Fired Whole Band To Prove They Can't Push Leader Around

Los Angeles—The real story back of Tommy Dorsey's "firing" of his entire band last month is that it was designed to let TD's bandsmen know once and for all that Tommy was still boss and that he wasn't going to be pushed around by his sidemen, notwithstanding the wartime scarcity of musicians.

Tommy's statement that he was planning to create a "wonder band" for his opening at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, (October 4) made a good story and was also one that fitted in with his stand that there were still enough good musicians available at the right price to put a whole new organization together if necessary. The "wonder band" will be pretty much what Tommy has had in the past year, with the personnel trimmed from radio and picture requirements to hotel measurements.

Union Fights Draft Ruling About Cafes

New York—AFM representatives went to Washington last week to argue ruling that cafe workers are non-essential and ahould be diverted to work or fight status. AFM claims that bands working cafes cannot be classed strictly as cafe entertainers because that is only one small part of their business activities. For example, Tommy Dorsey's band working the Pennsylvania could be classed as cafe entertainers under this ruling and be made to take war jobs.

Count Basie For Lincoln

New York—Count Basie will play his first New York hotel booking when he opens at the Lincoln on November 5. Basie, set for eight weeks, is the first colored band to play the Lincoln and at a price reputed to be the highest ever paid by Maria Kramer for any previous attraction. Basie's last New York downtown date was at the Famous Door on 52nd Street.

Henry Jerome, current at the Lincoln, may have to hold over if the Paramount Theater will not allow Tony Pastor, who opens there on October 13, to double into the Lincoln starting October 19.

Park Central Books Barnet

New York—Charlie Barnet and his band will replace Mal Hallett at the Park Central Hotel here on September 23. Band, featuring Virginia Maxey on vocals, is set for several air-shots a week over both Mutual and CBS. Future Barnet bookings include a December date at the Strand theater here.

George Brunis Back to Lewis

New York—George Brunis, after an absence of several years, has taken his tram back to the Ted Lewis orchestra.

Kay Kyser Band Heads Hollywood Bond Cavalcade

Hollywood—Kay Kyser headlines a unit made up of top flight move personalities which was slated to train out of Hollywood Sept. 5 on a cross-country tour in the interests of the Third War Loan drive.

Among those who joined the bandleader and his musicians in forming the "Hollywood Bond Cavalcade" were Fred Astaire Olivia De Havilland, Dick Powell Lucille Ball, James Cagney, Judy Garland, Walter Pidgeon and other well known players.

The tour was scheduled to open officially in Washington, D. C., with a Kay Kyser broadcast on Sept. 8. It moves from the Capitol to Philadelphia, Boston. New York and 10 or 12 other cities to be announced later.

Donahue Finds Him a Swooner

New York—Al Donahue and his band, who opened on September 7 at the Terrace Room in Newark, N. J., brought in a new male singer named Don Barry, signed while the band was finishing up a date in Boston. According to Frank Walsh, the Donahue mentor, Barry, a six-foot-and-over handsome Irishman, should impress the ladies and develop into strong Sinatra-Haymes-Como opposition.

Agency Puts $60,000 On Line to Dorsey et al. Against GAC Pact Finis

By Mike Levin

It is my personal, prejudiced, and profane opinion that when it comes to music, the press of this country registers like Casey on the third strike—the desperate lunge, the anguished expression, and the complete miss of the point at hand. Three weeks ago Life magazine came out with a sharp jitterbug cover, and a story of Frank Sinatra's concert at Lewisohn Stadium.

Henry Luce's weekly has been unfair to many people in the past, but seldom have I seen it scuff up the muck as thoroughly (Modulate te Page 17)

USO Fires All Bands, Starts Big Scramble

New York—All bands on USO camp tours will receive notices the end of this month due to the army's cutting down its budget. This throws sixteen outfits back in the mad scramble for bookings, including Barney Rapp, Dick Rogers, D'Artega, Gray Gordon, Al Sears and similar class Bunits. All USO band dates will have to be free ones volunteered by bands. Goodman and Jimmy (not Tom my) Dorsey, plus Sammy Kaye and Woody Herman, have promised USO dates. Philly to Hear Duke Concert

New York—Duke Ellington will play a concert September 30 at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia and may complete plans to play one at the Consti-tution Hall in Washington, D. C.

