Napster Files Opposition Brief Against RIAA

Napster fired back at the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) in a July 3 opposition brief filed with the United States District Court for the Northern District of California, San Francisco Division. The beleaguered file sharing software company argued that non-commercial sharing of music is "common, legal and accepted."

The company also argued that the RIAA claims that Napster is biting into profits are being undermined by increased CD sales.

"Far from falling due to Napster, sales of CDs are at record levels, up 8 percent through May 2000 compared to the same quarter last year, when Napster was not operating," the brief states.

Napster's reply papers filed jointly by the firms of Boies, Schiller & Flexner and Fenwick & West, follow the motion for preliminary injunction RIAA filed June 12 in an attempt to shut down the controversial software provider.

The brief seeks to refute the RIAA's claims that Napster is liable as a third-party for copyright infringements by its clients. "The touchstones of contributory infringement (Continued on page 9)

Subscription Model Gains Favor

While legal guns blaze in scattered skirmishes across the music dot-com landscape, the recent rallying cry has been "subscription service," probably as much in fear of Napster as in affirmation of the business model. But nobody is even sure whether a subscription model can survive, let alone thrive, in the ever-changing marketplace.

Sony and Universal Music Group (UMG) have said that they think it can: last May the two companies announced a joint venture to develop a subscription-based service for digital music and videos. Sources close to Warner Music Group (WMG) have also intimated that they will soon be unveiling a form of subscription service.

DreamWorks Records has launched a new Web site that will allow aspiring rock stars to upload songs directly to the label's A&R department. It is the first U.S.based label to offer such a service.

Mwng (Flydaddy)

Super Furry Animals are first and foremost music-lovers. Ergo, those who love all kinds of music will be the ones most taken by this Welsh quintet's ebullient charms. Sung in the band's native tongue, SFA's Mwng all but jettisons the psychedelic pop of 1999's Guerrilla for a robust, nostalgic trip through the '70s. Despite a shoestring budget that necessitated a far less layered sound, there is no deficiency in the production work, which effortlessly captures the intimacy and impact of the music. Often utilizing extensive instrumentation to flesh out the album's 10 tunes, SFA fashion delicate ballads and soft, demure songs that reach for the orchestral grandeur of art rock without sinking into the often accompanying mire of pretension and self-importance. In short, the effects serve the songs: be it the mournful trumpet line of "Y Gwyneb Iau," the sweet, hovering harmonium that adds to the bright, Beach Boys splendor of "Ymaelodi A'r Ymylon," the lightly country-flavored acoustic sound of "Nythod Cacwn" (think Neil Young's Harvest), or the organ and crisp, melodic guitar of "Dacw Hi." Pretty almost to a fault, Mwng lingers like a sweet aroma, carrying the listener back to a kinder, gentler time. — Chris Parker

L'ALTRA Music Of A Sinking Occasion (Aesthetics)

This gorgeous and unusual album is a follow-up to L'Altra's 1999 selftitled EP, but its expanded palette gives a much stronger sense of the Chicago quartet's capabilities. On one hand the group is very much of Chi-town's Thrill Jockey/ Kranky school (particularly Trans Am and Tortoise, yet forgoing the avant-jazz elements), while on the other it's more reminiscent of the languid melodies of Spain, Sparklehorse or Mercury Rev. Never rising above a saunter, Music Of A Sinking Occasion combines gently shuffling beats, softly plucked guitar and bass, and understated keyboards to provide an unobtrusive backdrop for male and female vocal drawls. There's a unity to the songs, artwork and playing that we'd hesitate to call 'conceptual" (a dangerous word in almost any context), but one that gives the entire album a carefully arranged consistency that's rare coming from such a new band. This sense is enhanced by the raft of local friends (from the likes of Isotope 217 and Pillow) enlisted to play an array of instruments including cello, cornet and vibraphone, all of which add to the album's lush yet never cluttered feel. An original combination of many contemporary sounds, this is an extremely ambitious and memorable debut.

Amateur Soul Surgery (Function 8) Floating somewhere between the Folk Implosion, Love & Rockets and Mad Professor is the syncopated retro-futurism of the Jazz Cannon, the side project of Madder Rose guitarist Billy Cote. Amateur Soul Surgery, Cote's first full-length under the moniker, is an impressionistic fusion of acoustic grooves and electronically enhanced riddims. This original record is enveloped in a wash of familiarity while sounding like nothing to which you can easily point a finger of reference. Acoustic guitar melodies cascade into turntable poetics, wah-wah drenched licks and acid-house breaks on "Daddy Ride." Thick, hypnotizing dub lines and Brit-pop-style hooks elevate the seductive vocals of fellow Madder Rose bandmate Mary Lorson on "Where You Are, Star," while dissonant shards of Manchester's swirl rock are cut into tracks such as "Thinly Veiled." But for the most part, Amateur Soul Surgery is a mellow affair, rife with deep, chill-out vibes and a new wave panache that allows it to stand out from the masses as one of the finer releases of 2000. - Ron Hart

The Mask (Blue Note)

While the so-called "Young Lions" of jazz continue to explore Miles Davis's '50s and early '60s work like curators overseeing a museum exhibit, an equally sizable and important group enamored with Davis's fusion work from the '70s is beginning to surface. French trumpeter Erik Truffaz falls clearly into the latter camp, surrounding himself with confident players who aren't afraid to turn the volume up and the groove out. But what makes The Mask more than just a mere forgery of the master's 30-year-old works is how well the quartet has internalized Davis' lessons and moved on. This new fusion of jazz grooves is updated with the pitter-patter of drum 'n' bass, a loose funk vibe that hits on the one but never gets in your face, and even subtle elements of hiphop. (A rapper named Nye sits in with the group regularly, and appears on a hidden track at the end of the album.) Comprised of highlights from the group's four Blue Note albums originally released in France. The Mask is a cool introduction to a group that is drawing from the past and tapping into the present to create an interesting future for jazz. - Tad Hendrickson

Cuban Music Thrives In U.S.

In 1997, the release of the album Buena Vista Social Club provided a glimpse into Cuba that didn't include cigars, baseball or Fidel Castro. The album exposed the world to the rhythms of Cuban son, a juxtaposition of African percussion and Spanish guitars, and made world famous artists that had been known only inside Cuba for most of their lives. With Buena Vista, Cuban music hit the American mainstream for the first time in 40 years and gained such popularity that the album sold over one million copies and won a Grammy for Best Tropical Latin Performance. The album also helped open the door for new musicians and musical styles other than son as the American appetite grew for sounds emanating from the Caribbean island.

It is almost impossible to separate Cuban music from the country's political climate. Despite the popularity of bolero and Latin jazz in the '50s, the music's popularity in America suffered greatly after the breakdown in relations between the U.S. and Cuba in the '60s. For the past 40 years, an embargo has barred Cuban musicians from playing in this country and has prohibited the sale of Cuban recordings.

In 1988, Congress passed a series of modifications to the embargo, which allowed Cuban musicians to perform in the U.S. as part of a cultural exchange and made Cuban music, books and films available legally in this country. Cuban music was again accessible to Americans – but Americans weren't necessarily interested in it. It took the huge Buena Vista hype machine to help awaken mainstream American sensibilties to the charms of Cuban music.

According to Danilo Lozano, music director/flutist for the group Cuba L.A. and a musicology teacher at Whittier College, the timing is right for Cuban music to be popular again. "Now you have all of this stuff happening with Elian [Gonzalez], and it just seems like there's a great deal of focus on anything which is Cuban," he told CMJ. "And of course that's to the great benefit of the music. You could also say that the music in some ways has made us more aware of Cuba."

The music of the Buena Vista Social Club is Cuban son — a combination of African and Spanish musical elements that has been around for years.

"There's more history to this music then people can actually begin to fathom," said Vinnie Esparza of Ubiquity Records' Latin jazz imprint, Cubop Records, "I think Buena Vista, if anything, is just a little glimmer, a little glimpse of what's out there."

What was new about the album was the tremendous marketing push it received. Buena Vista Social Club had a significant edge over other Cuban music albums trying to reach the mainstream: an Oscar-nominated documentary of the same name. The film provided a visual representation of the island that had been considered off limits for 40 years and finally gave them a glimpse of wizened musicians like Ibrahim Ferrer and Ruben Gonzalez. It established the careers of musicians with decades of experience. Before Buena Vista, Afro-Cuban CDs were relegated to a miniscule nook in record stores. Now, according to Esparza, "there's a lot of competition for shelf space."

The music world has been saturated with Cuban music over recent months. There has been some speculation as to whether the abundance of Cuban music on the market will cause a backlash. Esparza believes that people already think there's too much Afro-Cuban music out there and that people are becoming jaded. Eventually, he said, the mainstream penchant for the music will fade and sales will drop off.

"I think a disc like Buena Vista definitely opens up people to listen to Latin music but I don't know how much research people are going to put into that," he said. "If anything comes out of it, the one thing is that people are going to get educated on this music and that can't be a bad thing. Even if it is one CD that they bought, at least they bought something that deserves the recognition that it got [but] because it got such major recognition, there's going to be the inevitable backlash and there's no way around that."

Ethno-musicologist Lozano sees the Cuban craze as the "beginning of a movement" not for Cuban music only but for other Latin and Caribbean music as well. Ten years ago, he said, he could never have convinced a record label like his own (Narada) to put out a Cuban record. Given the current climate, however, the record company actually approached him and his band, Cuba L.A., in 1998 and asked the group to record an album, with a follow-up album due in August.

In addition to the numerous albums paying respect to the more traditional sounds of Cuba like son, a new crop of musicians are emerging from the island with new sounds and rhythms. Younger bands like Los Van Van are turning audiences on to the new sounds of timba, an aggressive, horn-driven, more technically advanced style that some herald as the new salsa.

"The world is getting exposed to Cuban music and they're getting exposed to stuff that has been around for hundreds of years and they're getting exposed to stuff that's been developed in the past five or six years and it's all happening at the same time," said Lozano. —Lisa Hageman

Loud Energy To Pay Artists 100 Percent

LoudEnergy.com has announced a plan to give all retail profits from sales of affiliated artists back to the artists themselves. The "artist rebate" is just part of the site's plans, which include MP3 hosting, professional producer/ unsigned band interaction, chat rooms, merchandising, and a record label,

Rather than engage in the kind of cutthroat price competition that has savaged margins at larger e-tailers like CDNow.com and Amazon.com, LoudEnergy plans to charge consumers more to purchase CDs at the site. The expectation is that consumers will be willing to pay a little more for an album if they know that the profits will go back to their favorite artists.

What does an Internet company do to really deserve an electronic transaction? It's not like we have brick-and-mortar stores all over the country. All it is, is an electronic transaction, and we're getting a chunk of change. So let's throw that to [the artists]," said John Maurer, co-founder of Loud Energy and bassist for Social Distortion.

Since Loud Energy will buy the records wholesale like any retailer, the record labels will still make money and the artists will still make money from their mechanical royalty. But bands that sign up with Loud Energy will also see $1-3 for every one of their CDs that Loud Energy sells, according to Loud Energy CEO Ruben Lozano. So far only Social Distortion, Bad Religion and Reel Big Fish have signed up, and the site store won't be ready until the end of July, but there are more names to come, according to Lozano and Maurer.

