14 RICHARD THOMPSON

Despite the long and winding road from a '60s British blues and folk singer to one of the leaders of the '70s Brit-folk explosion to a darling of the R.E.M. set in the '90s, singer/guitarist Richard Thompson thinks telling his life story would be boring. Goldmine interviewed the talented songwriter during his current tour to prove him otherwise.

57 HEAVY METAL THUNDER

The origins of heavy metal began in the mid-60s, although no one knew it at the time. A brief introduction to its beginnings are augmented by a list of the top metal songs of all time (page 67) and comments from Led Zeppelin's John Paul Jones (page 78).

Please Mr Postman

Argent hoax, Miami Pop Fest and other topics

For about 11 years, I have been an avid reader of Goldmine. I have added performers I was not aware of to my collection, such as Richard X Heyman. Please keep up the great work! Meanwhile, I have some questions to throw out for consideration. I have always been a keyboard nut, since Procol Harum's first LP back in 1967. Most of my favorites have been British: Gary Brooker, Matthew Fisher, Brian Auger, Ian McLagan, Steve Winwood, Keith Emerson, and Rod Argent. This brings me to my first query. Since Goldmine featured The Zombies in issue #384 back in April 1995, I have looked for a 1991 release by Argent called Music From The Spheres on Elite (004CD). I am beginning to think that the album is a hoax.

In all the places I have looked, no one lists this particular CD. Surely someone out there has it. Also in that issue, there is a great article on Auger. I can still remember buying his single of Bob Dylan's "This Wheel's On Fire," but somehow I have missed the album that includes this song. I have since lost the single. I do have some earlier albums, but I cannot find that cut because I do not know where to look.

Next, I remember buying a selection through the Columbia Record Club many years ago just because of the face this guy was making on the cover of what was his first LP - Lee Michaels. While he may not be classed with some of rock's greatest keymen, I have followed his career for years. I have never tired of his version of "Stormy Monday." What would be the chances of doing an article on him?

Also, does anyone remember The Miami Pop Festival? I think it took place on a dog racing track in 1968. Procol Harum, Three Dog Night and others were there. I have never seen anything written about it. I know I was there. Did it really happen?

Finally, I have always thought that Robin Trower had one of rock's greatest vocalists in James Dewar. Whatever happened to Dewar? Has he recorded anything since leaving Trower? Again, keep up the great work!

- Richard Parker Greenville SC

(Richard, that's a lot of questions! Perhaps some of our readers can shed some light on the Miami Pop Festival and Dewar's doings (He is indeed a great vocalist). As for the Argent hoax, one of our writers, an Argent fan, said that he has seen the CD listed for sale but has have never actually seen one himself. We are in the process of contacting Argent himself to verify the existence or nonexistence of this album and will post a notice when we find out for sure. The song "Music From The Spheres" is actually on the 1974 Argent LP Nexus. Auger's version of the Dylan song can be found on Polydor's reissued Flashback album, the first self-titled album by Auger, Julie Driscoll, and Trinity (reissued on CD by One Way Records), and on various compilations. Outside of reviews, etc., we haven't ever published a story on Michaels. We'll add him to the list. Hope this answered a few of your questions. — Ed.)

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR Keep a lookout for rare stuff...

Somehow it got to be mid-May already. When traveling around this summer, be sure to keep a lookout for cool records and music memorabilia in thrift stores, rummage sales and other out-of-the-way places. Let us know if you find anything interesting (see story on reporting rare finds to Goldmine on page 10).

There always seems to be a flurry of deaths right around the new year. This year was no exception. We've been trying to publish our obits on the many artists who have passed away in the past six months, but it isn't easy. You may notice in this issue's obit section that in addition to our regularlength obits, we are now running some brief obits to at least acknowledge an artist's passing in the magazine, with the balance of a particular obit placed on our Web site. This will allow us to let you know of a person's passing in a more timely manner.

Looks like the whole Napster situation continues to head nowhere. One interesting sidelight is a software company's development of technology that restricts uploading and duplicating a recorded CD. More on this

Things are shaping up for The National Record Show 2001, cosponsored by Goldmine and The Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame. Set for the weekend of Aug. 4-5 at the Rock Hall, mark your calendars now for what will be the premier record show of the summer. We'll be reporting specifics about the show next issue.

A bit further on down the road are the 2001 inductions at The Vocal Hall Group Hall Of Fame in Sharon, Pa., slated for Sept. 13, followed by a free evening outdoor concert Sept. 14 and a record show Sept. 15 to be held in the Hall's museum! The record show is sponsored by Pennsylvania's Keystone Record Collectors club. More info on the Vocal Group Hall's activities and the record show will be forthcoming, or check out the Hall's Web site at www.vocalhalloffame.com.

Lots of good stuff to look forward to! - Greg Loescher

Looking for The Keep

A short time ago you really helped me when it came to the Tantra album I was looking for, which I will forever appreciate. Now, I need your help again. I am looking for the soundtrack for the motion picture The Keep. I know Tangerine Dream does the soundtrack, but I can't locate it anywhere. Any help you can give me is appreciated and in advance, I thank you.

A fitting tribute to John Phillips

I went to The Roxy last night (March 27, 2001) and from 8 p.m. to midnight saw the most amazing tribute to The Mamas And The Papas' John Phillips (the funeral was the previous weekend in Palm Springs). Each person who walked in the door was given a guitar pick with the same inscription as on the marquee: "All the leaves are brown and the sky is grey." We watched about 40 minutes of film on The Mamas And The Papas and Phillips, including seven or so songs from the Monterey Pop Festival (I don't think any of this has ever been seen other than what is in the Monterey Pop video), an appearance on Ed Sullivan, rare footage of Phillips as a folkie, and a just-taped version for the tribute of "California Dreaming" by José Feliciano.

John Stewart first read a commentary about Phillips, how everybody loved him despite the many problems he created. Then the performances began with Stewart, followed by a rare appearance by P.F. Sloan ("You Baby" sung with Denny Doherty).

Shane Fontayne, former lead guitarist in Lone Justice, Springsteen's guitarist on the non-E Street Band tour, and the guitarist for The Mamas And Papas in the '80s, who is also Mackenzie Phillips' former husband, performed a song he played at John's deathbed after he passed and played tasty backup guitar throughout the evening. Their 14-year-old son, Shayne Barakan, credibly performed an original song on guitar. Next was the enthusiastic, darling, unabashed ham, model-actress Bijou Phillips (great as Kate Hudson's groupie friend in Almost Famous) accompanied by Sean Lennon, her boyfriend, who later sat in on drums, played guitar and sang on a couple of other songs. Bijou has real talent as a singer and is irrepressible. John's son Tamerlane, dressed in the white robes of a Muktananta follower, did a turn on guitar (not so good, but an "A" for effort), and John's oldest son, Jeffrey Phillips, a Bay Area resident and (according to Bijou a very successful) mortgage broker, warbled backup on several tunes. Chynna Phillips was the only one absent because she was committed to the New York tribute to Brian Wilson (she was in Wilson Phillips with Carney and Wendy Wilson).

The Mamas And The Papas' songs were the centerpiece of the evening, performed by various amalgams, including Cass Elliot's daughter, Owen Elliot (who did her Mom's parts), Mackenzie, Bijou, and Denny and Scott McKenzie, who of course did "San Francisco (Be Sure To Wear Some Flowers In Your Hair)." Spanky McFarlane (who toured with Mackenzie Phillips in the '80s as one of The Mamas And The Papas) sat in, and Barry McGuire (who has found Jesus) did an updated "Eve Of Destruction," (with writer P.F. Sloan on acoustic rhythm). A ragged "Kokomo" was performed by writers Terry Melcher, Mike Love, Bruce Johnston and Scott McKenzie, after Love announced The Beach Boys' love for The Mamas And The Papas and that it was the biggest tune The Beach Boys

Denny Doherty, still a wonderful singer with an unpretentious stage manner, offered a never-before heard composition he and

John wrote in 1989 that was received with deserved hoots of joy. The finale included the still beauteous and radiant Michelle Phillips and the gang doing "California Dreaming" and "Monday, Monday." The emcee for the evening was the fairly reclusive Lou Adler, producer of The Mamas And The Papas and owner of The Roxy.

The show was free, having been announced in the LA Times; the place was packed (about 300), with old friends such as actors Bud Cort and Ed Begley, Jr., rock photographer Henry Diltz, honorary Mayor of Sunset Strip Rodney Bingenheimer, club owner Elmer Valentine, and fans. It was a special tribute — even the backup musicians donated their time - to a great writer and arranger comparable to Brian Wilson and The Beatles, at least as to the group's vocal prowess. Phllips is a performer who seems to have left a very nice family despite his having been a terrible parent and ruining his life on drugs. Watch out for Bijou! Mackenzie announced she has been sober since 1992, and she too was full of life, dance, song and ably carried her parts on all the tunes.

It was awesome to hear the amazing number of hits Phillips wrote or participated in and that the songs still hold up. It was a joy to send him off with such celebration, and so wonderful to see the Phillips clan in an intimate setting where hugs abounded and the love among them was so evident. Michelle near the end was at the bottom of the stage filming Mackenzie with a Super 8 video camera; I saw her smiling throughout the evening. May dear John rest in peace. We must give thanks for and reflect upon the magical melodies and words known worldwide that have given so much pleasure and comfort.

I just had to tell somebody, and you're the one. Keep up the good work.

— Neville L. Johnson Los Angeles CA

{Neville, that's quite the tribute to a great songwriter. Thanks for sharing the experience. — Ed.)

Let's hear it for new songs by classic artists! Just a brief note to applaud your thoughtful, perceptive observations about "Classic Rock And Oldies Radio Missing A Beat" in Letter From The Editor (Goldmine #535, Jan. 26, 2000). I'm attaching a commentary that I drafted for Rock And Blues News covering some of the same territory.

> - Dr. B. Lee Cooper Waleska GA

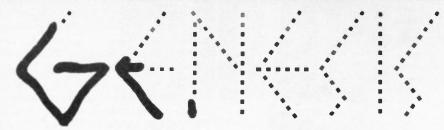

[I guess great minds think alike! I sure hope some of the stations take our comments about playing some new material by the classic artists to heart. Somehow, I doubt it. - Ed.]

Jazz At Lincoln Center announces 2001-2002 season with more than 400 events

NEW YORK — Wynton Marsalis is genuinely enthused about the upcoming season for Jazz At Lincoln Center. For trumpeter and bandleader Marsalis, a world-weary musician, to be enthused about the upcoming season is always a good sign. That means jazz fans and patrons are going to get more than their money's worth at the myriad of film screenings, lectures, concert hall shows and intimate concerts coordinated by Jazz At Lincoln Center.

"All of us involved in music are from neighborhoods, so what we're trying to do is orchestrate the neighborhood feeling into our concerts at Lincoln Center," Marsalis explained at a press conference on the first day of spring to announce the 2001-2002 season of shows for Jazz At Lincoln Center.

"Our theme for this year is 'Jump In,' because that's what we always encourage the musicians we're playing with to do," Marsalis said, referring to the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra's travels

Winner of Goldmine's Rock-A-Billy Fest 2001 contest announced

The winner of Goldmine's Rock-A-Billy Fest 2001 drawing, which started in our March 9, 2001, issue, is Al Gassman of White Plains, Neb. Among the many prizes Gassman wins are four nights lodging for two, two tickets to the three-day Rock-a-billy Fest 2001 (June 28-July 1), dinner at Suede's, Carl Perkins restaurant, a tour of Graceland, lunch on Memphis' famous Beale Street, and $500 in cash.

Winners from previous Goldmine contests will be announced shortly. If you haven't been paying attention to Goldmine's easy-to-enter drawings, start doing so now!

around the world in recent years.

Musicians who will "jump in" to the Jazz At Lincoln Center this season are indeed an eclectic bunch, including singers Jimmy Scott and Carmen Lundy, who will team up on Sept. 27-29, for three "Singers Over Manhattan" shows at the Stanley Kaplan Penthouse on the 10th floor of the Rose Building at Lincoln Center, as well as saxophonist Jimmy Heath, who will celebrate his 75th birthday at two shows, Oct. 19-20 at Alice Tully Hall, and "Jammin" On The Hammond: An Organ Summit slated for Nov. 29 and Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. at Alice Tully Hall.

"The more money we get, the more programs we're able to do," Marsalis told the audience of media people and New York City officials.

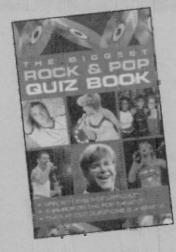

Legendary vocalist Abbey Lincoln will join singer Freddie Cole, saxophonist Joe Lovano and others in "Abbey Lincoln Over The Years — An Anthology of Her Compositions and Poems" for three nights, March 7-9, 2002, at Alice Tully Hall, and in May of next year, "We're inviting a band of Brazilian musicians to come and play with us and we're calling it 'Carnival In New York,'" exclaimed Marsalis.

Other highlights for this fall include "The Music Of Tito Puente" a tribute to the late Latin jazz bandleader who died last year, slated for Nov. 12 at Avery Fisher Hall, and a new series, Explorations In Jazz.

Highlights of the Explorations In Jazz series will include "The Night Of The Cookers: The Music Of Lee Morgan And Freddie Hubbard" on Nov. 8-10, 2001, and, in winter, "Hot Club de France Revisited" with violinist Mark O'Connor and a small group in a concert of music by guitarist Django Reinhardt on Jan. 31–Fcb. 2, 2002. In late spring, "Six-String

Bath Festival memorabilia: Legendary British concert promoter Freddy Bannister put on some of the biggest shows in rock history, including the 1969 and 1970 Bath Festivals, the latter drawing more than 150,000 attendees. Led Zeppelin's first outdoor concert appearance in the U.K. was at the 1969 show Bannister's daughter Henrietta has produced a limited-edition set (1,000) commemorating her father and his festivals. The numbered boxed set includes reprinted show programs, handbills, tickets and photographs (in a spiral notebook) from the two Bath festivals and the 1971 Lincoln Folk Festival, the first three outdoor festivals Bannister promoted. The set also includes a hardcover autobiography, providing readers with a look at the behind-the scenes antics of many of rock's superstars. Bannister got his start in the '60s in England working small clubs with artists such as Gene Vincent, The Beatles, The Rolling Stones, Ike And Tina Turner, Roy Orbision, Cream, The Who, and Jimi Hendrix. Auction results: FleetwoodOwen's March 27 Rock Legends auction at London's Hard Rock Cafe netted some impressive numbers: £4,900 for two handwritten poems by The Doors' Jim Morrison, £10,500 for one of Led Zeppelin drummer John Bonham's drum sets, £2,300 for a jacket worn by The Who's drummer Keith Moon (£1,200 was the estimate for this piece), £900 for two motor vehicle license tax discs from Moon's Rolls Royce Corniche and £700 for an original Yellow Submarine die-cast model toy. Other items that sold include Elvis Presley's handwritten lyrics for "Out Of Line" (£1,700), two ticket stubs to a Beatles 1962 concert (£600), a portrait of John Lennon by Liverpudlian artist Arthur Delany, who studied under L.S. Lowry (£2,400), a blackand-white photo of The Beatles screaming (£550) and a flyer for a 1964 Beatles gig (£850). Complete auction results are available at www.fleetwoodowen.com.

At the Rock Hall: An exhibit on Stuart Sutcliffe, an original Beatle and an art-school friend of John Lennon, starts May 15 at The Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame in Cleveland and runs through Sept. 3, 2001. The exhibit is on loan from The Beatles Story museum in Liverpool and includes one of his guitars, several of his paintings, letters, notes, set lists and other items documenting the former Beatle's life with the group (Sutcliffe left The Beatles in late 1960 after performing with them in Hamburg, Germany, to pursue an art career. He died in April 1962 of a brain hemorrhage).

In concert: Britain's Petula Clark will be performing May 20-21 at the Chrysler Hall in Norfolk, Va. The two-hour concerts — dubbed "Petula Clark: A Sign Of The Times" (after her #11 hit) — include guests Lou Rawls and Richard Carpenter and are being taped for Clark's forthcoming DVD release and for a run nationwide on PBS during PBS 2001-2002 pledge drives. KISSFest feeds fans' hunger for more KISS collectibles

WCW's Dale "The Demon"
Torborg got his inspiration from Gene Simmons' character.

INDIANAPOLIS — There is a reason why Gene Simmons signs his name using a dollar sign. Even when KISS packs their makeup away for the last time, KISS fans will continue to feed the beast in merchandise and memorabilia sales.

Throughout the nation, KISS conventions draw legions of devoted fans eager to part with their pennies for band-related collectibles. Annually, many of these fans make the pilgrimage to Indianapolis, Ind., to participate in one of the biggest and best KISS conventions around. The Sheraton Four Points Resort was ground zero for the 2001 KISSFest held on Feb. 17. A record number of fans from several states converged to pay homage to the hottest band in the world, to browse the merchandise tables and to partake in activities scheduled throughout the day.

Steve Stierwalt Jr., webmaster for Fandom's KISS Freaks, offered a variety of merchandise at his booth, including Psycho Circus comics ($5-$12), KISS Freaks Special Delivery fanzines ($3) and even a few of Eric Carr's drum pads, which Stierwalt purchased from the recent KISS auction, priced at $175 each.

"Psycho Circus comics were a big seller," said Stierwalt, "probably because they are out of print and becoming hard to find."

Although not for sale, Stierwalt's KISS gong, also purchased from the auction, was a huge attraction. Fans flocked to get their photos taken with it, and throughout the day, Stierwalt would give it a hearty whack, resounding an ear-splitting wave through the room.

KISS Army founder Bill Starkey signing autographs in front of the gong used in the filming of 1978's KISS Meets The Phantom Of The Park and on 1979 and 1980 KISS tours.

The official KISS Web site, www.KISSOn-line, was also represented and offered fans a variety of keepsakes, mostly dating post–Reunion Tour and, of course, that were officially licensed. Some fans, such as Steven from Wisconsin, attend KISS expos to scope out the rare and even bootleg merchandise. "I have plenty of opportunities to find official merchandise either retail or online," he said. "I've spent the most money on two things: concert tickets and bootleg concert videos.

Obituaries

Glenn Hughes, vocalist, Village People

Glenn Hughes, one of the original vocalists for the disco vocal group Village People, died March 4, 2001, after a lengthy illness that forced him to retire from the group in 1995. He was 50 years old.

