SINGLES

C&C Music goes #1 again, leading a Columbia Top Ten charge that includes potential future #1's for Mariah Carey and Michael Bolton. 4

DIALOGUE

C&C Music Factory are churning out the hits while HITS' "My" Amy "Is True" Linden's churning out the copy. 36

Oakland b-boy Too Short's in the house with HITS' Too Dumb Craig Modderno. 70

POST MODERN

Fishbone goes nuclear, jumping from 21-4 with hot sales and huge play. Donnie is happy (in a Post Modern way, of course). 45

JAMS

Elektra's red-hot diva Lisa Fischer wonders "How Can I Ease The Pain" of being mentioned in the same "Contents" entry as JAMS' loser Graham "Scam" Armstrong. 59

NEOBILLY

The ACM awards are over, which means Neobilly Ne'er-Do-Well Holly Gleason's back home in Music City and we're out of hiding. 67

ALBUMS

Motown's Another Bad Creation and WB's Rod Stewart break into the Top Ten. 86

Flashmakers 28 Paula by a mile.
Earpicks 38 Paula and Simple Minds.

Crossovers 32 Marc Cohn & Another Bad Creation.
Top Tens 79 REM's still the 1.

Requests 35 Another Bad Creation.
Breakouts 82 Michael Bolton & Fishbone.

Burt Alert

Here we go again. Columbia's Promotion VP Burt Baumgartner repeats — just like his beloved 49ers once did — returning to the top slot with yet another C&C Music Factory smash, one of three singles in HITS Top Ten, with Mariah Carey and Michael Bolton all set to follow in its footsteps. The man's jammin' with L.L. Cool J and warming up Fishbone in the PoMo bullpen. Hey, the only thorn in the man's side is the industry's ultimate ignominious achievement — a spot on this week's HITS "Contents" page.

On The Cover

Never mind the fact he put "Rico Suave" on the map. Gerardo's claim to fame is the inspired casting of Marc Benesch and George Clinton in his new video for "We Want the Funk" — before this HITS cover appearance completely destroyed his credibility.

The boys at Black Rock take C&C Music Factory into the #1 spot for the second consecutive time and the album is hot on its heels. R.E.M. continues to make its way to the top, pushing hard seven spots to #19 with the #1 album in the country.

Large singles sales and major market play take LL Cool J from #50 to #37, and this ain't no hype. The big surprise of the week is Paula Abdul, coming on at #40 with over 200 adds. EMF also debuts at #41.

$UM DEAL FOR $BK!

Bubbling Brooks

Garth Brooks was the big winner at this year's Academy of Country Music Awards, setting a record by sweeping all six of the categories he was nominated in — Album, Single, Song, Male Vocalist, Video and Entertainer of the Year. Reba McEntire and Alan Jackson earned Best Female and Male Vocalist, respectively, while Shenandoah scored the evening's biggest upset by scoring Group of the Year honors over the Kentucky HeadHunters.

Big losers of the night included anyone unlucky enough to be collared by Neobilly Filibusterer Holly Gleason after greeting her with an innocuous, "What's doing?"

Don't Call Him Chevy Vandross

Luther Vandross: Top 40 finally wakes up to a superstar.

The much-rumored-about EMI purchase of the 50% interest of SBK not already owned by the UK-based conglomerate became reality this week as the red-hot house that Charlie & Marty built fetched some hefty cake. We're talkin' monster dead prezzies.

According to EMI: "Messrs. Koppelman and Bandier will enter into new employment contracts which will extend their period of service until December 1995."

According to a bunch of lawyers who make a lot of money by confusing people with unnecessary complex explanations: "The total initial consideration payable under these arrangements is approximately U.S. $26 million, plus the return of their [Koppelman & Bandier's] initial U.S. $5 million investment."

In addition, the duo will receive deferred payments "calculated on multiples of sales and profits achieved by SBK Records averaged over the calendar years 1991, 1992 and 1993." According to the release, that money will be payable in 1994 "unless the payment is accelerated for certain specified reasons."

The overpaid lawyers added: "It is estimated that the

PIC OF THE WEEK

Musta Been A GREAT Deal

A sure sign that Jimmy Jam & Terry Lewis got an EXCELLENT deal from A&M for their new Perspective label is Mr. Lewis' (r) willingness to pose for such an incredibly geeky shot with A&M President Al Cafaro (l). Naturally, Al's costume was buried (in lead) immediately after this shot was taken.

WILD CARD

A. BAD CREATION (Motown)

The LP goes Top Ten this week and this 2nd single from these new stars is selling like crazy. It's already Top Ten at WHYT, WPGC, KMEL, FM102 and KKFR with these incredible adds: KKQB, WXKS, WAVA, PWR95, KHTK, HOT977, WMXP, WPHR, HOT102, PRO-FM and WTIC. The phones are even hotter: Top Five at night at 7,947,366 stations! A potential #1 for Frank Turner and co!

Quick Hits

MTV adds Sting (A&M), Joe Jackson (Virgin), Simple Minds (A&M), Londonbeat (Radioactive), Susie Hatton (Reprise), Definition of Sound (Cardiac) and The Lost (Robinson/Epic). Simple Minds, Definition of Sound and Alice In Chains (Columbia) go into Buzz Bin. Meanwhile, Abbey Konowitch regrets not using someone with talent to write his roast material.

Berman's Geffen Gig

David "Don't Call Me Herman" Berman has been appointed to a senior executive role overseeing the business and general administrative affairs of Geffen and DGC Records as well as Geffen Music Publishing, it was announced by Ed Rosenblatt, President of the labels, to whom he'll report.

"David's background makes him a perfect fit for us," Ed said. "We're both the same size, so we can wear each other's suits."

Said Berman: "This was simply an opportunity I couldn't refuse. As much as I enjoy being in private practice, I couldn't resist the call to return to a label and deal with the business from that perspective again." (Translation: "There's nothing like a record company expense account after paying for lunch out of your own pocket for a year.")

David Berman: No relation to Ethel Merman, Bernard Hermann or Len Berman.

The Chicago native earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan's business school before attending Harvard Law School. Upon graduation, he joined the law firm of Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp, where he was made a partner in 1975. The following year he joined Warner Bros. Records as VP for Business Affairs. In 1987, he assumed the presidency of Capitol-EMI Music, then was named President of Capitol Records before returning to Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp last April. During his tenure at the firm, Berman perfected the art of billing for 36 hours of a 24 hour day.

Whitney Fights Back

Whitney Houston and brother Michael have filed assault charges against the two men who allegedly attacked them in a Lexington, Kentucky hotel room last April 20 in response to the accusation they were the aggressors. Said their Lexington-based attorney Burl McCoy: "My clients intend to pursue their prosecution vigorously." (Translation: "Boy, am I glad I chased that ambulance.")

The suit claims the singer was the target of racial slurs while staying at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Lexington, and that her brother was the victim of a physical beating which left his head and mouth bleeding. Whitney and other members of the tour entourage had to rush to his aid to free him from the assailants. Don King is currently arranging a pay-per-view rematch at Caesar's.

Even God Showed Up

When Polly Anthony (c) and Rick Bisceglia (l) threw a power dinner for record and radio heavies at N.Y.'s Le Madri, they didn't know how truly heavy things would get until Jeff "Boss Tweed" McClusky (r) arrived to pay homage with his entourage of penguins in tow. Among the people the penguins were seen mingling with: Phil Quartararo, Charlie Minor, Steve Perun, Abbey Konowitch, Shadow Steele, Randy Kabrich, Michael Ellis, Barbara Seltzer, Bob Garland, Michael Lippman, Jonas Cash and Matt Farber. Z100 PD Steve Kingston was unable to make the event, as he was out receiving treatment for insomnia.

Lube Job

"Gosh, I've never had body lice before — I'd like to hug you and give it a shot," said the always-fun Joyce Caffey (r) of ASCAP to HITS' "Wheels & Deals" columnist Neil Harris, who is not used to committing such an act without a small-hooved animal involved. The event was one of those showcases where industry talent scouts gather and don't pay any attention to the talent.

Two Photos We Ran Together

dealing with the press. We think the photo on the right says it all. (Ed Note: Oh yeah, as always, we hope you enjoy both these fine, fine photos.)

Not An NBC Page

UNCONVENTIONAL WISDOM

This year's Martell Media Roast burning MTV's Abbey Konowitch raised over $100K, as well as eyebrows over the roasters' comedic abilities. Highlights: Most everyone hired a bad writer, and a supporting Oscar to Candace Konowitch.

- David Lee Roth Trademark cool delivery, but who wrote his material — Eddie Van Halen?
- Freddy DeMann Eesh. Died a horrifying death. And we thought all the bombs were dropped on Baghdad.
- Arnold Stiefel Highlight of the evening. Brilliant material, great delivery, and no hired writer. Joe Smith's heir apparent?
- Abbey Konowitch Woody Allen woulda been proud. Who says being a nerd doesn't pay?
- Don Jenner Great idea, great video, but next time let's see how he does with his stand-up routine.
- Tom Freston Great delivery, but he should be receiving a lawsuit from Tom Poston any minute.
- John Sykes Not bad delivery with material he ripped off of Letterman. See: "Goyim."
- Steven Tyler/Jon Bon Jovi Professional, personable — but pleeeeee — don't give up your day gigs.
- Rob Light Good idea, until it went into the crapper. First time anyone told him it was too long?

TV Sells Country Music!

GARTH BROOKS STRIKES AGAIN, BIGTIME! While this year's Grammy Awards lacked the usual follow-up sales explosion in the stores for all except Columbia's Mariah Carey, the Academy of Country Music's presentation this past week has caused an immediate impact at retail outlets nationwide. Strawberries' music honcho Al Wilson calls it, "Smoke-a-hontas after the country awards. Awesome reaction. Check out Garth Brooks debuting at #8 on our list."

And he's not alone. Nashville's own Music City Record Distributors' Larry Webb is yelling, "Instantaneous sales on Garth Brooks and the Pirates of the Mississippi. Easily up 50% since the ACM show aired!"

