Rehearsals Begin Sept. 15, Several Stars Won't Return

Hollywood—With an okay from his doctor, Stan Kenton next month returns to the band business tanned and refreshed after a five meeth lay-off to regain his health.

"I've never felt better in my life," he told Down Beat, "And for the last 'few weeks I've been itching to get back into the whirt."

1st Date Sept. 27th

His opening date has been set by GAG for the Rendervous ball-room, Balboa Beach, Sept. 27 and 28. Ironical alant to this booking is that Stan was at the Balboa spot when he was discovered, signed and sent out on the road leading to national prominence.

Following the two-day break-in date, the Kenton crew will take a shake-down tour up the west coast for two weeks, returning in mid-October to cut its first sides for Capitol in five months. First recordings will be for an album to be titled Concert In Progressive Jass.

Concerts In Nov.

For November, Stan plans his first concert tour. He intends to take the band across the country on a one-month series of concerts to cover the major cities with special dates for the music departments of various universities. The concerts will set incorporate dancing and will feature only members it he band. Kenton says he will not carry outside soloists or acts. Just the Kanton regulars, he stated.

"The idea behind the tour is to add another showcase to the music we resture not styled for fancing. We've done it on records and new I'm going to give people a chance to see how it's done." Stan explain-ed.

Arranger Pete Rugolo has been with Kenton for a couple weeks now looking over the book and blue printing the addition of new material.

Confirmation was unobtainable.

Armstrong replaces the Jack McVea combo.

Trade talk has it that most of the former sidemen will return now that word of the reformation is out. Only probable holdouts appear to be Vido Museo, who is interested in fronting a medium-sized combo, and June Christy, who is working as a single. Should Christy in Jackie Cain (Chicago vocalist discovered by Jockey Dave Garrowsy and Down Beat last winter. Looking ahead, Kenton revealed that if the November concert tour proved successful. he would schedule one for two months next year to be followed a year later by a Stropean concert tour. "But, right now," he added, "Tm only interested in getting started. Every thing else will work out later."

Two or three times, then two or three times more, Warren's opening was moved up or moved back. A few Wednesdays ago, the band switch was definitely set. But things began to go acrewy the day before when Max fired Tengarden for jamming across the street at Ryans and coming back to the Door late. Jack left; but his boys stayed on the remain-ing night and a half.

Bollywood—Playing opposite a somantic star like Robert Taylor fan't all that might be expected. Take that from Audrey Totter! In Metro-Goldwy-Mayer's "The Bigh Wall," the actress wears just two dresses—and each is a somber, plain black frock that acarcely could be called "glamoroua." ### Bassist Killed

New York — Walter Bevinger, society bassist, was killed July 27 when an ambulance collided with his car while he was driving to a Brooklyn job.

New York—Ray Anthony is of-fering a $25 bond for a title to the theme he uses on Bands For Bonds, Saturdays at 1:30 p.m., BST, Mutual.

Oh, Brother!

Chicago—Ray Anthony's recent Columbia short, Disc Jockey, has a couple of quite chvious dipatet. Firstly, one and only one platter is used throughout the picture for several different numbers. It's a RCA Victor recording of Guilty, a tune Ray never recorded, nor does he wax fer Victor. Secondly, one tune, by the clock ever Fred Robbins' deak, registered 30 min'es playing time—orts long for a disc jeckey show!

 When one drummer wants to voice the ultimate in praise about another he's apt to say: "That bey plays for the band." Which means, of course, a maximum of "beat" and tone and a minimum of trills through every note of every arrangement. All musicians agree that Ray McKinley has always been that kind of a drummer throughout his fabulous career with the Dorseys, the Millers and new his ewn band. And logically enough that's exactly what Ray has to say about his SLINGERLAND Radio Kings: "They're strictly for the band with their exceptional tone, response and downright guts. Seems like I've always played SLINGERLANDS—and probably glways will!"

Unlike ASCAP, which distributes royalties by a "rating" system, BMI is set up to award a specific amount for each time a member's tune is used. Perry Alexander, chairman of the committee, claims the smaller companies are being short, changed because BMI uses a sampling system rather than an all-inchanive count.