Hughes, a New York City police officer in 1977, went on a dare to an audition for a new dance group. At the time, Village People were a studio creation by producer Jacques Morali, and the group itself existed only on vinyl. But when the group's early songs "San Francisco" and "Village People" garnered respectable sales, a flesh-andblood group was needed for tours and concerts. Hughes eventually won the role of a leather-clad musiachioed biker and began recording and touring with Victor Willis (cop), Randy Jones (cowboy), David Hodo (construction man), Felipe Rose (Indian), and Alex Briley (soldier) as Village People Between 1977 and 1980, Village People were one of the top disco and vocal groups in the country, with hits such as "Macho Man" (#25), "Y.M.C.A." (#2) and "In The Navy" (#3). They would continue to perform throughout the 1980s and 1990s, with minor dance hits such as "Ready For The '80s," "Sex On The Phone" and a 1999 reissue of "Y.M.C.A." The group appeared in the film Can't Stop The Music with Steve Guttenberg and Valerie Perrine and made cameo appearances in films such as Down Periscope, Addams Family Values and Wayne's World II.

In 1995, Hughes left the group due to his declining health and was replaced by Eric Anzalone, whose previous performance experience involved singing on Princess Cruise ships.

As a final request, Hughes was buried dressed in his leather biker's costume.

Paul Peek, guitarist, Gene Vincent And His Blue Caps

Paul Edward Peek Jr., rhythm guitarist and vocalist for Gene Vincent And His Blue Caps, died April 3, 2001, in his Lithonia, Ga., home near Atlanta. Peek's death was attributed to cirrhosis of the liver. He was 53.

While Peek will be remembered for his work on the mega-hit "Be-Bop-A-Lula," he had 14 releases on his own and even appeared on American Bandstand.

Peek was 14 years old when he started playing Spanish and steel guitar, although he never took a serious interest in singing until he met up with Vincent. In 1956, Peek journeyed to Washington, D.C., with his buddy Bill Mack (a future Blue Cap), where he happened upon Vincent.

Peek's band was playing quite near the Casino Royale, and Sheriff Tex Davis, who came to see them play, mentioned in passing that Wee Willie Williams, Vincent's rhythm guitarist, was leaving the Blue Caps. Following an audition, Peek was hired as a Blue Cap, quitting his group, The Red Redding band. He went straight to the filming of the 1956 film The Girl Can't Help It and also appears alongside Vincent in 1958's Hot Rod Gang (a.k.a. The Fury Unleashed).

MARKET BEAT

Dallas dealer buy what looks interesting to him

Many vintage record dealers sell the music they personally enjoy, but David Foreman of Dallas prefers to stock his inventory with records that look and sound new to him.

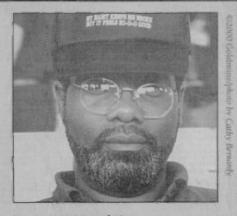

"I'm constantly learning about everything [musical]," he told Goldmine in a phone interview, "I like stuff I am unfamiliar with, whatever looks interesting," such as unknown funk bands of the mid- to late '70s.

By not focusing on a specific era, artist or genre. Foreman enjoys the "shotgun" approach to purchasing records. "When you specialize," he explained, "if it's '60s [you're into buying] and you see only 50s and '70s, you're dissapointed."

Of course, Foreman does have areas that net him strong sales. Mid-60s to mid-70s soul is his biggest sales area, and he always picks up Vogue picture discs. "People are always asking for them, plus they're a good trade item for other dealers."

A dealer for nearly 20 years, Foreman said he is having a little trouble picking up replacement recordings for what he has sold, primarily because he has tended to visit the same areas over the years. Dealers have to be willing to extend beyond their usual haunts to get new variety in their stock, he pointed out. He says there are only six or seven decent record shows that consistently are good for buying and selling, such as the two Austin shows, the WFMU show in New York and a small show he usually attends in Arbutus, Md. "That's more the problem [in finding good buys]," he said of the small smattering of good shows.

Foreman doesn't use the Internet at all, focusing on shows and mail-order responses to his ads in collector magazines for all of his sales. As for his buying habits, he is a "touchy-feelly" kind of dealer, where he would rather physically touch and look at the record to make up his purchasing mind. "I just basically buy handpicked items. It's easier for me because I'm handpicking them — I can look as what's there."

Foreman has noticed new people getting into the hobby, but pointed out that they aren't necessarily replenishing the high-end collectors as fast as they used to. The latter are either passing away or not as action in the hobby as before. The younger collectors — early to mid-20%, are buying lower-end collectibles, he said. If there is any trend he has noticed in the past year or so it's that there is a void in sales of mid-range items from $50 to $100. They're "touch and go," he said, stating that there "seems to be a zillion of those records." He has noticed that the items that sell fastest are either $5 or $500.

"You can sell junk and you can sell the high-end stuff, but you have to work at selling the mid-range stuff," he concluded.

RICHARD THOMPSON

A rockin' Englishman in folk clothing

by Dave Thompson

ntroducing Richard Thompson to someone who's never heard of him is not easy. He's an original songwriter who's been filed under folk for his entire career. He's a self-effacing Englishman who once admitted his pleasures include winding up Americans. He will never write an autobiography because he's convinced it would be boring — so boring that simply typing his name into an Internet search engine brings up more hits than a Joel Whitburn Billboard chart book, with every one of them striving to answer another of the unanswered questions that hover over his head.

But spend an evening in the company of his latest release, the aptly titled Action Packed, and Thompson is none of the things he's meant to be. He isn't a folkie because the guitars are too rocking (and he isn't a rocker because the songs are too edgy); he isn't rude, he just calls things as they are; and he isn't boring, because any musician whose repertoire can swerve from the iconic nostalgia of "1952 Vincent Black Lightning" to the somber alienation of "Beeswing" is clearly not interested in chasing the same two chords down the turnpike. He's not even particularly English — at least, not in the Ray Davies' Village Green manner for which that term has become rock 'n' roll shorthand.

True, some of his best songs do lock into some peculiarly Anglo obsessions, but he's just as likely to roll out a Hank Penny country cover. When he talks about his own musical schooling, you quickly get the impression that insularity is not a word he ever felt comfortable hanging with.

"I've always listened to all kinds of music," Thompson told Goldmine in an interview done during his current U.S. tour. "Growing up in a big city [Thompson was born in Notting Hill, London, April 3, 1949] where most things were available and being a bit of an art student in my early days, I'd listen to Stockhausen, John Cage, weird stuff Ravel, Debussy, I really like 20thcentury classical music, all the jazz, all the country music which nobody thought had any redeeming factors at the time. I kind of got schooled in everything."

A vital component in this education. although Thompson did not realize it at the time was the influence of his Scottish father.

"My father was obsessed with Robert Burns. Robert ruled in our house. So did Sir Walter Scott. So I grew up with all that stuff, reading Scottish ballads — 'Sir Patrick Spens' was something I was familiar with since I was six. And even though I culturally rejected that entire thing for a long time as not being useful, eventually I found it so. All that stuff - Jimmy Shand, Scottish dance music, at some point I just regurgitated it."

That point, of course, arrived with the formation of the now-legendary Fairport Convention, the band Thompson formed with Ashley Hutchings, Simon Nicol, and Martin Lamble in 1967 that went on to first revolutionize the English folk club circuit and then English folk music itself. Not that such lofty attainments were ever on the band's mind at the outset.

We got into folk - not by accident, but not by design either," Thompson reflected. "We all had the same very cosmopolitan musical backgrounds and the same kind of taste for everything. So, if someone heard that there was a gig going at a folk club, we'd learn a few folk songs and go along saying we were a folk band. Then the next night, there's a gig at the blues club and they'll pay us seven quid, so we'd be a blues band. We schooled ourselves in various traditions, and the first album [1967's Fairport Convention] shows that. It's all over the place. It's a bit chaotic. But it was also very rootsy. We were a rootsy band, and I think that was one of the things you could do in 1967, which you maybe couldn't get away with today.

"The Incredible String Band were kind of the same thing, incredibly rootsy and absolutely all over the place - a bit of raga, a bit of this or that. And I still love those albums. Not having heard them in 20 years, I put on 5000 Spirits a while back and I just loved it. So that rootsy chaos was a legitimate thing. In fact, one of the greatest role models for Fairport was The Lovin' Spoonful because they had that same thing going. They were a pop band, but they were stealing tunes from a Memphis jug band, Henry Thomas and country music. Hums Of The Lovin' Spoonful I played that album to death."

Thompson recorded five albums with Fairport Convention, including the three that single-handedly wrought the folk rock revolution of the late 1960s: What We Did On Our Holidays, Unhalfbricking and the band's masterpiece, Liege & Lief. All, incredibly, were recorded and released during the same 12-month spell - 1969; all contribute mightily to the folkie tag that still follows Thompson.

"It's funny how that's been a pigeonhole for all the wrong reasons," he reflected. "If they'd called me a singer/songwriter earlier on, it might have made my passage easier. It's stupid, but in Britain, where fashion rules and they pick you up and discard you very quickly, if folk is out then it's way out. I always thought it was a sad day when the folk page disappeared from the Melody Maker!

"But 'folk' is a difficult word. First of all, does folk mean the music of the underclass, the working class, in which case Bruce Springsteen is folk and Chumbawamba, punk rock? There's a political element to what should be called folk and not just 'protest' songs. But to a lot of people, acoustic music is called folk, Simon & Garfunkel are folk. Traditional is a a safer word to use for most of the people called folk, and I probably think of myself as a 'tradition-based popular musician' or something like that. But compared to real traditional musicians, Martin Carthy and people like that, I'm not a traditional singer — I'm not even a revivalist.

"Fairport was another matter entirely." Thompson explained. "I always saw our role as being kind of revivalist, resurrectors of a tradition — bringing a tradition that was defamed and unpopular back into the cultural mainstream. To some extent we succeeded, because Fairport were and still are very well loved. But to some extent we failed, because the music never really became popular — and the version that did become popular, which was Steeleye Span, immediately got pigeonholed as a novelty by the Brits. Their own culture was a novelty! So we were cursed before we started."

The group's awareness of that curse began early and, in many ways, fueled the band's own ambitions.

"We'd always hung out in folk clubs and part of the diet, the general broad diet, was that we were completely out on a limb

Linda and Richard Thompson

There was a very deliberate, intellectual plane that we thrust ourselves out on, because we were a suburban grammar school clique and because our music was so much further away from what anyone else was doing. We used to look at a band like Genesis and say, 'How ridiculous.' Or David Bowie - 'How silly! Rock music itself is a parody, so what's the point of parodying the parody? This guy has no intellectual nous at all.'

"It was snobbery, completely. But for us, what we were doing was the absolute cutting edge - a lot more than being Jethro Tull, The Rolling Stones, any of the more intellectual manifestations of the '60s and '70s. We were going absolutely against the current and working in an area where there were enormous barriers of prejudice against us. The fact we got any coverage whatsoever was amazing.

Of all the factors that hind the Fairport Convention story together, regular personnel changes is surely one of the most distinguishing. Original vocalists Ian Matthews and Judy Dyble quit after the first album; her replacement, Sandy Denny, departed following Liege & Lieft founder Ashley Hutchings followed. Even Thompson left the band in 1970, after completing the Full House album.

"I felt cramped somehow. I just got to the point where I needed a different lifestyle. I needed some space to experiment on my own, to see where the music would go if I started using these very quirky songs I was writing and not giving them to the band. What would happen if I pursue this direction? At the same time, I left Fairport without any idea of actually having a career. I didn't know what I was doing or where I was going, because when you're 19 or 20, you can't think more than two months ahead. I had enough money to live on for two months, and that was enough."

He would never escape Fairport Convention completely. No sooner had he left the band than both Matthews and Denny recruited him to play on their own forthcoming solo projects; he was an integral part of The Bunch, an all-star rock 'n' roll tribute band built around the Fairport axis; he has continued contributing to Hutchings' sundry projects and, of course, he is a semi-regular at Fairport's own annual "reunion" bashes at the Cropredy festival.

"I used to do Cropredy every year," he said, then admitted, "but I don't do that now because the numbers are flashing before my eyes. I still think it's alarming that Fairport had a 20th anniversary concert and that was 15 years ago. I haven't got over the 20th yet and next year is the 35th. It's terrifying and it's extraordinary that so many of us are still around and the band is still with us."

Of course, 35 years of Fairport means fans also had close to 30 years of a solo Thompson, and is there any other individual artist who can lay claim to so intriguing, enjoyable and genuinely consistent canon as he? Omitting compilations, collaborations and retrospectives, he has now released 17 albums of original material, beginning with his own Henry The Human Fly in 1972, moving on through six sets recorded with ex-wife Linda between 1974-82, then picking up on his own again with 1981's Strict Tempo. His last all-new set, Mock Tudor, was released in 1999; his latest, the aforementioned Action Packed, compiles (some of) the best of his last decade's worth of releases.

"It was the record company [Capitol]'s idea. I'm out of contract now - it was a sixrecord deal, so it was a logical thing to do to close it. Plus it gives the public at large a second opportunity to exercise their extremely good taste. My public's already got all the stuff. This is for the others — their last chance to join the hip crowd," he quipped.

Whether they will take that chance, of course, is a moot point. By his own confession, Thompson is not the easiest person in the world to market — or so record companies have been telling him almost since he launched his solo career. "Actually, it was right from the start. When Linda and I did I Want To See The Bright Lights Tonight [1974] for Island Records, they hated it. They weren't going to release it."

Since that time, Chrysalis, Polvdor and Capitol have all taken Thompson on board, then scratched their heads as they wondered what to do with him, with the latter coming closest to breaking him, back in the early 1990s when a very deliberate attempt was made to push him to the thoughtful R.E.M. crowd.

Suddenly, Thompson found himself on the same playing field as the hippest young guns in town and, no matter how remarkable that felt, it was nothing compared to what was still in store for him. 1991's Rumor And Sigh came within a bodkin's length of grabbing a Grammy - for June 1, 2001

The "classic" Fairport Convention lineup of September-November 1969 included, from left: Ashley Hutchings, Dave Swarbrick, Sandy Denny, Richard Thompson, Dave Mattacks, and Simon Nichol.

Best Alternative Music Album. It was eventually beaten out by R.E.M.'s Out Of Time (Jesus Jones, Nirvana, and Elvis Costello were also nominated), but that wasn't the point. The fact that, at 42, Thompson could even be considered in the same breath as those younger idols demonstrated that he was working in an arena that musicians half his age could barely aspire toward.

"America has been good to me," he reflected. "It's only in the last five years or so that the U.K. has realized I'm not a '60s folkie who wouldn't go away. Here I'm alternative/college radio material and people didn't necessarily know me from the '60s and '70s -- or '80s. The early 1990s, for me, was like starting anew in a lot of ways, and that was down to the label. Capitol did do a good job at the start, but personnel changes take their toll and over the last four or five years, they've had huge changes. It's terribly frustrating to see things moving along, long-term planning and all that, then one key person leaves the label and it's back to the start. One could have a whole harangue about that, the way that money has taken over the whole entertainment business in a way it never did before.

"There used to be a sense of nurturing. When I started out on Island Records in 1968. although it was quite chaotic in one sense, at least Chris Blackwell had a sense of what music was, he had a love of music, and he really wanted to nurture it. So there was Fairport, Traffic, Jethro Tull, John Martyn, Incredible String Band — there was a sense of developing artists, and you had that in America as well with people like Elektra. I'm not sure whether any of the majors are able to do that now. The world has become more corporate, they're more able to streamline and cross-market people like Britney and 'N Sync. They can aim for the mass market very easily, and niche artists get left behind. As the companies get bigger and they own TV stations and radio stations, it's more and more about creating product, and you see more artists coming through who are simply product. They have no other virtue, and that is really sad.

"The size of the music inclustry has grown 20-fold since then, and I don't think that's an exaggeration. In the mid-60s I think I knew everybody in music, certainly in the U.K. I'd heard probably most records that were ever released, and if I hadn't heard them, I at least knew the value of the artist. Lalso had a pretty good idea of everybody in the States as well, just from reading Melody Maker and keeping up, listening to a bit of radio. I had my finger fairly tightly on the music scene, and it wasn't difficult because it was smaller - small enough that an Island Records could exist and have a degree of clout. A Virgin Records could exist. When Henry The Human Fly came out in 1972, Island Records were totally baffled by it. I was amazed it even became a release - I made it as a secret. I went into the studio with John Wood and we just sent them the bills, and I think Chris Blackwell just signed off on them, 'Ah, it's Richard. We'll stick it out, what the heck.' There was loyalty. Now there's profit.'

Thompson's refusal to settle down into what other artists (and certainly other labels) might consider a comfortable middle-aged milieu is, of course, one consequence of that early nurturing - both for the listener and for himself.

"When I was younger, I used to go see Jerry Lee Lewis perform, and if he was doing what was obviously a rock 'n' roll show, he'd play an hour of country music just to piss the audience off, and vice versa - with a country crowd he'd come out with the meanest rock 'n' roll. And that's kind of rubbed off on me. I don't want to make the records people would expect of me. I don't want to play the kind of shows people expect."

Promoting Action Packed, an album highlighted by his work with a sucession of mighty musicians. Thompson chose to tour as a solo artist, accompanying himself with guitar alone. Touring the album of "very short, very quiet songs" which he numbers among his most immediate future projects, he'll probably put together a heavy metal band.

Action Packed is not the first attempt to anthologize Thompson's career. As far back as 1976, he compiled Guitar, Vocal from an already bulging vault full of out-takes and rarities. More recently, his work with Linda Thompson has been collected onto a fine single disc Best Of, while 1995 brought Watching The Dark, a three-disc compendium that raced back and forth across his career with no regard for chronology but an eagle eye for effect.

Thompson still views it with mixed emotions. "When I first heard they were doing it. I thought, 'Great! Royalties from record one. But it does make me nervous as a record, to listen to, because it is so many things from so many gras, shackled together, It wasn't my choice and it wasn't my taste, and I was very happy to censor a few of the things that were originally going to be on there that I thought were too ugly to listen to. It's hard for me to be satisfied with the older stuff - if it had been my choice, there probably wouldn't have been anything on there from before 1985!"

The chances of a Thompson-approved set documenting the same period and beyond,

"I suppose it'll have to be done at some point, so it's possible. I don't know, though maybe when I'm older, really old. There is a sense of finality to box sets, so when I quit the music life and become a full-time gardener, I'll think about it." He feels the same way about penning an autobiography, despite - as with the box set — knowing that there would be a considerable market for such a beast.

