Dorsey's side of the story is that he notified officials that he wouldn't be able to make the show on the 19th but would gladly work the week before or the week after.

TD's reason for begging off the date is that he had a chance to take two days off and get up to his farm and he believed the rest would do him more good than the $60 he figured to net from the broadcast.

In rebuttal, Jim Andrews of the Lennen & Mitchell agency, handling the show, declared "The only excuse for walking out on a signed contract would be actual, serious illness. As I understand it, Mr. Dorsey was just tired." He deplored the lack of showmust-go-on spirit. Despite the alleged breach of contract, no litigation was planned, he said.

So there's name-calling, on the square. It's a switch from the usual Basin Street live where insults fly freely and everybody loves it. Here are some of the cracks that have been taken with

New York.—Time is making changes in the Casa Loma orchestra; the great names of another day are fast disappearing. Latest key sidemen set to leave the band are clarinetist Clarence Hutchenrider and Tony Briglia. Hutchenrider has been told by his doctor that he needs a good rest, while Briglia faces immediate army induction.

Another change has taken place in Glen Gray's band. Bob Anthony took over Tommy Morgan's vocals during the stay at the Strand here.

He is scheduled for the College Inn of the Sherman in Chicago on March 24.

Flu Germ Hits Music World

New York—Influenza was running rampant as the Beat went to press with many music world figures among those felled by the germ. Shep Fields had to call for a second opening night at the Park Central, where his band is featured. Set to have a typical gala opening, Fields instead was sent to bed because of a high fever and his band debuted without him.

Karole Singer and Anita Boyer were just two of the many singers bedded by the flu, while countless side-men were missing from bandstands all over town.

Karl George Joins Kenton

Los Angeles—Karl George, top flight Negro trumpet player formerly with Lionel Hampton, has joined Stan Kenton's band, currently appearing on the Bob Hope program and doing one-nighters and camp shows.

George turned down choice offers from two big-time Negro bandleaders, Cab Calloway and Count Basie, in favor of the Kenton offer. He is the first Negro to regularly play a commercial radio show with a white band on the west coast.

Tommy Dorsey Sweet Winner, Benny Goodman.....leader Krupa on Tubs

Jo Stafford Cops Vocalist Title and Eldridge Scores

Benny rides again—as King of Swing! Nearly doubling his last year's total, when he last year's total, when he bowed to the incomparable Duke Ellington in the swing band division of Down Beat's annual band poll, Benny Goodman came through for the fifth time in seven years to cop the title.

Although Ellington piled up 232 more tailies than the total which made him a winner in 1942 (balloting increased at least 50 percent this year), his score of 3,685 fell far short of BG's 5,992 landslide.

TD Sweet Again

Tommy Dorsey again led the sweet band group with 5,670 votes, also a marked increase over his winning 3,708 last year. Charlie Spivak moved up from third to second place in this division, nosing out Glenn Miller by a comfortable margin.

by a comfortable margin.

Roy Eldridge, disqualified as a candidate for a trumpet chair in the all-star band because he became a leader, ran away with the small combo selection, scoring 3,156 against the 1,867 of his nearest rival, John Kirby. Votes here were restricted this year to bona fide small units, not affiliated with larger groups.

Jo Stafford Queen

His cross country theater tour seems to have cinched the King of Corn title for Spike Jones, a second time winner. He won over Lombardo by less than 100 votes (Modulate to Page 13)

McIntyre Gets His 4-F Rating

New York — Bandleader Hal McIntyre will be able to go ahead with his projected theater and one-nighter tour. Flying up from an engagement at the Flagler Gardens in Florids, the altoist-leader recently made a fast trip to his draft board here and was given a 4-F rating.

Don't Let's Be Nasty to Nips, Pleads Beat's Noel

New York—Down Beat's special exclusive lyricist. Noel Courageous, has just completed a song for the season of Peace on Earth. It's entitled Don't Let's Be Nasty to the Nippos. This Yuletide carol, done in the spirit of productly was written as a sequel to Noel Coward's British hit, Don't Let's Be Beastly to the Germans.

Mr. Courageous, in an exclusive interview declared, "I don't see why the Japs should be slighted. After all, they are full Aryan partners of the Nazis. They deserve something. And if I know the boys in the U. S. Army, Navy and Marines, they're going to get work and Clitche Britishers raised and Marines, they're going to get work.

Some of the Britishers raised work and continued the Bund again and Alb them so their art war may be some of the Britishers raised. Mr. Courageous, in an exclusive interview, declared, "I don't see why the Japs should be slighted. After all, they are full Aryan partners of the Nazis. They deserve something. And if I know the boys in the U. S. Army, Navy and Marines, they're going to get what they deserve."

Verse of Noel's new song, published for the first time, follows: Den't let's be maty to the Nippes Let's be polite to every Jap. Let us call them little brothers and let's send the iron and steel; Let us give them food and clothing which we'll all ollect with saal; We must treat them nice and never call them little!

