$100 Reservation Stunt Lands National Publicity

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Arki-Yavensonne drew national publicity when he advertised dinner New Year's Eve at $100 per couple for the Satire Room, most expensive local room, seating 38.

Arki drew 39 customers. He served dinner and then presented every lady with a $100 War Bond. In addition, one customer bought War Bonds to the huge amount of $21,500. AP had set wire in the room and sent out reports of the goings on. In addition, H. V. Kaltenborn, radio commentator, talked about the stunt on day following.

The stunt cost Arki an additional $20 per couple.

Four A's Drops Fight Against Wirtz and Henie

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Arthur Wirtz and Sonja Henie won their first major battle against the Associated Actors and Artistes of America when the latter organization dropped its fight "for the present" to unionize their two ice shows, Stars on Ice at the Center Theater here, and the Ice Revue, which opens Monday (18) at Madison Square Garden. Both Wirtz and Miss Henie remain on the unfair list, however, which also includes the Screen Actors' Guild.

Four A's began its battle last October in behalf of the American Guild of Variety Artists, one month previous to the opening of the road tour of the Revue, which features the film ice skater and in which she owns a half interest. Wirtz's position then was that he previously had a minimum basic agreement with AGVA, but that it was not honored by the Los Angeles local and that he was thru with AGVA unless the members of the casts wanted a contract. Meantime, the performers signed individual contracts with Wirtz.

While the show was in Indianapolis, Wirtz agreed to deal with Four A officials on the situation, and told them they would get together if AGVA could prove it had a majority of members working in his show. Walter Greaza, national administrative director of AGVA, sent a (See 4 A'S DROPS FIGHT on page 29)

Lecturers Organize To Meet War Pros

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The highly lucrative lecture field, which has had one-third of its gross business (of approximately $3,000,000 a year) cut off since the war, has organized into the American Platform Guild and held its first annual convention Friday (15) at Town Hall to discuss its problems.

Presided over by Lowell Thomas, the speakers discussed among themselves the issues of wartime free speech on the platform, contract responsibilities with respect to cancellations and substitutions, transportation problems, club budgets to pay for lectures, entertainment in wartime, exclusive appearances and authors appearing at book fairs to plug their literary works while on lecture tours.

Main reasons for the dip in the lecture b. o. during the past year has been the slimming attendance of patrons who are doing full-time war work and the transportation difficulties of both lecturer and ticket holder. At one time the number of lecturegoers in the country was estimated at 5,000,000;

Many in East Close or Drop Shows As Result of Pleasure Driving Ban; Ballrooms Hit; In-Town Spots OK

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Only ray of hope to come out of Washington this week on a possible relaxing of the curb on pleasure driving was a statement by Charles F. Phillips, OPA official, that, barring bad weather, ban in all Eastern States may be lifted at close of winter heating season, when transportation facilities won't be needed to carry fuel oil. Phillips added, however, that no official decision had yet been reached. Meanwhile the OPA edict of last Friday (8) has night club, hotel, ballroom and theater business throughout the restricted area doing nip-ups. Countless off-the-line night spots and roadhouses along the Atlantic seaboard have already folded, with more expected to drop out within the next few weeks. On the other hand, clubs and theaters within easy reach of public conveyances are doing unusually good business.

Much confusion reigns acent the request of Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, that persons refrain from using taxicabs to travel to places of amusement. Many cities, including New York, have taken this as an appeal to John Q. Public's patriotism. Other cities, such as Baltimore, regard it as an order and have already penalized cab drivers caught depositing passengers in front of places of amusement. Cabbies' defense is that passengers give them only an address or instructions to stop at the "corner" (See Ban on Pleasure Driving on page 11)

FDR To Push Over-All Limit On Incomes; Fight Expected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—President Roosevelt is standing pat on his plan to extend the $25,000 salary limit to all types of income, including return on investments and agency and service fees. Despite rumors that with the convening of the new Congress salary ceiling would be relaxed sufficiently to permit high-bracket earners to continue reaping unlimited income, the Chief Executive has come forward with the announcement that he is seeking to eliminate further all loopholes still existing. At the same time, as stated in The Billboard six weeks ago, the President has expressed a desire for Congress to go a step further and slap on an over-all income ceiling. Whether he will have to resort to executive order remains to be seen.

Plugging of the loopholes does not mean that recent clarifying interpretations to the benefit of performers, such as deduction of ordinary and necessary expenses (agency fees) and other expenses normally deductible in computing federal income tax, would be rescinded.

Most obvious effect of an over-all ceiling would be the end of performer status controversy as far as income ceiling is concerned. Whether name bands and top radio stars are salaried employees or independent contractors would make little difference in ultimate income, as latter term could no longer exempt big earners, whether or not their incomes were derived from salaries.

Legit field, which so far has come thru the ceiling turmoil comparatively unaffected, would come in for its share if investment returns were also shaved to the salary level. Producers of hit (See FDR TO PUSH LIMIT on page 8)

20th Backing Stock Plan; Survey of Cities Continues

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—20th Century-Fox's attempt to set up a rotary stock circuit throughout the country gained momentum this week with the assignment of Alfred Harding, of Actors' Equity, to make a survey of Bridgeport, New Haven, Providence and Boston. A report on other New England towns, which he investigated two weeks ago, has already been submitted to the film company, which is footing the bill for the entire survey.

Film company idea is to set up a regular legit producing unit and open stock on a nationwide scale, featuring film players. Harding, who was borrowed from Equity for the job, is checking on available theaters, seating capacities, what terms theater owners will consider, the theatrical labor situation, what has been done in legit before in the respective towns, the possibilities of organizing groups into subscription audiences and what plays the localities would be interested in and whether the plan would conflict with present road bookings.

Survey may not be finished for some time, because Harding is planning to cover New York State also. Survey, he said, may extend as far as the West Coast.

Transportation facilities will not be taken into consideration until completion of the survey.

Since this move got under way, other

If It's Not One Thing . . .

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 16.—Thursday morning (8) a delivery truck rolled up to the Kingstown Inn in neighboring North Kingstown and for the first in a fortnight the dine-dance spot's kitchen was stocked with meat. That same day OPA's ban on pleasure driving went into effect, and the night's business so bad Manager Harold Johnson canceled orchestra's booking for the balance of the week—if not longer.

GM Morale Shows Plan More Dates

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Plans for an increase in coverage in the third series of General Motors' Produce for Victory shows are being completed here, but remain dependent upon allocation of film for this morale builder. Motion pictures used with each show are designed to convey a definite message and cannot be replaced by reissues or other films, according to E. R. (Dick) Roberts, in charge of the entire program.

Plans for 1943 call for use of a single unit instead of three separately and simultaneously produced, as was done last year. This will reduce wartime operating problems, as well as the amount of film required. One company will go on the road about April 15, to stay out for four months, and the second unit is slated to go out about September 1.

Shows will play 40 cities this year instead of 33 covered in 1942, and an audience of 900,000 is expected, in contrast to 650,600 played to in a total of 376 performances last year. Attendance at the second series increased about 30 per cent, making the higher goal for 1943 within reach.

$10 Hike in AEA Mins Up to WLB

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Signing of pact between Actors' Equity Association and the League of New York Theaters allowing for a $10 per week minimum pay increase ($50 to $60), nine months before the present five-year agreement expires, hinges on okays from the War Labor Board for the salary increase and from Equity council, allowing for extra rehearsals.

It was a bloodless negotiation, the entire problem being disposed of in a single meeting of the League's board of governors, lasting an hour and a half.

Paul Dulzell, executive secretary of Equity, will present council with the League's counter proposal to allow for an extra day of rehearsals for dramas and two for musicals coming off the road to open on Broadway, to be paid at pro-rata rehearsal pay instead of straight pay. It is felt that the WLB will allow the hike, since the $50 minimum has applied for the last four years, regardless of increased living costs. As for the League's proposal, it is felt that Equity may counter by okaying one day for musicals and none for dramas.

No other changes were proposed in the basic agreement, which will come up for renewal in September. Managers were ready to grant the increase quickly under an oral agreement that it would be incorporated in the new basic agreement. By that time living costs may conceivably take a sharp rise, but Equity would be bound to accept the $60 minimum. Provisions have been made, however, to consult with each other if living costs rise higher than 20 per cent over last year.

Chi Publicity Space Increases Despite Wartime Conditions

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—With the addition of several new outlets in print and on the air, the local possibilities for publicity for acts and attractions are better than they have been for a number of years in spite of the fact that publications are forced to limit their size due to wartime restrictions.

The Chicago Times will begin to publish a daily chatter column Monday (18), to be conducted by Irv Kupcinet, of the sports department. For the last couple of weeks Kupcinet has been making the rounds of the entertainment places to acquaint himself with the amusement field, and has indicated that he will be in the market for newsy items. This feature will probably compete with the Town Tattler column conducted by Nate Gross in The Herald-American, which uses plenty of show business gossip. Another American outlet is Ashton Stevens, drama editor, who devotes his column to local amusements.

Sam Lesner, cafe editor of The Chicago Daily News, is now in the market for more cafe news than ever before, due to comparatively fewer cafe openings cutting down the review space. The two News editorial page columnists, Howard Vincent O'Brien and Robert M. Yoder, also take up show biz angles from time to time.

At The Sun, Wauhila La Hay, the new drama, cafe and movie reviewer, devotes generous space to nitery developments and makes the rounds hunting for news. On the same paper, columnist W. A. S. Douglas writes frequently about show business, and June Provines devotes much space in her column to local nitery tidbits.

Other cafe reviewers on the dailies, among them Charlie Dawn of The American, Bill Davidson of The Tribune and William Leonard of The Journal of Commerce are regular users of cafe news.

Heated competition among local amusement weeklies has resulted in much free publicity. Originally, This Week in Chicago had the field to itself. Some three years ago, Nite Life joined the hunting grounds, spot lighting the smaller niteries and acts. A few weeks ago Carl Cons brought out Our Town, a new weekly built along the lines of Cue in New York. It goes in for feature stories on acts and attractions working locally. Also, The Shopping News, advertising sheet distributed twice weekly in local communities, has recently added an amusement page, with space for editorial features.

On the radio, Hal Tate and Nikki Kaye are conducting showbiz gossip shots over WCFL and WAIT, using news, views and features, and bringing up cafe and theater acts for interviews. Other stations are also employing the interview gag.

Md. Liquor Laws May Be Changed

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Sweeping changes in the liquor laws of Maryland, involving increases in license fees ranging from $15 to $500, have been recommended by Governor O'Conor's commission studying existing liquor regulations. The commission has gone on record in favor of a reduction in the number of places where alcoholic beverages may be purchased, shortening of hours of sale in such places and an increase in the fees for various types of licenses.

Specifically, the commission recommended that all licensed places close at 1 a.m. and that those operating on Sunday not be permitted to open until 2 p.m.; that beer taverns close on Sundays and that the license fee be raised from $60 to $75; that sale of package goods in bars, taverns and restaurants be discontinued; that the license fees of hotels and restaurants be raised from $750 to $1,250 and the tavern fee from $500 to $750, and that hotels and other places which maintain more than one bar be required to pay a fee for each additional bar equal to one third of their annual license fee.

The recommendations will be taken up by the Maryland Legislature during its 1943 biennial session, which gets under way early in January.

Armstrong Shows Strong in India

Calcutta, India.
Editor The Billboard:

Just a line to let you know that my two shows, the American Vaudeville Company and the American Circus, are still running well in India, Burma and the Far East, after all of these years. The natives love flesh entertainment and we (the other six members of my family) give it to them in three-hour shows.

American films, now showing in 1,000 houses throughout India, are by far the most popular form of entertainment here, and more financially successful than pictures imported by any other country. English dramas and comedies are the favorites among the official class.

Good luck to all of my friends in show business in the States.

Sincerely yours,
CAPT. J. ARMSTRONG.

New St. Louis Dept. O. O.s Fire Hazards

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16.—Regular inspections of night clubs, taverns, theaters, hotels and all places of entertainment or public assembly will be conducted by a newly created Fire Prevention Bureau, a division of the St. Louis Fire Department, set up by an ordinance signed here this week by Mayor William Dee Becker. Signing of the ordinance is an aftermath of the Boston fire.

The local Cocoanut Grove has undergone complete redecoration, and many other spots are stripping their walls and ceilings of anything that might incur the wrath of the new board of inspection.

The new bureau is given authority to issue orders to correct any hazards and to levy a fine of $25 for each day the conditions are not remedied. A fire marshal will head the organization, with an assistant fire marshal and an unspecified number of inspectors.

Davis Gets Frolic; Cafe Life, Royal Casino To Reopen

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Benny Davis has leased the site of the late Frolics Club and, after redecorating it, will reopen it as Benny Davis's Frolics. Joe Moss, veteran cafe operator, will manage the room.

Harry Finkelstein, owner of the 51 Club and of the Ringside Bar here, plans to reopen the Royal Casino, which Kenneth Later and Abe Wasser ran for five weeks recently. Belle Baker is being set for the opening show.

Joe Howard has opened Broadway Gardens, on the site of the old Zimmerman's Restaurant, and is featuring himself and Kay Parsons.

The site of the quick-shut Cafe Life, whose equipment was auctioned off last month, is being taken over by a new group. May reopen under the name of the Cockatoo.

Latin Quarter continues to be the biggest cafe grosser of New York. Has been averaging 25G a week and climbed to 35G last week. Diamond Horseshoe is second biggest grosser on the West Side, and the Copacabana the biggest business puller on the East Side. The Copacabana opened its new show Thursday, but without Tony DeMarco, who dropped out due to pleurisy. He and his partner were replaced in Show Time by the Barrys and at the Copa by Cabot and Dresden. Larry Ceballos was called in to finish the dance routines started by DeMarco.

Peggy Wood will double from Blithe Spirit at the Booth Theater into the Monte Carlo Casino next Thursday, making her cafe debut.

"Ice Follies" Huge 154G So Far in Phil

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Ice Follies of 1943, skedded until January 23 at the Philadelphia Arena for a month's engagement that started Christmas night, has already rung up a new local record. For the first two weeks, with an additional Friday and Saturday opening, making a total of 14 playing days with three Saturday matinees during that time, the ice show has grossed a record $154,363, ducats scaled from $1.14 to $2.85. Attendance figures also represent a new high, the 14 days finding almost capacity crowds at each performance, to make a total of 93,795 persons.

Arena seats 6,000.

Last year, for 12 playing days, the Follies scored a new box-office high with $120,813 and 86,000 in attendance.

Advance sale of the remaining two weeks has been good. While attendance for the remaining performances is being hit some by the ban on pleasure driving, adequate public transportation facilities assure big weeks, and Follies is figured on grossing better than a quarter of a million dollars on its local engagement.

Miranda Nixes Arena Show Idea

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Necessity of returning to the Coast has caused cancellation of plans for Carmen Miranda to head a vaude show which was to open at the Pittsburgh Arena in February under auspices of the Arena Managers' Association.

The AMA is still interested in doing a vaude show headed by Miss Miranda and is trying to get a commitment for her next time off between pics.

'Horseshoe' Big in Ft. Worth

FORT WORTH, Jan. 16.—The skeletonized presentation of the Billy Rose Diamond Horseshoe Revue, which has just ended a three-day stand at the Worth Theater here, played to capacity houses four times daily at 55 cents admission. House seats 900.

TONY PASTOR

(This Week's Cover Subject)

TONY PASTOR and his "Let's Do It" have been doing it again and again for operators of theaters, ballrooms and locations the past couple of years. The maestro's throaty singing and infectious personality have really caught on with the paying customers of the land. His "Paradiddle Joe" has helped beat a rat-tat-tat into the memories of an entertainment-conscious public.

Pastor, a small-town Connecticut boy, started out in life as a carpenter, but was inspired by his admiration of Jimmy Dorsey to take up the saxophone. In 1928 he joined Irving Aaronson's Commanders as vocalist and hot sax man and remained with him for three years until he opened his own night club in Hartford, Conn., conducting the spot's band. When the depression hit the club folded and Tony was a sideman again, playing for some of the top swing orks, including Smith Ballew, Joe Venuti, Vincent Lopez and Artie Shaw. He picked up the baton once more when Shaw became ill on the Coast and conducted the Shaw ork during most of its Hotel Pennsylvania engagement in New York. When Shaw disbanded, Tony began organizing his own crew, drawing many of the best musicians from the Shaw outfit.

Since then the Pastor band has appeared at such choice locations and theaters as Casa Manana, Hollywood; Lincoln Hotel, New York; Paramount Theater, New York; Loew's Capitol, Washington; Hamid's Pier, Atlantic City, and the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

Bluebird records the band, and Consolidated Radio Artists manages.

THE ban on pleasure driving has proved a boon to local cabbies. A year ago, cab drivers on the daytime shift were averaging around $18 to $20 weekly, including tips. Those working the hacks at night hit $30 tops. Today, the daylight cabbies are making themselves no less than $50 a week, and the night-shift boys are hitting as high as $100. . . . The loopy plot of the new smash musical, Something for the Boys, wherein a lass working with a new kind of metal finds that she's turning into a human radio receiver, is an indirect growth of a gag yarn sent out by the Mutual press department some years ago on the opening of a new transmitter. The yarn told of a fellow suffering because he had become a human receiver and couldn't tune out the noises. Much to everybody's surprise, the thing was taken seriously, getting reprints everywhere as a scientific miracle; and it still pops up in one form or another every once in a while. . . . Oscar Levant, discussing psychiatry and his own brain-doctor recently, was asked why he didn't try Dr. A. A. Brill, one of the top men. "Not on your life!" Levant shrieked. "Brill cures you!" . . . PM last week did a story on the Jack Benny troupe entertaining the sailors at Sheepshead Bay last week, remarking that such additional talent was brought along as "Sammy Kaye," etc. All of which was pretty tough on Danny Kaye, who gave up his only day off in order to play the show. . . . On the Invitation to Learning program last week, Franklin P. Adams remarked that he first saw O. Henry in 1908. Later in the same program one of the scholars remarked that O. Henry died 37 years ago. Invitation to learning? Scholars? . . . The travel problem is getting worse and worse. Now reports are coming in that trains are ejecting civilians in the middle of the run, in order to make room for more soldiers.

UP COLUMNIST BOB MUSEL has popped up in England, where he is covering the war. . . . The World Telegram's George Ross tore his hand opening a club soda bottle last week, and had to be hospitalized. . . . Arthur Klein is writing an autobiographical article, with The Saturday Evening Post interested in it. . . . Singer-actress Naya Greca has opened a dress shop in the Buckingham Hotel. . . . Paul Nord, 20th Century-Fox writer, has written a play about the Nazi invasion of Greece, and K. Alki, Athenian star, will produce and act it at the Barbizon-Plaza February 26 to 28. . . . Monte Proser has gone to Miami to recuperate from his recent illness. . . . Gus Christo, Copacabana captain, is out of the hospital after a seven-week siege.

N. Y. Clamps Down on Clubs

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Local night clubs went under stricter censorship this week when Police Commissioner Valentine revealed that he had added three new regulations to the police code regulating niteties. However, enforcement of these new rules is being held up by injunction proceedings filed by two local concessionaires, Richards & Hassen and Abe Ellis.

The suit seeks to restrain the enforcement of the new rule that "for the duration of the war the taking of a photograph of a patron or patrons . . . is prohibited" except by a "duly accredited member of the press." This rule would wipe out the increasingly lucrative photo concessions in local clubs.

The rule followed a recent complaint of a sailor that he and his friend were snappet at a local club and then, when they refused to pay $5 for each photo, were thrown out. Most local club photographers charge $1 a photo, and their contracts with the club management often prohibit photographing servicemen at the bar, "offensive solicitation" of patrons and snapping them without their permission, and also require tearing up the negatives when a patron objects.

The injunction suit will be heard January 22 in Supreme Court.

The other two new police regulations are: "Section 22: No female shall be permitted to appear in any scene, sketch or act with her breasts of the lower part of her torso uncovered, or so thinly covered as to appear uncovered." And "Section 23: No obscene or indecent language or conduct, offensive to decency or propriety, shall be indulged in by the entertainers or other participants in any scene, sketch or act."

Night club owners were quick to assure the local newspapers that, of course, their shows never did and never will tolerate indecency or nudity.

SLC House Open For Live Shows

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 16.—After being closed for 14 weeks, the Lake Theater, operated by Andy Floor on a vaudeville basis, has reopened as the Lyric Theater. M. S. Smart has been named house manager. Announced policy will be first and second-run films, usually double-features, at pop prices; but spot will be open for flesh shows, vaudeville or traveling troupes when available.

Property is operated by the Clayton Investment Company for the Mormon Church. Because of the church connection, there will be none of the flaming youth, dangers of dope and damaged goods type of films, and no strippers in the stageshows, but that's as far as the censorship goes. Girls, musicals and any of the regular run of films are okay.

Miranda to Coast; Roxy Wanted More

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Current Roxy show, which grossed $218,000 the first two weeks of its run, is closing January 19 because headliner Carmen Miranda is pulling out. Brazilian singer was originally booked for two weeks, with options for two more. House figured it could get two more smash weeks out of the show, but the singer wanted to leave for Hollywood after four weeks.

Possibilities

GLEANED BY MEMBERS OF THE BILLBOARD STAFF

The purpose of this department is to benefit producers, bookers, agents and others concerned with the exploitation of talent in the major indoor fields thru The Billboard's coverage of every branch of the show business.

SHOWMEN INTERESTED IN SPECIFIC "POSSIBILITIES" MAY ADDRESS THEM IN CARE OF THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF THE BILLBOARD, 1564 BROADWAY.

For LEGIT MUSICAL

JOHNNY COY — young ballet-tap dancer recently at the Copacabana, New York night spot. New around New York, Coy is a lively, nimble tapster who uses leaps and spins to create excellent effects. He still needs polish—he mugs too much and waves his arms around too freely—but he has real possibilities as a top-notch dancer. Should be ripe soon for a revue spot.

For VAUDE

CAROL RAYE—young and fresh-looking coloratura soprano now making her pro debut at the Latin Quarter, New York night spot. She's a lovely youngster who has a thoroughly pleasing voice, a nice delivery and an attractive personality. Should develop. She's ready now for a spot in a vaude unit, followed by work as a vaude single and on the air.

New Set-Up for Detroit Censors

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Wholesale reorganization of Detroit's censorship set-up went into effect Monday (11) with the transfer of Sgt. Joseph Kollar, who has headed stageshow censorship since the death of Lieut. Lester Potter three years ago, to the Special Investigation Squad.

Lieut. Charles W. Snyder, who has censored motion pictures for about eight years, has been named to take over all censorship activity, combining both stage and screen divisions for the first time in over 30 years. Edward Hicks, former vaudeville actor, who has been assistant to Kollar for several years, remains in the new set-up, and the division is being enlarged with the addition of two new men—Howard Stewart, graduate attorney who has been on the police since 1927, and Stanley Anderson, formerly a musician, who was selected for his show-business experience.

New plans call for rotation of the four men between stage and screen censorship, making the first time that such an interchange of assignments has been possible.

Negro Guild Anniversary

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Negro Actors' Guild celebrated its fifth anniversary last week as a welfare and social organization for Negro performers. In line with taking care of their needy, Guild distributed $1,200 last year, paid the expenses, whole or in part, for 11 funerals, and gave out 50 Christmas baskets.

"Ice-Capades" 250G in Hub

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 16.—Nine-day gross for "Ice-Capades" at the Boston Gardens was $250,000, with 200,000 admissions. Price scale was from 85 cents to $3.30, with 14 performances given.

"Ice-Capades," now playing at the arena here, is running ahead of last year's grosses by about 15 per cent.

Wilson Gets Okay

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—John C. Wilson, who closed "The Wife Takes a Child" in Boston on Saturday (2) for rewriting, was given permission to open the play before the required eight weeks by Equity.

St. Louis Cracks Down on Taverns

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16.—Wohl's Restaurant and Bar was ordered to close its bar and make no liquor sales January 5 and 6 as a penalty for serving drinks to minors. Officials report that other taverns which are gathering places for servicemen and unescorted women are under close scrutiny, and the investigation now under way may result in more closings.

Vernon Dalton, manager of Elliot's Bar, was recently stuck with a heavy fine for serving a drink to a 19-year-old girl. As a result he has posted Ned White, piano player, by the front entrance to stop any femmes below the age limit from entering the place. Other downtown spots are doing the same, waiters and waitresses being particularly careful because they are also subject to fine, along with the manager of the place.

Burney Wohl, owner of Wohl's, received permission to serve food on the two days he was forced to close his bar. Harry Soffer, attorney for Wohl, estimated the restriction cost the spot in excess of $1,000 in revenue.

H'w'd House Wins Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—The Theater Mart, where "The Drunkard" has been playing for 10 years, has won a $954.50 damage suit filed by William Mondshine, a salesman, who charged he suffered to that amount when evicted from the theater last September.

Municipal Judge May Lahey ruled that Mondshine had not been ejected. Mondshine testified that he and his wife, Rose, went to the theater and, after they had been seated, he was informed he was in the wrong seat, even though his stub and seat in which he was seated matched. Later, he said, he was evicted from the theater after being "cursed" by an attendant.

Burt Bunch, an usher, and Phil Helm, assistant manager of the theater, denied Mondshine's charges and countered with the assertion that he failed to complain until after the show and then demanded his money back. Helm said Mondshine's tickets were mismarked, and he asked him to move to an adjoining seat to make room for a birthday party which was set to occupy the table at which Mondshine was sitting.

NBC Plans Further Steps To Eliminate "Vulgarity" From Camp Shows; Fly Sets Probe

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—With the failure of conferences held last summer between the government and the networks and indies to stop an alleged rise of vulgarity on the air, NBC is prepared to take drastic steps to prevent comedians from going overboard on their jokes when broadcasting before soldier audiences. At the same time, according to Clarence L. Menser, NBC vice-president in charge of programs, along with the nets' efforts, further co-operation of the army is requested.

Indicating at a press conference this week that an investigation is under way, James L. Fly, chairman of the FCC, claimed a large number of complaints about "vulgarity" on radio programs have been received. At the same time a protest about the increasing use of vulgarity was lodged by the Ensley Highland Methodist Church of Birmingham, Ala., with broadcasting companies and newspaper press services.

NBC, Menser said, realizes that the problem is fundamentally one for broadcasters, and is coping with it as best it can; but, concurrently with the nets' warnings, army authorities could do much by ordering comedians to steer away from off-color remarks. After the Washington conference, which resulted in the sending of warnings to comedians by Lieut.-Col. Edward T. Kirby, director of public relations for the radio division of the War Department, pointing out the need for stricter vigilance of scripts and ad lib remarks, Sydney Strotz, vice-president in charge of NBC's Hollywood office, spoke personally with NBC comedians and outlined the problem. At the same time, Menser continued, a stricter censorship of scripts was exercised.

Menser noted that the problem was not a new one and that the network has always kept a close watch to eliminate questionable material.

"At present, with some comedians entertaining at as many as 16 army camps a week," he said, "many of them don't realize that the soldiers' gales of laughter caused by a raised eyebrow or a gesture accompanying a joke can be misinterpreted by audiences listening at home."

Several times in the past when comedians have insisted on using off-color jokes in spite of warnings and script cuts, they have been plugged off the air, and Menser indicated that this procedure would continue if warnings were not heeded.

"As a last resort," he said, "we would cut out radio performances from army camps altogether." He added that he did not want to see this happen, but it conceivably might if the situation got too serious.

Regarding the recent criticisms of vulgarity on the air, Jan Schimel, CBS commercial editor, stated: "The Columbia network has had no complaints against specific programs or artists. Columbia's editorial staff has adhered to basic points of policy, which have been in effect and a matter of public record since 1929, respecting the use of comedy material and the indiscriminate use of such words as 'hell' or 'damn.' The network will permit no programs or announcements that are slanderous, obscene or profane, either in theme or treatment." It is the responsibility of the nets and the comedians, he added, to take active steps to apply and enforce these principles. He failed to indicate just what those steps would be.

Kate Smith III, But Improving

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Condition of Kate Smith has improved sufficiently to warrant going ahead with plans to broadcast her Friday night show next week (23) from Steel Pier, Atlantic City, before an army and navy audience.

Singer was forced off the air last week, for the first time in 12 years, by a severe attack of gallstones. At first it was thought that an operation would be necessary, but her temperature of 105 and blood pressure went down speedily. In her absence from the program yesterday Paul Muni filled in, along with Henny Youngman, Leonard Sues and Ted Collins.

Unless her condition takes a reverse, she'll be out of bed in time to broadcast next week, according to her physician.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Bing Crosby and Bob Hope will make their first radio appearance when Crosby does a guest shot on the Hope show Tuesday (26).

WLW-RKO Publicity Gives Hitler Film Big Cincy Opening

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—WLW-RKO promoted picture, Hitler's Children, which had its world premiere Thursday in 50 key cities, with this city the focusing point, got away to a potent opening here, with the WLW's public relations staff, headed by Roger Baker, Bill Barlow and Bill McCluskey, and RKO promoters doing a sound publicity job. Pic is based on the book, Education for Death, by Gregor Ziemer, WLW's senior news analyst. Executives of WLW and RKO were hosts to theater execs and members of the press at a cocktail and dinner party at the Netherland Plaza Hotel Thursday night.

Bonita Granville and H. B. Warner, who have prominent roles in the pic, were brought in from the Coast to make personal appearances at the Albee. Also in attendance were Charles Koerner, head of the RKO studio; Eddie Golden, producer of the picture; Jerry Lieber, studio publicity head, and Terry Turner, RKO exploiter. Col. Arthur Fruedenfeld, RKO district manager here, was toastmaster, and principal speakers included Ohio's Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert; James D. Shouse, WLW's vice-president; Miss Granville and Warner.

Promotion campaign in Cincy included broadcasts aired over WLW of incidents from the picture, with Warner, Miss Granville, Ziemer and others appearing on the shows. Following the dinner at the hotel, WLW-RKO were hosts to guests at the premiere. Polishing off the night's activities was a vaude presentation, with WLW Promotions, Inc., under Manager Bill McCluskey, providing the talent.

Cincy Newscaster Sues AFRA for 25G

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—A suit seeking judgment for $25,000 against the American Federation of Radio Artists' local, its president, Roger Baker, and Executive Secretary Andre Caron, was filed in United States District Court here Thursday (14) by Edwin T. Elliot, news broadcaster for WKRC here. Elliot, in his petition, said he is a former member of the local subsidiary of AFRA, but that he resigned in a written notice to the local August 27.

Suit resulted from charges said to have been made by AFRA, which included an allegation that Elliot's actions had been injurious to the union, that he contributed to the breaking of the AFRA majority at Station WCPO here, that he contributed to the destruction of AFRA's bargaining position, and that he disregarded his obligation to pay his dues.

Elliot termed the charges malicious and, in addition to the judgment, he seeks to have the expulsion order declared illegal and void.

More Ex-Film Gals Get Spiel Shots Over New York Indies

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Movie and stage careers have been leading to Broadway and Hollywood gossip air shows for an increasing number of actresses in the past months, with Judith Allen the latest to take a try at it. Miss Allen began a daily series this week over WPAT, Paterson, following in the footsteps of Paula Stone on WNEW, Adrienne Ames on WHN, and Helen Twelvetrees, who was recently heard on WMCA.

Miss Allen came to WPAT for a 15-minute program heard Monday thru Saturday, featuring interviews, celebrity news and comment on the entertainment world.

Miss Stone took over Bill Burns'

Broadway Beam six weeks ago over WNEW, and in addition to this is starting a Monday-to-Friday Hollywood news program on the same station from 4 to 4:15 January 18.

Adrienne Ames, who has been with WHN for a year and a half, appearing on Kitchen Kapers and Gloom Dodgers, has had her own program, Fan Magazine of the Air, for the past five months. She features Hollywood talk and gossip.

Another program of this type was Helen Twelvetrees Goes to the Movies, which Miss Twelvetrees did over WMCA for about six months prior to her leaving the station several months ago.

Australians Want US Entertainm't Not News Spiels

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The most important role that American radio propaganda can play in Australia is by sending over more and more musical, entertainment and variety shows, Frank J. Cuhel said here yesterday (15) upon his arrival from Sydney, where he was overseas correspondent for the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Thru the shortwaving of many popular American shows which are rebroadcast over local Australian stations and thru recordings arranged by the OWI of variety shows Australians can get the best view of America, according to Cuhel. Australians, he says, much prefer this type of program to news and other types of propaganda program from America, as they can get all the news they want from the BBC and local stations.

Since the war, the government-owned Australia Broadcasting Commission, whose stations are devoted mainly to news and cultural programs, has made available its news services to Australia's privately owned commercial stations.

Cuhel spoke at a luncheon tendered him by Miller McClintock, Mutual network president, at which David H. Bailey, director of the Australian News and Information Bureau in the U. S., was a guest. The two vital jobs being done by American fighting forces, he said, are wiping the Japs out of the Pacific and constantly improving relations between our country and Australia.

While praising the conduct of American troops in Australia, he lashed out at certain reports in American newspapers which finally turn up in Australia that praise only the efforts of our troops and do not give the Australians their share of credit for victories.

Survey on Papers' Radio Ad Rates

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—In an effort to stop the New York Newspaper Advertising Managers' Association from extending its policy of charging national rates to retailers mentioning radio programs in New York newspaper ads, a survey among newspaper-owned radio stations throughout the country is being made by the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

The query, which will attempt to find out the attitude of newspaper-owned stations toward higher rates when ads mention radio shows, will be sent out by Lew Avery, director of NAB's bureau of advertising and promotion, at the request of the board of directors of the sales promotion managers of the NRDGA. The matter was brought up this week at an evening meeting between convention sessions of the NRDGA.

Altho the issue is still confined to New York City, the association is watching developments to assist members affected by this policy. That the new measure might fall of its own weaknesses, because it hits basically at retailers promoting their various activities rather than promoting merchandise, was indicated by association spokesmen. They said that the insertion of mention of the advertiser's radio program was similar to the practice whereby retailers often advertise in one paper to call readers' attention to displays in another paper.

Protest WNYC Okay

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Fifteen major clear-channel radio stations have moved to force a hearing on the Federal Communication Commission's recent move granting WNYC, New York, the right to operate on WCCO (Minneapolis-St. Paul) wave length. HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16.—Amos 'n' Andy leave the Campbell Soups sponsorship February 19. Blackface team moved from NBC to CBS April, 1939.

Altho Campbell was free to cancel the contract during 1942 because of a war clause, the show was continued despite the tin shortage. Offer for 30-minute show was based upon a broadcast of Victory Theater for the government last year.

Radio Talent

New York By JERRY LESSER

THE entire cast of the NBC Pan-American Holiday program were guests at the home of Vice-President and Mrs. Wallace. . . . PAUL FORD is playing Mr. Ace's attorney on Easy Aces. . . . When BERNARD LENROW played George Washington on the JACK BENNY program recently at Fort Bevins he had to play the part in full costume. BENNY said he was relieved to find that LENROW could cover his mustache with adhesive tape and make-up and didn't have to shave it off. It was so cold he was afraid his upper lip would freeze with the fur removed. . . . HARRY NEVILLE has deserted radio for his first love—the theater—and is on tour with GLORIA SWANSON and FRANCIS LEDERER in a group of three one-act plays. . . . LALIVE BROWNELL and OGDEN MILES did a grand job on a little show called Miss Jones of 22d Street over WMCA last Tuesday. . . . GILBERT BRAUN, one of New York's top-flight press agents, went into the army January 15. Wants action and is trying to get into the paratroop division. . . . BOB NOVAK, the young director, is one of the cleverest of card magicians. His work is reminiscent of that of the late NATE LEIPSIG.

TWO paintings by HOWARD CLANEY, announcer on CBS's American Melody Hour, which are on exhibition in New York City, were inspired by actual experience in the war. Several years ago CLANEY gave up radio to study painting in Paris. He was still in Paris when the Nazis took over that city. He managed to escape to the United States, however, where he set down on canvas some of his last tragic remembrances of France. Two of his best, Confusion on a French Road and Paris Air Raid, are included in a display of his work at the Neighborhood Club in Brooklyn, N. Y. . . . GERTRUDE BERG, creator and "Molly" of the radio serial The Goldbergs, received a letter from the boys stationed at the same army camp with ALFRED RYDER (Molly's radio "son," "Sammy") in which they elect her as their camp mother because of her sincere understanding and war philosophy. MRS. BERG responded by adopting all of them as her "sons" for the duration and is kept very busy writing to all of them and making up boxes of goodies which she sends her "sons" weekly.

MOST youngsters just out of school are fine on general auditions where they can use prepared material, but fall down completely when called for competitive auditions where they must read and interpret intelligently at sight. Since the latter is the only kind of audition that should count for anything in radio, it seems to me that emphasis should be put on sight reading for all who aspire to become radio actors. In the main, directors don't have the time to seek out too much new talent so that the newcomer's first audition decides whether his name is placed in the director's file of prospective talent or is thrown into the wastebasket. Youngsters should learn to read at sight thru daily practice. Read unfamiliar plays and scripts until sight reading becomes second nature. And remember that a radio actor doesn't attain perfection in a day, so don't give up. And when you take your first audition and you fail to make the grade, remember that you may have had an off day or that maybe you weren't good enough yet, so keep on studying and try to audition for that same director at a later date.

SOOO it remained for a radio-trained actress to show Hollywood that it could be wrong. But definitely. She is AGNES MOOREHEAD, who plays, among other roles, Mrs. Dithers on the Blondie program. Radio-wise, radio-trained AGNES got the New York film critics' award for the best feminine acting performance of 1942. Furthermore, AGNES received this award for her work in a film produced by another radio-trained technician, ORSON WELLES, who, until his first Hollywood venture with Citizen Kane, was practically sustained by radio while developing that peculiar genius of his. . . . Rumor has it that MARGIE MORROW, casting director at CBS, is leaving that firm the end of this month to become a talent scout for Warner Bros. Let's hope that they allow her to discover many other potential movie stars from the ranks of radio.

GIL LAMB, comedian on the Rudy Vallee show, coming into New York for a brief spell. . . . ED GARDNER will be the first guest on the new Sammy Kaye show for Old Gold (CBS), starting January 27. . . . BOB HAWK guesting on the Camel Caravan Friday (22).

A. L. Alexander's Mediation Board

Reviewed Monday, 9:15-10 p.m. Style—Human relations. Sustaining on WOR (New York) and the Mutual Network.

A. L. Alexander's Board of Mediation, which is not only head, shoulders, waist and knees above all its competition on the air but is also performing a highly valuable service in the general field of human relations, switched to the Mutual net last Monday (11), thereby increasing its own scope and bringing a tremendously interesting program to Mutual. The set-up is the same as usual—problems in human relations heard from the viewpoints of both sides in the dispute (instead of only one side) and with the mediation decisions being made by a three-man board of invited public figures (instead of by a single radio performer more interested in his own sanctimonious ego than in a true solution).

In any case, it's a sensible and immensely interesting formula. The first show on the net, unfortunately, wasn't entirely up to Alexander's usual standard—but even so, it was a fine program. Its fault lay in a couple of directions: The time of the program has been cut to 45 minutes from an hour, with a resultant effort to get in as many cases as possible and a consequent elision of the details and the cross-fire between disputants that are among the program's most fascinating features; and only a couple of cases on the show managed to present clear-cut conflicts. The programs, of course, vary with the cases presented, and it won't take Alexander long to get back to par, particularly if he offers fewer but more detailed problems. In any case, even this first show is a solid, dignified and highly entertaining stanza.

The initial panel of mediators included Norman Thomas, Dr. Phillips P. Elliott and Dr. Paul Dawson Eddy, and turned out to be one of the best this reporter has ever heard. Alexander himself led off the program with an introductory talk, expressing gratitude at being permitted to reach larger audiences thru the network tie, plugging the idea of mediation as more important than ever in these troublous times, and stressing the program's splendid theme phrase, "There are two sides to every story." The talk was a bit long, but very fine none the less, stressing as it did so many things that are sorely needed in the world today.

The five cases on the program (at least one too many) ranged from a 12-and-a-half-year-old lass who wanted her mother's permission to read adult fiction (a weak case as the leadoff, particularly since the child spoke as tho she'd learned her lines by rote) to a husband-wife tangle in which the lease to an apartment stood in the way of an immediate separation.

The program remains by long odds the finest thing of its sort that radio has ever attempted. Both Alexander and Mutual are to be congratulated on the new set-up.

Dale Carnegie

Dale Carnegie, the gent who makes friends and influences people, had better re-read his own book. He needs it.

He's erupting these nights over the Blue on a nightly five-minute shot giving brief biographies of people in the news. It's titled Little Known Facts, but the facts won't be any better known by the time Carnegie gets thru with them.

On the first shot his mealy-mouthed and painfully sanctimonious delivery gave a going-over to Eddie Rickenbacker, playing up the "spiritual" and "psychological" angles of the famous plane wreck. The spiel also went into a very brief history which had time to note that, during his childhood, Rickenbacker walked miles to save a dime for his widowed mother. It ended with Carnegie bleating, "Eddie Rickenbacker, I salute you!"

Under Carnegie's treatment, biography is made to seem one of the least exciting forms of fiction.

Gracie Fields

Reviewed Monday, 10:15-10:30 p.m. Style—Songs and comedy. Sponsor—American Cigarette and Cigar Co. (Pall Mall Cigarettes). Station—WJZ (New York) and the Blue Network.

Gracie Fields has cracked her five-minute spot on the Blue for Pall Mall Cigarettes in order to move to a 15-minute stint—and the improvement is tremendous. The faults that were so obvious and devastating in the shorter show have disappeared, and the new stanza emerges as a really fine program.

In the first place, the heavy overload of commercials that buried Miss Fields under their verbiage in the shorter show have been toned down to their proper place, and it now seems as tho the cigarettes were presenting Miss Fields, instead of vice versa. In the second place, Miss Fields has time enough and support enough to sock across to the full extent of her powers—which are considerable.

Her singing voice, as such, is far from being a world-beater, but she is one of the greatest song-saladies in the known world, creating terrific effects in both comedy tunes and ballads. And she can make even a pretty pointless joke (witness the one on the first expanded program) sound reasonably amusing thru her superlative handling of it.

She's backed by a fine orchestra conducted by Harry Sosnick and by a splendid male chorus which gets its own inning on musical tributes to the United Nations. In every way it's a splendid 15-minute program, a good deal more than three times better than the old five-minute shot.

"Ahoy America"

Reviewed Tuesday, 7:30-8 p.m. Style—Music and comedy. Sustaining on WGN (Chicago).

A new navy show, somewhat different from the general run in that it doesn't start with Anchors Aweigh and is presented as a rehearsal. It is designed to foster greater interest in the air naval technical training school at Navy Pier, from which the program emanates. Features Lieut. Orrin Tucker and his ork, the Navy Pier Glee Club and Mary Ann Mercer, vocalist. Produced and scripted by Morrison Wood. Jess Kirkpatrick, announcer, does an excellent job.

Following the theme song, Over the Rainbow, show starts with some palaver about rehearsal and continues the rehearsal theme thruout, an excellent cover-up for any slips. Following introduction of the cast, the ork plays Hip, Hip, Hooray, with vocals by the glee club, giving the show a peppy sendoff. Some comedy cross-fire that rings in navy and radio terms, then brief talks by Rear Admiral Albert Cushing Read, chief of the training school, and Captain E. A. Wallison, commanding officer of Navy Pier. More comedy chatter and query "Is Margie here?" Music by ork, then a wire from "Margie," who finally arrives in the person of Mary Ann Mercer, to whom the CPO explains the work being done by the students at the pier. A song, There Are Such Things, by the glee club, was put over nicely. Comedy poem and story by Mary Ann Mercer were only mildly amusing, but her song, This Louie of Mine, brought the show to a strong close. Sung in a clear, well modulated voice, devoid of frills, the number was beautifully done.

Show got off to an excellent start and provides a pleasant half-hour's entertainment.

"Junior Newscast"

Reviewed Wednesday, 5:45-6 p.m. Style—News. Sustaining on WOR (New York) and Mutual Broadcasting System.

Putting in its bid for juvenile attention in the late afternoon, when the junior ear is bent toward the rip-roaring adventure serials, Junior Newscast holds forth Mondays thru Fridays, conducted by Connie Desmond and 13-year-old Georgie Ward.

Program caught began with a brief and simple description of the latest war headlines. Kid then broke in with human-interest story of a firehouse cat and also tried to answer a riddle about geography, in the process of which a little education in sugar-coated doses was handed out. The day's American hero story was narrated by Desmond with appropriate sound effects and was a sure thing to meet with the approval and attention of youthful listeners.

The show is smoothly put together with news, stories, educational and human-interest features giving it a varied appeal. The kid asks questions which could conceivably be asked by a wide-awake youngster and the answers are simple without avoiding the main points.

Altho young children might like the hero story, it is hard to believe that the opening of Congress and the OPA ban on pleasure driving would fascinate them to the extent of missing up on their favorite serial which might be hitting the airwaves at that time. However, the show should be of value to older children who can get a clear view of some of the things which are going on around them without being talked down to.

Robert St. John

Reviewed Monday, 10-10:15 p.m. Style—News and comment. Sustaining over WEAF (New York) and National Broadcasting Co.

Based on his Sunday series, People, Robert St. John is now holding forth each Monday to Friday with personality sketches on the wartime leaders of the world. St. John, a former AP correspondent in the Balkans, was recently transferred to Washington after spending a year in London as NBC correspondent.

On his daily show he starts off with a short summary of the news and then goes into a colorful and chatty biography of the news personality of the day. On program heard he gave a vigorous account of the life and personality of Ernest King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet. He told of his early life, his career in the navy and his present vital responsibilities in salty, frank terms which did much to convey the forceful character of the wartime leader.

St. John's delivery is easy and colorful, and his down-to-earth, human analysis of the impact of the headliners on the average American should win wide audience for this new morning series.

"Let's Learn Spanish"

Reviewed Wednesday, 5:30-5:45 p.m. Style—Educational drama. Produced by Time and Life magazines in conjunction with WQXR (New York).

Intending to give the listener a working knowledge of Spanish in three months, WQXR and Time and Life magazines are presenting this language program in the form of a dramatic broadcast on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Professor L. A. Richards, Harvard semanticist, has selected the basic Spanish words needed by the average American to get around in Central and South America, and this vocabulary along with elementary grammar is incorporated into an informal playlet.

Joe, an average American, meets up with a Spanish friend, Pepe, who agrees to teach him a working vocabulary of Spanish. It's all made very simple, with Pepe giving a few words at a time and emphasizing their similarity to English cognates. Joe repeats the words and learns fast, being able to construct sentences almost from the first lesson. In case listeners are not able to catch on so quickly, they are urged to send for free word lists, which include all the vocabulary picked up by Joe, the model pupil.

The program is well paced, aimed to make the learning of Spanish a lark rather than a job. Leaving out the hard and fast and often complicated rules of the grammar book, show tries to make the learning process as painless as possible and should succeed in its intention to prepare listeners for business, social and political relations with South America if they listen carefully during the three-month course and study the word lists.

"Cresta Blanca Carnival"

Reviewed Wednesday, 9:15-10 p.m. Style—Variety. Sponsor—Schenley Distillers Corp. (Cresta Blanca Wines). Station—WOR (New York) and Mutual.

With the exit of Jack Pearl from the Cresta Blanca Carnival, the sponsors gathered a brilliant array of guest stars, increased Morton Gould's ork to 50 musicians and let the whole crew loose on what turned out to be a top-notch three-quarter hour variety show. On first show of new set-up Oscar Levant and George S. Kaufman shared the emcee honors, a Norman Corwin drama filled the play spot, while Benny Goodman, Olga Coelho and Brad Reynolds lent their talents to the musical portion of the program.

If the show seemed unbalanced, tending toward too much music and not enough comedy, it was because Levant and Kaufman were so successful with their casual banter at the beginning of the show that you wanted to hear more of them. They were not given the opportunity to get their teeth into any real comedy material, most of their dialog concerning build-ups to the musical numbers.

The outstanding orchestral and vocal numbers tumbled one on top of another. Gould gave out with some terrific arrangements of popular and semi-classical numbers, ably assisted by Reynolds. A spot was given to the Benny Goodman sextet, and Goodman further proved his versatility in his performance with Levant of Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue. Some unusual effects were created by Olga Coelho, Brazilian singer, who accompanied her singing with a guitar.

Corwin's play, concerned with a United Nations world free of Fascism 100 years hence, was played by a fine cast, with Gould's original futuristic music lending an eerie touch.

Show was heavy on commercials, delivered by Frank Gallop. Novelty plug for Cresta Blanca was okay first time, but lost its effect when repeated.

Show on the whole was a case of too many good things running off in too many directions. While the individual parts were excellent in themselves, there was nothing holding the show together. With a hot B. G. sextet number, an operatic soprano, a few comedy lines and a serious dramatic interlude following hot on each other's heels, there was little chance to sustain any one mood.

However, as first-class popular entertainment the show should prove one of the most popular of the season; and if future plans for guest stars already announced are any indication, a series of top shows is in store.

FDR TO PUSH LIMIT

Shows would have to kick back a good portion of profits, even tho the one hit came after a succession of flops. Angels would have little incentive to back shows if activities outside the theatrical field already brought them to the limit of what they could keep. Since motion picture companies are corporations and therefore exempt, they might remain almost exclusive backers of shows.

Indications that the President's quest for no opposition might go unanswered came from Senator Danaher (R.-Conn.) this week, when he stated he was prepared to lead a fight against the White House recommendations. It is known that many legislators would follow Danaher in attacking the plan.

"Full Speed Ahead"

(Forrest Theater)

PHILADELPHIA

A musical comedy with book by Rowland Leigh, music by Jean Schwartz and Irving Actman. Staged by Barrie O'Daniels. Dances and ensembles by Boots McKenna. Presented by Producing Associates, Inc., under the direction of J. J. Shubert. Cast includes Emma Otero, Jack Good, Bobby Morris, Betty Allen, Barbara Blaine, Ruth Bond, Helen Arthur, Olive Reeves Smith, Richard Worth, Helene LeBerthon, Jacqueline Susann, Hal Conklin, John A. Lorenz, Leonard Ceeley.

What was originally intended to be a revival of Otto Harbach's and Rudolph Friml's 30-year-old show, The Firefly (Rowland Leigh "modernized" The Merry Widow for its recent revival) now comes to the boards as Full Speed Ahead. Since its original opening in Hartford, Conn., less and less of Harbach and Friml remained. On arrival here, the producers finally threw out everything, including the title, with a whole new book and lyrics and music, and started again from scratch here. Now, if the producers will again change the cast, bring in a whole new book and lyrics and music, and start all over again from scratch, there is a remote possibility that something may happen. As it shapes up now it is Full Speed Ahead to oblivion.

Its usefulness as a theatrical production can only be measured in terms of deductions for losses in the income tax returns of the producers. As for entertainment, far better spectacles have been blamed for killing vaudeville. The story, as near as one can decipher it, concerns a South American entertainer who unwittingly becomes involved in Axis plotting that threatens her romance with a U. S. Navy officer. The comedy lines put Joe Miller and some of his contemporaries at an unfair advantage, since they expect too much of them. The singing and dancing leave one intermittently hot and cold. As for the score, only another ASCAP-BMI feud could bring it to the attention of radio. And even then Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair would sound more tolerable.

The show serves as the stage debut vehicle for Emma Otero, radio soprano. Even with the added advantage of more acceptable song material especially prepared by H. Leopold Spitalny, Miss Otero is still unquestionably a swell radio singer. Betty Allen, as "the other woman," who also handles the limpid lyrics, is much more pleasing to the eyes than to the ears.

Comedy is handled by burlesque's Bob Morris and vaudeville's Jack Good. Material puts both boys, obviously capable, at a huge disadvantage. Morris is best when dipping into his burly folio for the venerable boxing bout bit, while Good puts his best foot forward with his familiar drunk pantomime. DES MOINES, Jan. 16.—Watch on the Rhine pulled 3,000 to the Shrine Auditorium here Tuesday (12), one of its best houses so far. The gross, exceeding $5,000, was the best chalked up for the Shrine this season. Prices charged ranged from 56 cents to $2.80, including tax.

mate $55,000. It would bring the total to $278,300.

Business at Ford's varied for the attractions from very good to colossal, with a few playing to slim houses.

The season opened September 7, Labor Day, and with one exception had continued attractions thru to New Year's.

Opening attraction was Private Lives, starring Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes, $7,000; September 14, Vickie, starring Jose Ferrer and Uta Hagen, $6,500; September 21, Priorities of 1942, $25,000; September 28, return engagement of My Sister Eileen at popular prices, $11,000.

The October plays: (5) Guest in the House, starring Nancy Kelly, $9,400; (12) Merry Widow, with Muriel Angelus, $11,200; (19) The Skin of Our Teeth, starring Tallulah Bankhead, Fredric March and Florence Eldridge, $21,000; (27) Lady in the Dark, starring Gertrude Lawrence, two weeks, first $31,000 and second $23,000, making total for two weeks $64,000.