Even unsigned bands can benefit, since Loud Energy will set up artists who supply their own CDs with warehousing, picking and packing services through their partnerships, allowing musicians to cut out the distributor and retailer, while Loud Energy charges only the cost of the services. The company expects to make money through creative marketing.

"By doing something really cool and innovative, we believe in the long term, we're going to be a company that can help a lot of other companies reach the consumers that want to buy their goods," says Lozano. "Music is the cornerstone of people's lifestyles, which is then about the kinds of movies you watch, the way you talk, the articles you read in magazines, the clothes you wear and the car you drive.'

Other features of the site include a catalog of MP3s, with favored selections chosen by a collection of major and indie label producers who have affiliated themselves with the site in exchange for equity in the company. Among the many big names are Brad Wood (Liz Phair), Andy Gill (Gang Of Four) and Ted Nicely (Fugazi).

'We're hoping this consortium of producers is going to be a new way people can find their music" from musicians both on and off Loud Energy's site, said Lozano.

Pseudo Cuts Staff By 17 Percent

As June ended, nearly 6,000 people had lost their jobs at over 80 Internet companies. Fifty-eight of them had been working at Pseudo.com, whose Pseudo Online Network featured a loose confederation of ten nicheoriented streaming video sites that provided daily live content on subjects ranging from hip-hop and video games to financial news and sex. The move, which is designed to cut costs and streamline production at the Web site, comes just six months after former CNN-FN executive David Bohrman was named as Pseudo's CEO and just over a month after the site secured $14 million in funding by the French media firm Defosses International, among others.

Pseudo will move from a disjointed scattering of live shows with individual production staffs to a continuous live 12 hour programming environment from noon to midnight with hour-long blocks hosted by "EJs." Production, design and marketing will all be centralized, according to Jeanne Meyer, of Pseudo.

This change reflects a trend in the nascent world of broadband content providers, where many sites have already flamed out, like DEN, or drastically cut back on staffs and production, like FastTV.com and On2.com.

"Pseudo.com's move to consolidate content just speaks to the Internet industry's move to tighten its belt,' according to Duy Linh Tu, President of 718Media, a Brooklyn-based multimedia production agency that provides content to broadband sites. "These days, less is more."

"The move allows us to be smarter about how we brand Pseudo," Meyer told CMJ, noting that it's easier to effectively brand one product than ten individual, fully-staffed, nearly autonomous companies.

While some producers at Pseudo are upset at losing their autonomy, Meyer said the change was necessary. "We are a business and in order to continue to grow and compete and build our audience, we had to change. Many of our competitors did not recognize that soon enough, tried to bite off more than they could chew and have had to shut down or get out of the original content business altogether."

ARAB STRAP

by Kelso Jacks

The single most striking comment on Arab Strap's Web (www.arabstrap.co.uk) is credited to vocalist Aidan Moffat, who comments: "I don't think anyone in Britain since Joy Division has known how to make seriously depressing music." Of course, all that changed when he and guitarist Malcolm Middleton joined forces in 1995 and began playing their own dirge-like pop. The Glasgow band's third album, Elephant Shoe, has just been released in the U.S., so CMJ telephoned Moffat, who was recovering at home after a 20-hour drive back from a gig in Belgium, to discover the roots of his misery and to discuss the politics of the music industry.

Your songs express bitterness towards women. Are your lyrics based on your personal life experiences? Oh yes, it's all true.

A big rock star like you is that unlucky at love?

(Laughs) Well no, because I've been going with the same girl now for four years. I write my songs about things that happened in the past. I just bear grudges. I'm very excellent about bearing grudges. I never forget, so I've got this whole back catalogue of horrible experiences that I can write about.

Elephant Shoe, though mean-spirited at times, seems less spiteful than the first two records. Have you gotten happier?

Probably. I certainly was when we recorded it. I think that I just wanted to try and do something a little different. I wanted to see if I could use my talent to express something a little more pleasant. I certainly do sound awfully upset on the Philophobia album. This one is certainly more optimistic. So, not happier, more optimistic.

Would you regard your songwriting as a sort of therapy then?

No, no. It's much more childish than that. I'd call it revenge.

Elephant Shoe has been out in Europe since the fall of 1999, are you already planning the next album?

Aye. We've already almost finished the next album. Presently, we've already finished about seven songs for it. We want to have it finished and ready for release in Europe by the end of this year. What happens in America, I don't yet know. We don't even know what label will be releasing it.

Roni Size And Reprazent Release Second Album

Roni Size and his collective, Reprazent, will release their much-anticipated second album on October 3. Size and Reprazent helped popularize the drum 'n' bass sound with their 1997 debut, New Forms.

The as-yet untitled release will feature guest appearances by Rage Against the Machine vocalist Zach De La Rocha, Everything But The Girl's Ben Watt, Wu Tang's Method Man and Rahzel of The Roots.

The band's debut, featuring Size, DJ's Krust, SUV and Die, as well as vocalist Onallee, won Britian's coveted Mercury Prize, presented to the year's best artist. It climbed to the second spot on the CMJ RPM Chart and stayed in the top 200 for 27 weeks, thanks to its intense, frenetic mix of live instrumentation and electronic programming. That album's success speaks to the group's ability to reach outside of the dance communities and connect with the larger alternative audience.

"We feel the urban world will embrace it and the alternative world will wake up to it as well. It's the perfect album to define us in terms of what we are able to bring an album as Island/Def Jam," says Livia Tortella, Product Manager for the recently merged Island/Def Jam Records.

Size, a native of Bristol, England, and his cohorts recently played the Glastonbury Festival and are currently in Los Angeles shooting a video with director Hype Williams (DMX, Jay-Z) for the album's first single, "Who Told You," featuring vocals by Dynamite MC. Size and Reprazent's first American appearance will be August 15 in New York City at Central Park's Summerstage and will be followed in November by a club and venue tour.

EMusic To Sell HP Downloads For CD-Writers

EMusic.com, the Redwood City, California-based company specializing in music downloads, will sell Hewlett Packard at least $3 million worth of downloads that HP will bundle with its CD-Writer products.

Customers who purchase an HP CD-Writer between now and March 31 will be allowed unlimited downloads on E-Music for two months.

The HP deal will serve as a model for similar programs and subscription services in the future, said Steve Curry, spokesperson for EMusic. "This is the first one that we are doing," he said. "This is the kind of thing we could offer to other companies and will help in future subscription plans."

Additionally, the deal provides significant revenues for the company which recently cut jobs in its Los Angeles office — and opens EMusic to new customers who have expressed an interest in downloads and burning CDs.

research with CD-Writer customers has shown that 80 percent of our customers use CD-writers to burn MP3 files from the Web and to create custom music CDs," said Christy Tappy, marketing manager for HP's CD-Writer business.

Nine People Killed at Roskilde Fest

Eight male concertgoers were crushed to death on June 30 during Pearl Jam's set at the Roskilde Festival in Roskilde, Denmark. One Australian man who had been on a respirator since the night of the concert, died the morning of July 5, bringing the death toll to nine, according to the Associated Press. At least 25 others were reported injured.

The crowd, estimated to be between 75,000 and 100,000 people, reportedly rushed the stage halfway through Pearl Jam's set, crushing those in front against the stage and trampling others. The situation was exacerbated by the day's rainy weather that caused people to slip and fall on the ground. The band repeatedly asked the crowd to move back and halted their set after hearing of the incident. The Cure, scheduled to perform after Pearl Jam, cancelled its set out of respect for those who died, as did Oasis and the Pet Shop Boys.

Pearl Jam has since released a statement on its Web site, saying members of the band are "devastated" by the events that killed nine people. "There are absolutely no words to express our anguish in regard to the parents and loved ones of these precious lives that were lost...Our lives will never be the same, but we know that is nothing compared to the grief of the families and friends of those involved."

Firms Make $20 Million Investment In MusicBank

Bertelsmann Ventures, the independent venture capital fund of media giant Bertelsmann AG, is one of three firms that have invested a combined $20.1 million in MusicBank, a company that will allow customers to listen to music online.

MusicBank is looking to deploy its system, which would allow online access to CDs that customers have purchased, by September. Customers would gain access either by purchasing music from a participating retailer or by placing their CDs in a disc drive, where a MusicBank application would authenticate it. The company is also looking into a subscription model, which would give users access to music from a band or label for a monthly fee.

The company has secured a licensing agreement for the recordings of BMG Entertainment, the music arm of Bertelsmann, and is pursuing agreements with other major and independent labels, said Pierce Ledbetter, founder and chairman of MusicBank.

"MusicBank is a great concept," said Thomas Gieselmann, a partner for Bertelsmann Ventures, based in Santa Barbara, Calif. "They made a smart move to [create] a business model that integrates the labels, rather than antagonizes them," he said.

In addition to the $7.1 million investment from Bertelsmann, the company also received a $12 million investment from Atlas Venture and a $1 million investment from Bonaventure Investments Ltd. Ledbetter would not disclose the stake that the companies have in MusicBank, saying only that together, the investment represents a minority interest.

About 70 percent of the investment will go toward technology, 15 percent will go to general and administrative costs and 15 percent will go to marketing efforts.

Bertelsmann Ventures recently set up the $250 million Bertelsmann Ventures Capital Fund II, which will target startup net companies. The fund includes investments from institutions such as America Online, Stanford University, Sumitomo and Beisheim Holding.

"We are not interested in companies that just take offline models and put them online, but rather in doing things online that would not be possible in the offline world," Bertelsmann Ventures' Gieselmann said. Bertelsmann Ventures' portfolio also includes BeSonic.com, Riffage, and Evenbetter.com.

Ledbetter said that MusicBank is also in talks with bands that have large collections of live recordings about making these available to fans as a subscription service. One possible tie-in could be free access to recordings with the purchase of a concert ticket, he said. This would benefit the company by aiding in data collection on clients, and could push ticket sales for the bands, he said.

Bertelsmann AG recently reported fiscal 1999 revenues of $15.6 billion, up from revenues of $12.7 billion the year before. Bertelsmann's fiscal year ended June 30.

AOL Secures Digital Rights Partner

As the major recording labels begin to launch their secure digital music distribution services, digital rights management companies are forging partnerships with content production and distribution companies as they jockey for the position of the industry standard. The latest deal involves America Online (AOL) and rights manager InterTrust.

Deals have ranged from those that ensure compatibility with popular player formats to distribution agreements with majors, but in making a deal with AOL, rights manager InterTrust has definitely raised its profile and increased the chances that it will become a major player in the nascent field.

The deal will allow InterTrust to package its music encryption software, MetaTrust Utility, with AOL's new 6.0 client software discs, to be released later this year. The online service also promised to integrate InterTrust's system into its Winamp music player, adding another finished piece to the secure music puzzle.

"The biggest hurdle for a digital rights management technology provider is getting the technology installed," says Aram Sinnreich, consultant for Jupiter Communications. "AOL's distribution is exactly what InterTrust is going to need if it is going to be successful in the long run."

AOL's more than 23 million users will have the option of accessing the technology, but the deal is non-exclusive, meaning AOL may yet announce additional deals with other rights management companies. Nor does this necessarily mean that InterTrust will become the digital rights management company for the soon-to-be conglomerate AOL-Time-Warner-EMI, according to a source close to both companies.

"For anyone to presume that Warner Music group has changed policy with respect to preferred digital rights management companies as a result of the AOL deal would be very presumptuous," said the source. The source confirmed that Warner Music's digital download plans do not involve InterTrust.

