Song Over Objections St. Louis—Over the objections of three Negro representatives, the Missouri house of representatives has passed a bill making the Mis-souri Walts the state's official song. The objectors, Rep. Walter V. Lay of St. Louis and Reps. Wil-liam A. Cole and James McNeal of Kansas City, said the melody was okay but they didn't like the use of "mammy," "pickaninny," and "dar-kies" in the lyric. They suggested these words might be changed to "mother," "baby," and "old folks" but the majority of the house didn't see it that way.

New York—If this is Arty, p'Shaw! Such was the comment of press and audience alike on the gigantic concert clam-bake staged for one week last month at Bop City night club here by well-known clarinetist Arthur Shaw. Shaw had pre-here by well-known clarinetiat viously announced he had sovered his connection with jazs to become a serious musician and that it was time serious music was displayed in a night club, where it could reach a segment of the populace ordinarily untouched by its charms. ordinarily untouched by its charms. The bop audience on the first three nights he worked received the efforts of his conducting the 40 musicians of the Shaw sym-phonetts with pronounced boredom and even a few catcalls. Opening night reaction was so cold, that on later evenings, Shaw cut each of his three "showings" from 90 min-utes or more to about 45 minutes, and prefaced each of the selections with a short explanation of the piece's content. More Confusion

More Confusion

This confused the audience even more, since someone had paid Irv-ing Kolodin of the New York Sun to write program notes, and it was therefore difficult to tell whether Shaw thought: (1) He spoke better than Kolodin wrote, or (2) whether the audience or (2) who couldn't read.

The program (with a Shaw por-trait resembling Jerry Wald on the cover) numbered 23 selections, the cover) numbered 23 selections, was played in three groups, ran the gamut from Prokofiev's Clas-sical Symphony down to Morton Gould's Guajira. In the first and third sections, Shaw played groups of selections for clarinet, with Hershey Kay conducting. While in the middle period he toyed with Nickie Berezowsky's Concerto For Clarinet and Orchestra, which he later repeated in a concert with the National Orchestra association at Town Hall. at Town Hall

The rest of the program, cer-tainly 70 per cent of the music, was directed by Shaw himself. I am not familiar enough with was directed by Shaw himself. I am not familiar enough with Shaw's background to know whether he has studied conducting. But certainly never before has such miserable conducting been seen or heard anywhere in the music business. Shaw's concept of music business. Snaws concept or leading consists of raising and lowering his arms in what he thinks is approximate conjunction to the beat. Solo instrument en-trance, dynamics, tempo shadings, or any coloration whatsoever are things completely outside his ken or capability.

Auto Crash Kills Haymer

Hollywood-Herbie Haymer, tan-or man featured by Jimmy Dorney, Woody Herman, and other top bandsmen, and for the past few years a top man in radio and stu-dio work here, died April 11 in St. John's hespital, Santa Monica, of injuries received in an auto accident.

accident. The accident occurred at a Hol-lywood intersection as Haymer was driving home after working at a Frank Sinatra recording session. Haymer's car was struck broad-side by another auto, the girl driver of which allegedly falled to make a boulevard stop. Haymer was thrown from his car, and the other car, which turned over, land-ed on ton of him. The accident hap-pened about midnight.

the same day. In addition to his air shows, Chesterfield Supper Club and Hit Parade, Haymer did practically all of Paul Weston's Capitol recording sessions, and may be heard in nu-merous "hand-picked" groups as-sembled for Capitol sessions by Dave Dexter. He was 33 years old, married, with two children.

One often re-told is of the time Abe, out to wrest a hotel spot from a rival band, took the boss into a room where the band could be heard via radio, tried (unsucceasfully, of course) to synchronize a met-ronome with the band's beat. Then he turned to the boss and said, triumphanity, "See! I told you those gays couldn't even keep time!" The band went out, and Abe's went in.

Ingle May Try Some Bop

New York-Having torn hillbilly music into as many shreds as the laws of physics permit, Red Ingle is thinking of turning as the laws of physics permit, Ked Ingle is thinking of turning his satiric talents to more modern fields. "I keep hearing bongos," he said. "I'd like to do something with 25 bongos and a flute. The bongos should be very cheap, made in Brooklyn, and the flute should be from the Philadelphia orchestra. "I'm also going to satirize bop. I'll use good bop played right but with double takes. I'll hire some top hon guys to cut the record and it, Jack." Whatever he does with bop and bongos, he'll make every effort to avoid offending the true believers. That, he feels, is why his hillbilly takeoffs have been so successful. When he moved into the hallelujah market with Cigarests, Whuskey and Wild, Wild Women, he got a letter of protest from a religious-minded gentleman in the middle weat.