AND DON'T FORGET THOSE HEADHUNTERS! And it's not just super-Garth — whose current Capitol album has already sold seven zillion copies and whose debut album is also soaring again — who was the big beneficiary. Across-the-board country music gains are reported everywhere. Other hot movers include the Kentucky HeadHunters (Mercury) (who also picked up a full-time add this week at VH-1), George Strait (MCA), Reba McEntire (MCA), Clint Black (RCA), Hank Williams, Jr. (WB), Dolly Parton (Columbia), both Vince Gill albums (MCA), Kathy Mattea (Mercury) and more.

OH YEAH, WE COULD USE ONE MORE RETAIL QUOTE TO FILL OUT THE STORY: Final word goes to Jim Thompson of the all-powerful Record Bar, who adds, "Country sales have exploded after the ACM Awards. Garth Brooks has done exceptionally well with both his first elpee and the current 'No Fences,' which almost doubled in sales this week."

Garth With MC Hammer: Guess who's selling more records.

GRAHAM ARMSTRONG'S SHERMAN OAKS

"Ahem, have I ever told you about the time I got REALLY crazy and went without a tie clip?" queried HITS' own personality dynamo and JAMS Editor Graham Armstrong (r) to this week's celebrity visitor to beautiful Sherman Oaks, RCA recording artist Tyler Collins. This week, Graham invites Tyler to visit the true cultural mecca of Sherman Oaks — Hot Dog On A Stick in the lovely Sherman Oaks Galleria. Said Tyler: "My manager told me this was going to be for 'Jack The Rapper'." Next week: We mercifully run the last installment of this incredibly dumb feature.

Friday Night "Live"

"ABC's In Concert 1991," network television's first regular rock concert program since the days of Don Kirschner, will debut on Friday night, June 7 from 12:00 midnight to 1:00 a.m., and air for 14 consecutive weeks this summer nationally on ABC.

Appearances are planned by the likes of the Black Crowes, David Bowie & Tin Machine, Elvis Costello, Jane's Addiction, INXS, Mötley Crüe, Poison and Rod Stewart. Each show will spotlight three headlining acts, plus a performance by one "breakout" artist.

The show's executive producers include David Saltz, Trudy Green, Howard Kaufman and Marty Callner, who'll also direct selected programs. The producer is Paul Flattery and the director is Jim Yukich.

This better not mean they're canceling "Into the Night" With Rick Dees.

Richie's Rich At A&M

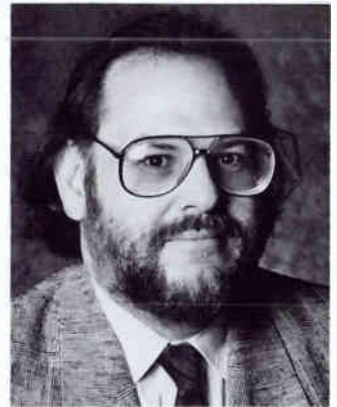

Richie "Don't Call Me Joey" Gallo has joined A&M Records as Vice President of Sales & Distribution, it was announced by Al Cafaro "Out Man," President of the label.

Gallo returns to A&M, where he worked for ten years from 1978-'88. Prior to that, he was National Sales Director at BMG.

Said Cafaro: "We choose no Sales VP before his time. And now it's Richie's time. He'll make a fine table wine."

Added Gallo: "It's a thrill to be back with so many people I know and enjoy. It's a lot easier borrowing money that way."

Richie Gallo: A lively Zinfandel, perfect with fish or fowl.

"Love Don't Come Easy"

Schultz Jazzed At WB

Ricky "Sergeant" Schultz has been named Vice President & General Manager of Jazz and Progressive Music for Warner Bros. Records by Mo "Knows Music" Ostin, Board Chairman of the company.

Schultz was at MCA Records for the past five years, most recently as VP of Jazz A&R. Prior to that, he was instrumental in the formation of the Jazz & Progressive Music Department at Warner Bros., where he served from 1978-'82 as National Promotion Director, working with such artists as David Sanborn and Al Jarreau, among others. He also formed the independent World of Mouth Marketing company and Zebra Records.

Schultz will be responsible for the marketing efforts and day-to-day operations of the department, while also being involved in A&R and talent acquisition.

Said Mo: "It's great to welcome Ricky back to Warner Brothers. It's a return much anticipated and long overdue, considering he left with several of the office staplers."

Commented Schultz: "Like whoa, man, buzz off, will ya? I'm listening to Coltrane."

Pendulum Swings At Billboard Our Guys

"One of the things about me is I am totally committed," said Pendulum Records' President and CEO Ruben Rodriguez to Billboard's Janine McAdams. And while we're happy for Ruben and his new label, we're even more thrilled to print the name of Billboard's Janine McAdams. Wow, we did it again. Ruben (l) is pictured with Elektra Chairman Bob Krasnow in a picture that looked much better on page 20 of last week's Billboard. Like Ruben and Bob, we love Billboard, too.

MR. KOPPELMAN'S JUGGERNAUT ROLLS ON...

MAYBE HE'S INTERESTED IN OWNING A MAGAZINE...

Mail-Pac, the incredibly efficient and always timely company that handles the mass mailing of this magazine, was raided by federal immigration officials last week as 31 suspected illegal aliens were arrested. Mail-Pac President Mike Vos told the Daily News: "Of the people picked up, some of them have been released after relatives presented the proper ID, which they didn't have on them." Vos added: "All our records and documentation is 100-percent accurate. The problem here is the authenticity of the documents presented to us. I can't tell if something has been forged or not." Yeah, and the mags made the post office on time.

The Most Added singles of the week at Top 40 radio are #1 Paula Abdul (Virgin/Capitive), #2 Londonbeat (Radioactive) #3 Gerardo (Inter-scope), #4 Color Me Badd (Giant) and #5 Simple Minds (A&M). This week's Wildcard, Another Bad Creation (Motown) also had a strong week.

Wishing Tom Sold Insurance

VH-1 President "Fast" Ed Bennett (l) and EMI Records CEO Sal Licata (r) flank Margaret Freston, wife of MTV Networks' chief Tom Freston, during one of those nutty, nutty industry functions these people always attend. Moments after this photo was taken, Margaret turned to the two execs and uttered the immortal words: "I told Tom to become an insurance salesman so he wouldn't have to work with dorks like you."

They're Going To Disneyland

Three Sony Music employees who served overseas are being honored by the label for their role in the Persian Gulf War. The Carrollton depot's Tim Hardegree and Phillip Tracy and the Pitman plant's Bill Joline were officially welcomed home by label boss Tommy Mottola with free Disney World vacations. "We wanted to do something more tangible than a parade or party to show our thanks for the sacrifices these men and their families have made," said Mottola. "And it's going to be at least ten years before Sonyland is finished."

NEAR TRUTHS

By I. B. Bad, Los Angeles

While the elephant bucks Thorn EMI/SBK deal is a crowning achievement for over-achievers Koppelman & Bandier, it does not, as numerous rumors suggest, signify a consolidation of the EMI-owned labels — Chrysalis, Capitol, SBK & EMI. In fact, look for Thorn EMI to continue an intensified drive for greater market share — something all majors will be accelerating via acquisition or start-up labels. We're talking major action to come in this area.... Is there a shake-up underway in the upper ranks of one major's Promo dept.?.... As you read this, the ink will be drying on Clive Davis' new BMG deal.... Yes, Guns N' Roses have parted ways with Alan Niven and Stravinski Brothers along with Doug Goldstein, who will now handle the band. Is there more action to come?.... Rumors that Poly is close to inking the Rolling Stones label deal. However, don't look for them to retain the Allen Klein/ABKCO-owned Stones catalog they currently handle.... Look for Sheldon Vogel to assume a major Time-Warner post, reporting to Bob Morgado. Vogel will be point central for all Time-

Warner label Controllers.... And speaking of Time-Warner, look for the conglom to enter into a deal with Toshiba where the Japanese giant would own 49% of some T-W companies.... Champion Entertainment currently in the hunt for a new moniker.... Arnold Stiefel wowed them at the Martell roast of Abbey Konowitch.... Gary Kurfirst won a judgement in the Jane's Addiction breach-of-contract suit.... Is a top exec at a label that's having a less-than-stellar year about to bump off some mid-levelers as sacrificial lambs?.... Was that Tommy Mottola embracing Walter Yetnikoff at the recent Martell dinner?.... Freddy DeMann and Madonna reassessing the superstar's position and potential in all aspects of the entertainment biz. Action to come.... A&M is conducting "The Rick Stone Experiment" where, for the first time at any label, the head of promotion is not based at the company's HQ. Should work as long as they stay hot.... Hot UK band the Farm headed to Sire for major, major, (MAJOR) bucks.... Speaking of elephant cakes, the digits on the Waterboys deal are reaching astronomical heights. Are they bidding themselves out of the market?.... Rob Kahane and George Michael are shopping a label that would see George ink and produce talent.... Clint Black segues from William Morris to CAA.... Bryan Ferry is in the hunt for management.... MCA & Boston Ventures are not happy about their Motown joint venture. Is litigation a possibility?.... Names in Rumor Mill this week: David Simone, Gary Casson, Richard Marx, Tony Russell and Larry Katz.... and the beat goes on.

LETTERS

¿Donde está J&O?

Dave:

Question: Where are Juan and Orlando? Have they entered the Witness Relocation Program? Are they in trouble with the Godfather? Did NASA finally buckle under to their demands? (Hush, hush. I know.) Did Captain America call them back into duty? What's the scoop?

Juan and Orlando are my #1 culture heros after "The Hoageydog" (Quimby Magazine). I have to know what's going on. Help me out with one, won't you?

Yours,
Tim Stubie
Tower Records
Fresno, CA

Dave replies: Instead of scamming bootleg validation stickers, J&O have parlayed their fame into a development deal with Disney, co-starring in the "Ernest" series. For 8 x 10 autographed glossies, write Michael Ovitz c/o CAA.