November started off (9) with This Is the Army, $55,000; (16) return engagement of Life With Father, starring Margalo Gilmore and Percy Waram, $17,200; (23) Firefly, starring Emma Otero, $9,000; (30) Three Curtains, starring Gloria Swanson and Francis Lederer, $6,000.

December: (7) The Three Sisters, starring Katharine Cornell and others, $26,000; (14) The Doughgirl, $9,000; (24) Dark Eyes, premiere showing of two days with three presentations, $2,000; (28) This Little Hand, with an all-feminine cast, gross too small for management to report.

Despite a few slim weeks, the season is remarkable, with the gross the best in more than 21 years. If second half equals the first, total gross should establish a new record with close to a half million. However, this is not believed possible. In first place, Ford's has had two dark weeks since beginning of New Year, one of them resulting in cancellation of Tobacco Road, which was scheduled for week of January 11. Cancellation resulted from order of city buildings engineer to effect safety measures. Theater is expected to be closed for remainder of month, at least, unless a waiver is made because of inability to get necessary priorities on materials.

Tobacco Road is expected to return later. Two other shows are tentatively scheduled, and it is expected others will be booked as soon as safety improvements to building are effected.

Safety improvements ordered made at Ford's Theater by J. A. Clarke, municipal buildings engineer, will cost from $15,000 to $20,000 if federal priorities can be obtained, it has been disclosed. Faced with this situation, John D. Little, manager of the playhouse, asserted, "It looks very doubtful if the theater can be opened in the immediate future. Under no circumstances can it be done in the next few weeks."

Little, who represents the United Booking Office, which has a lease on the theater, said it actually has not been decided whether the house will be opened at all and referred inquiries to Morris A. Mechanic, Baltimore movie house owner and owner of the Ford's. Mechanic said he was not in a position to make any statement on the matter at the moment but hoped to make one shortly. He said he was willing to co-operate with UBO and the city buildings engineer.

Buildings Engineer Clarke said he would do everything possible to get the theater reopened, even to the point of giving consideration to temporary repairs if they remove the fire hazards.

ACT I—Scene 1: Saturday Evening. Scene 2: Late the Same Night. ACT II—Scene 1: Sunday Morning. Scene 2: Sunday Night.

If Wilfrid Pettitt's Nine Girls, presented by Al Woods at the Longacre Theater Wednesday night, did nothing else, it at least brought to the fore a lass named Maxine Stuart, who has been filling small parts capably for a number of years now. In the Pettitt play, Miss Stuart hasn't much chance; but she takes what she has so beautifully—she does such a magnificent comedy job with essentially weak material and then suddenly moves into so splendidly played a dramatic interlude and back again—that she definitely establishes herself as one of the very finest of our younger actresses. Her work is so beautifully unobtrusive that it's quite likely to go unnoticed; but that rather adds to than detracts from its excellence. It's one of the best acting jobs of the season. Adele Longmire, K. T. Stevens and Barbara Bel Geddes are featured, and a couple of them do really excellent work; but it's Miss Stuart who walks off with the play.

The melodrama itself is a psychological shocker that just misses being a terrifically fascinating hair-raiser. It possesses a couple of rough spots that could easily have been eliminated in rehearsals; Mr. Pettitt writes in what seems like and endless series of verbal clichés; the piece needs tightening. But its essential plot is frightening and exciting, and it boasts a couple of scenes that are among the most tensely melodramatic seen hereabouts in seasons. It should have been more effectively strengthened on its try-out tour; and the impression it makes at the Longacre is further weakened by the direction of Reginald Denham, which shows an alarming tendency to gravitate toward ineffective burlesque.

The tale is of seven sorority sisters at the group's clubhouse in the California hills, ready to initiate a couple of pledges when the news comes over the air that another sorority sister has been found in an arroyo, brutally murdered. That breaks up the week-end; and it is further broken when one of the girls receives a letter from the victim, written just before her death that contains a veiled clue as to the murderer's identity. She confides this news to a lass who, in the midst of the wealthy sorority gals, is something of an ugly duckling—a youngster from the other side of the tracks who has forced her own acceptance by the bluebloods, and who has lost her fiancee to the girl who has been killed. She herself, as it soon develops, committed the murder; and she poisons the unsuspecting recipient of the dead girl's letter, and makes the second death look like a suicide caused by depression over the killing of a friend.

But one girl among the survivors, the lass who has been kindest to the young murderer, refuses to accept the suicide theory; and the murderer faces the horrible necessity of killing her own best friend. She is equal to it; when the other girls have gone, she tries to do the work—but they return, and she is seen for what she is. Just before the police come and she swallows poison before going out to meet them, she learns that the boy for whose sake the series of murders was started had intended to return to her and marry her.

It is a gruesome, horribly fascinating subject; and its dramatic irony, its investigations into abnormal psychology lend it constant interest. And some of the scenes are tremendously gripping and powerful. Since Mr. Pettitt did so much, it's a pity that he was unable to do the little bit more that would have turned his play into an outstanding mental shocker.

Even so, tho, Mr. Denham's direction would have done much to nullify the effect. The writing of some of the roles is painfully obvious, and the direction points up and emphasizes every weakness. None the less, there are a number of excellent acting jobs in addition to Miss Stuart's. Miss Bel Geddes, for example, does marvelously effective work with the youngster who is the second victim, making her always three-dimensional and believable, and getting thru the immensely difficult scene preceding her death with huge effect and superlative ability. Miss Stevens, as the friend of the murderer who just avoids becoming her third victim, is called upon to do little but straight pretending, but she does that extremely well. Irene Dailey, faced with the all but impossible job of playing a female athlete under Mr. Denham's burlesque direction, amazingly manages to offer an altogether charming and able performance. Mary McCormack, faced with a similarly difficult set-up in the role of a fantastically over-written embryo actress, is a good deal less successful, offering preposterously amateurish overplaying for the most part; but, when called upon to do the sleeping-walking scene from Macbeth, she emerges with an astoundingly fine reading, just hyped up enough to show the amateur status of the character she is playing, but solid and excellent in its essentials. Ruth K. Hill recites her line stiffly and awkwardly as a fledgling Communist, and the brace of pledges get nice treatment from Marilyn Erskine and a youngster quaintly yept Kayo Copeland.

Miss Longmire, as the murderer herself, loses subtle point after point, offering a straightaway melodramatic performance that is occasionally effective in its frontal attack, more often badly overdone, and always at a loss to depict the varying, horrible, fascinating psychopathic nuances which are the essence of the character and which might have meant the success of the play.

A. H. Woods returned to the Broadway scene to produce the piece with its all-feminine cast. It was, according to the announcements, his 404th production. His work with the 403 others didn't prevent him from letting a potentially valuable property slip thru his fingers.

probably the fault of the show itself, which has so many good things in it that they practically swamped me.

In any case, more than merely a word of praise should go to the splendid work of one of the finest male choruses heard in a musical comedy in seasons. And unreserved hosannas should go to William Lynn, who, as a nasty little man emerged from a Southern swamp, offers some of the most amusing comedy pretending of the year. In addition, Mr. Lynn, hitherto connected with straight drama rather than musicals, sings comedy choruses with verve and effect and indulges in hilarious sessions of eccentric dancing. ACT I—Scene 1: The Living Room. Late Afternoon of a Summer's Day. Scene 2: The Same. After Dinner the Following Evening. ACT II—Scene 1: A Bedroom. Later That Evening. Scene 2: The Same. The Next Morning.

Quite a number of years ago, after the failure of Jed Harris's all-star production of Uncle Vanya, Richard Maney, his Boswell of the newsmen, reported that Mr. Harris had finally combed the Cossacks out of his hair. They crept back into it, tho, Thursday night at the Belasco Theater, when Mr. Harris presented Dark Eyes, a play written by Elena Miramova in collaboration with Eugenie Leontovich. It looks now as tho the Cossacks had crept back to stay.

The Misses Miramova and Leontovich, as you certainly don't have to be told, are a pair of superlatively fine actresses of Russian birth; and by an uncanny coincidence their play concerns a couple of superlative actresses of Russian birth who write a play. Also undoubtedly by coincidence, they're acting in it themselves. The result is one of the most warm-hearted, human, hilarious and altogether terrific comedies Broadway has been privileged to see in seasons.

Being Russian, the Misses Miramova and Leontovich satirize Russians—but with love in their hearts. Their comedy is uproarious; but, sharply unlike most American satirical comedies, it is gentle and understanding rather than offensive. The authors have had the intelligence and humanity to look their own countrymen in the soul, and to describe the somewhat chaotic goings on there to be found, with a pointed and hilarious sense of humor, but also with affection and admiration and respect.

The plot itself is simple—but tumultuous. Into the home of a tired American business man, just back from immersion in the alphabet soup in Washington, are introduced three indigent Russian actresses, thru the agency of a Georgian prince with whom the business man's daughter is about to perpetrate matrimony. They are great actresses, but it is hard for an accented player to find leading roles in America. To solve the situation they have written a play for themselves. Meanwhile, they have been tossed out of their apartment and have slept for three nights in the park. Also, they have written a check for $500 despite the fact that they are blissfully innocent of any semblance of a bank account.

They take over the home, with very Russian discussions and just as Russian gayety; and the business man himself is fascinated by the most soulful among them. After a while, he agrees to back their play. But the lass he likes, who is madly in love with his soul in her quaint Russian manner, fears that he is doing it merely to possess her, and tells him that that's no go. But when he says that he never thought of her in that way, she gets angry; and when he admits that he may have made his offer thru pity, they throw his check in his face. Also, the second of the unholy trio rediscovers an old passion for the Georgian prince, incites his Georgian soul to a rage of love, and sends him off to the wars to fight and die for the fatherland—or is it motherland?

With poverty and jail staring them in the face, the two more emotional of the Moscovite Duses take poison—which turns out, in the end, to be peach brandy. But they face death grandly; and while they're facing it the business man comes back and apologizes and again offers his check. When they find out it was only peach brandy after all, they decide to scrap the tragedy they've written and, instead, write a comedy about Russian actresses who have written a play.

The succession of laugh lines is constant throughout—and so is the succession of amusing situations. In addition, the authors have mastered an astounding command not only of English idiom but of American thought, basing many of their laugh lines upon satirical insight into current conditions. They base many more, of course, upon satirical insight into Russian character. But, tho hilarious, the whole thing is heart warming, charming and at times extremely touching, and it is cannily calculated to rouse admiration as well as laughter. It's a terrific job in every respect.

Under Mr. Harris's slick and superlatively effective direction, a grand cast plays it to a fare thee well. Miss Leontovich is magnificently mannered as the actress in love with the Georgian, doing a terrific bravura job. Equal effect is attained by the less stagy, more sincere and every wit as amusing work of Miss Miramova as the most soulful of the soul-packed trio. Completing the triumvirate is Ludmilla Toretzka, whose comedy readings are a constant delight and whose superlative work creates a large number of the best laughs in the play. Jay Fassett does his best job in seasons as the business man himself—which makes it a superlatively fine job; Minnie Dupree is as splendid as usual in the role of the business man's mother; and Carl Gose is charming, able and amusing as his son. Geza Korvin scores solidly with fine work as the Georgian prince, and Oscar Polk offers another of his amusing comedy portrayals as the bewildered butler.

The playing is marvelous at the Belasco, led magnificently by the sharply contrasted yet richly matching work of the authors themselves. And their play, as I seem to have remarked before, is one of the most heart-warming, charming and hilarious comedies within memory. Mr. Harris had better have his barber build the Cossacks a permanent home.

American Academy Students Present "Little Women"

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The American Academy of Dramatic Arts opened its 1943 season with a presentation of Alcott's Little Women last Friday (8), acted by the senior class at the Empire Theater. The cast as a whole played well, despite the inevitable drawbacks of working in a set with which it was unfamiliar. The Academy, encountering difficulties with the current transportation problem, was allowed to use the Life With Father set by Messrs. Crouse and Lindsay. It made a perfect background for the Alcott piece.

An outstanding job was turned in by Robert North as the father. Mr. March, and acceptable work was done by three of the girls, Betty-Lou Beck, as Jo; Adrienne Meredith, as Beth, and Elizabeth Black, as Meg. Miss Meredith's death scene was particularly affecting. Virginia Fairfax was one of the most pictorial Amys we have ever seen, but her several recitations left us cold.

Lyn Crossley fell into the usual faults of the amateur playing Aunt March; and while Marjorie Miller gave evidence of great tragic quality as Marmy, the weight of her playing was too much for the part. Jerry Tobias as Laurie and Harold Lazarus as the professor both suffered on the score of make-up, but managed to turn in adequate work after all. Guy Rockwell did excellently with the role of Mr. Laurence, and Harold Dumais, as John Brooke and Miriam Nelson, as Hannah, were acceptable.

Review Percentages

Listed below are the decisions of dramatic critics on the nine general metropolitan dailies concerning the Broadway shows of the week. In figuring percent ages, "no opinion" votes are counted one half "yes" and one-half "no" rather than being thrown out altogether. This would give a show with nine "no opinion" vote 50 per cent rather than zero.

The foremost institution for Dramatic and Expressional Training in America. The courses furnish essential preparation for Teaching & Directing as well as Acting.
Winter Term Begins January 15th
Catalog from Secretary, Room 145
CARNEGIE HALL, NEW YORK

Time Marches On

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Dave Vine, who has been a performer for 37 years, recalls that people used to point out his son and say, "That's Billy, son of Dave Vine."

Now that Billy has made good (he has been held over for 12 weeks at the 885 Club, Chicago, and follows with vaude at $650 a week) the same people point to Dave and say, "That's Billy Vine's father, Dave."

Hard to get used to it, but he's so proud of Billy that he doesn't mind.

Hildegard Set at $2,250 in Boston

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Hildegard, now filling a 10-week date at the Palmer House here, has been set for a return at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston, for six weeks at $2,250 per week, according to Anna Sosenko, her manager. Deal also calls for two suites of rooms in the hotel and a 25 per cent discount on food.

The opening is set between July 8 and 20, depending on Hildegard's closing at the Plaza Hotel, New York, which will follow her local run. Miss Sosenko states that the Boston contract also has a four-week cancellation clause in case Hildegard accepts a picture deal with Metro which is now on the fire.

Since her opening at the Palmer House Thursday (7) the Empire Room has sold out for dinner every night and has capacity reservations for the next two weeks. Her local salary is $1,500. The Palmer House is already offering her a four-month date for 1944, but so far no contracts have been signed.

N. Y. AGVA Local Talks to Members

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—First step toward fulfilling the promise of Dave Fox, newly appointed executive secretary of the New York local of AGVA, to give the membership a say in the running of the local, was made this week with the meeting of a rank-and-file committee, which will work with Fox in an advisory capacity.

Rank-and-filers include Arthur Ward, Moya Gifford, Nita Naldi, Emily Marsh, Lee Wyler and Pierre Beaucaire, night club performers.

Local has functioned mainly on paper, without consultation with the members. New York local's history has been characterized in the national office of AGVA and the Four A's as "inefficient and disgraceful." Fox, a former emcee, said the committee is working on plans for a membership meeting, the first in several years.

Local will also publish a monthly house organ, edited by Bill Glason.

Helen O'Connell Bows at N. Y. Roxy

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Helen O'Connell, Jimmy Dorsey vocalist now with him at the Strand, who will leave him after that engagement, is expected to make her vaude bow as a single at the Roxy, February 3, following the Guy Lombardo show there.

Herb Shriner, comic on the Camel Caravan program, has also been signed. Deal is also being negotiated to put the Basin Street Boys on the same show.

Youngman to Para

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Henny Youngman, a fixture at Loew's State (seven times in the past two years), has been booked into the Paramount here for four weeks, starting February 14, on the Xavier Cugat bill. State and Strand were also bidding for the comedian.

Youngman has also been signed for the Kate Smith radio show (Friday nights) for a minimum of five weeks.

Rudy Frank Dies in Action

Ban on Pleasure Driving Latest Blow to Suburban Niteries as Well-Located Spots Get New Biz

of First and Main" and they have no way of knowing where they are taking them. In any event, Eastman has announced dissatisfaction with results of his request and is meeting with taxi men and transit experts from all Eastern cities this week-end, with a view to clamping down more tightly on cab rides.

In New York, League of New York Theaters called a meeting at Hotel Astor to discuss taxicab restrictions. Actors, musicians and stagehands were also represented. Altho theater men report that attendance has improved considerably, new patronage having been culled from former habituees of out-of-the-way roadhouses, skating rinks, bowling alleys, etc., taxicab ban would put considerable dent in box-office receipts. Confab resulted in formation of committees to "see what could be done."

A second basis for controversy was OPA's ruling that it is okay to drive to restaurants if there is no other means of transportation. If eating place has a floorshow, however, trip is defined as pleasure drive. Question arises among night club owners as to whether any blanket classifications can be made. They express attitude that it will be a matter of individual decisions whether patron is visiting night spot primarily for food or entertainment. E. M. Loew, co-owner of Latin Quarter, Miami, has expressed hope that he may be able to get a ruling establishing night clubs as restaurants. Some Eastern night club owners have already expedited matters by dismissing floorshows and bands and continuing operations as restaurants.

Another bright note was sounded from Miami when Governor Holland voiced the hope that Florida may eventually be eliminated from the strictly rationed Atlantic Seaboard because of a new cross-State pipe line which is expected to operate about February 1. But club owners are doubtful whether any favors will be shown their State.

Latest threat to theater and club operators' security is prospect of increasing uncertainty that performers driving from one location to another will be able to keep dates on time. Many acts, bands and combos have relied heretofore on the mercy of local ration boards to obtain extra coupons on their B and C books. Requests for extra gasoline, however, must now be referred to nearest district, State or regional office, already instructed by OPA not to comply unless recent 25 per cent reduction in value of coupons is causing "extreme hardship." As far as the performer is concerned, however, this might put an end to the wide discrepancies among local boards. Some boards have been very unsympathetic to performers, while others have shown due consideration; so new ruling may result in uniform treatment for all and end resentment of the unfortunate. At any rate, performers and operators alike would feel they are in the same boat with their competition.

Fuel-oil shortage may cause new prosperity enjoyed by urban amusement spots to be short-lived. Governor McGrath of Rhode Island has announced a plan for prohibiting all non-essential business from remaining open more than five days a week. Clubs and theaters would have the privilege, under this plan, of closing their doors during the part of the week least favorable to business. Theater owners in the State are meeting to discuss the plan.

On the whole, municipalities from Maine to Florida are reporting excellent co-operation on the part of motorists. Cases of pleasure-driving have been fewer than expected. Bus, trolley and subway lines have seen a sharp upswing in passengers, to the extent of making travel by public conveyance increasingly uncomfortable and difficult. Because of crowded transportation facilities, neighborhood film houses, vaude theaters and taverns are witnessing the return of local customers who formerly sought entertainment away from home.

Earliest offenders on driving ban were forced to surrender only two weeks' ration coupons, but this has been widened to three months in recent cases.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The ban on pleasure driving has already closed several night clubs in this area. Clubs in suburban districts have been hit the hardest, with the downtown spots reporting a big increase in business Friday and Saturday nights.

R. M. Gilliland, manager of the River Bend, near Alexandria, closed his club last Thursday. Says owners of other road spots told him they were closing, too, and that they would not reopen until the gas and rubber situation eases.

Clubs accessible by bus and trolley are all right. The Crossroads Bar, for example, reports fine business due to its being by a bus stop.

Whitney Leary, local OPA administrator, again points out that cab drivers taking passengers to theaters or night clubs are violating the no-pleasure driving rule.

Robert J. Wilson, secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, says he has obtained a ruling from OPA officials that people may drive to a restaurant, providing it does not provide entertainment and there are no other available means of transportation.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Clubs easily reached by bus, trolley or subway continue to do fine business here. All other spots are having trouble.

Ben Marden's Riviera, which closed last October, is not expected to open. Other roadhouses may open, but without using music or talent.

Lou Walters, whose local Latin Quarter is grossing $20,000 to $25,000 a week, says he is uncertain about the future of his Miami spot. He says it is doing "excellent business" but that there was a "little drop" when the newest gas rule went into effect last week. Club employs 200 people and Walters says he is eager to keep the spot open for their sake.

BUFFALO, Jan. 16.—Harry Altman says he is closing his Glen Park Casino in Williamsville, and that he plans to open another club in downtown Buffalo

Detroit Clubs Worried by Minors Drinking, SS Tax, Exploitation

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Control of minors and Social Security taxes divided the attention of local night spot owners at the Wednesday meeting of their Metropolitan Cabaret Owners' Association.

Operators are worried about the drinking of minors, as Liquor Control Commission regulation becomes increasingly strict. Cabaret men have been anxious to keep away from this class of trade, but many minors are successful at pretending to be over 21. Operators have less trouble with men because they could demand a draft card to prove age. This led to some borrowing of cards, and there were a few court cases. Recently, a draft card mill was uncovered. Draft cards have now become nearly worthless, with the passage of the 18-year-old registration, as they do not indicate age.

High wages are being paid youngsters for defense jobs. With all this money to spend, a large proportion is likely to be spent upon liquor, if they have the opportunity.

Local owners will take a test case into Federal Court to get a reversal of present regulation on Social Security taxes. Operators feel that the recent Radio City Music Hall ruling applies to them, except in the case of acts booked for more than one week.

A co-operative radio program is also being planned for the association.

In the Family

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Diosa Costello, in being placed on the unfair list of the American Guild of Variety Artists (for crossing the picket line in front of Leon and Eddie's), is at least keeping it in the family.

One week before she was placed on the list her husband, Pupi Campillo (Pupi's Dancers), was removed from it after paying salary arrears of $29 each to Toni Musso and Eileen Devlin, two of his dancers. Payoff was made when the Philly local of AGVA refused to let him work at the Shangri-La until he paid up.

Hot singer was marked unfair last week by the international board of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America and suspended from membership for 60 days from February 1.

on the site of the Lafayette Hotel ballroom.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16.—The "no-pleasure-driving" edict was the knockout blow for suburban clubs hereabout, which had been hit plenty hard by gas rationing.

Bill Green's big Casino, outstanding suburban club for last seven years, dropped its orchestra January 7.

Vogue Terrace, largest and newest spot in district, is 15 miles from Pittsburgh. After its opening in August it enjoyed unusual success, but business slumped in November. Cover charge was dropped and $2 minimum substituted. Gas rationing gave it another sock, and New Year's Eve was flop at $5.50 cover. Billy Household, owner of Vogue Terrace, who has five sizable banquets booked, together with President's Birthday Ball for January 31, doesn't know what spot will do yet. Band was booked until Thursday (14).

Caramela's Oasis, just outside Mount Lebanon, will abandon traveling combos. Policy did okay, but new ban makes overhead a decided gamble. Caramela plans to keep bar open and use only pianist.

Arlington Lodge on Lincoln Highway, outside town, plans to have orchestra Saturday and Sunday to test draw.

Colonial Restaurant, insuburban Avalon, plans to cut dance sessions from six to four weekly, Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoon and evening.

Downtown spots are continuing with plans for big shows.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—In the city there was no attempt by night club managers to estimate what would happen as a result of the OPA ban. Only a few outlying spots are now running, with most of the others forced out by earlier driving bans and help shortage. Downtown clubs operate as usual.

In the small towns around here, Turner Park in East Longmeadow, Old Homestead at Somers, and the Hampden House at Hampden, have closed. Bar at the Hampden House is running, but the others are totally dark.

DES MOINES, Jan. 16.—Outlying night clubs have survived gas rationing better than expected in this area.

Pete Rand, owner of the Maintainer Club, located seven miles from the loop district, has dropped plans to move downtown, and will continue with floor acts and dance band. Says business during December was on par with a year ago, altho week-night crowds are off. Saturday and Sunday nights have shown an increase.

Dave Fidler, owner of the Club 100, plans to remain open at least two months, altho business had dropped off. Fidler has trimmed one act from his floorshow. Now using three acts and a dance band.

Irving H. Grossman, Des Moines booker, reports business exceeding expectations since gasoline rationing, with more acts being booked than a year ago.

Largely responsible for the increase, Grossman said, was a boom in a new field, with a large demand for acts from (See Pleasure Driving Ban on page 18)

Abbott Line for MGM

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Metro has signed the Meriel Abbott line of girls, currently in the Palmer House, for Kay Kyser's next picture. The girls (13 of them) will leave with Miss Abbott for 10 days next week and will do two numbers, a pink and black ballet and a hot tap routine. Dick Barstow, Miss Abbott's assistant, is rehearsing an alternate line.

Palmer House, Empire Room, Chicago

Talent policy: Production shows at 8:30 and 11:30; "little show" at 10; show and dance band; intermission unit. Management: Edward T. Lawless, managing director; Merril Abbott, producer; Dick Barstow, dance director; Al Fuller, publicity director. Prices: Minimum $3 ($3.50 week-ends).

Hildegarde, the singer with little voice but lots of personality, is branching out into the large hotel room field after confining her work the last several years to intimate society spots. This reviewer caught her first show opening night and returned a few nights later to make sure, and her performance fits this one-word description: Terrific. She turns this big room into an informal parlor gathering and makes the customers feel as much at ease as any big act that has ever played here.

She is doing something else: The rest of the show is almost totally eclipsed by her act, even tho she appears in the closing spot. The customers wait for Hildegarde, and anything else, judging by their reaction, is just killing time. The balance of the show is not strong, for the two supporting acts do not belong in this room. Truzzi, circus juggler, has not yet perfected a good night club turn. His work with clubs, tin plates and the ball-in-the-audience bit is only of stock caliber. Condos Brothers, sure-fire tappers, are lost to all but the ringsiders, because their footwork cannot be seen by the back-of-the-ring-

Every eight weeks Nils Thor Granlund (NTG) is on with a new show. This time it is Keep 'Em Happy, and the NTG cuties, along with some top vaude acts, do that very thing for 90 minutes. Paul Martin and orchestra play for the show and dancing, doing a good job.

Show includes NTG's heckling of the audience. But not too much of it or of audience participation. NTG has a new crop of beauties and they add much to the presentation.

Emseing in his usual "Ah" manner, NTG opens with Tribute to a Great American, with Fred Scott, baritone, warbling to good advantage Hats Off to George M. Cohan. Number is outstanding for its line work. Sugar Gelse leads side patrons. They need a platformed stage.

The bright Abbott Dancers do only an opening routine, a fanciful toe number, strikingly costumed and gracefully executed. Most of them return to introduce Hildegarde in a royal manner, providing time for her piano to be set.

Hildegarde stays on for 40 minutes, during which service is at a standstill. It takes her several minutes to warm up the audience and from then on the selling is easy. Her charming European mannerisms, aside to the customers between and during songs, and even a few corny gags put her in a class by herself. Thoroughly entertaining. Offers pops, show tunes, originals (Pink Cocktail for a Blue Lady, I'm in Love With a Married Man) and bangs out a couple of numbers on the piano, with the aid of her accomplished accompanist and arranger, Leo Kahn. The lighting effects and musical arrangements leave nothing to be desired.

Joe Reichman and his commercial band, playing a return engagement, have their inning in the "little show." Reichman makes an informal emcee. His highlight is a seven-minute medley of Gershwin music, constructed with real showmanship. His singer, cute Penny Lee, is an attraction in herself. She stopped the show with four numbers, rhythm and ballads, selling them with a smooth voice and a sock delivery.

Two of the Abbott dancers also sing in a good sight acro novelty, The Major and the Minor. They are Gertrude Simmons and Naomi Korf, both good looking and capable.

Nick Brodeur, boogie-woogie pianist who left the Eddy Duchin band to lead the intermission four-piece band here, attracts many dancers during his lively sets.

Sam Honigberg.

the dancing and proves invaluable. Wind-up is a flag-waving turn with all on. A newcomer here is Sherry Cameron, who does top rhythm tapping when not over mugging.

John Risso, concert singer and tennis champ, is featured on Donkey Serenade and White Christmas. Voice is rich but he does no screeching.

Al Norman, monologist, rehashes an old routine for mediocre response. Nothing exceptional. Tapping is passable, but his material is much out of date.

Zanzibar, second production number, gives NTG ample opportunity to show his stuff despite limited staging facilities. Miss Gelse warbles Way Down in Zanzibar, introducing Sylvia MacKay for a bit of top jungle rhythming. Francis and Grey, dance team, drew plenty of applause.

Favorites here for 28 weeks are the Mills Brothers. Their tunes included Mr. Five by Five, Praise the Lord and Tiger Rag. Left 'em yelling for more.

The DeWaynes, teeterboard trio, do astounding foot-to-foot stuff and even a three-high, with the understand and first mount doing a foot-to-foot and the other a shoulder stand. Did a twist somersault good for a show-stop anytime.

Dick and Dot Remy hit. Dot, about 220 pounds, does aerial splits, tumbles, somersaults and other acro work difficult for anyone half her size. Dick clicked with his crocodile crawls and hand skating. Banter is good, and act is sock.

Ethel Shutta warbles clever double entendre lyrics. A canny showman, she lets them have it with plenty of zip on the punch lines. Could have stayed on for hours.

NTG has an exceptionally good show here.

Frank Palumbo's, Philadelphia

Talent policy: Dance and show band, relief band, floor shows at 7:30, 10 and 12:30. Management: Frank Palumbo, proprietor-manager; Johnny Bazzani, headwaiter; John Ferro, assistant manager; Mort Schwartz, publicity and advertising; Eddie Suez, booker. Prices: Dinners from $1.25; drinks from 40 cents; no minimum, no cover.

Having monopolized the private party and banquet trade in Philadelphia, Frank Palumbo's restaurant-cabaret wants to build up the supper sessions. Just outside the downtown theatrical district, it has the advantage of excellent public transport facilities. And, for added appeal, it has expanded its talent budget.

Miss (the former Baby) Rose Marie tees off the new policy; Nick Lucas is to follow. At supper show on second night of pleasure driving ban the large room was well filled.

While Miss Marie is the major excitement, entire show is chock-full of entertainment. Quite a young and personable lady now, Miss Marie was felled by laryngitis. However, she went on and wowed 'em with her terrific lyric projection for My Blue Heaven. Followed with a comedy punch, singing The Butcher Boy in Italian, English and Yiddish.

Youthful Bob Baxter is also of major import. Lad has fine presence and an excellent baritone voice. Handles emcee here, and for his own spot, drew rousing returns for Punchinello, How Deep Is the Ocean and Begin the Beguine.

Three Heat Waves, male trio combining hoofing and trumpet tooting with zany antics, a holdover, are still big. Frankie Condons keeps up the family tradition for expert and novel tap routines, Don Bruce blows trumpet in top order, and Jackie Winston makes with the mad and merry impersonations. Plenty of punch and variety; a laugh riot.

Edith Delaney, plenty lovely, is sweet with her neat, clean heel and toe taps. Mixed sepia tap twain, Spick and Span, put plenty of verve and rhythm in their precision and challenge footwork.

The Jeannettes are six ponies and four show girls present impressive routines, produced by Jeanne Remington. Open in Western style for a gay Pony Boy chorus, bring on an Indian ballet fantasy for the mid-mark, and wind it up with a Gay '90 flavor that has Bob Baxter adding the grand old songs.

Giving the show excellent musical support is Don Angelino. With his swell band, he makes the urge prominent for the dancers. Alternating is Don Renaldo Quartet, equally effective for rhythm and rumba selections, with Gloria Mann a blond and vocal lovely.

Maurie Orodener.

Club Hi-Hat, St. Louis

Talent policy: Floorshows at 10:30, 12:30 and 3; dance band. Management: Lewis Kane and Ez Keough. Prices: Minimum, $2 ($2.50 Saturdays).

This theater-cafe opened here October 2 and bids fair to outclass some of the town's better spots as to talent and entertainment. Operating in an old theater site, the shows are presented on the stage at the end of the auditorium (stage is also used for dancing).

Current bill is compact, loaded with talent, headlined by Armida, vivacious Mexican personality girl, and sparked by Cliff Winehill, a favorite from the Club Royal in East St. Louis. Armida is a black-haired looker from the movies who scores nicely with a medley of Latin tunes, including the standard El Rancho Grande. The gal is full of vitamins, giving out with songs, dances and even a kiss or two for the ringsiders. Sells nicely. Got a warm reception.

Line of Blondidears (6) click with Hawaiian routine, cleverly presented, and later a conga and military boogie-boogie. The McKays are a dance duo doing comedy ballroom routines. Drew a nice hand.

But the personality that sells the show and the club is zany Cliff Winehill. A smart showman and clever comedian, he warms the crowd up with gag after gag, then throws in a medley of songs, and even stoops to a burlesque of a burlesque stripper to get results—but he gets them. His comedy is all obvious stuff, but the crowd here ate it up. Could have stayed on all evening.

Irving Rothschild's seven-piece outfit plays admirably for shows and dancing.

Biz off early show due to after-holiday slump, but future looks bright with Bonnie Baker in next (January 15), followed by Ted Lewis (29). C. V. Wells.

Hotel Nicollet, Minnesota Terrace, Minneapolis

Talent policy: Dance and show band; shows at 8:30, 12. Management: Neil Messick, manager; James Hickman, room manager; Sally Delaney, publicity. Prices: Dinners, $1.50 up; supper, $1 up; drinks, 60 cents up.

While other night spots cry they can't get acts, this room consistently presents top entertainment.

Al Kavelin and his nine-piece piece cork hold sway here for both dancing and show. Musikers include piano, bass, drums, three sax, two trumpets, one trombone, in addition to the leader. The cork is a sweet society band, and some very fine arrangements by Ed Holtz, pianist, help immensely. Band is being held a fourth week. Altho one of the smallest bands to hit the Terrace stand, it makes up in quality what it lacks in numbers.

Peter Lyman, WTCN radio announcer, has been brought in to emcee, and does a good job. Show gets under way with Cary Gould, deep-throated band warbler, singing Mr. Five by Five, Brazil and Down by the Ohio. All very well done. Got big hand. Has plenty of looks and class.

LeRoy and his marionettes work from a small balcony to fine reception. He brings on pianist, circus clown, jitterbugs, a drummer. Very fine. For encore, Bojangles Robinson in the original Hot Mikado dance. Very smart. Big hand.

Don and Sally Jennings's brilliant ballroom routines left the audience breathless. The two have plenty of energy and glide with finesse. Some of their twirls and spins are the best ever seen here. Their second is an Hawaiian war chant number. Bowed off with a third ballroom twirl.

Skeets Minto, band sax player, does a good vocalizing job the too few times he's before the mike.

As usual, food is excellent, despite rationing, and service is the best.

Jack Weinberg.

Benny Meroff's Funzafire unit, sans the ork, which Meroff was forced to disband due to the draft drain, makes this its first night club stand after several seasons as a vaude feature. Now in its second week here, unit has one more week to go. Business rivals that hung up by Bill Robinson on his record run here some five months ago, with the Meroff crowd pulling several turnaways during the initial week. It's the heaviest show Glenn Rendezvous has ever housed, and it overtaxes the spot's small floor, but the crowds eat it up. Rave notices by the local newspaper lads also proved a business magnet.

Show runs 65 minutes and adheres closely to its vaude pattern. It's a succession of stooge parades, bits, blackouts and vaude specialties. Much of the stooge and bit business is familiar stuff and slows the show in spots, but the talent parade is strong enough to make that failing almost unnoticeable. Benny Meroff handles the emcee chores, participates in all the interspersed humbug and contributes several specialties on his own, but never fails to give his people full sway when selling their own turn.

Kathleen McLaughlin, a shapely looker whose strong suit is said to be acro-hoofing, filled in this show with a tap session and got by nicely. Rita DeVore was well received in her acro-contortion, but briefer wardrobe for a better flash of her shapely body would be an asset.

Jack Gwynne, assisted by Ann, is still the ideal magical salesman. His deft conjuring is backed by a solid line of chatter. Opening with an original version of the old egg bag trick, Gwynne cracks the hen fruit in a small dove pan to produce a large chicken. He then disappears the chicken, employing his popular feather-duster sucker effect at the finish. He makes an illusion out of the topsy-turvy glass trick to excellent results, and then presents his slow-motion torn-and-restored paper nifty, with the "explanation" finish. Closes with his fishbowl production, silks from the bowl and flashy stack of bowls presentation. Was well received.

Betty Lee, brunet lovely, is the epitome of co-ordination in her xylophoning. Beats the woodpile for a medley as an opener, and then really displays her talent with a swell hammering of Hungarian Rhapsody. Nearly stopped it. Sophie Parker, heavyweight singer, was forced to forego her warble specialty, due to hoarseness and a bad cold.

Professor Cheer drew a bundle of laughs and much applause with his musical saw bit, his screwy mannerisms, a demonstration of his xylophone head (which has Meroff beating his noggin' in xylo fashion) and his session with his collapsible accordion. Maje and Karr, mixed pair of tapsters, registered handily with their collective and competitive efforts. Make a good appearance and sell well. The attractive redhead fem could bring more attention with a more suitable gown, however.

Applause and laugh honors went to Whitey Roberts, a versatile comedian with a unique style. Totes a powerful assortment of laugh material which pushed this crowd over, and has a grand sense of judging an audience. His waltz clog rhythm dance while jumping rope brought a near show-stop, and his comedy plate juggling with a lad from the audience gives him a sock finish.

Elongated Bob Klein, the contrasting Charley Mariana, and Al Devito are chief stoners, and turn in a sound job. Nearly everyone in the troupe doubles on stooge duties. House band headed by Chick Mauthe did its usual good job on the show and dance stints. Bill Sachs.

Algiers, New York

Talent policy: Floorshow at 8, 12 and 2; show and dance band. Management:

Manny Nissin and John Pichon, operators; Dorothy Kay, publicity. Prices: Dinner from $1.25.

On the site of the Casa Marta, a Spanish club, is this new spot on West Eighth Street. It is a neat, pleasingly decorated basement club that seeks to capitalize on the renewed interest in the name Algiers.

Unfortunately, the management fails to carry thru completely on the Algiers idea. The menu is American, the band is American, the floorshow is American and Latin, and the waiters are in regular uniform. There's nothing to send patrons home feeling they were in a club that was "different" except that the wall murals depict Algerian scenes.

The floorshow is an Al Davis affair, with the Mildred Ray line of six providing three routines. The girls are okay on looks, but, of course, there's nothing particularly sultry or Algerian about them. Their opener is a song and parade. Midway they come on for the closest thing to something African; a finger-cymbal dance to the Oriental tune of Misirlou. And their closing is a rhythm tap in patriotic costumes. Lolita Moya, a tall, vivacious blonde, does a snappy interpretative dance to Firefly music and returns for the closing for a flamenco routine. Best performer in the show. Lao and Monsita, young brother-sister team, are on first for fast, eccentric Cuban rumbas, returning later for a fast novel conga. A good novelty Cuban team.

The Freddie Masters band cut the show well, with vocalist Edith Berry, blonde, singing one pop number for the show. She's fair. Jimmy Rich, clarinetist, emcees the show and injects a few wisecracks which are out of place in a revue that is supposed to be exotic (but isn't). The band's reed man, Tex Kane, sings one number nicely enough. For the dance sets, the band's instrumentation of three rhythm, clarinet, guitar and trumpet-leader proves to be okay, altho too loud for this small room. The three rhythm stick to the stand and the other three sing in solo, duo and trio formations. A good little outfit but out of place here.

Elvon, the Personalyst, is a table entertainer. And Dagmar (accordion) and Rudy Bosco (guitar) entertain in the adjoining bar.

Hotel Gayoso, Blue Room, Memphis

Talent policy: Local dance band. Management: C. C. Cartwright, hotel manager; Rudy Willing, room manager. Prices: Admission, $1.10; a la carte; no liquor served over bar; beer and ale, 25 cents.

Memphis's newest nitery enjoys much more night club atmosphere than the conventional hotel room, even tho it is located in what was the ballroom of one of the South's oldest hotels. Whether due to war restrictions limiting construction or to a desire to keep investment down, the Blue Room is fitted only with absolute essentials. Tables are set directly on the dance floor, which puts front line table occupants in jeopardy of Jitterbugs, who really go to town here.

Music is provided by Johnnie Long, a popular local maestro, who is doing a good job. Polly Freeman, rather colorless on vocals, has a fair torchy voice. Long is operating with one girl in his fiddle section and says she is working out excellently. Band is not uniformed, so gal adds considerably to the band's appearance on the stand. Bandstand lighting is poor and system is even more unfortunate than the average p. a., because speakers are in back corners of room, making the orchestra seem to fight itself.

No floorshow. Club operates Thursday to Saturday nights. Seats 200. On night caught (Thursday) peak attendance was about 95.

Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Wedgewood Room, New York

Talent policy: Floorshows at 9:15 and 12:15; dance band. Management: Lucius Boomer, hotel president; Frank Ready, hotel manager; Ted Saucier, publicity. Prices: $1 cover from 10:30 p.m. ($2 Fridays and Saturdays); no cover Sundays.

After-theater supper show, with Carmen Cavallaro around to placate the terpers, is stingy in size but abundant in entertainment. Only one act is featured, the Hartmans, but they're enough. Coming from a record-breaking stay at Chicago's Palmer House, they seem to be doing likewise by the Waldorf.

Maestro Cavallaro emcees thru showtime, furnishing a piano solo of Warsaw Concerto that pads things out a bit. Keyboards are dandy, but ork isn't equipped to lend accompaniment for such a lovely, semi-symphonic piece. Effect is quickly picked up when Paul and Grace Hartman come on.

Team opens with a gay mockery of magic tricks, which Paul ends off in comic spectacular style. Manages to produce a whole flagpole, with flag, from nowhere. Then both turn to the best piece of the evening, a dance and vocal piece fitted to a deliberately unhappy recording. Gag spiels are paced thru-out. Following impatient applause, they deliver Arthur Murray lessons, with dialog again emphasized. Continue in the funny vein with a dummy-violin routine that earns more laughs. Then Grace signs off with: "What Gertrude Lawrence said to members of her stage troupe before departing, 'Goodbye.'"

Hartmans seemingly have landed on mild buffoonery as the yardstick to success. May come as a disappointment to steady fans accustomed to more dancing, however unserious, but opening night saw no fallen faces. Crowd reaction was tumultuous.

Tito Guizar appears for dinner trade. Joseph R. Carlton.

Hotel Stuyvesant, Stuyvesant Room, Buffalo

Talent policy: Show and dance band; intermission vocal and instrumental acts. Management: Darwin Martin, general manager; Joseph Klein, maitre d'hôtel. Prices: Dinners, $1.50 and up; drinks, 50 cents and up; minimum charge, Saturdays $1 to $2 depending on location.

This class spot offers fine entertainment, excellent food and drinks, courteous service and a relaxing atmosphere. Business here over the holidays was fair, which tallies with most of the better clubs hereabouts. New interior decor in red, white and blue is pleasant and timely. (Martin redecorates his nitery room about every six months.)

The Freshmen, an excellent five-man band, are easy on the eyes and ears with refined but wholehearted showmanship. Also easy on the toes of dancers with tingling rhythm and a fine library of Continental and American music. Boys have completed six months here, with contract to run until March. They previously played nine months at Ben Marden's Riviera. The unit, tho small, has many tricks for attracting interest and sounds full at all times. A talented and clean-cut group, Sonny Kippe, leader, handles accordion most of the time, doubles piano occasionally and does great on novelty and ballad vocals. Freddy Steil, sax and clarinet, offers good work on show tunes and vocals. Jimmie Norman, guitarist, ably doubles on rumba equipment. Mel Anderson, bass player, comes on for comedy, special vocals and rhythm tunes. Irv Shire, at the ivories, does fine solo piano work during band lulls. Kippe, Steil and Norman have some cute trio novelty routines on ocarinas. Library includes pop stuff, Latin, waltzes, show tunes; instrumental style is conservative and danceable.

Additional act was Erskine Butterfield, sepia recording artist. He is a cheerful, hard-working lad who does neatly on straight piano, and also vocals. Reaches from show music to red-hot rhythm and boogie-woogie stuff. Following Butterfield will be Judith Arlan, of CBS, at the piano and with songs. Thereafter this room will offer the Maloneys.

Eva M. Warner.

Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago

The revamped Marine Dining Room show features Fay and Gordon, a new, youthful ballroom team in this area who make an impressive appearance and prove capable dancers. They offer six versatile routines in two shows, each trimmed in tricks that are not only difficult but smack of good showmanship. Both the tall, good-looking man and his striking blonde partner are trained dancers and work smoothly. Their turns include a nifty to Estralita, a music box novelty, the fiery Argentinian El Chaco dance, tango, fox trot and conga.

Dorothy Dorben, producer, introduced her eight girls in two new routines, a colorfully costumed aviation number and a musical routine to Why Don't You Fall in Love With Me?, making use of eight fiddlers in the band. Stanley Herbert, ballet dancer, is the highspot in the opening.

Russ Morgan's large and commercial band is still on hand and will be around for some time. A fine musical organization. Mary Osborne, singing guitarist, has rejoined the outfit, replacing Vera Lane.

Holiday Inn, Flushing, L. I., New York

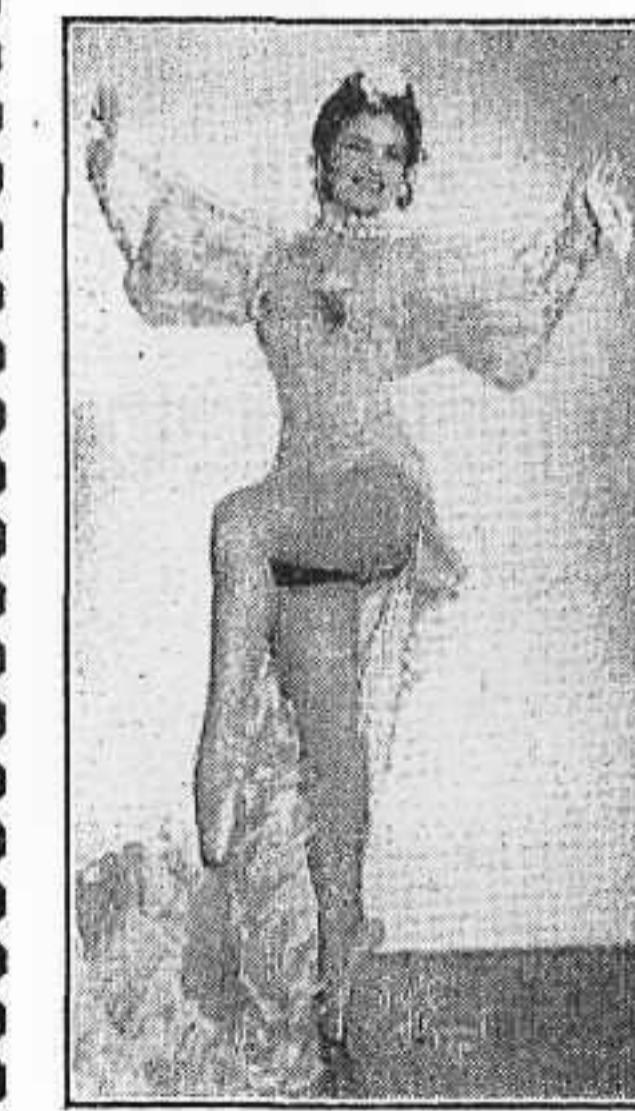

Talent policy: Dance combo, relief pianist, continuous. Ownership-management: Jack Fliegel and Dorothy Ross. Prices: Dinner from 85 cents; no cover, no minimum.

North Shore Long Island nitery is tagged after the Bing Crosby picture of the same name, and from the outside it looks something like a movie set roadhouse. Owners Jack Fliegel and Dorothy Ross (Mr. and Mrs.), who took the place over two months ago, have been stymied by the help and materials shortage in making over the inside to the specifications of warmth and intimacy typified in the picture.

Sinatra Hiked $750 On Return Para Date

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Frank Sinatra, in the midst of a 10-week run at the Paramount, was re-signed this week for additional playing time in six months, at a $750 salary hike, jumping from his current $1,500 to $2,250 when he returns.

This is Sinatra's first New York vaude date since stepping out as a single a short time ago, after leaving Tommy Dorsey's band as vocalist. Singer is also currently featured warbler on Hit Parade.

General Amusement Corporation last week turned down an offer for him to play the Rio Bamba Club for $1,000 a week, and signed him to a picture deal with RKO at $25,000.

Night Club Trade Returns as Boston Fire Is Forgotten

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Altho the effects of the Cocoanut Grove fire are still being felt, business is beginning to pick up in local night spots.

The Beachcomber (capacity, 350), which closed Mondays and then planned also to shut Sundays, has decided to stay open seven days a week. The Latin Quarter (capacity, 600), which had always been jammed prior to the fire, had been languishing until Thursday this week, when business went capacity. The Beachcomber is again spending for talent. Has the Four Grace Notes band current, and brings in Harry A. Gourfain's Bally Laffs unit Monday.

There are a considerable number of Bostonians who refuse to go to clubs since the fire.

The Rio Casino did a fair business prior to fire, but at present it might as well be closed. The Mayfair, last of closed places, has been given okay to reopen. Mickey Redstone has postponed opening to January 20. He now says that he may keep that place closed till business at the Latin Quarter gets back to normal. Redstone is operator of both spots.

Copley-Plaza did capacity biz Saturday (9). At the midnight curfew there were hundreds in the lobby awaiting transportation. Most of them had to go home by streetcar.

The Music Box, Copley Square Hotel, did capacity Saturday also.

Politics Irks Minn. Burlesque

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Burlesque as a political football in 1943, a city election year, was foreseen following publication of a letter to the editor of one of the local newspapers by a Lutheran pastor attacking the Alvin, burly house operated by Harry Hirsch and Harry Katz.

In his letter the minister claims he was asked by the mayor to assist in closing up the Alvin. As yet the mayor has neither confirmed nor denied the statement.

It was recalled that the letter-writing cleric thought of being a mayoralty candidate two years ago.

The pastor's letter attacking burlesque was followed by several other writers who rallied to the defense of Hirsch and Katz, pointing out the two have been presenting a very clean and decent show.

This season Hirsch has ordered his peepers to be especially careful, with but one flash permitted, pantaloons mandatory thruout on stage appearance and off-color jokes cleaned up.

Hit Philly Stags; Pinch Snake Dancer

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Without the usual newspaper publicity, local police have been cracking down on bawdy stag smokers and private parties. City magistrates have been holding several bookers for grand jury. Crusade against indecent entertainment resulted from fact that they attracted a goodly number of servicemen.

Drive against indecent entertainment is also being continued against the niteries. Only offenders are the small taprooms. Raid against one such spot last Saturday in West Philly resulted in arrest of Princess Lueana (Lueana DeMoss), Hawaiian snake dancer, charged with giving an obscene exhibition. George Brooks, Edmund Morris and John Schick, listed as entertainers at the spot, were also accused of indecency.

Police are especially on the look-out for strippers and female impersonators.

Minn. Biz Good

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Thanks to a sellout New Year's Eve show, Harry Hirsch-Harry Katz Alvin Theater, burly house here, drew $4,600 for the week ending Thursday, January 7. Heading the bill was Crystal Ames Thaw, peeler. Rest of the week was way off, Hirsch said.

Lucille Rand was stripper queen last week, followed January 15 by Rose La Rose.

Vaudefilm Grosses

Music Hall Pacing Broadway Holdovers; Para, Roxy, Strand Still Big at B. O.

NEW YORK.—No post-holiday letup is in evidence among Broadway vaudefilmers. All houses, except the State, are hanging onto their holiday bills, and with very good results.

The Paramount (3,664 seats; $41,981 house average), going into the third week of Benny Goodman's band, Frank Sinatra and Star-Spangled Rhythm, is heading toward a dazzling $68,000 after previous week's great $80,000. First week brought a record-breaking $112,000. Goodman stays four weeks and will be followed by Johnny Long. Film may stay 10 weeks.

The Strand (2,758 seats; $30,913 house average), going into the fourth week of Jimmy Dorsey's ork and Yankee Doodle Dandy, is heading for $40,000. Third week collected a fine $46,000, while previous rounds got spectacular $68,000 and $70,000.

The Roxy (5,835 seats; $38,789 house average) is continuing in the sensational manner. Fourth week should produce a sprightly $57,000, with Carmen Miranda and Nicholas Brothers paired with The Black Swan. Third take was $68,000, while prior stands got terrific $108,000 and $105,000.

The Music Hall (6,200 seats; $84,000 house average) is similarly on the super side, looking forward to $100,000 for the fifth week. Fourth week took a brilliant $106,000, with preceding weeks registering $123,000, $120,000 and $112,000. This bill, with Random Harvest and Gautier's Bricklayers on stage, may stay 10 weeks.

Loew's State (3,327 seats; $20,500 house average) opened Thursday (14) with Benny Fields and the Three Sailors plus Road to Morocco, and looks as tho it will return about $25,000. Last week Best Foot Forward unit and White Cargo did a fine $26,000.

Kaye Fat $29,000 At Earle, Philly; Fay's Okay $7,200

PHILADELPHIA.—Unhurt by the ban on pleasure driving and with a strong name for the marquee lights in Sammy Kaye's orchestra, Earl Theater (seating capacity, 3,000; house average, $18,000) chalked up a fat $29,000 for week ended Thursday (14). Criss Cross and Louie only act added, with band bringing up Tommie Ryan, Arthur Wright, Nancy Norman, Billy Williams and Don Cummings. When Johnnie Comes Marching Home, on screen, helped some.

