Stan Nixes Out Vacation Keeps Band In Prospect Of Nervous Breakdown

A week later another lengthy wire form Gastel stated that Kenton had seconsidered his holiday decision and would continue with the band, playing such engagements as the Howard theater in Washington, the Earle theater in Philadelphia and two weeks at the Meadowbrook in New Jersey, all of which his booking office, GAC, would have been forced to cancel if he had retired for more than three months as originally lanned.

Shavers, Ralph Burns and Sid Catlett, four women copped top musical honors.

First up was Mildred Bailey, who, despite a voice perhaps not as full and bell-like as it once was, gave the gathered fans a once-over-lightly lesson in how to phrase a song with taste, mellowness and distinction. Accompanied brilliantly by the Ellis Larkins Trio, she retired after four tunes to howle for more from the audience.

Girl Trio Plays Fine
Third group who sewed things up neatly was made up of Mary Lon, ex-Woody Hermanite Marjorie Hyams (vibes) and Jane Rotenburg (base). Thing about the femmes playing which sold the crowd was their obvious and infectious enjoyment in what they were doing. New York concert audiences are so accustomed to indifferent playing by gathered stars, that they got a tremendous bool from the three girls playing for their own enjoyment rather than to cut each other.

Also, all three musicians used ideas, not devices. There are undoubtedly soloists their equal in each instrument, but very few who in a public performance would stick so closely to playing good jazz, rather than displaying dazzling techniques and learned tricks.

The result is that whenever a horn man takes a solo into the mike, each of his bleats is magnified to such an intensity and is echoed so many times that onhearers sitting in supposedly good seats, have to guess what the other side men are doing.

opinion that in the future, no concert group using Carnegie Hall should use mikes save for singers. Certainly not until the Hall decides to spend a little money buffering its own PA system and installing new speakers. The result of all this hearing confusion was that the band's performance degenerated into a series of individual solos, which while striking, were not as good as each side-man has shown in the past.

ideas, not devices. There are undoubtedly soloists their equal in each instrument, but very few who in a public performance would stick so closely to playing dazzling techniques and learned tricks.

Star band of the evening, the combo led by Charlie Ventura and numbering Bill Harris (tram), Dave Tough (drums). Ralph Burns (plano), Curly Russell 'bass) and Bill De Arango (guitar) as sidemen did not make as favorable an impression as it has at the Three Deuces, local nightery where it is working.

Sound System Bad Principal reason is the use of microphones in Carnegie Hall. The old box, an acoustic wonder in its own right, fiercely resists the use of amplification within its confines, the hypoed sound chargene (never thought you'd champagne (never thought you'd) hear that one!) and Everything Happens To Me.

Ralph Burns' rhythm plano as well as his solos were of the best. His support of soloists is something to hear: he plays for them, not himself. The selection of notes is to contrast their work, rather than smother it.

rather than smother it.

Curly Russell, once his bass was moved down front, could be heard to advantage, as was Bill De Arango. Once again the acoustics problem of mikes in this Hall makes life miserable for rhythm men rhythm men.

Tough Too Loud

rhythm men.

Tough Too Loud

Dave Tough for some reason is drumming much, much too loudly these days. A consummate musician, respected by everyone for his understanding of jazz as well as his playing of it, Tough's apparent disregard of dynamics lately is a source of great puzzlement to this reviewer. Part of the answer lies undoubtedly in Tough's statement that he is just starting to play again, after a year's lay-off, and still feels uncertain in his band-work.

This is a great little band, loaded with musical talent. When Burns, if he doesn't pull out to go to the coast to study, gets time to do some scores for it, the group's work should be a sample of what good jazz men today can do.

Charlie Shavers and Sid Catlett came up with a trumpetdrum vaudeville routine which killed the customers but hardly demonstrated the superior musical talents of both men. No one can object to showmanship, but when it tends to blanket all but the obvious technical abilities of the musicians concerned, it is time to hold things down a little.

Production Not Smooth

Production Not Smooth

The concert's production could have been smoother. Units were never quite sure of who was taking their place, when to come on and off, and just what tunes were up. Mary Lou Williams playing in high heels without a foot pad, gave herself a castanet accompaniment that was somewhat disconcerting.

The emcee, Leonard Feather, didn't talk too much, but the lighting and microphone problems involved in using an emcee plus the slowing down of pace involved make one wonder if jazz concerts, like classical couldn't do without oral commentation, or at least get along with an offstage voice.

The concert was not an unqualified success—but it certainly gave femme local 802 card-holders cause for strutting.

CHARLIE VENTURA REPLIES:

You're right about too many con-cert bands cutting each other in-stead of playing for the band as a whole, and double that microphone

Hines Club Concert Great-But No Jazz

Earl Father Hines, one of the jazz greats, has a new idea in music appreciation. He is practicing his idea nightly at his own Chicago supper club — The El Grotto. Earl feels that standard night club floor shows are going the way of vaude-ville—that is, OUT. Hines has worked up a series of concerts by his augmented band to replace the dencing cuties, boisterous corny MC's, jugglera, and apache slingera. Theoretically, it is a fine idea for musicians. What could be finer than a night club full of "jar heads" concentrating on the music? If it should work it would mean an increase in work for music? If it should work it would mean an increase in work for instrumentalists, higher record sales, more good music on the radio, ad infinitum.

