MCA SELLS TO MATSUSHITA

Months of secret negotiations came to an end this week when MCA, Inc.'s Board of Directors agreed to a buyout offer from Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., an Osaka, Japan-based giant that markets Panasonic and Quasar audio and video products. The $6.6 billion price tag, or $66 per share is lower than the $8.2 billion or $75-$90 per share MCA executives initially expected to receive for the conglomerate. Matsushita is the 12th largest corporation in the world, and is 11 times larger than MCA both in terms of both employees and revenue.

For its money, Matsushita (pronounced Mat-soo'-shta), which is Japan's largest manufacturer of industrial electric and electronics products, receives Universal Pictures, the MCA Television Group, Universal Studios in Florida and Hollywood, MCA Records, Putnam Berkeley Books and Spencer Gifts. Also included in the sale is The Curry Company, which owns most of the concessions in California's Yosemite National Park. However, Matsushita will sell Curry to an American firm within a year.

The day-to-day operations at MCA, specifically MCA Records, should not be affected for some time. Company Chairman Lew R. Wasserman and MCA President Sidney Sheinberg are slated to sign long-term contracts with Matsushita. Although it was speculated the Michael Ovitz, chairman of Creative Artists Agency and Matsushita's U.S. Consultant, would take a high level position within MCA, at the moment that seems unlikely.

MCA's sale is the largest buyout of an American company by a Japanese firm. Last year's purchase of Columbia by Sony had a $5 billion tag. As of Tuesday, November 27, MCA officials were not commenting on the sale, although company insiders say a memo was circulated internally stating that everything would remain status quo.

CAFARO A&M PRESIDENT

After almost 14 years with A&M, starting as a Promotion Manager for the Carolinas and most recently serving as Senior Vice-President and General Manager, Al Cafaro steps into the President's office.

"I believe in our artists. I believe in our people," Cafaro said of his promotion. "My job is to forge a future based on the best of A&M's traditional values and our new competitive team spirit."

Before working at A&M, Cafaro was a radio executive and personality, working as GM/Morning Man at WRPL-Charlotte, NC and as Personality at WDXY-Sumter, SC and WGCD-Chester, SC.

"Al possesses the knowledge and integrity to be a really great President," said company Chairman/CEO Jerry Moss. "His background in radio coupled with his firm sense of A&M's history make him the perfect person to represent A&M as we step forward into the decade."

"Over the course of his career at A&M, Al has worked at every level of the company and has emerged as a natural leader," said Vice-Chairman Herb Alpert. "Jerry and I feel that his strong point of view and sensitivity to the creative process complement what we started nearly thirty years ago."

16th AVENUE CLOSES

16th Avenue Records president Jerry Bradley announced the closure of this arm of the Opryland Music Group. Although the three-year-old company won numerous awards, Bradley cited lack of radio success essential to building and supporting a label as a reason for the company's failure.

"These are times when our greatest dreams in life and in business are not fulfilled," said Bradley. "Business is sometimes marked by great achievement, sometimes by disappointment. You just do not know how things will turn out unless you make a commitment to try them."

Currently on the 16th Avenue roster and shopping for labels with the company's assistance are award winners Charley Pride and Canyon as well as John Conley, Dianne Davis, Donny Kees, and Randy VanWarmer.

"We really appreciate the efforts everyone has made, but it is time to move on to new business opportunities. The commitment of the Opryland properties to talent is not altered," said Bradley. "...We will continue to help talented songwriters and artists to be heard."

EAST WEST LAKE

The official announcement of Charley Lake's appointment to the position of Vice President of National Promotion for East West America was made this week.

Lake exited Epic Records in mid-August to accept the position. He'll concentrate on East West's Top 40, Album Radio and Adult Contemporary promotion.

"Charley is an extraordinarily savvy promo person," said label President/CEO Sylvia Rhone. "His outstanding executive abilities, depth of knowledge and on-target gut instincts make him the ideal candidate for the position."

East West President/COO Vince Faraci concurs. "I'm thrilled to have a person of Charley's calibre heading up the Pop Promotion Department here at East West America," he said. "His appointment creates the foundation for a promotion department that is designed to become a major force in our industry."

Before his stint with Epic, Lake worked with A&M for six years.

HALPERN UPPED AT ABC

At the ABC Radio Networks, Leslie Halpern was upped to Director of Advertising and Publicity from her current position as Manager of Advertising and Publicity.

Halpern has been with ABC since 1982 when she signed on in the Business Office of the Washington News Bureau. She's worked summer and winter Olympics and the 1988 Democratic Convention. "Lesley's tireless efforts, straight manner and intuitive smarts won her the job," said Networks President Robert Callahan, to whom Halpern will report.

Before joining Cap Cities/ABC Halpern was an editorial assistant and proofreader for Art Buchwald. She's based in New York.

INSIDE TOP 40 by Dave Sholin

Not long ago a veteran air personality confessed to me that after twenty years behind a microphone, he encountered the worst experience of his career at his former station. He said his PD required him to write down in advance the bits he planned to use the following morning while in the same breath reminding him to, "be natural and just be yourself." He was informed that the station's target audience was Women 25-34 and research indicated they didn't care for things like sports—sooo don't talk about sports. When he asked whether he could simply mention attending a sporting event without going into detail about stats or players, he was told to stay away from the subject. Period. Trying to second guess his program director during every break each morning naturally made him edgy, making him wonder if he was on the air to entertain the audience or his boss. After less than two weeks he resigned. His final comment: "If this is what radio's come to in the nineties, I'll find another line of work." Well even though this is not an isolated case, there are numerous programmers who strive to find the right balance when using the tools of research while still allowing the creative process to flourish. Gavin's "Ratings and Research" editor Jhan Hiber is well-acquainted with this dilemma and offers the following advice: "Step one," Jhan says, "once you receive the research, share the relevant results pertaining to the on-air product with your talent. Items such as lifestyles of the listener and subjects they're interested in can be very helpful. Getting them to understand why, for instance, it would make much more sense to talk about travel instead of sports helps eliminate much of the fear sometimes caused by research." However, Jhan says it would be ridiculous to go overboard and not mention a top sports franchise in your area, even though you may not want to run down all the scores that day. "Research should guide and actually add to the creativity of the on-air presentation, helping to focus on subject matter worth talking about." Jhan recalls putting together research for Charlie Quinn, then PD of EAGLE 106 Philadelphia. Charlie would take the information, meet with the air staff and then put together a new prep sheet for their shows, asking them to incorporate something of interest they found in newspapers or magazines when it was applicable. Nothing was scripted and no one was told when they had to say something, but Jhan says, "A) they were given the research background; B) given the source material, paid for and sent to their homes so they could read it at their convenience away from the station and C) given an outline sheet they could use throughout their show, but at their own discretion." "Using research as a guideline instead of a barrier, says Jhan, "is the way to avoid painting yourself and those around you into a creative corner." Sharing the research helps everyone view it as an opportunity instead of as a threat.

Thirty-six adds give another big boost to RALPH TRESVANT, who scored a RECORD TO WATCH mention back on November 9th. New on Q96 San Antonio, KKXL Grand Forks, ND, Z95 Chicago, EAGLE 106 Philadelphia, Q104 Gadsden, AL, Z100 New York, WAOA Melbourne, FL and WCIL Carbondale, IL. Top twenty-five at POWER 99, B96, KQMQ, WZOU, KISS 108, KDWB, WBXX, WWCK, etc.

First Top Five listing for GEORGE LAMOND with BRENDA K. STARR at POWER 96 Miami where it charts 6-4. Top ten requests with most reaction from women 18 plus at KTUF Kirksville, MO, where it's the week's highest debut at #31. Adds include Y108, WSTW, WFMF, WGGZ, POWER 104, WTIC/FM, WBBQ, B96, KKJO, WNKO, KAKS, KQEN, WRCK, WGBQ and KQLA.

ELTON JOHN tops the 100 report mark and is charting top thirty at POWER 99.9KHI, WSPT, WCGQ, WJAT "getting a lot of mid-day requests from women," YES 97, MIX 107.3, KISS 108, WHYT, WIFC, KWYR, KIXY and KI9Y "early cassingale sales and adult female phones." Hot at KISN Salt Lake City 28-18, Q95FM Detroit 16-13 and KXYQ Portland 24-18.

KMEL San Francisco and FM102 Sacramento were early believers on KEITH SWEAT and both take it #1 this week. Other

Top Five activity on the West Coast at KLUC,

KSIQ, HOT 97.7, Q106 and KWIN. Gaining at POWER 98 33-26, K106 29-22, Q105 16-13, WMDM 30-22, WQGN 34-26, KKFR 32-22 and WZOU 26-23. New on KSND, KOY, KOKZ, WHYT, KZZO, WKPQ and KISS 108.

