"You couldn't borrow enough clams to pay me to work for you," Ziggy is said to have answered. So Shaw got Billy Burefield and Ziggy returned to New York to await the formation of Benny Goodman's new band, which will feature Ziggy's powerful trumpet.

Court Says Records Can Be Aired

New York—One of the most important legal opinions in the history of performance rights was made recently when the Circuit Court of Appeals here completely reversed Judge Vincent L. Leibell and at the same time, dismissed RCA's suit against Paul Whiteman and also against station WNEW.

Recordings for Victor Los Angeles to organize his and told Down Beat the King town for a few days before leaving for Los Angeles to organize his band, told Down Beat the King Cole Trio, famed California nitery unit, would be incorporated in the new combination.

Evelyn Myers the Singer

The trio, with Cole on piano, Oscar Moore on guitar and Wesley Prince on bass, was featured with Lionel on his biggest-selling recordings recently.

Asked about the rest of the line-up, Lionel said: "I'm getting toup, Lionel said: "I'm getting together a gang of youngsters out on the Coast who'll surprise you. I found a girl singer there in a night club, Evelyn Myers—she has a voice like a 'cello! And I hope I'll have Bud Johnson, from Earl Hines' band, on tenor. The set-up is three altos, two tenors, six brass and four rhythm."

Alexander May Hundle

Lionel says he's found a "style" for the band by having the solos taken off some of his old smallband recordings and scoring them for section and ensemble work. Fred Norman is working on most of these arrangements; several boys in the band will also contribute to the books. The group will be handled by Willard Alexander of the William Morris office if Lionel can obtain his release from MCA. Plans call for a series of one-nighters in early September

Lester Young's Brother in Movies

Los Angeles—Lee Young, brother of Lester Young, the tenor eaxiet with Count Basie, is one of the finest drummers on the coast. In the current M-C-M pic Strike Up the Band with Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, it is Young's drumming you hear. He taught Mickey Rooney (shown with Lee above) how to handle the sticks. In the finale of the pic there's a scene which uses 96 musicians. Lee did the drumming and made himself the drumming and made himself heard on the sound track. Pic courtesy David Hyltone.

Radio Exec Tells Why CBS Refuses to Pay Huge Tax

New York—"There will be nothing but a blank cartridge in ASCAP's breech when the gun which ASCAP is pointing at our heads is fired next January 1," said Paul W. Kesten, vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, in a letter sent to CBS advertisers and their agencies two weeks ago.

Kesten was referring to the date as the time when no

ASCAP music will be available for CBS programs. Both

CBS and NBC and their affiliated stations, throughout the United States, have refused to renew a contract with ASCAP calling for an in-

The full text of Mr. Kesten's letter:

"During the past six months the broadcasting industry has been fighting a $4,400,000 fight against 'ASCAP'—a fight to protect radio advertisers and broadcasters alike from a $4,400,000 bold-up, over and above an unjustified $4,300,000 toll paid in 1939 for the privilege of broadcasting music which ASCAP controls.

"Facts More Than Justify It"
"During the next six months, the Columbia network asks that its clients, acting in their own behalf as radio advertisers, take one step which only they can take—to break the strangle-held which ASCAP has hitherto had upon radio buadcasting, and to win not only this fight against a $4,400,000 increase in broadcasting costs, but to free radio permanently from the certainty of future intolerable demands. Los Angeles-Martha Tilton and Helen Forcest, both of whom made good as singers with Benny Goodman, got a bang out of the cartoon on Down Beat's July 15 front cover. "We got our kicks even if it was a slam at us," said Helen. Martha now is singing on her own "If this seems to be a strong statement of the basic issue in-volved, you will find that the facts more than justify it. Hughie Prince

New York—Hughie Prince, once vocalist with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra and now one of Tin Pan Alley's most prominent tunesmiths, was in a critical condition after being rushed to hospital here late last month. An accidentally administered overdose of a sedative resulted in his being rushed to an oxygen tent. At press time he was making good progress, though still not out of danger.

Galveston — Joe (Horse) Hall, pianist with the Casa Loma hand, lost a $300 watch and other property last month when his apartment here was ransacked by a meak thief. But "Horse" foxed the thief by hiding $6,000 cash, he says, in an envelope which was left untouched. "Horse" is shown playing bartender at a small tavern a few hours after he discovered his loss. Pollack Defies All; 'Peck Kelley's Best'

BY REN POLLACK

A week or so ago, just as I had finished putting on the rave to some musician friends about Peck Kelley, I bought a Down Beat, and spotted the article, "Peck Kelley is the Most Over-rated Pianist," by Dave Stuart.

I don't believe I know Dave Stuart nor have I ever heard of him.

but I understand from some of the boys in my band that of the boys in my band that he is supposed to be somewhat of a critic. Of course there are critics who know what they are talking about, and there are other critics who should be dragged in front of a group of ace musicians and made to define and explain their criticisms. They probably wouldn't even know how to open their mouths. We've All Been Influenced'

Is He the King Of Imitators?

Bob Chester, tenor sax playing leader, has been considered one of the most clever imitators ever since he launched his band a couple of years back. Virtually every number in his book is a carbon copy of Glenn Miller's style. Now he comes forth with a small band "within a band" which he calls the "Kirby-itea." The group includes Alec Fila, Ed Scalzi, Harry Schuchman, Ray Leatherwood, Buddy Brennan, Bob Bass and Bobby Domenick—and they ape Kirby's small band perfectly. Band closes at the Chatterbox in Jersey Aug. 16 and then moves into the N. Y. World's Fair. Chester will take his Miller-Kirby stuff with him to the big city. he launched his band a couple of We've All Been Influenced'
I don't doubt that many pianists who are widely discussed—Hines, Meade Lux, Pete Johnson, Ammons, etc.—play very well, I know all of these boys personally and I can truthfully say that I can define their styles and trace their development, showing whom they distened to in their early days to evolve the styles they play today.

After all, we have all listened to others and have unconsciously developed the style of music we play today. Maybe some of us don't remember where we heard things—but we have heard them somewhere, played by someone at sometime. As far as original things popping out of our heads—that doesn't happen very often. It has

New York — Last year when Meredith Blake was singing with Jack Teagarden's band she had him plug a tune her brother wrote. Jackson pushed it as much as he could but it never clicked and after Miss Blake left the band, it was distarded. Come last month and the brother. Charks Balcoff, filed suit for $5,000 a performance against Teagarden for alleged infringement. The tune was never published, but Balcoff holds a copyright.

Miss Blake now is with Gray Gordon. The tune in question is Darling, You Waren't There.

Chicago — Dudley Brooks, who has been arranging the past several months for Benny Goodman on a full-time basis, joined Count Basie's band here last week. His position will be permanent, Basie said, unless Goodman recalls Brooks when he gets his new band started. Tab Smith, alto saxist, left the band a few weeks ago and will not become a permanent faxture, as was announced earlier.

Enoch Light Still Mending in East

New York—Enoch Light, the leader, is coming along nicely. He was smashed up in a motor crash which killed another person a few months back. "I'll be okay in a few weeks," Light says. Meanwhile, he's making plans to come back with the best band of his career.

Al Donahue's Band celebrated its recording of "Route 23" recently at the Meadowbrook, in Cedar Grove, N. J., with Frank Dailey, Meadowbrook owner. The tune, a stomp ditty, is dedicated to Meadowbrook, which is on Route 23 of the Pompton Turnpike. Donahue's discing, on the Okeh label, is paired with "Southern Fried," a Freddy Culliver tune. The occasion was a dance date at Fairyland Park Ballroom. At the

a damper peddle on the piano was all evening, while the rolling bass went by the boards.