Gone With the Wind

Dear Boneheads Lenny Beer and Mike Murphy:

Contrary to your "Wavelength" article of April 8, Michael Moore is not "Blowin' In The Wind." The real Michael Moore is doing Western Regional Country Promotion for Epic In San Francisco... unless you know something I don't.

Yours truly,
Michael Moore
Reg'l Country Promo Mgr.
Epic Records
San Rafael, CA

Boneheads Beer & Murphy reply: Actually, we happen to know the real Michael Moore is working on the follow-up to his movie "Roger and Me," so who the heck are you? Take our word, Mike — don't unpack your suitcase.

Creem Dream

Dear Roy:

In the midst of the Middle East being blown to smithereens and Wilson Phillips going platinum, here are those clips you've been waiting for. Continually contributing to such publications as L.A. Weekly and Creem (where I hold a full-time position as Associate Editor) is great, but it's not enough, dammit.

I want to write for HITS. Just a few simple pieces, then interviews, then maybe a cover! I hope you like these samples so one day the world really will be my oyster.

Sincerely,
Lorraine Ali
Creem Magazine
Sherman Oaks, CA

Roy replies: Every journey must begin with a first step, Lorraine. You've just written your debut piece for HITS — and the oyster's in the mail.

Doodling Dude

Roy:

I'd like you to help me spread my new logo around the industry by scribbling notes on the enclosed notepads. Of course, idle doodling is also perfectly acceptable! If you need any more, the supply room is stocked to the rafters.

Jim McKeon
McKeon Music Marketing
Seattle, WA

Roy replies: Thanks for the notepads, Jim, but I wonder if you could send a bunch without the annoying M 3 in the upper right-hand corner. They cut down on the space for idle doodling.

FAR TRUTHS

By Danny Fields, New York

Elektra Entertainment's Keith Sweat was at the hub of power on a Monday night at Tatou, where corporate radiances gathered to mark the double platinum status of his current album, "I'll Give All My Love To You," and the end of his four-month U.S. tour. Presenting the star with the precious metal were label lofties Bob Krasnow and Ruben Rodriguez, whilst Elek-tricians Brad Hunt, David Bither, Rick Alden, Doug Daniel, Sherry Ring Ginsberg, Suzanne Berg and Steve Schnur murmured praises from the sidelines. Also participating in the joy were mgr. Hiram Hicks, Vinter-tainment's Vincent Davis, ex-hockey star Ron Duguay, and "New Jack City"'s Alan Payne. Butlers passed around shrimp & corn fritters, tiny pizzas and smoked salmon with creme fraîche, while a buffet board groaned under the weight of filet mignon with "Five Peppercorn Madeira" sauce, grilled tuna steaks, ratatouille "Southwestern," free-range chicken breasts with wild mushrooms, and just desserts... Arista Records, Debbie Harry and David Byrne took over the Limelight for a grand old party celebrating the release of 6 West Video's "Red Hot & Blue," the vid version of the recent hit Cole Porter AIDS benefit LP. The party was an AIDS fundraiser as well, with foods donated by a variety of local sources. From Dean & DeLuca came a wheel of brie, the Cadillac Bar sent potato skins, Fox Trot Oscars contributed crudites and fruit platters, Lox Around the Clock supplied hummus and quiches, and an anonymous caterer chipped in with a yumilicious (?) diamond tubot mousse. Glitterati numbered members of the Jungle Brothers and Jesus Jones; labelmeisters Clive Davis, Bill Berger, Ken Levy, Ivette

Hub, Bub!

Keith Sweat: Surrounded by radiances and ratatouille.

Rodriguez, Rick Bleiweiss, Robert Wieger and Melani Rogers, and BMG's Pete Jones... Mercury's Mike Bone presided at the Winners Club for a massive gala following the Scorpions' headlining gig at the Jersey Meadowlands. Munching tortellini marinara and fettucine alfredo were members of Bon Jovi, Tesla, Bulletboys, Saraya, Steelheart, Valentine and the Front. Mgr. Doc McGhee stood proudly at hand as the Bone-man presented the group, now touring behind the "Crazy World" LP, with a "Career Plaque," noting their incredible achievements... SBK Records picked the Versailles Room of the Plaza for a buffet breakfast on the occasion of Francesca Beghe's label bow. Three chefs from the gilded hotel served made-to-order omelettes, breakfast breads and O'Brien potatoes to various mediarites, MTV nobility and label giants, including Charles Koppelman, Martin Bandier and Daniel Glass. Later, the label threw a lunch at renowned Lutece for Ms. Beghe and VH-1 VIPs, as proprietor Andre Soltner served salmon en croute to the channel's Ed Bennett, Sal LoCurto and Norman Schoenfeld while they screened "Heaven Knows," the Julian Temple-directed vid for the first single.

David Cole and Robert Clivilles have been at the controls for some of the biggest dance/pop successes of the last few years. The producers/mixers/songwriters/auto mechanics are widely credited with bringing house music to the masses with their stellar reworking of Natalie Cole's cover of "Pink Cadillac." Whether being responsible for house's popularity is a feather in their cap or not, we'll leave to history, but the fact remains that dance music in all its varied forms is kicking — and the N.Y.C.-based duo is largely responsible. The list includes Seduction, the Brat Pack and now, the "if it don't make you move you must be dead" assault of "Gonna Make You Sweat (Everybody Dance Now)." The group: C&C Music Factory featuring Freedom Williams. The purpose: to focus on new talent, with the membership being a mainly fluid thang. The masterminds? None other than our boys Cole and Clivilles (or haven't you figured out what the C X 2 stood for?). HITS' Brooklyn fly girl Amy Linden "Bridge's Falling Down" spoke with the C-men recently in the homey confines of the Columbia Records conference room, where she proceeded to ransack several hundred CDs out of the supply room.

You guys are featured prominently both on the video and in the promotion of the band. Does that mean you're members of the group?

Robert Clivilles: [Laughs.] It means we want to throw.

David Cole: Plus, it makes it a whole lot easier to explain the C & C. It's our opportunity, our time to step forward. We've done a great many things that most people don't know about. It's time for us to say, "We're here!"

Clivilles: It's a casual version of a production album. It could have been a Cole and Clivilles album, like a Quincy

Jones album or a Jellybean Benitez record. C & C lets us have fun. Y'know, we're able to rock it and not have to worry about people going, "Damn, those guys fucked this up!" We want to have them accept the record the way it is, and then have them go, "Oh it's Cole and Clivilles!"

Do you feel the pressure to produce a hit every time out?

Cole: Everything we do has to be a commercial success — that's the only pressure. Whereas sometimes we might want to do something a little more underground.

What do you consider this record?

Cole: It's both, a combination of all our musical experience. It was fun, so we didn't feel confined to the realms of making it a hit record. We hoped that by having fun, we'd create a hit.

Clivilles: Before we got heavy into the re-mixes, I learned that some of our biggest records were records we just jammed on and had fun with. I felt that we needed a change by not just going for that commercial record. Some of the stuff sounds commercial, but that's because we grew up in a commercial environment as well as an underground environment. We grew up with the rock stations as well as 'BLS.

You take unknown singers and make them stars. Do you consider yourselves Svengalis?

Clivilles: Y'see, there's a difference between what we do and what other people do. This Milli Vanilli thing has fucked so many people up. When we put together Seduction, we chose three talented girls — we didn't just grab three girls who looked good but couldn't sing. But that kind of thing goes on in Europe all the time.

Is that because of the language barriers?

Cole: No. There are just a great many talented Americans who go over to Europe specifically for that reason — to become stars.

Clivilles: Even if Milli Vanilli or Martha Wash didn't sing the song, the records are hits because they're hit songs. People go for the groove, not because so-and-so is singing. They like the sound, they like the lyrics and it makes them move — period. A good record's a good record.

Cole: Today's audiences — I don't want to use the word ignorant — are underprivileged. In the early days, people would listen to songs. Today's audiences only care about whether the beat is really slammin' and the voice doesn't totally hurt their ears. It doesn't matter so much who the vocalist is, as long as they have attitude — which is the main thing today.

It seems the more popular music gets, the weaker it gets. Do you fear that will happen to you?

Cole: As long as we can stay on top of things, everything will be cool.

Clivilles: You always gotta do your homework. Look what happened to rock this year. You got a whole bunch of shit on one side and then you got Aerosmith. Now they're def, the ones that're doing the real shit.

Is there room in dance music for ugly frontwomen?

Clivilles: You know what I say to those big cows that complain they're not video material? You can be. Get a membership to a gym and work out! When I started this, I didn't know a lot. I had to learn because I wanted to learn. If you wanna do it, do your homework and earn your shit! Just don't sit there and say that because you got a big voice, then you're the baddest person in the world — 'cause you're not! I'm cutting throat for Milli Vanilli and Black Box — they know what they got themselves into, so don't bullshit everybody.

"It doesn't matter so much who the vocalist is, as long as they have attitude — which is the main thing today."

EARPICKS

Current favorites as chosen by members of all segments of the music industry

The long-awaited Paula Abdul single from her upcoming project blows out this week beating Simple Minds by a 3 to 1 margin. The second cut from Londonbeat looks like another big one at Top 40. Another Bad Creation already has huge major market play with reaction and Top 15 album sales. If you don't play LL Cool J, you should get knocked out. Crystal Waters continues to develop and the new Tracie Spencer is active and could explode early on.

POST TOASTED By Ivana B. Adored

HEY HEY, MY MY: Managed to spend the weekend with 100,000 of my closest friends. Two nights of Neil Young and an afternoon at Dodger Stadium. Neil was god-like, feedback galore. I remembered to bring my lighter the second night for the twenty minute version of "Blowin' In The Wind," but unfortunately, I forgot my earplugs. But, I DID bring the median age of the audience down to around 40. I would love a gig as Neil's wardrobe mistress; it would leave me with lots of spare time.

Honorable mention goes to Social Distortion who captivated an almost-filled arena crowd (you try and do that as an opening band), and to the way-fab Buck Pets, who rocked my free world.