The Hines method is to work up by long rehearsal, a series of concerts to last the regular floor show time, using the compositions of one composer or one time, using the composi-tions of one composer or one particular style of music. For instance, Earl has readled a Cole Porter, a Gershwin, a Handy Blues session, a Jerome Kern set, and finally a Duke Ellington

This reviewer caught the Cole Porter deal conducted by Hines standing alongside the piano and intermittently stroking the keys.

The front line consisted of the conducted by Hines are the conducted by Hines and Hines are the conducted by Hines and Hines are the conducted by Hines and Hines are the Hines are the conducted by Hines are the Hines are th intermittently stroking the keys. The front line consisted of six violins, and back in the brass section could be seen and heard flutes, French horns and an oboe. Several vocalists appeared to sing Night and Day, I've Got You Under My Skin, What Is This Thing Called Love and Begin The Beguine.

Our objection is this. Why should Hines, a jazz leader, resort to dousing his auditors in a Kostelanetz bath when he is so capable of doing a worthwhile jazz concert? Earl Hines has played great jazz individually with originality and developed fine orchestras in the jazz idiom. Consequently, we feel he is out of his slot with Cole Porter's must played retrogressively. The idea of a concert, we think, is terrific in place of the usual splotched floor show antics. But please, Earl, how about an Earl Hines jazz concert?

Bookers, Record Firm Combine To Push Orks

-A joint booking office-record company plan to push newer bands has been put into effect by General Artists Corporation and Capitol Records, with the Sam Donahue and Billy Butterfield orks the first buds to get this special hot house treatment.

Purpose is to build up second string attractions instead of devoting all attention to the top money winners. Latter course, the general one in the industry, is best in the short run but, according to GAC and Capitol, eventually leaves the industry bankrupt. The "sure things" eventually begin to pale on the public, yet too few substitutes have been properly built up to take over.

Companies attractions instead of devotings and plans for the future.

By such exchange of intelligence, the two offices will be able or corodinate the development of orchestras by, for example, pushing record sales where bookings are heavy and vice versa; or by promoting records with personal appearances.

Herectofore, booking offices, record companies published.

Crux of the new arrangement will be the interchanging of info between the two companies, with Capitol advising the agency of sales, new releases and areas where the bands' records are selling best. GAC, in turn, will ended the solution of Capitol.

Heretofore, booking offices, record companies, publicity agents and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, record companies, publicity agents and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, record companies, publicity agents and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, record companies, publicity agents and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, records and personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working offices, and the personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working of the personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working of the personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working of the personal managers have, to an amazing extent, been working of the personal managers have, to a Columbia of course last month released the Messiah, short five unimportant sections almost never done in public performance.

Victor which has a magnifi-cent back catalogue which peo-ple are clamoring to buy and can't because of the unavailabili-ty of pressing facilities to press up back orders, thus is devoting a lot of time and money to buck an item which Columbia has al-ready done extremely well.

How silly can your merchandising be? Columbia stole a march on Victor—does Victor promptly have to act like a Japanese general about it? They have other items which will sell just as well. Is prestige in every catalogue item that important?

It wouldn't be so bad if it hadn't happened with all sorts of items in the past few months, the Prokoviev 5th Symphony, some Stravinsky things to name

In the meanwhile you can't get the Muggsy Spanier sides, the wonderful X classical series on Columbia with Delius albums, some fine Ravel and excellent Bach. Victor looks vague when Smearing is an old political trick, and Sinatra by being a public figure invites it. However Ruark unfortunately does make one valid point in all his mutter-ings: he points out that it isn't doesn't. There is almost no situsuch a hot idea for the younger generation to be admiring a gent to need a gun. If he is in that kind of trouble, no gun but a man porting a gun gets into nor who is more trouble than one who is almost no situsuch a hot idea for the younger generation to be admiring a gent to need a gun. If he is in that kind of trouble, no gun but a man porting a gun gets into of trouble, no gun but a around, it would be a fine idea for Mr. FS to turn The Difference back over to the police. Then we can turn Ruark back to his native woods.

There is no more finer rhythm combination than an "on-the-beam" drummer working over a set of Slingerland "Radio King" drums. Henry Riggs, brilliant young Tony Pastor percussionist, is the playing half of this combination that gives the Pastor band the drive and push that makes it one of the great swing bands of today.

Henry Riggs is a prime example of the thousands of young drummers all over the nation who have taken their cues from the drum immortals like Gene Krupa, Ray McKinely, Alvin Stoller, Eddie Julian, Ralph Tilken and 4 out of 5 other Drum Kings who play Slingerlands. They prefer Radio King Drums for the simple reason that they are better made and more responsive than any other drums on the market.

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Yes, In The Spring, Young Man's Fancy

It's spring. Robins have given up talking about last year's worms and are going out after new ones. Self-respecting dogs can get outside to pass the stump o' day with other members of the same club.

This is also the season when human beings are allowed to be a little crazier than usual. "It's spring" has about the same meaning as "Sure was a great bender. wasn't it."

But then again you can push things too far.

Our boy Stan Kenton is a case in hand.

We say our boy because regardless of what agreements or disagreements we may have with Stan's music, we respect his esty, his sincerity and his honesty as much as any leader we know in the business.

