Stuart Foster, stranded when Tom Dorsey junked his band after a New York Theater date last month, returned to California and joined Bobby Sherwood's band as vocalist. It's significant that Sherwood is also a singer and that TD happens to own the ballroom in which Sherwood's crew is playing. Lynne Stevens and Phil Washburne, trombonist, also handle an occasional vocal with Bobby. But Foster is getting top billing under the leader.

Cab Calloway will probably be the Avodon Ballroom attraction in April.

Les Brown, still vacillation at his Beverly Hills home, has gained 11 pounds since quitting the road and his doc has put him on a diet. Les will reorganize soon with Butch Stone, Jimmy Zito, Ted Nash and others returning to key chairs. Right now Les is all wrapped up in building a classical record library. He's buying albums by the dozens.

Dave Barbour's recent illness, following a stomach operation, threw a scare into everyone who knew him even slightly. He had at least eight transfusions before he passed the critical stage. And five doctors.

The Scamps, a Kansas City combo, signed Capitol contract. Four men and a girl sing and play a dozen instruments in a knocked-out manner.

Bill Willard of AFRS, Announcer Gene Norman and top bands and singers are presenting sort "in person" shows every Monday at Vets' Hospital in Pasadena. The shows are recorded and sent overseas to men still in service.

Harry Owens reorganizing a band.

Gene Autry is busy on a Republic picture in North Hollywood. . . Spade Cooley planning a fast cross-country tour soon with 25 in his troupe. . . Jimmy Wakely is back in Hollywood again, splitting his chores between Monogram Pictures and recording for Capitol.
ALARMED OVER what they term an “invasion and encroachment upon our jobs,” 20 prominent Los Angeles radio jockies have organized and are setting up a plan which, they hope, will discourage bandleaders from becoming disc-whirlers and endangering their own vocations.

The jockies have been meeting every Tuesday night in Hollywood and only two, Al Jarvis and Maurice Hart, are reported uncooperative. It all started in January when Woody Herman took over Jarvis’ Saturday three-hour KLAC session. The other jocks, indignant that Herman would compete with them, agreed to ban the airing of Herman’s records.

Herman, however, continues on the KLAC program every Saturday and Al Donahue, Tommy Dorsey, Bob Crosby and other maestri are said to be seeking similar berths with independent stations in the L.A. area. The jockies also are setting up a code of ethics which will prohibit free plugs and other “abuses” to which they are regularly subjected.

Jarvis and Hart argue that a band leader has a perfect right to spin records, if he chooses. Herman considers the whole thing a gag. But the jocks, including men like Bill Anson, Carl Bailey, Ted Lenz and Pete Potter, are plenty hot under the collar.

Tommy Pederson Forming a Band

And now it is Tommy Pederson, trombonist, who is building a big band. The former Rubeburn slide man, booked by Wm. Morris, has been rehearsing a crew which features Billie Rogers, trumpeter and singer, and Corky Corcoran on tenor.

Pederson said he was trying to land the Monday night Palladium job which Opie Cates has held for two years. But nothing was definitely set at press time. Corcoran will probably rejoin Harry James when Harry gets rolling again shortly.

Johnson on Central Ave.

The tom-toms of Cee-Pee Johnson, and the Johnson band, opened at the Down Beat Club on Central Avenue in Los Angeles Feb. 5. The leader has a contract calling for eight weeks at the nitery.
Kenton Eyes Pacific Coast One-Nighters

Coming out of the L.A. Avondor Ballroom on March 3, Stan Kenton's band goes into the Pacific Northwest for a long series of one-nighters starting March 4 in Santa Barbara.

The tour, with June Christy, the Pastels, Vido Musso, Kai Winding, Eddie Safranski, Shelly Manne and the other Kenton regulars hitting one city after another, shapes up like this:

Hanford, March 5; San Jose, 6; Stockton, 7; Sacramento, 8; Municipal Auditorium in San Francisco, 9; Marysville, 10; Eureka, 11; Salem, Ore., 12; Portland, 13; Seattle, 14; Bellingham, Wash., 15; Seattle (concert), 16; Vancouver, B. C., 17; Wenatchee, 18; Spokane, 19; Walla Walla, 20; Klamath Falls, 21; Oakland, week of 22 to 27 at Sweet's Ballroom; Fresno, 28; Long Beach, 29.