MP3 To Begin Radio Syndication

Continuing to usurp the roles of old media companies, MP3.com announced a deal with Cox Radio to provide hour long syndicated broadcasts of MP3's artists to 36 of the company's 81 stations. The broadcasts, to be called "Best of MP3.com," will be available in eight different genres (alternative, college, country, hip hop, hits, pop, rock and groove) to fit different radio formats. Each program is to be hosted by radio disc jockeys from toprated national stations.

"The combined audience of these 36 Cox stations in 17 markets is 4.3 million listeners, representing an incredible opportunity for digital artists to gain first-time exposure to new fans around the country," said MP3 Chairman and CEO Michael Robertson. "In return, Cox radio stations will receive web enhancements designed to increase each station's unique users."

MP3.com has been exploring a number of different avenues including subscription services, syndication into stores and health clubs, as well as contentproviding partnerships with e-tail and other 'Net sites since losing to the Recording Industry Association of America in court. Its stock, after pushing above 20 in mid June for the first time since April's Nasdaq crash - on news of an impending settlement with the major labels - has sunk back to around 13. Cox Radio is the country's fourth largest radio company operating 81 stations in 17 largely southern markets, including Atlanta, Houston, Miami and Tampa.

K-tel Cuts Costs

K-tel International, based in Minneapolis, took several restructuring steps, including staff layoffs and closing its German subsidiary.

The company is restructuring its U.S. operations and eliminated 35 positions on June 28, which will result savings of $1.7 million in the next year, company said.

The company closed its German arm, Dominion Vertriebs GmbH, on June 30, which resulted in the loss of 88 positions. That subsidiary, which sold consumer goods and music through direct marketing, had generated operating losses for the past two fiscal years. For the last fiscal year, ending June 30, it lost $1.6 million on revenues of $16 million.

In an unrelated move, K-tel consolidated its two U.K. operations into one facility in April, allowing a cost savings of about $500,000 per year, K-tel said.

Valley Media Cuts More Jobs

Valley Media, a distributor of music and video, has cut about 100 administrative employees at its Woodland, California headquarters.

CFO James Miller said that these administrative cuts were across the board in all departments.

Additionally, the company has reduced the hourly operational staff in the Woodland and Louisville, Kentucky distribution centers by 70, and 60 open positions that had been in the budget will not be filled.

The company had previously cut about 30 percent of its workforce since December, mostly through attrition and the elimination of seasonal and temporary employees.

The company's growth over the past years did not equal the rapid growth in the several preceding years, leading to an overstaffing situation, Miller said.

Elektra Launches New Soul Imprint

Mona Scott, President of Violator Management/AMG is getting her own record label, Monami Entertainment. The label, which will fall under the umbrella of Elektra Entertainment, will concentrate on "true classic soul."

Over the years, Scott and Violator CEO Chris Lighty have managed the careers of artists like Busta Rhymes, Missy Elliott, Mobb Deep and Noreaga. Last year, Scott and Lighty released Violator: The Album, a compilation of cuts by Violator artists. A representative for Scott told CMJ that Monami will be dedicated to Scott's personal passion: soul music. Scott hopes to sign new artists who play "classic soul with an updated sound."

Monami's first project is an album by 24year old Jamie Hawkins, an R&B artist whose album will be released early next year.

Stones At Legal Crossroads With Johnson

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has knocked out the Rolling Stones' main defense in the copyright infringement trial over their recording of the Robert Johnson songs "Love In Vain" and "Stop Breaking Down." The band claimed that they had believed the common-law copyrights had expired, but the ruling cited the 1996 Digital Millennium Copyright Act, which clarified the copyright laws, particularly with regards to artists who had recorded before current copyright laws went into effect.

The judgment was in favor of Stephen LaVere, Johnson's music publisher, and pending the outcome of the case, which is currently being litigated in a California courtroom, will set a precedent for any future suits regarding the use of Johnson's music. While LaVere's attorney Anthony Kornarens said the Appeals Court's ruling makes it a foregone conclusion the lower court will rule in his client's favor, the lawyer for the Stones promised to present new arguments.

LaVere's victory will directly benefit Claud Johnson of Crystal Spings, Mississippi, who was recently confirmed by the Mississippi Supreme Court to be the biological son and sole heir to the legendary bluesman. As the legal heir, Claud Johnson will be privy to Robert Johnson's estate, which is valued at $1 million and includes the songs in The Complete Recordings boxed set. Claud was declared the bluesman's son in 1998, but relatives appealed the decision.

LaVere, a music historian, is the court appointed agent for Robert Johnson's estate, charged with the responsibility of collecting royalties. Claud Johnson's attorney, Jim W. Kitchens, told CMJ that Mr. LaVere and Mr. Johnson are friendly though he did not mention any agreements between the two. LaVere says that he had originally located a half-sister of Robert Johnson's in the '70s and signed a contract with her to release Johnson's music. A dispute arose after that half-sister left the estate to her half-sister and a grandson. Later, LaVere was involved in discovering Claud and revealing his existence to the court, which led to the recent litigation that established him as the legal heir.

Those 29 recordings in the boxed set are all that exist of Johnson's legacy. They were recorded in a seven-month period from 1936-37. A Columbia Records executive is rumored to have sought out of the legendary guitarist in 1938, but found Johnson had died earlier that year at the age of 27. Recent advances in genetic matching are worthless because Johnson's final resting place remains unknown. As the Mississippi court said in its ruling: "As far as we know, Johnson is buried 'down by the highway side, so [his] old evil spirit can get on a Greyhound bus and ride."

Furious Five Send Message To Smith

Members of the old-school rap group the Furious Five filed a lawsuit against Will Smith on June 23, charging the former Fresh Prince, his publishing company Treyball Music, his label, Sony Music Entertainment and "Will 2K" co-writer Morgan Robinson with copyright infringement and unfair competition.

The plaintiffs claim that Smith illegally sampled a portion of the Furious Five's 1979 song "Super Rappin'" in the song "Will 2K," a hit single off of Smith's 1999 release Willenium. On the album, writers' credits for "Will 2K" are attributed to Smith and Robinson due to the fact that the following lines are in both songs: "It was a party night and everybody was kickin'/The highs was screamin' and the bass was shakin'/And it won't be long before everybody knows/ That its 12:00 and the roof will be blowin'."

The suit alleges the defendants "knew or should have known that their packaging credits were false and misleading before copies were made available to the public." Plaintiffs, who have requested a jury trial, are seeking general damages, an accounting of defendants' profits, reasonable attorney's fees and a trial by jury.

Bono, Pope Join Forces To Help Third World

U2 frontman-turned-activist Bono has joined the Pope, the Dalai Lama, and a host of performers in calling for the G7 countries to relieve the debt on certain developing countries. They assert that the burden of paying back loans has crippled these countries' ability to provide food, shelter and clean water to their people. Bono, along with Radiohead's Thom Yorke, Van Morrison, R.E.M., Madonna, Macy Gray, Oasis and Peter Gabriel, are among the dozens of stars urging their fans to send an email indicating their support of the international debt-relief campaign Jubilee 2000.

By sending an e-mail via www. dropthedebt.org, supporters can join a cyber petition started last year that now numbers 17 million signatures. The e-mail campaign is geared to coincide with the upcoming G7/G8 Summit in Kyushu-Okinawa, Japan on July 21-23, and calls for the G7 countries to make good on promises they made in June of last year to cancel $100 billion in debts owed by forty of the poorest nations. According to Jubilee 2000, those countries pay more than $8.6 billion in debt service each year.

A major hindrance to action has been Congress' refusal to honor President Clinton's promise of $600 million in debt relief. According to a June story in the London Times, America's tardiness is holding up contributions from other nations. The EU has pledged up to $1 billion from its European Development Fund — but only if the US puts its money in first.

"Our legislators have once again turned their backs on the 19,000 children that die every day as a result of debt. Where is the compassion in this conservatism? Now, when the United States is expecting an enormous surplus, is the time to take action," said Jubilee 2000 USA National Coordinator, Dan Driscoll-Shaw.

Many members of Congress are reportedly unhappy with the request for funding because they believe it would strengthen the role of the International Monetary Fund, which has been heavily criticized for how it deals with developing countries.

are knowledge and participation. Plaintiffs have shown neither in any sense applicable to the Internet," according to the brief. Specifically, the company argues, Napster has no knowledge of specific direct copyright infringements and does not substantially participate in infringing activities.

were made with the authorization of copyright holders, Napster said. "While Sony Music now claims that Napster is harming its bottom line, Sony Electronics is seeking to profit from the vast number of MP3s currently available on the Internet," the briefing states.

Labels have encouraged Internet users to download MP3 files from their affiliated Web sites, Napster argues. "By encouraging the creation and copying of MP3 files ... Plaintiffs have impliedly licensed such conduct and have waived the right to sue for it," the brief states.

Napster contends that the court should not issue an injunction against it because the company has not caused any harm to the record companies, and indeed has pushed record sales. The company disputes a study commissioned by RIAA and conducted by E. Deborah Jay, PhD., president/CEO of Field Research Corp., stating that many Napster users have stopped buying CDs.

The company has been hit from all side with lawsuits as of late, with the RIAA suit as well as a suit from TVT, one of the largest independent labels. Last month the company brought attorney Boies on board to boost its legal team. Boies prior to this case was special counsel to the Justice Department in its antitrust suit against another beleaguered software company — Microsoft.

already has a subscription-based classical music service, just announced a plan to split the profits with new artists who set up their own subscription-based music channels.

XM Satellite has secured $250 million in financing to continue their plans to offer their $9.95 national subscription radio service across the country, suggesting that consumers will pay for something they can already get for free.

Last year, the preferred digital scenario was the individual downloads for a fee model, such as the one offered by Emusic.com. In June Emusic admitted that it too was looking into offering subscription service. But it remains to be seen if the subscription model is any more viable than the individual download.

For the moment, the industry is banking on it. In the wake of lawsuitrelated publicity, Napster's use increased 77 percent in May over April according to Neilsen/Net Ratings, and it is averaging more than 500,000 unique visitors a day according to the latest figures from Media Metrix. In the absence of a secure system for downloading music, the labels cannot offer a clear alternative.

Plans by the Secure Digital Media Initiative (SDMI) have grown to include more than 200 companies, complicating the task of creating a single standard. Symbolic of the infighting is the fact that Universal and BMG attempted to break from the consortium to create a separate standard with Matsushita and AT&T, a plan that ultimately failed. Competing standards only threaten to inhibit transparency and ease of use driving the consumers to MP3s and Napster.

Even when a security standard is created, the chance of it surviving hackers is probably remote. In June, hackers broke the control code for the Sega Dreamcast game CDs, which had been considered one of the industry's best-protected properties. Add to that equation not only Napster and Gnutella, but any number of allegedly illegal trading sites. Melodicom Partners, a music marketing company, found that among the MP3 traders it polled, two-thirds knew of at least a dozen clandestine trading sites that they visited regularly in addition to Napster.

For an industry faced with the difficulty of putting the genie back in the bottle, partnering with a company like MP3 to provide a subscription service could be a significant levee against this wave of free music. As Michael Robertson suggests in a letter posted on his site, a "beneficial byproduct of a server-side system [such as MP3] is that users are never required to make their own MP3s and the music can be streamed. This limits the access to digital copies (or the need for access), which reduces the likelihood of illicit file swapping.