Cozy and Hank Join Miff Mole

New York—Cosy Cole and Hank D'Amico left Raymond Scott's CBS band to play in Miff Mole's Sextet, which opened at the Top Hat Club in Toronto September 10. Specs Powell re-placed Cole in Scott's band.

Los Angeles—The Swami of Swoon is out of escrow at last, following the filing of a series of "I-want-my-cut" suits, all of which were settled at conference tables here, over which attorneys huddled as the man who tosses the well known Sinatrance prepared to embark on his movie career at RKO.

WLB Decision Could End Ban On Recording

New York—Latest development in the recording ban dispute, which has been brought up for consideration by the War Labor Board by seven transcription firms, is that although the WLB has come to no decision yet as to whether or not the refusal of the musicians to do any recording constitutes a strike, the Board was ready to meet here on September 6.

It is assumed that the WLB will call for a series of talks with both the transcribers and the AFM before coming to any conclusion. MGM studio informants also confirmed the rumor that Tommy had been finding it difficult to "maintain discipline." One story was that the final blow-up came during the shooting of the band scenes in Broadway Rhythm. For every interesting moment of movie making there is a long, tedious wait during which lights must be adjusted, camera set-ups checked, props put in place and innumerable details worked out.

The exact moment at which actual shooting can start is unpredictable but when the time comes everyone must be in his spot ready for the "take." Studio workers said that on one occasion Tommy had to make a personal search of the MGPM lot to

New York—Hildegarde, backed by Bob Grant and his orch, opened for a two week date at the Embassy Room of the Hotel Statler in Washington, D. C. on September 8 after finishing an engagement at the Copley-Plaza Hotel in Boston.

Auld to New York

New York—Georgie Auld's bookings at present are indefinite. He will play the Rialto ballnoom here September 21 and possibly the Commodore hotel, following Vaughn Monroe later in the fall.

Paul Whiteman In New Office

Los Angeles—Paul Whiteman, Blue Network music chief, headed for New York Aug. 30, after completing his stint in Warner pic Rhapsody in Blue and other coast commitments. He will make his headquarters at Bluenet's New York plant until further notice.

Whiteman was accompanied by his wife and Mike Pingatore, only original member of PW's band and now his general assistant.

Perfection, to Goodman, Is Just Around Corner, Which May Explain Him

Simple Not the Word
Simple is not the word for the whole thing. But then—simple is not the word for the whole thing. But then—simple is not the word for Benny either. Let's pull ourselves up some well-padded chairs and relax while I go into a routine here. And leave that piece of pipe with Weatherby. The kitchen sink drain is busted, and what with priorities and all—!

Now—about Benny. All this he's up, he's down, he's a louse, he isn't, he's a genius and they're always a little nuts, okay but that's no excuse stuff. Correction, friend. It should be no excuse. It would make talent so easy to explain, and I wouldn't be knockin' myself out. Bound on all sides by Emily Post, talent would then be reduced to the simple mechanics of button-pushing and the simply awful consequence of mediocrity.

Talent would be so nice to come home to, instead of waiting on the front stoop with a mental rolling pin and a portfolio full of complexes. Talent would never get mad, or glad, or heartbroken or confused enough to try to get rid of those emotions and confusions on a breath taking canvas, in an ageless piece of writing, an unforgettable bit of acting, or a pulse-assaulting clarinet improvisation. Is everybody happy—in a dull stifling sort of way?

Talent Has Ita Curse
Yeah—I know. Benny starts all

Talent Has Its Curse

Talent Has its Curse
Yesh—I know. Benny starts all these investigations into Benny by being difficult as all get out. I hear you talkin'. But find me a great talent, worth his salt, who isn't a problem child to his generation, and more important, to himself, and I'll listen. Sincere talent is cursed with an acute awareness of almost anything. The lulling beauty of twilight haze. The way people look blowing their noses. The measured elegance of a Mozart sonatina. The swift strike of dynamic dissonance. The way the guy at the next table chews his soup. The sting of rain ripping across your face. The dismal damp of it sloshing through the hole in your last pair of shoes. It is forever impatient with imperfection. It gets but a fleeting lift from perfection. And it stards in constant need of encouragement, and I don't mean the Broadway variety.