What Ya' Think?

"All I do is say that cigareets, whuskey and wild, wild women will drive you crazy, will drive you in-sane," Red wrote in reply. "What is your viewpoint? Do you figure they won't?"

Red's correspondent agreed they would. But why, he wanted to know, was that awful drunk on the record? "The drunk in there for a pur-mes" Red wrote "If we up un-

"The drunk is there for a pur-pose," Red wrote. "If you'll just think, he is a form of testimonial. Can't you see how mean and out of order man is when under the influence of whiskey?"

That Did It

This argument won the man over ampletely.

"Tell Mr. Capitol," he wrote, "Tell Mr. Capitol," he wrote, "that we want you to make more of these fine religious records. I will buy one and my brother and brother-in-law in Iowa will each buy one."

brother-in-law in Iowa will cau-buy one." Red hasn't made a religious rec-ord since. He's looking around for greener fields now because, he says, "I'm like a guy who painted himself in-to a corner. I started out with a grag and now I find the thing on my hands." When the gag, Timtayshun, was formented, Red was through with the music business. Just Horsing

Real Simple "This is all very simple once you get the clue," he explained. "Each line of the staff and each space between the lines represents a fig-ure. Now, you read the notes from top to bottom and you find they represent numbers from one to five. Reading upward, the notes represent numbers from six to nine. So, if there are notes on the top, third, and fifth lines, you get one, three and five. The spaces are zeros." zer know-how, she gets the most out of it. This was Connie's first date at the Copa and she came in with rather elaborate production ideas and the intention to do a more-or-less even split between ballads and rhythm numbers. She learned fast. The production ideas went out be-fore she opened and in a few days she had thrown out all but one bal-lad per show. Copa audiences have to be hit over the head so Connie adapted and started slugging. Jackson Band Good, But Boyd Still Most Complex Chub's Antics Lack Taste

There's really nothing wrong with Chubby Jackson's big bop band which can't be cured by putting the happy monster back to work on the bass. He has collected a good group of musicians and built up a small book of adequate bop arrange-ments which his men bite into deanly and with vigor. The main drawheck to the hand The band was caught at one of ments which his men bite into® deanly and with vigor. The main drawback to the band as it stands is Chubby himself. Except for a bass duet specialty with Tom Kelly, he has given up playing entirely and devotes him-self to between-numbers chatter and varied gesticulations while the beat off the numbers, the band retting its cues from Tiny Kahn at the drums while Chubby shuffes around aimlessly. This renunciation of the bass for the okay if Chubby's antice contributed anything to the band But Chubby is actually not half as funny as he seems to think he is. Nor is his taste particularly trust-abeting his crew's music, he dis-tracts from it and in some ways southing to do with the music he's putting out. Lacks Variety

Lacks Variety

Lacka Variety A secondary and minor draw-back—one that is easily under-standable in a band as new as this —is the lack of variety in the out-fit's book. It's almost straight bop at a practically unvarying tempo and within a limited area. Every-thing is hammered out at the same level and eventually monotony sets in.

in. Some attempt at pace is made by the use of occasional pop medleys spotlighting soloists in the band and the introduction of comedy numbers. The medleys are pleasant but the comedy is pretty feeble. A production called The Evolution of Jazz is more often embarrassing than funny. than funny.

than lunny. When it was first unveiled at the Boyal Roost, Chubby admitted it was amateurish but since it had just been thrown together it was expected to improve. A month later it still smacked of amateurism and showed no indications of getting over it. The band was caught at one of the series of high school concerts it has been giving around New York. The original idea of the se-ries was to blend some bop educa-tion into the concert. At Mineola it devolved into a straight concert plus some very vague interpola-tions on bop by Chubby. Anybody who was going to get any educa-tion out of it had to have a bop master's degree to start with. Drive, Good Solos Reason for piling all the above

Drive, Good Solos Reason for piling all the above clams on the band is that it is a basically excellent outfit which ought to be showing up a lot bet-ter than it has so far. It has loads of drive stemming from Tiny Kahn and gets clean, tasteful solo work from such sidemen as Ray Turner, Frank Socolow, Rob Swope, Al Porcino, Teddy Cohen, and Gene DiNovi. But, as it stands, there is noth-

DiNovi. But, as it stands, there is noth-ing distinctive about the band to set it apart from other, better known outfits in the same vein Part of this can probably be at-tributed to the time and effort Chubby is wasting trying to be cute.

