"The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round"

By Bill Gersh

WHAT TO EXPECT THIS FALL AND WINTER

Now that the half-way mark has been passed, and the general consensus being to the effect that Germany will be defeated before this year is over, business men can look forward to the following events, according to the Research Institute of America.

FALL, 1944

War Production, which is reported to have reached its peak during the first half of this year, will decline.

A manpower shortage will continue to pinch less-essential civilian industries.

The National income will be at its highest level.

Some wages and price levels will go up. The rate of savings will continue to go up in spite of taxes.

A large proportion of war production is expected to shift to the West Coast.

Post-war problems will occupy more and more of national thought. The situation will be somewhat confused by a half-war, half-peace atmosphere.

Dies and tools used in war production will become increasingly available on the market.

Consumers will start to resist "victory" models of products and will instead look forward expectantly to the new post-war products.

Reconversion of some plants for peacetime operation will start getting under way slowly.

The public is warned to start preparing for the return of soldiers to the family and also for possible loss of war plant jobs due to cancellations of war contracts. The government, tho, will work hard to help such workers find new jobs.

Manufacturers are urged to do the following. Estimate market for pre-war and war models in first year after Hitler's defeat. Decide on need for new products. Search for new products ideas. Products plans for customers should be checked. Continue to check the availability of materials for new products. Determine capacity for production. Estimate materials need. Watch inventory. Plan for reconversion of business.

As far as sales are concerned, the following is offered. Analyze market outlook. Examine distribution set-up. Plan on rebuilding of sales force. Start recruiting new salesmen. Prepare advertising program.

WINTER, 1944

Real decline in war production begins, especially in such lines as shipyards, tools, construction and light ammunition. Curtailment may reach rate of 25% of 1944 peak by the year's end.

Slow expansion in production of civilian goods, like washing machines and refrigerators.

Unemployment in war production areas may reach 4,000,000 by end of the year.

Servicemen returning to civilian jobs. Rate of return will probably exceed 100,000 monthly by year's end.

Economic uncertainties accentuated by the election.

"The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round"

Loosening up of materials for some civilian goods, but smaller than expected volume of output.

Gradual disappearance of "sellers" market.

Jurisdictional disputes among trade unions beginning in some industries reconverting to civilian production.

Severance pay proposals beginning to be discussed.

Begin to " earmark " some of your savings for a new car, television radio, a new house, refrigerator or other luxury items that you will want as they become available on the market.

Manufacturers are suggested to make their decision on post-war materials. Pre-war models should be offered so that they hit the market early. New products should be tested. Prepare to meet competition from new rival products. Check capacity against sales plans. Discontinue substitutes. Watch government disposal of plants and equipment. Obtain bids and place sample orders for materials. Reduce inventory to a minimum. Decide on size of new inventory. Decide on plant location. Check post-war use of government owned facilities. Get estimates on reconversion costs and start reconversion program. Plan engineering. Decide on disposal of equipment. Start survey on available tools and machinery. Make replacements and repairs. Dispose of obsolete equipment.

And for sales forces the following is being suggested. Examine need for changes in market coverage. Be ready to shift into new markets. Discuss plans with your outlets for your products. Get ready to assist your outlets with service and credit. Start intensive advertising.

Also suggested. Expect and prepare for return of some soldiers to old jobs. Overhaul your working force. Start your labor training program. Expect drain on cash for replacements and repairs. Check adequacy of your cash reserves. Watch for frozen accounts and rise of business failures. Prepare plans for long-term funds.

COMMENTS

The entire program as presented here has helped many business men to enter into greater and more intensive planning for the post-war period. As is well known to the trade The Cash Box has been urging the members of this industry to get more deeply into post-war planning for there is no doubt anymore that the ending of the war may come as a complete and sudden surprise and many will be caught short, as they were after the last war.

Every division of this industry must be fully prepared so that each and every coinman will be ready to make the most profitable move in his territory. There is no doubt that with soldiers expected to return at the rate of 100,000 per month beginning late Fall and increasing this number during the Winter that this industry will probably be able to somewhat re-establish its labor situation and will also gain a greater player market.

At the same time war plant reconversion has a great many business men worried. There may suddenly come about long lay-off periods while manufacturers prepare for domestic production. This industry will not suffer by these. In fact, it is expected to profit from the lay-offs which will come about. This temporary reconversion period will cause much unemployment but the slack is expected to be taken up by government agencies now making plans in this regard with manufacturers.