"I'm not planning one. I know a few people who are, but I don't think I've got anything to say in that way. If I did, there'd be a lot of fantasy in it. I'm not that concerned about facts, and then there's not much to say. I think very often, if you write stuff like that, it has to reflect on your rich and multilayered life in prison and your 18 wives and your time working for the Congolese Mercenary Army. But if you're a musician on the road, you haven't got time for any of that. Your own life is fairly routine, and you supplement it with this exciting fantasy world, so there's not really much going on in there. It would be so boring. I'd rather read somebody else's."

Part of his reluctance to place such resounding anchors on his "career-so-far" is the belief that he has yet to complete any particular phase of it. True, there are areas - the Fairport Convention years, the Linda years - to which he is unlikely to return (Cropredy reunions notwithstanding). But they deserve (and have received) consideration in their own right. Looking back over his own solo albums. Thompson sees only continuity, never completion.

"There are some albums I see more as projects than, 'These are the best 10 songs I can come up with this year.' In retrospect, I think some records hang together better or worse than you intended, and if the case is worse, then there's a tendency to think, 'I'd love to pull those three songs off that album and stick them on another one.' As you look backwards, themes appear in what you do and you think, 'I wish I'd kept that song another three years because it'd make more sense here.' But that's what gives you that continuity between records — plus, it's hard to always succeed on all fronts, all the time. Sometimes the production's off, sometimes the performance is off, sometimes the songs are off, although you rarely realize that at the time.

"I think sometimes you might feel that a couple of songs you're not sure about, but you have to finish the record. I usually don't have the luxury of being able to not record - when the time comes I have to get on with it. Some people can be very anal in the studio and take a couple of years just to tune up, but I find it's not productive to spend that long on a record. Some people are very good at that. Some people have a gift for breaking music into very small components and then putting them back together again, analyzing everything before the session, then going in and piecing it together. But I find if I don't do something spontaneous in the studio, then it doesn't sound spontaneous - it just sounds flat.

"The problem then, of course, is you only have the one shot at it. Sometimes you get lucky, sometimes you don't, and there's never a chance to go back. The records I've done where we've gone for a live thing and it's come out a bit messy, there's no opportunity of fixing it. We're stuck with it."

The live environment aside, one of Thompson's best-loved outbursts of spontaneity can be found in his contributions to former Bonzo Dog Band frontman Vivian Stanshall's Teddy Boys Don't Knit album, his contributions famously recorded live and unrehearsed in the studio, while Stanshall noisily had a nervous breakdown alongside him.

"Working with Viv Stanshall was always totally chaotic, but that particular album, I find it very hard to bring myself to listen to. They were incredibly short of studio time, and I got drafted in at the very end to play on however many tracks on the record and it was done in real time. There were no second chances. It was one take at everything, and Viv was just a nervous wreck. He was so pressed for time on every front, and he was so concerned about it because this isn't the ideal way to make good music. So I was in there for 40 minutes and I had one go at every cut. Everything was in E flat. I read it off the chart and that was it. That was the finished record.

"Viv was a lovely man, though, very genuine, very funny. He used to live on a houseboat down near Richmond somewhere, and there was a folk club down that way somewhere, where Linda and I used to play sometimes. One night we were on stage, I think we got through the first set, we got to the second set and suddenly there's a voice from the back of the crowd - 'Dear boy! I've brought my ukulele!' It was Vivian, and he came through the audience to the front of the stage, and he completely took over. And we just thought, 'What the heck."

Such outbursts have become less common in recent years, of course, as the music industry has constricted ever more toward its own apparent ideal of a formulaic burger factory, churning out countless faceless icons for a public that is unable, if not apathetically unwilling, to take a chance on anything remotely challenging or interesting.

We live, after all, in an age when the major record labels spend more time scouring eBay and Napster in search of copyright infringements than they do searching clubs for the latest wave of talent and, if fuel need be added to the fires of discontent that already blaze around the Internet's role in the modern music industry, then Thompson is already siphoning the gasoline.

"It's a time of change in the record business, you could say. It's a volatile time, but it offers opportunities to people like me, who don't fit into the mainstream of 'top pop artists.' I do believe that as soon as someone figures out the marketing and the distribution, which hasn't quite happened yet, you can use the Internet as a very direct way of harnessing the public. My own Web site is extremely late in getting set up. There are Web sites which deal with me on another basis but our commercial Web site is on the way up, and that's a great opportunity for people like me to earn a living from music. Because I think I'd like to make money from records at this point — it sounds crazy, but in the past, records have always been a promotional device for the concerts, and we needed record labels to promote the record, get it to the journalists and the radio stations. That doesn't really happen anymore because my records aren't going to get played on the radio, except by the stations that are already playing them, so we might as well just cut labels out of the equation. There are different kinds of deals available, so we'll see what turns up.

"I think with notable and noble exceptions, radio's just about gone because it's totally commercial and corporate, and that's the market that the Internet is ultimately going to move into, keeping people informed of what's out there, letting them hear things before they buy them. As far as my Web site goes, I'll be involved, offering up Stalinesque statements every couple of weeks to keep people on their toes. But it'll also be a place where I can go online and answer questions or whatever. The idea is to satisfy people's curiosity - whatever people want I hope we can give to them."

What he has given them so far, of course, should be enough for most people - a rich and multilayered catalog of albums that is without peer in whatever musical genre you might like to place him, and that seems set to continue that way for a long time to come.

Discussing his future plans, Thompson mused, "One thing I'd like to do sometime is an album with just three long tracks on it and just do really long guitar solos. Onstage, it's fine to go on for seven, eight minutes, because people will give you leeway. But on record, if I want to get 13 songs on, I'd better get a move on.

"Then I've got three other projects which I'm actively working towards, and I'm not sure which one will be the next album. It depends on how the business falls. If we do a record deal where we need something high profile and poppy, that's one record. But I'm also planning a quiet record, quiet and short songs, and another of Islamic songs [Thompson has been a Muslim since 1973]. Again, we'll see what happens, but at least one, and maybe all, of those will be along sometime."

A Broad Ahroad

RE-RECORDINGS AND BONUS TRACKS GALORE

by Jo-Ann Greene

nybody approaching TV Smith's newly released Useless: The Very Best Of album and assuming that the past decade's worth of acoustic inclinations is any indication of his current muse, is in for a ragged surprise. The Very Best Of (JKP, Germany) is indeed aptly titled — it includes, after all, "One Chord Wonders," "Gary Gilmore's Eyes" and "Bored Teenagers," from Smith's years with punk iconoclasts The Adverts; "Lord's Prayer," which he wrote for the Lords Of The New Church; "Ready For The Axe To Drop" and "My String Will Snap," from the late-80s Cheap era; plus highlights from his last four solo albums. All of these are regulars in his solo live set and, as such, promise few surprises.

However, the album also includes accompaniment from Die Toten Hosen, Germany's finest modern punk band — which means, from start to finish, it's an unrelentingly dynamic wall of sound reappraisal of songs that had grown quite accustomed to being strummed and spat out by one guy on a stage.

Smith's relationship with Hosen dates back to the early 1990s, when they had him add vocals to their own version of The Adverts' "Gary Gilmore's Eyes." Since that time, the relationship has flourished — two years ago, Smith supplied English-language lyrics to the Germans' Crash Landing retrospective; on Useless, Hosen reciprocate with a full-blooded accompaniment that reminds us that, even in the guise of the solo acoustic troubadour, Smith is one of the most powerful songwriters we have. Wrapped again in the punk rock clothing that he once wore with such conviction, he could be the most powerful.

Re-recordings seem popular this month. Eric Bell is best-remembered as the guitar-playing guiding light behind the original Thin Lizzy and on Live Tonight...Plus! (Angel Air, U.K.), he makes sure that everybody knows it. A fully functioning bluesrock set recorded live in Sweden during the mid-1990s, Live Tonight features remarkable revisions of Lizzy's own "The Rocker" and "Whiskey In The Jar" (Bell, of course, was integral to that song's original incorporation into Lizzy's set).

There's also distinctive takes on Van Morrison's "Mother George," "Baby Please Don't Go," the John Mayall/Eric Clapton arrangement of "The Stumble" and Bell's own "Walk On Water." The sound quality is delightful — his guitar, fully to the fore, has lost none of the clarity and distinction that graced those first Lizzy albums and, if his vocals don't quite have the same strength, well, name a guitar hero who does?

Live Tonight was originally released in Sweden in 1996 with 10 tracks. For this reissue, three further tracks from the same show have been appended to the set, two more Bell originals, plus a relentlessly driving throb through "Gloria," which is more than five minutes long and as great as any version you've heard in years. Add a well-annotated/illustrated eight-page color booklet and the entire package is a delight.

Angel Air have also released Rock Bottom, a 1995 Sweden-only album from The Pirates, the never-say-die blues trio that Mick Green has been leading for more than 40 years now and who still play with a passion at which younger lads can only marvel. Of course you know precisely what you're going to get from the band — Green's guitar is beyond reproach, his vocals (a lived-in version of Mark Knopfler's, for the uninitiated) are as expressive as ever and his choice of covers is as exemplary as always.

A revival of the original Pirates' "Please Don't Touch" proves that "Shaking All Over" didn't even begin to highlight that band's repertoire, while a hypnotic plunge into Buddy Holly's "Not Fade Away" takes its core ingredients from every past remake of the song and still winds up sounding fresh—and a little psychedelic-nasty as well. There's also a version of "Blue Suede Shoes" that roars like a long-lost early Motorhead classic, even before you realize that Lemmy is the guest vocalist. Green's own originals, meanwhile, have all the guts and grit that such company demands. An excellent album.

From the darkness of a London pub we move to the brightness of San Francisco on a warm July morning. Is that a flower in your hair? Or did you just forget to wash behind your ears? No matter, because here comes the Scott McKenzie anthology, and suddenly every day is a summer's day.

Stained Glass Reflections 1960-70 (Raven, Australia) is a 22-track set that opens where McKenzie's career itself opened, with The Smoothies (an unreleased version of bandmate John Phillips' "Ride Ride Ride"). The release continues on with a couple of tracks by The Journeymen, then launches into the real meat of the entire affair — 10 McKenzie solo shots cut between 1965-67 and nine more drawn from the oft-cited but seldom-heard Stained Glass Morning album.

Some spectacular rarities are exhumed — odd mid-60s singles for Capitol and Epic — while a healthy dose of the Voice Of debut album not only includes "San Francisco," but also McKenzie's mold-making version of Tim Hardin's "Reason

Is that a flower in your hair? Or did you just forget to wash behind your ears? No matter, because here comes the Scott McKenzie anthology, and suddenly every day is a summer's day.

To Believe" and a take on Donovan's "Celeste," with the composer himself on guitar. The non-album "Holy Man" 45 also gets a welcome airing. Stained Glass Morning, meanwhile, catches McKenzie at the end of a two-year virtual retirement, desperately trying to exorcise the ghost of his greatest hit with an album that lurks around the fringes of Nashville, trying on cowboy boots and pretending to be Gram Parsons.

The brittle title track notwithstanding, it's not as brilliant an album as its admirers insist, but neither is it as appalling as its detractors claim — rather, like so many other "lost classics," it exists in a world all of its own, divorced from the mainstream of the day and, after the overkill of a few years earlier, probably is grateful for its isolation.

More rarities and legends surface on Man In A Deaf Corner (Mooncrest U.K.), a two-CD anthology detailing the earliest strivings of Soft Machine — the subtitle 1963-70 tells you that much. What it doesn't tell you is precisely how bizarre some of this stuff is going to be.

The album is divided into three parts — disc one comprises Experiments And Prototypes, which is precisely what it says, and serves up some fascinating, if overtly studious jazz meanderings courtesy of the young Hugh Hopper, Robert Wyatt, and Mike Ratledge; and The Machine Begins, which adds Daevid (he really spelled it that way!) Allen and Kevin Ayers to the brew for three prototypical slabs of skewed (very skewed) psych-pop; disc two concentrates exclusively on The Classic Period And Beyond and offers live performances from 1969 and 1970.

Liner notes from Brian Hopper, co-conspirator on several of the earliest recordings, add to the set's authority, while the story comes dramatically up to date with a brand-new remake of "As Long As He Lies Perfectly Still," featuring Dave Stewart, Jakko Jakszyk, Gary Barnacle, Clive Brooks, and Hopper. A new generation of Softs? We can dream.

Across the two discs, the sound quality is not always brilliant — "We Know What You Mean," a prototype for Ayers' subsequent "Soon Soon Soon" solo effort, sounds like the band were playing inside a broken hairdryer, while the 13-minute yelp and drone of "Hope For Happiness" is rendered even more challenging than it was originally intended to be by the depths of distortion that afflict it.

A couple of the live recordings, too, are probably more of archival/reference interest than aural treats that you will return to again and again. But all that aside, Anthology still serves up more "new" Soft Machine than this most oft-repackaged of bands has seen in many years. Indeed, alongside the other early exhumations on the market (the Giorgio Gomelsky sessions, the Polydor single, the Middle Earth concert), it confirms the need for a truly conscientiously compiled early Softs box set, one that places all this noise in context and reveals the magic that lies behind so much of it.

The Angels are one of the legends of modern Australian rock, a hard-rocking but distinctively sashaying act whose failure to make much of an impact outside of their homeland says more for Anglo-American audiences' fear of the unknown than for any deficiencies on the band's own part. Powerfully melodic, anthemic and hard, the band's sound definitely has that mid-1980s Big Rock air to it, but that's not necessarily a bad thing — remember, even The Beatles played arenas. Besides, if the songs are strong, they can survive anything, and The Angels wrote strong songs.

Newly remastered and packed with bonus tracks, Liveline (Shock, Australia) is a two-CD live anthology that originally appeared Down Under in 1988 as a simple document of the band's 1986 Howling tour. A platinum seller the first time around, its subsequent CD reissue added four more songs; now, 10 extra tracks trace the group's live performances back to 1981, while two heavily illustrated 32-page booklets offer words and pictures that place every last earth-shattering riff in context.

Chelsea were one of the most volatile of the first-wave punk bands, plowing through more lineup changes than some bands had decent songs but compensating for that by having a lot more decent songs than some bands have had reheated backstage snacks. The classic era (1976-79) band's regular repertoire has already been reissued on a bonus-stacked CD; the story now continues with The BBC Sessions, a 26-track collection that traces vocalist Gene October and Co. through four studio sessions (Peel 1977, 1978, Kid Jensen 1978, Mike Read 1979) and a vital live broadcast, again from 1979.

The lineup through this period was, by Chelsea's standards, remarkably constant — October and guitarist James Stevenson are present throughout, Dave Martin (guitar), and Geoff Myles (bass) are in place for the first 1978 recording and drummer Chris Bashford arrives for the second. By the time of the live recording, then, the group isn't simply well-rehearsed, they are also virtually watertight. The earlier recordings, then, are certainly scrappier, but they also have a vigorous freshness that itself is fascinating — the first Peel session, with a near-definitive version of the band's debut single, "Right To Work," is essential listening for any student of punk's first molten movements.

The best of the rest

Angelic Upstarts: 2,000,000 Voices (Captain Oi, U.K.). A welcome reappearance from the Newcastle Oi! monster's third album, plus attendant 45s. Far more diverse and appealing than their media caricature ever promised, Angelic Upstarts' dark humor and sonic awareness reached a peak of sorts on this set — one that drew the likes of Roxy Music's Paul Thompson, Stiff Little Fingers' Jake Burns, and The Starjets' Terry Sharpe into their orbit for several of the tracks included here.

Erna Schmidt: Live 69-71 (Garden Of Delights, Germany). An anthology of live material highlighting one of the best-loved (if darkly obscure) kraut rock bands of the era — no huge surprises in delivery or approach but still a fascinating hour of improvisational vision — one forgets just how important flutes used to be. The sound is excellent considering the vintage of the recordings, and the booklet serves up a comprehensive band bio, photos and a label catalog.

Mama's Boys: Relativity (Angel Air, U.K.). A thunderous treat for fans of the Irish end of the New Wave Of British Heavy Metal, one of the Emerald Isle's most hallowed riff monsters revisited across an album dating from 1992 and appended with bonus tracks recorded live in 1990.

The Membranes: Kiss Ass Godhead (Overground, U.K.). Dating from 1987 and including some of producer Steve Albini's first-ever outside work, The Membranes' finest album is appended by sundry outtakes and offcuts to create a 20-song beast in search of the middle ground between classic Captain Beefheart and crushing punk. They often find it.

BERNSTEIN LIVE by Peter Gutmann

eonard Bernstein has been gone 10 years now, but you'd hardly know it. Although the direct brilliance of his intense personal flame is extinguished, its reflection continues to glow in the legions of those he inspired, who will fill our concert halls and recording studios for decades to come. He endures in a purely mercantile sense as well, as barely a month passes without some further reissue from among his hundreds of records. With so many Bernstein performances already available, do we really need more? Yes! Despite the abundance, there remains a crucial gap in the Bernstein discography.

Bernstein clearly grew to value his live performances over his studio renditions. Indeed, nearly every recording during the final third of his career was made in concert. By then, his interpretive style had evolved into one of rich and profound deliberation. His middle years as conductor of the New York Philharmonic are remembered as his most exciting of all. Yet, the only concert releases from that era were keyed to special occasions — the 1962 dedication of Lincoln Center, Robert Kennedy's 1968 funeral and a 1973 Haydn Mass In Time Of War to protest Richard Nixon's second inauguration. In 1999 the Philharmonic released the deluxe 10-CD American Celebration, nearly a quarter of which boasted previously unreleased Bernstein concert material. Now, its success has prompted Bernstein Live, with 13 hours more. I'll review the full contents on my Web site at www.classicalnotes.net/columns/bernsteinlive.html.

Above all, the set displays the amazing scope of Bernstein's talent. He was the only conductor of his generation (and since) who could (and would) credibly play a Baroque concerto of Bach and an aleatory work of John Cage, with excellent Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann, Wagner, Sibelius, Hindemith, Stravinsky, Copland, and Webern in between, all played with energy, conviction and insight - and each in its distinct but appropriate style. His wondrous versatility is underlined by the accompanying booklets' complete listing of his Philharmonic programs and recordings, which document his unstinting efforts to proselytize for modern and American music within the context of a wide variety of traditional fare.

The package hides its riches behind a hideous graphic design, utterly unworthy of a project of this importance, but it otherwise is efficient and well-annotated. The extensive program notes include many valuable reminiscences that go well beyond the usual "I loved him/I miss him," stuff; one of the most insightful debunks the myth that Bernstein's wild conducting gestures were a useless ego-driven indulgence to entertain audiences - several musicians testify that his extraordinary body language was in fact a complex system of essential cues that provided his players with highly meaningful guidance and inspiration.