Great talent is burdened with variety.

Great talent is burdened with the the sacred and frightening re-sponsibility of never giving with less than its best. (What books

All of which may lead you to suspect that I'm not liking the current palaver about Benny Well—it's having it's usual effect on me. First I get mad at Benny and go out and buy myself the prescribed length of pipe and then in the blue of evening, with my blood pressure back to normal, I throw the thing away and start getting mad at the guys who are mad at Benny.

Typical Benny Poess

Typical Benny Poses

Typical Benny Poses

Face Benny with the foregoing, ask him if it's applicable to him and he'd probably grin with embarrassment and change the subject, or walk away. I think it is applicable. The changing the subject and walking away stuff are a couple of Benny's poses for the world. I don't think he does it to be what it looks like he's being—rude, but effective. Another one, is wielding the big stick. Being the man who says what goes, i.e., hiring and firing, and re-hiring and re-firing ad infinitum. And still, perfection, to him, is always just around the corner.

Irving Kolodin once wrote an article titled "Benny Isn't Hungry Anymore". I'd like to borrow that phrase for a slightly different use, and re-hash it to read "Benny isn't being shoved around anymore". He's where he wanted to get. Okay—so why doesn't he stop returning the shove? Ah—h—h life! It would be so much fun, if two and two always made four. So would people. The only sure thing about people is at best a hackneyed generality, what you were born with plus what happens to you adds up to owhat makes you tick. You can't safely predict the quality, quantity, or speed of effect of the same things on different personalities.

And you can't expect an immediate and complete character change from a bark account and the property of the part of the same things on different personalities.

And you can't expect an immediate and complete character change from a bank account and a place in Americana and a house in the country and a good wife and a new baby daughter. They would have their respective refreshing effects—like a cold shower the morning after. But if the hangover is bad, it lingers on. Only time and the application of a little common sense can kill that. Here's hoping Benny applies a little.

Ben Pollack Opens Office As Manager

Los Angeles—Ben Pollack has set up band management offices in Hollywood's El Capitan theater building. Veteran bandsman still denies that he has retired as a bandleader, but indication is pretty strong that Pollack, who spent the past year as manager of a band he organized to back Chico Marx on a stage tour, will devote his future activities largely to management and booking.

Pollack's first deal was the setting of Dale Jones, formerly with Will Osborne and recently released from the ferry command band at Long Beach, to open at the Palladium September 7 with an alternate band of six pieces.

Jones plays bass and was also featured by Osborne as an entertainer. Imogene Lynn is doing the vocals with his new combo.

Joe Zucca, who bought the Millinder troupe as a "package deal" that included Sister, figures that he was considerably damaged when she departed—and not without good reason. Rosetta is a big feature anywhere she appears. Zucca brought up an interesting point by calling attention to the fact that he had engaged the band under the well known AFM "form B" contract, which supposedly makes the owner of a nitery the actual employer. Therefore, says Zucca, he himself was entitled to something in the way of notice.

In transferring This is the Army to the screen, Warner Brothers fell back on their favorite formula, the familiar "show-within-a-show" expedient. The main acts from the stage show have been telescoped into production numbers which are presented in the course of telling two stories. One is the story of how This is the Army was conceived and carried out by old-timers who participated in Irving Berlin's first army show, Yip, Yip, Yaphank, of World War I; the other concerns a young soldier in today's Army show who is afraid to marry his sweetheart (Joan Leslie) for fear of leaving her a widow with a baby to support. Judging by this guy's general lack of spirit, we'd say the latter eventuality would be rather unlikely. Anyway, war or no war, who can watch Joan Leslie chasing a guy around begging him to marry her without feeling embarrassed?

Musically, This is the Army on the screen is almost—but not quite—just. another Warner Brothers' filmusical, even to the glossy Ray Heindorf orchestral settings, recorded not by the army musicians seen in the picture but by civilian musicians at regular AFM rates. The union granted permission for the TITA orchestra of service men to appear in the picture, but only as "side-line" (atmosphere) musicians at whatever pay they get as members of the TITA unit.