Chubby is wasting trying to be cute. The band is currently carrying dancer Steve Condos and Irv Lew-is, comic and trumpeter, with it. Condos knows what he's doing, does it excellently and brings a lot of professional polish to the setup. But Lewis' comedy is on much the same level as Chubby's. In a high school auditorium, the boys looked very much at home. Paula Castle, Chubby's vocalist, on her first pro-fessional job, has improved enor-mously in her few weeks with the band and shows signs of develop-ing into a very effective Vaughan-style thrush.

Chicago—"My friends say the trouble is that I'm ahead of the times. So, why worry about me laying off? I'm just waiting for people to catch up." Boyd Raeburn was still just missing the people, and for no good reason, when he opened to good reason, when he opened so good reason, when he opened at the Blue Note here late last month. There had been no advance pub-licity on Raeburn's week at the town's top jazz spot ("We didn't now what kind of a band he was so in this WNBQ (NBC-TV) show, aired on the full network for the first time recently featured Louis Armstrong as guest, and the reg-ular cast of the Art Van Damme quintet, Joe Gallicchio's studio band, singers Connie Russell, Jack thaskell, and Carolym Gilbert, and the new, non-cootoric Garroway. though outstanding soloists were few. A Lot the Same "We're still playing arrange-ments like Body and Soul that have been in the book five or six years," Raeburn said. "At that time they were looked upon with horror. Now, they're becoming ac-cepted. "We've been compared to Kenton and Ellington, but we're not like either. We were trying to think of a descriptive name for our kind of music, but so far all we could agree on was 'sonic.' I don't think there's another band in the country that sounds like ours." As far as we were concerned, the band sounded great. It has more fire and dash than Herman, and probably Barnet too; more co-hesiveness than Goodman, and more sensitivity and feeling than Kenton. They play in tune-an ab-solute necessity when working with the Raeburn book, partly because it would be comparatively easy to do a slipahod job which might go unnoticed under all those decibels. Its lack of soloists is one draw-back, although the magnificent Raeburn library tends to minimize their importance. "They're just young kids who like to blow," Rae-burn said about his musicians, in-dicating however, that the lack of DeFrancos or Pete Candolis doenn't bother either him or the band's progress. He plans no changes in the currently colorful instrumen-tation. Chief Solo Men

Lynn, Mass.—Rickey King tem-porarily shelved his plans for a Dixie band and is currently ap-pearing at the Red Fox with a trio consisting of Bill Chamber-lain, piano; Mickey Arnaz, clari-net, and King, drums. Chief Solo Men

Trombonist Al Lorraine, ex-Vic-for Lombardo and with Skitch Henderson for three years, played some pretty horn, to contrast with, first, Di Vito's roughtomed "gone and going" bop and, incidentally, with the band in general. Although they did play some been a danceable tempo for expert a danceable tempo for expert adancets, the pyrotechnical, eerie, and weird dominated the complex interaction between sec-tions and individual instruments. Sounds splintered from the oboe, the two bass clainets (of which Boyd played one), and the other redge and horns in almost visible combinations, like the vivid colors of a kaleidoscope being shaken up and then forming pattern after original pattern. gave delicacy and soft bass when needed. Reeds Outstanding Outstanding as a section was that of the reeds. Both Rothman and Lishin, who did a fine, soft, breathy tenor solo on Stardust, were especially notable. Section got good blend too, though never, of course, as monotone a blend as Woody's saxes. But Raeburn's is not a monotonous unit, and never has been. Lishin, Kutch and Callea do some arranging for the band; Callea on Lemon Drop, which has cutting up and singing by Ford and Mandell; Lishin on Whisper-ing, and Kutch who wrote an orig-inal called Movin' Along. Ginnie Powell, Mrs. Raeburn, handles the vocals capably, though not as well as she would if ahe would get some coaching on con-trol. Her low tones flat and wobble consistently, though how anyone could sing with that background is a wonder. She's an appealing per-son to watch, but it would be nice to be able to listen without winc-ing. to. Raeburn plays some school dances in the east ("They specify in the contracts that four out of five numbers be slow," he reports) be fore opening at NYC's Apollo May 6, for a week. Negotiations with a major record company are now in progress for the band, while Gin-nie has a new Decca contract.-per Bunk Johnson must surely is placed neur the two orleans unimpet at the tender age of six under the tutorage of Nef. Wallace Cutchey, an instructor at New Orleans unimity. Upon his graduation in 1894, Bunk joined the undo of Adam Oliver but soon left to play second cornet with Buddy Bolden.

