Below is reprinted a letter this column received recently:
"Dear Johnny:
"I've been in the army for about three years now, and frankly I've thought everything I had ever heard or read about army music was a lot of baloney.

A lot of the GI bands I heard were pretty punk, and at best they seemed kind of useless institutions to me: not really good musical units nor really well-trained errand boys.

"I gotta admit I was wrong. A short while ago, I embarked for as a member of a certain fighting unit. Though a musical myself, I was in an outfit that had nothing to do with the band, very seldom even saw it as a matter of fact.

"Probably don't have to tell you that embarkation is not one of the pleasantest things in the world. The rumble of the gangplank becomes a lot more than just a gag—that piece of wood moving slowly away represents the last material tie with everything that you have lived by for twenty, thirty, or even forty years.

"I don't mind telling you that grerything that you have lived by for twenty, thirty, or even forty years.

"I don't mind telling you that standing there waiting to go up, I was not the happiest guy in the world. Despite the fact that I understand everything that we are fighting for. and despite the fact that I wanted to go, there was still a kind of cold, clammy realization that this was the start of 'the big journey that sorts the men from the boys'.

"At this point, somebody's band started playing Miller's arrangement of American Patrol. It wasn't too well done; the reeds were weak and out of tune, but there was a terrific trombone section, and best of all, a wonderful beat that really swung.

"It's hard to explain the complete transition of feeling it caused in me. Even though, as a musician, I'm used to hearing bands of every description, even that rare thing, a band that swings well, it had a tremendous influence on me.

"Somehous the morning seemed less cold, the world a little easier to face, and most of all that gamplank less lonesome to face. The fact that some umpteens of men were reacting the same way you were, swing-umpleens of men were reactby the same way you were, swing-ing their arms, and yelling and whistling to the beat, made you feel a more organic part of them than you ever had before. "I've heard all the brass hats

Philadelphia—Jascha Brodsky, fiddler with Clarence Fuhrman's ork at KYW, is limping around with two broken toes on his right foot, as a result of "A-Dream A-Walking." It so happens that Brodsky retired after a particularly strenuous day and dreamed that he was teaching a class in violin. He thought he detected one of his pupile "off key." As a warning, Brodsky elected to nudge the pupil-with his foot. Brodsky woke up in the act of kicking the wall of his room and it was his two toes that were "off key" instead of the pupil's violin.

Los Angeles—Shorty Sherock's new band opened at San Diego's Mission Beach ballroom weekend of March 24. moved into the San Diego Trianon for four week-end dates. Latter part of April band moves into the Trianon here, following Jan Garber. Sherock is using only four members from the Heidt band. Heidt disbanded at the close of his recent engagement at the Trianon, stating he was dissatisfied with his MCA contract and that he would play no more engagements as a bandleader until it was adjusted or abrogated. Line-up of the new band at opening was: trumpets—Roy Davis, Bob Jensen, Ralph Fantaggelo; trombones—Wally Wells, Ernie Kolstad, Charlie Fite, George Plumstead: saxs—Tony Johnson, Jack Baker, Allen Eager, G. Maxwell, Johnny Klym; rhythm—Don Beansley, plano, Art Yows, drums. Gus Van Camp. bass. Vocals are handled by Gene Walsh and Dorothy Rae.
Engagement of Sherock band into the La Trianon, supposedly owned by Heidt and previously tied up by MCA, marks entry of General Amusement Corp, to the account.

Dick Haymes and Wife Call Off Separation

Los Angeles — Singer Dick Haymes and his wife, known professionally as Joan Marshall when she was a dancer, readied divorce proceedings here last month and then called it all off, issuing a joint statement to the effect that they had resolved "never again to let professional success interfere with domestic happiness". During their brief separation Mrs. Haymes had announced that she wished to have a "career of her own".

They were married in 1941, have two children, a boy almost 3 and girl, 11 months.

Bunk's Horn Knocks Out Cats At Ryan's

By RALPH J. GLEASON

New York-There's no doubt about it, Bunk Johnson plays terrific trumpet. He plays with power and tone and feeling and with perfect taste. If you doubt it, ask the guys who were and with perfect taste. If you doubt it, ask the guys who were at Jimmy Ryan's Sunday afternoon jam session, March 10. The biggest thrill I have ever gotten out of jazz, Bunk gave me that afternoon when he stood up on the bandstand, greyhaired, hands gnarled and calloused from rice field labor, and "drove down the blues."

Clyde Hart Dies Suddenly in N. Y.

Playing right after a set that featured Pete Brown's interminable bleating and using the trumpet a small group of eastern collectors bought him in 1940, Bunk showed New York where Louie got it. He played Confessin' and, except for the fact that his weak lip (he hadn't played regularly for several months) acted as a sort of governor and prevented his going after Louis' high ones, he sounded so much like Armstrong that the audience gasped. gasped.