....Watching the Dodgers play with two Ex-Mets (Darryl and Gary Carter) fills me with a certain sense of ennui. What's a nice girl from New York to do? Especially with Kevin Elster literally falling on his face! The Mets will be in Los Angeles in two weeks (hint, hint). Whoever coughs up the best season's tickets and a bottle of #75 sunblock gets the awesomest photo of Steve Backer. Worth millions in blackmail value!....Lots of rumors circulating as to who will fill the PoMo Promo spots at Giant and Chrysalis. I'm too busy inventing said rumors to have any kind of handle on the likely candidates. Will we also be dancing the "bunny-hop" too?.....Trying to "get through" the "Deadicated" album is an exercise in torture. I know that it debuted this week at #18, and rightfully so, but it still makes me long for a Kajagoogoo tribute instead.....Speaking of which, is it true that two members of the ever-so-hip-and-au courant (and rightfully so) Jesus Jones used to be in the Jo-Boxers? Remember "Just Got Lucky"?.....Sincerely grateful congratulations to Craig Williams, who's the new MD at WMDK, as Mike Thomas segues into the PD slot.....Very complimentary photo of KJQ's Mike Summers in the latest R&R. "Werewolf" or "Tazmanian Devil?" You decide.....The Word From Outside: Lots of bitching and moaning about the worthlessness of the New Music Seminar. Nobody actually thinks that anything is accomplished during that week, do they? That doesn't mean that I won't be there. Think of all those Mets home games! And maybe I'll get to meet John S. Hall!.....Subtle As A Flying Mallet: I hear that Chris Isaak just went platinum! I hear that Elvis Costello is playing 36 consecutive nights in Los Angeles! I hear that Tad is playing in Belgium!.....Peter Himmelman totally rules!

MAMAS AND THE PAPAS:

Better Than The Blessing.

MIKE HALLORAN 91X, SAN DIEGO

Halloran never ceases to amaze us. Whether it's his attractive Dan Murphy from Soul Asylum impersonation (shown here), or his egotistical confidence that there's a place for him in the Wonderstuff (baaah!), Mike supplies us PoMo types with endless hours of amusement. Just ask a few PoMo Promo babes. Or Gang of Four. Or, oh I'll never tell, will I? Hey Halloran, how's that Outfield record working for you?

Industrial music — often referred to as “gloom & doom” or “techno-dance” rock — is gaining a stronger foothold among America’s PoMo music followers, with bands like Nine Inch Nails and Front 242 leading the surge. The latter outfit, who until recently were on the indie Wax Trax label, now has the backing of Epic, and may very well become the band that puts the genre permanently on the pop music map, with their big league bow, “Tyranny For You.” Daniel B., who started Front 242 in his native Belgium ten years ago, describes industrial music as “an outlet for the frustrations of everyday life,” insisting the music’s appeal lies in its pension for creating a conducive atmosphere for release. Aside from that, he’s pretty evasive about what Front 242 is trying to say with its music, explaining that it’s up to the listener to draw his or her own interpretations. Which doesn’t begin to measure the frustration Daniel must have felt in having to spend a half hour on a transcontinental phone call with HITS’ own bundle of pent-up repression, “None Too Loose” Bruce Matzkin.

What are industrial music’s roots?

We like to think not in terms of roots, but in terms of influences and ideas. I can only speak for Front 242, which originates purely from something European, even going back to the Soviet Union. Classical music was always a big thing on the European continent, and you also had many thinkers and philosophers — all of which were big influences on the ideas driving Front 242.

What is it about industrial music fans that make them identify with this music?

They find the aggression appealing. It’s a way of getting rid of their frustrations. They can get their energy out. Frustration is one of the main things driving this band.

What are you frustrated by?

When you wake up each day, there are always some things which frustrate you. One of them is that one day you will be dead. Some people think of it every day, and others need something to remind them of it.

How’s your relationship with Epic?

What we were looking for in a label was good distribution, and a big machine. Epic works for Front 242 and haven’t tried to change anything about us. We were approached by other companies, but they all wanted this or that changed. Epic has never been like that... and for the moment the relationship is much more than very good.

You and Nine Inch Nails are both enjoying success on the Post Modern charts in the U.S. Is this a sign that industrial music is gaining more popular acceptance?

Nine Inch Nails is one of my favorite American bands. They will go very far, because their music is not empty. There is an idea driving the band. Industrial music, or whatever it’s called, will be a big thing in the U.S. and in the world.

Who does your computerized videos?

thing unusual with computer images, same as with the music.

In your bio you take a quote from Nietzsche, “Democratization is an involuntary arrangement for the breeding of tyrants in every sense of the word,” which is cited from page 242 of one of his books. Does that have anything to do with your name? No, it was a coincidence. One day I opened the book and it fell on page 242, and what he wrote there fit so well with “Tyranny For You” that it made me wonder about the meaning of the coincidence.

What are the meanings of those passages and others?

We just put them out there — we don’t try to explain why we put them there. People have to figure it out for themselves — otherwise it spoils the game.

In “Welcome to Paradise,” you can hear Jimmy Swaggart spewing. I take it you’re not fond of religion.

Again, we just release the song, and it’s up to you to take from it what you please. We have opinions on it, but it is not essential for us to explain what we think.

A guy who reviewed your live show said, “Rather than describing or portraying fear and violence, they recreate it. Their potency lies in their simultaneous grip on heart, body and mind.”

That was a good description at one time, and it still fits what we do today, but it’s much broader now. When you come and see us, you will understand why. It’s difficult to explain, but what we do now goes much farther. You can even imagine a Front 242 concert without thinking of people being on stage.

Where in the States do you have the best following?

Each person in the band liked a different town. But the reception was very good everywhere for the group. We like the challenge of meeting different people and different cultures, if you can say that about people living in the same country. In the U.S., we have the same feeling as in Europe — when you travel 500 kilometers, it’s a totally different culture.

PETER HIMMELMAN

"WOMAN WITH THE STRENGTH OF 10,000 MEN," from the forthcoming CD, Cassette and LP, "FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH," by Peter Himmelman Produced by Peter Himmelman.

They're obsessed with Dr. Seuss, write songs about bums and long-haired guys from England who always get the chicks, enjoy covering tunes like "Seasons In The Sun" and are probably the wiseguys who called you last night to see if your refrigerator was running (then told you to go catch it!). Bassist Sandy Smallens, vocalist Tim Quirk, guitarist Jay Blumenfield and drummer Tommy Vinton (who moonlights as a cop) are just too much — Too Much Joy that is.

TMJ originally formed in the N.Y.C. suburb of Scarsdale back when they were in the tenth grade for the exclusive function of playing Clash covers at high school shindigs. After graduation, Sandy attended Yale, Tim went to Stanford, Jay studied at Berkeley and Tommy attended Iona, then the New York Police Academy, but during Christmas break, the band would gather together to write songs and record demos — which were released as the "Green Eggs And Crack" LP in the late '80s.

Last year, Giant reissued their indie label project, "Son Of Sam I Am" (after the Dr. Seuss story, natch), which included the infamous "Making Fun Of Bums." The band was arrested, tried and acquitted on obscenity charges stemming from a highly publicized performance of 2 Live Crew songs at the very same Broward County club from where the Crew itself was hauled off to the clink. This year the band experienced both the joyous high of releasing their second Giant album, "Cereal Killers," and the hellish low of submitting to an interview with HITS' femme fatale Erin "Wooly Bully" Culley.

You guys seem to get labeled a lot as a novelty band. Does it bother you?

Tim Quirk: Even when we're being wacky and goofy, we're really serious. So it does bug us to be dismissed as a novelty band just because people only look at the surface of things. It's our personalities. We take even the most serious subject and tend to find the irony in it as opposed to the Phil Collins lyrical aspect of it. That's why we wrote "Making Fun Of Bums" instead of "Another Day In Paradise."

How would you compare "Son Of Sam I Am" to "Cereal Killers"?

Tim: "Son Of Sam I Am" stuck its tongue out at a great many things. That was kind of like high school while "Cereal Killers" is more grade school.

What kind of feedback have you received on the new album?

Tim: Jay was talking to somebody who had just listened to the record and he thought the whole album was a diatribe against Lloyd Cole.

Sandy Smallens: I have heard people say there are lyrical references directly connectable to a Lloyd Cole song and also the way in which Tim sings reminds them of Lloyd Cole. Maybe that's why he hates us.

How do you know Lloyd Cole hates you?

Tim: Once his drunken friends were trying to jump on our stage and we kicked them in the head and they got kicked out of the venue. It was pretty funny. He was talking with the owner of the club trying to get his friends back in and the owner said, "No, they're really drunk, I can't have them in the club!" Then Lloyd Cole points at us on the stage and says, "What about them?"

Sandy: So he's held it against us ever since.

So who's the responsible party for Too Much Joy's lyrics?

Sandy: Tim. He's the medium

Boys will be Joys

"I was on acid once and tried reading 'The Cat In The Hat' because I figured it would be great."

through which the Too Much Joy persona is expressed.

Tim: Too Much Joy is one being — Sandy's the right arm that plays the bass, Jay's the left arm that plays the guitar, Tommy's the feet that keep the beat and I'm the mouth.

What are your earliest musical memories?

Tim: For the first 13 or 14 years of my life, I thought music was Neil Diamond and ABBA — those were the only records my parents had. They sounded really good at 78 [rpm]. Then one day Sandy played me a Clash record and that sort of changed everything.

Neil Diamond's actually written some great songs.

Tim: He did! I was getting my hair cut the other day and I heard "I Am I Said" on some soft rock station. I'd never paid attention to the lyrics before, but Albert Camus, if he was a singer/songwriter in the '70s, could have written that song. "I am, I said, though no one was there and no one could hear, not even the chair."

Where does the band's fixation for Dr. Seuss come from?

Sandy: He was read to us as children. A lot of kids from our background learned to read with him.