And just smile when they may call US lincle Sap!

Carnegie Hall, the first of its kind, despite previous invasions by Basie, Goodman, Ellington and what have you.

Last January the critics said: Variety: "fulsome" ... Post: "repetitious" ... Tribune: "formless and meaningless" ... Telegram: "too long" ... PM: "falls to pieces."

Most of these cracks were of course made at the expense of Black, Brown and Beige, Ellington's at-that-time-new 45 minute tone parallel to the history of the Negro race. Down Beat felt differently—that the whole concert was a whopping success and that BBB was a tremendous step forward in jazz, Ellingtonia, and American music in general. This December 11, Edward Kennedy's 16 musicants gave another concert in the same hall, this time lasting two hours inother concert in the same hall, this time lasting two hours in-stead of three and with half the concert repeated from January. Said the critics: Telegram:

something completely different in the musical firmament, not because he and his band often play marvelous jazz, but because the musical potentiality represented in the band haw always been one of the great formal hopes of American music of all kinds.

Therefore when Ellington gives a concert wherein nothing happens, it's time for me to figure out whether we're not digging the Duke, or whether something actually is wrong with the 21st Century band.

There isn't much doubt that the band just isn't the same—or as good. The reeds, with Carney, Hodges, Hardwicke, Jimmy Hamilton, and Skippy Williams just didn't with a few exceptions, have that broad tone and beautiful blend. Carney as usual played his heart out every minute of the way, carrying the section in many moments when Hodges didn't feel up to it. For sheer musicianship, solo ability, and capacity for hard work he has few equals in the business.

The trumpets, this time five instead of four (Wallace Jones, Rex Stewart, Harold Baker, Ray Nance, and Taft Jordan), hit with vicious power in many instances, yet had too many ragged spots and occasional clinkers. Despite this, they were the only collective section of the band that had any real sparkle during the entire evening.

The trams had a tough deal in that Juan Tizol, the valvist lead tive section of the band that had any real sparkle during the entire evening.

The trams had a tough deal in that Juan Tizol, the valvist lead man, had pleurisy, played despite it, but obviously had to take it easy, with his solo Pyramid cancelled. Larry Brown played well as always, while Joe Nanton outdid himself, playing far more fluently than last year, and with superb attack and intonation.

Rhythm section was just okeh. Freddy Guy sounded to advantage, his guitar giving especially firm basis to Caravan. Sonny Greer played much more quietly and in better taste than last year.

As for Duke's new work New World A-Comin', a musical statement of the optimism found in the last section of Roi Ottley's best seller book of the same title. I didn't like it.

Last year, a lot of informed people fold me at great length.

Last year, a lot of informed people told me at great length how Black, Brown and Beige had no form, that it was tedious and no form, that it was tedious and meaningless. After almost a year of listening to it on and off, I think now more than ever that they were dead wrong—that Duke was on the way here to something important—to really using Jazz and what it means for a better deal in American music.

I disliked New World A-Comin', not as music, because it was very attractive, but because it didn't go any further along this road, instead even backed down it a caricatured as a great, bouncing, happy frog.

That was Fats Waller, born Thomas Waller some thirty-nine years ago in Harlem, born to the family of a Baptist preacher, born practically with both hands at the stops and both feet on the pedals of a mighty organ. His death, on board a train in the Union Station in Kansas City in the middle of December, rudely and prematurely robbed jazz of one of its finer talents, one of its most colorful personalities.

Fats was a favorite in this country and a sensation abroad, where he ranked in popularity with Armstrong and Ellington. He did all right for himself wherever he was. If you don't think so, you might be interested to know that in 1941 he paid taxes on a reputed income of $72,000!

Not Strict Jassen

There was a time, I confess, when I thought that Waller's musical stature had been grossly overestimated. As a jazzman merely, such may indeed have been the case. There were better hot pianists around though not many, who were favored with far less acclaim.

Come to think of it, who that obviously and consistently surpassed him can you name in addition to Hines? Surely not his predecessor Johnson. his contemporary Smith, or his suc-

seemed apparent, and in some instances, notably section technique, things were considerably worse. The concert had some wonderful music by ordinary standards — but Ellington has been and can be far too good to be judged by those standards. Maybe this was just one of these nights when both the band and the audience were fighting the flu and neither could get with the other. I wish I were sure this was the case—because Ellington and a rut, no matter how plushlined and emerald-studded a rut, are two terms that I never want to see mentioned in I never want to see mentioned in the same sentence. CLUB Silhouette cessor Tatum! Certainly, the Father was always more than a match for Fats. But were any of Earl's pupils, Wilson or William or Kyle? I doubt it.