11 • As Bunk himself describes his early days "... I got crazy to play with Bolden. and Bolden played my style of music that I liked. I liked to read but I rather played that head music better ... more jazz to it. I could read good ... good reader ... but Bolden played mighty much by ear ... but anything that he played. I could whistle. I could play. And I jumped Oliver's band and went with Bolden. That was in 1895...." From then on, Bunk claimed an active membership in practically all the im-portant bands that flourished during the early 1900s, even playing engagements with the more commercial orchestra of John Robichaux, which played the "high society" cir-cuit of the Crescent City.

III • Bunk's musical activities remained centered around New Orleans until World war I when, like many fellow jazzman, he got the wanderlust. In the years that followed, Bunk worked river boats, honkytonks, circuses, theaters, and vaudeville shows throughout the U.S. and his travels also included junkets to South America, Asia, and Mexico. He returned to New Iberia. La., in 1931 and settled down to jobbing with local bands. Unfortunately, shortly after his homecoming. Bunk's trumpet was demolished in a dancehall fraces. This misfortune, coupled with the loss of his teeth, brought about his retirement. The succession of ill-paying jobs that followed was indeed a far cry from the "good times" of a few years before.

A thief prowled his dressing room at the theater, stole Charlie's gold, specially-made tenor sax ophone and about half of the leader's wardrobe. Two days before the band opened, a stranger appeared at the stage door long after midnight, identified himself as a representa-tive of the Ventura unit and pr-tended to examine the stage and the dressing room layout in "plan-ning" accommodations for the band. Night porters were the only ones in the theater. Sunday morning before the band closed, the same chap turned up an hour or so before daybreak akked for the head porter, who recognized him from the previous visit. He said he had let one of the other boys use his hotel room, and requested the porter to ope the Ventura dressing room so he could catch some sleep. He was admitted and left thers. Two of the porters taken to the rogue's gallery identified the thief as James J. Steele, 33, 5 feet 8% inches, 157 pounds, with a pre-vious record.

John Simmons Sad But Not Sunk—Yet

Hollywood-Bassman John Sim-mons now knows what it's like to have a lot of things go wrong all at once-but he can still say it might have been worse. Recently Simmons was arrested, with a group of others here, on a narcotics charge. The charge was dismissed for lack of evidence, as the musician had been merely a visitor at the house where the ar-rest was made, but not before he dug for a bail bond and attorney's fee.

dug for a Dail bond and fee. While awaiting the hearing he was arrested for allegedly speed-ing and driving without lights. He got five days in the county jail. Simmons says he was driving slow-ly to the nearest service station. And at this deadline John was still waiting for his last two weeks pay from the recently-closed Cot-ton Club, where he worked with Lee Young.

The hotel spent a little money on ads, knocked down its prices to a reasonable level, and drew a large enough crowd opening night for the News society critic to refer to the week. Sheedy returned here recently from a trip to Chicago and St. Paul, where he appeared with his Seattle confreres at dances and concerts. A good promoter, Sheedy is currently the toast of the Dixie-land circles here for having brok-en down the hotel barrier. It's the first time any jazz outfit here has had a shot at anything well run and reasonably priced. --rjg

Detroiters Run Up Against Canada Jazz Competition

Detroit—Assumption college in Windsor is becoming more jazz conscious than her American counterparts. In a recent jazz concert, the Music Appreciation society, headed by Lou Stark. presented three Detroit groups at a Sunday afternoon dension. Club El-Sino's Paul Ba-combu sextet provided bop fame with lots to yell about. And Sidney Bailer's piano work with his trio was especially outstanding. It was Canada's introduction to Dixieland jazz that afternoon, also and though many came only to for the Dixie five was long and loud. Hollywood-Frofessor Joseph Manone, author, critic, and restwhile nitery operator, sees the eventual death of jazz, if things continue to go as they have been in the music world. Lesson 16 On How To Hurt Self, Biz

Some of the younger crop of leaders and musicians are taking themselves much too seriously. Their attitude not only is hu ting themselves but is damaging the music business at a period when it cannot survive much more damage.

A combo which within the last year, through records and movies, has risen to a semi-name position, recently was booked into a medium sized night club in a midwestern city. The spot hitherto had played only local talent, but the operator was induced to try a traveling unit.

ator was induced to try a traveling unit. On opening night, one dinner party of 18 persons at-tended, in addition to a good sized crowd of other patrons. During the first set of music, several couples, most of them from the party mentioned above, got up to dance.