All of the important musical hollywood elaboration of effects. Songs like This is the Army, Mr. Jones; I'm Getting Tired So I Can Sleep; I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Canteen haven't lost their freshness. The one new song written by Berlin, What Does He Look Like, especially for the picture (sung by Frances Langford) isn't important. Gertrude Niesen gets in briefly with Your Country and

More interesting musically is the interpolation in the picture of God Bless America, which is introduced simply and logically by merely reproducing that portion of a Kate Smith air show. It's not great music, and Kate isn't a great singer, but the sequence is an effective documentation of what the song and the singer are as an integral part of U. S. life. Also worth noting is the re-telling of how the song was written by Berlin over 25 years ago for his World War I army show, but tossed out as not having enough punch.

Sentimental Lady and A Slip Of the best of the Ellington output, but both are better than average sides in a day when good swing platters are rarer than hen's more spontaneity and enthusiasm than they deserve.

Ray Eberle was there, way back when these were cut. to enunciate the words of the first, and the rest of the Miller Machine was on hand to fashion the second along the old familiar lines. Two in the traditional Miller pattern, take them for whatever they're worth.

Shaw-Martin, Victor 20-1537

Here are two dance tunes with two different vocalists and two different bands, one a swing band and one a sweet band. Both band and one a sweet band. Both sides, though, are sweet only. Artie plays Now We Know and surprises by supplying a vocal by none other than Martha Tilton herself. Freddy plays All Or Nothing At All, and Clyde Rogers discovers that dogging the steps of Swoon King Sinatra is no easy task.

Freddy Martin, Victor 20-1535

From Suicide Squadron comes From Suicide Squadron comes still another version of Warsaw Concerto, this time by a specialist in adapting such stuff for dance purposes. Jack Fina plays the piano, but the composition scarcely measures up to a Grieg or a Tschalkowsky. Also heard are Bob Haymes and the Martin Men. From Twilight 'Til Dawn, although even three minutes is a trifle too long!

Bing Cuts Two More Sides as All-Vocadiscs

Position of Union Singers in AFM Strike Not Clear

Los Angeles—Bing Crosby has cut two more sides for Decca backed by all vocal-group. Songs were from stage show Oklahoma. Singer was accompanied by a glee club of 12 voices built around the Sportsmen, a quartet, and featuring Trudy Erwin, girl singer featured by Crosby on his air show.

featuring Trudy Erwin, girl singer featured by Crosby on his air show.

Crosby has been making all-wocal discs under "special permission" granted by the AFM's Jimmy Petrillo, a curlous situation inasmuch as it infers that AFM claims jurisdiction over its members when they perform other than instrumental services. Crosby is listed as a drummer. It is generally held that the AFM holds jurisdiction only over instrumentalists. Jurisdiction over singers is held by three other AFL-affiliates, AGVA initery and stage singers), AFRA (radio singers) and SAG (motion picture singers). There is therefore good ground for the contention that Petrillo should have no more control over Crosby's activities as a singer than he does over Crosby's activities as an actor.

Position of union singers in the AFM disc strike has never been quite clear. Some reports have it that under a "request" by Petrillo they have refused to co-operate in the making of all-vocal discs. Fact remains that union singers (such as The Sportsmen Group mentioned above) have been making records since the AFM ban went into effect in August, 1942.

Beat Called It on Discs

A little more than a year ago when the record ban began to bite and the shellac supply started dwindling, Down Best predicted that in spite of extravagant forecasts by other trade papers to the contrary, the over-all record production for the following year would be cut less than 15 percent. Estimates of the other sheets ranged from 50 percent to 75 percent and even higher. The other journals also reported sorrowfully that the ban would cause a reduction in the number of jazz records released because the disc firms would concentrate on the popular numbers exclusively. Now that the figures are all added up and the reports all filed, in turns out that not only did the Bost hit the reduction percentage of record releases right on the nongrin, but there have been more jazz dien, including full albams, issued during the past year than in many a moon.

Capitol Buys Master Disc By King Cole

Los Angeles—Capitol has purchased the master of a disc made here by the King Cole Trio for a small Hollywood recording firm known as Excelsior. Platter is All for You, backed by a jump novelty, Yom Vim Veedle.