If I happen to have preferrabeth Sullivan and Stacy, it was not that I appreciated the more than Fats at his best. The was the big trouble with Waller the jazzman, he rarely chose to play as well as he could, as he as we all knew he could.

pounds of fun have gone out withe world.

Excellent Composer
As a composer, Fats rated right alongside the best. Remember Keepin' Out of Mischief Now, Honeysuckle Rose, Blue Turning Grey Over You, Ain't Mischesin'? Sure, and those were only a few. If Early To Bed is a Broadway success, to Waller's muse must go much of the credit. He was even better as a tunesmit than as a soloist, and that is aying quite a lot!

In spite of the trend shown in the last decade toward larger and louder orchestras, Waller rared deserted the small combo for which he had so abiding an affection. At one time or another, his band featured such well-known artists as trumpeter Coleman, reedman Sedric, guitari Casey, and tubman Jones. Recording with similar units, Fat always remained among the leading disc attractions. Why will ever forget his platters of Minor Drag, Original E Flat Blues, Harlem Fuss, or Bust Jumpin'?

I know of no greater tribut to Waller was a sincere and usselfish man, and gave of himse without limit to entertain other happy. I was touched when he visited my home, for he came simply because he wanted to see and talk to me. To me Waller was more human, less methalical, than most jazz musiclas. The music he made came from a full heart, and that made him rare and endearing personality.

> Here is an opportunity to get a head start on the purchase of a new after-the-war Martin and actually save $25. It's one way of showing our appreciation for loyal and devoted service to our country, and the fact that in this service our Martin Band Instruments have had a part.

Simply send us your name, home and service address, serial number of the instrument you're playing whether it's your own or one issued to you, and tell us where to mail the Bond. Then when we can again return to civilian production, you can use this $25 Purchase Bond as part payment on a new Martin. If possible, also, send us your picture and tell us what you can of your activities. We're planning to publish a Wartime Martin Bandwagon with news, pictures, and interesting facts about musicians . . . and you no doubt have many friends and admirers who will be glad to hear about you. (Reviewed at Orpheum Theater, Helen Forrest made her debut Helen Forrest made her debut as a solo act at the Orpheum theater here, accompanied by Al Lyons' house combo, augmented by a string section of four fiddles, a viola and a cello. The extra men were paid by Bill Burton, the singer's manager, out of the reported $3,000 per week the Orpheum put up for the deal. Also out of the 3,000 berries comes stipend for arranger Hal Mooney.

Mooney.
This reviewer caught Helen's Mooney.

This reviewer caught Helen's first show. She wore a light blue evening dress that went well with her new, reddish blond hair tint. She's always been regarded as the singer who got there strictly on the merits of her voice, but the new Helen has glamor, sophistication and sex appeal to spare. The whistles that greeted her were spontaneous.

she was a spate. The white that greeted her were spontaneous.

She opened with Thank Your Lucky Stars, a rhythm number, and followed with a torchy treatment of Besame Mucho that went home with a punch notwithstanding the Orpheum's usual baby bawling in the balcony. She jumped from there into a medley of her familiar hit songs—Craziest Dream, I've Heard That Song Before, I Don't Want to Walk without You, each one of which was greeted by warm applause. Then came the tearjerker Good for Nothin' Joe, which was a little too long and drippy for this reporter. She closed with How Sweet You Are, came back with an encore on I Heard You Cried Last Night.

There was no doubt that audience wanted more. She made a little speech, explaining simply that she just didn't have any more arrangements ready for the occasion.

Helen unquestionably had her Helen unquestionably had her audience in her grasp from the time she walked on the stage. She showed stage presence, personality and complete mastery of her idiom at all times. She won't go down in the jazz books with Mildred Bailey and Billie Holiday, but as an artist she outranks such contemporaries as Dinah Shore and Frances Langford, and by far.

O'Driscoll Sang, But Tilton's Voice Heard In 'Crazy House'

By Charles Emge

Hollywood — Your Hollywood errespondent is able to sleep peacefully again, having finally solved a musical mystery that has been causing him much un-

The mystery: who did that there singing that seemed to come from luscious Martha O'Driscoll in the Universal picture, Crazy House?

Pretty good singing, wasn't it?

That Was Martha!

Well, it was none other than our old friend Martha Tilton, who used to sing with Benny Goodman, is now quite busy with follywood radio shows, and who recently turned down an offer from Harry James.

We realize that we bring this news to readers somewhat behately. However, we hope we shall be forgiven in view of the fact that this was a tough case to crack.

Siegel Coached Her

Siegel Coached Her

The part that made it tough was that Martha O'Driscoll did, in fact, record every song she ang in Crazy House. She was soached for the vocal chores by il Siegel, who bragged about the fine job he had done in developing Martha O'Driscoll's unsuspected musical talent. During the making of the picture the fact was established beyond any doubt that the charming young areen actress was doing her own chirping.