Tim: For about an hour we contemplated calling this album "Horton Hears The Who." But it's only funny for about an hour. I was on acid once and tried reading "The Cat In The Hat" because I figured it would be great. I just opened it to the section where he turns everything pink, screamed and threw the book across the room. It was so frightening! I had to cover it with a pillow and I couldn't go over to that section of the room anymore.

Did the experience permanently ruin Dr. Seuss for you?

Tim: No, it's just part of Too Much Joy's concept. You take this happy, perfect world — like the way everything's supposed to be — and you just sort of turn it on its head.

POST MODERN

POMO PICKS

Edited by Karen Glauber

Inspiral Carpets, "The Beast Inside" (Mute/Elektra): The Carpets are back after "Life" with ten new propulsive and percussive grooves. Unlike their earlier record(s), melody plays a much more significant role and the vocals are pushed up for maximum comprehension. The cheesy farfisa sound is still a signature of their music, but chiming guitars (like mid-period R.E.M!)? Remarkable!!! "Caravan," "Sleep Well Tonight" and "Further Away" prove that the Inspiral Carpets are more than just a sampled groove.

Dream Warriors, "And Now The Legacy Begins" (4th & B'way/Island): This Canadian (via the West Indies) group expanded upon the "Daisy Age" of De La Soul and have created an album that has captured the imagination of all who enter. Think of "My Definition Of A Boombastic Jazz Style" et al...

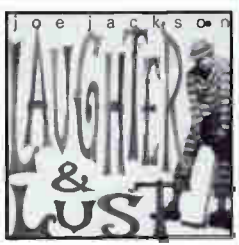

as a romp through the multifarious levels of the Warriors' hip hop, rap, reggae and rock influences, as if Sun Ra was the tour-guide. The potential "legacy" of this clever, brilliant and original group is massive!

The Farm, "Spartacus" (Sire/Reprise): After an intense bidding war, Sire/Reprise earned the privilege of releasing the debut from one of the biggest UK "buzz bands" since EMF and Jesus Jones. This album has everything you could hope for in a PoMo smash: An endless repetitive bass groove, endless repetitive lyrics, a vocalist who drones on in a tiresome lackluster way, and the word "groovy" in the single. Of course I get the "ironic" tone of "Groovy Train." This is pure, unadulterated genius, made from concentrate.

Joe Jackson, "Laughter & Lust" (Virgin): To say that Joe's latest is a "rock" record flies in the face of all the styles he's explored, mastered and accomplished since "Beat Crazy." They're all there: The Latin grooves, the compositional twists of melody and key signatures, the return of Graham Maby, and the continued (since "Big World?") layered harmonies with the wonderful Joy Askew. Are "Obvious Song" and "Hit Single" concessions to his new label? "The Other Me" (a prequel to "19 Forever?") is a heart stopper, as is "Old Songs."

Consider this album as another one of his best.

POMO MUGS

THE MILKMAN MUST HAVE BEEN A MAJOR BABE: One look at Columbia PoMo Veep Steve Tipp and his absolutely darling daughter Hannah is all it takes to question the beautiful girl's seed donor. Look at her cute eyes, adorable face, and irresistible natural charm. Then take a gander at Steve's hairy Marty Feldman-in-a-blender mug. You can't convince me that these two share the same chromosomes!

SOUND OF THE CROWD: When 50,000 flannel-wearin', four-eyed geeks get together to witness something, you know it must be special. Here we see such a group gathered to see the Northern California return of PoMo gods Jesus Jones, who were incredible, but couldn't hold a candle to local openers Steve Masters and the Skinflute Orchestra. Steve's performance was so riveting that nobody could take their eyes off the stage. But one thing, Steve-o. Don't your new bosses at MTV frown on public masturbation? We'll give you a hint — why do you think Leshay didn't get the gig?

WHERE'S HUGO?: There's only one thing wrong with this lovely shot of one weasel from R&R (like anybody cares), two goons from the Gang Of Four (don't fix what ain't broke...) and three glasses of cheap ripple from our pal Steve Leeds. Why is our PoMo goddess smoking? Could it have anything to do with the sensuous massage she received from ex-Gang drummer and now Imago A&R stud Hugo Burnham, strategically hidden under the table. Or is she waiting for Robert Goulet to appear and sing "Damaged Goods" to her? This is something only her mother will understand. What's next?

Musing About Muses

Describing Throwing Muses to the uninitiated is a little like trying to tell a curious kid about sex — it's easy enough to get the general gist across, but there are more shades, subtleties and shadows than any one conversation will allow. The general gist goes like this: Throwing Muses is a twisted pop band who first broke in Boston, and their sixth record, "The Real Ramona," is the group's most accomplished collection to date. The more important parts of the story, though, lie out around the edges — in the moments of throw-away madness that inform such songs as "Him Dancing" and "Graffiti," in lines like "My mouth is full of demons," from "Ellen West," in the way the wordless coda called "Dylan" says more about longing than a stack of Sidney Sheldon novels. Calling backstage from a concert hall in Belgium, Kristin Hersh, the mother of much Throwing Muses material, was cool, candid, and refreshingly non-precious. If only the same could be said for HITS' underemployed raconteur and Lucky Lager puzzle solver Sean O'Neill.

"By the time we realized we should sound more like other bands, it was too late."

Are you having fun in Europe?

It's been alright so far. Lotsa meat, lotsa headcheese. [Laughs.] It's hard to eat here, but it's a pretty place. We've been selling out just about everywhere. That's good, I 'spose.

Why do so many smart bands break in Europe first?

I don't know, but America's like 50 countries and we do well in a lot of those countries. The corn belt is still unreachable for a great many bands like us.

For a lot of Boston bands, in particular.

Well, we started out on the Providence [Rhode Island] circuit. We were about 18 years old when we moved to Boston. It was easier for us, because it was more readily accepted that we weren't a club band. There were a lot of groups that we felt something akin to there.

Why does Boston spawn so many Post Modern alternative type bands, aside from the number of college students who live there?

It's wild, isn't it? Well, we went to Boston because we thought we should. [Laughs.] And by the time we realized we should sound more like other bands, it was too late. We had our language and sound down and there wasn't any looking back. We don't have a Boston sound per se, but then again, a lot of bands from there don't have that garage sound you usually associate with the city.

Boston means garage grunge... and the New Kids On The Block. Who's your favorite New Kid?

You know what? Everybody else in the band knows all their names and hobbies. David and Tanya are New Kids whizzes. You're talking to the wrong one.

Did you hear what happened to Donnie? He got arrested for arson.

That's pretty cool. He's the one who's trying desperately to look alternative in all their shiny pictures, right? I can't wait to spread that around the dressing room. Tanya's gonna cry.

And now for something completely different. How do you write?

I started about 10 years ago. I don't remember why. Boredom probably, and then habit.

[Laughs.] After a long time of learning the craft of songwriting, it just began to happen on its own. That's become my goal for all writing — to have as little to do with it as possible. I trained my hands so whatever I heard would come out of them, and I find that, if I get in the way, I write songs that don't last. They have more to do with my personality than the song's personality. It should be automatic, then.

Right. These songs are like ghosts that just need bodies. They have more to do with things beneath my personality, because I don't think anyone needs to hear what I have to literally say about anything. But when the songs speak for themselves, they seem to get something said.

Do you ever start just with a lyric?

I find that if it doesn't come all at once, then I haven't gotten the body down. It's like meeting a person — you get it pretty much all at once. I don't write down little arty phrases in my notebook or anything like that. [Laughs.] I know when a song has to be written, because it's kicking me in the back of the head and shouting in my ear.

Have you played to many arty stiffs in Europe? I can see how your music might lend itself to over-interpretation.

We don't really get many dark, arty crowds. We get rock band crowds. Which is really nice. I don't see a lot of people thinking too hard, although last night there were so many pairs of glasses in the audience I couldn't believe it. The lights were gleaming off all the glasses. And I thought, "Uh oh, smart band. This is not rock and roll."

Rock on hallowed ground.

EXODUS AT ISLAND: Island VP of Black Music Kevin Fleming has exited his throne at the house that Blackwell built, leaving the Big Apple-based 'Chelle Seabron running things. The Island Black Music staff is now reduced to almost token status, and rumormongers are wondering whether the label's whole Black Music department and roster will be streamlined into the PolyGram fold. Up-and-coming gunslinger Fleming's future seems EXTREMELY bright, however, with a few labels in the running to ink his executive services.... By the time you read this, MAJOR changes will have gone down at Russell Simmons' mighty Def Jam. We'll run down the specifics next week.... Now that the folks at Jive have renegotiated their distribution deal, they have decided to take matters into their own hands and use their bag of green to start a full-service in-house promotion and marketing department. Look for MONDO executive appointments in the near future.... The new N.E.

INSIDE DOPE

Regional for A&M is the New York-based Larry "Abdullah" Khan, who first gained notoriety by biting Captain Kirk's ear off in Star Trek VII: The Revenge Of The Weasels.... KDKO Denver's PD/MD Terry Hutt has exited, with George Martinez reaching up to grab the MD reigns. The PD slot is still wide open.... Rod C. is the new PD at XHRM in sunny San Diego.... Houston new kid KFMK — The Box is staffing up, with former WCKZ PD Mark Shands getting the programming nod, "Jammin'" Jimmy Olsen handling overnights and the team of Smokey & The Bandit taking on the morning drive.... At D.C.'s WHUR, nighttime jock Joe Gorham, midday charmer Linda Reynolds, and air personality Dave Williams have all exited.... Memphis' KHUL has changed its calls AGAIN. They will now be known as KJMS.... Mikki Spencer is the new morning jock at WHJX.... EVERYBODY'S TALKIN' — Varnell Johnson, B.K. Kirkland & Lynn Poole.