For the last eight years he has set himself a killing pace. Not content with leading a band, playing in it and arranging for it with all the business extras that this entails, Kenton has been carrying on a one-man public relations campaign for years which eclipses anything we know

In every town he plays, he sees all the disc jockeys, visits schools, record shops and signs autographs from morning till night. He's been doing this for years

In the face of the crack-up of less skillfully run and ex-ploited bands, Kenton has kept on with what he feels to be the kind of music he wants to play. In order to do this, he has had to spend plenty of time on the road which is no fun at any time, and these days is especially tough.

In the next few months Kenton had a road tour planned which, while a lot of work, also meant dollars to the six fig-

Last week his doctor told him flatly he'd have to give it up or suffer the consequences. As a result of the night and day schedule Stan has followed these last years, he is staring a physical and mental crackup square in the teeth.

Accordingly the word went out from his manager Carlos Gastel that Stan was giving up all his dates after May 1 to the middle of August at which time the original band would reform at its original salaries to go right on.

The heat was on. The wiseacres who know all the answers started passing tales around that the real reason that Stan was quitting was that jazz was dead, that his band couldn't make it, and that he was having to go into a sweeter style!

Stan's agency, GAC, started to get frantic telegrams from promoters who were counting on Kenton one-nighters to pull them into the black, his current stint in Texas having roped in some fabulous grosses.

The kids, the Kenton fans, started writing in telling him he couldn't quit. It is even possible that his agency, faced with a loss of some $20,000 in commissions, tried to persuade him to continue.

Whatever the reason, Kenton sent out word that he wasn't going to quit after all. That for the next few weeks he would take it easier, and that his doctor would travel with him.

If Stan is actually taking a chance with his health for an of these reasons, a lot more than spring fever must have his him. With the strain of his work and some personal family difficulties in the past few months, he undoubtedly needs rest. No band, no dough, no agency, no job, no nothing is worth running yourself into the ground for. Step around to any hospital and ask the patients.

Moral of the story: every musician who is young and ambitious works himself into the ground to get ahead, denying himself sleep, exercise and relaxation. They always say, "Well, when we get to the top, we'll sit back, take it easy and Well, Stan's at the top and you see how easy it is for him sit back. Better start doing a little leaning now so you'll be in the habit.

The Man Who-

New York—Nesuhi Ertegun, jazz critic from Hollywood, visted the Long Island home of Bill Gottlieb, Beat staff lensman, to spend two nights. He caught the flu or something and, like the man who came to dinner, was aguest for 10 days. During that period he grew the beard shown here.

Gets In Act

New York—Johnny Grassi gets into the act by mugging lightly in front of an automatic camera in the penny arcade. Formerly with Jan Savitt and other bands, Johnny plays trombone now in the ABC radio studios here.

Not Enough Jazz

To The Editors:

To The Editors:

In regards to radio and records, (I am a disc jockey myself) comment that I hear seems to be that there is not enough jazz on the air, Since most of the recordings of jazzmen are not generally available, there is little or no demand to hear them on the air unless that demand has been and you have a picture of jazz in the hinterlands.

In other words, all kinds of jazz, good, bad, or indifferently played, are not heard by the average person interested in jazz. Therefore the listeners do not played, are not heard by the average person interested in jazz. Therefore the listeners do not have the background to listen to jazz as music. It is like trying to criticize Bach, and the musicians who p.ay his music, because Beethoven, Wagner and Stravinsky came along. Or criticizing Stravinsky because there is Bach to be played.

A solution to the problem was tried before, and failed. It might be worth a try again. I mean a systematic attempt to collect the masters from all companies, combined with the development of a good dubbing technique, and the results pressed on plastic and sold with a label giving as much pertinent information as possible. It would be an expensive procedure, but a catalogue of these records would sell, and the music would be heard.

Regarding critics: The critic should examine, as far as possible, his own reaction to records—scientifically. He should understand that his likes and dislikes are his aesthetic evaluations. These have no place in likes are his aesthetic evalua-tions. These have no place in criticism. It is a function of the individual critic—it is his privi-lege—to say what he likes and does not like, and why. But if he does not say why, he is not a critic, but a press agent.

critic, but a press agent.

Jazz criticism will take its place beside other artistic evaluation only when a system of criticism based upon an all-inclusive and definite definition has been and definite definition has been formulated.

When all this is done, the critics will have marshalled their forces. They can then criticize music. They can then criticize fallacious methods and unsound approaches of their fellow critics. WSUI, State University of Iowa Stuart B. Miller, Jr.

Biased Blesh Show

Bronx, N. Y.

Bronx, N. Y.

To the Editors:

I have heard the show This Is Jazz on station WOR three times. Each time I told myself the show would be better next week. After the third, I gave it up.

It is the most biased show that I have heard in a long time. If the jazz (?) presented by Mr. Blesh is the only true jazz, a lot of jazz collectors might as well scrap their collections.

I assumed that the program would cover all of the phases of jazz. I have since abandoned that assumption completely. Better to listen to the "canned jazz" by Fred Robbins in New York or good old Garroway on WMAQ and hear jazz in its many forms than to listen to the circus music presented by Mr. Blesh.

In their field the guest artists are excellent. I'm panning Rudi Blesh for trying to palm off a show like that on the listening public.