Doris Day Goes With Les Brown

New York—It didn't take Doris Day long to land another singing berth. She's the blonde from Cinberth. She's the blonde from Cin-cinnati who created a sensation with Bob Crosby's ork, then was suddenly let out in favor of Bon-nie King. Doris now is singing with Les Brown's fast-rising band on one-nighters here. Wendy Bishop, blonde whom Doris replaced, re-turned to Atlantic City and re-joined her husband.

McIntosh with Strong

Chicago—Bob Strong has added Ray McIntosh, trumpeter and sing-er, to his band. Makes it a 6-way brass section.

It's Back to Strings for Dick Himber

New York—Richard Himber has another new idea. He's added three strings to his lineup, but instead of incorporating them in the regular band he uses them for sweet, straight first choruses. Then the tempo speeds up and the rest of the band goes into a swing arrangement.

It's a novelty which may click, helped by the ingenious arrangements of Deane Kincaide, tenor star of Joe Marsala's Hickory House group and former Tommy Dorsey arranging ace. The stringed unit comprises Brooks Steele and Morris Kohn, violina, and Joe Glassman, viola, Other changes in the band have Chick Dahlaten on second trombone in Chuck Evans' chair, and third trumpeter Bob Person, ex-Van Alexander, replacing Earl Baker.

Earl Hines Retires as Leader

Chicago-Freed of his contract with Ed Fox, mogul of the dark Grand Terrace, Earl Hines has temporarily "retired" as a leader. Walter Fuller, singing trumpeter with Hines, has taken over Earl's band and will work under a contract with Fox. Hines, shown (top) here with Count Basie, plans to open a barber shop and a cocktail lounge of his own in Chicago. But later this fall, he hopes to re-organize again and start out under a new managerial setup. Both he and Fox hurled charges at each other last week before things finally came to a head. Boys Go for Scott's 'Huckleberry' Music

But Controversy Still Rages Over The Band's Style

Chicago—Raymond Scott's "huc-ebony duck" music went bn exhibit here for the first time Aug. 2 when the former Harry Warnow and his men, with Slats Long on ed the Sherman Hoclarinet, open tel's Panther Room.

Scott's music remains highly contraversial stuff. Most of the musicians admired the intricate scores and high standard of musicianship displayed by the group, but on the other side of the fence were the collectors and is hot devotees who saw in Scott's fare a poor substitute for the heavy jazz of Lunce-ford, whom Scott followed into the Red Norvo passed through town, picking up a new combination xylophone-marimba on the way, claiming he had "the greatest band I've ever had." Red has put on about 33 pounds and now weighs a little over 200. He thinks he'll be back on records again by October. Norvo left for Kansas City and will go to Oklahoma City from there.

The Aragon-Trianon setup, musically speaking, remains as sad as ever. And the south side holds little nowadays except for stage shows with colored bands on the Regal stage. Good jazz in the little joints is hard to find chiefly because most operators won't spend enough for a leader to use six or more men. Plenty of piano-drum combinations around, however.

Musicians Hail Lunceford

Musicians Hail Lunceford

And if Lunceford proved a so-so draw at the Sherman, he got plenty of personal satisfaction anyway from the welcome the profession gave him. Glenn Miller and all the Miller boys rarely missed a night at the Sherman. Norvo made a bee-line for the spot when he hit town, with his men. So did most every other leader. Those screeching trumpets and Willie Smith's altoing held a certain fascination for the boys whose bosses won't allow that kind of stuff on the stand. And if Lunceford proved a so-so a certain amount of showmanship."

Ted Lewis, in a mellow mood in his 29th year as a band leader, no longer defends his clarinet style which brought him fame and immortality in the annals of American show business. Now playing the Chez Paree here with a "new" band (almost every year he pops out with a "new" outfit) Lewis has changed appreciably in recent years. Gray, but spirited, the old high-hatted tragediam of jazz admits dance band musicians of today are real musicians who get by on talent instead of funny hats.

"I Couldn't Keep Up"

"I Couldn't Keep Up"

"I Couldn't Keep Up"
Said Lewis:
"My old type of playing is plain corny, now. It just isn't modern and I'm one guy who is willing to admit it. I couldn't keep up with the musicians of today. These kids really know music. Take any player in a band, and he'll know more about reading and playing music than most of the musicians of my day all put together. They've got to be good, now, because there is so much competition, and the public won't stand for mediocrity."

Lewis' band is the best one he's ever had. It's ragged at times, but just as often it swings into a solid tune displaying fine cornet, hot clarinet and tenor. And yes—Ted still uses his top hat and "incidental singing" style on old Lewis

'The War May Kill Jazz in Europe'

British Fan Tells Latest News of Activity Abroad

BY JAMES P. HOLLOWAY

If the last war brought about the birth of jazz in the Old World, this one may well kill it. Or at least stun it to silence for a long while as it has in France and those other stricken countries.

Way back last September the shock of war administered a tidy blow to public entertainment, but as time passed and nothing much happened and and we still worked and slept undisturbed by air raids, things picked up and even achieved a greater

Swing Readjusts Itself

Paris was different. Doubtless trying to strike a note in keeping with the vast war effort the French were then putting forth, governmental decree ordered all Montmartre and Montparnasse categories when the product of the control o Montmartre and Montparnasse ca-barets to shut down by midnight when they should normally be waking up. For a while Paris nightifie was extinct and only later did jazz pick up the tune again and then in a minor key; for all but a handful of the American jazzmen had boarded the New York bound freighter from Bor-deaux in the early days and most of the local musicians were in the army.

of the local musicians were in the army.
Gradually the swing world readjusted itself. In London the callup of musicians has been very slow and it's only lately that leaders have had to cast around for replacements. Radio relays from U.S.A. were resumed and in the program designed for the forces but actually listened to by the majority of people since it offers brighter fare, swing music began to have an even greater place than ever before. Rhythm clubs continue to function and only the other day a crowd of cats besieged the doors of the main London club oldest living jar musician playing.

Born in New Orleans April 12, 1892, Johnny began playing the clarinet when he was a boy of 16. After building an envisible reputation as one of the finest young musicians in New Orleans, Dodds came north in 1918 with his drummer brother, Buby, and together they gained fame as members of the old Louis Armstrong Hot Five and other famous old jazz groups. Johnny also played with the great King Oliver band.

Dodds is credited by many with having been the influence behind the work of the great Frank Teschemacher, creator of "Chicago atyle" clarinet.

He had been playing for the past year against strict doctor's order, after a stroke felled him last fall, temporarily paralyzing his hand. Just a few days before his death Dodds had recorded for the forthcoming Decca New Orleans album.

He is survived by his wife, Georgia; mother, Mrs. Maggie Allen; brother, Baby; and sons Johnny Jr., 19, and Rudolph, 17.

A Really Fine Session

That was a memorable evening for many ways. If the news was a dead (and it couldn't have been much graver) it had far from a dampening effect on the players ers have had to cast around for replacements. Radio relays from U.S.A. were resumed and in the program designed for the forces but actually listened to by the majority of people since it offers brighter fare, swing music began to have an even greater place than ever before. The session was an unqualified success and the six-piece rhythm section came as near to swinging as any I've heard over here. The pity was that the boys couldn't reproduce their form a few days later when the B.B.C. broadcast a repeat session. On this occasion atmosphere, surroundings, audience, balance, timing—all were wrong and the group sounded completely unnerved and spiritleas.

Two more recent arrivals from refugee packed Bordeaux where they gave their cars away at the quayside are Henri Schaep, guitarplaying associate of Charles Delaunay of "Discography" and French Hot Club fame, and Max Geldray, a Dutch harmonica virtuoso who as far as swing is concerned leaves Larry Adler standing. This boy, who was with Ray Ventura and Danny Polo, plays some extraordinary stuff on his instrument, so much so that such sober students of 'le hot' as Panassie and Delaunay got him to record a couple of sides for the Swing label. "Geldray's Swing" and "Limehouse Blues" are the titles and they are available to Victor.

