San Francisco — CBS west coast stations carried a unique hroadcast New Year's Eve. Freedy Martin came on from the Palladium in Los Angeles right at midnight and played two numbers. The music stopped. Lots of crowd noise. Then the announcer said, in an aggrieved tome, "I don't know if we're still on the air, but if you'll stop throwing things at the band, they'll come back and play." A frantic master-control engineer finally cut the line out, played a couple of records, and then brought Martin back on as if nothing had happened. Vice presidents apparently here not listening.

Roy Stevens Ork Pulls 800 First-Nighters To Dailey's Meadowbrook

By AMY LEE

New York—The guys who had dates that Friday night (the rainy Jan. 6 Roy Stevens opened at the Meadowbrook) and the Upsala college crowd were Meadowbrook-minded, that's all. On the way there, if they could see through the fog that hung over the Jersey flate near Codar Grove to read the Meadowbrook billboard, they saw the new orchestra name, "Roy Stevens."

Whiteman Set For

"And who's Roy Stevens?" they saked.
"Roy Stevens" they saw again on the display board in the lobby. Skeptically they walked down the broad staircase and sat tentatively down at their tables; about 400 from nearby Upsala college and about another 400 Meadowbrook regulars. Sat and waited to dig this new band, this Stevens.

Against the blue backdrop they saw 13 guys in wine-red Eton jackets, horns flashing like gold, and a cute gal in a strapless white formal sitting over by the white piano, vocalist Patti Malloy, Stevens, impeccably tailored, had nice way of talking into the mike to them, usually trumpet in one hand. He acted as though he knew them all and had been playing for them every night for months.

New York—In Down Beat's 1946 band poll, the Joe Mooney quartet copped a very strong second place in the small group division. In the poll that just closed, a bare three years later, the Joe Mooney group finished last, with a 10 vote return from a group of the staunch faithful.

The Mooney quartet has broken up. Joe, accordionist-pianist-vocalist-arranger-composer, is thinking of doing a single act in clubs. Gaet Fregs, Joe's original bass player, has taken religious orders. Andy Fitzgerald, the Mooney clarinetist, says he is going to give up jazz. Jack Hotop is supposed to be goback to Carl Hoff in radio and TV work as guitarist.

Three years ago this writer painted a series of pieces in the Beat which started off with the flat statement, "The most exciting musical unit in the U. S. today is playing in Paterson, N. J. That was the lead paragraph. I'd write it the same way today, three years and a lot of water under the dam later. If it were correct, and all the guys I conned into going out there from Time, Variety, Billboard, AP, UP, Look, the slicks, and the dailies couldn't have been crazy, too, what happened? How did a unit that Alec Wilder called the beat thing he'd heard in 20 years of music fall flat on its face after the hottest tart commercially the music business has ever seen for a small unit?

How did a group, which one week was making $250 and $2,500 the next, fail?

NYU To Conduct Course On Jazz

New York—Another college to add a course in jazz in NYU. The spring term finds "Perspectives in Jazz" on the course list. Instructors will be Marshall Steams, on leave from his post as assistant professor of English at Cornel university; John Hammond, vice president of Marcury records and jam critic and George Avakian, writer and contributing editor to Pic.

Among those who will give guest lectures are Duke Ellington, Dixxy Gillespie, Count Basie, Beany Goodman, Louis Armstrong and Eddie Condon.

Lectures start with jazz defini-tions, carry through the history of jazz to bop and things to come. Registration for the course closes Feb. 4.

Louis Jordan Trails Krupa Into Bop City

New York—Bop City has Louis Jordan scheduled in for two weeks starting Feb. 2, following the current show which includes Gene Krupa, Ruth Brown, and Bill Farrell, latter making his first Broadway appearance.

After Jordan, the jaxs spot will bring in Woody Herman and Mel Torme on Feb. 16 for two weeks, followed by Artie Shaw March 2. House policy from now on will be to hold attractions for two weeks instead of three as in the past.

Hails Jeri Southern As New Star Capsule

Chicago—What's My Neme? is a good tune and an appropriate title for what could very well be the theme song of a girl who plays and aims it so well. Except for those who have been there and know, or those who have already heard via the grapevine, just about everyone who roes into the Hi-Note here asks. "Who is she?" It might occasionally take awhile, but sooner or later they ask, "Who's the girl?"
It is only natural that curiosity would be aroused by the rich, vibrant voice and the lovely defiant lace above the keyboard.

Previously Unappreciated
So who is the girl? Jeri Southern. She's been around Chicago for some two years, playing in various neighborhood spots, but has hardly been heard or appreciated until her present booking. Maybe it's because she is now working a room that is good both acoustically and audience-wise. This jazz spot, with its dark intimacy, its black velvet backdrop, and better than average p.a. system is a fine show case for the sultry Jeri.

A musician's musician, she also has the ability of holding the attention of any audience, which in itself is a remarkable feat for an intermission soloist.

Studied Classics

Studied Classic

Studied Classics

Born in Omaha, she studied classical music from childhood until ahe came to Chicago. Now, however, she hasn't access to a pisson other than on the job, and is genuinely disturbed that she cannot aractics every day.

Although she says "the classics are my teby," she enjoys good jazz and admits that hop fascinates her, but that she can't play it well herself.

Says Jeri: "The only time I really am able to express myself is when I am playing classics or singing."

Perhaps this explains her easy relaxation and the warmth and reeling she projects in every song.

Miles Davis, who recently appeared opposite Jeri at the Hi-Note said of her: "Jeri has everything . . looks, personality, and her choice of material is great She doesn't play or sing the ordinary overworked things. Man, she sells! Not since I first heard Sarsh Vaughan have I been so impressed by a new singer. I don't mean they're anything alike, but they both make you listen the first time you hear them, and keep on listening because they have something new to offer."

Nowadays, with the field of vocalists overcrowded, it is difficult for a newcomer not to be influenced by someone who is well-known. Also, it is difficult for the acunds they hear on record and radio, not to associate a new voice or a new sound with those with whom they are familiar.

This is not true of Jeri.

Comments SARAH YAUGHAN

At Cafe Society, NYC

At Cafe Seciety, NYC

New York — Sarah Vaughan's appearance over the year end holidays at Cafe Society was in the nature of both a homecoming and a landmark for the leading girl song stylist of the day. One of Sarah's first appearances on her own, after she left Billy Eckstine's band, was at the Greenwich Village cellar. Her progress can be pretty well marked by three of her appearances there. That first time, in 1946, she was an intermission pianist who did a little singing. She drew $90 a week. A year later she was back as the show's headliner, getting $200 a week, This time she went in for $2,250 a week, plus a percentage.

Developed in '49

Developed in '49

Developed in '49

Although she has won Down Beat's poll for the last three years as the top girl singer not with a band, it was 1949 which saw Sarah develop into a finished entertainer who was really worth the large wads of cash being tossed at her. Just a year ago, when she played at the Clique in New York, Sarah was an interesting singer with a lot of distressing characteristics. She lacked presence, she was overdoing her stylistic gesturing and facial expressions as well as her vocal calisthentics, and she looked—to put it bluntly—somewhat in the neighborhood of a mess.

The changes that have been wrought on her in one year's time are little short of a miracle. At Cafe Society, she was dressed tastefully, her hair and makeup had been worked out to give her a pleasantly glamorous touch, and she handled herself on the floor extremely well. She was in command of the situation at all times and there were no jarring notes to detract attention from her superb voice or the individual way in which she uses it.

Top Showman

Top Showman

In the next few years, Sarah will undoubtedly go on to reach a wider audience, but it was in this last year that she achieved the polish which transformed her from a relatively esoterically appreciated singer into a showman who can hold her own with those select few who roost up on the top rung. The very process of acquiring this polish has made her a better singer, one who gives the impression of having complete confidence in her abilities, who knows what she can do and does it without straining, with complete ease, and wonderfully well.

