweetheart party and milk-drinking contest. Clark's Honolulu Girls, an orchestra from a conservatory in Flint, Mich., were presented on March 5.

MAGIC FLYERS, George and Ann, figure, adagio and acrobatic roller skaters, appeared for three weeks in Jamestown, N. Y., they report, two weeks at the Gold Dollar and a week at Fairmount Grill. They are at Cafe Madrid, Buffalo, N. Y., for a three-week stay.

BILL PULLMAN, proprietor of 80 by 180-foot Skateland, Fort Worth, Tex., was a visitor at the skating desk on March 2 and reported business good. Parties have been booked for six weeks in advance. He attended the opening of Golden Gate Exposition, San Francisco, and while on the West Coast visited Culver City (Calif.) Rink and Hollywood Roller-bowl. Both rinks are doing business, he reported, the latter drawing 1,400 on the night he attended. He scheduled visits to Norwood Rink and Seferino's Roller-drome, Cincinnati, before leaving for Detroit.

S. R. STOUGHTON, proprietor of Stoughton's Beach and Roller Rink, Slippery Rock, Pa., will operate a new rink in Hookstown, Pa., reports John Boehm Jr. Stoughton is at present in Florida seeking a location for next winter.

ROYAL ROLLERS and Mickey report they were held over for a fifth week at Hotel George Washington, Jacksonville, Fla., closing on March 13.

RECENT and well-patronized innovation in Skateland, Cleveland, is the Health Harbor, a hot dog and milk stand independent of the ice cream parlor, reports Francis J. Baldwin.

DAMAGE estimated at $50,000 was done by fire which destroyed Black Cat Casino and Roller Rink, seven miles south of Wilmington, Del., on February 25. Loss, partly covered by insurance, included a $3,000 amplifying system, three pianos, several hundred tables and chairs and 400 pairs of skates, said Joseph Engle, operator.

HARRY SHIRK, who recently assumed management of the roller rink in Meyers Lake Park, Canton, O., and who reports membership in the roller club has passed the 300 mark, is planning an Oldtimers Night on March 25. Rink is operating nightly with Saturday and Sunday matinees.

FIVE-MAN roller-skating team of Dalton Rink, Canton, O., won at Lancaster, O., on March 2. East Liverpool finishing second. Other teams were from Pittsburgh; Youngstown, O., and New Castle, Pa.

PLAYLAND Roller Rink, which operates seven nights weekly in South Bend, Ind., has changed the name of its Skating Trip Club to Playland Travelers, reports Al Wish, proprietor. Eddie Robbins is manager and instructor.

OAKS Roller Rink, Portland, Ore., opened its 34th season on March 3 with an elaborate 10-act floor show and attendance of about 950, largest anniversary-day crowd in the rink's history. E. H. Bollinger is manager. A show was staged by Oaks Skating Club under direction of President Boyd Stoughton and featured 16 cakettes, led by Barbara Dentler and Lu Zell Whiting, who presented a revue. A torador and bull skate by Chuck MacFarlane, Don Jensen and Don Whitney drew applause. Other numbers were figure, military and double-jointed trick skating and spinning acts. An attractive 20-page souvenir program was distributed. During the three-day shutdown a bright rug and six oil paintings were added to give life to the foyer. Neon tubing outlining the organ was installed and the console was gilded. Indirect lighting was added to restrooms and refreshment stand. Lumi-line lights were added for floor lights. Ceiling and walls were painted in white, yellow, buff and tan with gold stripes as decoration and rails were coated silver. Reserve mechanical checkroom, which may be cranked up and out of the way, was built. Containers fixed to sleepers have almost eliminated the chewing gum problem. Skates were repaired and new ones added. Bob Bollinger, assistant manager, reported business good.

NEW Salisbury Roller Rink in a former garage in downtown Salt Lake City opened to a fair crowd on February 28 under management of Ernest Salisbury, well known to Western roller-skating people. He will be assisted by Evan Williams and Fred Lindsay. Opening was advertised with window cards. Rink has a 50 by 135-foot maple floor and is not quite completed. Sound equipment will be added and walls are to be improved to better acoustics.

PENNSYLVANIA State championships in roller-skate dancing will be held in Lexington Rink, Pittsburgh, on April 11-13 under sanction of the Roller Skating Rink Operators' Association of the United States, reports Manager H. D. Ruhlman. Competition will be open to amateurs whose applications are filled out in duplicate and filed with the holding rink five days prior to April 11. Should participants be under 21 years of age, a parent or guardian must countersign the application. Local skaters (those living within 50 miles of Pittsburgh) will compete on the first two nights for the finals, three winners to be picked each night. Distant skaters will compete in finals and may be champions of their home rinks or not more than two couples from each city and approved by home rink managers. Gold medals will be awarded champions; silver medals, second place, and bronze medals, third place. Dance competition will include circle waltz, open and closed; old-style two-step, American promenade and chicken scratch. Finalists will be eligible to enter the national championships in Mineola (L. I.) Rink on April 27-29.

ROBERT WARE, vice-president of Chicago Roller Skate Co., is touring Florida with a party of friends for a month or so. He writes that he is enjoying some very good fishing. Ralph Ware, treasurer of the company, will leave soon for a combined business and pleasure trip thru the Carolinas and points on the Southern seaboard.

BUSINESS is holding up at Fred Leiser's Chicago Armory Roller Rink during Lent and many parties are being booked, reports Bill Henning. Stage is being erected for a public wedding on March 22 and many gifts have been donated, including pairs of shoe skates from the Chicago Skate Co. and a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Sid Kean, rink concessioners. Joe Laury is skating in the Chicago Roller Derby. Floyd Bauler is new doorman.

OWEN WILLIAMS, manager of the roller rink at Waverly Beach, Beloit, Wis., last summer, has leased the pavilion in Bluff View Park near Erodhead, Wis., and opened on March 4 with roller skating nightly and on Sunday afternoons.

Current Comment

By CYRIL BEASTALL

DERBY, England.—Two errors were recently noted in a publication, mention being made that Secretary Provencher, Canadian Association, had informed that a team from Canada might represent that country in the second "world" championship for roller hockey in London, England, this year. I can state that official information says that the championship will definitely take place at Easter in Montreux, Switzerland. London never was considered as venue.

Mention also was made of there being 300 rinks in this country and that they were opening week by week. Fact is that there are less than half that number of roller rinks here, actual figures being 148; also very few new rinks have been in evidence this season.

Latest rink to open over here is Assembly Rooms, Belper, Derbyshire, seven miles out of Derby. Operator is William Holt, who also owns the New Theater, Belper. Assembly Rooms opened on February 13 to capacity and so well patronized has it been that Mr. Holt immediately converted his New Theater, closed temporarily, into a larger rink for opening on February 23. Albert Hambleton, hockey exponent, is floor manager, his second pro engagement. Music is by an orchestra.

director of publicity; Harry Mack, press agent back; Bert Wallace, equestrian director; James (Waxo) Salter, 24-hour man.

E. J. McKnight, Fan, spent several days here, accompanied by Jerome T. Harriman. Jimmie Bagwell, formerly in concession department of the Downie show, was here en route to Sarasota. Paul M. Conway is busy with many clients in his office. He directed the Police Circus here, having an excellent program. Ray Grove was ill for several weeks. Eddie Jackson is still in Akron, O.

The passing of Mrs. Charles Sparks cast a spell of sadness over the circus colony.

Miller To Direct Publicity

MEMPHIS, March 11.—Arthur W. (Art) Miller has been signed by William M. Moore as general director of publicity for Downie Bros.' Circus. He was contracting agent after the reopening of that show last season. Prior to that he was with the Lindemann brothers for several years as general agent of the Sells-Sterling Circus. Miller has been operating a roller rink in Arkansas and Missouri this winter. Business has been satisfactory.

postcards of themselves unless paid extra. Tarvlin said he was paying the trio $150 a week and $75 a week extra for their chaperon. In order that the show might go on he paid them the extra money demanded under protest. Tavlin stated. A jury in Judge Lambert Hayes' court found for Tavlin after an hour's deliberation.

During the 1937 season Tavlin presented the Del Rios in the "concert" of the Al C. Barnes Circus. Since then they have gone under other management and early last season appeared at Million-Dollar Pier, Atlantic City. For the past few weeks they have been appearing in the after-show with Orrin Davenport's winter circus.

TEXAS SHOWS TILT FIGURES

Houston Gets Its Best Gate

Fat stock expo's all-time high nearly 200,000—more State-wide support noted

HOUSTON, March 11.—Attendance was near the 200,000 mark at Houston Fat Stock Show and Live-Stock Exposition on February 25-March 5, about 40,000 over that of 1938 and established an all-time high despite several wet days. Attendance on Texas Independence Day, March 2, was given as 20,000, largest of any day, compared with 10,000 on the same day in 1938. Over 5,000 kids from charity institutions attended Friday afternoon. Awards totaled $20,000 of which $7,000 went to rodeo performers.

"Better State-wide support was noted and this attributed more than anything else to the success," said President J. W. Sartwell. "We will be forced to enlarge the site for the next year's show."

President Sartwell; W. C. Cox, secretary-manager, and others of the board of directors were planning the 1940 show while this show was in progress. Exhibits doubled those of last year with more than twice as many entries in competition in live stock and poultry, while industrial and commercial exhibits numbered about three to one as against last year. Private and auction sales of live stock and poultry by exhibitors were heaviest ever known in South Texas.

In the horse show there were nearly 200 animals making up 45 classes of large fields and competition was keen. George Lee, Mexico, Mo., nationally known horse-show judge, presided. Sales were also heavy in this division.

Joe D. Hughes, Houston, was chairman of the horse show; Pauline Sternberg, manager; Mrs. Chester Gifford, secretary, and Edwin Young, announcer. Nat D. Rodgers was superintendent of admissions and ticket sales, and W. A. Lee, chairman of the publicity committee, with Jack McCully and Fog Horn Clancy handling the press. More than 50 school bands from towns and cities in South Texas were guests of the expo.

Oregon Passes Grounds Bill

SALEM, Ore., March 11.—A bill thwarting attempts by cities, towns and counties to gain new revenues at expense of county fairs has been passed by the Legislature and signed by the governor. It provides that "any shows, carnivals, circuses, dances, entertainment or public gatherings held on fairgrounds and so licensed or permitted by a county fair board (so that fairgrounds and buildings may be utilized to the fullest extent) shall not be required to pay license to any city or county other than to the county fair board." It was introduced by Herman H. Chindgren, president of Oregon Fairs Association and member of the Legislature.

Lewistown Staff Continues Under Supervision of Hamid

LEWISTOWN, Pa., March 11.—The 1939 Mifflin County Fair here will be under general direction of George A. Hamid, it was announced at a meeting of Mifflin County Horticultural and Agricultural Association. The late Samuel B. Russell was general manager and moving spirit of the fair many years.

Local officers and directors will be active in operation. Staff is composed of the following, all of whom have previously been connected with the fair:

Admissions, Jack Morgan; horticulture and agriculture, Leroy Leach; speed, Jesse Groninger; assistant, William Brindel; poultry, Walter Wilson; live stock, Robert McCoy; lights, Leslie Bailey; amplification, Ralph McCook; schools, Professor Sipes; entertainment, Harold D. Cohen; publicity, Richard Ruble; concessions, Carl E. Friese; secretary-treasurer, J. C. Shatzer.

ERNEST RAUGHLEY, secretary of Delaware's only fair, the Kent and Sussex annual in Harrington, which will have a $10,000 State building for display of Delaware products if the Legislature passes a pending bill. Two other proposed measures ask the solons to make appropriations of $14,000 for premiums for two years and awards for special exhibits.

Mich. Audit Shows Revenue Variations

DETROIT, March 11.—Significant figures in a comparison of 1937 and 1938 Michigan State Fairs here, given in an audit submitted last week by William L. Stewart, show: Net profit, 1937, $29,906; 1938, $31,208; revenue, 1937, $273,232; 1938, $376,635; gate admissions 1937, $119,639; 1938, $247,391; rentals and concessions, 1937, $124,967; 1938, $108,520; expenses, 1937, $243,329; 1938, $345,426.

It is noted that the 1938 fair showed a big increase in gate revenue and a decrease in revenue from exhibits and concessions. Present plant value is figured as: Land, $551,993; buildings, $1,212,826; equipment, $231,290; total, $1,996,109.

About $619,000 was written off plant value in 1937, the audit shows, chiefly for elimination of the subway under the race track and some older buildings. Subsequent improvements brought the figures up to the present values.

Young Repeats in Jackson

Modify Laws on Concessions

By ANNA JANE PEARSON

Address of the owner-manager of the Pearson Shows before the annual meeting of Illinois Association of Agricultural Fairs in the St. Nicholas Hotel, Springfield, on February 1.

Anyone who apologizes to people he must contact for being with a carnival not only betrays his profession but is a knocker for his profession he represents. The word "carnival" has been in use for generations. Perhaps a glance at its history will give us an angle for meeting our present troubles. During the so-called dark ages carnivals played in churchyards under auspices of local priests. But their carnivals had only concessions. Who would think of a midway without rides? Especially the Eli Wheel and the Merry-Go-Round, Tilt-a-Whirl and other rides, for they are the carnival.

The shows and concessions, historically the older and in many ways the more important to the successful carnival, have been so merchandised that the traveling show in America today is primarily the outgrowth of the Chicago

Hearing Deferred On Hennies-Detroit Suit Over Contract

DETROIT, March 11.—Hearing on a suit of Orville W. Hennies against Michigan State Fair management was postponed twice this week in U. S. District Court here. Hennies seeks to enforce an implied contract for the midway at the 1939 fair for Hennies Bros.' Shows. Dr. Linwood W. Snow, new fair manager, gave a contract instead to the Beckmann & Gerety Shows. Manager Snow said this week that the midway contract will go to either Hennies or Beckmann & Gerety, dependent upon outcome of the suit. Hearing is set now for March 14.

The suit was brought in Federal Court inasmuch as Hennies brothers are citizens of Louisiana, so bringing suit in Michigan rather than because a State agency is being sued, it was indicated by George Kayes, Hennies' attorney. No damages are claimed at present, but should the court determine that the Hennies brothers are entitled to the contract but indicate settlement for damages rather than performance of contract as the solution, a claim for $50,000 to $100,000 damages will be entered, it is said. An oral contract is claimed, Kayes said, rather than a written one. Former Fair Manager Frank N. Isbey and other officials are to be called as witnesses for the plaintiff.

State Building Fund Asked for Harrington

DOVER, Del., March 11.—Three bills providing prize money and authorizing an appropriation for erection of a State building at Kent and Sussex Fair, Harrington, have been introduced in the House of the Legislature in session here by Representative Fred S. Balley, Harrington.

One of the measures would authorize an appropriation of $10,000 to the fair for a State building for display of Delaware products.

Another would authorize $7,000 a year for two years for premiums and a third would authorize an appropriation for awards for Delaware exhibits of agriculture and home economic work. Kent and Sussex is Delaware's only fair.

Frank Wirth Adds Three

NEW YORK, March 11.—Frank Wirth Booking Association announced grand-stand contracts with Stoneboro, Pa.; Dresden, Ont., and Cortland, N. Y. Also booked Six Antaleks, Ringling-Barnum perch act, with George Wirth Bros.' Circus, Australia, opening in Melbourne in October. George Hanneford riding act in Frank Fay's local vaude show also sold by Wirth office for two weeks and option.

Special Days At Ft. Worth

Big awards await exhibitors—Whiteman is playing at S. E. Expo Round-Up

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 11.—The 43d annual Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show and Rodeo here on March 10-19 opened yesterday with a downtown parade at 4 p.m., and grounds were opened at the same time. Parade was headed by Paul Whiteman, whose All-American Band is playing for the rodeo events and floor show and dancing at the Roundup, new night spot on the grounds, and Amos Carter, local publisher and show official.

Show prizes total about $78,000, with $40,000 going to exhibitors of prize winning cattle and sheep. About $30,000 is said to be prize money for rodeo events and $8,000 for horse show winners. Special days and events for many cities, towns and organizations are slated to swell attendance. Largest delegations will be Future Farmers of America and 4-H Clubs of this section. John M. Hendrix is handling all special events for the second year. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is scheduled to attend the rodeo on Sunday while visiting her son here.

Turf Catering Co. has the catering concession here for the fourth consecutive year. Biggest spot it has is the Roundup, which has been enlarged until it seats 1,300. J. D. Wolkin is in charge for the Turf Co. Bill H. Hames Shows are again on the midway. Free act on the midway features Burma, the elephant. Fern and Candy Groseclose, who have had candy floss and ice cream concessions here many years, have added guess-your-age and guess-your-weight. Dave Bloom again has the novelty concession contract.

Mass. Solons Hear Pros and Cons About Racing Law Clause

BOSTON, March 11.—Appearing before the legal affairs committee of the Legislature, prominent members of Massachusetts (See MASS. SOLONS on opposite page)

HARRY KAHN, secretary of Auglaize County Fair, Wapakoneta, O., a pioneer in presenting daily changes of grand-stand programs, has set attractions for the 1939 fair to continue this policy, which has greatly increased attendance there. Rapid strides have been made by this once decadent annual and much improvement work has been done this year, including new fencing and modernizing gateways and art hall.

On Tough Contracts

The unfair concession and the immoral amusement must go. Give the public what it wants. Every time a carnival burns up a town it is biting the hand that feeds it. Even the animals in our side shows know better than to bite the hand that feeds them. Too many towns have already been closed to carnivals (See MODIFY LAWS on opposite page)

Kahn To Present Changed Programs for Wapa Again

WAPAKONETA, O., March 11.—Daily change of program, which proved popular with patrons of six-day Auglaize County Fair here last year, will again be in effect, reports Harry Kahn, secretary. Attractions booked include Renfro Valley Barn Dance; Bits of Broadway Revue and Mirth and Melody Revue, Henry H. Lueders attractions; Pine Ridge Follies and Barker Bros.' Circus, booked thru Gus Sun Agency, and Jimmy Katz's 28-piece NBC orchestra, booked thru Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc.

Membership ticket campaign, which broke records last year when 2,710 tickets sold for $1 each, will again be staged. Gate admission will be 25 cents. Grandstand admission will be 35 cents.

R. A. Jolly rides will be on the midway. Thompson's lunch concession has been contracted and Andrews Concession Co. will have candy and frozen products on the midway. Harness races and jumping contests will be held three days.

Considerable improvement work has been done. New fencing surrounds grounds, gateways have been widened and the art hall has been revamped.

Attractions Set for P. A.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., March 11.—Midway attraction for 56th annual five-day Prince Albert Fair, member of Canada Midwest Circuit, will be Zimdars' Greater Shows, reports J. P. Curror, manager. Barnes-Carruthers will furnish free acts and Manhattan Jamboree Revue will be an attraction. Jimmie Lynch's Death Dodgers have been signed for Thrill Day. Children's, Citizens', Farmers' and Travelers' Days are planned, and harness racing will be staged three days, with $2,900 in purses. Boy and girl farm camps will be held two days and there will be a program for junior farmers.

Fair Grounds

LOUISVILLE, Miss.—Winston County Legion Fair, a consolidation of Winston County and American Legion fairs, was launched at a meeting here on February 22, reports Mrs. Maude Boydston, secretary. Fair will be sponsored by Business Men's Club and American Legion Post. Grounds will be in State Legion Park, where a number of buildings, formerly occupied by a CCC camp, are available.

NEW WINDSOR, Ill.—New Windsor Fair and Horse Show, formerly New Windsor Home-Coming and Horse Show, will open its two-day program with musical and sports events, and a nominal admission will be charged to give concessionaires a break, reports Secretary E. Thomas. Prospective State aid for payment of premiums is expected to strengthen the fair's financial position.

BELLEFONTAINE, O.—Annual meeting, banquet and entertainment of the Horse-Pulling Association of Ohio will be held in the K. of C. Hall here on March 21, said Secretary Ray Hennesey, of this city. The association will again this year sponsor heavy and lightweight horse-pulling contests at Ohio fairs.

CALGARY, Alta.—This year's parade, opening Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, will have a special section known as the Pageant of Empire, with about 17 floats representing different parts of the empire. Directors approved a report of the racing committee, increasing purses by $1,550 over last year's.

NEWPORT, Ore.—County Court has accepted a deed from the city for six acres adjoining the city's athletic field as a permanent site for Lincoln County Fair. A WPA application calling for construction of buildings, landscaping and bleachers is being prepared. Grounds are planned to accommodate a rodeo, with corrals and a small race track. W. P. McBe, Toledo, president; Andrew Kent, Waldport, and E. E. Colvin, Siletz, make up the fair board.

FREMONT, O.—Sandusky County Fair directors plan erection of a $6,000 livestock coliseum.

REGINA, Sask.—Estimates of expenditure for Regina Exhibition board this year, totaling $54,930, were approved by city council. Total is $4,930 more than last year's estimate and $3,135 more than last year's expenditure. Apart from debenture charges, the board pays its own way and last year paid to the city more than $16,000. Attractions this year will cost $7,800 and many thousands of dollars will be given in premiums. Cars will be given away again.

Grand-Stand Shows

WAGNER'S Concert Band has been contracted to furnish grand-stand music at the 1939 fairs in Marlinton, W. Va.; Emporia, Va., and Asheboro, Rutherford County, North Wilkesboro and Wilson, N. C., reports Bandmaster A. J. Wagner, Mount Airy, N. C.

PEARL FERN and Company, now playing night clubs in Ohio, will play fairs and celebrations in the Northwest the coming season under the Williams & Lee banner.

FLASH WILLIAMS and his Thrill Drivers will appear in Regina, Sask., on May 24, the day prior to arrival of the king and queen, on the exhibition grounds. The thrill show will be sponsored by exhibition boards in Regina and Saskatoon, Sask., and Edmonton, Alta., on the day before the king and queen arrive in those cities.

WEYBURN, Sask.—At the 1939 Weyburn Fair among grand-stand attractions will be a Pageant of Empire with a cast of 130. Attractions will cost $430 more than last year. Grand-stand contract has been let to the Hamilton Booking Agency, Wallace Bros.' Shows will be on the midway. New directors added are Florence Mullen and Alva Adolphe.

MODIFY LAWS

nity because of bad shows. It is the duty of a carnival manager to see that his show is legitimate business. It is his lifework to provide amusement. If an owner or manager cannot control his personnel, he is not to be classed as a show-owning executive, save in name only. I disagree with those who say that such behavior traces indirectly to the kind of contracts entered into between the show and the fair and between the show and concessioners. Contracts so tough that unpleasantness becomes necessary could be avoided by using good common sense. A contract is sacred, or should be. And if the intentions are to meet it but to counteract its affirmed unfairness by illegal means, it is both bad business and bad publicity.

The entertainment business, being essentially a matter of novelty, fairs often would like to have a different show each year. Often they receive from unknown shows bids far in excess of real value. They put pressure on the fair committee in favor of the unknown. But as long as so many shows are still playing on a no-return basis, the wise fair committee will take the show in whose manager it has established confidence, trusting him to be showman enough to provide something new and different each year and to be judge enough of people as well as shows to have only reliable, responsible people with him. A small financial sacrifice today may save a severe headache later. Another proof of this is to be seen every time a show plays a new town. First the critics come. They are suspicious, they look us over. When it is noised about that the show is good, that the acts are clean, that the concessioners are on the level, then and not until then do the fathers bring their families and mothers let their children come to the amusement zone alone. I know from my own experience that if we will clean house and operate a show that fills a real public demand we will find friends in the most unexpected places.

Laws Kill Variety

Mr. Fair Secretary, your problems are about the same as the carnivals, with one addition, "Does not the operation of a questionable concession reflect on your home community?" Fair officials should consider that the carnival is a part of their fair. Just as much as horses, cows, sheep, 4-H Club, or any other division of the fair. I urge that fair officials should give carnivals their moral support and visit them and be sure that the carnival is clean and inviting. The fair, as a whole, should be entertaining as well as educational. "Dishonest concessioners, booking agents that do not fill contracts, and operators of immoral shows should be blacklisted in the State of Indiana," declared U. C. Brouse, who is in charge of concessions at Indiana State Fair. Mr. Brouse tried to conduct a round-table discussion with showmen and concessioners at the Indiana fair meeting January 3, but few were present. He urged honest concessioners and showmen to co-operate with fair officials, eliminating undesirables. I, for one, would like to have the laws or rules governing the kinds of games at county fairs changed or modified. I believe the law was intended to eliminate all forms of vicious gambling; this law, if properly enforced, is the best thing that could happen for all concerned but as it is now it only works a hardship. You go on a fairgrounds and you see nothing but ball games, cockhouses, pitch-till-you-wins, dart games and a very few other kinds of concessions. This variety is not enough to keep the public amused. I advocate at least two special days at a fair that you can build up and get a great deal of publicity and good will without much cost. Opening day could be 4-H Club or Children's Day. You could mail vocational teachers and county agents in every county enough complimentary tickets to take care of every boy and girl who has earned recognition in some phase of club work and also to all boys and girls under 12 years old. Of course papa and mama have to come along to the fair, this creates a great deal of word-of-mouth publicity. Educational Day—the State superintendent of public instruction will co-operate with you on this day. Every school child under 12 who comes to the fair in a school bus or truck in charge of a teacher is admitted free. You could have a big school parade with children in it, interspersed with school bands. Again papa and mama come, pay admission at the gate and go to the shows, drink pop, eat hot dogs and pay to go to the grand stand, so both the grand stand and concessioners are happy.