Plays Band Trumpet

Bunk likes to play with a clarinet and trombone that can take care of themselves, and with a good rhythm section, but despite the weakness of the group at Ryan's Bunk played band trumpet, led the ensemble and took his solos with taste and perfection. Sydney Bechet, playing his first job with Bunk in over 30 years, played soprano sax and his first job with Bunk in over 30 years, played soprano sax and Pops Foster, who hasn't even seen Bunk in a couple of decades, played bass. Kaiser Marshall was on drums, Sandy Williams on trombone and Hank Duncan on

Aside from Contessin', there were three top spots in the sets Bunk played. One was his rendi-tion of Bunk's Blues and it were three top spots in the sets Bunk played. One was his rendition of Bunk's Blues and it brought down the house. In this number, Bunk gave the audience a sample of the wonderful blues he plays on the Jazzman and Jazz Information records which the poor recording hides.

I was standing back at the bar when Bunk started Weary Blues and it almost took the hair off my head! I've never heard a band in New York get such swing as that group did. Bunk really gets a band swinging.

The third highlight was the closing number, Bugle Call, with (Modulate to Page 4)

New York—Pianist Clyde Hart died here March 19 after suffering from tubercular hemorrhage. Well-known in jazz circles, Hart was a favorite musician among musicians.

Hart recorded with many names and was often the one called when anyone got up a recording date. He worked practically all 52nd Street spots, had worked with John Kirby through 1942 and 1943. He was also well-known as an arranger, recently did a score for Tommy Dorsey and previously had arranged for the Paul Baron CBS band.

out. Prices ranged from $1.25 to $3.00, plus tax.

It was generally agreed that this affair was far superior to Ellington's Esquire magazine concert, in form, presentation and performance. He did many of the numbers from his Esquire concert program but enlivened the musical fare with some numbers in a more popular vein. The audience particularly favored a medley of his own composition played by Ellington as a piano solo.

Curious feature about the affair was nature of the audience, which was made up of a more subdued group of patrons than is attracted by regular "jam session" style concerts presented monthly by Granz. The Ellington fans took their music more seriously, with less shouting and cheering, but probably with equal if not more enjoyment.

Granz has four concerts scheduled this month—April 9 and 23

Meat Ball' Doesn't Spoil With Age

New York—It looks like the tune One Meat Ball isn't quite kosher. According to investigators, the popular song of the proletariat is a ringer for a number called One Fish-Ball which came out only about a century ago. The original tune was penned by one George Martin Lane, a Harvard professor. who brought it out April 1, 1843 B.B. V.C. (Before Bregman, Vocco and Conn).

Hy Zaret and Lou Singer, writers of One Meat Ball, deny that they stole it from any other number and their publisher. Leeds, adds that One Fish-Ball isn't the first tune to find itself under new management. In recent years, several of the big hit tunes were taken from old and sometimes familiar melodies. Mairzy Doats was a nursery tune; Dance With the Dolly is a first cousin to Buffalo Gal; The Hut-Sut Song was based on a Mississippi riverboat tune; and currently, there's a suit coming up which claims that Rum and Coca-Cola is a steal from a Trinidad calypso.

Jerome Comes Up With Fine New Crew

New York—Let's register another complaint with the booking offices. Why does a band have to sneak away in a corner and work for peanute if it plays good music? Naturally, the booking offices, as quick as the booking offices, as quick as allow them, will answer back: "What do you mean by good music is their gin-rummy paced minds and where is it?"

At the moment, good music is Henry Jerome's band, playing at the Child's Paramount restaurant in Times Square.

Several times in the past, I've listened to bands fronted by Henry Jerome and I've yet to hear a bad one or even an ordinary one. To put it more positively, they've all been good ones. At the same time, I've also noticed that Henry Jerome is always breaking up bands to build new bands and then breaking up the new bands.

Figuring that there must be some reason for this, I went to Jerome's various bookers at various times and asked what is the story with Henry Jerome that he keeps building and breaking up good swing bands.

New York—One of the first "new school" musicians to join Woody Herman's band, and the one who best personifies for me the band's interest in advanced musical forms, was a young trumpet player named was also one of the most important influences on the ork's style as it stands today, even though he left Woody a few months ago to serie greener, if somewhat more cropped, fields in Hollywood.

Hefti is one of those guys other jammen setually refer to as "a frantic cat." And really, no better description of him could be found. Literally nervous as a cat, his music comes out in exactly the manner the slang phrase suggests: staccato, penetrating, exciting. As an instrumentalist. Hefti's contribution to the Herd was great; as an arranger, a prompter of "baed staff" or improvised phrases to fit into arrangements, his contribution was and still is incalculable.

Hefti's musical theories were well-formulated and might be taken as indicative of the way other Herd members feel about music. He showed a certain reluctance to discuss the work of other jazzmen with me because represented a trade paper. This wary attitude, incidentally, is annoyingly frequent among musicians, although relatively rare in any other art field.

However, Hefti was fascinated by the experiments made on Sind Street, like Coleman Hawkins' ingenious riffs played by a blend of two tenor horns, trumpet and three rhythm. He liked Dizzy Gillespie's work; the Duker Ravel, Debussy, and, I think, Shostakovitch: and, again, almost any music which struck him as searching for new ways of harmonic and rhythmic expression.

concentrate on writing. The switch carried no critical connotation, but was right in that it will help develop one of the greatest natural arranging talents of the day. Almost all the written Herman music you're hearing at present is Burns' product and he's especially noted for the lovely backgrounds he supplies Woody and Frances Wayne for their ballads.