The young leader stopped the music

The young leader stopped the music. "Our music is for listening, not dancing," he informed the guests snootily. "We will not play unless the floor is cleared!" The dancers left the floor, and the entire group of 18, plus a few other couples, left the tables and the club.

This was not a case of the amusement tax difficulty. The club operates on a singing and dancing policy, and pays the tax. It was not a case of walking into a floor show. Other pe-two points that I should like to outline: • On part two I believe you'll find it to be Sam Rubinwitch's bari-tone sax, not Chaloff's. Delaunay's discography would seem to verify this, and I also checked Mickey Folus on the matter. • To the best of my knowledge, part two runs for only about 2 minutes and 50 seconds of the rec-ord, part three beginning and run-ning through the third side. In other words, part two ends on that long, sustained chord. An air check of the Sequence, made when Woody was doing the Wildroot show, brings this point out very defi-nitely. Paul Logicson

Recently I saw Charlie Ventura's outfit at the Oriental theater in Chicago. It was excellent, and Charlie himself was, of course, magnificent; but the audience magnificent; stank.

maprificent; but the audience stank. The remarkable thing was that the band made no concessions mu-sically to please this square audi-ence, but bopped away for dear life-to the unspeakable joy of perhaps a dozen listeners. That takes courage and integrity, but it must have been rather hellish. I left after two shows thinking that-at least for the time being-outfits like this (not that there are any others quite like Charlie's) should stick to places like the Blue Note, Royal Roost, et al, where they are assured of an apprecia-tive audience, not one that comes to see the Three Stooges comedy gospel, but no one gets discour-age that way. Edinburgh, Scotland To the Editors: McKendrick (Chords, March 11) stated that Mark White doesn't play Laine, Eckstine, or Jeffries. Being an Ellington fan, I know he plays Herb's recordings regularly, Basin Street Blues in particular. He also plays Frankie's That's My Desire and Billy's The Wildset Gal in Town. I listen to Mark four times weekly and he features Herman, Ellington, and lots of JATP records. One thing, Mark is no square. It takes all kinds of music to make up a disc jockey's program. Bartha Ork Just Like

Big Friendship Club Chicago — Two years ago Irv Shapiro, a navy vet, joined Alex Bartha's ork, and four months later Mary Holly joined the band —Irv on drums, and Mary as a singer. One thing led to another, and on March 27 they were mar-ried in Atlantic City. Three days later Irv's sister, Estelle, married Boomie Rich-man, of Tommy Dorsey's band, in Baltimore.

By using the original chord as a sustained harmonic basis, the notes of the bop chord are used for im-provisation. With a thorough knowl-edge of just these two chapters the reader could readily see many pos-sibilities in improvising.

Dissonances

In Chap. 3, Alexander clearly explains the use of dissonances and chromatics, things that give bop those unexpected and erratic sur-

Several years ago Joe Liggins made a recording of The Honey Dripper for Exclusive. It was in honor of Roosevelt Sykes, he said, but it became a minor hit, and Liggins' managers began to bill him as The Honey Dripper. was impossible to copyright a title. On Tour Following the popularity of the Exclusive version of Honey Drip-per, Roosevelt toured the country coast to coast with an eight-piece band. Roosevelt says the title orig-inated as a grade school nickname pinned on him while he was a kid in St. Louis. The majority of Sykes' records have been original blues tunes. He wrote such well known titles as 47th Street Jive and Night Time Is The Right Time. One of his best sellers was his version of I Won-der, written during the war by Cecil Gant. Sykes makes his headquarters in Chicago today, and is playing with a three-piece group at The Holly-wood eafe. Most of the time during the past 20 years (his recording period) he has worked as a single. IAZZ IN THE COLLEGE: Roose-velt college's Jazz club has started a lecture series under the direc-tion of Joe Segal. George Hoefer lectured on Jazz-Bolden to Bird on April 7.  JAZZ IN THE BISTROS: The Argyle lounge on Chicago's north side has been featuring a Dirieland band made up of Don Slattery, trumpet; Floyd O'Brien, trombone; Wally Wender, clarinet; Little Brother Montgomery, piano, and Stanley Williams, drums.
 John Schenck's band battles have been meeting with considerable success at the Bee Hive lounge every other Sunday afternoon.
 JAZZ MISCEILANY: There has been a rumor to the effect that Vernil York on the Zutty and His Band Decca side I'd Do Anything For You is actually Louis Armstrong, due to the similarity of singing styles. There was a Vernil York, rumpet player of Chicago, who died in 1937. It was his work with Zutty.
 THE HOT BOX: March 25 requested information regarding a fiction story. Two collectors have written in giving information. The story was Blue Melody, by J. D. This he accomplished without the aid of fan clubs. In fact, Faz was hostile to those who danced and listaned in front of the band. An idolizing jitterbugging fan on the floor would prompt Faz to start playing intentionally "corny." Fazola was born Irving Henry Prestopnik 36 years ago in New Orleans. First Break -He almost walked out on the deal during rehearsal when Candy gave the following instructions: "The band will take the first cho-rus and 'Fazola' will take the first break on clarinet." Irving newly dubbed with a nickname, re-plied, "You can't do that, I can't variate."