New bill opened Friday (15) an all-sepia array topped by Cab Calloway. Colored shows always big here and this one no exception. Got off to a fast start that points to a heavy $28,000. Paul, Dinky and Eddie; Honi Coles, Cholly and Dotty, and Anise Boyer the added acts. Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon on screen.

Fay's Theater (seating capacity, 2,200; house average, $6,000), situated away from the downtown zone and hit a bit by the loss of auto trade, considered it good enough with $7,200 for week ended Thursday (14) with a staged black and white battle of music between Louis Prima and Ernie Fields. Canfield Smith and Snodgrass, John Mason and Company, and Raps and Taps the added acts, with bands bringing up Leon Prima, Lilly Ann Carroll, Jimmie Vincent, Estelle Edison, and Melvin Moore. Boston Blackie Goes Hollywood on screen.

New bill opened Friday (15), faced by strong opposition from the stronger colored show at the Earle, got off to only a fair start, and figures on hitting about $6,500. Hollywood's "The Little Tough Guys" also get top billing, with Peck and Peck, Katharine Harris and John Mason and Company supporting. Junior Army on screen.

Detroit Grosses Up; Duke, Hampton Fine

DETROIT.—With two houses on a regular stageshow policy, the one runs a half week only at present, vaude business in Detroit is distinctly on the up.

Paradise Theater (2,000 seats; house average $11,000) enjoyed two weeks just under the house record of $18,000 held by Cab Calloway. Last two weeks ran a little over $17,000 each, with Duke Ellington playing the first week and Lionel Hampton the second. All-colored show policy is clicking big, altho it will be diversified in a few weeks with a single week of a white band, with the rest of the stageshow colored.

At the Krim Theater (1,000 seats; house average on split week $3,500) six miles out Woodward Avenue, a policy of three-day week-end attractions was adopted, with Bob Chester and orchestra for the opener. Chester, a big local favorite here for several years grossed $3,500.

Springfield Okay

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—The first week of vaudeville here under the new ban on pleasure driving was successful for the Court Square. Some of the best vaude ever seen here was included on the bill that ended a three-day run Saturday (9).

On the stage were Three Smoothies, Stark and Dawn, Billy Ryan, Smiles and Smiles, Murray and Wagner, Arthur LaFleur and Miss Manners. On the screen, Strictly in the Groove.

"Manhattan" Okay

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—First unit to feel the effects of the pleasure-driving ban here was Eddie Burkette's Manhattan Merry-Go-Round, which played the State Theater Monday. Burkette and Theater Manager Perry Neel seemed satisfied with attendance. "Considering the fact that theaters are hit by the ban, we did exceptionally well," Neel said.

Most striking result of the ban was the cut in attendance of servicemen. Local taxicabs were declared "off limits" January 9 by military authorities.

House seats 1,061. New act with the show is Mary Allison, acrobat.

Admission was 9, 22 and 40 cents. Picture, Mexican Spitfire Sees a Ghost.

Barnet Strong

MINNEAPOLIS.—Aided and abetted by a sellout New Year's Eve crowd at the upped admission price of 75 cents, Charlie Barnet drew a strong $16,000 gross at the Mort H. Singer Orpheum Theater here week ending January 7. Pix was Humphrey Bogart in Across the Pacific.

Balto Hipp Hefty

BALTIMORE.—Hippodrome Theater grossed a splendid $20,000 week ended January 6, with stage bill featuring Jackie Miles, comedian and emcee; the Kim Loo Sisters, the Lime Trio, Six Willys and the Six Pupi Dancers. Pix, Once Upon a Honeymoon.

Big 43G for Third "Road" Week, Ink Spots Unit in Chi

CHICAGO.—The usual after-holiday business lull is not around this year, as the combo houses continue to pile up satisfactory grosses. Theaters are benefiting from the generally favorable conditions.

Chicago (4,000 seats; $32,000 house average) closed the third and last week of the Bob Hope-Bing Crosby flicker, Road to Morocco, ended January 14, with a mighty $48,000. Much of this healthy gross is due to the new stage attraction, Lucky Millinder band and the Ink Spots, which attracted plenty of Harlem trade. Their appearance, incidentally, has cut sharply into the gross of Fats Waller and band at the Regal Theater in Harlem, who walked out with a below-average gross for the same week. The third Road stanza, incidentally, was stronger than the second week which grossed $45,000. Les Brown's band unit played for the initial fortnight.

Week of January 15 the Chicago opened well with Woody Herman and band and Paramount's I Married a Witch.

Oriental (3,200 seats; $18,000 house average) had a nice session week of January 8, grossing $19,500 with Henry Busse and band, Mary Small and, on the screen, something called The Lady From Chungking. On Friday (15), house had an average opening with Bob Allen and band (new here) and Stuart Erwin and June Collyer, Hollywood couple, doing a comparatively new vaude turn. On screen, Seven Miles From Alcatraz.

Buffalo Installs A Gas Ban Feeler

BUFFALO.—Vaudefilm, dormant here for several weeks, returned to the Buffalo with gusto week of January 15. It's only house here still going in for the combo layouts, and biz has been pretty neat, despite bad weather and gas ban on pleasure driving.

The Buffalo (seating capacity, 3,500; house average, $13,500 for straight pix only) looks forward to a good gross for week of January 15, with Frankie Masters orchestra on the stage and a good surrounding show. Band features Phyll Myles, Billy Lowe, the Swingmasters, an. Woody Kessler, while vaude contingent is headed by the Borrah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals, and includes Sybil Bowen, and Johnny Barnes. Film, Life Begins at 8:30, should help draw. Film takes here have been around $15,000; therefore it is safe to anticipate a take of $22,000 from the Masters show. No other vaude shows are definitely set following this one, management using this show as a feeler for new gas ban situation.

Boston Does Big; Herman Ork Terrif

BOSTON.—Boston's sole vaudefilmer, RKO-Boston, continues to do capacity. Special attention now has to be paid to the standees: no one is allowed to watch a performance standing and extra ushers have been hired.

Grosses for the past three weeks were as follows:

Glen Gray and orchestra did a good $22,000. RKO-Boston seats 3,213, with 85 cents top. Pix was Nightmare.

Earl Carroll Vanities had them standing in line. With price for New Year's Eve set at $2.20, reserved seats only, gross was a great $34,000. Pix was When Johnny Comes Marching Home.

Woody Herman and orchestra did terrific business for week ending January 13. He did a good $28,000, or $6,000 better than this season's average. Pix was Seven Miles From Alcatraz.

Ben Domingo has returned as manager of the house.

Krupa 16G in LA

LOS ANGELES.—Gene Krupa grossed a neat $16,000 at the Orpheum for six days ended Monday night (11). On the bill with him were Paul Kirkland, Marion Daniels and Dr. Giovanni. Krupa was the first band booked here on a six-day basis. Pix was Madame Spy. House seats 2,200 at 65 cents top. House average is $6,500.

The War and What It Means To All of Us

By PAUL DENIS

Business as Usual?

A NYBODY who thinks they can sit out this war is crazy.

Today, 13 months after Pearl Harbor attack, we have seen the nation gear itself for an offensive war. Everybody is affected, either as employer, consumer, employee, soldier or whatnot. And the show business is being shaken by its roots.

There's no room in this war for a show business that pursues "business as usual." Unless the show business hooks itself to the war effort even more completely than it has, it is not going to get any sympathy from the government when rationing becomes even more tougher and industries are being graded in importance.

Show People as Soldiers

ALTHO show people travel more than almost any other kind of people, they have always been limited in their political understanding. Most of them just don't bother to read anything but the theatrical columns and the trade papers. Their interest in show business is usually so intense and overwhelming that nothing else seems important enough for extensive conversation.

As a result, altho show people travel extensively, meet thousands of people and are talking almost continuously, they are still politically naive. Those show people now in the armed forces and those affected by Selected Service will undoubtedly be shaken out of their lethargy and forced to take their citizenship more seriously. Out of the war should come better informed show people who will help live down the public impression that entertainers and other show people are irresponsible, transient, feather-brained zoot-suiters who will entertain gratis at political rallies but who will rarely bother to vote or to understand the issues involved.

That 25G Ceiling

MANY big agencies and many name band leaders and names are still fuming over the government's ceiling of $25,000 net income a year. They are ready to join the high-powered political drive to alter the law so as to permit earnings higher than the $67,000 gross allowed now. But show business should think twice before publicly yelling for a revision of this law.

Show business had better not forget that the public is in no mood to sympathize with the select few who complain they're not permitted to net more than $25,000 a year. Show business had better make its plea along the lines that, 1—the salary ceiling will cut down on the number of personal appearances and films made by stars and name bands and therefore decrease box-office receipts, which in turn will mean less admission taxes for the government, and, 2—the salary ceiling cheats the government out of additional income taxes by prohibiting high earnings. These are the only sensible angles open to show business in its propaganda campaign to alter this law.

After the War

SHOW business will emerge from the war bigger than ever. The war will give it the chance to prove to this nation—and in fact the entire world—that it is indispensable to morale during critical time. Modern entertainment, catering to mass audiences and using the finest equipment and the greatest talent, is obviously the easiest, least expensive and quickest way to reach a great number of people with either a war message or pure escapist release. Whether a message or pure entertainment (or a subtle interlacing of both), show business is the medium. And show business will emerge from the war with greater dignity and value than ever before.

This bill is a fine tribute to the booking acumen of Jesse Kaye, who has dared to put three acts, new to Broadway vaudefilers, on the same show. More layouts like this should be the rule rather than the exception these days when booking offices are biting their fingernails trying to overcome the talent shortage.

The results are wholly satisfactory.

Veterans on the bill are the reliable Benny Fields and Three Sailors. Fields does his usual terrific job of song selling, starting out with Jingle Jangle, and continues with Make My Craziest Dreams Come True, The Music Goes Round medley brought up to date, and the George M. Cohan tribute with a scrim flashing rousing marching scenes. That's enough to bring down any house. He then went into Der Fuehrer's Face, which apparently was unrehearsed. He begged off after that.

The Sailors knockabout in their usual manner and get their accustomed good response.

First of the new acts are the Four Kit Kats, a mixed quartet of sepia hoofers who do some solid hoofing even tho there are no outstanding tricks. Their precision work is good, and solo spots are well taken. There is hardly a let-up; their eight minutes seemed considerably less. Wear white tails and toppers. Walked off to a good hand.

Bill and Cora Baird, seen in local niteries, are new to vaude. They nevertheless display fine showmanship with their puppet manipulations. All their characters have personality and are fine caricatures. Best is their stripper getting encouragement from a night club emcee. Their satire of the Andrews Sisters, with a record supplying music, was okay, and their jitterbug pair did well.

The two ballroom numbers by the Cerney Twins left the customers wanting more. Open with a fast and graceful tango and wind up with a faster jitterbug number utilizing their speed and youth. They got a protracted hand.

Joe Rines supplies the music from the stage and does fine backing of the show. His novelty numbers included impressions of bands playing There Are Such Things, McNamara's Band and a bell number. Rines gives out with a magic bit. He is affable and his personality made a dent on the audience. Willis Kelly, trumpeter, did a good job with a vocal and trumpet piece.

Business was fine at show caught. Film, Road to Morocco. Joe Cohen.

rosier future than the Woody Herman orchestra, which is in for a financially healthy session here this week. Not only does the alert maestro have his excellent blues playing down to a science, but each number is loaded with showmanship and definite entertainment value. The colorful arrangements of both the newer tunes and such Herman standards as Amen and Golden Wedding are played with the precision of a tri-motored bomber and abundant skill. Herman has probably never had a better band, which, in the face of Uncle Sam's draft raids, is a near miracle.

The show, on the whole, is one of the best package units seen here in weeks. The acts fit their respective niches nicely, with the Herman specialties coming in just at the right time.

For vocals there is Herman himself with a strong set of pipes; Billie Rogers, hot trumpet gal and novelty singer, as well as Carolyn Grey, cameo-faced lovely, with a fair voice and lively delivery suitable for pop tunes. The Woodchoppers, unit within the band, chop up a jump number, and such instrumentalists as Frankie Carlson (drums) and Vito Russo (tenor sax) come in for brief innings of their own.

Of the three added acts, Ray English, in the next-to-closing spot, comes off with the heaviest applause, thanks to his strong acro slapstick novelty and a bright personality. Has a good opening in his straight interpretative tap routine, going into his strong falls which are a natural for a theater audience. While his talk material is not fresh, his salesmanship puts it over. Stopped the show cold.

Paul Sydell and Spotty, dog act, do the familiar and still reliable novelty. Sydell works with three pooches, one at a time, closing with his toy canine. All do muscle control tricks, most of them performed on Sydell's hands and shoulders. A few funny lines here and there could make the act still punchier.

Lloyd and Willis, in an early spot, help the show maintain its solid pace with hard ballet tap routines, danced with showmanship. The girl is developing a nice style of zany comedy which has definite possibilities.

On screen, Paramount's I Married a Witch with Fredric March and Veronica Lake.

Phil Spitalny and his girls come in Friday (22) to do one of the few theater dates accepted for this season, and at a $10,000 guarantee for the week. Griff Williams and orchestra will follow January 29. Sam Honigberg.

the impression that they are reading the lines with no attempt at selling them. After a "we're a happy family bit," Stu becomes serious by reading a patriotic poem on rationing. Sensible stuff, but that is not entertainment.

Two other acts complete the bill. Ross Wyse Jr. is still teaching lanky June Mann the art of adagio the funny way, and both close big with strong acro tricks. Anita Jakobi has an early spot with her solid acrobatic dancing which has plenty of eye appeal.

Band closes with a George M. Cohan medley, which is a mistake. Mary Small did a similar medley much better only last week.

On screen, Seven Miles From Alcatraz. Biz looked good end of first show opening day. Sam Honigberg.

Golden Gate, San Francisco

(Reviewed Wednesday Evening, Jan. 13)

There's no lack of enthusiasm at the Golden Gate, where Gene Krupa's orchestra is playing a week's engagement. Krupa must have a passion for beating things, so great is his gusto in playing the drums. His band turns out some spectacular numbers with extensive score for drums on the soft ooze like Sleepy Lagoon and Moonlight Becomes You. Blue Rhythm Fantasy, which uses 23 drums in a five-minute percussion passage, is one of the best musical novelties heard here.

Dean of Krupa's combo is Roy Eldredge, a lad who once had his own band in Chicago, who plays trumpet, and his St. Louis Blues is offered with the same ecstatic abandon as displayed by Krupa on the drums. Penny Piper, who resembles Bonita Granville, is also with the band. She sings a little and models a well-fitted gown.

Swing isn't everything on the Krupa menu. Ray Eberle carols a few smooth pop tunes with a clear, sweet, relaxed ballad diction.

Vaude acts thrown in include Paul Kirkwood, comedian, who does a neat balancing turn, including a stunt on the ladder; Jane Slater, a clever dancer but a bit too sophisticated, and Al Carney, mimicker, who made something pretty good out of an old routine.

Orpheum, Los Angeles

(Reviewed Tuesday Afternoon, Jan. 12)

An all-sepian bill this week, with Ethel Waters headlining. Marquee space is shared with Les Hite and orchestra. Also on the bill are the Hottentots and Paul White.

Hite emuses in his jive manner, and his ork (five reed, seven brass, four rhythm) get in the kicks. Show gets off on Hip, Hip, Hooray, with the brass section doing its bit. Blue Skies, more subdued, displays the band's musical ability. Hite proves that he can blast the roof off the place or carry good melody. On Skies he uses his three trumpet men and a sax player for a vocal quartet. Boys warble the tune laboriously.

Paul White attempts to get the audience in the palm of his hand with a lot of mugging, but it fails to arouse applause. Fails to back his grimaces with

Oriental, Chicago

(Reviewed Friday Afternoon, Jan. 15)

A weak combination here this week, co-featuring Bob Allen and orchestra (first time in town) and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Erwin (June Collyer) from Hollywood. Allen, former vocalist with the late Hal Kemp, still remains a vocalist as far as his band activities are concerned, and the band itself is far from ready for stage shows in key houses. Musically, there is a semblance to the Kemp style, but there the similarity ends, for the output lacks spirit and punch. Allen, too, does not display any experience as a stage show emcee and co-ordinator.

Allen is fair on romantic ballads, but doesn't milk all the possibilities out of them. Attempts at dramatics, such as the Pearl Harbor prologue to Praise the Lord, are rather amateurish. First show caught found the bass man and one of the trumpet men missing (didn't arrive in time), but that is not a sufficient excuse for this sorry performance.

Two redeeming band features are the good trumpet work by Randy Brooks, who doubles as musical leader, and sweet and bright-voiced Lynn Gardner, who sells I Met Him on Monday, Too Much Zoot Suit and Everything I've Got (latter in duet form with Allen).

Stuart Erwin and June Collyer have a bad act and, what's worse, they have no idea how to sell it. This Hollywood couple lacks the experience of stage delivery and timing an average vaude act possesses. They start with a skit of a soldier talking to a girl and they give good tapping and seat singing, which he attempts. Weakest act in the show.

Bringing out Snookie Young, trumpet man, Hite again hits it off, with the sidemen giving Young good support on Stardust, Gerald Wiggins, pianist, knocks off good ivory business to delight the crowd. The band still holds sway with a jive arrangement of Old Folks at Home. In some places it is not recognizable to even Stephen Foster, but the jive boys ate it up.

Jimmy Anderson, Hite's singer, is okay vocally but off on showmanship. Anderson sings with ease and the audience went strong for his renditions of As Tho You Were Here and No Greater Love. He's an asset to the band.

The Hottentots, fast-stepping trio, tap clean and do a good show. Youthful and with plenty of zip, these colored boys go thru a difficult routine without a hitch. They sock across their wares.

Miss Waters was saved for the next to closing spot. She gets off to a good start with Taking a Chance on Love, and followed it with Never Trust a Man, Cabin in the Sky, St. Louis Blues, My Handy Man Ain't Handy No More and a medley, ending with Am I Blue? Encored with Stormy Weather. She has a well diversified set-up that can't possibly miss the jivers going for the novelties and the others for the show tunes. Does outstanding work on the show tunes and pop classics.

Hite beat it out for the finale.

Olympia, Miami

(Reviewed Wednesday Afternoon, Jan. 13)

A good house caught the first showing of this week's variety of acts and was extremely liberal in applause. For later performances, Manager Weiss made a few changes to make for smoother running. Jay Seiler, doubling as emcee, clicked with his new partner, Miriam Seabold, who replaced her brother, Lou, who is in the army, in the act. Insertion of La Seabold helped and their March of the Wooden Ships got a big hand.

The Maginis, here after five months on USO shows, contribute a neat, but short interlude of magic. Magini offers some suave chatter and his girl assistant was good to look at. They use a soldier from the audience which adds zip and drew a good hand.

Shirley Deane, headliner, was suffering from a heavy cold. She sang three songs and for an encore punch pulled a soldier and a girl from the audience to help her out.

The Shyrettos, trick cyclist trio and third act from the Ringling Bros. circus to work here this season, were a trifle handicapped by a crowded stage. Act went over with a bang, and left the audience hungry for more.

The Oxfords, a duo which does plenty of musical imitations of band leaders, radio stars and the like, stole the show. The boys were extremely liberal in response to the tremendous ovation accorded them, and had to beg off.

Harry Reser's orchestra used I Had the Craziest Dreams for the overture, with Don Littlefield doing the vocal. Whistling in Dixie is the picture. L. T. Berliner.

is when Rey does solo work. His renditions of My Buddy and Wabash Blues are hot. Encored with a blue medley, with Skeets Herfurt doing a take-off on the clarinet.

Kirk Wood does a none-too-good vocal on Dearly Beloved and When the Lights Go On Again. Of the crooner type, Wood relies too much on voice and does no selling job. Rey's outfit presented a dull 10 minutes with a take-off on opera. Not even a very good grade of corn. Too amateurish for a name band to attempt. Dick Catheart, youthful trumpet man, turns in a good solo on Bugle Call Rag. Got good support from the band.

Wally Brown, monologist, is next with his unconnected sentences. Much of the material is clever, but after the first three minutes it's quite a letdown.

Hit of the show is the King Sisters, unfortunately saved for the last. They run thru some ace-high vocalizing on Mr. Five by Five, My Devotion and Rosie the Riveter. Brought down the house with their Tiger Rag. Rey emcees in a matter-of-fact manner. His guitar work, with the rhythm section assisting, is superb. More of this—plenty more—should be scattered throughout the show. And the King Sisters aren't used half enough.

Pic, Strictly in the Groove. Three-quarter house when caught. Sam Abbott.

NIGHT CLUB REVIEWS

Times Square is like looking for Dr. Livingstone, but for Long Island residents it's a crack value. Dinner prices are startlingly low, quality is excellent, atmosphere is pleasant and service is good.

Talent standards, however, are on the minus side, but are apparently serving present needs. Only performers on tap are Jerinda McKay's four-piece girl combo, which, from professional standards, is pretty bad (see review in Cocktail Combos); Don Renaldo, mediocre singer and, on the pleasing side, Paris Reed, fem intermission pianist who does a nice, even job of ivory plunking, ably aided by an extensive repertoire.

Owners of the spot are deeply entrenched in show business, the Mrs. having once been a standard vaude unit and more recently a producer of girl flash acts and Mr. having been an agent in the night club department of the William Morris agency. Sol Zatt.

"Best Foot Forward"

(Reviewed at State, New York, Thursday Evening, January 7)

The State stage hasn't held as much cuteness at one time since one of its dog acts acted au naturel. The Best Foot Forward condensation, with its 10 ladies of the ensemble and a juvenile set of leads, furnishes some of the nicest visual entertainment, as well as some smart Gene Kelly-designed routines. Production and solo highlights have been picked off effectively and, while the orthodox State bill may contain more sock talent, the over-all effect of this unit is equally entertaining.

Marty May and Joy Hodges represent the mature end of the unit, with May picking off the plot highlights and setting the stage for the production numbers. His own stint is well on the chuckle side. He does his impressions of various types of singers, capped by his satire on a prima donna.

Miss Hodges gives a good account of herself with Hip-Hip Hooray, I Love the Blues and leading the Winsoki number in the finale.

The Four Franks are also on the accomplished side with their comedy, Miss Ollie Franks assuming the major burden. The Gone With the Wind satire and rib of a cooch dancer went over very well. They display some outmoded tapping, in which speed is the prime essential, which contrasts poorly with the highly intelligent and purposeful tap designs of the Lynn Brothers, who replaced the Barron Brothers, now in the army. The Lynns returned for encores.

Maureen Cannon is a cute singer with a studied style that is easy on the ears, while Betty Ann Nyman, adequate in the vocal department, shines best at her spins. Ollie Franks also chirps and joins them in getting good effects out of The Three B's.

The unit carries its own conductor, Archie Bleyer, and 10 additional males to augment the line work.

House was at three quarters at night caught. Pic is White Cargo.

(Reviewed at the National Theater, Richmond, Va., January 1, 1943)

This is a fast-moving little show. The headline act is different. It is a high act, presented on stage, LaFaver and Dolly. Have plenty of nerve and hold the audience breathless as they swing, perform one-hand springs and risk their necks. Swell. Scared the audience out of its wits.

Singer on the bill is a little girl, Christine. Can't sing so well perhaps, but is when Rey does solo work. His renditions of My Buddy and Wabash Blues are hot. Encored with a blue medley, with Skeets Herfurt doing a take-off on the clarinet.

Kirk Wood does a none-too-good vocal on Dearly Beloved and When the Lights Go On Again. Of the crooner type, Wood relies too much on voice and does no selling job. Rey's outfit presented a dull 10 minutes with a take-off on opera. Not even a very good grade of corn. Too amateurish for a name band to attempt. Dick Catheart, youthful trumpet man, turns in a good solo on Bugle Call Rag. Got good support from the band.

Wally Brown, monologist, is next with his unconnected sentences. Much of the material is clever, but after the first three minutes it's quite a letdown.

Hal Saunders played the accompaniment with his usual competence, and for the dance sets snapped out lively, dance-inciting rhythms. Joe Pafumy's Latin band is still here, and as good as ever. Anita Rozal is his pretty brunet vocalist.

Denis.

RIOBAMBA, NEW YORK. — Mitzi Green, making her first local night club appearance in six years (her last was the Versailles), opened here January 13 and should have smooth sailing. A special arrangement of What Do You Think I Am?, explaining her having grown up, got off to a neat start. Then came You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To, a session of impersonations of movie stars, encoring with an amusing and excellently delivered tune by Eli Bass and Bobby Kroll, Pvt. Jones. Came back for more impersonations and the song associated with her, The Lady Is a Tramp. Twenty-one minutes at the dinner show, and she punched all the way. She has poise, the voice, a comedy sense and good material. Looked very nice in a black satin top and net gown affair. She should recover here some of the prestige she lost with the flop show, Let Freedom Sing.

Rest of the show is same as before. Romeo Vincent, the "Magnificent Obstruction," proved again he is fine special-material comedian. Does How I Adore the Opera, but it's not half as amusing as his familiar cab driver number or as punchy as his Laughton bit. Chandra-Kaly Dancers, man with three girls, fit the atmosphere of this beautiful room with their barefoot Latin dances. Colorful costumes, novel dances and a tremendous enthusiasm mark this quartet's work. Rest of the revue is production stuff: The seven Russell Patterson Magazine Cover Girls, all beauties and sporting snazzy costumes, in okay dances arranged by Dorothy Fox; Johnny McCoy, a ballet dancer with a fluid body and wearing sneakers, and Kay Dowd, brnette line girl who doubles at a bit of fair singing.

Nat Brandwynne (piano) and his 10 men cut the show well except that their sambas are anemic. And Chavez Rumba Band snaps out lively Latin rhythms for dancing.

PLEASURE DIVING BAN

private parties, clubs and other groups which before gas rationing depended on trips to Des Moines for entertainment.

Acts are being sent by train to the smaller towns and are playing spots never before played, he explained.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Despite stringent restrictions on auto travel, local night clubs and cocktail lounges are enjoying good business. Managers of night clubs, theaters, etc., have given expression to the view patrons as well as motorists generally have taken the ban seriously, but it will not hurt business, for they will either walk, if within walking distance, or come by streetcar.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 16.—Night clubs here are folding like humming birds in a blizzard as result of ban on pleasure driving. Frank Fishburne, operating Cabana in Warwick, shuttered that spot day ban went into effect, running newspaper ads announcing closing as "temporary until such time as our government can safely alleviate the present situation." Other Warwick dine-dance places did no business Thursday, and all forecast closings within short time, with a few dropping entertainment policy, closing dining rooms and hoping to keep bar operating for neighborhood patrons.

Curt O. Winter, operating Bavarian Hof-Brau in Pawtucket, announced he probably would have to close it by end of month. The Farm in Pawtuxet, not being on any direct transportation line, has gloomy outlook.

Ice-Capades of 1943 opened 10-day engagement at R. I. Auditorium here last night to 3,100 persons, about half arena's capacity. Only about 50 autos were parked on arena parking lot during evening, many of these being employee's machines.

NEWARK, Jan. 16.—Roadhouses in Northern New Jersey have been hit hard by gas rationing. Not only did the Meadowbrook fold, but such spots as the Flagship, Union, the Brook, Summit, Chanticleer, Milburn are having a tough time meeting new conditions. The Mayfair, West Orange, has dropped its shows, after being notified by the OPA that patrons will be permitted to come in private cars until 11 p.m. but not after that because then the spot switches from a restaurant to a night club policy.

Because of this OPA rule on restaurants, it is expected that many out-of-the-way clubs will drop shows and music and try to stay open for the duration as straight restaurants and bars.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 16.—Roadhouses in this area are having a tough time. Hi Way Casino here has folded.

Ruby Newman's Cabana in Norwich, Conn., has closed.

BERWYN, Md., Jan. 16.—La Conga has closed after a couple of months. Curbello's band had been featured.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 16.—Club Ferdinando here is urging patrons, via newspapers ads, to use busses.

Because of the new gas ration set-up, plans for a series of 10 weekly popular-priced concerts scheduled by the Hartford Symphony Orchestra at the Bushnell Memorial, Hartford legit house, have been abandoned for the time being.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16.—First casualty caused in this vicinity from the recent ban on the use of gas for pleasure driving was Tilly's, night spot three miles west of Richmond. Spot had used orchestra and talent, and announced indefinite closing as of Monday (11) Westwood Supper Club, also three miles out, which usually is patronized by from 100 to 300 couples nightly, has seen its patrons dwindle to as few as three couples per evening. Manager Charles Womble, of Cavalier Arena, reports a drop of 65 per cent in attendance.

MIAMI, Jan. 16.—Only casualty in amusement field here, besides race and dog tracks, was the Drive-In picture house, closed because patronage depended on customers who came by cars.

Theaters seem to have improved biz, if that is possible, in the downtown area, while neighborhood houses are holding their own.

E. M. Loew, operator at Latin Quarter, is very pessimistic, and feels the club may have to close shortly unless there is a change in gas rationing. Final decision awaits the return of Lou Walters from New York.

Week-ends are sure to be heavy at this spot, but it is feared other nights will fall off.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Ban on pleasure driving is proving a serious threat to nabe nitries and roadhouses here and on the New Jersey side. Fortunately, the vast majority of the spots have advantage of trolley, bus and subway transportation. None of the spots hit will shutter entirely, over fear of losing their liquor license. However, it means that floorshows and music will be "gone with gas" until driving customers are able to return.

First major nabe spot to darken the dining room here was Lexington Casino. Irving Weinberg, proprietor, says patronage dropped to almost nothing and, accordingly, dismissed the orchestra, floorshow and two bartenders. All roadhouses here dropped their bands (none featured floorshows). In-town nitries now devoting all their newspaper ad space to tell how easy it is to reach the spot by public transportation lines. Business at nabe nitries has dropped from 15 to 30 per cent.

Situation is even more critical on the Jersey side. Weber's Hof Brau and Neil Deighan's, both depending heavily on driving customers altho busses stop close to the doors, are about ready to drop floorshows and orchestras. Each spot uses an average of eight acts and two bands. Instead of the usual 300 cars parked at the clubs, Saturday night found only 19 cars parked. Nearly half of the other roadhouses in the South Jersey area are reported either closing or dropping entertainment.

NORFOLK, Jan. 16.—Monticello Hotel's Starlight Room has moved operations up an hour to cope with the pleasure driving ban. Club now opens at 8:30 p.m. and closes at midnight. Now patrons may stay to the finish and still find public transportation lines in operation to take them home.

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 16.—Nightly inspection by the Tulsa County sheriff's force of gasoline ration stickers on cars parked at night clubs, skating rinks, ballrooms and other places of amusement has not hurt business any, county operators say.

Squad cars began nightly inspections New Year's Eve and have reported several persons to ration boards for alleged "violations."

Customers are using cabs and driving with friends who have "A" stickers.

Sheriff A. Garland Marrs maintains that while rationing continues no "B" and "C" card holders can drive their cars to amusement places.

NAT'L LIQUOR LAW REVIEW

Rules Generally Favorable for Cocktail Trade, But War May Shorten Hours of Operation

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Liquor-dispensing laws which vitally affect the growth of the cocktail unit field are generally favorable throughout the country, but the continuation of the war will undoubtedly result in more stringent curfew laws, particularly in areas housing large numbers of men in uniform, a check-up reveals. Presently, 38 States permit the operation of bars and cocktail lounges where liquor is sold. Eight States control the selling of spirits thru the operation of State stores and forbid the operation of bars for that purpose. Only two States, Kansas and Oklahoma, have prohibition in effect, and bootlegging in those areas is still a practice.

Where service men mass, neighboring areas have strict rules as to the selling of liquor to soldiers and sailors and have comparatively shorter operating hours. In Florida and California, among several other States, bars have to close at midnight. In Nebraska, liquor cannot be sold after 1 a.m., giving operators only about two peak business hours. In those States entertainment as a rule begins at an earlier hour, but people, generally speaking, do not do much drinking until late.

In the following States government stores control the distribution of liquor, and the only way a customer can drink in a spot is by bringing his own supply: Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, North Carolina, Oregon, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

These are the States which permit drinking at bars and tables: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado,

Chi Beverly Lounge Destroyed by Fire

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Beverly Lounge, located in the building of the Beverly Recreation Parlor on the South Side, was destroyed by fire last week, in addition to the bowling alleys which were part of the structure. The fire, which took a toll of seven lives, was the result of faulty electrical wiring.

Beverly Lounge has been using entertainment five years and for the past year has been booked by Bill Parent, of Frederick Bros., here. Al and Linda Davis, guitar-vibes and accordion team, have been working there, but were off during the night of the fire. However, they lost a guitar, vibes and a $1,000 accordion. Their instruments were not covered by insurance, but they may recover the loss because the building and its fixtures were insured.

New Trenton Spot Gets Ella Fitzgerald Combo

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 16.—Alberti's Restaurant, under new management, steps out as Murphy's, most modern musical bar here. Top units will be featured and first in is Ella Fitzgerald and the Four Keys. Ground floor has been refurbished to house a new 111-foot horseshoe bar, with the restaurant operated on the second floor.

Harry Cool to Helsing's

CHICAGO Jan. 16.—Harry Cool, singer with the Dick Jurgens orchestra which breaks up for the duration at the Aragon Ballroom here tomorrow (17), will fill his first engagement in the cocktail field when he opens a run at Helsing's Vodvil Lounge Thursday (21). Deal was set thru MCA here with Frank J. Hogan, talent buyer for the Helsing chain.

Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

A growing problem is the diminishing supply of available stocks of brands of whiskies which are no longer manufactured or are sharply curtailed in production. Many operators have put aside large reserves, but few will have much of a variety after one year. Cocktail lounge owners are beginning to push domestic wines, which are still plentiful.

Atmiller To Front Combo

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Jesse Atmiller, drum specialty act, is rounding up a four-piece unit. Has already lined up Don Glasen, local vibraphone player. Other two instrumentalists to be selected will include vocal doublers. Atmiller has signed with the Max Richards Agency, New York, and expects to get underway after filling his solo engagement at Hopkins Rathskele here.

Flat Perfect

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Marty O'Donnell, who is banging around town with a new trio, says he arranges all his tunes a half note flat in order to do a good job. He explains this oddity by asserting that every cocktail lounge piano he has played so far is a half note flat.

Cocktail Talent For Mass. Park

AGAWAM, Mass., Jan. 16.—Eddie Carroll, owner-manager of Riverside Park here, will institute a cocktail talent policy in his Parkview Restaurant when it reopens for the season early in April.

A small stage is being set into the back bar section for the entertainment. Restaurant is located at the main entrance to the park.

Don Pedro Quartet To Silhouette, Chi

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Don Pedro, veteran band leader, has dropped his full orchestra to concentrate on the cocktail field. He started with a five-piece group at the Fiesta Bar, Detroit, but will cut down to four pieces when he opens a four-month run at Club Silhouette here Tuesday (19).

Owner Jack Thurman went to Detroit to catch Pedro and signed him there.

Kobblers Turn NY Pan-American Room Into Money Maker

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A good example of what a musical combo can do for a spot is the current run of the Korn Kobblers at the Pan-American Room of Rogers Corner.

As the Rumba Room it was a dead spot. It was opened only for the overflow from the main room Saturday nights and for private parties. When Joe Rogers bought the Kobblers from the Stan Zucker Agency, he had the room revamped and renamed the Pan-American Room, and spent more than the usual money for newspaper advertising. Band clicked from the start. Room tees off now at 7 p.m. instead of 9, and has been averaging 600 patrons a night. Capacity is 200, which means a turnover of three times.

Joe Rogers says the "room has been jumping" since the Kobblers came in, and also that "the corner they are the more the customers love it." Middle-aged patrons are the most fervent admirers of the band, and, he adds, 85 percent ask for the Kobblers by name. Band is airing three times a week over Blue Network. Pan-American Room now charges $1.50 minimum after 10 p.m., compared with the no-minimum policy of the main room.

Kobblers have been in for two months and have four more months to go.

Negro Units Big at Beachc'ber, Omaha

OMAHA, Jan. 16.—Ralph Goldberg, veteran theater exhibitor and operator of the Beachcomber, leading cocktail lounge here, reports that traveling units have increased his business within the past year enough to permit the spending of up to $1,000 a week for entertainment. Prior to a year ago Goldberg concentrated on local talent only.

His spot has been using more Negro outfits, because Goldberg feels that he gets more entertainment value out of them. Particularly big have been the King Cole Trio and Louis Jordan's Timpay Five. As a rule, units change every month, but if they prove unusual clicks they stay a second month.

Currently on hand are the Three Aces and a Queen and for intermissions Sonny Boy Williams at the piano, all colored.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Community Cocktail Lounge here is the latest spot to try a Negro entertainer. It brought in Erskine Butterfield January 6 for four weeks and options, booked thru General Amusement Corporation, New York, at $200 a week.

The lounge was originally timid about booking a Negro, but Walter Bloom, manager of Butterfield, reassured it by adding a contract clause permitting the lounge to cut the four weeks to two after a three-day experiment. After the trial three days, however, the lounge okayed the entire four weeks.

Jim Blade Forms Trio

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Jim Blade, former arranger for Wayne King's band, has given up his own seven-piece unit to form a trio for work in intimate hotel rooms. His first date is the Blackstone Hotel's Balinese Room here. Started last night (15) and is in for four weeks and options. Bea Herold, vocalist, is working with the unit on this job.

MCA Signs Two Units

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Music Corporation of America here has signed two more cocktail units. Deals were set thru Dick Stevens, small-band department head. Units include Adrienne Black and Janice George, piano and voice, who have been set into the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, and Rita Warsawska, Russian pianist and singer.

PETRILLO RAKES IN POT

Washington Show-Down Leaves AFM Victor, According to Players

By ELLIOTT GRENNARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—No amount of wishful thinking or colorful reporting how Jimmy got his come-uppance can alter the fact that Petrillo raked in the pot when he finally played out his hand before the Senate investigating committee in Washington this week. The best criterion for judging the outcome is the way the contestants themselves see it. In Petrillo's AFM camp here, the word is out that all is "rosy." Among the diskers there is only gloom. All they can talk about now is not what Petrillo wants for his musicians but how soon he's going to spill it.

There was never any doubt that Petrillo would finally agree to negotiate for more records, it was merely a question of terms, with the element of time a matter of prime importance. Both sides played a waiting game; the diskers unwillingly but powerless to force the play, the musician deliberately waiting for the final showdown.

The showdown came when Senator Clark suggested that Petrillo lift the recording ban during negotiations that the AFM chief agreed to with the remark that the time had to come "to talk business with these boys." Petrillo's reply to the suggestion that the ban be lifted was a firm nix and the game was over.

There was the nub of the situation. If Petrillo could be pressured into lifting the ban for 30 days, the companies could record enough popular tunes to last, if not the year that Petrillo claimed, at least an extra six months. With that much reserve in the factories, the bargaining power would shift against AFM. As it stands now, with the waxed supply of current hits down to a couple of handfuls, the recorders are in no position to hold out for better odds.

There appears to be no rush on the part of Petrillo and company to swing into their annual executive board meeting. Right along they have been saying it will take place toward the end of January, and so it remains. About February 1 they will start their huddling, and according to one of the org's spokesmen, they'll continue huddling for a couple or three weeks. Diskers here don't expect to receive AFM's terms before March 1, and don't expect to reach the point where they can start recording before April 1.

The only thing that may shift the balance of power as it stands today is a decision against AFM in Chicago Monday (18) when Petrillo and eight other

Woe and Double Woe Is the Bugler's Lot

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Would-be army buglers had better learn to take it before induction, if results at the buglers' school at Pine Camp, N. Y., are any criterion.

Corp. Herb Dube was assigned to organize a school to train prospective buglers, which was coming along fine until one young tooter tried practicing in his barracks. A barrage of shoes and other available objects killed that idea, in addition to damaging the bugle. The recreation hall was the next spot selected for practicing, but the camp's dramatic group raised loud objection to the tom-cats' convention, and turned them out in no uncertain terms. Corporal Dube, not to be defeated, retired with his pupils to the building farthest from the barracks—the Post Gas Chamber. There at last they found peace, until they discovered that even the most ardent bugler can't toot it hot in a room filled with tear gas.

In reviewing the achievements of his school, Corporal Dube found himself with one student whose front teeth were blown loose by the earnestness of his bugling; another whose lips had become adhered to the mouth of his bugle in the frigid temperature; and a theory blown to bits by practice.

officials of the union must show cause why an injunction against the recording ban shall not be issued.

In the opinion of some astute onlookers, such a decision would only complicate the proceedings. Not only would such a ruling be fought tooth and nail by AFM but its back would be up and there is no telling what action it might advocate for its membership.

Many in the recording business, anxious to hear an "A" being sounded in the studios once more, are willing to call the quarrel quits and get down to talking turkey.

Band Box's Band Policy Begins With Boyd Raeburn

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The Band Box, newest Randolph Street spot which opened with cocktail units some three months ago, switches to a full band policy January 31 when Boyd Raeburn and his 15-piece outfit open for an indefinite run. Raeburn's last date here was at the Chez Parce.

Spot will play up the dance angle, since competitive lounges feature bar entertainment only. Neither minimum nor cover will be in effect, and only drinks will be served.

BR Op Hands Out Bonuses

ST. PAUL, Jan. 16.—Charles Fox, owner of the Prom Ballroom here, as well as ballrooms in Austin, Minn., and Clear Lake, Ia., has given 120 employees of the three places bonuses of 5 per cent of their annual salaries. Ten per cent of each bonus was paid in War Bonds. Total amount of bonuses was $5,200.

Obie's Stream of Hits Gripping Rival Diskers; 802 Quizzes; Meanwhile "CIO" Musikers Enter

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Eli Oberstein's Classic Record Company, which has been peddling recordings of hit tunes almost as fast as the songwriter can hum them, has advanced to a position where major disk firms are no longer amused.

Latest irk to the big wax boys is the appearance on retail sales counter of a Hit recording of He's a Right Guy and Could It Be You?, two Cole Porter tunes stemming from the smash Broadway show Something for the Boys, which opened only last week. Swiftness with which Oberstein has been getting "Mexican masters" made of brand-new ditties, has the execs thinking that Local 802 is letting them down and not getting after the Classic Record chief. Disk firm execs also point to When the Shepherd Leads His Sheep Back Home, which appeared on Hit release sheets before pub, Bremen-Vocco-Conn, had started plugging the tune.

Wax company officials feel that settlement of the recording ban is still at least a couple of months off, and are letting 802 know that they don't like Classic's cutting in while they are playing ball. Union officials point out that they have been on Oberstein's heels from the start and are still after him. Latest action was their refusal to accept Oberstein's resignation from the union, which was taken by close observers to mean that 802 intends to keep Oberstein where they can get at him for questioning. Union has also summoned Jack Small, whose name has been linked with the "Peter Piper" of Hit recordings, for questioning, but Small failed to appear. He's been summoned again for Thursday (21).

Disk execs are still dubious, however, and say they are waiting to see if Classic's recording license is renewed when

Star-Spangled Racket

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Paul Roberts, co-author of There's a Star-Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere, got a juicy royalty check from Bob Miller, Inc., and promptly tried to turn it into cash at his home-town bank in Maine. Bank manager got suspicious, wanted to know what kind of racket Roberts had gotten mixed up in New York, and refused to cash the check. He finally lent Roberts 10 bucks, but held back on the check until he checked with his office here about the "racket" this Bob Miller, Inc., was working.

15-Sq.-Feet Rule Hits Danceries

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 16.—Altho C. H. Bennett, chairman of the Nova Scotia Board of Censors, claims all nitery, dance hall and hotel operators are "co-operating" with his 15-square-feet-minimum demand for each patron, the ruling has given the danceries a severe blow and many of them have folded.

Bennett's 15-square-feet ultimatum must be complied with on penalty of forced closing.

AFM local here has gone on record in opposition, on ground that nitery operators will turn to phonos and will greatly reduce size of their orks. Many of the operators have already substituted phonos for live music.

The Nova Scotian Hotel has closed its ballroom because, under the censor board ruling, the ballroom could sell only 216 admissions, and no profit could be made with this limitation. Previously, attendance ran from 400 to 500. Others involved in the severe wallop at nitery operators are the Silver Slipper, Jubilee, Gottingen Club, Lord Nelson Hotel and Dance Land. The hostels and canteens are not affected.

Show-Cause Edict For Jim Petrillo

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The anti-trust suit filed last fall by the government against James C. Petrillo and the American Federation of Musicians and dismissed October 12 by Judge John P. Barnes of the Federal Court was reopened this week by Judge Barnes.

The suit, which sought to stop the defendants from halting the manufacture of recordings for public purposes, was dismissed by Judge Barnes on the ground that he had no jurisdiction in a matter primarily a labor dispute.

An amended petition, filed recently by Daniel C. Britt, special assistant U. S. attorney general, contains the original allegations and also a charge that Petrillo and the union will put some 500 independent radio stations out of business thru the ban on canned music.

Hearing on the petition has been granted, and Judge Barnes has ordered Petrillo and AFM officials to appear in court Monday (18) to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued against them. Britt stated that Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, will appear before Judge Barnes to press the government's case.

An appeal on the original petition which Judge Barnes dismissed also is pending before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Pubs' Hit Pops To Be Used by "Singing Army"

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Music pubs are expected to help the War Department in its program to build a singing army. Idea calls for the co-operation of music pubs in permitting the government to reprint lyrics of six top songs each month, songs to be selected by the War Department. Lyrics will be printed in card form instead of the booklets which have previously been issued, so that soldiers will always have latest tunes on hand.

Plan was conceived by Major Howard C. Bronson, music officer of the Special Service Division of the War Department, who feels that the boys want to sing it hot in addition to warbling the patriotic and standards contained in the present Army Song Book. Several publishers here have already volunteered their co-operation, should their songs be selected for distribution.

New scheme was disclosed by Major Bronson at a Town Hall conference Tuesday (12), theme of which was "They Shall Have Music Wherever They Go." Conference was also addressed by Dr. Harold Spivacke, head of the Music Division of the Library of Congress; Macklyn Marrow, music director of the Overseas Division of the Office of War Information; Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, Lawrence Tibbett, Walter Damrosch and Olin Downes.

Dr. Spivacke emphasized the importance of singing in the navy, where men are often unable to fit instruments aboard ship, and consequently have no other form of musical entertainment. Marrow pointed out that altho the interest in classical music was much greater among soldiers than in the last war, jazz still reigned.

All speakers emphasized great gains made in bringing music to the armed forces in the present war as contrasted with 1917, pointing particularly to the increased number of army bands which exist today and added interest on the part of soldiers, which they attributed to the popularity of radio and phonographs.

Milwaukee's Lawrence Welk Grosses $1,379 at Eagle's Ballroom

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16.—Lawrence Welk grossed a good $1,379 at Eagle's Ballroom here Wednesday (13). The admission scale ranged from 55 to 75 cents, and the turnout totaled 2,600 patrons.

They Can't Spell

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—They never say MBC or WJC but when it comes to names of band, the networks can't spell. Recent radio press release listed band leaders as follows:

Mitchell Ayers—Ayers is correct.
Blue Baron—Another "r" please!
Nat Brandwynn—What a little "e" can do.

Carmen Cavallero—Poor Carmen, they never get it right; it's Cavallaro.
The Corn Cobblers—Don't kill the double-k combination, say Korn Cobblers.

And in the subways WJZ planted ads which included several misspelled maestri. To wit:

Count Bassie—Too much "ss"-ing.
Art Castle and Lou Kassel—A little reverse English, bud. And it's "Lee"—and he doesn't lead a band anymore.

Would the airwave flacks like to hear it called the National Broadcasting Company?

Bookers Turn To Aspirin and Time Tables

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—One-night bookers, now probably consuming more aspirins per week than any other department in the music field, have issued a new complaint; not only is it difficult to get the okay from attractions to book them on one-night tours, but they are forced to forget about dozens of towns, formerly big money dates, because they are either out of reach of current transportation facilities or they force the band to lose a couple of days if the jump is made.

Bob Ehlert, the aspirin kid at the William Morris Agency, points out that promoters are turned down right and left, because they happen to be located in territories that are next to impossible to reach. With auto transportation a fond memory, trains make only a limited numbers of towns and the schedules are far from convenient, as far as the booking business is concerned.

Off the one-nighter books these days are such productive one-nighter towns as Tulsa, Okla.; Lincoln, Neb.; Little Rock, Ark.; Springfield, Mo., and Pittsburgh, Kan., among others. General Amusement Corporation states Berle Adams, on the one-nighter desk, no longer books as far west as he used to, and before any dates are accepted train schedules are thoroly digested to make sure that it is possible to make the date at approximately opening night time.

Woody Herman, now on a theater tour, has a week open starting February 5. But one-nighter offers from Adams drew nothing but a frigid shoulder from Woody, who said that he would rather lay off than gamble on train schedules the way they are today.

Tom Archer, Iowa promoter and ballroom operator, has dispatched a call for attractions only. He says that it is becoming increasingly difficult to make money with unknowns and only top names are big enough to decide prospective patrons on parting with a precious gallon or two of gas.

Yanks, Russians In Song Swap

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Currently popular American war songs have been sent to Russia for comparison with the latter's war tunes, in response to a hands-across-the-sea bid from the Society for Cultural Relations of the USSR. Over 100 songs were submitted by music publishers, and were sent out last week by Elie Siegmund-Stern, composer, who received the letter from the Russian group suggesting an exchange. Soviet war songs will be sent here for examination in return.

Among the American songs submitted were Praise the Lord, score from Yankee Doodle Dandy, When the Crimson Snows of Russia Turn White Again, He's A-1 in the Army, The Man Behind the Man Behind the Gun, The Marine's Hymn and many others, embracing both pops and standards.

Scale Hikes Taken to WLBUnion and Managements Look to War Labor Board for Ruling; May Lead to Revamped Pay Rolls

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—News that the War Labor Board is reviewing several scale increases proposed by Local 802, AFM here, may work important effects on the entire band industry. WLB's entry into the picture may bear out the prediction in The Billboard three weeks ago that salary stabilization of sidemen is not far off. At least a dozen cases involving scale hikes are now being studied by WLB, 802 officials reveal, and a ruling which may set a precedent is expected soon.

Cases arose when 802 recently informed operators of various locations here that scale for their places had been raised by the union. Operators then informed 802 they would not pay the increases until a government okay was secured. This occurred with offices of Station WINS here, which agreed to an increase of $5 per musician, but which withheld the dough pending a WLB ruling. Same happened with other managements, including Bill Bertolotti's night club here, the Columbia Shortwave Studios, and Rudy's Rail, a dinery. All of these employers were agreeable to the boost, but refused to shell out until they were sure no lawbreaking was involved. As a result, employers and union execs jointly appealed to WLB for a ruling.

One location, Brewery Restaurant, flatly refused to grant increases on the basis that these were illegal. Union took it upon itself to refer this one to WLB. In another case, that of the Childs Company, which also refused to grant any increases because of the wage-stabilization laws, 802 officials feel they will not press the matter if WLB's decision is unfavorable. Childs granted a scale boost last year, which may weaken the argument for another hike at this time.

Fact that the WLB has taken a hand in the scale set-up holds tremendous import for maestri who have been wondering where their tootlers got off asking for higher and higher wages. A WLB ruling setting scales at the January, '41 level, plus 15 per cent for "cost of living" (this would follow the general pattern laid down by WLB for all types of employees), would be heartily welcomed by leaders who up to now have lived in constant dread that a rival, by offering more attractive moolah, could scoop off the cream of their bands.

One complication that presents itself if scales are frozen by WLB is that of the maestri who pay over-scale wages to top horn blowers. This could possibly be straightened out, however, by WLB ordaining that the differential is actually a "bonus" and falls, therefore, under the general provisions for bonuses. In that event, in order to pay above scale, maestri would have to prove that similar bonuses were paid last year, or that the particular job involved has gained in importance or merit, or that the payment is covered by any of the "exception" clauses applied to bonuses.

Whatever stand WLB takes on scale minimums, maestri will have the satisfaction of knowing that something is finally being done to make clear just how band sidemen stand as regards salary stabilization. For a while it seemed almost impossible to figure out how or by whom the matter would be taken up officially. AFM, unofficially, had expressed its feeling that the musician was an artist and entitled to as much as he could get; the musicians have been undecided about letting themselves in for slices, and the band leader, while complaining about his overloaded pay roll, doesn't want to cut down unless wealthier competitors are equally curbed.

Bands Up Philly Theater Take; T. Dorsey Record Still Stands; Heidt, Millinder, Osborne Next

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Altho band-buying market is becoming tighter as transportation curbs get tougher and more leaders chuck their batons for a military career, Warner's Earle Theater here continues to cash in heavily on box-office value of name maestri. From present indications, its 1942-'43 season will exceed the record $1,169,700 gross piled up by bands during 1941-'42. Cash registers already have rung up more than one-third of that amount in the 18 weeks started September 4 and ending January 7. Exact figure is put at $403,000 by Bill Israel, manager of the Earle.