Welcome home Mix! I've put a light in the window, killed the fatted calf and put a new needle in the player! The occasion? At last I see eye to eye with the boy on a record review.

I've always been a small band man, loving the more informal sessions, while Mix has steadily drifted to the super-arranged stuff of Kenton, Herman and Raeburn. My fair-haired boy has always been "Muggsy." After my sad experiment, I tundered is not enough jazz to the air. Since most of the recordings of jazzmen are not generally available, there is little or no demand to hear them on the air unless that demand has been created by plugging jazz recordings—by disc jockeys.

But the jockey finds that copies of jazz records are either old—with bad surfaces. That is, when he can find the records. Multiply that condition many times, because of small stations and a general lack of interest in jazz,

MOVIE MUSIC

Ragtime' Turtles On, Emge Moans

The re-issue of Alexander's Ragtime Band, heralded by 20th Century-Fox as the "Greatest Filmusical of all Time" and accompanied by a national campaign of exploitation equal to that of its original release almost 10 years ago (August, 1938, to be exact), is one of those things that will eventually turn us music scribes into frustrated, bitter little men who would be much better off if we would turn to some practical pursuit and drop this whole business of trying to guide others along rightcome naths.

wrong. When I Charlie mising attack I felt very heroic about it because I was young then and thought that Darry! Zanuck would probably ride me down with his polo ponies the next time I was caught on the 20th Century-Fox lot. Now I am I Wonder, etc.

New York—Van Johnson is being waxed as a singer by MGM records. Officials declare frankly, that he may be a stinker or a tremendous surprise hit. At any rate, it's worth a try, they feel. First platter, I Wonder, I Wonder, I Wonder, I Wonder, I Wonder, will be on the shelves April 25.

Alexander's Ragtime Band was the first sign that Hollywood was awakening to the importance of jazz music in its relationship to American life. A glance at the story: The Boy (Tyrone Power) is a violinist who spurns a chance at a concert career to lead a dance band in a Barbary Coast dive (the Whiteman legend cropped up because in that day almost everyone thought Whiteman was "The King of Jazz"). The Girl (Alice Faye) is the singer who gets her chance at the Big Time sooner than the Boy and his band. The Boy marches off to World War I. He comes back to find the Girl married, but not too happily, to his former piano player (Don Ameche). Another singer (Ethel Merman) cheers him up; he starts his band again, this time to reach what is represented as a pinnacle of success with a "jazz concert" at Carnegie Hall with a 50-piece orchestra.

And now I might just as well

D-piece orchestra.

And now I might just as well orchestra".

quote from one of my laboriously ground out diatribes directed a g a in st Alexander's Ragtime Band and published in Septem-ber of 1938;

"The musical idea involved in the picture is all wrong. It presumes to show the evolution of imerican dance music into something that approaches in art, but what the picture actually shows is its degeneration, as the truly vital elements in this music were suppressed by gaudy, artificial orchestral embellishment."

That was pretty hot stuff in 1938, kids. But I never did hear from Zanuck on it. However, I believe that those of us who have been plugging away along the same line haven't wasted all of our time and that Zanuck may hear from the kids when they see his re-issue, with its "jazz concert" decorated by a line of chorus girls and a band leader who does the "Charleston" while conducting his 50-piece "jazz orchestra".

New Band Leader Likes Wood Winds

Likes Wood Winds

Hollywood—Trend toward unusual instrumentation and more emphasis or wood winds in new bands now forming is seen again in high-powered outfit launched here by Bill Millner, saxman and arranger who has worked as a scorer for Benny Carter. Count Basie et al.

The Millner unit includes flute. oboe and English horn, bass clarinet, clarinet, bassoon, French horn, one trumpet, harp, drums, bass and plano. Linda Stevens is doing the vocals.

Others arranging for the band in addition to the leader are Johnny Thompson, Howard Gibeling. Le Roy Homes, Harry Rodgers and Ray Coniff, all top men among the note jugglers, Millner is backing the venture himself.

Slim Gaillard Goes Society

Hollywood — During the last weeks of Xavier Cugat's reign at Ciro's, swankest of the Sunset Strip spots, operator Herman Hover yanked Slim Gaillard out of the unpretentious Toddie House in Cuiver City and tossed him at the stuffed-shirt set.

Gaillard's antics registered so successfully with the heavy-money mob that Hover was thinking of holding him over with opening (April 11) of Jean Sablon and Jan Savitt ork.

Friml Jailed. Sues The City

Hollywood—Rudolph Friml, Jr., son of the composer of the same name, has filed a suit for $30,000 damages against the city of Los Angeles charging that he was falsely arrested and imprisoned following a minor traffic incident.

Friml says that he was erroneously given a traffic ticket for double parking. He visited the city hall to find out what he should do about contesting the matter. Traffic authorities demanded $5 bail (under the law to post bail). Friml, who is in at Warner Brothers studios, had only a dollar in his pocket, and was forthwith slapped in the clink. He was later acquitted of the traffic violation charge.

Los Angeles—The old idea that there is some relationship between crime and jazz cropped up again as our local law men, embarrassed by their failure to solve the city's most revolting murder in many years, the "Black Dahlia" case, staged a well publicized "raid" (newspoper photogs were given special advance invitations) on the Central Ave. hotspots. Musicians, entertainers, customers (particularly in mixed parties) were arrested right and left.