How To Be Repeater

Mr. Fair Official, you are a showman as long as you are connected with your fair. You are trying to please the public; there is a fascination and when the next year rolls around you are ready and willing to do your part. The aim of a real showman is always to please the public, to conduct his business affairs in a dignified manner and to offer clean amusement and fun, and it is this type of showman who values highly the indorsement by the public and press, especially a voluntarily written testimonial on the quality of his show. A show that gives just a little more than advertised can't be anything but a repeater. Always treat your customer right; a carnival is a good customer to a town, to all the merchants. We spend plenty of our own money with them and they benefit with the money spent by the neighboring territory, only a part of which is spent on our midway.

The carnival midway as a rule is the biggest thing a fair has to offer the public. It does its own advertising and is generally billed as heavily as the fair. It is one of the best money-makers for the fair board. The carnival manager must do the job with the co-operation of every true trouper who wants to continue in wholesome amusement for fairs and this source of revenue. Isn't it possible that any show could cater to a better class of people who have more money to spend if the questionable features are eliminated? "Crawford County Fair, Meadville, Pa., was abandoned permanently at a recent meeting of directors. Fair operated as an educational institution with no racing or midway revenue, depending on State and county appropriations and sale of advertising in the premium list, and rapid growth of vocational fairs eligible to receive appropriations left insufficient funds to operate. The midway is one of the financial stand-bys of any fair. By giving the midway a break, a big break is also given the fairgoers."

Some fairs find that rain insurance is too expensive; it always rains at the wrong time. So to overcome this they sell several thousand dollars' worth of season tickets. In my remarks I have not wanted to dictate to or criticize any person or fair, but I, for one carnival owner, would like to see a change in concessions. Let us turn our eyes to the season of 1939 with the determination that we will not repeat the mistakes of the past and that we will all co-operate to make it the biggest and most profitable of all.

tracks in the State to close between August 14 and October 1.

When the pari-mutuels bill was passed this provision was made part of the State racing laws in an effort to give protection to fairs. Only two or three fairs have availed themselves of the privilege of conducting pari-mutuels during that period, notably Marshfield and Great Barrington, both of which have successfully conducted meetings under the rule. But managements of larger fairs, such as Eastern States Exposition, Springfield; Brockton Fair, Topsfield Fair and others, oppose removal of the section on the ground that it would enable Suffolk Downs or other race tracks to run in opposition to fairs during that period. Assistant General Manager Milton Danziger, ESE, Secretary Frank H. Klingman, Brockton, and others from fairs appeared in opposition to passage of proposed legislation.

Representatives of horse and dog tracks argued that since a majority of fairs had not installed pari-mutuels betting and had not taken advantage of the law there could be no valid reason for opposition to race tracks continuing meets thru summer. At present racing under pari-mutuels may begin in spring and continue until August 14 and then may again begin on October 1. However, only 90 days of horse racing are permitted.

DAYTON, O.—One of the heaviest schedules of national championship auto racing by Central States Racing Association is indicated for the coming season, said Norman Witte, executive secretary. Calendar includes many new speedway locations and fair dates. Sam Nunis, well-known Southern and Eastern auto-race man, will handle narration for Montgomery-Ward on majority of major CSRA programs at fairs and still dates. He joins Jack Story in this field.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J. — Hackettstown Fair and Amusement Association, Inc., elected E. J. Wildrick, president; Ralph B. McConnell, secretary.

Park Features In New Project

Officials lay out $100,000 site for a fair and other events and attractions

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 11.—Work was launched on the $100,000 amusement park to be built here by Southern States Exposition, Inc., this week when officials of the company came and filed deed to the site and certificate of incorporation and laid out construction for the 100-acre site, about one mile north of here.

First event slated is a Southeastern fair next fall. Stockholders, officials and others present for the meeting were George A. Hamid and Lucky Teter; Dr. J. S. Dorton, Shelby, president; Harold Powell, local representative, and engineers and designers.

While here the group laid out a race track, grand stand, exhibit buildings, skating rink, swimming pool and other facilities. Mr. Hamid said all buildings would be permanent. Grand stand will seat 5,000, he said. He declared the group planned to make the park one of the outstanding of its kind in the South. In addition to the annual fair, other events and attractions will be presented in the park. The Southern States group recently bought assets and equipment of Charlotte Agricultural Fair, which operated here for the past two seasons.

Paris Luna Forced Out by City Action

PARIS, March 2.—Luna Park, only outdoor amusement spot in Paris, is on the way out. It was established in 1902 on city-owned property at the Porte Maillot, which then was on the outskirts of the city and is now part of automobile row on the Ave la Grande Armee. Embracing 100 acres leased by M. Voltaire, president of Luna Park Co., it has always been considered a money-maker.

A suit was won several years ago by the city for repossession of the land. On appeal Voltaire asked that the verdict be set aside and for $700,000 damages. Latest verdict gave the company three months to vacate and allowed no damages.

Always looking for good attractions, Luna has shown some of the world's best.

JAKE SCHWARZ, veteran showman, who will re-enter park business in Houston, Tex., having, with an associate, acquired a 30-acre tract near city limits. A large-scale park is projected, to be in operation by the spring of 1940. More than 75 years old, he has directed 50 years in show biz been connected with opera, drama, vaude, fairs, parks, carnivals and circuses.

Influx in A. C. Set at 250,000 Easter Visitors

By MALL DODSON

ATLANTIC CITY, March 13.—The resort is laying plans to entertain an expected influx of 250,000 Easter visitors. Steel Pier, dark since fall with exception of Christmas week, will reopen with Harry James, Benny Goodman and Gene Krupa slated for the big band honors. Hamid's Million-Dollar Pier plans a week-end reopening on Easter.

Press-Union's application for a radio station was accepted, paper being given two months in which to file plans with the FCC. Strong opposition to Mayor C. D. White's proposed beach-front remodeling plan may kill the enabling legislation in committee, main argument against the plan being that the "man in the street" fears the strand will be too high hat for the little fellow. With Ice Follies definitely signed for, San Francisco, Manager Phil Thompson of the Auditorium is hunting around for another ice show. He plans to run four week-ends of midget auto racing in the hall when ice hockey bows out on March 25.

Salvaged Rockaway Equipment Finds Its Way to Other States

By ALFRED FRIEDMAN

FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I., March 11.—Of the many thousands of dollars in amusement properties razed in a mile and one-half area at Rockaway to make room for the shore road, virtually all of the rides and assorted equipment have found their way to new locations. Few have been scrapped. Local amusement entrepreneurs did not purchase much of the salvaged paraphernalia. Instead the vast majority has found its way to resorts in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

The Rockaway razing project was the largest demolition of amusement property carried out on the Eastern seaboard, or for that matter perhaps anywhere. Several million dollars in awards will compensate owners of property confiscated to make room for the road that will eventually extend another two miles, thereby requiring an additional leveling from what remains of amusement properties. The giant Thunderbolt and Playland's Whirlwind Roller Coaster, because of the nature of their construction, had to be virtually junked.

The law is putting a stop to "backyard zoo exhibitors" locally, declaring that "these aspiring Frank Bucks are imperiling public safety by allowing dangerous animals to be displayed under conditions that constitute a menace to the neighborhood."

Frank Wirth's annual circus in Jamaica assembles most of the Island's amusement group, who come both for the purpose of patronage and to discourse on their respective spring and summer schemes.

It is interesting to see the clever exploitation that local department stores plan to employ in developing sales in bathing attire for World's Fair visitors who hope to take advantage of the Island's surfing facilities. Show people could profit from studying the thoughtful ingenuity of storekeepers who are streaking their methods with real showmanship.

Guesters Set By N. E. Ops

Merney and Smith to talk W. F. at Boston meeting—gale damage to the fore

BOSTON, March 11.—President Wallace St. C. Jones expects a big attendance and invites everyone interested in outdoor amusement business to attend the 11th annual convention of New England Section, National Association of Amusements Parks, Pools and Beaches, in the Manger Hotel here on March 21. Conventions of the New England body are noted for family spirit in discussions and constructive suggestions.

Guest speaker at the banquet at night will be Maurice Merney, head of the department of exhibits and concessions of the New York World's Fair. Other speakers will include Ernest J. Dean, Massachusetts commissioner of conservation, who will talk on State parks and their relation to public recreation, and George P. Smith Jr., of the concession department of the New York World's Fair.

There will be addresses on parks' recovery after the hurricane of last September and the refinancing of them. An impromptu symposium will be conducted on the value of trailer and cabin camps in amusement parks. Registration will begin at 10 a.m.

will be co-featured with name bands in Million-Dollar Pier Ballroom next summer, having been signed for the fifth consecutive year. Murray Rosenblatt has leased land at Albion place and the Walk for an outdoor archery range, table tennis and miniature golf. He will open his Million-Dollar Pier roller rink on April 8. Charles Seel, back from a disappointing venture with his mice in Key West, Fla., will reopen his mouse game at his old stand opposite Hamid's Pier. Steve Troth has signed a lease on a Boardwalk spot for a Pennyland. C. W. (Whitey) Mathis has taken over Bel Port Inn, buying out Charlie Henkelman, who pulled stakes for the West Coast.

Convention Bureau Manager Al Skean reports a greater number of small conventions than ever before, but few big ones. The picture for 1940-'41 is bright, he reports, with several of the biggest slated during the next two years.

OMAHA.—A petition in district court here for a legal permit to build a Roller Coaster in Krug Park has been denied. Park has been without a Coaster since 1930.

Inspection and Spring Clean-Up Of Pools Timely

By PAUL H. HUEDEPOHL

Manager Jantzen Swimming Association, Portland, Ore.

When we think of spring we naturally think of increased swimming activities. What about some thoughts on spring clean-up? Perhaps we have written on this subject before, but a good thought bears repetition. We therefore take liberty to make a few suggestions. First of all, appoint yourself a committee of one and make a thoro inspection of your plant—from roof to cellar—make notes on the condition of the entire plant.

Inspect your locker room. Are the lockers in good condition? Are all locks and doors in working condition? Hinges may need a little oil, enamel may be chipped, requiring new paint. Cement floor may need repairing in spots. Drains may need a good clean-out job. Benches may need a new coat of paint. Mirrors may need replacement. Windows and skylights cleaned—broken panes replaced. Shower heads and fixture valves may need some attention; loss of water can be checked by replacing worn-out washers. Shower-room walls always need attention—what about yours? All hardware should be checked thoroly.

Now your mechanical plant—investigate the condition of filters, check all valves, gauges, chemical pots, pumps, chlorinators, etc. The filtering media (sand and gravel) should be inspected. Perhaps you have lost some sand thru over-rapid backwashing, thereby making the "free-board area" too large. The addition of a few sacks of filter sand may be necessary to have your filters function efficiently.

What about your pool? If it is tiled perhaps you have some broken and cracked spots that require attention. If the pool is cement finished it may need a new coat of paint. Thoro inspection of all pipes, drains, etc., should be made. Check over your diving board and standards very carefully.

Jersey Coast

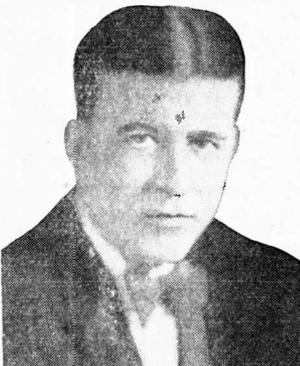

By SAM ABBOTT

LONG BRANCH, N. J., March 11.—Jersey coast concessioners got bad news when Central of Jersey announced that it would not put the S. S. Monmouth in service this year on the Sandy Hook route from Atlantic Highlands to New York's Battery. Passengers will be handled by the S. S. Sandy Hook. Rumor regarding lapse of service came several weeks ago when Sea Bright mayor and council aired the situation. Several days later the railroad made its announcement. The matter, however, may not be settled.

Railroad's announcement from Walter V. Shipley, passenger traffic manager, said service from the Jersey shore to Gotham would be provided in four round trips on week days and three on Sundays until June 25, when an additional daily round trip would be added. S. S. Sandy Hook will begin its trips May 21. Resolutions urging the railroad to continue the Monmouth have been drafted. County officials are bearing down to keep the boat in service. Freeholder J. Russell Woolley, West Long Branch, prepared to submit a resolution to his board calling upon the railroad to reconsider its decision. Howard W. Roberts, county counsel, enlisted aid of U. S. Senator W. Warren Barbour as a county resident to help straighten out this transportation problem. Mr. Woolley said he would ask for appointment of a committee by the board to wait on railroad officials to work out some plan.

It is the general belief that the S. S. Sandy Hook will prove inadequate in transporting metropolitan crowds to the shore. Crowds expected at the shore will be larger than ever because of the World's Fair.

Asbury Park beach squabble continues, as a demand for an additional $30,000 in legal fees sought by ousted Asbury Park beach commission was reported rejected at Trenton by the local government department on the ground that the city lacked legal budgetary appropriations for payment of the sum.

The Pool Whirl

By NAT A. TOR

(All Communications to Nat A. Tor, Care New York Office, The Billboard)

Indoor Pools Co-Op

Two Eastern inclosed natatoriums last week staged a dual swim meet and netted much free publicity. Broadwood pool, Philly, sent a men's team to New York to compete against the male Dragon Club contingent, representing St. George indoor tank, Brooklyn, in the latter pool.

Events included 100-yard free style, 220-yard free style, 200-yard breast stroke, 150-yard back stroke, 300-yard medley relay, 400-yard free-style relay and low board diving.

We understand this is to be a home-and-home series, with both tanks splitting expenses. More indoor and outdoor aquadromes should go in for this biz of dual meets. Main objection to it in the past has been that pool operators felt that if they had a losing team it would create bad will, which, of course, is childish. No patron will think any less of a tank because its team loses a tourney against another plunge. Patrons will, however, think more of a pool if it provides extra entertainment, such as dual meets.

High-School Tank

Some time ago reference was made here in Grant Union High School, North Sacramento, Calif. Beauty of the scholastic plunge was described in general, but a promise was made that in the near future the department would devote more space to this modern tank. J. R. Horak, manager of Grant Union tank, reports that a beautiful new cafeteria and student stores, opening on to the pool, have been completed. The California school pool was started in 1932 and opened in the early summer of 1934. Natatorium was designed under AAU regulations with the aid of a machinery company of San Francisco and its architect and also a filter company. These men designed layout for the tank and installed the filtration plant. Pool is 120 feet long by 50 feet wide. It is operated as a school pool for students during high-school year and at completion of each semester in June it is turned over to the Student Body Association which operates the plunge commercially during summer, with receipts going towards management of the school. There are ordinarily no tuition fees, etc., for the school, so the only revenue to pay for operation is thru money made at the pool in summer and proceeds from athletic contests, such as football, baseball and basket ball. The tank was paid for at completion of the 1936 season. Proceeds prior to 1937 were used for maintaining it as well as paying off indebtedness. Tank was constructed thru co-operation of county road construction fund, Civil Works Administration, State Emergency Relief Fund and National Youth Administration. Thus cost to the student body was slight, mainly cost of filtering and locker room housing equipment. Admission for patrons is 25 cents for adults, which includes suit and towel. It is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. thruout summer. For amusements around the pool there are table tennis, horseshoe courts, tennis, badminton and softball. These games are open to public without charge. Some other highlights during summer are an annual water carnival, consisting of clowns, stunts, wrestling by headline wrestlers on a floating ring in the middle of the pool, diving and swimming exhibitions by AAU champions and other features. Concerts are given on a big outdoor electric organ, and a new pipe organ is being installed in the new restaurant. Radio broadcasts are given direct from the pool in many different forms. Outstanding last season was an underwater broadcast done thru means of a diving helmet and numerous microphones.

We Told Yuh So!

As exclusively reported here three months ago, Trudy Ederle, of English Channel fame, will be one of the water performers at Billy Rose's show at the New York World's Fair. Rose is using Park Central indoor tank and Women's Swimming Association pool, New York City, for tryouts for his Aquacade.

That irrepressible Cy Bond, sales manager for the Dodgem Corp., sent a clipping from a Boston paper giving an account of a hearing before the Boston licensing board on a seasonal beer license for People's Grove in West Roxbury at which it was contended that there could be no picnic without good cold beer. Bond does not tell us what kind of a picnic is expected. Some very profitable school picnics in many localities could not be had if a general distribution of beer should prevail. On the other hand, there are some large fraternal or club picnics which could not be had without beer. Procedure—Do not have conflicting picnics on the same day, then everybody will be happy. An outing of the Women's Christian Temperance Union should be held the day before a beer picnic. Bond does not need this advice. When it comes to picnics he knows his onions.

Seek W. and H. Ruling

The odds offered by Lloyds that the San Francisco exposition would not open on time went wrong. If they have not entirely withdrawn the odds that the New York World's Fair will not open they had better do so because there will be no great war in 1939 and the fair in New York will open on April 30.

Richard F. Lusse is now an amusement park proprietor. Tho not actively identified with the management of Lusse Bros., he will continue to sell their products. George H. Cramer, president of the Spillman Engineering Corp., says they are still on their toes, more so than they were two or three months ago. Orders are pouring in, he says, and it is now just a matter of when they can make deliveries.

In New York City it has been the warmest February in seven years and the wettest in 19 years. Will someone tell us what this presages, if anything, for our summer weather for 1939?

Of first consideration to AREA members just now is to get a ruling on wages and hours from the department of labor. Our application is in, but each of our members should contact his regional director and show him why we want an exception for our highly specialized industry for our short rush period of 14 weeks to work more than 44 hours per week without penalty. Gerhart, of Philadelphia Toboggan Co., is co-operating excellently with your secretary.

Storm Tales in Boston

Annual meeting of New England park men in the Manger Hotel, Boston, on March 21 promises to be as interesting and helpful as any meeting they have ever had. Those astounding reports we heard at our Chicago meeting of storm damage to New England will be more than confirmed at the meeting in Boston by those who took the brunt of the storm and saw much of their property wiped away. Danny Bauer, of New Bedford, Mass., Mrs. E. R. Emeagan, of Lake Pearl, Wrentham, Mass., Paul Haney, of Rocky Point, Providence, and Frank Terrill, of Savin Rock, New Haven, Conn., can relate experiences that will become history. Wallace St. Clair Jones, president of the New England Association, has driven over the pathway of the storm and speaks convincingly of the necessity for disaster loans from the government.

These men will talk about The World That Was, while George P. Smith Jr. and Maurice Mermey will be there to talk about The World of Tomorrow. Things are beginning to move over at the New York World's Fair. There is still a lot of talk about obtaining money, but surely some of it has been obtained because work continues. We all know that union labor does not work long unless pay is forthcoming regularly. These fellows backing some of the costly attractions deserve to make money and naturally are expecting that they will.

With the Zoos

CINCINNATI.—Lorenz Hagenbeck, of the famed German family which operates Hagenbeck Zoo at Stellingen, was a visitor at the zoo here on March 5. Accompanying him during his inspection were Joseph A. Stephan, general superintendent; Dr. Sol G. Stephan, veterinarian; Sol A. Stephan, general superintendent emeritus; Walter A. Draper, trustee, and John F. Heusser, executive director. Hagenbeck is making a survey tour of American zoos and has already been to New York and Boston. He plans to visit St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit and Florida before returning to Germany the latter part of March.

COLUMBUS, O.—Two giant kangaroos have been presented to Columbus Zoo by Tom Jones, proprietor of Arabia night club here. They will arrive about April 15 and will be the first kangaroos exhibited in the park. They will be housed in a barn until an animal house is built, said Superintendent Bill Smyth.

DETROIT.—Jefferson Beach Amusement Park will open late in May and Jack Stevens will be park manager again.

rumor that it would be materially smaller than last year. The show moved in 88 cars last year.

Roland Butler stated that the big top definitely would be air-conditioned. Negotiations for the purchase of equipment are under way, Butler said, indicating that they probably would take some time, inasmuch as the size of the top will present a new problem in air-conditioning engineering.

Only one circus, and that a small show, has been successfully air-conditioned to date. That show used a single unit, located outside the tent. It is believed that the Ringling equipment will consist of a number of units so built as to operate beneath the grand stands.

Mrs. Terrell M. Jacobs has returned to her home with her twin babies born recently.

Complete resources of R-B were placed at the disposition of the Sarasota Junior Chamber of Commerce today for the annual circus parade feature of the Pageant of Sara de Sota. Revolving Banner Towers, Other Unique Features Seen in Freak Show Framed for Best by RAS

TAMPA, Fla., March 11.—A remarkable layout of freak-show equipment for portable operation is nearing completion in the Royal American Shows' winter quarters here, and Elmer C. Velare, executive director, was so enthusiastic about it he ordered release of the news today. Outfit is being built for E. Richard (Dick) Best, who has operated oddity attractions with the Royal American for about a decade. Unique in annals of such attractions are two 30-foot towers, each with a battery of six revolving banners. The rotators move at a speed governed by the talker, who constantly has control of their action. The revolving towers are posted at each end of the bally platform. Between them hangs a huge neon decorated chromium-festooned "Freaks" title.

The pit has been eliminated. All acts will take place on a centrally situated stage, public being held at a convenient distance by iron railings. From railing to extreme ends of the top there are elevations permitting spectators to look over the heads of crowds in front in order to see all details of a performance. There are 20 elevation platforms, each equipped with three levels upon which spectators can stand. The tent is an innovation in pit-show attractions, according to Director Velare. It will be about 100 feet in length and 60 feet in width, oval in construction with 16-foot side walls.

No Blow-Offs or Pitches

All illumination will be centered on the stage, which is elevated about three feet above the ground to aid spectators high up in the bleacher-like stand platforms. The front stretches 150 feet in length, with banners reaching 22 feet above ground. All panels are separated by heavy wood frames decorated in chrome metal and illuminated by neon. Front is so constructed that when bally and side panels have been erected the show can open. The rotary towers can (See REVOLVING BANNER on page 47)

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Formal preview and housewarming staged here on March 6 by the Pacific Coast Showmen's Association in celebration of the club's entrance into new quarters at Grand and Wilshire boulevard proved a gala affair. About 350 attended. Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary were guests and entertainment included a floor show and dancing which lasted until early in the morning.

Rooms were decorated under direction of Nina Rogers and Edith Bullock and assistants and Moe Levine's crew converted the meeting hall into a veritable flower garden. Club's regular meeting proved a formality, with President Harry Hargraves giving a brief resume of the (See PCSA PREVIEW on page 47)

Conklin To Add New Rides And Light Towers to Show

CHICAGO, March 11.—Conklin Shows' midway will be more brilliantly lighted this season than in the past. J. W. (Patty) Conklin, who returned from the West Coast, made a trip to Mt. A Century of Profit Show

By STARR DeBELLE

Swan Song, Fla.

Week ended March 11, 1939.

Dear Mixer:

The past week can be marked up as seeing the greatest round-table conference in carnival history. Immediately after the midway was open on Monday night President Pete Ballyhoo called a meeting of all stockholders, namely, First Vice-President Jake Ballyhoo, Second Vice-President Herman Ballyhoo, Third Vice-President Hank Ballyhoo, Fourth Vice-President Bill Ballyhoo and General Agent Lem Trucklow. The six famous and seasoned showmen met in the G top for a five-day confab, the sole object of the meeting being to work out a plan relative to uplifting the show personnel's morale without lifting the salaries.

On Tuesday the first piece of business regarding feeding the help was quickly finished. With food prices soaring daily, they all voted to serve less food in the cookhouse and to make up the shortage by issuing a more elaborate and embossed meal ticket. They further agreed to recognize six punched-out meal tickets for the past week as train checks, allowing the holders first-class passage on any car that they chose to ride with the exception of the coaches.

Wednesday found the confab at a fever heat. Every man, woman and child with the show surrounded the G top and all were on the "earie." So hot became the arguments within that Pete invited Jake outside. Lem Trucklow resigned as general agent and threatened to leave for Chicago at once. Hank and Bill Ballyhoo came to blows and it was not until some neighbor turned in a riot call that they quieted down and continued with their "knittin'."

On Thursday the bosses gave the show world the greatest news scoop of the day, all deciding on the subject 100 per cent. They voted to put out a No. 2 show that would not be affiliated with this show in any manner. They are putting the No. 2 show out because they know they have been carrying an unlimited number of knockers, agitators and disorganizers who have spent the best years of their lives on our midway. But not wanting to throw them off cold, Ballyhoo brothers are giving them enough equipment to open a carnival of their own. Those who have never been satisfied with locations, those who would always do it another way and those who have been continually cursing the office are eligible to join and prove their convictions.