However, settlement talks with MP3, which started with deals by Warner and BMG, have been stalled by Universal. Universal's Vice-Chairman of Music and Internet Operations is Edgar Bronfman Jr., who promised to be "fiercely aggressive" in protecting his company's copyrights at RealNetwork's annual conference in May. It's been suggested that Universal, which has been bought by Vivendi, a major stockholder in Europe's largest cable and satellite TV company as well as Rubert Murdoch's BskyB Satellite company, will use all that bandwidth to offer some sort of streaming service using RealPlayer.

It wouldn't surprise John Potter, executive director of the Digital Media Association (DiMA), a media trade group, to suggest that an MP3 settlement may be held hostage to Universal's individual interests. In Potter's opinion, the entire RIAA legal strategy is a delaying tactic. "The RIAA's goal is to make sure that the market doesn't move so fast that the major labels can't catch up," he said. "They are putting the fear of significant litigation costs in front of innovators."

So instead of a subscription model aligned with a number of labels, we may be left with competing subscriptions offered by competing labels - a road Future Of Music Coalition's Jenny Toomey suggests we've been down before.

The thing that then worries me also is, how many subscription models can you afford to pay for in any month," the musician and former label entrepreneur said. "If you are going to have to make a choice between subscription models, that will narrow your access in specific ways. And if these channels become narrow in that way, they may establish the same kind of monopolies that we see in the same distribution channels for CDs, which means in order to participate in the subscription system you, [the artist], have to pay money.

Despite the current focus on the subscription model, new models seem to appear every day. Digital Payloads and EverAd are two new companies that will distribute proprietary software designs that wrap around an MP3 and allow commercials to be shown whenever an MP3 is played.

"What I like about this fight," said Toomey, "is that it's all so hypothetical and broad right now. It all seems very open, like there's a whole lot of possibilities." —Chris Parker

Jimmy and Doug's Farmclub operates an entity separate from its mother label, DreamWorks Digital A&R is an extension of the company's A&R department, functioning much like dealwithepic.com, the A&R site recently launched by Epic Records U.K.

Luke Wood, an A&R executive for DreamWorks, told CMJ that musicians are no longer communicating with each other or those in the industry through cassettes and CDs but rather via MP3s. In order for record companies to join the conversation, he said, the labels need to communicate in the MP3 language as well. Wood doesn't think that the proliferation of these sites will be bad for bands. "I think developing artists and unsigned talent should go to every single site," Wood said. "It's about the opportunity to get as many different ears to hear the music as possible.

A hot topic on the Web site's bulletin board is the submission agreement that artists must agree to before uploading their songs. The agreement requires artists to grant DreamWorks the "nonexclusive right, for 18 months from date of submission, to archive and broadcast [their] material on the Internet." Many artists have expressed their fear of fraud or theft of their intellectual property.

Wood explained that the terms of the agreement serve only to protect DreamWorks from liability as he ultimately plans to implement "unsigned streaming radio" to highlight what the label sees as the week's most worthy submissions. The Web site will also feature a "special song of the day," which will give bands a sense of what kind of music the label finds exciting and give the community a sense of feedback from the label. "The only way we can do [unsigned streaming radio] is if we have the rights."

generally smaller comparatively to most other labels, and that's mostly because we want the bands to make money. We don't want them to be rock stars," said Giampino. "I just look at other labels that are similar in size to us and their ads are everywhere. I think, This band cannot be making money,' he said, referring to recoupment, by which a label claims royalties against advertising and other expenses.

Recorded in Chicago at Steve Albini's Electrical Audio studios, Lifestyle features production from Heather Whinna, Albini's girlfriend, and more help on piano and organ from Brett Grossman, who also appeared on Blueblood's "I Must Prepare (Tablecloth Tint)." "[Blueblood] was a little more low fidelity and wasn't recorded as well," says Giampino. "For this one they went back to a studio.'

With guitarist/singer Andy Cohen relocated to Chicago for law school, the band has had less opportunity to tour. However they will be starting a four-week tour in Minneapolis in September, during which they'll travel to the major northern markets, including Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Boston and New York City. A tour of the West Coast will follow at the end of the year.

While shying away a bit from in-store performances because of the logistics involved during such a quick-and-dirty tour, the band is welcoming the chance for radio appearances, said Giampino. "Just give us a call, we'll set it up."

Giampino also promises giveaways through radio of tickets and albums. Some MP3s from the album will be available at Epitonic.com, and there may be a bonus or live track available as an added value at Amazon.com. "We've done it with Amazon before the album comes out, to get a little pre-response to it," says Giampino. "We might do it. Amazon does wonders for us."

"A snatch the best bits from modern pop music and expertly arrange them in the most kid-pleasing order possible, with almost feng shui expertise. They're like a punk rock Beasties, a stink bomb under the snooty noses of snotty purists.

Because A know that tedious purism is the DEATH of POP" - N.M.E.

RICHARD ASHCROFT

Radio 200: 77-11 Core Radio: #12 debut Triple A: #20 debut

Following the second, and seemingly final breakup of The Verve, vocalist/songwriter Richard Ashcroft is launching his solo career with the release of Alone With Everybody (Hut-Virgin). The album's first single, "A Song For The Lovers" (a leftover from The Verve's Urban Hymns sessions), has helped propel this masterful collection of heartfelt pop songs to the doorstep of the Top 10, climbing to #11 from #77. Ashcroft also makes an impressive debut on the Core Radio chart at #12, while also finding a home with Triple A, where Alone... checks in at #20.

IDA

Radio 200: 140-15 Core Radio: #11 debut

Will You Find Me, Ida's fourth full-length effort, was originally completed over a year ago for the band's then-label, Capitol Records. Despite its ultimate release on Tiger Style, it seems that the NYC slow-core quartet benefited significantly from Capitol's deep pockets — Ida was able to enlist the musical talents of Tara Jane O'Neil (Retsin), Bernie Worrell and many others in the recording process. The additional strings, ivory twinkles and percussion gracefully complement the group's vocal harmonies lush and beautiful melodies, collectively making this album Ida's most ear-catching to date. Will You Find Me moves swiftly up the Radio 200 chart, landing softly at #15, as well as debuting at #11 on the Core chart.

CONCRETES

Radio 200: #40 debut Core Radio: #39 debut

Though Boyoubetterunow (Up) is the band's stateside debut album, and it went for radio adds just a week ago, the Concretes have already found fans among college programmers. The Stockholm, Sweden-based sextet fits onto any playlist bent toward amorous indie rock, with its sugary pop aesthetic carried by lyrics focusing on love and relationships. With the help of indie promoters AAM, Boyoubetterunow debuts at #40 on the Radio 200, with an even better debut of #39 at Core.

Radio 200: 183-45

EINSTÜRZENDE NEUBAUTEN

Core Radio: #27 debut

The legendary Einstürzende Neubauten built its reputation as the godfathers of industrial noise through the use of found objects as instruments, non-traditional song structures, and apocalyptic performances that nearly burned down the clubs in which they performed. Twenty years later, the group's aptly named Silence Is Sexy finds the group delving into a twisted cabaret best described as a post-industrial chapter of Kurt Weill's songbook — singer Blixa Bargeld sensually croons in both German and English, and the group's dark sound is spiritually similar to that of Nick Cave & The Bad Seeds.

EPITONIC

www.epitonic.com 425 2nd St., 5th Fl. San Francisco, CA 94107 Phone: 415.979.9350 Email: info@epitonic.com

Anyone monitoring the development of the online music industry ought to be familiar with Epitonic.com, an entertainment Web site dedicated to guiding musicians (most of whom have yet to succumb to major label temptation) through the Internet music maze. What music enthusiasts may not realize, however, is that the company recently revamped its site, making the discovery of new music by non-musicians as painless as ever. Epitonic's mission has definitely remained untouched: Self-described as "a site for sore ears," the company's founders profess that they "want to bring the scenes of music [they] hold dear to the Internet, and subsequently to the world, after having [their] own ears inundated by a glut of mediocre music." Amen, brother! Epitonic.com's new site design and improved navigation features facilitate accessing music from four major genres — rock, electronica, hip-hop and experimental — broken down into further categories such as indie rock, math rock, breakbeat, drum 'n' bass and many others. Simply click on a specific genre link and land on a page featuring multiple artists, each providing song samples (e.g. MP3, WMA) and the ability to download desired tracks. Epitonic.com recently launched the Epitonic Blackbox, a new service enabling users to store, share and play their Epitonic music collection anywhere in the world that an Internet connection is available. The service also features unlimited storage space for Epitonic tracks and album streams. Other nifty site features include a link to its most recently added artists and tracks, and another link to its most popular digital downloads. Check out Epitonic's two radio stations, Bandwidth Boom Bap (dedicated to cool hiphop grooves), and Epitonic Indie Rock. Merely download the free Epitonic player to access the site's broadcasts. Epitonic offers videos from such distinguished artists as Sleater-Kinney, Rinocerose and Moby, as well as those from unsigned artists. The site also gives visitors the chance to win free stuff, as well as sign up for a company newsletter to keep abreast of the latest site features and artist information. — Bill Konig

New Technology Tracks Online Video, Audio Downloads

Global Network Media Inc. (www.gnmsystems.com), a technology company that provides online tools for the secure transmission of information over the Internet, has unveiled its latest (patent-pending) technology. The new product offers subscribing licensors of music and video in the MP3, Napster, Gnutella and other compression technologies a fully encrypted, digitalized delivery system that immediately records every download. In addition, the technology eliminates "leakage" and "ghost trail" troubles by maintaining control over all intellectual properties.

This new technology provides the accountability and protection of this [intellectual] property, that has been so desperately needed by the industry," said Jim Clark, Founder/President of Global. "The downloaded products are uniquely identified and secured to protect from illegal copying," he added.

The company also has patents pending on technology for a secure, Internet media player using the same distribution system that prevents digital copying.

Liquid Audio Uses IBM Technology To Deliver Online Music In Japan

Liquid Audio Japan, Inc. has licensed the Electronic Media Management System (EMMS) from IBM Japan, Ltd. The company will deploy the EMMS distribution system parallel to the Liquid Music Distribution System to offer multi-format music distribution services, providing music encoding, hosting and distribution in both the Liquid Audio and EMMS formats.

"By expanding the range of delivery technologies we support, Liquid Audio Japan can provide customers with increased flexibility and choice for digital music distribution and simplify the user experience for consumers," said Chiaki Konagai, a Liquid Audio Vice President.

Magex, InterTrust To Expand Digital Music Security

Magex, a company that helps enable the transfer of digital content over the Internet, has teamed with InterTrust Technologies, a developer of distributed digital rights management technology, to expand Magex's commercial solution for online secure digital music downloads. The Magex solution is available on Web sites in the U.K. and the Far East, as well as on more than one million CD-ROMs that contain exclusive content and Magex software, to be distributed over the next three months.

With Magex, artists now have comprehensive protection of their copyright as well as an iron-tight payment mechanism for the distribution of their material," said Peter Beverly, CEO of Magex.

The company recently raised $80 million in private equity funding to support the expansion of its service worldwide.

Audiohighway, WMG Form Strategic Alliance

entertainment company Audiohighway.com

"Audiohighway.com has been very successful in attracting music fans to its unique site," said Paul Vidich, Executive Vice President, Strategic Planning and Business Development for Warner Music Group. He added, "We are pleased that with this license, Audiohighway.com's appeal is further enhanced, and visitors to the site will have access to great new music from our artists."