His pals, including Louis Prima, finally got him to stay and earn his $2 in spite of his peculiar way of axpressing his fear of improvi-sation.

of expressing his fear of improvi-sation. After graduation from high school he jobbed with Candido and Prima on the Montight Cruise boats. Be-tween 1930-35 he played jobs around the Crescent city with the orchestras of Roy Teal and Shar-key Bonano. When Ben Pollack, discoverer of talent, arrived at the Roosevelt hotel Blue Room in Nov. 1935, Faz was properly "discovered" and trekked north to Chicaro with Ben. In May, 1936, Windy city jazz fans noted with interest the pro-for musicians. The playing per-sonnel included Muggay Spanier, George Wettling, David Rose, Dave Mathews, Freddy Goodman (Ben-ny's trumpet playing brother), and a clarinetist named "Fizzola."

In the fall of 1936, Pollack ar-rived in New York city with Faz in tow and the New Orleans boy's first records were cut (see discog-raphy). John Hammond paid hom-age with "Pollack has at least one great musician—the clarinetist Fazzola," as did George Frazier, who opined, "Fazola is one of the outstanding artists of 1936."

Fazola was an avid partici-pant and especially liked to play the blues and eat ribs with Paul's extra-hot sauce until 8 a.m. Those who could squeeze into the small barbecue heard Faz at his best. Fazola couldn't quite understand record collectors—they nonplussed him because they didn't play. One night this writer was in his room at the Eastgate, and Faz pointed to a small pile of Dixieland recorde (Olivers, Armstrongs, New Orleans Rhythm Kings) asying, "Take them with you if they'll do you any good, but leave the hillbilly sides because my chicks like them." The band he began to get restless. The book was getting more and hore commercial and loaded with pops. Faz was ordinarily a quiet and, lookout! It happened one night after work on the Blackhawk dance floor. Faz and another band member traded a few blows. It was another tribute to Faz's musicianship that he could fit in the Thornhill group with its in-the Thornhill kick to the extent that he purchased a bassoon and took hot choruses on it. On New Year's Day, 1942, Faz-

New York—For the third time in eight years, I am picking up on writing about the Beat's wax. With absolutely no slights up on writing about the Beat's wax. With absolutely no slights intended at the very able gentlemen who have preceded me, I should like to make a few things clear about the reviews which appear here. First, it's im-portant that you know my preju-dices or opinions musically. Not because my opinions are any more important or better than yours, but simply in any form of music, jazz or otherwise:

end in themselves. Much as I ad-mire the speed of a James or a Dorsey, the range of a Cat Ander-son, or the enormous power of a Buddy Rich, unless it is used for something other than to sheerly dazzle, no great lasting artistic greatness can be claimed for it. This is again derivative from the idea that not only is simplicity necessary in economy of expres-sion, but that there must be some formal structure contained in mu-sic. The synthesis of personal ex-pression and ideas with formal discipline and simplicity compound what to me is good jazz, music or art.

or art. • Little effort will be wasted here in cross comparisons. There is no known way of scientifically com-paring the impact of a finely bal-anced Lunceford ensemble chorus with the perky and fascinating bleepings of a Charlie Parker solo. I don't propose to try to find it. Let each reign king in his own realm. Let realm M

Your moods, your ideals, your emo-tions condition the performance-reaction just as surely as the man's ability who plays it. All of these must not only be taken into account, but remembered when any effort is made to say, "Man, who plays the greatest, Dizzy or Stravinsky?"