For a third straight week, CKOI Montreal charts CELINE DION at #1 where it remains the top selling CD/Album for the seventh consecutive week! Top Ten at WHSB Alpena, MI 14-9 and on the move at KYA debut #29, KSRR 17-14, Q106 30-28, KISN 34-30, Y108 30-28, etc. Adds include Z100 and KXYQ Portland, WQID Biloxi, MS, WPST Trenton, NJ, KXXR Kansas City, Q105 Tampa, WZZR Port St. Lucie, FL, POWER 104 Houston and KBQ St. Louis.

Pam Pace, MD at K106 Beaumont, TX, reports CHRIS ISAAK is an "instant reaction smash—females go crazy for it everytime it gets played and want to know who's singing." It's their highest debut at #32. Strong gains at KHMx 22-13, WIXX 23-17, WBBQ 32-27, KDWB 30-27, KFMW 21-15 and POWER 99.7-6. New on WAPE, CKOI, WDEK, KOYE, KSND, KUBE (only add of the week), Y97, KIXY, WJMX, WYKS, WCIQ, KXYQ and POWER 99.9KHI.

Bets are on that by Christmas everyone will be doing "The Bartman." No surprise to see THE SIMPSONS earn MOST ADDED honors this week, nearly doubling its closest competition. As expected, massive request activity happens after the first play.

On his way to closing out the year in the upper reaches of the A/C chart, PAUL SIMON is starting to build a base of support at Top 40. Gains at K96 Richmond, IN 23-11, WIXX Green Bay 32-22 and KXYQ Portland debut #27, plus adds at WTBX Duluth, MN, KMOK Lewiston, ID, WDJX Louisville, KY, WCIL Carbondale, IL, KOYE Laredo, TX, KISN Salt Lake City, UT and KWOD Sacramento, CA.

If you're looking for something new to add to the Christmas song list, Wayne Coy, PD at WIXX Green Bay, WI has a discovery worth checking out. It's by DUNCAN FAURE titled, "The Christmas Song" (no, not the tune by NAT KING COLE), which Wayne accurately describes as, "seasonal sentiment from the heart." ## NEW HIP HOP RELEASES by Brian A. Samson

THE RESISTANCE - Let Knowledge Be Born (Reel Records)

Resistance drop a slick downtempo groove from their debut three song EP. Tailored with simple production ingredients, EZ Dee and DJ EZE shout out the message of unity and educational awareness on this mixshow oriented track. A serious remix and a revised vocal delivery could open doors for this independent act. For your copy contact Reel Records at (415) 635-0604. BAS

ROMEO STONE - Comin' Out Ta Dog! (Cali-Way Records)

Romeo Stone makes his solo debut on this George Clinton influenced single. Although the P-Funk sound has been over-used and abused, Romeo should easily find an audience loyal to the "Atomic Dog" signature. The delivery is fair, but the body of the production needs a remix. Call Troy "Mc O'Roni" Rankins for your EP at (213) 340-1899. BAS

KMD - Peach Fuzz (Elektra)

3rd Bass Posse member KMD takes his talents to Elektra for a solo adventure. KMD's smooth and alternatively unique style can be compared to that of A.T.C.Q. The Peach Fuzz rhythms carry a Bosa Nova-Jazz like feel, and are hyped by a simple but funky break beat. The B-side, "Gas Face Refill", has also been reported as an active college radio cut. More adds this week include KXLU-Los Angeles, WFCS-New Britain, VT, and WRIU-Kingston, RI. Buzz Fred Jackson for your fuzz. BAS

by Moon Mullins

MORE SHOWPREP

In my November 16 column, I introduced this showprep sheet, and offered some useful codes and their explanation. The following is a continuation:

•W=Complete forecast. As opposed to a quick weather, this is an official forecast, perhaps delivered by the station's meteorologist or the Weather Service's entire forecast. These, I find, are usually read twice per hour and, for the most part, in newscasts. During morning drive, at least once in each quarter hour would be preferable.

•WX=Quick forecast. In morning drive, when not giving the "W", the "Wx"—today's forecast, should be aired in every talk break and when time permits, over record ramps. Listeners want the weather often, and seldom, when asked if they get it enough, do they reply affirmatively.

•NT=No talk segue. As opposed to a record sweep in which the talent may give call letters, position, time weather, etc., this segue may run from 2-4 tunes. I cringe when I hear a station go for more than two tunes without call letters. As a matter of fact, I have never been persuaded that it's smart to do NT segues in morning drive at all.

•CS=Cold segue. When two records are played in a row and a voice-over or a liner is used over the second record's intro. This is completely opposite of the NT (no talk) segue.

•PR=Promote. As part of the show's hour in which the talent promotes a regular feature or a station's major or minor promotion. It may not necessarily be the next item on the menu—it may be several minutes or hours away. Often, air talent forgets to use this very important ingredient in increasing time spent listening. Printing it on the ShowPrep sheet eliminates this forgetfulthe listener's interest—thus, the "tease". Example: Rather than saying, "The forecast is next," the tease is "Something chilly this way comes..."

•BA=Back announce. Artist and title information are given for the previous sweep's elements.

•A=Artist/T=Title. When the music information is front-sold, I use these letters together or separately depending on whether the air talent has given the artist and title.

•VO=Voice over intro. If the talent airs the talk break over an intro of a record, I use this indicator to let me know that. Stations should try to have at least two songs played in their entirety, with no talk over, each hour.

•N=Name. This one is obvious, and you'd be surprised at how often I don't get to use it when monitoring a station. Many personalities never say their name.

•Day=Day. Another easy one that, for some reason, escapes many dee jays, particularly morning hosts. In morning drive, the day should be given at least twice per hour.

•J=Jingle. To differentiate the various methods of re-entering music.

•Currents/Recurrents. Keeping track of the percentages of a station's music category rotations. I consider anything less than 14 months old as a current (even though it is technically classified as re-current).

•Gold/Era. The Era is for the year the record was a hit. You track the demographic targeting of the station's music.

MEETS

By Keith Zimmerman

What constitutes a musical legend? Sometimes a single word says it all. Elvis. Sinatra. Prince. Madonna.

Turn back the clock to 1958. A twenty-three year old newcomer with a velveteen voice so amazed the pop music world with four gold singles, that the idea of the "Greatest Hits" LP package was invented to accommodate his second album. Ironically, the title of his 1956 debut for Columbia (the label he still records for today) set the tone—A New Sound In Popular Song.

One word became synonymous with pop music and the rituals of romance during the idyllic and idealistic fifties. Mathis. With classics like "Misty," "Chances Are" and "Wonderful! Wonderful," Johnny Mathis became the fresh-faced singer whose voice never aged.

Now Mathis returns with an ambitious project. His latest, In A Sentimental Mood, pays tribute to one of Johnny's musical heroes. And again, one name says it all. Ellington.

Mathis Sings Ellington became a vehicle to take John past pop pastures into the more rugged terrain of sophisticated jazz balladry. A comprehensive tribute proved no short order. It meant tackling the intangibles of Duke's musical aura. Mathis explains:

"I tried to find out what I could sing best. I'm not the best Swing singer in the world. I'm not a Jazz singer. I love Duke Ellington's music so much. Over the years I've heard my big heroes—Eckstine, Sarah, Ella, Lena—do so much of his stuff. That's how I connected with it."

"As a pop singer, I could have left it alone. His music is much more difficult than the run-of-the-mill pop music. I could have been content to sing Rodgers

by Ron Fell

•MARVIN GAYE

For the entire month of December of 1968, Marvin Gaye's I HEARD IT THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE was number one in The Gavin Report.

•BON JOVI

When New Jersey's Bon Jovi was given the Silver Clef Award by the Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy Foundation on November 15, they became the first American band to be so honored. Previous recipients have been Paul McCartney, The Who, David Bowie, Robert Plant and George Michael.

•STING

The new Sting album, "The Soul Cages," is due in January and will be the first full album to be recorded in the new technique known as Q-Sound.

•DIGITAL UNDERGROUND

In January, Digital Underground will release an EP that will include a song from the group's appearance in the Dan Aykroyd film, Valkyria. The EP will not be confused with a full-length album because it will be titled 'This Is An EP Release.'

•QUEEN

Hollywood Records apparently paid $10 million to sign the English rock group Queen, also the price includes rights to the group's previously released catalogue, most of which has never been released on CD in the States.

•PAUL SIMON/PUBLIC ENEMY

A Paul Simon concert with Public Enemy as his opening act remains a possibility when Simon next performs in New York City as part of his Born At The Right Time World Tour.

•GARTH BROOKS

Garth Brooks has joined Amy Grant and

Gary Chapman as spokespersons for Operation Desert Song, a campaign to send $1.5 million worth of audio cassettes and music videos to our troops in Saudi Arabia.