Efforts have been made to locate Django Reinhardt in the endeavor to bring him over to London to join his fiddle playing sidekick Grappelly, but he cannot be traced. Whether he joined the throng who trailed wearily Bordeauxwards is not known. Maybe he has resumed the nomadic caravan life he knew before the Hot Club brought him forth into the limelight of world fame and with his guitar is wandering somewhere about France. Few there will be now to listen to the uncanny genius of one of the greatest natural musicians jazz has ever known.

And of the future? Who can guess? Hitler has a habit of acting suddenly and unexpectedly. What may be an accurate forecast today will be old news by the time this reaches you. So far enemy action has not unduly disturbed our daily life or our nightly jazz. That may all be changed tomorrow and those who think that dancing and dance music strike a discordant note against the sombre intense tones of the nation's struggle may be justified by events. Meanwhile the general opinion is that to work well relaxation is vital. "Let the People Sing." And swing too, if they want.

Houston, Tex.-Guy L. (Fatty) Martin is gone, but he won't be forgotten.

Although the 360-pound, ivory-tickling Houston jazz pioneer died April 23 in a San Antonio hospital, friends are still grieving over his death. For "Fatty" Martin was the guy who overshadowed the great Peck Kelley and Jackson Teagarden as king of Houston dance and leaders when jazz was in its let it be said to the credit of Peck and "Big T," however, that "Fatty" held the top rung here in those days mainly on personality, not musical ability.

Couldn't Read Well
No musical genius, "Fatty" was a typical dance piano player. He read very little music, and his pudgy fingera kept his hands confined almost entirely to the middle of the kerboard

fined almost entirely to the middle of the keyboard.
But despite these handicaps, "Fatty" had excellent rhythm and played "solid" jazz. He could fake anything the flappers and their boy friends wanted, and his happy-go-lucky nature helped him gather a pretty clever combo around him at all times.

Recorded for Victor

Martin became, after a lot of tough strugglin', one of the most popular bands to ever come out of Texas. They even recorded for Victor.

Texas. They even recorded for Victor.

But "Fatty" and his boys soon found that cats are fickle people, and their tastes forever change. The group rode the crest of the wave until the bottom dropped out of jazz after the '20s, and then passed from the picture.

"Fatty" spent the past 10 years jobbing around in between business

"Fatty" spent the past 10 years jobbing around in between business ventures, and wound up his career last year as a concessionaire with a traveling carnival. Yes, "Fatty" Martin is gone, but according to Mark Westcott, who is now a floorwalker for Montgomery Wardhere: "A guy as big as "Fatty," whose heart was as big as his gut, can't be forgotten."

And there are plenty of others who echo them sentiments.

NBC Hits at ASCAP Again

New York — House bands at NBC were instructed last week to make up no further arrangements on ASCAP numbers, effective immediately. Leaders were given a list of BMI tunes and songs in the public domain to which they must limit all their new material.

ASCAP numbers already in the books can still be used for the present but will probably be cut out starting in September. The CBS chain also is cutting down on ASCAP works, both networks figuring that by January 1 they won't have to use any ASCAP music at all, thereby saving payment of a huge tax sum to ASCAP.

So it has come to pass that the B.B.C., which in the piping days of peace frowned distantly on swing at any time, now regales the fans with Duke, Bessie and Louis—on the Sabbath of all days!

He Mixes Color With Music

Philadelphia—Working on the theory that color and tone have a natural affinity for each other, Philip A. Pizzi, local radio singer, has for the past 10 years extended every effort toward the blending of music and color painted electrically. The artist's idea portraying sound waves in color is designated to form an optical illusion of that otherwise unseen or "phantom" quality of vibrations. It is now perfected to rapidly change color harmonies to match the mood of the music. By means of a unique control board, he can illuminate the bandstands and bockground in many color blends. Pizzi is well known as the "Phantom," who sang over the air and with many orchestras in theaters and night clubs. His new orchestra is now being organized.

Killed on the Road!

If Willie was right, you can bet your last lox sandwich that Joey Kearns would still be batting away in the sax section along with the other Bobcats. At the turn of the 40's, when all the sidemen were hitting the road with bands of their own, and getting no place in a hurry, Joey handed in his notice to Gil Rodin and said gum-bye to the Bob Crosby boys. But it was no hitting the road for Kearns, who gave the Jan Savitt gang its first clariner Ficks.

Musicians and leaders alike can get good advice from Dotty Davis' story here regarding Joey Kearns, the young Philly mace-tro. How to avoid the pitfalls when organizing your own band is revealed simply and honestly by Kearns, who not long ago was blowing a sax for Bob Crosby, Kearns came into prominence during the network strikes a few weeks back. His band, of all the studio groups aired at the time, was the only one which attracted nationwide attention with its musicianship and excellent arrangements.

after finishing a late gig in Atlantic City and expected to be raring to go the next night in Springfield, Mass. It just ain't in the cards. Besides, very few of the bands on their first time out make any money on the road. The boys in the band don't want to know from nothing, they want those padded pay-checks every week, whether the dance is washed out or the promoter takes a powder. And the promoters—God bless 'em—can't be blamed when they refuse to jack up the ante when the sideman makes his first trip around the backwoods circuit. No wonder they hit in the red from scratch, and seldom come out of it.

As a result, Kearns turned his back on the big build-up stuff about Joe McJerk leaving Smartie Pshaw to show the kids out in the sticks what it was to really swing.
Sure he was going to have his own band, he always wanted to, but he wasn't going to do it at the expense of a knock-out powder.
To hell with the name in big letters on window cards and high-pressure press agents. What Joey wanted was a job where he could build a band and not wind up with a bunch of very tired and discontented guys.
So Kearns came back to the

of very tired and discontented guys.

So Kearns came back to the town where he got his first start with Jan Savitt, and took the job as studio director at WCAU. Mobile, Ala., not far from the deltas, is where Joey first got imbued with the spirit of swing, but since he graduated from the University of Pennsylvania here in 1930, his sax and clarinet wizardry was such that the band leaders held him here in town. And it was just as well. But it's none of the long-hair or mickey mouse stuff that Kearns is dishing out on WCAU. It's an out-and-out dance band "I'd sooner quit the business if I had to have a corny band" is the way Joey put it.

And No All-Night Gigs!

And No All-Night Gigs!

And No All-Night Gigs!

Sure he might play some corn concertos, even the super symphonic jazz. But that's the advantage of breaking the band in on a job where the boys have to play different types of programs each day, giving the maestro a golden opportunity to feel out what is best suited for the band and at the same time experiment with different types of musical arrangements and instrumentations until he hits the thing he's wanted all his life. There's no jumping around the country to do it. Working hours amount to only two and a half of playing time, No all-night gigs. Plenty of time for rehearsals. The boys in the band have a chance to get plenty of sleep-and sunshine. And the pay ain't half bad, as any local lad will tell you.

Mary Ann Mercer, with Mitch Ayres' band, grabe a bite between sets on Bluebird record date. Ayres' plat-ters, most of which feature the fine alto sax work of Harry Terrell, are moving up as best sellers on the Bluebird lists. Miss Mercer is one of the reasons. She always knows what time it is.

One other thing, Kearns pointed out, between sips of the steaming java, most of the sidemen-sproutedleaderman made the major mistake of taking to the networks from scratch in hopes of turning an overnight trick, letting the whole country hear it when you're not even half ready. It takes more than a dozen or more of star instrumentalists to make a star band. Even though WCAU is a key station on the CBS network, Savitt at one time feeding about a dozen shows weekly to the chain, Kearns wanted the hearing reserved only to local listeners. The boys have been whipping in shape for six months now and still Kearns hasn't gotten the gang to the stage of perfection he seeks. As a result, it was thumbs down when studio officials wanted to feed him to the chains.