Bassist "Chubby" Jackson is something of an enigma. I can't dispute his ability to make a crowd laugh at his vaudeville antics (though I don't especially like them) and it's likely that someday he'll make a successful bandleader with his "life-of-the-party" routine. His real worth emerges, however, when he forgets the clown act and plays smooth, powerful bass, collaborating with Tough. Burns and Billy Bauer's excellent rhythm guitar in the creation of a great band beat.

Reed Section Great

Beyond this. Hefti (like others in the Herman band) was vehement in his dislike of what he calls "two-beat" music, though it's necessary to understand that this isn't to be taken literally as applying to all two-beat music but rather to what you might hear at Nick's or on special Commodore discs or on one of Eddic Condon's radio shows.

On the other hand, when I questioned Hefti and others in Woody's band, I found that most of them have a liking for Miff Mole's work, Max Kaminsky's, George Brunis', or Muggsy Spanier's, to use just a few exam-among new tenor stars. Dig out a Russ Morgan Decca recording of Goodnight, Wherever You Are to see what "Flip" can do to improve an ordinary band.

Trumpets, like the trombones, present a problem to the reviewer who simply can't find space enough to say nice things about all the instrumentalists deserving them. At any rate, Pete Condoll retes signaling out for his mad high notes and sheer power, Ray Wetzel for his exactly-right conception of lead trumpet plus a good hot talent, and young Condol Condoll for the promise he shows as a jazz trumpet.

When you add the amazing individual musicianship in Woody's band, it's not surprising to find that ensemble passages are entirely free of stereotyped harmonic patterns, nor that the band finds a fresh, jazz approach to any number in the book. If it's a jumper, the reeds may accentuate the main melodic line, while the trumpers purch out. nt's a jumper, the reeds may accentuate the main melodic line, while the trumpets punch out a Hefti-ish riff, the trombones blast a counter-figure, and the steady-driving rhythm forges ahead with so clear-cut a beat that the squarest of square toes are set to tapping. If it's a "blues" novelty, Woody's throaty vocal with the help of soaring solos by almost anyone in the band will lend an exciting aspect to what would otherwise be fairly uninteresting music. And if it's a ballad, there probably will be a suggestion of Ellington reeds, with Pfiffner, perhaps, building a tasteful, dreamy tram figure behind the vocal.

Neither should it surprise anyone that the Herd is one of the few bands to boast a chirp with a real voice. Frances Wayne not only has a real voice but, since she's been with Woody, has shown signs of developing into a superior jazz singer. It's unfortunate that, like most band singers, she has to waste so much time learning and unlearning transient and banal songs. But I've heard her sing the "blues" on one-niter dates and she does well by them. Her voice is warm, rich; she has good breath control; good phrasing; and very often reveals a jazz tone and sense not unlike that of the Duke's Ivie Anderson.

Kansas City — Curfew closing regulations didn't bother this cradle of 4/4 jazz particularly, as a municipal order requiring a 1:30 close has been in effect since those fabulous days of Twelfth Street and 18th and Vine, which saw the rise of the Basie and Kirk bands. Affected principally were the "county spots," which had operated up until five.

That Basie-Kirk tradition is in the "county spots," which had operated up until five.

That Basie-Kirk tradition is in good hands these days in the person of Oliver Toda and his fine 8-piecer at the College Inn, downtown on 12th street. Four rhythm, three sax, and the leader's trumpet and vocals provide subtle jump that ranks with the best. Outstanding is the rhythm section, including a mad piano man. George Salisbury, a rock-like bass-guitar duo, Chester White and Roy Johnson, and Jay's cousin, Pete McShann, on hides. Leader's trumpet is strictly in the righteous tradition, and a fine lead alto man, Cleo Berry, sparks a reed group including Raymond Ice, tenor and clary, and Granville Harris, hot alto. It's fine jazz—all the way!

Joe Sanders sports a nice jump

It's fine jazz—all the way!

Joe Sanders sports a nice jump crew at the Muchlebach, with Bobby Meeker coming in, and Hal Wasson has moved into the President, replacing much-held-over Jack Wendover. Charlie Wright's society group is at El Casbah in the Bellerive, town's swank showspot.

Vaughn Busey, clarinetist, has given up his band for a KMBC staff job. Red Welch is holding forth at the Jungle Club while plethora of Hammond organ exponents seem to be in control elsewhere.

There was a lot of expectation in the house when Bunk was in-troduced. Some had head him hin a brief spot on Eddle Condon's Blue network show the previous day when he was presented to the radio audience but did not play. And the audience was definitely sympathetic. They had a brief glimpse of Bunk early in the afternoon when he warmed up back by the bar, playing with a mute. The bar patrons got a trumpet player, he scored as a trumpet player, he scored him, Bunk grabbed the mike and said "Don't expect me to play like my boy Loule. . . . 'cause when

Jazz Lecturer Traces History of Music

Chicago—The austere Arts Club housed American jazz on St. Patrick's morning. Occasion was a lecture by Prof. S. I. Hayakawa entitled Reflections On The History of Jazz. The lecturer, an authority on semantics and an erudite jazz student, approached the subject through social influences and gave an enlightening discourse on where and how jazz came about. Live talent was used to illustrate the points and the almost exclusively dowager audience seemed to rock with the music.

ence seemed to fock with the music.