Bernstein Live begins with a poignant opening. Despite his abundant talent, Bernstein's career was shaped by two very lucky breaks, both with the Philharmonic. He had catapulted to fame at age 25 when he suddenly substituted for an ailing conductor at a Philharmonic concert in 1943. By late 1956, Bernstein hadn't led the orchestra for nearly six years but was called up again. Guido Cantelli, Toscanini's protégé who had become closely associated with the Philharmonic and was being groomed as its new music director, had been killed in an airplane crash. It was that tragedy that paved the way for Bernstein to head the Philharmonic, the appointment that would mold the rest of his career. The occasion is preserved here.

Most of the set presents works Bernstein never recorded. Given his devotion to Mahler, it seems incredible that Bernstein played only two of Bruckner's symphonies. His affection for the Ninth is clear enough — it's Bruckner's most emotional work, and in fact Bernstein recorded it twice. The Sixth, though, is far different. In Bernstein's hands it's bright, light and crisp, and he invests it with a wonderful Viennese grace allied with a marvelous natural flow among its shifting moods and timbres. The first movement, in particular, bounds with taut, youthful energy, all the more remarkable since Bernstein at that time (1976) was passing through a severely depressing phase of his life, having to confront his wife's fatal illness, a creative dry spell and other personal demons.

Another Bernstein "premiere" is the "Triple," generally regarded as the least of the Beethoven concerti. In 1959, Bernstein joined his concertmaster and principal cellist in a reading of camaraderie spiked by vitality, ardor and devotion. It's a fine example of the inspiration Bernstein kindled among his colleagues in a live setting and radiated to his adoring audiences; here, they burst into spontaneous applause after the riviting first movement.

Many conductors compose, but few succeed in writing with an original voice — so strong is the influence of the more conservative styles in which they are constantly immersed as an interpreter. Bernstein was one of the rare ones who managed to sound original. Igor Markevitch was one of the very few others. None other than Béla Bartók proclaimed him "the most striking personality in contemporary music." Yet, before reaching 30, Markevitch abandoned composition to focus on conducting and teaching. His Icare is a fabulous rediscovery which, like its mythical subject, soars while retaining human roots; it's mystical, rhythmic and remarkably original.

Although boasting the best sound and stereo spread (and the quietest audience) of the entire set, [the final CD of the set] was recorded covertly (and illegally) in the midst of the concert hall by an ardent fan. Of course, those were the days before pocketsized digital recorders, reliable wireless mics or even decent-sounding cassette decks, and one can only imagine how the person recording managed with the bulky reel-to-reel equipment of the time.

> Bernstein Live also presents compelling concert performances of works familiar from his studio records. Paramount among these is one of the most important concerts ever given, which did as much to focus attention on American classical music as Benny Goodman's seminal 1938 concert (also in Carnegie Hall) did for jazz. Fifty-four years after its completion, this was the world premiere of Charles Ives' Symphony #2, a fabulous artistic encapsulation of American thought, attitude and tradition. Bernstein invited the composer, very much still alive if not well, but he declined. (His wife, every bit the stubborn Yankee, did attend and, after decades of neglect and scorn of her husband's bizarre music, seemed genuinely surprised that the audience liked it.) Ives reportedly heard the tape-delay broadcast the following week on his maid's radio and was thrilled. In retrospect, it was this very concert that not only launched a massive tide of discovery and admiration of Ives' work but would culminate in nothing less than a crucial reevaluation and appreciation of America's contribution to serious music.

> Our memories of Jacqueline du Pré are still tainted not only by her sister's trashy book and movie Hilary And Jackie but by knowing her awful fate. (She contracted multiple sclerosis at age 28, which left her unable to play; she died at age 42. - Ed.) In 1967, though, her youth was in full bloom, she was on her first American tour, her popularity was bounding and a fabulous career presumably was ensured. Her reading of the Schumann Cello Concerto is sweet yet assured, with a lovely balance of ardent energy, British aplomb, focus and detail. An acclaimed Schumann conductor, Bernstein's orchestral support is superbly expressive; the emergence from the cadenza of the finale is breathtaking. He recorded the Concerto three times (with Rose, Rostropovich, and Miasky), but this one is truly special.

Bernstein's performances as a conductor and a pianist are well documented, and his compositions have confounded skeptics by remaining in the active repertoire even though he is no longer around to advocate them. Yet, his most lasting contribution to music may well prove to be the one we least remember — his extraordinary influence as a teacher who not only inspired colleagues and students but converted an entire generation of concert and television audiences into music lovers. The ninth disc presents Bernstein in his element: his pioneering Thursday evening pre-performance talks as he cajoles a conservative subscription audience into a grudging appreciation for avant-garde music. Bernstein recognized that in the early '60s music was at a crucial crossroad among serialism, electronics, chance and improvisation. As he put it, the new music ranged from "a semi-idiotic simplicity" to "a mathematical complexity that staggers the mind." In introducing four works, Bernstein explores the irony of precise writing so complex that it sounds like a vast improvisation and rhythm so intricate that it seems to disappear altogether. The final piece by Cage was composed by chance (placing transparent music paper over maps of stars), and then performed through further chance as the musicians' sounds are fed through contact mics to a mixing board in which volume and timbre are randomly adjusted. Here, Bernstein's explanation is far more interesting than the result, which the audience heartily boos after its excruciating eight minutes are finally over.

The final disc is a full-length Wagner concert. As expected, Bernstein's reading is superb, with hairspring responsiveness and deeply dramatic underlining of the action, but perhaps the most interesting aspect of this disc is its source. Although boasting the best sound and stereo spread (and the quietest audience) of the entire set, it was recorded covertly (and illegally) in the midst of the concert hall by an ardent fan. Of course, those were the days before pocket-sized digital recorders, reliable wireless mics or even decent-sounding cassette decks, and one can only imagine how the person recording managed with the bulky reel-toreel equipment of the time. What's more, he attended and taped three of the four repetitions of this concert and gave the current producers the luxury of a choice among them (the release is a composite of two). The Philharmonic didn't broadcast its concerts during this era, and so were it not for such brazen defiance of law this incredible concert would have never resurfaced. (And you thought Deadheads were the lunatic fringe?) The multiple ironies of this entire situation are truly astounding!

At $195 (available from Tower Records or the Philharmonic), Bernstein Live isn't for easual fans. But for ardent collectors, it serves as indispensable proof of the astounding bundle of talent with which Bernstein galvanized American music and dazzled his audiences only a short generation ago.

The Dave Matthews Band

THE DAVE MATTHEWS BAND Everyday RCA (07863 67988-2)

In recent years, The Dave Matthews Band has emerged as one of the biggest draws on the concert scene, selling out stadiums with the same case as big guns such as U2 and The Rolling Stones. But their Midas touch on the road has never really translated to the charts, outside of the airplay charts.

However, with their new release Everyday, this could all change.

Change is certainly the operative word here. On their fourth studio album, The Dave Matthews Band have embraced a radio-friendly pop sound that eschews the lengthy jams and complex rhythms of their previous work.

This major shift in direction can be credited to the band's producer, hit-maker Glen Ballard, who is best known for his work with Alanis Morissette and Aerosmith. Ballard was brought in last year after an unhappy Matthews decided to scrap all the songs he had recorded for a new album and ousted longtime producer Steve Lillywhite.

Matthews was in trouble and clearly in need of some creative help. Ballard approached his job with a heavy hand: He cowrote all the material with Matthews and is also credited with all keyboards, programming and arrangements.

The changes he made are noticeable from the start. The disc's opening track and first single, "I Did It," begins with a blistering electric guitar riff, the kind that would sound at home on modern rock radio. That's right, electric guitar. Matthews forsakes his signature acoustic guitar in favor of electric, giving the music here a lot more muscle.

"I Did It," which has the kind of stay-inyour-brain hooky chorus that Ballard is famous for, is typical of the polished madefor-radio sound that dominates Everyday. "So Right" is an infectious number that could find a home on the dance floor, while "The Space Between" is a good old-fashioned power ballad that will no doubt have concertgoers swaying their arms in the air when it's played live.

Ballard does more than just smooth out the rough edges of The Dave Matthews Band,

VARIOUS ARTISTS Shoe Fetish: A Tribute To Shoes Parasol (CD-065)

Even among pure pop fans, proper tribute is seldom paid to Shoes (just "Shoes," never "The Shoes"), the wonderful Zion, Ill., pop group who emerged in the '70s and has released a long string of terrific records, some on Elektra but mostly on their own Well, even if such tribute hasn't been paid in the past, this compilation offers a stunning, sincere salute to the songwriting panache of Shoes' Gary Klebe, John Murphy, and leff Murphy

Compiled by longtime Goldmine contributor and fave rave John M. Borack, Shoe Fetish serves as both a stellar (and all-star) tribute to Shoes and as an absolutely invigorating pop album in its own rite. Drawing on an A-list of pop artists, Shoe Fetish succeeds by retaining the spirit of Shoes' recordings without seeking to duplicate them. Some tracks are more faithful than others, but even those that stick relatively closely to the original versions wisely eschew any real attempt to reproduce the breathy, dreamy Shoes style, instead giving the performances a personal stamp.

Those tracks that choose to rethink the original songs do so respectfully and brilliantly. Big Hello's version of "Tomorrow Night" is a case in point. Shoes' original version is one of my all-time favorite singles, a song that'll probably always be on my personal

All-Time Hot 100. Big Hello's rendition isn't exactly faithful - who could match the original? - but connects instead by switching Shoes' gentle yearning (and understated, choirboy horniness) to a more aggressive spunkiness, subtly altering the riff into something heavier. The result is a compelling power pop performance, closer in spirit to Cheap Trick than to Shoes, showcasing the resilient, irresistible qualities of this nonpareil pop tune. Have we mentioned recently that Big Hello is one of the best rock 'n' roll bands on the planet?

The disc opens with Australian pop gods DM3's faithful, pumped-up reading of "Too Late" and closes by saving the best for last. A confident take on "Never Had It Better" by The Tearaways with Scott McCarl brings the curtain down in style, complete with clever musical and verbal quotes from The Beatles. In between, we're treated to a series of really cool performances by Matthew Sweet, astroPuppees, Bobby Sutliffe, Doug Powell, sparkle jets u.k. (featuring special guest drummer Borack), The Lolas (whose 'I Can't Go Wrong" further whets the appetite for their forthcoming second album), Jeffrey Foskett (Beach Shoes!), The Spongetones (turning in a way-fab "Curiosity" and sounding more like The Knickerbockers than they have in years), The Shazam, Michael Carpenter, Al Chan of The Rubinoos (backed by ubiquitous pop MVP Scott McCarl), The Masticators (a raucous Your Imagination"), Shane Faubert (a beautifully frail, delicate "I Don't Know Why"), Don Dixon & Marti Jones, Walter Clevenger And The Dairy Kings, LMNOP, Matt Bruno, and Chewy Marble.

Duff tracks? None! When's the last time you could say that about a various-artists tribute album? The package also includes a nice liner-note blessing from Shoes themselves, stating that, "We were hit with a flood of emotions as we had the utterly unique experience of hearing our own music with fresh ears. It's kinda like overhearing a conversation from the next room where someone is complimenting you over

The compliments are well-deserved, gentlemen, and they're obviously delivered with love and care from all involved. What a delightful, fitting tribute, indeed. (905 S. Lynn St., Urbana, IL 61801-5205; www.parasol.com, also available from Not Lame Recordings, www. notlame.com) ife has been painful lately for Billy Joe Shaver (author of John Anderson's "Old Chunk Of Coal" and most of Waylon Jennings' Honky Tonk Heroes). His wife Brenda and his mother Victory died in 1999. Last Dec. 30, heroin took his only child Eddy, guitarist in their family duo Shaver, as their heartfelt The Earth Rolls On (New West) went into postproduction (A review of the album is on page 63. - Ed.]. On the album, father and son hurl agonized accusations at each other and then reconcile in its "Blood Is Thicker Than Water," their songwriting cuts to the marrow. Here Shaver talks to Goldmine from his Waco, Texas, home.

Country Junction

Goldmine: Did you get a lot of emotional support when Eddy died? People's messages on your Web site were incredible.

Billy Joe Shaver: Without Willie Nelson, I don't know if I'd have made it. He'd been through something similar. The day Eddy died, we had a show near Willie's home. Willie told me I didn't have to go — he and his band would cover for me. But I went and sang a few numbers with Willie. Nobody in his band knew Eddy had passed. I didn't tell them. A few in the audience knew. I kind of avoided them 'cause I didn't want to break down and start crying. I spent the night at Willie's. We talked some. He was real good to me.

What was writing "Blood Is Thicker Than Water" with Eddy like?

It was gut-wrenching, but it was good to get out. Anyone who's got kin involved in drugs and stuff can listen to it and realize that it would be good to help their blood kin or at least let them know someone loves them emergency room. I said, "It can't be my son. He's in Austin." They said, "John Edwin Shaver." So I rushed to the hospital in my truck. They put him on life support, but his blood pressure wouldn't come up. Then they did a cat scan. A lady told me, "He's been brain dead for a long time. If he makes it, he won't be nothin' but a vegetable." She asked me if I wanted to pull the plug, and I told her no. I still had hope that he'd make it. But he Brenda'd say, You quit that shit or I'm gonna leave you." And I quit like that. Wasn't nothin' to it. Maybe it's because I'm a control freak or a redneck or something, [but] I like to have my senses about me. I don't like to be floating around depending on other people. Billy Joe Shaver

How do you describe your music?

I try to say as much in as few words as I can and say it as simple as I can so a person who's not well educated can understand it. Simplicity don't need to be greased. I don't use $10 words. And the real smart people can understand it too. I try to keep my lyrics where they just mean one thing and not be something you could take this way or that.

Why do you record the same songs repeatedly? I've had so many records been dropped or not come out. They have good songs that I feel need to be heard. So I record them again. But when I got hot again, old records came out again, "Evergreen Fields" and "Restless Wind" on the new record I wrote in the '60s. I can't remember what albums they were on.

Is it true that this tour will be your last?

I love doing concerts, I love the people and everything, but I guess it's my last one. Nothing's etched in stone. In my heart I say, "Let's just sing these songs like it's the last time we're ever going to sing them," and I do my best and I get through. I want to do this tour because of Eddy. And people like the record company expect me to work this record. I'm obligated to do it. I'm going to keep my word. Everybody thought I was gonna die first. We all bought insurance for me. Then my mother passed on, then Brenda, then Eddy. Now here I am. Sad. Life goes on, and I've got a few things to say, and I'll keep going.

BROOKS & DUNN Steers And Stripes Arista Nashville (07863-67003-2)

After spending the better part of a decade as country music's most successful duo, Kix Brooks and Ronnie Dunn hit a bit of a bad patch in 1999 when Tight Rope became their first album in seven tries to fail to produce a #1 single. That one misstep aside, their track record remains impressive, a sizable list of hits that may become longer still when some of the tunes on the always slick and generally solid Steers And Stripes get their chances at the charts.

The pair's penchant for high-speed honkytonk anthems and inflated ballads occasionally smacks of formula, but if the patriotic fluff of "Only In America" can be faulted for its lack of depth, there is no denying its energy and polish. Equal the sappiness of the blown-up "Unloved" in a Vermont maple and no pancake need ever go dry, but the catchy Tex/Mex swing of "My Heart Is Lost To You" is a nice change of pace that avoids rolling out as a cliché.

Dunn's pleasantly smooth growl remains the pair's stronger vocal draw when featured on tunes such as the swelled-up come-on "Ain't Nothing 'Bout You," although Brooks' lean twang is a perfect match for the steel guitar whine and rolling gait of "Go West." The matching of Dunn's shouts with those of Trisha Yearwood on the boisterous "The Last Thing I Do" recalls the gusto of many Brooks & Dunn line-dancing standards, a return to form old fans should welcome.

TIM McGRAW Set This Circus Down Curb (D2-78711)

In the enclosed musical battle-cry "Things Change," Tim McGraw offers a defense of the prevailing pop-leaning country sound: "Some say it's too country, some say it's too rock 'n' roll, but it's just good music if you can feel it in your soul." With cranked-up electric guitars to drive the point home, that song is typical of the high-octane, exhuberant sound of Set This Circus Down. Other spirited efforts include the sweetly nostalgic remembrance of a small town love in the rockin' "Telluride" and the upbeat "Smilin'," a song that will be issued as a single if there's any justice.

Moments of genuine emotional intensity also figure in the mix, particularly with "Angry All The Time" (harmonies courtesy of wife Faith Hill). It's one man's withering assessment of the wife he now views with bitter disillusionment ("Our boys are strong now, the spittin' image of you when you were young/I hope someday they can see past what vou have become").

While McGraw didn't write any of these songs, the occasional homage to marital bliss or family life on the title track and "Grown Men Don't Cry" seem to provide a real, personal glimpse of the man. All told, Set This Circus Down is a pleasing release.

LORRIE MORGAN & SAMMY KERSHAW I Finally Found Someone RCA (07863-67004-2)

I Finally Found Someone is the first duet album from the newly engaged Lorrie Morgan and Sammy Kershaw. While Morgan's voice has often been compared to Tammy Wynette's and Kershaw's to George Jones, their music eschews the traditional country approach taken by that legendary duo.

Adult-contemporary ballads such as the Barbra Streisand/Bryan Adams title cut dominate the duet's lineup. They're pretty bland, and Kershaw's distinctive growl often gets lost amid the sweet harmonies. Much better are the up-tempo novelty numbers: the leadoff single "He Drinks Tequila (And She Talks Dirty In Spanish)," which creates a festive mood by putting a raunchy lyric to a Latin beat, and the rip-roaring "3 Seconds," which takes a delightfully loopy look at infidelity.

Besides the six duets, I Finally Found Someone includes three solo recordings each by Morgan and Kershaw. Here, their softer side is most effective, with Morgan offering a touching reading of her composition "I Must Be Getting Older" and Kershaw shining brightest on the stripped-down Louis Armstrong classic "What A Wonderful World" (Kershaw's own "Sugar" - a spunky toe-tapper — has its moments as well).

I Finally Found Someone is a good - although uneven — first effort for Morgan and Kershaw. The potential is there for some great music in the future.

VARIOUS ARTISTS Concerts For A Landmine Free World Vanguard (79579-2)

These live pearls are from a singer/writer brigade - mostly alt. Nashvillians as shaped by altruistic '60s folk as by country - touring for the humanitarian Campaign For A Landmine Free World. The 11 simply produced tracks balance fun (Guy Clark's Lone Star beatnik poetry and John Prine's goofing on similes and metaphors in "Big Ol' Goofy World") with spiritual thirst from Kris Kristofferson and Emmylou Harris, whose "The Pearl" outshines her studio version.