Depending upon the stage bill to bring in the shekels, Earle has managed to average around $22,400 a week for the 18 shows covering the 1942 weeks of the current season. Normal average is $18,000. House seats 3,000 and bases gross on six-day business (stage shows double Sundays into the Stanley Theater, Camden, N. J.). Apart from the theatrical boom being enjoyed here, the higher box-office scale has helped up the take. Last August gate was raised from 69 to 75 cents top, with 35-cent admission eliminated.

Of the 18 shows, all but one were band shows. All but four shows hit the house par or better, lowest scores being registered by the Jerry Wald and Tony Pastor orchestras. Each eked out $15,000, an early Christmas shopping period and lack of supporting names subtracting from their draws.

While none of the bands have approached the $46,700 high score last season by Tommy Dorsey, three attractions thus far have hit $30,000. Horace Heidt, aided by the Labor Day holiday, started the season off with $30,000 September 4 week. For the September 25 week that figure was matched by an all-sepia show headed by Lucky Millinder's orchestra and Ink Spots. For the October 23 week the Andrews Sisters with Will Osborne's band also reached $30,000.

Grosses scored by most of the bands are considered good in view of the fact that names have not been as big as those of last season. Biggest problem now facing house is keeping the band parade unbroken. Experience last season showed straight vaudeville bills are no go here, patrons wanting musical stage fare. Complicating the booking picture is the competition of Samuel H. Stiefel's Fay's Theater in West Philadelphia. While Fay's spotlights sepia bands, always big draws at the Earle, it is also bringing in some white bands. Had Louis Prima last week. Some of the top Negro names snared by Fay's include John Kirby, Lionel Hampton, Jimmie Lunceford, Cootie Williams, Duke Ellington and Erskine Hawkins.

Weekly Earle bills and grosses since the start of the season, according to Maurice Gable, Warner district manager, total as follows:

September 4, Horace Heidt's orchestra, Pierre of the Plains; $30,000. September 11, Charlie Barnet's orchestra, Diosa Costello, Give Out Sisters; $22,000. September 18, Louis Prima's orchestra, Joe E. Lewis, Are Husbands Necessary?; $16,500. September 25, Ink Spots, Lucky Millinder's orchestra, Rosetta Tarpe, Apache Trail; $30,000.

October 2, Alvino Rey's orchestra, Four King Sisters, A-Haunting We Will Go; $26,000; October 9, John Kirby's band, Frank Faye, Una Merkle, You Can't Escape Forever; $20,500. October 16, Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe Revue, Sweet Enemies; $20,000. October 23, Andrews Sisters, Will Osborne's orchestra, Manila

White Rome Burns

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Noontime patrons in the Hotel Lincoln's Blue Room here had the rare, if dubious pleasure this week of watching a name-band at rehearsal.

Seems that Abe Lyman, who opened the spot Friday (15), used the room during lunch hours for giving the library a quick going over.

One diner grouishly complained he couldn't tell what key his soup was in, with all that noise going on.

Philly Musikers Are Angling for Resort Locations

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Ban on pleasure driving, if it carries on for the next few months, is seen as a fatal blow to the local music fraternity depending on spring and summer one-night stands in this territory. Practically all the club and dance work during the warmer weather months is concentrated at the city's several dozen country clubs. Only a handful of the clubs are easily reached by public transportation, representing trolley or train rides varying from 30 to 60 minutes from the center of the city. For the most part, the clubs are located in isolated spots outside of the city, dependent solely upon automotive transportation.

Musicians here realize it would be foolhardy for any of the clubs themselves, or the school and social set who depend on the club ballrooms for their summer hooping, to schedule any dances this year. Moreover, the clubs, already burdened by wartime lack of maintenance material and a shortage of clubhouse help, are faced with a sharp drop in golfer patronage because of the pleasure ban on motoring, and are about ready to toss in the towel.

Clubs hardest hit, and all representing major bandstands for both local and traveling bands, are Philmont, Spring Mill, Philadelphia Cricket Club, Huntingdon Valley, St. Davids, Aronimink, Manufacturers, Lu Lu Temple, Whitemarsh, Gulph Mills, Pine Valley, Sunnybrook, Tredyffrin, Pennsylvania Golf, Tavistock, Riverton, Spring Hill, Valley Forge, Paxton Hollow, Seaview and Woodcrest. Many of these have already indicated that they expect to close entirely for the duration.

As a result, local band leaders, heretofore content to stick in town to cash in on country club dates, are already sending out feelers for summer resort stands. Army occupation of Atlantic City and Atlantic Coast black-outs rule out the New Jersey resorts. Boys figure that the mountain resorts inland in Pennsylvania, having advantage of train and bus facilities, are going to attract the summer vacationists.

Bonnie Boyd III

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Bonnie Boyd, vocalis with Carl Ravazza, was unable to open with the band at the Statler Terrace Room. Seriously ill, she was flown to New York to see a specialist. Her place was taken by Muriel Sherman.

Miss Boyd is expected to returned to the band in about two weeks.

Calling; $30,000, October 30, Shep Fields' orchestra, Jack Carson, Borrah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals, The Big Street; $23,500.

November 6, Ted Lewis' Rhythm Rhapsody Revue, Girl Trouble; $20,000. November 13, Benny Meroff's Funzafire unit, Sin Town; $16,500. November 20, Duke Ellington's all-sepia show, The Omaha Trail; $24,000. November 27, Johnny Long's orchestra, Henny Youngman, Priorities on Parade; $18,000.

December 4, Bob Crosby's orchestra, Street of Chance; $21,000; December 11, Jerry Wald's orchestra, Seven Sweethearts; $15,000. December 18, Tony Pastor's orchestra, Here We Go Again; $15,000. December 25, Tommy Tucker's orchestra, Stuart Erwin, June Collyer, Whistling in Dixie; $28,500. January 1, Ina Ray Hutton's orchestra, Marion Hutton, the Modernaires, Ice-Capades Revue; $26,500.

Key: FT—Fox Trot; W—Waltz; VC—Vocal Chorus; V—Vocal Recording.

By M. H. ORODENKER

TOMMY DORSEY (Victor 20-1522)

It Started All Over Again—FT; VC. Mandy, Make Up Your Mind—FT.

IN A fashion similar to the ballad style Tommy Dorsey first set when he set down I'll Never Smile Again on wax, serves in excellent stead once again for It Started All Over Again, a new love ballad by Bill Carey and Carl Fischer. The plush and velvety setting Dorsey provides for the song is such as to make it as much as a sure-fire hit as his most recent There Are Such Things. Both songs, and the interpretation, establish the same restful and romantic mood. Moreover, since the record was cut during the early-summer days, it again showcases the stellar vocalizing of Frank Sinatra, blending with the smooth voices of the Pied Pipers and the silky string section, with the maestro's sentimental trombone sliding polishing it all off in the manner that will make this also a much-sought-out disk. Taken at a moderately slow tempo, and with just a harp cadenza for the introduction, side starts spinning with Sinatra and the Pied Pipers singing ever so soulfully of love and kisses. The melodic background for the voices is flushed by the Strad section. Dorsey's open horn picks it up for the last half of another chorus, fading before the finish in favor of Sinatra and the harmonizing voices of the Pipers to take it out. Band boys, held in reserve for the ballad side, give out on all fours for the instrumental backing, Mandy, Make Up Your Mind. It's a swing setting in the medium jump tempo for this rhythmic ditty, replete with musical kicks as the Dorsey dandies do it up brown. Stage is set by the snakey piano tinklings to the bouncing notes of the fingered bass with the band, paced by the riffing saxophones digging a righteous groove for the opening chorus in light and polite fashion. Clarinet takes off for the bridge passages of the opening chorus, with the saxes finishing the stanza. The Steinway heat again sets the stage for the second chorus, which is carried in sock style by the trombone quartet, banked by the fiddles scratching out the sustained harmonies. It all builds for the third and final smash stanza, starting off with the torrid trumpet against the unison riffing of the saxophones. Solid ensemble riffs cut into the bridge bars, with the drummer boy banging away on the releases, and the band carries it out on a two-beat kick that this time has whipped up the hop-skip-and-jump appeal to a frenzy. Side rates a prominent place alongside of the many other swing classics carrying a Tommy Dorsey label.

Music operators have a natural follow for "There Are Such Things" in "It Started All Over Again." All the elements that go into the making of a hit record are there, and once again Tommy Dorsey has the field all to himself. And it has all the evidence of a field day for the coin collectors. Moreover, operators would do well to double their orders for this number, for the plattermate, "Mandy, Make Up Your Mind," is one of those instrumental swing classics that always finds TD bringing home the coins.

CARSON ROBISON (Bluebird 30-0808)

The Old Gray Mare Is Back Where She Used To Be—FT; V. I'm Goin' Back to Whur I Come From—FT; V.

While more properly belonging to the hillbilly and Western lists, offering up Carson Robison in the label's popular list will unquestionably bring the sides the greater attention they deserve. Just a year ago Robison attracted attention with his many slap-the-dirty-Jap songs when there was a mad race on for a suitable war song at the start of hostilities. This time the robust Western-styled troubadour gets right down to the green country. And he is plenty at home in this farm setting, surrounded by the usual instrumental complement of banjos, harmonicas, sweet potato whistler and the inevitable tuba. For the traditional Old Gray Mare, Robison gives it a timely and original twist. This time the old automobile tire "ain't what she used to be" now that the garages are all filled with hay and the old gray mare is getting more attention than she ever did. Companion piece is a humorous novelty that goes back to the East Lynne school of storytelling. Herein Robison tells of the pitfalls encountered by the country lad, with $14 in his pockets, hitching out to Kansas City to sow his oats. Sets the novelty to an infectious rhythmic melody, and it all shapes up as a swell piece of material for the dance band boys, and even the solo singers, to take over.

While both sides are naturals for the rural locations, there is much to the platter that will find as much wide appeal among the city folks. They smack of coin-catching at the tap and tavern routes, and even the youngsters at the soda fountains will soon get in the habit of selecting "I'm Goin' Back to Whur I Come From."

EMIL DAVIS (Hit 7031)

Why Don't You Fall in Love With Me?—FT; VC. There Are Such Things—FT; VC.

Carmen Cavallaro Revue

(Reviewed at Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, New York)

BACK in New York with a much bigger band (14 pieces, plus male vocalist) than the one he showed at the Rainbow Room previously, Carmen Cavallaro once again comes in for the inevitable comparison with Eddy Duchin. This time it isn't too flattering, altho this department found Carmen playing a more impressive, multichorded piano than ever did the dexterous Duchin. But where his piano covered defects of accompaniment Cavallaro's sparks but never pervades his arrangements. His lush, spread-hand figures leave slack for the sidemen to pick up. They don't, except on rumbas.

Instrumentation, being pretentious, makes the other-than-Cavallaro part of the band seem even more shallow. Three-piece string section (two fiddles and a viola) is the only unit to perform a light task competently. Four saxes doubling on flutes, fiddles and clary, provide sound effects that are little more than varied. Two trumpets and lone trombone play clean, prosaic stuff, but suffer from lack of volume. Rhythm is rhythmical, that's all.

Library is happily balanced. Pops are set off by show tunes and standards, with Latin tempos falling at properly spaced intervals. Even at the risk of weighting the scales, Cavallaro could play a lot more rumbas. Boys really get to work on these, maestro's piano-runs setting the pace and the maracas, claves and other accessories building up feverishly. Brass and reed capture the spirit, too, upping the quality of their product considerably.

Singer Larry Douglas delivers ballads with baritoned grace. Fem vocalist is still missing.

One point that applies to all numbers, jumps, ballads, rumbas, etc., endings are clumsy, sounding as if the bandmen grow tired and unanimously decide to lay down their tools.

It remains to point out that Cavallaro plays a wonderful piano. It could sound much more wonderful if his backing were improved or so toned down as not to be noticeable.

Al Graham

(Reviewed at Hotel Claridge, Memphis)

AL GRAHAM heads a small but efficient organization of nine men and two girls. He swells the effect of the orchestra by his own ability, picking up a trumpet for one number, a sax for another and stepping to the tymbales when rhythm becomes the order of the dance. A very sound musician and capable of bringing the best out of his band, Graham needs to cultivate more of a stand personality to cover that look of intense concentration.

In Joan Roberts, Graham is fortunate in having a thrush who is very strong on just those qualities which he has not developed personally. In addition to turning in performances of swing and cute tunes which regularly stop the show and pack the floor around the bandstand, Miss Roberts does much of the greeting and table visiting for the band in a delightful and thoroughly lady-like manner.

Handling the ballads and torchers, Jerrie Janis turns in an acceptable performance. Her voice is true and well modulated, her looks distinctly above the average. She has not yet developed sufficient individual style in either her singing or her selling of tunes, but gives indications of promise.

Hal Dean at the piano is a major reason for the success of the band. Without being spotlighted, except for some very fine boogie woogie solo work, Dean's piano is definitely the lifeline of the orchestra. Lyle Battin does some good trumpeting.

Arrangements are not the strong point of this band, but the library appears well stocked with adequate standard material.

Buddy Franklin

(Reviewed at Casa-Loma Ballroom, St. Louis)

AFTER a siege of directing an all-girl band, Buddy Franklin as built himself an orchestra with enormous potentialities. Still in comparatively embryonic stage, outfit displays versatility and, above all, musicianship. No powerful driving brasses or socking rhythms here, but a smoothly functioning musical organization that is a cinch to be commercially successful.

Maestro is a personable lad, with a quiet charm that wins the dancers, a personality that blends with the music he presents. Backed by three femme violinists, Franklin fronts the band with his own talented violin, and strings show evidence of symphonic background in every number.

Besides Franklin's violin and the three girls, instrumentation includes three reeds, three brass and three rhythm, falling neatly into the pattern set by the strings, making every number not only danceable but listenable as well thru their concentration on melody. Music is bound to be popular in class hotels and dining rooms and Franklin exemplifies it at its best. Selections in the library run from hit parade stuff to Viennese waltzes and an occasional switch to Latin American tunes. Tempos are varied smartly to catch the fancy of the dancers.

Selections, tho essentially smooth, have enough rhythmic beat to keep dancers happy.

Lorraine Daly is the new canary with the orchestra, brought over from the recently disbanded Herbie Kay outfit. Not yet adjusted to the Franklin finesse, having joined the group only two days ago, she shows promise of fitting neatly in with the band's style. The gal possesses an adequate set of pipes, and more rehearsals will do the trick.

On the Air

Comment on dance remote programs from the standpoint of showmanship, presentation and general listening appeal rather than the musical ability of the bands reviewed.

ELLIOTT GRENNARD

Tommy Dorsey

(Palladium Ballroom, Hollywood, Columbia Network, Monday (11), 12:30-1 a.m.)

THE old gentleman wasn't particularly sentimental in choosing his selections for the remote caught. Two of the four ballads were of the sophisticated type and the other half of the program jumped.

Music was of an extremely high caliber. TD's personnel must be draft-raked as much as any other leader's but one would never have known it from hearing this shot. Only one instrumental solo, that of a tenor sax, was way off the beam and in an extended flight into improvisation got to sounding like the honking of a wild goose on the wing.

Barbara Canvin, brand new with the band, is really something special in the way of replacements. Announcer had her name sounding like everything from Kent to Camden; the gal herself sounded terrific. Smooth-as-silk warbling with use of dynamics that left none of the plumbing showing. Miss Canvin got plenty hot on one swing thing, but there she acquired the announcer's bad habit and made the words completely indistinguishable.

Dick Haynes sang That Old Black Magic rich and full, without spilling over into phony mannerisms. He got appropriately softer for There Are Such Things.

Ina Ray Hutton

(Roosevelt Hotel, Washington, Columbia Network, Monday (11), 12:05-12:30 a.m.)

THE fuse evidently got wet night

failed to ignite.

Comes television, dialers are going to get the full benefit of the Hutton personality; as it is, only an inkling of her technique gets over via the air waves. What is left to the ear alone reveals that the lady's pitch is not all it should be and what she does for a song is modest indeed.

On the other hand, Stuart Foster gave his all on every tune and his all is long on bombast and pomposity. Dramatic delivery is particularly unhappy coupled with an adenoidal baritone. Moonlight Becomes You found Foster selling for all he was worth. No sale.

Band was announced as "all new" but it sounded mighty old-timey for the most part. Exceptions were the fine swinging guitar passages that lighted up a couple of murky arrangements and one tenor sax solo that was all git-up-and-git-out.

Best number heard on the program was Brazil. That had some distinctive treatment and a bit of excitement. Others, with a couple of oldie jumpers thrown into the hopper, sounded standard in more ways than one.

Airings Sought for War Workers' Songs

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Kaycee Music, which has published score of Harold Rome's Lunchtime Follies, is dickering for a radio spot on a commercial program to introduce the defense workers' ditties to the public. Follies so far has only been presented in plants in the vicinity of New York, and pub wants to present it on a nationwide scale. Groups staging the shows are not equipped to do extensive traveling.

Songs from Lunchtime Follies are each directed at a different phase of war production, and include The Lady's on the Job, On the Old Production Line, That's My Pop, I Like a Man Who Comes to Work on Time and Sloppy Joe.

NY 'Eve' 50% Off

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Local 802's tabulation of New Year's Eve parties played here this year, as compared with last, show a decrease of almost 50 per cent. Number played in 1941 totaled approximately 460, with about 2,695 men employed, while the holiday night in 1942 drew only about 265 dates, with 1,435 men employed.

Officials of 802 point out that the sharp decline jibes with the general employment trend in the industry. Despite the fact that over 3,600 of the union's 22,000 members are now serving in the armed forces, unemployed lists have remained around the 2,000 level.

One source absorbing some of the unemployed music-makers is war plants, many of them forming their own bands composed of workers with musical background. Some companies have been running ads for workers who are able to play specific instruments, and 802 has been trying to fill the openings from its unemployed lists.

Employer-Employee Status Muddled by Court Contests; And There's Still Form B

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Latest development in the muddled tax situation regarding payment of unemployment and Social Security taxes came this week when Loew's, Inc., Joseph P. Day, operator of the Manhattan Beach and Brighton Beach ballrooms, and the Statler Hotel chain, operators of the Pennsylvania here, won the right to appeal the recent decision of the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court holding these litigants to have been the employer of Happy Felton, who worked for them as a band leader.

The Appellate Court's decision upheld a ruling by the New York State Unemployment Division.

This case is regarded by theatrical attorneys as the ideal test case to determine the status of band leaders, as it involves theaters, ballrooms and hotels. Attorneys also look forward to the final decision in this case, not only because the previous decision is at variance with the outcome of the Griff Williams case, in which a federal court ruled band leader Williams was an independent contractor, but it also shows an inconsistency in the rulings of the Appellate Court itself.

Prior to the Happy Felton case, the Appellate Court ruled band leaders were independent contractors and therefore liable for Social Security and unemployment compensation imposts, in the Shirley Brown case. Miss Brown, vocalist for Dick Stabile, was ruled to be an employee of Stabile. The same general trend of thought was exhibited by the Appellate division in ruling performers to be independent contractors (Radio City Music Hall case). The Felton decision reversed this general trend of thought, altho the basic principles in all three cases are regarded as similar.

Decision here is important not because of the present situation, but because it will go a long way in establishing liability for back taxes, which will amount to a staggering sum. The current Form B employment contract of the American Federation of Musicians circumvents any previous court rulings since it specifies that the theater, thru its booking office, hires a leader and specific musicians.

Enforcement of the tax situation under present court decisions would create a contradictory situation. A band leader playing a New York spot would be looked upon as employer of the sidemen, for purposes of paying Social Security taxes, but would leave the unemployment compensation responsibilities up to the house.

The law in both cases clearly states that employers are liable for Social Security and unemployment compensation tax payments. Under the present decisions the music user is defined as the employer by the State court while the federal court has named the band leader as the employer.

Outcome of the Happy Felton appeal will also be important regarding payment of the Victory tax and the $25,000 pay limit. If band leaders are ruled independent contractors, then the 25G ceiling will not apply to them nor will they have the 5 per cent deducted from their salaries for the V tax.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—Another legal decision was rendered here January (See Courts Muddle Status on page 27)

Sonny James Lost Dinah Shore But He Has a LeBrun

NASHVILLE, Jan. 16.—Sonny James, former band leader now Aviation Cadet Enoch James at the Army Air Center here, is still reminiscing about the time he let Dinah Shore slip thru his fingers. James found Dinah Shore by listening to her over a small New York indie station, calling her up and hiring her on the spot. She remained with the band for about three months.

Thinking about the Dinah Shore incident brought to James's mind the other stars who worked for him at one time or another. Frank Sinatra was with James's band before going over to Tommy Dorsey. Bon Bon, colored vocalist who scored heavily with Jan Savitt, was also with the James crew.

James admits that he regrets losing so many stars, but points to one he nailed down tight. When the LeBrun Sisters joined the band, he married one of them.

Pelham Heath Stays Open; Bus to Door

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Ban on pleasure driving doesn't seem to be worrying New Pelham Heath Inn, suburban road spot here. Inn, which has a bus running to its door, has added music to dinner as well as supper sessions, with Henry Jerome staying on to handle both, and spot reports better-than-average business.

Difficulties arising from rationing in spots outside city limits are still cropping up, however. Latest is the tale of Roland Young, playing at the Seven Gables Inn, Milford, Conn., who lost two trumpeters to Louis Prima. Young tried frantically to find replacements, but when he finally managed to dig them up, Seven Gables has to fold because of the pleasure driving ban.

He left for Hollywood over the week-end with his manager, Ed Kirkeby, to start work on the 20th-Fox lot in Thanks, Pal. Other picture assignments may follow.

Selling Records AND Sheet Music

By JOSEPH R. CARLTON

Mobile Merchandise

Installation of a record department proved a lucky strike for Prichard Radio Company, Mobile, Ala., according to E. N. Farver, proprietor.

Farver added the new department after radio merchandise became scarce and found it helped to maintain good-sized volume. Luckily, the disks also helped stimulate sale of combination radios, of which there was an ample stock.

Mobile being a boom town, Farver has really gone to town selling phonograph records. Like other dealers he admits having trouble getting records, but customers are so anxious to buy, they're even picking up old favorites, of which there seems to be a supply.

Record department has not only helped radio sales, but repair service as well, Farver says.

Record Rationing

Gas, fuel oil, coffee and sugar have been rationed, but until now we hadn't heard that disk dealers were inaugurating point systems. Communiqué from a Midwest distributor, however, advises us that one of the dealers in a wax-hungry community has actually launched a curtailing program that may interest our readers. Seems this retailer heard of stores like Burt's in Cleveland using Reserve-a-Record coupons, but decided that he'd rather get into the wartime groove and call his idea "Record-Rations."

Plan is simple: Dealer has printed up ration cards allowing so many disks to be bought per month per customer. Allowance is weighted in favor of pop disks which, despite the limited quantity available, are in preferred demand. Ratio to classical music is about 60 to 40.

Dealer says he would sell all his stock with or without rationing. By rationing, however, he feels he will hold on to a lot more customers. Latter are so used to the idea there have been no gripes to speak of.

So far the rationing system has been strictly observed. Unlike the gas station, dealer's customers can't reasonably beg for a disk to keep record-players going.

Decca Really Pitching

On the basis of initial returns from its circular appeal to dealers for scrap, Decca has proven that you don't have to beat the dealer over the head to get the salvage. Disk firm's first circular which was sent out two weeks ago, pointed out simply that filling scrap quotas is as important to the retailer as to the manufacturer. Circular received good response in the territory from Boston to Charlotte, and about as far west as Pittsburgh. Form card was enclosed which dealer was asked to fill out and return to the company, so that he could be advised where to ship scrap records.

Decca plans to continue the campaign, circular No. 2 already being prepared. Dealers will be furnished with copies which can be posted in stores, enclosed in packages, slipped in with bills, etc., idea being to keep the scrap problem in the customer's mind.

Better Not Forget

A reminder to all disk dealers: Ceiling prices on records and maximum allowances for scrap must be posted on your premises. This according to OPA orders which went into effect January 15.

Price lists should have been furnished you by all the recording companies; if any firm's list has not yet been received be sure to get a letter off immediately.

Decca's price list reads: "Albums-50 cents." To clear up any possible confusion company explains that this does not mean all albums must be sold at 50 cents apiece or per record. Cost of albums, it is explained, should be based on the ceiling price of records contained in them, plus a 50 cents ceiling charge for album itself.

"Montana Slim"

Goldstein's Music Store, St. John, N. B., is featuring sheet music and records of songs rendered by Wilfie Carter, a native of New Brunswick, known in the U. S. as Montana Slim.

Carter's frequent visits to his home section prompted the special campaign. An exhibit of his music and records and a large likeness of the cowboy warbler occupied one of the store's two show windows.

"I'll Be Floored"

Richards Music Shop, New York, has a dandy suggestion for solving two problems at once. It seems that exposure to the sun quickly fades the usual crepe paper used to cover the floor of the Richards display window, so the Richards brothers evolved the idea of paving the window floor with left-over streamers. Not only advertises the new records but makes a colorful and attractive window.

Slump and Jump

Sheet music sales, which dropped off traditionally during the Christmas season, have picked up again. Holiday concentration on more suitable "gift" items which occasioned the yuletide slump is now over, and jobbers gratifyingly claim that the drop was the slightest for the same period of any previous year.

RCA-Victor Production for '43 To Take in Over 2,000 Titles; "101-Plan" Strictly From Xmas

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—RCA-Victor's wings, voluntarily clipped during the Christmas season when the 101-items production plan was inaugurated, will spread fully and encompass over 2,000 catalog titles in the year ahead. Previous impressions that the pre-selected list of 101 wax products would hold good for the duration were erroneous, according to J. W. Murray, general manager of Victor's record division, who explains the company's wartime plan as being much more flexible and inclusive.

What Victor has in mind for the duration, Murray explains, is a Music America Loves Best program which would cover all fields of recording. Production, in view of shellac restrictions and the Petrillo ban, would be considerably less than before the war (about 2,000 items for '43 as compared to 18,000 in normal times), but would amply reach into the most specialized channels; e.g., chamber music, etc. Any deficiencies charged to the 101-plan have thus vanished with the plan itself, Murray states.

The 101-plan was invoked only for the yuletide season, Murray says, and then only to meet special conditions. With an expectedly tremendous Christmas season coming up (an expectation which proved accurate) the company drew up the standardized list in order to guarantee dealers sizable holiday shipments. Thereafter there was no intention of continuing the restrictive 101 idea, Murray says, dealers even being urged to broaden musical interests so that every category of recorded music would draw attention during the emergency.

Murray's remarks were directed at criticisms of the 101-plan which arose from the mistaken belief that plan set a for-the-duration policy. Several observers, so deluded, claimed that the pre-selection program would not offer enough variety for veteran disk buyers with good libraries at home. Belief was that the 101 policy would force Victor to drop all but the best-sellers in the markets for chamber music and small-orchestral waxings.

Victor's Music America Loves program, Murray adds is not open to the above criticism. In the first place, it will include over 2,000 items. Secondly, all disk firms will have to cut down production, he declares, and Victor actually will be cutting down no more than any competitor. Company is not binding itself to a tight catalog, but will incorporate titles in all fields as freely as conditions compel.

So far as the 1943 Victor production picture in toto is concerned, Murray declares that it is reasonable to assume that the classical market will bear the brunt of production. Pop line, of course, is still afflicted by Petrillo's ban, making the long-hair stuff even more staple than it always has been.

Sepia Store Circuit Gets Maestro Visits

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—A promotional campaign tying in with recording bands appearing each week at Fay's Theater here has been worked out by four local music stores. Plan is outgrowth of "circuit" set up recently for store appearances of the band leaders, each visiting maestro appearing on the same night each week at one of the stores. Participating dealers are located in sections of the city where there is a heavy colored population (Fay's brings in the sepia names). These include the Paramount Record Shop, Bartel's, C. & R. Record Store and Dee's Record & Radio Store.

Plan calls for wide distribution of handbills in each neighborhood, heralding the store appearances of the band leader. In addition, stores will distribute a photograph of the maestro, listing his recordings on the back. Each store also has a sandwich man covering the neighborhood with a sign pointing up the store appearance. The four co-operating stores also are taking ads in the local Negro newspapers and plan to work out a co-op radio program on WPEN. Air program will feature a personal interview by staff announcer with the band leader. Commercial plugs will call attention to store appearances on the different days of the week.

Picture Tie-Up Pays

YORK, Pa., Jan. 16.—An effective tie-in was made by six music stores in town with the local opening of You Were Never Lovelier movie. All stores dressed their windows with cut-outs of Rita Hayworth and Fred Astaire, featured in the film, bordering the window trims with stills from the picture. Highlighted were the variety of waxes of the screen songs. In addition, two stores played the hit tunes from the picture over their public-address systems for several days before the opening of the film, getting the added attention of the passers-by. Record sales were hypoed considerably.

COURTS MUDDLE STATUS

12 re. the vexing problem of who is the employer in the case of orchestras hired by ballrooms and theaters. State Supreme Court held that a dance hall proprietor who hires a band for one-night stands does not become the employer of the musicians within the meaning of the State unemployment compensation law.

Ruling set aside an order of the Industrial commission finding that Charles R. Maloney, owner of ballrooms in the towns of Black Wolf and Menasha, Winnebago County, owed $376.32 in contributions to the unemployment compensation fund.

The decision, written by Justice Chester A. Fowler, pointed out that members of the dance bands that played for Maloney under contract had other employment during the day and that Maloney had no voice in fixing their compensation.

The court reversed a Dane County circuit ruling which had upheld the industrial commission. Justice Fowler said that if the lower court order were permitted to stand, a "tramp" who was hired to shovel snow from a walk could claim compensation benefits.

The extra levy against Maloney was assessed by an industrial commission deputy on the basis of earnings of orchestra members who played at his halls from January 1, 1939, to June 1, 1941, before the advent of AFM's Form B contract.

Maloney appealed to the commission, which, on December 13, 1941, decided that the musicians actually were employees of Maloney and that he was obligated for unemployment compensation on their earnings.

Upon Maloney's appeal to the Dane County Circuit Court, Judge Alvin C. Reiss affirmed the commission, but held that the compensation law's application in this case was highly unreasonable. Judge Reiss at that time commented that it would rob independent artists of their lawful power to enter into an independent contractual relationship with theater operators, because performers automatically become employees when they performed in a theater.

Maloney then appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Dealers' Group Is Organized To Supply Projector Parts Needed To Show War Films

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 16.—Although roadshowmen will be unable to buy 16mm. projectors for the duration, repairs can be made on projectors already being used by roadshowmen, as reported in last week's issue of The Billboard.

Word was received recently that the National Association of Visual Education Dealers is attempting to get a program under way whereby replacement parts will be made available for projectors being used to show motion pictures to aid the war effort.

According to the report, NAVED members can help accomplish this objective by sending to the office of the secretary of the organization a list of items which they do not have in stock and which they cannot secure from their usual sources of supply. These items should consist only of parts or materials which are bare necessities for putting a projector in running condition, provided the projector is serving in some way related to the war program. Notification of a desire to have these items should be forwarded to NAVED only when all other means to secure them from other sources have failed and only when the projector is idle due to the lack of some particular part.

This organization does not propose to assist dealers in building up a stock of accessory items, but the program is being started to put back into service any essential equipment which might not be in operating condition as a result of the inability to secure a tube, a lamp, a speaker plug, etc.

Upon receipt of the information concerning an item needed, NAVED will attempt to locate same and advise the writer of another NAVED member who has the required article. The organization recommends that these materials be sold from one member to another at net cost plus transportation charges. NAVED also requires that when requesting information a list of extra materials on hand for sale also be included. It is the policy of NAVED to act as a clearing house only for information to members.

The members propose to co-operate fully with the National War Committee of the Visual Education Industry. It is thru this committee that NAVED hopes to place before the War Production Board all its members' needs so they will be granted priority ratings high enough to obtain the materials for continuous operations of all projectors.

It is suggested that roadshowmen interested in this project contact The Billboard for further information.

Gasoline Ban Is Roadshowmen Boon

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Office of Price Administration's ban on pleasure driving should prove an aid to roadshowmen. Pleasure driving includes the use of cars to visit motion picture theaters. Police are on the lookout for cars parked near these locations, and severe penalty for the violator has resulted.

There are many towns that have no form of entertainment except that offered by roadshowmen, especially now that people can no longer drive miles to the nearest large town to see a movie. Naturally, it is difficult for people living in rural areas to catch a bus to see a movie in a theater perhaps 20 miles away. However, it is possible for roadshowmen, short on gas, to route their circuits along bus lines, staying in each town for from three days to a week. It is a bit inconvenient but profitable.

In addition, many communities have Red Cross motor corps that are anxious to help roadshowmen without cars get to spots to show pictures that will aid the war effort.

Lunch-Hour Exhibits Good Field for Films

ANSONIA, Conn., Jan. 16.—A fertile but undeveloped field for roadshowmen is the exhibition of films at business men's lunches. Roadshowmen operating in small towns have tried this field to success.

There are many fraternal, political and business organizations that meet once a week for lunch in a local restaurant or hotel. Some roadshowmen have contacted the heads of these organizations and have arranged to give short film showings at the luncheons once a month. The exhibitions include three or four shorts. Sport shorts and Office of War Information shorts are among the most popular one-reelers shown.

Roadshowmen have also supplemented their incomes in these towns by taking pictures of local events, especially those of the various organizations involved, and showing them at the following meetings.

Roadshowmen also report the government has been sending letters to many of these clubs suggesting they arrange showings of OWI films in this manner.

Melodrama in the Flesh At Philly 16MM. House

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—All the melodrama at the Ye Olde Tyme Theater, intimate house in the Germantown section devoted to the showing of 16mm. revivals, does not take place on the silver screen. Barnard and Toba Sackett, roadshowmen operating the theater, found that out over the Christmas holiday. Now city detectives are hoping to clear up a robbery of 14 months ago by solving another that occurred Christmas Eve.

In October, 1941, a thief entered the Ode Tyme Theater and stole the movie screen and its supporting poles. On Christmas Eve the place was robbed again. This time the thief took two new sound boxes, an antique French 18-inch lens stereoptican, the flood lamps and a set of stage border lamps. The thief, apparently unaware of the fuel situation, also removed a fuse from the oil heater. As a result the heater stopped working and all the pipes froze, some breaking. Detectives believe they can solve both robberies by one arrest.

Labor Union Shows Are Money-Makers

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—It has been suggested by several 16mm. film distributors that roadshowmen concentrate more heavily on giving showings for labor unions. These union groups have a large membership and members are generally anxious to attend functions that will benefit the union. Film distributors report there are only a few roadshowmen cashing in on this potential source of revenue.

Roadshowmen exhibiting to unions say they have been well paid for their services. An admission charge of about 50 cents is made at the union showings and the roadshowman works either on a flat fee or on a percentage basis. In many instances the attendance has been as high as 1,000 people.

Coast Guard Units See 16MM. Flickers

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—George H. (King) Cole, of King Cole Sound Service, which gives showings on a non-theatrical basis, is doing a swell roadshow job for the coast guard in isolated spots. Cole supplies the motion pictures and roadshowmen, and Jack Brawley, writer of the Angler and Hunter column in The New York Journal-American, takes care of the vaude acts for the show.

Special transportation is arranged with the government's permission to bring entertainment to members of the coast guard situated in areas surrounding metropolitan New York. There is usually no other form of entertainment for these servicemen. Cole has given about 20 shows to date and has visited Fire Island, Gilgo Beach and other out-of-the-way spots.

Cole said that in many instances the films and service are supplied out of his own pocket. However, he often gets a sponsor to pay the expenses.

Cole has had considerable experience in showing 16mm. films to servicemen. During the last war he was a member of the United States Atlantic fleet which laid mines between Scotland and Norway. Between action at sea, Cole showed motion pictures to the sailors aboard ship.

In this war 16mm. shows are still given at sea. Many ships carry a supply of films which they exchange with another ship when they reach port. The ports, therefore, serve as distribution centers for these motion pictures.

Obrechts Readyng For March Opening

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Christy Obrecht, owners of the tent show bearing their name, who returned here January 5 after several weeks' visit in Chicago and Milwaukee, have begun work on readying and selecting scripts and lining up people for their new season which is slated to get under way in March. The tent tour will again be preceded by several weeks in houses. They spent the holidays with Mrs. Obrecht's sister, Mrs. John O. Jones, in Milwaukee.

Their son, Lieut. Christy D. Obrecht, is in Fort Benning, Ga., taking a course in motor maintenance. Lieut. and Mrs. Obrecht, the former Lois Dean Stokes, of Burkie, La., have taken an apartment in Columbus, Ga., near the fort. Bill Obrecht, a nephew of the senior Obrechts, is now with the army in North Africa.

Minneapolis is the haven for a number of rep folks this season. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Shankland are here, with Dick taking a course in welding at Dunwoody Institute. Also wintering here are Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Browne and Mr. and Mrs. George Kleeber, of the Harry Browne Show. Kleeber is engaged in defense work. Hi Harris, of the Hi Harris Road Show, is playing Minneapolis theaters, and Gail Brancal, ingenue with the Neil Schaffner tenter last season, is working local night spots with her dog act. Her mother, pianist with the Schaffner show last season, worked in a local department store thru the holidays.

Oclavia Powell Bayley, violinist with the Christy Obrecht Show last season, is now associated with an optical company in Des Moines. Bob Bayley is stationed with the army in Kentucky.

Alloway Back on Sea Duty

DAVANT, La., Jan. 16.—J. W. (Jack) Alloway, who with his parents operates the Alloway & Son Tent Show, presenting vaude and pictures in Louisiana, has returned to his duties with the merchant marine after spending a furlough with his parents here. Young Alloway recently escaped death in a torpedoing off the coast of Iceland. Before joining his parents in the operation of the tent show, Alloway was for a number of years associated with the Doyle Carnival Company. Mail addressed to him here in care of the Alloway & Son Tent Show will be promptly forwarded.

Stevens Lands J. Phillip

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Ashton Stevens, nationally known drama critic, recently devoted an entire page to lauding Johnny Phillips for the latter's fine work in the play, Mr. Sycamore, with Stuart Erwin, in New York. Phillips was formerly character man with the Christy Obrecht Tent Show.

A Tribute to Harley Sadler

LADY-E-ES and gentlemen, tonight we present our hero in the stellar role of his life. If we are to judge by his career of 30 years or more we can safely say that he will not let us down. We know that his cast and colleagues will play just an important part to keep this master showman's record clear. Because in all of this wide land of ours there never lived a man with a record like this one. They immortalize Barnum because he produced big shows, they immortalize George M. Cohan because he produced patriotic shows, they immortalize all the greats for this and that and today in our feeble contribution we salute a showman who has never had but one objective in mind in producing shows.

Let's salute Harley Sadler, that master tent showman from Sweetwater, Tex., who has a record behind him that no man can match. In all of his years a-travelin' the rounds of the Southwest Harley Sadler never told a smutty joke or allowed an immoral line to creep into his plays. Ah! Harley, that is a record, old boy, to be proud of and today . . . you are making the most spectacular and important appearance of your entire career. You have been cast by popular demand in the biggest show that Texas produces. You are taking an oath to sit as a member of the Texas Legislature. Your people have sent you down here because the name Harley Sadler and clean performances are synonymous terms. There ain't a man, woman or child in all the great Southwest who has followed the great Harley Sadler tent shows that ain't a rootin' fer you. Your record is one to be proud of and . . . we know of no finer compliment to pay you than to say that Texas takes pride in her showman son. You have done credit to your State.

But, Harley, you are fortunate in this . . . you are taking your seat among as fine a group of men as you will find anywhere in the whole land. We only wish that the Texas Legislature could automatically take over and be our Congress. Men for man the Texas Legislature is an abler group of men. The boys in A. J.'s Johnson City barber shop are a-waitin' for you to send 'em some tickets to your new show.—By Tom Martin, the "Sage of the Sage Hills," in The Austin (Tex.) Statesman of January 13.

apolis. . . . MR. AND MRS. A. V. PALMER, former troupers, are now operating Lowell Inn at Stillwater, Minn. Mrs. Palmer is the former Nell Obrecht, of the Obrecht Sisters Show. . . . MR. AND MRS. BUD HAWKINS, of the former Bud Hawkins Players, recently concluded a long string of assembly dates in the West with their trained dogs and monkeys. They leave Cincinnati this week for the Carolinas, where they are set on 12 weeks of schools thru another assembly booking office.

BENNY WULLKOTTE, formerly for several seasons on the Bryant Showboat in Cincinnati and for the past year bass-fiddle slapper with Bob Brandon's relief orchestra at Beverly Hills Country Club, Newport, Ky., has joined up with the merchant marine. Benny writes that the training is swell and the food even better. He has 10 more weeks in training and then a short leave before he ships out to ports unknown. Benny requests a line from his rep and showboat friends. His address is Sec. 228, Maritime Service Training Station, Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn. . . . DON D. KIMMEL, veteran repster, last season with T. C. Jacob's show, is now conducting the 12th Quartermaster Regiment Band and Orchestra at Camp Lee, Va. Friends may address him Act. Sgt. Don D. Kimmel, Co. E, 12th Qmc. Regt. T359, Camp Lee, Va. . . . ROBERT W. TILTON, who has appeared in vaude and with tent shows in New England, has completed a four-month airplane mechanic course at Keesler Field, Mass., and is now taking a five-week advance training course at the Ford plant in Ypsilanti, Mich. Tilton says he'd like to hear from all his friends, especially Martin Black. His address is Pvt. Robert W. Tilton, Barracks 120, Flight B, AAFTD, Ypsilanti, Mich. . . . PFC. MAL MCNEIL, who also trouped with reps in New England, is still entertaining the boys at Keesler Field, Miss. . . . LARRY FITZGERALD, now a sergeant in Co. F, 333d Engineers, Yuma, Ariz., recently visited for eight days with his sister, Margie Mason Gilmore, in Compton, Calif., on his first furlough since last May. Larry writes that his knowledge of putting up and tearing down, garnered in the tent-show field, has set him in good stead in the army.

THE HAVERSTOCKS are wintering in Fort Worth and will open their tent season near there in March. Their son, Rolland, is in Co. C, 92d Signal Battalion, Camp Maxie, Tex. . . . GEORGE AND MARY BEAVER have purchased new picture equipment and a panel truck and are still operating their picture circle out of Popular Bluff, Mo. The last several weeks found them fighting high flood waters in the territory. . . . HAZEL FELTON, who with her husband, King Felton, magician, is wintering in Topeka, Kan., reports that showfolk traveling that area have been pretty well taken care of on gasoline by the ODT. Six managers have written her recently that they have been furnished with all the gas necessary for their hops. King Felton pulls his trailer with a panel truck, and has received a T book, allowing him all the gas he needs. . . . JACK VIVIAN, owner of the Allen Bros. Show, is reported to have taken over the management of the Palace Theater, Jonesboro, Ark. . . . ALEXANDER ZESSER, former rep producer and operator of the Ritz Theater, Detroit, the last five years, sold his interests there last week and plans to settle in Florida. . . . HOMER LEE and P. Bowens postal that they left Wilmington, N. C., last week for Tampa, where they will remain until Robinson's Silver Minstrels begin their under-canvas trek early in the spring.

Derbyshow News

(Communications to BILL SACHS, Cincinnati Office)

STAFF AT Sid Cohen's Chicago contest, in progress at the Armory, 16th and Michigan Avenue, is as follows: Whitey Helm, day trainer, Judge and nurse; Ruthie Farrell, nurse; Jimmie Farrell, night judge; Davis Nubert, nurse; Witey Rogan, trainer; Lenny Page, emcee; Art Wolfe, emcee, and Frankie Little, comedian. Artie Starck's band furnishes the music.

JOHNNY HENDERSON, now in uniform, was a recent visitor to the Chicago derbyshow. Johnny sang a song and was well received.

CHARLES POWELL, of Baltimore, writes: "If you contact Jerry Green, Sid Cohen, Pop Dunlap, King Brady or any derbyshow promoter, please tell them that the Baltimore fans would like to see another show. I know that anyone coming here with a show would do a good business. There are thousands of war workers here and they would patronize such a show. Jerry Green had a show in Dundalk, Md., last summer, but it was a bit too far from Baltimore to attract much patronage from the city. The ban on pleasure driving would not affect a show, because there are five places which can easily be reached by public transportation.

JIMMIE AND SWANEE HORAN held open house and Christmas dinner for all walkie kids in Hollywood. Among those hosted by the Horans were Hughie Hendrixson, Ruthie Booth, Phil Arnold, Lee Sullivan, Tex Swan and Jerry Horan.

LUCILLE TUCK GULLA writes from Augusta, Ga., that she's enjoying the South. She motored down there last October to join her husband, Sergt Joe Gulla, stationed in a Southern army camp. Joe made a trip east on army business in September and had his first furlough in a year over the holidays when he and Lucille motored back to his home in New York. The Gullas say they were happy to see a few old friends there, including Mickey and Florence Rosenberg.

4 A'S DROP FIGHT

certification of majority to Wirtz in Chicago, and following that Wirtz notified Four A's that he would deal with Ken Thomson, executive secretary of SAG, on the basis that "two people could get further than three or four."

According to Greaza, Thomson came east to a Four A's board meeting to deny any such arrangement, and said that Wirtz had agreed to meet Thomson and other Four A's officials. Four A's, prior to that, acceded to Wirtz's demands not to meet with representatives of the Chicago local.

As a result, Thomson last week sent a "strong" letter to Wirtz, accusing him of stalling the negotiations until the end of the run.

This week, Greaza sent letters to both casts, notifying them that they would not be permitted to sign individual agreements with Wirtz for future shows, but he said that AGVA was "dropping the existing fight for the present." Road tour ends its run early next month.

20th's STOCK PLAN

film companies have evinced an interest in the results, but since the job is being done for 20th, information won't be made available to the others, unless Fox cares to divulge it.

Harding's survey of two weeks ago, covering Worcester, Springfield and Hartford, revealed there was an unwillingness in Springfield to turn over the Court Square Theater, because it is now operating on a paying basis. Rotary stock idea for that house, which had film backing, flopped seven years ago. Broadway Theater, in that city, also part of the chain, is similarly fixed financially. Harding discovered, however, other houses in that area would be made available to the plan.

Major interest of 20th is to use the circuit as proving grounds for new plays, directors and unknown talent. Also film names who, after being in pictures for years, have a hankering to play legit, and in some cases recapture lost popularity.

OUT-OF-TOWN OPENING

acrobatic tap hoofing is the most attractive.

There's an amazing amount of talent scrambled together in this show. But it all adds up to an amazing amount of monotony. It was certainly in no shape for public view here on Christmas night. Show is skedded for Broadway following its fortnight here, but it is highly doubtful whether the producers will dare.

Maurie Oodenker.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Revival of The Firefly, which finally emerged here after numerous cast, story and score changes, as Full Speed Ahead, headed to the cleaners after eight days at the Forrest Theater, ended January 2. Musical, figured on embarking radio singer Emma Otero on a stage career, was originally inked to remain a second week at the Forrest, but the Shuberts, producing the musical, yanked it off after a single week. It is reported that the management dropped $50,000 in the venture.

Oddly enough, three of the four drama critics gave the show good notices, but public was wise from opening, and word-of-mouth gave it the death stamp. Sidney Gathrid, Daily News drama ed., was the only one who tempted the fury of the Shuberts and gave show a healthy panning. As expected, a threat to yank all Shubert advertising from The Daily News followed the review. Marked second time this season that Gathrid hit the Shuberts the wrong way. Earlier, complaint was that the sheet wasn't giving enough story and picture space to the legit shows, and ads were yanked for a couple of days. They weren't yanked this time.

MSA Re-Elects Stahl as Prexy

Servicemen's committee continues active — map plans for new clubhouse

DETROIT, Jan. 18.—Michigan Showmen's Association re-elected Harry Stahl president Monday at one of the best attended meetings the association has ever held. Other officers are: Ora (Pop) Baker, first vice-president; Oscar Margolis, second vice-president; Hymie Sobol, third vice-president. Louis Rosenthal was re-elected treasurer and Bernhard Robbins was re-elected secretary.

New directors are James Ashley, Jack Gallagher, Sam Gould, Frank Hamilton, Sam Maltin, Ben Moss and Louis Wish. Club opened new executive offices on the second floor of the building housing their clubrooms last week. New office suite has three rooms, used for the secretary's office, reception room and a separate room for the committee handling gifts to servicemen.

The last-named activity has become a major one with the club, with 160 packages of cigarettes and other specialty items being sent monthly to men in the service everywhere. These are going not only to MSA members but to friends of members who are showmen.

Over $2,500 has been appropriated so far for this activity, raised entirely by the sale of War Bonds, with a $25 bond being awarded each week. The $6.25 cash balance on each bond sale is used for the servicemen's gifts. To date $40,000 in War Bonds have been sold in this manner.

Service record of the MSA is good, with 26 members now in the armed forces. Plans for a new clubhouse to be purchased by the MSA are maturing and were discussed in detail at Monday night's meeting. Plan was given a strong sendoff by the announcement of James Ashley that he would give an immediate endowment for the building fund.

KC Aux. Luncheon Is Colorful; Club Execs Are Honored

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 16.—Ladies' Auxiliary of the Heart of America Showmen's Club 14th annual luncheon in the Hotel President here recently proved a colorful affair. Sunburst Expo Maps Mound City Club 1943 Plans; Grandy Inducts Officers To Direct Quarters

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Management of Sunburst Exposition Shows met at a special session here last week to formulate plans for taking the organization on tour in 1943. Present plans call for the combo, which is stored in Hemlock, N. Y., to make an early opening. Work in quarters is expected to start about May 1, with Leo Grandy in charge.

In an effort to cut down on the transportation problem, executives plan to rebuild all fronts and to load on less space. Management said the 1942 season showed an increase in gross receipts of 39 per cent over any previous year, altho several fair and celebrations were lost because of government restrictions.

A truck has been purchased and it will be repainted. A patriotic color scheme will be featured on all equipment, and shows plan to carry 2 free at-

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16.—Following the regular business session January 14, members of the International Association of Showmen adjourned to the special room where the entertainment committee had a splendid repast set out for all members, as well as the members of the Missouri Show Women's Club, who were invited to participate in club's installation ceremonies. President Sam Solomon and First Vice-President Noble C. Fairly sent messages of regret at being unable to be on hand because of attending Minnesota Fair Association meeting. Second Vice-President Morris Lipsky, now in the armed services, also was absent.

The rest of the officers were present and Third Vice-President Frank B. Joerling presided at the business session and later at the installation ceremonies. W. Jack Moore, prominent St. Louis attorney and a friend of the outdoor show-folk here, was elected to membership and will serve as the club's legal adviser. (See IAS INDUCTS on page 53)

Coast Club in Gala Installation Feed; Mrs. Hanscom Prexy

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—A gala installation party was staged by Regular Associated Troupers at Florentine Gardens here January 7, with Estelle Hanscom taking over the presidential duties. Betty Coe assumed the vice-president's post, while Vera Downie retained her position as secretary. About 100 were present.

Event was planned and arranged by Babe Miller, committee chairman, assisted by Ruth Korte, Ethel Krug, Ruth McMahon and Cecilia Kanthe. Night was devoted to social matters, with speeches being banned from the program. Outgoing officers were presented with gifts, with Miss King receiving a wrist watch from the membership and a card case from her officers, Mrs. LeFors and Mrs. Downie. Mrs. LeFors was the recipient of a card case, with nameplate from the membership and an engraved identification anklet from Miss King. Mrs. Downie received a gold cigarette case from members and an engraved anklet from Miss King.

In addition to the regular floorshow, featuring the Nils T. Club hopes to sell $25,000 worth of War Bonds this month. President Feinberg made an interesting talk and was promised full cooperation by all members.

Letters and wires wishing the new president luck and success were read. Among those sending congratulations were Frank E. Joerling, of The Billboard; Carl J. Sedlmayr, Elmer Velare, J. C. McCaffery, Toney Martone, George Howk, Mike Dekreko, Denny Pugh, Bill Hirsch, Mel Vaught, Joe Murphy, Bob Morton, Jimmy Cooper, Dave Lachman, Morris Lipsky, Barney Gerety, Marie Beckmann, Jack Harris and Noble Fairly.

The club will pay all expenses for a gala celebration, while Brother Jack Ruback will donate $100 for a honeymoon trip, and Brother Ben Block will donate the engagement and wedding ring.

Personal Chatter

Brother Cecil (Perk) Perkins is a busy man these days, making his spaghetti and meat balls and mulligan stew on the club's daily menu, and the members give him plenty of business. Sam Aldrich is busy with his new skating rink and is enjoying good business. Bill Aldrich has opened the Black Cat Tea Room. Business is good, with Barney Allen, another brother, managing the spot for him.