Strike is Kearns' Break overnight trick, letting the whole Strike in Kearna' Break studio officials wanted to feed him to the chains.

Strike is Kearna' Break

It wasn't until Jimmy Petrillo pulled the dance remotee off the air that Kearns had to be rushed into service and being a studio band, was able to have his music pumped to the networks. And while the strike was short-lived, CBS officials had a chance to hear what they'd been missing and insisted that Kearns continue on the chain. But it's only one or two shots he's keeping. But from the amount of fan mail he's been getting, and it's no press agent pumping away from this Underwood camp, it's going to be tough to keep Kearns' broadcasts local.

The soundest bit of advice Kearns can give to all those other sidemen rounding up their own bands is that they hide away at some radio station and give the band a chance to build. Forget about the road until you're ripe. Don't rush it. When you're ready, the promoters will start hollering for you. Kearns is getting a week's vacation from studio assignments this month. "Guess you'll fill in with me-nighters," we carried the question. "Not on your life," Joey shot back. "We'll leave all the road work at present for the prize fighters. Maybe we'll play a dance in town to let the boys get the feel of a dancing crowd in front of the stand. But for the rest of the week, it's a vacation, and we're going to take one."

Social Security Made Easy in One Lesson!

BY PHIL A. McMASTERS

(President of the Florida Conference of the A. F. of M.)

Traveling musicians, although they are supposed to be covered by at the various benefit provisions under the Social Security Act, are NOT getting the benefits the law is supposed to provide them.

I will show you just why.

If a band leader is an independent contractor (and as such he is responsible for the excise) he must pay a three per cent tax on the payroll of his employees to the federal government, and he is thus deprived of his rights under the benefit provisions of the law.

How 'Leader-Employer Is Stupid' In the case of an incorporation must be benefit provisions of the law.

How 'One-State' Bogie Works

Many state Unemployment Com-pensation Laws follow the prin-cipal that an employer is one who hires eight or more persons during some part of a day in twenty dif-ferent weeks in the calendar year. And this is the same definition used by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in determining an employer under in determining an employer under the Federal Unemployment Com-pensations section of the Social Security Act.

pensations section of the Social Security Act.

So even if the leader of a traveling band were held liable by the federal government for these excise taxes, and even if he paid the Bureau of Internal Revenue the full three per cent tax on his employees' payroll, the MUSICIANS themselves would have no wage credits in any state unless the leader had elected to pay into the fund of one state the tax on salaries he had paid out to the men while on a tour all over the country, BUT... if the band happened to play a total of 20 weeks in another state, the leader would be required to pay the tax into the fund of that state, and the musicians would have credits in two states, but not enough in either state to qualify for benefits.

Everybody Loses Out

Everybody Loses Out

Everybody Loses Out

In the case of a small band working in a tavern or small nitery, if the leader is considered the employer, he won't be recognized as such under the law if he band. And if the waitresses, bartenders, acts and others working in the spot total less than eight, they, too, being employees of the management, lose out for the same reason, that the law does not recognize their employer as such if he employs less than eight persons. BUT... if the management is considered the employer of everybody working in the spot, including the band and its leader, they all become eligible for benefits because then the law recognizes the management an employer.

That applies only to unemployement benefits however, as the Old

That applies only to unemployment benefits, however, as the Old Age Insurance provisions of the act require all employers to collect and pay in the tax regardless of duration of employ.

auration of employ.

Any musician who has failed to get a social security card in the belief that he won't have to pay the tax is in error, because the law states that until the employer collects the tax from him, the employee is liable to the government for it.

Purchaser Is the Employer

A band leader is not in any sense A band leader is not in any sense an employer because he does not control the men in the band in a legal sense. The real employer, the purchaser of the music, does have control to the extent that the leader directs the other employees as to their hours of labor as set down by the purchaser. He also plays the type of music desired by the purchaser, and accompanies any other entertainment which the purchaser has employed to further his other entertainment which the purchaser has employed to further his business. The band leader is not in an independently established trade or business, as his service is only used to further the trade of some other business, and he does not furnish any finished product but merely contracts for the service of the crew or orchestra. He is merely a foreman.

merely a foreman.

In the matter of social security, the booker, more than anyone else, is responsible for the musician's failure to get his rights. The booker has wanted the information as to the salaries raid each individual musician withheld from the purchaser of the music because it would cause him a little more concern and work in trying to justify his commission if the purchaser could see what each man was getting on the job.

'Leader-Employer Is Stupid'
In the case of an incorporate band the corporation must be taxes on all employees of the corporation (which included its ofcers) and it must be full timwork; there can be no "casua" employment.

It is the writer's opinion that leader who thinks that he is a employer when as a matter of fast he would starve to death in the event he himself did not have apployment, is stupid.

I have covered the problem briefly. I have tried to put it uslanguage which will explain it usisfactorily to leaders and sidemen so that they won't have to ask for legal opinion. The solution to the problem is just as simple as this explanation of the problem itself, but it will require cooperation on the part of musicians, ask patience enough to wait for a proper solution by the various units of government who don't know our reasons for carrying of this music business in the manner we do.

L. A. Musician Protests WPA; Stages a Stunt, Gets Fired

Los Angeles—Gene Dabney, Local 47's busiest and loudest protester, staged his biggest and loudest protest to date here recently. Object of the blast, which Dabney engineered with the help of the Los Angeles "Examiner" and at the cost of his own job on a WPA work project was his most recent employer—the WPA.

his most recent employer—the WPA.
Project last June. He applied for a WPA job and finally got it—a job as laborer. This was too much for the indomitable Dabney. He tipped an "Examiner" photographer and when the musician reported for his job as ditch digger he was equipped not with overalls and shovel but with the tools of his own trade—a tuxedo (with stiff shirt) and his saxophone!

The foreman on the job cooperated by firing Dabney and the "Examiner" came through with a three-column picture and two columns or so of story—much of which was inaccurate, particularly an item to the effect that Dabney was barred from working in Hollywood by union regulations because he was a "new comer." Dabney, who drew 36 votes as a presidential candidate at Local 47's last election, said he was happy and satisfied with the result. He said: "I did it for the benefit of all the musicians who are getting pushed around by that dirty bunch of _____ who are running the WPA. I knew that this was the only way to arouse public opinion."

Hackett Plays For Astaire In Movie

Los Angeles—When inoviegoers see Fred Astaire in the Morros-Stillman film "Second Chorus," for which Artie Shaw is busy doping out the music, they will see Astaire as the trumpet-playing leader of a "college band" who finds it more profitable to remain in college than to graduate. Some moviegoers may even think they are hearing him play the trumpet, for such is the movie business.

But musicione will sit up and play the trumpet, for such is the movie business.

But musicians will sit up and take notice when those first trumpet strains come from the screen for the trumpet music will be recorded by none other than Bobby Hackett, hailed by many as the musical reincarnation of Bix Beiderbecke. Hackett, who recently left the Horace Heidt band, has been brought to Hollywood by Shaw for the special purpose of recording the sequences in "Second Chorus" in which Astaire appears to toot the trumpet.

Pre-recording of the music for "Second Chorus" got under way at the General Service recording studios latter part of July. Shaw used a 14-piece orchestra.

W. P. Falkenburg, the coin machine man who beat the much bally-hooed "majors" of this business to the draw by getting his Musical Shorts, Ltd., into volume production on the midget musicals while the others were still experimenting, has taken the second big jump. He has gone into the manufacture of the coin-machine projectors himself by forming his own firm, Falkenburg-Woods.