The new show has been titled Heel & Fink's Great Lament Shows. The bosses have decided to let other show managers in on the deal and expect many people from other shows to join with donated equipment. Carnival managers thruout the United States and Canada are invited to unload the millstones from around their necks or to hold the threat over their disgruntled employees' heads that "I'll send you to the Heel & Fink Shows." The thing that most worries the office is that should the operators on the No. 2 show grow and prosper and give the mother show opposition, then we will know that they were right. MAJOR PRIVILEGE.

Palace Theater Building, New York.

NEW YORK, March 11.—While we number indoor show people on our roster, there seems to be a mistaken idea that we are primarily an outdoor showmen's organization. Such is not the case, as has been emphasized by President Hamid on various occasions. Therefore an indoor show people's committee has been appointed and its duties are to interest artists of the legitimate and variety stage, as well as night club entertainers, in the organization. Chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, are Sam Shayon and Jesse Kaye. Others are Joseph Ceida, Andre Dumont, Sam Grisman, Edward M. Fay, Harry Howard, Herbert L. Levens, Fred Phillips, Elias E. Sugarman, Leonard Traube and Max Sharp.

Other committees are: Cemetery and Burial Fund, Joseph A. McKee, chairman; Arthur Campfield, Arthur L. Hill, Aaron Hymes, Art Lewis, George W. Traver. Hospitalization, Dr. Jacob Cohen, chairman; J. L. Greenspoon, Max Hofmann, Phil Isser, Joseph McKee, Clem Schmitz, Elias E. Sugarman. House, Sam Rothstein, chairman; William Bloch, Arthur Campfield, Louis Faber, Mack Harris, Jules Lasures, Charles Lawrence, Jack Lichter, Jack Linderman, Al McKee, Jerry Peshkin, Fred Phillips, Adolph Schwartz, Paul Spitzer and Ike Weinberg. Troupers' Home, Max Linderman, chairman; Oscar C. Buck, Arthur Campfield, Max Goodman, Sam Lawrence, Art Lewis, Charles A. Somma and Harry G. Travers. Finance, Herbert H. Levens, chairman; Harry Sussman, Harry Shepard, Irving Rosenthal, Max Schaffer. Entertainment, Billy Rose, chairman; Jesse Kaye, vice-chairman; H. Blumenfeld, Fred Phillips, George Bernert, A. E. Dumont, Sam Grisman, James Corcoran, Jack Lichter.

Members not paid up to July 15, 1939, will receive notice of their delinquency from Executive Secretary Liddy within the next few days. If you are not paid up you are not entitled to the privileges and protection of the club—and the next meeting scheduled for March 15 will find Sergeant-at-Arms Weinberg instructed to bar members who are in arrears.

There will be a joint meeting of the membership, benefit fund, burial and hospitalization committees at 7 p.m. on (See NATIONAL SHOWMEN'S page 65)

Heart of America Showmen's Club

Reid Hotel

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 11.—Regular weekly meeting on March 3 was called to order by First Vice-President Art Brainerd, who presided in the absence of President Mellor. Brother Harry Altshuler, treasurer, filled in for Brother G. C. McGinnis, who was out of the city on a fishing trip. Two banners, one from the Pacific Coast Showmen's Association and the other an emblem of the club, presented by Baker-Lockwood Co., adorn the clubroom walls.

Reading of the minutes of the last meeting were approved and several communications as well as the routine business were disposed of. Members then adjourned to partake of a buffet luncheon, the first under the new ruling that the expense of these luncheons be borne by members. It was well attended, and the auxiliary joined following close of its meeting. Brother Morris Peitman, concessioner from Minneapolis, was a welcome visitor.

Brother Chester Levin, Midwest Merchandise Co., told of his trip and visit with J. L. Landes in Chapman, Kan., last Sunday. He reported an enjoyable time.

Much discussion is going on regarding the mix-up in the date of the annual (See HEART OF AMERICA on page 60) club's history and adding his prophecy as to what the future has in store.

Following the brief meeting festivities got under way, with Goldronida Spanish Orchestra furnishing the dance rhythms and music for the floor show, which included Arbona and Pasquale, El Mejicana Troupe, Senorita Paula Cordova, Ramara Lopez and Nita Quinell. Patrick Armstrong, benefactor of the organization, was introduced and received a huge round of applause. A lunch, including 350 tamales, chili and enchiladas, was served by Nina Rogers and Edith Bullock and assistants from the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Ladies' Auxiliary

Designated as "Housewarming" night, only a brief business session prevailed at the March 6 meeting, presided over by President Mario LeFors, First Vice-President Mora Bagby and Secretary-Treasurer Edith Bullock. All present attended the party staged by the men's club in their spacious clubrooms. President Harry Hargraves of the PCSA was received in the auxiliary and introduced Brother Pat Armstrong, who was given a standing vote of thanks for his many donations to the auxiliary as well as the PCSA. President Hargraves thanked the club for its co-operation and stressed on the amiable relations between the auxiliary and the parent club in the past years. He was loudly applauded for his interest. After a standing vote of thanks was given Hargraves and Armstrong, President LeFors personally thanked them in behalf of the organization. Meeting was then called to order and business resumed. Many visitors were on hand and a number of old members were in for the festivities. They included Mabel Stark, absent almost a year because of her work; Gladys Forrest, back after a recent illness; Addie Butler; Tillie Palmater, back after spending a few weeks in San Bernardino, Calif.; Mother Fisher, back after two weeks in the mountains as the guest of Past President Peggy Forstall.

Weekly award went to Gladys Forrest. Secretary Bullock is getting compliments each meeting for her executive ability. President LeFors graciously gave the chair to First Vice-President Bagby to conclude the meeting and Mora carried on in fine style. Members joined the men in their clubrooms for the party at adjournment.

be erected after the attraction is in operation. Each back-stay and banner-line post is arranged to allow one sixteenth of an inch adjustment on each section reaching the ground to speed up leveling the equipment. All back braces are equipped with base plates with four openings for stakes. Additional minute adjustments can be made in the up-rights and back-stays to speed up operations and leveling.

Director Velare said the pit-less "pit show" will operate entirely without blow-offs or pitches. He added that the break-show roster of performers is nearly complete six weeks prior to opening of the season. "In past years it has taken most of the spring season to get performers together for the fairs. Under the circumstances it looks like the big expositions have helped rather than hindered our activities."

He revealed that Best's new equipment will represent an investment of about $20,000. The entire layout of equipment built new for Best's 1938 tour will be allocated for the 1939 season on the Rubin & Chery Exposition, which with the Royal American Shows and Beckmann & Gerety Shows make up the Amusement Corp. of America, in charge of Tom Rankine, former emcee for Best. Most of the performers will accompany the equipment.

Following close of the Florida circuit at Sarasota the Royal American Shows will return to Tampa, where the entire mechanical organization is rushing Best's equipment to completion to clear the way for construction of new facilities for various other new attractions booked for 1939. Who Helped Create Chain Concessioners?

SOME SMALLER independent concessioners bemoan that "the big fellows have almost pushed us out" by tying up carnival midways with exclusive privileges or that some carnivals are carrying nothing except office-owned stands at still dates as well as at some choice fairs. These indie complain, "It is almost impossible for us to book or to make a living."

Whether this be considered right or wrong depends upon which side of the fence one is on, and opinions on the subject naturally are biased as to where one is sitting. Past actions of small operators probably have brought about present conditions. The chain concessioner has been created largely by the fly-by-night operator who disappears between two days without making a full payoff after getting in a big day. Also by the op who strings along thru the bad ones, falling behind more and more each week until he sees no out and believes that the best way to clean the slate is not to appear in the next town, forgetting that the show has to pay off to committees and fair concession managers.

Chain operators who book from 15 to 20 concessions for an entire season (win, lose or draw), putting cash deposits in show offices to guarantee privileges and appearances, have developed a safe, solid business proposition. Under this system privileges are guaranteed, operators' investments are protected for current and future seasons and a fair deal can be given to both show owners and patrons. The unscrupulous hit-and-run operator has helped to bring chain men to the front.

and that sheriff and city officials co-operated.

C. J. FRANCO, general agent of the Model Shows, has booked a route that will take his organization from Georgia to the Canadian border this year, and the longest jump will be considerably less than 300 miles. That's working for the boss, not the railroads.

FUNLAND SHOW notes by Ted C. Taylor: General Agent James Dewey back on the job again after a two-week illness. Tigé Hale's men arrived in Marietta (Ga.) quarters to begin band rehearsals. Harry Froboess' free acts are expected in quarters soon.

PUSH-NOTE FREDERICK, well-known ticket seller of the Gate & Banner Minstrel Show, declared before a large throng in Dinty's flophouse: "That of 1938 was the biggest season in my long and unbroken career. I closed owning my personal ticket-box umbrella."

NOW AN ADDED attraction at the Band Box night club, Wheeling, W. Va., Claudine-Claude will leave soon for North Carolina to open with the Keystone Shows for the sixth consecutive season. James Arpur will leave for the New York World's Fair.

MERRITT S. ANDERSON is in the U. S. Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., recovering from a recent gallstone operation. He writes that he will have to undergo another operation as soon as his conditions warrants it, but expects to be out in front of his show when the season opens.

FEATURING his new dog, Frost King, Doc Cowan, well-known dog trainer, is playing Virginia territory to satisfactory results, pencils Billie Taylor. Roster also includes Robyat, magic and escapes the Allens' whippersnappers; Dick Courtney, Funch and Judy; Tootsie, clown dog, and Bobby Bordeaux's Low County Cavaliers.

THOSE midnight raiders who drive hundreds of miles weekly going from one show to another to steal people would get much better results and talent from a $10 ad. would build a better name for themselves and find it a lot cheaper than the wear and tear on their cars and rubber, gas and oil expense.—Milo (Not So) McGoofer.

AFTER CLOSING with Dick Best's Odditorium in Orlando, Fla., Tex Putegnant presented his attraction, Louise Logsdon, with a three-diamond dinner ring as a token for their most successful winter. Tex says Best is a wonderful fellow to work for and will return to the organization next winter.

EMMA JEAN RATNEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ratney, bingo operators on the Buckeye State Shows, and Maxine Frear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frear, cookhouse operators with the same shows, will enter St. Mary's of the Pines School in Chatawa, Miss., when the Buckeye organization leaves quarters in Natchez, Miss., where the girls have been attending Cathedral School. Emma Jean was side-show mascot last summer.

WHILE passing thru North Little Rock, Ark., en route to the Coast, George Sansdowne Jr. visited Fuzzell's United Shows' quarters there. He says work is progressing rapidly and it looks as tho the organization will be an asset to outdoor show business. Owner-General Manager Tom Fuzzell and Roy Goldstone, owner and operator of all concessions, says George, are young and progressive and deserve much credit.

YOU may be just as funny looking to them as they are to you, so why crack smart about patrons from whom you get your bread and butter? Many workmen in their work clothes, farmers in town with stock or other produce and those who are physically afflicted that come on the lots just as they are perhaps have wardrobes as big as yours. Offensive jests about them help to kill the carnival spirit.—Colonel Patch.

ARTHUR WHITE and his side-show troupe are playing theater, school and night club dates in New Orleans, where they will remain until about April 1, when they leave for Worcester, Mass., to join Dick's Faramount Shows. Line-up includes Sea-Tiny, human mermaid; Fred Gilbreath, Popeye; Frances Irvin, Pee Wee, midget lady; Peggy Ann, lady fire-eater; Tom Smith, strong man; Bob Martin, human pincushion.

troupe, with first choice counting for 10 points, second place for 9 points and so on down to 10th place, which counts for one point. This is the fair and democratic procedure in all other contests of this nature, including the Most Valuable Baseball Player, votes in which are cast by baseball writers. This tournament differs in that readers (with the exception of performers) make up the sum total of votes. This makes it a show-trade election pure and simple.

Following ballots have been returned undelivered: Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Fuller, Sarasota, Fla.; Earle B. Duskin, Baldwin Park, Calif.; Ernest Wolfe (attention Dio Dato), New York, and Burt F. Powell, McAllen, Tex. If they will supply better addresses, ballots will be sent to them.

A reader writes: "Have watched the Concellos since they were on the Wallace show and feel they are tops. They make every American youth feel they would like to be able to fly. Note that you list votes for Flying Concellos and Antoinette Concello. I feel that these votes should all be for the act as Antoinette wouldn't be possible without rest of act."

The reader's point is well taken, but the Contest Editor does not deem it according to Hoyle to combine votes at this period. Should acts need the points scored by individual members in the act, they'll be added on at the close of the contest. Other similar cases are the Wallendas and Helene Wallenda, Rudy and Erna Rudyhoff as a team and Rudy Rudyhoff as an individual, Ed and Jenny Rooney and Jenny Rooney, Peerless Potters and Harry Potter, and others.

Leaders in the various performing branches will be published in the Spring Special Number dated April 8.

O. C. BUCK, manager of the shows bearing his name, last week added Frederick, Md., to his organization's fair route.

WALLACE COBB, trainmaster of the World of Mirth Shows, and Mrs. Cobb drove down from their Upper Michigan home to Chicago late last week, then motored to Peru, Ind., before going to winter quarters of the show. Cold weather of the Upper Peninsula evidently agrees with them, for both were pictures of radiant health. Wallace has a number of interesting photos of snow and hunting scenes taken in the vicinity of their home, in several of which his mother appears in hunting togs and totting a gun.

Professionals All

By LONELY TANNER

Negligence or partiality is the greatest cause for dissension. Miscreants revel in abuses detrimental to their welfare as well as that of others. When egotism is held in restraint there will be success for rodeo in general. Issues which tend to breed ill will and hatred, when known to exist, should be nullified as quickly as possible, otherwise they will undermine and weaken an established business and sport from within. Therefore the only logical formula to attain needed harmony is by compromise, the true spirit of co-operation.

It is true many strive to better their chosen profession but realize fully that no one Rodeo Association of America or non-member show, any Cowboys' Turtle Association or North American Cowboys Association, or any individual can carry the load of responsibility because of the many and varied phases which require the aid and support of everyone who is affiliated directly or indirectly with rodeo.

An issue concerning professionalism is figuratively nothing more than a family skeleton, so why continue to keep alive a dead issue when it is a foregone conclusion? When a contestant, performer or artificer (flash rider, ranch cowboy or what have you) receives remuneration for effort put forth in compliance to his vocation, he thereby classifies himself as a professional; all who participate possess requisites relative to rodeo. Unlike other competitive sport (except animal) the rodeo game in its entirety is not manmade nor handmade, because it embodies industry, business and sport.

Rodeo is professional; therefore, preference shown by some to misuse the words "amateur" and "nonprofessional" merely to keep out of competition contestants of high rating and proven ability should resolve to ask the aid and support of their colleagues if it is their desire to encourage prospective rodeo champions, to establish the show or event on a semi-professional basis, to allow others of lesser ability to gain gradual confidence, knowledge and rating. Several other sports have done so to the complete satisfaction of all. Why can't rodeo?

The Marks Shows is 50 by 90 feet, and L. H. Anderson, consulting technician of the corporation, estimates that it will require a 10 h. p. air-conditioning unit, displacing 10,000 cubic feet of air, changing every 10 minutes during an evening performance. This would permit the average temperature of the tent theater to be standardized at 65 degrees inside on the hottest summer days, it is said.

Marks has ordered an air-conditioning unit for his new 20-foot office trailer and Max H. Glynn has placed an order for a refrigerating unit to be installed in his cookhouse trailer. If the experiment proves a success, other show tents on the Marks midway will be similarly equipped.

Electric Shaver Patent Dispute May Be Revived

NEW YORK, March 11.—Following the return of an indictment by a special federal grand jury against Martin T. Manton, former senior judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, charging criminal conspiracy, it is expected that the whole dispute over electric shaver patents may be revived.

Named co-defendant in the suit is George M. Spector, alleged to have been a go-between who paid Manton $56,000 to secure a favorable decision in the patent litigation between Shick Dry Shaver, Inc. and the Progress Corp., manufacturer of the Packard Lektro-Shaver. Spector is a relative of Davis S. Spector, sales director of the Progress Corp., it is said.

The indictment alleged that Shick obtained a judgment in the District Court in 1936 upholding its claims, and that when an appeal was filed Manton conspired to sit as one of the judges in the case and "corruptly render his vote, decision and judgment . . . influenced solely by the promise and expectation of receiving sums of money." Between January and May, 1937, the indictment charges, Manton was paid $27,500. The decision holding that the Packard Lektro-Shaver did not infringe patent rights of Shick was given late in April, 1937.

DEALS

A Column for OPERATORS & DISTRIBUTORS of SALES-BOARDS, SALESCARDS and TRADE STIMULATORS.

By BEN SMITH

With their experience and knowledge of the type of merchandise that will go on a card, operators should be able to do their bit in solving the new items problem. There is no law which says they can't create a new item themselves. Perhaps if they gave their imagination a chance to work an inspiration might hit them which could be developed into something practical. Like the operator who sent this note along:

"I have developed an excellent item which I sincerely believe will be a gold mine to operators everywhere. In fact, I am sure it will surpass in interest anything that has been introduced since the candid camera and electric shaver.

"Here is a general outline of the product: It is an all-round necessity on camping and fishing trips. It will provide great comfort at baseball games and is a long-awaited need at football games. It is very essential during a rain and on swimming trips. But it is also useful around the house and automobile. Altogether the article has 10 important uses to any man or woman who participates in outdoor activities. It is light, compact, and will present an attractive appearance.

"I have shown this article to a few of my dealer locations and they are all very enthusiastic about it. Even the smallest locations believe they will be able to dispose of three or four one-shot boards within the first few days. But it will not lose its interest until after the football season. Actually, the football season should be best. Card operators would quickly recognize this as their best bet for the coming season.

"I cannot reveal the exact identity of the article yet, but I am planning on advertising the article in The Billboard as soon as I have everything ready."

Sounds good, doesn't it? If it is half what this operator claims it to be it should be a knockout. Anyway, it is an

Novelties Get Big Play From N.C.'s as P.A.'s Turn Gagsters

NEW YORK, March 11.—With local night club impresarios vying with each other for effective promotional stunts, wholesale merchandise houses are discovering night spots to be worth-while customers for toys, balloons, hats and kindred items. While night clubs have always used quantities of paper hats, noisemakers, serpentine and similar items on such occasions as New Year's Eve, St. Patrick's Day and other holidays, the total volume was nothing to brag about. Policy of some clubs to stage special stunts on off-nights to bolster patronage, plus activities of enterprising press agents seeking to grab off more than the usual attention for their clients, has caused an appreciable amount of business to spring from a heretofore uncultivated source.

Outstanding stunt of the past week was pulled by R. D. (Dick) Mockler, press agent for the Hotel New Yorker, who sent Ferdinand the Bull glove dolls to members of the press with the invitation inscribed on the bovine's chest inviting the recipient to Henry Busse's opening at the hotel. Opening night saw all the patrons receiving Ferdinand glove dolls as souvenirs, and the p. a. even had a lad on hand to demonstrate the antics Ferdie could be made to do. Reaction to the stunt is reported to have been very favorable with much worth-while publicity redounding to both the hotel and Ferdie.

Another stunt on similar lines was staged recently by Al Wilde, p. a. for Chick Webb, when the orchestra leader opened here at the Cocoanut Grove Room in the Park Central Hotel. As an invitation to the press on opening night, Wilde sent out a toy black-faced wooden drummer. Other similar stunts have been staged off and on for some time, but in recent months it seems p. a.'s have been turning more and more to the use of toys and novelties as props to arouse interest in their wares. Most unusual of stunts on record was the former French Casino's gag of sending a live monkey to certain critics and giving ringsiders at the floor show bird cages filled with live canaries.

Bolstering Trade

The use of novelties to bolster patronage on off nights has paid big dividends to some enterprising night spot impresarios. Finding Sunday night an off-night at his famed Stork Club, Sherman Billingsley, press agent by Leonard Mac Bain, has dubbed it "Balloon Night." On that night at an appointed hour thousands of balloons are released. Inside some of them are $5 and $10 bills. It is said that some of the fair sex go native to the extent of tearing their $500 gowns in pursuit of a "fan" or "sawbuck."

Every night is New Year's Eve at Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe Club. The finale of the show is New Year's Eve at Rector's, with Diamond Jim Brady on the stage entertaining Lillian Russell. At 12 o'clock Diamond Jim toasts the New Year and all the patrons join in the celebration with hats, noisemakers, balloons and blow-outs supplied by the management in lavish quantities.

Performers Too

Several performers also use novelties to good advantage. Amedeo, magician formerly associated with Houdini, gives away hundreds of small puzzles and magic novelties nightly at Pepper Pot Inn in Greenwich Village. All give-aways are imprinted with his name and exploit the fact that he's currently appearing at the Pepper Pot. Amedeo states these give-aways are powerful lures for bringing customers back. Russell Swann is another magician who specializes in give-aways. Both he and Dell O'Dell, female magician, go strong for the pencil trick. Pencil has a small loop of tough twine fastened to the end. They slip pencil thru buttonhole of a patron and then thru loop of the string and let him fall back on his own resources to remove it without cutting the string. (Yes, it can be done.) Each pencil bears the name of the act and where it is playing.

Conclusion

These are but a few of many ways that gadgets, toys and other novelties are being used in the night club field today. With proper cultivation by jobbers and salesmen, there is a good chance that it can be developed to yield a worth-while crop of business annually.

New Pope Shaves With Electric Razor

The electric razor has invaded the Vatican, according to one of the most interesting releases emanating from Vatican City regarding the habits of the newly elected Pope Pius XII.

The Pope's barber, Luigi Evangelisti, revealed that the Pope regularly shaves himself with an electric razor. "I did not believe it at first," said Evangelisti, "but His Eminence showed me and said, 'see, my son, it can be done.'"

BINGO BUSINESS

By JOHN CARY

BINGO FANS throught the nation are rising in angry hordes where recent outbursts of politicians have threatened a ban on their favorite pastime. Editorials have been appearing on a wide scale expressing various opinions on the virtues of the games. With rare exceptions these opinions reflect overwhelming public approval of bingo. Of course there are isolated cases where abuses have occurred as a result of manipulations of unscrupulous operators. The presence of an unholly few seems inevitable in every enterprise but no one can blame local authorities when they clamp down on racketeers.

BINGO IS NOW approaching the same position occupied by drinking while the Volstead Act was in force. Then there was a prim minority that insisted the use of alcohol was immoral. Many of the same objectors are now on the war-path vs. bingo. Similarly the mass of the people clamored for the right of deciding what was good for them. People are writing strong letters to editors. Here's an interesting one which The Trenton Times Advertiser received:

"Sir: Please allow me space in your paper to express my opinion on bingo. When you are born it's a gamble whether you'll live or not. Then you grow up and gamble whether you get a job or not. Then you marry and take a chance on that. You go to the store and buy a dozen eggs and take a chance on each one you open. A farmer sows a field of corn and takes a chance on making a dime.

"Now, as American citizens, let's get together and put bingo on the ballot. We are entitled to that."

That's a rather sensible observation. And it's pleasant to report that in at

Whalen estimates $140,000,000 will be spent for mdse. by fair visitors

NEW YORK, March 11.—About $140,000,000 will be spent for merchandise in New York by World's Fair visitors. That is the estimate of Grover A. Whalen, president of the fair corporation. He stated that the estimate was based on an analysis of the "World's Fair Trade Dollar," in view of similar expenditures at previous world's fairs.

During the five months the fair is in operation, execs estimate that visitors will spend a total of $1,000,000,000 in New York City. Fourteen cents of every dollar will go for merchandise purchases. While a good portion of this amount will go for clothing and certain other more costly items, a big amount is bound to find its way into pockets of firms and individuals manufacturing, distributing and selling World's Fair merchandise. The 500 or more firms already licensed by the World's Fair Licensing Bureau are naturally expected to walk off with the lion's share of the souvenir and novelty business, but it is nonetheless certain that prize and premium merchandise will be bought in large quantities that will not be embellished with the official World's Fair insignia.

The effects of the tremendous amount of money fair visitors will dump into the coffers of New York will not be confined strictly to the metropolis, Whalen stated. He pointed out that 62 participating nations were shipping large amounts of materials and exhibits to the fair, all of which provided additional work for industry in foreign lands.

Of every dollar brought into the city, only seven cents will be spent at the fair, Whalen estimates. The remaining 93 cents will be spent for housing, food, drink, merchandise, transportation, personal services and communication.

"The spending in New York is just the first splash," Whalen explained. "Then come the ripples, spreading out in ever-widening circles until they wash the farthest confines of the nation." Before it comes to rest each fair trade dollar will roll over 10 times, it is estimated, thus giving business and industry a $10,000,000,000 boost. There is no doubting the fact that the merchandise industry will benefit greatly from this stimulus.