•U2

Daniel Lanois is producing the next U2 album in Berlin. It's expected to be in stores by Spring.

•JIMMY BUFFETT

Jimmy Buffett's new album, "Feeding Frenzy," is the second live album of his career. In 1978 he recorded and released "You Had To Be There," an album for which he admits to being in something less than top form. A few weeks before recording the '78 album he had broken his leg in a softball game. "I was in pain and on pain pills when I made 'You Had To Be There.'"

•CELINE DION

Prior to recording "Unison," her first English language album, Celine had recorded and released ten albums in French, her native tongue.

•SURFACE

Besides recording three albums for themselves, the trio of Bernard Jackson, "Pic" Conley and David Townsend have written for and/or produced Jermaine Jackson, Aretha Franklin, New Edition, Sister Sledge, Rebbie Jackson and Gwen Guthrie.

•STARSHIP

Though no official word has been heard, it appears that veteran San Francisco rockers, Starship have disbanded. Guitarist Craig Chaquico has formed a new band, while lead singer Mickey Thomas is looking for a solo deal. A Starship summary of the past decade will be released early next year and will include two new songs recorded earlier this year.

•JAMES INGRAM

In 1980, the same year he debuted as a vocalist on Quincy Jones' "The Dude" album, James Ingram also sang back up on Carl Carlton's SHE'S A BAD MAMA JAMA.

•CLARK TERRY

Clark Terry's proficiency at both fluegelhorn and trumpet led to his perfecting the technique of playing both instruments at the same time live.

•JULIO IGLESIAS

Julio's new album "Starry Night" cost less than half a million dollars to produce. That compares with the $3 million spent to record his most recent album, "Non Stop."

•EDDIE FLOYD

Eddie Floyd, the Memphis soul legend who recorded the original KNOCK ON WOOD, is planning a recording comeback and has completed seven songs with The Memphis Horns for possible release next year.

•PRAIRIE OYSTER

The Prairie Oyster band's contribution to the RCA Christmas album, "Home For The Holidays," is CHRISTMAS IN JAIL, a song about driving under the influence of alcohol. It's not a new song, however. It was written in 1956 by Joan Besen and was by an R&B group known as The Youngsters.

•QUINCY JONES

Next year Quincy Jones will travel to Moscow to receive the Alexandr Pushkin Humanitarian Award. Alexandr Pushkin was a 19th Century Russian poet whose great grandfather was black. Jones is also hoping to produce a film based on Pushkin's life.

•BLACK TIE

The group Black Tie's debut single, LEARNING THE GAME, is a Buddy Holly composition, considered to be the last song he ever wrote.

A black and white close-up portrait of Anita Baker. She has short, dark, curly hair and is looking slightly to the left of the camera with a gentle smile. She is wearing large, dark, beaded earrings and a shimmering, sequined top. The background is a soft, out-of-focus light color.

QUIZ ANSWERS,
WINNERS REVEALED

For the first time in all my years of creating research quizzes for my readers to sort out, we have a three-way tie for the winner!

Yes, we're talking here about the Gavin's Second Annual Research Quiz, showcased in the November 2 issue. Entries were closed on November 20, and in this column we'll announce the winners—all three of them—and disclose the answers to our devilishly tricky brainteasers. Stay tuned.

AND THE WINNERS ARE:

Last year's winner, Jess Hanson of KNIX/KCW-Phoenix, gave it another good shot this year—earning a 90% score. However, we had three perfect scores based on our 10-question main portion of the quiz.

How do we break a tie? With a tie-breaker, of course! However, as luck would have it none of the three finalists gave us the correct answer to the tiebreaker question, thus leaving us with a three-way tie for this year's honors.

In alphabetical order your winners this year are (drum roll please):

- Duane Kraayenbrink (aka J.D. Palmer), DJ at "Super Pig" KSUX-Sioux City
- Michael Langevin, PD, KRGR-Albert Lea, Minnesota
- Jack Smith (does he get kidded at hotels?) MD at WFLX-Winchester, Kentucky

Congrats and kudos to all—and Vanna White will soon be by with your awards. Seriously, your certificates will be on their way before Christmas. And to all the other entrants (we got over 100 returns) thanks for your best shots. By the way, you high tech groupies who assume faxing is taking over the planet might be interested to know that 60% of our entries were via mail, 40% via fax.

Here now is the revelation of the correct answers to our Second Annual Gavin Quiz. Compare these thoughts to your replies:

1. This question about "Arbitron" response rates threw most people off. Actually, it's a trick question—there is no ratings firm known as Arbitron. (Just kidding, Hawkeye Hiber the proofreader missed one here.) However, assuming you answered on the basis that we were talking about Arbitron, the correct answer was 43%, based on a chart we displayed in a column last March. The hope is that Arbitron will boost their response rates and offer a better quality of ratings data—striving toward a response rate of 50%.

2. Yes, those wacky Aussies actually require you to listen to a station for most of a quarter-hour (8 minutes was the correct response) before getting credit for the entire 15-minute period. Imagine that! Especially when compared to the U.S. approach (as in #3).

3. Both Arbitron and Birch give a station credit for an entire quarter hour if a person records just 5 minutes of listening. Assuming that someone listened to three stations for five minutes each in a given 15-minute period our ratings systems would generate 45 minutes (one quarter hour for each station) of radio listening when only 15 actually took place—only in America!

4. You still have some time to get your qualitative story together regarding your audience's value, since the NAB is working on a five year timetable to have advertisers consider the quality of your audience as vital as the quantity of that group.

5. Everyone seemed to know that the only way to get into the heads of diarykeepers was to troop to Laurel, Maryland and dig into the treasure trove of diaries for your market. The diarykeeper comments can be priceless!

6. Birch's response rates are typically higher than Arbitron's. Birch contends this is because more people will respond to a quick telephone call asking about listening rather than spend seven days keeping a diary.

7. Most everyone knew three types of music research—you could have picked from a list we developed. Call-out, auditorium music tests and at-home music test panels were most often mentioned.

8. Apparently a no-brainer for many of you, who knew that Top 40 and News are your two foremost "big cume" formats.

9. Some folks tripped up here when asked to fill in the two formats that are exclusive cume leaders. In a recent article, we noted that Country and Black/Urban are clear leaders here. However, some thought maybe Jazz or Easy Listening might be in the running. No way.

10. Aha! Got many of you with this one. Replies ranged all over the map, but the correct answer, as shared with you in a column, is 20%. Anything significantly over that figure means you have some listener loyalty problems, or that people are just discovering your station.

TIEBREAKER: Ah, the trick tiebreaker. Actually, the answer to this one is identical to #10, namely 20%. Stations should have at least that portion of their target age group cuming them sometime during the week—otherwise you'll have a pretty lean cume base. Numbers here were spaced widely, and ironically some folks got this one right—but didn't qualify for the finals because they'd missed too many in the first 10-question main body of the quiz.

Better luck next year, and thanks for all the entries! Nice to know you are paying attention to some of the facts and figures we share with you bi-weekly. ▲

HEAR AND THERE

by Sheila Rene

It's going to be released in January 1 on Arista Records. Roger McGuinn's Back From Rio is his first solo album in over a decade. It will be the Byrds' founder and frontman's 20th album (solo and group). The group will be inducted into the Rock 'N' Roll Hall of Fame as they celebrate their silver anniversary. Former Eagle Timothy B. Schmit provides vocal counterpoint on "Your Love Is A Goldmine," co-written by Eurythmic/Spiritual Cowboy Dave Stewart. Tom Petty helps with a duet on a new collaboration with McGuinn called "King Of The Hill"...

We have to wait even longer for Billy Squier's upcoming Godfrey Diamond-produced Capitol album, Creatures Of Habit which contains 10 new Squier compositions. But, making it worth the wait is the news that the original band is back together. Guitarist Jeff Golub has been touring with Rod Stewart for several years. He joins keyboardist Alan St. Jon, bassist Mark Clarke and drummin' sensation Bobby Chouinard to make this a show not to miss next March...The one, the only David Lee Roth is calling his new album A Little Ain't Enough and he's finishing up the video. Warner Bros. had to issue a cease and desist to a San Jose, Calif. radio station who had begun playing it prematurely. The fans lucky enough to hear it registered their approval with lots of requests. Somebody send me a copy!...