But when the picture was given its "sneak preview" (the preliminary, experimental showing given all important pictures, and to which the press is definitely not invited) Martha O'Driscoll's songs went over not with a hing but with something like a dul thud.

Change Made Later

Change Made Later

Change Made Later
Maybe you've guessed the answer. The picture was pulled lack for "alterations." The sound-tracks containing O'Driscoll's voice were scrapped and Marina Tilton was called in to "dub" her voice into the O'Driscoll picture track. This is one of the trickiest processes in motion picture scoring as it is just the reverse of the usual method. The singer must make her song it the picture, a much more difficult job than the actress had a synchronizing her actions to a previously recorded sound lack.

We take great pleasure in givag Martha Tilton credit for her well singing job in Crazy House and great satisfaction from the st that she is getting that undit here, for she would have siten it nowhere else.

Things are looking up! This month, as usual, there are several items of dubious interest and no intrinsic value. Predominant among the latter are offerings by such assorted vocalists as Hildegarde, Kay Armen, Kate Smith, and Gene Autry. Records featuring their talents have little to recom-mend them, except to the countless fans of those particular artists.

During the last month, on the other hand, have been released other hand, have been released more outstanding discs than during any similar period since boss Petrillo first pronounced the boss Petrillo first pronounced the ban which he has only recently lifted. obviously a standout in his own field, an authority in this unusual genre.

Herein is represented a step even further back than that identified with the Jim Crow Blues of Joshua White. There is some semblance of order in Josh's work, here there is none. Lead Belly rambles on at will, concerned only with his simple themes and not with the elements of their expression. All is spontaneity and impromptu, and therein lies the charm.

Whether he is accompanying himself with his rhythmic rustic guitar or with an occasional but timely clap of his hands, Lead Belly keeps rolling along. The words tumble out, profuse and even profane. Effects are achieved by a constant increasing of tempo and a consequent heightening of intensity. These songs are basic in design, fundamental in execution.

Fat Meat Is Good Meat Bescon 104

Here is more dixieland, with a sepla thrush thrown in for a couple of good measures. This constitutes, to be categorical and alightly facetious, New York dixieland. If you remove Nichols and Mole, Berton and Schutt, Napoleon and Napoleon, Dorsey and Dorsey from the eastern school of southern jazz, what do you get? Russ Case on trumpet, will Bradley on trombone, Jimmy Lytell on clarinet, Frank Signorelli on plano, Carmen Mastren on guitar, Haig Stephens on bass, Chauncey Morehouse on drums, and that is exactly what you have here!

You must not expect the consuming fire of genuine New Orleanians or the relentiess drive of real Chicagoans, but you can be sure of unexcelled precision and sufficient spirit to insure exciting mass improvisation. These men are not distinctly original, but they are certainly stimulating. Although their inspiration is never great, their technique is consistently masterful, their conception ever effective, their invention always adequate.

He's Commander-in-Chief of My Heart is not what I should call very worthy material. Fat Meat Is Good Meat, the latest opus to come from the pen of Irene Higginbotham, is much better. Both sides are sung by Savannah Churchill in a manner that causes me to grow more and more eager to hear the sides.

ner that causes me to grow more and more eager to hear the sides she has just made in her own element, namely with the sensa-tional backing of Benny Carter and his great orchestra.

Solo Plight
World le Weiting for Sunried Columbia 36684

Columbia 36684

Finest record of the month, this is the best in many. The first side, waxed some time ago, is in the nature of a concerto for electric guitar with incidental but essential orchestral background. Solo Flight, familiar to most followers of current compositions for strings, enables the late Charlie Christian to play some of the greatest guitar he ever put on record for posterity. Listening to Charlie here, I realize once again and more than ever just how wonderful was his work. His style was one of surpassing brilliance, his technique all that it had to be in order to sustain the intricacles of his fertile imagination. This post-humous release is a fitting tribute to a musical genius!

The reverse, by the Goodman Quartet, is a perfect mate to Solo Flight. The title, World Is Waiting for the Sunrise, must be numbered among the most popular in all of jazz. It has been recorded many times before, always excellently. Generally, it has served as a marvelous mediant. um for showcasing proficient at the keyboard. On it have be at the keyboard. On it have be featured. among others, Jes Stacy and Billy Kyle and Jo Sullivan and James P. Johns and Floyd Bean. Mel Powelly version on Commodore is, per-haps, the most famous of all. This present rendition, the fir small-unit platter by Goodmain over a year, is its equal to every way!

Time on My Hands For the Good of Your Con Columbia 36685

Columbia 36685

I had hoped that Basie's first record after the removal of the ban would be a major one. This one is not. Time on My Hand, a trusty evergreen, has a fair vocal by Earl Warren and little else, For the Good of Your Constry is not the type of thing Jimmy Rushing should sing, or for that matter the type of thin Basie should play. Both the ban and the singer make the best of it, and still the net result is far from good.