Kenton then will spend three full days recording for Capitol in Hollywood before striking out, in April, for a Texas tour that will keep his group in the Lone Star state through April 23.

Unlike many another top maestro, Kenton feels he should take his band on the road and play even the smaller towns where big name attractions are never seen. "Personal appearances," he says, "are the lifeblood of a band or a singer. But most bandleaders dread the road. We'll play anywhere if the fans want us."

The rumored marriage of Miss Christy to Bob Cooper, Kenton's tenor saxist, went off in lavish style on Jan. 14. While in Hollywood this trip the band also made a two-reel musical short at RKO Studios.

Bigard Fronting Another Quintet

Bouncing back into nitery work after a brief fling in the movies, Barney Bigard opened in February at the Melodee Club in Los Angeles with a new quintet in which Bob Bain is featured on guitar, Bruce McDonald, piano; Jimmy Landrith, drums, and Bob Stone, bass, round out the combo, with Barney setting the pace on clarinet.

Bigard is seen in the new "New Orleans" picture as a member of Louis Armstrong's band. For several years, since he quit the Ellington unit in 1942, Bigard has made L.A. his permanent home.
Bingo! Crosby Lands Peggy Lee

New Wald Ork Jumps Lightly

Faring well on his current stand at Ciro’s on the Sunset Strip in Hollywood, Jerry Wald and his new string band are reviving memories of the original Artie Shaw combo of 1936. The music is soft, but it swings.

Wald is featuring dark-haireded Nick DeLano, a Dave Hudsons discovery, as male vocalist. Most prominent among Jerry’s sidemen are members of the rhythm section, including Nick Pellico on drums, Ray Sherman, piano; Jess Bourgeois, bass, and Tony Rizzi, guitar. They’ve played with all the name bands.

Gene Sherry is holding down the French horn chair and Jerry is using only one trumpet, played by Red Borden. Three fiddles, a viola and a ’cello round out the personnel. The group just completed work in Columbia’s film, Broadway Baby, a Sammy Katzman production. The leader’s Shavian-styled clarinet takes care of the bulk of the solo spots.

Les Brown Drummer Opens His Own Shop

Dick Shanahan, for several years the drummer in Les Brown’s band, has opened his own tub shop in Los Angeles. The young paradijndall paddles equipment and gives lessons. His shop is at Melrose and Cahuenga. Dick expects to rejoin Les Brown when Brown reorganizes shortly and will then operate his establishment by remote control, he said.

‘Richard’ Band Hires New Trumpet Player

Jack McVea hired Sammy Yates to replace Joe Kelley on trumpet last month as the band was cashing in on its daffy “Open the Door, Richard” version. McVea, a former Lionel Hampton saxophonist, is one of the six composers of the tune.

Auld Drops Plans for Hollywood Disc Shop

After much talk and investigation of locations, Georgie Auld suddenly abandoned plans to open his own record store in L.A. and returned to N.Y. in February. He had even signed a lease and

Dave Barbour Also Signed by Philco

Recovering rapidly from a major stomach operation, Dave Barbour was back in action in mid-February with his guitar. His wife, Peggy Lee, meanwhile came to terms with Philco and is now being featured every Wednesday on Bing Crosby’s transcribed airshow.

Crosby and Philco, in signing Peggy for the top fem vocal slot, also were eager to put Barbour’s signature on the same contract so that his box—amplified electrically on some tunes—can back Peggy in the manner in which she’s so long been accustomed.

Carlos (Tone Deaf in the Market) Gastel, who manages Peggy and Dave, also revealed that negotiations for the Lee-Barbour combination to take over the entire program for the summer, while Crosby vacations in England, are progressing nicely and that contracts for same are “more than likely” to be signed by March 10.

Peggy’s latest coiffure (see photo) also is attracting comment in Hollywood these days.

Gerald Wilson’s Band Current at Berg’s Club

The trumpet of Gerald Wilson, his band and Mabel Scott, singer, replaced Louis Jordan’s group at Billy Berg’s Hollywood nitery in early February. Tiny Brown, singing bassist who worked with Slim Gaillard two years, leads the new intermission trio.