Bill To Legalize Bingo Introduced In Michigan House

LANSING, March 11.—A bill to legalize keno, bingo and similar games was introduced into the House here by Representatives Edward J. Walsh and William G. Buckley (Dems.), of Detroit.

Bill would okh games provided they were sponsored by church, veteran or fraternal organizations for their own purposes.

Bill also specifies that the awarding of merchandise prizes at these games "shall not be construed as the conducting of a lottery or as gambling and shall not be in violation of the laws of this State."

least half a dozen States bills have been introduced to legalize bingo.

Goodrich Flexolite

To provide simple floodlighting for basement workshops, garages, gardens and recreational areas, as well as for protection against night prowlers, the Goodrich Flexolite may be quickly and easily attached to horizontal or vertical surfaces by means of an adjustable bracket and a two-screw mounting plate, the firm reports. The Flexolite is weatherproof and finished with three coats of vitreous-fired porcelain enamel, it is said. With universal adjustment, a flood of light may be directed exactly where it is needed for indoor and outdoor illumination. It is offered in two sizes to accommodate 100, 200 or 300-watt medium base lamps; equipped with rubber cord, plug and Underwriters' approved medium base socket.

Lamps for Outdoor Men

Two lamps which should score heavily with sportsmen are being marketed by Justrite Mfg. Co. The Justrite Headlight is claimed by the maker to be an indispensable part of every camper's Enables wearer to direct light in any direction, leaving both hands free, the firm reports. Waterproof switch eliminates shorts in damp, murky weather. Justrite Electric Lantern is another product of the firm. This inexpensive lamp is designed to give maximum service at minimum cost, the firm states. Equipped with back handles and carrying bail, this lamp may be hung from any convenient hook or carried on the belt, it is said. Features are fixed focus, silvered reflector and Morocco finish. shows. M. J. Doolan and crew are still binging it four nights a week. Julius Wagner has joined the crew. Brother E. Courtemanche keeps the rooms cheerful by regular floral donations. Jack Hawthorne has about completed arrangements for his summer's work. John Lorman attended the meeting. Lew Keller off on a trip to Hot Springs, Ark., while Leo Sennett went to Detroit. Al Rossman is still in New York, and Al Cohn is expected back soon. Edgar Schooley visited. Renewed activities on the Showmen's Home will start with the opening of the season. Chairman Fred Beckmann is planning a meeting of the home trustees during the summer. Once again we say. Have you paid your dues? If not, why?

Ladies' Auxiliary

Club had a social gathering on March 9 at the Sherman Hotel. Bunco and cards were played and good attendance prevailed. Immediately afterward refreshments were served.

Welcome letters were received from Sisters Hattie Wagner, Mrs. Charles Goss and Mrs. Henry Belden. Sister Phoebe Carsky is recuperating at home from a recent illness. Members are anxious to have her with them soon. A number of members are confined in their homes with colds.

Plans for March 11 bunco and card party to be in the West Room, Hotel Sherman, are completed. Following members brought in gifts and donations for the party: Blanche Latto, Pearl McGlynn, Rose Page, Evelyn Mueller, Pearl Darling, Hattie Clinton, Clara Harker, Phoebe Carsky, Elsie Miller, Jeanette Wall, Ida Chase, Edith Stralich, Maude Geiler, Bessie Simon, Alice Hill and Louise Rollo.

Pearl Darling donated a set of dishes (service for four) for the party. Mrs. Charles Goss sent in a pair of handmade pillow slips and Ruth Bre Count forwarded her donations, which were all gratefully received. Club will hold its regular bi-weekly meeting on March 16 at the Sherman Hotel.

banquet, which as usual will be held on New Year's Eve. It's hoped that the misunderstanding will be straightened out to the satisfaction of all. Brother Bill Wilcox is in the General Hospital here for observation. Brother Tony Spallo, who is confined in St. Mary's Hospital, is reported improving. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Taylor, of Fairly & Little Shows, visited, stopping off en route to Shenandoah, Ia., to visit Mrs. Taylor's relatives. Brother Dr. Nathan, of psycho-analysis note, will leave soon for New York World's Fair, where he has a concession. Brother Sam Zimmerman left for Louisville to join the Oscar Bloom Shows.

Branco Bros., concessioners of Fairlyland Park, are in Dallas on business. With spring approaching, members are leaving for the various shows. Membership drive will be carried on during the coming season by all members for the following prizes: First, $50; second, $25; third, $15; fourth, $10. All traveling representatives of Baker-Lockwood Co. also will solicit members.

Ladies' Auxiliary

March 3 meeting was called to order by Ruth Ann Levin, first vice-president, with the allegiance to the flag and America, with piano accompaniment by Jess Nathan. Twenty-four attended. Committee reports were read and approved. President Virginia Kline has offered a $10 prize for the member who obtains the most applications from former members. Pearl Vaught, second vice-president, has offered a $5 prize for the one getting the most new members, while Ruth Ann Levin, first vice-president, and Peggy Landes, third vice-president, have promised "something nice" during their term.

Viola Fairly passed the penny box to good results. "Thank you" cards were read from Mrs. Charles Schaeffer, Mrs. Nellie Weber and Mrs. Gladys Deem for flowers sent them. Mrs. Grace Goss, St. Louis, and Mrs. J. A. Schneek, Denver, lettered thanks for a lovely time at the 18th anniversary dinner party. An open letter from Mrs. Virginia Kline was read by Helen Brainerd Smith. Virginia during her Southern tour has renewed acquaintances with Past Presidents Marie Beckmann, Juanita Strassburg and Ivah Velare, and Sally Stevens, Irene Lackmann, Mrs. Cliff Lily and Elsie Brisen-dine. A lovely prize, Arkansas pottery, donated by Mrs. Blanch Pellman, was awarded to Boots Marr. Ruth Ann Levin and Mother Parker thanked the club for the flowers given them at the anniversary dinner. Mrs. Parker reported that Louise Allen is ill at her home in Leavenworth.

A committee composed of Harry Alt-schuler and Ellis White, of HASC, invited members to partake of refreshments in the men's club. Draw prize was awarded to Helen Brainerd Smith. Viola Fairly exhibited a beautiful afghan and pillow she is working on and will donate to the club.

International Association of Showmen

MARYLAND HOTEL

ST. LOUIS, March 11.—President John Francis, First Vice-President Sam Solomon, Secretary Francis L. Deane and Treasurer Leo Lang presided at the March 4 meeting. Charles T. Goss, of the sick committee, advised that F. W. Church is in city hospital, and Brothers Bob Perry, Walter Jaap and Floyd L. Hesse are confined in their homes.

Letters were read from Mrs. Carl Ackerman and Mrs. J. L. Turney, sisters of David (Danny) Bogue, and Mrs. Kathleen Riebe, widow of Earl Riebe, two of the members who died within the last month, expressing thanks to the club for its flowers and turnout at the funerals. Since arrangements to hold a banquet and ball here on New Year's Eve had materially progressed and it could not be called off at this time, it was unanimously voted that the club hold the banquet on the set date despite the fact that the Heart of America Showmen's Club will probably stage its annual banquet and ball on the same date. Discussion was brought up when a telegram from the HASC stated the report that it would not hold its ball on that date was erroneous. It was regretted that the misunderstanding arose, but under the circumstances there was nothing the members of the IAS club could do.

Club will hold another bingo party March 18, at which refreshments and lunch will be served free. Attendance prizes will be awarded. Brother Sam Solomon promised to bring a party from Caruthersville, Mo., for the event. Chair appointed Brothers J. Crawford Francis, Jack King, Powell Leonard, Harry Bernstein and Tom W. Allen on the bingo party committee. A letter was read from George A. Hamid, president of the National Showmen's Association, suggesting that a benefit show be held in St. Louis some time during the St. Louis Police Circus. Hamid's office is furnishing the acts for the circus this year and volunteered to furnish the talent gratis for such a benefit show. IAS is to handle the event otherwise and the two clubs split the proceeds for their Hospital and Cemetery Funds. Brother Tom W. Allen was appointed to look into the matter and see whether such a show would be feasible. He's been instructed to report his findings at the next meeting. A letter of thanks was forwarded to the Pacific Coast Showmen's Association for the banner which it sent the club and which adorns the clubroom walls.

NOTES from SUPPLY HOUSES

Arrow Sales Co. is fast establishing itself in the razor blade selling field. Samuel Baum, of the company, states he has made a special study of the field and feels that the commodity offers tremendous possibilities, notwithstanding competition.

Marlin Firearms Co. is offering its line of shotguns and rifles for prize and premium uses. The prices for such fields, company heads state, are so low that a wide range of use is possible. Because such high-quality and wide-appeal sports items are seldom offered in prize fields, they are attracting unusual interest, the firm reports.

A new jewelry catalog featuring watches, both pocket and wrist, also diamond rings, wedding rings and crosses for the premium trade, has just been issued by New York Jobbers. The catalog is specially designed for those familiar with handling watches and jewelry, and New York Jobbers will send a copy upon request.

E. J. McArdell, who has been selling the concession trade for the past 20 years with such firms as Wisconsin Deluxe, Milwaukee Art Products, Supreme Art Novelty, is now sales manager for the Gift Supply and Advertising Co. Mac's owned and operated his own concessions off and on for years with both large and small carnivals and amusement resorts.

called out. It increases the excitement and certainly pleases the crowd.

ONE OF THE MOST spectacular stunts to be used by bingo ops is packing them in at Fort Wayne, Ind. Feeling the intense competition from big-name stage attractions and highly puffed screen shows, one op got the idea of staging his own show. He gives a 45-minute floor show, snappy stuff, too, just before his Monday night games. He uses all local talent, and the reaction so far has been very encouraging. Seems like a good idea for you ops who have been taking it in the neck a little from movie competition.

THE MOVIE EXHIBITORS have been particularly selfish in their attitude toward bingo. Many of them were only too glad to swipe the idea of bingo games, adapting it to their own use and calling it screeno. In a large number of cases it saved houses from folding in bad times. Now that things are picking up and they are aware of competition from regular bingo games, most of them are hopping the band wagon with the shout, "Down with bingo!" Textbooks call it economic determinism. We call it bread and butter philosophizing.

LET'S HEAR from you.

RICTON'S DOG CIRCUS . . . is playing schools in Gainesville, Ga. Ricton writes: "All my tent-show equipment has been sold to a fine fellow, Eddie Roth, of the Blue Ribbon Shows. The missus and I will invade Tennessee and Kentucky soon with our dog circus."

JOE W. KEOWN . . . pipes: "Am in De Queen, Ark., and up and at them again, having rested up since December 20. I'll go into Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa this year, handling Sargolax tonic."

TRIPOD OPININGS: "The component parts of luck as defined by the able and successful pitchmen read somewhat like the following: 'Ability and will, courage and skill.'"

WORKERS SIGHTED . . . in Arkansas recently were Doc Smith in Hot Springs and Bill Mitchell, Bill Hickey, Blackey Miller, Doc Day and Lester Parks in Ashdown. All are reported doing oke.

DOC SAM BERMAN . . . pens from Jackson, Mich.: "Had a good Saturday here. Town is open to doorways. Only shops are working well. Will work a few shops, then go into New York to find an item for the Elks' convention to be held June 4-6 in Muskegon, Mich. Would like to see a pipe from Art Engle."

PITCHMAN'S ANNUAL PRAYER: "Please let me get a bank roll and let the others do the same."

ARTHUR POTTER . . . scribes from Cleveland: "The cleaner business is sure going big here. Saturday morning I dropped into Taylor's arcade and saw Blanch Osterhout demonstrating peelers and Suzanne Quayle demonstrating clean-all crystals. Blanch closed here Saturday night and left for New Jersey. Wanda Orman is demonstrating cleaner in the same store as these other girls. But I sell to hat stores, tailors and dry cleaners in gallon lots. These girls have what it takes and they are sure getting the gelt."

PREVALENT THOUGHT among pitchfolk should be work clean, leave a clean name and leave the lots clean.

DR. N. F. TATE . . . informs that he is building the largest medicine show in America and that he expects to open in Beeville, Tex., about April 1. He says he expects to have about 500 feet of plate-glass display for showing the wonders he has collected.

AL SEARS . . . of Newark, N. J., squibs: "Many of the boys are coming up from the South and they say it was tough there this winter. The Grant and Kresge stores here have Joe Morris and partner working glass knives; R. Lloyd, rug cleaner; Prof. Ballard, mentalist; R. Bee, wire jewelry; Bob Almsworth, pens. All congregate at Robert Vehlning's hotel nightly and many a jackpot is cut up."

IT'S ABOUT TIME some of you began planning your spring and summer campaigns, isn't it?

TOBY'S FUNMAKERS . . . are getting increased business each week in Tennessee, says Manager Toby Adams, who made a trip to winter quarters at Dyersburg, Tenn., recently and reports everything ready for opening of the tent season early in April. "I don't expect to lose a day going from schools under canvas," Adams says. "I now have eight on the pay roll and six attached. Pearl Smitty, of Memphis, is visiting her sister on the show. I have been doing my own blackface for 25 years but resigned last week and turned it over to Eddie Gluck. I'll put all my time into lecturing."

A GOOD PRODUCT will always sell, but your sale is only half made if you do not get behind your item.

STANLEY NALDRETT . . . Buster and Marion (Mickey Mouse) Robertson and Jack Hubbell and wife are in the same chain store in Louisville, pens Naldrett, who says he will hop to St. Louis March 20 for three weeks.

F. ROBINSON . . . pens from Portland, Ore.: "After three years of hobbling and practicing I am hitting the road here on the West Coast with a knockout line of engraving jewelry. I have three new machines and am booked in all the Sprouse-Peltz 15-cent stores in Oregon and Washington. I have been doing a bang-up business with engraved Social Security plates and novelty engraved jewelry. I make more, tho, with watch engraving in comparison with time spent. Would appreciate reading pipes from oldtimers in the business."

THE SUCCESSFUL pitchman spends his time getting out and corraling the long green, not hoasting of his capabilities.

FRED H. HACKWORTH . . . shoots from Phoenix, Ariz.: "After one of the best seasons of many our show closed at Lethbridge, Can., in September. Then followed a sight-seeing vacation this winter thru Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona and Old Mexico. The next couple of weeks will be spent at the San Francisco fair, after which we will open our show in California."

SPENCER MATTSOON . . . shoots from Kansas City, Mo.: "I am at present selling peelers. I clicked on peelers last week at Kresge's dollar store in Omaha. At present I'm working for the Peemster Co., Chicago."

MISINFORMATION is no information and is harmful to the public and the ones who spread it. There's always reactions to mis-statements.

JOHN L. McCLOSKEY, 80-year-old pitchman, is at the Ann Lee Home, Albany, N. Y., and is anxious to read letters from friends.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS: "Yes, I grabbed off a grand on a turn last week, but I'm a little short now. Could you put me up for a couple of days?"

MRS. ROSS J. ELIJAH is at her mother's home in Terre Haute, Ind., unable to work because of an infected right eye. She may lose the sight in that eye, doctors report. Her eye condition was caused by an accident in Indianapolis several weeks ago.

THERE ARE TOO MANY of the boys and girls doing their part for the column by only reading what the other pitch exponents send in instead of rifling thru their own pipes. Come on, let's get those writin' sticks working.

"I'M ON MY WAY . . . To Memphis to work whitestone jewelry," tells Jerry Cook from Birmingham, Ala. "Just ran into George Sallay, a wonderful speller, working for Sphinx Tea, but wasting his time here."

A REFORMER is generally right, but are his methods always correct?

BUNNY CARROLL . . . blasts that no one is working Hot Springs, Ark. Says he saw White Johnson at the Malvern, Ark., stock sale. Bunny expects to meet Tommy Adkins in Hot Springs and later make the New York World's Fair, spending the intervening time in Missouri. Says he's been cutting them up with Frenchy Thibault in Hot Springs recently. Frenchy is clicking with med.

GREG ROSS . . . who blew into Cincinnati recently from Huntington, W. Va., is still working around the Queen City. The writer's countenance took on a deep crimson color when during a visit to the Pipes desk last week Greg pointed out that we had erroneously reported that he had worked Marlen gems in the H. L. Green store, Huntington. We should have stated he worked foot shampoo.

A LOUD, booming voice may scare, but how often does it convince the tip?

SMOKEY PITTMAN . . . was sighted on the main drag in Ardmore, Okla., recently and is reported to be preparing to open his outdoor show soon. He will open with a change of cast, except for Slat's Cooper, straight man and guitarist. Smokey reports that recent visitors were Tom Cooper, Walt Kelham, Eddy Key, Billy Wilson, Lowell Sanders and wife and Walter and Thelma McInroe.

ART ROBINSON . . . ace waffle-iron purveyor, has been holding forth in Kresge's, Cincinnati, for the past two weeks to good turns. During a visit to the Pipes desk Art infoed he would take his layout to Wheeling, W. Va., at the conclusion of the Queen City engagement before making a route of Midwestern towns.

WHAT MOST PEOPLE call failures are only stumbling blocks, which the successful pitchman hurdles.

DAN CRABB . . . writes from Oshkosh, Wis., under date of March 4: "Opened here for the weekend with peelers but found it tough. Weather here was fine until today. We had about six inches of snow. I'll work Appleton from here, then Green Bay and Manitowish; then home to see the folks at Muskegon, Mich. Then I'll make Wausau on the way back to my home in St. Paul. I'd like to read pipes from Eddie Kiel, Carl Swanson, George Hess Jr., Cury Fredericksen, Clarence Smith, Glen Winterbolter and Doc Murray."

PAT ENGLAND . . . who has been with Jack Sullivan's wild life exhibit since last September, left Battle Creek, Mich., with his brother, Ben, and the latter's wife March 12 for the Golden Gate Exposition, San Francisco, in a new Dodge to supervise a booth there, reports Jack Sullivan.

IF YOUR TALK is efficient and your item a creditable one, you don't have to make apologies to the public.

CANTON, O. . . is closed regardless of how much pull you may have," informs Chief White Horse, who is now working Cleveland to fair takes. The Chief says he's new to the med game but that he has worked for many med shows.

DAVID THOMAS . . . cards from Miami, Fla.: "We have been here for two weeks now, and the entire family has a tan. At West Palm Beach we found business good. Saw a few pitchmen on a lot doing well with med and sex books. At Hallandale, which is about eight miles north of Miami, there is a med show that is doing tops. As for us, we found that every tavern and night club here had its own music, but we are getting enough by working Little River, Hollywood and Ft. Lauderdale. It takes gay, but it pays more than trying to busk all over Miami."

THE PUBLIC sees you as you are, not what you'd like to be.

TRIPOD OPINIONS: "Many believe that a pitchman's face is the map of his heart. Maybe so, but what about the two-faced fellow?"

GEORGE DURST . . . noting the recent comment that pitchmen are scarce in the New York area, blasts from Jamaica, N. Y.: "The scarcity of pitchmen is due to the fact that decent, upright Americans cannot even get licenses to sell in public on the streets. Those who run the various civic societies consider the visible, licensed street vender a menace, but not a voice is raised against a real menace—the unlicensed, unidentified house-to-house canvasser. Some of the canvassers are deposit chislers. The city is filling up with them. They sometimes only take deposits on future deliveries. They don't require licenses because they don't work for themselves. Folks cannot be sure they get their goods, but the city overlooks that menace and muzzles decent, honest men who desire licenses and carry goods."

American Carnivals Association, Inc. By MAX COHEN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 11.—At the last annual meeting in Chicago some members discussed the matter of scrip being issued by railroads in Southern territory, and by direction of the association, after action by its membership, we were instructed to take this matter up with a view to seeking a revision of the then existing arrangements.

After much correspondence and negotiation during the winter we succeeded in getting, under date of March 1, 1939, a decision from W. T. Turner, freight traffic manager of the Southern Railway System, in which he sets forth the following:

"The issuance of scrip books by all lines in the Southern territory during the current year will be confined to a maximum of 10 per cent of the contract rate with both circuses and carnivals on exhibition movements; same to be issued only for transportation in the States thru which the circuses or carnivals will move, and that they be issued not more than 45 days in advance of the first movement and to expire not more than five days after the movement over each road is completed, except that where the show goes into winter quarters such scrip will expire with the completion of such movement."

The quoted portion of Mr. Turner's communication is self-explanatory and needs no further comment.

St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, March 11.—Mr. and Mrs. James W. Laughlin, West Bros. Shows, visited The Billboard office on Wednesday while in the city on a buying expedition. Jimmie Limbaugh also visited on Monday while en route from his home in Mishawaka, Ind., to San Antonio, where he will prepare his attractions for the Beckmann & Gerety Shows opening. Jack (Doc) Wilson, past season with Sol's Liberty Shows, spent several days here before leaving for Florida, where he has purchased a tourist camp, which he will operate instead of going on the road.

L. S. (Larry) Hogan, general agent of the Amusement Corp. of America, is here executing railroad contracts for the shows in the combine. Chester I. (Heavy) Levin, of Midwest Merchandise Co., and Hymie Schreiber, of B & N Sales Co., visited The Billboard on Monday. Levin was visiting his brother here, while Schreiber visited local headquarters of the B & N Sales Co.

Sam Solomon, of Sol's Liberty Shows, advises that everything in quarters is about ready for opening in Cape Girardeau, Mo., on April 8. Among other visitors to The Billboard office on Thursday were Charles DeKreko, Mrs. Catherine Oliver, Roy J. Cousins, W. B. (Boots) Wecker, Tom W. Allen, Arthur A. Garvey, John Francis, Charles T. Goss, Eugene E. Franklin, George Hale, A. W. Miller, Edward Gray, Al Marshall, Morris (Boots) Feldman and Francis Deane.

Mrs. Curtis in Hospital

ST. PAUL, March 13.—Mrs. Edna Curtis, producer of the Shrine Circus in St. Paul Auditorium on March 6-11, was stricken with pneumonia last week and taken to a hospital, where her condition was reported fair. Circus had a much better gate than that of last year. Three-ring performance included Mrs. Curtis' equestrian acts, Pallenberg's and Dibrmas's Bears, Edna Dee's Dogs and Ponies, Gene Allen with Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Elephants; Hal Striver, tight wire, and many other acts. Troupe presented Minneapolis Shrine Circus on February 27-March 4.

Side Show Swan Song (This Is the Blow-Off)

AFTER a running controversy and exchange of ideas on side-showmanship and operation for the last few columns, interest must wane by all the laws governing reader fatigue. The corner therefore removes itself from the status of hired hall with the following contribution to the subject, a piece by James Thomposn, who writes from Philadelphia.

"I have read with interest the article by Doc Foster and agree with him to a certain extent as far as blow-offs and acts that peddle or mooch are concerned. As far as employing relatives is concerned, I believe he has an ax to grind. Personally, I believe 'selling' acts are a detriment to any side show as it is only human nature for an act to see how much it can panhandle rather than dwell on the entertainment part of the act. As a rule, the talker on the front of the show usually plays up the blow-off attraction, so that the first thing the public wants to see after buying a ticket is that particular attraction. When they discover they have to buy another ticket they look upon the entire side show as a gyp regardless of how many entertaining attractions there are in the pit.

"During the last few years there has been hardly a side show on a carnival that has been able to pay every attraction in full, and in your list of side-show managers there are several who owe acts two or three months' salary. I don't happen to be one of these acts as I have had a side show of my own out for several years. Right now there are plenty of good acts working with traveling museums which are receiving less than if they were on relief.

"It is my belief that the day of side shows on carnivals having big line-ups is past and that unless the show is operated out of the office, three or four shows with three or four attractions in them will take the place of the 120 or 140-foot tops, as the carnival owner wants the huge fronts and long tops to flash up his midway. The carnival owner keeps harping about putting plenty of working acts in the pit but does not care or give a damn how the independent side-show operator is going to pay off this nut. At the same time, he will give the operator money with which to build a larger front, which means more help to put up and take down and not a meal ticket to help pay off this extra help.

"ON PRACTICALLY all of the smaller carnivals there are flat stores and clip joints of all kinds, with girl shows that work with the sky the limit; in many cases two girl shows, a sex show and perhaps a peep show working full blast, so that the better class people leave the lot and the lot's leavings are the rougher element only. The side show, which is the front for these joints and gal shows, is left holding the bag.

"Last season there were a dozen carnivals begging for someone to take over the side show and any Tom, Dick or Harry who came along became the manager. In most cases acts were compelled to juggle-up to exist. This season it will be worse as there will be few good working acts that will want to go thru this again.

"If the carnival owner wants a real side show, it will have to be operated by the office with a capable manager in charge—a manager with more than just a suitcase."

BEFORE closing this series of chapters on side shows we have been persuaded that Pete Kortess, who has just opened an engagement with his museum in Birmingham, is a man to be reckoned with in the Side Show Hall of Fame. Roy B. Jones, one of Kortess' staff, thinks he is associated with the most successful side-show manager of them all. This could be so. We wouldn't know—the being quite a definite article covering the etymology business. Still, it's results that speak, and they speak a mouthful the way Jones dishes up the figures.