"Breeding places where crimes are planned", said a local police official about some of my favorite spots. Okay, son, you could be right. But I'd like to see the comparative records of the kids picked up on Central Ave. and an equal number selected from those who hang out on the Sunset Strip.

Treniers Tagged, Cleared

Among those picked up and booked on the Central Ave. "raid" were the Trenier Twins, on a concealed weapon charge or something, and one little-known guitarist on a marijuana ticket. Charges against them and others taken in on the round-up were dismissed the next day. But the daily papers didn't report that!

California Aims Law At Unions

Sacramento — Under prodding of Earl Carroll, the Hollywood theater-restaurant operator who has been campaigning against the musicians' union since his recent run-in with that body over the employment of three "extra" musicians, the state legislature is considering a bill which would outlaw the union's minimum quota requirements.

A measure, already labeled by the press as an "anti-Petrillo bill," has been introduced by Assemblyman Phil Davis of Los Angeles. The Davis bill, if passed, will make it illegal for labor unions to demand the employment of a given number of men on any job. It will also outlaw the practice of forcing employers to pay stand-by musicians.

The musicians' union of Los Angeles classes Carroll's establishment as a theater and as such subject to the union's ruling that the orchestra must be composed of no less than 15 men

Fabulous Piano Rolls Dubbed On Records

By GEORGE HOEFER

The Century Record Company has just completed an interesting experiment. Meltzer's firm is dedicated to reissuing and preserving music in the New Orleans and blues tradition. The Spring catalogue lists 25 releases of obscure legendary pazz records originally on the old Paramount label. To coax an extra response out of the collecting fra-ternity, Century is offering 10-inch discs recorded from four fabulous piano rolls.

H. H. Hollis of Portland, Oregon, sent the rolls to Meltzer and the latter spent time and work devising a method to have masters cut. This is the first time this kind of dubbing has been done and Sam Meltzer reports the reproductions can now be enriched by the addition of the following once unobtainable performances: Century 4000 Jelly Roll Morton's Dead Man Blues and Cliff Jackson's Hock Shop Blues; Century 4001 J. P. Johnson's Make Me A Pallet On The Floor and Fats Waller's 18th Street Strut.

Little Brother Montgomery's Quintet recorded an album for Disc in Chicago last month. Personnel included, besides Little Brother's piano, the trumpet of Lee Collins, New Orleans clarinetist Oliver Alcorn, Ernest Crawford, who recorded many sides with Memphis Minnie on bass, and Pork Chops (Jerome Smith) drummer.

The titles of the four tunes waxed are tentative. Lee Collins suggested Lee, Woman I Love, and Lonesome Man Blues. Robert H. Stendahl of Gary, Indiana, and Northwestern University supervised the date for Moe Asch's label. Clambake was held in the same studio in which Lee Collins made records with Jelly Roll Monton in 1924 for the Autograph label. It was then called The Marsh Laboratories and is now known as the Chicago Recording Studios. Blues vocals on the sides were handed by Little Brother Montgomery.

JAZZ CLUBS: Robert J. Lenhert announces the formation of the Cornell Rhythm Club in Ithaca, N.Y. by two hundred musicians, record collectors and students interested in jazz. Organization held a concert April 19th with Duke Ellington's band in person and plans future lectures, record sessions, and concerts as well as maintaining a jazz library on the campus of Cornell University. No doubt one of Down Beat's first jazz authorities, Marshall Stearns, is again getting active. Monte Ballou writes from Portland, Oregon, of the formation of The Portland Collector's Club. This group has been allotted an hour a week time on radio station KALE. Interests on led to the formation of The Portland Collector's

As described in the adjoining columns, Hugh Sandefur faces life bravely and cheerfully from the bed to which he has been confined for 14 years. Szigeti Book Is Interesting

Readers of Joseph Szigeti's autobiography, With Strings At-tached, will end up with a very confused notion as to where he was in what year and why.

They will also end up profoundly regretting not knowing the extremely ebullient and charming musician unself-consciously depicted in these pages. Reviewers have said this book lacked continuity. It does. But it will give you excellent insights into why Szigeti was the kind of man who insisted on playing the Prokofieff Violin Concerto when ryarious concert management interests here told him it was "audience death", and badgered Columbia Records into recording various bits by his countryman, Bela Bartok.

Even more interesting are the

"A couple of weeks ago the solo trumpet player of our local symphony (who, by the way, is rated among the first seventeen nationally) was in the store looking for a new instrument. I took several instruments into our testing room and among them was the Frank Artist Model.

"He played quite a long time on the other instruments, giving each one a very fair test. When he came upon the Frank, he asked various questions and then started to blow.

"I wish you could have seen this chap's face light up after he blew just a couple of notes on this instrument. His first words were, 'Boy, where did you get this horn?' He wouldn't let it go. He tells me it is undoubtedly the finest instrument he has ever played."