Disc was recorded by Excelsior just before the AFM ban went into effect last year and has had a steady sale locally. It is figured that with the promotion which it will be given by Capitol and the firm's nation-wide distribution set-up, the platter stands a good chance of jumping into the best-seller lists.

One of the interesting features is that the bass player on this recording is Red Callender, not Wesley Prince, Cole's original bass man. Sides also contain good examples of the best work of Nat Cole, planist-leader, and Oscar Moore, guitarist.

Sidemen Are Piling Up Post-War Grief For All Musicians!

He asked us a question in an intelligent manner which started us off on a train of thought that probably would not otherwise have occurred to us. This is our answer to Sgt. Charles E. Luntz, Jr., of the army air corps, who was a drummer known as Charlie Elliott in civilian life. He queries:

What sort of a routine will we face as musicians when the war is won and we return to civilian life? Will it be possible for us to pick up where we left off, or must we start from scratch and fight to regain whatever progress we may have achieved before we donned a uniform?

The sergeant, of course, is speaking as a sideman. not concerned, primarily, with what name bands will be on top when the shooting stops. Or whether the Millers and the

CAN THE SIDEMEN WHERE THEY LEFT? Duchins will step back into the same measure of popularity they enjoyed before they, too, donned uniforms. All he wants to know is whether the average musician can grab his horn, find a job with this or that band, and hope to rate a salary commensurate with what his talent and his reputation brought him before this mess

With one exception, Charlie, we believe that poprospects are excellent. The nation, even the world, w will be conditioned to music as never before in history. But that single exception is a serious one.

Normally, we side with the sidemen. They are the boys that blow the notes that make Joe Blow a big name. But in many years of close contact with the band business, we never hav witnessed such short-sightedness as is prevalent in the field

We use the term prevalent advisedly. If it merely was the report of one or two disgruntled leaders, we'd skip it and forget it. But it happens to be the combined squawks of more than a dozen name leaders, the ma-MUSICIANS GUILTY jority of whom have reputations for IN TOO MANY CASES fair dealing with their men. OF BAD JUDGMENT

IN TOO MANY CASES

The boys are having a field day, sergeant. Taking advantage of the shortage of capable sidemen, they not only are making almost impossible salary demands, but many of them are either insolent or indifferent, neither of which qualities contributes materially to the success of an organization.

Although pay-rolls have been expanded to almost fantastic proportions, and the Heidts, the Goodmans and the Dorseys have been most generous in sharing their prosperity, this is not what gripes the rest of the leaders.

It's the cocky boys—and we don't mean the young new comers, but the lads with a 4-F or some similar reason for feeling important—who miss rehearsals, show up late, don't feel like playing after they get there, woof about everything who miss rehearsals, show up late, don't from taxes to train time, and dare the leader to make something out of it. FROM THE LEADERS! The war will end eventually, of course. And it will not bring about too drastic a change in the line-up of the first ten, or twenty Almost any evening you will find them around the radio when Harry James starts to blow that hot trumpet. Or Benny Goodman swings it on his clarinet. Or Jimmy Dorsey runs his fingers up and down the sax keys. That's why they're called the "Swing Shift" down at the canteen.

The boys around the radio are in uniform now.
They've a job to do. There's a war to be fought.
They know, just as well as we do, that there's a great day coming when the war is won.

Selmer...the preferred instrument of James and Goodman and Dorsey, and other highest paid artists...has also gone to war. But when the war is over, and the boys come home, new Selmers will be available again.

MUSICAL RESEARCH

Pics May Revive Band Career for Leighton Noble

Hollywood — Leighton Noble, former band leader, who abandoned the baton for a movie contract at Universal, is being billed in his pictures as "Leighton Noble and his Orchestra" and is being cast in bandleader roles. Noble has no permanent band although he plays one-nighters hereabouts with pick-up groups composed of radio and studio musicians, as do many other leaders who find this more practical and more profitable than trying to keep "organized" bands together.

Significant angle in Noble's case is that studio is building him up as a bandleader through his picture connection. Noble figures that after the war he'll be in a good position to resume his baton career again.