"When I say successful it means both financially and artistically. I thought I knew the museum and side-show business fairly well till I came over here with Kortess and saw the line-up and the nut, which would make 99 per cent of show owners faint even to think about it. The man pays off like clockwork because he makes money. Drew over 150,000 patrons in New Orleans in 14 weeks.

"When you talk about side-show operators and museum owners just say No. 1 in thinking about Pete Kortess because he has no equal. He carries a bigger line-up of attractions than the Ringling show. I noticed you never mentioned Kortess but excused you (Note from man being excused; for which I shall always be grateful, of course) because this fellow is a Western showman (Note again: I don't see how this follows, as I sometimes write about China but will skip the issue). See if anyone in the museum business can beat this for one day's business: Mardi Gras day in New Orleans, 8,234 people passed thru the gates at 20 cents a pop. We were compelled to give some 29 shows and operated from 8 in the morn till 2 a.m. the next morning."

I hope Roy Jones, whom I have known as a fast agent and promoter for years, isn't giving me a lot of fast double-talk in the manner of Gertrude Stein. This could also be so because Roy addresses me as "Dear Friend Friend." He says 99 per cent of show owners would faint thinking about the Kortess pay roll, but I wish he had mentioned who the other 1 per cent might be. Maybe this 1 per cent doesn't faint very easily. Or maybe the others faint too readily.

Anyway, thanks to James Thomposn, Roy B. Jones, Carl J. Lauther and Artie Steinhardt for tackling an important subject. Not to mention the Doc Foster whose thoughts on the subject put the firing squads back in harness.

Notes From the Crossroads

By NAT GREEN

THE PLAINT is frequently heard that fairs, parks, carnivals and circuses need new acts to hold the public's interest. "There is too much of the same old thing year after year," the critics chirp. We often wonder just what percentage of the general public these critics represent, and we are inclined to the opinion that it is a very small percentage. It is quite true that new acts, new stunts, new faces are necessary, but not to the extent some would have us believe. New acts are constantly being developed and if they have the necessary entertainment value and are properly exploited they eventually find their niche in the scheme of things. But the dear public, you may have noticed, has the habit of clinging to familiar things in entertainment as well as in its everyday pursuits. If an act is pleasing the length of time it has been playing makes small difference. It must be remembered that the average person may see a circus or fair possibly every other year or at the most but once a year, and an act that pleases does not pall or grow old when seen so infrequently. Rather it is likely to grow in popularity.

By all means let's have new attractions, but remember that time-tried acts that keep up to the minute have a stronger drawing power than an act whose work is unfamiliar. This is not disparaging to the newcomer. It is his job to build up a following thru his work and thru constantly keeping his name before the users of entertainment. If he does this he, too, will be listed among the time-tried who are always in demand.

Hartmann's Broadcast

WILL the taking of the smell out of the circus to "look thru" a quarter pole? Will a circus not be a circus without baggage stock?

The walls and complaints about these questions from week to week have gotten under the skin of George Brinton Beal, Boston newspaper man, author and lecturer who has as great a love for the circus as any man alive.

Like most people past 40, Beal is a little inclined to dislike change. But why not be fair? he asks.

"All of last season's failures in the tented world couldn't have been caused by labor difficulties," he continues. "There seemed to be a decided trend away from interest in the circus. Now a good showman doesn't stand still and watch his public, great or small, slide gracefully away from him. He does something about it."

"One of the most insistent howls of the show-going public in years past has been that 'the circus is always the same—see one and you see them all.' It wasn't true, but the public never knew that. And I have even heard showmen who should have known better chime in in the chorus.

"Last year John Ringling North tried some experiments. Not all of them succeeded. Not any of them had much chance for a fair trial as the shadow of labor difficulties hung low over the show from the very start.

"This year he is trying some more. Instead of being discouraged, instead of settling down into a pleasant rut, he is staking not only the show's capital but his own reputation as a showman on his ideal of a greater, more modern and vastly more beautiful circus than the world has ever known. After his varied adventures last season many a man would have never tried again.

"When P. T. Barnum, who in his time knew something about the circus business, planned to enlarge and practically remake the circus of his day he was frowned upon as a destroyer of the circus. He was sure to ruin it. It didn't need to be any bigger or better. It was doing all right. And so it was. At the moment. But the world was changing. And Mr. Barnum sensed that change, as all great showmen do. Railroads were becoming the usual carriers, so Barnum used them as no show had ever used them before. Size was becoming something to be considered. He built a bigger tent, put in more rings, added acts, gave a parade that was as good as most people's paid performances had been before him. He somehow failed to ruin the circus."

"Other innovators in the circus world suffered the same experience at the hands of the side-line critics of their day. When the old single round tops, each with a separate admission charge, were abandoned and the menagerie and performance housed in two large central tents another howl went up. It would ruin the circus. It didn't.

"When circuses stopped being dragged over the road and thru the mud from town to town by that noble animal, the horse, the public did not stand silently by refusing to buy tickets because horses had been relieved of one of the heaviest tasks a draft animal could have. If they thought about it at all they remarked on how up-to-date the circus was in using railroads, or, if more thoughtful, how much nicer it was that horses no longer had to drag their hearts out pulling those heavy wagons over the weary miles of the route night after night.

"Mr. North proposes to air-condition the big top. It is a shame and a disgrace to even consider such a thing, comes the cry. Just imagine what Barnum would have done if air-conditioning had been available in his day! He would have played it bigger than Jumbo.

"Mr. North, I gather, proposes to relieve the hard-working baggage stock of its herculean task of hauling the heavy show wagons from the train to the lot and back again. That is an awful crime. And curiously enough the loudest yelling comes from those who profess to be lovers of horseflesh. I wonder if they have ever stood knee deep in the muck of a rain-soaked meadow lot, as I have, and seen five heroic horses literally give their lives to get those wagons set? Now they won't have to do it any more. But lovers of horses don't like the change.

"This is a machine age. Everybody on earth but the circus man seems to know it. And whether you like the change or not it is here.

"As for beautifying the show, why not? Is improvement a crime? I remember sitting before Billy Rose's ill-fated Jumbo at the Hippodrome, New York, some seasons ago, and I couldn't help thinking that here at last was the beautiful circus I had so often dreamed about and longed to see but had never been able to discover. Possibly John Ringling North saw that show, too. And he found in it perhaps a dream of his own. Now he is trying to make that dream come true, not only for himself, but for the thousands of circusgoers the country over. I admit that I love the circus as it was, but isn't that mostly because I never saw it different or better?"

"Let's be fair. Give Mr. North and his hard-working cohorts of the greatest show on earth a chance to show what they can do.

"When they try and fail it will be time enough to croak about what might have been.

March 15. Board of governors meets at 8 p.m.

Vice-President Art Lewis has returned from his Florida vacation, and House Committee Chairman Rothstein letters from Miami that he will be around the clubrooms soon. A daily visitor is Al Crossman, treasurer of the SLA. Club is once again indebted to Brother Arthur Campfield for obtaining thru his firm, Baker-Lockwood Co., a beautiful banner with the NSA lion emblem embossed thereon. It now adorns the walls of the writing room.

Ladies' Auxiliary

Indicating the far-reaching interest in the auxiliary, Secretary Anita Goldie recently obtained as a member Mme. Anna, high trapeze worker with Prince Nelson, who is in Buenos Aires. Sister Edna Lasures has proposed Katie Benet, Mrs. Phil Isser's sister. Club's drapes and window curtains were laundered last week by Edna Lasures. . . . Sister Bess Hamid and the board of governors met this week and mapped out several creditable plans for the future. . . . At this writing Sisters Ida Harris and Martha Wagner are ill and were remembered by the auxiliary.

Saturday nights have been set aside as "Open House" in the clubrooms and all members are encouraged to make them their headquarters and participate in the games and entertainment.

Truck and Trailer Legislation

MEMPHIS, March 11.—Both branches of the Tennessee Legislature have passed a bill increasing load capacity of trucks from 18,000 to 24,000 pounds on State highways in return for heavier cost of licenses for vehicles in the State. Of six amendments proposed in the House-approved bill the Senate approved one change—that of striking from the original bill the proposal to make exceptions of unintentional overloading in first offenses. The other five defeated amendments would have cut the limit to as low as 20,000 pounds.

Cole Signs With Zimdars

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 11.—Rex Cole's Hollywood Cowboys, featuring a cast of Cherokee Indians, have signed with Zimdars Greater Shows for 1939. Unit will be framed as a Wild West show, carrying two buffalo, two Brahma steers and an elephant. Cole has been spending the winter in Kansas and Oklahoma.

which opens for biz March 16. Plan to cater to fair employees who have been practically confined to the Administration Building luncheon for more than a year. Will also get a nice play from exhibit and concession boys hurrying to complete their projects by April 30.

The Lighter Side

Billy Rose chooses the smile over sex. He informed Dorothy Lamour, of the films, that he wants her for his Aquacade—wants to present her smile without her sarong. Very nice going, Mister Bantam Barnum, but it doesn't add up in view of his letter to The World Telegram peevish about Westbrook Pegler's satire re sex at other expos, including Fort Worth. Rose said his nose is strictly clean, that he presented strictly high-class entertainment in that Texas town. That being his modus operandi, how come all that fanfare about wanting Lamour and her sarongless smile? Faulty arithmetic say we.

Peeve No. 2. . . . General Motors' low bid on a fleet of Chevrolets for the city's police department rejected because Mayor La Guardia said GM's Alfred P. Sloan did not support the mayor's campaign to make Floyd Bennett Field the city's airport in competition with Newark. This reminds the column that Chrysler, holdout exhibitor, was "persuaded" to occupy a building or else. Or else the mayor would see that Chryslers would not be purchased by the city. Chrysler is now set up in the fair-built transportation building on which space has gone begging.

Peeve No. 3. . . . A big firm was set up in a building under its name. The fair sold balance of the space to another company with a few competitive products and changed name of building to that of second company. First firm put its legal department to work. Result: It now occupies a building erected by the fair.

Banks are in show business—still and again. Harvey D. Gibson is chairman of fair's finance board. Is one of the leaders of the syndicate formed (now apparently abandoned) to finance merit attractions in fun zone. He's top boy of Manufacturers' Trust Co., from where the scratch emanates. Ringling-Barnum circus owns the bank about $800,000. So they finally filled Plot T, which had thus far gone begging, with a Wild West show under John Ringling North's aegis. Three or four other Wild Westers were after the plot, at least two of them well backed, but Manufacturers' Trust won out. The brilliant organizer and executive, Commander Flanagan, fair's general manager, has a brother. Brother is a vice-pres of Manufacturers' Trust. So is William P. Dunn Jr., Big Show's secretary-treasurer. Complicated? Nepotistic? We wouldn't know. (P.S.: There'll be some sort of bank structure in the amusement area.)

If anyone has $50,000 to finance a show, save it. It cost Schless Construction Co. nearly that much for a foundation for its Merrie England Village. Scores and scores of pilings. Show is set about as close to Fountain Lake as possible. Maybe 75 to 100 feet before the pilings hit bottom. It will take another $300,000 or so for construction from that point, including the interiors, of course. (308 miles of fir and pine logs were used for foundations and stabilizers throught the grounds.)

These are some of the more complicated and often comic phases of the World of Tomorrow. There is, of course, the serious side. For instance, that the fair is already, while nearing completion, a terrifying spectacle, so huge and so sweeping that it staggers the imagination. It has been the greatest building job of all time no doubt. The night scene will be especially impressive with its color and illumination to bring the majestic buildings into relief.

France, cafe and roof garden; Finland, food, also emphasis on sports as Olympic Games will be held there next year; this might furnish opportunity for athletes, gymnasts, etc.; Norway, food and drinks; Poland, restaurant and bar, also fashion display; Rumania, restaurant; Sweden, restaurant, film house; Switzerland, restaurant, concert, lectures; Turkey, bazaar.

New York State's exhibit is part of the State's Marine Amphitheater, setting for Billy Rose's Aquacade. Pennsylvania will have a large restaurant. New York City permanent building will have band concerts, but no visible opportunity for pro bands seen here, as the city will have its departmental bands on tap.

Each government is represented at the fair by a commissioner whose headquarters are either at the fair or in the office of the consul-general of the particular nation. These are in New York. Embassies of these countries are, of course, in Washington, with consuls in important cities of the United States.

French Mayors Will Visit

PARIS, March 2.—Mayors of principal French cities, headed by M. Le Provost de Launay, president of Paris municipal council, will visit New York's World Fair in May. It is expected about 15 mayors will be in the party, which will sail on the Champlain on May 16 and arrive on May 23.

necessitating repairs and closing of the slip. Members told the expo officials that since the ferry closed Gayway attendance and volume had decreased from 95 to 50 per cent. Altho officials first said that the ferry would be discontinued indefinitely, they apparently relented when concessioners recalled the original agreement.

Another idea that the WFCFA is trying to sell to President Leland Cutler and other heads is that of a 5-cent Children's Day, such as was so successful at Chicago's A Century of Progress, in lieu of expo-suggested 10-cent days on several Sundays. Board of management is being told that Saturdays and Sundays will take care of themselves, and concessioners believe the board will finally decide in favor of some 5-cent week days. School trustees have granted pupils in public schools in San Francisco and Oakland five days out of the next five months on which to see the fair without having those absences counted against them. The WFCFA committee is working on a plan for five Friday 5-cent days with sanction of school trustees.

On Gayway Jurisdiction

Members of the association say that after Sally Rand was made chairman of the shows committee of the WFCFA, Frank Zambrino having declined the post, she made an effort to get the entire Gayway into the American Federation of Actors, of which she is a director. It is also stated that Vice-President Charles Hardy of the International of Building Maintenance Men, under which the San Francisco beach has been organized several years, told Miss Rand that it claimed jurisdiction over the Gayway.

Several Gayway ride operators are authority for the statement that Mr. Hardy said their own employees could work more than eight hours per day at a $5 per day minimum, paying an initiation fee of $10 per person and $5 monthly dues. In event that a device owner pays $10 initiation fee and a man he has hired leaves he can transfer the card to another person after notifying union headquarters, it was stated. It is declared that Miss Rand contends she can get a better arrangement than this, altho some motordrome men say that an APA agent informed them that he could offer prospects of a better scale later in the season.

Wednesday. When it wasn't raining, a blustering wind caused crowds to turn away.

At that the attendance the third week was only about 1,500 under the second week, but 250,000 under the first week.

A check-up today showed that more than 857,000 paid their way into the grounds since opening day.

Weddleton Job to Maxwell

General treatment of the announcement of the resignation of Frederick Weddleton as director of concessions, effective March 15, and of the ousting of his assistants, Walter K. Sibley and John A. Pollitt, caused no end of comment, especially on the Gayway, where apparently they were highly considered. In explaining Weddleton's resignation, Expo President Leland Cutler said promotional work of the concession department has been finished and that the department is no longer in need of this particular effort. For a long time Weddleton and the expo board of management have been at loggerheads over policies pertaining to the Gayway.

Weddleton has been succeeded by Ray Maxwell, director of food concessions.

It was also announced this week that the official catering concession owned by Roy Westafer had been taken over by George D. Smith, manager of Fairmont and Mark Hopkins hotels. The change, Westafer said, was an outright purchase by Smith, of the concession. Deal was said to concern Smith personally and did not involve the hotel corporation. John A. Meany, Chicago caterer, was announced as chief of the catering department for Smith.

Pollock Quits Commission

As reorganization plans went ahead, another resignation went into the records on Tuesday, when August Pollock stepped out as secretary of the Fine Arts Commission. "Quite frankly I have found it difficult to operate with too many bosses," Pollock commented. With general reorganization under way, General Director Harris Connick took time out to deny that he had resigned.

Sibley has taken over management of the Midget Village in addition to operating the Headless Girl attraction, which is doing good biz. Sibley said the Village would be revamped. Show has been closed since the fair opened.

Eateries won't repeat the greed of opening day and Washington's Birthday, as all have been scaled under orders of the expo management. Tex Cameron is turning 'em away week-ends at his Happy Valley Ranch, with liquor sales boosting the average. Evidently much to the annoyance of Gayway operators, the city police department has taken over supervision of that sector. From the Gayway come squawks of workers who claim they are being gyped on food prices, altho the tariff is the same as charged visitors.

Hollywood Cast Coming

Noel Wesley, Hollywood dance director, who hopes to put on a girl show, is producing at Greenwich Village the most lavish Gayway effort to date, which opens today. Hollywood is to have an exhibit of sorts when 20th Century-Fox gives the world premiere of The Story of Alexander Graham Bell, cast and all, on March 29. A train load of celebrities and news writers are coming.

Alexander's London Flea Circus of 300 "performers" opens on the Gayway in a few days. Cavalcade of the West is about breaking even. Show is best seen at night—in a blanket—when lighting effects and 20-foot water curtain are working. Stage is 400 feet wide and cattle, cavalry, street cars, Barbary Coast cancan and steam engine are included in the pageant.

Entry of an exhibit for Denmark was announced by Major O. J. Keatinge, director of foreign participation. Contract calls for a display in International Hall, to be completed on Thursday, exhibit to cover more than 2,200 square feet, with a tourist bureau and Danish porcelains and silverware.

San Fran Niteries Must Close Early

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—By a narrow margin of 25 to 22 votes, the Alcoholic Beverage Advisory Council disapproved a proposal to extend the closing time of local drinking places from 2 a.m. to 4 a.m. during the Golden Gate International Exposition.

Defending the proposal were Al Smith, representing the American Federation of Actors; Tom Nickola, past president of the Bartenders Union; P. J. Kelly, of the Taxpayers Defense League, and Charles Kay, representing San Francisco tavern owners.

State Board of Equalization also cracked down on 10 San Francisco night clubs and suspended their licenses for violating the 2 a.m. closing law, effective for five days starting Monday.

Affected were the Club Tivoli, Embassy, Music Box, Royal Hawaiian, Club Moderne, the 3er, Breakers, Sloppy Joe's and two unnamed clubs. Suburban night spots penalized were Dick's Tower and the Out of Town Club at Brisbane and the Highway Inn in Colma.

Schaller Six in Free Act

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Jack Schaller's Six Monarchs Aerial Ballet was featured as free attraction at opening of the exposition on February 18. It is estimated that they played to 100,000 in front of the California Coliseum Building at the opening. Booking was arranged thru Barnes-Carruthers Fair Booking Association, said Jack Schaller.

Pay and Policy Reasons He Quit, Says Weddleton

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Frederick Weddleton, well-known outdoor showman, who resigned as director of concessions of Golden Gate Exposition this week, gave two specific reasons for his action.

"First, the exposition management failed to redeem commitments covering my compensation made at the time of my appointment," he declared. "Second, the exposition's policy of committee control in connection with the conduct of concessions has not been compatible with the best interests of the fair or the concessioners.

"I am unable to reconcile this policy with my conviction that only by the application of sound, proven principles of showmanship can the concession zone and concessions at the exposition be made profitable both to the fair and those concessioners who have invested so heavily in the Gayway. I wish to emphasize that I resigned of my own free will."

Cantor Has Good Gross; French Show Follows for Month

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Eddie Cantor fans crowded California Auditorium when the comedian and his troupe played a week's run at the exposition, opening on March 3. Eighteen performances in the first four days, including 10 over the week-end, grossed $22,000, the comic getting 65 per cent over $20,000, plus a $15,000 guarantee on the week. Auditorium seats 3,200. Prices were scaled at 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Folies Bergere followed Cantor, opening yesterday in the Auditorium for three performances daily. Mindful of the legit fanfare surrounding Sally Rand's Nude Ranch, the curious expect some ruling regarding what the French show will be allowed to display. Expo is paying $12,500 per week for the troupe, set for four weeks.

Illions Rides for Toronto?

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Harry A. Illions, GGIE ride operator, will leave in a few days for Montreal to look over the rides and other attractions he operates in Belmont Amusement Park prior to its season's opening. It is understood that he had several conferences here during the visit of J. W. (Patty) Conklin, manager of Forexland at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, and that Illions super rides will be at the 1939 CNE if arrangements can be made with Manager Rex D. Billings, Belmont Park, to release the rides before closing of the park season.

Gleanings

By WALTER K. SIBLEY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Expo averaged 46,340 attendance daily for the first 14 days. Weather has been good but nights cool. It is believed the daily average will go up greatly after the middle of April.

Stutz Bros.' Dancers of the World Show will have a nice building job and should be open in a few days. Johnny Branson's Globe of Death, fast taking shape, is about ready to open. His Deep Sea Diving Show and Lion Drome are doing their share of business. Martine's Diving Bell attraction has been having difficulties with a leaking tank, which had to be sunk in the ground four feet below level of the bay. Water pressure is so great at this depth that it keeps springing seams in the tank so it is constantly losing water. Martine says he will have it beaten in a few more tries.

At Tropic Skies, a pineapple drink stand on the Gayway, all of the people connected came direct from the Hawaiian Islands, built the stand themselves and it is a credit to the zone. Presided over by Nadia Vezey and Ruth Yturrlaga Penny.

Treasurer John F. Forbes announced gross revenue of the exposition for the first 10 days was $595,000. Of this the concessions took $424,000, while gates clicked off $171,000, which seems to prove the concession department quite important and that Fred Weddleton must have done a pretty good job. The fair's the thing, but the concessions make or break it.

one of the attractions that the fair management assisted but when it reached a certain point in financing it apparently stopped. As the show is incomplete, it will have to stay dark until some fresh money is secured. Transportation Engineer I. S. Shattuck shuffled off Treasure Island a "free man." 'Tis said his work is finished.

The writer has been engaged by owners of the dormant Midget Village to redesign it, finish building and to act as operation manager. Entire motif will be changed. Wild West scheme to be abandoned for the diminutive idea; in other words, "Lilliputianized."

Two most popular restaurants are those of the Owl Drug Co. and Doughnut Corp. of America on the Gayway. Esthonian Village is fast taking shape and by the time Dr. Judas returns from Esthonia with her people and equipment the buildings should be complete.

Al Vollman's Cavalcade feels effects of cold nights, the grand stand facing the winds, and he did a smart trick by contracting for all of the selling concessions, one being paper blankets. Boys are hawking them on the seats. As the Scottish Village is about completed, it is expected Bill Russell, managing director, will start using the showmanship for which he is noted. All rides are doing fair business, only drawback being cold nights. Cliff Wilson's Monster Show is still leading the 10-cent shows, with the Headless Girl close behind. T. A. Wolfe's Venetian Glass Blowers are about ready to spring with John T. Backman in charge. Tom is still working on a restaurant deal. Claude Bell, sand sculptor, is in a fine location and doing exceptionally good business with four artists working.

Sally Rand's Nude Ranch is manned by these fellows, who help get the money: Chuck Bedell, in charge of front and first opener; Billy Pitzer, second opener and lecturer; Cliff Lowe, Jack Panell, grinders; Jack Keeno, "King of Robots," ballyhoo, plus three shapely girls. Inside: Charles (Chisey) Mayon, manager; Jack O'Shea, assistant manager and tickets; Peggy White, director of personnel; Arthur Barrett, Frank Gibson, Jimmy Carter, guards; Cokey Keane, publicity. The 40 girls work in shifts. On March 4, when attendance was nearly 55,000, weather was cool at night, and most of the Gayway crowd came after 9 p.m., every attraction played to capacity, the Rand show taking top money honors of higher priced attractions and the Headless Girl and Wilson's Monsters fighting for laurels among the lower priced.

Cameron's Happy Valley Ranch, opened on March 4, is a four-acre barbecue place with a 150-foot bar with entrance from the Gayway, connecting to a great polished barn floor for free dancing. Music for dancers is by the Hill Billy Orchestra. Barnyard of over three acres will have seating for over 4,000, to whom barbecued meats will be served from the largest barbecue plant ever constructed. This latest venture of Cameron makes his investment in the GGIE over $400,000, with eight major concessions. Exposition is now up to its full restaurant seating requirements.

Fred Weddleton, late director of concessions, showed me a copy of the letter of resignation that he sent in, as well as President Leland Cutler's eulogistic letter of acceptance of the resignation. Naturally, after a short rest, Fred probably will accept one of the numerous offers of managerial positions that have been offered by concessioners. He said that not now nor at any time has he had any financial interest in any concession, but that he did assist a number of concessioners in an advisory capacity, which he considered part of his job of building an amusement zone almost out of thin air. That's that.

Fred McFalls, operator of the two leading shooting galleries on the Gayway, went the limit in framing them, even engaging one of the most prominent artists on the Coast to do his decorative work, A. Dupont. Fred reports business beyond expectations.

Many an oldster will watch boys at their marble games and wish for the days when he himself was a boy at play. It is a sure harbinger of spring, reliable as the robins, when boys start their marble games here and there and everywhere. For many a lad, it is his first introduction to the rules of the game, and he learns how to get along with his fellows. It is his early schooling in the game of life, too.