Warner Music Group will also receive a small equity stake in Audiohighway.

ChickClick Launches Syndicated Radio Program

ChickClick.com, network of Web sites targeted towards young women, has launched a syndicated radio program. ChickClick Radio features Top 40 music, celebrity interviews and lifestyle features and news. Hosted by L.A.-based radio celebrities Michelle Madden and Juliet Zacarias, the program allows listeners to customize their ChickClick stations, controlling the frequency with which certain songs are played. In addition, site visitors can add favorite tracks and get artist information. The show is syndicated to over two dozen radio stations in more than 20 states.

Epitonic.com has launched the Epitonic Blackbox, a service that enables users to store, share and play their Epitonic music collection anywhere that an Internet connection is available. The service features unlimited storage space for Epitonic tracks and full album streams. The Blackbox comes with a New Releases folder, and separate "picks folders" selected by artists and editors, where the company provides new music and recommendations from musicians and industry insiders alike...New entertainment Web site Soundom.com will pay consumers to listen to music through site MP3s, CDs and Internet radio broadcasts, as well as provide royalties to artists and recording companies. Site visitors will first have to download the Soundom application, which is a program that enables listeners to access music. The company anticipates releasing the first copies of the application by September 2000 on a first come, first served basis...Internet broadcaster Rapstation.com has unveiled its new Swapmeet service for the easy sharing of digital music files. Napster, Scour, Furi and Gnutella have all posted tracks to the new Swapmeet page for fast downloadability. Each title has its own reviews section, so that site visitors can best decide which program suits their individual needs. In addition, the company has formed a strategic alliance with European Internet music community Vitaminic (www.vitaminic.com). Vitaminic will feature all of Rapstation's more than 800 artists for sampling, download and purchase...Three mathematicians at Brown University have capped six years of research with a patent for an encryption code that they claim makes it impractical, and maybe impossible to violate copyrighted data such as digital music. The new system, developed by Jeffrey Hoffstein, Jill Pipher and Joseph Silverman, can quickly encode each second of a data stream with a different encryption key. As a result, a typical three-minute track could be scrambled into 180 different codes...RadioWave.com has signed an agreement with ARTISTdirect to provide its site with branded, streaming music channels. The channels, slated to be unveiled at the end of July, will combine graphics and e-commerce services with streamed music...Artist Discovery (www.artistdiscovery.com) has launched a new Internet radio station in affiliation with ChoiceRadio.com. The 24-hour station located on Artist Discovery's site features 20 different music genres...XM Satellite Radio (www.xmradio.com) has secured pledges for $235 million in institutional funding, giving it what the company considers to be sufficient financial support through the scheduled launch of its nationwide satellite radio service next year.

REVIEWS

AVAIL One Wrench (Fat Wreck Chords)

Avail's One Wrench is played with the kind of intensity and passion capable of draining the very life from the bodies of mere mortals. You'd expect this vehemence to be quick and overwhelming, like a torrential rainstorm, dying off and leaving a trail of destruction in its wake. Such is not the case with Virginia quartet Avail, which kicks things off in fifth gear and keeps that electrifying, neck-snapping pace throughout its latest album. Vocalist Tim Barry foams at the mouth over crusty, scabby chords to create robust sing-alongs, ensuring that the blood 'n' guts effort fearlessly walks the line between punk rock and hardcore.

FUTURE BIBLE HEROES

I'm Lonely (And I Love It) (EP) (Merge)

With the title track of this EP, the Future Bible Heroes remind us of two things: a) '80s synthpop was not the soulless and cheesy genre that current revisionists would have you believe, and b) that Stephin Merritt can give Bernard Sumner a run for his money when it comes to dolorous, danceable electro-orchestrations. Besides Merritt, Future Bible Heroes consists of Christopher Ewen, whose sparkling synths embrace the '80s spirit of modern romance more unabashedly than the Magnetic Fields tend toward, and MF "gal Friday" Claudia Gonson, whose "My Blue Hawaii" brings to mind a dark and early Alison Moyet.

NINA GORDON

Tonight And The Rest Of My Life (Warner Bros.) Nina Gordon's former Veruca Salt partner Louise Post continues to lead the band into a maelstrom of angst-riddled grunge-metal on its latest album, but Gordon's solo debut, Tonight And The Rest Of Me, floats by on the sweet melodic sensibilities and heart-wrenching harmonies that once balanced out the outfit's sonic storm. Though she shows more kinship with Juliana Hatfield than L7 in a solo setting, Gordon has lost none of the distressing desperation or out-of-place passion that she brought to Veruca Salt's efforts, blanketing her personal, allegorical lyrics in crisp, mid-tempo guitar pop. She revisits Veruca's tumultuous tendencies on the riff-fueled "Badway," but it's cuts like the whimsical title track and the lazy "Now I Can Die" that give the album its character, proving you don't need to use a sledgehammer to crack an egg. — M. J CHURCH

One Mississippi (Honest Don's)

For a band whose preferred medium has been the seven-inch single, Bay Area veterans J Church have a lot to say on One Mississippi, a 26-song, 73minute album. The three-piece runs the gamut here, moving from hook-laden punk to indie rock to country-inflected pop to dark psychedelia. Founding member and singer/guitarist Lance Hahn (formerly of Cringer) has revamped the lineup; the band now features Adam Pfahler (ex-Jawbreaker) on drums and Jeff Bursley (ex-Nothing Cool) on bass. The musical mix notwithstanding, on this disc the band relies on standard pop song structure more than on past releases, and though the music is often less propulsive, it still retains its brooding edge. Lyrically, Hahn is as intelligent and thoughtful as ever, writing both autobiographical sketches and commentaries on others as a detached, insightful outsider. — Michael Dabaie

JOHN DOE THING

Freedom Is... (SpinART)

Although the legendary X was laid to rest in 1996, John Doe has been doing solo projects since 1990's Meet John Doe. Freedom Is... continues in the softer, folky vein of Doe's solo material. The songwriter's lyrics have matured as well, revealing a more introspective, earnest and romantic side. One thing that hasn't changed is Doe's voice, which sounds much the same as it did in 1980. Several famous guests stop by to pay their respects, including X's Exene Cervenka, but the album revolves mostly around Doe and his songs. Old-school X fans take heart: Doe still has some punk attitude in him — both the rocking "Too Many Goddamned Bands" and the bitter "Ever After" are not suitable for radio. — Tad Hendrickson

HANNAH MARCUS

Black Hole Heaven (Bar/None)

Having received substantial nods from Red House Painter Mark Kozelek (he produced and played on her first album) and American Music Club drummer Tim Mooney (he produced this recording), Hannah Marcus would be hard pressed to disassociate herself from the fogshrouded ennui of the West Coast's more disconsolate artistic community. But despite Marcus' affection for wistful, often bittersweet vistas, the torchy daydreams of her L.A.-damaged flower girl can be as consoling as they are feverishly moody. Black Hole Heaven, the singer-songwriter's fourth album, lingers near suggestive, dark places both musically — subversive trip-hop rhythms and roiling noise and effects infect tender, art-folk canvases — and lyrically — drugs, bad dreams and spoiled love mingle uneasily with spiritual longing without allowing the shadows to fully take hold. Rich, provocative stuff. — Colin Helms

REVIEWS

MEST Wasting Time (Maverick)

Wasting Time isn't exactly the shot heard 'round the world. However, if you're looking for standard pop-punk with ska overtones, it's all here. The album is framed with a pair of upbeat, punky numbers — the kind of songs that Mest fares best with. Accented with the Chicago band's crisp drumming and a round, punchy bass sound, these tunes cover all of the teen angst and aggression bases. Sandwiched in between are a few ska pitstops, including the single "What's the Dillio?," and a lot of slickly produced, laid-back punk reminiscent of Green Day or Goldfinger. Mest's vocals are especially strong, ranging from a slur like Rancid's Tim Armstrong, to interweaving harmonies that recall Grant Hart and Bob Mould's. Brimming with earnestness and musical chops, Wasting Time is a change of pace from stereotypical, overly jaded major-label punk. — Michael Dabaie

PEDRO THE LION

Progress (EP) (Suicide Squeeze)

Pedro The Lion is one David Bazan, an unconstrained Seattle singer-songwriter fluid in his ability to write and deliver haunting, overcast pop songs. Progress, Bazan's latest four-song EP, follows quietly on the heels of his March 2000 full-length, Winners Never Quit, a disarming collection of languid tunes pricked by poetic, introspective wordplay about personal and religious relationships. Progress' abridged tale is equally poignant. The melancholic opener "June 18, 1976" recounts a Kansas City mother's suicide, and picks up steam and intensity to mirror the song's disquieting lyrics ("Speeding toward the ground/through the air without a sound/gracefully"). Two previous Pedro tracks recorded live and stripped-down in 1999 at Holland's VPRO radio gracefully close out a reflective and intimate music experience. — Bill Konig

POLE 3 (Matador)

The latest installment in Berlin producer Stefan Betke's trilogy of minimalist, crackling future dub continues to explore the potential of the whacked-out analog sound filter known as the 4-Pole Waldorf (hence his stage name). On 3, he layers instances of warm vinyl static and hiss over the bouncy groove of Jamaican dub. Betke has never been shy in revealing, at least on acetate, his Shoenberg-Cage lineage. Just as his deepest influences disassemble classical music's structure. Betke rewires the circuitry of electronic-music composition to create experimental abstractions. The album's looped fragments of melody and dub bass maintain a sense of forward motion, but it's these very same recurrent patterns that also make 3 a distinctly meditative experience — check the rolling grind of "Karussel" ("Carousel"), and children splashing against a setting sun on the "Strand" ("Beach"). — Enrique Lavin

RUSSELL MILLS/UNDARK

Strange Familiar (Bella Union-Instinct)

When it comes down to it, the guest contributors on Russell Mills/Undark's latest outing, the sprawling, beautifully orchestrated Strange Familiar, hold a higher profile than Mills himself (whose biggest claim to fame derives from his work as a visual artist). But while acclaimed musicians such as The Edge, Brian Eno, Kevin Shields, Robin Guthrie, Michael Brook and others contribute to the layered and detailed luxury of Mills' ambient excursion in their own unique ways, it's his own acute sense of minimal melody and atmosphere that makes Mills' second full-length outing such an alluringly ominous effort. Infusing the rhythms of earthy dub with heady washes of alien sound culled from acoustic and electronic samples and loops, the artist offers a dreamy, cerebral serenade that delves as deep as your ears are brave enough to dig. — M. SAINT LOW

Saint Low (Cooking Vinyl-Thirsty Ear) For nearly 10 years, singer/guitarist Mary Lorson

has led the saccharine charge of NYC power-poppers Madder Rose. A soft harmonious breeze, however, recently uprooted the dulcet songstress from the city's tumultuous soil, gently carrying her to a safe landing in upstate New York. Aided by a bouquet of talented local musicians, Lorson has crafted an engaging side-project debut by exploiting her intelligent pop sensibilities and sometimes fragile, always self-assured vocals. The many moods of Saint Low are induced by the effort's vast array of musical styles and the band's steadfast musicianship, evident from the arresting, smoky opener "Anywhere," to the naked, vulnerable "Walk On By." Mary Lorson's growth as a songwriter emulates the natural growth of a rose - gradual, yet ultimately majestic. - Bill Konig

TEGAN AND SARA

This Business Of Art (Vapor-Warner Bros.) Like a female folkie Black Flag (the band, not the pesticide), Ani DiFranco cast her seeds alongside the interstates of North America, leaving many a sprouting sapling in her wake. Two of the more robust species are Calgary twins Tegan and Sara Quin, who, at barely 20 years of age, seem wise beyond their years. Their songs are agitated and angst-ridden, and feature barbed lyrics, percussive acoustic guitar and sassy lead vocals that often flip up an octave at the end of a verse (just like you-knowwho). Though this is their second album, it's their Vapor debut, and Vapor patron saint (and fellow Canuck) Neil Young was impressed enough to take them on the road with him and the Pretenders on their 2000 summer tour. THE URGE

Too Much Stereo (Immortal-Virgin)

The Urge's upbeat and soulful Too Much Stereo is footloose and fancy-free — one of those albums armed with a plethora of "Don't worry, be happy" moments that is nonetheless not so perky that it becomes annoying and gets under your skin. The band's bliss factor is undeniable, though - strong enough to transport listeners to sunwashed beach fantasies or summer street fairs with its genrenomad approach and kooky sound. The style here runs the gamut from reggae to pop to rock, folk and ska, proving that this St. Louis six-piece is patenting a unique sound.