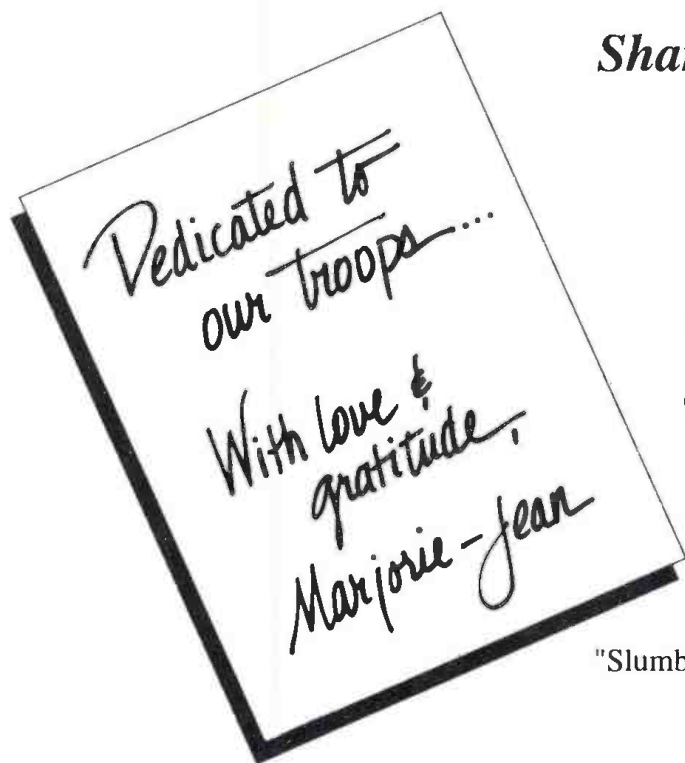

The Heart sisters, Ann and Nancy Wilson, are being considered for inclusion in the Guinness Book of World Records as the most famous and best-selling sister act in music history. Proceeds for their sold-out benefit concert in their hometown of Seattle will go to "Puget Sound Live," an organization that funds public education on marine life, the purchase of wildlife habitat and direct citizen action in the help of preserving the wetlands...

Bits & Pieces: November 24 was the kickoff for the controversial Rap group, the Geto Boys. They're touring with Ice Cube and Too Short. D'Priest, featuring Nadir D'Priest, former vocalist for the Los Angeles band London, has signed to Noise International and plan to release their Richard

He's continuing work on his next album, due in 1991...Cheap Trick will continue touring through mid-December, opening for Heart...Former Triumph guitarist Rik Emmett has signed with Charisma Records and his first solo album is Absolutely. All the tunes were written and produced by Emmett...Nils Lofgren is recording in L.A. with producer Kevin McCormick. His Rykodisc album will feature guest appearances by Bruce Springsteen, Ringo Starr, Billy Preston and Levon Helm...Highway 101 vocalist Paulette Carlson has announced that she'll pursue a solo career after her current tour commitments. Her replacement will be announced soon, as the band plans to begin recording a new Warner Bros. album with longtime producers Paul Worley and Ed Seay by February. Carlson will record her solo album with producer Jimmy Bowen in January...

Just when I was getting excited about the George Michael's exclusive seven-city tour, he changed his mind. Instead, he'll begin a full-scale tour of North America in late 1991.

He will include the original seven cities with the proceeds going to previously announced charities. The reason given for the delay is that Michael Has already started work on Listen Without Prejudice, Vol. 2, slated for late summer release...

The Ramones are taking on the big screen—twice. They recently traveled to Toronto, Canada to appear in the movie "Car 54, Where Are You," an Orion Studio feature inspired by the television series of the same name. "Roadkill" is the second film, which features an on-screen appearance by Joey Ramone, playing himself. Their tune "Howlin' At The Moon," is prominent in the film and soundtrack... ●

by Eric Norberg

From R. Buckminster Fuller to filing cards.

This column, if nothing else, does cover a variety of topics!

We live in a computer age. Increasingly, radio programmers are computer programmers too, and those who are not have the uneasy feeling that they are vulnerable to the activities of those who are. After all, a computer makes it possible for a programmer to playlist precisely every minute of every hour of every day, does it not?

Although I am not the computer wiz my wife Jane is, several years ago I discovered the joys of word processing, and feel that the enormous flexibility afforded by computer power in writing has greatly improved everything I use it for. Computers are great tools.

That is not to say there aren't things that human beings can't do well too—in some cases, better. We must fit the tool to the task! When the task is being performed by an air talent, the tool should not only make the task easier, but enhance the positive characteristics that make air talent effective on the air for the listener.

Since the person on the air is, ideally, relating to the listener on a one-to-one basis, placing his or her personal stamp on the station regardless of how restricted the spoken content may be, I feel there needs to be some element of "DJ discretion" within the formatic rule structure.

By that I mean the air person must feel that he or she should be required to make some creative decisions, or they will lose interest in the context in which they appear. Saying their pre-programmed liner in their designated break between the pre-programmed records puts them in the position of being human cart machines (or, organic automation equipment).

Since a consistent format structure is the essence of creating a strong station identity in the mind of the listener, I personally like to set up the music system so that the DH has some selection duties. That means using a selection system, rather than using a computer-generated playlist.

That is not to say there shouldn't be firm control of the playlist. I create categories with the intended station sound in mind, and fill each category with music restrictively selected: Each song is included specifically for what strengths it offers, so no weak material finds its way into any category.

Then I use color-coded filing cards, with one song per card, to implement the playlist in the control room. Each card gives the necessary index number to retrieve the cart, CD or record that song is on.

The air talent has the formatic music sequence to follow posted in the control room, and has been given two or three simple selection criteria, relating to tempo, type of music, etc., and the admonition to pull cards from the front of each category, and refile them in the rear when played. The selection criteria are then used by the airperson to allow going a few cards deep in the front of each category to find the song that best meets the formatic requirements.

What this accomplishes is that although the music cannot get skewed if the categories are properly defined, and the selection rules are followed, the DJ does have some personal creative involvement in the selection of the individual songs to be played. This helps ensure the airperson feels creatively involved in the program, and is keeping his or her mind active while the music plays, resulting in better and more involved communication when the mike is open!

A few years back I did some summer relief for a major market music station, and discovered something really interesting and useful about "foolproof studios." In this case, the music was computer-playlisted, the program log defined break location and content, liners and short PSAs encompassed most of the content, and secondary and tertiary cart machine tone cues provided first and second warnings before music carts ended. The automatically-resetting time kept me constantly alerted to where I was in each song. In other words, I didn't have to even listen to the broadcast to know when to open the mike, and nothing creative was required of me when I did open it!

What I discovered was that the board was just too easy to run. What I was being asked to do was so non-involving that when I did open the mike my mind didn't work well. It was sort of like turning off the car engine at a stoplight, and having to restart the engine when the light changes to green! In order to perform reliably and with some intelligence on the air, even just in delivering liners properly, I had to find ways of keeping my mind active during the records, and I kept checking and clearing the newswire (even though I had no newscasts to prepare), found and read the newspaper, etc. Only in that way was I truly mentally ready to do what I was supposed to when the final warning light lit at the end of each record!

So, I submit to you, if you still use a mechanical selection system for music rather than a computerized playlist, you may very well be getting better performance from your air staff—with no less music control, if you've set up your music system correctly—than your competitor who pre-programs all songs.

Just a word on behalf of the lowly filing card. ▲

MICHEL CAMILO

By Kent and Keith Zimmerman

◆ In a short West Coast tour, Michel Camilo is relaxing in his San Diego hotel room. One floor, directly upstairs from his room, on the top floor, is the nightclub. Michel's quarters is a spacious suite, one that is inhabitable, because of the noise, only to the musician who happens to be headlining. It's been a good week. Sets have consisted of original compositions running into pieces by Jaco Pastorius, and even a samba version of John Coltrane's "Impressions." Littered on the coffee table are San Diego dailies and the Los Angeles Times, all containing stunning reviews of the last few nights' performances. One proclaims him "The Van Halen of piano, if there was such an equivalent to heavy metal inside the Jazz world." A few days ago he had lunch at the home of Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti.

Sophia Loren?

"Her son is a big fan of mine," Camilo admits sheepishly. "So they invited Sandra and me over for lunch to hear him play. He wanted a little advice. I ended up autographing their piano."

So what kind of advice do you give Sophia Loren?

"I told them to get another piano."

Camilo is on the road in support of his latest release, On The Other Hand, a powerful new album far different from his last two trio efforts. This one features vicious horn arrangements that hark back to Camilo's early days in New York, and even further back to his days in his native Santo Domingo. The progress of his three CBS records pleases the energetic Camilo.

"This is only the beginning. I've always had large expectations."

Those expectations began in the Caribbean, where Camilo led a comfortable life entrenched in the island's middle class. The son of a pharmacist, the music first bit him in classic form—or maybe it was classical. At age sixteen he became the youngest member of the National Symphony of Santo Domingo and was awarded a Professorship of Music. As a pianist, he was officially part of the rhythm section, splitting his time between the keyboard, timpani and drums.

"That is why my music is so percussive. People generally think it comes from my Latin blood. That's not true. It comes from a classical background, hearing big sounds and responding from the percussion section. That is also why drummers generally enjoy playing my music."

