The Clique opened early last winter with a Roost-aping policy and has teetered on the red and black line ever since. Charlie Barnet's band closed the music policy. Irving Alexander, Clique op, said he was switching to a girl show because there were not enough bop attractions and the prices on them had gone too high.

"The agents are jacking up prices by playing one joint off against another," he complained. "When I can buy the right attractions at the right prices, I'll go back to bop."

Stop The Rhapsody, Mab Told

New York-Johnny Richards' arrangement of Rhapsody in Blue for Charlie Barnet's new book became center of legal hassel in mid-March when Harms, owners of copyright on Gershwin piece, decupyright on Gerahwin piece, de-manded Barnet stop playing it and threatened to sue the Clique, where he was starred then, if club let him continue to play it.

Calling Barnet's version an "un-authorized arrangement," Harms demanded he "surrender manu-scripts and copies thereof to us for destruction."

Will This, Gulp, Be Bop's Successor? Individuals In

New York—There is now something after be-hop: "critigoo" it is and was March 4 when over WCBS-TV some of the town's music scribers did to death three choruses of Exactly Like You under the guise of a jam session.

Sawing away for dear life were Lea Lieber of This Week, pooing on a golden alto sax, Billboard's Bill Simon who murmured briefly into a clarinet, and Leonard Feather of Modern Screen who announced he had turned to celeste aince that instrument distinguished a right hand.

The drumming was paradiddled by Metronome's George Simon, while the Beat's Mike Levin honked and tonked on piano.

The boys fused for 30 minutes in rehearsal, setting a routine, and fighting out which was the casiest key to play in. Strange to say there were no quarrels about who was going to play the most choruses, the boys adopting an extremely modest attitude about displaying their talents.

Whispers of "play blues in B flat" and "whatinell are the changes."

(Ed. Note: There are only five in Exactly Like You) were to be heard as well as some 11ths which sounded suspiciously like missed fifths. Hidden in the band were two CBS staff musicians on hass and trumpel to give "body and coherency" to what came out.

Musicians present were undecided about the jam session's general tyle, agreed that it was a cross between the worst music they were had heard and a brass hand trying to remember what it had heard Buddy Bolden say. The mess was labeled critigoo, and at least one staffer announced he would pit it against bop any day.

Payoff to the whole bash came when the band, lead by a four-bar Simon drum solo, fell with a sigh of relief into a straight old Dixie walkoff.

Victor Gets Off It Laine Turns Away To Push 45 RPMs

New York-Tipoff on the merchandising pressure Victor is put-ting behind its 45 RPM rapidchange records is the fact that, for the first time in its history, the company is allowing dealers 100 per cent returns until August 1. Despite the optimistic front company officials put up about the 45s, the firm apparently feels it will have to pull out all the stops to achieve a competitive position with Columbia's already well-established LPs.

published consumer Fact that published consumer reaction to date has been, in general, favorable to LP and unfavorable to 45 doesn't make Victor's outlook any brighter. Recent issue of the Saturday Review of Literature's Recordings supplement, for instance, carried a batch of letters giving readers' reactions to a Victor-written article explaining the merits of the 45s.

Every letter was anti-45 and pro-LP. An editor's note explained that they had tried to present a representative cross-section of letters received but that not a single pro-45 correspondent had been heard from to date.

Basis of most of the objections

Basis of most of the objections was the injection of a third speed and the fact that Victor's rapid-changer, no matter how fast, could not match Columbia's complete lack of interruption on LP.

New York—Concert audiences, which have heard practically everything by now, will get the real gone end this spring—the Sweetest Music This Side of Heaven. Guy Lombardo is hitting the concert trail as part of his off-season string of one-niters, theaters, and locations.

Lombardo, who always has operated on the principle of producing music strictly for dancing, will be walking into a field which has been held heretofore by jaxs outfits which specialized in no-dance music and crews such as Spike Jones', Sammy Kaye's, Horace Heidt's, and Phil Spitalny's, which incorporated entertainment gimmicks.

Lombardo figures that there are a lot of Lombardophiles around who never get a chance to see the band, and this is one way of reaching them.

Many times, the type of location Lombardo plays is too high priced for the average citizen. Since he doesn't play many theater dates, many Lombardo fans have to be satisfied with records. So, says Guy, we do concerts.

This venture ought to provide answers to two interesting questions:

O Will straight dance music satwas just for love."

Panorama Of Jazz

• SLAVE DANCES OF Congo square, first legalized by the New Orleans Municipal council in October, 1817, "resolved that from the let of May to the 31st of August of meh year, the slaves, provided with the written consent of their masters, be permitted to assemble Sundays on the firms aguare for the purpose of dancing from 4 to 6½ "clock P. M." This custom was at first merely a projection of African tribal dances and chants but had absorbed, by the time of its abandonment in the 1880s, many of the taropean dance forms, a Westernization which was helpful in breaking ground for the enormous change in the masse of the Negro that followed the freeing of the -laves.

THE UNION OF THE musical cultures of Europe and America with their more complex melodic and harmonic structures and the rhythmically rich native music of Africa was slow and painful. The Negro found himself now able to express his feelings through European instruments, but many of the earliest "bands" contented themselves with such "instruments" as cowbella, whistles, jugopieces of pipe. washboards, homemade violins, and onestring basses. These groups, sometimes called spaam bands, were crude and unorthodox at best but fulfilled their promises well. From this most tumble beginning, jazs took shape, borrowing here and substituting there, but slowly developing into an intensely vigorous musical force.

e BY THE 1890s, the brass bands had come into existence. More advanced melodically and more refined in rhythm than any of the sporadic efforts which preceded them, they were not, however, a departure from any previous phases of development. Rather, the brass band was the first complete combination of all the musical influences, both foreign and domestic, with which the Negro had come in contact. At first, accepted by only a small segment of New Orleans society and frowned upon by practically everyone else, aspecially in the upper strata, this rough, often vulgar music held the hint of the revolt against tradition that was to follow. Jazz was on its way.