CAT STEVENS

Though his career spanned a little over a decade, Cat Stevens has provided immeasurable influence and inspiration for nearly three generations of aspiring singer-songwriters. COWBOY NATION

A Journey Out Of Time (Shanachie)

The trail of the Kinman brothers has been a long and strange one. Founding members of the original L.A. punk scene with the Dils, Chip and Tony traded in their black leather for brown and formed the pioneering alt-country band Rank And File, releasing a couple of great albums in the early to mid-'80s before running out of steam. Their trail went cold after another stylistic about-face (a brief dalliance with synth-pop as Blackbird), but in '96 they formed Cowboy Nation to perform country music as authentic as you're likely to find anywhere. This, the latter incarnation's second album, again pairs originals with standards (and we mean standards: "Shenandoah," "Back In the Saddle Again") to stunning effect. The songs are entirely acoustic, and the duo's trademark high/low harmonies are as gorgeous as ever. — Amir Hijazi

KIMBALL ROESER EFFECT

Kimball Roeser Effect

When Urge Overkill finally dissolved in the late '90s after five albums and nearly 10 years of suave underground rock, it seemed inevitable that the band members would quickly find new artistic outlets. What's totally unexpected is the degree to which the band's frontmen, Nash Kato and Eddie "King" Roeser, are diverging stylistically in their post-UO careers. Where Kato's recently-released solo debut takes the slick '70s rock power chords and polished, urbane vocals of UO classics like Saturation to a new, albeit funkier, extreme, Roeser's new outfit is all blood, sweat and gritty rock 'n' roll. Backed by Jim Kimball, arguably the underground's fiercest drummer, Roeser's new tunes espouse a rip-roaring style of Midwestern rock rooted in Chicago's Scratch Acid/Big Black sound, as opposed to the power pop of local luminaries like Cheap Trick, who clearly inspired Urge's greatest moments. KRE's debut is not just must for UO loyalists, it's also a hunk of rusty Chitown rock that's not to be missed by veteran indie rockers. — Cheryl Botchick

The single-disc collection will include material from the band's career, including songs from its recordings for the Twin\Tone, A&M and Columbia labels...A new configuration of the Meat Puppets are currently recording an album for Atlantic Records. The Phoenix band, which was founded in 1980 by brothers Cris and Curt Kirkwood, has expanded from a trio to a quartet. The new lineup includes only one original band member, vocalist/guitarist Curt Kirkwood. The change comes as little surprise, as the brothers had long been at odds with each other over Cris's reported drug abuse and self-destructive behavior. This upcoming album, which is still in the early stages of work, will be the first record of new material bearing the Meat Puppets name since 1995's No Joke on London Records... Social Distortion is currently working on a new album for Time Bomb Recordings. On the label Web site (www.timebombrecordings.com), guitarist/vocalist Mike Ness discusses the album's direction. He cryptically describes the new material by saying, "I want every record to be different from the last one, but I also want to keep continuity with our sound. So this record will be a departure from our others without losing our signature style. It has a real '70s feel and a real 2000 feel. It's definitely a balance of the two." The band will work with producer James Saez (Nine Inch Nails, System Of A Down, Porno For Pyros). It will be the band's first album without longtime guitarist Dennis Danell, who died unexpectedly at age 38 of a brain aneurysm earlier this year...Jenny Toomey, formerly of Tsunami and more recently known as an outspoken advocate of low-power FM radio, has begun working on a new music venture. She is collaborating with Franklin Bruno on a project called Indie Rock Summer Stock. NEWS On July 8, Berlin, Germany played host to its 12th annual Love Parade, an event that brought an estimated 1 million people (considerably less than the record-breaking 1.7 million who attended the 1999 event) to the city streets for the all-day dance music celebration. Flying under the slogan "One World, One Love Parade," the event (which has grown substantially from its 150 atendees in 1989) commenced at 2 p.m. when 50 floats carrying 250 of the world's most respected DJ talents — including Paul Van Dyk, Carl Cox, Sven Vath, Danny Teneglia, Westbam, and DJ Rolando, as well as hundreds of local artists — began a procession that led towards The Siegessäule (Victory Column), where a huge rally, involving several of the events biggest DJs playing for the entire crowd, ran from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. The conclusion of the parade led to a city-wide afterparty at more than 40 different clubs where hundreds of DJs from around the world kept ears buzzing and feet shuffling straight through Tuesday evening. According to local police, 194 people were arrested for possesion of narcotics and more than 500 people were hospitalized (an increase from 300 at last year's event). According to an Associated Press report, there was only one fatal drug overdose. For those Germans turned (Continued on page 34)

Mixed Live (Moonshine)

Moonshine's Mixed Live series forgoes the polished perfection of studio-produced DJ mix CDs in favor of the spontaneous energy that occurs between the DJ and the audience. On this first installment, British three-deck technician Carl Cox rocks the block with an energetic dose of the best techno and hard house tunes in his crate. Recorded May 6 at Chicago's Crobar Nightclub, the 22-track set demonstrates why many tout Coxie as the best on the planet. His trademark turntable showmanship (long mixes, flanging between tracks, backspins, etc.) proves just as enthralling as the music itself, providing fans with a more honest and on-point representation of the man's skills than any other disc in the bins.

Spain's Enrique Bunbury and Juan Perro (a.k.a. Santiago Auserón) tore the house down with their recent performances at the Rock en \tilde{N} showcase. The industry-only concerts in New York (additional shows are scheduled for Chicago, Los Angeles and Mexico City) provided an explanation as to why these two artists command such massive followings in their native country and the rest of the Spanish-speaking world. Keep an eye out for Bunbury, whose traveling orchestra of international players calls itself Pequeño Cabaret Ambulante after his latest release Pequeño (EMI Latin). The former leader of mega-rock band Héroes del Silencio, which used to play arenas and stadiums throughout Europe in the early '90s, has brought things home with intimate narratives and a stage show that would make even Tom Jones proud. Auserón, formerly of seminal post-new wave group Radio Futura, has turned his Juan Perro concept into a vehicle to explore roots rock. WEA Latina will release his latest album Mr. Hambre (DRO East West) later this year. Opening act Hijos del Sol (Fonovisa), led by Al Borde! magazine publisher Edgardo Ochoa, proved that it can play with the biggies with a dance-driven pan-Latin, pop-rock sound. Look for the Hijos' forthcoming release in late August...Should Latin alternative music be sung in Spanish to reach a broader audience? Should there be such a thing as the sub-genre called "rock en español" (Latin alternative), or is that ghettoizing the musical form? These were just a couple of the questions that sparked heated discussion at the recent New York installment of Rock en $\tilde{\mathit{N}}$, a four-date promotional convention put on by Spanish Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers (SGAE). SGAE is the BMI or ASCAP of Spanish-language music — though, with some 58,000 artists in film, theater and dance, the organization is more far reaching than its U.S. counterparts in protecting its members' intellectual rights. Highlights included SGAE president Eduardo (Teddy) Bautista who moderated a roundtable discussion and industry Q&A that featured Luaka Bop president Yale Eveley, Fonovisa rock division director Ricardo Ochoa, and Spin magazine Senior Editor Will Hermes. Yale asked if there is anyone outside of the Latin alternative community really interested in CMJ's Ñ Alternative. After listing off Luaka Bop's Latin alt roster that includes Si Sé and Los Amigos Invisibles, he went on to explain: "We don't want to pigeonhole our artists. We approach our artists the same way as all our artists — touring, reaching media and being organized." Fonovisa's Ochoa drove the point that the big labels in the United States and in Latin American have no idea what to do with rock because of a widespread complacency with traditional, popular music. LOS AUTENTICOS DECADENTES

Hoy Trasnoche (BMG U.S. Latin)

Over the course of its 12 years fusing Latin flavors with neon-lit city pop, Argentine superorchestra Los Auténticos Decadentes has always focused on the importance of laughter as a social icebreaker. A party in itself, the 12-member group is led by singers Cucho Parisi and Jorge Serrano, who take turns singing about the twists and turns the heart takes just to keep up with love, always filtering the reality of life through humor and the absurd. The group is part of what seems like a movement of Argentine hyper-fusion absurdists, which includes Los Fabulosos Cadillacs and Bersuit Vergarabat. Like its best albums — 1995's Mi Vida Loca and 1997's Cualquiera Puede Cantar — the group's sixth album Hoy Trasnoche is consistently fun, making it one of the best trasnoche (all-nighter) party albums of the year. Rooted in reggae and ska, the group captures a sense of the nightlife in Buenos Aires by bringing Argentine cabaret antics and the milonga (a folksy precursor to the tango) to the fore. The song "El Dinero No Es Todo" uses cumbia beat and pre-programmed, playful drum-machine rolls to drive home the point: "I know it's not everything, but I want money." Meanwhile in the Cuban son-driven "Te Contaron," the Parisi says, "It doesn't matter what others say/In life I need you to love me."

LA "0" Segundo Acto (Cuikalli)

La "O" is all about keeping it in the family. Made up of the four Olvera brothers from Morelia, Mexico, La "O" landed in Los Angeles to release its second album, Segundo Acto. Erecting hard rock melodic lines and breaking them out into funky rapcore ("Dejate Oir") or grinding metallic riffage ("Escapate"), the quartet lyrically deals with growing pains, angst and relationships. Recalling the heaviest moments of Faith No More, La "O" has a knack for building powerful rock structures and catchy choruses that will likely make an impact in the U.S. rock en español scene.

SONNY SIMMONS Manhattan Egos (Arhoolie)

Alto saxophonist Sonny Simmons spent the early '60s playing with Mingus, Dolphy and Elvin Jones before leading some fine sessions later in the decade. Sadly, he dropped out of sight in the early '70s, only to be "rediscovered" more than 20 years later in top form. Manhattan Egos, which was first released in 1969, made a tremendous splash in its time. The intense free jazz playing is remarkably modern even by today's standards, pushing the avant-garde/improvisation envelope while drawing upon African tribal groove and Middle Eastern melodies. Four extra live tunes have been added to the end of this classic, making it a reissue that shouldn't be ignored.