Using Original Music

Using Original Music

Using Original Music
The outcome of the Falkenburg venture will be watched with interest because it will tip the trade to what type of material the public will buy in this new field. Falkenburg has nixed big names and high priced talent in favor of volume production at low cost. With the discovery that the major publishers demanded high fees ($250 up) for music rights he turned immediately to public domain and original, unpublished music.

Just a line to say that I certainly agree with Harold Rubins when he says that jazz is being undermined. I've read Down Beat for the past several years and have never failed to pick one up and see an article on some old-timer that half the people that follow bands never heard of, I'm one of those people. I'll grant that Bix and Hardy were good, but I can't see listening to an old record, poorly recorded according to modern standards, when I can buy a brand new Harry James, Benny Goodman or Count Basie and hear just as good music if not better. Bix and some of the others did originate the styles and methods used by today's greats, but doesn't it stand to reason that these should be improved with the passing of years?

Love at First Sight

New Orleans, La.

To the Editors:
Everything didn't happen to the Fiorito band in Cleveland, as per your story in the July 1 issue. Two of our saxmen were married here in New Orleans the other day. Here are the particulars:

Three days before we left Cincinnati I took Freddie Hoedl and Joe La Guardia (both of Cleveland) out on blind dates with two waitresses (both from Cincy). It urned out to be love at first sight as they almost got married the first night. But after talking it over they decided to wait a few days to be sure. We came down here to N. O. three days later. The girls came down a few days later and the wedding was last Sunday (July 21) in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Because I had been cupid I had to be best man for both of them. Bridesmaid was lovely Lorraine O'Day, our band's new chirpie.

I forgot to tell you who married who. Joe La Guardia married Miss Betty Jane Schroder and Fred Hoedl married Miss June Buchert. That is about all the dope I can give you on it, except that I got ptomaine poisoning at the reception.

Dayton, Ohio

To the Editors:

To the Editors:

Because Down Beat is concerned with promoting the interests and welfare of musicians, especially of dance musicians, I believe you might want to present the following information to your readers.

There is an opportunity for qualified musicians to obtain a college education, at a very minimum cost, by playing with the Campus Owls, the traditional dance band of Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio. The band is composed of 13 musicians. Instrumentation is five brass, four saxes and four rhythm. Each year open tryouts are held for all positions. Members of the band earn board, room and spending money, plus members of the band earn board, room and spending money, plus varying amounts of cash. To the Editors:

It is indeed high time that I emite and thank you people for the gift and also the fact that you are responsible for the hundreds of letters I received during the months I spent in the hospital.

I am doing quite well considering the small hope everyone held out for my recovery. . . Incidentally you referred to me as a midwest band leader and a great many letters have been received which ask if my organization is another sugar-coated corn dispensary. Please inform the boys that my band has always leaned toward solid swing and that merely because a band hails from the midwest does not mean they are a bunch of corn-huskers. Will you also thank the writers of all those letters for me, and last but not least, those anonymous letters with the folding money enclosed. What eise can I say except that most musicians are great guys, and Down Beat a great publication.

Determining to defend the interests of the listening public and of advertisers, as well as their own interests, the broadcasters took steps last fall to implement their supply of non-ASCAP music through the organization of Broadcast Music, Inc. Over 300 stations, representing approximately % of the entire business done by the industry, have together with the networks, contributed over $1,250,000 to BMI. The primary purpose of this organization is the promotion of the writing of new music and lyrics by giving opportunities to new composers and authors. Broadcast Music, Inc. has now achieved the stature of an outstanding music publishing organization and has attracted talented composers and writers heretofore excluded from the ASCAP inner circle.

Tips for Young Musicians ---

'Dance Band Men Make the Big Money,' Says Maestro

Much has been said pro and con about the use of jazz music and the organizing of dance bands for future training as a vocation.

From a practical viewpoint, the only source of income for large percentage of musicians is in the dance field, and competition is so great that new-comers must be equipped with the comers must be equipped with the best musicianship possible. As in my own case, and that goes for many other well known leaders today, early training in high school gave me a definite advantage over other instrumentalists when competing for a chair at the outset of my professional career. The musicians who make the money are the boys who had dance band experience.

Skilled Men Get the Work

Skilled Men Get the Work

Even those lads who do not go to college after an intensive study with a high school band can pick up chance jobs here and there because of early training and, in most cases, can outplay, outread, and outshine other youngsters who have not had any real ensemble training. It's an oft-repeated phrase that the skilled workman gets all the work.

The development of skill is essential. Reading, technique, tone and fine sense of rhythm are some of the necessary rudiments of the business that must be surmounted to give sufficient background.

When organizing a band in your local school great emphasis should be put on reading. I would like to say here that at least one year of intensive reading is of the utmost importance. So much so that at the expiration of this time the boys in your group should be able to read through a stock arrangement without any difficulty except, perhaps, sock choruses. Swing rhythms should be analyzed and mastered until you can sight-read any arrangement. Don't sluff off anything that looks a bit difficult. Stop and find out what it's all about and if necessary consult your local music teacher.

Rhythm le Their Weakness

Rhythm Is Their Weakness

Rhythm le Their Weakness
At times I have had the opportunity to listen to school bands and have found one of their greatest weaknesses is rhythm. And since rhythm and swing are so closely related along with the ability to read figures accurately, conquering them should result in fine ensemble precision. The need for superior tone quality is becoming more and more apparent, and each individual in the band must improve, Recordings are a definite asset in this department. Records should be made to determine tone quality.

On the subject of recordings, it would be well to have a fairly representative collection to be played periodically. In this way you can have a better understanding of present day instrumentalists. To better understand the balance, tone ensemble, etc., of such diversified styles as Glenn Miller, The Dorseys, Goodman, Ellington or Cama Loma, there is not a better method than a session around a phonograph. Chop Up Your Stocks!

Chop Up Your Stocks:

The use of girl or boy vocalists for "pop" tunes is always good experience. Proper coloring for background music is essential. Another method to create interest for the boys in the band is to alter stock arrangements to get desired effect. Get the boys to write the stuff out and I'm sure they will find it a great source of pleasure. By this I mean, it gives the boys a sense of assurance when they attempt to improvise even though at times they meet with discouraging results.

at times they meet with discouraging results.
When I speak of improvisation I do not mean a collective jam session usually patterned after the style of his or her idol in the professional field. There is plenty of time later on to attempt manipalating your particular instrument when you feel you have definitely mastered the basic fundamentals.

Jazz Helps Appreciation

Jazz Helps Appreciation
Frequently there is a hue and cry raised over the fact that youngsters playing modern dance music soon forget the classical type. On the contrary, I find that these same boys and girls show a better knowledge of musicianship, read better and have a greater appreciation of fine music. For a long as we have jazz, boys ar going to play it, want it, dance it swing it and study it as material to further their education.

By DOTTY DAVIS

Philadelphia—You can bet your last four bars of the coda that Bon Bon will be back in town this fall, but without Jan Savitt. It'll be too bad when the swelled head of the Top Hatter starts to deflate, considering that there are so many people — who helped when the going was tough around to repay the sarcasm they've gotten in return.

It was a 9-pound bundle of male for the Ben Greenblatts, He's the jazz Paderewski of the local airwaves. ... Buzz Davis, platter changer at WDAS says that if Ozzie Nelson is really serious about looking for a guy who plays alto and baritone, doubles on clarinet and wears a size 37 suit, he'll find him in Joe Seltz with Sonny Fontaine's group at the Walton Hotel ... Maybe it's because he walks around all day with his toupee off and works all night with it on that is bringing on all those head colds to a locally famous leader man.