The Richard Jones Trio played several New Orleans tunes, Jimmy Yancey played boogle and Mama Yancey sang the blues accompaniment and then wound up with James P. Johnson's Yamakraw, a Negro rhapsody, played by Oro Tut Soper on plans with Elizabeth Jeffries singing words that had been supplied over the telephone by Johnson himself. It all added up to an educational and enjoyable session. At the end the Richard Jones Trio, made up of Jonespiano, Darnell Howard-clarinet and Tommy Taylor-drums came piano, Darnell Howard-clarinet and Tommy Taylor-drums came back to almost turn the affair into a regular jam session. Affair was sponsored by Poetry magazine.

Louie goes up—I goes down!"
The house roared.

Cats All Like Him Audience comment was high in Bunk's favor.

Bunk caused such a commotion that four days later they were still talking about him in tion that four days later they were still talking about him in the Commodore and it seemed like half of New York was planning to go to Boston for the weekend to hear the band.

Wettling, Metcalf, Ed Barnes and Timme Rosencranz all thought he was wonderful. Myself, I think it's the best jazz I have heard in New York, bar none. It's so wonderful to hear a band that doesn't feature technicians, goosey solos and interminable riffs. Bunk plays with a band and gets them playing with him. He never participated in anything quite like a Ryan's Bunday afternoon bash before, and Kaiser Marshall's double endings threw him for a loss the first time out, and Bunk caught on right quick and from then on had the house in hysterics as he counted out Kaiser's beats by waving his hand!

Given a couple of weeks in Boston to get together, to get Bunk's lip in real shape, it's obvious that the Sidney Bechet band is going to be sensational

Carnegie Hall Sets Tatum On Pop Series

New York—Beginning in June, Carnegie Hall ushers in a new series of summer Pop Concerts which will attempt to embrace all kinds of music, literally from Bach to boogle-woogle. The nightly programs, which will run until September, besides offering the usual longhair fare of the typical Pop Concert (like the Arthur Fiedler-Boston Symphony programs), will also present all warieties of folk music, so-called "light" classical tunes and jam sessions featuring top jazz stars. A press release for the new series mentions only one hot expert, Art Tatum, as set for the shows but implies that other representative jazz artists will take part. Conductor Mark Warnow is musical director of the programs.

Cole Trio Receive Their 'Oscar' Bing Wins, But

'Blues' Fluffed Los Angeles—For the first time in history, the winning of the Motion Picture Academy's acting award made news in the music business as the "Oscar" for best performance by an actor for the year 1944 went to Bing Crosby for his characterization of the young priest in the picture Going My Way.

The Going My Way role was Bing's first serious bid for attention as an actor after almost 15 years of success on the screen gained by singing his way through light comedy parts.

Last year he also won Down Beat's award, based on its yearly world-wide poll—as America's No. 1 singer of popular songs.

bewildering one—to jazz fans was the failure of the Academy voters to bestow a first prize in the shorts division upon the Warner short, Jammin' the Blues. The winning two-reeler was I Won't Play, a trite musical vignette about a G.I. musician.

Jimmy Van Heusen (music) and Johnny Burke (lyrics) won the "best original song" award for Swinging on a Star.

The musical picture scoring award went to Columbia's Cover Girl. The dramatic picture scoring award went to Selznick's Stace You Went Away, for which Max Steiner, one of the handiest of screen music concocters, worked up a score that pointed up every sentimental moment.

Winning one-reeler was MGM's cartoon comedy, Mouse Trouble, musical scoring of which (by Oscar Bradley) is considered to have been one of the most important contributions, though the musician was not specifically mentioned in the ward. The score was about 65 percent original and the balance an adaptation of copyrighted songs owned by MGM.

In our opinion, it wouldn't have harmed Music for Millions, boxofficially or otherwise, to have instruduced a bit of good, hot American jazz. June Allyson, who sang and danced her way into pictures and drew her first "straight" role in Music for Millions, is very fine as the girl bass-player, despite the fact that no special effort was made to show her how to pretend to play the instrument. Marie Wilson (the girl clarinet-player) became successful in Hollywood via a stage revue in which ywood via a stage revue in which she displays almost everything except talent as an actress. She flutters through this role quite ably.

All recording for the picture was done by the MGM studio orchestra under Georgie Stoll, who, perhaps fortunately, has never found himself directing an ell-girl orchestra, as does Jose Iturbi in the finale of Music for Millions. But one of the actresses is also a bona fide musician—Helen Gilbert, seen as the cello player, is in fact an excellent cello player who made her entry into the studios as a recording musician and probably had higher earnings as such ($30 to

The idea is used several times in the picture, but the best example is the sequence in which Jose Uturbi leads his all-girl orchestra and chorus into the climax of Handel's Messiah as the news is passed through the orchestra from musician to musician that one of their fellow-members (June Alyson as a girl bass-player) has just had her baby in a near-by hospital.

Best news of the moment, by far, concerns Victor's campaign to reissue a number of albums of hot jazz. Columbia started a similar undertaking long before the war, and succeeded in producing many fine sets. There's no reason why Victor shouldn't be able to do likewise, and continue to do so for a long time to come. Let's hope so, anyway.