Regardless of how this program strikes the public generally, there is no doubt that this industry will survive it with flying colors. There is also no doubt that used machines will continue extremely valuable, even when reconversion seems imminent for this industry. The production lines of the present factories will not be able to take care of the huge backlog demand which has already accumulated in this industry and estimated at far over 1,000,000 machines of all known types.

Just from the standpoint of obtaining and maintaining locations, used machines value will continue high. Many who will re-enter into the field will seek used machines to recapture locations they left behind. Therefore the used machines market will have many high priced months left in it until the manufactories begin to turn out equipment on somewhat the scale they did prior to the war.

Also of great interest to the trade, along with this future outlook, are prices of machines after reconversion is well under way. The general belief is that prices will remain high. Materials and labor costs have risen well over the 30% mark to date and with competition stepping up to a keener market than ever for raw materials, with all manufacturers seeking to reach the market first with their products, there is no doubt that cost of equipment will of necessity remain high for some months to come, at least until complete domestic production can be seen without any restrictions whatsoever.

“The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round”

WHAT ABOUT INCREASED TAXES?

One of the really great problems facing this industry, especially for the post-war era, will be to reduce taxation from a burden to a workable outlay percentage of income. All industries are faced with this same problem. Experts realize that trade growth will be greatly curtailed, and that there will be much less interest to enter into new businesses, if taxes continue to remain prohibitive for such risk.

Congress has recognized this fact. It is now studying how to cut post-war taxation. Joint Congress committee experts have been ordered to start these studies at once. The hope is that these Congressional committees will be able to present a workable and logical method for a downward revision from present taxation so that industry will be able to continue on ahead and will not be hampered by inequitable and excessive taxation, as is at present the fact.

There have been a great many demands from among leading members of this industry that something should be done to bring about a better understanding (in the trade itself) as well as to taxing bodies, why and how this industry is being inequitably taxed. This was one of the reasons given by The Cash Box when it urged the industry to create a National Coin Machines Board of Trade and a National Coin Machines Tax Council. Such bodies would be in proper position to work with these Congressional committees on cutting down inequitable and excessive taxation for this trade.

In this past week's issue of The Cash Box there appeared notice of the fact that certain cities were again beginning to visualize the prominence of coin operated equipment and that further taxation, in addition to present taxes, was therefore sure to come into effect. (Terre Haute, Ind. and Cambridge, Mass. are in the throes of having license fees tremendously increased.) This industry must arrange to clear the atmosphere of this sort of misunderstanding or it will not be able to proceed forward in the fashion it would like to in the post-war period.

There is very little difference between a town that is closed by legal procedure or police action and a town that is open where taxation is so high that it simply does not pay to operate. (There is one town we have in mind where a license fee of $300. per year was placed on pinball machines. The city authorities boldly and publicly stated that this license fee was purposely set at this excessive figure so as to discourage the operation of pinball.) This is just as bad as if that town were legally closed to pinballs.

The Congressional study inspired by business leaders assures this industry that business men everywhere are aware of the fact that taxes are excessive and therefore injurious to the further progress of all trade.

In the meantime this industry, nor any other industry for that matter, can make any approach to governing bodies to have taxation reduced while this war is in progress. But with the belief more or less general that much reconversion will be getting under way late this Fall for a great many industries, and that the war in Europe may end sometime this year rather prevalent, the nation's business men feel that the Government should be prepared to help them enter into the post-war era without tax obstacles in their path.

It should be the work of the leaders in this industry to arrange to see that there is present in Washington someone to represent this business when the problem of lowered taxes comes up for discussion. This is a job that could best be done by a National Coin Machines Board of Trade or a National Tax Council. Since neither are in existence then this industry must depend upon a certain few of its leaders to spend their own time, effort, energy and money to go on to Washington, when the time arrives, and help to protect all this industry as best as they possibly can.

HONORABLE MENTION AWARD

To George D. Sax of Superior Products, Chicago, for his grand and outstanding effort on behalf of the 5th War Loan Drive.

To Fred Iverson of Eastern Sales Company, Rochester, N.Y., for his fine work to help boost the sales of War Bonds.

To S. H. Lynch and Edward Furlow of S. H. Lynch & Company, Dallas, Texas for their grand efforts in helping to bring about better understanding between British and American business men.

To Alfred A. Silberman of Rock-Ola Manufacturing Corp., Chicago, Ill., for his suggestions and work in behalf of better public relations for this industry.

To Samuel Stern of Scott-Crosse Company, Philadelphia, Pa., for his earnest and outstanding charitable work which reflects honor upon all this industry.