Secretary Dave Stevens announces that the club's paid-up membership is now over 500. Mrs. Ben Block entertained at (See SASC on page 46)

Real Oddities

JUD EMPTYPIIT, side-show operator, believed in operating with as little a nut as possible. If an act didn't have a sideline to pay itself off and give Jud a big cut it was quickly listed as missing, due to no action. He was more skeptical of his acts than were his patrons. In other words, he wanted them to be real entertainers who could satisfy his tips as well as being of the make-a-little and give-me-a-little types. His magician could do one mechanical trick but lengthened the show with his pitch, which always grossed heavily. So Jud thought the act was passable. It was the glassblower who worried him. Daily he watched the act and found it always to be the same six-word lecture: "Glass is made out of sand," and then the sales talk, "We have a novel way of passing out the merchandise on the shelves. Every card has a number, etc." "Why," thought Jud, "can't my glassblowers have fires and give demonstrations? All I ever book is three rows of shelves." Finally a whittler, who also sold his merchandise, joined. Day after day Manager Emptypit eyed the new actor's shelves, lined with ships in bottles, wooden chains, anchors, mermaid book ends and other hand-carved novelties. He listened to the lecture delivered while the whittler held a block of white pine in his hand, but he could never find any shavings around the pit. "Perhaps he keeps 'em in a basket and dumps 'em at night," thought Jud, while still on the carver's trail. Then it happened when a canvasman tried to borrow a knife in the show to splice a rope and found none. "This is it!" yelled Emptypit. "I've stood for magicians who couldn't do magic, glassblowers without fires, experts on handwriting analysis who couldn't read or write, strong men who pitched health books but were too weak to help set up, but when I get a whittler who doesn't own a knife I'm ready to fold."

IT'S going to be hard for these $60 per week war-plant boys to settle down to $20 per week ride boys after this clem is over.

May Make Book Ends

DIME JAM JOHNSON and his cronies' services were on the auction block. Hearing of the man-power shortage and high wages being paid in war plants, they decided to sell themselves to the highest bidder. Altho they had already been in 10 winter quarters asking for top salaries, the boys had failed in finding a manager who would pay $1.50 per hour and meals. This night found them in the tall pine country of the Deep South sitting around a big log fire watching a can of turnips boil and sweet potatoes bake in ashes. Both vegetables had been donated by a country chump who at the time was enjoying a fried chicken and hot biscuit supper. "This man-power shortage ain't what it is supposed to be in winter quarters," started one. "Seems as tho there is a lot of work to be done, but due to not being able to buy materials, the managers ain't hiring any help. I was with a show years ago that had plenty of men but no money to buy supplies. In order to get boards to repair the show property we cut down trees and sawed them into lumber by hand." "The most short-handed show I was ever with," piped Dime Jam, "was Blanket-or-Dollar-for-a-Dime Exposition. Its office held plenty of coconuts but couldn't keep any help on account of the owner's wife wanting to be the general superintendent. Because the owner's last name was the same as mine and came from the same State, I felt as tho we were related, and my imaginary family ties held me in quarters. Besides myself, a half and half was the only other employee. One night I heard screams coming from a ride barn. The yelping for help was so loud that it could be heard downtown. Seeing the town's marshal and several citizens running toward the spot where the screams came from, I followed. To our surprise, instead of seeing a murder being committed, we found nothing but the manager's wife trying to saw the half and half in half to make two people."

Winter-Quarters News and Gossip

John H. Marks

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16.—Owner John H. Marks has purchased a new 136-acre tract, formerly one of Virginia's show places located just outside of Richmond, and has transformed the spot into winter quarters for the shows. He plans to make his future home there should government restrictions prevent his shows from taking to the road in the spring. Meanwhile, he is preparing to start the 1943 tour about April 1, and has booked his spring dates and a tentative fair circuit. A delegation from the W. W. Workman Tent, Circus Saints and Sinners' Club of America, of which Marks is a member, visited quarters as guests of Marks. They were entertained by members of the show. A buffet lunch and refreshments were served, and the guests visited the various buildings. In attendance were Charles A. Somma, L. D. Mundlin, Joseph Kass, L. D. (Pete) Christian, Jack Lyons, Jim Mann, Charlie Woo, Ham Watson, W. T. Homberg and Frank Bergen. Walter D. Nealand, press agent, is in charge of office quarters. Visitors included Earl Purtle, Cash Miller, Speedy Merrill, Ban Eddington, Ralph Lockett and Dutch Lester. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lane are here for the winter, Paul having foregone his usual Florida vacation. Tommy Heath is overhauling the electrical equipment and Scotty Brown is chef. George T. Chesnut is overhauling the billing equipment, and George Washington Carr is in charge of rehabilitation. Bert Miller, designer, is here with his wife, Ethel, supervising the rebuilding of the truck equipment. Owner Marks plans to attend the annual meet of the Virginia Association of Fairs.

King Reid

DORSET, Va., Jan. 16.—After a highly successful season of 26 weeks, shows returned to quarters on October 15. Site was already crowded with equipment of Blotner's Model and Honest Kelly shows, purchased by Owner King Reid earlier in the season. Because of the need for a more extensive quarters, Reid purchased the Barnumville Tavern property, consisting of an old brick tavern and a 65-acre tract on the Battenkill River. Two large storage houses and a recently built wood-working novelty factory, also on the premises, have provided a nucleus for a winter quarters that will care for the increased size of the shows. Work on the newly acquired property was started at once and has progressed satisfactorily. Local newspapers have been generous in their reports of the manner in which the shows' fleet of trucks has been placed at the disposal of all local war committees for scrap collections and other activities. Mr. and Mrs. Reid spent the holidays in New York with their son, Artie, who has returned to school in Massachusetts. Harry Pierce is in charge of quarters. Little construction is contemplated as Manager King Reid recently announced he plans to take out one enlarged unit augmented by equipment from the two shows purchased last season.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16.—Acting Mayor John L. Bohn has called upon aldermen to begin now to make plans for the city's centennial celebration in 1946 under sponsorship of Midsummer Festival Commission. If the war is still on, a short ceremony would be held, but if it is concluded Bohn recommended the holding of a ceremony attracting nationwide attention. Bohn renamed to the festival commission these members: Rudolph Hokanson, Albert J. Obenberger, Theodore Mazza, Frank Balistreri, Joseph W. Nicholson and Jerome Dretzka. Ira Bickhart, new secretary to the mayor, also was named to the body, along with Harry C. Brockel, port director.

AMERICAN LEGION DRUM and Bugle Corps, Lebanon, Pa., sponsored a circus, booked by the George A. Hamid office, for the week ended January 9 at the Eagles' Auditorium. A circus ring was set up in the auditorium. Performances were presented nightly, with a children's matinee on Saturday.

Show plans to open in March and work is to be rushed to completion.

American Carnivals Association, Inc.

By MAX COHEN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 16.—We are pleased to announce receipt of a further contribution to the Public Relations Fund from Conklin's All-Canadian Shows.

Our plans in connection with the New York State Fair meeting at Albany are rapidly being formulated and we would appreciate hearing from members who plan to attend the meeting. There is a possibility that a meeting of the contributors to the Public Relations Fund may be held in connection with this fair meeting. In the event plans along this line are completed, notice will be sent out in due time. In any event, the occasion will permit a general get-together and an informal discussion of various matters of interest to the membership at this time.

In connection with the subject of transportation, we have received figures compiled by the United States Commerce Department on a sample survey taken in Pittsburgh as to the effect on transportation of the public by gasoline rationing. Prior to rationing, shoppers in the Pittsburgh area came to town by the following means: Streetcar, 56 per cent; automobile, 19 per cent; bus, 18 per cent; train, 4 per cent; walk, 3 per cent. Since rationing, streetcar use has increased to 57 per cent, automobile use decreased to 15 per cent, bus use increased to 20 per cent, train increased to 6 per cent, and, strangely enough, walking decreased to 2 per cent. If these figures are typical of the situation throughout the country, shows would do well to seriously consider (See American Carnivals on page 48)

ROBERT RINGLING HEADS RB

John R. North Is Out as Prexy; Smith Replaces Concello as Mgr.; 1943 Tour Certain, Says Butler

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—John Ringling North, president, and Henry Ringling North, vice-president, have left Ringling-Barnum Circus, and Robert Ringling, senior vice-president and a director, has taken active hold with his mother, Mrs. Charles (Edith) Ringling, and Aubrey B. Ringling, vice-presidents. Mrs. Aubrey Ringling is the widow of Richard Ringling, son of the late Alf T. Exit of the Norths was described as "leaves of absence with full pay" until April 1. This was part of a statement issued by John North himself, it having been agreed to let him make the announcement from New York in his own way.

Meantime, key executives in Sarasota (Fla.) winter quarters were informed of the change in administration, the most important one being the dismissal of Art Concello as general manager after less than a year in that post and, as a natural step, bringing back George W. Smith in that job. Concello was named g. m. during the 1942 engagement in New York. When asked if Concello would be affected as a performer (he has the flying troupes on the show), Robert Ringling said Concello holds a contract for 1943. This is Smith's third excursion back in grace. Since last June he has been handling the mechanical and assembly features of Army War Show.

The new boss said in response to a query that there would be other changes, but did not care to expand on them or go into any detail. The presidency is vacant. In April the board of directors will meet and decide upon an official corporation head. Representing the Manufacturers Trust Company in the current corporation set-up is William P. Dunn Jr., secretary-treasurer and a director, who is a vice-president of the bank headed by Harvey Gibson.

Series of Meetings Held

It was known that something hot was brewing last week when a series of meetings was held here. Prior to that, Broadway columnists had John North laying the "case" of circus before Washington on a "morale" basis. A month or so back a rumor which did not get wide circulation was that North had offered or was offering the show to the USO to appear at large army camps, navy centers, etc. It is said that this did not have the sanction of other directors, one of the reasons for the nix being that such an offer would place the Big Show on the defensive in relation to the question of 1943 operation while a war is on.

A week ago yesterday Jack Lait, batting for Walter Winchell, said that North "is fighting for a ruling that the circus is vital to national morale," and the anti-circus, pro-film Lait concluded that "he might as well stop fighting." On Monday, the very day the official announcement was issued, columnist Dorothy Kilgallen said that North "is still attempting to get a Washington ruling on the morale value of the circus so he can take the Big Show out this spring." Also on the same day columnist Leonard Lyons said that the Norths "now are on leave of absence with full pay," indicating that there was a leak as the official statement did not get into print until the mid-afternoon editions. But the leak didn't go the whole way because Lyons mentioned Robert Ringling only as a possible successor. Columnist Danton Walker also touched on the shake-up on Tuesday.

(The Billboard had the important details of the sweep last Saturday (9) from a direct out-of-town source who was committed to confidence. This publication refused the temptation to violate the confidence. On this day, as well as on Sunday, January 10, Florida quarters were completely informed. Robert Ringling phoned The Billboard's New York office and made the announcement personally after a statement had been issued to the daily press.)

later were beset by a strike in Scranton, Pa. Picking up where Sam W. Gumpertz left off during the previous five years, they "theatricalized" the circus, bringing in a Broadway style almost throughout the performance and retaining top designers and costumers for this purpose. Their box office over the five seasons compares very favorably with any other span in R-B history. Robert Ringling has been connected with the corporation for several years and is a former opera singer, having appeared with Chicago Civic Opera Company among other spots.

Sarasota Report on RB Changes

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 16.—A drastic shake-up in management of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus, reportedly engineered at a meeting of directors in New York but announced here, placed the Ringling family in complete control of the Big One for the first time since 1933.

The changes, announced here by Roland Butler, RB general press representative, were naming of Robert Ringling, son of Charles Ringling, one of the show's founders, as executive head of the circus as senior vice-president and managing director; resignation of John Ringling North, president, and Henry Ringling North, vice-president; and the return of George W. Smith as general manager, succeeding Arthur M. Concello.

Butler said the changes "mean the Ringling owners are now running the show" and that the Big Top "is even more Ringling than ever before." Mrs. Charles Ringling, mother of Robert, and Mrs. Aubrey Ringling, widow of Richard Ringling, the son of Alf T. Ringling, another of the original founders, each own one-third interest in the circus. Each is a vice-president and a director. Another share is owned by the John Ringling estate.

John North did not announce that he had resigned, but said that he and his brother, nephews of the late John Ringling, had taken leaves of absence with full pay. Robert Ringling said in New York that the leaves of absence were until the end of the circus fiscal year in April, but an official here said North was under a five-year contract expiring (See Robt. Ringling Heads on page 49)

More Buildings Added to Hunt Bros.' Quarters

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Jan. 16.—A large-scale building program has been carried on here in the quarters of Hunt Bros. Circus since closing on September 26. A six-room bungalow and a 24 by 42-foot storage house for seats and canvas have been finished. Men are now working on a concrete automotive repair and paint shop and a 10-room residence which will be occupied by the Hunt family when completed. Priorities on plumbing and electric necessities may hold up the latter's completion for some time. There are now 11 buildings in winter quarters.

Visitors included Joe Conway, Bill Carlin, Dutch Hoffman, retired circus troupers; Harry and Charlotte (Hunt) LeVine and their sons, Julian and Charles, spent the holidays, and George Hanneford and family spent a day and signed for the coming season. Dan and Bobby Steward are in charge of the cookhouse, which is feeding 21 people. Eddie Furphy, cookhouse waiter, was hit by a car and is in Mount Holly Hospital here in a critical condition. Work on trucks, equipment and the painting of same will start February 1. Reported by Charles T. Hunt.

Won, Horse & Upp Combined Circus

An Equine and Canine Paradox—The Show With a Leaf of Gold

By STARR DE BELLE

Meggs Mills, Tex.
January 19, 1943.

Dear Editor:

The management of Won, Horse & Upp Circus has long desired a big act to feature, but on account of high salaries demanded by such acts it was impossible for them to sign one. Acts who troupe with this show never number more than two people who double about six times. Tuesday at Grundy's Quarry, Tex., we were thrilled to learn that a six-people wire act had joined. On arrival the new troupe were informed by the office that on account of the high $100 per week salary they were to receive and the public not knowing about them joining, the act would have no drawing power until the show caught up with the special paper. As our advance wagons are never over two or three days ahead of the show, we caught up with the feature's first billing on Thursday at Roads End, Tex.

Show played to a packed tent that night, which proved that every circus must have a feature. At least one gives the patrons something to look forward to after an hour on the boards. When the time came for the act to make its first appearance every actor with the show rushed in to see it. Before mounting the wire pedestal the man and five girls took six bows, while the crowd applauded wildly. Then a blonde accepted his topper and cape, while another handed him his parasol, the third shook some powdered rosin on his pedestal. After walking across the wire and returning, a redhead handed him three Indian clubs to juggle and stayed there until he finished, catching the clubs before retiring to the dressing room with the other girls.

During his next feat of balancing on a chair he was assisted by a blonde, who not only handed him the chair but shook more rosin on the pedestal. When it came time to juggle fire torches while balanced on the wire, the first blonde returned to light them and doubled by helping him roll up his cuffs. She remained by the wire rigging to extinguish the torches when he finished before retiring. For a grand finale the five girls brought in a big black ball, while straining under its weight for effect, and he did a routine of cannonball juggling and manipulating on the wire, followed by the redhead returning with his lounging robe and wooden-soled sandals, which he slipped into when hitting the ground. Before the crowd could applaud the band played a chord and all six rushed in for a bow and rushed out quickly. On account of their first appearance applause, the crowd had applauded itself out and the finale didn't get a ripple.

Friday at a burg we never did know it by anything different than a road sign (See Won, Horse & Upp on opp. page)

Buckeyes Push Victory Expos

Plan the best annuals in State's history to boost morale, food production

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—Convinced that county and district fairs in Ohio can and will play an even greater part in maintaining the morale of the State's rural folk and in encouraging larger production of food, so essential in the promotion of the war effort, a large group of representatives of the 95 boards in the State, at the 18th annual meeting of the Ohio Fair Managers' Association in Deshler-Wallack Hotel here January 13-14, went on record to proceed with plans to give ruralites the best annuals they have ever had in 1943.

Despite travel restrictions a large crowd attended the meet and an estimated 1,000 were at Thursday night's banquet to hear Gov. John W. Bricker laud the importance of fairs in the nation's war effort. Fair men and the State Department of Agriculture also adopted resolutions calling for the encouragement in every possible way of Ohio rural youth in things agricultural and to urge the Ohio fairs to offer encouragement (See BUCKEYE EXPOS on opp. page)

Wis. Boards Name Special Committee To Form '43 Plans

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 16.—A special committee named by 35 agricultural and fair leaders attending a meeting January 6 at the Capital Hotel here, has laid down five general principles to guide it in making recommendations for holding both State and county fairs geared to the war effort as follows: (1) Rearrange fair premiums to better serve war purposes with the ultimate goal to create greater quality production. (2) Work with all federal agencies and representatives of armed forces. (3) Work with State defense organizations to create among citizens a greater responsibility for these activities. (4) To improve all agricultural and industrial exhibits and make them effective as morale-building factors among youth and adults. (5) To arrange for entertainment of a patriotic nature to improve morale.

Special committee was divided into two groups of six members each. One group (See WIS. BOARD on opposite page)

Mo. To Go Ahead; Boyd Is Secretary

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16.—At the annual meeting of Missouri Association of Fairs and Agricultural Exhibitions in Columbia, Mo., January 9, Glenn B. Boyd, secretary Ozark Empire District Fair, Springfield, was elected secretary-treasurer, succeeding Charles W. Green, who has moved to Cincinnati.

Other officers are Larry Jones, Moberly Bullester, president, and Ernest W. Baker, secretary Missouri State Fair, Sedalia; Ross C. Ewing, Audrain County Fair, Mexico; Harold Boucher, Brunswick; Dr. J. R. Popejoy, Moniteau County Fair, California, and A. M. Paterson, manager American Royal Livestock Shows, Kansas City, vice-presidents.

A resolution was adopted that all fairs in the State make every effort to continue in 1943 and that they would cooperate in every way possible with the government in the war effort.

Ill. Governor Urges Boards To Continue Where Possible

Address of Gov. Dwight H. Green at the annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Agricultural Fairs, St. Nicholas Hotel, Springfield, January 6-7.

As governor of Illinois and a citizen of this State, I welcome a chance to speak words of encouragement and appreciation to farmers and small business men who are carrying on so bravely and well under the heavy exactions and uncertain economies of war. The farm and the small community at which the farmer sells his produce and does his trading must be strengthened and encouraged now as never before, because the food produced in these small communities has suddenly assumed a world-wide importance. Figures reporting the production of corn and oats, soybeans and wheat, cattle and hogs on the farms of Illinois—hitherto dull and uninteresting to the general public—have become, overnight, figures of the most vital import, worthy of the closest study and attention.

Truly may it be said that upon the production of food on the farms of America rests the success of our fight for freedom. It is apparent to all our military strategists and statesmen that the ultimate success of our cause depends upon the success of the farming communities in producing food for America and her millions of hungry allies.

Naturally, as governor of the State containing the greatest, the most fertile and prosperous agricultural area in the world, I am vitally interested, even as you here tonight are interested, in every single measure which will promote agriculture and its dependent trading communities. And as a plain, patriotic citizen of this great nation at war, I firmly believe that nothing which can speed the production of food or heighten the morale of those engaged in farming should be left undone.

Urge Continuance

In your annual meeting here your chief concern is the question of whether to hold your agricultural fairs next summer. Of course, none of us know exactly what the near future holds in store for us—and certainly none of us can predict what decisions or what orders might come from national government during the next few months. But it is my earnest hope that those of you who find it possible can go ahead and hold your annual agricultural fairs in every case in which it does not directly interfere with, or retard, the national war effort.

After carefully weighing the subject it seems to me, at this time, that the benefits of holding our agricultural fairs outweigh any disadvantages. All of us know that the purpose of a fair is to encourage and increase yields of grain and other crops, to facilitate raising of improved breeds of livestock and to acquaint farmers with the most modern and efficient methods of agriculture.

Aid War Effort

At a time when our own armies and those of our allies on foreign soil are crying out for "food, more food"—at a time when even Americans living in the heart of this great productive region must submit to rationing of meat and other foods—what could be more important than an institution which seeks to improve methods of food production, which is aimed at increasing production of all farm crops—why, may I ask, should we discontinue, in the face of a meat shortage, an institution which places its greatest emphasis on the raising of more and better cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry?

Of major importance also is the incentive which a fair gives to our farm boys and girls, the 4-H Club members, Future Farmers of America and other organizations. The proper training of our farm youth has become a vital issue, because only thru their trained assistance can many farmers solve the serious problem resulting from the man-power shortage. Discontinuance of our county fairs would work a further hardship on our progressive young agriculturists because their entire year's program is pointed toward a fair's competitive events—particularly in the raising of livestock. Many of our brightest youths have, in the past, earned enough money from their livestock to send themselves thru college. We should not abolish a program which produces such incentives.

Kansans To Promote Livestock And Agricultural Production

Galloway Is Elected

In keeping with the farm theme which predominated the discussions, the association elected L. H. Galloway, Wakeeney, one of the State's successful big-time farmers, president for the coming year. He succeeds Everett Erhart, Stafford. Art McAnarney, Haviland, was named vice-president, while R. M. Sawhill, Glascow, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Directors elected included D. Linn Livers, Barnes; M. W. Jencks, Topeka; Harold F. Smith, Iola; George Dietrich, Richmond; Cooper Osterhout, Columbus; W. D. Jones, Girard; Earl Mayor, Oak Hill; L. H. Galloway, Wakeeney; L. F. Davidson, Glascow; Art McAnarney, Haviland, and Everett Erhart, Stafford.

Governor Offers Co-Operation

Headline guest speaker of the meetings was Andrew F. Schoeppel, newly inaugurated governor of Kansas. His reaction to the convention's resolutions was most encouraging. "Finest thing I've heard," he commented, and assured delegates he would do all within his power to assist them in their efforts.

Restricted travel cut attendance almost in half as less than 25 per cent were able to drive cars to the meetings. Reports showed that only 11 of the nearly 100 fairs scheduled for the State in 1942 were canceled and that the majority of fairs and exhibitions held proved successful. Most of the 11 fairs not held last year will be back with at least agricultural exhibits or food fairs

Illinois Execs To Go Ahead

Secs plan wartime set-up —association is split into three district groups

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 16.—About 200 delegates, representing 53 of the 80 fairs held in 1942, and five of the 19 fairs which were called off last year, were in attendance at the 33d annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Agricultural Fairs in St. Nicholas Hotel here January 6-7. It was one of the most enthusiastic and interesting meetings held in the history of the association. Business sessions were more heavily attended than ever before, and it was noticeable that all fair men virtually remained "glued" to their chairs throughout the meetings. Without exception the 60 fairs held in 1942 made money, many showing greater profit than at any of the previous annuals. All are planning to stage their annuals again this year and five of those called off last year have signified their intention of operating in 1943.

Gov. Dwight H. Green sounded the keynote during his talk at the banquet, when he urged the fair men to plan their 1943 annuals. He said that the morale building and the aid to the war effort which the fairs lend to the farm population more than offset any shortage of rubber or gasoline that might be entailed. He, as well as Director of Agriculture Hon. Howard Leonard, promised the fair men every possible aid from the governing agencies in the State in the promulgation of fairs and firmly advocated continuance of fairs in Illinois next summer and fall "in every case in which it does not directly interfere with, or retard, the national war effort." Ray A. Dillinger, association president and Assistant Director of Agriculture, concurred with the two leaders.

Co-Operate With War Effort

President Dillinger presided at the initial session Wednesday. Co-operation with the war effort was reflected in George Flint's discourse on the sale of War Bonds and Stamps at fairs and by E. Guy Pixley, who spoke on "Victory Gardens as Special Attractions at Fairs." Leonard urged the fair men to plan for their fairs and pledged every possible aid. Carter Jenkins, Illinois OPA director, gave delegates valuable information (See ILL. TO CONTINUE on page 43)

Ohio Associations Sell $750,000 in War Bonds, Stamps

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—That fairs held in Ohio in 1942 contributed an outstanding part in the nation's war effort was evidenced in a report of the activities of the 64 annuals held in the State made by Mrs. Don A. Detrick, executive secretary, at the 18th annual meeting of the Ohio Fair Managers' Association in the Deshler-Wallack Hotel here January 13-14.

Forty-seven of the fairs, Mrs. Detrick said, reported a total attendance of 1,704,169 and paid to the government $44,672.58 in taxes. From special booths

Around the Grounds

CONWAY, Ark.—Young Business Men's Association, sponsor of Faulkner County Fair, have voted to put the fair's excess of $2,220 in War Bonds. Turner T. Doolin, funeral director, elected new acting secretary-manager.

TROY, O.—E. O. Ritter, re-elected secretary of Miami County Agricultural Society for the 13th consecutive year at the annual meeting here January 2, announced that the association has a neat balance on hand. Financial statement revealed that receipts for 1942 were $27,919.93. This with a 1942 balance of $2,748.61 made a total of $30,668.54. Expenditures for the year were $30,548.30. Included in the expense was $4,762.32 for permanent improvements, purchase of $4,500 in War Bonds and $1,368.86 in federal taxes. Class and speed premiums totaled $7,462. Boys and girls' club work was $1,400, and grandstand attractions, $2,868.

SAN FRANCISCO.—A bill dividing $518,000 in the State fair fund is scheduled for introduction in the State Legislature at Sacramento soon. The bill, carrying an urgency clause which would make it immediately effective, would provide for the money originating from the State's take on pari-mutuel horse racing bets to be divided among all fairs and expositions in the State on the same basis as in previous years. Because present law provides that money shall be paid only to those fairs holding shows during the year, 10 fairs would divide the amount because they were the only ones exhibiting during 1942. The bill, if passed, would bring final settlement to a controversy which has continued virtually since the outbreak of the war.

Fair Elections

CONWAY, Ark.—Turner T. Doolin has been elected acting secretary-manager of Faulkner County Fair, it was announced here last week.

FARMER CITY, Ill.—Robert (Slim) Wilson was re-elected president of Farmer City Fair Association at a special meeting last week. W. F. Peterson was named vice-president; E. S. Wightman, secretary, and E. R. Rinchart, treasurer.

DECORAH, Ia.—Arthur Ellingson was re-elected president of Winneshiek County Fair Association at the annual meeting here. Other officers are E. T. Haugen, vice-president; Leon Brown, secretary, and W. P. Roan, treasurer.

TROY, O.—Miami County Agricultural Society re-elected Richard Levering, president; Lloyd Patty, vice-president; Floyd Blauser, treasurer, and E. O. Ritter, secretary, at the annual meeting here. Ritter was re-elected for the 13th consecutive year. He has been a member of the board for 27 years.

Kahn Aids War Effort With Victory Gardens

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—Victory Gardens will embellish the center-fields of Ohio's fairgrounds in 1943—at least they will if the resourceful Harry Kahn, secretary Big Auglaize County Fair, Wapakoneta, O., has his way. He unfolded the idea at the 18th annual meeting of the Ohio Fair Managers' Association in Deshler-Wallack Hotel here January 13-14. Kahn said that as soon as spring comes, he'll call for volunteers to plant the inside of the Wapakoneta race track.

Under Kahn's plan everyone will have a plot with a sign for his name, and War Bonds for junior and adult classes will be awarded. On the fair's initial day, Kahn says they'll have a cooking school using Victory Garden vegetables. The second day will be devoted to a canning school, with Victory vegetables being brought into use. Kahn's idea came in for some good publicity in The Columbus Citizen of January 13.

Saginaw Fair Plans To Increase Premiums

SAGINAW, Mich., Jan. 16.—Premiums in many departments of the Saginaw County Fair and Michigan Farm Products Show will be increased this year, it is announced by C. H. Harnden, secretary-manager. The increase will be made to take care of the added cost of making exhibits.

At the annual organization meeting of the fairs board of management last week, the following officers were elected: President, John M. Brooks, Saginaw, replacing Charles Girmus, Bridgeport; vice-president, William L. Otto, Milwaukee; second vice-president, Albert E. Williams, Saginaw; treasurer, William J. Kirschner, Freeland, re-elected; secretary-manager, Clarence H. Harnden, Saginaw, re-elected.

Plans were made to go ahead with the fair, subject to conditions as they may arise. Plans to take an increased part in the promotion of the war effort based on experience gained last year also were agreed upon, Manager Harnden stated.

N. C. Meet Is Canceled

WILSON, N. C., Jan. 16.—W. H. Dunn, secretary of North Carolina Association of Agricultural Fairs, said that the annual meeting scheduled for January 23 in Raleigh has been canceled because of restrictions on travel.

in every possible way; that the Ohio fair managers' association petition the Ohio Legislature, now in session, to enact such legislation as may be necessary to transfer Ohio from the Eastern to the Central Time Zone because the present War Time is working a definite interference with the honest effort of Ohio farmers to meet all-out war production needs, and to obtain an appropriation of suitable size from the Legislature to encourage a show of various breeds of livestock at interested county fairs.

Women's group of the association went on record to urge that at least one woman be made a member of each fair board in the State. They recommended that a committee working with the assistant director of agriculture make a list of suggestions growing out of the Women's Group conference to help make fair premium lists conform with the wartime program and that a mimeographed copy be sent to each fair board.

Stuckey New Prexy

Emphasizing importance attached to capable leadership, representatives elected former vice-president N. E. Stuckey, Van Wert, to the presidency for 1943. Walter J. Boss, Wooster, was named first vice-president, and William H. Kroesen, Berea, second vice-president. Mrs. Don A. Detrick, Bellefontaine, secretary, and B. U. Bell, Xenia, were re-elected to those posts.

State Board of Agriculture elected Walter F. Buss, Wooster, president; Arthur Evans, Cedarville, vice-president. Mrs. C. A. Steele, South Vienna, was re-elected secretary. Resolutions committee included John W. Yoder, Baldwin Rice, Mrs. D. R. McConnell, W. A. Scholl, Howard Goddard and W. J. Buss. Women's committee was composed of Mrs. D. R. McConnell, Mrs. Robert J. Bryson and Goldie V. Scheible.

Initial session Wednesday (13) got under way with President Ralph C. Haines, Dayton, presiding. Following group singing, directed by Albert Heinz, Mayor Floyd F. Green made his "Welcome to Columbus" address. Mayor Green complimented the fair men on their courage in meeting in convention during wartime to discuss and explore new possibilities for promoting the nation's war effort. He emphasized that fairs are vital to the winning of the war because of their association with agriculture. He said he hoped that 1943 fairs would draw even larger crowds because they are powerful institutions for the building of morale and education. Mayor Green urged all to put more individual effort in their organizations to aid the farmer in producing the necessary foodstuffs to enable eventual victory for the United Nations.

Kirkpatrick Honored

He closed his address by paying tribute to the late Frank Kirkpatrick, former president of Franklin County Fair. After hearing the reports of the secretary and treasurer, presented by Mrs. Don A. Detrick and B. U. Bell respectively, conventioneers listened to chairmen of the morning group meetings give brief outlines of their sessions. Making the reports were Orville Baughman, Russell Alt, B. U. Bell, Tom Billingsley pinch-hitting for John Yoder, George Dix, A. B. McDaniel and Mrs. D. B. Phillips. Wesley Green, deputy administrator of the Ohio War Savings Staff, and Claude F. Weimer, Blacklick, O., gave interesting talks on The Sale of War Bonds and Other Patriotic Activities at Our Fairs. Both complimented the various fairs on the outstanding record made at their annuals in 1942 and urged all to make an even greater contribution in 1943.

Other speakers and their subjects were B. P. Sandles, State junior fair manager, and Renick W. Dunlap, Kingston, County Fairs and Their Place in the War Effort; Bruce Burgess, Delaware County, Should Fairs Operate Their Night Attractions on a Percentage Basis?; James Atterholt and Judge G. W. Rittenour, Should a Ceiling Be Put on the Amount Spent on Racing?; Bob Shaw, William McCluskey and Ethel Robinson, Outlook for 1943.

Sandles, in his address, pointed out the encouragement fairs give to the farmer from a competitive standpoint and strongly urged fairs who called off their annuals in 1942 to forget last year's mistakes and to begin preparations to make future annuals the best in their history.

Speed Conference

N. E. Stuckey, Van Wert, presided at the Open Speed Conference meeting District 1 United States Trotting Association in the ballroom on Wednesday night. "The 1943 Racing Season" was discussed by C. H. Bowen, Columbus.

N. E. Group Meets March 24

1-Day Conclave To Thrash Out Wartime Angles

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Wednesday, March 24, is the date selected for the 15th annual convention of the New England Section, NAAPPB. The executive and program committees gathered at a luncheon meeting in Parker House here Monday (11) and went over preliminary plans for the conclave.

The committees voted to switch this year's convention to one of the larger downtown hotels, and announcement of the location will be made shortly after hotel arrangements are completed.

Edward J. Carroll, president of the NE group, stated that it may be possible to have Gov. Leverett Saltonstall for the noon luncheon at the conclave. He also reported that he had a tentative acceptance from a speaker of national repute for the convention banquet.

Henry G. Bowen, program chairman for the March meeting, has already begun arranging the day and evening activities. Among the subjects to be covered by the various speakers are transportation, rationing, taxation and manpower.

Present at Monday's meeting, in addition to Carroll and Bowen, were Secretary Fred L. Markey, Wallace St. C. Jones, Henry C. Martinelli; James Donovan, former governor's counselor, and Harry Storin, press agent at Riverside Park, Agawam, Mass.

In addition to convention matters, the executive committee held a conference relative to legislation covering Massachusetts parks and beaches.

Eastern Operators Apprehensive of Forthcoming Season

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—A serious curb on patronage at amusement resorts in the Baltimore area appears in the offing for the coming season as a result of the OPA's ban on pleasure driving, which definitely bars use of cars as a means of transportation to places of amusement and recreation. Maryland OPA Director Leo H. McCormick has enlisted the aid of 140 municipalities in the State to enforce the ruling outlawing auto pleasure driving.

Police Commissioner Robert F. Stanton of Baltimore said he believed policemen could be instructed to check license plates at places of amusement and recreation and submit the numbers to either OPA authorities or rationing boards. The only way the public will be able to go to amusement places will be by regular public transportation facilities. Baltimore proper has two principal parks, Carlin's and Gwynn Oak, and another amusement spot is located at Bay Shore, some 15 miles from downtown Baltimore.

Cincy's Coney Inaugurates Moonlight Dances April 24

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Edward L. Schott, president and general manager of Coney Island here, announced this week that the resort's steamer, Island Queen, will inaugurate its season of moonlight dance excursions April 24. Plans are in the making for the opening of Coney Island May 22.

One of the effects of the war economy will be reflected in the fact that the moonlight dance ticket prices will be advanced from 65 to 75 cents, including all taxes. This is made necessary by increased taxes and operating expenses, Schott explained.

Jantzen Beach Report Reveals 105% Hyp in '42

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 16.—Annual report of the Hayden Island Amusement Company, operator of Jantzen Beach Park here, has just been completed by the auditors and reveals that the popular amusement place in 1942 enjoyed an increase in business of 105 per cent over that of 1941; in fact, the largest in the history of the park, which opened in 1928. General Manager Paul H. Huedepohl attributes the large increase to the mammoth defense program in the territory and to the five busy shipyards in close proximity to the park.

Located seven miles north of the center of Portland, Jantzen Beach is expected to feel some effects of gas rationing the coming season. On the other hand, however, with Vancouver, Wash., just a mile away and enjoying an increase in population from 20,000 to 100,000, and the new city of Vanport, Ore., only one south of Jantzen Beach, with a population of 42,000, will materially benefit the local fun spot. Vanport, which was named by the Housing Administration in honor of both Vancouver and Portland, will be the second largest city in the State of Oregon.

"Despite the gas rationing," stated General Manager Huedepohl, "we look for a tremendous season in 1943, with plenty of headaches from the help situation. We will open about April 1 and run until November 1. Our April operation will only be at night, and the full summer swing will not get under way until about May 15."

"Last year we operated from May 2 to September 7, seven days a week, and from then on until November 1 we operated every night and all day on Sundays. We found it very profitable to run all of September and October, whereas in past years we always closed around Labor Day."

American Recreational Equipment Association

By R. S. UZZELL

Some parks will be fortunately situated this year. With good public transportation facilities, ample picnic facilities and a comfortable place for meeting, they are sure to roll up a fine gross. Last year we learned not to depend too much on service men for added patronage, and yet we got by. It cannot be different this year.

Surely the motion pictures have no cause to complain. They have always been a reliable barometer as to the probable results in store for our summer op. (See AREA on opposite page)

Gould Acquires AC Garden Pier For Back Taxes

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 16.—The Garden Pier, amusement center on the ocean side of the Boardwalk built originally in 1912 at a cost of $1,500,000, was sold at public auction January 7 for $100 by Under-Sheriff Philip B. Gravatt to John M. Gould, of Philadelphia, as an individual. The sale was subject to approximately $110,000 due in back taxes. Gould was the only bidder.

The property was bought in from the Garden Pier Company of Atlantic City, controlled by the estates of Alfred and Louis Burk, Philadelphia merchants now deceased, to satisfy a mortgage foreclosure degree of $128,661.16 held by the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company, Philadelphia, and Boyd H. Magee, as executors of the estate of Forrest N. Magee, and Gould, as the administrator of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Gould. Neither Gould nor his attorney, William Charlton, would make any comment on plans for future use of the pier.

Five years ago the pier was offered at public auction by the Burk brothers' estate, but the sale failed when the highest bid of $250,000 was rejected as being inadequate. Later, in 1940, the city assumed control over the pier under the Stout Act to collect rents and apply the proceeds toward the delinquent taxes.

Tropical, Key West, Expands; Biz Good

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 16.—Tropical Park here has just purchased from C. A. Hartzberg, of the Keystone Shows, a Merry-Go-Round and Ferris Wheel, which, with Kiddie Autos and Kiddie Aeroplanes, give the park four rides under the management of C. E. Barfield.

Business at Tropical Park continues good, the management reports, and several new concessions have been added recently. Among the new arrivals at Tropical are W. R. Johnson and wife, Helen; George Apple Steeman and Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs, replacing Mr. and Mrs. Billie Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Lockhart, who left recently.

Local newspapers and city officials have been rendering splendid co-operation. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pope, who have the bingo, and Mrs. Pearl Barfield, manager of the park, were hosts at a delightful New Year's Eve party.

R. Gomez, president of Tropical Park, has received many compliments for establishing a permanent recreation center in Key West.

Ocean View Deal Involved $150,000

NORFOLK, Jan. 16.—Ocean View, which changed hands in December, brought its former owners $150,000, it was disclosed this week when the deed was recorded here.

The park was sold by Ocean View, Inc., to Dr. Dudley Cooper, local optometrist. The deed shows the transfer was made to the Ocean View Improvement Corporation, a newly chartered concern, whose officers were not disclosed.

W. R. Aitken, formerly of New York and now with a Georgia park, will come here to direct the local amusement resort next season, it is understood.

Carroll Curtails Bowling

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—After the first week-end of the new OPA ban on pleasure driving in the Eastern States, Edward J. Carroll, owner-manager of Riverside Park, Agawam, curtailed the operation of the bowling center on weekdays during the emergency but will be open Sunday afternoons and evenings. Roller skating, however, will continue daily.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Forest Park Zoo will soon have a new guest, a reindeer doe acquired from the Milltown (Pa.) Zoo.

Plan Is Up for A Greater A. C. To Mold Future

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 16.—Altho resort leaders still face a wartime Atlantic City, already a post-war outlook for a "Greater Atlantic City" is being proposed. Latest proposal to occupy the attention of resort leaders is known as the Paxson Plan, brought forward by City Commissioner Joseph Paxson, which incorporates many suggestions already aired. However, one significant feature is presented anew in a different light. That one is the oft-proposed consolidation of all the neighboring Absecon Island resorts, only Paxson goes a step further and includes the island resort city of Brigantine.

First, however, Paxson proposes a conference of business and amusement interests to study and prepare a definite plan of action designed to mold the future of Atlantic City as a leading health resort and playground. Paxson points out that while the army has taken over most of the beach-front hotels, Atlantic City still has ample housing facilities for visitors in large numbers; that despite gas and tire rationing, people can still get here by train or bus, altho not in the numbers that formerly invaded the shore in summer months. "What Atlantic City should do," says Paxson, "is to make every opportunity to induce people to come to Atlantic City thru newspaper and radio advertising. Advertising should be concentrated in dull business periods."

But before any such campaign is launched Paxson believes that the many small resort communities on Absecon Island and Brigantine should consolidate for greater unity and strength.

Paxson admitted there would be serious objections to such a consolidation, saying "there always was in the past." But he pointed out that conditions today are far different than they were on previous occasions when the subject was broached, and he even admitted, too, that perhaps even the time wasn't ripe to bring it up again.

Resorts Seek Rental Boost

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Jan. 16.—Real estate owners here and at near-by Stone Harbor are petitioning the Office of Price Administration for permission to raise their ceiling prices on rentals. It was indicated that other near-by seashore resorts, none being part of the South Jersey resort area affected by defense or military activities, will also petition the OPA area rent control office. It is pointed out in the petitions that last summer the seashore season had a poor start, with the result that many rentals were far below normal. Rents have been frozen at what they were March 1, 1942.

Wildwood Solicits Baseball

WILDWOOD, N. J., Jan. 16.—In order to hypo activity at this resort next spring, Mayor George W. Krogman and the city commissioners made a bid to have big league baseball training headquarters set up here. Offers have been sent to the Philadelphia Athletics and Phillies, the Washington Senators and the New York Giants and Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers. Wildwood has an athletic field with seating arrangements for about 10,000 people and plans to place at the disposal of the baseball teams the city-owned gymnasium and 18-hole golf course.

ABC-Less Driving

Topic of conversation up and down the Eastern Seaboard last week among pool men, as well as all outdoor amusement operators, revolved about recent ban on pleasure driving. It's a bit too early to determine what effect the ruling will have on the outdoor aquatic biz next summer, for plenty can happen 'tween now and then. But it's just another reason why the pool and beach industry should unite and establish itself (See POOL WHIRL on opposite page)

Business Holds Up Well in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Business of local roller rinks is holding up to a satisfactory level with the exception of a few spots that have poor transportation facilities. A check of half a dozen spots in Chicago proper revealed that attendance this winter is on a par with past seasons, and in several spots week-end business is much better than last year. Most of the rinks are located on or near streetcar and bus lines, hence the gasoline restrictions have not materially affected attendance. Riverview Rink, located in Riverview Park, reports that business has been very good, with exceptionally large crowds on week-ends. Arcadia Gardens, Madison Garden and the Roller Bowl all are attracting satisfactory crowds.

Interior Lighting Must Be Bright

TULSA, Jan. 16.—Tulsa skating rinks must maintain lighting equal to that of office buildings, Police Chief George H. Blaine announced this week.

Skating has gained greatly in popularity during the past 18 months here and recently underwent a rigid inspection by policewomen.

"Skating in Tulsa is a wholesome sport. However, we noticed a tendency to lower lights. We have warned operators that ample lighting must be maintained and they are co-operating," Blaine said.

Court Suit Sealed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—Settlement out of court of a suit alleging discrimination against Negroes was reported this week to Judge Thomas J. Hammond in Superior Court. By payment of $100 to Mildred Johnson, now a nurse in Brooklyn, the suit against the Rialto Skating Rink here was settled and agreement filed for entry of judgment for the plaintiff. Miss Johnson had claimed refusal to permit her to skate there on September 12, 1938, when the rink first opened. Attorney Alford Tavernier for the plaintiff said that the $100 represents the minimum settlement possible under the act. Attorney John J. Fignoni represented the rink, which is managed by Leo Doyle.

News Break for Des Moines, Ia., Spot

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 16.—An eight-column story on Des Moines roller skating rinks with a large group of pictures was printed recently in The Des Moines Register.

The story describes how, with the men gone to war, the girls find inexpensive recreation in the two Des Moines rinks. Before the war there were five rinks operating in Des Moines. Many of the girls are members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, which has a large training center located in Des Moines.

The pictures include one showing H. C. Riggs, his wife and son on skates. Riggs formerly operated a rink in Des Moines.

BROOKS AND MARGIE, novelty and comedy skaters, headline the floorshow at Jack & Bob's, Trenton (N. J.) night club.

GEORGE HOWARD, of the Flying Howards' skating act, who has been inactive because of illness at his home in Detroit since last April, will not return to professional work.

IRVING RICHLAND, formerly on the staff of the Hartford Skating Palace, Hartford, Conn., spent a 10-day furlough in Hartford recently. He is stationed with the Army at Miami, Fla.

BOULEVARD ARENA'S Dance and Figure-Skating Club, Bayonne, N. J., is reaping laurels in the ARSA Tri-State 1943 Inter-Club championships. Club members have been picking off the first place prizes in a number of Eastern rinks.

THE KENWOODS, now at Mickey's Bar, Detroit, left their music in an up-State town when they opened in the Motor City. They were forced to rely on four standard numbers until the special scores could be recovered.

KEEP 'EM ROLLING, an elaborate costume roller production, will be presented by the Twin City Arena Dance and Figure-Skating Club at the Twin City Arena, Elizabeth, N. J., on January 21. There are over 60 persons in the cast.

GRETTA NOYES has been engaged as assistant pro to help her husband, Ted Noyes, at East End Rink, Memphis. Owner Harry Scheunier has announced. Byron Taylor continues as head floor man, assisted by Howard Mott and Harry Fox. The latter has just returned after playing with Skating Vanities.

HARTFORD SKATING PALACE, Hartford, Conn., has on display a pair of skates which were made in 1862. The skates have wooden wheels, without ball bearings, with clamps for both toe and heel. The skates were bequeathed to the Skating Palace by the late Walter Price, who died at the age of 77 last fall. He was known as a real skating enthusiast, it was said.

Former Mount Vernon Arena skate mechanic Lou Tenace has left the rink to work for Uncle Sam in war industry. . . . Jimmy Raymond, organist of the Boulevard Arena, is now furnishing organ music every Wednesday evening at the Stage Door Canteen in New York. . . . There are now 50 names on the America on Wheels Honor Roll of former A. O. W. employees now in service. . . . Fran Holzheimer, former Casino Arena, Asbury Park, N. J., floor manager, is now with the Air Corps. . . . Claire Miller, instructress at the America on Wheels Twin City Arena, Elizabeth, N. J., has made application to join the WAACS. . . . The America on Wheels Dance and Figure-Skating Committee is now completing plans for the forthcoming A. O. W. inter-rink competition. The committee is composed of Claire Miller, Twin City Arena; George Sticka, Twin City Arena; James Dolan, Mount Vernon Arena, and Eddie O'Neill, Boulevard and Perth Amboy Arenas. Competition details will be announced shortly.

as a health necessity, as mentioned here last week.

Indoor plunges in the pleasure-driving ban area, reported an increase in biz during the first week of the ban, all of which is easily explained. All the enclosed natatoriums are situated in the heart of their respective cities, easily accessible via streetcars, busses and subways. So, naturally, when folks couldn't go on their customary Sunday auto jaunts they looked for new diversions, and indoor swimming got its share.

A few ops of outdoor H-2-o-rooms, like Mack Rose, of Cascades twin pools, New York, are of the opinion that if the ruling continues thru Decoration Day, the tanks within the confines of the city and accessible by public transportation will be advantageously affected just as the indoor pools are now. Belief is that crowd who used to go to nearby beaches will do their swimming at pools nearest their homes.

However, Eastern bathhouse operators and beach impresarios have ideas of their own. Of course, the boys at Coney Island, N. Y.; Brighton Beach, etc., located as they are at the end of a 5-cent sub fare, aren't fretting over the new ruling as much as they are over the dim-out and other conditions caused by the war. Others, which can be reached only after several bus or ferry changes, are optimistic and believe that if the pleasure-driving taboo continues till next summer all of us will be so used to it by that time, that a trip requiring three or four changes will be duck's soup and will not keep biz away.

Only boys who are really downhearted are those whose estabs can only be reached by car. What's going to happen to Jones Beach, famed State project, is a moot question, for there's no way to get there without the old jalopy, and there are quite a few commercial beaches and pools in the same boat.

To repeat, it's too early to make definite decisions, but it's not too early to start playing up swimming as a necessary health builder instead of an amusement. More on this later.

Men and Mentions

Sam Ingram has left Colgate University, where he has been swim coach for so many years, and is now an officer in the navy assigned to swim-teaching at Pre-Flight Navy School, Chapel Hill, S. C. You can bet the boys stationed at Chapel Hill will know more about aquatics now that Sam is among them.

Versailles pool is one of the few commercial tanks, if not the only one, still operating in Miami Beach, Fla. At any rate it was the only one at the time this column went to press. All the celebs who went south this winter can now be seen at the Versailles instead of the Roney and Miami Biltmore, their former haunts. A popular figure reported on the beach there last week was none other than Lieut. Walter Winchell, who thru his column and broadcasts has done more to popularize that beach resort than any other person or thing.

eration. The resourceful and courageous can accomplish much and are the ones to single out and watch for what can be done under handicaps.

The purchasers of Ocean View, Norfolk, Va., have come in on the crest of the wave. And yet they did not pay too much for the property. They are assured of all of the business they can handle. A lot of repairing and reconstruction was done last year when material was easily obtainable and help was abundant. This will save a lot of work and expense this year.

Buckroe Beach, near Hampton, Va., got a hard blow when excursion trains were cut off on the C. & O. from Richmond, Va. This source of patronage was the backbone of the resort. Business from the shipyards and busy war plants may in some measure compensate for lost excursion business.

The New England Park Men's Association is awake and alert. Their president, Edward J. Carroll, has proved himself a live wire. Fred L. Markey, the faithful secretary, always begins on the program in ample time to select some good numbers and to get the leaders to take part. Depend upon him to come out with something new or a new approach to some of our essential problems.

The man-power situation is acute. This means an accelerated demand for material and makes all amusement men doubly anxious about priorities. The Dodgem Corporation has been on the job since our Chicago convention to get material for needed repair parts. Edward J. Carroll, Wallace St. Clair Jones, Fred L. Markey and Andrew Casassa were at the Chicago meeting and will take the enthusiasm gained there to their own New England convention.

Fred Levere, of Savin Rock, West Haven, Conn., is quiet about it, but he has some big plans incubating.

With the Zoos

PHILADELPHIA.—New year was ushered in at the Philadelphia Zoo by the birth of a barking deer, the ninth to be born to the same pair of deer since their arrival here from the London Zoo in April, 1937.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Quintuplets, almost as rare among tigers as among humans, were born to a Bengal tiger at Fleishhacker Zoo Christmas Day. It was revealed last week. One died shortly after birth and, because the mother killed a previous litter, the four remaining were taken away to be raised by bottle.

effect on attendance on parks in this area. In spite of gas curtailment the fun spots reported substantial gains in attendance and grosses. However, with the ban on use of autos to places of amusement, the park operators are apprehensive for the new season. It is hoped there will be some easing of the ban by the time the new season rolls around.

THAR'S gonna be garden greens in them thar race-track infields. An idea sprung at the War Conference (18th annual meeting) of Ohio Fair Managers' Association in Columbus last week is good enough, it appears to the sponsors, to be adopted generally over the nation. Victory Gardens in the heretofore little utilized space inside the turf ovals will be only one of the moves to dramatize the aid that fairs are prepared to give our bewhiskered Uncle this year. We learned this at the Buckeye meet, which we attended as a mute because of a temperamental larynx, but there was nothing wrong with our ears or eyes. Harry Kahn, sec of Auglaize County Fair, Wapakoneta, put forth the vitaminized plan which scored with the reps of the 90-odd fairs of Ohio and was seized upon by the capital press. Wapakoneta, a "big" little fair, will give out garden plots (first come, first served) in its infield and will award War Bonds in adult and junior classes for the best produce at the '43 fair. There will be cooking and canning classes and more awards for use of Victory Garden vegetables. "We have about 15 acres," said Secretary Kahn. "Figure out how many of the 2,000-odd fairs in the country can give up their infields for Victory Gardens and you have—how many acres? I mislaid my pencil." Ben Hayes in The Columbus Citizen said the idea would spread like sweet potato vines in wet weather.

FAIRGROUNDS center fields have been something like that unused attic room at home in many locations. 'Tis true that numerous free fairs, like that in Anderson, Ind., have been getting big auto-parking revenues from 'em. The irrepressible Julius Kahn, sec of Keweenaw County Fair, Luxemburg, Wis., has fended off gentle ribbing for years about the crops of alfalfa raised in his infield. Fireworks men have had to use the space for their thrilling set-ups. But to most fairgoers at night shows the infield has been only that spot of abysmal darkness beyond the brilliance of the stage. If Harry Kahn and his counterparts over the country can make center fields blossom like—shall we say the cabbage?—they will have contributed plenty to the Food-for-Victory call and demonstrated gastronomically that there is no "ex" on ingenuity.