New York — Artie Shaw, who signed with Columbia records last spring, started the new year by cancelling his Columbia pact and signing with Decca. It's understood his Decca contract runs for three years and guarantees him 20 sides a year. Although he cut a number of longhair and pop sides for Columbia shortly after signing with them, none of this material has been released yet.

The clarinetist's deal with Decca calls for him to slice with his full band, with his Gramercy five combo, and to team up with other Decca will be pop and jazz stuff. Shaw started cutting for Decca during the first week in January, just before going to Lenox Hill hospital for a gallstone operation. Among these first sides were two Afro-Cuban numbers in which he used Machito's rhythm section in addition to his full band (see Things to Come, page 17).

As of the first of the year, Shaw dropped Pat Lockwood as his vocalist. A new girl had not yet been selected at presstime.

And What A Day This Ended!

New York—Artie Shaw's first Decca recording session, documented in the above photos, was held Jan. 3. It climaxed a 24-hour period in which Shaw and band, set to record for Columbia, came upon a slight disagreement with that company, asked for release, got it, received six other record company offers, anapped up Decca, and recorded four sides. A good day's work, Sidemen in the bottom photo are baritonist Danay Bank and tenerist Al Cohn, while the boss, in action, is seen above.

By JACK TRACY

Chicago—There can be little doubt that the startlingly facile and prolific Terry Gibb is the greatest vibist around today. And that musicians like drummer Louis Bellson, trumpeter Charlie Shavers, and pianist Lou Levy have to be ranked very near the top when you speak of contemporary greats. These men, along with the very capable Nelsten floyd, base, and plerry Winner, clarinet, just finished a date at the Bine Note have, preved to have men of the most exciting units to hit this city in a long while.

Driving relentlessly and forcefully on up-tempo stuff, swinging subtly on ballada, the group relied mainly on the individual talents of the members rather than intricate arrangements to sell itself. In this respect it was like hearing a jazz concert every set. But, unalike a Granz-type concert, the members seemed genuinely exuberant and interested in everything they played.

Shavers, who blew more in one number at the Blue Note than he did in a whole evening with the Tommy Dorsey band, is quite a showman. Whether it be singing blues in an infectious but "the blues are actually pretty silly, aren't they?" manner, or ripping off Eldridge-like phrases with a quizzical eye cocked at the crowd, he sells.

Bellson Surprising
Another fugitive from the TD aggregation, Bellson, proved very surprising. On top of the beat all the time and getting more and more away from his former Krupanastics and adopting some Max Roachisms, Louis manages to be felt rather than heard. He stays completely out of the way of soloists, supports rather than hinders. If Levy has a fault, it's that he too nonchalant about the whole af

The Battle Of RPMs Is Settled

New York—Official announcement by RCA-Victor that they will start pressing 33½ rpm platters about March 1 appears to almost wind up the battle of the speeds which got underway last spring when Victor brought out its 45 rpm records. Only moves still necessary to put the vast insjority of the industry on a three-speed basis are for Deca and Columbia to add 45 to their lines.

Won't Affect Pops
Victor's addition of LP to its catalog has been rumored since last summer, and was deemed a certainty by December when they announced that they would start putting out three-speed phonographs. Victor's use of LP will not effect the current status of its pop output, since only selections from its classical catalog will be put on LP platters. All releases will continue to come out on both 78 and 45.

In announcing that they were going LP, Victor stressed the fact that their main push would continue to be on the 45s. For its LP output, the company claims to have a "new and improved" platter, "made possible by an exclusive RCA-Victor processing method."

New York—The present Elliot Lawrence band, which just closed Bop City here, was a very pleasant surprise to a great many people in these parts who like jazz. When the collegiate-looking Mr. Lawrence first invaded this city from the haunts of Philadelphia three years ago, this was one of the very few reporters listening to his band who filed a negative report.

Billboard, Variety and all the other trades were all falling on their faces predicting how Mr. Lawrence would sweep the band business before him. The George Evans office was busily lining up all available newspaper space, and everything seemed in order for a triumphant tour of the country.

Mulligan Big Asset

Mulligan Big Asset

Biggest asset of all to the band is the addition of Gerry Mulligan on baritone sax. He is in only for concert and long club dates, otherwise will confine himself to arranging. But as was first reported to you during the 1948 days of the nine-piece Georgie Auld band, this long, lean redhead is quite some musician. His baritone solo ideas are apt and original, his scoring rich, pretty, and inventive. He is one of the best of the current crop of young musicians, shows portents of really becoming something.

Mulligan has done a 'Tie Autumn for the band which in its counterwriting and constant movement is a welcome change from pure section scoring. The book is also well-salted with Ralph Burns, Frank Hundertmark, and Nelson Riddle. Riddle's Temptation, using duet passages between French horn, flute, and bassoon, was especially pleasant.

Elliot, by and large, has given up piano playing, assigned that labor to Bob Karch, which is a desirable change. His piano playing was never easy nor flowing, always carried with it a sense of working stiffness that hampered the ideas. Also, no leader-piano man can give the rhythm section the boot it should have from the instrument, since he has other chores to attend to.

Fluent Pine

Andy Pino's tenor is fluent, good-toned bop; on the night heard (opening) it seemed restrained, but indicative of better things to come. Joe Soldo's lead work in several cases was brilliant, commanding good melodic and rhythmic flow from the men working with him.

Rosalind Patton was doing the vocals at Bop City, Danny Riccardo having been dropped for that date because of the obvious conflict with Frankie Laine. She is singing better, more in tune than she was.

The band's chief difficulty at singing better, more in such she was.

The band's chief difficulty at present is with its climaxes. During the time we heard them play, the audience was treated to good music, fine solos, and some excellent arranging ideas. But at no point did all these jell together with a sense of impact to make you feel you had really had had it musically.

Not That Type

Not That Type
Elliot admitted that, naturally, the band didn't peak as did the Herman band, simply because it wasn't playing that kind of instrumental score.

But this isn't quite what we meant. You can be playing a balled, still do it so consummately and with such good musicianship that it leaves the same impact as a wild instrumental.

Still Lacks Drive

Still Lacks Drive
The Lawrence band still lacks the essential drive that it always has. The color, the originality, the relaxation it has garnered. But the "whump," the smack, the crisp bite, the slugging attack, or whatever you may term it, still ian't there.
Two sources for this may be the drum and lead trumpet chairs.
Howie Mann is a good young drummer. But his playing has none of the deep, wide tone you get from a Lamond or got from a Tough.
Also, he neither relaxes just behind the beat, nor rides ahead of it for drive. Too often he is merely on it, competently, but still just on it. There isn't sufficient or varied choice of impulse from his chair to give the band the rock it needs badly.

Rough Job

Rough Joh

Rough Job

This is about the same criticiam that can be made of lead man Johnny Dee's playing. Lead trumpet with a book like this is rough. It takes not only superlative technical musicianship and a real affinity for the scores, but also a constant, unslackening attention to detail. If you stuck the big-toned driving competency of a Conrad Gozzo in this chair for one set, you would hear what we mean. Dee is a good enough musician to get it. It's up to Lawrence to make sure that it comes out.

Lawrence now has a fine all-around dance band, capable of working anyone's job to good reports. It still lacks from a commercial standpoint a distinctive flavor it can label all its own. But, in any event, this band does much more to deserve the accolades which were draped on its 1947 predecessor.

Silhouette Returns Roy, But With New Backing

By PAT HARRIS

Chicago—Roy Eldridge, who could play with any Korny Klowus outfit and still be an exciting musician, had the luck to find a congenial group waiting for him when he repeated his late December date at the Silhouette by coming in Jan. 10 got lucky and joined a carnival for $12 a week soon after that."

For the record, others in altoist Dixon's little band are Roselle Clarton, piano, and Lotus Perkins, they ran away from school together to go on the road with a band with which they'd been playing neighborhood dances. Their first date was in Sharon, Pa., about 75 miles from home.