There are some who will look on the boys at their marble games as if the lads might be going to the devil. For they may be playing "keeps."

The machine age with all of its problems has not been able to destroy the fun and the spirit of the ancient game of marbles. For grownups, the machine age has brought new adaptations of ways to play at marbles. The machine age has brought the advantages of design, electricity and other ideas to make the marbles roll for the oldsters in what we call pinball. The man matches his wits against the machine, while as a boy he matched skill and wit against his comrade.

When as a lad he played for keeps, so the man today prefers to play his game for some kind of an award.

But around the modern game today there whirls a great deal of excitement. Political battles in great cities and States are fought around such minor things as bagatelle and newspapers herald the stories as if they were major scandals. It all seems to be too much noise to make about such things as marble games.

Texas Music Men Active

Launch State drive to enlist every music operator in program

DALLAS, March 11.—Texas Music Machine Operators' Association is making a strong effort to enlist every music operator in the State as a member. John Backman, secretary, 5400 Goodwin avenue, has been given the job of touring the State to enlist new members.

At a recent meeting of the association various steps were taken to meet the present legislative situation in the State. Attorneys were retained and members will be kept informed of the general situation.

One of the most important happenings was the decision of the Restaurant Owners' Association to co-operate with the music operators in every way possible. Many of the legislative bills that will affect phonographs are bills aimed at regulation of locations in some way. Some are to enforce early closing hours, some to regulate sale of beer, etc. In the majority, locations and music men feel that the proposed regulations would be a nuisance and do little good.

All phonographs on location belonging to members will bear the association seal. Membership dues are $1 for each phonograph on location and the fee is to be paid annually to the treasury.

Marshall Phono Biz Booms in Michigan

DETROIT, March 11.—B. J. Marshall, of the B. J. Marshall Co., Rock-Ola phonograph distributor in Michigan, reports his business at boom level. "From every side, all over the territory," exclaimed Marshall, "all we hear is, 'Get us Rock-Ola Luxury Light-Up phonographs right away.' I make frequent trips to the Chicago factory to get new shipments. When they get to us those phonographs go out so fast to the operators that we can hardly believe we ever had a shipment.

In the premium division of his business Marshall has a very able assistant in Mrs. Marshall. He gives her the lion's share of plaudits for having developed this end of the business into an important division.

"We are certainly pleased with business conditions in our territory," stated Marshall. "Our business is rushing, and from the way the locations are demanding the Luxury Light-Up models plenty of customers have money to spend for their favorite entertainment."

Read Rushed With Rock-Ola Orders

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 11.—Eugene Read, well-known operator throughout this territory, reports that he is practically snowed under by the demands for the new Rock-Ola Luxury Light-Up phonograph. He keeps closely in touch with the Rock-Ola distributor in Pittsburgh, B. D. Lazar Co.

In his words: "I was sold on the new phonographs from the very first, but I had no idea that they were going to be such a sensation. They are the biggest money-makers I've ever operated. Since these phonographs have been installed they have hit a good average every week and you may be sure the locations are happy."

"We are all especially enthusiastic about the 99 per cent slug-proof coin chute. I know from my experience in last year's operation that these chutes do exactly what they're supposed to. The savings we make with this feature are astounding."

Record Buying Guide

An Analysis of Current Songs and Recordings From the Standpoint of Their Value to Phonograph Operators

By DANIEL RICHMAN

Tabulation is based upon radio performances, sheet music sales and record releases of the week. Reports from music publishers as to the relative importance of certain songs in their catalogs are also considered, as well as information received each week from prominent operators.

GOING STRONG—KEEP THEM IN

Penny Serenade. Outstanding among currently popular songs on the air, over the sheet-music counter and in the phonographs in this English importation, and it's as definitely a must for those operators who have somehow overlooked it as the needles necessary to play it. Guy Lombardo has the record here, but Sammy Kaye and Horace Heidt also have strong entrants.

Deep Purple. Equally as big a number and just as important from the standpoint of representation in the machines, this beautiful ballad—which quite a few music men are beginning to call another Star Dust—is handled in contrasting manner by Larry Clinton and Jimmy Dorsey. Both discs are swell, and both are in demand.

Little Sir Echo. As was predicted in this corner some weeks ago, this unique novelty has risen to a high position among the most profitable recordings of the moment. It is likewise a strong sheet-music seller, and all in all, there is no question about its belonging in every phono. It's Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians on this, also.

Hold Tight. Beginning to ease off a little, this front-running swinger can now be classed only as fair, rather than strong. It had a long, honorable run, however, and it ought not to be taken out of the boxes until the returns prove that it is absolutely dead. The Andrews Sisters and Fats Waller are the only discs on this one insofar as ops are concerned.

My Heart Belongs to Daddy. In a similar state of decline is this Cole Porter hit from Leave It to Me. Keep playing the Clinton disc until the call for it is over.

COMING UP—BETTER STOCK THEM

I Get Along Without You Very Well. It's only a matter of another few days before this Hoagy Carmichael ballad will be hopping into the section above. It's going pretty well right now and is lingering in this department only because it hasn't really hit its peak as yet. Red Norvo has a popular waxing, and Jimmy Dorsey's is meeting with mounting favor.

The Masquerade Is Over. Another potential number that's right on the brink of breaking into the higher brackets is this new tune by the writers of Music, Maestro, Please. Their latest brainchild seems to be starting out to duplicate the success of their hit of last summer, so don't delay in getting it into a slot. Next week will probably find it accompanying Get Along Without You into the "going strong" category. It's Jimmy Dorsey or Larry Clinton again for ops' purposes.

Heaven Can Wait. Eddie DeLange (the band leader) and Jimmy Van Huesen have turned out what will no doubt be their third hit since last fall in this appealing ballad. This looks like a worthy successor to So Help Me and Deep in a Dream, and from the way it's beginning it may even surpass those two in public favor. Glen Gray and the Casa Loma boys do their usual fine job on it, and so does Kay Kyser.

Undecided. A rhythm tune that started its career inauspiciously, this one gives promise of continuing it quite to the contrary. Written by Charlie Shavers, trumpeter in John Kirby's Band, it has a lift and a lift that can't be denied, and in the hands of either Benny Goodman or Chick Webb makes excellent phono fodder.

This Night. Watch this tune from MGM's Honolulu, the Eleanor Powell starrer, because you may be needing it pretty definitely in a short while. For that matter, it mightn't be a bad idea to have it around right now, inasmuch as the film is going the rounds and they'll be wanting to hear more of it. Platters here are either Glen Gray or Tommy Dorsey.

OPERATORS' SPECIALS

Listing covers those songs which in themselves cannot be classified as popular nation-wide hits, but which are, or give every indication of becoming, successful phonograph numbers.

Sweet Adeline. Here is a record, turned out by the Mills Brothers, that absolutely bears watching. This remake of the eternally popular quartet ballad by the sepia warblers is more than likely to become one of the biggest machine items of the spring season.

Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life. Advance excitement over Bing Crosby's recording of this Victor Herbert classic would seem to indicate its future strength as an operators' special. It's the best entry in a newly released album of Herbert's best known and best loved works.

I Cried for You. Still continuing along its merry way to the sweet accompaniment of dropping nickels, with Glen Gray and the Casa Loma-ites for the dance version and Bing Crosby for the balladeering.

Melancholy Baby. Another Crosby platter that has everything to make it as popular as any of Bing's endeavors on wax. A grand song and a great artist to do it—that's when the jitneys start rolling in.

Tain't What You Do. With the impetus given the song by the excellent Jimmy Lunceford recording and the added push of Chick Webb and Ella Fitzgerald's version, this is apt to follow the example set by Hold Tight several weeks ago and jump from an operators' special into a universally popular sheet seller and radio favorite. At any rate, no operator should overlook it.

Begin the Beguine. Artie Shaw's disc has been one of the greatest sellers in the last decade, and now comes an Andrews Sisters' version—purely vocal—to attempt to set some records of its own. It has what it takes to do it, at that.

There's a Hole in the Ole Oaken Bucket. Joining the Sammy Kaye platter as a nickel inducer is Eddie DeLange's arrangement of this ditty of the Ozarks. Eddie's disc is mostly vocal and all good.

The Gal From Joe's. A superior bit of swing is this Duke Ellington song and arrangement as played by Charlie Barnet's Band. It's the kind of thing that, if heard once, is bound to be repeated again and again.

Delmarva Ops Form Assn.

Tri-State operators organize to improve operating conditions—Callahan prez

CAMBRIDGE, Md., March 11.—Music operators of the Delmarva Peninsula, comprising sections of the States of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, recently met to organize an association in order to clarify operating agreements and conditions. Elected to head the new organization were the following: Lawrence M. Callahan, Centerville, Md., president; Winston Custis, Belhaven, Va., vice-president; J. Clinton Brotemarkle, Cambridge, Md., secretary; Arron Saltz, Crisfield, Md., treasurer.

Secretary Brotemarkle, in reviewing the first meeting, said, "At the invitation of Frank Hammond, manager of the Phonograph Operators' Association of Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a group of operators met in Salisbury, Md., March 3 for a general discussion of operating conditions and organization of the territory known as the Delmarva Peninsula. This territory includes two counties of Delaware, nine counties of Maryland and two counties of Virginia, which form the peninsula east of the Chesapeake Bay. It is immediately adjacent to the southern part of territory organized under the Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey Association.

"After several hours of discussion, the consensus of opinion being that the operators in this territory should form their own association, it was moved and seconded that steps be taken to proceed with organization. Frank Hammond served as chairman in organization proceedings. Officers and directors were elected for a period of 90 days for the purpose of adoption of a constitution and by-laws and the orderly establishment of a permanent working organization."

Charter members of the organization who will serve as directors are: Walton C. Bounds, Princess Anne, Md.; V. A. Downes, Centerville, Md.; O. A. Evans, Dover, Del.; Morris C. Cantwell, Salisbury, Md.; Every Truitt, Salisbury, Md.; K. Saltz, Crisfield, Md.; Frank Shockley, Pittsville, Md.; Roland Helmar, Middle-town, Del., and Frank B. Preston, Delmar, Md.

SKIPPER HOMER CAPEHART, who will lead the nation's music merchants and their wives on Wurlitzer cruise to Bermuda aboard the S. S. Ile de France. Trip is scheduled for September 30 and will continue until October 4.

Wurlitzer Bermuda Cruise Gets Nation-Wide Interest

Skipper Capehart sending hundreds of applications to eager operators daily

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., March 11.—The announcement of a free cruise for music merchants and their wives to Bermuda has met with nation-wide interest, reports Homer E. Capehart, vice-president of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. Applications for passage and requests for additional details are being received in increasing quantity each day, indicating that the Bermuda cruise will have a full sailing quota of music merchants and wives.

Marking the gigantic entertainment to be planned for music merchants, the Wurlitzer Bermuda cruise will eclipse in magnitude even the previous factory party of 1937 and the transcontinental tour of 1938, it is said. The French Line's famous luxury ship, the S. S. Ile de France, has been engaged under special charter to cruise to Bermuda. Only Wurlitzer guests will be aboard this majestic liner as she sails from New York City on September 30.

One of the large liners in transatlantic service, the S. S. Ile de France will provide ample facilities for fun and entertainment as she cruises the Atlantic Ocean. Famed for fine food, an entire staff of French chefs will cater to the appetites of the vacationers. The magnificent dining salon of the Ile de France will add an additional touch to excellent meals served in an exquisite manner. All facilities of the spacious ship have been made available to cruise guests. Deck swimming pools, games, dancing entertainment and motion pictures will be provided to pack every minute with fun and frolic. The cruise aboard the Ile de France promises to be a real adventure that will provide a long-remembered vacation holiday for music merchants and their wives.

Anchoring at historic St. George harbor, cruise guests will be transferred to shore, where an "open-air" railway awaits them for a sight-seeing trip to Hamilton, Bermuda.

Bermuda. Numerous side trips are being planned for cruise members who wish to inspect the island's many historic shrines and marine wonders. Arrangements are being made for ocean bathing on one of Bermuda's coral beaches in the warm waters of the Gulf Stream. The itinerary plans also include a trip thru the famous Crystal Caves. Music merchants and wives will also delight in the typical English merchandise which may be purchased in Bermuda's quaint shops at Hamilton.

The cruise will return to New York City on October 4, giving music merchants and wives an opportunity to visit the New York World's Fair if they desire.

In short, the Wurlitzer Bermuda cruise promises exciting days of sport and fun, enchanting nights of lights, laughter and relaxation on board the gigantic Ile de France. Every minute afloat and ashore will supply thrills that will make the cruise a memorable sea-going holiday for music merchants. It will be an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and enjoy the vacation of a lifetime with the Wurlitzer company as a host.

Calcutt Explains Calcuttone Needle

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., March 11.—Drawing an analogy between a fountain pen and a common straight pin, Joe Calcutt, of the Vending Machine Co., has been explaining the play principle of his automatic phonograph needle, the Calcuttone.

He stated: "The Calcuttone actually rides in the record grooves just like a greased ball bearing. In this fashion it causes very little record wear, captures every musical note and lasts for an unusually long period of time."

"Now when sharp-point needles are used this is just like pulling a pin over a sheet of paper. It scratches, tears and wobbles. Our point is like that of the point of a fountain pen going over a sheet of paper and giving a straight,

Modern Vending's Surprise Coming

Nat Cohn tells us that Modern Vending Co. will make a surprise announcement for all music merchants in the March 25 issue of The Billboard. Nat was very secretive about the whole thing, but he did say that it had to do with Wurlitzer phonographs—and that all music merchants should make a note of the dates . . . March 22 to 24.

smooth, even line. The ball-bearing effect of the Calcuttone therefore gives smooth, clear, even tone. The point fits the groove completely."

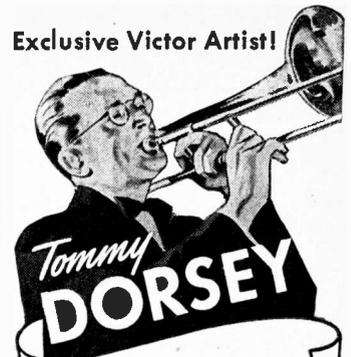

Study Reaction To Music Therapy

DETROIT, March 11.—Music is now a healer of minds, according to The Detroit Free Press in a recent editorial. "From time immemorial music has been employed to excite the loftiest exaltation and the dearest, most poisonous passion," declared the newspaper. "Even savages long have utilized its sedative and provocative influence, and some have been extremely clever in their prescription for wooing life or death for their patients or victims. The value of this much-neglected form of mental and emotional treatment is now being widely recognized among those who deal with the ills and ailments of man."

That music is sought for its relaxing qualities or its stimulation is no news to operators of automatic phonographs. They have noted the era of jazz and swing. The people as a whole react to the music and actually seek it. It has been often said that love of music is a fundamental characteristic in everyone, even tho it may not be realized by the individual himself.

Radio technicians have developed music consciousness to a high degree. Backgrounds for dramatic plays require the use of music to fit the mood of the script. Martial airs, mysterious and weepy symphonics—all have their part in affecting the imagination and the actions of man.

Following closely in number of successful creations during '38 are Frank Churchill and Larry Moray as a team, and Johnny Mercer, penning the lyrics to different composers' tunes. Churchill and Moray landed four songs among the best sellers, due partially to the fact that they were part of the score of Walt Disney's Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, the enormous success of which carried the songs to the heights. Of the quartet, Whistle While You Work achieved the most prominence, placing No. 1 three weeks in succession. Mercer delivered four hits in Bob White, music by Bernie Hanigan; Garden of the Moon, with Harry Warren and Al Dubin; You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby and Jepers Creepers, both with Warren melodies. Latter three were pic tunes.

Told, Alexander's Ragtime Band and Change Partners. With the exception of Long Last Love, all were pic tunes, with the interest in the 27-year-old Alexander revived by its inclusion in the film of the same name. Hoagy Carmichael and Fred Hollander, turning them out for Paramount pictures, landed three each in the real hit class.

During the last part of 1938 a new combination of lyricist and composer came into view showing enough stuff to make a pretty certain prediction that if the team continues along the same lines this year it will wind up at the head of the class for 1939. Duo is Eddie DeLange (words) and Jimmy Van Huesen (music) and in the few months since their first hit, So Help Me, they have written Deep in a Dream, also a big number, and Heaven Can Wait and Good for Nothing, both likely candidates for hit honors. Heaven is doing particularly well at the moment.

Among other leading songs of last year are several noteworthy facts. A-Tisket A-Tasket was penned by Al Feldman, an arranger now fronting his own band under the name of Van Alexander, and Ella Fitzgerald, vocalist with Chick. Ti-Pi-Tin was the work of Maria Grever, a popular songwriter in her native Mexico but unknown along Broadway until her terrific hit of last summer. Music, Maestro, Please came from the experienced and capable Alle Wrubel and Herb Magidson, and Larry Clinton turned from the style of The Dipsy Doodle to carve My Reverie in popular form out of the Debussy original masterpiece with such success that the maestro has streamlined Tschaiakowsky's Rome and Juliet music and the result, Our Love, may duplicate Reverie's career.

Altho Churchill has been writing background music for Disney cartoons for several years, he was a tyro in the field of popular song hits until the Snow White ditties pushed his tune-smithing stock sky high. Johnny Mercer has been a name writer longer than the others of the quartet—Goody-Goody and I'm an Old Cow-Hand were among the songs that established him a couple of years ago—but he is a Tin Pan Alley youngster in comparison with the Carmichaels, Raingers, Robins, etc. Whereas Loesser's particular forte lies in conceiving startlingly original titular ideas, Mercer's ability is in turning out easy, natural and humorous lines and rhymes.

Five teams and four individual writers supplied The Billboard's Sheet Music Leaders lists with three hit songs apiece last year. The prolific and successful Mack Gordon and Harry Revel had a slightly off year (for them), coming thru with only Sweet Someone, Sweet as a Song and I've Got a Date With a Dream, all film tunes. Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson knocked out three winners in You're a Sweetheart, I Love To Whistle and My Own, also pic material, but it remained for Johnny Burke and Jimmy Monaco to deliver the strongest seller of the entire year, I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams, among their three top tunes from two Bing Crosby pictures. Pocketful was the No. 1 sheet seller on The Billboard list for eight consecutive weeks and placed among the first three for 11. In the face of the younger crop of writers leading the field is the significant fact that Monaco has been writing hit tunes for the past 25 years.

Operators Buy HAMILTON SCALES

Terly Shand and Jimmy Eaton started last year like a house on fire with I Double Dare You, followed closely and as successfully by Cry, Baby, Cry, and I'm Gonna Lock My Heart. The pair had their contract renewed by Shapiro-Bernstein but haven't produced a real hit since the start of the year. Nick and Charles Kenny were the remaining team of the quintet, giving the list three smash items, Gold Mine in the Sky, Cathedral in the Pines and White a Cigarette Was Burning. Cole Porter and Irving Berlin upheld the honor of the old guard who write both the tune and the words by contributing, respectively, Rosalie, In the Still of the Night and At Long Last Love, and Now It Can Be

CHICAGO, March 11.—A new testing device for use with practically any type of electrically operated equipment has been marketed by the Universal Tester Mfg. Co., according to a recent communication from the company.

They state that the device would be useful to coin machine men who have any electrical equipment which upon occasion needs testing or repairing. Declared the firm, "The Universal tester is a startling new invention that will test any electrical appliance manufactured, cord sets, switches, etc. It will test any electric bulb of any size, any fuse of any type or size, motor windings, cut-outs, relays and various circuits.

"It is simple, safe, foolproof and accurate. It is so simple to operate that no one can make a mistake while testing. It is small and compact, does not consume current while not in use and can be operated on 110-120 volt a. c. or d. c. current.

"It is made in two models, the Standard and the Master. The only difference in the two models being that the master model is equipped with two jacks with extension cords for testing various circuits, motor windings, etc."

Name Klenck Acme F. & M. Ad Head

CHICAGO, March 11.—"The present time looks like the opportunity of a lifetime to lead the field in fast-moving salesboards," says H. A. Klenck, recently appointed advertising manager and chief designer of the Acme F. & M. Co. salesboard manufacturer.

"I've watched this company's progress in the last year as it has brought out new idea after new idea for the operator, each time making improvements and each time gaining additional operator acceptance. When this offer came to get in on the ground floor of such a progressive company I felt I couldn't afford to turn it down."

"Here is a most modern equipped manufacturing plant of unlimited resources and experience, manned by a group of hard-working executives with years of salesboard experience behind them.

"Jack Morley, general manager, is a man with many years of experience both on the road and on inside production. He is the watch dog of the Acme organization, seeing that every item used in the production of Acme boards is up to the exacting standards he sets."

"Modernization of Thing"--Fred Mills

CHICAGO, March 11. — Fred Mills, president of the Mills Novelty Co., one of the industry's largest manufacturing concerns, has spent many years in the study and making of coin-operated devices. In discussing the latest product of his concern, the Mills Smoker Bell, he stated: "Just like automobiles, coin machines today have to be made to fit the current styles. It isn't what is the best thing to do so much as what is the right thing, having all obstacles and interferences in mind. Today's machines, like today's cars, have to be more capacious in their utility but smaller in their cubic area; lighter in weight but stronger in action; able to give superlative service and still keep in style. Coin machines, like cars, have to be speedier, more mobile, more streamlined. "Acknowledgment of these trends explains the tremendously favorable reception our new Smoker Jackpot Bell is now getting. The Smoker is a bell, just like the old-time bells in its nature, but in appearance and in action it is streamlined just like a modern automobile. Its quietness is amazing; you can't hear it in action. Jackpot and payout are not noticeable, yet their appeal is stronger than ever. The wood treatment of the case is an entirely new idea in a bell machine. Its small size, combined with its terrific strength, makes it an investment that can't fail."

Victor Challenger Placed on Market

CHICAGO, March 11.—Harold M. Schaefer, president of Victor Vending Corp., announced recently that he had placed his newest bulk merchandiser, the Challenger, in the hands of the trade. Latest reports, he declares, from distributors and operators alike indicate that the Challenger is getting a fine reception.

Said Schaefer: "Challenger is the result of many months of careful planning. It is designed and constructed to overcome all objections operators have experienced in the past. It offers streamlined beauty, genuine quality and full-time performance at a price amazingly low. Operators looking for a machine to vend closely uniform portions with wide-range adjustment, one on which you can change the set of the portion adjuster without even removing the globe, will find these features on Challenger.

"Some of the outstanding features are a special porcelain slick-slide delivery chute which is absolutely sanitary, non-corrosive and nonclogging; protection against slugs of all kinds; finest casting materials; special screw-type lock; sturdily built, heavily ionized crystal clear glass globe and other features. "Our production facilities are geared up to meet all demands for Challenger. We are confident that Challenger will be the most profitable vender that operators have put to work for many years."

Vending Notes...

PHILADELPHIA.—What won't be sent thru coin machines next? Newspapers carried plenty of publicity about the suggestion that telegrams be sent thru coin-operated boxes placed on street corners. Next thing is to put television on coin machines—with a guarantee that your mother-in-law can't peer thru the machine or your money back.

PHILADELPHIA.—Penny gum-vending machines have been placed on the platforms of all subway stations in the city, which is rather surprising since nobody made use of this idea before.

SHREVEPORT, La.—S. E. Nelson and his Cigarette Service Co. are unusually busy these days. Nelson is one of Shreveport's lively merchandise ops who keep abreast of the times. He is the operator who won the second prize at the recent NACOMM coin machine show in Chicago. The prize was a radio.

LONDON.—Haworth, of Blackpool, Eng., exhibited at the recent London Amusement Trades Exposition a new machine called a Camera Obscura. The machine stands seven feet in height, giving sufficient clearance to view over heads of surrounding public. At top is the optical arrangement which receives the view and projects it upon a white screen. This is made visible thru eyescopes upon insertion of coin in chute.

LONDON.—British scale operators incline these days towards giant models with neon lighting. Autoway Co., of Glasgow, presented a range of these with perfume spray as part of machine.

NEW ORLEANS.—One of the biggest music and games operators in this city has ordered out a large line of Du Grenier cigaret merchandisers. He requests that his name be withheld until the deal has been completed.

Operators Fight Wis. Cig Taxation

MADISON, Wis., March 11.—Michael Klein, of Milwaukee, appeared before a hearing of the joint finance committee of the State Legislature here March 2. He spoke in opposition to the Sauld cigaret tax bill recently introduced, which would place an emergency levy of 2 cents a package on cigarets and cigaret papers.

Klein said that cigarets were already overtaxed and that such odd fees would create difficulties for vending machines in the State.

Retail tobacco dealers and jobbers also informed the committee that the tax would give their business to chain stores, mail-order houses and bootleg sources.

Houston

HOUSTON, March 11.—Executive offices of Music Operators' Association of Houston are now located at 518 Anita street, Houston. W. A. Niemacki, secretary, announced that he would be in the office from 1 until 6 every afternoon in performance of his duties.