THE EAST BAY WAY

Two facts about rapper Too Short. One, he is short. Two, as a 15-year-old b-boy, he hip hopped from his native Los Angeles to the place he now calls home — East Oakland, California. While fellow NoCal superstar M.C. Hammer has achieved mass appeal with a homogenized hip-hop lite sound, the nasty music of Too Short makes it clear his beats come from streets where his East Bay brother ain't exactly welcome. Still, like Hammer, Short's latest album, "Short Dog's In The House" (Jive/RCA), has proven a commercial smash, selling double-platinum, highlighted by the rappin' cover of the Donny Hathaway classic, "The Ghetto." Too Short talks it like he walks it, which proved a tad disconcerting to HITS' lumbering, very slow, very white guy, Craig "None Too Small" Modderno.

Your tracks are so sparse musically.

It's come to my attention that there aren't a lot of instruments on my records, yeah. I don't know if I did it by accident or if it was on purpose. I feel if you get a real good groove — down-tempo, not dance music — and you just play it over and over, it puts you in sort of a hypnotized mood. My style may be monotonous, but people like it. The key to my music is really the bass. More bass seems to get more people moving.

What distinguishes your rap music?

When I write songs, I like to make an impact every eight lines. When I say something that makes people laugh or grooves them, then I lay on some good music. I try not to corner myself so nobody can say all I do is talk about bitches. I'll do a song like "Dead Or Alive" or "Life's Too Short." I'm into rhymes, which I'm always writing down in my notebook. I like to brag about the fact I have more rhymes in my music than most rap artists.

Why is rap so popular today?

It's the only music that speaks to the people. Everyone else is singing "I love you baby" or "Let me see you dance baby." Rap is actually talking to them. Rappers have just about touched all subjects. We may hear a rap song about the next war upcoming. I rap from the male perspective to a male audience. I like to mix up my vocals, but I never talk down to the audience.

Is there competition between you and M.C. Hammer?

Once upon a time. His thing crossed over to the tune of nine, ten million sold, so in a sense that becomes pop music. People who are really into rappers don't like what he does. He really doesn't have many rap fans. The only thing I like about him is he's from Oakland.

Isn't rap an easy target for the leaders of our country to distract us from the real problems?

I really don't get political, but rap is a big target. These guys don't realize how smart and how popular rap artists are. After losing a big case against 2 Live Crew, they're gonna have a tougher time going against someone like me. It hurts when you've been taught all your life about free speech in America, and now there's a big campaign regarding censorship in all the arts. I think the 2 Live Crew situation was racially motivated, but with this censorship thing, I think these fools are going after everybody now.

What's the future of rap?

You just gotta accept it, and not treat it like a disease.

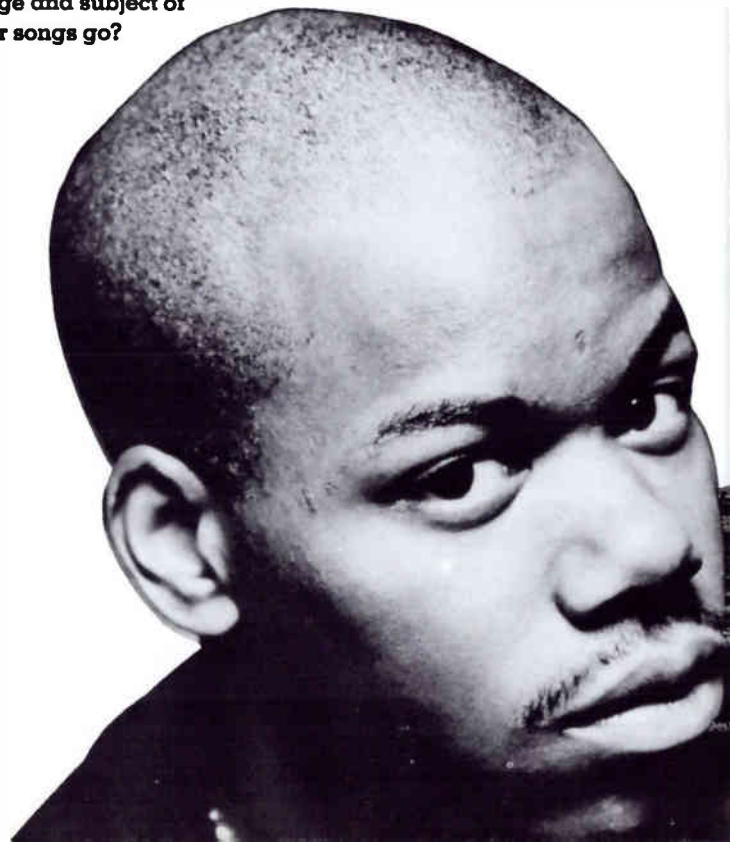

Will up-and-coming rappers continue trying to push the limits, as far as the language and subject of their songs go?

"I try not to corner myself so nobody can say all I do is talk about bitches."

I don't know. Certain rappers can rap dirty or be more political than others, and they've already got their fans. My music is hardcore and people know what I do. Anybody coming up better have their own thing because a lot has already been covered.

While it may be difficult for many people to understand rap, nobody knows how the Oakland A's got swept in the World Series! What went wrong?

[Sighs and removes A's cap from his head.] Man, you gotta blame it on Jose Canseco. The guy gets $23 million and has one hit! He embarrassed everybody in Oakland worse than the Raiders did!

ALL THE NEOBILLY NAMES FIT TO DROP

by Holly Gleason, Nashville

NIGHT OF THE LIVING MANDATE: Garth Brooks rules! Way rules! Totally rules! Thank you. Not like we're surprised by the big sweep, it was Garth's year, bu-u-u-ut winning "Entertainer of the Year" on his first run was astounding. Of course, the Brooks brother invests an energy and excitement into his live performances that's akin to rock & roll — but if you've been paying attention, you already know that... Also, how 'bout Alan "Mr. Taciturn" Jackson's oh-so-brief "Best New Male Vocalist" acceptance speech? Whoa, babe, I think you put that moniker to rest. Still, "Don't Rock The Jukebox" rules... Was anyone else shocked by Shenandoah winning "Group of the Year"? Still, with everything that's piled up against them this year, this may be just the momentum they need... Oh, and way-fave Shelby Lynne's acceptance speech matched Jackson's polemic. Maybe now radio will get to this party a little quicker — she is after all a big, big, big-voiced singer... And finally, let's dwell on the obvious: Dick Clark Productions really knows how to put on an awards show! Thanks to Dick, Bill Boyd and Gene Weed... Ky. HeadHunters went window shopping on Rodeo Drive with E! Entertainment Channel. Hear there were limos actually stopping for autographs... The buzz is on for producer James Stroud... Lyle Lovett makes big screen debut playing a cop opposite Whoopi Goldberg this summer... New Travis Tritt is country, but still packs lotsa muscle. "Here's A Quarter (Call Someone Who Cares)" is heartfelt, but it still cracks me up... Kelly Willis looks seriously cute in this month's Vogue. The new single is "Piece of My Heart" and it's a fairly pulsating piece of desire, if y'know what I mean... Pirates of the Mississippi win "Best New Vocal Group," as that thoughtful song about man's best friend, "Feed Jake," drives sales over 200,000... Could Mark O'Connor be the new Chet Atkins? An instrumentalist who's having a tremendous impact on the face of country, he's a face to watch. Meanwhile "Restless" — featuring Vince Gill, Ricky Skaggs and T. Graham Brown — is one of the most kinetic things on radio... And how 'bout that lovely lingerie shot of Mrs. Bocephus on the inside of "Pure Hank"? Call me humorless, but whoa...

Garth Brooks: Sweeps cleaner than a broom!

NEOBILLY PICKS

by Holly Gleason, Nashville

Hank Williams, Jr., "Totally Hank" (Warner Bros.): Hank Jr. understands the swaggering macho, Southern party animal better than anyone — and it informs boogie-driven numbers like "If It Will It Will" and "Memphis Belle." But there's also a pretty country side to ole Hank ("Angels Are Hard To Find"), a Southern rock element (Lynyrd Skynyrd's "Simple Man") and a marriage of the two (Waylon's "Just To Satisfy You"). And on the ecologically aware tip: "Kiss Mother Nature Goodbye."

T. Graham Brown, "You Can't Take It With You" (Capitol Nashville): A hard singing artist who takes more than a nod from Southern soul, Brown teams with producer Barry Beckett for a project that may finally break him through once and for all. "With His Ring" is a sprightly spring/summer song, while "The Rock" is a deeply moving song of true love and betrayal that's given a gut-wrenching reading. Also watch the title track — it's one of those Hallmark anthems that espouses values that last.

The Blasters, "The Blasters Collection" (Slash/Warner Bros.): From left field comes this wonderful collection of the best of one of L.A.'s finest roots organizations — and please note the source of hits for Jo-Ei Sonnier ("So Long Baby Good-bye") and Dwight Yoakam ("Long White Cadillac").

Check out "Marie Marie," "Border Radio," "Little Honey" or "Help You Dream" for some adventurous night-time programming and let the roughshod magic of Dave and Phil Alvin work.

The Oak Ridge Boys, "Unstoppable" (RCA): One of country music's certified institutions makes its Nipper debut and it's one that finds them in an especially jaunty mood. "Lucky Moon" is the kind of song the Oaks do oh-so-well — it's about trying to make things right before they all fall apart and it works largely due to the group's classic four-part harmonies. Cast in a more contemporary setting, Duane Allen, Joe Bonsall, Steve Saunders and Richard Sterban make a flying leap into the '90s.

NEO-MUGS

NETTY GRITTY'S NEOBILLY DIRT: Capitol Nashville artists The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band exchange salacious Holly Gleason stories shortly after recording a live disc in Alberta to coincide with their 25th anniversary, "Live Two Five." Pictured recalling the first time Holly put her big toe in their crotches are (l-r): Chuck Morris Ent.'s Mark Bliesner, who named the Dead Kennedys; the band's Bob Carpenter, Jeff Hanna, Jimmie Fadden and Jimmy Ibbotson, and producer T. The trio just discovered the tape recorder wasn't running during their last take.

DIFFIE MAKES DENT: Neobilly types marking Epic artist Joe Diffie's second #1 single, "If You Want Me To," from his "A Thousand Winding Roads" LP, try to figure out who stole the "pigs in blankets" at the BMI reception (seated, l-r): Diffie and songwriter Lonnie Williams. ROTH NEVER SLEEPS

Why have you taken so long between album releases?