who plays the greatest, Dizzy or Stravinsky?" • This column has no personal likes and dislikes, never has had, hopes never to become so narrow-minded. I recently heard a magnificent Muggay Spanier side in an album of two-beat jazz put out by Ruth and Bill Reinhardt's Jazz Ltd. club, and admit to not only being a sucker for Parker, but a lot of the younger emulators. You will here find often favor-able reviews on gentry ranging from Kemp to Kostelanetz, also bitter disagreements whenever any of the present idols start getting careless or sloppy. There is no one good music, no one good form, no one great performer. That at least is the assumption on which this column is operated. A further word anent bop: more than three years ago I wrote a long piece in this column pointing out that out of six Dizzy and Parker records then available, the following faults were ob-servable: (1) A search for harmonic vari-ation which too often ended in unmatched in any previous jazz segment. In addition, these strides have been made in solo use and combi-nation rather than just in scoring and handling of sections. The fear has been advanced in many slightly motheaten quarters that jazz is dead and gone, that the land of bop is the home of flop. File this as a gentle dis-agreement, since indeed these kids show more individual vitality as musicians, more understanding of their horns, and the use of those horns in a group than did any of the men in the "Goodman Renaïs-sance" of the mid-30s. He has a He now plays Garner, bop or any-thing else you want, and in ad-dition has a double handed poly-phonic system of conception that is something to watch. He has a quality which Tristano lacks to me: communicative feeling of en-thusiasm about what he is play-ing as well as genuine love of musical absorption. Bystanders at the Three Deuces when Shearing was playing relief to Garner's trio will not forget several times when Garner was late getting back on the stand and Shearing filled in, several times cutting Garner's trio will not forget several times when Garner was late getting back on the stand and Shearing filled in, several times cutting Garner's trow will not forget several times good, but in no way indicative of Shearing's actual abilities, just as Garner's records don't ahow up his talents to best advantage. You, backed by bass and drums, is a restrained, jumping version which is almost commercial in its sim-plicity. The coda gives you some idea of the fillips Shearing can toss in when he gets a chance. Consternation is a weird combina-tion of bop and an auld English rounde, but Shearing sails daintily through it all with ne'er a note too many, and a few pasages of real jumping jazz. Miomi, an old pop from 1936, was recorded with the little unit which Shearing is using now at Cafe Society Downtown. Though the balance and recording are quite frightful, Marjorie Hy-ams vibes break through to advan-tage. Chuck Wayne's guitar is not quite so unfortunate. joint and 5,000 were turned away. Those who got inside found a show which was running 'way off schedule. Artie Shaw and his 40 symphony men (see Michael Ler-in's roview, page 1), who had been booked in for a week as a pub-licity gimmick, were scheduled for three 46-minute concerts but it took Shaw 1½ hours to get through each of his sets.

through each of his sets. Shaw's 40 men, unamplified, could scarcely be heard above the opening night chatter. The 90-cent-admission, back-of-the-rail crowd bore the longhair stuff stolidy for about half an hour of each set and then started voicing occasional complaints. "Let's jump!" they eried. "Give us a break, will ya!" and "Ool-ya-koo!"

Churchward played over and over. Shaw's clarinet playing was not much of an improvement over his conducting. New York—Bop City opened on schedule on April 14 along with a lot of unscheduled confusion. The big room was packed early in the evening and a continual hassel went on all night at the reservations desk. Outside, a long line of un-

It sound-ed like a second rate hack per-former playing in front of a has-tilly assembled group of rather mediocre musicians, to a reason-ably uninterested audience. At this point, the writer himself wonders, "How can a man with Shaw's reputstion get involved in such a frightful embroilio, one where not only did his audience hiss him, but the press presented a reaction of almost completely stony silence."

Never Outstanding

There is no answer outside of the fact that Shaw's driving ego which has made life so trouble-some for him in the past forces him constantly to do flamboyant things which bring him into diffi-culty. He has always been a fine radio first chair man. He has never radio first chair man. He has never been an outstanding jazz soloist on his own merits, nor is his schooling sufficient to put him in a class with the Kells, the Bonades, the Belli-sons, and the other men who are practicing artists of the clarinet. This entire performance was that of a man 'way out of his depth attempting to bamboozle a whole section of the populace into believing they were hearing good music, uniquely played and pre-sented. It was indeed unique, but only in its frightful, leaden bore-dom.

Larceny Un hunh, but how! Bringing a utterly untutored conductor who plays stiffly pedestrian clarinet in front of a miserably rehearsed symphonette is outright larceny with a $5 opening night charge. The press comments have been uniformly and crushingly unfavor-able. Earl Wilson reported that Shaw did "a rather unconvincing job." Wooden Wooden Wooden These additional opinions should be entered: five of the string play-ers when queried about Shaw's conducting ability said, "It's nice to know the cigar store Indian hasn't yet disappeared." while the audience cheering at the conclu-sion of one of his stanzas was asked by Shaw whether they were cheering him--silence--or the con-clusion--prolonged roars. He evidently feels it is just a case of conning the untutored masses to his ways of musical thinking and presentation. Most respectfully, thank God for also-there Ella Fitzgerald, whose lively, completely musical singing made Shaw's performance more definitely pitiful in its entirety.