I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate

This great standard, composed by Louis Armstrong but credited to Armand J. Piron, has remained a perennial favorite with hot jazzmen. Earl Hines recorded the finest Negro version on Victor 22683. The Original Memphis Five, Miff Mole and cohorts, waxed it three times. None of these discs—Grey Gull 1140, Paramount 20161, and Perfect 14051—is available today. Neither is that by the Cotton Pickers, Brunswick 2338. A Chicago interpretation, made years ago under the direction of Charles Pierce, can be obtained on U. H. C. A. 71 or Columbia 35950. The two best platters of Sister Kate are, nevertheless, the one by George Wettling on Decca 18044 and the one by Muggsy Spanier on Bluebird 10506. Both can still be had! The Wettling rendition, extraordinarily played in drag tempo, exemplifies Chicago Jazz at its best. Spanier's, taken as a stomp, typifies the relentless drive that is Dixieland. George Brunis, otherwise known as George Brunis, otherwise known as George Brunis; sings the lyrics on Spanier's side in a fashion that he has equalled only on his own Ugly Child! only on his own Ugly Child!

Known heretofore largely as a polka label, Continental busts free with four swing sides that are pretty good and should have been even better. Cozy's pick-up crew consists of Shavers, D'Amico, Hawkins, Foots Thomas, Hart, Grimes, Stewart and Cole himself. On the first number, an original by Cole and Thomas and Hart, Slam distinguishes himself with some more of his sensational bowed bass. On Ghost Coleman picks up where the late Chu Berry left off and blows some nice tenor. Take It, another tune by Cole and Thomas and Hart, finds Shavers blowing his head off. Willow allows Hank to play some fair clarinet. These four sides prompt me to pose two questions again, questions that have been puzzling me for a long time now. One, what's happened to the Hawk? trombone chorus I'll never know, except perhaps that whatever Vic blew would surely have topped the rest of the platter by a considerable margin. Slam walks off with Sextolopy, as clarinetist Sachs and planist Wilson and guitarist Palmieri come along for the ride. Red's own work leaves me no less cold than Hampton's this time, while drummer Eddie Dell is felt rather than heard.

ERSKINE HAWKINS

Remember Tippin' In Victor 20-1639

Harvey Smith wrote the Tippin' opus, already a big seller as riff tunes go. Nothing much happens on this side, or on the Berlin number as far as that goes. Our modern Gabriel could take plenty of lessons from some of his less celestial fellows. Guess I'll play that Armstrong album again! again!

ART SHAW

'S Wonderful I'll Never Be The Same Victor 20-1638

Artle's right about modern jazz when he says that it's going to the dogs, but here he does very little to correct the situation. If this is progress, and I assume Shaw considers it as such, I don't care for some. Give me the good old days, give me New Orleans and Basin Street and the Blues and the Bunk. Let me spin those Louis discs again!

Dance LOUIS ARMSTRONG

l Wonder Jodin Man Decca 18652

Cecil Gant and Raymond Leveen combined to compose the first tune, Allan Roberts and Doris Fisher the second. Louis sings them and plays them, get-ting much more out of them than their authors put in. Yet even the King is only human, and there's only so much you can do with nothing. This is Armstrong's first Decca platter in a long long time, and far from his best. His horn's good, his singing's good, even his band's good. The material Decca gives him is lamentable, however, a crying shame for a jazzman of Louis' calibre. Over a period of years now Decca has been doing this to my man Satchmo, and why? Armstrong's just the best there is or ever was. While he's still in possession of all his vast and mighty talents, why not record them for the future? They'll sell today, too, and don't think not!

TEDDY WILSON This Heart Of Mine Evry Time We Say Goodbye Musicraft 317

Shavers on trumpet, Norvo on vibes, Wilson on piano, Hall on bass, and Powell on drums combine to bring us two very commercial numbers of very little interest. Some of the stuff's pretty enough, but none of it of a lasting nature. Let's have more jazz of an abiding value! an abiding value!

Vocal BILLIE HOLIDAY

Lover Man
That Ole Devil Called Love Decca 23391

Billie really sings these tunes for all they're worth, which unfortunately isn't very much. Toots supplies the background, such as it is. David and Sherman and Ramirez conspired together on the first. Allan Roberts and Doris Fisher, already represented this month by Jodie Man, bumped their heads together to produce the other. La Holiday alone can be commended here. The material is sad, and the orchestra far less than exciting.

Curfew Will Miss Intended Purpose

As Ernest Byfield, owner of Chicago's Hotel Sherman, remarked at the beginning of the curfew, most calamities are not quite as serious as they seem while they are impending. Hotel and club operators feared the "brown-out," but it only affected business for the first Hotel and club operators feared the couple of nights.

Effects of the curfew are not as drastic as first imagined, although it has thrown large numbers of musicians and entertainers out of work temporarily and has cost government, local, state and federal, plenty in taxes, a revenue that is doubly important because of fabulous war expenditures.

We think that the curfew is silly: Not because of either of the above reasons, but because the talk on the street is that the purpose was not to conserve fuel and power, as propagandized, but as a salutary measure, a restriction designed to remind the American people that we are at war!

Despite talk that we are not taking the war seriously enough, we do not believe that the American people need such a reminder. Few families today do not have some relative in the armed services, most of them overseas. Mounting casualty lists bring the relentless visage of war into all communities more effectively than any curfew restrictions.