The manager of the show thought he had a bunch of musicians." Ray renombers, "and he told us just before we got on the stand to play the music as written, to disregard any added notes on the manuscript. None of us said a word. We didn't even look at each other. When the curtain went up, there wasn't a sound.

"The manager pulled the curtain down fast, and came on the stage to find us all crying—the oldest one in the band was 16 (I was 14, and Alvin 15). I was always the one to say things like that, so I told him the truth, that we couldn't read music. He rearranged the show so that we'd be able to play tunes we knew.

For the record, others in altoist Dixon's little band are Roselle Claxton, piano, and Lotus Perkins, bass. All, when we heard them opening night, were looking forward to working opposite Red Allen's combo, acheduled to move in three days later. Jumping double bill was due to end Jan 22, however.

Silhouette had Nellie Lutcher, with a trio, as a possibility for 10 days starting Jan. 27, and Woody Herman's small band to follow for another 10-day stanza. Neither was signed at presstines. One sure thing, though, was the club's April booking sked. Louis Armstrong there April 7 for 17 days, and Dizzy Gillespie on the 28th for a 10-day stretch.

Freeman Opening. kept

Dahi contribute some sharply defined and meritorious soles. Rhythm, in hands of Red Lienberg, drums, and Gus Cole, bass, is excellent.

Blue Note Switch

Couple of switches in the Dixie band bought by the Blue Note, with Fred Moore in on drums instead of Art Trappier, and possibly a Chicagoan on trombone. No guitarist, and tramist Sandy Williams apparently couldn't make it. So, with Moore, other sure bandsmen are Art Hodes, PeeWee Russell, and Lee Collina. Also, Chippie Hill on vocals. All this, with Sarah Vaughan, there currently.

Hal Otis had a chance to show his wildman technique on violin and piano, and show off his remarkable guitarist, Ellis Johnson, during his stay at the Note opposite the Shavers unit. Last couple of times Hal has played in Chicago he's worked places which don't allow the freedom he should have. Unfortunately, Johnson's returning to his pursuit of the PhD at the University of Chicago next term, so this was his last job with Otia Shavers and crew moved up to the Continental in Milwaukee, where they'll be until Feb. 5.

KRAL-CAIN Hi-Note, Chicage

Hi-Note, Chicage
Chicago—One of jazz' newer
"new sounds," the Roy Kral quintet, featuring Jackie Cain, returned to Chicago with a new cellist, a great many more tunes in their library, and the personal as well as musical freshness which is perhaps their greatest appeal.
Jackie's singing seems to be smoother, less stylized, and better suited to the ballads which mow appear to be her major contribution with the group. Her vocal on Lover Man is high point of any evening, while the new instrumental number, Jackie's Party, shows the whole unit off to best advantage. advantage.

Greatest Trouble

Getting the complete quintet into any number at the same time seems to be their greatest difficulty. Half the instrumentals feature guitarist Jimmy Gourley, and the others cellist Jean Martin. Apparently it's a case of either/or, and tunes on which both cello and guitar work are few. Perhaps after the extremely capable Mins Martin is with them a while longer, they will be able to get a more integrated effect.

Jean, 23, replaced Marilyn Beabout, who decided to stay in New York to study. She had been working with Bennie Harris in Philadelphia and was recommended to Roy to fill Marilyn's place. A graduate of New York's High School of Music and Art, she is an extremely pretty and extremely reticent young woman. She is an extremely pretty and extremely reticent young woman. She is able to evoke a definite jass feeling from her instrument, thoughher long periods of enforced silence could be put to better use. Jean's cello background on I'm Glad There Is You is a haunting, chilling contrast to Jackie's warm recitative — a juxtaposition of great effectiveness.

Good Listening

Good Listening

The tasteful drumming of Elaine Leighton, base playing of Elaine's husband, Kenny O'Brien, and, of course, Kral's master-minding piane complete the unit. Good listening now, and the promise of more to come.

firms for the purchase of the maeters.

Composed of bassist Johnny Reed, guitarist Tommy Gaither, barltone George Nelson, high tenor Alexander Sharp, and lead singer Sonny Til, they got a real push when they appeared on Arthur Godfrey's ahow as the Vibranaires.

Signed with Jubilee records soon afterwards, they changed the unit name, added a bass, and recorded Too Soon is Know, which was written by Miss Chessler and recorded on Jubilee's now-defunct Natural label.

Riding on Chessler tunes and the vocal tricks of singer Til, who sounds like a cross between a gopel singer, blues shouter, and Billy Kenny, the unit has appeared at the Apollo theater in New York four times in 1949, and worked the Royal Roost opposite Charlie Parker during the first part of last year. Other than the peculiar joh the youthful Til seems to give little Negro bobby-soxers, we can find absolutely no reason for it.

Buckner Backs

Buckner Backs
Milt Buckner's band backed the show well, and Buckner's vibe solo on You Can't Take That away from Me was the musical segment of the program. Buckner's been travelling with Steele's show since August, and has about a month more to go.

One very interesting aspect of the whole situation is what will happen with a whole barrel of talent in town at once. Shearing opens Feb. 1. On Feb. 15 Stan Kenton plays his Frisco concert, and on the sume night Billy Eckstine opens for two weeks at Ciro's.

That's if the music lovers have any loot left over after the Armstrong-Ory concert and the Armstrong two weeks at the New Orleans Swing club in January. There's only so much gold in these here hills these days, so somebody's got to go.

answer to the question "What happened to the dance business?" it's worth while to take a look into this man Freddy Martin and his aggregation of very fine musicians currently occupying the bandstand at the Palladium, the one spot left in this territory where dance bands as such are still considered major attractions.

First, let's check up on the boxoffice angle. Martin, coming in the night after Christmas (best entertainment period of the year), pulled in during his first week almost 19,000 cash customers, a little better than the mark set by

It is defined a flock of sideline observers here, particularly song pluggers and trade mag "critics" who like to wail that the dance business must have more syrup and less swing, more beat and less bop, to shout: "See, we told you so. Harry James died at the Palladium. Martin murders 'em. There's your answer!"

Sorry, friends (if any), but we disagree. With all due respect to Freddy Martin's musicianly job of organizing and operating one of the most commercially successful supper room bands in the country, he just doesn't have a really good dance band. The kind of dance band that could sit down in a dance hall and draw a crowd of strictly dance minded patrons month after month, and even year after year, as it was done right here in the days when the dance business really flourished.

Play Well

Play Well

Play Well
The Martin band plays everything from sambas to synthetic swing, and whatever the Martin men play, they play well, even with an air of enjoyment. This is understandable, because of all the strictly commercial bands this one, to our ear, is the least tiresome to listen to. But we watched the dancers, and we noted that every time the band, during the course of those long sets, switched to a different idiom and a different tempo, a group of dancers stumbled around for a while and decided to ait it out.

This kind of band is fine—for a cided to sit it out.

This kind of band is fine—for a handful of expert dancers who can dance to anything with anybody. But it's not for the average guy who is a bit too busy to keep himself under the constant care of Arthur Murray.

Wait and Sec

self under the constant care of Arthur Murray.

Wait and See

Freddy Martin is going to take in a lot of money at the Palladium; he's also going to take a lot out. Let's wait and see how he's doing at the end of his long, nine-week stand. By that time we'll know how many of those who were caught by the line, "First time at popular prices," kept coming back.

DOTTED NOTES: Irving Greenwald, one of our town's top tenorsaxmen (and formerly of Cleveland), has taken over the managerial chores with the Red Ingle unit.

Jack Teagarden spent holiday season here, recuperating from recent run-in with pneumonia. Planned to be back with Armstrong All-Stars by the time they open at Bal Tabarin here (Feb. 10).

Ted Yerxa, who was hitting the high spots in local music business with various enterprises (columnist, disc jockey, record manufacturer) until his Lamplighter record firm folded, as in bad trouble with health and financial difficulties in New York. Friends here, particularly Jack Lawson, who press agents for Tommy Dorsey and ether music names, are organizing a campaign to pull Ted out of a bad hole.