ELLERY ESKELIN

Ramifications (Hatology)

Ramifications marks saxophonist Ellery Eskelin's first time leading a quintet; regular drummer Jim Black and accordion/sampler person Andrea Parkins are augmented by cellist Erik Friedlander and tuba player Joe Daley. The five create an elegant sound that is probing but often light and airy due to the unobtrusive sound of the cello, accordion and tuba (which is surprisingly subtle here). While Eskelin is listed as the leader and composer, the saxophonist allows the others to play an equal part, making this a great group effort.

For Fans Of: John Zorn's Bar Kokhba, Erik Friedlander, Tom Cora Recommended Tracks: "Penalty Phase," "Museum Piece," "Title

WITCHES AND DEVILS

At The Empty Bottle (Knitting Factory)

Witches And Devils is a Chicago all-star group that plays Albert Ayler's compositions. As expected, this live session is filled with a lot of honking and skronking, but the four tunes here are definitely recognizable facsimiles of the originals.

NFWS

The Peter Brötzmann Tentet + 2 recently finished a two-week U.S. tour. Including many of the same musicians that appear on the recently released

Stone/Water and the epic triple-CD released in 1998, the all-star line-up featured the talented Joe McPhee (making a rare appearance on valve trombone), group newcomer Roy Campbell, Ken Vandermark, Hamid Drake, Mats Gustafsson and a host of Chicago and New York notables. The group opened its tour in New York City on June 17 warming up for Sonic Youth at the Hammerstein Ballroom, which has a capacity of around 3,500. Other stops on the tour included Atlanta, Boston, San Francisco, Portland and Vancouver, Canada. The group finished the trek on July 5 with a three-hour performance at Chicago's Old Town Vandermark School Of Folk Music. These shows revealed the Herculean dimensions of this group as it went from large Sun Ra-like swing to some terse, hard-edged playing that is the leader's calling card — it seemed as if the players were integrating some of Brötzmann's own style into their playing. The combo was remarkably egalitarian in highlighting individual players amidst the group parts. It was obvious that all the players (most of whom generally lead their own groups) really got into the group spirit of the event. The band also did a three-day stint in the studio, recording material for an upcoming release for Okkadisk, the label that released the group's previous recordings. According to Okkadisk label owner Bruno Johnson, the release will likely be a double disc, but based on these shows it looks as if there could be enough material for another triple-CD. While nothing has been decided at this point, there is also a possibility that live material from the Chicago show will be used as well. In case anyone was wondering what MacArthur Foundation fellow Ken Vandermark was doing with his grant money, he used a portion of it to underwrite the Brötzmann tour. The fact that Vandermark organized and financed this tour and recording session says a lot about why the remarkably active and generous reedist won the award in the first place. In other Vandermark news, Atavistic will release the Vandermark 5's fourth album, Burn The Incline, on August 8. Expect a U.S. tour this fall.

BUMPY KNUCKLES

Industry Shakedown (KJAC-Landspeed)

Hailed as "the album the industry doesn't want you to hear," Freddie Foxxx (a.k.a. Bumpy Knuckles) unloads a decade's worth of hostility towards the music biz on his first fulllength since 1989's Freddie Foxxx Is Here. Armed with beats provided by some of the most respected producers in the game (Pete Rock, DJ Premier, the Alchemist and Diamond D), this New York underground mainstay calls out industry honchos most rappers wouldn't dare dis on record, as well as platinum knuckleheads in need of a head check. If you're looking for some good, old-fashioned headbanger shit that will bring you back to the days when wilding out meant something, this impressively raw 20-track album should do it. Four female singer-songwriters, Tara MacLean, Kendall Payne, Amy Correia and Shannon McNally, will try and fill the void left by the Lilith Fair when they embark on The Girls Room Tour, sponsored by Capitol Records and Stayfree. The brainchild of Capitol's A&R Director Perry Watts-Russell, the tour starts on July 10 in Seattle, criss-crossing North America until the August 8 finale at the Roxy in West Hollywood. Unsigned, local female singer-songwriters will be chosen in competitions on each stop of the trek, with a finalist opening the August 8 show and recording a demo for Capitol. MacLean toured with Lilith Fair for the past three summers. Payne's debut, Jordan's Sister, was released in 1999. McNally (who was discovered by the Cowboy Junkies' Margo Timmons) and Correia will both make their album debuts this fall...Speaking of the Junkies, the Cowboy Junkies will release a live album this fall. Waltz Across America will feature tracks recorded during the band's 1999 North American tour. It will only be obtainable at maplemusic.com...In June, Sheryl Crow began pre-production work on a yet-to-be-named new album. Currently slated for an early 2001 release, it will be Crow's studio follow-up to 1998's The (Continued on page 34)

Chart information is based on combined airplay reports of world music releases from CMJ's panel of college, commercial and non-commercial radio stations

There are many world music artists out on the road this summer. Bebel Gilberto recently embarked upon her first tour ever. On June 28, the Brazilian singer returned to her homeland for a show in São Paolo. Back in the Northern Hemisphere, Gilberto and her band toured the U.S. and Canada from July 1–17, hitting a dozen cities along the way. As the radio response to her chart-topping album Tanto Tempo would indicate, Gilberto's first tour was an unqualified success, selling out clubs in most cities...Nonesuch has announced tour dates for a number of its acts. West African artists Ali Farka Toure and Afel Bocoum will tour together from July 21 to August 11, making stops in 14 towns. It is an extremely rare chance to see Toure perform — in recent years the usually reclusive guitarist/singer has been more focused on his farm than playing music. Bocoum has appeared with Toure as a sideman since 1991. Bocoum released his debut, Alkibar, in 1999 on World Circuit-Nonesuch. Further down the road, Cuban legend Compay Segundo will tour from August 25 to September 20. The tres player has done a number of dates in the U.S. since the Cuban music explosion he helped create as part of the Buena Vista Social Club. Any chance to see this great performer should not be squandered. Fellow Buena Vista singer Omara Portuondo will do her first tour of the States as a bandleader. American audiences who saw her with the Buena Vistas or as a special guest on the Ibrahim Ferrer/Ruben Gonzalez co-bill of 1999-2000 know what an electric performer she is, but to say that this woman is anything less than a force of nature would be an understatement. Portuondo's tour will run from September 15 to October 28, hitting 26 cities...Talvin Singh and Bill Laswell have teamed up for a project entitled Axiom Tabla Project. The project is tentatively set to come out on Palm Pictures on September 12. This is the first such collaboration between Singh, who mixes drum 'n' bass and traditional Indian bhangra music, and Laswell, who has done countless production and remix projects, often bringing in elements of ambient, dub and electronic music. This project features the two taking traditional tabla recordings and adding their own modern touch.

In Griot Time: String Music From Mali (Stern's Africa)

In Griot Time is the companion volume to Banning Eyre's book In Griot Time: An American Guitarist In Mali, which describes Eyer's attempt to learn the secrets of the griot guitar style firsthand in Mali. The compilation features a glorious assortment of Malian music, ranging from polished studio tracks to homemade work tapes that capture the resonant tones of Malian guitar music in its natural setting. The album is a real feast for fans of African guitar, full of lush finger picking, bluesy inflections and warm, shimmering tones. Especially dig the last track, which features Eyre's travel companion Dirck Westervelt jamming on an Appalachian banjo tune with his African hosts!

ROKIA TRAORE

Wanita (Indigo)

Rokia Traore is one of the new-breed of Malian superstars: a gifted artist with an acrobatic, heart-stopping voice and a musical style that reflects a more cosmopolitan, modern-day Africa. On Wanita, her Ū.S. debut, American soul, French pop and even Indian ragas appear in the mix, but her African roots remain dominant thanks to her use of balafon and kora as well as her choice to sing in the Bamanan language.

The Wailing Souls make classic, uplifting reggae with a strong lyrical message. As the acclaimed vocal duo sings about justice, equality and the struggle to overcome poverty, listen to how Winston "Pipe" Matthews and Lloyd "Bread" McDonald shape their vocal lines with a tone of pleading and longing — their voices literally do wail.

DEICIDE Incineratehymn (Roadrunner)

Frontmen don't get much more menacing than Glenn Benton. Not only is he the vocalist for Roadrunner's only remaining death metal band, Deicide (which loosely translates as "kill God"), but he's also an advocate of animal sacrifice and the bearer of a branded upside-down cross on his forehead. Deicide has been around for a long time, though, so Benton's ideology is no longer news. As a result, it never overshadows the band's fire 'n' brimstone instrumental ferocity. On Incineratehymn, ol' man Benton still praises his pal Lucifer in that tireless, trademark, from-the-gut growl over the band's palpitating riffs and double bass drum tricks. Deicide may not be changing the face of the genre, but it keeps doing what it does best: rocking, shocking, and keeping metal deliciously evil.

DESTRUCTION

All Hell Breaks Loose (Nuclear Blast America)

Do you long for the mid-'80s, when extreme thrash was at its peak? Then Destruction's All Hell Breaks Loose should be your nirvana. Like Sodom, Kreator and Dark Angel, Destruction is a career thrash band that manufactures so much burning, gnashing, churning steel that you'd think that these bastards eat bullet belts for breakfast. All Hell Breaks Loose is a document of chaos during which the band's guitarist probably wore his fingers down to bloody stumps.

NASUM

Human 2.0 (Relapse)

Nasum's Human 2.0 is reminiscent of the work of early-'90s grindcore specialists Regurgitate, or even old Napalm Death or Entombed. These Swedes have created an utterly destructive melee. Stowing a whopping 25 tracks on one disc, Human 2.0's speed and intensity will throw off your equilibrium, but rest assured: the lengthy songs — those that surpass the 60-second mark — are most suitable for your headbanging zeal.