Niemacki is again the paid executive secretary of the association. He was largely responsible for actually forming the organization, and for the first several months was employed as full-time secretary. Then with things running smoothly he resigned in favor of a part-time secretary. Recent increased activity of the association necessitated his recall.

George Cunningham, music operator, was initiated into the Fraternal Order of Eagles on the evening of March 2.

Probably Fred McClure's ability to recognize real value when it was shown had had something to do with his being a top-notch music operator. He is firmly convinced that he doesn't want to miss a single copy of The Billboard and has entered his subscription for three years.

Natchez, Miss.

NATCHEZ, Miss., March 11.—During the eighth annual pilgrimage of the Natchez Pilgrimage Garden Club, which opened March 4 and continues for two weeks thru March 19, and during the two weeks pilgrimage of the other club, the Natchez Garden Club, which is also for the same duration, the Natchez Hotel is opened. This hotel, serviced by the Seramac Novelty Co., has a number of machines and is the newest spot for the operators. Other pilgrimage locations are also in operation.

A new Rock-Ola, the first of 1939 models in this territory, has arrived at the Seramac Co. and will be placed at the Golden Anchor night club by Sam McCabe and Sam Serio. It is a beautiful machine and is attracting favorable comment.

and "ahs" were plentiful in admiration of the masterful job Matthew Forbes, Arthur Nach, Martin Berger and their cohorts had done in editing and designing Cigarette Merchandisers' Almanac. Especially pleasing were those little red cards. All one had to do was to place one's name and address on a card to have a copy of the Almanac mailed to one's home. . . . The most surprised man of the evening was Martin Berger, president of the New York group, when William Peek presented him with a beautiful ring in appreciation of his services on behalf of the association. He covered up his surprise beautifully, however, in a bit of repartee with Peek in which he accepted the ring as a "token of his engagement to Peek." That makes Bill a bigamist or something. . . . added note of festivity was the announcement that Sam Yolen was celebrating his birthday along with his fourth anniversary in the cigarette merchandising machine business. "And I'm still paying off notes," he added. . . . Mrs. Jackson Bloom also was celebrating her birthday but she wouldn't reveal the number. . . . Babe Kaufman, attired in a gold cloth dress, proved to be one of the belles of the ball. It seems she didn't miss a dance and proved that she knew all the latest jitterbug steps. . . . Something unusual noted at the affair was that the wind-up of the floor show served as a prelude to increased fraternization amongst the guests instead of the usual exodus. . . . Everyone was loud in his praise of the excellence in the food, the high degree of efficiency in which the affair was carried off and close attention to minute details which the committee in charge had exercised to make the affair such a sterling success. . . . It is impossible for the author of this column to give a complete story of the affair at this writing since this is being written a half hour after the conclusion of festivities.

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The history of the Philadelphia Coin Machine Operators' Association, to be published in its souvenir book which guests attending its banquet on Sunday, March 12, will receive, was written by Ben Witt. Witt is almost as well known for his writings as for his coin machine operations and has undoubtedly done a bang-up job on this write-up.

Jake Cohen, one of the most regular attendants of meetings and association affairs in the entire local organization, may have to miss the gala affair held this Sunday at Benny the Bum's because he is momentarily expecting his wife to present him with either a son or daughter.

Louis Lall, partner of the Mutual Music Distributors with Sam Weinstein, is taking things easy now. He recently returned from a trip to Hot Springs, worked about the office for a few days and saw that the route was running smoothly, then departed this week for a vacation in Miami, Fla.

The Royal Record Shop, conducted by Harry Elkins, who distributes music machines on his route under the title of Royal Distributors, is doing a good business on swing records.

Exhibit Sales is plugging a variety of novelty salesboards. At least 200 different types of boards were displayed in their showrooms. Exhibit is distributor for Superior, Ajax and Esco products, the latter being its own trade-name on boards.

Charles Green, who lays claims to being the longest established coin machine operator in Southern New Jersey, was in town this week looking over the new machines and products.

Ed Heller, manager of the Royal Record Shop, is also manager of a fast-climbing 15-piece band named the Royalist Orchestra. Report is that several recording companies have extended offers to put the bunch on records.

Cigaret machines are being placed on the floor of centrally located 5 and 10-cent stores.

Back home from an enjoyable trip to Florida and Cuba is L. H. Rothstein, of the Banner Specialty Co. While Banner Specialty is not doing promotion on any special machine, it finds that its entire line is enjoying a fine reception.

Wally Schneider, who operates as the Metropolitan Amusement Co., has found business so good that he hired a new man to help him on his route. Bill Johnson is an experienced service man, Schneider reports, and should help him cover his territory easily.

Maurice Finkel, of the High Point Amusement Co., which distributes Federal tubes, reports that local operators are buying plenty of his tubes. He recently received a large amount of publicity when a local columnist mentioned that one of his machines was rented to a graduate of Boys Town who was living in Philadelphia.

Edward J. Dingley, Unit Vending Co., president of the Automatic Cigaret Venders' Association of Eastern Pennsylvania and delegate to Interstate Cigaret Merchandisers' Association, was elected a member of the board of directors of the Interstate Association at a meeting in New York.

The meeting of the Automatic Cigaret Venders' Association of Eastern Pennsylvania, which was held in February, marked the second birthday of this organization. Norman Fuhrman, counsel and secretary, reminded members of the occasion.

The Automatic Amusement Co., headed by Frank Engel, distributor of Seeburg phonographs, is doing a nice bit of business. Sales have been most satisfactory since the new models have been presented.

Arrangements are being completed for the inauguration of a complete service and repair department at the headquarters of Automatic Amusement. Extension of services for operators is offered in the belief that the organization should offer the utmost help to its dealers, Frank Engel declared.

Morris (Reds) Margolis, who has been vacationing in Florida for the past few weeks, is expected back home soon.

Home again after a vacation down south, which left him tan as an Indian, is popular Bill Rodstein.

Henry Margolis, who has only recently started operating for himself, opened another record store at 1401 1/2 Columbia avenue. This store is his second since beginning operations, which indicates business must be swell.

Penny gum vending machines have been placed on the platforms of all subway stations in the city, which is rather surprising since nobody made use of this idea before.

What won't be sent thru coin machines next? Newspapers carried plenty of publicity about the suggestion that telegrams be sent thru coin-operated boxes placed on street corners. Next thing is to put television on coin machines—with a guarantee that your mother-in-law can't peer thru the machine or your money back.

EASTERN FLASHES

Photomatics at the Fair

There'll be no time for a vacation for Bill Rabkin this summer. He'll be too busy watching over International Mutoscope Reel concessions at the World's Fair. Rabkin's contract calls for the erection of two buildings within the amusement area, each to house from 8 to 10 Photomatics and completely equipped studios for photographic accessories. In addition, he'll have three studios for his Photomatics in fair-controlled buildings. Rabkin also has the right to operate machines as subconcessions in any of the villages or other major concession attractions and is busy negotiating with the heads of these enterprises for space. At the present time he's also drawing up plans for a giant arcade which will be spotted in the middle of the amusement area. This arcade will have a 55-foot front and house a wide variety of coin-operated devices.

Rabkin reports that foreign visitors will be well acquainted with the firm's Photomatics since these machines are now in operation in such far-flung spots as Australia, British West Indies, New Zealand, South Africa, Peru and Venezuela, the Philippines, India and the Straits Settlements, not to mention such better known countries as England, Sweden, Finland, Mexico, Canada, Syria, Belgium, Puerto Rico and several others.

From the New Jersey Front

Dick Steinberger, of Stirling Distribs, Newark, celebrated his 33d birthday March 3 and reports he is the third son. No wonder, he says, "all good things run in threes." . . . Tom Burke, Dave Stern, Harry and Sam Wichansky, who do the thinking for National Vending Co., Elizabeth, N. J., piled into a car and left for an extended stay in Miami. On the way down they intended to visit with prominent coin firms. Definitely on the list of stops was Fayetteville, N. C., where the boys want to look over Joe Calcutt's way of doing things. . . . Irv Morris, of Ponsers' Newark offices, hopped over to the Big Town to have a specialist yank a tooth for him. He spent the rest of the day wandering among the new games at the Ponsers New York headquarters holding his jaw. . . . Jack Kay, of Ace Distribs, Newark, is back on the job again now that he's overcome the severe cold he contracted on his return from Florida. . . . Freddie Law, of Hercules, is mighty proud of his new baby daughter and will ramble on for hours about the cute things she does.

Encore at Ponsers'

game received such close attention from ops as Daval's Encore, five-ball novelty game, which they received this past week. "Ops are going strong for Encore's unusual play action," Ponsers observed. "This action is entirely different from any other game on the market at the present time. It features the shutting off of 20 bumpers with five balls and scoring after the bumpers are out. Each bumper calls for 1,000 points. As these are shut off they register two points at a time for winning awards. Already we've one of the largest reservation lists for advance orders we've ever had." George also reports that ops are demanding Chicago Coin's Majors and Exhibit's Speedy in large quantities.

Big Rush at Fitzgibbons

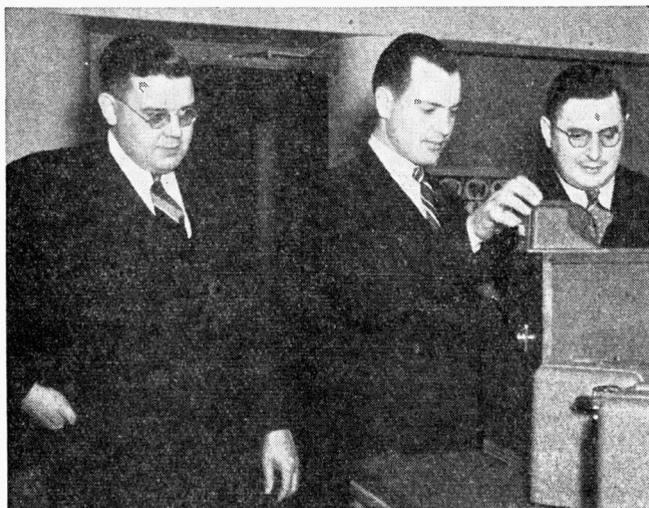

Sales are being made quick and fast at Fitzgibbons' Bally Building these days. In explaining the rush, Fitz stated, "Once Bally Royal samples got out on location the ops began to flock here demanding immediate delivery. Then came Bally Spottem and the rush doubled. The days of Reserve and Bumper are nothing compared to demands for Bally Royal, Bally Supreme and Bally Spottem. We're doing our best to meet the demand and have been in constant touch with the factory. Ops are really taking to the new Bally games because of their fast action, thrilling play and quick results." . . . Bill McDonald, of Fitz's force, made it a practice to enjoy a game of handball during his lunch hour. Says it keeps him fit for his desk work. . . . Everyone is wondering why Gene Callahan, of Fitz's uptown offices, seems to be growing taller and taller. He's long since passed the six-foot mark.

Johnson in Town

Ed Johnson arrived in town this week with Jennings' In-a-Bag Peanut Vender in tow. Spent some time explaining it to the boys and showing them the many angles for operating this new number. . . . Mac Perlman has a system all his own for judging new games. He explained his theory to some of the boys while looking over a new game at one of the local distrib offices the other day. Many believe now that Mac really knows his stuff. . . . Mit Soffer is planning a surprise for his charming wife. He's reported making the rounds of various leading jewelers.

Hart Enters Counter Field

Frank Hart, of Eastern Machine Exchange, Newark, entered the coinless counter game field this week with his New Deal Trade Stimulator. "There is no doubt in our minds," Hart claims, "that the method in which our machine stimulates trade is sure to prove legal in every territory. At the same time this machine will not accept any coins. It uses a special check which comes free with the machine. Our tests proved this machine the best both in earning power and mechanical excellence of any we've ever had."

California Communications

Lou Wolcher, former sidewalk of New York boy, writes from his adopted town of San Francisco that he is back on the job again after having spent his vacation in New York and Miami. . . . From Oakland, Calif., comes a note from Gordon Mills, Mills Sales Co., Ltd., reading: "If you know anyone who thinks he has something that can go over at the San Francisco fair please have him get in touch with me."

Lane Gets Action

Every day is filled with activity for Bert Lane at Seaboard since Genco's sensational Punch-a-Ball arrived. "Never before have I handled a number which brought so many repeat orders as this new non-coin-operated counter game," Lane says. "Punch-a-Ball with the convertible baseball glass known as Play Ball is making money on location lightning fast. It has the sportiest appeal of any game that has hit the market in a long time. The op has many advantages with this game, and it looks like the smash hit of the year to me."

Joe Darwin Returns

Joe Darwin and Mrs. Darwin have just returned from their South American cruise. Joe reported that it was the best vacation he has ever had and that he enjoyed it immensely. . . . Sol Silverstein, now with Chicago Coin as traveling sales manager, was greeted warmly by his many friends on his arrival here. Sol told some interesting tales about the rest of the country but still maintains that there is no place like the Big Town.

Munves Is Asker Distrib

Mike Munves is mighty proud of having been chosen distrib for the new counter-size horoscope machine Asker. Joe Munves, who is in charge of sales for his brother, Mike, maintains that Asker is one of the most ingenious horoscope machines on the market. "Being small, light, compact and low in price," Joe says, "Asker opens a big field to every op. It brings the machine to locations that have always wanted a horoscope machine but couldn't give up the space the large-size machines require. This machine is all profit for the op." Munves reports his firm's territory for Asker includes the New England States as well as New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Best Dressed Ops

Marty Roth and Gil Faria are voted among the best dressed ops in town. Marty always has his cigar while Gil sports his high-priced derby. . . . Nat Conn, of Modern Vending, reports that Wurlitzer's statement that there would be no new models for the rest of 1939 has zoomed sales to new highs. . . . Earle Winters and Melba Schnepps, of Mutoscope, get that extra lift at 3 in the afternoon by ordering malted milks. Earle prefers his with an egg in it.

Rothstein Speaks

I. H. Rothstein, Banner Specialty exec of Philly, is loud in his praise of the current crop of games. "Some of the games we have on display now," he states, "are the finest we've ever had. The method of simplifying the electrical mechanism, the strides made in rendering the games cheat-proof, the fascinating play action and all-round mechanical excellence and beauty of the current crop of games make them all winners. It is only by recalling how the games looked a while back that we really appreciate the strides that have been made by the manufacturers."

Baby Production

Ruth (Shapiro) Katz, well known in coin machine circles when she held down a desk at Mutoscope, has just had her first child. It's a girl which she has named Letitia. In case you remember send her greetings. . . . Babe Kaufman proved she could do the latest jitterbug steps at the ciggy ops' affair at the Hotel Robert Treat in Newark. . . . Mike Munves is back from Florida, where he enjoyed a real vacation. Mike claims he took things easy and played pinochle most of the time for excitement. "Went fishing once," he says, "and caught a few lobsters or something."

Nat'l Vending Co. Clicking

Dave Stern, prior to leaving for Florida on his vacation, reported that ops are really going for the trade-in offer made by his National Vending Co., which is New Jersey distrib for the new Rock-Ola phono. "This trade-in plan calls for allowances on practically any type of coin-operated equipment. Many ops thinking of entering the automatic phono biz are much interested in this trade-in plan," Stern stated. He also revealed that it is the plan of National Vending Co. to give complete service to ops in all parts of the State. "We will carry a complete stock of parts for all Rock-Ola phonos as well as supplies of every kind for the ops, including records and needles," Stern revealed.

Budin Back on Job

Herman (Chubbie) Budin returned from Florida looking like the proverbial million dollars and rarin' to go. He's all pepped up over Stoner's Lido, which he says will top the sales records hung up by their famous Chubbie. "The game looks like a winner to me," he said.

Off the Cuff:

Sain Kressberg, of East Coast Phono Exchange, is brown as can be as the result of his vacation in the summer clime. He says the winter rest did him a load of good. . . . Ben Kulick has his missus visiting New York. She did the town in a real patriotic way, taking in two Broadway shows, Abe Lincoln in Illinois and The American Way. . . . Bob Scher, well-known Brooklyn op, went to Los Angeles recently on his honeymoon. He is returning by the water route. His friends in Brooklyn are pretty peeved at him for not dropping them cards. His partner, however, alibis that Bob must have been too busy.

British Games Expo Has Good Attendance, Display

Main exhibit is American-made games—many new British models shown

LONDON, March 5.—London Amusement Trades Exposition during four days' run, February 21-24, had attendance well up to standard of last year and three previous coin-operated machine shows. Provincials turned up in force, plus fair contingent from Continent. Among latter were Rene Godin, editor of La Revue de L'Automatique, and Yeni, of Novelty Co., Paris. No visitors from United States, but registering in from Canada were M. A. Collins, of Brantford, Ont., and J. Hays, of Hamilton, Ont.

At least half of the show was devoted to coin-operated equipment with higher percentage than ever of British devised and manufactured machines. In two instances these were table games—Ol, of Samson Novelty, incorporating Zeta-type bumpers and odd ball; Shuffle-Board, of Electric Equipment Co., with player-controlled shuffle board and balls running from top to bottom to be manipulated past losing holes. Otherwise, exhibits of this class were American. Outstanding in operator interest was Genco's Circus shown by Coin Amusement Machine Supply, Ltd., the same firm's Bubbles being a close runner-up.

E. A. Meller, Ltd., of London and Paris, showed cranes equipped with inverted grabs. Prongs of grab point downwards when dropped into candy and swag; after prescribed time prongs turn up and grab is pulled up in usual way. Advantage of inverted grab is that it enables greater use of swag with loops and rings such as clocks and watches.

Haworth, of Blackpool, exhibited among other new machines a coin-operated Camera Obscura. This machine stands seven feet in height, giving just sufficient clearance to view over heads of public. At top is the optical arrangement which receives the view and projects it upon a white screen. This is made visible thru eye scope upon insertion of penny in slot.

Samson Novelty enjoyed big business with British unit for converting electric table games into payouts or cigaret delivery machines. This firm as agent for Groetchen made fine display of Sparks and Columbia Bells, entire stocks in hand of latter being sold out by third day of show.

A somewhat surprisingly brisk demand was experienced for bells. This particularly applies to Coin Amusement Machine Supply Co., Ltd., with Mills products and Dave Buckman, who introduced the new Caille ranges.

British engineering firm, Vernon Lockwood Mfg. Co., Ltd., had no difficulty in securing interest in its revolutionary electric scoring devices for all kinds of machines and games.

Standard equipment proved top liners. British scale operators incline these days towards giant models with neon lighting. Autoway Co., of Glasgow, presented a range of these with perfume spray as part of machine.

Western Novelties Co., with Tony Gasparro back in charge, was disappointed at not receiving Gottlieb's Fire Alarm table in time for showing. Center of attraction here was Caille seven-slot bell.

Goddard Novelty Co., with Percy Goddard and Buck Taylor well to fore, had its busiest time with Bally's Supreme and Stoner's Chubbie and Tommy.

Wurlitzer stand, under direction of M. J. Gubay, was one of the busiest spots in entire show. On third day these coin-operated phonographs were demonstrated for a while by Reginald Dixor, ace player of Wurlitzer organ at Blackpool Tower.

Thruout the show The World's Fair, British trade publication, displayed cablegram from The Billboard wishing exhibition every success and British trade a year of peace and prosperity.

Among the big sellers was coin-operated anti-aircraft machine gun with light-up aeroplane target, of J. G. Brenner.

Working nonstop, greeting old friends, were Solly, Morry and Phil Shefras, of Shefras Automatics, Ltd., agent here for Jennings.

Agents for Rock-Ola were at a disadvantage thru nonarrival of latest model machines. Where fault lies is not too clear, altho agents avow that manufacturers promised delivery in time.

Dick Scott and Al Adickes, of Scott, Adickes, Ltd., had to miss show because of influenza. As usual, this firm made big show, outstanding features being new Exhibit crane, Exhibit's Chief table and Daval's Rajah.

Exposition was opened by Sir Walter Womersley, M. P., assistant postmaster general, who said that members of parliament had to indulge in a bit of a gamble. To obtain privilege of putting before House of Commons a bill or motion they had to take their chance in a ballot. There were 615 members with but 10 chances for bills and 10 for motions. "If that were not a bit of a gamble what on earth was."

Banquet on third night, organized by British Automatic Machine Operators' Society, was attended by 320, a good figure for this annual function. Bill Green, managing director of British American Novelty Co., Ltd., presided, and

All Busy on The Keeney Front

CHICAGO, March 11.—“The picture elsewhere in this issue which shows Mel Blinks, Oscar Muenzer and myself wrestling Spinner-Winner shipments may appear to be a publicity picture. Actually, it's a candid camera shot,” said Ray Becker, Keeney sales manager.

“In spite of increased factory facilities, there are times when all hands are called on deck in catching railway and air express shipments of our new console-action counter game,” continued Becker, “and then everybody works.”

“Our second large run of Spinner-Winners is now on the production lines and a third release has been made to prevent any gap in volume production and deliveries.”

British Coinage Lower in 1938

LONDON, March 11.—The British Royal Mint has issued its annual report showing a lot of details about coinage for the year 1938.

There was a brisk demand for coin in 1938 which caused in the first three months of the year the mint staffs to work in double shifts, but there was a falling off in the total issue when compared with that of 1937.

The increased demand is said to have been due to the industrial activity caused by rearmament, altho this phenomenon was not made known to the public until some weeks after the Munich settlement, toward the end of September. The total number of farthings put into circulation is now 449,347,200, but no one seems to know where they have gone.

Silver coins issued in 1938 totaled 44,210,956, compared with 66,689,383 in 1937. The sixpence was, as usual, the most popular and accounted for 13,344,438. Shillings came next with a total of 10,115,907. The popularity of these two coins was partly due to the widespread use of coin-operated gas and electricity meters and cigaret machines. Large quantities of shillings and sixpences were required to supply new building estates, particularly on the South and Southeast Coasts, where most houses are equipped with coin-operated meters.

Public favor with the shillings seemed to be equally divided between those with the King's English crest and those with the Scottish one. The numbers issued were 4,925,900 and 5,190,007, respectively. Half-crowns totaled 6,313,403 and florins 7,647,300.

In spite of the competition of its novel 12-sided rival, the silver threepenny bit was still in demand. At any rate 6,788,542 were issued. This total was exceeded, however, by that for the nickel threepenny bit—15,686,400.

Altho no five shilling pieces were actually struck last year there was an issue of 1,366. These probably went to those people who wished to give a new crown as a Christmas present and, being unable to get one dated 1938, did the next best thing and took a 1937 one.

Bronze coin issued in 1938 amounted to 172,812,000 pieces, compared with 148,148,400 in 1937. These figures are much above the average of recent years. The output of bronze during 1936, 1937 and 1938 has been greater than at any period since the abnormal early post-war years of 1919-'21.

Included in the 1938 total were 123,789,600 pennies. It is interesting to note that the number of pennies issued was more than double that of all the silver coin combined. Halfpennies amounted to 41,572,800, and this figure is noteworthy because it is the largest of any year since the bronze halfpenny was first struck in 1860.

San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, March 11.—Warm spring days are increasing receipts for operators in the Alamo City. Already a stream of tourists are pouring into this city of sunshine and flowers, and with the tourist always comes better play on coin-operated machines. Distributors and jobbers report some increased sales in both new and used games.

K. F. Wilkinson, Rock-Ola phono jobber, is doing a nice job on the two new Rock-Ola models. Wilkinson is kept busy jumping around in his territory in an effort to give his customers the best of service.

San Antonio Novelty and Amusement Co. is one of San Antonio's busy coin machine centers. The firm is doing a nice business.

Dick Warneke is piloting his Santone Coin Machine along profitable paths.

American Machine Sales Co. starts the month of March off with good business and looks forward to a further upward trend as the months go by.

Clyde Fowler, well-known coinman of this city, continues active in the operating field in and around San Antonio. Clyde is the boy who used to advertise his “Flying Service” when he once operated a large distributing firm here.

Shreveport, La.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 11.—Coin machine activities in this city are running along about normal with a promise of better business during the coming summer. Oil activities promise to take on renewed life shortly and this means more business for coin-operated devices.

Verda Rodgers is one of our city's leading lady ops. She has been connected with the coin machine business for several years.

S. E. Nelson and his Cigaret Service Co. are unusually busy these days. Nelson is one of Shreveport's lively merchandise ops who keeps abreast of the times. He attended the NACOMM Coin Machine Show last December and won the second grand prize given to operators, a radio. His firm features cigaret machines.

H. C. Howell, Royal Novelty Co.; Robert Ehrhardt, Shreveport Novelty Co., and W. Y. Lancaster, Shreveport Coin Machine Exchange, are three of the old-time operating and distributing firms of Shreveport. They have all been in business here for a number of years.

Dapper Bill Thompson, operator of diggers, was a Fort Worth, Tex., visitor recently. He features the Buckley equipment and reports his business fair.