WE know about the "poor press" accorded the fairs during and since the 1942 Eastman ODT incident. But the picture is changing for the better. In no winter since the inception of annual meetings of State and district associations of fairs has so much space been given to the sessions by the dailies of the convention cities. Reporters, sob sisters and staff photogs have literally cluttered up the meeting halls. Feature stories, interviews with fair big shots and picture layouts of interesting guys and gals in attendance have all been grist to the mills of newsrooms which in past years merely noted that another convention was in town. Knowing the news hounds, bless 'em, to be as hard boiled as we sometimes think we are, there must be a reason for all this present attention. Perhaps it is because the keen-thinking press, appreciating what fairs accomplished in the '42 war effort, feels that they are entitled to the break. Maybe the nationwide publicity, altho it was largely left-handed and emanating from the element of doubt launched in Washington, caused news editors to keep fairs as a "must" on their assignment sheets. But we like to think that men and women fair workers have finally determined that their communities shall know what fairs have accomplished and can and will do during this emergency as institutions, bulwarked by 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers and the generation which now fearlessly scans the horizon of tomorrow.

IN COLUMBUS.—That ol' banner bogey man again! Deshler-Wallick management asked attractionists to remove posters from the lobby. Seems military men booted when no rooms were available to them and they noted that some concerns had been given two and three. Threats of reports to Washington were rumored. So the show fellahs were content with upstairs signs. Sherman said it about war. . . . Des Moines several meetings ago put a nominal charge on banners, dough to go to the State association. Indiana fair execs moved from the Claypool to the Lincoln a couple of years ago because the former hostelry frowned on lobby posters. . . . Floyd Gooding had a swell lobby display. Ornate, illuminated organ front, Funhouse mirrors and Flying Jinnies horses in action, with uniformed attendant. . . . Lester (Peanuts) Rogers, Cole Bros.' Circus concessionaire, Steubenville, on hand. If Zack Terrell came into quarters with a chasing bag full of scratch, Lester had at least a hatful. . . . John Gallagan, head man of Gallagan Enterprises, met 'em on his home grounds. . . . Harry B. Kelley, sec of Michigan Association of Fairs and of Hillsdale Fair, in for a spot on program. His friends'll tell you he had the refusal of appointment as State commissioner of agricultural from his namesake, the new governor. But that would have meant giving up many connections dear to HBK. . . . Doc H. M. Parshall, Urbana, noted harness-horse driver, around, with the inevitable kitchen match betwixt his crockery. . . . Ed Strassburger down from Toledo Zoo, where he is in charge and wintering his chimps and other animals. . . . Mrs. Pearl (Gooding) Visoky from Puritas Springs Park, Cleveland, telling of her son now in U. S. African service. . . . F. E. Gooding reported 32 former employees in armed service, one having been awarded the Purple Heart and others getting distinguished citations. . . . B. P. Sandles, Junior State Fair manager, putting the fire under some of the weaker ones who were afraid of '42 but now are strong for '43. . . . Jack Bell, of WLW Promotions, Inc., and Bertha McDaniels, of JJJ Expo, finding common ground for La Belle France. And, boy, can they parley voo! . . . they might get by, but their audiences will be youngsters—men from 18 to 30. Without question some of those who are to appear in the proposed show have been top-flight performers. But they forget that tastes have changed. "Whatever we do we've got to make it funny," said one of the members, forgetting that yesterday's humor is as dead as the bustles and leg-o'-mutton sleeves of the '90s. It would be funny if it were not so pathetic to observe how aged show people cling to the belief that what wowed 'em in 1900 will lay 'em in the aisles today. It's true that there are elderly artists who are still on the top rungs and going strong, but they are performers who have been continuously in the game, have kept pace with the times and do not depend upon the material they used back in the old days. We admire the spirit of the performers of other days who would revive their talents for the entertainment of the boys in the service, but we fear they are doomed to disappointment, and their time and efforts could be better spent in other ways.

A few days ago we had the pleasure of meeting a man whom we have known by name for many years—Henry Meyerhof, carnival operator of the Far Northwest. For years he has successfully operated a little show in British Columbia, playing territory where towering snow-capped mountains were the show's background and the lot was surrounded by tall pines instead of buildings. The war has not seriously handicapped his activities and he has been in Chicago purchasing rides for the coming season, which he predicts will be an excellent one. He's a likable, interesting chap whose lively actions and interest in life belie his years, and some day we hope to have a real visit with him.

hands in his term on the circus big time. He was strictly showy—tails, silk topper, gold-topped walking stick and thick gloves of a light hue which he wore on the warmest of days. On the road he selected his wardrobe from an assorted repertoire of riding habits, and the gauntlets usually went along. In New York, after the evening performance, he was wont to assemble with his cronies and cut up bizarre jackpots and drawing-room palaver in swank Club 21, where money flowed freely.

This was in the richest if not the most useful tradition—the impresario of the biggest of the tops playing the high social life for all it was worth.

Henry North was fated to be his brother's shadow. If we suspect that Buddy had as much on the ball as his more celebrated relative, that is only a suspicion which we are not prepared to establish. The grapevine had him declining a job offered to him by the new deal. That would be just like the younger North.

A few years ago we engaged in a scrap of better than mild proportions with the circus thru the protective screen of this column. It was Buddy North who took up the cudgels. The Fancy Dan of the team would not suffer himself to recognize that he was being called to account for forbidding his performers to work at their trade during the winter season.

Our tongue is still in cheek as John Ringling North gives way to another in a year in which Bob Ringling and circusdom itself ride on the wings of destiny.

The Crossroads

WE HAVE often wondered why ball parks are allowed to lie idle for a good part of the season when, so it seemed to us, they might profitably be utilized for many events other than baseball. Now with a shortage of exhibition buildings thruout the country it looks as if ball parks may be put to work this coming summer. First definite word along this line comes from Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs. We had heard that the management of the Cubs had some such idea in mind should baseball be called off next summer. A call to the Cubs' office verified the report. "Sure, we'll be interested in booking any kind of respectable events that will make money," we were told. "And we're interested whether baseball is called off or not." Maybe the ball parks will at least solve the building shortage!

Hank Bertsche, vice-president of the North Montana State Fair, Great Falls, was in Chicago for several days last week. He and Mrs. Bertsche were on their way to Florida to visit their son, who is in the service. . . . Al Butler, here ahead of Eve of St. Mark, has been very successful in promoting special displays of the book of the same name in leading department and book stores while the show is playing here. . . . May Lamont, of Lamont's Cockatoos, is ill in American Hospital. . . . Doug Baldwin, president of the IAFE, is on his way east to join Frank H. Kingman, IAFE sec, in a trip to Washington to confer with government department heads on the coming fair season. . . . Thanks to Irv J. Polack, we have just added to our library a copy of Jim Marshall's New Pioneer, an interesting book of poems of the West from 1897. The book contains the poem Hey, Rube, which appears in a new book by Jim Tully. . . . George Crowder, former promoter and agent now in the navy, in from Great Lakes to spend a few days hobnobbing with the show boys. . . . The Sonja Henie ice show's gross of $416,784 in 13 performances here probably sets a new record. Wonder if Madison Square Garden will do as well, proportionately, this week and next!

Show Folks, Inc., hit The Trib the other day with a three-quarter column story on an old-fashioned vaude show it proposes to launch under the title of Oldtimers and Neophytes. The elderly troupers plan to produce a show "which they hope will tread the boards of USO clubs thruout the city—and perhaps all the big-time circuits." We wish their hope could be realized, but it's only wishful thinking. Show Folks, Inc., has a laudable aim, and those members behind the proposed old-time vaude show honestly believe they have something worth while to offer. But—right here we make ourselves unpopular—how can performers in their 60s, who have been out of the game for years, expect to compete with the hundreds of seasoned performers now playing USO clubs and the hundreds of others who, while not seasoned, have youth and everything that goes with it? If they were going to play to audiences of old-timers

Out in the Open

THE last three Ringling circus administrations have come in five-year skeins. Sam Gumpertz took hold in the latter part of 1932 and immediately launched the show's Golden Jubilee tour of 1933, his first season as active head during operation. Five years later the team of John Ringling North and Henry Ringling North embarked on their streamlined regime. Now, five years after the North toehold, another man is the boss.

But the circus is still in the hands of the Ringling dynasty, for the new chief is Robert Ringling, son of Edith Ringling and the late Charles Ringling. To maintain the "five-by-five" legend, it was just about five years ago that Bob Ringling became senior vice-president and director of the corporation. It's curious that the public prints overlooked the fact that Robert Ringling was in opera—a baritone, if we recall correctly. Probably the new head did not care to mention it in his statement to the press last week. It has never been regarded as a promotion to go from opera to circus, but with the big top Ringling is at least the all-out ruler.

John and Buddy North were no flops and they overcame many obstacles. The biggest one was the historic strike in Scranton, Pa., in 1938, their first season. After the smoke had cleared away the Ringling show consolidated with corporation member Al

G. Barnes Circus and finished the tour under that hyphenated set-up. At practically every New York opening in subsequent years there were picket lines around the Garden.

Buddy North was an able lieutenant to his older brother, and together they made capital of some shrewd innovations in circus business, including tri-colored patriotic sawdust, elephant ballets, the Gargantua-M'Toto legend and costumes and feminine stuff reminiscent of Ziegfeld and Carroll and White and Reinhardt, only necessarily bigger. Some people who professed to know about such things thought it was all too too cute and theatrical, but the box office told another story, a solid story of money soaring to almost dizzy heights.

That the North boys made good is in the records, which brings up the question of why they are no longer with it. One man's guess is as good as another's. Maybe the financial arrangement was such that the time was ripe for the son and heir of one of the principal stockholders to assume his rightful place in administering the affairs of the organization. After all, J. R. North was on salary—fancy salary, to be sure, but still one of the hired help, presidency and all.

John North never looked like one of his salaried

By JOSEPH GELB
Jersey City, N. J.

I hear and read about the bingo situation in New York. Ask T. A. Wolfe about the first time he heard of keno when his T. A. Wolfe Shows were playing midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis; when Charlie Isabell saw it for the first time at Hammond, La., when we were with Snapp Bros.' Shows; when Isabell tried to book it with Tom Wolfe, who thought Charlie was crazy—and then we framed an open-air keno with buckets of groceries.

Ask them if they remember when we played a school yard in Wheeling, W. Va., and what a two-weeker we had! Merson Bros., Polish Fisher and a lot of other people were there who got lucky. I think Isabell was one of the first to frame a keno, and the boys were with him for a long time. Some of them were "Little Spike" Malone, Jack Bush, Homer Acoff, Robert Morris, Joe Moore and myself. I was with Isabell from the start until the finish at Tampa. Yes, I believe he was one of the first to build bingo or keno on carnivals.

Who remembers when Eddie Brenner and I built a corn game at Columbus, O., for Merson Bros.—on C. D. Scott Shows? We operated during a period in which we had to teach everyone how to play and a game took much longer than it does now.

Now to another subject. I was on the Barnes circus when the late Walter McClain was there. I was with Egypt

Thompson on poling; also on the Barnum show, 1919, and last year with Ray Miller, trainmaster, and working grab for Frank and Paul Miller. I read where McClain was killed poling a wagon. They must have been short of polers. I have been doing it since the old Ferari & Washburn days and been in many a mix-up on poling, runs and deck, but always managed to come out okay. But I've seen a lot of them get knocked out in my day.

By J. LOU SAMPSON

Grinnell, Ia.

Have read C. C. Day's letter on Barnum & Bailey parades being continued after 1904, and he is correct. In 1906 I saw them give a parade in Marshalltown, Ia., and it was led by the 40-horse hitch drawing a very large band wagon. It was advertised that the driver was Pogey O'Brien, a rather large man with dark mustache and black hair.

I believe 1906 was the year that the show carried a footrest for the blues and advertised the largest tent ever constructed—over 800 feet long and seating 20,000 people. James A. Bailey died that year. The Clarke Brothers were featured in the big top and all freaks were shown free in the menagerie. In the Side Show Pierre Gasnier, French strong man, and Art Windecker, magician, were leading attractions.

B&B may have advertised a tent with capacity of 20,000, but there is no record of any big top having accommodated that rather fantastic number.

tion on various transportation problems.

Douglas K. Baldwin, president International Association of Fairs and Expositions, offered valuable data on what leading fair men are endeavoring to accomplish with various government agencies in an effort to hold their fairs. Baldwin attended the meeting as a special guest of William V. (Jake) Ward, general manager Illinois State Fair. At both sessions Baldwin imparted valuable information to delegates. Others who spoke at the Wednesday session were Clifford C. Hunter, association secretary, who gave a report of the IAFFE convention in Chicago in December; Ed Champion, harness racing authority; Sidney P. Wright, whose topic was "New Fair Organization and Community Co-Operation," and Hon. Henry J. White, who discussed "Special Events."

Hon. Howard Leonard said that the 1942 season in Illinois, as a whole, was as successful as any ever held. Two new annuals appeared in the picture and both were successful. He said the amount of bonds and stamps sold during the 1942 season made a sizable contribution in providing funds for the prosecution of the war. He added that $267,000 was paid out in State aid to the 60 fairs which were held.

Three District Groups

It was resolved that by-laws be enacted to form three divisions of the fairs in the State. They are to be known as Northern, Central and Southern divisions. It was pointed out that there was a dire need for such a grouping, and it will undoubtedly work out advantageously to all annuals. Each group will work as a separate unit, coping with its own group problems, forming separate smaller circuits for the benefit of exhibitors, stockmen, showmen and booking agencies and get away from conflicting dates and other shortcomings prevalent in previous years.

Divisions

Northern Division comprises the counties of Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Winnebago, Boone, McHenry, Lake, Carroll, Ogle, De Kalb, Kane, Cook, Whiteside,

Who has data on John Robinson Circus wreck in "Big Bull Tunnel" on the N. & W. Railroad between Virginia City and Banner, Va.? I have been told that all the monkeys suffocated from smoke as the tunnel, second largest east of the Mississippi, lacks a fraction of being a mile long.

Campbell Bros.' Circus had a couple wrecks before 1910—one coming out of Rochester, Minn., and the other just out of Temple, Tex. Who has data on them?

W. C. Coup Circus was wrecked en route from Cairo, Ill., to Chicago. Who knows the season and other data?

Does anyone have wrecks listed on small railroad shows (2, 3, 5 and 7-car shows) which traveled in the '20s?

How far back is it possible to give data on a circus train wreck? Am listing a few shows with their maiden railroad seasons:

1896—Dan Costello's Circus, first RR circus to visit Pacific Coast. (As told in A Sunday Run, by Harry P. Bowman.)

1872—Barnum Circus, first season on railroad.

1876—Forepaugh Circus, first used railroad cars.

1878—Sells Bros., first season to travel on its own cars.

1887—Walter L. Main Circus, first time on rails.

1890—Ringling Bros., first season on rails.

What old-timer can give data on a circus that traveled via railroad before ing all of their State aid. Following his talk, Ward answered numerous questions sent in to Secretary Clifford C. Hunter, which enlightened the delegates on many salient points.

$500 Surety Bond

After reports were made by several fairs that several carnivals in 1942 canceled fair contracts on short notice, a resolution was passed that all carnivals be required to furnish a $500 surety bond to insure their appearance as per signed contracts. Three specific shows were mentioned and it was spread on the minutes that these three shows not be favored with contracts from any fairs in the State. Other resolutions passed were one of thanks to Leonard, director of agriculture; one thanking the officers of the association for services rendered during the past year, and one to send heartiest wishes for a speedy recovery to Vice-President Harry W. (Dick) Nolen, Benton, who was unable to attend on account of illness. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $1,096.09.

Officers Re-Elected

Nominating committee asked for the unanimous re-election of 1942 officers, with the result that Ray A. Dillinger, Decatur, was kept in office as president; Harry W. Nolen, Benton, vice-president, and Clifford C. Hunter, secretary-manager. Six directors will serve with the executives for 1943. Following words of thanks to Baldwin and E. W. (Deak) Williams, secretary Fair Managers' Association of Iowa, meeting was adjourned.

Banquet a Success

About 800 attended the banquet in the Elks' Club auditorium Wednesday night. Speakers included Governor Green, Leonard; Mayor John W. Kapp Jr., Springfield; Ward, Baldwin; Arthur C. Page, associate editor Prairie Farmer, and President Ray A. Dillinger. Favors and noisemakers were furnished by Illinois Fireworks Company, while badges were donated by Regalia Manufacturing Company. Twelve acts were on the program. Show was emceed by Sunny Beret, Beret Poster Corporation, and George Flint, Boyle Woolfolk Agency, was stage director. Johnny Giles orchestra

"FUN IN BED"

By MARIE MCLEAN
Brentwood, L. I., N. Y.

The holiday issue gave me great happiness. I did not find anyone I knew except the Great Lester, but he was listed under magic, and the Great Lester I knew years ago was a ventriloquist, so I guess they're not one and the same. I have been here three years and feel very lonesome at times, but a trouper I am and a trouper I'll always be. After I read the issue I sent it by nurse to another performer once with Barnum & Bailey.

Two chaps who worked with me years ago were Jack Lenore and Don Sherwood. The act was called "Seven Crazy Kids" and "Seven Daffy Dills" at various times—and here I am in State hospital; not a mental case but a cripple and coming along swell.

Roy Music Company of New York sent me some nice professional song hits for the piano. There are only old ladies in my ward and only a few of us walk, so I sent the sheets over to someone to play where they have a piano. We are all grateful to the publishers.

The Great Lester Miss McLean saw listed under magic is Noel Lester. The Great Lester, ventriloquist, is still active around New York.

Billy Miller, concessionaire, has the checkroom privilege at several of the leading hotels here. Brothers Ben Block and Dave Stevens will open the Circus Night Club early in April. They claim it'll be a revelation in niteries. Brother Morris Miller is a new arrival here, and Brownie Miller was a recent visitor. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schubb are on vacation in Mexico City. Bill Bonham has concessions operating on West Houston Street. "Foots" Reeves, of World of Today Shows, and Joe Palooka, concessionaire, are in charge of the recreation rooms at the club.

Henry Meyerhof in Chi On Ride Buying Trip

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Henry Meyerhof, former Eastern showman who for a number of years has been operating in British Columbia, was in Chicago for several days last week to inspect some rides he plans to purchase for his Crescent Shows. Meyerhof said the 1942 season was an excellent one for him and that he expects another good season this year. So far, he says, he has experienced no difficulty in transportation, and he has sufficient help to handle the shows, which move on six baggage cars and two passenger cars. Season will open April 27 and end late in October.

ROBT. RINGLING HEADS

in April and that he actually had resigned.

Not since 1933 has the name of Ringling appeared at the top of show's management. John Ringling, last of the brothers who founded the circus before the turn of the century, was president for years but in 1933—three years before his death—he was forced to relinquish active management to Eastern financial interests who carried on for five years with Samuel W. Gumpertz, amusement park developer and operator, in the driver's seat. Accumulated financial entanglements were cleared away and the show went back to the Ringling interests in 1938. North was named president and the circus was operated by the corporation with representatives of the financial interests on the board.

No Statement as to Future Plans

North was quoted as saying he had "no statement" as to his future plans. Altho he no longer is RB president, he still is a co-executor of the John Ringling estate which includes the block of circus stock, an art collection appraised at $12,000,000 and his home and museum here valued at another $3,000,000. Mrs. Ida Ringling North, mother of the North brothers and sister of the Ringling brothers, also is an executor.

Smith returns to the RB line-up after nearly a year's leave to direct transportation for the War Department's army relief show. He arrived at winter quarters here January 11 and immediately took over supervision of preparations for the 1943 season. Returning at the same time were Mrs. Charles Ringling and Mrs. Aubrey Ringling. Robert Ringling remained in New York for the time being.

Executives Squelch Rumors

Prior to announcement of the management changes, it had been necessary for RB execs to squelch rumors that wartime transportation problems would keep the big show bottled up in winter quarters this season. The rumor apparently was widespread in this section and caused personnel wintering here plenty of uneasiness.

"There is absolutely nothing to this false rumor," Butler said in a statement published in Sarasota and Tampa newspapers. "The circus definitely will go out in the spring." Robert Ringling backed this up with an assertion that the "show will be here (New York) in the spring, bigger and better than ever."

Meanwhile, the circus announced the public would not be admitted to winter quarters while OPA restrictions on use of gasoline for pleasure driving remained in effect in the East. Everything considered, biz had been good since the quarters were opened to the public in December, but officials said RB would co-operate with the OPA ruling by closing the gates temporarily.

RR to DC on "RR"

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Robert Ringling, new Ringling-Barnum head, told The Billboard he would go to Washington "in a few days" to discuss '43 operation with the Office of Defense Transportation. It was noised around in Washington that Ringling rolling stock, especially coaches and other type cars suitable for recruiting into service for freight and passengers, is being inspected, presumably by ODT officials in circus quarters at Sarasota, Fla. For some time it has been rumored that the government is interested in converting box cars for passenger and other travel. Some sources think the circus can conveniently offer much of its equipment during the winter season. ODT has the power to "requisition" such equipment.

Meantime, George W. Smith, recalled as general manager in the new regime after less than a year's absence, has been dispatched to Florida quarters on a routine and special mission.

That the Big Show would operate this year, if at all, under a sharply revised set-up related to transportation seems very certain from the present view.

Mfrs. Trust Co. Note Paid

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A note long held by the Manufacturers Trust Company against the circus was paid in full by the Ringling-Barnum Corporation some time in November, 1942, according to an inside source. Amount was upward of $600,000. Under a previously established arrangement, the fate of John Ringling North as circus head had a direct relationship to retirement of the debt. When the note was cleared, machinery to bring in a new administration was put in motion.

Mrs. Charles Ringling, a principal stockholder, and North, salaried chief, were in opposite camps. Some officials of the bank are retained with the circus.

Contracts made by North for 1943 will be honored. It was said that Art Cencello, ousted as general manager, holds one as a performer for only the current year. John Murray Anderson, production man retained by North, will probably continue in his capacity, because his deal called for $15,000 this season and two-thirds of it had already been advanced when the shake-up came or was in the works.

OHIO BOND SALE

set up on the grounds of the various fairs, over $750,000 worth of War Bonds and Stamps were sold. Two of the annuals, Mrs. Detrick said, reported sales amounting to $113,300 and $100,000 respectively. She stated that many of the fairs' food demonstrations were held under the titles "Victory Foods" and "Foods for Freedom." These consisted of nutrition demonstrations, conservation of foods, canning show and demonstration of Soldier Boy Food Boxes.

Special booths for the distribution of war literature and enlistment centers for the armed forces also were features on the grounds. Many fairs accepted scrap iron and rubber in payment of admissions, with 50 to 100 pounds of metal and 30 to 100 pounds of rubber being the amounts used in securing a ticket of admission. Some of the annuals, instead of offering trophies in their speed department and horse shows, gave War Bonds. Others paid part of their premiums in bonds and two paid their junior fair, Vocational and 4-H Clubs in full with bonds and stamps.

Mrs. Detrick said that 39 of the fairs made money in 1942, while 13 lost money because of inclement weather. Almost every fair featured an Army and Navy Day, victory parade or some demonstration to assist in the war program.

GOV. FOR ANNUALS

nable benefits for our present and future agriculture unless the wisely interpreted demands of war make such a move imperative.

of some kind, secretaries announced.

Additional emphasis on 4-H Club work in the 1943 streamlined fairs grew out of a first day's discussion on "The 4-H Departments of Kansas Fairs in Wartime." Discussion was led by Sam Mitchell, secretary Kansas State Fair, Hutchinson, who stated "Throughout the nation there are no inmates of penal institutions who have had as much as three years of 4-H training." Delegates agreed legislation should be asked that would make possible payment of premium money for agricultural exhibits by county commissioners to 4-H Clubs when fairs in those counties cancel annual dates.

With auto racing out for the duration, old dobbin came in for his most attention in years. E. C. Moriarity, Wichita, vet horseman, and Jim Page, president of Coffeyville Fair, were leading speakers on the subject, "What Kind of Races in 1943?" Horse racing appeared as the answer to the problem of afternoon grandstand attractions to most representatives.

Carnival men, including Sam Benjamin, World of Today Shows; Charles Rotoio, Elite Expositions; Cecil Goree, Sunflower State Shows; Porter Shrader and Larry Nolan, Anderson-Shrader Shows; Fred and Ben Broadbeck, Broadbeck Shows, and Frank Delmaine discussed next season's transportation problems and asked fair officials to co-operate in saving tires and gasoline by arranging circuits which will eliminate poor routing.

Round-Table Discussions

Round-table discussions were held on the following topics:

"Shall We Carry On?" — Maurice Jencks, Topeka; George Dietrich, Richmond; Elton Weeks, Coffeyville; Dr. G. S. Klassen, Hillsboro; C. J. Van Pelt, Dighton; Loren Law, Clay Center.

"4-H Department in Wartime" — Sam Mitchell, Hutchinson; H. N. Eller, Salina; Homer Alkire, Belleville; H. J. Carsten, Stockton; M. A. Collier, Smith Center.

"What Kind of Races in '43" — Ira C. McKay, Sylvan Grove; Roy Peterson, Rush Center; Henry F. Geib, Tonganoxie; H. R. Shimeall, Goodland; C. A. Cochran, Greensburg.

"My Idea of Fair Legislation" — D. Linn Livers, Barnes; G. B. Woodell, Winfield; J. B. Kuska, Colby; Arthur Goenner, Kingman; J. M. Molz, Hardtner.

"Features to Add, to Drop" — Fran Hill, Beloit; John H. Morse, Mound City; T. W. Spachek, Pilsen; Fred Coleman, Garrettsville; Clarence Hegarty, Effingham.

"Season Tickets This Year" — John Redmond, Burlington; Willis Hogarty, Minneapolis; C. N. Vincent, Girard; F. J. Henney, Horton.

Committee members were: Legislation — John Redmond, Burlington; M. W. Jencks, Topeka; Ivan Roberson, Abilene; R. M. Sawhill, Glasco. Grievances — L. H. Galloway, Wakeeney; George Dietrich, Richmond; S. M. Mitchell, Hutchinson. Next year's meeting will be held in Topeka the second week in January.

Order for cards, posters and other publicity supplies for Kansas State Fair at Hutchinson went to Frank Sharp, Regalia Manufacturing Company, who also received orders for the Barnes, Glasco, Clay Center and Effingham fairs.

Philly Pitchmen Have Field Day on Payday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Greatly expanded employment and pay rolls sharply increasing the purchasing power, coupled with the erection of new plants for the production of war work and the fact that more than 300,000 persons have moved to this city since the start of the war, has all tended to make Philadelphia one of the richest areas for the novelty salesmen, pitchmen and venders. When war plant whistles blow on payday and the workers emerge from the gate with their pockets full of folding money, a carnival-like scene takes place.

One of the best stands in town is on Friday afternoons at Cramp's shipyard, where company officials say that more men are employed than in any other private concern doing war work in Philadelphia.

When the day shift ends on Friday thousands of workmen in denim shirts and trousers and peaked caps flow thru the gate into the big courtyard. Many make a beeline for home, but hundreds of others line up before two mobile bank units which cash the checks with which the company pays its employees. And near by, the enthusiastic merchandisers make trade, crying out their wares and pointing businesslike fingers at their goods. It's small business—dime and quarter business for the most part—but the take all adds up to a sizable amount.

One of the most enterprising pitchmen is William Victor, who calls himself "Rosy" on Fridays at Cramp's shipyard. "On Mondays," he explains, "I sell razor blades. Tuesday thru Thursday I sell socks at 10 cents a pair. But on Fridays it is roses at two bits the bouquet. I sell plenty of them, too."

"Here's Rosy!" he shouts as the workmen surge thru the gate. He stands on a wooden box and holds up his flowers. Sometimes it takes no more than a half hour before he has sold out his stock. Victor is not the only pitchman selling flowers. Jim Treeres does a land-office business in Brazilian straw blooms at his adjoining stand.

Earlier this season, the Cramp's scene was even more lively, with string ensembles, a girl singer, an organ grinder and monkey, a colored quartet and even an acrobat showing up on payday and dispensing their talents for pennies and nickels. But the variety show has petered out. Only the men with wares to sell remain.

Among other enterprising merchandisers making a stand at Cramp's is Louis Sklar, handling work gloves, caps and shoestrings. "I've been in this line for years," says Sklar. "I used to follow the construction gangs but came here as soon as Cramp's reopened."

Sam Hoffman's line is patriotic jewelry and buttons, ranging from 15 to 35 cents. Best button sellers carry the legends: "Button Your Lip for Defense" and "Let's Take a Pokio at Tokio." Among the jewelry items, best sellers are imitation metal air corps wings and sergeant's stripes. Hoffman, who has been selling buttons and jewelry all his life, often supplies collectors with pins and buttons. Pointing to the big board that displays his goods, he reveals that many of the pieces are left over from the first World War.

"I never thought I'd ever sell those again," says Hoffman. "but they are just the same as a lot of stuff being made today. Who says time marches on! Everybody seems to be wearing patriotic pins of some kind. The fellows not only buy 'em for themselves, but for their girl friends, wives and kids."

A more exclusive business is conducted by Max Asherman, who sells higher-priced jewelry items on an installment basis. On top of his soap box are displayed diamond engagement and wedding rings, gold wrist watches and men's rings. "When I first came up here," says Asherman, "the wrist watches were my best seller, but the trend has swung to engagement rings. Seems like a lot of people are planning to get married, war or no war."

Asherman's installment terms are one-third down and 25 cents a week. He finds many a customer and describes them as "the best kind of customer you can get." "The average pay here, counting overtime, must be between $50 and $60 a week," says Asherman. "Some young fellows are walking out of the shipyard every Friday with as much as $100 in their jeans. They're good, substantial workmen, the kind who pay their debts, the kind of customers with whom a salesman likes to do business."

Patrons of bingo in Ludlow, Mass., were so insistent on their weekly game that the managers decided not to wait until the Polish American Hall was repaired to conform with fire laws. The game was moved to the recreation hall and has gone back on its regular schedule.

Orders that only bingo games whose profits went to local churches and organizations would be permitted in Scranton, Pa., prevented out-of-town promoters from holding their weekly bingo party at the Hotel Jermyn. The ruling was made after the mayor stated that professional promoters should not be allowed to operate games in Scranton for their own profit.

The scene at Cramp's shipyard is duplicated at more than 50 large industrial plants in the city engaged in war production work. All the novelty salesmen and pitchmen must have licenses and identification cards. The identification cards are issued at the U. S. Custom House here, where the men have to go to be photographed and fingerprinted.

BINGO BUSINESS

By
CARY

Efforts to liberalize restrictions on bingo were mentioned on the opening day of the Legislature in Albany, N. Y.

Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson, of Westchester, N. Y., sponsored a bill to define, regulate and license bingo under certain provisions. A written petition by at least 5 per cent of voters in any city, etc., before September 1 would cause a vote by the governing body, with bingo permitted if the vote were favorable and banned if the majority were opposed. The bill sets up provisions restricting sponsorship to charitable, civic, educational, fraternal, veteran or religious organizations. License fees would be based on the seating capacity of the place, scaled from $1 up to a maximum of $250. The measure would prohibit total retail value of prizes given in any one day to $250 and bars cash prizes.

All we can say on this point at present is that Assemblyman Wilson is a man with vision who has a fine idea. We trust the other members will realize the worth of this measure and pass it without delay.

This brings to mind once again the argument we have been using for many weeks since the ban on bingo went into effect. We suggested then that bingo operators give out only merchandise prizes and omit cash gifts altogether from their games. Assemblyman Wilson's measure calls for the permitting of merchandise prizes only.

Without making any official announcement, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty has banned the playing of bingo in churches of the Diocese of Philadelphia. It was understood that action was taken because an examination of the State's laws indicated bingo could be considered a violation. Playing of bingo in Philadelphia churches of various denominations has been widespread. The games were all well attended and prizes consisted primarily of merchandise. Some trouble was started last month when outside promoters, leasing church halls, offered cash prizes. Police, however, stopped such games and indicated there was no objections against the other church games where food and merchandise prizes were given. The Cardinal's edict affects only the Catholic churches. Those of other denominations have given no indication that the bingo games would be halted.

Patrons of bingo in Ludlow, Mass., were so insistent on their weekly game that the managers decided not to wait until the Polish American Hall was repaired to conform with fire laws. The game was moved to the recreation hall and has gone back on its regular schedule.

Orders that only bingo games whose profits went to local churches and organizations would be permitted in Scranton, Pa., prevented out-of-town promoters from holding their weekly bingo party at the Hotel Jermyn. The ruling was made after the mayor stated that professional promoters should not be allowed to operate games in Scranton for their own profit.

Flameproof Souvenirs In Bigger Demand

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Paper and evergreen holiday decorations have been thoroly inspected in theaters and other places of entertainment. This has been due in part to the recent Boston fire and requests from insurance departments to use the utmost discretion in the manner of decorations.

At the moment several recreation halls, night clubs and theaters are flameproofing draperies and other permanent decorations as a precautionary measure. Most of this work has been done before, but it is now generally agreed that it should be repeated every six months.

Holiday decorations of the usual sort could not be treated in this way. Wreaths were used in many instances, but evergreens which dry and drop on carpets or floors were conspicuously absent.

In a number of Eastern cities, where city councils and local fire officials have been extremely active since the Boston fire, informal orders have been given on the use of any kind of inflammable materials.

There are, however, several flameproof items on the market today which are being used in various places where decorations are necessary. This list includes ribbon crepe-paper streamers, flat crepe paper, cellophane garlands, aluminum tin foil and lanterns made from celluloid film material.

Much of this material comes under the heading of priority ratings. However, merchandise men report they have a large enough stock on hand to supply the market for quite some time to come.

Decorations must be made non-inflammable while they are in the process of being manufactured. Once the decorations are made they can't be sprayed to be made safe. They are processed with a special chemical and according to the quality of the solution can remain safe for as long as a year. The only decorations that are permanently non-inflammable are those made out of the aluminum tin foil.

These decorations are being periodically inspected by local authorities who put a match to them to be sure they don't burn. As a result, inflammable decorations are fast disappearing from the market, but business is increasing for the sale of these non-inflammable decorations.

Purchases, Production Of Consumer Goods Drop Expected in 1943

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Purchase of consumer goods by American civilians in 1943 is expected to drop 10 to 15 per cent below such purchases in 1942, it was indicated in a study just completed by the Office of Civilian Supply of the War Production Board.

Production of consumer goods is expected to drop more than that—15 to 20 per cent below 1942, with the deficiency coming out of inventory. The part coming from inventory is estimated at 25 per cent of stocks on hand at the beginning of 1943.

The biggest percentage drop is expected in the purchase of durable goods, such as electrical appliances, radios, etc. This will continue the trend which set in last year as a result of the issuance of WPB limitation orders. In 1942 purchase of durable goods by civilians dropped 45 per cent under 1941. It is expected that in 1943 consumption of these same goods will fall 35 per cent under that of 1942.

These drops in purchases and production have been expected by merchandise men. They have been hard hit by priority rulings which cut the supply of many of their staple goods, such as electrical appliances and radios. All of these items were popular favorites with bingo enthusiasts, concession crowds and salesboard followers everywhere. However,

Arthur Basson Writes:

"I would like to add the following to your comments on Henry Major in last week's issue of The Billboard: 'Henry Major, the world-renowned caricaturist, has become a one-man army. His art in the creating of hex-the-Axis novelties is playing an important part in psychological warfare. Not only are his articles realistic but useful—since psychiatrists tell us that it is good to release our pent-up emotions in the use of such pieces.'

"Major has contracted with Bassons Dummy Products to create novelties of propaganda value. Since he has visited almost every world capital and drawn from life most of the characters he depicts, we can be certain that his likenesses are accurate portrayals. It is fortunate indeed that this man was endowed with the artistic ability to put down on paper that which his eyes see.

"In these times we can help win a war in other places than on the battle field—propaganda cannot be stressed too significantly."

The Army and Navy pen and pencil sets offered by S. Richter look good for a run on a small card. Barrel is made of Du Pont unbreakable Pyralin, finished in either khaki or blue, and pen has 14-carat stainless steel point, plunger fill, and pen and pencil are fitted with service regulation clips. Each set comes in a genuine leather insignia case and is individually boxed.

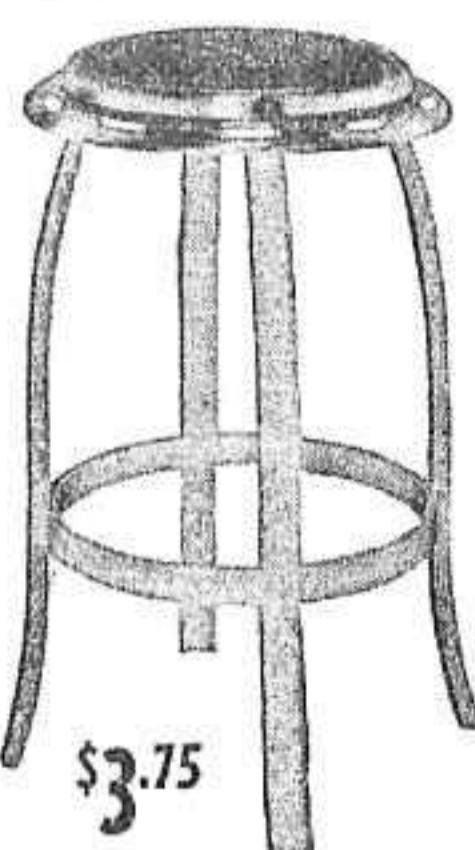

We understand the boys are really going for the "Toast to Our Armed Forces" glass tumblers introduced by Mason & Company several weeks ago. The tumblers are hot naturals for a turnover and, according to reports, are already showing signs of producing as well as the original Strip Tease glasses of fond memory.

"Toast to Our Armed Forces" tumblers have double views, of course, front and back, and have Army, Navy, Air Corps, Marine, Coast Guard and Defense Worker illustrations. Glasses have bevelled, no-nick, chip-proof safety edges, hold 10 ounces of liquid and come packed six to the set, each glass with a different illustration.

Fur garments are still clicking on all four, and from the way these bread and butter items are holding up will probably keep producing right thru the month of March at the earliest.

merchandise men have counteracted this scarcity by making worth-while substitutes.

Naturally, an even bigger percentage drop is expected in the purchase of these priority items because when the present supply is exhausted they will disappear from the market for the duration.

Despite stop production orders, many non-essential civilian goods, including the long list of items formerly used by bingo operators, concessionaires, pitchmen and salesboard operators, continued to be available to the end of 1942. In fact, a number of such items can still be purchased. However, inventories of many such articles are now low and probably will run out before 1943 ends.

Among consumer goods no longer being produced for civilians and of which inventories are low are electrical appliances, portable electric lamps and shades, radios and phonographs, safety razors and straight razors, bicycles and watches. These items were all old familiar stand-bys with merchandise men.

Offsetting to some extent the loss of production in civilian goods due to the shortage of steel and other critical materials, the use of substitute materials is permitting considerable production of articles that might otherwise have gone out of production. Examples include wood furniture for metal furniture; cooking utensils such as griddles, kettles, skillets, etc., made from heat-resistant glass instead of metals; household articles such as canister sets and bread boxes, formerly made of metal, are now being made of wood, glass, bone and non-critical plastics. Merchandise men have already reported excellent business with these substitutions.

Merchandise men realize that the most important function of business today is the winning of the war, and it is with this end in view that they have all willingly co-operated to the fullest extent.

“It must be borne in mind,” said Joseph L. Weiner, director of the Office of Civilian Supply, “that the waging of successful war may cause a more rapid drain on our resources than unsuccessful war. But the more successful the war the sooner it will be over.” And once the war has been won, the sooner the merchandise business will come back to normal.

The supply of consumer goods available for civilians will be increased in another way thru WPB standardization and simplification. Some products have already been simplified and standardized by WPB, but additional action in this direction is expected during the year. By reducing the variety of types and sizes of particular products, less of the material is tied up in inventory and more of it becomes available for consumers. The object is to produce the maximum amount of civilian goods out of the limited amount of material available. Merchandise men are also keeping this factor in mind when looking for substitutes.

AMUSEMENT . . . MUSIC . . . VENDING . . . SERVICE

Early Tax Report

Reports of the activities of State legislatures that convened early in January did not indicate any sudden rush to tax coin machines. Most legislative sessions were occupied with important matters of organization and routine.

The first bill reported of direct interest to the coin machine trade was a cigarette tax proposal in the Delaware Legislature. Political reports indicate that Delaware may have a State tax of 2 cents per pack on cigarettes. Another report revealed that a bill to tax vending machines had been introduced in the New York Legislature the first week. This was understood to be a routine bill and apparently has made its appearance more than once before.

What will be received by the vending machine trade as more serious than a legislative proposal was the decision by the Maryland Court of Appeals January 12 holding the 1941 State tax on vending machines to be valid. This tax law had been previously held invalid in important court tests.

A member of the Oklahoma Legislature announced he would introduce a proposal to tax juke boxes in that State, but the governor had already announced a "no-tax" program for the present session. A number of States are starting off on a program of trying to avoid any new taxes this year and it may help to keep tax bills to a minimum.

Official reports are beginning to accumulate to show a decline in the receipts from coin machine taxes. This may be important information to show that combined federal, State and city taxes are now getting much too high. The federal receipts from coin machines in November showed a considerable decline at a time when receipts were expected to increase. This may be definitely due to the failure of Congress to adjust inequalities in the federal tax on machines. Two States that tax coin machines also reported a drop in receipts toward the end of 1942. This is probably due to the federal rates on certain types of machines. When the higher federal rates go into effect next July 1 it is expected to cut down city and State revenues from coin machines much more.

The proposal of a cigarette tax in Delaware is the continuance of a trend which began a few years ago. A number of States are expected to consider cigarette taxes, altho the increase in the federal tax on cigarettes last year was supposed to deter the States somewhat from taxing this product still more. So many States, however, already tax cigarettes that it is not easy to discourage other States from following the example. The public has seemed willing to pay increased cigarette prices without much complaint up to the present.

Operators of cigarette venders are vitally interested in any new taxes on this product since it means an increase in price. The OPA has officially approved price increases to take care of added taxes, but one report has been received of operators being called in question about raising the price more than was needed to cover the tax.

The shortage of pennies has proved a hardship on cigarette operators in adjusting prices to meet new taxes. This problem may become more serious unless the coinage of new pennies makes them plentiful.

State cigarette taxes raise the question of whether operators of cigarette venders are jobbers or retailers. Illinois operators welcomed classification as sub-jobbers which permits them to affix tax stamps at the commission allowed for this work. Cigarette operators in Wisconsin have instituted a test case to get classification as retailers under the Wisconsin law. The new Delaware proposal does not seem to mention cigarette operators, but it might be a good idea for such operators to study the issue carefully whether they want to rate as retailers or jobbers when cigarette taxes are proposed.

This is a first report on 1943 tax developments. It will probably be a month yet before coin machine tax bills begin to appear in quantity.

Rationing Ban On Amusem'ts

Favors coin machines in popular locations not counted officially as amusement spots

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Restaurants, drugstores, taverns, etc., are not feeling the effect of the ban on driving for pleasure or to places of amusement, and hence operators of juke boxes, pinballs and other games installed in those places continue to do a thriving business. No efforts, either by police or OPA inspectors or investigators, can charge that the cab drivers or drivers of personal cars have driven up to the place to amuse themselves rather than that they have gone to the establishment to eat, drink a soda or purchase other commodities.

Policemen point out that they are apt to make mistakes in reporting automobiles who drive up to those places, for they are uncertain for just what purpose the patrons enter the establishment.

So far as could be ascertained, automobileists who drive up to Penny Arcades, taverns and other places where juke boxes, pinballs and other machines are available for amusement have not been charged with driving for pleasure, as it is impossible to know actually for what purpose the person entered the establishment. Operators of these places point out they do not expect to be charged with such violations.

Among some of the passenger cars listed as violators have been some few from which the driver and passengers were seen going into a tavern.

The consensus of opinion is that patrons of arcades, taverns, etc., will in no way be affected by the ban on pleasure driving, and the prediction is made that the complexity of the thing is certain to be ended at an early date.

Dues of Associations Often Run to High Figures

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—According to a bulletin recently issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the annual dues of small national associations of manufacturers, many of which have memberships of 50 or less firms, are often several hundred dollars a year. Generally, the dues of national associations of retailers, with thousands of members, are only a few dollars a year.

The National Association of Retail Grocers, with 60,000 individual members, states that its finances are secured from three major sources: (1) Membership dues of only 50 cents; (2) revenue from convention exhibits of food and grocery products and equipment; (3) revenue from advertisements in the association's monthly trade journal.

Better Care for Machines Due To Rationing of Gas

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 16.—By far the outstanding thing affecting the coin machine business locally is the inability to obtain delivery of records.

At the start of the month business was slow, but gradually it picked up speed, with the automatic music machines doing a good business from a week or so before Christmas until after the new year. Pinball machines are still just about holding their own, with operators anxiously awaiting a possible new ruling affecting the free-play device.

Operators are paying more and more attention to the care of their machines, with the older coin machines being dismantled for parts, which are used to repair the newer machines.

In addition, they have been cutting down on mileage to further conserve gas and rubber. As yet there have been no serious shortages of gas reported by operators. However, all have their fingers crossed.

Inclement weather, making for icy roads and treacherous driving, has been hampering collections and repair calls, especially during the Christmas holiday rush.

Costs of Indiana State And Local Governments

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—The Indiana State Chamber of Commerce has recently issued a report which deals with the cost of State and local government. This report says that the total for 1941 fiscal year was $246,142,000. This is considered a great increase over previous years.

The old-age pension fund was considered responsible for a big part of this increase. Editorially, The Indianapolis News recently commented on the report as follows:

Old-age assistance and other forms of poor relief, according to the manual, have reached a yearly outlay of $134,381,000 compared with $10,298,000 for comparable services in 1930. The manual might have added that despite this vast increase in governmental costs, ushered in with the solemn declaration that county infirmaries would cease to exist in Indiana, relatively few of these institutions have closed and some of them are costing as much or more than formerly.

Public assistance appropriations, particularly direct poor relief, have been reduced during the last two years. This is due chiefly to the ability of nearly any able-bodied person to find employment. However, the manual states that an average of 9 per cent of the State's population continues to be dependent upon public assistance grants or upon care in State or county institutions. Reducing this load to minimum needs ought to be one of the aims of the officials who administer relief expenditures.

AOLAC Service Car In Service for Members

A special bulletin issued by the Associated Operators of Los Angeles County December 11 made the following announcement as an association plan to help members meet their present servicing problem:

"This is to notify you that the association has purchased what is termed a service car to be used for the benefit of the members of this association. If you are in a dilemma and desire us to assist you by picking up parts and delivering them to a specific address, or any other similar service, if you will contact us in advance, we will be pleased to help you in any manner humanly possible. The sole purpose of this service car is to assist and serve members of the association."

A service car for the members of local organizations has been discussed with many other groups. The Los Angeles group is actually putting it into practice. They will probably have an interesting report to make soon about how it works out.

Maryland Tax Is Held Valid

Vender tax passed in 1941, and held invalid, is now approved by high court

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—The 1941 vending machine tax was upheld by the Court of Appeals, meeting at Annapolis January 12. This decision reversed a Baltimore Circuit Court ruling which had declared the vending machine tax invalid because Governor O'Connor had not signed it soon enough to make it effective.

The vending machine trade had strongly opposed this tax, and altho the law had been declared invalid on a technicality, they had hoped to have the issue settled. The vending machine tax was strongly supported by three or four retail trade associations in the State.

Judge Ogle Marbury, who gave the opinion, said the Appeals Court had reversed the lower court and decreed that a bill of complaint, filed by the Vendomatic Corporation of America and the Mills Automatic Merchandising Corporation, was to be dismissed.

William C. Walsh, attorney general, presented the case for the State and was upheld in his argument that altho the bill had been authorized by the 1941 Legislature to become effective May 1 of that year, it still was valid despite the fact that Governor O'Connor did not sign it until 26 days later.

Judge Marbury said Governor O'Connor had withheld signing the bill "to hear various protestants and to give careful consideration to the advisability of the proposed licenses."

Governor Upheld

"It was an entirely laudable reason," the opinion said.

The high court had decided, Marbury said, that it would be "an absurdity to say because one month of the first license year could not be collected, that the 'whole act must be stricken down and the purpose of the Legislature thwarted.'

Detroit

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Don C. Kline, who is operating in the vicinity of Brighton, northwest of Detroit, is adding music machines to his route.

Max Lipin, of the Allied Music Sales Company, has been appointed Michigan distributor for Muscraft records and is installing a stock for operators in his new Woodward Avenue salesroom.

Gas Rationing News . . .

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Not much additional information on gas rationing was received here during the week. The announcement by the OPA that the first inspection of auto and truck tires would be extended was received as good news by operators all over the country. The first inspection is now scheduled for March 31.

Reports continue to increase about a federal check-up on B and C ration cards in various cities. This was considered a routine matter.

The ban on pleasure driving in the 17 Eastern States is said to have cut automobile travel about 30 per cent and attracted wide attention. One report stresses an unusual angle in this pleasure ban which is that it has boosted the play of juke boxes and pinball games in drugstores, restaurants and similar locations which are not considered pleasure spots in the official sense.

Ruling on Scale Tax . . .

Many reports have come from operators in various sections of the country about federal tax collectors trying to collect the $10 amusement machine tax on penny scales that have amusement features. The following ruling was issued December 12, 1942, and is the only official information we have on the subject at the present time. If a later ruling has been issued we do not have any information.

"Peerless Weighing & Vending Machine Corporation, 22-19 41st Avenue, Long Island City, N. Y. Attention: L. D. Chambers, president.

"Reference is made to your letter of November 30, 1942, requesting a ruling concerning the classification, under Section 3267 of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended by Section 617 of the Revenue Act of 1942 of certain penny weighing scales you list and describe, pictures of which you enclosed.

"Weighing scales, whether they only indicate a person's weight or also deliver a ticket bearing the printed weight or an astrology reading, or returns the penny inserted if the user has correctly indicated his weight by the arrow on the scale, are considered not to be amusement devices under the code, as amended, and no liability to special tax thereunder is incurred with respect thereto. Respectfully, D. S. Bliss, Deputy Commissioner."

Music and Records . . .

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—The anti-trust suit against the AFM has been reopened. New charges, however, do not involve a labor dispute, but rather charge that the disk ban is putting radio stations out of business. (See the Music Merchandise section for details.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Senate subcommittee investigating the recording ban met on January 12, 13 and 14. Juke boxes were little discussed, Petrillo claiming he knew nothing about them beyond that which he read in this publication. He agreed to negotiate with recording companies. (Details in Music Merchandise section.)

Plea of City of Youngstown, O., For Right To License Pinball Still Is Classic Legal Brief

Incriminating Testimony

When Rocco Marino, witness for plaintiff, was being examined as to the probability of certain of his machines being gambling devices, his counsel, Mark Moore, directed a request to the court to instruct the witness not to answer questions that may tend to incriminate him. The court refused that request and permitted the testimony in the record notwithstanding the claim of privilege. We quote from the record, page 28:

"Mr. Moore: I would like the court to advise the witness that if he has machines that are in his opinion gambling devices that if there is a criminal charge against him he does not have to answer these questions.

"Court: Well, I am not going to advise him. You can advise him anything you please. He is here to answer as to the nature of the licensed machines. I didn't want to hear about the cigarette machine. I am only interested in the machines licensed here.

"Mr. Carlyle: That's a fact and we ask that the court strike from the record all testimony as to the particular machine that was unlicensed.

"Court: No, it can remain, but I don't think it is of any material value. It's a description of a machine and it bears on the question of whether it is the kind of machine that this ordinance calls a game of skill.

"Mr. Freeman: He testified it was not licensed."

"Court: All right, I will go ahead and hear all of this. The public ought to hear it too, that is a matter of considerable public interest."

Notwithstanding the immunity from prosecution, under Section 13444, General Code, of persons giving self-incriminating testimony in gambling cases, a person called as witness in a prosecution for gambling, not founded on complaint or indictment, cannot be compelled to answer questions that will tend to incriminate him, and it is the duty of the court to protect him in the claim of privilege. And the trial court ordering the witness to answer such question constitutes reversible error; State vs. Murray, 820. S. 305.

Following that case in Hebebrand vs. State, 129 O. S. 574, the Supreme Court, at page 581, said:

"The answers to at least some of these questions would undoubtedly have incriminated these witnesses and made them liable to a prosecution for the misdemeanor of gambling except for the provisions of the so-called immunity statute. If some of the questions were harmless and others self-incriminating they should have been separated by the trial court, and the witness ordered to answer the non-incriminating but not to answer the incriminating questions found in the series of questions presented to the judge. But the judge did not do this. He ordered the witnesses to answer all of the questions, whether incriminating or otherwise. Had the court ordered the incriminating questions deleted from the series, and had ordered the other questions which had no tendency of self-incrimination to be answered, the witnesses might have obeyed the order of the court and contempt proceedings would not have been necessary. But when the trial court ordered the entire series of questions to be answered, including those that were self-incriminating, the trial court erred.

"For the reasons stated, the judgments of the trial and appellate courts are reversed. . . ."

A Prejudiced Judge

The hostility manifested by the trial judge toward one witness is typical of the hostility manifested by him toward the city thru the entire lawsuit. Anything that was damaging to the city was received with judicial acclaim; anything that was favorable to the city was excluded and ousted. Such conduct on the part of the trial judge lacked the elements of judicial fairness and candor required for a fair and impartial trial, was highly prejudicial to the rights of this defendant and constitutes reversible error, and is the plain duty of a reviewing court to correct the trial judge in such an instance and set him right.