One Example An example of his ineptitude was evidenced in the Tanaman Tryptyqus for Strings, which is a tight, nervously incessive work that requires almost perfect ac-centing and choice of tempos. Mr. Shaw devoted 24th minutes of rather lacklustre attention to the work. Vladimir Golschmann, when he recorded it with the St. Louis symphony some years ago, seemed to find only slightly more than 20 minutes was in order. This kind of performance was typical. Indeed, after about thirty minutes, the onlockers became a little drowsy, wondered if they weren't hearing a musical version of Gray's Elegy In A Country After his scheduled week, Shaw After his scheduled week, Shaw was replaced by Machito's band. The Point Very few of the fourth estate nailed the main point. That is that Shaw, having a fine idea and a tremendous opportunity to put it across, because of his unbelievable vanity and lack of ability, suc-ceeded in not only making a laugh-ing stock of himself, but also in making it difficult for a genuinely talented conductor-musician to do the same thing in the future. In short, he has held a large sec-tion of the music business up to ridicule, as well as tacking a pot onto chamber music. Kai Winding's sextet, which filled out the bill, seemed very sub-dued in their new surroundings. For the most part, they played rather listlessly, with only Bru Moore getting any lift into his solo work. By the weekend, much of the first night chaos had been ironed out. BEATS AND OFFBEATS

By ALAN ABEL

Columbue -A leading exponent of modern drumming re-Cently passed away. He was Ariel Cross, of Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Cross was a strong defendant of a policy which would would Mr. Cross was a strong defendant of a policy which would place percussion on a par with other instruments. He is going is be missed by many for his dy-namic and progressive ideas about pramoting better drumming. We are all aware of the un-healthy situation existing today that denies an up and coming drummer the opportunity to major in percussion in most universities. One outgrowth of this educational discrepancy is the feeling among many musicians that "drummers aren't musicians"--that "anybody can beat a drum."

Sore Thumb-

Sore Thanha Then, too, many drummers have the same attitude—one that makes sore thumb when they are com-pared with the schooled drummer. Bandleaders are beginning to search for drummers who can do more than just play "with a beat," and, little by little, drummers them-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious of the training and technique re-solves are becoming more conscious to one reason for this is the they're

BARE: Clasy The opposite extreme is the drum-mer who likes the "glassy" snare sound. With heads tightened to the breaking point he can shock the boys in the band with his explo-sive effects. The happy medium, though, is a nice crisp tone that will blend well musically and also sound as a snare drum should. To get this crisp effect, the bat-ter head should be a little tighter than the snare head. Once you reach this tone, keep i by adjust-ing your heads only when weather conditions force you to compensate the tension. The best policy is to let the heads alone. Keep your drums away from excessive heat and rooms with constantly chang-ing temperatures. Too many drum-mers are playing with their tom-tom and base dram heads too tight. A little experimentation will show you the approximate tension to best possible tone to be had from your drums. Many people have written in ask-ing information about an easy way helpful information. Our drums are manofactured to stand all kinds of abuse, but their wound depends a lot on the way we tension heads and snares. Some drummers like a "tubby" snare tone. One reason for this is that no one can figure out what they're playing—everything sounds tricky Phenix City, Ala,—New vocalist with the Frankie Schenk band is former single singer-pianist Helen Draper. Tall, red-haired, North Car-olinian Helen occasionally sits at the keyboard now, as intermission feature, in addition to her regular vocal chores. The Schenk band fin-ished a five-week date at the Club Royale in Savannah before opening at the new Chad's Rose room here. training, practice, and experience. To those who are curious about the art of drumming and are start-ing from the beginning, we might suggest a very unique and infor-mative self-instructor that has just been released. If you are interested in this material, drop a line to Sidney David, c/o Ludwig and Lud-wig, Elkhart, Ind. Example I is a typical four bar drum solo. Work it out slowly at first until you can reach a moder-ate tempo and observe the sticking. Example II is an example of what you might do with the ac-cents in a four-bar break. Work it out as with Example I and again observe sticking. The more speed you can work this up to, the more effective it will be. Example III shows a standard rhythmic figure. Note that the left stick is playing the same pattern as the right. This is excellent "on the job" training for a weak left hand. (Ed.