Two Fine Hot Sides On Bluebird Show How Band Can Kick

BY BARRELHOUSE DAN

Ozzie Nelson furnishes the bigest news of the month saide from new Commodore releases. For aking the conservative, stereotyped dance pattern so long associated with his name, Ozzie aurprises with his latest Bluebird coupling of Count Basic's Riff Interlude and Billy Hicks' Out to Lunch, two better than average tunes on the Negroid side well performed by Ray Crider's boogie pianoisms on Interlude are the highspots of the two sides, but tenor sax is first rate and so is Bo Ashford's trumpet. In addition the rhythm section-heretofore unnoticed — merits plaudits. Two additional trombones (making a 6-brass setup in all) were used for the wax-a wise move on the leader's part which results in more depth and solidness. It's No. 10802 on the BB list.

Charlie Barnet

"The Wrong Idea," BRied 10

"Swing and sweat with Charlie Barnet," reads the label. And if you don't sweat after laughing at this rude slap at Kyser, Heidt, Kaye, Lombardo, et al, then there's Kaye, Lombardo, et al, then there's no use hanging around longer. Here's a clever travesty on the schmalz bands, replete with a stinking Billy May vocal (it fits perfectly) which Victor refused to release until Barnet's fullowers deluged the waxworks demanding it, Reverse side is along the same line—Tommy Dorsey's gang tears the tune Friendship to tatters with a hill-hilly rendition even Tommy. the tune Friendship to tatters with a hill-billy rendition even Tommy should be ashamed of. Good, dirty fun. And kicks.

A once-famous group comes to life again with Benny Carter, Coleman Hawkins, Roy Eldridge, John Kirby, Bernard Addison and Sidney Catlett taking the old "Dandies" name for three exciting sides supervised by Leonard Feather and Milton Gabler. Smack is 10 inches of fast jam, dedicated to Fletcher (Smack) Henderson. former chief dandy himself. And it's Carter's alto which proves exciting enough to match the solo artistry of Hawk and "Little Jazz" Eldridge, who turn in their usual Eldridge, who turn in their usual faultless work. Surrender and Can't Believe are 12 inches. Carter plays piano on Surrender, leaving the solos to Roy and Hawk, leaving the solos to Roy and Hawk, who carry on out magnificently. But Can't Believe is the best side—it's fast, shows Carter's alto again, and more Hawk-Eldridge pyrotechnics. Eldridge is stronger as a soloist than as an ensemble man. The reverse of Smack is a Hawk sole titled Dedication, with rhythm background. It doesn't show "Bean" off as well as do Smack and Can't Believe. The latter two sides are great in every respect, purely hot, and destined to live long as jazz classics.

Is Expensive the grandest, most soulful Hig performances ever put in permanent form. Others in the group are Albert Ammons, Teddy Bunn, John Williams and Big Sid Catlett. Reverse side is the same lineup except Meade Lux Lewis on piano and no Higginbotham. It's hardly as good, as result, not only because of the less worthy soloists, but also because of a faster, more unsteady tempo. Blue Note has yet to make a poor record after a year of admirable enterprise in an uncommercial, hard to sell field. Port of Harlem Blues ranks with its best releases to date.

Sidney Bechet

"Old Mao Bluce" & "Nobody Knaws the "Serenade in Thirds" & "I Can't Cat Way I Feel," Victor 26663.

Best Bechet backing since his Blue Note specials. Not so much because of Sidney, but because of superb trumpeting by Sidney Deparis and sliphorn soloing by Sandy Williams. First side is fast. Artie Shaw's 88 Man Comes From Old Fiddle Family

By Sharon A. Pease

Presenting in this corner bantam rooster" of the of the dance pianists, John Guarnieri, weight 140, height 5 feet 6 inches. The name is pronounced Gwaneary what he lacks in physical stature is more than offset by the tremendous fire and enthusiasm with which he does everything, including thump-ing a piano with Artie Shaw.

From a Musical Family

From a Musical Family

John is a descendant of the Guarnerius family, famous violin makers (1650-1755). In those days the letters "u s" were added to proper names, but somewhere along the line these letters were dropped and another "!" added. Starting with Andreas, the work of violin building was carried on by his sons Joseph and Peter of Cremona and later by the son of Joseph, known as Peter of Venice. The Guarnerius is conceded by many authorities to be a better violin than the Stradivarius, though not as rare for fewer of the latter were made. The Guarnarius family is credited with many of the improvements in violin construction and history tells us, "Their originality knew no limits."

There can be no doubt that the

There can be no doubt that the Guarnerius family took their violin building seriously, and that goes for John and his piano playing. He is constantly striving for, and fast attaining a high degree of perfection as a soloist.

attaining a high degree of perfection as a soloist.

John began his study of piano at 10 and was tutored by his father, who plays and builds violins in Brooklyn. Realizing the value of technique, he plugged away faithfully at Hanon and Czerny exercises. He continued to study throughout high school and played a concerto with the school orchestra as part of the graduation exercises. John had noted that a couple of his classmates who played dance piano were "quite popular with the girls," and that they were also picking up "odd money" working jobs. He decided to investigate—listened to some records and soon realized that was the music for him. He was particularly impressed with the work of Waller, Wilson, Hines, Tatum, and Basie. John has perfect pitch and was able to take off their choruses and soon became familiar with the basic principles of each of their styles. At 18 he was married, had joined the union, and was working jobbing dates and tours with road bands.

Wanted to Play with Benny

His first steady job was with George Hall at the Taft Hotel in New York, He was with Hall three years except for two short hitches with Mike Riley.

About the time John became in-

'I Was Paralyzed with fear, "I Was Paralyzed with fear," said Johnny Guarnieri of his audition with Benny Goodman. But John, shown above, landed the job, taking Fletcher Henderson's place, and since the bustup of the Goodman band a few weeks back, Guarnieri has been with Artie Shaw. Sharon Pease tells John's background in the accompanying article, and to the right is an "original Guarnieri."

terested in dance piano, he set a secret goal—that one day he would play piano for Benny Goodman. That ambition was fulfilled late last year when Benny decided playing and arranging was too great a burden on Fletcher Henderson, and started looking for someone to replace "Smack" at the piano. "I had worked with Nick Fatool in the Hall band," says John, "And he arranged an audition for me. I was paralyzed with fear, but got through it some way—a number with the band and one with the sextet. Words can't express my happiness when I learned I had been selected for the job."

John clicked with the band and the fans right on through the recent Catalina engagement, the one which Goodman left to enter the Mayo Clinic.

Then he joined Artie Shaw's orchestra for work in the picture "Second Chorus," on records, and the Burns and Allen radio show.

An anonymous correspondent has only four axees in his band, but would welcome a suggestion as to how to make his sax section sound like Glenn Miller's. Well, that's quite easy. Voice your chord in the following manner: clarinet lead, alto next, then a trumpet in hat, and two tenors playing the bottom harmony hotes. If your trumpet men can blend well with the saxes, you'll really be surprised at the results.

Fritz Spera Has Great Dixie Band

BY BOB ZORN

Ishpeming, Mich.-Don't let that date line scare you. It happens to be the base from which this reporter works. But apart from that, the town offers a paucity of jazz. We have only one joint using a steady band. That's the Venice Cafe, featuring Don Young's Swing Quartet, Unfortunately the leader's piano gives the only kick.

The name bands seem to avoid the upper peninsula here, but the territory on the whole doesn't offer too bad a brand of jazz and there are really some good men around are really some good men around these parts:

Iron Mountain's best, for instance, is the Dixieland crew of Fritz Spera. They play a good brand of music and feature the tenor and clarinet of Ewald Johnson, the leader's good trumpet, and Roy Johnson's fine arrangements and doghousing. The band is at Cave's Crystal Bar. Eddie Sowers has another rideout crew at Spera's Eagle Inn. Then the only virtue of Charlie Armand's schmaltz unit at the Riverside Club is its ability to play a good floor show.

is its ability to play a gover show.