It Must Be Jelly, a catchy nonelty, has every chance of being a big success. Nothing, I imaine, will top this version. Raibow Rhapsody is characterisof the Miller crew, smooth ausoft and dreamy. Here is a reord that must be danced to, it is to be enjoyed. If you do not Guaranteed to amuse, this disc can take its place alongside the rest of Jordan's better records. Batton Blues, one of Louis' originals, is both timely and satisfying. Latest word on hot platters is that Commodore will soon bring out some waxings of the Esquire All-Star band which advance word describes as sensational. Commodore has also cut eight sides with Wild Bill Davidson as leader and four others fronted by George Brunis. One of the Brunis waxings is the celebrated but never before recorded Ugly Child. On this tune, featured by Brunis in hot spots for many years, George sings as well as plays trombone.

Bob Thiele, producer of Signature records, is issuing four sides cut by a Coleman Hawkinsfronted band. Thiele intends to hit Chicago shortly to record several iazzmen there, one of whom will be Muggsy Spanier.

Last in the record round-up, Blue Note is bringing out two twelve-inch records featuring James P. Johnson and four sides offering a band under the leader-ship of clarinetist Edmund Hall. One side, cut by Hall and his band, will feature High Society, the famous tune which was used among New Orleans jazzmen to determine a clarinetist's ability.

Decca Active But Cramped By Shortage

New York—Decca continues to make hay while the sun shines or, more aptly, to press records while Victor and Columbia glower at the AFM. The only major disc firm to sign with the AFM (excepting Capitol, which is climbing fast in importance) Decca can't keep up with the demand of its bands and soloists under contract to cut record slides. Because of the extreme lack of record technicians as well as the shortage of materials that go into records, all active disc firms are forced to limit the number of new releases.

However, no sooner were Dec-

That New World Will Be A-Comin

We sat in a concert hall the other evening and heard the incomparable Duke Ellington and his famous orchestra play his newest serious composition. It is called New World A-Comin' and was inspired by a best-selling book, bearing the same title and written by a former Harlem columnist, Roi Ottley.

Ellington explained to his audience that he was not attempting to follow the story of the book in his music.

He described his work as a musical vision of the future world, and if that world even remotely reflects the beauty of this composition, we hope we're on hand.

Duke also presented excerpts from Black, Brown and Beige, his more extensive work which was given its premiere in his first Carnegie Hall concert a year ago.

This so-called "Tone Parallel" purports to trace the history of the Negro race from its earliest period, so obviously the influence of Ottley's book on Ellington was to cause him to shift his imagination from yesterday and today to tomorrow.

With the dawn of this new year of 1944 that's just what all of us should do. We cannot live in the past, so without neglecting the strict obligations of the unpleasant present, we should concentrate on the future, finding comfort in whatever promise it may hold.

Physically that new world will look pretty much like the one we've been struggling in right along. The improvements, if any, will be ones of spirit.

Frankly, we do not hope for any immediate and eneral emancipation of the oppressed and under-privileged. Social orders change, often in revolutionary fashion, but human nature remains pretty much the

We do expect progress, however, along the lines of sanity and tolerance.

There will be music in that new world, of course and beauty and laughter. And these are the things which will help us to bear the usual pains and suffering that will not seem so important by contrast with today's blood and sweat and tears. But it will be no Utopianot even a Shangri La.

Yes, there is a New World A-Comin' and we hope that 1944 brings more than its share of advancement toward that goal, even though we are not optimistic enough to imagine that we can discover within its span the complete harmony of Duke Ellington's composition.

Los Angeles—Who'd ever think that this youngster would grow up to cop the Best's "King of Corn" title two years in a row? Yes, it's Lindley Armstrong Jones at age 14, with the first drum he ever owned. Now he answers to Spike, won't look at a drum, prefers to play with washboards, whistles and rattles. Maybe he didn't grow up?

My wish seems to be coming true. Yes, he'll be the king of swing this year and for quite a few years to come. So you will never have to wonder if Benny's clary is on the decline because he improves with performance.

In view of the fact that High-g and Higher, in which Frank anatra plays—or rather, sings— his first featured film role, was made at the time when the 'Great Swooner' build-up was hiting its peak, RKO deserves gredit for the relatively restrain-el manner in which he is pre-amted.

The main thing for RKO is, that whatever Sinatra has, it is aptured successfully in this picture,—a picture, incidentally, that most adults will be able to at through without squirming except in a few spots, and which will more than meet the requirements of the Bobby Sock Brigade.