BMI officials maintained that Alexander, head of Dubonet, music, was practically the only publisher to ktick and that they were checking through past records to determine whether Alexander's complaints were justified, an admitted possibility. The recording engineer, the acoustics expert, the matrix mold operator and others that have a hand in the finished recording all are paid a substantial salary by recording companies. These checks arrive each and every week, because the profits realized from records sold enables them to do so. Doesn't that boil down to a cut on every record sold? ## Who Does What. Which To Whon

There were meetings recently held in Washington in white juke box operators and ASCAP representatives arguing with those who feel that the 1909 copyright in uld be modified.

The point at issue is whether a man playing a tune is titled to a return for its mechanical performance in much the same fashion that the author of the song hit is.

ASCAP and the juke box operators say no, point out that when the artist records, he is paid mechanical royalta which is sufficient for the interpretation. They maintain the true genius rests with the composers of such works as I Weder, Chi Baba Chi Baba and Tallahassee.

Fred Waring and other fellows who lead orchestras cieb that the interpretation is as much a part of the performant as the composition. They are quite willing to give the case poser his share of the loot, but claim that without their imitable touch, the registers will not ring, the hoopers blooper and the wax warp on the shelf.

We wonder what would happen if the following list wen submitted to several thousand American citizens:

In The Mood ... Sing, Sing, Sing ... Sentimental Journal
Begin The Beguine and all the rest.

We strongly suspect our good men and true would answer Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman, Les Brown and Artie Shee much faster and more frequently than Wingy Manone, Lock Prima, Ben Homer and Cole Porter. Like it or not, the WAT in which a tune is played seems to be as important to the citizens as does the tune itself.

Frankly some of the tunes just aren't important.

So it seems to us that the most honorable gentlemen for ASCAP and the juke box associations are considerably of base. If the treatment of a song weren't important, the resentatives of ASCAP wouldn't fight to get particular base to record it in a particular manner.

And then again, it could probably be proven that artistic creation goes into the average arrangement than in

Some of the ASCAP'S steller lights have solemnly i statements that they cannot readily distinguish between the treatments given a sone by various erchestres, that the M itself is the only thing that matters.

Thus we have the cheery spectacle of our song-smiths mying they are such bad musicians that Blue Barron, Dub Ellington and Claude Thornhill all sound alike.

This then to all intents in purposes means that the ASCAP. IANS have tin ears. Or then again, that they are most terrib ly anxious to make and protest that buck!

To our performing artists the only redress we can offer h this: slaughter any tune you see, gentlemen. Proceed with the most charming disregard for any of the nicetien by volved. After all, the guys that write them say it doesn't make any difference.

New Louis Discovery On Okeh?

The collector's pastime of. "it is Louis it isn't Louis", has started again with an Eva Tavior-Clarence Williams record. The disc is a contratto-baritone duet with cernet and banjo accompaniment on Okeh 8183 made in October 1924 in New York City. Siden are Arkansaw Blues (72912) and Terrible Blues (72913). The possibility of Armstrong being on the date is abetted by the fact that masters 72914 (Texas Moaner). 72915 (Early In The Morning) and 72916 (You've Got The Right Keyhole). However, it is also very possible it is not Louis in as much as the latter masters were cut by the entire Clarence Williams Blue Five on 72914 and 72915. Poter Tanner of England, recently in the states on a bunishess of 1 p, uncovered name interesting information from Joe Tarte in New Tork City per taining to Louis Armatrong's recording activities. While Louis was playing with Fletcher Henderson at the Roseland ballroom in George 1824 the alternating band was Sam Lanin's, with Red Nichols and Joe Tarte amongst others. Lanin received a recording date from Columbia and asked Louis to drup down to the studio and sit in with his band on the sides. Louis took choruses on both sides but unfortunately the records were never issued. When Tanner saw Red Nichols on the west coast the latter confirmed the story.

Jazz-Hot published since 1935 by the Hot Club de France in English and in French, was before the war the main international periodical devoted to "le hot". It has resumed publication since the beginning of 1945 and uses again its original title, after appearing for awhile as the Bulletts du Hot Club de France, Very informative articles by the editors Hugues Panassie and Charles Dalaunay appear regularly in each issue, but several foreign contributors whose writings were often real monuments of fazz criticism seem no longer connected with this magazine.

Jazz-Hot is now entirely written in French and considerably more space than before is devoted to French musicians, who also contribute various technical columns ("Talking about arganess."