If you have been struggling with the semantics of musical terminology, this may help: Turk Murphy, who came to fame as trombonist with the Yerba Buena Jaxx land of San Francisco, was asked during a recent visit here, if he thought "Dixie was here to stay." He replied huffly: "I don't know and I don't sare. We play only New Orleans jazz, which is apmething entirely different."

Constructive, Not Wanton Criticism

We recently received a couple of letters, partially inspired by Down Beat's current laboratory band experiment to dis-cover, if possible, what has happened to the dance band busi-ness. Both of the writers, though in widely separated fields of activity, struck one common chord in their discussion of the problem.

Pat Bradley, program director of radio station KXLW in St. Louis, writes:

"No doubt about it, the big band reign has toppled. There is a possibility that economics, politics, and maybe society in general have exerted some of the strain that has led to the almost total extinction of big band popularity. However, a more serious movement has been the recent profusion of notional criticism that has in some way sprung from pro-ssional jealousy and just over-all prejudice.

"It seems as though the average musician has been inspired by this movement to heap scorn on some other individual or some style in the music world. All of the music forms will have an audience, regardless of the style or publicity given it. However, a great deal of this needless confusion will cease when emotional criticism is eliminated and construction or compression will inserted." constructive or comparative criticism is inserted.

A civil engineer of Little Rock, Arkansas—Hal M. Drake

"My own profession frequently is retarded by statements members which discredit the ideas of other members. dical men, on the other hand, are careful not to publicly ticke the theories of other doctors. I believe that if one band leader makes uncomplimentary remarks about the music played by a rival band, he has not increased business or respect for himself. He may have decreased business for

"If Louis Armstrong states that hop is not good music, he is not added a jazz fan. He merely has subtracted a potential p customer!

In other words, in the opinion of these readers, there has been too much putting down in the music biz. Too much sel, and not enough pro. Not enough of accentuating the mitive, even though it's not your school nor your style. The much of a general "drop dead" attitude.

Down Best certainly doesn't advocate a pollyanna policy of "Everything is great, Jack!" But we still recall, some 20 years later, a statement made by the late Ben Bernie when he was asked why he gave such generous pats on the back to Vincent Lopes and other rival band leaders in interviews with newspaperment. with newspapermen

The "ole maestro" replied:

"We're all in the same racket together, selling dance usic to the public. If I can boost the stock of another dance and, I'm indirectly boosting myself. If I say his music stinks, the has a right to say my music stinks, and soon the public till begin believing that we both stink!"

We think Ben was 20 years ahead of his time.

Whence Came Jive?

Tu the Editors: Te the Editors:

I am a student of the University of Vienna and I am in an awkward position as I suffer from a terrible lack of philological literature about American slang, especially the jive-slang I am writing a discartion about.

cially the jive-slang I am writing a dissertation about. I should like to get a thorough etymological explanation of the word jive, if possible. According to Webster, I found words like "jiva," a Hinduism (Sanakrit) meaning the life energy, vital, principle, or individual soul. Another, jivaran, is a South American Indian tribe living in Ecuador and noted for its highly developed drum language. Also, giba, or jibe, from the Swedish dialect "gipa," to gape, or to talk foolishly and rashly. Compare the Icelandic "giepa," to talk nonsense.

"And after the four bar rest—here—I want you to take the lead from Joe's special. Do you follow me?"

the exact correlation between word and sound, between speech and music, and then tension, which is due to the syncopated rhythms. Does jive have any linguistic value? How did its use come about?

Otto Stalzer

Cotto Stalzer

Cotto

Washington, D. C.
To the Editors:

In your story "Armstrong Explains Stand Against Bop" (Down Beat, Dec. 30), we have a clear picture of double-minded statements. At the beginning, Armstrong is quoted as saying, "Bop is ruining music." At the end, he states, in reference to music in Europe, "You stay over there five or six years and you get rusty. You get out of touch because nobody over there is creating anything."

What kind of double-talk is this? First Armstrong condemns progress in music, and last, he criticizes its absence.

Louis Armstrong is not fooling anyone but himself. He knows that he must make a decision in favor of bop, regardless of its misconceptions and malpractice, or suffer the consequences of being untrue to himself and the cause of music because of the preservation of his self and style. He knows and realizes that he was not representing and presenting the highest and most progressive music to the citizens of Europe. Louis Armstrong has too much character to parade in such vestures.

Sad Old Refrain

Wellington, New Zealand To the Editors:
Since the only American records available on the Australian market are those of the Victor, Columbia, and Decca companies, you can see that most of the good jazz records released today are unavailable in this country. We rely on our local radio stations to let us hear records as they are released. In the Wellington district there are four stations and from them we hear shout 12 hours of jazz a month. Imagine it! And this comes from two stations, the other two playing no lazz of any consequence.

It's not unusual to hear an announcer say, "Now we have a really solid number for you, Stan Kenton's theme tune, Painted Rhythm, played by Geraldo and his orchestra." Geraldo and his orchestra." Geraldo and his orchestra. "Geraldo and his orchestra." Geraldo and his orchestra." Geraldo and his orchestra. "Geraldo and his orchestra." We have a swing slub in Wellington which is small but enthusiastic. We play what records we can get our hands on, and the last half of the program is taken up by local musicians, some of them excellent.

Shamrock, Texas To the Editor:

To the Editor:

This is to let you know that we are truly interested in the outcome and findings of your test run with the "lab" orchestra.

We have operated our ballroom with name bands ever since opening last April, and have been just making expenses. Naturally we, too, are concerned with what is wrong with the dance business. Matter of fact, we have taken one short step to try to help.

On your suggestion in a recent editorial that the public did not get to hear dance music, we have asked the local radio station to help make the public dance music minded.

They now have a full hour program of nothing but dance tunes, cutting out all the records that feature the vocalist too much. We are helped in our efforts by being able to supply the station with the latest recording of the name bands appearing here from time to time. This little station reaches a probable audience of 50,000 persons. Why wouldn't this trick help all over the United States? Anyway, we are trying.

Another time Sharkey led a band at Nick's for a long engagement. It was at this time he made records for Vocalion and Decca with his New Orleans pals in 1936. The sides were High Society, Mudhole Blues, Old Fashioned Love, Swing In, Swing Out, Blowing Off Steam, and others. Amother sojourn outside the Mardi Gras town in 1927 found Sharkey in Jean Goldkette's band for a short spell.

Due to Pluga

Due to Plugs

Sharkey's 1949 comeback is partly due to the consistent plugging by Roger Wolfe, WDSU disc Jockey and Dixieland booster. He originally recorded Sharkey's Dixieland band on his own label, Bandstand. Later he leased the masters to Kappa label of Hollywood for national distribution, and finally negotiated a Capitol recording date for the band.

The group made the following sides for Wolfe: Farewell Blues, Tin Roof Blues, Tailgate Ramble, Muskrat Ramble, Shine, High Society, That's a Plenty and The Bucket's Got a Hole in It. These sides are available now on the Kappa label. Paul Mares Jr. has them all on the original Bandstand dises. The sides are rare collector's items in apite of the fact they were recorded in 1949.

Saints Go Marching In. The other two sides have not been released as yet. One is a novelty while the

Cap Sides 'Phoney'

By far the most authentic and best sides are those on Kappa. They project white New Orleans music at its best, including the driving ensembles and exciting solos. They are true to the tradition of the NORK. It is not contradictory, even though they were made by the same band, to say the Capitol sides are phony. ## Evolution Of Jazz

He "blew down" Peres and Freddie Keppard.