This is a man who can sing—without elaborate backgrounds, trick lighting or affectations of any kind. Possessing a full, rich, natural voice, Jerry is completely at ease on the floor. He smiles in front of the mike, sans pogosticking and goes into four tunes in easy medley style. Selections included Sunday, Monday or Always. My Silens Love. Time on My Hands and These Foolish Things. Proving adeptness with rhythm tunes as well as ballads, he encored Devil and the Deep Blue Sea.

Ballad: Here is an unusually swell melody. Strictly musical comedy. A six bar introduction, brass-hatted for four bars and open on last two, leads into the first chorus which is played broadly and with plenty of expression. Chorus is split up between brass and saxes with an eight bar interlude leading into a special chorus. On the last two and a half bars of interlude, saxes switch to clarinets, except for second tenor. Mason uses an effective bit in this special chorus. In the first eight bars, the brass play melody in cup mutes against three clarinets and second tenor in a low, flowing background. On the second eight, woodwinds take it away with clarinet lead, back to a repeat of first eight bars, except for clarinets changing to saxes on the last eight. Up to this point everything is very smooth and expressive. Then for a boot, the last eighteen bars really kicks. Should be played at a medium tempo. tempo.

straighten out his civilian affairs, his estranged wife, claims the musician in a suit on file here, made off with his guitar, his car, his gas ration book, other personal property, and even his army uniform.

The gal in the case, Florence Abbott Henry, didn't take the suit lying down. She got herself at attorney and filed a counter suit against Chuck for $10,000 claiming he had blacked her eyes (both of them), during the scrap that followed their final split-up, and had even had her falsely arrested on a charge of bigamy. New York—One of the big musical surprises of the year was the announcement recently by Earl Hines that he is adding eight girl instrumentalists to his band, as well as a quartet of girl singers to be called the Blue Bonnets Bonnets.

Hines, the first of the colored bandleaders to go on a production band basis, says that he has long felt that it was time for his kind of band to expand, both physically and in terms of new kinds of bookings. Hitherto limited to playing the Apollo Theater here and similar show dates and one-nighters on the road, Hines feels that his new band will make him eligible for jobs of a much higher standard, that is, Broadway theaters, smart hotels, and eventually radio.

The eight new side-girls include 3 violins, a cello, harp, electric guitar, bass, and a planist who will also double vocals. Not only will the new members be used in the regular band book but they'll do special numbers as well, featuring hot violin and solo harp work.

The band will make its debut on September 17 at the Apollo theater here, after giving a prevue show for the press at rehearsal studio two days earlier. Bonnets.
Hines, the first of the colored ly, that she had not yet received her final decree freeing her from her first mate.

Sergeant Henry's attorney said that the musician had requested to be transferred to some "nice peaceful battle front in the Solomons."

Girl Member of Quartet Wants to Stay With Hubby

Los Angeles—Mary Lou Cook, the Merry Mac's Girl Blender No. 4, plans to leave the combo sometime this month, if a satisfactory replacement can be secured. No reason for the pull-out by Mary Lou except that the Macs are scheduled to launch a lengthy tour of eastern cities September 24, and she prefers to remain here with her husband. Search for a singer who might be able to pick up the Macs' highly individual vocal style and have the proper tone color to blend with the boys was complicated by serious illness of Harry Norwood, their manager, in critical condition at Hollywood Hospital at this writing. Here's an interesting letter from R. R. McIntyre from way down in Daytona Beach, Fla. Mac would like to know if putting lights in the bass drum would burn up the heads as he says in the place he is working, some nights it rains and he has a lot of trouble with the drumheads and has to tighten them, and wonders if they are left in that condition will they tighten up and burst on him? conditions, it isn't the humidity. it's the heat. About putting but-termilk on the heads, I think it would be a better idea to drink the buttermilk.

do during this hour. Besides all this, Bobby says his father has a strong dislike for swing music and especially drums.

Well, it looks as though Bobby is definitely cut out for a family man. That is, providing he keeps to the schedule set by his family. Perhaps your father is right in his dislike for swing music and drumming as the so-called swing music one hears these days as played by most bands is very hard on the nerves. The same goes for drummers, as good drummers are a hard thing to find.