The weakly Meledy Maker which has apeared throughout the war in a very condensed form, gives all the news about English bands. Each issue includes an extensive column for record fans and the "Collectors' Corner" by Max Jones and Rex Harris, to which all well known European collectors forward valuable information.—(Meledy Maker, 93 Long Acre, London W.C.2).

Jazzelogy started as the organ of the American Jazz Society of London, but has since become an independent publication. The edit-ors' main interests apparently go to blues and Dixleland. However, ors' main interests apparently go to blues and Dixteland However, articles of all tendencies by outside contributors are published, unfortunately without much critical discrimination, (So called revelations about Bix Beiderbecke, carried in recent issues, turned out to be nothing else but very skilfful fiction anonymously submitted by an only too well informed jaxx critic.) The editorial staff contributes regular features, namely Jazz Jive (news), Clausicus of Jazz (comments on recordings of standards), Your Record Library, Digglin Diacs, Jazz Lexicon and Hot Club of London News. Some of the best articles are reprints from foreign magazines. (Jazzology, 208 High Street, Harleeden, London N.W.10. As a result of the current paper shortage, the publication has recently been suspended until further notice.)

Faafare (Music Parade) is mostly a magazine for the amateur musician, with technical articles written by the foremost English Jazz instrumentalists, Each number also includes an official news release of the British Musicians' Union, a record review and features about English and Continental bands.—(Faafare, 31 Whitcomb Street, London W.C.2.) Sinclair Trail and T. B. Denby publish Picks-Up, the English counterpart of the Record Changer. While the record advertisements take up most of the space, there are always several short but very informative articles and a quite amusing column, entitled At the sign of the Cat and the Gate.—(Pick-Up, 171 Quinton Road West, Harborne, Birmingham.)

That so much can be written about jazz, has be be seen to be believed. To give you some idea of its quantity and variety, I have compiled the following list of European jazz periodicals together with some more remarks. A real analysis of the ideas expressed by some European critics would take a book.

Music In San Francisco Is A Dead Duck, Gleason Finds

By RALPH GLEASON

San Francisco—Let me tell you all about how it is here, far far from the Argyle Lounge, the Onyx Club and Nick's. The music business in San Francisco and Oakland reached an all time low this spring and early summer. Big hotels like the St. Francis and Mark Hopkins booked local takent. Savitt and Raymond Scott played the Palace Hotel and both laid large egg. La Watters and als Yerbs Buens boys closed at the Pawn Club and the Green Room felded and Rid Ory left town.

Stan Kenton, booked for a week closed at the Dawn (Tub and the Green Room felded and Kid Ory left town.

Stan Kenton, booked for a week into the Havana (Sweet's) in Oakland, laid such an egg that the said of the kooking was cut and a one-niter in Watsonville was hastily substituted. It was so badly handled—no placards, not even a simple sign outside the auditorium—and which was so high ($1.85) that it din't draw flies despite the fact that it was the only thing that had happened in Watsonville since the 1946 harvest. Billy Eckstine played a one-niter in the Trianon Ballroom in the Fillmore district and drew less than 200 people. One of the three dance halls in Oakland folded. On a cold night in March there were only 22 couples dancing in the Palace.

Musical Standstill

Musical Standstill
All in all things musical were at a standstill in the Bay Area. They're a little better now, but not much. King Cole played a concert at the War Memorial Opera House (first venture of its kind in that spot, incidentally) under the sponsorship of John Bur-Ton, Oakland promoter, and failed to fill the house. They did good business, though, on one niters in San Jose, Watsonville, Stockton and Santa Cruz.

The Ink Spots headed an all-colored bill at the Paramount Theater on Market Street for that house's first live show in ten years. June Richmond and Johnny Otis were also featured. The show played to a packed house every performance for a week.

Watters On Weekends

Watters On Weekends
Lu Watters and his crew got together enough scratch a couple of months back to buy the old Sally Rand.club on San Pablo avenue out in El Cerrito. They've renamed it Hambons Kelly's and the boys play weekends while Wally Rose, the planist, plays "backroom piano" in the backroom (where else?) during the rest of the week. Opening night drew a good crowd, mostly college kids from the California and Stanford campuses, and old line Watters followers.

The Frisco Jaxx Band. Watters rivals, are now out of a job. They closed at the Melody Club in Oakinand where they had been all winter, and are now playing occasional one-niters with Clancy Hayes.