Art Kassel Goes East

Following his long run at the Aragon Ballroom in Ocean Park, Art Kassel took his orchestra back east and will open on March 11 at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee.
Andy Russell Planning Big Mexican Movie

His role in "Copacabana" movie finished, Andy Russell this month was negotiating to star in a Mexican motion picture to be produced below the Rio Grande this summer.

Russell, still heard Saturdays via CBS on the Hit Parade program with Mark Warnow's music and alternating fem canaries as guests, said that the Mexican flicker would be directed by Larry Ceballos and would shape up as a "modern" version of "Don Quixote."

Two Versions of the Film
"Most of the exterior scenes for the picture will be filmed in the resort town of Tortino," said Russell. "The interior scenes will be made in Mexico City, where lavish studios comparable to Hollywood's finest are in use every day. The preliminary plans call for a Spanish and an English version of the same film, with a different supporting cast for each."

Lina Romay, MGM star who has been rumored for a role opposite Russell, probably won't sign contracts for the Mexican venture. MGM is likely to prohibit it.

"Sugar King" Backs Picture
The "angel" behind the Mexican movie is said to be Cristides Fernandez, a fabulously wealthy sugar planter. It will be Andy's first job below the border, although he has spoken Spanish fluently since he was 5.

Garland Finney Dies; Four Others Go, Too

Death struck the west coast last month at the same time several prominent musicians were dying in the east.

Garland Finney, for many years a popular California jazz pianist and member of Local 767 of Los Angeles, succumbed to a heart attack. News also reached here that former Woody Herman trumpeter, Sonny Berman, just 21; veteran riverboat pianist, Fate Marable; Dixieland trombone player George Lugg and Sammy Kaye vocalist, Arthur Wright, had died in other sections of the U. S.

Fio Rito Reorganizes
Ted Fio Rito, pianist and tunicletcher, reorganized in February and opened with his new combo of 11 men at the Imig Manor in San Diego.

Practice dominates Benny’s afternoons despite the interruptions of his daughters. At left, Jess Stacy drops in to run over a sextet arrangement for BG’s Monday night NBC program with Victor Borge. Goodman practices Mozart daily, along with the blues.

The mailbox at the door of the friendly red house on Cashmere Street in Westwood Station, Los Angeles, simply reads “Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Goodman.” And inside, one finds a happy family group that is preponderantly feminine surrounding the world’s greatest clarinetist, BG himself, the Benny whose spectacular musicianship and artistic integrity changed the course of American popular music. At 37, Goodman still tops them all after 11 years as the King. These photos, by Gene Lester, reveal the BG of 1947 as he has never before been pictured.

Father Goodman now devotes his attention—and efforts—to his daughter Rachel. She’ll soon be four; between Rachel, Benjie and his wife Alice, Goodman is pretty well inundated with feminine charm. Ah, but comes nightfall... the youngsters are in bed and all’s quiet. Pappy turns on the radio, grabb a mag, lights his pipe and latches a batch of solid comfort. “This,” says Benny, “is what I’ve dreamed of for years.”

Gardener by choice, now that he can enjoy real home life after 20 years of travel, Benny transplants seedlings in the rear of his house. The pose may appear phoney, but Benny really enjoys pottering among flowers and pitchforks. Another BG ritual is taking his daughter Benjie, 10 months old, for a daily airing. That’s Benny and Benjie in photo at right lapping up gorgeous gobs of February sunshine.
Race is On to Film Life Of Tchaikovsky

What happens when two movie producers bob up with the same idea for a musical?

One beats the other producing it or one abandons his idea when he learns his rival is closer to the finish wire. This month, in Hollywood, it looks as if the Glazer-Finston team is a cinch to beat Producer Hal Wallis in bringing the life of Peter Ilyitch Tchaikovsky to the screen.

Benny Goodman and Nat Finston are just finishing the scripts for "The Magic Symphony" feature which Monogram will release late this year. Wallis, an independent producer, is just starting with his version, "The Life of Tchaikovsky," which he probably won't complete until the end of the year. Paramount will distribute it.