While Americans may not have the "stout fella" and "carry on" spirit of their British cousins, we do have own peculiar traditions of patriotism and selfsacrificing service. One of these is the gripe and another is a natural light-heartedness that enables us to laugh and sing in the face of trouble.

Americans like to gripe. Whether in uniform or as civilians, we like to squawk about this restriction and that regulation. But we usually wind up in conformity. The services regard the gripe as an essential morale adjunct, sort of an escape mechanism. It is no less effective in civilian life, whether we are beefing about rationing or the curfew.

On the other point, we hold with the radio commentator who pointed out that we are more efficient when we are getting our kicks. This doesn't mean that staying up all night and getting stinko improves production on the following day. But it does mean that we produce better when we are happy, and that we function to greater advantage when we have music and laughter, than we possibly could if forced to tackle the job under an environment of somber reality.

The curfew affects a minority of the populace directly. So maybe they get to bed earlier and that's a benefit. But it does affect a majority of the population indirectly, and to no possible benefit! And anyone who thinks that it will con the Americans into forgetting dance music and an occasional good gag, and into contemplating the war job as the grim proposition that it really is is nuts!

Great Shavers

Fitchburg, Mass

To the Editors: To the Editors:

I am writing this letter mainly for the purpose of praising the colored trumpet player that I consider to be the greatest of his race. That musician is Charlie Shavers. I never fully appreciated Charlie's playing until I saw him one night sitting in with Tommy Dorsey's band. His solos were terrific! Having heard Roy, Louie and Dizzy, reputed to be three of the greatest Negro trumpeters, I'll take Charlie any day of the week. I'm sure that if more of your readers saw Charlie, they'd become rabid fans of him also.

him also.
I also think that T.D. has the best band he has had in a long time. Sparked by himself along with the two Buddys and Jess, it really jumps. Keep it up, Charlie and Tommy!

Movie moguls award "Oscars," Esquire it's "Eskys," and a square New York columnist his "Orchids," so now the Hot Box institutes the awarding of "Boxers." The first "Boxer" is hereby conferred upon William Russell for his undying faith and energy in keeping alive American jazz music in its basic form, The jazz music that was played and is still being played in the city where it all began; "good old New Orleans" as Louis Armstrong sings. Tangible evidence of Bill Russell's activities is now available on his own record label — AM Records — aptly standing for American Music. Four sides pressed on Vinylite (the second such set of records pressed on this material—the first being the Jimmy & Mama Yanceys on Session) and recorded in New Orleans. The band is Bunk Johnson's band and the tunes are authentic jazz tunes that have become classics. There isn't a jazzologist today who can boast of hearing the real jazz of the Crescent City during its inception in person. On these records Bunk and his cohorts paint a lively picture of what that jazz sounded like, and in addition give forth with a modern drive that is surprisingly vital. These records are jazz in its original state and they are good music in spite of a couple of deuces whose campaign against New Orleans music does nothing more than enhance the sale of the records, for which action we are appreciative.

The band on these sides played together recently at the San Jacinto Clah chees the atmosphere of old sale of the records, for which action we are appreciative.

The band on these sides played together recently at the San Jacinto Club where the atmosphere of old New Orleans is prevalent. When listening to the records one cannot help feeling nostalgic and wishing that he had been privileged to witness the days when bonds like this one were playing around the town overy day at one function or another. For at one time this American music was being played at picnics, dances, church socials, parades and funces church wocials, parades and funces church world it the drop of a hat. Now, aside from an exceptional occasion, a New Orleans beand has to be organized by searching out the oldtimers and getting them together to record. Therefore, jass students like Russell, Eugene Williams, Marill Morden, John Redd and Dave Stuart are doing a great service in the field of Americans.

To the records themselves:
American Music V-252 St. Louis and Dave Steart are doing a greet service in the field of Americana.

To the records themselves: American Music V-252 St. Louis Blues (211) & When the Saints Go Marching In (402). Using the melodic line of the W. C. Handy evergreen the band comes on led by Bunk Johnson's horn in middle register playing cleaner than I've yet heard him play. A weaving clarinet can be heard noodling from the start and then a very fine clarinet solo by the same man who can be none other than the great George Lewis. The rhythm section is solid Orleans and those drum licks will easily be identified as being by one Warren Dodds. A Crescent City trombone by Jim Robinson is apparent in various spots. There is no piano in true early style but a banjo (Lawrence Marrero) and a bass (Alcide Slovo Drag Pavageau) round out the rhythm. This ensemble vertion of St. Louis takes its place as one of my favorites among the numerous recordings of this tune. Highlight of the side is the solo by Lewis who along with Fazola is the only clarinet player today who can play in the high register with a tone as beautiful marching song to give an authentic picture.

American Music V-251 See See Rider (415) & Tiger Rag (213). The former is slow blues again led off by Bunk Johnson in a style showing that the playing he has done in the last year has improved his musical prowess. This is the blues immortalized by Ma Rainey and Louis, again performed in grand manner. The latter side I have left until the last. Ordinarily, I dislike Tiger Rag, it is the tune always used for burlesque. That is, when a musician wants to make people laugh by playing corny a la Ted Lewis, he takes off on Tiger Rag and most versions of the tune actually sound as though that was the idea. Here, however, it is played in true Dixieland fashion with plen-

TRUE TONE

Great musicians for half a century have been familiar with the Buescher "true tone" tradition. "True tone" was the ideal of the late F. A. Buescher, when he began manufacturing the first saxophones. It has been the ideal of two generations of Buescher

In 1940, this great tradition flowered into the greatest developments of modern musical historythe Buescher "400" saxophones and brasses.