Only Bruce Cockburn's searing "Mines Of Mozambique" directly addresses landmines, which kill or maim someone in the world every 22 minutes. Gillian Welch and David Rawling's drowsy "Morphine" could be an amputee's painkiller. Is the shoe on the highway in Terry Allen's "Wilderness Of This World" fresh debris from a mine buried years ago? With Steve Earle's pensive finale 'Christmas In Washington" (a song for any season), we wonder if Christmas for these artists would be Washington, D.C., finally joining the rest of the developed world in banning landmines' manufacture and use.

Performers' royalties and some profits for Vanguard (once label of The Weavers, Paul Robeson, and Joan Baez) go to the Campaign For A Landmine Free World. Check out its Web site at www.VVAF.org.

My bootleg video collection is out of control.'

Autograph seekers scored. Former KISS guitarist Bruce Kulick and WCWs Dale "The Demon" Torborg made appearances for Q&As and a meet-and-greet. Indianapolis was Torborg's first appearance at a KISS-related event following his debut on VH-1's Fanclub. Eric Singer had been scheduled to appear but since being called back into active duty, he was unable to attend. Much to the fans' delight, Kulick called Singer and broadcasted their conversation by speaker phone. Fans offered their well-wishes for the remainder of the tour.

What would a KISS expo be without a tribute band? KIST slathered on the greasepaint and shimmied into the spandex to give their discriminating audience a good show with lots of energy and even a little pyro.

Items also available for sale ranged from Cornerstone KISS cards, first series box (out of print) for $70 — individual cards were priced at 25 cents — to the extremely popular KISS busts. KISS Army hockey jerseys sold out at $45 each.

A word of caution to the fans: If you think you're going to blow into your local KISS convention to wheel and deal the vendors flaunting textbook used-car salesman tactics, think again. [They learned everything they know about hard-nosed business from Gene Simmons! — Ed.]

"In my experience, there usually isn't a lot of bartering at the conventions," Stierwalt said. "Most fans will take a look at the tag and either buy it or move on." Vendors agreed that the 2001 KISSFest fans bought.

Shortly after the movies were shot, he left the Blue Caps to pursue a solo career. His first record was "Sweet Skinny Jenny," backed with "The Rock-A-Round" on Bill Lowery's NRC label. Other musicians on the record included Ray Stevens, Joe South, Jerry Reed, and the flamboyant Esquerita.

He is a member of The Rockabilly Hall Of Fame. A tribute page has been established on the Internet at www.rockabilly hall.com/PaulPeekTribute.html.

"Paul was scheduled to play the Ryman Auditorium in Nashville, April 5, 2001," said Bob Timmers, curator of The Rockabilly Hall Of Fame in Burns, Tenn. "He was extremely excited about this, trying to get the other Blue Caps to join him on stage. I spoke to Paul just two days before his passing, and we discussed the tunes he would perform. Even though he didn't make it to the Gene Vincent Tribute portion of the Ryman show, emcees Red Robinson, Steve King, and Johnnie Putman paid special tribute on stage to Paul. Paul was just a great guy, with a wonderful sense of humor have never heard one bad word mentioned about the man."

He is survived by his wife, Barbara; a son, Paul Allen Peek also of Lithonia; and a sister, Mary Elizabeth Mineo of Greenville, Tenn.

Hal Blair, pop and country songwriter

Hal Blair, the songwriter who cowrote pop and country hits such as "Please Help Me, I'm Falling" and "Ringo," died at his home in Biggs, Calif., on Feb. 2, 2001. He was 85.

Born Harold Keller Blair Nov. 26, 1915, in Kansas City, Mo., Blair got his start in music by penning material for Western films that starred such artists as Gene Autry and Sons Of The Pioneers. Blair also acted in these films on occasion. In the early '50s, he met his long-standing collaborator, Don Robertson, and his career began to take off in earnest. In addition to the songs above, Blair copenned "Ninety Miles An Hour Down A Dead End Street" (covered by Hank Snow), "Not One Minute More" (covered by Della Reese) and "I Was The One" (covered by Elvis Presley, Bob Dylan, and Jimmie Dale Gilmore, respectively). His best-known composition by far, however, is "Please Help Me, I'm Falling." Among the artists who've recorded versions of the song are Linda Ronstadt, Freddy Fender, Charley Pride, and John Fogerty.

Blair is survived by his wife, Joan, and by three stepchildren: Linda, John, and Dave Roberts.

Michael Smith, drummer for Paul Revere And The Raiders

Michael Smith, drummer for Paul Revere And The Raiders during the group's 1960s heyday, died of natural causes March 6, 2001, in Kona Community Hospital in Hawaii. He was 58.

Born and raised in Beaverton, Ore., Smith was recruited into The Raiders in 1962, when group members Paul Revere and Mark Lindsay spotted him playing guitar at a small club in Portland. Making the switch to drums, Smith quickly established himself as the band's onstage jokester. After signing to Columbia Records in 1963, The Raiders released their first single, a version of the much-covered "Louie, Louie" that rose to the top of the West Coast charts. Two years later, The Raiders got a bigger boost when they were hired by Dick Clark to host Where The Action Is, a daily afternoon TV show for ABC.

Smith remained with the group until 1975, when he left and established a primary residence in Hawaii. During his tenure with the band, The Raiders enjoyed a flurry of hits, including "Kicks," "Good Thing" and "Indian Reservation." Speaking to West Hawaii Today, Raiders' manager Roger Hart described the drummer as "quiet, introspective and somewhat shy [when he was] out of the spotlight.'

Smith is survived by two sons, Rory and Rio; two daughters, Alexandra and Jenna; his father, Howard William Smith; his mother, Mildred Kugler; and one brother, Jerry Smith. Close associates and members of The Raiders are said to be planning a private reunion in his memory.

Roebuck "Pops" Staples, The Staple Singers

Roebuck "Pops" Staples, singer, songwriter, guitarist and the patriarch of the Chicago-based Staple Singers, died at home in his sleep on 6 a.m., Dec. 19, 2000, Dolton, Ill., the result of a recent fall and suffering from Bell's palsy. The Staple Singers are best known for their pop/soul R&B hits during the early '70s for Stax Records. According to his family, Staples was not born in 1915 as commonly believed, but on Dec. 28, 1914, in Winona, Miss. A longer obituary is available at www.goldminemag.com.

FREDDIE MERCURY

FREDDIE MERCURY Hollywood (HR623012) (Three CDs)

Freddie Mercury-philes overseas can luxuriate in a 10-CD/two-DVD box set devoted to Mercury's output; U.S. fans must be content with this three-CD Solo set that nonetheless neatly summarizes the late Queen lead singer's solo career, featuring his two albums, Mr. Bad Guy and Barcelona, and a bonus CD of seven tracks.

Mr. Bad Guy, originally released in 1985, is very much of its time - primarily synth-pop numbers garnished with Mercury's over-the-top vocals. The album's first single, "I Was Born To Love You" is in this vein; a lighthearted, throwaway pop song that just missed the U.K. Top 10, peaking at #11 (Mercury's singles always performed far better overseas than in the U.S.).

Though Mercury is in an engagingly frisky mood, the songs (all written by him) generally aren't weighty enough to provide him with much of a challenge. "Love Me Like There's No Tomorrow" and "Made In Heaven," also released as singles, are exceptions, love ballads performed in consummate Freddie Mercury style. But on the whole, Mr. Bad Guy isn't an album that has aged well.

Barcelona is a far more ambitious endeavor, and fans of "Bohemian Rhapsody" in particular should feel perfectly at home. In March 1987, Mercury's love of opera led him to arrange a meeting with opera star Montserrat Caballe. A month later, the two were in the studio recording Barcelona's title track, and in May, they performed the song live for the first time. It would take another 17 months before the album was released, to confused reviews from some quarters surprising considering Mercury's love of theatrics.

The title track (which reached #8 in the U.K., the album reached #15) kicks off the album with a rush of glorious harmonies, and the mood never falters throughout. Musically, the album is less rock and more opera, though there are occasional embellishments such as the gospel-flavored passages of "The Golden Boy," while parts of "Overture Piccante" wouldn't be out of place on a Queen album; Mercury also admirably holds his own against Caballe's more formal vocal style. Barcelona is Mercury's labor of love, and it shows. Barcelona oozes with style and extravagance and simply begs to be listened to while sipping an ice-cold glass of champagne.

The bonus CD features an intriguing sampler of rarities. The track of most interest is "I Can Hear Music," from a 1973 single recorded by three-fourths of Queen (Mercury, guitarist Brian May, and drummer Roger Taylor) and released shortly before Queen's own debut album. The song, a Beach Boys cover, was written by Brill Building legends Jeff Barry, Ellie Greenwich, and Phil Spector, and as such has an undeniable girl-group flavor.

Mercury's cover of The Platters' "The Great Pretender" is another highlight, the plaintive love song well-matched by Mercury's vocal dramatics. All in all, Solo offers a concise portrait of an extraordinary voice silenced far too soon.

IUDY GARLAND Judy At Carnegie Hall Capitol (72435-27876)

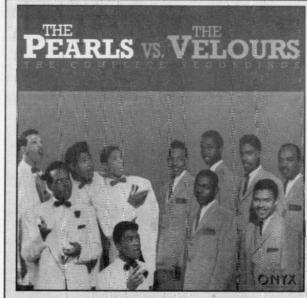

The first thing one notices about Judy Garland in the 40th anniversary edition of the Grammy-winning Judy At Carnegie Hall is her great sense of humor. Complete and uncut, for the first time ever - which means all of the stage dialogue, band asides and communication with the audience is intact — this two-CD set documents Garland's historic comeback at the New York City venue April 23, 1961. Whether dishing on fashionistas, her long career, her band or her own weight, Garland is a hoos. It's no wonder she's revered as the definitive stage performer.

Foremost, Garland delivers. After landing in the hospital in late 1959, Garland used the following year to clean up. By the time she mounted the first of several comeback tours late in 1960, she was in great voice - and in a great mood. The Carnegie Hall show was the apex of the tour - the first twoact, one-woman show to be staged. Garland said she wanted to give the audience "two hours of pow!" They got that and more.

Covering every step of her career (and concluding with a

REISSUES NEWS

Out now: From the vaults of the venerable Onyx Records of New York City, one of the leading R&B labels of the '50s, comes The Pearls Vs. The Velours: The Complete Recordings (Hot JWP Music), a 20-track compilation of the two street-corner singing groups' outputs. Memorabilia depicted in the all-toobrief liner notes comes from longtime record dealer Val Shively... A previously unreleased live recording from saxophonist Dexter Gordon, L.T.D. (Long Tall Dexter), recorded in May 1969, has been released by Milestone. The hour-long set capturing Gordon at his zenith includes pianist Bobby Timmons... Buddy Guy: Collected, recordings of the blues guitarist from the late '70s to the early '80s, is one of the new releases from Music Club... From Vanguard's vaults comes Reverend Gary Davis, Live At Newport, a collection of live recordings from ragtime two-finger-picking guitarist Davis at the 1965 Newport Folk Festival. Davis' self-taught guitarplaying style was an inspiration to everyone from Bob Dylan and Taj Mahal to Ry Cooder and Jefferson Airplane's Jourma Kaukonen... From Taragon comes '50s crooner Vic Damone's The Complete Columbia Singles Collection, a first-time twodisc, 48-track set of hits and rare B-sides. Also from Taragon is Brook Benton's The Essential Vik And RCA Victor Recordings, a 23-song set featuring film selections and rare singles from both the vocalist's pre-hit days and his stellar output during Beatlemania... Rewind, a new reissue label, has just released Blue Things, one of the Midwest's premier '60s bands similar in style to The Byrds and Beau Brummels (sounds good to me!). It was the band's only album, and six bonus singles added to the original 12 tracks - including decent takes on Bob

GOLDMINE GRADING GUIDE

VISUAL OR PLAY GRADING?

In an ideal world, every record would be played before it is graded. But the time involved makes it impractical for most dealers, and anyway, it's rare that you get a chance to hear a record before you buy through the mail. Some advertisers playgrade everything and say so. But unless otherwise noted, records are visually graded.

HOW TO GRADE

Look at everything about a record — its playing surface, its label, its edges — under a strong light. Then based on your overall impression give it a grade based on the following criteria:

Mint (M): Absolutely perfect in every way — certainly never played, possibly even still sealed. (More on still sealed under "Other considerations"). Should be used sparingly as a grade, if at all.

Near Mint (NM or M-): A nearly perfect record. Many dealers won't give a grade higher than this implying (perhaps correctly) that no record is ever truly perfect.

The record should show no obvious signs of wear. A 45 RPM or EP sleeve should have no more than the most minor defects, such as almost invisible wear or other signs of slight handling.

An LP jacket should have no creases, folds, seam splits or any other noticeable similar defect. No cut-out holes, either. And of course, the same should be true of any other inserts, such as posters, lyric sleeves

Basically, an LP in Near Mint condition looks as if you just got it home from a new record store and removed the shrink wrap.

Near Mint is the highest price listed in all GOLDMINE price guides. Anything that exceeds this grade, in the opinion of both buyer and seller, is worth significantly more than the highest GOLDMINE book value.

Very Good Plus (VG+): Generally worth 50 percent of the Near Mint

A Very Good Plus record will show some signs that it was played and otherwise handled by a previous owner who took good care of it.

Record surfaces may show some slight signs of wear and may have slight scuffs or very light scratches that don't affect one's listening experience. Slight warps that do not affect the sound are OK.

The label may have some ring wear or discoloration, but is should be barely noticeable. The center hole will not have been misshapen by

Picture sleeves and LP inner sleeves will have some slight wear lightly turned-up corners or a slight seam-split. An LP jacket may have slight signs of wear also and may be marred by a cut-out hole, indentation or corner indicating it was taken out of print and sold at a discount

In general, if not for a couple of minor things wrong with it, this would be Near Mint. All but the most mint-crazy collectors will find a Very Good Plus record highly acceptable.

Very Good (VG): Generally worth 25 percent of the Near Mint value Many of the defects found in a VG+ record will be more pronounced in a VG disc. Surface noise will be evident upon playing, especially in soft passages and during a song's intro and fade, but will not overpower the music otherwise. Groove wear will start to be noticeable, as will light scratches (deep enough to feel with a fingernail) that will affect the sound Labels may be morred by writing, or have tape or stickers (or their residue) attached. The same will be true of picture sleeves or LP covers. However, it will not have all of these problems at the same time, only two or three of them

GOLDMINE price guides with more than one price will list Very Good as the lowest price. This, not the Near Mint price, should be your guide when determining how much a record is worth, as that is the price a when determining now much a record is worm, as that is the price a dealer will normally pay you for a Near Mint record. Good (G), Good Plus (G+): Generally worth 10-15 percent of the Near Mint value Good does not mean Bad! A record in Good or Good Plus condition can be put onto a turntable and will play through without skipping. But it will have significant surface noise and scratches and visible groove were (on a styrene record, the groove will be starting to visible groove wear (on a styrene record, the groove will be starting to visible groove well (of a stylene record, the groove will be starting to furn white).

A jacket or sleeve will have seam splits, especially at the bottom or on the spine. Tape, writing, ring wear or other defects will start to overwhelm the object.

if it's a common item, you'll probably find another copy in better shape eventually. Pass it up. But, if it's something your have been seeking for years, and the price is right, get it... but keep looking to upgrade.

Poor (P). Fair (F): Generally worth 0-5 percent of the Near Mint price The record is cracked, badly warped, and won't play through without skipping or repeating. The picture sleeve is water damaged, split on all three seams and heavily marred by wear and writing. The LP jacket barely keeps the LP inside it. Inner sleeves are fully seam split, crinkled and written upon.

Except for impossibly rare records otherwise unattainable, records in this condition should be bought or sold for no more than a few cents

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Most dealers give a separate grade to the record and its sleeve or cover. In an ad, a record's grade is listed first, followed by that of the

With Still Sealed (SS) records, let the buyer beware, unless it's a U.S. pressing from the last 10-15 years or so. It's too easy to re-seal one. Yes, some legitimately never-opened LPs from the 1960s still exist. But if you're looking for a specific pressing, the only way you can know for sure is to open the record. Also, European imports are not factory-sealed, so if you see them advertised as sealed, someone other than the manufacturer sealed them.

A FEW NOTES ON COMPACT DISCS

In theory, a compact disc should always play-grade in at least Near Mint condition. And even the condition of generic jewel boxes and trays aren't important, as they can be replaced easily.

Unless the CD came in a special package (fold-open, fold-over, colored plastic, etc.), the two areas to check for grading are its label and its insert (booklet).

Most collector interest currently is with promotional CD's. Again, audible condition of the disc is less of a concern than the condition of its packaging and art-work and the collectiblity of the artist.

Used full-length, commercial CD's generally sell for 50-75 percent of the new price. Dealers in used CD's will usually pay no more than 50 percent of that price, and often much less.

Yesterday Once More

Memories of the Carpenters and Their Music

Edited by Randy Schmidt

SELL

U.MH MAP.C.

A new book featuring over 45 articles, interviews, essays, reviews, and reassessments which chronicles the lives and career of the Carpenters. Includes contributions from Lester Bangs, Robert Hilburn, Paul Grein, Ray Coleman, and more. Perspectives range from appreciative analyses of Karen's vocals and Richard's arrangements to critical jabs at their soft rock/middle of the road sound and "wholesome" image.

WHAT ARE UNIT SPACE ADS?

Unit space ads are an affordable option for the small dealer or for the private collector who has a few items to sell. They are based on 8-1/2 x 11 sheets that you create. They are "camera ready," in other words, the ad will look in print exactly how it looks when you send it in, only smaller. We will reduce the sheets to fit the ad space. Optionally, at no extra charge we can create a heading for your ad. We will typeset your name, business name (if any), address and phone/fax numbers on your ad if you so request. The two types of ads are:

- 1. Set Sale Items are sold at the price listed.
- 2. Auction Items are sold to the highest bidder.

FOR A BETTER UNIT SPACE AD . . .