The score has several fresh musical moments. The most interesting is the arrangement someone contrived for It's a Lovely Way to Spend an Evening.

ground, is playing at a house party as Sinatra wanders into the garden to sing. The concart orchestra seen in the picture is playing a portion of Tachaikowaki's Sixth Symphony. The song, which does not resemble, and is in no sense a "take-off" on the Tachaikowaki theme, is interposed with the music of the symphony theme in such a way that each melody forms a counterpart to the other. It's one of the most effective pieces of scoring to come out of Hollywood, and the more interesting because Jimmy McHugh says he had no intention of writing the melody to fit the symphony theme. That it was so well adapted for the stunt was just an accident.

Mel Torme, whom many of us remember as the kid who played drums with the Ben Pollack band that accompanied Chico Marx on his theater tour last year, also makes his screen debut in Higher and Higher. Mel makes the most of a part that is not extensive and does well enough with the material given him to show definite promise as a juvenile comic.

"Girl Crasy"

"Girl Crasy"
We catch up with Girl Crazy, which did not get a release in our territory until somewhat later than usual, somewhat leter than usual, somewhat territory until somewhat it contains the smartest piece of musical faking ever put in a picture—the production number built around Mickey Rooney's "plano concerto on Fascinating Rhythm", accompanied by Tommy Dorsey's MGM studio orchestra.

Mickey did such a neat job of Tommy Dorsey's MGM studio orchestra.

Mickey did such a neat job of synchronizing his fingering to the sound track recorded by Artle Schutt that even musicians in the MGM music department were ready to believe Mickey did the actual playing.

It is only fair to Mickey to note that a job of this kind would have been impossible for anyone who did not possess a good, natural sense of rhythm and a rudimentary knowledge of the plano keyboard. Mickey has both Let's give him credit for that, anyway.

Other than Mickey Rooney's debut as a concert planist, Girl Crazy's only musical interest stems from the fact that it contains some of the finest songs George Gershwin willed to the musical wealth of the world—songs like Biding My Time, Fascinating Rhythm, Embraceable You, I Got Rhythm, But Not for Me.

We wonder just what was left

Me.
We wonder just what was left for Warner Brothers and their film biography of Gershwin, Rhapsody in Blue, now in the last stages of production.

Sonny Dunham Cuts Records

New York—While Sonny Dunham is at the New Yorker, the trombonist-trumpeter will have a chance to broaden his musical scope via a recording date. Dunham's crew has been contracted to cut some record sides for Eli Oberstein's Hit label.

the just says Louie is the King, but does ahe have any evidence? I'm sure Louie can't play (just to mention a few) Flight of the Bumble Bee, You Made Me Love You, James Session, Jump Town and all the hot pieces as well as Harry does. I don't think he can or if he can, I'd like to hear him. So, again I say Harry James is the nation's No. I trumpet player. player.

Jimmie and Benny

To the Editors:
I really think we should hear a lot more about some real musicians. While these so-called moda lot more about some real musicians. While these so-called moderns are swooning over this one and that one, let's hear a lot more about the best and the most under-rated band there is, and I mean Jimmie Lunceford. I could go on for hours over the one and only Lunceford but the swooners wouldn't even know what I meant I guess. Also let's have more about the best and most under-rated musician Benny Carter. He is certainly terrific! I hope someone agrees with me about real music and let the swooners carry on by themselves. Some of these H. James fans should dig B. Carter's record of More Than You Know. For being a terrific alto man, he certainly should have honors for the trumpet playing he does. These musicians were tops before all this swooning and drooling and they will be, too, long after.

Don Otis Goes Overto KMPC

Los Angeles—Don Otis, for over 13 years with KFAC as record commentator and announcer, was scheduled to move over to KMPC Jan. I to become production manager of the latter station. For years he has been one of the top platter chatter merchants on the west coast, is widely known not only for his good judgment in jazz music, but is also an authority on classical music. He scooped all of his competitors here a while back by introducing his friend Leopold Stokowski on one of his shows.

Unseen Singer Gets Unusual Movie Break

Hollywood—Success in a form that would mean little to aspirants to motion picture careers has come to 22-year-old Jean Forward, the California girl who has been selected from some 500 applicants to impersonate the great Nellie Melha, opera star of the Gay Nineties, in the Arnold Pressburger production is Happened To-

Most unusual is the fact that the young singer who will record the musical impersonation of Melba will be given screen credit for the performance.
Jean is an Oakland, California girl who has been singing leading roles with west coast opera companies for the last two years.

Los Angeles—All charges of draft evasion against Eddie Le-Baron, bandleader and owner of Hollywood's el swanko Trocadero Hollywood's el swanko Trocadero restaurant, were dropped following a hearing before the U. 8. commissioner nere and the musician was given until Jan. 3 to put his affairs in order before reporting for induction.

Maria Wants Repeat Date On Basie Ork

New York—Count Basie's current booking into the Hotel Lincoln here was no mistake. The receipts have inspired Mrs. Maria Kramer, owner of the spot, to dicker with the Basie management for a return engagement some time this spring.