• Joe Oliver, one of the greatest of all Crescent City cornetists, was born in 1885 and took up the cornet around 1900, first playing with a brass band of young-stees his own age. His first legitimate job was with the famed, "high flying" Eagle hand, and soon he became second currectist with the Onward Brass band of Manuel Peres. It was with this group that Oliver began to gain recognition. Sometime later, while working at the Abordoon brothers' cabaret, he "blew down" Peres and Freddie Keppard, hence gaining his regal sobriquet. The district was full of able brassman such as Bunk Johnson, Peres, Keppard, Mutt Carey, Papa Celestin, Sidney Desvigne, and Buddy Petit, but Joe's title was never challenged.

Crowds flocked to hear "those weird, soulful tunes."

Oliver fronted the band at Pete Lalla's Storyville cabaret until his departure for Chicago, when his place was taken by an up-and-coming young cornetist named Louis Armstrong. Upon his arrival in the Windy City. King Joe became increasingly famous as crowds flocked to hear him play "those weird, soulful times." For two years he was an important part of the Chicago jazz scene as a member of the Royal Gardens and Dreamland cafe hands. In 1920 he organized his own Croole Jazz hand (Honore Dutrey, trombones Johnny Dodda, clarinett Ed Garland, hase; Minor Hall, druma, and Lil Hardin, piano). This group played around Chicago until mid-1921, when King took a six-month San Francisco date.

The Creole Jazz hand returned to Chicago after a year's absence and moved back into the Royal (now Lincoln) Gardens. News of the growing virtuosity of Louis Arastrong had reached Oliver and, always eager to improve his band, he wired Louis to join his aggregation as second correctist. This proved to be a most fortunate association for both men. For Oliver, it meant even greater fame and prosperity. For "little Louis" it was an opportunity to be conched by, and play along side of, his idel. The band, with the new addition, met with increasing fortune until a sudden breakup early in 1924. Oliver then reorganized with Armstrong and Lil Hardin and left on a tour of several eastern states.

DOWN BEAT

Chicago—A roundup of three new TV shows, the first two from Hollywood and the third from New York, shows small hands—in fact, small "entertaining" hands—to be in the ascendancy. In the center frame, Leon Belasco, onetime hand leader and of late a movie actor, does a burlesque of a symphony conductor with his six-piece group on the Buster Keaton KTTV show. Belasco's bandamen are Bobby Guy, trumpet; Abe Moot, clarinet; Joe Howard, trembone; Cliff Whitcomb, piano; Lou Singer, drums, and Larry Breen, how (and tube?). Another KTTV opot in reserved for Red Nichols' latter-day Five Pennies, shown in the first photo, Pennies are Joe Rushton, has sax; Rolly Culver, drums; King Jackson, trombone: Nichols, cornect; Bobby Hammack, piano, and Rosy McHargue, clarinet. Decar is supposed to represent a small nitry after closing time, with chairs stacked on tables and a hip janitor hanging around. Last picture, from CBS-TV in New York, is of the Kirby Stone quintet, which recently made the switch from cocktail unit to act status, making their debut as the latter at the Latin Quarter in New York this winter. Their TV show, Strictly for Laughs, is alred from 7-7:15 pm. (EST) Tucsday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and features "music with a sense of humor sams funny hats, checkered suits, and seltser bottles." Musical humorists are, from the left, Doc Mandel, bass; Art Engler, tenor; Stono, trumpet; Michael Gardner, piano, and Eddie Hall, drums.

Files 50 G Suits Against HOLLYWOOD TELETOPICS Ory, AFM, Union Officials

Hollywood—One of the most curious episodes in the history of union-employer relationships here seems to be due for a court airing. Most west coasters had forgotten that Ivie, like many others who first came to real prominence in the east, got her startright here. She did her first singing at Mike Lyman's Tent cafe (where she had been hired as a dancer) with Paul Howard's Quality Serenaders.

Then she later sang with Curtis Mosby's Kanass City Bluehlowers at the Apex club, which later became the Club Alabam. In 1930, or thereabouts, Ivie was singing at Frank Sebastian's Cotton in Culver City when Les Hite's band held the stand Along with Lawrence Brown, also with about it.

Not until after Miss Anderson's death at her Los Angeles apartment house did it become generally known that she had married walter Collins, L. A. business man, on Dec. 15, 1949, less than two weeks before her death on Dec. 28. Nor did they know she had secured an annulment to her marriage to Mark (or Marques) Neal a few months after they were married in 1948. Kalmanovitz claims in his suit that he was operating the Gag club at the same address when he entered into an oral agreement with Ory to close it for a month, remodel the nitery, and reopen it as Kid Ory's New Orleans Jazz club.

Written Agreen

The suit states that a written greement was made on Septem-

All except a few close friends believed she was still married to Neal, whose claim to a share in her estate, amount of which has not been revealed, will have to be settled by the court.

Miss Anderson's death was caused by an attack of asthma. She had been in a hospital for a week but, apparently on the road to recovery, was returned to her home the day after Christmas. She left the Duke here in 1940 at the close of his appearance in Jump for Jou, a stage production that supplied her with the song that was one of her most successful recordings, I Got It Bad, and That Aim't Good.

Promise Of Better Music On Video Shows In 1950

Hollywood—A survey of the musical aspects of television here at the beginning of its second year as a major operation in this territory gives us the impression that the new medium holds some promise for persons who like music and for musicians who can adapt themselves or are by nature into for TV's special requirements.

Professional musicians will have to face the fact that music may never hold the place in TV, essentially a visual entertainment field, that music has in radio. On the other hand, televised programs presented by dance orchestras and originating in dance halls show promise of being of greater benefit to all concerned than the remote control, sustaining broadcasts of radio.

The cowboy combos, following in paths pioneered here by Spade Cooley and Tex Williams, have built the biggest following among Ory and his men were summarily "erased from membership" in the union when they refused to close as ordered.

The cowboy combos, following in paths pioneered here by Spade Cooley and Tex Williams, have built the biggest followings among confirmed videots, but that trend should not be blamed entirely on the combos of the television.

The Cooley show, incidentally, actually is not a "western" production at all, but a loosely thrown together collection of familiar vaudeville acts. Even the band has lost the wide open spaces flavor, and though the boys still wear the usual corral costumes, they play arrangements that lean more to the swing-style.

On the other hand, Tex Williams, Cooley's chief rival, who prefers to do his teleshow from the KNBH studios here rather than from his Riverside Rancho, is sticking strictly to his own suc-cessful brand of barnyard bounce.

By DAVID BRUBECK (Second of two articles)

No matter what the future of music has in store for us in the way of armonic surprises, the jazzman's criterion of adoption all always he tempered by what he can hear. I know from experience that the jazz creator while improvising is somewhat like a mountain climber alking on a brink of a precipies. He is protected on one side by the mountain of tradition and expected on the other to the same time it gives him a freedom of movement than if he had no security. While balancing on this narrow ledge he

Cots Used to It

The more accustomed he is to making these daring leaps, the easier it becomes to find his way back to the narrow border between tradition and cacophony.

When one thinks back to the pre-jazz era of the American Negro, one hears the simplest kind of expression harmonically and melodically. Group improvisation at this point needed no books on harmonic theory as a basis from which to work. All that was needed was something to express and a voice with which to sing it.

The melodic line was simple and of the folk. It was almost as limited in range as that of a Gregorian chant. Innovations (such as the blue note scale) were the result of the inconstant quality of the human vice and the prepounding of new theories.

Through an increasingly complex usage of intervals and rhythmic alterations, the jazz melodic line as exemplified by the bop scat singer is in some respects more akin to a contemporary composer than to the repetitive songs of the Minsiasippi levees.

The tendency, until recently, has been toward a more subtle, Europeanised syncopation, as typified in the change from two to four beats in the measure.

New and complex rhythm patterns, more akin to the African parents, is the satural direction for jazz to develop when the isas musician has progressed to the point where he can no longer "hear" what his logical mind tells him he must play.

Influenced by Hearing

Because the jass musician ereates music, interprets music as he hears it, it is natural that his improvised compositions should reflect every kind of music to which he has been exposed. Jass has taken into itself characteristics of a lmost every type of folk music which can be heard in America. It absorbs national and artistic influences, synthetizes them so that they come out in the jass idiom and no longer typidy just New Orleans, the south, the Negro, or the Italian street song which may have inspired it—but American music.