- Use white paper
- Have a new ribbon on your typewriter or printer; avoid low toner on a laser printer.
- 3. Make sure the paper is vertically oriented. We cannot publish a horizontal unit space ad unless you want the reader to turn the magazine sideways to look at it. Most readers won't
- Mail it to us; don't fax it. Faxes can leave unwanted markings that make your ad hard
- Clearly identify whether your ad is a set sale or auction. Avoid mixing the two in the same ad; if you must, have separate sections for set-sale and
- Include your name, address, and telephone/tax number (and when you will be available to take calls on the ad) and all ordering information, including postage and shipping fees.
- Put your listings in a logical order. If you have several formats in the same ad (LP, CD, 45, etc.), group your items by format. You also may wish to group items by type of music. As for the listings themselves, alphabetically by artist usually works best.
- 8. If you have any questions on how to set up your ad, contact anyone from the Goldmine</sup> advertising staff

SET SALE GUIDELINES FOR BUYERS

- First, make sure you are replying to a set sale and not an auction. If an ad mentions minimum bids and deadlines, it's not a set sale.
- 2. Follow the advertiser's directions on how to reply. If the ad says to write first to reserve an item, do it. If the ad says that money orders only are accepted, don't write a personal check. And never send cash through the mail!
- If you write or call to reserve an item and the advertiser still has it in stock, send your payment for the item promptly
- Set sale ads are "first-come, first-served," so the sooner you reply, the more likely you are to receive what you order.
- If you receive the item and it is not as advertised, don't hesitate to complain. Reputable advertisers take complaints seriously and try to do right by the customer. But don't take advantage of this, either; complain only when you have a legitimate reason for doing so

SET SALE GUIDELINES FOR SELLERS

- 1. Only advertise items you have. Because of ad deadlines, some dealers will assume they will have new material based on release dates given by record companies. In the long run, it's better to wait until you actually have an item to put it in your ad.
- State all your policies in the ad. Examples include method of payment, whether (and at what times) you will accept telephone calls, and whether to reserve items or send money immediately.
- 3. Send the items promptly after they've been paid for. Federal Trade Commission regulations state that you must ship your items within 30 days.
- 4. Charge only what you pay to send the package. Or charge everyone the same amount, knowing you will lose money on large packages, but will make up for it on smaller ones. If your stated postage rates are unusually high, state why! (Insurance, special handling or packaging, etc.)
- 5. Take complaints seriously. An unresolved problem is usually a lost customer.

Auction Guidelines For Buyers

- First, make sure you are replying to an auction and not a set sale.
 Note the minimum bid, and don't bid less than that. Also, don't say "I will top all bids"
- unless the auction allows it and, of course, you really mean it.

 3. Mail in all bids unless the ad says phone-in bids are acceptable.
- Remember the deadline. If none is stated, then the auction closes one month from the date on the cover. For example, if the auction is in the GOLDMINE dated October 15, the sale closes November 15
- 5. If mailing bids, allow 1-2 weeks for your bids to arrive. And after an auction ends, allow 1-2 weeks for notification. If you haven't heard 14 days after the end of an auction, assume you won nothing unless the ad says that all bidders, win or lose, would be notified.
- 6. Honor all winning bids! If you are notified that your bld has won the item, send the money for your items within a week. Bidders reneging on their winning bids is the No. 1 complaint from those who run auction ads. If you can't honor your bid, at least have the courtesy to notify the advertiser
- 7. Allow 2-4 weeks for your winnings to arrive.

AUCTION GUIDELINES FOR SELLERS

- Set minimum bids on any item you won't sell for less. You also can set an auction-wide minimum; different minimums on different parts of the auction; or no minimums at all. Avoid "Ridiculous bids will be rejected" or similar phrases; you can't assume that everyone knows what a "ridiculous bid" is. Instead, take the time to set minimums.
- 2. Run an honest auction. Don't advertise items you don't have; don't artificially force bidders to bid more by claiming there's a counterbidder when there isn't one; don't overgrade your items; and sell all items that meet your published minimum and are the high bid, even if the bid is far below "book" value.
- 3. Notily winners within the first week after your deadline passes.
- 4. Send the winners their items promptly upon payment. (It's OK to wait for checks from unfamiliar customers to clear, which takes no more than a week. If it takes longer, get a new bank.) Federal Trade Commission regulations state that you must ship your items
- 5. Don't use your auction as a way to compile a mailing list unless you state that in your ad.
- 6. In sum: Treat your customers as you would want to be treated if you were the one bidding

UNIT SPACE AD RATES

GOLDMINE has two sizes of unit space ads:

- Regular your ad is reduced to one-ninth of one of our pages.
- 2. Super your ad is reduced to one-fourth of one of our pages.

Regular Super Each unit $60.90 $466.20 $466.20

Contract rates are available, which earn advertisers lower rates. Call anyone on our GOLDMINE advertising staff for a complete rate card. 715/445-2214 battle-scarred but heartfelt "Over The Rainbow"), Garland was called back for an encore. Then another. And yet another. Garland told the audience that she and the band literally had no more songs to perform that night. In essence, she gave her all and was rightfully rewarded for her efforts: the album spent 13 weeks at #1 and won a Grammy for Album Of The Year.

This gorgeous reissue corrects past versions' flaws - incorrect song order, fake applause, a muddy mix, and, of course, the absence of Garland's biting wit. The music is still the center of Judy At Carnegie Hall (she performs with orchestra, with piano, and with a small jazz combo throughout the evening), but to hear her chat with the audience is to notice how much she was really enjoying herself. For a moment, she took her own advice: Get happy.

JOHN WESLEY HARDING Trad Arr Jones Appleseed Recordings (APR CD 1041)

John Wesley Harding has made some decent records over the past decade or so, not to be any more well known than he is. Trad Arr Jones is actually a reissue of his 1998 CD, remastered and represented with four newly recorded bonus tracks.

Following in the blueprinted footsteps of similar, spryly instrumentated '90s folk releases by Bob Dylan and, most recently, Roger McGuinn's folk den collections, this is actually a tribute album of sorts, to '70s British folk man Nic Jones. These songs are traditional folk songs, faithfully performed in a mainly, and certainly purely - acoustic setting.

Vocally, Harding is reminiscent of Elvis Costello, only tastefully less pronounced. This-earnest recording is a pleasant surprise for most fans who may have expected a more rollicking approach, in so much as the four excellent new bonus tracks feature a complete band (The Minstrel In The Galleries)

These splendid additions (particularly the Van Morrison-spirited "Canadee-I-O", the grungy, driving "Billy, Don't You Weep For Me") are among Harding's best offerings and serve as a rocking coda to balance out the experience of a CD that will endure with repeated listens.

— C. Brian Jasper

JOHN WESLEY HARDING Awake: The New Edition Appleseed Recordings (APR 1040)

This reissue of Awake, the 1997 release from eclectic, progressive folk-rocker John Wesley Harding, is noteworthy for a few reasons Remastered with five new bonus tracks, including a live duet with Bruce Springsteen, this set of Harding originals offers a fair overview of this largely unheralded singer/songwriter.

Harding will write a song about anything, no matter how trivial or uncommercial. This is both his strong suit and subsequently his downfall. With Harding it isn't so much the subject matter as the development within it. Standouts include the lamenting "Your Ghost"; "Window Seat," a child-like aeronautic ode, metaphoric to life in general; "Miss Fortune," with shades of Pete Townshend surfacing; and the mournful "Something To Write Home About." Then there are the selfindulgent potholes, from the pointless "Song I Wrote For Myself For The Future," to the cynical "Burn" and the tasteless "Sweat, Tears, Blood & Come.

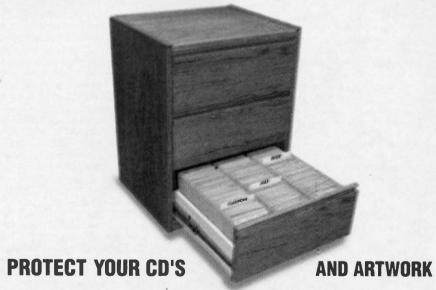

As for the bonus section, a trump card to sales here is of course the Springsteen duet "Wreck On The Highway" - a song that stands in majestic sadness alongside of Johnny Cash's "Give My Love To Rose" and Jimmie Rodgers' "Blue Yodels." Springsteen completists will also note a fine cover of "Jackson Cage.

Fans of the original Awake album will no doubt be thrilled to have a complete studioquality version of "I Just Woke Up" (without the not-so-special effects) that would make an excellent choice for a movie soundtrack for one of those "get outta bed" sequences.

Dylan's "Girl Of The North Country" and Jimmy Reed's "Ain't That Lovin' You Baby" were all taken from the original RCA master tapes. Rewind also just reissued Aviary, a late-70s prog band compared vocally to Queen and instrumentally to Yes.

Coming soon: Out in late May from Sundazed is Bob Dylan's classic 1965 album, Highway 61 Revisited, available in the original mono mix on 180-gram vinyl. The reissue is the second in Sundazed's efforts - in cooperation with Columbia Records and Dylan — to restore and reissue Dylan's catalog in vintage analog sound on vinyl, the way it was meant to be. Sundazed also has on tap reissues of three albums from the seminal West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band, remastered from the original tapes with two bonus tracks on each. Unfortunately only released on CD are the quirky '60s band's Part One, Volume 2 and Volume III: A Child's Guide To Good And Evil albums... Due June 5 from Rhino is Glory B' Da' Funk's On Me! The Bootsy Collins Anthology, a two-CD, 25-track set from Bootsy's Rubber Band, an oftensampled mid-70s offshoot of George Clinton's Parliament/Funkadelic... Coming June 26 are The Best Of Surface (Columbia/ Legacy), Harold Melvin & The Blue Notes' Ultimate Blue Notes (Epic/Legacy), The Best Of Gladys Knight And The Pips (Columbia/Legacy), expanded editions of The Isley Brothers' Harvest For The World and The Heat Is On (both Epic/Legacy) and expanded editions of Luther Vandross' Power Of Love; Never Too Much; Give Me The Reason; and Forever, For Always, For Love (all on Epic/Legacy)... Due July 17 from Rhino is Echo & The Bunnymen: Crystal Days 1979-1999 is a four-disc, 72-track box set from the British group that contains 14 previously unreleased tracks, 23 cuts available for the first time on CD and many alternate takes, rare B-sides and 50 minutes worth of live tracks of the band covering everyone from Dylan and The Doors to Television and Velvet Underground.

DANNY ADI FR Better Make A Move Proper Records (PRPCD 8)

The true Danny Adler story is still a seismic shift away in record company brainwaves the multi-disc box that wraps up some 35 years worth of odd singles, strange collaborations, unrealized dreams and under-promoted realities and that embraces everything from mid-60s funk jams with sundry Rubber Banders through Rollers impersonations with Nick Lowe and onto a blues album that sounded so authentic that even his record company didn't know it was him. (Whew! - Ed.)

Adler is, after all, among the finest guitarists and most evocative songwriters the U.S. has ever produced — not for nothing did the mid-70s British press hail him as the next Bruce Springsteen. Two single-disc collections, then, is scant reward for such vision and strength. But it's all we've got. So what do we get?

Chronologically, the two trace Adler through the '70s and '80s. The first, concentrating on the band for which he's best known, Roogalator, similarly focuses on their best-known cuts and most legendary rarities. So an unreleased mix of the near-hit title

Heavy metal thunder The roots of a 35-year-old genre

n August 1968, Jimmy Page recruited Robert Plant, John Bonham, and John Paul Jones to join a band created out of the ashes of The Yardbirds. This set in motion events that would create a new musical genre that would generate contempt and admiration in roughly equal

This contrast of reaction is due to the fact that heavy metal provides both the best of times and the worst of times. Migraine-inducing guitar breaks, science-fiction imagery cringe-makingly reminiscent of adolescent fantasies and posturing misogyny (that offends even people who find feminists irritating) mean that when heavy metal is bad, metal is without exception the single most tedious and objectionable musical style in existence. However, when it is good —when that formula of hypnotic riffery and anthemic soar is on the button — there is probably nothing more exciting the human eardrum can experience.

Metal's true origins are almost as arguable as those of rock 'n' roll itself. For those who define heavy metal as whatever Led Zeppelin were doing at any given time, 1968 is the year of genesis. However, The Kinks' "You Really Got Me," released four years earlier, may well be to metal what "Rocket 88" is to rock 'n' roll - the first-known example of a record that conforms to the style of a genre, even if unconsciously. ("It wasn't called heavy metal when I invented it" - Dave

Page and Jeff Beck were purveying in The Yardbirds in 1966 the sort of power blues and virtuoso musicianship that would partly define heavy metal, but they were still contained by a certain pop sensibility: No matter how on-the-edge they were, this was still not quite heavy metal's total pile-driving excess.

The Jimi Hendrix Experience provided a bridge to true heaviness in 1967 with several tracks on Are You Experienced?. Cream also provided heaviosity and virtuosity that

But 1968 marked the watershed. With the formation of Led Zeppelin, the entrees of Steppenwolf and Iron Butterfly. the release of The Jeff Beck Group's Truth, The Beatles' "Revolution" (B-side version) and The Rolling Stones' intermittently heavy Beggar's Banquet all happening within it, 1968 must be considered the key year in the development of what few people realized was on its way to becoming a lasting and major musical force.

When Page and Beck had gone their separate ways after The Yardbirds, their respective new combos, Led Zeppelin and The Jeff Beck Group, not surprisingly, sounded similar. Truth and Led Zeppelin were almost identical albums, right down to covers of "You Shook Me." Indeed, initially, Led Zeppelin were considered a poor man's Jeff Beck Group: The cognoscenti refused to believe that the band that featured Robert Plant's castrato screechings rather than Rod Stewart's world-weary, dues-already-paid vocals, and the lumpen John Bonham as opposed to the frenetic Mickey Waller, would transpire to be the more successful ensemble. This underlines the fact that Led Zeppelin were no more the first heavy metallers than Elvis Presley was the first rock 'n' roll artist. Like Presley with rock 'n' roll, however, Zeppelin were stupendous in their role of popularizers of a genre, almost single-handedly turning a minority musical form into a multimillion dollar industry.

Defining heavy metal can be a more difficult task than it would appear - not least because today's heavy metal doesn't particularly sound like the original metal. After the original super-amplified blues style of The Jeff Beck Group, Cream, and Led Zeppelin. the genre became characterized in the '70s by mid-tempo boogie. This was later replaced by a somewhat faster musical form with a certain amount of glam

It's also unfortunate to have to note that whereas bands such as Led Zep, Cream, and The Jeff Beck Group based their musical visions on their worship of black musicians, the huge American blue-collar constituency for today's heavy metal is a section of society more likely to be racist than most. The fundamental link between '68 vintage heavy metal and all variations thereof, up to and including the present day version, is The Riff. If a song is not propelled by a powerhouse and preferably distorted guitar figure repeated with such insistency as to approach the hypnotic, it ain't

It must be sadly acknowledged that as well as being different than its antecedents, modern metal is not as good. The days of devastating, fist-punching classics such as Free's "All Right Now" or Deep Purple's "Smoke On The Water" seem to be gone forever. The likes of Bon Jovi's "You Give Love A Bad Name," Def Leppard's "Pour Some Sugar On Me" and Guns N' Roses' "Paradise City" aspire to be intoxicating anthems of that standard, but the ambition is mere vanity. The riffs just aren't as unforgettable, the rhythms simply not as pulverizing.

One suspects this is partly the consequence of metal, post-1976, ceasing to be a respectable profession for the classier type of musician. When punk came along, all of metal's abundant flaws were embarrassingly exposed. Like heavy metal, punk was a form of music defined by riffs, razor-edged instrumentation and howling self-assertion. Unlike heavy metal, it boasted an exciting tempo, no musical self-indulgence, a social conscience and lack of hostility to women. Many musicians possessed of a musical or personal sensitivity would not now feel comfortable being perceived as heavy metallers. The reduced pool of talent metal can draw on as a result of this is dismayingly apparent to the

Like the protagonist of Led Zeppelin's "Stairway To Heaven," heavy metal is a formerly grand and influential figure facing a future of decline but still prone to dramatic gestures and booming self-reverence to try to hide that fact

Hello, and welcome to my Auction. Here are some rare Rock and Roll Promos, sealed copies, and stock copies. All are original label US first pressings, unless noted otherwise. It has taken me years of searching to find most of them. These albums are rare, not only because of their collectable value, but also because of their superb current condition. Many of these are in the exact same condition as they were before they left the factory, 25 to 30+ years ago. No out outs, truly as eye opening experience for even the most demanding and discriminating collector, or enthusiast. All albums have been entensively graded, with special attention being paid to the seams and spine. All records have been play checked for hidden scratches, and/or pressing defects.

First class postage is $5.00 for the first album, and $1.00 for each additional album. Please specify any personal packing, or shipping requesting payment. Cash, checks, or money orders are accepted. Orders paid by check will be held until the check clears the bank. I will cover

No bid topping. Phone or mail bids welcomed. A 10% overbid is required on all phone bids, after the minimum bid has been met. If you have any questions, please feel free to call or write. AUCTION CLOSES ON JULY 6²⁸. All mail bids must be received on or before this date. In the event of a high demand on any album(s) I reserve the right to declare bid wars, so that all bidders have an equal opportunity to raise, or pass. If you are mailing bids, please specify whether or not you may be interested in perticipating. If so, please include your phone number. I will call to notify you if a war has been declared. Bid wars will continue until midnight on July 8²⁸. You can can say time between the 6²⁸ to the 8²⁸ of July to inquire on current high bids. Bidder names will not be revealed. All winners will be notified. A written confirmation will be mailed on Monday, July 9²⁸. All winners have 14 days after confirmation to make payment, unless other arrangements have been made. In the event of default, the next highest bidder will be notified. A full money back, no questions saked, guarantee applies to all of these albums (exclading p-wasge). All trail off numbers and identifying traits have been recorded for future reference.

rack rubs shoulders with keyboard player Nick Plytas' sublime "Love And The Single Girl," the 1975 demo "Get Ready For The Get Ready" meets the farewell 45 "Zero Hero," and the band's much-loved album Play It By Ear is given a digital going over at last. Stunning stuff.

Adler's first solo album should have been he second Roogalator set. They broke up, hough, and he shot off alone, embarking on string of albums that have few peers in the realms of rock Americana, Better Make A Move dips into fewer than half of them but delivers a solid block of 18 regardless, including the wry "Even Dirty Old Men Need Lovin'," the positively epic "Pocono Rain," and the ragged reggae "Powercut" — the magnificent combination of Mikey Dread, Ansell Collins and apocalyptic Jamaican producer Niney Holness.

It's surprises such as this that have maintained Adler's career for this long. Doubtless, they will continue to do so. Think of these collections, then, not as the anthology he so deeply deserves, but as the introduction that you'll be requiring. The Roogalator waits for no man.

ARTIE SHAW The Very Best Of Artie Shaw RCA Victor (09026-63753)

No doubt called into action because of the phenomenal success of Ken Burns' multihour Jazz history lesson on PBS that included interviews with Artie Shaw, The Very Best Of Artie Shaw assembles 18 of the clarinet virtuoso's performances recorded between 1938 and 1945.