Conflict With Statutes

Unless the marble boards licensed under the ordinance are gambling devices per se as were the slot machines involved in the Cleveland case (135 O. S. 43), the ordinance is not in conflict with the general statutes or the anti-gambling ordinances. A parallel may be found in the statutes licensing and regulating betting on horse races. There is a provision in Article 15, Section 6, of the Ohio Constitution which provides that "lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets for any purpose whatsoever shall forever be prohibited in this State." Nevertheless, the horse-racing act of Ohio, Section 1079-8, General Code, validates and provides for the licensing of the pari-mutuel or certificate systems of wagering by patrons of legal age on horse races conducted by the permit holder at such meeting, other statutes of the State of Ohio to the contrary notwithstanding. For that privilege the State exacts a tax of 10 to 30 per cent of all betting moneys received by the licensee. And in State vs. Eldred, 32 N. P. (N. S.) 268, it was held the statute licensing horse-race betting did not repeal by implication Section 13062, General Code, which prohibits the recording of wagers or selling of pools or the keeping of a room or building for that purpose. Of similar effect are the cases in other jurisdictions too numerous to cite.

In Illinois vs. Monroe (1932), 349, Ill. 270, 182 N. E. 439, 85 A. L. R. 605, it was held that a statute providing for the licensing of horse-racing meets and legalizing pari-mutuel betting at the tracks of licensees only does not violate a State constitutional provision that the Legislature "shall have no power to authorize lotteries or gift enterprises for any purpose."

Any device, innocent in itself, may be utilized as a means of gambling. Misuse of the privilege by the licensees of the marble boards is a matter of law enforcement within province of the authorities responsible for the enforcement, but not the courts. Injunction therefore does not lie to compel law enforcement.

28 O. Jur. p. 967, Section 609;

Schmidt vs. Brennan, 4 O. N. P. (N. S.) 239;

Arnold vs. Van West, 3 C. C. 545;

Son vs. Ness (1937) 8 O. OP. 371;

White vs. Columbus 27 O. Ab. 489

Accordingly, in the recent cases of Lee vs. Miami (Fla., 1936) 163 So. 486; Kenney vs. State (Ga. 1936) 187 S. E. (2d), 592; D'Orio vs. Startup Candy Company, 71 Utah, 410 266 Pac. 1037, the Supreme Court in those States held a statute or ordinance licensing such device to be in no conflict with constitutional and statutory provisions against gambling and that the licensing of the devices does not prevent criminal prosecution for the unlawful use of those devices.

This Supreme Court, in Fremont vs. Keating, 96 O. S. 468, at 470, held that where a municipality, under the powers conferred upon it by Section 3 of Article XVIII of the Ohio Constitution, has the right to adopt and enforce within its limits police regulations in regard to the same subject matter, the General Assembly cannot deprive the municipality of its constitutional rights. Within the sphere of its constitutional power a municipal corporation stands supreme, and no statute can validly encroach on that power or curtail it. The principle was applied to a conflict of speed regulations under statute and ordinance, and the ordinance was held to prevail.

The right of a municipal corporation, under its police power, to regulate and license amusements and playing devices within its territorial limits cannot therefore be said to be in conflict with general statutes. The fact that the licensed devices are capable of being used for gambling purposes (and there is no limit to what may be used for such purpose) would not destroy the municipal power of license and regulation. If that were true, all poolrooms, billiard tables, bowling alleys, pinball tables and like devices of amusement licensed under the provisions of the General Code and capable of being used and often utilized to the ends of gambling would, if so used, operate to destroy the validity of the ordinance licensing and regulating them on the ground of conflict with the general statutes.

Status of Plaintiff

Aside from the clean-hands doctrine there is certain irony in the selection of the present plaintiff to bring this action against the city and to invoke the equitable jurisdiction of this court, himself a violator of the laws he seek to uphold, on whose premises, raided by the police, several slot machines prohibited by law were seized and for which he was later arrested.

Shielded by the dignity of the State and supposedly proceeding in the interest of the city, he alleges fraud, corruption, invasion of his personal rights to his irreparable injury by the city, upon which there is not a shred of evidence. Camouflaged in ex rel. garb and blindly following a disgruntled group, now banded into racket, he is in reality serving them, not the city. Elimination of the ordinance would remove the last vestige of municipal regulation and destroy income therefrom to the city needed to police violators, including the plaintiff.

The action, as instituted, is bad in form and defective as to party plaintiff. An action by a taxpayer, under Section 4314, General Code, must be instituted in his own name as a taxpayer, on behalf of the corporation, and not simply in his own name as a taxpayer. It is improper to entitle an action by a taxpayer for an injunction: "State of Ohio on the relation of." Fisher vs. Cleveland, 42 O. App. 75, 26 O. Jur. page 1084, Section 654. The object of this section is to preserve the rights of the municipal corporation and the only question that can be considered is whether there has been a violation of corporate rights. Johnson vs. Farley, 11 O. D. N. P. 639. It is not intended to subserve personal interest or to protect individual rights.

Peppard vs. Cincinnati, 6 O. N. P. 57, 9 O. D. N. P. 102.

Section 4311, General Code, requires the law director to apply in the name of the corporation, to a court of competent jurisdiction, for an order of injunction to restrain (1) the misapplication of funds of the corporation; (2) or the cause of its corporate powers; (3) or the execution or performance of any contract made in behalf of the corporation in contravention of the laws or ordinances governing it, or which was procured by fraud or corruption.

Section 4314, General Code, provides that in case the law director fails upon the written request of any taxpayer of the corporation to make any application provided for in the preceding three sections (injunctions under Section 4311; specific performance of contract on behalf of the corporation under Section 4312; mandamus to compel performance of public duty by officer or board under Section 4313), such taxpayer may institute suit in his own name on behalf of the corporation.

Test of City Powers

The only possible ground upon which the plaintiff's action, as taxpayer, could be predicated is the city's "abuse of its corporate powers." Diligent search of the authorities discloses no instance in which a municipal corporation enacting an ordinance regulating and requiring licenses for games of skill has been held to constitute an "abuse of corporate powers."

It has been held, however, in Fisher, a Taxpayer, vs. City of Cleveland, 43 O. App. 75, that an action for injunction cannot be maintained by a taxpayer under Section 4314 for abuse of discretion on the part of municipal authorities in licensing boxing exhibitions in accordance with legal requirements, nor on the ground of public nuisance affecting the individual rights of the taxpayer. The court, at page 87, said:

"We do not only affirm it (judgment dismissing petition) upon that ground (weight of evidence), but on the further ground that the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law; that he is not a proper party to bring the suit as a taxpayer, the case not being one of those for which a taxpayer may bring a suit, and as an individual he has not alleged or proven that he would suffer damages by virtue of the alleged nuisance other and different from that which all other persons in the city of Cleveland would suffer."

See also Worbling vs. Akron, 18 O. C. C. (N. S.), 208.

We contend that no misapplication of city funds, or illegal contract, or "abuse of corporate power" as grounds for a taxpayer's action under Section 4314, being involved, the plaintiff had no status to maintain the present action, and that the judgment of the trial judge finding the licensing of games of skill under the ordinance an abuse of corporate powers by the city was

Conclusion

Let us state in conclusion that despite certain forms of gaming having even penetrated our churches and charities and that "Mother's Bingo Club" has become a family institution, we are not here to defend gambling, nor gambling devices, as such, nor to protect any single person or group of persons who are interested in the manufacture, distribution or operation of such devices. Nor are we here to shield or immunize the "one-armed bandit"—the slot machine. We have legislation, State and municipal, to curb those evils. Our province here is to defend an innocent and harmless city ordinance, attacked by interests to serve their personal and vindictive ends, which imposes a license fee on coin-operated devices for the playing of games of skill, yielding an income to the city of about $15,000 per annum and sorely needed for the proper exercise of its police power. The ordinance as administered permits no use of the licensed devices for gambling purposes.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Krause case (135 O. S. 43), holding invalid the Cleveland pinball machine ordinance, did not outlaw the pinball machines. . . . Due to the lack of a regulatory ordinance, there is virtually no supervision and, of course, there is no revenue by way of license fees.

That condition exists, not because of poor law enforcement, because since the advent of Eliot Ness as director of safety over a year ago Cleveland has been blessed with consistent law enforcement, second to no city in America—but because pinball machines are not inherently gambling devices. Experience has taught Cleveland that pinball machines can be legally seized and confiscated only when they are actually used for gambling. For the same reason a recent editorial in The New York Times said:

FRED MILLS AND JOE REICHMAN at a Mills Panoram for which band leader Reichman has made several three-minute subjects.

"There are good pinball games and there are bad pinball games."

The Cleveland ordinance was unquestionably a "bad" ordinance because it expressly provided for a payoff in its terms and thereby boldly attempted to legalize gambling.

The Youngstown ordinance did no such thing within its terms, nor did it license the operation of any mechanical device which the State law forbids.

That pinball machines were found in Youngstown which were actually gambling devices and which were used for gambling—as was revealed by the testimony at the trial—was not the fault of the Youngstown ordinance, but the fault of those in whose hands the ordinance placed the administration, the supervision, the regulation of such devices—for which the city charged and received a fair license fee—who, unquestionably, either misinterpreted the letter and the spirit of the ordinance, or improperly administered and enforced the provisions of the ordinance.

A reading of the Youngstown ordinance discloses that it is an innocent, well-intentioned legislative instrument which has for its object and purpose the licensing and regulation of non-gambling mechanical amusement devices in which the element of skill predominates. It does not provide for a "payoff" in any manner—not even free games. That the ordinance is not perfect is admitted, due chiefly to its superficiality.

Because of this wide difference between the Youngstown and Cleveland ordinances, the law department has decided to have the right highest court of the State pass upon the validity and the constitutionality of the Youngstown ordinance.

In the event the Supreme Court holds the Youngstown ordinance to be valid and constitutional, the law department will recommend to the chief executive and to the members of council that amendments to the ordinance, particularly as to the method of licensing and supervision, be promptly enacted, in keeping with the suggestions of the trial judge in the court below, or with the ruling by this court.

Let Them Be Licensed

If there are to be pinball machines in Youngstown, then let them be here by virtue of a regulatory ordinance, so that the city may derive all revenue that it legally can thru a fair license fee.

Pinball machines are now licensed and regulated by statute in six States (11 States in 1942—Ed.), and by ordinance in over 50 representative cities in America. The following are typical of such cities, together with their respective annual license fees for each machine: Pittsburgh, $25; Philadelphia, $20; Erie, $25; Buffalo, $15; Syracuse, $30; Louisville, $15; Atlantic City, $25; Minneapolis, $25; Madison, $25; Portland, Ore., $25; Elizabeth, N. J., $100 for the first machine and $10 for each additional, and Montreal is typical of the cities in Canada, where the license fee is $21.80 per year for each machine.

The trial judge found no fault with the ordinance as an exercise of municipal power, except that the language in it, the words "designed" and "intended," he claims, have taken it out of the ambit of validity. In his opinion he said:

"If that ordinance read, 'Any machine, mechanism, contrivance or device constructed to be operated by skill and that can be operated or put in condition for operation in part by the use of coins and slugs,' I admit I don't see anything wrong with it. But when it reads 'designed' to be operated by skill or 'intended' to be operated by skill, and if as a matter of actual fact a machine is so designed as to give the free games, it cannot be anything else but a gambling device, and then the ordinance is invalid which permits such machine to be licensed under such 'intention.' This ordinance is invalid because this ordinance, by its terms, makes the issuing of the license for a machine dependent on the words 'intended to be a game of skill,' but which machine actually, by its design and operation, is a game of chance. The ordinance goes to that extent beyond the power of the city because it undertakes to license a machine which the State law forbids."

Then there is where the matter was allowed to rest, without any opinion by the Court of Appeals approving, rejecting or qualifying that statement of the law, and we know no more now than we did before, whether the city may or may not enact such ordinance if the objectionable features alluded to by the trial judge would have been removed. The Court of Appeals first intimated it would write an opinion, but later signed the journal entry of affirmance without delivering any opinion.

We most earnestly contend, in face of the record and the error herein assigned, for reversal of the judgment of the Court of Appeals.

Respectfully submitted,

Sales Tax Means Ops Should Rush

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16.—Harry F. Moseley, Moseley Vending Machine Exchange, reports that his floors and warehouses are stocked with a large supply of both new and used machines of all kinds. Much of this stock is on hand due to the fact that the Moseley firm had, for the past several months, purposely slowed its sales in an effort to keep a complete stock.

"Now, however," Moseley states, "in my opinion the wise operator will stock up on machines to the hilt. It is my thought that in the near future the railroads and truck lines may not be able to transport many products.

"Also," he added, "the sales tax question keeps cropping up again and again. Before an additional 10 per cent tax is added, operators should weigh this in their minds. In any event, there is no possibility of the cost of machines, either new or used, being lowered. Operators should be more than glad to get needed machines at current prices rather than taking the chance of being forced to pay higher prices in the form of additional taxes."

Wis. Has Surplus; Ask Lower Taxes

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16.—One of the heated topics of discussion here, in common with similar discussions in other States, is whether taxes should be reduced by the present Legislature because the State has a tax surplus. In discussing this subject, The Milwaukee Journal, January 10, compared the situation in this State with that of New York. The Wisconsin Legislature convenes January 13. The New York Legislature has already convened, and Governor Dewey recommended a quarter payment system for State income taxes and suggested some decreases in taxes.

The Journal suggested that some of the steps being taken in New York might be of interest to Wisconsin legislators. "Present State revenues in Wisconsin are extremely high," The Journal said. "State expenditures are likely to be lower than usual, and will be lower than usual if the Legislature adopts a war budget as it should.

At present tax rates a treasury surplus is bound to build up."

Wisconsin has a new governor and he is expected to make some recommendations as to the future tax program. Wisconsin still has a high tax program which was adopted during the depression, and this high tax program reaches vending machines due to the tax on cigarettes. The State income tax also reaches all types of operators and is accumulating some official information on the earnings of operators.

girl who had offered it for admission to the dance had attached her name and address with the hope of hearing from the soldier or sailor who might eventually get the smokes.

After two days of checking by detectives it was learned from a member of the USO committee that in order to have a quantity of cigarettes or hand for those who came to the dance without the two packages required for admission, the committee ordered a shipment from a local wholesale tobacco house with the privilege of returning those unsold. When the dance was over it was found that in a number of cartons only one or two had been removed. In order to return the full cartons to the wholesaler and thus get credit for the refund, the committee members took a few of the packs and put them back in the cartons. The wholesaler later sold them to the cigarette machine operator.

SENATORS PROBE DISK BAN

Phono Mfrs.' Assn. submits brief to Senate subcommittee—may resume hearings soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, headed by Senator D. Worth Clark (Dem., Idaho), probed deeply into the "whys" and "wherefores" of the American Federation of Musicians ban on manufacture of new records and transcriptions in a three-day hearing here early this week. Both AFM President James C. Petrillo and the AFM's counsel, Joseph A. Padway, were questioned extensively. While some newspaper reports played up the wisecracks that were exchanged, still the demeanor of the hearing was intensely serious, with the committee making a concerted effort to get to the bottom of the recording ban.

Repeatedly Petrillo was asked: "What do you want and from whom?" His usual answer was: "More work for musicians." Pressed for a definite outline of his demands, the AFM presy finally stated on the second day of the hearing that he was ready to sit down for negotiations with radio broadcasters and recording companies and that the AFM executive committee would begin drawing up specific demands February 1 when it convenes in Chicago.

Petrillo refused to agree, however, to a suggestion from Chairman Clark that he lift the ban on recordings during the progress of the negotiations. "I'm satisfied the committee wants quick action," he stated, "but I've negotiated with these people locally and nationally for 20 years. If they are permitted to make recordings while the negotiations are in progress, they'll make enough to last two or three years." He did state, however, that if the President so directed, he would call off the ban immediately.

Juke Box Phase

For the most part Petrillo's barbs were directed against the National Association of Broadcasters and the recording companies. Less than 15 minutes of the three-day testimony concerned juke boxes. When queried by Senator Tobey as to what he knew of the juke-box industry, Petrillo answered he was not very well acquainted with it. When pressed for more details, he answered that all he knew was what he read in The Billboard.

Merchants Seek Sales Tax End In N. Carolina

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 16.—The North Carolina Merchants' Association has announced a drive in order to get the State retail sales tax repealed by the present session of the Legislature. Preparations for this drive against the sales tax have been under way for some time, and it is no surprise to the Legislature.

Leaders of the association say that the sales tax was adopted as an emergency measure when the State needed revenue quickly, and that now since the State has a surplus in revenue the sales tax should be dropped.

The State Treasury is expected to have a surplus of around $30,000,000 at the end of this fiscal year. This is one of the main arguments for repealing the sales tax. Those who favor the sales tax are expected to argue that war conditions may create an emergency need, and that the State would probably need the revenue by the end of this fiscal year.

Phonograph Manufacturers' Association filed a brief with the committee explaining the automatic phonograph industry. Members also requested the committee for a hearing if and when hearings are resumed. Representatives of NAB and other interests also made like petitions.

The Senate committee is to meet January 20 in secret session to decide whether or not hearings will be resumed. Chairman Clark stated hearing might be resumed in 10 days to two weeks.

Bill Reintroduced

Senator Clark, who introduced a bill into the last Congress seeking to bring Petrillo and the AFM within the anti-trust laws, has already introduced a similar bill into the new Congress. Pointing out that the record ban goes far beyond the confines of a "labor dispute," since Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, has already stated a continuance of the record ban would compel many small stations to close up, Clark is reported to have declared his intention of carrying his appeal direct to the President if Congress doesn't take the necessary steps to curb the disk ban.

AFM Anti-Trust Suit Reopened

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Nine members of the American Federation of Musicians, including President James C. Petrillo, are ordered to appear before Judge John P. Barnes, of Federal Court here, today to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued to restrain the union from alleged violation of "anti-trust laws by forbidding union members from making recordings and transcriptions for public use."

Government's new petition differs from the one Judge Barnes dismissed last October in the contention that the record ban is putting numerous small radio stations out of business that do not employ union musicians, and that as a result no labor dispute is involved. The previous dismissal by Barnes was based on the ground that suit involved a labor dispute over which the court had no jurisdiction.

Industrial Music in Knox Gelatine Factory Works Well

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Recent news items have told of tests conducted in industrial factories on the effects of music on factory workers. In every case, music has stepped up production, lessened fatigue and has promoted smoother relations between management and labor.

Interesting, therefore, is the following account from Johnstown, N. Y.:

A phonograph plays God Bless America and workers trooping into the spotless, white-walled factory sing an accompaniment.

The music stops. Machines begin an all-day clatter that ends as the workers chorus out the national anthem.

It's not a cutting from an American light opera. It's the Johnstown gelatine plant of Mrs. Charles B. Knox.

Boasts No Philosophy

"I don't have any special philosophy of life or any conventional, ready-made formula about business other than hard work and plenty of good common sense," insists the nearly 83-year-old woman industrialist. "But I think we need to show a little more patriotism right now."

For a person who hasn't any particular philosophy or business theory, the gray-haired, alert-eyed Mrs. Knox concedes she has done at least "fairly well" since she took over the gelatine manufacturing business on the death of her husband in 1908.

But—no philosophy? No business theory?

"You have to use common sense—horse sense—to succeed in business," asserts the woman industrialist, who barely reaches five feet in height.

"Live and let live," she said at another time when asked how she managed to avoid labor difficulties in her factories.

"Don't expect to take it easier because you're a woman," she once advised members of her own sex in business. "Don't try to compete with men but do your job in a woman's way."

And again, looking back at her "mistakes," Mrs. Knox theorized:

"He who stumbles twice over the same stone deserves to break his neck."

To boys and girls undecided on what line of work to follow, she urges:

"Take an inventory of yourself. Find out your strong points. Then push them and push hard. You must have something to sell these days."

Trebles Firm's Output

It may be neither philosophy nor theory but whatever it is, the Knox ideas trebled the output of the gelatine factory in the first 10 years after she took over the business.

Still very active, Mrs. Knox continues to spend most of her day in the Johnstown plant where even her son, Jim Knox, vice-president and general manager, admits "Mother's still the boss," even tho he has relieved her of many of the burdens of the business.

She was born Rose Markward in Mansfield, O., November 18, 1857, and 26 years later was married to Charles Knox, a knitting goods salesman.

But six years later, the couple had saved $5,000 which they invested in a gelatine formula and sold their product "on the side."

Mrs. Knox learned "every phase" of the business, lived most of the time in her kitchen where she created recipe after recipe and then, she says, "flooded the nation with them."

When she took over the factory in 1908, she was as determined then as now that she would "do the job in a woman's way" and only requested the same treatment that a man would.

Her first executive order called for polishing a brass nameplate on the boiler.

200 On Pay Roll

"There's nothing too small to be clean," she remarked as she brought her housewifely nature into the manufacture of gelatine. Walls, woodwork, floors, equipment, and even the outside railing at the entrance were scoured and polished. They still are.

She sold her husband's airplanes and stable of race horses which he maintained "for advertising purposes." "I don't believe in that kind of publicity," she declared, "for a food product."

There are more than 200 employees now in the three Knox plants in Johnstown, Camden, N. J., and Montreal, Can. She

Jook Joints Cause Fla. Investigation

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 16.—City and county authorities recently held a meeting here to discuss the problem of controlling a special type of location usually called a jook joint. Unfortunately, the newspapers in this section of the country have begun to say juke joints. Operators of juke boxes regret this because it tends to tie up the music boxes with the type of location which has always been considered a low-grade spot in this section of the country.

Lexicographers will probably do a lot of arguing as to which is correct, but for many years the spelling has been "jook" in this section of the country. The words are said to be entirely different in their meaning and history.

The question of controlling jook joints is practically State-wide here, and public officials are discussing the angles involved. The chief problem is to prevent minors from attending such places. Plans here include making parents responsible for minors who are out after curfew hours. The necessity of setting curfew hours is having adverse effects on the business of these places.

Slim Turnout for UMO's First Meeting of Year

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—First semi-monthly meeting of the United Music Operators of Michigan for 1943 drew a small attendance despite unusual concern now being felt for the immediate future of the industry because of special wartime operating problems.

A combination of extremely cold weather and post-holiday conditions caused the small attendance. Another important factor was gasoline rationing, which has hit many operators here so severely that they have no gasoline left to attend even trade association sessions. For this reason a strong move is now under way to change the meeting schedule, now on a semi-monthly basis, to monthly, making this session serve for all purposes.

Roy W. Small, conciliator of the UMO, who was expected to make his first appearance at this meeting since his illness, has not recovered as rapidly as anticipated and was unable to leave his home.

feels that economy could be served by combining at least two of the factories and installing more machines.

That would mean, of course, letting some of the employees go.

But—"live and let live," reports Mrs. Knox.

She is proud of the fact that she never cut salaries even in the worst of the depression, that she hasn't had to install time clocks, or lay off any workers, and that "no one ever quits working for me except some of the girls who get married."

The employees, on the other hand, call the Johnstown plant "happiness headquarters." They have two weeks' vacation annually, time off to go to the dentist or doctor, and never lose any pay when they are ill.

She complains she doesn't like to be interviewed. Her associates explain that's because Mrs. Knox is "naturally shy."

New "Old" Tunes

Operators who keep an eye on the new musical films for possible nickel-culling probably won't be too perturbed about the faint cries rising from some sources concerning the necessity for using old disks to fill up their slots. Thanks to at least half a dozen new musicals, tunes that were popular a few seasons back will be new again because of feature spots in these films. With picture and radio plugging, latter already started in some cases, several tunes of recent and not-so-recent vintage may get calls anew from music box customers. To mention just a few, there are Night and Day and One o'Clock Jump from Reveille With Beverly; Cabin in the Sky and Taking a Chance on Love from Cabin in the Sky; Katie Went to Haiti, Do I Love You? and Friendship from DuBarry Was a Lady; a number of Gene Autry favorites from soon-to-be revived Autry operas; Saga of Jenny from Lady in the Dark; the Girl Crazy score and others.

VICTORY SONGS WITHOUT HATE—The Christian Science Monitor recently looked at conditions in the song field and analyzed the failure of our songwriters to turn out large quantities of war tunes. Of course, we hear a lot these days about the failure of our songwriters to produce a suitable war song, and there are some who would bemoan this fact. But, when we think about it a bit, it's a failure to be proud of. For war songs come neither naturally nor easily to songwriters in this peace-loving country.

Music supervisors, music teachers, choral directors and band and orchestra leaders who were delegates to the National Institute of Music Education recently reported that, since there are no textbook songs on the current war, they have had to ask the children to produce their own. From the pupils in the primary grades on up to the high-school boys and girls, their most original compositions prove that love of country is greater than hate of enemy.

We may not have a real war song to rouse our enthusiasm, but we have plenty of "love of country" songs and we should be singing them more often. No, we don't really need a war song. We have enough of a repertoire already. But, should we run out of songs of our own, we might try learning some of those of the United Nations. We'll all be singing together when victory comes.

We were right, for today Little Can't Get Out of This Mood has become a man. To add to the confirmation blessing, it looks as if the man has quite a while to go before reaching senility.

BARON ELLIOTT (Musicraft 15010)

Vos Zokt Eer?—FT; VC. Stardust—FT; VC.

THIS new record label makes a more auspicious bid for attention in the popular record mart with this doubling of a new rhythmic ditty with a novel lyrical twist and an evergreen from the time-tested song folios. Moreover it gives for the first time on wax the smooth and sweetly styled music of Baron Elliott and His Stardust Melodies Orchestra, a favorite for many years in the Pittsburgh territory. Interest in the couplet is centered on the Vos Zokt Eer?, meaning What Do You Say?, penned by Sammy and Dixie Shayer, and having all the song characters of another Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen. It's a typically gay and pleasant Jewish melody set to the bright dance rhythms. And if the title takes hold, has an excellent chance of turning another B.M.B.D.S. trick. Side was waxed many months back by the National label in Pittsburgh. But since that local firm had such limited distribution facilities, the Acme Music Company, publishing the song, bought up the master. Acme sold the master to the Capitol label, and when that new Hollywood firm could not fix a release date, it was bought up again by the music firm and again sold to Musicraft, which should now find a ready market for it. The Elliott band turns in a big-time job, the music making styled in the Guy Lombardo school which is always sure of wide appeal. Taken at a lively medium tempo that is enriched by a natural lift to the tune, the first chorus is carried out by a wah-wah trumpeter and plunger trombones. The Stardust Trio, male voices, take over for a second stanza. The saxes, in the Lombardo tradition, pick it up at the bridge, with the fancy fingerings of the pianist taking over to start another chorus anew. Alto sax brings up the bridge and the ensemble joins in at the last half to finish out the side. Hoagy Carmichael's standard, which also serves as the band's identifying theme, occupies the attention for the mated side. The maestro introduces himself to start the spinning and then rings in a singing song title to set the stage for the opening chorus. Taken at a moderately slow tempo, the sweet saxophones and the staccato-styled trumpeter share the first chorus. Altho the label calls again for the harmonies of the Stardust Trio, it's a solo baritone, and in good voice, bringing up next the vocal refrain. The trumpet, steeped in the "sugar blues" tradition, picks it up again for the last half of the chorus, with the male voice coming in again on the tag line to complete the spinning.

Operators can't afford to overlook the possibilities of this waxing for their phones. Not that the time is ripe for another "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen." But with public fancy for songs being as unpredicated as it is, anything can happen and usually does. And there is every reason to believe there will be much doings once the phono fans start spinning "Vos Zokt Eer?", especially since the music publisher is concentrating all his efforts and energies on the song. Moreover, disk has a desired mated side. A music operator can never go wrong with a "Stardust."

GUIDE—PART ONE

According to The Billboard representatives, who have this past week contacted at least four large automatic phonograph operators in their cities, the records listed below are rapidly gaining in popularity all over the nation, and indications are these records will eventually move into the most-played bracket on the opposite page.

• COMING UP •

JUKE BOX SATURDAY NIGHT GLENN MILLER (Marlon Hutton, Tex Beneke, Modernaires) Victor 20-1509

Another quick-moving Possibility, this Capt. Glenn Miller offering now is in perfect battle position to attack the heights. Success follows the usual explanatory lines: A Miller disk—An entertaining take-off on Harry James and the Ink Spots—Vocal work of Tex Beneke, Miss Hutton and the Modernaires—A rhythm base that pleases any pair of ears, from those of the tavern tippler to the ice-cream parlor stomper. This is one Juke Box that's really earning nickels.

THERE'S A STAR-SPANGLED BANNER WAVING SOMEWHERE.. ELTON BRITT (Elton Britt) Bluebird B-9000

A 21-gun salute to Star-Spangled Banner! Launched way back as a strong hillbilly item, Elton Britt's disk surged into the pop field recently and clambered upward. Perhaps even here it is not truly evaluated, since the aforementioned hillbilly success continues unabated. Bluebird will long remember what Britt did here.

WHY DON'T YOU FALL IN LOVE WITH ME? DICK JURGENS (Harry Cool) Columbia 36643
JOHNNY LONG (Bob Houston-Helen Young) Decca 4375
DINAH SHORE Victor 27970
CONNEE BOSWELL Decca 18483

Just about where it was last week, Why Don't You Fall in Love With Me? shapes up as a fine, steady phono favorite. The many recordings should ease its entry into Going Strong, with one or another of them leading the way. As yet new releases are few and far between, a situation which might make a good thing like Fall in Love much better.

SERENADE IN BLUE GLENN MILLER (Ray Eberle—Modernaires) Victor 27935
BENNY GOODMAN (Dick Haymes) Columbia 36622

With the war proving that old men are still pretty useful fellows in defense plants, we might point to a real old-timer who just doesn't know what the word "quit" is. We're talking about Serenade in Blue, born about the same time as Kalamazoo and At Last but still far from deceased at this writing. Out of respect for age, we propose one rousing cheer for this tenacious ballad.

Double-meaning records are purposely omitted from this column.

I'd Do It Again—FT; VC. The Widow Brown—FT; VC.

As far as it is known, these are the only available waxings of both song titles. As far as musicianship is concerned, they are no better or no worse than the brand of music expounded by the aforementioned and so-called "Emil Davis." I'd Do It Again is the new Taylor-Muzzy ballad that is beginning to attract attention on the air waves, title referring to the conventional "love" theme. Band takes it at a moderate tempo for the opening chorus, and a female voice, billed as "Red Pepper," gives acceptable voice to the lyrics for a second stanza. Band beats out an ensemble sock chorus for half a stanza to finish out the side. The Widow Brown is a rhythmic riff ditty penned several years ago by Bickley Reichner and Gene (5 o'Clock Whistle) Irwin. And as far as it is known, the song is still on the manuscript. Taken at a moderate jump tempo, the band ensemble plays the opening chorus. The quartet, now identified as "The Pepper Quartet," sing of the continual urge to visit the "widow." Saxes pick it up again at the bridge and the voices return for the last half of the chorus to finish it out.

As the song itself gains momentum, this entry of "I'd Do It Again" will have to do for the music operators until the real thing comes along.

Fallsway Coin Moves to New Baltimore Quarters

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Irving Schwartz, trading as the Fallsway Coin Machine Company, music box operator, has moved to new quarters at 823 East Baltimore Street.

While the record shortage has been causing much concern, Schwartz has found it possible to have enough disks to take care of his spots, even tho it has been found necessary to resort to old recordings.

His operation has been showing a steady upward climb and his collections have been registering a gain running up and better than 25 per cent.

West Coast News Notes

By SAM ABBOTT

Of The Billboard Los Angeles Office. Address: 416 W. Eighth Street.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—Man-power and equipment problems got many a jobber down during the week. Getting men for the service departments is proving a big problem with no definite manner of solving it in sight. Not only are the jobbers having this trouble in their service department, but the operator is also facing quite a task of getting help. Jobbers and operators alike have been scouring the countryside for many months picking up pieces of equipment here and there, but these sources of supply are gradually going dry.

There are also shortages of nickels and pennies. Penny Arcade men report that the supply is dwindling, and those who have had good supplies on hand for some time are the ones who aren't suffering. An arcade operator told The Billboard that he had plenty of the coins but that he had had them for several months. "If I had to go out and get them now, I couldn't do it," he said. Operators not so fortunate have been making the rounds of the banks in an effort to get a supply. Those who do not have plenty of pennies are taking to emptying their machines more often in an effort to keep supplying customers.

Shortage of nickels is said to have boosted the 10-cent and 25-cent plays on music machines. Money is plentiful, and the refusal of some spots to supply nickels is not cutting down on the play. If anything, it has increased the play. An operator from some distant point from Los Angeles pleaded with a local firm for nickels recently and was shipped $600 in 5-cent pieces by express. The nickels went out in three bags, each weighing 150 pounds. Location owners are taking their commissions right then and there in an effort to maintain nickels for change. When a serviceman empties, the location owner is there to nab all the coins possible. Some servicemen have had arguments to get the operator's money out of the place in small coins so that other firms that are out can be supplied. Machines with only 5-cent slots are getting a tough break.

Candy machines, other than those supplying war plants and army camps, are becoming a thing of the past. Purchase of candy for spots other than those directly connected with the war effort requires a sugar rationing certificate. This is necessary by the candy maker in reason that the purchase is made more on the basis of the tune's popularity than on the popularity of the band.

White Busses In

Fred White, prominent coin machine operator of Visalia, Calif., gave the boys on West Pico a view of what is happening to the out-of-town operator now. White used to arrive in Los Angeles with his truck and purchase equipment, which was loaded and he went merrily on his way. In town this week to purchase equipment, White arrived and left by bus. The merchandise bought was to follow by freight. Much of his business was transacted at Badger Sales Company. Bill Happel, of Badger, said: "It was funny to see White come in lugging a suit case, but what can he do—he can't travel by truck any more." This incident is also typical of the many operators who are making the best of the situation to continue their businesses. . . . Badger Sales Company received the largest order in its history from Mexico. This order, the largest individual one, requires the shipment of more than 20 phonographs. Papers have already cleared, Happel said, the shipment will be made in a few days. Mexico is going strong with its war program, and Southern California jobbers and distributors are anticipating more large orders from that part of the country. . . . Fred Gaunt and Miss Bennie Stockwell recently visited Gaunt's brother, who is in the arcade business at 29 Palms, Calif.

Buyers in Town

Ken Ferrier, of Oxford, visited the General Music Company to make a good-sized purchase. . . . Del George, of San Bernardino, was also at General to purchase phonographs for Palm Springs locations. When George had made the purchase and was loading the order on a truck, there were three other operators in General to purchase the same order. . . . Miss Floyd Smith is the new secretary at General. . . . Roy Jones, music operator, has sold his business to Harry Greenburg. Jones was in the business for 10 years or more but has been forced to quit the business because of his health. . . . Joe Kirk, of San Bernardino, was in the city looking after some buying business. . . . A. M. Keene, of Taft, was in Los Angeles looking over business matters and spent some time at Charles Washburn's. . . . Fred McKee now makes his headquarters at the Fun Palace, new arcade on South Main Street. Business at the spot is good, too.

Mrs. Hanscom Heads

Mrs. Elmer Hanscom, wife of Elmer Hanscom, well known in carnival arcade circles, was recently inducted as president of the Regular Associated Troupers. . . . Davidson Bros. are adding more candy vending machines to their supply. . . . Paul Butts, of G. & B. Sales Company, Bakersfield, was in the city and put in some time talking to Paul Laymon about what the future holds for this business. . . . C. E. Peverly, of Oxford, was a recent Pico visitor and purchased parts and some arcade equipment. . . . Visitors from Arizona included C. T. Vanderpool, of Tucson, who stopped here for several hours to see what the boys were offering in the coin machine line. . . . Alex Koleopolous, of Bakersfield, reveals that things are clicking in that area. There are several war projects and army camps in the vicinity. Where civilian populations drop off, there's an army set-up to bring the business back to far above the normal point. . . . Roy V. Smith was a Laymon visitor. He spent some time in Los Angeles upon his arrival here from Barstow. He stayed in the city as long as possible and then took a plane to Salt Lake City, where he entered the army. . . . Howard Hong has returned to army camp following a Christmas furlough in Los Angeles. While in L. A. he visited a number of jobber spots for reason that once upon a time Hong was a local operator. . . . James Flannagan, of the Paul Laymon firm, is rightfully proud of his 16-year-old daughter, Virginia, who is making a name for herself in bowling tournaments. She is runner-up in a big shindig that is now being staged in these parts.

Any Portable Radios?

If you have any portable radios around the place that you don't use, send them to Bert Beutler at the Paul Laymon firm on West Pico. He is collecting portables for the Naval Hospital and is leaving soon with a few that generous friends have already contributed to entertain the boys in service. . . . Frank Root, formerly of Lancaster, Calif., is now operating in Visalia. Business is good there and he reports that things are going great guns. While in this area Root hid himself away in Hollywood and none of his many friends had the opportunity to talk to him except by telephone. He promised that he'd be back in these parts before long and would pay each a personal call. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gordon, of San Diego, were guests of the Paul Laymons. Gordon is installing a skooter ride in San Diego for the boys in service. Ride was purchased in New York.

Buy by Telephone

With the gas rationing making unnecessary travel out of the question, several jobbers in this vicinity have set up services to supply those who order either by telephone or mail. Orders are shipped the same day as received. One of the jobbers who has increased business in this manner is Paul Laymon, who is devoting much time to this special service. Operators are being forced to stick close to their business because of man-power shortage and curtailment of traveling. Because of this reason more than any other, the phone and mail-order business is booming. Jobbers maintaining the service are doing a good job of rushing things to their customers.

MUSIC IN THE NEWS

singers that many a person has paid $10 to hear on the opera stage!

The News arrived at three conclusions that might lead to this situation. First, the musical appreciation of the Chicago man in the street is distinctly limited. Another reason is that it may be he can't get his hands out of his pockets on these wintry days. And still another reason—irreverent thought that it is—might be that grand opera stars don't sound impressive minus stage trappings, orchestra and press-agent build-up.

RECORD BUYING GUIDE-PART 2

• POSSIBILITIES •

These Records and Songs show indications of becoming Future Nationwide Hits in Automatic Phonographs. Selections are based upon Radio Performances, Sheet Music Sales, Information from Music Publishers on the relative Importance of Songs in their Catalogs and upon the judgment of The Billboard's Music Department.

NOTE

The coming negotiations between AFM and the recording companies will probably hasten the tempo of new releases. This week, however, no issue came out that hasn't been discussed in this space previously.

Next week RCA-Victor will brighten up the operator picture somewhat by putting out a new Glenn Miller coupling of That Old Black Magic and Pink Cocktail for a Blue Lady.

Columbia will hold back its latest stuff until early February, while Decca will follow the schedule outlined last week.

• THE WEEK'S BEST RELEASES •

These Records have the Strongest Chance for Success among the Past Week's Releases by the Record Companies. Selections are based upon Commercial rather than Musical Value. These are not definite predictions, but merely the opinions of The Billboard's Music Department.

IT STARTED ALL OVER TOMMY DORSEY (Frank Sinatra and AGAIN The Pied Pipers) Victor 20-1522

Music operators can start all over again coining in on this side as they are doing with There Are Such Things. It's the same type of love ballad, played in the lush, romantic setting that has long rated a Dorsey ballad-interpretation as tops. Combination of the voices of Frank Sinatra and Pied Pipers and the maestro's own silky trombone slidings is extremely difficult for any phono fan to resist. Clinching sure-fire phono possibility is the fact that tune will be highlighted by Dorsey as a "Hit To Be for '43" in this Sunday's (24) American Weekly, in which the cover and second page of the newspaper supplement devoted to Dorsey and the song. Disk is designed for double duty, Mandy, Make Up Your Mind, the plattermate, affording a sock instrumental classic that should prove plenty solid for the coin-catching.

VOS ZOKT EER BARON ELLIOTT (Stardust Trio) Muscraft 15010

A kindred ditty to Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen, this has the melodic and lyrical appeal needed to duplicate the latter's success. The song publisher has made a major campaign on the tune, and now with a highly acceptable disk entry, Vos Zokt Eer should pay off big dividends for the music operators. Baron Elliott, a name to reckon with among music makers in the Pittsburgh territory, turns in a big-time job on the ditty, both instrumentally and vocally. Band is styled in the Guy Lombardo school, which is always sure to appeal to a wide audience. Plattermate is the everlasting Stardust; an operator can never go wrong with the Hoagy Carmichael classic.

Names in parentheses indicate vocalists.

TALENT and TUNES ON MUSIC MACHINES

A column of music information for phonograph operators. The Billboard's Annual Talent and Tunes Supplement is issued the last week in September each year.

By JOSEPH R. CARLTON

RECORD shortage in Buffalo is really getting acute, according to James Greenville, of the Greenville Music Company in that city. "It is hardly a matter of what is going over on the machines," says Greenville, "but rather a matter of what is available. Buffalo operators are forced to make use of every single thing out on the market, even if under ordinary circumstances a given number would receive many a tumble. It is somewhat difficult, therefore to say that some numbers are better than others, altho there is a slight preference still being shown for certain recordings. On the whole the public has been quite understanding; despite the lack of record variety, play on the machines hasn't diminished greatly." . . . Similar situation exists down in Little Rock, Ark., where all operators are resorting to ancient disks, one leading coinman using waxings that are four or five years old. . . . After a year of getting places without any more help than sheer merit affords, "Ves Zokt Eer," the sheet-music seller by Sammy and Dixie Shayer, has finally been recorded. Musicraft is releasing the waxing, which was cut pre-Petrillo by Barron Elliott's band. Tune looked to be taken up by Capitol Records for a while, but Musicraft apparently took speedier action. If latter's distribution can attain reasonable dimensions, record might mean something in phonodom. Reverse side bears the standard "Stardust." . . . Abe Lyman opened with his brand new band at the Hotel Lincoln, New York, January 15. Once disk companies settle dispute with AFM, or vice versa, Bluebird label should accord Lyman lots of opportunity to show off his latest aggregation. . . . Freddy Martin and Dinah Shore signed for United Artists' "Stage Door Canteen." Martin also replaces Phil Harris in Universal's "What Buzzin' Cousin?"

Territorial Favorites

DENVER:

For Me and My Gal. Guy Lombardo. When the For Me and My Gal pic popped up on the scene, recordings of the title tune gained attention. It is surprising, tho, that Denver folks exert a preference for an old version, Decca's re-issue of Guy Lombardo's waxing. This despite Victor's more recent coupling of Judy Garland and Gene Kelly, both starred in the film. At any rate chalk up another score for the "sweetest music" maestro and think of My Gal when said screening takes place in your territories.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.:

Boogie Woogie. Tommy Dorsey

What the shortage of new releases is doing to operators! Not that TD's bit of thumper-jumper music isn't a neat little nickel nibbler, but in the conventional saga of pop disks a platter as old as this one shouldn't suddenly write new chapters. Then again there is magic in the Dorsey name, and operators going thru libraries could do a lot worse than follow Knoxville's form. Customers may like the idea of getting a pleasurable ride without antagonizing OPA.

LOS ANGELES:

Every Night About This Time. Kay Kyser.

Making only a mild impression on the all-over machine picture, Every Night About This Time has appeared regularly as a territorial fave. Interest generally is divided between the Kay Kyser and Ink Spots recordings. Ink Spots version has carried a lot of weight in Negro locations as well as copping off top spots on the Harlem Hit Parade, but Kyser's side probably would sell better in less languorous atmospheres.

Note

For a comparative listing of songs played most often over the radio for the week ended Thursday, January 14, and the week previous, ended January 7, see the Music Popularity Chart in the Music Department, this issue.

Operators with machines in Negro locations will also find that the Popularity Chart presents a valuable listing of the sepias best sellers under Harlem Hit Parade.

dealing with the current gas and tire rationing. They're timely — and they're also extremely amusing. The side is sure-fire, and it's backed by another winner, I'm Goin' Back is the doleful tale of a farm boy who got taken in the big city; it is a thoroly amusing lyric, fitted to an excellent and catchy tune. Mare will probably get most of the play, but both sides are potential nickel-pullers. Both are treated in Robison's well known and always excellent vocal style, with fine musical backing of Johnny Call, banjo, and Frank Novak, accordion. Robison himself wrote both the numbers.

Letter Box

As usual, Elton Britt's There's a Star-Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere leads the lists by a wide margin. It's still maintaining its terrific pace, blanketing some towns completely, and gaining more and more mentions on the regular pop lists received from metropolitan centers. It bids fair to become one of the top recording sensations of years, all fields included. . . . It is also increasingly carrying along with it Britt's other extremely popular waxing, I Hung My Head and Cried, which is getting more and more mentions each week. It seems currently to be most popular thru the Midwest. . . . The past week's letters and listings reveal an upsurge of Bob Wills's recordings thruout the country. Featured in the mentions are many Wills's waxings, and all sections are included in the reports. Leader among the Wills's entrants is currently Please Don't Leave Me, one of his latest; but others of the Wills's stable getting prominent mentions include My Confession, There's Going To Be a Party, If I Could Bring Back My Buddy and Lone Star Rag. . . . For the first week in many, many months, Gene Autry's Tweedle-o-Twill failed to grab off prominent mentions, at least on the reports received. On the other hand, excellent plugs were turned in for a couple of other Autry waxings, Yesterday's Roses and Be Honest With Me. . . . The Milwaukee territory, which seems to be phenomenally faithful to a favorite polka when it finds one, is still pouring out plenty of nickels to hear the Plehal Brothers' version of Happy Hour Polka. . . . Down around Knoxville they're giving a heavy play to Louise Massey's Honey, I'm in Love With You.

Has Every Disk Bought For Years; Sets Pretty During Ban on Recording

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 16.—Unlike many operators who formerly sold their used records on bargain counters at 10 and 15 cents each, George McDade, operator of the Tennessee Automatic Amusement Company here, has always stood by a firm conviction never to sell an old disk.

Today, with new records hard to get, McDade has a library of 15,000 records—most of them with plenty of "tread" left on the wax.

"I always had an idea that a day like this was coming," McDade said proudly. "Now it's here and I am cashing in on it. With the exception of the broken and worn-out records I've turned in for scrap, I've got the first and every record I ever bought."

And the operator's policy of keeping the old ones has brought on a sensational revival here of seven and eight-year-old releases. Some of the orchestras and singers that McDade's boxes now feature have dropped out of the limelight long since.

"Why, such tunes as Sixty Seconds Got Together and Just a Kid Named Joe by the Mills Brothers are on my going strong list nowadays," McDade said. "The Harlem Hamfats are riding the crest of popularity again. Old numbers by Chic Webb and Louis Armstrong are favorites. Georgia White's blues singing is getting plenty of play. Two other best sellers are Bob Crosby's Sugat Foot Stomp and Russian Sailor's Dance. Then there's Josephine. It's had a spot on my boxes ever since it came out. It's not on my going down list yet."

There's just one catch to this revival idea, McDade says.

"Sometimes you just have one or two records of an old favorite," he warns. "You put them in one or two locations. They make a hit. Then the operator of a location a half mile up the highway hears about it. He wants to know why he can't have one too. Usually the number isn't being made any longer and the location operator actually gets half sore because you can't supply him."

Candy Makers Ask Chocolate

Suggest that chocolate is more important for candy than to ice-cream trade

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—Much interest is manifested here by vending machine operators in the efforts of the Wholesale Confectioners' Association to insure priorities on chocolate for candy manufacturers. Confectioners are urging ice-cream manufacturers and bakers to do without chocolate so that candy makers can maintain production. H. G. Totten, of the association, points out that not only is chocolate extremely vital to the confectioners, but that candy is also a food and as such is vital to the public morale.

"When Britain was in a war apathy a year or two ago," said Totten, "George Bernard Shaw said the way to get an Englishman fighting mad with the Germans was to restrict his tea drinking. So maybe the rationing of ice cream will have the same effect on Americans, especially Philadelphians, who eat more ice cream than any other people in the world. And now ice cream is to be rationed. And the flavors are to be chocolate, vanilla, strawberry, etc., six in all.

"Milk chocolate has been substituted for chocolate for many months. But why use chocolate as an ice-cream flavor at all? Let the candy man have all the chocolate. It is absolutely essential to the conduct of his business. At least 70 per cent of all candies are either chocolate or milk chocolate bars or the candies are chocolate coated or filled. There is really no substitute for chocolate in the candy business. But the ice-cream makers and the bakers can get along very well with other flavors.

"Chocolate and candy are really synonymous words. Already the candy manufacturers have had to cut their output by 35 per cent because of the rationing of sugar and chocolate, as well as the shortage in nuts and other ingredients cut off by the war."

Baltimore Cig Operators Cut Commission $\frac{1}{4}$ Cent

Move necessitated by new excise tax—price still 15 cents as penny shortage makes retail price boost impossible—free matches cut out

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Increased cost of cigarettes due to the new excise tax recently enacted by Congress has been responsible for vending machine operators here seeking to find some way of obtaining this tax on cigarettes sold thru vending machines without boosting the selling price. They have found it impracticable to raise the price to 16 cents, since the banks are unable to supply the large number of pennies needed to make change. Operators also found it impossible to absorb the tax themselves. At a recent operators' meeting it was decided to reduce the commission paid to locations one-fourth cent, which in effect means reinstatement of the policy of a year ago. At that time it was necessary to raise the commission because of the price-cutting policies of some operators.

The operators have also decided to eliminate giving out free matches with the cigarettes but have made arrangements with the locations to sell matches to persons buying cigarettes thru vending machines.

Notices have been posted on the vending machines that, altho the ceiling price on cigarettes is 16 cents, the price of cigarettes thru the vending machines is still 15 cents. The notice further states that due to the increase in the price of cigarettes it has been necessary to eliminate the free matches. However, books of matches may be purchased for 1 cent in the store where the machine is located.

Canada Ceilings For Soft Drinks Allow for Taxes

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—The Prices Board of Canada recently established a ceiling price for soft drinks at 7 cents for 6 to 13-counce drinks. The board also set deposit charges for bottles in order to secure the return of empties. Manufacturers are also limited to six flavors of soft drinks.

The tax-included price for retail sales is fixed as follows: 7 cents for bottled drinks. Restaurants may sell it at their basic period prices if they can prove that such were more than 7 cents, but these must not exceed 10 cents. Fountains may charge 8 cents per glass for 5 to 8 ounces and 10 cents per glass for drinks not over 12 ounces. A report from the province of Quebec said that popular soft drinks would remain at 8 cents there due to previous price standards and also because the province collects a tax on soft drinks. The national order permits adding this tax to the price of drinks.

Bottled soft drinks or fountain drinks sold at retail on any train or in any hotel, cabaret or amusement park; bottled soft drinks having a capacity of more than 18 fluid ounces; soft drinks sold at retail by any person whose place of business is remote from the usual sources of supply, and sales of bottled soft drinks in "carry-home" cartons.

Manufacturers must continue to offer the same or larger amounts of beverage for the same prices as in the basic period.

The current order provides that on and after January 18 a deposit charge of 3 cents will be levied by every manufacturer or wholesaler for all bottles supplied to retailers, and by all retailers for bottles which patrons take out.

This amount applies only to bottles of 6 to 18 fluid ounces capacity, and if a higher deposit amount was charged during the basic period it must be maintained.

For larger bottles, a deposit of 5 cents is required. The amount of each deposit must be refunded by the holder to the person returning the bottles for which the deposit was made.

Cig Tax for Delaware?

Legislature seeks to levy 2 cents per pack tax effective June 1

DOVER, Del., Jan. 16.—Delaware joined the parade of States that will consider proposals for taxing cigarettes this year. It is expected that many State legislatures will consider this question in order to make up for decreasing revenues on gasoline. The Legislature convened January 5, and the governor on the third day recommended that the Legislature try to increase State revenues by $3,000,000.

A bill was introduced to place a tax on cigarettes at the rate of 1 cent per 10 or fewer cigarettes. This would be at the rate of 2 cents per standard pack. The tax would take effect June 1, 1943, if it passes. It is understood that the State administration approves this bill.

Exceptions Made

The bill would exclude, however, cigarettes not within the taxing power of the State, under the commerce clause of the federal Constitution and sales made to or by a voluntary organization of army or navy personnel.

WPB Cites Bottler For Cap Overuse

ATLANTA, Jan. 16.—The Columbia (Ga.) State reported that Harry S. Moyer, regional compliance chief with the WPB, stated a suspension order had been issued against Isadore Christ, operator of Smile Beverage Company at Charleston, S. C., after the firm used metal bottle caps in excess of its quota for June to September, 1942. This is the first case of this kind to come to our attention.

In penalty for violation of WPB conservation order M-104, Smile Beverage Company's use of metal bottle caps will be reduced by 1,550 gross during the first nine months of 1943, Moyer said.

The suspension order declared the company had used during the months of June, July, August and September, 1942, approximately 1,550 gross of metal bottle caps in excess of its permissible quota under the conservation order.

"Christ was not fully familiar with the terms of conservation order M-104," the suspension order said, "but knew that such an order existed and that I restricted his permitted consumption of metal closures. His failure to ascertain the restrictions placed upon his business was grossly negligent and . . . constituted a willful violation of the order."