As a youngster, Camilo was a self-described "practiholic," forsaking the baseball diamond for the ivories, becoming a rebel of sorts, an outcast, a "heepie" (as Camilo pegs himself with his Caribbean accent) and a self-taught student of American Jazz.

"I first heard Jazz on the radio. I heard Art Tatum play. That blew my mind. Ever since, I've been married to the radio," Camilo proclaims. "It is instrumental in my life. I eventually got close to the radio guys, visiting them at their booths, borrowing their records and transcribing solos."

A love for traditional Jazz soon led Camilo to stray not only from the orchestra, but from his comfortable life in Santo Domingo. As American Jazz took hold, he found resistance from his family and friends.

"Down in the Caribbean people

The Politics Of Piano

are very laid-back. Manana time. That is what brought me to the USA. I couldn't fit into that frame of mind. I was never laid back. Pretty soon I was working with trios and big bands."

As American guest symphony players streamed to the island, Camilo gravitated toward long-haired players. One in particular, a percussionist named Gordon Gottlieb, suggested he come to New York but family pressure and an ambitious schedule and career kept Camilo on the island. His infatuation with Jazz ruffled a few native feathers.

"We had a revolution in 1965, where we were invaded by the United States Marines," he recalled. "At that time there was still a backlash against the United States. Nevertheless, I was putting together some of the first American Jazz concerts."

Almost all the visiting American musicians who heard Michel urged him to visit New York.

"It was New York, New York, all the time," Camilo laughed. "Finally I married my wife Sandra, who was a singer and a social worker. She couldn't understand the problem. Why stay? Go! I finally thought about it. So in 1979, we finally visited New York to check it out. So many of my friends told me I'd be back, that I couldn't make it because I was Hispanic. They said that the Americans would never accept me. But Sandra and I wouldn't listen."

Upon arrival, and with Gottlieb spreading the word, Camilo went Jazz nutso. Up to that time, Camilo soaked in most of the Jazz piano he could find, up to and including the works of pianists like McCoy Tyner.

"I remember scooping up records and Gordon telling me about Keith Jarrett, Chick Corea, Herbie Hancock. Check it out," he said, recalling a music buying spree, "so I put back some older records and listened to the new stuff."

Camilo returned to the islands but didn't stay long. When he returned to the states, he and Sandra (who took a job in New York for a Caribbean airline) plunged deeply. Immediately Camilo spent half his savings on a Steinway while he and Sandra made a domestic deal.

"She told me, 'I work and you practice,'" Camilo said, "I guess that's how I learned to cook. I became the househusband who practiced all day."

Life in New York was anything

NEW RELEASES

by Lisa Smith & Cyndi Hoelzle

MARTY STUART - Little Things (MCA)
Marty sings his rockabilly heart out, giving us a taste of his upcoming album, Tempted. The song, which he co-wrote with Paul Kennerly, starts off rockin' and never lets up.

RESTLESS HEART - Long Lost Friend (RCA)
This soft, tender ballad has long been a favorite album cut with programmers. The sparse accompaniment emphasizes the singer's vulnerability.

EMMYLOU HARRIS - Wheels Of Love (Reprise)
Sweet, sweet Emmylou. It's always a delight to listen to one of the best singers in American music. Word is that this cut inspired Emmylou to make her first video in ten years.

JOHN ANDREW PARKS - Veronica (Curb/Capitol)
Parks' first single "Ten Gallon Dreams" showed a bit of his surrealistic side (he also the wrote Kenny Rogers' "Planet Texas"), but this time around he's got his feet planted firmly on the ground, belting out a plea to the women he loves. A great song that runs the risk of being overlooked.

VERLON THOMPSON - She's The One (Capitol)
A wonderful, catchy debut from Capitol's latest contender. Thompson uses descriptive phrases to show what happens when fools fall in love.

PROGRAMMER'S PICK

LARRY GATLIN AND THE GATLIN BROTHERS - Country Girl Heart (Capitol)
Here's a song about a country girl who wants the excitement of the city and her sweetheart, who says he'll wait for her back home. There's some great fiddle playing on this record, and the mixing of the Gatlins' vocals is the icing on the cake. Baby boomers will love this one. Rusty Hightower, MD - KIKM/Sherman, TX

AMAZONIA - ANA CARAM (CHESKY)

Ana Caram likens music to a global lifestyle—flourishing “without passports or borders.” Caram’s indigenous style of Brazilian saw glowing airplay success on Jazz/AA last time around. Amazonia should promise more of the same. The tunes span a dramatic spectrum ranging from the sweetly melodic, “Antonio’s Song” and “Solidao,” to the more urgent “Amor.” “Amor” is punctuated by Steve Sacks’ slicing alto sax licks. The song gathers superb cinematic steam and the last sound the listener hears is a stunned swoon by Caram. From then on Amazonia pushes into cruise control with the trad Jazz, percussive assault on “Jungle.” Stark, nebulous titles identify each song (Amor, Jungle, My Land). Amazonia blooms into an enticing personal statement as each track builds momentum. Both formats might want to check out the celebratory “Olinda.”

THE MEMPHIS BOYS (VANGUARD)

The principle players behind the stomping

Memphis Soul genre spend these days as fancy session players for folks like Kenny Rogers, The Highwaymen and Merle Haggard. When Elvis recorded “Suspicious Minds” or when Dusty Springfield cut the stellar Dusty In Memphis session, they knew who to call. The sound is unmistakable and reliably funky. Occasionally smart hipsters like John Hiatt or John Mellencamp borrow from the Memphis experience. Generally though, the Memphis groove by the original musicians has laid fallow. Booker T. makes tentative albums for the Master Series. Melting Pot by Booker T. & The MG’s—the quintessential Memphis opus—was never reissued on CD and is available only on collectible vinyl. Well, wait no more. The Memphis Boys, armed with prime players like guitarist Reggie Young and Hammond organist Bobby Emmons, have returned with their seemingly effortless blend of Soul stew. Many listeners of Alternative Adult will recognize this sound when they hear it. It depends on your station sound whether you select the growling “Mallwalkin’” and “Who’s Watchin’ Who” or the more pastorally tonal “Delta Rain” and “Hard To Let Go.” A compromise between the two is “Dinah Might.” Love those song titles.

JAZZ NEW RELEASES

LOVE IS A STRANGE HOTEL - GREGSON & COLLISTER (RNA/RHINO)

Okay. You Adult Alternative MDs hiding under your desks saying "We don't play cover versions" can come out now. The latest by Gregson & Collister won't bite you. It's a clever "Smokin' OP's (other people's)" idea absolutely unlike other. Selections like Del Amitri's "Move Away Jimmy Blue," "For A Dancer" by Jackson Browne or Aztec Camera's "How Men Are" are not yet moldy. The tangible tracks for radio could be 10cc's Top Forty hit, "The Things We Do For Love" or Bruce Springsteen's "One Step Up." The arrangements are spare. A single acoustic guitar or piano generally accompanies each vocal with a wee dose of mandolin, organ or bass drum thrown in for effect.

EXTENSIONS - DAVE HOLLAND QUARTET (ECM)

The fun part of cracking open a new ECM release is checking out the bandmembers on the front cover. This lineup is dandy. Kevin Eubanks needed a break like this. Steve Coleman, like the other M-Base players, has lost us lately. Dave Holland's decision to shore up his rhythm section with Marvin "Smitty" Smith was safe and astute. ECM mastermind Manfred Eicher approaches each session with his usual tactic—throwing all melodic angles out the window when the tape rolls. Instead the musicians usually play around the chord structures. In that sense, Extensions is no different. However, the sessions didn't take place in some remote corner of Scandinavia. The music is not a retreat from anything; it's a gripping Manhattan showdown. The performances are clawing and visceral. Holland and Smith deliver a pulsing threat, standing up to other formidable rhythm teams, most notably Charlie Haden and Paul Motian. Extensions clarifies what's happening in Brooklyn and makes it exciting. Potent stuff.

RETURN TO THE WIDE OPEN SPACES - DAVID NEWMAN, ELLIS MARSALIS, CORNELL DUPREE (AMAZING)

The metronome wrecking ball of Swing is at it again. Lately, there has been this spicy affair going on between Swing and the Jazz airwaves. Records by Gene Harris and Scott Hamilton and the Bill Warfield Big Band have punctured the chart's upper half with more ease than before. Return To The Wide Open Space, also currently on the verge of big chart moves, is Swing with more of a Texas/Southwest homecoming variety. Texas-born vets like Chuck Rainey, Cornell Dupree and David Newman gather at the Caravan Of Dreams club in Fort Worth to duke it out onstage in rousing reunion fashion. Ellis Marsalis, imported from next door in New Orleans, adds his R&B piano licks plus a luxurious solo version of Billy Stayhorn's "Lush Life." If T Bone Walker and Gatemouth Brown are your idea of a trueswing thing, look no further than the bbq-soaked sounds of RTTWS.