It's a quickie compilation, but the breadth and depth of some of the tracks work in its favor. There are omissions (where are Shaw's big hits "They Say," "Thanks for Ev'rything," and "Frenesi"?), and the non-chronological order of the set gives it a somewhat haphazard feel, but the music still resonates with passion as well as an uncommon sense of complexity.

Shaw, alive and 90, has always been an enigmatic fellow. He had no plans to make music his career, seeing his talent as a quick fix to financial security. By the time he finally quit music altogether in 1954 (there was also a brief respite in the early '40s), he had become, next to Benny Goodman, swing's greatest clarinetist. He also managed to marry eight times and broke racial chains in the '30s by dating his vocalist, Billie Holiday. There's a great - and probably deeply personal and psychological - story in here somewhere (Shaw was born Arthur Arshawsky, and the severing of his name undoubtedly is a good place to start), one that doesn't quite settle into the fluidity of his music.

But this hour-plus package focuses on the music, and on that modest account, it's a decent primer for jazz novices (particularly those enticed by the Burns series). Shaw chose the 18 songs here, so, even though he hasn't touched a clarinet in almost 50 years, you gotta trust his judgment. It is hard to hate the very best of the selections, especially the nineminute, monumental "Concerto For Clarinet"; his theme song, "Nightmare"; definite takes on "Deep Purple" and "Star Dust"; and his timeless classic "Begin The Beguine." There's nothing new here for old fans, but Jazz devotees will discover plenty in the sounds of one of the era's most sophisticated swingers.

he does some actual trimming as he strives to keep the songs on Everyday under the fiveminute mark. The result is a tighter, more focused sound but one that leaves no room for the extended jams that have made the band such a popular live act. The fiery solos of fiddler Boyd Tinsley and the complex sax work of Leroi Moore are sorely missing here.

Moore does get a chance to stretch out on "Fool To Think," but for the most part, he and his bandmates provide little more than sonic seasoning.

With the dynamic musical interplay that has always set DMB apart from the rest of pack missing, the focus is all on Matthews. His vocals on songs such as the erotically charged "When The World Ends" have an emotional depth and range not heard on his previous work, while his lyrics are more of the "seize the day, life is short philosophy" that he frequently espouses.

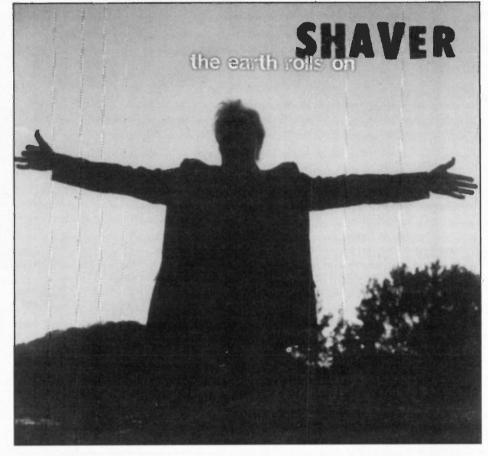

The bold moves that The Dave Matthews Band have taken on Everyday create a certain catch-22 for the band. While they will surely win over listeners who may have previously dismissed them as a hippie jam band, the hordes of fans who flock to their live shows will no doubt prefer their worn concert bootleg tapes to anything they'll hear on this disc.

SHAVER
The Earth Rolls On
New West (NW6025)

"Writing is the cheapest form of therapy," grizzled troubadour Billy Joe Shaver has joked. Indeed, rage, reconciliation and deep love fuel these turbulent songs as singer/writer Billy Joe and versatile guitar slinging son Eddy (a Dickey Betts protégé) open fire on each other, not realizing that heroin (a false friend as Eddy struggled with his mother's and grandmother's lingering deaths) would steal Eddy forever before this disc's release.

"You're Too Much For Me," a kiss-off from his dad, segues into the no-holds-barred "Blood Is Thicker Than Water." "You come dancing in here with the devil's daughter... stealing rings off the hand of your dying mother," Billy Joe growls before the weak-voiced junkie Eddy counterattacks, "Can't you see I'm down? I can't get no lower. I've seen you puking out your guts, running with sluts, when you was married to my mother."

"It's good to hear people tell the truth. As The Man says, it sets you free," Eddy once remarked of his dad's confessional writing (Goldmine #426, Nov. 22, 1996). The candor is all the more powerful when we realize how his family's struggles would soon evolve.

Actually, the disc is not purely primal. The acoustic folkish "New York City Girl" feels like a Woody Guthrie romp. The deeply religious Billy Joe's homespun Texas wisdom has its humor and ornery charm. Eddy had played more forcefully before, but his blistering playing here shows he was a champ to the end. E Street Band bassist Gary Tallent and Wilco organist Jay Bennett and drummer Ken Coomber help too. But the disc's heart is a rare father-son duo that didn't realize its days were numbered. Billy Joe wrote the quiet closing title track — with Eddy's mournful Eric Clapton-like guitar notes — to eulogize his wife Brenda (whom he'd married three times). Last Dec. 30, it became a eulogy for his musical partner and only child as well. R.I.P., John Edwin Shaver.

THE RADIATORS
The Radiators
Rattlesby Records (RLB 1001)

The Radiators know how to rock steady and smoothly. What else would expect from a band that hails from a town nicknamed The Big Easy? For nearly a quarter of a century, The Radiators have been stirring up a gumbo of blues, soul, funk, country, rock and pop. Legendary for their extended, unpredictable gigs at New Orleans' Mardi Gras and Jazz & Heritage Festival, this veteran jam band has helped foster a musical atmosphere where Blues Traveler, Phish, and The Dave Matthews Band could thrive.

Now on a new label (Rattlesby Records), The Radiators serve up tracks of slow, Cajun burners. Though this is not the band's most diverse record, it teems with musical authority—the laid-back maturity that is afforded bands who have toured for more than two decades.

Straight from the top, the record's opener "Deep In My Voodoo" will have you floatin'. The warm, soulful mood makes you feel as though you're at a party throwing back a few and feeling goo-o-o-d. Even moments that should stir feelings of regret and humbleness ("You Can't Keep No Secrets From The Holy Ghost") bring a smirk to your face — a guilty pleasure.

Some compare The Radiators to Little Feat, but the Rads have always pumped out a more down-home, simple blues-oriented sound. Alongside Grateful Dead and The Allman Brothers Band, The Radiators are one of the few true jam bands to have survived the '70s with something new to say. Keyboardist/vocalist Ed Volker, who's been penning most of the band's catalog, is living proof of this. He has rarely sounded so soul-infected, so gravelly.

With the help of producer Jim Gaines (Santana's Supernatural), The Radiators even squeeze out a few eclectic gems, including the Islands-inflected "Bom-Bom-Du-Dão" and the soupy psychedelic "Crazy Mona."

For years dedicated Radiators fans, traveling from show to show, have been calling themselves "fishheads" (subculture cousins to Deadheads) — long before "Phishheads" ever existed. Regardless of whether the five-piece Crescent City ensemble hits it big with this record, they've secured their place in rock history.

For Sale The 1969 Woodstock Music Festival Master Audio Tapes

Possibly one of the most valued audio tape collections in the world. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity for someone to own the only set of master audiotapes held in the private sector of the world.

These tapes came form the estate of Eric Blackstead, producer, Woodstock I & II, the records. Containing performances by fourteen artists there are over fifty songs never released on either record or movie soundtracks. Included are the complete performances of Janis Joplin, Creedence Clearwater, The Band and Johnny Winter. Other event performers include Arlo Guthrie, Joe Cocker, Country Joe and the Fish, Crosby Stills and Nash, Jimi Hendrix, Jefferson Airplane, Sha Na Na, Sly and the Family Stone, and The Who. With over seven hundred seventy minutes on various formats these tapes represent an internationally recognized historical event.

Authenticated by Capitol Records and appraised by Dr. Steve Johnson (ASA, ISA, AAA), these tapes are considered true historical artifacts. This is the only set in the world held in a private collection.

For sale to those with the vision to realize the rarity of this opportunity and the ability to own history we are entertaining offers in the seven-digit range. Please bear in mind that a baseball (although it was a historical one, not this historical) retained a price in this range.

If you have any further questions or if you find this of interest please contact me.

The best of early metal

A rich history of hits from MC5 and The Kinks to Deep Purple and Jimi Hendrix by Sean Egan

Choosing the best of any genre is of course highly subjective. The author notes the reasons why he choose each song for his list.

YOU REALLY GOT ME" by The Kinks - The ferocious riff on "You Really Got Me" was louder and more aggressive than anything ever previously heard in popular music and its guitar break was wilder than any audience had hitherto known, but most of all it was the mood of this record that marked it as a distinct breach. Previously, even artists such as Little Richard and Elvis at their raunchiest exhibited a sense of limits: Their music was controlled fury rather than complete abandon. "You Really Got Me," a U.S. Top 10er and a U.K. chart topper in 1964, was buzzsaw dementia without even a fig leaf of restraint.

"ALL RIGHT NOW" by Free - This slab of archetypal metal breast-beating proves how easy it is to make allowances for heavy metal's shortcomings as long as the quality is high enough. A trans-Atlantic Top 5 smash in 1970, "All Right Now" is as unconvincing a song about seduction as is possible to imagine (again, echoes of adolescent fantasizing), yet the music is so floorvibratingly powerful and the riff so gloriously strutting that, at least for the duration of the record, one is prepared to believe every boastful word Paul Rodgers yelps.

"BORN TO BE WILD" by Steppenwolf It's perfectly appropriate that the genre's name also appears in the lyrics of "Born To Be Wild," a U.S. #2 in 1968 and a Top 30 U.K. chart placer in '69. This biker's road hymn is one of the very first examples of, to quote the immortal phrase coined herein, "heavy metal thunder." It created a basic template that has barely been changed over a quarter of a century: a hedonistic sentiment that encapsulates the spirit of heavy metal, a rousing, soaring sense of anthem and a menacingly growling rhythm heavy-metal guitar. Appropriately enough, that guitar and the swooping organ keep proceedings moving with the steady, throbbing power of nothing less than a top-end Harley Davidson.

"REVOLUTION" by The Beatles -Crank it up really high - you don't know the meaning of the phrase until you've heard the wall of blazing, screaming, amp-blowing guitar on "Revolution", the flip of the Fab Four's 1968 "Hey Jude" single. Bizarrely, the lyric — advocating caution to those wanting social change - is a total contrast to the howling defiance of the instrumentation and the nasal scorn of John Lennon's vocal. How this session didn't produce a cardiac arrest in the gentlemanly George Martin is a mystery.

"CROSSTOWN TRAFFIC" by The Jimi Hendrix Experience - It would have been easy and obvious to pick "Purple Haze" here (Or "Fire." - Ed.). Truth be told, there's not much different between that and "Crosstown Traffic" except that this X-rated thematic variant on The Beatles' "Drive My Car" pulled from the Experience's 1968 double set Electric Ladyland to become a U.K. Top 40 single - hasn't yet become a tediously overfamiliar golden oldies radio staple. The underrated Noel Redding and Mitch Mitchell provide pounding rhythm-heavy metal while Hendrix gleefully repeats a brutal progression over and over. Hendrix, naturally, injects a touch of class that sets him apart from ordinary heavy rockers, leavening the road-rage tone with sweet "doodle-doodle" vocal falsettos.

"YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET" by Bachman-Turner Overdrive - Metal would have a better reputation if it all evinced the subtlety strikingly displayed here. Though rightly perceived as a real earth-shaker, on "You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet," a 1974 U.S. chart-topper and U.K. #2 smash, it is actually acoustic guitar that propels the song toward those fabulous half-speed speech-impaired choruses ("B-b-b-baby!"). What indelibly nails the number into the listener's skull is not metal's usual booming bass drums but said chorus' tinking cowbells.

"LOOKING AT YOU" by MC5 — Were "Sonic" and company punk or metal? Probably both: what became known in Britain as The Spirit Of '76 — punk's beginnings informs MC5's more political material, while tracks concerned with more earthy matters, such as "Looking At You," are pure heavymetal bawdiness. Wayne Kramer's and Fred "Sonic" Smith's amps sound perpetually on the point of overload as Rob Tyner's singing builds up and up to a nigh vocal orgasm. An almost agonizingly exciting number.

PATTI PAGE Brand New Tennessee Waltz CAF Records (70101)

The vocalist nicknamed "The Singing Rage" has seen her career last more than five decades past the success of her smash 1950 pop and country hit "Tennessee Waltz," so it shouldn't come as any surprise that she is aware of what she does well. She is not the same vocalist today that she was in her heyday, but that doesn't mean she isn't a good one. As her range has changed with age, she has adapted her style to play to current strengths. Her latest disc of new material, Brand New Tennessee Waltz, is a pleasant set illustrative her still-solid skill at filling up a lyric.

Page works atop smoothly rendered easy-listening country bases, enlisting top modern vocal talents such as Alison Krauss. Trisha Yearwood, and Kathy Mattea to add pleasant gilding to the proceedings. Page stays within her limits while fronting that solid competition. She gets nice results from a blend of spokenword and restrained singing amid numbers such as the sultry drifter "Till I Get It Right." Her cover of Mattea's signature tune, "Where've You Been," is a very different animal than the original, owing to Page's measured interpretation. But her skill as a storyteller and maturity, perfect for the song's sentimental subject matter, give it new charms.

The gently swaying "I Believe In You" can't help but seem corny despite Page's sincere delivery. But for the most part she hits sweetness when going for it, as in the lovely "Hope Chest." When she revisits "Tennessee Waltz" to punctuate the set, it's no surprise that she owns the nuances of the tune after half a century of performing it, but it's worth noting that the rest of the set is strong enough that she doesn't need the closer to convince anyone of what she still has

MEGADETH The World Needs A Hero Sanctuary (SANSP-84503-2)

This is perhaps Megadeth's most frustrating record. While The World Needs A Hero is a kind of return to the past, it's also the band's most MOR effort ever. Sure, the riffs are fast and flashy just as they were on 1990's Rust In Peace, and the music shows glimmers of the melodic-thrash à la 1986's Peace Sells... But Who's Buying?, but the band nonetheless sounds preoccupied and not in the moment.

While founder Dave Mustaine, a former member of Metallica, has always preached of social ills and the possiblility of nuclear destruction, there's really no sense of political mindedness on this record besides the disturbing "Dread And The Fugitive Mind." Perhaps the world's evils he warned us about on Megadeth's Countdown To Extinction no longer have the same emotional impact on him. Or maybe the world is just not as complicated or interesting these days.

Surprisingly, Mustaine's most convincing commentary comes from the loss of love. For example, "1000 Times Goodbye" (with its hits-too-close-to-home soundbites) works very well as a snake-bitten lover's anthem. It makes you wonder what Mustaine has gone through recently.

In the album's defense, this is still a fairly new lineup, and it will take time to work out the awkwardness of writing together. Perhaps more important, Megadeth hasn't lost sight of themselves. They were never too punk and never dabbled in grunge for any length of time. If Megadeth has been anything, they've been true to their metal roots (though th band suffered temporary lapses of judgment with musical departures such as 1997's Cryptic Writings and 1999's Risk).

Megaheads might find meaning in the single "Mot Psycho" as well as "Return To Hangar" (the sequel to 1990 "Hangar 18") and "Recipe For Hate... Warhorse." All of thes are variations on the sly Mustaine-ical wit fans have come to expect from Megadeth.

On the whole, Mustaine and his crew — the very capable Al Pitrelli (guitar), Dave Ellefson (bass), and Jimmy DeGrasse (drums) - tip the metal meter a few times but can't seem to keep it rockin' for very long. It's as if something is holding them back. What that is, is a mystery. That uncertainty seep into the relating of these songs to the listener. However, the record does leave us with one unequivocal message: The world does need a hero. Maybe Megadeth can fill those shoe

SCOLDEES My Pathetic Life Off Hour Records (SSP-02)

Scoldees fall gently into place in the adult formats attempting to provide some decent new music for 30-some things looking to cool their heads from all the noise we've come to know as CHR. Still, you'd suspect these people to posses a rare self-depreciating sense of humor given the title for this album, which promises more comic relief than is actually found in this set of somber, introspective, moody

Excellent sound with thoughtful production and arrangements cut through My Pathetic Life, except for "Silly Girl," which ponders how much influence one person has on a lostlovers' life. We can all relate to that. The group must have stolen Keith Richards' O/D pedal for the guitar sound on "All I Want," another fairly pensive song, to receive some airplay, By the third cut, the worthy "I Go Crazy," it is clear that this group's MVP is vocalist Nancy Sirianni. Her voice is rich and

"STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN" by Led Zeppelin - Majesty is not something one normally associates with heavy metal, and for long stretches of "Stairway To Heaven" from Led Zeppelin's untitled 1971 album, with its lazy rhymes and silly metaphors, majestic is the last thing it has a hope of being. But when the band makes that awe-inspiring shift from the folkie intro into the bone-crushing second act, "Stairway"s regality instantly becomes unquestionable. It is why - at their best -Led Zep were kings of the pile: What other heavy metal band had the breadth of ability to execute a segue of such seamlessness?

"PARANOID" by Black Sabbath - It's easy to underestimate how genuinely spooky and menacing Black Sabbath's early albums were and how startling the unprecedented grinding doominess of their music. This really was heavy. Yet they had wider horizons than you might imagine. On "Paranoid," the title track from their second LP (released in 1970 in the U.K., '71 in the States), they up the tempo for a wail of insecurity in doubletime. "Finished with my woman 'cos she couldn't help me with my life/People think insane because I am crying all the time" — heavy meal with self-doubt. Contact Ripley's Believe It Or Not .-

"CRACKED ACTOR" by David Bown David Bowie has made many great records, but he always sounds like he feels he's really too good to be doing all this. However, the faint feel of mockery that hangs over his work couldn't be more appropriate than on "Cracked Actor" from his 1973 album Aladdin Sane. If that aura wasn't there, it might well be regarded as the most offensive song ever written. "Suck baby suck" the protagonist implores a hired bedpartner while Mick Ronson wrenches almost unbearable shrieking sounds from his guitar. You've guessed it — it's subversive heavy metal, with Bowie turning the usual metal braggadocio on its head by inviting us to feel not admiration but contempt for his lecherous narrator.

"READY FOR LOVE (medley)" by Mott The Hoople — Mott The Hoople were never a metal band, but "Ready For Love (medley)." the Mick Ralphs-written track from their All The Young Dudes album (1972), is metal to the core. Yet it also displays sensitivity almost unknown in metal. Though the song has a menacing, growling riff, Ralphs enunciates over the top of a lyric of the most incongruous and affecting vulnerability, complaining that his "dues surely must be paid" and singing the title phrase to the backing of an unbearably plaintive mouth harp.