When I'm gone, I'm truly gone — it's the ZZ Top approach. It's not so much the idea of staying away so that you have impact when you come back, it's because I paint with big easels and we take a lot of chances. If you're going to do that, then the preparation has to be there.

You spent a lot of time in pre-production for this album.

It's not a matter of getting it right — it's a matter of getting it into your bones. When you're trying to compose in the studio, when you're trying to jot words down and edit while you're singing, you're gonna lose that emotional impact that is so all-important. You've got to think of these things well in advance. You have to learn them so that when you play, it's just pure feeling. And if there's a flubbed note or something clanking around in the system, that's the beauty. Every one of us has flaws in the system, cracks in the woodwork. That's what the world sees first and last and talks about when we leave the room. So why shouldn't music? So let's leave that in. Let it drip over your CD player, let the sound spill. It doesn't have to be refined into something unrollable and unsmokable.

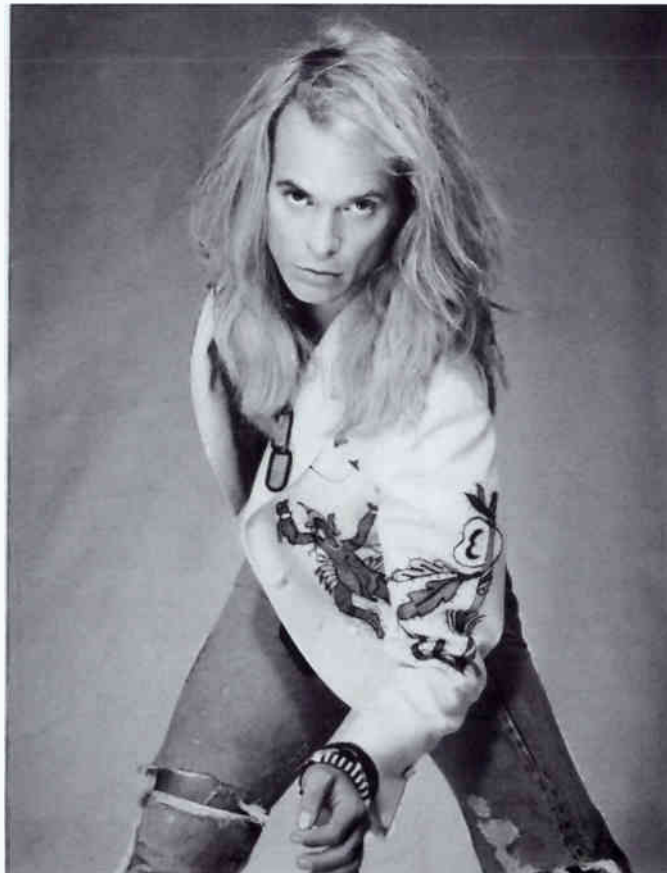

A great many people helped out on this album. Are you hard to work with?

The people I wrote with are different from the people I recorded with, who are different, except for two players, from whom I'm playing with live. One of my players — simply because he plays the best this way — sits down with his legs crossed. It doesn't sound like that at all, and you'd never guess because he sounds airborne. But that's the way he absolutely performs best. Does that sound like a live D.L.R. show to you? No. And this guy would be the first to admit it.

Isn't it a drag to have to find a new guitar wiz for each project?

That's the way I have to do it. That's part and parcel of why Van Halen broke up in the first place. I never expected to be the same person today that I was yesterday or will be tomorrow. Just like your

The fence is high, the house is huge, the pool is Olympic-sized and the lawn seemingly goes on forever. David Lee Roth's Pasadena home is the embodiment of his latest album title, "A Little Ain't Enough." It's his fourth solo release since leaving Van Halen in 1985 in order to perpetuate his image as the Clown Prince of Rock & Roll. He's had the platinum touch since launching his career with Eddle and the boys in '74 and there's nothing in Roth's attitude or demeanor to make you think that he expects anything less from this outing. If anything, his energy level has increased, his jokes are more corny and his attitude is even more in yer face. He may be getting older, but David Lee Roth is getting better. This is one rock & roller who plainly won't slow down until he's dead, which is more than can be said for HITS' three-toed sloth from the Northlands, Perry Stern "Und Drang."

sense of humor changes and your idea of what's sexy changes, your idea of what music is changes. So I'm gonna change musicians. Nobody blinks an eye when Miles Davis does it.

You make a point of risking life and limb when you're not recording or touring, with your trip up the Amazon, the mountain climbing, the canoeing in the South Pacific. Do you take the same kind of risks

In your music?

At any point in time, the space shuttle might blow up. At any point in time, people might totally miss your message and dismiss it for all the wrong reasons. At any given time, the ideas that you're trying to communicate or project may just fall short. You hit the ball and it doesn't even make it to the net. You always face that. And, if that happens a couple of times in a row, you're not even allowed onto the court anymore. They take your record contract and your big P.A. away. It's hard being creative when you're hungry.

Is having to be larger-than-life all the time a chore?

The chore is not submitting to the temptation to start pandering in an effort to continue an image, to get people to think something specific about you. That's an ego problem.

Do you have a stylistic shift like a "Nebraska" album in you somewhere?

I do exactly what I like best at any given time. Consider my influences — musical, cultural, whatever. My life is based on 3 minutes 28 seconds. It's an institution at this point. I like verses and choruses. I like guitar solos that I can play along with in the air while I'm driving. I like harmonies, killer riffs and end-of-the-world drum sounds. I like something you can dance to. The furthest afield I truly felt like going was "Just A Gigolo" and "California Girls." But other than that, I'm not chafing at the bit. It's not the Marvin Gaye story: "I wanna do show tunes!" Just because we visit "Katmandu" for the weekend doesn't mean we're gonna live there.

Will David Lee Roth ever grow up?

I clown around, but I'm not a clown. You're going to have to consider that Bugs Bunny was never made for children and that's why he's still around all these years. I have all that adult stuff. I have a tuxedo. I have a nice Mercedes-Benz — and there's a briefcase in it, too! It's parked right next to my '51 lowrider where, on a non-humid day, you can slip a pack of Kool cigarettes between the back bumper and the pavement!

NEW ARTISTS

Francesca Beghe

Title
"Francesca Beghe"

Label
SBK

This sleek, sophisticated Manhattan-born and raised singer-songwriter grew up immersed in various different musical styles, from gospel to pop to Irish jigs. Originally trained as a pianist, she cut her performing teeth in New York's jazz clubs, covering songs by such diverse artists as Mose Allison, Stevie Wonder and Tom Petty. Her debut was produced by Charlie Mlinight and John Rollo and features such guest musicians as ex-Car Elliot Easton and bassist extraordinaire Fernando Saunders. Beghe cites such primary influences as Aretha Franklin and Betty Carter. "When I was 15, I had my heart broken," she says. "And I started learning Bonnie Raitt songs."

Suggested Cuts

"Heaven Knows" is a torchy showcase for the Beghe pipes set on the streets of Spanish Harlem, which should cross straight from Adult outlets into the Top 40.

Comments:

This week's guest analyst is Massachusetts Senator and sex symbol Ted Kennedy, who said, "Let's take it to the bridge, Francesca baby.... Did you bring your bathing suit?"

Crystal Waters

Title
"Gypsy Woman (She's Homeless)"

Label
Mercury

This Jersey native's father was jazz musician Jr. Waters and her aunt was famed performer Ethel Waters, so it was only natural she'd follow in their footsteps. While at Howard University in Washington, D.C., Crystal began making demos and singing backup on local sessions before crossing paths with the Baltimore-based Basement Boys, who produced "Gypsy Woman," which Crystal wrote about a homeless woman who stood out front of the place where her sister worked singing gospel songs. Originally penned for another artist, Crystal's sparse, Latin-tinged version caused a sensation at this year's Florida Dance Conference, breaking out on dance stations in N.Y.C. and S.F. even before its official release.

Suggested Cuts

"Gypsy Woman (She's Homeless)" is a club smash with excellent Top 40 potential that is already happening in several key markets.

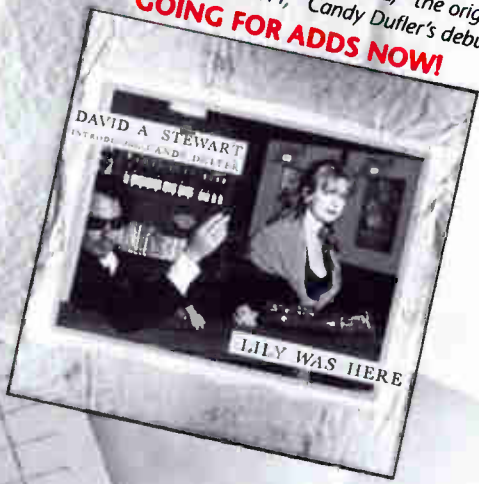

Comments:

Commented Ted: "If you close your eyes, it's almost like you're with my brother. Wanna see my presidential seal boxer shorts?"

It's that moment every interviewer dreads. You've been promised the band's intriguing lead vocalist and lyricist, and your questions are all prepared accordingly. But the phone rings and — whoa! — you're head-to-head with an uppity drummer, who briskly informs you, "If you want to talk to this group, my friend, you talk to me." But hey, this is THE Kitchens Of Distinction, right? You know, crazy new trio on A&M, new record called "Strange Free World" doing alreety on the PoMo charts? Come on, YOU know. Hugh Jones-tempered guitar wash in the postpunk mode, rhythms approximating "Boys Don't Cry" period Cure, and a throat sounding a bit like David Bowie trapped inside a washer on the spin cycle? No? Yeah, well, Kitchens Of Distinction — and that means singer Patrick Fitzgerald, guitarist Julian Swales and persnickety percussionist Dan Goodwin — haven't heard of you either, pal! And they certainly don't know who the heck HITS' NoCal nonentity Tom "Bland" Lanham is.