The town of Hancock is a covey of corn lovers and all the citizenry turn out in hordes at the joints that have the jazziest jazz. The Golden Pheasant features Harold Stevens' commercial crew. The Ervast has Elinore Sten's all gal outfit, which doesn't offer much besides the leader's trumpeting. Gino's is using a very and Cuban crew.

In Escanaba, at the Dells, Ray Kraemer's band is doing the only job worth mentioning. Over in Munising the Knotty Club has Stan Stanford's trio and Arielle Pierce (who is no Holiday) singing. Bill Smail's combo at the Sylvan Inn offers some kicks in pianist Merrill Ramsey. Tenor man also rolls along fine.

Men Behind the Bands

Billy May

BY LEONARD G. FEATHER

The public, even the musicians, know little or nothing about him yet he's the man who made that nous Cherokee arrangement as well as the majority of the other hite in Charlie Barnet's books.

That's Billy May, the big, blond young man who turns them out so prolifically for the "White Duke" and lun also been heard lately playing a gang of hot horn in the

Born in Pittsburgh

Born 24 years ago in Pittsburgh. May started on tuba in his fifteenth year, later playing trombone on a local CBS house job and switching to trumpet shortly before joining Barnet. In Pittsburgh he also worked for a Lombardotype band, Baron Elliott. Then in June 1938 he took Charlie B. an arrangement of If It Rains Who Cares? and he's been in the righteous groove ever since, mailing 'em in until February 1939 and then joining the arranging staff per-manently. He's been playing in the band since August '39.

Billy's training as an arranger was limited. He took a year's har-mony course at high school but vent through the second semester course first! Most of his ability can be credited to a good ear-his advice to embryonic arrangers is to do more and more analytical listening-and it's more important, he adds, to be able to identify the harmony than the instrumentation.

Fast work is Billy's specialty. Given Cherokee to make up at the last minute, he wrote this and two other scores one night on a bus! work anywhere, but pre-He can work anywhere, but pre-fers to have a piamo or his minis-ture organ. An average pop song takes him two or three hours; a special or instrumental maybe four or five. When he's rushed he doean't bother with a score—just writes each part right out, but adds that his manuscripts are so illegible the boys invariably beef about it.

Here Are Some Tipe

Here are some of Billy's tips on how he achieves his effects: "I like to regard the trumpets and trombones as two separate sections stead of lumping them together

"Of course, I believe in allowing as much apace as possible for at lib solos: I don't think it's fair to keep the boys down to an occasional eight bars. I only write aketch parts! for the rhythm section and leave most of it to their imagination and instinct."

Billy cites Lunceford and Krupa among his top bands, and Sy Oliver, Ellington and Benny Carter as favorite arranging and the Boston Symphony as his favorite musical organization. His ambition is to write a serious tone-poem—and he doean't mean "symphonic - jas" stuff, He already has an original rhappody in 5/4 time hidden away somewhere. Shots From the Crosby Band's Tattered Scraphook

Bob Crosby looked like this a few years back in the home town of Spokane. A farmer boy at heart, he posed for this one shortly before he started singing with Anson Weeks. Center—Eddie Miller, whose ambition is an orchard filled with pecan trees to look after, shows his manly strength, He's a fiend for keeping in shape—doesn't say what kind of shape. Right—Nappy LaMare, on the streets of New Orleans. This month he's lying in the sun at Catalina where the band is playing.

Musty Mutlock, whose first name really is Julian, is back in the band again playing alto and clary. At left he shows what he knows about an art he learned when he was a Boy Scout back in Tennessee, when Matty's not pulling a gag, he's either asleep or writing arrangements. At right, Crosby, Ray Baudue.

of the Month

Raymond Scott has contributed many a novel sound effect to music on records and radio. In "Powerhouse" his men hummed to produce the throbbing tone of a dynamo. In "Twilight in Turkey," finger cymbals were employed to create the illusion of an Oriental bazaar. At a recording session at Columbia the other day, however, Scott came across a noise that baffled him. While waxing his latest, "Do You Pamper Your Husband at Night?" a peculiar buzzing sound came through the microphone. Scott was unable to account for it. He waved the men to stop and when the studio was quiet the source of the strange sound was discovered. The band's porter, weary from a recent one-nighter series, had fallen asleep and his snores had seeped into the microphone!

his present way of playing.

As I said before, the pianists that Stuart mentioned are very understandable to the present day hep cats. But I have been wondering why the raves about certain individual pianists who to me sound like one-finger artists. I always felt that the piano should be played with the full ten fingers. I began to think I didn't have the right slant—maybe I was wrong.
Most of the present day swing pianists peck like they were playing xylophones or vibraharps, ing xylophones or vibraharps, knocking out one lick after another in octaves or one-finger jazz.

Everything they play sounds as though it was taken from Jack Robbins' folio of "Hot Licks For

All 'Ta' Pals Were 'Great'

Piano."

All 'Ta' Pals Were 'Great'

Since 1925 I had heard much about Peck Kelley. I heard that he was quite a character. Jack Teagarden joined my band in 1928 and raved to me about Peck. But as time went on I discovered that anyone whom Jack knew personally was the "greatest in the world." I heard a few of his so-called "greats" as they came into New York at different intervals and finally figured that they were his pals and because of his lack of experience and seasoning at that time he really didn't know musicians. Many musicians are like Jack. Consequently I was always a little skeptical of Jack's raves about Peck Kelley.

About 1935, when I had most of the present Bob Crosby band with me, we played down in Galveston at the Hollywood Club. Some of the boys went into Houston to hear Peck at his home, and they came back saying he didn't want to play because, he explained, they had heard everything and he hadn't had anything new on the ball. From that I pegged him as another acrewball.

A few years ago I met Rodin and acrewball.

A few years ago I met Rodin and his demons down in Dallas on a one-nighter when they had Bob Zurke and I had Bob Laine. Each of us bragged about our piano man. I had known Zurke for years but whenever I met him and he wanted to play for me I never paid any attention to him. After bearing Zurke at a jam session on one particular night I said to myself, "Here is a man that really plays mess of piano-almost the way always thought a piano should be played."

'I've Heard Them All'

Up to that time Earl Hines was my favorite, but since he had become a leader he didn't concentrate enough on his playing. Recently I caught him on the air from the Roseland. I was happy to hear him play wonderful piano again.

I have heard all the rest of the boys play boogie woogie, ragtime, jazz, and so-called swing, and I adjazz, and so-called swirg, and I admit they play well—it is just a question whether you yourself care for a particular style of piano playing. But I want to any right now that PECK KELLEY PLAYS EVERYBODY'S STYLE AND THEN SOME! My reputation of being able to pick good musicians entitles me to an opinion and I've proved by the top leaders I discovered that I know a little more than some short-haired collegians, jitterbug writers, or record shop owners.

A month ago when my band played down in Sylvan Beach in Houston, I made up my mind to hear Peck Kelley in person. I am hear Peck Kelley in person. I am through taking anyone's word on how good a man is unleas I hear him myself. I took a few of my boys and went to the Southern Club after work one night, I paid the admission, had a good drink for 35c (and thought the chicken was the best I ever tasted) and thought the place was as pretty as any club in any city of that size. I heard a dance set. The boys were playing stock orchestrations and I didn't expect more than that. They sound better than that. They sound better than the usual run of bands playing stocks. Peck just sat there very sober faced. He didn't shake his shoulders, stamp his foot, or make funny faces. In fact from where I sat I couldn't even tell he was playing as you couldn't see his hands or hear him. A few of my boys got up and stood around the piano where four or five others were standing. Peck finished the dance set, got up and lit a cigar and went into the back room. I asked the waiter if that through taking anyone's word lit a cigar and went into the back room. I asked the waiter if that told him to call Peck as I wanted to talk to him. Peck came out. We shook hands sat down and talked shook hands, sat down and talked about various people we knew. After a short delightful conversation it seemed that we had known each other for years; and I discovered that in spite of all that I had heard, Peck Kelley is nobdy's fool. Although he is slightly shy he has plenty of good common seame.