Joseph Lalian street song which may have inspired it—but American while improvising a cherus, it is fitting that the country which has been called the melting of the music with as mined the country which has been called the melting of the American composer. I farmly believe that the composer who will most successfully typify America will have absorbed it in his early years unconsciously, and will probably be an active participant in shaping its future course.

Must Be Spentaneo One cannot stand on the service of the composer viahes and attempt to cappe its feeling by direct quotation.

If the composer viahes to use jaxs as a folk source, he should go to the fountainhead — to the original blues, spirituals, and ragitime—so that his music will not be victimized by the usage of a cliche (Modulate to page 18)

New York—The atomic age is upon un men. If you have been using LP records, you are already aware of the only really irksome problem in connection with them: the way they pick up dirt.

This is primarily due to the fact they are made from vinylite, which is highly electrostatic, holds dust strongly, making much more of a ruckus with the small needle.

Comes the atomic energy commission with the solution. Late next month selected distributors all over the country will put out (for $14.95) polonium brushes. These little giant marvels are made of a radio-active metal polonium (completely harmless) which gives off positive alpha rays. You has it over the vinyl surface three or four times, thus decharging it, and then trush off the accumulated dust, it work, old man, I've tried it.

This was an all-star date, the same group that turned out his Johnson Rag, with Bill Lolatte, base; Ray Bauduc, drums; Frank Maynes, tenor, and Charlie Teagarden, trumpet, from his own hand, runforced by Carl Kress, guitar; Cutty Cutshall, trombone, and Dick Cary, piano, from the New York studio ranka.

Good two-beat must have drive, and this date has plenty of that, is addition, all the men involved are good musicians, don't make any of the usual pickup date mistakes. Also, the sides seem to radiate a spirit of good humor which is too often missing from records. The use of tenor, plus the four-beat elements present, of course, keep these sides from being labeled strict Dirieland. However, I doubt that the men on the date much what they are labeled just so the numic acunds all right. Bauduc's old fault of wavering tempos is less in evidence, and on Black are not worth four-beat drive. Little Gate's trumper blowing on the same side is highly prabseworthy. Even JD gets off some ideas on Panama. Cutshall makes it on Fin Roof. The marching isells are nover-balanced on Seciety, but it still gets a good rock. No Armstrongs on Barbeons, but it moves. Dorney's own playing is better on Chimes. The boys cheat a bit on Panade; where the Bob Croshy band used to go down to a pianissimo then come up to a rearing crescendo, they do it here by turning the mike gain down and up, with a resulting loss of presence and fullness.

Despite the small carpings, these sides re-establish Dorsey commercially and to an extent musically, probably will result in his band going back to some extent to the old Crosby kick. Funny twist: the enginal Borsey Brothers hand hroke up over a musical fight in which Jimmy wantes this LP and Tommy has just hired Buddy Rich back! (Celembia LP 6095.)

These are the much-heralded Parker sides with a kicking jazz rhythm section, Mitch Miller's double reed work, a wonderful legitimate string section, and Parker playing. Listen to the man run on in Friends, 'tis enough said. Pianist, by the way, is Stan Freeman, currently playing single piano at the Blue Angel in New York. He is known to the concert stage as Stanley Freeman, plays well wherever.

He is known to the concert stage as Stanley Freeman, plays well wherever.

The boys who feel that boppists play no melody whatsoever are in for trouble with this Norman Granz date. Listen to Miller on You, with his sheer evanescence of tone, something you would never expect from a double reed.

Parker's fluidity throughout, his ability to stay close to the melody line, yet extract freshness and originality from it without pressing, makes these really startling sides. Listen again to Miller on Pasie, from Vaughan Williams to this: truly another magnificent musician, overshadowed here only by Charlie's leaping virtuosity.

In view of Parker's recent remarks in the Beat about wanting to use strings, he certainly emerges as a young man whose wishes should be humored. (Mercury C-101.)

Best starts out as an Afro, moves into poly-voiced figure, with everybody waltzing out attractively on his own. Both sides are distinguished mainly by the presence of a Mr. Fats Navarro, who gets off some quite distinctive trumpet. Pianist Bud Powell joins him with a chorus on Woul that is becoming. Drummer Roy Haynes deserves a bow likewise for his work on the entire side. (Blue Note 1567.)

Four more sides by the San Francisco two-beaters, whose wax holds up surprisingly well. The combo playing is rough but it does drive—the primary prerequisite of good two-beat. Spells, the old Morton tune, is particularly noteworthy in this respect. (Good Time Jazz 7-8.)

Sonny Stitt

SI All God's Children Got Rhythm II Sunset

Stit's tenor blowing here is quite a change from the out of tune young man playing a scared alto I heard at a Gillespie concert three years ago in New York. He moves here, though an occasional idea cliche creeps in. Bud Powell's backing piano is highly useful. The last chorus, a chase, once again is a testimonial to Lester Young, and how much the young boppists owe him. Swaet, a scarcely concealed Foolish Things, once more ahows a vastly improved Mr. Stitt. (Prestige 9001.)

The closest thing to musicians the band boasts is the piano playing of Joop Schrier and the trumpet work of Kees van Dorsser. These sides sound like they were made by young and unsure musicians. For that, they are very good. But not as commercial records made available to the public at a price. (Rampart 12, 13, and 16.)

Erroll Garner Leve is the Thing
[(Parts | ] and II)
[] How High the Moon
[] Don't Blame Me
[] Tenderly
[] Some to Watch Over Me
[] Testerdays
[] Seest Lorraine

This Garner recording business is getting ridiculous. He comes out the same week with the same tune on two different labels, his masters are sold back and forth between small companies, he records in people's cellars, his stuff is reissued without being so marked, they mix up new and old issues on LPs (Savoy just did this). And he has yet to be properly recorded by a big company with decent surfaces and recordings.

Thing is a thing with awful balance and Garner meandering endlessly. Moon sounds exactly like the master that was first issued on Holiday, while Me resembles the Mercury master. Tenderly and Watch are over ornate. Yesterdays and Lorraine are Signature reissues, with Lorraine showing strong Tatum influence. Garner, by allowing this sort of thing to go on, is ruining his commercial appeal in the record market, cheating himself out of future record earnings. (Futurama 3006. Arco 1214, Modern 20-692. Gordon's tone overshadows the band badly on Rhythm, making it hard to tell occasionally exactly what is going on. Red Callender's bass is the rock on which all else is built. Gordon starts his chorus with a riff from All God's Children, winds up inconclusively, drags the tempo badly in several places. Believe it or not, the Basie band does a better job of imitating a big band playing bop than does Gillespie on these sides. This is really pathetic stuff when you reflect back to the rough but interesting sides Gillespie made for Musicraft and his first few Victor sides. Wife is a straight novelty except for a commonplace Gillespie solo. When is a Jimmy Mundy score, sounding like dozens of Basie sides in the last two years. If Gillespie's band can't make better sides than this, both musically and commercially, it doesn't stand a chance in today's band business. Land is the Fritz Kreisler tune, filtered through Phil Moore's reeds, an eeho chamber, and Martha Raye. At one time a really good singer, Miss Raye has never quite had the purity of tone (such as that had by Kay Davis) to do this sort of thing. She tries hard, and it comes off better than you might expect. Phil's use of reeds is interesting, if a shade exotic. She does an excellent job on the lovely Blane-Martin tune, Door, backed by a kicking Moure band. (Discovery 517.)

Hearts starts out as a straight barbershop waltz, shifts to Mills Brothers Paper Doll treatment, should sell up a breeze. Gone is a two-beat novelty. This is a perfect commercial groove for Miss Starr. If she makes enough double-facers like this, she's gotta hit it. (Capitol 792.)