Heat In The KITCHEN

"I don't know anything about art or poetry, so I just concentrate on music."

Will you guys move out of South London if this record's a hit? Never happen. It never means you make any money at all, really. We haven't had any advances — it's all been spent on the recording of the album. It cost about $80,000, so we have to make that back in royalties before we make any money. And you make about 40 cents on each album you sell, so multiply that times how many thousands of albums you have to move before you make back the record cost. Sounds like a pretty bleak picture. It isn't really. It means that we're at least temporarily able to follow a profession which we enjoy, and that's a brilliant position to be in. Whether or not we're making loads of money is irrelevant at the moment. In the last year or two, we've been a band that's just been making music. Did you have to take day jobs before that? Before this, we were all doing lots of different things. Patrick, as you know, was a doctor for a year, but he gave that up. Julian did office work for a while, then he was on the dole, and I did loads of jobs like clearing out people's homes who'd died. I also programmed computers in a bank, which was hell. Did you have to wear a suit? I had to wear a kind of suit, but I also did various radical things other people didn't do. Like, I'd never have my top button done up, I always wore black trousers and I always had an earring in or something they didn't like. It was like a game, and you don't want to spend your whole life playing stupid games like that. You either jump off a cliff or get out. So you've always been a bit of a rebel? Yeah, that's right. And it's why we can't take most of the music business very seriously — it's a complete heap of shit. What it boils down to in the end is like working for some big company. You've got hierarchies. You've got people who are up the ladder on the business side, and people who look at bands and music as league standings. But the actual sportsmen who are running the track or putting the baskets in, they don't worry about that shit. They just play, and that's what we're like. You just finished your first tour of the States. That's right. In Europe, the words "selling out" and "corruption" have been mentioned more and more. As soon as people knew we were on A&M in America [licensed from the One Little Indian indie], they started getting paranoid, and it's amazing to me. We've gotten letters from fans worried about us selling out to the U.S., saying stuff like, "The Americans were bombing Baghdad — just remember that." But you listen to what your fans have to say. Didn't the album title, "Strange Free World," come from a Japanese girl's fan letter?

The girl who wrote those letters was totally inspirational. I think she's a bit of a genius. She writes these letters with this weird, poetic stuff in them, and she comes up with all these phrases, so we've got the next three or four album titles already.

You said you were happy just playing music in front of people. That way, you can gauge your work on a nightly basis by either the applause or the tomatoes.

Hey, that's a great title as well! It's the kind of thing I don't think many of us get to do in real life. We try to be really honest with each other. That's why I made a big deal about talking to any one of us, because this band is like having a relationship with three people at the same time. We know each other so well, it's sort of like telepathy.

Do you have trouble recreating that big guitar sound on the album live as a trio?

Obviously, there are some melodic parts we're not able to do. So Julian will just play the main idea of the song without all the other counter-melodies he might've written. But he uses a variety of effects pedals that transform the guitar into a shimmering beast, to paraphrase some of our British press. I don't know anything about art or poetry, so I just concentrate on music. I'm probably a bit of a music bore. But you've still managed to retain that enthusiasm.

Hopefully we can retain some sort of balance and sanity, which is our main goal. It's above making money and being successful — it's about achieving a fantasy and at the same time saying to everybody else, "Fk you." While making good records, of course. Just like Spinal Tap. *

There are so many diverse musical elements within "Sadness." How did you come up with this unique synthesis? I've had a great many of these basic ideas in my head for the last ten years or so — I don't know which came first. To me, it's like fulfilling a dream. I always wanted to make a kind of instrumental album, but not in the usual way — I wanted to use voices as instruments. Another idea I had was to make a record that went against all the rules. I wanted to combine new age music with black rhythms. One of the most important things I tried to do was turn back to the music of the '70s — the concept album, the feeling of meditation, of trance, like you had listening to bands like Pink Floyd. I attempted to bring back some values to music that we've lost over the last 20 years. I also wanted to make a record that didn't just contain songs — I wanted a record of moods. The album's structure is totally strange — it starts and doesn't stop until the end.

Did you record the Gregorian chants yourself, or did they come from someplace else?

A friend of mine recorded them. I am from Bucharest, Romania, and one of my best friends there does soundtrack type projects. Since I knew there were lots of good churches in Romania, I told my friend what I wanted and he went out and recorded it for me. He sent me the tapes and I chose what I wanted to use.

So the chants were recorded in a church, not in the studio?

I don't know exactly, but I'm sure some were done in the studio and some in church. I don't really know which are which.

"I've always believed there's a big difference between sensuality and sexuality."

"Sadness" is a real paradox. Layered under the Gregorian chants, there's a female voice rapping in French about the life and times of the Marquis de Sade — not exactly known as a religious icon.

When I started to record the song, I wanted the sounds to be different

OUT OF THE SADE-OWS

The shroud of mystery surrounding Enigma has been lifted. The enormously successful European dance tune "Sadness" — which combines Gregorian chants, a sultry French rap and a beat you can dance to (We'll give it an 80) — is credited to one Michael Cretu, a 33-year-old Romanian-born and Munich-educated composer who until now was known primarily for his production work on dance hits recorded by his wife Sandra. "Sadness" has hit #1 in 14 countries, was the fastest climber in German chart history, and entered the Belgium charts at numero uno, a feat never before accomplished. Here in America, the album and single have crossed over from the clubs and PoMo charts into the Top Ten. It's the biggest melding of new age and pop subcultures since Yanni started channeling Linda Evans. Speaking (in exceptional English) from his island home in Spain, Cretu hesitantly takes the spotlight, preferring to remain behind the board, which is where he found HITS' own Chairman of the Bored, Brian "Riff Raff" Griffith.

but parallel. I wanted to combine these really strange words — the kind that if I told them to you, you'd say they'd never fit. It was a challenge to write the words. Two years ago, I saw a talk show in Paris about the Marquis, and I was surprised to learn that many people think he was very important in French literature — not for his content, but for his style. They had these professors from the French Academy, and it was a funny discussion, with one saying the Marquis was a pig and a pervert, and the other saying he was only trying to take revenge on the people of the time because they had no morals. I then read a biography, and that's where the title "Sadness" came from. It's a play on words because he really was a sad man. He spent a third of his life in prison for his writings. I wanted to show those conflicts against the backdrop of religion vs. sexuality — thus, the chanting. I wanted the album to sound sensuous. I've always believed there's a big difference between sensuality and sexuality. I realized the French language would sound much better. That's my wife on the record, by the way — she did the demo, and it sounded so good that we kept it.

Do you have any plans to tour? Maybe next year. It won't be possible before then because I have strange ideas for the concert, too. I want a very unusual concert for this unusual record. I also hope to finish a new album first.

The single was a big club hit, but it seemed to break practically simultaneously at radio. That's right. The club success went parallel with radio. In German, it was like an explosion — it went to "[The album] is like an addiction.

If you hear it once, you have to listen again and again."

#1 in 28 days. I believed the song would be successful, but I never thought it would hit so hard. It's like an earthquake. It's really more than music, and I think it's so big because of the feeling of the album. It's like an addiction. If you hear it once, you have to listen again and again.

BREAKOUTS

Hot new or resurging albums as reported by the nation's leading record merchandisers

It's a big week for the folks at Columbia as they grab the top two slots, with mass appeal star Michael Bolton grabbing top honors followed close by Post Modern darlings Fishbone. Arista's Grateful Dead multi-artist tribute set comes in third, with the latest from the Doobie Bros. (their second release for Capitol) taking fourth. Joe Walsh is pulling some out of the box mentions, while Firehouse continues to grow and spread.

WAVELENGTH

by Lenny Beer & Mike Murphy

Former Pirate Radio PD Mark Todd nailing the PD slot at WKBQ St. Louis. Todd's mid-west background makes him a natural for this job where he should fare well..... In Chicago, the much-rumored demise of Ric Lippincott at Z95 (or whatever the hell they're calling themselves this week) went down. We don't usually like to editorialize regarding management decisions, but Lippincott appears the victim of choices at the top that took the station on a format rollercoaster. We wish Ric the best in the future. Word has it that WLUM Milwaukee's Greg Cassidy and Z100 NY's Shadow Steele will be interviewed..... Format change update: Dallas' Y95 now "feeling the energy" as PWR95 fielding dance and Pomo. KZZP

Phoenix now KVRY (Variety 104.7) playing the "best music of the 70s, 80s and 90s." (Ed note: excuse us if we barf)..... Ops mgr. John Clay exits Q105 Tampa..... Dennis Reese exits WABB Mobile. He'll surface quickly..... Congrats to first-time PD Dave Denver whose numbers at WOVV West Palm soared 40%..... Marc Cohn's single now pulling big phones. Watch out major market PDs..... Pat Paxton from WKEE Huntington nails down the WOMX Orlando PD slot..... Tom Casey finally and officially grabs a much deserved promotion to PD at KJMZ Dallas..... WCKZ Charlotte's Mark Shands to KBXX Houston as PD..... Is WWNK Cincy about to join the Top 40 club?..... MOJO NY ups MD Mike Preston to APD, Todd Kelli (formerly Schnitt) prog coordinator/production dir and known on air as "Humpty Hump", and Adam Goodman creative services dir. Scott named GOD..... Now that LL Cool J is established in the majors, pulling phones, selling and ready to go for volume, watch for Yo-Yo to follow quickly in its path..... PD Tom Browne out at B98 Ft. Smith with MD Willie Stevens adding PD duties and Mark Scott upped to Ops mgr..... WKSS Hartford MD Chris Welsh resigns to pursue his syndicated show, "Supermixx."..... MD JJ Riley adds APD duties at WRQN Toledo..... Two great instrumentals out this week: Candy Duffer on Arista and the "Dances With Wolves" theme on Epic. Check them out.....

Blowin' In The Wind: Tom Fricke, KBOZ, Jerry Rogers, Don London, Brian Thomas, Mike McGowan and Gnarly Charley..... And here's Mark Todd, heading to St. Louis to hang with the Cards.