Ten Fingers Down at Once

Peck doesn't listen to records or radio, so what he dishes out on the piano must be pretty original, which is very rare.

piano must be pretty original, which is very rare.

He called the band to the stand and proceeded to play again. Maybe it was doctored stocks or something they dreamed up—but fellows. I've heard slow blues and fast blues and can remember things pretty far back, but Peck Kelley plays blues with EVERY FINGER OF HIS HANDS DOWN AT THE SAME TIME! Off the beat, in the beat, out of the beat, and "OUT OF THIS WORLD!" It doesn't seem possible that a man can live and play as much piano as he played that morning—a man would have to practice 36 hours a day to play that much—Peck was really ready, and he wasn't anxious to get off the stand at two o'clock.

I'd give anything to hear Peck

I'd give anything to hear Peck I'd give anything to hear Peck Kelley in a concert at Carnegie Hall. I doubt if this can ever be arranged, though, because Peck realizes there are so many ickies in this world who don't understand. Yet even Peck himself doesn't realize how great he really is. If, after giving a concert, he should read an article such as Stuart wrote, it would break his heart. If he were a torrific success, the money and everything that goes with success would slow up his playing.

'Nobody Can Dust Peck's Keys

did a lot of drinking. He hasn't touched a drop in years. If he ever

I thing him know how much he has. I have in my organization a few boys who think they wrote the book on who's who in jazz. I'm sure every band in the business today has a few of those men. They are either Zurke lovers, Hines lovers, Tatum lovers, or boopie woogie lovers. But when my boys heard Peck Kelley they were as thrilled as I was and now they feel that none of the others can dust off Peck's keys. keys.

I finally heard someone play piano as I thought it should be played, but I never dreamed any-one could play ten times that much.

Ralph comes to the band with a background of experience with such bands as Vincent Lopes, Sosnik, Sophie Tucker and others. O'Brien is said to have made connections with a New York publisher as a song writer.

Mary Lee, the little 15-year-old songstresa, introduced in Denver by Ted Weems two years ago, returned to complete Ted's final two weeks at Lakeside Park. Mary Lee has co-starred with Gene Autry in Columbia pictures and will return to Hollywood upon the completion of Ted's stay in Denver July 31.

Currently at Lakeside is Art Kassel and his "Kassels in the Air" who opened August 1st. At the competition spot, Elitchs Gardens, following George Olsen, is Clyde Lucas and his California Dons. This marks Clyde's first visit to Denver. George Olsen stayed over one night to greet Lucas and stage a Battle of Music in the popular Trocadero.

Correy Lynn, Chicago maestro, and Gloria Gilbert (right), the Chi high school girl who got her start with Dick Jurgens, have been packing them in at the Dutch Mill in the Geneva-Delavan lake region. Both are prominent in Windy City music circles.

Push-Button Tuning as featured by Fred Waring on his nightly NBC Chesterfield broadcasts is illustrated here by Donna Dae, left; Waring, center, and Andy White, baritone. The idea works just as if the listener is switching stations. In three minutes, Waring's gang presents almost every type of radio show, each "station" woven together so that continuity isn't broken up. Waring's showmanship and use of large vocal groups remains the talk of the trade today just as in 1930.

Pittsburgh Prexy Hurt in Motor Car Crash on Wet Road

BY MILTON KARLE

BY MILTON KARLE

Pittsburgh — President Clair Meeder of Local 60 was the victing of a wet road while driving to Washington, Pa., last month. His car turned over completely and was badly damaged, but Meeder himself escaped without injury.

Now that Maurice Spitalny has broken with KDKA, a local nitery operator has grabbed him for a fortnite's engagement. . Bob Zurke landed another local sliphornist, Russ McCandless, while returning through these parts. Zurke took trombonist Greg Philips while passing through last month. . Apparently the innovation of Lani McIntire's Hawaiians at the Willows upped the business of the Oakmont playspot for Manager Fury Ross, in agreement with GAC, retained the New York importation till mid-August. . Herman Middleman's dixie outfit at the Yacht Club supported by Little Jackie Heller giving the river boat the nicest biz in town.

a "Jan Savitt" here is Sol Bobrov, former classical violinist and concert master with Karl Krueger's Philharmonic Orchestra, who has joined the ranks of dance band leaders. Bobrov has definitely cut away from his long-hair leanings and his new crew, catch-lined the Reflected Rhythm orchestra, is currently playing at Southern Mansions.

into the sax section to carry out to the fullest the best qualities of my reed team.

I prefer the soprano sax lead more than I do the clarinet lead simply because it is a saxophone and can do the job more capably than a clarinet.

Possibly all musicians will not agree with me on this but in past experience has proved to me that it is the best way. I'm more highly satisfied with the work that is being turned out and think that with further concentration in this department we will have something that will be something to contend with in the future. The most difficult task for any leader in using a soprano sax as a lead instrument to get the effects desired, is to get saxes which will play in tune. I have been fortunate in that respect in getting for my soprano dis ax lead, a man who has been using the instrument for five years and really knows its worth.

Not Satisfied with Arrangements

Not Satisfied with Arrangements

Eddie Scheer really gives me what I need in conquering the intonation of the section. I'm not entirely satisfied with my present arrangements and feel that they could be a whole lot better. I haven't had all the time necessary to concentrate on them the way I would like, but believe that in a short time I shall be able to line them up as cleanly as I would want them.

The rhythm section while not them.

The rhythm section, while not always entirely relaxed, gives us the kicks that are necessary and provides the necessary tang to put us over.

The life needed around any bandstand comes from our piano man, Billy Rowland, who in my mind is really one of the outstanding white pianists of today. Bob Thorne leads off on fine trumpet but this department had been lacking a terrific trumpet and I think we now have it in Joe Bogart. The whole brass has been pepped up with his entrance and if we can swing numbers in the future around him, as we have been doing recently, I shall be a mighty happy bandleader.

Herb Muse, Ronnie Chase and bandleader.

Herb Muse, Ronnie Chase and Doris Day, all take a hand in the vocals and they do a very capable job. All in all I think the band has improved tremendously in the past year and with some breaks, we should go places.

Koki-Koki and Herby Woods seem to be the most popular diversions at Wildwood-By-The-Sea, N. J. Herby has a popular band at the famous resort and arouses added enthusisom by teaching terpsichorean tricks he learned in Boston's Back Bay section from Jack Marshard, At left, Herby and Mary Ann McCall, former Herman-Barnet sparrow now playing theaters on her own, solo, takes a lesson from Madame Herb. Also in the pic are Dick Wharton, Wes Dean and Buddy Depinsmidt, of Woods' band.

It's Solid Tin . . . Carol Bruce, singing star of "Louisiana Purchase," presents Spud Murphy, the leader, with a tin crown at LaConga for being voted by 50 secretaries to New York publishers as "Mr. Tin Pan Alley."

Steady, There . . . Steady Nelson, Texan who plays a mees of trumpet for Woody Herman, and Dillagene, Woody's chanteuse (from Oklahoma), turn in a duet together at the New Yorker even if Dillagene doesn't seem to like it. Nelson used to be a printer and still carries a card.

"Starrs" with Kemp . . . Over at right Judy Starr prepares for a one-nighter with Hal Kemp, with whom she works off and on, mostly on.