Wallis says he will stick "pretty closely" to the true facts of Tchaikovsky's career. Glaser and Finston apparently have many liberties. Both films, however, will lean heavily on the Russian composer's works, with "Romeo and Juliet," "Swan Lake" and the "Nutcracker Suite" getting a heavy Going-over on the soundtracks.

Wallis asserts he fears the "Tragic Symphony" picture not in the least even though it will be playing theaters coast to coast. He says Wallis can even finish his production, "Competition," he says, "has never hurt a good idea."

Eckstine Coming West—Or Is He?

Billy Eckstine will open at Billy Berg's on Hollywood's Vine Street on March 12. If everything goes well, that is.

Eckstine was having his troubles as this issue of the Cap News went to press. He and members of his band were involved in a riot in a Boston club and then exctine himself was talked on another charge in New York. Police got Billy's name on their bittors in both cases.

Eckstine also has been reported ready to abandon his band and try the movies. Berg claims the March 12 opening is all set, however, and many an Eckstine fan in Los Angeles will be awaiting his arrival. He may be doing a single. No one is quite sure.

Gang of 'Supermen' Perform In Paul Weston's Orchestra

West coast music fans are enthusiastic in proclaiming that Paul Weston's orchestra is packed with more topflight names than any other band regularly featured on records and network broadcasts.

Hand-picked by Weston, who several years ago was himself chief of Tommy Dorsey's arranging staff, the musicians in the PW band include Herbie Haymer, Marty Matlock, Freddie Stulce, Hap Lawson and Lennie Hartman in the reed section; Ray Linn, Zeke Zarchy, Don Anderson and Charlie Griffard, trumpeters; Bill Schaeffer, Elmer Smithers, Al Thompson and Carl Loeffler, trombones. The rhythm section is equally as brilliant, man for man, with Nick Fatol firmly established in the percussion chair, George Van Epps on guitar, Jack Ryan on bass and Milt Raskin at the Steinway.

Add a harp and nine strings and it all adds up "Weston."

Paul waves his wand every Tuesday and Thursday over the group via NBC on the Jo Stafford program, with the Starlighters and Martin Block. The same band appears backstage Weston on all of Paul's Cap waxings.

Benny Goodman in Capitol Debut; Mercer Teams Up to Chant Lyrics

(Photos on pages 8 and 9)

after eight years on another label, Benny Goodman will make his recording debut on Capitol the week of March 10-17 with four extraordinary sides by his full orchestra.

Goodman will couple two Mary Lou Williams originals, "Lonely Moments" and "Whistle Blues" to form his first Capitol record, a disc which will go down in the books as No. 374, Benny's clarinet carries the solo load.

Then Come Verses by Mercer

Then Johnny Mercer will join BG on another new etching, No. 376, to sing the vocals in front of the jumping Goodman ensemble. The tunes include "It Takes Time" and "Moon-Faced, Stamy-Eyed," latter dirty deed from the sock "Street Scene" Broadway show.

The Mercer-Goodman collaboration will mark their first waxing together, since they grooved Count Basie's "Sent for You Yesterday" for Victor. At that time they were co-featured on a radio show sponsored by Camel Cigarettes.

Benny has been living quietly, at his home in Westwood a few miles west of Hollywood, since the radio engagement, and plans to remain on the west coast until April, at least. With him are his wife Alice, their daughters Rachel and Benjie, and their dog, Muffin.

Accordions in His New Sextet

Benny, who is known for his taste in young talent, on the success ladder since 1935, when his struggling young band suddenly clicked on an engagement at the old Paramount Ballroom in Los Angeles, will also record with his new sextet for Capitol.

The latest edition of the sextet features an accordion player by Ernie Filice, a young Californian who has been bandleading with his group for three years. Monday nights the past month via NBC on the Mobilgas show with Victor Borge, Filice gets a stronger sound than other box-squeezers, and Benny indicated he would keep Filice as a permanent star of the small combo.

Jesse Stacy at the Steinway

The Goodman orchestra also is packed with extraordinary musicians. Stacy, who covers the keyboard in both the band and sextet, Old-timer Sam Weiss, who drummed on BG's first records more than a decade ago, again is holding down the percussion chair. Babe Russin, Heine Beau, Red Ballard, Lou Mac

FIRST ACCORDION pusher ever to be featured by Benny Goodman is young Ernie Filice, who is starred by BG in the sextet. Ernie and his box made their debut with Benny on Goodman's Monday night NBC program from Hollywood. It's a happy combination.