These new instruments challenged the artistry of America's finest musicians. They played easier. They pushed back the old horizons of tonal beauty. They stimulated every player to reach new heights of musical showmanship!

Right now thousands of musicians are waiting for the day when Buescher's war job is finished and the "400's" can take their spotlight position in the finest bands in the world!

New Hollywood Spot Planned

DOWN BEAT

Los Angeles—Glenn Billingsley is negotiating with the Zucca Brothers to take over the old Hollywood Casino and re-open it as a deluxe dance spot on a policy similar to the nearby Palladium. Billingsley, nephew of Stork Club's Sherman Billingsley, re-cently sold the Hollywood Trop-cently sold the Hollywood Tropics.

Associated with Billingsley in the enterprise is at least one, and possibly three or four, bandleaders. Bandleader now participating is Charlie Barnet, whose band will open the spot, renamed the Hollywood Terrace if the deal goes through, on May 4.

Almost every bandleader in the business has been rumored to have "bought in" but those whose names have been bobbing up most persistently, in addition to Barnet who seemed to be definitely "in," were the Dorsey Brothers, Lionel Hampton (via his agent, Joe Glaser) and Duke Ellington. The Duke fiatly denies that he has or will take any financial part in the venture, but he indicates he has agreed to play an engagement there.

One thing certain about the contemplated deluxe dance spot ($60,000 will be spent on improvements and extension to handle 3,000 people) is that toprank Negro orchestras, barred by the Palladum, will for the first time have a Class-A Hollywood spot to play.

Pluggers Lost

New York—It's grim humor but nevertheless funny to watch the aimless clumps of songpluggers gathered outside the Brill Building here after midnight these nights. In normal times, a good plugger was just hitting his stride around twelve and the good plugger was just atting ass stride around twelve and the midnight curfew has left the pro-fessional managers as unusely and out-of-ports as a muselian who discovers that he's lost his who discovers that now you make horn.

Looking at it seriously, the problem of the pluggers may become a headschy one with airtime out of local spots fast becoming a thing-of-the-past. At press time, no music firm has announced mass dismissals but they were far from remote possibilities.

Music Activity Same Despite Movie Strike

Los Angeles — Movie strike, which threatened to halt motion picture production at first, had not affected musical activity, in the studios after first week.

Production was hampered but there were no shut-downs. Strike there were no shut-downs. Strike was caused by a jurisdictional dispute between two rival, AFL motion picture groups.

Check-up of studios found little cancellations of recordings. The local AFM per policy, was taking no sides in the jurisdictional strike.

Frankie spent the early part of this year in the east where he played a return engagement at Hotel Pennsylvania. He has been working west during the past month, and March 20 opened at the Hollywood Palladium. After completing the assignment he will remain on the west coast for other bookings.

Frankie has chosen to illustrate his piano style on the simple twelve-bar blues theme. The example is characteristic of the lilting rhythmic effects that have made him a top favorite. The rhythmic fundamentals that form the basis for enjoyable dancing are products of the ragtime era, which were further developed during the jazz period and modified for swing. These include the dotted eighth and sixteenth, eighth — quarter—eighth, and triplet usually on the fourth count.

Frankie applies these rhythmic fourth count.

Frankle applies these rhythmic principles with a true accent in the treble against a solid bass with lilting accent on counts two and four. Melodic content of the right hand, with single tones and thirds predominating, embodies the variation technique of a jam chorus. However, Frankle's sophisticated treatment reflects his rich musical background and fine musicianship. The result is less of the concerto style and more real dance music.

the southwest Pacific.

8/Sgt. Clifton Sproul, trumpet, and Bob Carnahan, drummer, are Wichita, Kansas, boys with the "I Sustain The Wings" Army Air Forces radio show. . . . Pfc. Charles Brown. former leader of the "Brown Buddies," active in upper New York state, writes from France to tell of his activities in blocking the recent Nazi counter-offensive.

Counter-offensive.

Towards the end of 1942, when American servicemen were first beginning to pour into the British Isles, a young civil engineer from New Orleans formed a dance band from personnel then working at Central Base H. Q., the first service band in the ETO. Now a Chief Warrent Officer, Frank Rosato and his band have kept plenty active playing for most every type of show and dance. Band was overshadowed some what by Glenn Miller's arrival, but by brondcasts and being featured in British films, they have stepped back into the limelight.

PAUL H. PORTER Writes:

Thompson, Conn. Dec. 5, 1944

Dear Me. Woff:

I received the set of Dur-A-Gle guitar strings and want you to know that I am more than pleased with their tonit, volume and trueness of pitch. I always thought your OLD STYLE strings were the best I had care found, but your NEW ones are, without a doubt, the finest I have over tried or heard.

I am inclosing my check and an order blank for the items I have selected from your catalog.