Several new faces show in the Basie line-up at the Lincoln's Blue Room stand. Most important musically is the re-appearance of ace tenor-man Lester Young, back from a try at fronting his own small crew and gigging around. Trombonist Buster Scott was replaced by Ted Donnelly from Andy Kirk's band. Trumpeter Al Killian, out of Charlie Barnet's band, is a new addition to the brass. Snookie Young, a 1-A-er, will probably move into Benny Carter's orchestra in the event that he is given a deferment.

The exact date of the return to the Lincoln hinges on when the Basie band plays its Roxy theater booking. Set to move into the Roxy sometime in March, the Count and his boys will then go back to the Lincoln.

Stuff Smith Pianist Noted for Switching Harmonic Structure

By Sharon A. Pease

Jimmle Jones, planist with the Stuff Smith Trio, currently appearing at the Garrick Stage Bar, Chicago, has always been a string man. He started his musical career playing a four-string guitar, later shifted to six-string guitar and eventually to the mismo.

guitar, later shifted to six-string guitar and eventually to the plano.

Jimmie, who is 25, was born in Memphis, Tenn. He moved with his parents to Chicago when 2.

"I always liked music." he says. "Guess that was only natural as my father was a choir director and my mother played a little plano."

His first attempt at creating music was at 13, when he began experimenting on a four-string guitar that he had acquired. Later he traded it in on a six-string guitar and played accompaniment for a vocal trio which he formed with two neighborhood friends, Leroy Winbush and Eddie Johnson. The boys landed a job at the Swift Bridge during the second year of the Chicago World Fair. A Century of Progress (1934). This lead to a regular weekly spot on station WCFL and frequent shots on WBBM. Eddie Johnson later took up tenor sax and is well known in Chicago music circles.

Duke, Art and Teddy

Through playing the guitar, Jimmie became interested in harmony and began experimenting at the family piano. His mother gave him some help and, impressed with his progress, insisted that he go to a regular teacher. His studies were strictly standard, but Jimmie continued the development of a dance style on his own. "My greatest early influence was Duke Ellington." he recalls. "Later it was Art Tatum and Teddy Wilson."

mie Jone

Englewood High School He played with the various local bands, including those fronted by Tony Fambro and Johnny Long, for a year and a half after graduation. Then he enrolled at Kentucky State College, Frankfort, Kentucky. Though he majored in sociology, his program included studies in harmony, theory, and counterpoint. During the next three years, he played piano with the Kentucky State Collegians and scored numerous arrangements for their library. After leaving school in 1941, he jobbed around Chicago and traveled throughout the middle west before joining Stuff Smith in June 1943. He has been with that organization since, except for a month during which he worked with Red Allen.

Getting His Kicks

Getting His Kieks

Jimmle is a great admirer of Smith's work and states, "I don't ever expect to get any more kicks than I have playing with Stuff." His favorite pianists, in addition to those previously mentioned, include Robert Crum. Nat Cole, and John Young, who is doing such excellent work with Andy Kirk's orchestra.

Musicians are most impressed with Jimmle's unusual ability to alter the harmonic structure of a given theme. Through a highly developed imagination, he twists, turns, and changes the harmony are truly masterpieces. Jimmie says he first started experimenting with chord changes through listening to Duke Ellington's band. Showing a natural flair in that direction, he kept at it until reaching the present high stage of development.

'Changing the Blues'

Jimmie demonstrates on the accompanying example which he calls Changing the Blues. Opening with a typical Jones introduction (A), it moves into blues chorus (B) which he kept "reasonably straight." He gives it the works in chorus C.

Having an unusually long reach, he strikes all of the chords in unison as indicated. Those unable to do likewise will find quite a number of places where the unison effect may be attained by employing both hands. For example, the top note of the tenths in measures 2. 7 and 8 of the B chorus might be played with the right hand. Likewise, the bottom note of the first two treble chords in the ninth measure of chorus C could be taken with the left hand. Similar opportunities occur in measure 10.

Another west coast live spot is the Village Driftwood in North Hellywood, California. Ivan Gardemann and his combo are in their ninth month there and play to capacity erowds six nights a week, including many celeprities. Cardemann, who plays pinno, accordion and solvox, has Jerry Kasper, formerly with Benny Goodman, on alto sax and clariest, while Vinnie Bishop, once with Artie Shaw, is featured on drums and vocals.

The popular Pittsburgh band, fronted by vocalist Terry Window, has successfully completed agagements in the south, stopping at the Club Coronado in Anteroport, Louislana and the diver Moon in Alexandria, Louislana. On December 13, Terry and his band opened at the Club Enlywood in Kalamazoo. Michigan. June Kaye is the femme wealist and the personnel consists of Allan Shine, Ziggy Weiss, footy Gwaley, trumpets; Terry Winslow, Bob Cooper, Bill Gruver, Frank Durkey, Mickey Pastrius, saxes; Jerry Keminsky, plano; Joe Unger, drums; Jimmy Chatwell, bass.