CHICAGO BAND BRIEFS

Apparently, A Couple Of Audiences Finally Sent

Chicago—Audiences in this town, in addition to being sparse, are not often noisily appreciative. Whether this is because nothing moves them, or has stirred them in so long that they've forgotten how to "let go," or that the listeners catch the apathy from the musicians themselves, we don't know. But two exceptions observed recently only emphasized the normal state. First was the resetion of the crowd at the Bee Hive when the visiting Rainy City jazz hand played their Tiger Rag.

Had heard tales of the several thousand persons, at the St. Paul dances the band played just before it came to Chicago, who screamed and shouted wildly after the Rag.

But the blasé Bee Hivers hadn't heard the story; didn't know the precedent. And they whistled and at omped, clapped, and called "more!" like nothing we have ever seen before.

Not Exactly Kids

The enthusiasm of the Seattle kids—who were hardly that, really, since most of them have at least since most of them have at least one university degree, are married, have children, and are pursuing more settled careers than that of full-time professional musician— was contagious.

full-time professional musician—was contagious.

Their drive and beat put the audience completely in their control. What happened after they really started to break it up was as certain a reaction as any standard laboratory demonstration. After all, they had called their shots before, timed them to the second, and the sharp, critical, Chicagoans succumbed as expected.

A local group which gets the same sort of response, regularly, is a non-Dixie combo with another compelling beat, It's the jobbing group we mentioned before as headed by Stanley Mack, except that Henry Riggs is the leader. Riggs, former Bob Strong, Teddy Phillips, Tony Pastor, and Clyde Lucas drummer. has Mack on trumpet; Vic Val, tenor sax; Gene Budd, accordion, and Knobby King, bass.

Their favorite spot is Pat's Tap.

Dags.

Their favorite spot is Pat's Tap, 12783 S. Western avenue, where they'va played every Sunday from 3:30 to 7 p.m. for more than a year. The place is a normal-sized tavern, no dingier than most, and perhaps its only structural peculiarity is the extra steel beams down cellar supporting the tavern floor.

down celtar supporting the foor.

The dance space is theoretically about eight by eight feet in size and comfortably could serve three or four restrained couples. At one point last Sunday we counted 14—couples that is, and gave up counting dancers between tables, along the bar, and never even tried to estimate the number of persons just standing where they could, swaying with their bottles of beer.

Hang on Somewhere

Hang on Somewhere

It may sound uncomfortable, but you won't notice it. The band gets a swing that rocks the whole building, and bounces the floor until one begins to look for something to cling to when the place collapses. During one set they played their own extended versions of St. Louis Blues, C-Jam, Ool Ya Koo, and What's New!—a collection which of itself would be worth noting. Hard to choose a favorite, or especially outstanding musician from the group, although Riggs and Dudd are the most consistently amazing. They're gone, man, and we suggest you go, too—even if the trip is halfway to Indiana.

Pubs have been collecting 1½ to 2 cents on every record pressed. Victor claims that instead of paying on 100 per cent of pressings, they should cough up for only 91½ per cent, figuring the other 8½ per cent are broken or returned, therefore unsold. Thus, the big squabble revolves around 8½ per cent of 2 cents.

Eras, Egos, Enthusiasms Clash And Merge In Chicago-Seattle Bash

ago—The careful appraisal given the Rainy City and of Seattle by Chicago Dixieland musicians and as matched only by the critical but appreciative at-the visitors diaplayed. Story on the Bee Hive bash

All In All, Quite A Fine Concert

Chicago — The latest thing in Dixieland jazz concerts here proved to be rather auspicious from a number of angles.

It was the first John Schenck concert in nearly a year and the first such in longer than that which has come off practically without a hitch.

It marked the Chicago debut of Seattle's spirited Rainy City Jazz band, well-heralded as another group on the order of Lu Watters' Yerba Buena outfit.

It reintroduced trumpeter Natty Dominique, a little guy with a beautiful tone much like the late Mutt Carey's.

It showed that another trumpeter, Lee Collins, a big guy with a sharp, clear, bell-like tone and Armstrong phrasing, can play about 101 per cent better than he does at the Victory club.

It brought together a lot of other Chicago talent for an affair that was one of the best and most well-received concerts around here in some time.

Taken one at a time—
The Rainy City band presented a curious amalgamation of styles that, when put together, sounded much more like the Kid Ory band of a couple of years ago, before the death of Carey, it's hardly fair drums; Barrie vye, piano; Dave Driver, guitar, and Lowell Richards, bass.

Houlahan. who seems to live a lifetime on each note, has the Mutt Carey style and vibrato down wonderfully. And there is a distinct touch of Johnny Dodds in Greimes clarinet. Sheedy, unfortunately, seemed to have more of Turk Murphy's approach which wouldn't have been bad except that it was Turk at some of his blattiest moments. There were times, though, when Sheedy did show the Ory touch for tailgate. At such times, he was excellent. But there were still others when he just plain didn't hit the right notes.

The band played only two sets and at the end of the second, had to judge any group after hearing only seven or eight numbers in person, but there are some interesting comparisons that might be drawn.

Mutt Was Happy
The ghost of Mutt Carey must have been happy this Sunday. It had been about a decade since Natty Dominique had played trumset regularly. Previous to that, he had made a number of collectors' records, primarily with Johnny Dodds and last was heard on a Decca New Orleans Jazz album with Jimmy Noone and trombonist Preston Jackson playing New Orleans Hop Scop Blues/Keystone Blues and with Dodds in the same album.

represented.
Natty was especially good on mated solos. On a couple of numbers in the last set, particularly When I Grow Too Old to Dream, his very quiet muted work brought complete silence over the whole house for the only time that afternoon.