'March 20' Fans

from the broadcast with the musicians of Johnny Thompson, Dave Cavanaugh, Bill Gillette and George Siravo.

Art Lund is definitely out of the band. Goodmen disclosed, Benny had a contract with the big baritone but abrogated it last month and Lund now is starting out as a single with a motion picture picture about to be signed. Peculiarly enough, Lund then signed Freddy Goodman, Benny's younger brother, as personal manager. The parting of Lund and BG was amicable, both declared.

The new Capitol contract with Benny is for several years. Benny will be given considerable leeway as to the material he will play and it's probable that he will come through with discs featuring everything from a hot trio to a symphony.

The band—and sextet—are playing no one-nighters and none are contemplated. Benny intends to concentrate on recording and radio. Nor will Goodman play a ballroom during his current west coast stay.

'Celestino' Pops Up With New Ork

Newest Latin-American orchestra to take shape in Hollywood is the one which last month made its debut at the Avocado Ballroom as an intermission band. The leader, Celestino, is no stranger to Filmtown, however.

Featuring Jose Salaus on trumpet and Phil Arturo, alto saxophonist, Celestino turns out to be a singing guitarist who for many years has been prominent on the west coast as Cecile Burke. Born in Hawaii, Burke has alternately conducted jumps, a three-tet hotel combos and all types of musical aggregations.

'Ghost' for Hermann

Bernard Hermann, who is in no way related to Woody, is tackling the NBC-Capitol Broadcasting with a composing original score for 20th-Fox's "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir."
The End of an Era; Be-Bop Is Dead in Southern California

Note to bands and musicians planning to come to Hollywood: No be-boppers wanted!

That's the situation in Southern California these days. Only two noted be-bop instrumentalists are still around. They are Howard (Trumpet) McGee and Lucky (Tenor) Thompson. A year ago, when the craze hit its full strength, there were hundreds. Neither McGee, who apes Dizzy Gillespie, nor Thompson now is working steadily.

Radio jockeys are admittedly bored with be-bop jazz, and even youthful hotrocks like Gene (KFWB) Norman and Alex (KXLA) Cooper have tapered off to a point where a Bird or a Diz is rarely heard via the airwaves.

It Started Two Years Ago

It all started on the west coast when Coleman Hawkins and Howard McGhee arrived in Hollywood in February of 1945. Fresh from New York's 52nd Street, they came on like Ava Gardner with their scintillating improvisations, voicing a tenor and a trumpet in fast unison passages. A month later King Gillespie arrived, and although he did such poor business at Berg's that he was dropped after four weeks and forced to return to New York, his influence on young musicians hereabouts was incredibly powerful.

The race was on by April of 1945. Boyd Raeburn tried to offer "big band" be-bop, but except for a single so-so engagement at the Morocco, was unable to get a booking. All through 1946 the moppet trumpet players imitated Dizzy's gyrating horn; the kid saxophonists ran chromatic scales and considered themselves the equal of Charlie Parker himself.

Even Kenton Drops It

In recent months the craze, as all crazes must, ran its course and slowed to a dirge. Red Nichols is now doing the biggest business in Hollywood, at the same Morocco Club where Raeburn once held forth. Gerald Wilson, who for a time tried be-bop and then discarded it for a more melodic and musical style, has Berg's to himself—and he isn't imitating Diz. Stan Kenton features five powerful trumpeters and not a one is be-bopping at the Avodon.

Not a single be-bop orchestra is auditioning for work today in Hollywood. No records are being made, at this writing. In short, whatever happened to it?

Be-Bop Concerts a Flop

Slim Gaillard is lost in oblivion, Harry (The Hipster) Gibson hasn't been mentioned in a year, Parker can't seem to get started since his breakdown last fall, McGhee and Lucky Thomson are scuffling and the dozens of "authorities" who promote jazz concerts are learning that the "wrong note" musicians are having to learn music—jazz— all over again. Box-office and be-bop simply don't mix. At least at the moment, in Southern California.