Arkansas Notes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 11.—Operator Roy Bangs, well-known music merchant of Little Rock, has been adding some new phonos to his large string. Bangs is one of the largest music operators in Arkansas.

Operating conditions thruout the State are only fair at the present, but business is expected to grow better with the coming of warmer days. Lumber activities, as well as renewed oil production movements, are in evidence; all of which gives the Arkansas operators much courage.

E. M. Elkins with his Novelty Sales Co. certainly keep the spots well cared for around Booneville. Elkins was an interested visitor to the recent CMMMA show in Chicago.

H. W. Jeffries is the pioneer operator of Fort Smith. Jeffries can tell some tall tales of the early days in Arkansas and Eastern Oklahoma—days when operating was a real art.

One of Arkansas leading lady operators is none other than Mrs. James Sasbee, of Little Rock. Mrs. Sasbee is active in and around the capital city.

J. D. Dunaway holds down the spots in and around Conway. His firm is known as the Mid-State Coin Machine Co.

Corpus Christi, Tex.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., March 11.—This gulf port city is taking on renewed life every day. Large export and shipping firms are locating their outlet headquarters here and operators are enjoying some nice increases in receipts. No less than 20 active operators keep machines going in and around this city, which rests deep in South Texas.

Heading the Gulf Coast Music Co. is that stalwart gentleman, W. F. Daniel, who entered the operating business several years ago with a route of penny merchandise vendors. Daniel now services one of the largest string of phonographs in this part of the State.

Morris Liedeker heads another large music operating firm of this city. Liedeker is a music merchant of long experience and is pushing his music business to a big successful goal.

John Black Novelty Co. is always a busy place with ops dropping in all during the day. They are distributors and jobbers and are enjoying a nice early spring run of business.

Mexican tunes are the big money-earners for phono ops in many spots in this section. No doubt Corpus Christi music ops service as many Mexican locations as any Texas border town. Ops have been having a little trouble securing good Mexican recordings which they need so badly.

Gottlieb Markets Game, Lot-o-Fun

CHICAGO, March 11.—“This sensational new and radically different free-play thriller is proving so amazing on locations because of its tremendous come-on that it has been called profit dynamite,” declared officials of D. Gottlieb & Co. in launching their new novelty game, Lot-o-Fun.

“This radically new departure is more than true to its name. It's not only lot of fun for the player, with a thrill every split second, but it's earning amazing profits for the operator because of its appeal. It looks like a cinch to win and it's almost impossible to play the game without coming very close to a winner every time. Yet it requires real skill. That feature alone is proving an unparalleled play-getter.

“Then other new ideas like key-lite selections, flash signal of all field lights when a winner is made, flash of winner's total score on backboard, new free ball and a dozen other features make Lot-o-Fun an overtime worker in any location.

“Lot-o-Fun is the result of Gottlieb's years of pay-table building experience and is built with the highest standards of quality. It is the first of a line of unique and original novelties to be launched by Gottlieb.”

Lane Doing Big On Punch-a-Ball

CHICAGO, March 11.—“There are smiles around the Genco office every time the mailman calls,” say Genco officials. “The reason for the cheer is that every mail brings another large order for Punch-a-Ball from Bert Lane, of Seaboard Sales, Inc., Genco's direct factory representatives in the East.”

Meyer Gensberg reports: “The entire country has taken to this little counter game. Operators' reports are so flattering that they seem almost impossible.

“Genco's Punch-a-Ball is made so that the player cannot play the machine unless the merchant has the key inserted in the rear of the cabinet. This is a safety feature to avoid unauthorized play which always results in a total loss to the operators and storekeepers alike.”

Bill Frey Planning New Counter Game

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 11.—Bill Frey, head of the firm of Bill Frey, Inc., recently announced that he will shortly go into volume production on his new game, Jitterbug, which, it is reported, “has been a sensation in Florida.”

Said Frey, “Some of these machines have been on location three years. We believe that games of this type will go on as long as people will play cards, shoot pool or indulge in like amusement. In other words, we think that this machine represents a universal pastime.

“We are preparing to manufacture this game in three layouts. It is a counter machine only 12 inches square. The layouts of the game, to be marketed shortly, include star, or colors; Field, or dice, and Chuck-a-Luck. We plan to produce at some later date double games and also larger games including four layouts.”

Western Baseball Visits Players

CHICAGO, March 11.—A representative of Western Products, Inc., maker of 1939 Baseball, recently returned to the home office after making a circle tour of the training camps of the big league teams that are training in the Southeast, it is reported.

Many of the topnotch stars played the game and got a real kick out of the device. All received quite a kick out of being struck out by the mechanical pitcher, he reported.

Western's 1939 Baseball is considered a legal form of amusement in practically all territories. Not a day goes by but that orders are received from operators who have earlier models on hand.

Mohawk Exchange Features Venders

NEW YORK, March 11.—Leon Berman, for many years connected with the coin machine industry, recently opened the Mohawk Coin Machine Exchange in New York City. Associated with Berman is Sidney Lipston, veteran vending machine operator. The Mohawk company will specialize in merchandise machine equipment, buying and selling new and used machines. Berman says his firm is making arrangements with a few manufacturers of non-conflicting lines to act as their distributors in its territory.

Pot Shot, a Pot of Gold

CHICAGO, March 11.—"Evidently our new Pot Shot payout table and free game is proving to be a pot of gold," said J. H. (Jack) Keeney, "if repeat orders for both the payout and free game models are any indications of the game's gold content.

"An additional release of the three-color multiple-play free game Pot Shot is now on the production lines. A new run of the payout model will go into manufacture shortly," stated the head of J. H. Keeney & Co.

"Players are beginning to appreciate the fact that Pot Shot is an all-skill game, and that whether or not they secure a winner is entirely dependent upon the skillfulness of their shots. This is why Pot Shot earnings are running higher and higher the longer this game is on location."

"Pot Shot's accumulative award for accumulative winners is also extremely popular with the players," continued Keeney, "just as the game's small size and high earning powers are making a big hit with location owners."

Seven-Week Run Is Majors Record

CHICAGO, March 11.—According to numerologists, the number 7 is supposed to be one of the luckiest of all. In ancient days seven of anything were supposed to be of immense good fortune for the possessor. Officials at Chicago Coin Machine Mfg. Co. are definitely not superstitious nor are they numerologists. But the number 7 has been a symbol of tremendous importance to them.

Because of the nature of the novelty games nowadays the production runs are definitely smaller. The operators demand new fresh ideas as quickly as possible. Accordingly, a good run at any coin machine factory on novelty games is four weeks. However, the Chicago Coin Machine Mfg. Co. has been running for seven weeks on Majors, newest novelty game. Every indication is that it will go on and on for many more weeks.

Chicago's Majors has enjoyed tremendous popularity in territories that are baseball minded. This fact is attributed to the baseball theme of play of the game.

Max Glass Tells A Fish Story

CHICAGO, March 11.—Max Glass, of Gerber & Glass, has just returned from a six weeks' vacation in Florida. Accompanying him upon the extended stay was Mrs. Glass. Both report the feel "extra fine" after their trip and that they are sporting wonderful tans.

"Speaking of fishing stories," said Glass, "I chartered a yacht and spent almost my entire vacation on it, entertaining friends and fishing. Let me tell you, whether you believe it or not, I really caught fish, all sizes and of almost every specie known to exist in Florida waters. If the survivors among their brethren could read the news that I had returned to Chicago they would hold a big celebration.

"Well, so much for frivolity. I'm back on the job now, ready and anxious to get down to business. Within a very short time the trade will know that I'm back in action—that's a promise."

Paul Gerber, according to latest reports, has extended his vacation on the Pacific Coast another month.

Old Age Pension Idea Defeated

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 11.—Senate Bill 387 lost by a vote of 23 to 3 here. Its purpose was to license and tax machines in order to raise revenue for State old-age pensions.

Unfortunately the bill was too broad in its coverage, proposing to tax all machines "where money is placed in a slot."

Indicating the presence of racing interests, a senator who spoke in favor of the bill said that racing bets could be placed "by going thru that door over there," as he pointed to a door of the Senate chamber.

Senate Bill 547 was introduced on March 3. It would allot revenues from machine licenses to welfare purposes.

Distributors Boost Mills Smoker Bell

CHICAGO, March 11.—Mills Novelty Co. in introducing its latest product, the Mills Smoker Bell, called upon its distributors to give their attention to the new bell. Officials of Mills commented upon the results: "We were well rewarded by our distributors, who needed no urging. Results speak louder than words—and we have plenty of results."

Comments by distributors were without exception in praise of the machine. Following are some comments:

Joe Calcutt, the Vending Machine Co., Fayetteville, N. C.—"Ordered 100 Smoker Bells as soon as I saw the first sample. Have ordered several lots since then."

Charles Casmus, Mint Vending Co., Birmingham, Ala.—"Smokers are getting into territories where new and different machines are used. A worthy partner to the Vest Pocket Bell."

Julius Pace, Dixie Coin Machine Co., New Orleans, La.—"Smoker Bell the best cigaret-type machine I ever saw. One customer bought 50 when he saw the sample."

Jim Boyle, Boyle Novelty Co., Oklahoma City, Okla.—"Your latest and finest machine, Smoker Bell, is already in every section of our territory. It's a natural. Let's have more."

Ginsberg brothers, Atlas Novelty Co., Chicago, Ill.—"We bought 50 bells. Got

Bally Claims Collection Record

CHICAGO, March 11.—Ray Moloney, president of Bally Mfg. Co., believes he has a world's record in one of the Bally Bell collection reports recently sent in by an operator.

"This report," Moloney stated, "covered the earnings of one Bally Bell during the first three weeks on location. I am not at liberty to state the actual amount, but anyway the big story is not how much the Bally Bell took in—al tho it did take in plenty! The real story is about the way the Bally Bell monopolized the location.

"The operator who placed this Bally Bell had regularly operated four separate bells in the same spot—two nickel machines, one dime machine, one quarter machine. He left this quartet in the location when he placed the Bally Bell. On his first collection the battery of four machines earned slightly more than the Bally Bell, and this ratio was maintained on the second collection a week later.

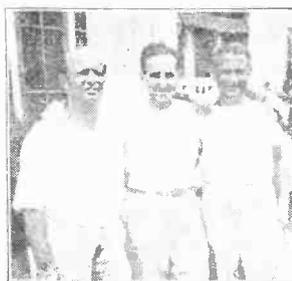

"But the following week the Bally Bell earned almost twice as much as the four other machines combined. And remember the combined coin-chute value of the four machines was 45 cents as compared to the 30 cents of the Bally Bell—combination quarter and nickel play. Again on the fourth collection the Bally Bell collection exceeded collections for the four machines.

"During the three-week period the Bally Bell took in several dollars more than the battery of four machines. In fact, the total Bally Bell profits were more than 400 per cent above the average profit of each of the four, and at last report this ratio was still holding good. If that isn't a record I don't know what is. Maybe it's exceptional, but we have a flock of reports which are almost as startling."

British Decrease In Unemployment

LONDON, March 11.—British business confidence, none too secure in the past few weeks, has been strengthened by report that the ranks of British unemployed had decreased by 142,000 last month. This leaves a total of approximately 1,897,000 unemployed.

The newly employed men were absorbed largely by the building trades, iron and steel mills, engineering and agriculture.

Mills Smoker Bell Gets Op Approval

CHICAGO, March 11.—“The unanimous approval given the new Smoker Bell by operators who have tried out the first samples has been very gratifying,” announces Art Cooley, coin machine sales division, Mills Novelty Co.

“There are thousands of counter trade stimulators in use but none of them have the money-making capacity of the bell, neither do they have its tremendous ability to hold the play over a long period of time. The Smoker Bell has proved to be just what the average operator needs.”

Vince Shay, coin machine sales manager at Mills Novelty Co., says a lot of convention visitors were fooled by Mills Smoker. “It was pretty hard to convince them at first that it was a complete jackpot bell with automatic payout and token jackpot,” declared Shay.

“To look at the machine you wouldn't think it was a payout at all, but that is part of the design. The payout compartment is on the side, not in front, and works with a pivoting drawer similar to the drawer used on consoles. The jackpot is in the form of a special-award token which pays out on a combination similar to the three bars. The entire front of Smoker is wood, like the sides.”

Liquor Control Studied in N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—New York's State Liquor Authority recently recommended that broader powers for the regulation of liquors be turned over to the authority and thence to the local boards thruout the State. They urged that broader powers would make for better administrative procedure by establishing uniform practices in all local board territories. They would seek the co-operation of liquor distillers in more closely regulating the industry, believing that the liquor industry is able to establish trade practices correcting some of the evils present today. “Unfortunately,” the authority chairman stated, “trade practices are not considered sacred.”

The authority stressed the progress in the industry and declared that they “wanted to maintain the progress made since repeal.” They reported that since repeal gross receipts from licenses have totaled $108,611,021 and from beverage taxes $122,848,281. Discussing economic benefits of repeal, the report revealed that a survey taken of 220 hotels in 42 counties showed that legalized liquor had materially aided them, with 208 of the hotels reporting that repeal had “saved the hotel industry from bankruptcy.”

The authority also suggested that laws be passed requiring the retailer to pay cash to the wholesaler upon delivery of liquors “to eliminate many abuses and subterfuges now being practiced.”

Penn. State Assn. Plans Co-Operation With Local Groups

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania State Coin Machine Operators' Association, held at the Hotel Majestic, Philadelphia, it was agreed that the responsibility for the co-ordination of activities of all local groups affiliated should be placed in the hands of Harry Wexelblatt, executive secretary and counsel. This, it was agreed by the board members, would give the State association better contact with local groups and their members than had been possible thru the monthly meetings of single representatives of each association as represented on the board of directors.

In his capacity as prime co-ordinator of the activities of the local units Wexelblatt would make regular visits to these groups, at which time he would discuss with the members and executives of the individual associations the various State and local problems. Local organizations will receive the support of the State group in all local matters and would apply to Executive Secretary Wexelblatt for any information or aid. In addition to Wexelblatt's activities, the board of directors would hold meetings at regular intervals or upon special call of the president, Martin Mitnick.

Members of the board were informed of the favorable action of the Philadelphia Coin Machine Operators' Association in voting to have their entire membership join the State organization. This action was taken following an appeal to the group by Harry Wexelblatt, in which he stressed the similarity of the aims of both groups and the benefits which would be derived from an affiliation of the associations.

The State association plans to continue its activity in the formation of local groups thru the various districts of the State. The new operators' organizations will become component parts of the State-wide association and will have representation on the board of directors.

Sales Grow Tall In Kansas State

WICHITA, Kan., March 11.—"While the Sunflower State is known for its tall corn and wheat, we are also piling up some pretty tall sales volumes on Keeney's Spinner-Winner counter game among Kansas operators," says Dave Marion, head of the Marion Co., Wichita.

"And that also goes for Keeney's Pot Shot free games," continues Marion. "Here's an all-skill free game which the players like because there are no springs, pins or bumpers on the board to deflect the shot into the proper hole for that play."

"Operators like Spinner - Winner," closes the Kansas distributor, "because it offers a selection of dice numbers and cigaret symbols on the dial in accommodating itself to local regulations."

Plans Complete for Philly Assn. Dinner

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Arrangements have been completed to make the annual banquet of the Philadelphia Coin Machine Operators' Association on Sunday, March 12, an outstanding affair. "We think that this banquet, which will mark the 11th birthday of our organization, will be the best attended affair we have ever sponsored," Marvin Mittenick, association president, declared. "In addition to the operators and their families we expect all the employees of operators' organizations to be present. Distributors and manufacturers have all agreed to co-operate fully with us in making the banquet a fine affair, and the entertainment committee has done a fine job in completing arrangements for an enjoyable evening for all."

The entertainment committee has prepared a souvenir book carrying a complete history of the organization since its inception and a list of the officers as well as the members.

Entertainment will be provided by a stand-out floor show, which includes several entertainers now performing in local shows. Music for the dancing will be swung by Victor Hugo and his swing band, while George Libby's Hollywood Debs will provide plenty of feminine pulchritude as well as dancing talent. Ben Perry, popular performer, will act as emcee for the show, which will provide Muriel Thomas, eccentric dancer, and Muriel Page, soprano, and Frances Carroll, blues singer. Renato and Dolores will provide grace and beauty in their ballroom dances.

In order that everyone present has a good time the entertainment committee, headed by N. Chodaker, will function as a greeting group. Members are S. Lerner, Frank Engel, A. Poster, A. Speigel, Frank Urban and David Kulla.

Detroit

DETROIT, March 11.—"The music machine business may be slow, but it is certainly reliable," says Sigmund Kaczynski. "Of course, you have to operate on a fairly good scale to make money, but once you have established a route it is more stable."

"Conditions have not changed in the past eight or nine months very much. I have just bought some new machines. Recently I have noted that business is getting better."

Sam Rosenthal, veteran Detroit coinman, received a license this week as Michigan's No. 1 Matchmaker for prize-fights. Under a new law this profession will be licensed in this State. Rosenthal has been the only man to take out a license so far. He received extensive feature stories in all local papers.

Detroit music operators are carrying on with "leading the industry out of the depression." Sales of new machines kept well up again this week, with Wurdlitzers taking the lead in sales reported. Among the leading operators who bought substantial numbers of machines were Joseph Brilliant, of the Brilliant Music Co.; James Ashley, of the American Novelty Co.; Fred Gardella, E. W. Mitchell and G. A. Gustafson.

Henry C. Lemke, of Lemke Coin Machine Co., a pioneer in the Detroit coin machine field, has been in Grand Rapids for the past week attending the funeral of his brother, Frank Lemke.

Henry Nelson, of the Nelson Amusement Co., pin-game operator, is wintering in Miami. His brother, Morrie Nelson, is managing the business for him in his absence.

JACKPOT BELL

★ Make way for Mills Smoker! It's a new small sized, completely automatic BELL! Not electrical, it uses the basic Mills Q.T. payout mechanism, which has stood the play for many years. The Smoker is the FASTEST PLAYING Bell ever built—it plays five times for every three plays of the big Bells and is TWICE AS FAST as the Mills Vest Pocket! It is equipped with complete automatic token jackpot, invisible but ACTIVE! Acknowledged to be the quietest machine ever built; 1c or 5c play. Smoker's payout cup doesn't show—it's a console drawer and placed at the side of the machine. It can be equipped with a lock—and compartment will hold $5.00 in nickels. Cigarette reels, which are covered with tricky metal flap, the reverse side of which is the reward card. Beautiful birch cabinet with contrasting diamond inlay. The Smoker doesn't look like a payout Bell, doesn't even look like any kind of a coin operated machine. Weighs only 35 pounds, takes only a square foot of space, stands 15 inches high. Goldberg, Moseley Find Biz Rushing CINCINNATI, March 11.—Ben Goldberg, of the Sicking Mfg. Co., reports that he is very busy these days. Says he: "The distributing business is really going to town with the Mills Smoker Bell. I estimate that there are a thousand locations in my territory in which operators are waiting to place Mills' latest bell.

"I talked recently to Harry Moseley, of the Moseley Vending Machine Exchange, in Richmond, Va., and he is of the same opinion that I am. Namely, that the Smoker Bell will give the Vest Pocket Bell, also produced by Mills, a chase in setting sales records. We are sincere in saying that the machine will undoubtedly be one of the best sellers in many years."

O. K.!—JOE CALCUTT

Calcutt Says:

"I've O.K.'d some great machines but Mills new Smoker Jackpot Bell looks like the biggest thing of the new Spring season. Grab those locations, boys!"

Calcutt Says:

"The Smoker is great because it's a Bell, yet doesn't look like one. Flap covers the reels, jackpot is invisible, and cash drawer practically so. It's a BELL!"

Calcutt Says:

"The Smoker is the quietest and fastest thing I've ever seen. Can't hear it twenty-five feet away. Smooth and powerful mechanism, tried and proven on over 40,000 other machines."

Calcutt Says:

"It's a buy at $57.50, 1c or 5c play. You can search a long time before finding so much value for your money. The Smoker, like the famous Mills Q.T., holds its high value over a period of many years."

Calcutt Says:

"It may be that the Smoker is getting such a terrific play because it's so new. But I know what that mechanism can do, and I'm banking on it to hold its top earning power over the years."

Calcutt Says:

"Joe Calcutt is behind Mills Smoker with a full load of steam. Every one of our customers is going to strike gold when he ties in with this great Mills Machine. Send your orders direct to the Vending Machine Company. We ship immediately."

Calcutt Says:

"Thanks, folks, for the marvelous confidence you have placed in all my recommendations in the past. You can't miss on this one, either!"

Mutoscope Builds Arcade at World's Fair in New York

NEW YORK, March 11.—William Rabkin, president of International Mutoscope Reel Co., recently explained his plans for "the most unique, modernistic and beautiful penny arcade ever attempted, which is now in the process of completion at the New York World's Fair amusement center."

Said Rabkin: "The building that will house the arcade is one of true modernism. It has been designed by one of New York's well-known architects. It harmonizes with the unusual architecture of tomorrow that is the theme motif of the fair."

"An ingenious sliding door that takes up but two feet of space opens the entire side of the building to visitors. The artistic effect of the signs that will adorn the building in their varicolored lights is certain to strike a new note for better lighting effects for the entire arcade industry."

"There will be over 100 machines located in the arcade, which features a 55-foot frontage. The machines will be carefully and uniformly arranged so as to gain the most attractive display and to harmonize with the general fair atmosphere."

"Located next door to the arcade will be a large Photomatic studio. This studio will feature about a dozen of the ingenious photographic machines. Plans for popularizing the Photomatics by advertising are already under way. The Photomatic building will be a separate unit in itself. It is also in the modern theme, but it plays to the motif of photography in futuristic fashion. One unusual feature of the Photomatic studio will be the large front door that slides straight up right thru the roof and becomes a large candid camera fronting the building roof."

"In what will be the huge lens of the camera, about three feet in diameter, moving pictures explaining the Photomatic will be shown to catch the eyes of the passers-by. Another unique feature is the unusual and skillful arrangement of the neon lights that will swirl about the building and will spell out the name Photomatic."

"There will be another Photomatic studio, the same as the first, also containing about a dozen machines, further along in the amusement center. Each Photomatic itself has been constructed in keeping with the color scheme and architectural theme of the fair."

"In addition to both studios there will be five special studios in the main exhibit area of the fair. Contracts are being closed now and one is expected to appear in the General Foods building. Another in the Transportation Building, one in the Science Building, etc."

"Mutoscope executives are working hard at the present time getting ready for the opening of the fair, which is only a very short time away. They believe that with everything going along right they will be completely set up for opening day, when one of the most gigantic crowds to have ever visited any city is expected to pass thru the gates of the fairgrounds."

"SOME PLACE YOU'VE GOT, JIM"

1. Jim swelled up proud as a peacock—for which I don't blame him. It was the newest and nicest place in town. Lots of color, modern and an attractive arrangement of chrome and glass that gave it an inviting appearance.

2. Jim took me around . . . and he actually had a real showplace. "How are things going?" I ventured. "Say," he said; "are you trying to kid me? Why . . . every night's been a complete sell-out." "How come?" I asked.

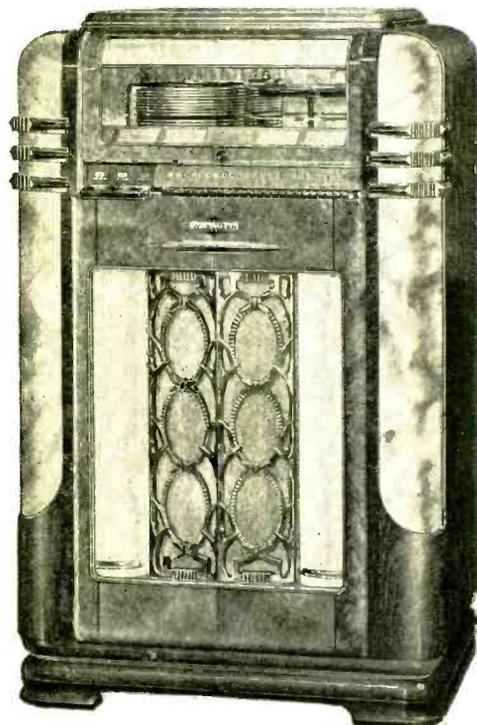

3. With that he took me back among the tables and said: "Here it is!" I might have guessed it . . . a WURLITZER De Luxe Five Hundred. Well—he didn't have to do any more explaining—because I know that the WURLITZER has what it takes to draw the crowd—make 'em stay longer and have a better time.

Successful Music Merchants know that they can get and hold the best locations with Wurlitzer Automatic Phonographs. Patrons demand a larger choice of music . . . life-like tone in reproduction . . . and ease of selection. That's why Wurlitzer Phonographs have multiplied location earnings . . . have increased patronage and service checks. Three sizes of models will fit any location requirements. There's real profit in operating Wurlitzers.