"ANARCHY IN THE U.K." by Sex Pistols and "ACE OF SPADES" by Motorhead — There is, of course, a certain overlap between metal and other musical styles. "Anarchy In The U.K." — a 1976 U.K. Top 40 hit - with its relatively stately pace, two guitar breaks and Black Sabbath-like quasisupernatural menace ("I am an Anti-Christ!") sounds far more like heavy metal than punk. Motörhead, meanwhile, come up trumps with "Ace Of Spades" (a 1980 Top 20 hit in Britain) by appropriating the breakneck tempo of punk. Taken in isolation, the chest-beating of the Motorhead lyric is tedious. Allied with both the kind of timesignature and guitar overload not heard since Mick Jones' "One-two-free-four!" detonated "White Riot," the listener can actually be persuaded to believe in the attractions of a lifestyle of whisky, poker games and unwashed underpants. On these tracks, the line between punk and metal blurs into invisibility. It's the image of the respective bands that makes us think otherwise. It's proof that metal is frequently merely what its practitioners — and detractors — say it is.

"HERE I GO AGAIN" by Whitesnake -The myth of the loner is a staple of heavy metal songwriting. It must be assumed that this steme from the fact that many heavy metal musicians were social inadequates at school: Rationalizing their experiences ("I prefer my own company") keeps the bad memories at bay. Yet vocalist David Coverdale's bellowed assertion of independence on "Here I Go Again" is never in danger of having his bluff called by his audience because of the huge goodwill generated by the song's surprising melodicness, radiofriendly harmonies and fabulously slammed guitars. No wonder it topped the U.S. charts in 1987 and has twice been a hit in Britain.

"BREAKING THE LAW" by Judas Priest With their grungy instrumentation and toe-curling sci-fi album covers, Judas Priest typify the depressingly large village-idiot school of metal. "Breaking The Law" deserves attention, though, because it answers to the almost unheard-of description: heavy metal with a social conscience. Released in Britain in 1980 at the height of the (first) Thatcher recession - and reaching #12 in the charts - it saw Priest impressively dissect the sociological consequences of unemployment. That they do so with key shifts and hooks so numerous as to make the listener think this is a metal band's cover of a pop tune only serves to ratchet up the level of bewildered admiration.

"SYMPATHY FOR THE DEVIL" by The Rolling Stones — Tall tales of devil worship have become embarrassingly de rigueur in metal. The Rolling Stones were the first with this affectation and, inevitably, the classiest. Some might dispute that "Sympathy For The Devil" — the opening track on their brilliant 1968 album Beggar's Banquet — is even heavy metal at all, what with its piano and bongos. But the chorused falsettos of "Whoo-WHOO!" are as mesmerizing and effective as any guitar riff, and Keith Richards' solos - blinding, scorching flashes of lightning — are every heavy-metal guitarist's fantasy performance.

"BLOCKBUSTER" by Sweet - Sweet may have looked like just-ravished transvestites, but the music on the 1973 U.K. charttopper "Blockbuster" is actually more raucous than that of the kind of blue-jeaned act who would be horrified at Sweet's blonde tresses and hotpants. This Chinn & Chapman tale of a menacing prowler has a stomping riff that actually sounds like the footsteps of a stalker. A howling siren superbly completes the melodrama

"CAN'T GET ENOUGH" by Bad Company - Once again, a bunch of, in all probability, girl-afraids roar at us about their Don Juan activities ("I take whatever I want/And baby I want you") in "Can't Get Enough," and we have the kindness not to laugh. After all, it's only fair: Paul Rodgers pleasures us so with one of the finest sets of tonsils ever committed to tape and guitarist Mick Ralphs deploys the kind of chugging boogie riff common to the time (1974) with such aplomb as to make not granting absolution unthinkable. It was a U.K. #15 hit and a U.S. #5 smash.

"THE BOYS ARE BACK IN TOWN" by Thin Lizzy — Thin Lizzy is a band whose hard-rockin' is always shot through with a pop sensibility. Phil Lynott's melodic gifts and his penchant for musicians with a lightness of touch resulted in sprightly calls-toarms such as the masterpiece "The Boys Are Back In Town," which went to #8 and #12 in the U.K. and U.S. respectively in 1976. The nimble execution and sub-"Born To Be 66 Tt was Page's vision, really," remembered John Paul Jones, the improbably well-spoken former bass player of Led Zeppelin, not only the first and biggest heavy metal act of all time but also far and away the most massive band of the 1970s. Of the vision of his colleague, Zeppelin founder and guitarist Jimmy Page, he elaborated, "He had this idea of acoustic and electric and blues, mixing it up a bit. The actual band's style and sound came really from the members playing our interpretation of his idea. Blues bands were becoming the fashion - there was Cream as well. That was the style that Page wanted to pursue."

But Zeppelin are universally recognized as creators of a genre rather than one of many practitioners of an existing style. Did the band feel at the time that they were writing an entirely new chapter in popular music? "Yeah, pretty much," Jones told Goldmine. "We were playing the blues in a particularly characteristic sort of way. And all the band had their own taste in music so it was definitely a very personal thing for all of us. There was the light and shade it was a very dynamic way of playing."

Jones remembered the time the band's music was first described as "heavy metal." "I think around the time of 'Whole Lotta Love'.... It used to be [called] 'hard rock.' It was actually 'progressive rock' right at the beginning, but then that quickly changed meaning to be ELP and safe Machine, King Crimson, those people."

He added, "I've always thought heavy metal was Black Sabbath and Deep Purple, that sort of band. I didn't really consider us

That notwithstanding, Jones explored his feelings about Led Zeppelin being the wellspring of every heavy metal act to ever exist: "It's flattering to know that one's inspired so much other music." On the other hand, upon hearing some of the worst examples of the genre, Jones said, laughing, "I take no responsibility for this!

"I think 99.5 percent of everything is crap. It really doesn't matter what form of music it is."

familiar - probably the way Alanis Morissette will someday sound, should she decide to grow up. With "My Bright Life," Sirianni reaches the other-worldliness only Linda Ronstadt could touch.

However, the pace of this album really slows here, and as time wears on, one misses a good up-tempo number to counterpoint all the melancholia. On to the dull "Cellophane Man" and then "Dragonfly," as the snail's pace continues. Some lightheartiness finally rears here with the title cut - but 10 tracks into this exercise, it is too little, too late to save this album as a whole.

Scoldees have talent, but until they cheer up and cut loose a little, opening for Enya might just be the highlight of their career.

- C. Brian Jasper

AEROSMITH lust Push Play

With their recent induction into The Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame, a bizarre Super Bowl performance with Britney Spears and 'N Sync and Aerosmith's fine first single ("Jaded") off their new album burning up the charts, Aerosmith's profile has rarely been higher.

This is the band's first self-produced album, albeit with help from Marti Frederiksen and Mark Hudson, either of whom also cowrites every single track on the album, usually in tandem with Aerosmith's Steven Tyler and Joe Perry. As such, this was cause for some concern at the band's record company, but by now it's become pretty clear that Columbia has a hit on its hands. Unfortunately, as we all know by now, commercial success and quality aren't always necessarily related. So the question remains: Is Aerosmith's music still relevant, and is Just Push Play worth your hard-earned $15?

The album begins with the big beat of drummer Joey Kramer on "Beyond Beautiful," a solid, though hardly overwhelming track that's highlighted by Tyler's histrionic vocals, before the hip-hop influenced, selfreferencing (i.e. "walk this way") title track. Next, "Jaded" delivers the kind of big midtempo ballad that has become the band's latter-day calling card, and with a good lyric to boot ("you're so jaded... and I'm the one who jaded you"). Unfortunately, "Fly Away From Here" is a bland power ballad that's only somewhat salvaged by Tyler's alwaysstellar vocals.

"Trip Hoppin'," which has nothing to do

Columbia (CK 62088)

Wild" storyline might leave it open to accusations of Metal Lite, but the elongated riff - a slowed-down, beefed-up version of Woody Woodpecker's laugh — is the real McCoy: "authentic" purveyors of metal would kill to have dreamt it up.

"DO WE STILL DO IT" by Slade - Reading down the list of Slade's 33 (!) U.K. hits, it is astonishing to realize that such unabashed hard rock so consistently hit the top of the U.K. charts. Despite their pop frills, Slade were metal without a doubt. The stunning "Do We Still Do It" (hidden away on the 1974 album Old, New, Borrowed And Blue, from which the music-hall pastiche "My Friend Stan" was inexplicably chosen instead as a single) confirms it: a hell-raising anthem roared in inimitable wind-tunnel style by Noddy Holder — the man, incidentally, with quite possibly the definitive heavy metal voice.

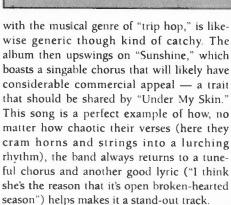

"STONE HEARTED MAMA" by The Pretty Things — If the neglected gem "Stone Hearted Mama" (a flop U.K. single from 1971) had been recorded by Jimmy Page's mob, it would have long been granted a place beside the likes of "Whole Lotta Love" in the heavy metal hall of fame (which doesn't exist — yet! Ed.]. A distinctly '70s form of metal, "Stone Hearted Mama" chides an unresponsive lady love to the backing of galvanizing boogie licks. Interesting to note, the Pretties were signed to Zeppelin's Swan Song label not long afterward.

"WHAM BAM THANK YOU MA'AM" by Small Faces - Only three years after the near-bubblegum of "Sha La La La Lee," Small Faces weighed in with the bruising "Wham Bam Thank You Ma'am" to prove they could keep pace with the then-musical fashion (though it wasn't released until a couple of months after the band had split in 1969, and even then only as a B-side). The tune boasts a stupendous subterranean riff and a general swagger that is more than a little impressive for a band so recently geared to producing boy-meets-girl material. Steve Marriott was better at heavy metal when he was a parttimer: He spent the next decade trying to make music this good in the same vein with Humble Pie and failed by a mile.

"BABA O'REILLY" by The Who -Though a mellifluous acoustic guitarist, Pete Townshend has always taken the "Less is more" approach when he plays an axe that's plugged in, employing the kind of classic metal power chords heard on "Baba O'Reilly." Being Townshend, though, he moves what would otherwise be merely another metal anthem up an evolutionary step by topping and tailing with, respectively, a hypnotic synthesizer part and an absurdly exciting violin freak-out.

"SMOKE ON THE WATER" by Deep Purple - "Smoke On The Water" is concerned with a Deep Purple recording session in Montreux being delayed by a bizarre fire caused by a Frank Zappa fan letting off a flare gun, but, in reality, it is not that aspect of it that excites the imagination. This song, a U.S. #4 in 1973 but not a U.K. hit until '77, has the ultimate monster riff in popular music's ultimate monster riff genre. To not use it to close a classic metal list would be perverse; to not include it at all would be madness. This track is heavy metal thunder.

Meanwhile, the poorly spelled "Luv Lies" is yet another melodic ballad that displays the band's typically free-spirited sexual vision ("to fall in lust not luv, ain't no sin at all"), while Tyler's lyrics veer into the ridiculous ("brika braka fiya kraka, sis boom-bah! Here comes trouble in a push-up bra") on "Outta Your Head." Finally, the Joe Perry-sung "Drop Dead Gorgeous" is average Aerosmith by numbers, and the album ends with "Light Inside," a bustling rocker with a scorching Perry guitar solo, and the psychedelic, cleverly titled "Avant Garden," which is only moderately enjoyable.

The same could be said for this album as a whole, for although it has a few stand-out songs, there's not a stone-cold killer in sight. What's most interesting about the album is that The Beatles have seemingly usurped The Rolling Stones' place as the band's primary influence. Of course, after almost 30 years together the band pretty much have their very own thing going on, and at this point Aerosmith are simply incapable of making anything less than a good album. Of course, with a collective eye that's always on the bottom line, they probably won't ever make a great, truly exciting one again, either.

- Scott Floman

GLOWFRIENDS So Glad To Be Here Jam Records (JCD357)

So Glad To Be Here, this independent lab release by Glowfriends, features as good female contemporary folk-rock singer you'll find, in one April Morris. Her voca are reminiscent of Sixpence None Th Richer's Leigh Nash and even Madonna i sensibilities: sensual and wise.

With spacey, yet acoustic, guitar base material from multi-instrumentalist Mar Morris, these young artists are just a full fledged producer away from making a hi record. That is not to say that So Glad To B Here isn't a pleasurable listening experience i its simplistic serenity. Breathy, dreamy, airy an melodic, these songs are soothing, with adver turous chords, tasteful jangley guitar work an uncluttered arrangements. Lyrically brief an ambiguous, these songs are short but soun full and (even if occasionally pretentious) ar open to interpretation to positive effect.

Perhaps the only drawback with thi debut CD is the lack of an up-tempo track of two for balance. The duo goes outside fo material only once, covering the Yo La Teng song "Nowhere Near," but you'd have to rea the credits to know that - it sounds so a home in the mix. Highlights include "Greet Light," "21,000 Sunny Days," "Out To The Moon" and the lead track "Lydia."

Bring in Will Jennings for lyrical guidence and Patrick Leonard to sprinkle some fair dust over them, and Glowfriends could become a household name.

Coming to ...

orn Antoine Domino, Fats Domino started playing music at just nine years old. He quit school at 14 to work in a factory in New Orleans and play bars at night. Soon meeting up with R&B legends Professor Longhair and Amos Milborn, Domino started to develop his own piano style. His first recording session in 1949 netted him the million-seller "The Fat Man," followed by many more R&B hits. When rock 'n' roll took over in the mid-50s, Domino's pounding piano style easily adapted to the new sounds, producing well-covered Top 10 hits such as "Ain't That A Shame," "Blueberry Hill," "I'm Walkin'" and many others. Goldmine takes a look at the piano genius who sold more records in the '50s than any artist except Elvis Presley.

"As much as possible," Marsalis explained, "we try to bring in as many people as possible from outside the organization to come in and collaborate with us. We're trying to bring in as many musicians as possible from outside New York. We're trying to create a friendly environment as opposed to a hostile environment that a lot of jazz musicians find when they first come to New York."

The Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra often takes a break during summer months, save for a few free outdoor shows around the city. "New York is the jazz capital of the world," Marsalis stressed, "and we have a lot of different festivals going on, but our goal is to get people listening to this music. I always tell people to go out and hear some live music, even if you have to bring the kids. If they make too much noise, take 'em out of the room for a while," he suggested.

Marsalis and the Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra will continue their educational outreach program to high school jazz ensembles, "because I'm getting tired of these kids coming to my house and not wanting to leave," he joked. One idea he has is to work with club owners in New York so high school jazz musicians can have venues in which to hold jam sessions when they're visiting New York City.

"We are united in the cause of swinging," Marsalis said. "We are united in playing this great music with as many different people and in as many different forms as we can.'

The Collector's Showcase is a widely read advertising section in GOLDMINE. Each ad is in its own box, consisting of a space 3 1/4" wide and 1 11/16" high, or a multiple of that size. All typesetting is included in the price. We recommend no more than 14 to 15 typed or written lines per showcase box.

C. Based on availability.

Unit space ads are the easiest way for you to sell records, tapes, compact discs, books, memorabilia, and any other collectibles you have for sale. Units also work well for want lists, announcements, etc. The better your unit looks when you put it together, the better it will look in GOLDMINE

You may use any bidding deadline you wish in your advertisement. If no deadline is noted, it will be understood that the deadline will be one month from the cover date of the issue in which your ad appears.

One unit space equals one 8 1/2" x 11" typed sheet. This applies to both regular and super unit space ads.

Type your copy legibly onto 8 1/2" x 11" white sheets. We'll reduce it as is to 38% of its original size for regular units and 59% of its original size for super units. A regular unit space is one ninth of a page; a super unit space is a quarter of a page. Remember to include your ordering information, postage rates, grades, deadlines, name & address, etc., on your first unit. Do not send any partial units. There is a $10.00 charge per photo for unit ads which contain photographs.

We will typeset your name, address and phone number at the bottom of your unit space ad for you, and a heading at the top, if you specify one. There is no extra charge for this. If you ask us not to typeset anything on your ad, we'll do nothing. Otherwise the typesetting will appear.

Do not reduce your copy before putting it on 8 1/2" x 1.1" format. Avoid all caps in your copy, except for headlines. Keep the copy clean. Dot matrix printers do not work well for unit ads, but if you must use one print it as dark as possible. Faxing unit space advertisement is not recommended.

Regular Unit Space Advertising Rates:

(Cost per unit, per issue; ads must run in consecutive issues. Contract required to earn consecutive issue discounts.)

This section features listings for retail record stores around the world. Traveling record collectors of all types search for new stores to dig through on their vacations, business trips, etc. Advertise your establishment here, including ten words of miscellaneous description, for only $9.00 an issue. You can buy this space in increments of 13 or 26 issues, for $117.00 or $234.00, respectively. Send in your store name, address, phone number, and ten words of description, along with your payment. If you stock GOLDMINE, we'll put your listing in boldface type.

ADVERTISING REQUIREMENTS:

The advertiser is responsible for ensuring that advertised product conforms with national and international copyright laws. GOLDMINE magazine screens advertisements for bootleg merchandise. GOLDMINE magazine accepts no responsibility for transactions involving unauthorized product.

REFUNDS:

If delivery will take longer than 30 days from the date the seller received the order, the seller must inform the buyer and offer the buyer the option of a refund or

Unless otherwise stated in the ad, the buyer has a 10-day return privilege from the time he/she receives an item from an advertiser. The buyer does not have to give a reason for a return and can demand a refund less postage costs. Advertisers must allow buyers to obtain authenticity judgments as the basis for retention provided they notify the advertiser of their intent within the applicable return privilege period.

All advertisers must provide a permanent address and telephone number before an advertisement will be run. If a post office box is used in an advertisement advertiser must still provide a permanent address for our confidential files

A completed reference form must be in our confidential files before any buy, sell or trade ad can be placed. See below. Minors are required to furnish a certificate of responsibility from their parents/guardian before their advertising can be accepted.

Payment must accompany an advertisement and must be in the form of a personal check drawn on a U.S., Casadian or Maxican bant; money orders; interestinad manay orders; canbine's checks; or with year VISA, MaxterCard or AccessCard credit card. Send year credit card number, expiration data, and the mine on the card, along with permission to charge the card for year ad, with year advertising caps