Vaughan Wows Them At TD Reorganizes For Casino 11:60 Club Jazz Concert

(Reviewed at the Twin Terrace Room, Chicago)

Sarah Vaughan, Sonny Stitt's Octet, and Mel Henke inaugu-

Sarah Vaughan, Sonny Stitt's Octet, and Mel Henke inaugurated the new concert series sponsored by Dave Garroway with a momentum atomically applied. The atom smasher in this case was Sarah's singing. However, the contributions of the other musicians kept the atmosphere electrified. Sarah's use of her voice is a musical miracle as well as a paradox. Her introduction to music via piano lessons kept her natural horn singing talent free to force itself out when ready. Nearly 600 patrons sat enthralled while Lie Vaughan opened her mouth wide and molded her tones into exquisite phrases. Her delivery as closely emulates an instrument as this reviewer has ever heard a singer accomplish. The influence of such instrumentalists as Gillespie and Parker is evident. The inflections she rendered to the melodic lines of September Song, Man I Love, Body and Soul. My Kinda Love, You're Not The Kind and Mean To Me were stimulating and novel.

The concert was so well timed and organized that the happy medium between a concert hall atmosphere and a cabaret setting was realized. The auditors were Young. Two trumpet soloists were showcased, one of them, Gail Brockman played in the middle register while George Treadwell (Sarah Vaughan's husband-manager) took the high ones. Sonny Stitt's alto was Parkerish but overshadowed by the tension built up by Ammons in spite of the latter's tendency to be repetitious. The rhythm section was as adequate as a rhythm section can get in bebop. The drummer was goateed and the bass man ferocious when the spotlight hit him square in the face. The guitarist's amplifier wouldn't work. Roy Currall, ofay pianist, took his only solo on Hot House late in the afternoon.

".there are no stripped threads on my Drums!"

On Leedy drums there's no roughing-up of threads to weaken or destroy the EVEN tension, because Leedy's heat treated rods, more durable than ordinary steel, are threaded in brass receiving tubes - the perfect combination for permanence and strength. (Even the thread is designed especially for smoothness and durability.) Wise drummers, who know the helplessness that comes with stripped threads, are unanimous in their support of this Leedy feature - just one of the many "hidden qualities" built into all Leedy instruments. Jazz Slants In Latest Novel

George Sklar, screen writer, is the latest to attemptnot without some success—to convey in a novel the relation-ship between a person's feeling for jazz and his or her emo-tional contacts with society. In The Two Worlds of Johnny Trure, Sklar tells the love affair of a 17-year-old boy and a 30-year-old woman whose husband is an army dyer. From a less sympathetic view point it might appear to be just a case of juvenile delinquency compounded with adultery.

Tabury Trure is quite a boy—

Johnny Truro is quite a boy-budding artist, an athlete, a budding artist, an athlete, a Don Juan (when he condescends). Helen Borden is beautiful, super-charged, sensitive, and artistically frustrated. There is quite a bit of lively reading in what Johnny learns from Helen and Helen learns from Johnny, and much of it is in good honest words.

In the month since Chubby bought into the spot, business has jumped on week-ends... enough to make the so-so week days tolerable. A very good trick, you must admit, for someone who insults so many of his customers... musically, that is. All night, dancers and would-be dancers have come up to Chubby asking him to play rhumbas or waltzes "... Or just play," they've said sarcastically as Chubby swung out on his dance-defying music. It seems that once upon a time, there was a promising song writer named Bennie Benjamin who had just been released from the army after three years of service. The shop was a block from the Brill building, so George got all mixed up with the glamorous, successful song writers and plenty of the also-rans.

George's idol was Bennie Benjamin. because Benny proved the friendliest, most sympathetic of all, as well as the most musical. George, on his part, was the person whose ideas seemed to jibe most closely with those of the struggling song writer. Bennie had also remembered that George sometimes showed a knack at writing lyrics, which he had knocked off from time to time for fun.

Welse Promising Arranges

Weise Promising Arranger

When Bennie got out of uniform and looked up George, he found that Weiss, then 24, had also been discharged and had become an arranger. He'd done free lance work for Lopez and Henry Jerome, was staff man for Johnny Richards' short-lived but exciting orchestra and, thanks to all Johnny had taught him, had just been offered a full time job with Stan Kenton.

"How about our making a song writing team, instead?" was Bennie's offer to George.

Weiss figured he'd just be in the way. Benny needed help with the music end like he needed a hole in the head. But Bennie thought otherwise. Anyhow Bennie wanted to work with someone who was a friend. So while music publishers held their heads in anguish, "big name" Benny Benjamin went into the songwriting business with an unknown kid who'd never even submitted lyrics for publishers began turning their

New York-Bar and restaurant New YORK—Bar and restaurant patrons patrons patrons featuring spots featuring television sets will have a 20 per cent amusement tax affixed to their checks, if a recent ruling handed down by the bureau of internal revenue is put into practice.

Sam made a few phone calls and we sat down to await developments. Meanwhile, he supplied some historical details. Before the war, and just after the war began, there was reasonable activity in Rochester. Local dance men sometimes worked five nights a week, regular. At that time, the hangout used to be a different restaurant, the Waldorf. After hours, the gang used to come in for coffee. Afterwards, they'd slip their horns under their coats and go down to the men's room, of all places, for a nitely jam session. The nonmusical customers who wanted to get in objected. Eventually, during the war years, the Waldorf kept the horns out of the johns: so everybody who remained switched to the Gay Chateau.