Harold Blackshears' Supper Club on Fillmore street, has Saunders King and his band plus Amos Milburn, bw star and vocalist. Business has been good there as well as at the California Theater Club

The Concert Story

Idonei Hampton drew a good crowd July 13 into the Oakland Civic Auditorium, but that's all Morman Granz came through last March and gave a real balled up affair at the Scottiah Rite Temple. Supposedly set for two performances in one evening, tickets were sold on that basis but only one performance was held! There was great confusion in the balcony.

The Edgewater, dine and dance booking in name bands this summer. Tony Pastor spened the spot followed by Charile Barnet and Case Loma. Business has been fair but far from booming.

Bost Bay Band

The best band in the area now, in the one at the Broadway Dancing Acadamy in Oakland which features Elliz Horne, Paul Lingle Herb Sandford, Al Zone and Ernic Kohlstad. Bert Bayles will be back at his old stand the 1018 Club in the Fillmore District shortly and Billic Heywood and Cliff Allen are opening next week at the Sarong Club where Don & Cookle (a fine colored team, Don plays the plane and Cookle sings) have been featured for the past year. But the town is really dead.

A local publicist and showman larney Gould, has announced plans for a showboat anchored in the bay. He plans to open in a few months with a vaudeville theater a fining room and a Dixieland band.

Even the radio stations in this area are quiet. Symphony Sid or Freddie Robbins would be a sense tion here. The nearest thing was a little program Nick Nickolson had for a while on KSAN this spring but they dropped him because he played "too much jazz". KRE in Berkeley has Vivian Borman of the Yerba Buena Music Shop in a jazz classics program on Sunday nights and that's all.

DISC JOCKEYS SOUND OFF

Press Agents Can Be Very Annoying, According To Sid

By SYMPHONY SIO

New York—Dig me! I'm a writer. At least that's what they call guys who get their monicker above stories. Now if I only had a story to tell. Usually my press agent does all the writing for me which reminds me—as long as I can swind off, I think I'm start high-jiving about a certain type of publicity man — the super-friendly kind who does nothing but hound the disc jockey shows. There characters gel paid (or do they?) just to tote their client and their client's records up to the jockeys to sound off and air their gripes against conditions in the music business in this breoay place by Symphony Sidney and his wax like they really knew what they were talking about.

about.

Not that I'm trying to pass myself off as a music critic. Not me, pops. Too many frantic things happening these days in the jazz world for me to take time out and start sounding off on what's good and what's not with music, musicisms or radio. If the cats and chicks like a certain platter and keep phoning in requests for it, we play it. But back to the guys I'm beefing about.

Those Unexpected Guests

Are you other jockeys plagued by the type who struts into your studio unannounced and without letting you know beforehand that he'd like to bring his client up for a guest shot, and then slaps a record down in front of you, slaps you on the back and makes with a smile that would do justice to a Pensodent ad? And all the time his client stands there with a sort of embarrassed expression that shows he was nuts when he hired the press agent but what can he to shout it... times are tough?

Or am I the only soft hearted lad in this game who leaves his door wide open for flacks who feel they accomplish the promotional stunt of the century if you say "Joe Schmaltz, that handsome cat with a real gone voice, just walked in with his latest record. What's that Joe. Oh, yeah, it's on Vietor, of course!" And then you play the record because you don't want to take it out on this sad ack with the golden larynx, especially when he's standing there right in front of your face.

"Swell record. Joe. And nice to have you pay us a visit. What's that again. Joe? The Roseland Baliroom and then to Chicago for two weeks at the Cave Inn and then a short subject for Monogram and then a well earned vacation? Buy, you sure are a busy guy, Joe. Drop dead again some time. I mean drop in again, oi' man." And then the press agent sinds off just like he started, with a spine-splitting slap and a beeg smile and a "give that record a terrific send-eff for Joe and me. huh. kid." and if he's in a magnanimous mood out comes a cigar or a ticket to Joe's sext short subject. And then you can return to playing the records the kids call in for, 'cause that's what you're getting paid to do. Nice job.