There are a number of persons in Chicago and surrounding territory who swear by Lee Collins. And apparently, most of their enthusiasm stems from what Collins plays at the N. Clark street Victors clays.

plays at the N. Clark street Victory club.

By Lee's own admission, his seven-day grind at the Victory is not particularly conducive to playing good jazz all the time.

But at the concert, Collins showed some of the technique and ideas that flash through only occasionally at the Victory. He was consistently tops through the entire concert and a little better than that on Hippermouth.

The Slim Gaillard trio and the Roy Milton ork took over with departure of Jordan, who headed out on tour with a unit that included his Tympany Seven (formerly the Tympany Five) and Paula (Little Bird) Watson.

Norman said that he had Charlie Ventura signed to open April 19. It generally was believed here that all Empire room attractions had taken the assignment on pretty much the same deal that Jordan had. This Norman denied. He stated that Ellington and Billy Eckstine had held out for and received healthy guarantees. Hollywood — The Louis Jordan unit was pulled out of the new Empire room after a one-week stand when an advertising campaign promised by the operators failed to materialize, according to Berle Adams, Jordan's manager. Jordan's deal called for the money taken in on door admissions and a share in the bar business. The Jordan take at the end of the farst week was around $2,600, said Adams, adding, "We just don't work for that kind of money."

Said Gene Norman, disc jockey and impresario who guides Empire room affairs:

"Jordan laid an egg. We could the stated that Ellington and Billy Eckstine had held out for and received healthy guarantees.

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

How To Draw A Generalization

One musician in Massachusetts, another in California, and several from scattered points between, clipped and sent to Down Beat the news story released by Associated Press and United Press early in March quoting H. J. Anslinger, narcotics commissioner in Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I'm not talking about the good musicians but the jazz

Oh, brother!

The quote is from a report to congress that "jazz type musicians are using more and more marijuana, "especially in the middlewest, where it grows wild."

According to this worthy gent, there are just two kinds of musicians, good musicians and jazz musicians. How can you tell them apart? The jazz musicians are the ones who smoke marijuana.

How confused can you get?

We would like to refer Analinger, and all other authorities who believe that all jazz musicians are characters, to a feature story on page 13 of the March 25 issue of Down Beat.

This story describes a group of jazz musicians, headed by a tenor sax player named Charlie Ventura, a group which was popular enough to win the instrumental combo crown in the last Down Beat band poll, a group so proficient in selling jazz that it was booked into the Royal Roost in New York for four weeks—and stayed for 10!

Do these boys smoke marijuana and get high? Do they believe, as Anslinger stated in his report to congress, that getting off on this kind of a cool kick improves their playing? They do not! They are Coca-Cola "addicts" and don't even lush up with liquor.

Charlie, the leader, is a mild-mannered self-effacing chap with a home in Woodside, Long Island, two children, 11 and 7, and a record collection filled with Spike Jones and Sammy Kenny O'Brien, bass player, is a family man, with a recent addition and so is Boots Mussulli, alto man, who has three children and until joining Ventura recently, operated a music studio in his home town of Milford, Mass.

Roy Kral, pianist, and Jackie Cain, vocalist, have been going steady recently and are planning a June wedding.

These then, are representative of the type of men whom Anslinger would accuse of being marijuana addicts. They are not good musicians, because they are the "jazz type!" We could name hundreds of other well-known jazz musicians who definitely don't smoke marijuana.

Newspapers are too quick to pin the label of "jazz musician" on any character who gets picked up on a marijuana charge. If he can knock off four bars of Chloe on the piano, he is a "jazz musician" to the press, regardless of whether he ever carried a union card or even played in a jam session.

The average reporter has either too little or too vivid an imagination, depending upon your viewpoint. In the old days any reasonably good looking frail who made the headlines always was a "Follies beauty" or at least a "show girl," even if she never had been on the other side of the footlights. Today she always is a "model."

The bad time given to musicians by the daily press in the general run of things is serious enough. But when a government official in a report to congress divides them arbitrarily into two groups, "good" and "jazz," it is going a little too far.

"Not bad, but if you could teach him to play a banjo, then you'd really have something."

Why all this fuss and striving on the part of so many band leaders, musicians, and writers to take jazz away from its natural element of danceable and listenable fun and drag it into the solemn, soberfaced seriousness and "dignity" of the concert hall?

Jazz is most happy, I feel, in the environment of the dance. I am sure that if any Negro musician (including Ellington) were asked to reveal his inward feelings on this matter, he would spontaneously agree with me. I think there is no finer "dignity" for jazz than to wish to reject an alien imposition, and to remain in the element in which it can feel natural.

Recalls Memories

Sitting with Walter and talking about jazz is almost like conversing with the now-departed greats of jazz like Morton, Oliver, and Johnny Dodds. Recording dates, dance jobs, tunes, and all the other little incidents pertaining to jazz.

Mares played. They needed a middie part to tie the two strains to gether and complete a new composition.

Walter asked Jelly if he could fill it in. Jelly said, "Sure." and sat down at the piano. Ten minutes later they had a new tune that the New Orleans boys told Walter to called Muslevat Ramble is correct. Melrose says the tune was down at the piano. Ten minutes later they had a new tune that the New Orleans boys told Walter to down as it sounded to him, and the tune went down in history under that title. It turned out to be one of Walter's definitely is Muslevat.