One Long Depression

When the boys got their discharges, they came back to bad business. From then until now, one long music depression. Most one iong music depression. Most work two nights a week or less, at $9 a night for 3 hours $12 for 4. With families, too. Full time music is out. Everybody works in one of the mills during the day. Jam sessions are out, too. Too tired for kicks.

Only obvious starting point as the Columbia record shop, a abulous platter store by any and andards. Has more than 300 abels, mostly jazz, and claims to the chateau. A call came in to the Chateau. A special session had been arranged for that night. No trouble finding a pot. The guys knew a dozen loadulous platter store by any cations where business was so bad during the week they were sure no one would be around but the owner!

Beezer's Another Tough

Greatest thing about the session wasn't so much the music as the spirit of the men who played it. Here were people nuts about jazz, even though they'd gotten precious little reward from it . . . at least financially. Only the luckiest of their friends were able to make any kind of a living from playing; but they all hung on dreaming.

Beezer, the drummer, struck me because he not only sounded like. Dave Tough but even had that ex-

Before the music began, I'd been told by everyone that the real musical standout would be pianist Herb Brock. And so he was. Herb is on a modified Tatum kick. A lot of piano, but less technique and more guts than Tatum. Strange as the combination may seem, Brock plays imaginative tenor sax, too.

Herb Needs A Break

Herb is a man who must get to New York. For one thing, he's more than good enough and al-ready has worked for sizable ready has worked for sizable commercial and hot names. For another thing, being blind, he can't easily fill in time with other things. It's music or nothing and Rochester hasn't that much work.

the three Juns, America's great trio now heard on R.C.A. Victor Records.

... Weeks back, when the Three Suns recorded their first hit tunes for R.C.A. Victor, Morty Nevins played his new ACME accordion. Morty knows about accordions. He knows about the amazing tonal beauty of ACME. He knows how they stand up. Morty has been playing an ACME for seven years now, you've heard those brilliant tones on every recording made by this famed trio. The delicate harmonies. The brilliant phrasings. The inspired tones of which only ACME accordions are capable of producing.

Hear the Three Suns play "If I Had My Life To Live Over", on Victor. Listen to that ACME tone.

Morty Nevins is a great artist. He requires the finest accordion money can buy. That's why he chose ACME.

II Bucket Got A Hole In It

Tiger Rag Eh La Bas Joshua Fit Da Battle Of

Joshna Pu De Duone C, Jericho Bill Bailey Creole Bo Bo The World's Jass Crasy Farewell To Storyville

Okeh, kids here we go. Kid himself on trombone, Mutt Carey (trumpet), Barney Bigard's clarinet, Buster Wilson (piano), Bud Scott (guitar), Ed. Garland (bass) and Minor Hall (drums) make up what album producer George Avakian calls today's only real New Orleans band. This column has too many tiresome times gone through the whole routine about not comparing basic styles in any music. This music must stand on its own legs in comparison with previous records of the same type, without regard to an Ellington, Gillespie or what Avakian calls slick-smooth and vapid jump trios and quartets.

Bucket, at a medium tempo, struts some good Bigard, then goes through Ory and Carey solos into an ensemble punctuated by high trumpet namiles. Rag is played in a manner closer to its guadrille origin. Once again Bigard stands out, though the rhythm section develops a two-beat rock back of Ory and the ensemble close.

rhythm section develops a twobeat rock back of Ory and the ensemble close.

La Bas is sung by Ory in Creole, after which Mutt Carey goes off into a trumpet lead on the ensemble. Joshua is played slower than expected, but Scott and Helen Andrews on their vocal have genuine feeling for beat of vocal infection. Last chorus of Bailey moves. Bo Bo which passes as a nursery rhyme by many other names all over the country has another Ory Creole patois vocal.

Crazy has the only long Scott solo in the album, while Farebell sports another Storyville vocal by Helen Andrews.

The principle assets of New Orleans style jazz have always been tremendous drive and polyphonic or many-voiced inventiveness.

There are spots in this album which do have a good beat and a great deal of rhythmic feeling —but by and large the music lacks the wallop you can find on records made some years ago by Tommy Ladnier or actual New Orleans combinations.

There is polyphonic invention;
but by and large it is elementary, and what is more, largely made up of figures that these same musicians have played before—specially true in the cases of Carey and Ory. True invention demands fresh inspiration. Just as it is wrong for a big band to ride a riff to death, so is it wrong or rather non-fruitful for these men to be either repeating themselves or using figures which they and others before them have used in a similar manner.

Granted their sincerity of purpose, and that of Avakian, the album's director. But the world moves on, and what was a fiaming source of musical inspiration twenty-five years ago and can still be heard as such on records, is reproduced here as fitful inconsistent jazz, certainly not to be held up to young musicians either as a model of what to play or historically what was played in this era.

The past was wonderful; but it can no more be re-lived musically than any other way, however much critics, politicians, stockholders and hunt clubs would like to do so.

A passing note: the stand-out soloist of the album is Barney Bigard, who, transplanted from his New Orleans background absorbed a wealth of tonal color and harmonic invention from the Ellington band still discernible in his playing. Evidently it takes more than just raw inspiration or raw technique to furnish a finished musician—it takes a well-rolled synthesis—like Bigard.