A WINTER'S SOLSTICE III (WINDHAM HILL)

From the Sharper Image catalogue to Alternative Adult airwaves comes the sophisticated intimate seasonal sounds of Windham Hill's A Winter's Solstice III. Steve Erquiaga recites a pleading version of "The Christmas Song" on solo acoustic guitar. Schonhertz & Scott's "Little Drummer Boy" is planar and astral, syntho yet sympho. Barbara Higbie turns in a haunting vocal-textured, traditional chant called "Lullay, Lully." We prefer a little East Village grime on our Christmas wellies, so we yield to John Gorka's "Christmas Bells."

GARY LAMB CHRISTMAS (GOLDEN GATE RECORDS)

Put a little grandeur into your Holiday sounds with some keyboard recitals by Gary Lamb. It's also a chance to escape from the hit parade of standard compositions. The best track is "On The Wings Of An Angel." It could be a spaced yule soundtrack addendum to German filmmaker Wim Wenders' gem, Wings Of Desire. That alone makes Gary Lamb a worthy Christmas add.

YULE STRUTTIN'/A BLUE NOTE CHRISTMAS - VARIOUS ARTISTS (BLUE NOTE)

Man, they even have a green Blue Note logo on the disc. On Yule Struttin', Blue Note raids their current roster for some Christmas cooking, under the direction of young Jazzbo Matt Pierson. Everything's brand new except a trio of oldies by the late legends Chet Baker, Dexter Gordon and Count Basie. Highlights include Chet's skiffing "Winter Wonderland" recorded six months after we were born. Basie's piece is live at Birdland with Frank Wess, Snooky Young and Thad Jones on hand. Enough said about that. Punch up John Scofield's plucky sendup of Alvin & The Chipmunks' "Christmas, Christmas" or chanteuse Diane Reeve's torchy "A Merrier Christmas" for a timely perspective. Those with ears welded to Bop should start with the opening "Vauncing Chimes" by Bobby Watson & Horizon.

ALBUM NEW RELEASES

BY KENT ZIMMERMAN

"DO THE BARTMAN" - THE SIMPSONS
(Geffen)

I'm convinced one reason the Simpsons are so cool is the ingenious use of a woman's voice for Bart. On this fancy single mix package, Bart does a bratty rap served up six different ways. Jam on the opening seven inch House version. It's funny, but the only house Bart probably knows about is the dwelling that houses his messy room. Isn't it ironic that the most realistic people on television are animated scrawls? Personally I would have liked to have seen more of the show's sardonic edge grafted onto the music and the lyrics. Never mind. "Do The Bartman" for some morning fun, and do it quickly before the Christmas marketing burn begins.

"BIG LIE" - RIK EMMETT (Charisma)

Rik Emmett's latest "triumph" is, literally, a departure. "Big Lie" is a modern North American blues bitch session bemoaning the powers-that-be. The acoustic intro features Emmett picking up his guitar, writing a little tune that swells into a full-blown production. This is Emmett's most direct statement both musically and lyrically. Topically speaking, here's a song that could get more timely by the day.

WORLD VIEW BLUE - THE BLUE AEROPLANES
(Ensign/Chrysalis)

Come to think of it, the Ensign label has never let us down—World Party, Sinead O'Connor, Waterboys, Boo & Darden and now the Blue Aeroplanes.

World View Blue is an updated overview of the pride of Bristol. Clocking in just under a half hour, WVB is something new, borrowed and blue. New are the pop directions like "You (Are Loved)" and "Different Now" from the pen of Rodney Allen. Borrowed are some nifty cover versions of Lou Reed's velveteen "Sweet Jane" and Dylan's bluesy "I Wanna Be Your Lover," one of two live trax. Even bluer is the title track, a busy acoustic gem. I'll bet we'll be hearing more from Blue Aeroplanes come the New Year. Can't wait to take a quick flight.

STREET PARTY - THE MELLOW FELLOWS
(Alligator)

The Mellow Fellows sans Big Twist take back the street with a righteous blues/R&B/soul shouting party album. The horns are a front line arsenal, rivaling the Tower Of Power or the Boneroos in sheer pow power. Vocalist Martin Allbritton shakes a tail feather a little like Rufus Thomas. Peter Special serves double duty as Music Director and clear tone guitarist.

The Mellow Fellows are everything but melllllow. They play it rowdy with a reverence for doing it clean. Start with "Street Party." Also included is soulful version of John Hiatt's "Feels Like Rain."

PILLS 'N' THRILLS AND BELLYACHES -
HAPPY MONDAYS
(Elektra)

Happy Mondays dash out their new album just as the Thanksgiving Deadline Door slams shut. Lyricist/vocalist Shaun Ryder fronts this Manchester six piece in detached fashion not unlike another notorious Manchesterite, the late Ian Curtis of Joy Division. Yet Ryder is nowhere near as morose. Instead, his songs are spirited and quirky, accompanied by the choppy, zombied guitar work of Mark Day. Go with the openers "Kinky Afro" and "God's Cop" (see, I told you he's not morose) with their deep dub baselines and poetic license. Then it's on to the marvinly gaye "Dennis And Lois." Maybe you'll agree. Mondays never sounded so Happy.

"THEN" - CHARLATANS
UK (Beggars Banquet/RCA)

Check into one of this year's freshest imports. Not since Steve Winwood's High Life have we heard the organ so reverently portrayed as a group centerpiece. Charlatans UK glide from number one Alternative status to viable contenders on the mainstream Album Radio end.

On this special single issue, you have your choice between the straight-up no frills rendition and a five minute-plus dance mix of the show. I say it's overwhelmingly in favor of the original version. Charlatans sound much better as a rock n roll group than as a dissected dance object. Turn up.

HOT ROD - C.J. CHENIER AND THE
RED HOT LOUISIANA
BAND (Slash/Warner Bros.)

The death of Clifton Chenier, the undisputed king of the zydeco accordion was a severe loss for the cajun world. Like all the blues masters who slip away, somehow we imagine that they'll always be around. Fortunately Clifton passed the legacy on to his son C.J. who concocts the right blend of rock, blues and shuffle in collaboration with Arhoolie musicologist Chris Strachwitz. The similarity is frightening. That alone puts him in a different lane altogether from familiar squeezers like Dopesy, Queen Ida, Buckwheat and Sidney. Hot Rod features fast playing, some blues and a few strolls. Close your eyes and you're in Lafayette and New Iberia, soaking in the Tabasco fumes. As I recall, the last time the Slash people messed with a squeeze box, they begat the notorious Los Lobos. Look out for this one.

ALTERNATIVE INSIDE

BY LINDA RYAN

I saw one of the best shows of the year over the Thanksgiving break—THE JAZZ BUTCHER and THE BLUE AEROPLANES. It was the last night of the tour, so both bands gave it their all.

The Blue Aeroplanes opened the show and had the crowd moving early on. Guitarist RODNEY ALLEN sang his self-penned tune "Different Now"—and it was great—he should sing more. The highlight was when The Jazz Butcher Group joined the band onstage for their encore. Imagine a dozen people onstage—of which seven are playing guitars! It was one of those nights when you became a music fan again!

SBK will service the new JESUS JONES single "Right Here Right Now" the second week of December. The company was going to release a live EP to radio, but because so many stations are already playing the import, this was more practical. If you're interested in getting a copy of the live stuff (which will be available at retail) give Mike Mena a call (212) 492-1207.

If you and/or your listeners are wondering when the LIGHTNING SEEDS will tour, the answer is not for a very, very long time. IAN BROUDIE has gone back into the studio and completed new projects by FRAZIER CHORUS and NORTHSIDE. He is scheduled to start on the new PRIMITIVES album shortly.

As for the Lightning Seeds, Broudie's almost finished writing the songs for a new album. In the meantime, fans can find the unreleased track "15 Reasons" on Melody Maker's Gigantic compilation.

THE POGUES enter the Top Ten this week with a solid 12-5 move. The band boasts fifty supporters and comes in with four very big ADDs at WDRE, WXVX, LIVE 105 and WBRU.

THE SISTERS OF MERCY are the only other newcomer to the Top Ten, as they jump 13-9. Currently the band holds Top Five Phones at WWCD, WOXY, KRCK, WRFL, WBER and WUNH. How's that for audience response?!

LUSH make a whopping leap from 41-17! The support for the band, felt nicely in both the college and commercial camp, is reinforced with seven ADDs—WHFS, KFSR, WBRU, WXVX, KTOW, WDET and WRVU.

Jumping 40-32 is ECHO AND THE BUNNYMEN, who gather ADDs at KROQ, WRAS and WRVU.