Cordially, yours. Dear Mr. Wolf:

Cordially yours,

Los Angeles—The service band maintained at the ATC's Sixth Ferrying Group base at Long Beach, a unit which contained such well known musicians as Ziggy Elman, Charlie Teagarden. Bruce Squiers and Clint Garvin, has been "de-activated," which means that it has been dissolved as an official organization.

A spokesman at the base said all the musicians, including those mentioned above, had been assigned to "military tasks and dutles," such as stockroom work, maintainance and jobs in the base fire department. It was stated that the band would be continued, but "strictly for fun and in the spare time" of the members.

Pfc. George "Bullets" Durgom, formerly of the Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey managerial staffs, and later agent for Jo Stafford, the Pled Pipers, Andy Russell, Dick Haymes and others, has been transferred from his public relations assignment at the Sixth Ferrying Group base to same assignment at Romulus Field, Mich. Thelma Carpenter is making her smart spot debut at Le Ruban Bleu. If you have an encyclopedic mind, you'll remember that previously she was featured with Count Basie's band, at Kelly's Stable on 52nd Street, and, before that, in an obscure Greenwich Village club whose name I've forgotten.

At the Bleu Thelma emerges

wich Village club whose name I've forgotten.

At the Bleu, Theima emerges as a much different (and much improved) personality than the pretty, self-conscious kid with the sweet voice heard on Swing Alley. Not yet completely poised, she has added plenty of grace to her stage presence. Plus this, she'ss intelligently avoiding the dull "hip" patter which so often spoils the night club work of band chirps turned "single act." Her vocal attention is turned away from double-entendre "blues" to lovely show tunes and standards like September Song. Who Cares, and People Will Say. She encores with one of the very best novelty tunes I've ever heard, a really clever item called Here Comes the Captain, written by Cliff Allen and Billy Heywood.

Thelma never had to worry about her voice a pure-toned

by Cliff Allen and Billy Heywood.

Thelma never had to worry about her voice, a pure-toned, sure, velvety hunk of vocal chord product, and she still doesn't have to. More time spent at a spot like the Bleu, where the audience is appreciative of good singing, should fashion her into a high calibre name act.

New Luxury Theater

For Post-War LA For Post-War LA

Los Angeles—Sherrill Cornwin, manager of the Orpheum theater, only LA house playing topbracket name bands, has revealed that the Orpheum's operating firm, Metropolitan Theaters Corporation, will erect a new,
$1,000,000 ultra-modern theater on the site of the old playhouse, a landmark of vaudeville days,
as soon as material and man power are available. Sherrill says that he will continue to stress name bands as major feature of his shows unless the policy should be changed by some unknown element in the future.

Summer Concerts Announced For Philly

Philadelphia—Robin Hood Dell, the Fairmount Park outdoor amphitheater, has announced a seven weeks series from June 18 to August 3 for this summer which will be the 18th season for the Dell concerts. Conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Dimitri Mitropoulos, will be artistic director and principal conductor. He is scheduled to direct 23 of the 28 concerts.

As in previous years the Robin

rect 23 of the 28 concerts.
As in previous years the Robin
Hood Dell Symphony Orchestra will consist of 90 instrumentalists, virtually all from the Philadelphia Orchestra and already under contract. A large number of the Philadelphia Orchestra's solo players have signed up.

Caceres Combo in San Antonio Groove

San Antonio—Recent opener at the Kit Kat Club in San Antonio was the Emilio Caceres five-piece combo. Outfit, composed of jazz men, featured Latin tempos besides the hot stuff. Billie Bennett, formerly of the Bennett Sisters with Clyde McCoy, handles the vocals. Emilio doubles on violin, vibes, piano and solovox.

This Trumpet Man Is Really A Killer!

Los Angeles—Jazz music, its psychological aspects, and the psychological aspects of the people who make it will be utilized in a forthcoming Universal pic-ple who make it will be utilized in a forthcoming Universal picture tentatively entitled Hear the Trumpet Talk. The script is being prepared by Henry Blankfort, a jazz fan himself who wrote the commentary for the "Spirituals to Swing" concert presented here recently by the Musicians Congress.

It is a murder mystery in which several of the characters are members of a small "jam band". The leading role is that of a trumpet player who—but we can't give away the story. Another principal role is that of a jazz-loving detective, who finds a clue when he recognizes by his ear the identity of a musician known only by his recording when he spots him in sitting in with the band in a local hotspot.

Ted Cain head of Universal's with the band in a local hotspot.

Ted Cain, head of Universal's music department, said that he would try to use the winners of various magazine poils to record the music which will appear to be played by actors. These musicians, of course, will not be seen in the picture. However, Cain said he also planned sequences using some nationally known jazz musicians and singers (he hoped to get Coleman Hawkins and Mildred Bailey) in which the performers would be both seen and heard.

Local 47 Adds New Gold Star To Flag

Los Angeles—Another gold star was added to service flag of AFM's Local 47 as news was received here of the death in action of Thornton C. Chamberlain, flute player and formerly director of the Pasadena Junior Symphony Orchestra.

Chamberlain entered the service in August of 1942, went overseas with the Armored Field Artillery in 1942. His mother, Mrs. Ernest R. Thornton, lives in Pasadena, Calif.

London—Many of Sam Dona-hue's navy bandsmen are in favor of remaining under the ace sax-tooter's leadership after they have returned to a civilian status, and just the thought of that is enough to worry the baton-wield-