Here's an interesting letter folds to drink the buttermilk. Glenn Keigley of Mount Versum on Ohio, really comes on with a letter, and plenty of questions. Here are a few of them. How do ou go about memorizing music? Is it important to be able to play single, double and triple paradiddles at a very fast tempo, go-etc., or are paradiddles confined to the snare drum? Furthermore, Glenn says he has studied and gone through seven drum instruction books and also takes some special lessons that cost him one dollar and a quarter a shot! First of all, after going down in Daytons Beach, Fla. Mac would like to know if putting lights in the bass drum he mentioned, he should be qualified to write one of his own, and at the price of a buck and a quarter a shot, it should be bonded with soda. As to the importance of playing floor shows, it is a good thing to be able to do, and this is also a good time to argue with the leader. After the average band goes over a new arrangement and the brass and saxes nave their parts at a playable stage, the drummer usually has his part all wrapped up and ready to go with a different band. Paradiddles are really at their best on the Paramount stage or in the drum corps contest at an American Legion contest at an American Legion convention rention.

Freddie Powell, Washington, D. C., asks two questions. What size cymbals should he use on the top and bottom of his high hats if he played in a ten-piece orchestra? Does using a practice pad help in learning the rudiments? The size of a band doesn't mean a thing as far as your high hats are concerned but a good thirteen inch pair with the bottom one just a little heavier than the top would just about get it. Using a pad does help a great deal when practicing the rudiments.

Bill Kay of Chicago, writes that he rudiments.

Bill Kay of Chicago, writes that although he is only seventeen years old, he has had plenty of experience and has played with all kinds of bands. Bill's problem is how to go about getting in a top-notch band. Be patient, Bill, and wait 'till the draft board gets through and you will probably have your choice of joining any band in the land. (Especially at your age). Should you get two top-notch bands wanting you at once, take your pick and wire me the other one. I am hungry. (No panics—I am in one now). Apologies to Billboard. hungry. as it did with this so-called report on Sinatra's singing with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra a month ago.

Understand me, I am frankly amazed at the Sinatra boom, and the wave of feminine yapping that has gone with it. The average male has always admired a shapely feminine bosom; and if it sings well in addition, wonderful, wonderful, wonderful, But none of the reigning beauties of the moment has ever undergone the rather trying fan club acts that Sinatra has.

Call Him 'The Mooer'

Call Him 'The Mooer'

I am by no means a fan of Sinatra's—but there are unquestionably times, with all his microphone mannerisms, that he sings his brand of ballad very palatably—and gets a great deal of what we quainly call "moo" for doing it. As a matter of fact, if Bing is The Groaner, then we certainly should call Franklin The Mooer. The other appellations such as "Loverboy", I look upon as the coinings of jealous minds.

For all his tendency to sing at a uniform tempo and to make every song the same, Sinatra is a few gridirons sheed of some of our more recent singing idols. Listen to my of the Dick Powell records, or that atrocious relic, As Time Goes By, non-fleetingly sung by Rudy Vallee, circa 1931, re-isaued without so much as an apology by RCA Victor a few months hack.

Sinatra at least sings on key, very often shows good taste in phrasing, and manages a certain color of tone which can be extremely effective. I never got that musically speaking, he is head and shoulders above a lot of his predecessors—excluding that well-known horse racer and irummer, H. Crosby.

Now, as to this light five that Life was flinging around. First they reported that Pons drew 12,000 palm-lappers, while the "Sinatrafic" (who says Variety uses all the bad coinage!) was only 5,000. Life of course neglected to report that the weather uses burn, that it was the day after the Harlem riots (which provoked unesalness at traveling at night), and that Sinatra has previously given enough concerts around New York to kill say-body's drew for a little while, no matter how "hot" he may be.

The weekly pic pamphlet went on to say that the "idol of the jump-for-joy juveniles was plenty upstage and obnoxious at rehearsal... A trehearsal with New York Philharmonic, Sinatra (sing) facing the orchestra, leading them like a three piece band."

Mugging Is Genuine

To this delightful bouquet was appended a cut showing Sinatra leaning back, with his eyes shut, his arms spread, and his pan in that beatific state of bliss that used to kill the TDorsey ringside used to kill the TDorsey ringside fans.

I see nothing obnexions about Sinatra's mugging and posturing. He has made a hunk of dough doing it—plus the fact that these are genuine mannerisms during his singing. Have you ever seen a Wagnerian soprano waggle her cheet as she gets set for a high one? Have you ever seen pictures of any good musician eagreesed in his playing—either looks half esleep or as though he were out to seare Karloff.