No Love, No Nothin' Arranged by Jack Ma

Arranged by Jack Mason

Here is a tune by Harry Warner and Leo Robin from the movie The Gang's All Here, music for which is furnished by B.G. It's certainly one of the nicer tunes out lately and is given the usual good treatment by veteran arranger Jack Mason.

The brass takes up the first chorus in a sweet style after six bars of introduction, with the saxes doing a nice har mo nice har

A Journey To A Star Arranged by Jack Mason

Arranged by Jack Mason

Here is the other hit tune from the The Gang's All Here and for lovers of smooth sweet tunes this should go over big. The introduction starts as the title would imply. Glissandos down followed by cascading triplets in the saxes preparing the trumpet for the melody in the first chorus. Mason then gives the tenor sax the melody for eight bars with trumpet solo taking the bridge of the special chorus. As in No Love, No Nothin' the last chorus is four in a bar semi swing. All in all two swell arrangements by Jack Mason of two swell tunes.

The Dreamer Arranged by Jack Mason

tune is played in a medium slow tempo with a sweet lift. The first half chorus is for trumpet with straight mute to be picked up at the half by the saxes. After the first chorus there is an eight bar modulation to a change of key written in the same style. However at the last half chorus of the number, Jack swings out to a full finish. It's good.

The Harvest Moon Will Shine Again

by Jimmie Hilliard and Bill Currie

by Jimmie Hilliard and Bill Carrie Here's that moon again, dressed up in a brand new tune by Jimmie Hilliard and Bill Currie. This one can very readily lend itself to a hill billy interpretation and I imagine in most cases it probably will. The usual sixteen bars open the tune after the introduction, with a bridge of eight, to close with the former eight. It's a pleasing song, however no name is credited with the arrangement, which is very good, and should be well suited to the average library.

Speak Lew

Speak Low Arranged by Jack Mason

From the smash musical stage hit One Touch of Venus comes this legato tune by gifted Kurt Well with lyrics by equally gifted Ogden Nash. This complete orchestration is entirely in the Beguine tempo which, by the way, lends itself to this song very naturally. Speak Low like the famous Beguine is a very unusually long chorus. Fifty-six bars to be exact. The trumpet takes the melody after a four bar introduction in a cup mute. The violins pick it up in the middle of the chorus with the enchanting accompaniment still in the background. A half chorus is added in another key full and then diminuendo, bringing the song to a quiet close. This is certainly a not too difficult arrangement and is treated by Jack Mason very effectively for that kind of tune.

Arvidson, of Camas, Washington, on second Rhythm Werk

The rhythm section provides a reliable, subdued background for the brass and reed soloists. Marine Gunner Howard R. Parrett, of Columbus, Ohio, plays a "blues" plano. The drums are well handled by Sgt. Vincent. F. Lorello, Belliflower, Calif. Cpl. Edward J. Kocjan, of Aurora, Ill., fills in with a restrained hot accordion, and Cpl. Henry H. Mc-Kee, of Burbank, Calif., plucks a solid bass viol.

The Gyrenes are long on enthusiasm and well supplied with talent. They don't always have the time, but when they do they always have the inclination.

When they were caught by this correspondent, who has spent some memorable evenings on West Fifty-second street in peacetime, they showed up best in numbers like Body and Soul, Stardust, and On the Sunny Side of the Street.

Side of the Street.

Mes Sure Like It
On Dixieland items the rhythm section came through in the best South Rampart Street tradition. The brasses and reeds may not be up to the Bob Crosby level, but out here the boys sound better to the marines in dungarees than any name band ever did in a smoke-filled night club in the States.

Just before taps, Sgt. Tommy Enos played a chorus of Sweet Lorraine on his clarinet that

Jack Jenney. Poll Winner, Now in Navy

Los Angeles—Jack Jenney, slip horn solo star who recently disbanded his own combo and settled on the coast, got his ticket from Uncle Sam and has reported for duty with the navy at San Diego, Calif.

The musician has not requested any musical assignment. He said, before leaving:

"I don't expect or want to be treated any differently than the millions of other ordinary guys who have been called into service. I'll go where I'm told and do what I'm told."

Jenney has a son by a former wife. His present wife he Bonnie Lake, singer and songwriter (she authored, among other songs, Sandman, the signature song once used by the old Dorsey Brothers' band.)

would have won applause from Sidney Bechet or Mezz Mezzrow.
Of course, it's not all jamming for the Gyrenes. There's the serious business of constant training for the campaigns to come, and this takes up almost all their time and energy. In combat they serve as stretcherbearers, as most of them did in the early stages of the South Pacific war.
They got their biggest kick on New Year's Eve at an island base when they played a session for the boys—dreased only in civvie drawers, socks, and shoes.