Chicago—Walter Melrose is back in the music publishing business with an Earl Hines' original that is a sure winner. The tune is Lasy Mornin', a slow rhythm theme, and those who have heard it acclaim it a great melody. Fatha' Hines and his swingtet recorded Mornin' for MGM along with Keyboard Kapers, another Hines original, both sides featuring more piano than Earl has played in a long time.

Jazz history is to a large extent tied up with the activities of the old Melrose Music Corp. During the 1920s and 1930s, the company was owned and operated by the Melrose brothers, walter, Lester, and the late Frank, the latter being the well-known jazz pianist.

George

The catalogue finally was sold to a New York firm about 1940. Leater continued in the business as a recording supervisor and talent scout, while Walter retired to a quiet life on an Arizona ranch. Possibly memories of introducing jazz compositions by such titans as Jelly Roll Morton, King Oliver, Louis Armstrong, and Fletcher Henderson were too exciting to permit a quiet life, for Walter is back on Chicago's Randolph street.

Belgium Hot Club Holds 7th Contest

Liege, Belgium—The seventh jazz contest set up by the Hot Club of Belgium in Brussels was fought out by seven combos and one big band.

Among the combo section, the winners were the French outfit of Claude Bolling and the Belgian crew of the Hot Club of Courtrai, the first one playing a kind of modernized New Orleans music and the other one bop.

Many musicians played one-niters in addition to the concerts. Among those playing were Billy De Smet, pjano; René Thomas, guitar; Jacques Pelzer, alto, a member of the Bob Shots combo who recently played a jam session in Brussels with guitarist Django Reinhardt; Hubert Rostaing, clarinet and alto; Toots Thielemans, guitar; Herman Sandy, trumpet, and Jacques Sells, tenor.

Bop Harmony A Contribution Of Jimmy Jones

DOWN BEAT

By Sharon A. Pease

Chicago—We have chosen Jimmy Jones, who received third place in the piano division of Down Beat's 1948 band poll, for another repeat column. Jones currently is associated with vocalist Sarah Vaughan, and his brilliant accompaniments have contributed much to her success.

When his initial column appeared, Jan. 1, 1944, we cited, as the outstanding characteristic of Jimmy's style, his unusual ability to apply harmonic inventions, extensions and substitutions cleverly. This talent proved to be a great asset when, later that year, he went to New York and began working on 52nd Street.

Bop Beginning

Bop Beginning

Bop Beginning
There a new phase of American music, later to become known as bop, was in its embryonic stage.
Charlie Parker, Lester Young, and Dissy Gillespie, and other soloists, credited with the early development of the style, realized their melodic creations would be enhanced by changes in the usual harmonic structure and chordal members.

Harmonic alterations of basic sequential patterns were the pianists' most important contribution to the development of bop. Among the early contributors were Jimmy Jones, Tadd Dameron, Al Haig, Thelonions Monk, and Bud Powell. Here is Jimmy's biographical sketch:

Born in Memphis. Tenn., 30 years ago and moved to Chicago when 2. Parents were both musical. His father was a choir director and his mother played piano. . . . Began playing guitar when 13 and accompanied a vocal trio formed with neighborhood friends. . . . Group worked jobs at the Chicago World's Fair, A Century of Progress, and a series of radio programs . . . Through playing guitar, Jimmy became interested in harmony and began experimenting at the family piano. . This led to serious study and experimentation with dance styling. . . Duke Ellington, Art Tatum, and Teddy Wilson were the chief early influences. . . Began jobbing with local bands while a pupil at Englewood high school. . . . Attended of Kentucky State Collega for three years and played with the Kentucky State Collega for three year

With A Hoot And A Howl. JATP Kicks Off Another

New York-Against a background of hoots and howls from the hoodlum section (a comparatively recent innovation in staid Carnegie hall), Jazz at the Philharmonic launched another coast-to-coast tour before an almost capacity house. Fee-other coast-to-coast tour before turing Coleman Hawkins, Hank Jones. Fats Navarro, Shelly Manne, Ray Brown, Flip Phillips, Charlie Parker, Ella Fitzgerald, Machito, to Tommy Turk, and Sonny Crias, the show gave the sudience a good run for its money.

The noisy element, much in the minority, would not be tolerated in the presentation houses that run name bands for pop prices a few blocks south. Nor would it last long if it created such disturbances in any of the regular ballrooms that feature dance band and jazz attractions. But at Carnegie, the sacred domicile of the best in music, this group is allowed to shout and act like husky-voiced school kids being encouraged to show off.

They Just Go Ahead

The usherettes, attractive but frail, are helpless, and the special terations of the basic harmony.

The satisfying resolutions are derived through chromatic movement and progressions through the cycle of fifths.

Interesting Chords

An interesting chord sequence (relatively new in popular music) is the scale harmonization that ocis the scale harmonization that occurs in measures seven and eight. (First degree major seventh, C maj. seventh; second degree minor seventh, D min. seventh; third degree minor seventh, E min. seventh.) The descending melody that follows (measures eight, nine, 10 and 11) has the same harmony in reverse order with some chromatic insertions.

These sections are a positive cue that voicing (line up of notes) is as important to the refreshing distinctive bop "coloring" as is the harmonic modification.

Section B is a solo derived from the harmonic inventions of section

Section B is a solo derived from the harmonic inventions of section A. The melody forms an important part of the chordal pattern and completes the desired effects of extended harmony. Jimmy has a gift for melodic values and logical balance—measures seven to 11 are a superb simplified illustration of the true bop idiom. The entire example reflects the excellent taste that has been a constant characteristic of his work. Jimmy is versatile and equally proficient in all modern styles.

(Ed. Nete: Sand quastless to Sharen A. Peenen, Suite 715, Lyon & Healy building, Chienge, 4, 18.)

private police on duty make no effort to interfere, even during intermission, when the exhibitionists are at their lowest.