As for his "leading the band", Sinatra knows too much about classical music and the theory of the concerto, to try anything as stupid as that. What Life evidently mistook for leading, was merely the gestures that any danceband singer trains himself to make at a mike to add something to the scene besides twitching to the scene besides twitching tonsils.

Frank's Never 'Upstage

thing to the scene besides twitching tonsils.

Fink's Neve 'Uptage'

Sinatra may have been "upstage"—I wasn't at the rehearsal of which the mag speaks. But if he was, it was contrary to every thing I've known him to do in the past. Sinatra may have gone "big hat" in the last few weeks, but up until that time he was a very decent guy for my dough, maybe a little shirty at times, but if he doesn't have a right to spray a little ego around now and then, who does? He's young, healthy, happy, and on top—but certainly not "upstage"—or anything approaching it.

Life quotes Sinatra as asying to Max Steiner, the conductor—"More tempo. I could beat out tempo, why can't you." First of all, I question the eccuracy of Life's quotas—also its grammar. Secondly, I suspect Sinatra may have something there. Steiner is one of Hollywood's leading virtuose composer-arranger-conductors, contracting most of his output I believe, to that well-known art emporium, Warner Brothers. He recently had a "symphonic recorded by Werner Jenssen and the Los Angeles Symphony. Me, I'll take Sinatra. Of all the overscored, bloated hunks of symphonic balderdash that have been recorded, this was really outstanding for its lack of simplicity, its incessant pounding on one rather bad theme, and its muddled scoring. Since Conductor Steiner is very successful in the movies, let's say he is good—but when it comes to conducting a ballad, I'd almost say that Sinatra would do a better job than he would. These great big Hollywood musicians are too often tangled up in their English horn sections for my dough.

Orchetta Doesn't Know

Life also quotes Sinatra as say-

Orchestra Doesn't Kno

Life also quotes Sinatra as saying, "More Slowly," and one of the musicians replying, "Who the hell does he think he is."

That's an easy one—he's Frank Sinatra, he's a pop singer, he's singing pop songs with an orchestra that doesn't know how to play them—so much so that it made hash out of the ballad sections of Jerome Kern's Mark Twain Portrait.

Film singers headed by Tudor Williams and Johnny Clark told their troubles to the Screen Actor's Guild with result that 350 of their comrades-in-wee were admitted to the "A" Guild. . Perry Como and Dick Haymes will play singers in rival bands in a forthcoming Zanuckepic.

Small station disk-twirler caught announcing "next selection by Victor Salon and his orchestra."

poo—Steiner used to movie ecoring, at his dancetime best behind lush singing dames? The orchestra, composed of Vienness tootlers, French fiddlers, and plain ordinary longheirs—who wouldn't knew a good dance beat if they heard it? Or Sinatra, who's made his living for some years singing pop ballade and setting the tempos at which they sound best for him?

Life owes Sinatra an apology—and indirectly, the music business. The process of labeling all adherents of any phase of the dance business as "cretins", budding criminals, or what have you, is becoming almost as tiring to us as Sinatra is to Life.

Editorials With Punch

Whether it's a fighting editorial on the draft status of musicians (Sept. 1 issue) or one on the bungling job Hollywood has done in presenting musicians and bands in films (Aug. 1 issue), DOWN BEAT always leads with a terrific left!

Take the one on Gene Krupa's case in the Aug. 15 issue. The editorial didn't argue that an injustice had been done Gene, although it was admitted the price was probably high-but the gist of it was that the "penalty should not be extended and be permitted to operate against him when he resumes his work."

The whole tenor of BEAT editorial policy is expressed in the same Krupa editorial in this way: "We are a part of the music business, too, and anything which burts the profession reflects on us. We are trying to be constructive, not destructive."

Jimmie Gets With It Again

Tuskegee, Ala.—Jimmie Lunceford, who holds a pilot's license himself, and flew his own plane until a crack-up a couple of years ago, visited the army air field here recently and showed keen interest in the activity at the base. Here Cpl. Irvin E. Hackett is giving James a few pointers about the Link trainer. Army Air Corps Photo