Deftones sold 177,830 copies of White Pony in its first week in stores. Con-NEWS grats! I predicted that sales would be that high, when the shows I attended in Philly, Jersey and Massachusetts were completely oversold. The band has started an imprint called Tone Def through their label, Mayerick. Being veteran road warriors, the 'Tones are always exposed to new, unsigned bands at the local and regional level, and the band wants to release material from some of that unheard talent. Deftones frontman Chino Moreno said on KNAC.com that "one band we are working with sound really epic, Tool-esque. I don't want to reveal their name just yet but their music just starts at one place and takes you to outta space, kind of like Star Wars-type music. This is a band we are working with right now but are not sure exactly when it will come out." I've heard the band in question is Deftones Sacto brethren Will Haven. We'll see where this one goes...The WXRK/K-Rock Dysfunctional Family Picnic was just that: dysfunctional. Sevendust and Deftones went on early, dropping monster sets. Godsmack ruled, too. Limp Bizkit kept a legion of fans waiting an hour and a half. To appease anxious, antsy fans, Liquid Todd came out and spun tunes. Those around me in the crowd (Continued on page 34) speculated that Bizkit bad boy Fred Durst hadn't shown up yet, but a very reliable source told me that Durst wanted to perform after the sun went down when more fans would be there. Dude, the place was already packed. When LB finally took the stage with guitarist Wes Borland sporting a mask, making me wonder if he was hiding his face in embarrassment — the testosterone-ometer soared: it felt like I was standing in the middle of 100 frat houses. Durst dissed Creed's Scott Stapp, but Limp didn't disappoint, with electrifying renditions of "Counterfeit," "Break Stuff" and "Faith." They never got to play "Stuck" or "Nookie" because, apparently, Sharon Osbourne pulled the plug on the power. Stone Temple Pilots gave the crowd a hit parade, from "Crackerman" through "Big Empty" to "Plush" and "Dead And Bloated." Scott Weiland called his friend Durst an asshole for his actions, and it was good to see Weiland so clean and sober. Ozzy then gave us an OzzFest teaser, starting with his usual video montage. This year, he appears in Britney Spears and 'N Sync vids. Mr. O opened his set with "I Don't Know," and went on to kick ass...Relapse Records has signed Maryland death metal maniacs Dying Fetus. Destroy The Opposition, the band's label debut, will be out in October. Some song titles are "For Us Or Against Us," "Epidemic Of Hate" and "Pissing In The Mainstream." Up the band's sound and style has changed significantly from last year's Nineteenth Soul. With spiky bleached locks and a rock 'n' roll sound similar to Sevendust, Creed and Staind, the Gang has the potential to be a hit factory. The full-length Sunshine is coming next month...That same night Unband, Supersuckers and Nashville Pussy taught Irving Plaza the meaning of the word "rock." Supersuckers started out the set with a blistering Randy Rhodes riff. If you're white trash, the Pussy will make you feel like you are in excellent company. The hedonistic hoochies should make their forefathers Ted Nugent and Lemmy proud. Guitarist Ruyter Suys is my hero. I've never seen a woman manipulate a guitar like that...Former WXJM metal director Suzanna Paradise has joined the Loud Rock radio department at Concrete Marketing, replacing Dawn Moses, who has moved into the company's retail sector. She loves death metal, but doesn't bite, I promise...Lost Disciple recently serviced a limited number of two premium-quality death metal releases: Burial's Enlightened With Pain (gory, Mortician-inspired vocals) and Enter Self's Awake In Agony (reminiscent of Six Feet Under).

off by the growing commercial aspect of the Love Parade (several corporate giants, such as Camel Cigarettes and Fanta soft drinks were highly visible) there was the Fuck Parade (formerly the Hate Parade), a three-year-old gathering of about 3,000 revelers which embraced the harder sounds of gabber and experimental techno - provided by DJs such as Lenny Dee and Panacea — in contrast to the techno, house and trance focus of many Love Parade DJs. At the same time the Germans loved and fucked, Leeds, England, hosted its first Love Parade. An estimated 300,000 people turned up for the event which, held in the city's Roundhay Park, was more akin to a festival than an actual parade. (The original plan was to host the parade in the city center, but the location changed due to the huge crowds expected and the cold feet of local law enforcement officials.) The Fucking People Over

Modest and the dangers of Mouse miscommunication

Words by Kelso Jacks Photos by Pat Graham

It's summertime, and a musician is driving alone in a van from the West Coast to Florida. Pausing at a rest area somewhere in the sticks of Tennessee, he takes out a cell phone and makes a call. He begins speaking to a person he's never met before.

No, it's not the beginning of one of Modest Mouse's many tunes about loneliness and desperation in an overcrowded world. Rather, it is the all too appropriate — considering his fascination with the forsaken — start to our interview with MM songwriter/guitarist/vocalist Isaac Brock.

The band has just released The Moon & Antarctica, its debut for Epic Records. It follows two other full-lengths with similarly forlorn titles, This Is A Long Drive For Someone With Nothing To Think About (1996) and The Lonesome Crowded West (1997), both of which were released by Up Records. As all the album titles suggest, the music on the trio's new album is thrillingly expansive, populated by desolate locales and anesthetized souls.

"Unlike Clowns And Bunnies, our happy album, right?" Brock says in response to the description, coating his every word in a lard-like helping of sarcasm. "Yeah, and we had that great song 'Cake And Ice Cream' and that other one, 'Professor Magician Pants'." But just as quickly as he makes the wisecrack he apologizes for it. Apparently, he's tired of answering the same old questions about the same old things.

Anyone who's familiar with Modest Mouse's recording output remembers songs such as "Cowboy Dan," in which Brock spits, "I didn't move to the city, the city moved to me/And I desperately," want out "Tundra/Desert" which includes the line, "Every planned occupation/ Surefire disappointment up ahead/ 'Til they treat ya like desert/See mirages of friendship/ Face turns red." The Moon & Antarctica bears the gem "I wanna remember to remember to forget you forgot me." Cynical, melancholic sentiments to be sure, but ones that are open to many shades of interpretation. Unsurprisingly, Brock isn't much interested in discussing the meaning or themes in his lyrics. He is, however, willing to talk about almost anything else. His fashion sense, for starters. Perhaps best described as Amish-thrift-store-grunge-chic, his style involves the use of flannel shirts and a wide-brimmed, black-felt preacher's hat.

"I got it in Intercourse, Pennsylvania — Amish country," he enthuses. "I was digging the Amish, man! They were looking smooth. I kept trying to find a place to buy their trousers and shit, but I found out they make their own, so I got the hat."

He also nearly bursts with excitement when asked about the recording of The Moon & Antarctica. "Yeah, that's something we can talk about," Brock assures. "We recorded with Brian Deck in Chicago. He's great. Any idea he had, we figured out how to make it happen. The same with any idea we had, he figured out how to do what we wanted. The only problem was Chicago. That town kicks my ass every time I'm there."

Just to be clear, Brock isn't raving about the glories of the Windy City's nightlife with that comment. Brock literally received an ass-whupping while spending time there. The album took four months to record and its release was delayed not for any artistic reason, but because a gang of Chicago youths attacked and broke the jawbone of the Modest Mouse leader while he was hanging out at a park across from the recording studio.

In a way, the assault on Brock lends the album an air of ironic poignancy. Here's a guy who's made a career out of lamenting the lack of communication and camaraderie between people living in crowded cities, who tries to break the cycle and lands himself on the doomed side of a 14-versus-one brawl. According to Brock, it's similar to what he's experienced dealing with his band's new label, Epic Records. A large music corporation is a breeding ground for miscommunication, especially for a band like Modest Mouse, who has no manager. The corporate double-talking confounds Brock.

"I can talk for hours. I can talk and talk, and they throw all my ideas out," he laments. "They all talk like goddamn politicians. They make no sense. They talk twice as much as I do, but they have nothing to say. I leave every conversation completely confused, and the label's got some frat boy, still in college, trying to get the record into independent record shops."

Ever dutiful, Brock attends brainstorming sessions, marketing meetings and conference calls with the label's suits. He offers his creative insights as the artist, and still (in his opinion) the long circuitous conversations fail to accomplish anything. But recently he had an epiphany: "I never could figure out what a manager did that I couldn't. But I guess that's what managers are for, to make sense out of what's being said."

Perhaps, as the lyric goes, everyone is listening, but none of it makes any sense.

INDUSTRYPROFILE

Interview by Amy Sciarretto

If you don't know Slipknot by now, you must be living in a cave at the bottom of the ocean. The band of nine masked marauders has graced the cover of several leading music rags recently, their self-titled debut has just gone platinum, and the band is headlining this summer's "Tattoo The Earth" festival, which could conceivably unseat OzzFest as the quintessential metal tour. But Slipknot didn't start out with a million rabid fans. Its label, Roadrunner, is known for its intense, thorough marketing and promotion. Senior Director of Marketing Cory Brennan gave us the lowdown on Roadrunner's tactics to achieve Loud Rock domination and beyond.

What are your main duties and daily tasks?

Essentially, I devise and implement the marketing plans for the entire Roadrunner Records roster of artists. It's really a diverse job that allows me the freedom to be involved in...all of the marketing activities [within the company], including Internet Marketing, Publicity, Retail Sales, Touring, Radio Promotions, Video Promotions, and Creative Services (ad designs, video shoots, photo shoots, etc.). In addition, I stay in constant contact with all of the managers and artists at the label.

How do you keep your sanity?

Who says I keep it?! No, really, it's all about being as organized and as time efficient as possible. Plus, it helps that I personally like the artists, the environment and the people at Roadrunner.

What are some non-traditional marketing and promotion tactics that Roadrunner uses to get the word out and arouse interest?

Within the hard rock genre, music fans are rapidly changing and are constantly searching for new music. Because of this, it's our goal to figure out unconventional methods of reaching them without strictly relying on mainstream radio and TV. That is why street marketing has always been so important to Roadrunner, and why Internet marketing is becoming more and more important every day. We have a very active street team that actively markets and promotes Roadrunner projects across the country, as well as a Roadrunner E Team that strictly markets our artists via the Web. A huge part of the Slipknot success and the growing success of Glassjaw is attributed to both of these factors. Bob Johnsen, our Senior Director of Field Marketing, recently began a great Glassjaw street team promotion where Roadrunner Street Teamers turned themselves into portable listening stations and walked around the parking lot of the Deftones tour with a CD walkman playing the Glassjaw record to tons of kids while distributing cassette samplers and stickers. It went off really well.

What makes Roadrunner such a thriving hard rock label?

Over the years, Roadrunner has always... [had] an advantage in that we know our fans and know how to reach them better than other labels do. Roadrunner has been working in the hard rock genre for more than 15 years and we believe we are the masters of our domain. Our goal now is to grow from here and prove that we are a label that can be successful within all genres of music. I think we've begun to do this with records from Nickelback and the MTV Return Of The Rock CD.

When did you start working at Roadrunner? Have you always worked in the marketing department there? What did you do beforehand?

I have been in the record industry for eight years and began working at Roadrunner three years ago. I started out working as an intern in the college radio department at Triple X Records in Los Angeles (Jane's Addiction, Vandals, Dickies, Dr. Dre) and went on to work there for three years as National Director of Marketing and Sales. From there, I moved to Beggar's Banquet (Prodigy, Peter Murphy, Nephilm, Swell), again as National Director of Marketing and Sales. At Roadrunner, I came on board as a Product Manager and am now Senior Director of Marketing.

What is the next level for Roadrunner and its artists?

As Slipknot would say, "WORLD DOMINATION!"

How does the label approach working with nonmetal artists such as Nickelback, Crease and the Step Kings? Is it much different?

Yes, it's different, but not totally. With an artist like Nickelback, which has great songs that could appeal to a much more mainstream audience, we obviously gear our attention towards commercial radio. We don't just throw it out there. As with any artist, we set it up properly through touring (Nickelback toured with Creed and 3 Doors Down), Internet marketing, publicity, retail positioning and more. We want to go to radio with more than just a single. We want to build a story.

How important do you think college/Loud Rock airplay is in the overall scheme of things?

It's crucial! We have great respect for college/Loud Rock airplay and see it as both a building block to help establish artists' careers and as a significant avenue for selling records. It's only been in the past couple years that commercial radio has begun to support harder music. Before that, college radio was really the main medium for getting the music out there. We do whatever we can to support college radio, whether it's making limited edition CDs with bonus tracks, doing radio IDs, supplying stations with t-shirts, supporting "win it before you can buy it" promotions, or teaming up with stations like WSOU to promote a Roadrunner show.

Essentially, what is Roadrunner's marketing philosophy?

In a nutshell, artist development. Our entire marketing approach is based on building an artist's career and not just concentrating on a single. Over the years, Roadrunner has really proven to be successful in doing so with artists such as Type O Negative, Fear Factory, Sepultura, Soulfly, Machine Head, Slipknot and more.