Of course, there was genuine applause, cheers, and whistlea. Phillips, as usual, seemed to reapmost of this for his tenor efforts. Trombonist Turk, a threat to the laurels of Kai Winding and Bill Harris, clicked solidly.

The other instrumentalists all rated strong hands, and Manne, long deprived of a solo spot, finally came through, in answer to the demands of the second tier, as though he were auditioning to get off the USS Greeley, his wartime bandstand.

Ella Fitzgerald registered as the show stopper she always is. Backed by husband Brown, Jones, and Manne, she obliged with two sets of tunes. Only distraction was the use of two mikes on the bass, bringing it out too strong.

Machito and his Afro-Cuban bop band doubled from the Clique but only for the Carnegie concert.

Granz Raises Average

Granz Raises Average
Norman Granz did a betterthan-usual job of ataging the

Kaycee Calls

Kansas City—After 3½ hours of continuous music and entertainment, the audience still wanted more at the Cavalcade of Kaycee Music show staged last month in Municipal auditorium, featuring top K. C. artists.

The 26 different acts presented music from dance tunes and ballads to jazz. The audience selected Jimmie Keith's ork as its favorite. His group virtually is unheard of except for the backing it gives Myra Taylor on her Mercury diese. Keith's ork proved to be a show stopper with his instrumentals and his five-part harmony vocal arrangements. The Five Scamps, who along with Keith have been doing a lot of talking with Art Satterlee of Columbia records, won as the best combo.

After seven months at the Coliege Inn, Keith's ork, along with Evelyn Twyne and Eddie Dillard, will move out into the county to the Half a Hill tavern

Dizzy Proves He's Tops In Showmanship Ability

San Francisco—Dizzy Gillespie left the Bay area after a three-hour presentation which from the opening Emanon to the closing Oopnpada, was one of the greatest evening's performances we've ever attended. From a musical standpoint, it's hard to conceive of a better concert, and from the standpoint of showmanship, it's even more difficult.

It played Gillespie standards such as Ool-Ya-Koo, Manteca, Cool Breeze, Minor Walk, One-Bass Hit, Swedish Swite, and Say Eh. Joe Carroll and Dizzy had the audience limp. Sam Herd, Diz' fine young trombonist, even sang The Blues (to the tune of Hand Fulla Gimme), and Johnny Hartman had the gals swooning with his balleds.

The week that Louis Armstrong's picture was on the cover of umpteen million copies of Time he played a one-niter in Oakland to a crowd of some 900. The date had been booked weeks ahead. How was this possible? It would seem that, with such a publicity break to work with, any six-wheeled idiot wouldn't have any trouble filling the nearest large barn with, at least, curiosity seekers.

What happened was simple enough. Nobody knew he was playing. Except for a few posters in the Fillmore and Seventh street sections and a couple of plugs on a local station, the promotern of the dance didn't publicize Louis' appearance one little bit.

Iowa City—Band leader Larry

a new band to bolster the sagging music business in and around Iowa City.

Band has a new semibop book featuring 15 arrangements and an odd instrumentation — Barrett os trumpet backed by a baritone sax, three trombones, piano, base, and guitar. No drums.

With this outfit in mind, his arrangements are such that the band has remarkable balance, sounds full and round like a band with a much larger instrumentation.

Personnel is expected to run like this: trombones—Tom Richards, Shipton Jerry, and Lee Grissom; baritone and alto, Tommy Thompson; trumpet—Barrett; guitarBob Sennish; bass—R. L. Drollinger; piano—Dick Haddy.

these dates, using most of the better Bay area musicians.

the Eastmen trio, who've been though not in this sort of spot before. .. Billie Holiday did conniters all over Northern California early in March. .. Al Wallace

Charlie Ventura

III Stop n' Go

Now that Cholly is a big gun from RCA-Victor, National apparently is cleaning the files with the result that this coupling has been made up from two miles-apart sessions. Stop is from an old one with a personnel that Ventura had only comentarily perhaps only for this momentarily, perhaps only for this particular session, but it was a po-particular session, but it was a potent one.

Bill De Arango opens the medium fast hop blues on guitar to be followed by two 12s for Charlie Shavers who plays a good one to start with but gets a mite too enthusiastic towards the end. The trombone is unidentified, but it's unmistakably Bill Harris.

After Ventura's chorus and some ensemble riffing, half the band grinds to a halt momentarily, but the word gets around that more tenor is coming up and so they pick it up as gracefully as possible and continue until Charlie says. "Now." It's a minor flaw, however, and most of the balance of the side is good—particularly the tremenand most of the balance of the side is good—particularly the tremendous beat of Dave Tough who even can get through a shallow recording job.

Colada is Roy Kral Afro-Cubana of a more contemporary nature with his and Jackie Cain's vocal bopping in the opener. There's some nice altoing, possibly Boots Mussulli's, and wonderful trombone by Benny Green. (National 9066.)

Metronome All-Stars

Last year's all-star bash to present Metronome's poll winners on Capitol wax produced a big band side (Riff), underrated, incidentally, at three notes, that had a slight edge over its companion amall group side. This year the reverse is true and for a fairly obvious reason, since instead of being able to use an organized group like Kenton's, it was again necesary to build the band from the material at hand.

And even though the men are among the finest in jazz, it is and always has been impossible to get the right sound out of the variegated personnel that eventually winds up at these sessions. Nevertheless, Overtime, the Pete Rugolo bop jumper, is performed with fair precision even at a fast clip, and the solos that come mostly in 16-bar packages are for the most part representative and well worth listening to.