Popcorn Men Form Group

Growers, processors and makers of machines meet in Chicago to organize for mutual benefit

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—For the first time in the history of the country's popcorn industry the various branches of the trade have united in the formation of a trade association, to be known as the National Popcorn Association. The movement enlists growers, processors and manufacturers, having its inception at a preliminary conference held December 16 at Wall Lake, Ia., a town that is in the center of one of the largest popcorn-growing sections in the nation.

On January 5 and 6 there was a meeting in Chicago at the Graemere Hotel bringing together the various elements in the industry. There was a luncheon at the hotel on January 5, at which C. W. Erne, prominent member of the trade from Wall Lake, Ia., presided. He was subsequently elected president of the new organization. The principal speaker at the afternoon meeting was W. T. Hawkins, of Confections, Inc., Chicago, who pointed out the need for concerted action for preservation of the industry and urged immediate action in the formation of the organization.

Another speaker was A. L. Stang, an official of the Crackerjack Company, Chicago, and also at the present time treasurer of the National Confectioners' Association.

It was made clear by various speakers that the formation of an aggressive trade association had been made imperative by the danger that the industry might be seriously hampered and even destroyed if federal officials fail to recognize it as an essential industry. It was stated that there is a decided lack of appreciation in many quarters as to the importance and magnitude of this business. Sponsors of the association have compiled figures and other statistical data revealing that the annual volume in dollars and cents runs into very large figures, and there is a very large investment in equipment to process and market it. Unless there is concerted action it is conceivable that such a product might be crowded out of the picture in this war period.

It is planned that a committee from the association will present the statistical picture as to normal acreage and production volume, with other pertinent data, to officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, so that popcorn may be declared an essential food item and its production continued. There is said to be much data of record pertaining to the high nutritive value of popcorn. Another question of prime importance has to do with transportation in wartime, because obviously if the crop cannot be moved into trade channels, it would be almost a total loss.

Colleges Represented

An interesting angle of the two organizations was that the one at Wall Lake, Ia., was attended by Professor Eldredge, of Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., while at the Chicago meeting Purdue University was represented by a member of its faculty, Professor Bronson. Both instructors spoke at the respective meetings and evidenced unusual interest in the movement.

Altho wartime is perhaps not the most favorable time to educate the public, it is anticipated that one function of the (See POPCORN MEN on page 72)

CELLOPHANE USE CURTAILED.—Because the armed forces need more cellophane and chemicals necessary to its production, the War Production Board announced today that the use of cellophane for civilian use would be further curtailed.

Among the current civilian uses of cellophane which will be reduced or stopped are milk-bottle wraps, candy-box wraps, condiments, sugar, flour and unshelled nuts. Cellophane, however, may still be used as a candy wrap where it is used as a protection and not merely as an overwrap.

Tobacco products manufacturers were also ordered by the WPB to cut their use of cellophane 10 per cent below the levels established by previous curtailments. Inventories of cellophane are restricted to a 45-day supply.

SIXTY PER CENT OF CHOCOLATE.—Chocolate manufacturers are supplying the candy, ice-cream and other industries with chocolate products for the first quarter of 1943 up to 60 per cent of amounts used in the first quarter of 1941. This action is being taken by all chocolate manufacturers in the absence of any official order from the WPB.

WIDE BASE RIMS ADD MILES.—According to experiments conducted by Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, truck owners can add extra miles to their tires by replacing conventional size rims with wide base rims. Tests made showed an average increase of 20 per cent in tire life when rims wider than conventional sizes were used.

The wide-base rim gives a tire a "U" instead of an "O" cross section. This tends to increase stability of the tire, which reduces flexing and prolongs the life of the casing.

CIGARETTE PRODUCTION IN '42.—Cigarette production skyrocketed in 1942 and may have reached the staggering total of 240,000,000,000 by the time all the figures are in. Going up from 180,000,000,000 in 1940, the increase is in spite of the fact that the war has taken the metal foil and, theoretically at least, made for a drier smoke.

Now glycerin (which is used in the cigarette itself to make it moist) is needed in greater quantities for explosives, and cellophane shortages loom severely. Outlook for 1943: dried smokes, greater production.

SOLDIERS' SWEET TEETH.—According to the January issue of Advertising & Selling, the chewing-gum industry produced 15,000,000 sticks of gum in 1942 (about the same as 1941) in spite of its raw material difficulties. The industry collected $140,000,000 from U. S. chewers and ended the year with a shortage of its products on retailers' shelves and in station slot machines. Reason: Uncle Sam's fighter has a sweet tooth, buys a tremendous amount of the stuff. With gum hard to get, soldiers and sailors last month turned to buying candy and have completely denuded a large number of confection counters, giving retailers a second shortage to worry about.

TUT! TUT!—NO MORE CINNAMON.—Altho civilians can spice their foods with more cloves and ginger, they must cut down further on cinnamon. The WPB said improved imports permitted it to increase the quota on cloves from 90 to 100 per cent of 1941 levels and to boost the ginger quota from 100 to 115 per cent, but the cinnamon quota has been cut from 60 to 50 per cent of 1941 amounts.

No change has been made in quotas for other spices.

NEW WAR CASUALTY.—The latest war casualty is the 5-cent chocolate bar. A prominent manufacturer announced recently that because of the overwhelming demands for chocolate from the armed forces, it was found necessary to call a halt to civilian distribution of milk and other chocolate bars—at least for the present. Accordingly, this manufacturer canceled all orders on hand and advised his customers that no orders would be received for delivery in January.

CIGARETTE NEWS ABROAD.—Cigarettes in Ireland are growing scarcer despite the fact that manufacturers are doing their utmost to meet demands. The shortage is explained by the present ban on exports from Great Britain of all cigarettes and tobaccos. One effect of this ban by the English authorities is that Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes may become unobtainable.

The French have been informed that the price of tobacco has again been increased, even tho they are restricted to only four cigarettes daily. Thus France is gradually realizing what total Nazi occupation means.

According to recent Axis press reports, cigarettes, cigars and pipe tobacco are still available in Italy and are not rationed. You can believe this if you like, but it sounds more than a little phony.

An officer stationed abroad who has been receiving cigarettes from his friends in the States has offered them an interesting proposition. He has asked them how they would like to send him one carton of cigarettes for each Jap—and he wants to know where they want the Jap bodies sent.

According to an American soldier in London, the cigarette famine in that city has considerably increased the incomes of porters and commissioners of blocks of flats there. Members of the night staffs spend part of their time, during the day, hunting cigarettes for tenants on a contract basis. A package of 20 is delivered to a tenant at breakfast for an additional cost of 12 cents. These persons average from $10 to $12 net profits on their purchases, he said.

SUGAR SUBSTITUTE.—New recruit on the sugar substitute list is apple syrup. Researchers have developed a sweet, bland product, colorless and without distinctive flavor.

It can be used for industrial and confectionery purposes and is reported to be especially suitable for ice creams and candy. Bruised or otherwise unmarketable fruit can be used.

TOBACCO CURB EXTENDED.—A small 1942 burley tobacco crop and increased demand has caused the OPA to broaden its control over burley.

The new amendment, effective January 12, provides that no burley can be bought before it has been graded by the Agricultural Marketing Administration. OPA made specific provision for sales thru dealers or speculators and extended the time for reporting all purchases from one week to two. This amendment has been necessary because buyers have been going directly to farms and purchasing there, where the market controls did not hold.

VANILLA CROP OVER-ESTIMATED.—There is a demand for new crop Mexican vanilla beans for the tobacco manufacturing trade, but trade factors say they do not believe the crop is as large as early estimates had indicated. New crop, according to reports, is completed, but there are comparatively few sellers of green beans.

Import licenses are being granted by the War Production Board, but in the case of Bourbon beans it will probably be many months before sufficient steamer space is available to import beans from Madagascar.

NEW ANGLES FOR ADS.—Several of the power companies of Illinois have united in giving publicity to their product as shown by the fact that they are packing the army emergency rations. The ad pictures the items in Ration K, which include two ounces of chocolate for energy, cigarettes for a satisfying smoke, and chewing gum for thirst and tension.

Tastyeast, a product which has been on the market for some time, is right on its toes when it comes to advertising. The wrapper on its product advertises the fact that it contains vitamin B-1, which is the newest vitamin to be boosted by doctors.

CIGARETTE PRICE BOOST DENIED.—A spokesman for the OPA recently said that there have been appeals to the agency from cigarette industry for an increase in cigarette prices, but that no increase will be considered at this time. An increase, it was explained, would involve a resurvey of the major cigarette companies' cost and prices it was said, and OPA would not make such a survey until companies have bought all of their tobacco for the current season. When this buying is completed, which will not be for several weeks, OPA may consider undertaking a survey to determine whether a price increase is warranted.

PEANUT CEILING.—The Office of Price Administration has issued a temporary 60-day price ceiling on shelled peanuts, salted peanuts and peanut butter, which went into effect December 29.

This order established ceilings at each individual seller's peak sales during the period from December 19 to 23 inclusive. For shelled peanuts the highest contract made for either immediate or future delivery during the period of December 19-23 set the maximum price, while for peanut butter and salted peanuts the highest price received on delivery actually made during this period prevails.

In line with this order, most quotations on finished goods are now being made at ceiling levels.

CHICAGO. Jan. 16.—Sales of peanuts were reported at the sellers' individual ceiling levels, while most buyers of pecans and walnuts were taking inventory, which restricted volume. Prices were maintained at the preceding levels. Local sources expect a larger amount of supplies to be available next week.

The Peanut Situation

To prices quoted must be added freight, shelling, shrinkage in cooking, salting and one-half cent a pound profit for the salter.

RICHMOND, Va. Jan. 16.—The peanut market during recent weeks has been rather unsettled in all sections, altho prices are somewhat higher on both farmers' stock and finished goods. Weather conditions have been retarding picking and marketing of peanuts, especially in the Virginia area. This factor has contributed to a stronger market situation for farmers' stock Virginia Goobers. An unusually strong market is apparent for Virginia finished goods and for all grades of shelled peanuts in the Southeast. Available stocks, however, are light in all areas.

In the Virginia-Carolina area, shellers are paying from 6½ cents to 8½ cents for the best Jumbos, with most of the sales at the 8½-cent price. Medium Jumbos are bringing between 8 to 8½ cents. Best bunch grades are selling for 8½ to 9½ cents, with the medium grades bringing about 7½ to 8 cents. The best shelling stock is selling mostly around 8 cents, with medium grades bringing 7½ to 7¾ cents.

Farmers in the Southeastern area still continue to hold back quota peanuts, and offerings are rather light on the markets. Farmers' Stock Spanish U. S. No. 1 peanuts are bringing between $175 and $190 per ton, with most sales ranging from $180 to $185. Runners U. S. No. 1 stock is selling for $150 to $165, with very few sales falling below $155.

In the Southwestern section Spanish U. S. No. 1 stock is selling generally for $151 per ton.

acreage and production of peanuts shows an after-harvest estimate of peanuts picked and threshed from the 1942 crop of slightly over 2,500,000,000 pounds. This is 70 per cent larger than last year's record crop. The greatest increase was in the Southwest and the smallest in the Virginia-Carolina area.

For the country as a whole the acreage was slightly under 3,700,000 acres picked and threshed. While this was nearly double the 1941 acreage, it fell substantially below the 5,000,000 acres which had been hoped for. However, the 6,000,000-acre total was reached if one adds in the 1,400,000 acres that were hogged off or grazed, which was also a new record for this purpose.

Oberstein Gains; Union Wonders and Public Buys Disks

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Local 302 of the AFM still holds Eli Oberstein's request on information pertaining to Oberstein's proposal for his resignation from the union. Meanwhile, Oberstein's story that eight Mexican masters cover all Hit releases is under fire. The record exec had promised to tell all about these masters, but as yet there has been no word received by the union relative to the matter. AFM claims that Hit releases seem to number more than could be covered by the eight masters.

Also under fire are names used in connection with the recordings. One Peter Piper is on the union rolls as

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Eli Oberstein's Classic Record Company has been edging its way into the local dealer scene and is now becoming a promising contender in the retail field. Deals have been worked with several large department stores for advertising promotion and lavish counter displays. Aiding the Classic label's progress is their ability to supply records while the Big 3 languishes under the lash of the recording ban.

Classic has been the only company to release recordings of some of the current hits which, it is claimed, were recorded in Mexico. More lavish counter space and inability to obtain recordings by better known recording artists has broken down any disinclination on the part of patrons to accept the comparatively little known Hit label.

Coin Machine Tax Returns Fall Below 1942 in So. Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 16.—The State Legislature convened here January 12, and most predictions were for a short session. This is the 85th session of the Legislature, and there are about 170 members in the present body.

The new governor takes the oath of office January 19 and has promised not to introduce any controversial issues. Leaders in the assembly hope for a session of less than 40 days.

The State has a $4,000,000 surplus in the treasury, and this may be a cause for some arguments. The State treasury reported that 1942 was a very erratic year in collecting taxes. Gasoline tax was the major revenue source and this began to drop when gas rationing was put into effect.

The State Tax Commission has anticipated a decline in revenue from the soft drink tax. The State fee on soft drinks is 1 cent a bottle. State officials said that bottlers had shown a tendency to reduce from 12-ounce size to six-ounce bottles, which had resulted in more bottles being sold, and that helped the State revenue.

An important section of the State financial report said that the tax on coin-operated machines brought in less revenue in 1942 than in the previous year. The report stated frankly that this drop in coin machine revenue was because no new machines were being made and repair parts were hard to get. This is said to be the second State that has reported a decrease in coin machine revenue. This trend in State tax receipts on coin machines is being watched carefully, because the federal excise tax on such machines was expected to reduce the total number in operation.

60-Day Ceiling On Peanuts Now

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—To prevent "further sharp speculative advances" in prices of shelled peanuts, salted peanuts and peanut butter, exempt from price control since July 29, the Office of Price Administration clamped temporary 60-day ceilings on these products at each individual seller's peak sales figure during December 19-23, 1942. Temporary price regulation No. 23 became effective December 29 and applies to sales of these commodities by all processors, wholesalers and retailers.

Prices of shelled peanuts have risen to a point where they now reflect more than 100 per cent of parity to the grower on the raw product. Hence, temporary ceiling has been established terminating February 26, and in the next two months OPA will conduct studies and will consult with the industry on a permanent regulation. This may follow the pattern of recent OPA food regulations, embodying specific dollars and cents ceiling prices at the manufacturer level, with fixed margins for various classes of wholesale houses and retail stores.

Exempt from the temporary order are: (1) Sales or deliveries of peanuts for oil; (2) sales or deliveries of raw shelled peanuts from the 1941 crop, which still remains under the general maximum price regulation, and (3) sales or deliveries made directly by any farmer of shelled peanuts, salted peanuts or peanut butter grown and processed on his farm.

Tenn. Governor Addresses Opening of Legislature

NASHVILLE, Jan. 16.—Governor Cooper appeared personally before a joint session of both houses of the Legislature here on the opening day. His address to the legislators lasted for about 30 minutes, during which he made his general recommendations for legislation desired.

Among other things, Governor Cooper asked for an increase in the State liquor tax. He said the State should make an effort to increase the revenues for the State old-age pensions. He asked for a short and businesslike session of the Legislature and that consideration be given to revenue needs of the State.

The State debt is being gradually cut down, and he feels this can be continued during the next four years.

Senator Proposes That Banks Aid Small Firms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Senator Patman, of Texas, head of the special House Committee on Small Business, has made a proposal to require Federal Reserve banks to come to the aid of cities and States confronted with decreased revenues at the present time.

He gave out some figures on State and city finances. He estimates that State governments now owe a total of about $3,500,000,000; county governments in the United States owe about $2,500,000,000; cities probably owe a total of $10,000,000,000. There are other government debts that would add another $4,000,000,000.

Expectations in general are that States and cities will soon begin to find their revenues seriously decreased, and the proposal would promise relief to these governing agencies just as the federal government is now being aided by banks, especially the reserve banks. The proposal would require Federal Reserve banks to hold the State and city obligations until the war is over.

Senator Patman may also propose that the federal government lend some of the revenue collected from gasoline taxes to States and cities.

USO Centers Now Total 1,162 and Still Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A report on USO centers in the United States made public here this week says that such centers are keeping pace with the needs of the nation's armed forces.

The USO has increased its clubs and special centers from 526 to 1,162 during the past year. This represents an average monthly increase of 53 centers. The report states that total attendance at USO clubs is now about 10,000,000 a month, contrasted to 2,000,000 at the beginning of the year.

USO clubs have been located in 218 cities and towns in 45 States, and they are spreading out to 490 other communities, which will include 47 States.

USO clubs are also being established in 56 cities and towns outside the limits of the United States.

Price Ceiling on Sirup

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Office of Price Administration December 28 announced dollars and cents price ceilings on sugar cane sirup.

The action raises the retail ceiling prices for Georgia (or country-type) cane sirup approximately 18 cents per gallon to cover increased costs. The OPA also set ceilings on Louisiana or (large mill type) cane sirup, but there will be no general increase in retail costs.

The retail cost to the consumer of a No. 10 size tin of Georgia-type cane sirup—containing about a week's supply for the average family—will be about $1.10 after the adjustments are made.

See Bleak Year for Small Stores; Seek Government Assistance

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Small stores may expect a bleak year in 1943 unless the federal government hastens to give some sort of aid, according to a front-page feature story in The Chicago Journal of Commerce January 11. The feature report was made by A. A. Imberman, who emphasized some of the trends that have been featured in many surveys in recent months.

The story in The Journal is part of a general campaign to call attention to the plight of small establishments. The United States Department of Commerce was one of the first government agencies to call attention to the serious trends. The government agency made the prediction that from 300,000 to 400,000 small stores might close during 1943 unless the adverse business trends were reversed.

The coin machine industry has been deeply concerned by this trend so adverse to small stores because it is these stores that provide the great bulk of locations with coin machines of all types.

The Chicago newspaper stresses the effects of rationing and shortages of food on grocery stores. The prediction is made that many of these small grocery stores will close up during the present year. Shortages of help, increases in rent, higher taxes and all of the other trends common to wartime are said to be factors in the present difficulties of small stores.

The article mentions that concentration of industry due to war production programs is having its effects on small stores. The trend toward concentration is helping the larger stores, and small stores in many areas are finding their customers going elsewhere to find work.

The article recounts some of the things that have happened in England, stressing particularly that the government passed an Act in 1941 which was meant to protect small business firms. The article states that the English law did not go far enough to prevent the closing of many small stores. It is by observing trends in England that many business leaders have predicted that similar conditions will happen in this country as the war goes on.

There are a number of committees and government agencies, however, that are working hard on trying to find some plan to save small stores in the United States.

Tennessee Law Makers Convene

NASHVILLE, Jan. 16.—The Tennessee Legislature convened January 4 and soon received its general appropriation bill. The State follows the practice of combining its appropriations and taxes into one omnibus bill, which forms a volume of considerable size. Any proposals for taxing coin machines usually show up as a section of this large bill.

The bill calls for $25,164,862 for the fiscal year ending in 1944. This is an increase of more than $3,000,000 over the last appropriation bill.

The State financial report showed that for the calendar year of 1942 State revenue increased more than $3,000,000. The revenue from gasoline began to drop during the year.

One of the proposals coming before the Legislature would raise the taxes on liquor.

Parking Meters Big Biz in Milwaukee

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Parking meters again were in the news here when the city treasury reported that parking meters have put into the city coffers a total of $404,998 since they were installed in April, 1940. The meters were installed with the idea of furnishing support for the police and fire departments.

Meters are now getting attention in many cities because they are a quick way to judge how fast gas rationing is cutting down automobile traffic. December receipts here fell nearly $2,000 below receipts for the same month in 1941.

The meters were installed in 1940, and in 1941 they showed a considerable gain over the first year. The total receipts for 1942 were above those of 1941, but the last month indicated a very rapid drop in meter collections.

New York State Profits by Good Pari-Mutuel Biz

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—While reports on the racing season are being made on a national scale, New York State is also considering how well it fared from the past racing season.

Reports show that New Yorkers bet $175,158,000 thru pari-mutuel machines. This was said to be a third of all the money bet legally on horses in the 21 States that now have legal racing.

New York tracks contributed 30 per cent of the total amount raised to war chests. The State gets a little more than $10,000,000 in racing taxes. This is said to be about 35 times as much as the State got from its semi-legal bookie joints nine years ago, when an attempt was made to collect taxes on bookies. It is said to be a good argument for pari-mutuel machines.

One of the mysteries about the check on the racing season is the large number of mutuel tickets that were never cashed. Total value of these uncashed checks is said to be about $88,000.

On races this year the State treasury will get 6 per cent and the operators 4 per cent instead of the old five-five split.

More than 70 per cent of all the money bet in New York last year was wagered at the $5 windows or higher.

NEWS OF PRIORITIES and MATERIALS

Developments of the Week in All Industries

MEXICO TO CONSERVE IRON—Consumer purchases in Mexico of all articles made of iron and iron alloys which are intended or appropriate for use in public services must be authorized by the government, according to the Department of Commerce. Purchases of these articles will be authorized only after proof has been furnished of their intended use. This action was taken to reduce demand for iron and iron products and to conserve the available supply.

GOLD STOCKS DROP—For the first time in many years the monetary gold stock of the United States declined in 1942. As of the end of the year the nation's stock of the yellow metal amounted to $22,726,000,000, off $10,000,000 from the end of 1941. The drop, while comparatively insignificant, did reverse the upward trend of recent years.

Imports of gold from abroad during 1942 were small. Domestic production of the metal was substantial in the earlier months of the year before production was banned in the final quarter. However, more than offsetting these increases in the monetary gold stock was the sale of the precious metal to several Latin American governments which elected to convert dollar balances here into gold.

CELLOPHANE GOES TO WAR—Wrapped in cellophane? Sure, but in the future it won't be your cigarettes. It'll be airplane engines, automotive equipment for the army and machine guns.

Hereafter only materials absolutely essential to the sanitation and preservation of civilian goods will be allocated to civilized use, the OWI announced. Cellophane may no longer be used on candy boxes, milk bottles, unshelled nuts, tea, spices, sugar, and may not be used as a second covering for many types of dried food already packed in paper. The tobacco and baking industries were ordered to cut their use another 10 per cent.

TIRES AND TUBES TO SOUTH AMERICA—Much curiosity has been aroused lately by reports that tires and tubes were being shipped to South America. The explanation for this act is that the United States had made formal agreements with 16 Latin American countries, giving the United States rights to all crude rubber produced in those countries above their minimum need.

However, some of the nations have no manufacturing facilities. Therefore certain shipments of finished rubber goods have been made from the United States.

NEWSPRINT RATIONING BEGINS—The WPB has ordered every newspaper's use of print paper in 1943 cut to the tonnage used in 1941 to produce its net paid circulation, a formula which reduces nation-wide newsprint consumption an estimated 10 per cent. Simultaneously, WPB ordered magazines limited to 90 per cent of tonnage used by each publisher in 1942.

W. G. Chandler, head of WPB's Printing and Publishing Division, added that publishers must expect the order to be followed by a second and perhaps a third reduction in 1943. Chandler said he could only hope that the newly ordered controls, effective January 1, would last for the first quarter of 1943.

Rationing of print paper to newspapers and periodicals was announced in Canada at about the same time. The savings in consumption sought was not announced, but informed sources said the reduction probably would be similar to the 10 per cent reduction in the United States. Canada supplies about 75 per cent of the newsprint used by the United States publishers, and in addition exports to Latin America and some other countries.

TRADE SHOW TRAVEL BANNED—The WPB has endorsed the efforts of Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, to curtail travel by eliminating industrial, promotional sales shows, trade displays and similar events. The WPB has agreed that unnecessary travel and shipments should be completely curtailed and has suggested that Eastman take any steps necessary to eliminate travel or shipments to the unessential shows or events.

CHLORATE SUPPLY ADEQUATE—The current output of chlorate in the country is sufficient for the match production and the military requirements in powder manufacture, according to the WPB. Before the war the match industry depended on Europe for substantially all of the chlorate needed in match production. The increase in domestic supply was accomplished in part by restricting the volume of chlorate used in the match-head compound.

LICQUOR CASUALTIES DUE—Altho the wholesale liquor industry enjoyed satisfactory sales volume and profits during 1942, war-time restrictions are such that diminished business and casualties among the smaller units in both wholesaling and retailing must be expected as the war continues.

TOUGHER CORD FOR TIRES—The Industrial Rayon Corporation is now replacing its regular strength yarn production with high tenacity yarn to be used as cord in the tires built for aircraft, motorized artillery and army transport vehicles. The company says that the strength and heat inherent in rayon cord make it possible to produce tires which run cooler, give longer mileage and require less rubber per tire, thus helping to conserve the nation's limited supplies of natural and synthetic rubber.

PLASTIC SUBS FOR ALUMINUM—The use of laminated paper plastic as a substitute for aluminum in the fabrication of airplanes has been announced recently. A strong paper impregnated with phenol-formaldehyde is applied to fabrication of wing tips, rudders, elevators and other surfaces. The paper used is made from a special wood pulp, and the new wing tip assembly is stronger and lighter than similar structures of aluminum.

CHANGE OVER MADE WITHOUT TIME LOSS—The shifting from peacetime to war production was solved during the year by a beverage container plant when it put the skill and precision of some 300 workers to the mass manufacture of oxygen cylinders needed in high-altitude bombing planes, with virtually no lost time to the men and no idleness of machines. On the same day that the last beverage container for civilian use came off the production line, the skilled steel workers began manufacture of the oxygen cylinder. No time was lost by the men and no time was required to design, build and install expensive machinery for the changeover.

RUBBER REPORTS—It has recently been stated that at the present rate of consumption the nation's stockpile of rubber will be reduced by September 1, 1943, to the 120,000-ton minimum which the Baruch Committee stated was the nation's danger point. Rubber imports from foreign sources still available to Allied shipping will not amount to a drop in the bucket of United Nations' needs, it was reported.

Despite widely publicized reports of huge amounts of rubber to be obtained from South America, Africa, Ceylon and the United States far West, the amount to be obtained from such sources will remain for some time at less than 10 per cent of the total needs. It takes the tapplings of 160 trees a day to make one Ford tire, and since the richest South American areas do not have over four or five trees per acre, it would be necessary to cut a path thru the jungle six miles long on the average and tap them each day to get enough for one tire.

Senators, impatient with headway of the synthetic rubber program, called for new progress reports from refineries awarded $650,000,000 of government funds a year ago to produce butadiene from petroleum. Eighteen concerns have been asked when they expect to start producing this basic ingredient of the synthetic product.

NEW USE FOR CELLULOID—A new method of rebuilding faces with celluloid under living skin, has been developed recently. The celluloid faces look as good as new, and apparently the repair parts will last a lifetime. They have been used to fill out facial depressions due to accidents.

The use of celluloid for faces is new, altho World War I brought celluloid into use for depressions in skulls damaged in battle. The new technique promises well for remaking faces damaged in the present war.

Phil on Our Side

The most important gum story of the year, recently published in the January issue of Fortune, mentioned gum dispensers in a very favorable way. P. K. Wrigley is quoted as saying: "Probably the vast bulk of war workers still buy gum thru regular outlets. But Wrigley wants them to get their gum from plant cafeterias and dispensers."

This company has long been in favor of vending machines and has given some very helpful assistance.

Dame or Dog?

Bob Hope gave us another boost on his program Tuesday night. He and Frances Langford were talking and she was telling him her experience with a talking weight machine. She said she put in a penny and the machine said: "You weigh 76 pounds." Thinking the machine had made a mistake, she put in another penny and still got the same answer. Then Skinnay Ennis decided to take over and said he would try the machine. He put in his penny, and got the reply: "Madam, please get your Pekinese off the scale."

What a Mess!

Jimmy Fidler, who has a syndicated column running in many newspapers, recently connected Gracie Allen, eggs, cigarettes and coin machines all together. He quoted Gracie Allen as saying: "My neighbors and I are actually using eggs as a form of currency." And Fidler's comment on this was: "Must be messy trying to get cigarettes out of a slot machine!"

"THE PUSH CARD HOUSE"

pass the machines they drop in a nickel, while the audience gets a good laugh.

Church Night Club

According to The Chicago Times, January 8, some church members in St. Joseph, Mo., are gradually having their eyes opened as to the large part juke boxes play in the lives of the modern young people. Members of the Christ Episcopal church believe that since young people want entertainment, the church may as well provide it, and they are opening a semi-night club, complete with a juke box, tables around a dance floor and soft drinks.

Slots for Support

In one of his recent broadcasts, Gary Moore and his announcer came thru with a good laugh-getting gag on coin machines. Gary's announcer kicked about an announcing chore he was given and Gary told him to stop kicking for doing jobs like that were what earned him his salary. The announcer's quickie retort was: "You don't think I'd starve do you? Why, I've got four coin machines in good spots."

Juke Boxes Have Style

Altho juke boxes are used rather frequently as background for advertisements, a rather unusual tie-up was shown in the January Glamour. A full-page advertisement for dresses used the juke box as a feature part of one of the pictures, showing a girl putting a nickel in the machine. The caption said "Pick-a-nickel"—pretty pinafore that's right in the groove." Which goes to show that in order to have a popular name for a dress, they pick a popular subject.

See Here, Mayor LaGuardia

The New York Post, January 7, carried an interesting picture showing 12 pinball machines with 12 soldiers playing them. The caption under the picture said: "Hey! Mr. Mayor—look at this. It's the pinball headquarters for American soldiers in London. But don't worry, Fiorello. They're not gambling. Money for playing is supplied to them at the Rainbow Corner Club and the prizes consist of cigarettes and candy."

Swing Shift Juke Boxians

Sidney Skolsky, who has a syndicated column "Life in Hollywood," recently published a very interesting account of the people he meets while out nosing around Hollywood. He said that he has spent some time talking to the people on the swing-shift and has gotten several of their ideas and attitudes. According to Skolsky, the swing-shifters play the juke boxes and have no complaints to make about them. In fact, their only complaint in connection with the jukes is that they can't buy a drink while playing them.

Jook Joint Special

The December issue of Scoop, one of the picture magazines, has used the timely subject of jook joints for one of their special articles. They have printed four pages of pictures showing war workers and swing-shift workers while off duty. There are four pictures showing dancers, from jitterbugs to the swing and sway type. One picture, showing the crowd around a machine, is explaining as hep-cats feeding nickels to the music engine and arguing in jive-talk about each selection.

The article says that altho they're "jook joints" in the South and "juke joints" in the North, in all of them the tempo is swift and the laughter loud. Coins clink into shiny music machines, young and old folks jive and swing, and while the fun is fast and sometimes fierce, a full evening of it only costs about four bits. Hilarity is free.

Juking has become more popular, more necessary, since the war. Now, all over the country war workers in the army behind the army—those working under driving pressure—seek this form of pleasure. High-speed production tenses the nerves, sharpens the appetite for relaxation.

Paging Mr. Petrillo

Ashton Stevens in his column in The Chicago Herald-American, January 11, took another dig at Petrillo and his ban which practically prohibits anyone from opening his or her mouth. Stevens was a guest at a breakfast recently, along with Irving Berlin and a section of the cast of This Is the Army. He said that since they were in a private club, the boys could sing where they sat without being cleared thru the U. S. A. or the musicians' union.

Maryland May Increase Its Control of Liquor

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—A commission appointed by the governor which has been investigating liquor conditions for some time recommended sweeping changes in the State liquor laws just before the 1943 Legislature convened.

Among recommendations was a reduction in the number of places where liquor may be sold, decrease in the number of hours during which such places remain open and an increase in the various liquor licenses. The report suggests that ordinary taverns be closed on Sundays and that the licenses be raised from $60 to $75.

Restrictions would be put on liquor sales in restaurants also, and liquor licenses for hotels and restaurants would be increased. A number of other restrictions were included in the bill, among them a ban on liquor licenses for any store that sells candy or other merchandise popular with children.

Bingo Under Ban As Indianapolis Gets New Mayor

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Newspaper reports of January 4 announce that the lid is on here. The lid refers to the ban which has been placed on bingo games, bookies and even slot machines.

The Police Department is also making a careful check to see that taverns are observing the required closing hour.

Reports say that the operation of slot machines will be definitely banned. This ban will even include the clubs that have used the machines for needed financing.

This new action is said to be due to the orders of the newly elected mayor and his closest official aids.

Indianapolis was at one time considered the biggest bingo center in the United States. The pastime died down in recent months, but reports now say that it has had a sharp revival in recent weeks. Indianapolis is a service area and servicemen are good patrons of bingo games.

Members of the new Board of Public Safety are committed to a definite policy that bingo will not be tolerated, whether sponsored by clubs, churches or other reputable groups.

Number jars, well known to the coin machine trade and quite popular here, are also under the ban.

Better Business for Small Town Retailers Since Pearl Harbor

(From U. S. Department of Commerce)

Immediately following the announcement that on account of the rubber shortage the use of private automobiles would have to be drastically curtailed, it became apparent that such restricted use of cars would surely result in a larger percentage of close-to-home buying, especially in the smaller communities.

This change in retail buying habits seemed certain to affect rural customers, in particular, because the majority of farmers and small-town residents had grown accustomed to driving considerable distances to larger towns instead of concentrating their purchases in the towns and villages near by.

A survey which the Department of Commerce made of wholesale merchants in the drug and grocery fields confirmed, by a large majority, this prediction.

More than 10 months after the tragedy at Pearl Harbor threw the United States into war and thereby started an economic upheaval in this country, the Western Newspaper Union originated a second survey among grocery and drug wholesalers. Ten months, it was believed, represented a period sufficiently long to furnish evidence as to whether the forecast concerning increased small-town retail trade activity was well founded.

Second Survey Completed

This second survey has just been completed and results are summarized below.

Not all of the wholesalers contacted can see any special improvement in small-town trade. However, approximately 9 of every 10 who answered the questions do find that retail sales in rural America have definitely increased since the tire situation became acute.

Almost as many report that small-town merchants have improved their stocks as a result of stimulated trade, and nearly 9 of every 10 believe that the average small town will continue to be a better retail outlet than it was before the present situation arose.

Wholesalers were asked to answer three questions. These, with the percentage of replies, are given below:

Question 1: "To what extent do you think retail sales in small towns have increased since the tire shortage was first announced?"

Answers: 89.4 per cent say there has been an increase. (Estimated percentages of increase range from 5 to 100, the larger number running from 10 to 25 per cent.) 10.6 per cent say there is no increase.

Question 2: "Have the small-town stores in your territory improved their stocks as a result of stimulated trade?"

Answers: 86.6 per cent say "Yes." 13.4 per cent say "No."

Question 3: "Do you believe the average small town will continue to be a better retail outlet than it was before the present situation arose?"

Answers: 89.9 per cent say "Yes." 10.1 per cent say "No."

Comments From Wholesalers

A significant and encouraging feature of this investigation is to be found in the large number of wholesalers who not only answered the three questions but took the time and pains to offer special comment. Here are typical statements:

Arkansas—"Gain is at least 33 1/3 per cent and it is going to stick."

"Gain of 50 per cent, stocks are better than ever before, and the outlook for the future much improved."

"Small town should be a better retail outlet for several years to come."

Colorado—"Believe rural stores have experienced additional business, and stores in the larger towns have been doing less volume than formerly. But we do not believe the small towns will ever have the clean, up-to-the-minute stores we find in cities."

Iowa—"We believe the small town will be a much better retail outlet for the duration and possibly for some time beyond that."

Louisiana—"We see increases here from 25 to 50 per cent and believe the improvement will be permanent."

Michigan—"The trend is definitely back to the small local store and where merchants see their opportunity they have an excellent outlook now and bright future prospects."

Minnesota—"Gain is very marked and we are convinced it will be lasting."

Missouri—"From here on small-town merchant will be a big factor in food distribution."

North Dakota—"Increase is about 30 per cent and looks permanent."

Ohio—"Sales have increased substantially and there is no doubt in our minds that much of this gain will be of permanent character."

Oklahoma—"The average small town in our part of the country will be out when this war is over, but the farm town that has always been better than average will still be a good retail outlet."

Oregon—"Gain of 15 per cent and looks as tho here to stay."

"Increase 40 per cent and 'Yes' to both other questions."

South Dakota—"Good crop and agricultural conditions will keep volume higher than it has been in past 10 years."

Tennessee—"Increase is 25 per cent; merchants are buying all the goods they can get, and their situation looks better for a long time to come."

Texas—"Our gain is 25 per cent and 'Yes' to both the other questions."

"Retail sales show increase, but would be greater if certain lines of merchandise were obtainable. Stocks are heavier, but full assortments are entirely lacking."

Washington—"Degree of increase depends on type of local merchant. Some aggressive accounts report increases as high as 50 per cent."

Wisconsin—"Because of the price stabilization, improved rural stocks and better merchandising, the outlook of the small-town merchant is greatly improved and will be even better when some of our population shifts back to the areas from whence it came."

Merchandising Change

Without being partisan in favor of any one class of retail markets as against other markets, it must be admitted that changes in the merchandising set-up of this country are taking place. Whether these changes are primarily due to the war, to the rationing, the population trends from large cities to the more open spaces or to any other causes is beside the point. The fact is that American life is undergoing marked transformation. Therefore new evaluations of markets and customers must be made if American business intends to advance, as, of course, it does.

One outstanding truth, as shown in our studies of the situation, is that the people of the United States are now obliged to adopt a more fixed habit of living in place of the restlessness which was brought about by easy motor transportation. How long this will continue no one can say, but it seems safe to assert that for the duration of the war, and at least during the years of economic reconstruction which will follow, retailing in this country will continue to be highly localized. That being true, the manufacturer of consumer goods will do well to pay the closest kind of attention to the small-town store.

No Longer a Mere Plus

No longer can the retail establishment in rural America be considered as a mere plus to merchandising plans built around the metropolitan area. Millions of customers have "come back home" since December 7, 1941, and manufacturers will have to approach them accordingly.

The small-town store is today an outlet that demands consideration on its merits. The local newspaper is a medium requiring equal consideration because the average small-town merchant and newspaper are inseparable.

PM Says La Guardia "Gives Out Bunk" On Minor Problem

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—PM, the tabloid newspaper without advertising, charges Mayor La Guardia with giving out bunk when he recently discussed the causes of juvenile delinquency here. The problems of school children here have been front-page news for some time.

The publicity afforded Mayor La Guardia the greatest opportunity of his lifetime to accuse coin-operated amusement machines of corrupting the morals of the youth of the city but for the fact that pinball games had been banned several months ago. Because some very reliable agencies have been investigating the cause of delinquency here, the mayor has not been able to charge it to the fact that pinball games operated for several years.

PM calls attention to the fact that juvenile problems had been declining for four years in the city and had only recently begun to increase. War conditions are understood to be the real cause of the present seriousness. The fact that juvenile problems had been declining for four years indicates that pinball games did not have any adverse effects on the morals of the city, because they were widely operated at that time.

In an editorial summary of the juvenile problem, PM issued the following outline:

(1) Nobody ever made such an assertion, but statistics for 1942 released 48 hours after the mayor's statements by W. Bruce Cobb, Acting Presiding Justice of the Domestic Relations Court, revealed a city-wide rise in the juvenile delinquency rate of 10.8 per cent over 1941. The number of neglected children was up 11.6 per cent. Certainly those facts were available to La Guardia, as chief magistrate of the city.

(2) Juvenile delinquency had been declining for four years. The rise under wartime pressures is cause for alarm.

(3) There is public clamor because children are dear to everyone, and the public has the right to demand that the city do something about it.

(4) What good is an inventory? Action is needed.

(5) More than seven weeks ago La Guardia assigned Investigation Commissioner Herlands to check up on the situation; there has been no report yet.

(6) Manhattan was the only borough with a decrease. The other boroughs showed increases. The city total is up.

(7) Delinquency on Staten Island is not up 100 per cent—it rose more than 127 per cent.

(8) The 12-month increase was higher—75.

(9) The 1942 figures were on exactly the same basis as those of 1941, so a comparison is in order. It shows juvenile delinquency rose 10.8 per cent.

(10) There were 14 fewer cases in Manhattan; 209 more in Brooklyn; 197 more in the Bronx; 13 more in Queens, and 75 more in Staten Island.

(11) The public has been waiting since last summer when PM first pointed out the situation. Juvenile delinquency is not just a neighborhood problem; it is general.

It was not reported this week whether the drugstore involved in the test case would appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court. Merchants are expected, however, to carry the test perhaps even to the U.S. Supreme Court.

It is not known at present whether this test decision would have any beneficial effects for vending machine operators, who have never been able to pass on a State sales tax to the consumer.

Illinois Sales Tax May Become High Court Test

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A court decision that will have important results in Illinois and may have repercussions in other States having sales taxes was rendered in the Appellate Court of Illinois January 6.

The court ruled that retail stores cannot add a sales tax as such to the price charged consumers. As originally written, the Illinois sales tax was considered by everybody as stating specifically that it could not be passed on to the consumer, but retailers were pretty well organized and they passed on the tax anyway.

A number of test cases have been proposed, and the present one seems to be the most specific.

Legal authorities state, however, that there will still be many questions to settle because the federal Office of Price Administration has issued certain rulings on the adding of sales taxes to prices, or at least charging enough to cover taxes. In other words, there is a probability that merchants may be able to raise prices sufficiently to cover the sales tax anyway.

It was not reported this week whether the drugstore involved in the test case would appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court. Merchants are expected, however, to carry the test perhaps even to the U.S. Supreme Court.

It is not known at present whether this test decision would have any beneficial effects for vending machine operators, who have never been able to pass on a State sales tax to the consumer.

organization later on will be to change public thinking about popcorn. It is recognized that while most people like it in the various forms in which it is made available, few recognize its commercial importance or its sale potentialities if intensively promoted.

A membership committee was named at the meeting, made up of prominent industry factors in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri and California, whose business it will be to secure memberships and enlist the moral support of upward of 50,000 leading growers throughout the country. A nominal membership fee was set to make the association attractive to the many growers.

Besides the election of C. W. Erne as president, other officers chosen were: Vice-president, William Dreessen, grower, Vail, Ia.; treasurer, B. A. Klein, Klein Noodle Company, Chicago; secretary, Leonard Blewitt, Central Popcorn Company, Schaller, Ia.

The following were named for two-year terms on the executive committee: Hoover Brown, Wyandotte Popcorn Company, Marion, Ind.; L. L. McNally, Albert Dickinson Company, Chicago; W. T. Hawkins, Confections, Inc., Chicago. One-year terms on the executive committee went to the following: I. E. Weaver, Huntington, Ind.; William Ware, Trenton, Ky.; R. J. McConnell, Tasty Krisp Company, Detroit.

DELAWARE CIG MEN

censes and fees would be vested in the State Tax Department.

Commissaries, ships stores and voluntary unincorporated organizations of the army or the navy personnel operating under the regulations of the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy are excepted.

Permits for Sale

Applications for cigarette permits would be filed with the State Tax Department, with a permit fee of $1 to be filed. All permits would normally expire on May 31, annually. Permits would be renewed annually at a renewal fee of $1.

Manufacturers of cigarettes, either in or outside the State, and wholesale dealers outside the State could purchase stamps from the department and affix them to the packages to be sold within the State.

In such cases the dealer within the State would not be required to purchase and affix stamps on those packages.

Each retail dealer would be required to place stamps on the packages of cigarettes unless they already appear. Cancellations of the stamps would be required in the manner to be prescribed by the department, or it would be necessary to mark in ink on each unopened box, carton or container the word "received," with the month, day and year of receipt and signature.

Discovery of cigarettes in the place of business of a retail dealer without the stamps affixed or not marked as having been received within the previous 24 hours would serve as prima-facie presumption that such cigarettes are kept there in violation of the act.

Records To Be Kept

Two-year records of cigarettes received, sold and delivered, together with bills of lading and other pertinent papers, would have to be kept by those engaged in the sale of cigarettes.

Any person selling cigarettes without purchasing and affixing stamps to each package as required by the proposed act would be subject to a fine of between $100 and $1,000 or imprisonment up to six months, or both, if convicted of the first offense.

Those convicted of a second or subsequent offense would be subject to a fine of between $500 and $1,000 and imprisonment of between six months and three years.

Anyone failing to comply with the rules and regulations or refusing to permit examinations in connection with records or stocks, as provided for, would be subject to a fine of between $100 and $500 or imprisonment up to six months, or both.

Anyone falsely altering or counterfeiting stamps to evade the tax would be subject to imprisonment of between two and five years.

The bill carries a $10,000 appropriation for enforcement and collection purposes.

Check Rationing Effects by Take In Parking Meter

DENVER, Jan. 16.—Professional operators in the coin machine industry have never been able to use parking meters, but these meters have been a big publicity instrument for the industry.

This publicity had been subsiding, however, during 1942, but now they are coming into the limelight again. Parking meters are now getting attention as a kind of official check on the decrease in use of automobiles due to gas rationing. A number of cities have parking meters on their main streets. Because these were in operation before gas rationing went into effect, it is now possible to get real checks on the decrease in the use of cars. It is reported here that in the first month of rationing, receipts from meters dropped $6,458.

Collections of nickels and pennies from parking meters totaled $18,608 in December, as compared with $25,066 in December, 1941. Decrease in parking meter revenue was noticed even in November. The meters here were installed June 9, 1941, and the city treasurer feels that he has an interesting check from month to month on what gas rationing is doing.

Md. License Yield Up; 6,380 Liquor Fees Paid

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Restaurants, soda fountains, cigarette and music box licenses during 1942 produced $612,216.20 in revenue, which represented an increase of approximately $46,000 over 1941, according to the annual statement recently issued.

The annual statement of the license clerk shows that liquor licenses, including beer, wine and liquor, totaled $919,868.84. A total of 4,002 liquor licenses were sold, and beer and wine licenses totaled 2,378. This means that there were some 6,380 potential locations licensed during the year.

Radio Leader Predicts Miracles After the War

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—One of the most optimistic for post-war business is David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

In a recent statement to the press he predicted that the radio field will perform miracles in the future.

"The useful services of radio," Sarnoff said in a year-end review, "will be broadened far beyond the communication field into such realms as the RCA electron microscope, radio-frequency heating, supersonics and no end of applications made possible by the development of new radio tubes, especially those designed to send and receive micro waves—tiny waves measured in centimeters."

Sarnoff said many of radio's scientific achievements of 1942 remained military secrets but would make Americans proud when revealed.

He asserted that the application of "radio frequency heating to speed industrial processes and increase their efficiency is rapidly coming to the fore."

"Radio waves," he said, "may now be used to heat, dry, glue, stitch, anneal, weld, rivet and even to deactivate enzymes. This new field is known as thermal radio.

"Radio high-frequency 'furnaces' are a post-war prospect. In them, railroad ties will be seasoned quickly, and 'cakes' of textiles dried uniformly."

Science of Color
May Be Factor in Post-War Machines

A new and rapidly growing science, known as color conditioning or engineering, is assuming great importance in the present war effort. The "three-dimensional seeing" system, as it is called, has been accepted widely by industry and is playing a useful part in speeding war production.

From earliest times man has attributed special powers to color. And it has now been proved that color will affect a worker's frame of mind and improve or retard his progress.

After years of experiment color engineers have found that by using light, cheerful colors on walls and floors and by putting a coat of "spotlight buff" on the working area of a machine and a contrasting coat of "horizon gray" on the machine body, a "three-dimensional seeing" effect is obtained. Fast, accurate vision is thus assured, particularly in the case of the moving parts of the machine, which are made to stand out sharply. In addition, workers are able to perform their work more quickly, errors are reduced, and flaws quickly spotted.

Color Aids Sales

As a sales promotion aid, color succeeds where other measures fail. A candy manufacturer who had been wrapping his candy in blue paper had a sudden inspiration and switched to red wrapping. That was all, yet sales leaped. This discovery that red is a great impulse color, that people buying something on the spur of the moment are attracted to red objects, was entirely accidental. However, with increasing intensity, manufacturers now are studying the value of color in packaging.

Another example of the success which came with a change in the color of packages was recently shown by a manufacturing company. This firm was having difficulty because employees were tiring quickly when they had to lift and carry certain black boxes. The boxes were heavy, but they had to be transported. Finally it was decided to repaint the boxes light green. Thereafter the workers carried the boxes easily. The simple change in color had made them seem lighter. It was an illusion, of course—based on the fact that deep colors appear heavier than pale colors.

In a large South American city a German firm was selling 10 times as many needles as a British firm. Why? Because the British wrapped their needles in black paper, the Germans in red. That's all. The lesson is valuable to American manufacturers who, knowing that Latins prefer red instead of black, will give them red.

As these examples indicate, color has stopped being just something to be used for decoration alone. Color conditioning also is an outstanding development for its effect on the war effort. And that is not all. After the war the lessons learned will have their effect in peacetime production. Then, as now, they will mean better health and eyesight and morale for workers. Then, to an extent impossible currently, color will be used to turn out peacetime goods more efficiently—and thus at lower cost. It is obvious that after the dark clouds of war have been rolled away color will play a big role in painting a bright future.

Counter Operator
Opposes Fed. Tax
Due to Local Fee

MEMPHIS, Jan. 16.—Willingness to pay a $2 federal tax and continue operation was expressed here by a local penny machine operator, who says that otherwise he will simply have to remove his machines from locations whenever a demand is made for payment of the new federal $10 tax levy.

Analysis of the tax situation shows the penny machines for amusement only are now paying city taxes here, varying from a reported low of $3 to a high of $7.50, with State and city taxes uniformly $7. Addition of the $10 federal levy would make the annual tax burden on these machines between $20 and $25, while recent cost of new machines has been only $20, and used equipment has been moving from $10 to $15 per machine.

Holidays Did Not Hurt Patronage in Fort Worth Area

FORT WORTH, Jan. 16.—Despite the merchandise shortage, of which no relief is in sight, there is still plenty of business at places in this section of Texas where coin machines are operated. Jack Maloney, operator of the Panther Novelty Company, believes the business is far ahead of the corresponding month of a year ago.

Due partly to the gasoline rationing, as well as merchandise and labor shortage, two of the smaller locations have closed in Tarrant County, but the larger ones are still going full blast with increased business, even in the areas along the highways and outside of the city limits.

Inventories taken by various concerns show the holiday rush emptied many shelves that will not likely be refilled soon. The two-day holiday for Christmas—Friday and Saturday of Christmas Week—was something new for Fort Worth. It caused more money to be spent at the coin machine locations.

There is practically no complaint among the machine operators about the temporary halt in the releasing of records.

"It just gave us a breathing spell and let us put into circulation lots of good records that have been crowded off the machines," stated Maloney. "We could stand even a longer extension of the release ban."

Arcade Owners' Assn. Progresses

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The Arcade Owners' Association held its second meeting since organizing about a month ago and showed a marked increase in attendance. In addition the association received letters from many arcade owners in distant States inquiring for additional information.

At the present time membership includes arcade owners from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Herman Brothers, who is managing the association at this time, invites correspondence from all over the country. It is his belief that the association should be national in scope, thus it would be in a position to present any problem for a complete substantial group of business people.

The next meeting will be held on January 21 at the Abbey Hotel at 7:30 p.m. Brothers is mailing notices of the meeting and application blanks to arcade owners, requesting that they mail in requests for information they desire. Due to the difficulty of travel, Brothers thinks some of the members and prospective members will have to keep in touch with the association by mail.

In order to make the association all inclusive, the membership voted a $10 initiation fee and annual dues of $15.

The body appointed a committee to begin working on an appointment with the Senate Finance Committee for the near future.

Minnesota Assn. Gives Patriotic Calendar for '43

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—The Minneapolis Amusement Games Association has been receiving many compliments from locations and patrons of amusement machines who have seen the attractive 1943 calendars distributed by the association.

These calendars have been given to all members of the association and also to the locations.

It is a large-sized wall calendar printed by Brown & Bigelow, nationally known makers of calendars, and is a work of art. The picture is an appropriate subject, showing a marine and a soldier in action. The main caption under the picture says "Let's Back Them Up." The calendar also contains a big advertisement for War Bonds and the name of the association. Each one of the monthly calendar sheets has some very appropriate slogan, such as "Work, Fight and Save for Victory," "Who Saves the Most Time Serves His Country Best," etc.

In the long list of patriotic activities, this calendar is outstanding in the work of the Minneapolis association, and it will be hanging on many walls during the year.

Increases Expected in Supplies of Paperboard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Trade leaders in the paperboard industry say that there are good prospects for a general increase in the production of all types of paper and paperboard during the next few months. These trade leaders do say, however, that the increase may be only temporary because the man-power situation is making it difficult to keep a full supply of workers in the pulpwood field.

At the same time it was reported that the War Production Board after issuing orders to reduce the use of paper for magazines and newspapers will soon announce similar orders for book publishing, commercial printing, paper containers and paper products of various kinds. The order will not set uniform rates for all types of paper but will make specific provisions for each type. An effort will also be made to use more wastepaper in production rather than use wood pulp. Wastepaper will especially be used in the manufacture of paper board for packaging.