And this same character keeps Just Can't Lose 'Em

And this same tharacter keeps as alling up every day after that on the half hour and squawks. "Jeez, when de hell are yuh gonna play Jee's records? De kid's sensational everybody's talking about him." And I get witty with "Sure, they all want to know how the devil did he ever get on records," which is funny, n'est pas? All oght, n'est pas? And after that some giddy gal phones in lo ask about Joe's record and just before you say helle you hear

And a photographer poses us all for a family shot that oughta go in Bellevue's files and the girls make with the shapely legs and the teeth and the press agent tells you about the tremendous spread he's getting you just because you've been such a right guy with his Joe and for the next two months you keep searching the music mags and all you see about yourself is your brother-in-law's obituary (I should be so lucky!) And from the moment the photos are taken the camera-man keeps hounding you because, says he, the press agent 'told me you were going to take care of all this." ### First Year Big One For The Jack Fina Ork

By Sheroe A. Poese

Birthday greetings to the talented and personable pian-lat Jack Fina who is 34 years old today (13). Jack first moved into the limelight as a composer - arranger, through clever adaptations of classics. Now, as a pianist-leader of his own orchestra, he is making rapid progress in the race for popularity. Last week (4) his organiza-tion began an indefinite run at the swank Starlight Roof, Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

This, following a successful ten-week engagement at the Empire Boom, Palmer House, Chicage, and up to quite an accomplish-ment for a band that was organ-ted just a little more than a year

Jack was born in Passaic, N. J. but later moved to Clifton, N. J., where at the age of 7 he began his musical training. Regular studies continued throughout elementary and high school under the tutelage of local teachers. Then he enrolled at the New York College of Music and during the next five years continued the study of piano as well as harmony, theory, and composition.

Clyde McCoy preceded his 11 year association, as featured pianist and arranger, with Freidy Martin. Utilizing his training and experience in the classics, Fina worked out his now farmous interpretation of Tonight We Love from Tuchnikowsky's Piano Concerto in B Flat Misor. The arrangement was an immediate success (the Victor waxing has sold over 2.000,000 copies to date) and moved Fina into the mailonal limelight.

Other adaptations followed including I Look At Heaven, from Grieg's Piano Concerto, and Bumble Beogie, from Rimsky-Korsa-kow's Flight Of The Bumble Bee. It was the tremendous success of the latter that inspired Fina to form his own orchestra, and was quite neiters.

rnnadelphia—What the music business needs is a few more Frank Palumbos. James C. Petrillo says only 30 per cent of the nation's musicians are making a tiving. Surveys show an alarming slump in the music business generally, with special emphasis among the name bands. But, it's a different story where Frank Palumbo is concerned.

NEWS-FEATURES

Palumbo is the 30-year-old night club and musical bar operator of Philadelphia. He was the piencer in the musical bar type of gay apot. And he now conducts the affairs of five of this city's leading places of that form of entertain-ment, including the Click, Since the opening of the Click, in a popular idiom. He plans to record this composition in the mear future, with erchestra ac-companiment, and will select a title at that time.

The introduction is an arpeggio progression of fundamental harmonies that firmly establishes the key and melodic style. Section A is built on a two-measure rhythmic pattern and, with the exception of cleverly written modern harmonic sequences, is reminiscent of the artistic piano solos of the post-World War I period, characterized by rhythmic drive and excellent form. As previously mentioned. Jack's style, like that of the late Bob Zurke and other prominent soloists, was influenced by the veteran pianist Art Schutt. The bass figure, in section A is an example of this influence.

In section B, the languid melody

In section B, the languid melody in thirds, presents a desirable contrast between "bridge" and principal theme. This melody combined with the chromatic fifths and tomotom rhythm of the left hand creates the "warm breeze" (Malaguena) effect of a tropical island time.

8800,800 music bill, to be exact.

A modest and shy person, he has expanded Palumbo's restaurant, which was started in 1884 by his grandfather, into a chain of five of the city's most fam'us establishments, in the brief space of 16 years after he took charge. The original Palumbo's was a boarding house for Italian immigrants to this city.

Since the opening of Click, the largest and most lavish of the Palumbo ventures, there has been an uninterrupted succession of the na-tion's top name bands.

James Date Big

Harry James recently came within a few hundred of equalling the record established for Click by Yaughn Monroe last fail. Monroe sengagement was during the early days of Click, when the place, was still an attraction for those eager for a first glimpse of the new wonderland. James' dete was on the Fourth of July weekend, with plenty of Atlantic City competition.

Next came Kavier Cugat, who was featured at Click this spring. While attracting alightly less attendance than James and Monro, he rang up almost as many purchase dollars on the cash registers. He brought in more and bigger apenders. Fourth was Louis Prima.