After the opening ensemble, there is good Charlie Parker alto in spite of an unco-operative background in spots, fine J. J. Johnson tram and Buddy De Franco clarinet. Follows next Lennie Tristano on piano, some brief Eddie Safranski bass and Shelly Manne drums which could have been eliminated and a fair Charlie Ventura tenor and Billy Bauer guitar with good Fats Navarro before the finish.

Others on the side but solo-less are Miles Davis, Dizzy, Winding, Ernie Caceres. Victory at about the same lineup is excellent small band bop by Tristane who has fashioned a score that moves off in all directions and is a particularly effective showcase for Bauer's remarkable talents despite the fact that his work is all ensemble.

the fact that his work is an emsemble.

There's more of the Bird here, more great De Franco, who seems to rise to these occasions, good Winding and Ventura. And those who think of Lennie more in terms of slower, less rhythmic harmonic abstractions will be made pleasantly aware that he plays with a beat.

aware that he plays with a beat, too.

Diz' playing is disappointing, but he just wasn't on it. Both sides are clearly, if thinly, recorded and lack the depth and presence of the Capitol job last year. (Victor 20-3361.)

If Phipps' Deed
The Bips developed some remark-

The Bips developed some remarkably advanced things in spite of the essentially novelty vocal makeup of the group. Example: the nicely thought out and phrased clarinet chorus by Arthur P. on his Phipps' Deed.

Groove is the thing the Hawk called Spollite in a Victor jazz album of 1946, but regardless of what they call it or what riff they set it to, it's still Just Yon—and a foine jazz tune it is. There's more good clarinet here, piano, and bop vocals on both sides. (Apollo 787.)

vocals on both sides. (Apollo 787.)

Al Haig Quintet

Il Sugar Hill Bop

The veddy, veddy Latin American firm of Seeco records which only has hinted at stateside influences in some of their more rugged releases of hot Cuban music apparently has decided that bop is here to stay. Both the Al Haig numbers are as boppish as the latest Dial and the baptism, if such it is, is a praiseworthy one.

The Haig quintet with the leader's own fine piano. Wardell Gray's tenor, and Jimmy Raney's surefooted guitar are a combination of some distinction on both these sides—especially Sugar where the solos

Wait is a boy-girl thing with Gloria Wood and Harry Babbitt—good enough for dancing but not much to listen to with its too-cute approach and ordinary arrangement. But the impressive mood and presence of Money with its first-

Sugar is a blues with three for Gray, two for Haig, and one for Raney plus the unison instrumental-vo:al bopping of all these and Terry Swope, too. Star is I Got Rhythm with a foreign bridge, and much the same routine is followed. (Secco 10-002.)

If Little Girl, Don't Cry

Blues is just that, with its most identifying feature being the persistent and overworked bass figure from Yancey Special which gets a workout from the saxes in the first chorus and the rhythm section from there on. There's a fair tenor chorus, but all in all it's an uninspired side. The rating is for a clean performance and good surfaces.

faces.

Little Girl is a slow blues style with a long vocal by Lucky's tenor man. Big John Greer. This is a well-rehearsed band much too good to be wasted on such weak material, and it is to be hoped that subsequent Victor releases for Lucky will be more interesting than those connected with his debut. than those connected with his debut. (Victor 20-3351.)

Tommy Dorsey

I Nhere Is the One?

I Someone Like You
One is a very pretty pop tune by a couple of tune fashioners who usually think in more advanced terms — Alec Wilder and Ed Finckel. And it took a good one like this to give the styleless Dorsey band a new complexion—or rather a new lease on the old look. This sounds more like the early 1940s and although there is a shade too much vocalizing by Harry Prime and the Clark Sisters, the whole thing is sort of sweet and nice, like things used to be under a less jaded T.D. Except for an occasional thump by the brass section, however, Someone easily might be mistaken for a shuffling Jan Savitt or a six-eight Henry Busse.

Denny Dennis sings it and with more assurance and better intonation than his initial recorded effort. But that shuffle rhythm. Yipe!

rate Babbitt vocal and fine backing make it another in the group of current Kyser releases that are leaning more towards good dance music and less towards childish novelties. Both these are late preban wax. (Columbia 38413.)

New York—We're sorry for a friend, Johnny Wilson. He just has moved into the slot of NYC representative for the Beat, and a nicer guy never deserved such a beating less.

beating less.
There is a legend that being New York writer for the Beat is a soft touch necessitating only dating girl vocalists. clapping leaders on the back, and taking payoffs for good reviews.

Such, unfortunately, is not the case. Having tangled with the job are the characters who call around 5 a.m. just, when you are trying to get a little sleep, and want to know boozily.

"Say, old man, didn't Duke record for Gennett with a tuba?" If you don't know, they call back. If you do know, they call back anyhow.

Then there is good old Time magazine, which has a Sunday deadline and is always good for at least one a.m. call as to whether Artie Shaw spit in anybody's eye the first time he walked off a stand and how Irving Fazola Prestopnik spells his last name.

With these polished off, there is the stupid blonde who comes into the office at deadline and wants to know where she can get a job and won't leave until she has had your advice.

The morning mail is interesting. "Listen, you Dixieland character, haven't you ever been any place but New Orleans—were you born in a banjo?" and "What's wrong with a bop maniac like you—don't you like music at all any more?" varied with 10 letters saying, "You give Stan Kenton too much and Woody Herman not enough space," "You give Woody Herman too much and Stan Kenton not enough," "Why don't you like Guy Lombardo?" and "Why don't you review those old Paul Tremaine records?"

Three sidemen stop you on the street to tell you why the technical departments are "very square, man, very passé stuff," while the corner newsstand wants to know why you don't have fewer musiwhy you don't have fewer musicians and more nekkid gals on the promised is.