Eleven pieces by one of the best bands I have ever heard. Its intonation and lack of sluggishness are truly surprising to hear. The Kabalevsky is played with more sprightliness than has been heard from a lot of good dance bands in this country. The McBride tune, written by one of New England's young prides, is actually a rather dull buildup around Sevenade in Blue, or something suspicously like it. Lou Singer, well-known coast composer, who did Deep Blues, says in the notes, "There is no large development of the theme because I want to convey the picture of a lonely girl singing her heartbreak into the dreary and unresponsive night." This I don't quite follow. But then, perhaps Lou was in too much hurry to worry about development of the girl or the theme.

The Cowell piece is also an interesting bit of simple polyphonic writing, while Sanjuan's piece is the only one that really fails to come off. This is one of the first symphonic band recordings I have heard which sustains musical interest and doesn't simply sound like a bunch of older union musicians living off the recording fund. (Columbia LP 4254.)

Victor Young | | | La Vie en Rose | | | The River Seine

Two hush, stringy sides by Young, with the Edith Piaf tune getting especially heart-stringed treatment. (Decca 24816.)

By BILL RUSSO and LLOYD LIFTON

Chicago—One of the main purposes of this series of solos is to develop in the reader what we call a sense of the artistic whole. By this sense we mean an understanding of the solos presented as complete units rather than as fragments—an understanding of the importance of the various notes and phrases in relationship to each other and in relationship to the complete sole.

The property of the complete soles are sold to the column who can follow the transcription.

In addition, of course, we hope to encourage habits of analysing the details of these and other solos: the harmonic, melodic, and rhythmic components.

The Necessary Step To obtain the maximum benefits from this series, three steps are absolutely necessary: listening to the record on which the solo appears, practicing the solo independently of the record and playing the solo with the record. This series can be valuable on other levels, also. Since these solos require a certain amount of technical proficiency, there will be many musician-readers of this column who will be unable to play them, at least at the record speed. For these musicians, for vocalists, and for any reader who can follow the notes of these solos, we would like to auggreat an interesting use for this series: singing can be very help.

tution for the C7 chord and carries this sub-dominant sound into har 15, making a delayed cadence. Eighth notes are predominant in this solo, but other rhythms are superimposed on the basic 4/4 and create a varied metric feeling. Christian implies 3/8 in har 3, 3/4 in hars 28-30; and in the phrases starting on the third beat of bar 17 and the first beat of bar 19, he subtly suggests 6/4. Next time we will present a solo by another participant in the already mentioned sessions at Minton's: Charlie Parker, one of the most important figures in contemporary American music.

Coral Signs Sears, Tilton, And Babbitt

New York — Al Sears, once a featured tenor with Duke Ellington, has been signed by Coral records, Decca subsidiary. Waxery has also dealt pacts to Martha Tilton, who last recorded for Capitol, Harry Babbitt, Dick Robertson, singer Eva Carter, and the Pinetoppers.

Laine Tops Show At Penn Theater

Pittsburgh — Frankie Laine in January brought stage shows back to the Penn theater here for the first time in 15 years. Frankie played a week at the house start-Jan. 19. Last previous stage show was headed by Cab Calloway in 1934.

Theater returned to straight movies after the Laine run, however, and will light up its stage only for occasional hot names such as the Big Whip.

Firm Inks Herb Kenny

New York—Herb Kenny, one of the Ink Spots and a brother of the Spots' Bill Kenny, has been signed by Aladdin records to a four-year pact. Herb is set to step out as a single as soon as he com-pletes his current commitments with the Spots.

Palladium Tries TV

Weekly telecasts from the Palladium were inaugurated with the opening there of Freddy Martin. Martin and his bandsmen did their first show with little or no preparation—television calls for something more than a straight musical program—and it came out pretty well as impromptu productions go.

Martin, however, let a remark slip that seemed to bother the videoperators in charge. ("We've been traveling for nine months, and if you don't think that's a long time, just ask any girl.")

Jazz is represented in the Hollywood television lists with two shows—KTTV's After Hours, featuring the Red Nichols band from the Hangover club (but originating in the studio), and KFI-TV's The Truth About Dirie, with pianist Marvin Ash as the regular attraction and visiting musicians of note as guest stars.

EL SOPON
Published by Antobal
Arr. by Rene Hernande

Phil next section, brass changes to mutes and, with a slight rhythmic change in the counterpart, saxes stay in support. After a 16-bar piano solo, first trumpet solos eight and ensemble takes it out. The arrangement will require rehearing because of the close melodic interplay between the different sections. Good.

Arr. by Apple-Jack Jones
This arrangement comprises a medley of three: You Call Everybody Darling, Sionx City Sue, and She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain. It is scored in a very simple but well-organized manner, and should be readable at sight. The split choruses are penned in the usual manner, with adequate support for the lead section. The second tune is also scored as split choruses. The third tune follows after a four-measure interlude and choruses. The third tune follows after a four-measure interlude and is simple in character. Good commercial arrangement.

I WANT YOU TO WANT ME
Published by Mills
Arr. by Johnny Warrington
This walta begins with a tutti and passes through some nice trumpet work before going into the split choruses. The first chorus is for brass, except for the sax soli during the bridge. The repeat is in reverse order. During the special, trombones, saxes, and a tenor solo near the end are the main features. The anticipated ending is fully voiced.

the earliest period, are becoming more numerous. Our opinion on this trend is that it is due mainly to the cutting of live shows to save money, now that the first flush of excitement in TV is over. We don't think the record ramblers will ever be the power in television that they became in radio. A woman we know who keeps radio platter programs going continuously while she does her housework, says: "It's bad enough to have to listen to them (the disc jockeys) talk. In television I'd have to look at them."

Columbus—We dropped in on Don Lamond last summer while he was working at the Santa Monica Casino Gardens with Harry James. Don displayed some fine technique along with some excellent ideas. He plays with good taste and adds not the trief ideas. He plays with good taste and adds to the trief ideas. He plays with good taste and adds to the trief ideas. He plays with good taste and adds to the trief ideas. He plays with good taste and adds to the trief ideas. He plays with good taste and adds to listening to the top drummers, a for individual practicing, and by getting all of the playing experience you can capture.

The thing that impressed me most about Don's playing was his subtle use of dynamics. One of the most valuable assets for an artistic drummer is the employment of various degrees of loudness and softness. Too many drummers are content to get by with only two degrees of dynamics, loud and soft. However, it will be to your advantage to color your playing with a complete range of dynamics.

mediate answer to a driving need for expression.

If a student becomes involved in a frantic attempt to gain years of knowledge (which has been an almost unconscious absorption of technique on the part of the European musician) in a few years of self-conscious, strenuous study, he still will not be able to express himself individually without more years of struggle to break and expand the traditions he has worked so hard to attain.

years of struggie to break and expand the traditions he has worked so hard to attain.

Europe Turns to Jazz

Many European composers have turned to the jazz idiom as a fresh spring to replenish their own creativity. Yet, the American jazz musician who most naturally belongs in this idiom is too often decried as "illegitimate" by the American conservatories. No European composer can ever reach to the heart of jazz like an American who has been exposed to it from the moment the radio was first switched on in the hospital nursery a few hours after his birth.

The American should be especially grateful to have known his first musical expression in this fresh idiom. I think it somewhat indicative of the contrary attitude prevalent in this country that the first serious musician to make me feel that my efforts in jazz had not been a waste of energy and talent was the foreign born composer, Darius Milhaud.

Jazz musicians in his composition classes were made to realize that the very fact their musical knowledge was rooted in American jazz was important in determining their capabilities as contributors to music, it was a new experience for as to be looked upon as a group with something to offer, despits our lack of formal education in traditional techniques.

Since the jazzman plays the double role of creator and interpreter, there is no disparity between conception and performance. He student who goes to a university or conservatory to further his musical career still is not offered training comparable to the European musician at this level.