Besides the $300,000 Click, which accomodates 2500 persons at one time. Palumbo operates Palumbo's, Ciro's, the 20th Century and the Cove. In addition he's a director of the city's most elegant private club, the C R club. All are musical bars, with the exception of Palumbo's and Ciro's which, in addition to music, offer stage shows.

For all these places in the past year the music bill totaled $800,-800. That's the largest figure spent by any individual for music some in the whole country.

Apparently Frank Palumbo was responsible for a large portion of that 30 percent of musicians being able to make a living, according to the Petrillo statistics.

Question Of Phics

music.

If he can find a critic to propup his ego with a compliment, the damage is done. For if he has a musician with a following, his example will now be followed by other musicians, and since no one likes to live in isolation, other critics will seen complete with the complete of the complete complete complete with the complete com tempore playing to scores or even head arrangements. There is no source way of robbing the musicians of a living than to advocate a course of action which would cut them off from their andience. And harmonic development has never been put the fradition to which American dence music owes his amazing success. What the early jazamen did was simple and yet considerably more samples by legitimate standards sham what the be-bop boys are doing today. They took simple tunes based on the fundamental fonit-dominant-subdominant relationship and invented variations apon them by playing around with the heat, the timbre, the vibrate and the microtone values between the microtone values between the microtone values between the microtone values between the fiftee sees it ties in properties of American office sees it ties in properties the state of the sees in the incompany polyphonic, spirit of American office sees it ties in properties the offic the major and the minor.

All this was truly revolutionary as a step in musical progress. There was no precedent for it in the whole history of European music. And every one of the basic elements was interconnected: if you replaced the fundamental obord structure by a more complex one, you automatically reduced the scope for the three other variables. And so with each of them: every attempt to expand one of the basic elements at the expense of another one led to an upset in the balance of the whole performance.

Praises Early Greats

Praises Early Greets

What attracted people to it was undoubtedly the complexity of the performance in contrast to the simplicity of the chord structure. And what kept the performance alive was the amount of extemporisation allotted or allowed to the individual musician. I am not speaking of the cliche brand of Dixieland which is little more than a head arrangement of a limited number of phrases originally improvised by the founding fathers of the music and remembered by their imitators ever since. I am speaking of such musicians as Armstrong, Bechet and Bessie Smith whose wealth of extemporaneous inventiveness has been incorporated into the work of the imitators but whose own work has consistently remained personal without ever losing the fundamental values that made the musiciants an original idiom and as sutowithout ever losing the funda-mental values that made the music into an original idiom and an auto-nomous tradition.

What attracts people to New Or-What attracts people to New Or-leans tazz is the quality it shares with all folk music: the simplicity of statement. What attracts people to legitimate music, on the other hand, is its complexity of state-ment. What keeps folk music alive is loyalty to a tradition; what keeps legitimate music alive is constant experiment saed upon precedent. When Schonberg began to develop the theories of the 12-tone school, the most drastic musi-cal innovation of the last half cen-tury, he insisted that his pupils cal innovation of the last half cen-tury, he insisted that his pupils should first master all of Bach's fugues and all of Beethoven's last quartets. Would it be unreason-able to expect that a modern dance musician, before trying his hand at harmonies borrowed from De-bussy, Ravel and Delius, should musician, before trying his hand at harmonies borrowed from De-bussy, Ravel and Delius, should first prove that he has learned to play New Orleans jazz?

Trained Ears Appreciative

The question is not rhetorical for we have reached a point where the legitimately trained musician will listen with interest and affection to Armstrong's old Okeh discs or to Bessie Smith's Columbias the legitimately trained musician will listen with interest and affection to Armstrong's old Okeh discs or to Bessie Smith's Columbias because they sum up a universal neathern with simplicity and perfection which neither Bach nor Scholinberg could have surpassed. But play one of the "harmonically complex" records of the "modern" school to a musician really versed in harmony and he will hold his head with incredulty that American dance musicians, with so much of a revolutionary tradition of their own behind them, should fall back mimply because no one in a competitive business could afford to be considered a backnumber; so you had to play be-bop or be considered oid hat and find yourself treated with the kind of contempt which BG has received ever since he made up his mind that be-bop was a stunt and not a form of music. BG can afford it—he has money of his own. Others can't afford it—they'll have to go along whether they like it or not. And soon, m self-defense, you'll find them pretending that it was all done for musical progress.