The Butt Town EP breathes new life into IGGY POP's latest, which rebounds for a nice 46-35 move. ADDs include KUNV, WICB, KACV and WCDB. Commercial stations still supporting the Igster in HEAVY include WDRE, KUKQ, WFNX, KJQ, KROQ, WOXY, WWCD, KTCL and 91x.

Living Colour stopped by San Diego's 91x to answer phone pledges for the station's environmental fundraiser. The band also donated the guitar you see here to be auctioned off for the "green" cause. Shown L-R are Oz Medina, 91x; Mike Berger, Berger and Presicott; Living Colour's Cory Glover and Muzz Skillings and 91x's Dwight Arnold.

Faster Pussycat Gold! Gold! Gold! While being cheered on by numerous well-wishers, Faster Pussycat gets presented with Gold discs for their successful Elektra album, Wake Me When It's Over.

Two idols—one picture—go figure. David Cassidy dropped by KROQ to visit long-time pal, DJ Rodney Bingenheimer.

THE MOVIE STARS - HEAD ON A PLATTER
(WHIRLAWAY RECORDS
- 2261 MARKET ST.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CA
94114)

This is a band that believes in a thighslappin', footstompin' good time. The Movie Stars revel in a crisp, acoustic sound with country-ish overtones highlighted by the band's choice of instruments—mandolin, pedal steel guitars, accordion, up-right bass—get the picture? This ain't "cryin' in my whiskey" music. The Movie Stars get things moving much the same way The Pogues do—with a healthy dose of irreverent and carefree spirit. A good time is guaranteed. Suggested tracks: "She's Barking," "Fall To Pieces," "Cancer Song," "Blood Red Roses" and my favorite cut, "Julie Ann." Commercial Alternatives that go for upper demos may want to give this a listen. LINDA RYAN

THE WOODCOCKS - WOODCOCKS
(SAN JACINTO RECORDS
- PO BOX 44277,
TUCSON, AZ 85723)

This Tucson, Arizona five-piece sounds like a cross between Neil Young and The Sidewinders—which is appropriate considering two members of the Sidewinders moonlight with the Woodcocks. This isn't the kind of album you get in one listen—it takes a while to digest the dark moodiness of the songs and decipher the lyrics. And, as with Neil Young you're either gonna like the way this guy sings or he's going to a the hell out of you! Stick with this one—I think you'll end up getting hooked! Tracks to check out include "Worth," "Raul," "Tisons" and "Everclear." Turn it up. LR

MOVEMENT EX - FREEDOM GOT A SHOTGUN (COLUMBIA)

Movement Ex is a duo that states their intent is to "teach" so it's essential to start by listening to "Prologue-This Movement Is EX-Rated." This track sets the groundwork and also gives a glimpse of what is about to unfold on the ensuing tracks. "Freedom Got A Shotgun" touches upon numerous controversial issues and Movement Ex joins other artists in raising the theory that

AIDS is a laboratory virus used to kill off "groups of people." The sampling of the "2001" theme on "Universal Blues" fits when you realize that this song is about oil and the planet—our use and exploitation of both. "KK Punani" discusses casual, unprotected, promiscuous sex with a funky Afro beat. Crack is given its due on a brilliant re-make of Bob Marley's "Get Up, Stand Up" as "Get Up Off The Pipe." Other tracks to check: "The Lord Speaks His Mind," "Rap Mafia," "Knowledge This," "King Goes Solo," "The Musical," "Comin' At Ya" and "United Snakes Of America." RB

Duke's music always had this indigo hue over the top of it. It's complex."

Duke was the most significant Jazz Big-Band composer of our time. A genius whose main instrument was his band, Ellington's music spanned several decades from the twenties to the seventies. To Mathis he is American music personified.

"I've been doing a medley of his music for the last five or six years on stage. I grew up singing in church, in school, then nightclubs and finally concert halls. That's the way Duke wrote. He wrote for his Jazz band, the concert stage and his church. I wanted to include original lyrical intros to get it absolutely right. I didn't want to improvise. I'm not good at it. I wanted to sing exactly what he wrote and include a little bit of everything.

"Duke had done everything that he could to legitimize his music as completely American. He went to the source. Jazz is the most American music. Then of course there's Negro spirituals. Perhaps toward the end of his life, he wanted to solidify them and make sure that everybody understood that this is Americana."

The sessions for In A Sentimental Mood revolved around securing a large Philharmonic orchestra, with Mathis performing the vocals live. The ambience was crucial. Mathis and his producer settled on a church in England. The time factor and logistics were tricky at times.

"The London Symphony players that we wanted were only available to us five days in the morning at ten o'clock. I had to get up at five in the morning—jumping up and down—and start vocalizing so I wouldn't sound like a fog horn that early. We also had someone other than the composer in England conducting the orchestra. That's what they do over there. They give the arrangement to a conductor. He studies the charts and conducts the orchestra. To me, that's completely unique. We don't have any such thing over here. The arranger always conducts his work."

Then it was back to the States for some fine tuning.

"I ended up using the original takes on about six of the songs. I wanted to get some first, second and third takes with the orchestra because of the wonderful sound from this church in Petersham. Then I sang four or five back here. They use an amazing computer that can match the sound and the timbre of the room."

The result was a dozen carefully chosen Ellington chestnuts, with six instrumental interludes of his most recognizable melodies. It's the inevitable pairing of two American legends.

"It was my idea to include the short instrumental breaks. Duke wrote a lot of music over a long period and he was associated with some famous musical compositions. I didn't want to sing 'Sophisticated Lady.' I had done it year after year on the stage. I wanted to do songs like 'What Am I Here For,' 'Lush Life' and 'Come Sunday.' I want the people to say, 'Oh, he wrote that!'"

Two highlights are the blue-flamed treatment of "Do Nothin' Till You Hear From Me" and the front and center bass line swing of "What Am I Here For."

"I felt strong about doing 'Don't Get Around Much Anymore' as a tender ballad. I slowed it down because guys like Duke who wrote music and had a band probably just kicked up the tempo a little bit so that people could dance to it. My producer, Mike Berniker wanted to make sure I included 'What Am I Here For.' I had heard it, but only as an instrumental."

Even though he's sold millions of albums, Mathis is extremely modest about being in the same league as a giant like Frank Sinatra—or any other modern pop star for that matter. With 60 gold and platinum records, Mathis learned to adjust to the stubborn tag of romantic icon. Picture the scene in the film Diner when the protagonists argue over whom was the best singer to make out to—Presley, Mathis or Sinatra.

"I've always been a little itchy about being a romantic singer. I would rather be known as someone who was a little dynamic or something like that. Just the semantics of the word put certain things into the minds of people. I sing other stuff on the stage that has nothing to do with romance. But I guess no matter what I sing, they think of it as romantic.

"I always thought it almost trivialized me. Yet my biggest hero was Nat King Cole. He was the ultimate romantic singer. He played piano and had the Jazz background. By my estimate he was much more than what people thought. Many people thought he was just a singer. He was one of our great Jazz pianists. I had to learn to live with being a romantic singer."

Unlike Sinatra, Mathis' image is disarmingly sweet. He's chosen to maintain a laid back persona and let the music do the charming. Mathis looks back at his rise to stardom in 1957 with the eye of a perfectionist.

"It wasn't until I started to record singles with Mitch Miller that I had to make up my own way of singing these songs. I had never heard anybody singing them before. I had to learn to sing in public while the public was watching. I had to make mistakes, god knows how many on records. I listen to some early stuff now and just cringe. I had no idea what I was doing.

"But that voice was always there and that was what people heard. I got away with murder on so many things—a wrong note, not singing on key. I did stuff for pyrotechnical value. After a while, I've learned to sing better. Then all the little high soft things weren't there anymore. What's this big booming sound that's coming around now?"

Mathis laughs.

"I never wanted to get in the way of the music. I've always been a reticent person, bordering on shyness. I wanted to be represented by the songs. It always leaves it up for grabs. Some people may not like an aspect of your personality. So I always let the music do all the ballyhoo, whereas Sinatra has his say about everything. I think that's fine if he can handle that. I'd rather play golf when I'm not singing." ● but easy, with much of the fiery Camilo energy spent cutting through the bureaucratic maze of immigration paperwork. Steadily Camilo was making progress, gathering a reputation, sitting in, jamming and composing.

The first break came when he auditioned for a theater job on Broadway for Bob Fosse's Dancing. A close friend secured him an uncertain audition.

"The show required a pianist that could play classical music on stage during the first scene. Later you had to play a 1928 transcription of Benny Goodman's 'Sing Sing Sing.' "

Camilo landed the position of understudy. Responsibilities included rehearsing the dancers all afternoon, laboriously pounding out the same tune hundreds of times a day.

Then came a tentative tenure as band member and sideman. He worked first as a keyboardist with Paquito D'Rivera's band. Camilo also simultaneously joined an unsigned outfit called French Toast, featuring French horn player Peter Gordon, bassist Anthony Jackson and a parade of drummers.