You crawl out of bed and three youngsters are standing at the door wanting some help on how to organize a band, while the missing persons bureau is on the phone to find out where a trumpet player who deserted his wife might be.

Somebody sues somebody in court, and to write the story, you find you have to learn the 1909 copyright law cold, but before you can toas this off, the record machine breaks down, and you have to put the motor back together again.

A couple of guys bum a sawbuck apiece and promise to pay it back after the record date. You haven't the heart to tell them you heard they were going to get their notice in the next few days.

Just incidentally, you are supposed to write copy.

Sooner or later, a great many persons will loathe your guts, you will start to hate most music and a lot of musicians, you will have less public integrity than a shady lady, and at least twice a day someone will tell you how any review in Doson Beat can be bought for $100 in the right place.

It's a seven-day-a-week job, and no one will thank you for the hours, the labor, or the sweat, but one thing you can be very certain of: it's never a boring deal. Some-body always has a new angle to hours, the labor, or the sweat, but one thing you can be very certain of: it's never a boring deal. Somebody always has a new angle to con somebody else out of something for nothing.

The labor, or the sweat, but interesting programs of the semester. Music by Debussy, Ravel, and Stravinsky was featured and compared with the music of several current jazz bands.

Discs Dug For Jazz At U Of

Champaign, Ill. — While many university students are forced to travel long distances to satisfy their jazz appetites, students at the University of Illinois have made jazz come to them—by records. Each Thursday evening 50 to 60 persons gather in the student union building for a two-hour record program aponagored by the Jazz-U-Like to organisation. The club was formed to promote interest in jazz on campus and to provide an organization for students who like to listen to jazz and enjoy talking about it.

Just for Interested

Just for Interested

Just for Interested

There is no formal membership, no dues to pay. Anyone interested in jazz may attend the weekly meetings, get a good dose of recorded swing, bop. or Dixie, and probably learn a few things from discussions.

Customary procedure is to play a group of records, have a short discussion on some features of the discs, then go on with more music. Chuck Sagle, former leader of a campus band and one of the club's organizers, acts as emecand steers the discussions.

One of the first programs last fall was devoted to a study of the development of jazz with emphasis on Dixieland and be-bop. Records by Bix Beiderbecke, Louis Armstrong, Woody Herman, and Dizzy Gillespie were played to demonstrate certain points.

A program of records by the Herd attracted an especially large audience and the evening was spiced by Herman and Stan Kenton supporters arguing the merits of the two bands.

Risustrate Styles

Illustrate Styles

The following week, Herman and Kenton records were played to illustrate their styles and study their musical influences on each other. When the Kenton band played a recent concert here, Stan appeared as guest before a Jazz-U-Like-It group and apent an hour discussing his music and jazz in general.

Pat Rainey is fronting her own combo at the Fenggate, making her first appearance here as a leader. For the past few months Pat had been doing singles around New England clubs.

The Sabby Lewis band continues to draw on Mass. avenue, but the latest attraction in that area has both Lewis and Bob Wilber wondering if female impersonators, booked into Wally's Paradise, will cut into their popularity. The Paradise has been the Jimmy Tyler roost for some while, but owner Wally has imported a floor show of female impersonators as house attraction, and the Tyler combo is the co-attraction.

The Art Foxall combo will continue to do one-niters around New England before moving on to location. The Foxall combo was booked in the Hi-Hat club for a session recently.

It Was In Louis' Honor, But Jack Had Fun, Too

New Orleans—It was a pretty nice homecoming that Louis Armstrong had when he came back to N.O. to be erowned King of the Zulus and lead the traditional lodge parade. In addition to greeting such anusicians as Johnny St. Cyr, banjoist with Louis' Hot Five recording band shown in picture on the left, there was the French critic Hughes Panassie, a long-time Armstrong admirer and friend. If anyone had more fun than Louis, it was Jack Teagarden, who trombones for the All-Stars. When he wasn't playing with Louis, he was playing with some other Dixie group. On the right, he took over for Julian Laine at the Sunday afternoon Parisian room concert. Of at the Sunday afternoon Parisian room concert. Of the regular band there is Tony Dalmado, trumpet; Irving Fazola, clarinet, and John Castaing, drums.

By Nick Gagliano

New Orleans—More than 200,000 persons lined the streets of New Orleans on March 1 to greet Louis Armstrong, the 1949 King of the Zulus, as he led his royal entourage on Mardi Gras day, but fewer than 500 came to hear him play that same night.

eame night.
Satchmo's fame and personality drew the most enthusiastic and one of the largest crowds ever to witness a carnival parade, He drank aumerous toasts of champagne, toased hundreds of painted coconuts to his followers, and listened to his own trumpet-playing as the many radios and outdoor p.a. systems blared forth his most famous Hot Five recordings.

Orleans—More than the day-long parade even though of New Orleans on fered new horns for him to blow.

Eight-Hour Parade

Louis' reign started at 8:45 a.m. as a large black Cadillac with a police escort whisked him away from his hotel to his royal barge on the New Basin canal. His majesty was wearing a red-feathered crown, a red velvet tunic trimmed with gold sequins, black tights, and high golden shoes.

and high golden snoes.

After a short voyage down the canal, King Louis alighted from the vessel as thousands cheered him wildly. Once again the black Cadillac carried him away, this time to his throne on the lead float of the Zulu parade.

Led by two brass bands, the procession started on its dizzy journey through the city streets and didn't end until 5 p.m.

As Louis dashed for his waiting automobile, the souvenir-hungry crowd descended upon the tinseled float and stripped it of everything. King Satch then retired to a reception in his honor. Several hours later, he appeared at the Coliseum to fill his poorly attended dance date.