Terial of the bands we hear. And certainly the corporate structure of the head music which musicians have to music, BG can afford it—he has money of his own. Others can't afford it—they'll have to go along whether they like it or not. And soon, m self-defense, you'll find them pretending that it was all done for musical progress.

Core of Moldy Apple

The whole argument, of course, is just a little lopsided, but there is a core of truth in the moldy apple. What is significant about it, however, is not the question whether it's true or false, but the fact that it has split the public as well as the musicans into such inconsolable enemies as exemplified by, say, Dave Tough and Wild Bill, or Feather and Blesh, If there had been any critics at all who could have propounded some workable critical standards, it obviously would have been possible for the musicians as well as for the public to weigh the argument and get some indisputable answers. The very fact that the argument continues with such vehenience might therefore well be considered as proof of the suspicion that all the critics have in fact been disguised partisans.

nio rann between a municum a pockethook and what the public will accept.

The future of jazz as this Beat office sees it lies in preserving the polyphonic spirit of American music, both in solue and arrangements, and encouraging municians to become an schooled as possible in all phases of so-called current serious inusic. After all, with improved technique a munician does not necessarily have to this improvinations to simple flatted triads.

You can't deay a dance musicum to can't deay a dance musicum. critics have in fact been disguised partisans.

What has become obvious at this point of the controversy is the fact that there can be none of that reconciliation which all of its would welcome and for which Down Beat's editorial policy stands; such reconciliation can only be reached on a plane of reasonably disinterested analysis, and disinterested analysis is hardly ever possible until the struggle is over. While the critical verbiage remains nothing but a set of catch words to veil the hard economic facts of life in the music business. It is idle for the critics to tell the musicians what sort of music to play. If it pays, they will play it; if it doeant, so amount of argument will sway them. flatted triads.
You can't dony a dame musiviou can't dony a dame musivious his tradition. Nor can you deny him the written influences around him. The successful blend of the two is what will yield the most fruitful brand of that music we choose to call USA. on the worst elements of nine-teenth century impressionism.

What has made the situation so serious is the fact that the musi-cians of the traditional school and their historians are firmly con-vinced that the whole "progress sive" school of dance music is nothing but a slick publicity stunt which has ruined the musicians while making wealthy men of their apologists. They believe firmly that the critics who have encour-aged the musicians to get lost in the blind siley of harmonic com-lexity are playing both ends one blind alley of harmonic complexity are playing both ends against the middle by drawing press agent's pay on one side and critic's pay on one side and critic's pay on the other, and by diaguising their press agentry as objective criticism. Obviously, if this is true, something more than a discussion of music is at stake in the controversy between the old school and the new. What it is all about, then, is a question of business ethics and of moral integrity, and as such it cuts from the critics right across to the musicians. For if a musician finds that a certain kind of music pays better than another kind, he is likely to try and go after it; and in order to keep his self-respect, he is likely to pretend not only to others but to himself as well that the music which pays better also happens to be better music.

Everyone is Confused

Some of the critica, especially those on the trade journals, have realized this for quite some time, and instead of arguing about musical values, they have come to set up such non-committed standards as cleanliness of execution. The musicians themselves, meanwhile, to avoid controversy, have shelved all discussion of what's good and bad in music and have come to some sort of common meeting ground by accepting instrumental virtuosity as their main test of achievement. The result, of course, is that the discussion of musical content has been replaced by an argument about purely formal elements which have nothing to do with the real values of music. Into this fallacy of thought falls the suggestion made in the discussion between Mr. Leon D. Wolff and his opponents (Down Beat, April 9 et seq.) that "jazz records should be reviewed separately under various divisions ranging from New Orleans jazz ta big band swing music" and that separate standards should be applied to each category. Obviously, this ta sellout of all musical standards. If music is judged for formal reasons and not for reasons of content, it is debased of all values that mark the difference between good art the difference thetween good art and bad. Whether a man masters his horn to perfection is less important than whether he has something to say on it or not. And whether something is new or not is of less importance than whether it's in good taste.

Whole industry involved

the radio industry and its tie-ins with the recording companies have something to do with the kind of music which musicians have to play for a living. Utilimately, if there is an answer, it will lie in Washington and in the local administration of our political machines rather than in the ide chitchat of the so-called jazz critics. And if Mr. Lord really wants to do something about the state of jazz, he may have to start with a frew pretty little articles on something or other of which the musicians won't take any notice anyway.