Groovin' uses almost conventional rhythm section work (Remo Palmieri—guitar, Harold West—drums, Clyde Hart—piano and Slam Stewart—bass) with a Charlie Parker alto of superb fluidity and in-tune Dizzy, while Gimme is a blues vocal by Alice Roberts with the now more conventional implied double-time effects and stop beats in the rhythm. Hot House, a Tad Dameron idea, is somewhat mushily played, again with fine alto by Parker. These sides should show you what all the raving has been about as opposed to some of the tripe he turned out before his sickness. Gillespie's solo has a parcel of good ideas, while the final unison figures are more cleanly played.

Blue'N Boogie's piano solo is slightly shaky, and the Dexter Gordon tenor strained. Dizzy himself is not too successful. Ray is a big band disc, with a lot of sock but a very wobbly trombone chorus to sink the middle.

The usually superlative arranger-planist Todd makes one bad fluif in the middle of his Dandy solo, and wobbles on a change immediately after.

Filice, making his first wax appearance, muffs the first few bars so completely that it's hard to tell what he wanted to play. Several weeks ago after listening to an acetate of his playing, it was reported here that he swung as well as Mooney, if lacking in the latter's harmonic and tonal control. Perhaps nervousness flipped him, but from this wax at least. Filice would be murdered by Art Van Damme, let alone Mooney.

The harmonica is an extremely difficult instrument to justify over a broad musical range because its expanse of dynamics and tonal color is so narrow. Even in Sebastian's often interesting attempts to get the most out of the instrument such as Inca Dance, a duo with Bunny

By and large he succeeds, though in Dance there are times when the melodic line gets crammed around. On both these sides and in the album of show tunes he does keep you conscious of a crisp, well-defined beat and an orchestra under control at all times. Very few other big bandsters other than Ray Bloch can make that claim. Strings are said to the instrument such as Inca Dance, a duo with Bunny

By Charlie Emge

The unhappy lot of commenting on The Fabulous Dorseys, released in Hollywood shortly before this issue went to press, fell to my New York colleague, Mike Levin, following a "sneak" preview a couple of months ago. That was a relief to me as some of the people who worked on the Dorsey picture were good friends of mine, though I think they would have forgiven me for anything I said about it; most of the people who work on the musical side of movie making, like those who work in radio, know how bad the final product in both mediums often turns out.

But the picture at its worst was superior to the stuff that our newspaper "critics" had to say about it. For example, the Los Angeles Times could find nothing better than this to say:

"...The band of Tommy Dorsey, who plays himself in The Faba.

nothing better than this to say:

"... The band of Tommy Dorsey, who plays himself in The Febulous Dorseys, has been rated one of the three most popular. His band is featured in the film playing such tames as I'll Never Smile Again, Boogie Woogie, Tangerine, Marie, Green Eyes.

There was not a word about Jimmy Dorsey of any kind (that ought to start the boys battling again), let alone any mention that it was Jimmy not Tommy, who clicked on platters of Tangerine and Green Eyes.

Start 'Counterpoint'

The picture of most musical interest now in production here is RKO's Counterpoint. While this was being written some of the score was being recorded in New York by the Philharmonic Symphony under Eugene Ormandy. RKO sent a crew headed by music director C. Bakaleinikoff back to New York for the reason that Artur Rubinstein, who plays a concerto by Leith Stevens in the picture (and will appear as himself), couldn't come to Hollywood at this time. He'll be here later for the shooting.

Dana Andrews, star of Counterpoint, appears as a pianist blinded in the war. As the story opens he is playing in a honky tonk combo in Sam Francisco headed by Hoagy Carmichael. The pianist who will do the recording for Andrews and the musicians who will make up the combo headed by Carmichael were yet to be signed when this was written. If RKO gets the right men this can be a movie with a good musical side.

Frank Gaskin Fields, the first Negro composer to get an impor-

Frank Gaskin Fields, the first Negro composer to get an important scoring assignment here since William Grant Still quit the movie lots after charging that all they wanted from Negro composers was "jungle music", is doing the music for Body and Soul (no connection with the song except the title), Johnny Garfield starrer... If The Fabulous Dorseys starts a trend toward pictures about bandleaders the next to start will be an opus written by Les Brown about himself and titled Blue Devils. Pine-Thomas Productions is considering it.

New York—Jerry Gray, whose continued scorings in the Miller tra-dition are responsible for the style of the Glenn Miller band, discusses an arrangement with Tex Beneke, sax player and vocalist with the original band who has been fronting the unit since the war. The photo was made during a Victor recording session, but the band is touring theaters now, recently visited Cleveland and Cincinnati.

We want to acquaint you with the new Selmer No. 45 Signet Clarinet. The Selmer Signet is built at Selmer U. S. Headquarters at Elkhart, Indiana. You'll find it entirely different from any other clarinet you've ever played. The tone is radiantly beautiful, the scale is a new conception in accurate spacing. The feel of the gracefully designed and ruggedly built keys is just right. Time-tested Schner acoustical principles have been applied to the Selmer Signet Clarinet in a way that makes it unique among artist quality clarinets.

Once you try this clarinet, your contest entry will almost write itself. So ask your local dealer to let you try a Selmer Signet. If he hasn't received one yet, tell him to write Selmer to rush one to him before the contest closes, While it isn't necessary to actually see and try the Selmer Signet to enter the contest, it will help you.