"That band had a reputation for great drummers. There was Steve Ferrone, Steve Gadd, Peter Erskine. It was also one of Dave Weckl's first bands in New York," Camilo remembers.

French Toast was the first American band in which Camilo experimented with his compositions. Since French Toast's tastes ran through a wide spectrum of avant garde, acoustic and fusion, Camilo began to forge his sound as a writer, submitting a composition called "Why Not?". Manhattan Transfer chanteuse Janis Siegel was in the audience when he performed it. She loved the song, asked for a demo and presented it to the Transfer, who recorded it in 1983. The song helped secure them a Grammy award.

After French Toast crumbled, Camilo formed the Michel Camilo Sextet with English saxman Chris Hunter, trumpeter Lew Soloff (both from Gil Evans' orchestra), bassist Jackson, Weckl on drums and Sammy Figueroa on percussion and congas. The labels weren't biting.

"One hot band, big following, but the labels wouldn't take a chance. American companies wanted pure mainstream, which was only a part of our sound."

Camilo's Sextet gathered a following of mostly musicians. Fans included a Japanese label exec who eventually signed the band and released two albums entitled "Why Not?" and "Michel Camilo In Trio." Both sold moderately in Europe and Japan. Another fan was Tania

Maria, who was putting together a concert at Carnegie Hall. It was Maria who insisted that Camilo open her show, but with one hitch. He must perform "in trio."

"She said she wanted to hear more piano. During those days critics sometimes accused me of hiding behind the horns. The show was a big success."

As Camilo honed his trio format, he took his band overseas to play the prestigious North Sea Jazz Festival. Generally the attendees check out the multiple stages, roaming from act to act every few numbers. Camilo's two shows were jammed, causing one writer to describe him as "a revelation of the festival." In the audience for that show was Julio Marti, an international Jazz promoter and businessperson. Marti, now one of Camilo's closest friends, was, at the time, in partnership with the Newport Jazz Festival legend George Wein. Upon the advice of Marti, Wein arranged a dinner where Camilo auditioned between courses. Camilo arranged a show at New York's Blue Note.

"It was pocked the night George Wein saw me at the Blue Note, sold out. Lionel Hampton was there as well. Both had heard about me in Europe. Both arrived late, sat together and had a great time. It was a Cinderella story. Lionel invited me to play at his anniversary concert in Town Hall. George Wein decided to put his money where his mouth was, becoming executive producer, paying for the sessions that eventually became my first album on CBS.

"Since nobody had heard the Japanese records, I decided to start anew and call the first album Michel Camilo. The idea was side one being very mainstream while side two featured the Caribbean sound. I used two different rhythm sections. The bridge between the two sides was a small solo piece."

The first album begat "Caribe," Camilo's signature tune to this day. Next came the fiery On Fire, known for the scorching title track, closely followed by the current On The Other Hand, a temporary departure using a septet. Camilo's road trio is a powerful one. Bassist Michael Bowie, a monster player, learned his craft playing with Betty Carter and later, a short simultaneous stint with Camilo and the Harper Brothers. San Diego-born Cliff Almond is a young drummer who fits Camilo's risky "power drummer" requirements. Increasingly, the audience has been a growing blend of Jazz fans and unsuspecting music lovers unaccustomed to the rigors of Jazz piano. In expanding his audience, Camilo contemplates the current state of Jazz as it reaches beyond its original core audience of purists onto the cover of Time magazine.

"It's a vicious circle. Jazz has to be only cool. Why? It's freedom music, liberty music. Put it all out, don't hold back. The first rule I broke was with this attitude of going acoustic. If you're acoustic, you're not supposed to be popular. Believe me, I'm a serious artist, but today we need more energy from acoustic music. When I look down from the stage, I see smiles and people in awe, people who don't expect power, energy and fun from Jazz.

"I think Jazz should be fun and it should move people. Be accessible. Think about people like Art Blakey, Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington. They were very positive and open-hearted. They shared their art with their audience without compromising it. That is how I want my music to be viewed—open as opposed to being elitist.

"I reject the thought that if your audience has a good time, your music isn't deep enough, that if you talk to the audience onstage, you're not serious. I'm a happy person and I like to share that with them by talking to them, telling them what triggers a particular piece of music.

"When I first came to New York, I thought I was too late. Everyone was saying that Jazz was dead. Though we were drawing people into the clubs, the future was stark. I thought part of the reason was that people associated Jazz as a depressive, too insightful. No smiling."

Which recalls a theory that as Jazz evolved from mass appeal dance music to small ensembles, some of the price we paid for heady innovation resulted in the music losing some of its popularity to R&B and rock n roll. Camilo seems unconcerned.

"Jazz has a resilience that grows from its own identity crisis," Camilo reasoned. "I remember hearing an interview on Swiss radio with Miles Davis. He said that young players should be playing their music, revealing their souls and identities, not what came before. There is some truth to that. We need today's sounds for the nineties. Now we are in a different generation. We are using words like 'dude.' People talk very fast in New York City. Everybody is in a rush. That energy effects my music. I merely feel my environment.

"We have to be careful. Going back may not necessarily reflect the times. Swing represented its time. Bebop represented the way people talked at the time."

In an era where young players arriving in New York are "policed by fellow musicians and critics," sometimes pressured to play only the standards in the old-fashioned way, Camilo hopes for a more open atmosphere. He can certainly relate to the fears of non-acceptance.

"I know deep down that many of these young players would like to explore more music and new rhythms. They're afraid they'll be labeled 'sell-out' or 'nonJazz' by their peers."

Camilo senses the seriousness and severity of his observation. He frowns but, moments later, smiles broadly. Looking at the scattered reviews, he recalls both the good ones and the not-so-good ones verbatim.

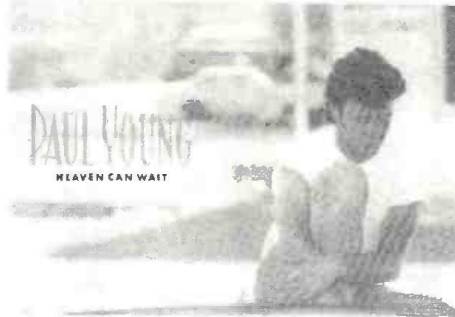

"The dearest compliment came from Leonard Feather who said that I was 'brilliant but controversial,'" he said laughing proudly at such praise. "I suppose I'd rather be controversial than taken for granted. Being controversial means that something new is being developed." ●

PERSONAL PICKS

SINGLES by Dave Sholin

THE CURE - Close To Me (Elektra)

Musical adventurer Robert Smith and his crew take us on an expedition full of unexpected surprises. Spicing up this Reggae-influenced production with some Jazz-flavored instrumentation enriches the song's lyrics and vocal arrangement, offering a truly fresh sound. Listeners suffering from humdrum musical blahs should welcome the cure.

ALBUMS by Ron Fell

JEFFREY OSBORNE - Only Human (Arista)

Possessing some of the most consistently solid pipes in the biz, Jeffrey Osborne runs circles around most other romantic icons of Soul and Pop music. Blessed with lungs of a Sherpa and the range of a Land Rover, Jeffrey can and does get more out of a song than would appear possible. He's mature enough to avoid the stylistic cliches of technique that doom more youthful pretenders to spastic careers. Jeffrey's catalogue has been one of timeless excellence—thickly rich in production, naturally emotional and, dare I say, adult. This Arista debut, for the most part a collaboration with producer/songwriter Barry J. Eastmond, has more than its share of brilliant moments. Its tour de force may well be the lead single, ONLY HUMAN or possibly the set's first track, IF MY BROTHER'S IN TROUBLE. The former is an indestructible ballad of humility. The latter, produced by Shep Pettibone, is a unilateral pledge of allegiance to the spirit of brotherhood. Welcome back, Jeffrey.

PAUL YOUNG - Heaven Can Wait (Columbia)

In the sixties, the Righteous Brothers personified what came to be known as "blue eyed soul." In the eighties, it was England's Paul Young who proved to be the blue eyed soulster extraordinaire, releasing some of the most powerful music of the decade. Few performers can work a groove like this guy, and all anyone in doubt has to do is just listen to this latest effort.

CROSSOVER PICK

OLETA ADAMS - Get Here (Fontana/PolyGram)

As the holiday season approaches, the timing couldn't be better for this soulful beauty drenched in sincere emotion. Written by Brenda Russell, who recorded it on the album that included "Piano In The Dark" several years ago, it debuts on the A/C chart this week. New Top 40 believers include KISS 108 Boston, KMEL San Francisco, WNVZ Norfolk, VA, Q95FM Detroit, K106 Beaumont, TX, along with a 29-27 gain at Y100 Miami.