The college age American youth must go back to the monotonous grade school level of exercises to gain a workable technique for traditional composition. Yet, this very student may have the ability to improvise for hours without running dry of creative ideas.

Ton many would have us think that the American composer cannot begin to create until he has acquired the same tools and the same approach as the European. This is virtually impossible if he is to reach musical maturity at the time in his own personal development when creativeness is the most immediate answer to a driving meed for expression.

If a student becomes involved in However, as soon as we move into the realm of written music (even an arrangement), the instrumentalist's interpretive powers, his ability to distort or clearly reflect the creators' ideas, becomes an important factor. The future American composer will write music which must be interpreted with an understanding of jazz—its particular spirit as well as its peculiar techniques in phrasing, tonal color, and instrumental range. The jass musician is not in the position to interpret this new music, even though he may be more akin to it in spirit, because he has not yet gained the necessary familiarity with musical notation and other intellectual factors in musicianship. The symphony musician handicapped by his inability to feel the complex rhythmic changes, unique phrasings, and the peculiar timbre of jazz.

If the American composer is going to reflect successfully his background in his music, the instrumentalist of the future must have gained a knowledge of both techniques.

First to Try

The jazz man has been the first gained a knowledge of both techniques.

First to Try

The jazz man has been the first to try to bridge this gap. He has realized his weaknesses and has turned to the symphony musician to gain more technical facility within the legitimate scope of his instrument. I have yet to hear, however, of a symphony musician going to a jazzman for lessons in interpretation. The time will come when both techniques will be prerequisites for adequate performance of new works.

Since jazz is the truest reflection of our particular experience, we cannot judge it by the same criteria with which we judge French. German, or any other cultural group's music. It is of necessity different, just as our nation is different. And if the jazz of today

Stravinsky, in his Poetics of Music, has this to say of "culture" and "tradition." "The artist imposes a culture upon kimself and ends by imposing it upon others. That is how tradition becomes established ... Tradition is carried forward in order to produce something new ... It thus assures the continuity of creation."

Jazz is important to our musical tradition because it is the most complete expression of our culture we have yet originated in any of the arts. As an improvised music it establishes a kind of atmosphere most challenging to the composer—a cultural life wherein music is meaningful part of everyday existence.

Story Behind Mooney Flop

w of us heard any of this in ne flesh.

When I came out in '46, walked nto 52nd St., which was really paring then, I almost quit the nusic business. Every band there as either playing out of tune, lowing wrong changes, or playing the same endless choruses on low High the Moon.

Along with a lot of other perms, I was confused by the comlete lack of good tone, of dynamics, shading, relaxation, slow impos, and any formal idea of svelopment. But it was only nonths later that I realized this. For quite some weeks I was positive I'd completely lost my ear, sat the music business had passed a by. All the little bird-chirpers and the dizzy-whizzies certainly intrned up a noise, though I rember running into Al Casey, he old Fats Waller guitarist, one ight, and sitting with him in a rand trying to figure out what ad happened to "sound," or hether 64th notes were the standard these days.

Hearing a few good Parker and and these days.

Hearing a few good Parker and illespie records made me feel beter. Here at least was a steady tow of ideas, phrased and played with rhythmic conception, not just monotonous alobbering at the same scessant tempos.

Then Heard Joe

Then Heard Joe

Then one day I decided to go ut to Jersey and hear Mooney, ho had just opened in Sandy's, attle joint in Paterson, since he as an old friend and it was a tice evening for a bus ride.

I'll never forget that night as mg as I live. The Mooney group as "on" in the first place. Secund, everybody in Sandy's was raidly pro-Mooney. Most important f all, here was something I had hought was completely dead: real susicianship. Men who played in me, with delicacy and restraint. Ien who matched overtones, worted about counterpoint, didn't ork riffs into the ground, played or the group rather than themelves. Men who had command of ynamics and intonation, to whom stack wasn't just a criminal offense.

I sat around for six hours, literally not able to believe it. Any of on records, or in a big room never heard what I did: the crystalline precision of really great chamber-music—for that is what the Moon-ey group was: the discipline and devotion of chamber music-applied to jaxs. I went back to the office at 5 a.m. and wrote a seven-page piece for the Beat.

at 5 a.m. and wrote a seven-page piece for the Beat.

Explains Impact

I'm bothering with all this trivia because it explains much of the impact the Mooney group had on every musician and writer who heard it. No matter how progressive or closed-minded they might have been toward all schools of jazz, everyone in the business in 1946 was heartily sick of loud, unswinging, big bands, and tawdry, idea-less little combos confined to high speeds and low output.

The smooth, perfectly balanced sounds from the Mooney crew were like cool water in an arid desert. Everyone who heard them came out a raving convert. Believe me, while I may have started it, it was the easiest rolling avalanche you ever saw in your life. For the next four months I went slightly whacky trying to do normal work as a Beat editor and still help the Mooney crew. I drove every newspaperman crazy who walked into Dixon's, the New York spot where Joe worked. It's bad enough to have press agents at your throat, but when another newspaperman has an organized cabal lying in wait, that gets a little thick.

Suspicion

Everyone in the music business

cabal lying in wait, that gets a little thick.

Suspicion

Everyone in the music business was a little auspicious of the deal. They wanted to know how much of a piece I had. Not until Ned Williams, Beat editor, heard some transcriptions Mooney made, was he satisfied that all the roaring was indeed in good faith.

Everytime I opened my mouth, Mooney came out automatically. He was hot, he had an enormous press campaign, was doing tremendous business, had air time and guest commercial shots. So what happened?

The biggust answer is that esentially the band was too good for almost any night club in the country. The secondary answer is management and booking.

Dedicate, Flavorful

ine, with delicacy and restraint. Ien who matched overtones, worted about counterpoint, didn't ork riffs into the ground, played for the group rather than themselves. #### Block Takes Music To Sick Kids

New York—Wonder what sort of line Martin Block is handing these kids at Gouvernor hospital in lower Manhattan to make them so serious. One thing he did hand them, however, and the children's wards of 17 other New York City hospitals, was a Christmas gift of 65 record players and more than 3,000 albums of records. The campaign for the players and albums was begun by disc jockey Block when he discovered they had none.

sets. They inaugurated a chapter unique in west side New York nightclub annals by tearing up the checks of, and throwing out anyone who made noise.

But when Joe went elsewhere in the country, he was no longer a discovery. He was a bigtime act, and people said, perhaps properly, "Show me." Well, in most night clubs in this country, a amall chamber style group like Mooney's simply can't command the attention.

Wild Scuffles

Manager George Moffett, Mooney, and I had some wild scuffles about a recording deal. We were afraid of Capitol because of King Cole (though actually Capitol robobly would have done the best job). Victor couldn't handle a tood musical outht. Moffett wanted Columbia records, while held out for Decca.

Moffett was quite honest when he said he thought it was a toss-up, and since he also managed Hal McIntyre, he wanted to be able to make a package deal. I held out for Decca because Morty Palitz was a recording director there, and I knew how badly Joe would need good recording. Also, Decca distribution generally was better at that time than Columbia's.

It was a mistake. Decca held off on releasing Mooney records, didn't record him as well as they should have, and picked his tunes badly. The greatest trouble of all, of course, was that Joe had a small voice, which microphonewise had to be balanced with the big tone of his accordion.

Called Stubbora

Joe, of course, fought this, got himself a name as being a stubborn piece of talent. Which is not strictly the truth. The agency, onthe other hand, with some degree of truth said, "There aren't enough rooms big enough, and with the physical equipment he demands in respect to quiet and attention, to pay Mooney."

Both sides were right. The trouble that was true on radio and reached hononey. Joe and all three of the boys, four of the nicest people who were played music, realized it, were intensely frustrated by it.

hearing things the first night.

I only hope as a single Joe Mooney is able to work out a routine using all his instrumental, vocal, and arranging sensitivities. He is a unique musician. One of these days the business may be far enough advanced to make him the commercial success he deserves to be, almost was.