Besides these jobs, the All-Stars' trombonist Jack Teagarden sat in with New Orleans bands every chance he had. He played early morning sessions with Sharkey Bonano's and with Irving Fazola's combos. ARRANGERS' CORNER

By SY OLIVER and DICK JACOBS

Now York—We have received many letters regarding whole tone chords and their practical use in dance arranging. Basis of the construction of the whole tone chord is built upon the premise of using two different augmented chords. These two chords are to be sounded simul

H. K., Cleveland, would like to know if, in writing unison, it is best to use an absolute unison or use octaves. Both sounds are good, depending on the passage. Some phrases will have to be written in octaves while others can be arranged either way. Both sounds are satisfactory as long as they are within the normal range of the instruments that have to play them.

the questions we have received since the last issue:

S. F. asks if a tenor MAX player has false teeth or a mouth full of fillings it will in any way affect his playing, now or in the future?

The fillings will have no affect on his playing, for they are intended to restore the natural shape of his teeth. False teeth definitely will affect his playing because there will be a marked change in his embouchure.

D. O. writes that he is a band leader and lacks the personality that good looking teeth give. His teeth do not show well when he amiles, and the audience cannot tell whether he's amiling or sneering, he says. What can be done to improve his appearance and personality?

Devils And Descants

By Michael Levin

New York—Music is all things to some persons. Music which en-hances a little comfortable fireside necking is as praiseworthy as that which paints the most attractive picture of lambs leaping in the necking is as praiseworthy as that which paints the most attractive picture of lambs leaping in the spring air.

This all goes back to a pet point of mine: the music which is best is that which best suits the purpose and the mood you find yourself in when you are listening.

This again goes back to a complicated but still partially true esthetic theory: good art depends for its definition almost as much on the alertness and receptability of the perceiver as it does on the ability of the creator.

If you suck with us through that slightly muddy paragraph, we now come to the problem of the Vaughn Monroea and the Sammy Kayes. Many decent folk who like music to sing and dance to, are hurt and hewildered by their more experienced friends when Lombardo or Martin is injected into the conversation.

You are able to be scornful, if you are, for only one reason: you have listened to sufficient music to be dissatisfied with what these men are turning out. Their records sound trivial, empty, devoid of anything really worth listening to. If you are fair, you must admit that Lombardo is occasionally pleasant for dancing, even if the sound is boring and hackneyed. But don't forget that there was a time when Lombardo, or something like it, was enough for you, too.

Recognizing this as so many persons who like iazz do, it always

But don't forget that there was a time when Lombardo, or something like it, was enough for you, too.

Recognizing this as so many persons who like jazz do, it always amazes me that they are content to stop with Kenton, Herman, or Ellington when there are different types of music, not necessarily better, but merely different, which offer different fields for listening and sensation.

This again requires a little work. There is much in the work. There is much in the world of sound which can't be grasped the first time you hear it, Just as a treasured Ellington disc improves with the 23rd play, so will these pieces give you more each time you hear them.

Take Manuel De Falla's Harpsichord Concerto for example Originally recorded in the early 1930s for Columbia's famous X series by the composer himself at the harpsichord with supporting violin, cello, flute, oboe, and clarinet, it has been redone by Mercury with Ralph Kirkpatrick, Mitch Miller, oboe: Alexander Schneider, violin, and some other fine musicians.

At first hearing, the music will sound harsh, unpleasant, and senseless. But as you go over it, you will see what De Falla was trying to do, how he was reacting against the lush, Chopinesque piano playing of his day, and looking for clean, hard, linear music that had, form instead of pink clouds.

The more you listen, the more sense you will sort out of it. The Ing for clean, nard, linear music that had, form instead of pink clouds.

The more you listen, the more sense you will sort out of it. The more you listen, the more dissatisfying Kostelanetz will become.

And there lies the one tragedy with a developing taste in music. Hard as you may try to have a catholic taste, as your experience becomes deeper and broader, music which once pleased you greatly, will seem just a shade shallow, and you will smile faintly when your friends go into raptures about it.

The important point is not to forget that it once pleased you. Keep track of how your taste changes—you'll learn a lot from

New York—The gal who wrote Chickery Chick and Laron Laron Laron Laron Laron Lilli Bolero, Sylvia Dee, has had her novel And Never Been Kissed published by Macmillan. The author, in private life Josephine Proffitt, and her mother are the only mother-daughter members of ASCAP: father was a concert violinist.

it. We remember throwing Red Norvo's Blues in E Flat away in disgust once because we found its solos a series of disconnected noises. Casa Loma's brass to us was much superior at that time. We haven't learned better since; our taste just has changed.

Try De Falla's great work on yourself for a while. If you can weather the first shock, it will teach you a great deal.

New model Selmer makes your Sax old-fashioned

Each improvement in a Selmer instrument is achieved for a single purpose: to free you of every consideration except musicianship. To help you realize your fullest musical capabilities. The new Selmer (Paris) Super-Action Alto will give you a brilliant demonstration of what this means. Play your fastest arpeggio, play low, play high—with the same tight pressure on every key. And play gasier, because old-fashioned straight-in-line key placement is replaced by offset key groupings to give you a more comfortable playing position. Dismiss old tuning worries, too. With an even embouchure, without pinching and slurring, you will discover new and beautiful ease in playing scales, fifths, and octaves. No intonation is more precise. Judge this new Selmer by playing . . . and by listening at audience distance . . and you'll agree, it outperforms any other.

Play the New Selmer Super-Action Alto at Your Dealer's Let him show you all its distinctive features, including the new Remova-Bell (bell and bow quickly removable), the offset Super-Action keys, the new positive leaf-spring and roller arrangement for low C#, and the new clothing guard. See for yourself why Selmer (Paris) Sanophones have long been preferred by so many of the world's highest-paid players and teachers.