"Talking Out Loud"

Closing Hours For 5th War Loan Drive

The final, closing hours for the 5th War Loan Drive approach with terrific rapidity. On July 8, 1944 the drive is over. This industry now has its last opportunity to give all that it possibly can to gain great recognition from this nation, during these final, closing hours. It can, if it so desires, win for itself the respect, prestige and applause that it so much deserves for the work that it has already done in this and in former War Loan drives.

This is one grand opportunity. This is the time to stop whatever you are doing and rush down to your bank or your nearest War Bond purchasing station and make that additional investment.

Lend those bucks. Don't hesitate for a minute. Those same War Bonds may prove the difference between prosperity and loss to you when the war is over. They are your financial reserve, your savings, to enter into the greatest boom period in all American business history, the rapidly approaching post-war era.

Remember — you are not giving anything away. You're not even lending your money. You're actually investing it. And obtaining in return a percentage of profit that no bank in the nation will pay you today.

For your own good welfare and for the good and welfare of all in this industry, do write across your application — "Member of the Coin Machines Industry."

Let the nation know that once again this industry, as it has done from the very first, when it loaned its phonographs and placed the song "Any Bonds Today" in first position, is working hard to make this the greatest, grandest nation for those boys and girls in uniform now over there — to come home to.

Buy that EXTRA War Bond—right NOW!!

Give Game To War Bond Purchasers

Fred Iverson and John Bilotta of Eastern Sales Co., Rochester, N. Y., in an effort to stimulate greater War Bond purchases during this 5th War Loan Drive are offering a brand new game to some lucky operator who buys a War Bond from them.

The plan is to give a coupon with each $50 bond purchased. A general drawing for a "Foreign Colors" game will be held on July 9th. The lucky man to get the game.

A circular prepared by the firm and mailed to all of their customers reads, "Help the attack. Back the invasion. Be able to say, 'My dollars are at the front with our boys'. Buy War Bonds here.

"Everytime you purchase a $50 War Bond here we will issue you a coupon. One coupon for each $50 War Bond. July 9th we will hold a drawing and the lucky operator, beside doing his bit, will receive one 'Foreign Colors' free."

Jersey Shore Arcades Win Restraint Injunction

Following the item which appeared here a few weeks back that a crusader had started to work on arcades located at the Jersey shore, specifically naming roll down games and skee balls, the following item has just appeared in The Newark Evening News which proves that the arcade men at the New Jersey shore are on their toes.

"Prosecutor Quinn can keep arresting operators of mechanical games on the boardwalk but he can't prevent them from doing business until Chancery Court has decided whether the law is being violated in their stores.

"Vice-Chancellor Berry at Long Branch gave this view on the return of a show cause order obtained by two operators to restrain permanently the prosecutor from interfering with the games. He said petitioners had instituted the action in good faith and had the right to remain in business until the issue was decided."

Asbury Park officials pleaded for the Vice-Chancellor to intervene on the side of the petitioners to protect their $76,000.00 in rentals received from the operators of amusement games. This was denied by the court on the ground that revenue was no basis for deciding legality of games.

The Vice-Chancellor stated that the quickest method of determining the legality of the games was thru criminal proceedings. Counsel for the operators invited such proceedings. A member of one of the operating concerns is now under arrest on his own invitation to determine the legality of the games. His hearing before a local magistrate has so far been postponed.

The operators claim that their games are games of skill. The prosecutor states that they involve more chance than skill and also that the award of prizes on the games is contrary to the law.

Vice-Chancellor Berry smilingly stated to the operators, "I may have to challenge you gentlemen to play these games to find out how much chance and skill are involved."

Hollywood Pinball

Hollywood gives unusually good recognition to pinball in this new dance by Eleanor Powell on a huge pinball machine. This dance appears in her new picture, Sensations of 1945. (Such publicity and the advertising that the film firm will do reacts with favor upon coinmen.)

Eleanor Powell in her new dance from the film Sensations of 1945.

She plays the part of the ball on a Hollywood-size pinball machine.

As her feet hit the pins, lights flash on and the score mounts up.

Four Service Men and a Hollywood Star

The girl is Frances Gifford, one of Hollywood's star actresses, and the four service men are boys who saw her in a USO camp show. On arriving in Hollywood on leave the four looked her up and all went out for a good time. Frances tried hard to steer the boys away from this Penny Arcade but as this candid photo shows, she wasn't very successful. (Publicity of this sort is helpful to all this industry.)