GIL NEWSOME has been in radio since 1934. It shows in his work, too, because he has four shows of his own now over KWK in St. Louis, including "Bandstand Revue," "First Five," "ABC Club" and "Teen-Thirty Club" ranging from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. Gil left the "Spotlight Bands" and "Double or Nothing" network programs to accept his St. Louis slot, putting in a year and a half in the army in the meantime. No dilettante when it comes to music on wax. Newsome has been collecting records 15 years. He plays all kinds of music for KWK listeners.

Donahue, Miller Open Disc Shops

Al Donahue, vet maestro, and Eddie Miller, for 15 years one of the greatest tenor saxists in the business, joined the ranks of platter merchants last month in Los Angeles.

Donahue opened his own record store near the Los Angeles City College campus with his manager, Frankie Walsh, assuming partial ownership. Miller, who for the last year has been blowing his horn almost exclusively in the studio orchestra under Alfred Newman's baton at 20th Century-Fox, unshuttered his wax shop in the San Fernando Valley, just a few miles outside Hollywood.

Sinatra Back on Air

Frank Sinatra was expected back in Hollywood on the last day of February to return to his Old Golds radio program, which, a month earlier, he and the sponsors had decided to conclude. After a vacation, Sinatra resumes as a smoke peddler Wednesdays over CBS.

SHE'S HARD to recognize, dressed like this, but the few hundred people who crowd NBC to see Jane Russell sing with Kay Kyser's orchestra learn that the lady—while away from the cameras—looks just about like any other attractive young wife. She's married to Bob Waterfield, quarterback on the Los Angeles Rams. Kyser, at right, looks as if he's well aware of Mr. Waterfield in this candid portrait taken in the studio. Texas Tour Skedded For King Cole Trio in May

"Hotter" than ever before at the box-office, the King Cole Trio swings into Texas following its March-April tour of eastern theaters for a series of concerts starting May 2 in Austin.

The concerts are the same that Duke Ellington's band played a season or so back. San Antonio is set for May 5, Waco on the 6th, Fort Worth on the 7th and Dallas on May 8.

Before hitting Texas, however, Nat Cole, Johnny Miller and Oscar Moore will play theaters in Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and starting March 20 for two weeks, the big Chicago Theater in the Windy City. Every Saturday they'll broadcast their own Wildroot show from whatever house they happen to be playing. It's heard over NBC.

Cole advises that his trio will arrive in Hollywood in late May and spend most of the summer months in sunny California.

DUKE ELLINGTON and band due on west coast again in June.

Jerry Colonna will be seen in next Bing Crosby-Bob Hope flicker, "The Road to Rio."

Al and Marilyn Jarvis expecting a young wax-whirler shortly.

Skitch Henderson drew an acting role in "A Miracle Can Happen." Which proves it really can.

Denny Beckner brought his band into the Aragon Ballroom on Feb. 24. He played the same spot two years ago.

Max Miller's Chicago trio, making its debut at the Swanee Inn in Hollywood last month, highlights Miller's piano and vibes, bass by Tom Scully and Jack Flanagan on guitar.

Doris Ostrander, "unknown" composer who collabed with Joe Alexander and Vance May on the new ballad "I Keep Telling Myself," turns out to be private secretary to Movie Magnate Robert Riskin. Alexander recorded it, for Capitol, and other discs will follow.

Nadia Reisenberg, pianist, arrived in L.A. Benny Goodman considers her the best 88'er around and plays legit stuff with her frequently for kicks.

The Hoo-Jee Hot Shots, cornball combo, signed new film contract with Columbia calling for four pix a year for four years.

Former Benny Goodman trumpeter Tommy DeCarlo made his debut on Feb. 7 at Pontrelli's Ballroom in downtown Los Angeles as leader of a new 8-piece dance combo, DeCarlo, who books himself, is set at the room for as long as he wants to stay playing weekends only. Until his new band opened the spot employed rumble bands exclusively.

Margaret Whiting is preparing an entire album of songs—her own favorites—for release this fall.

Vaughn Monroe's ork set at Palladium through March 15.
Tony Martin and Dave Rose Will Sub for Cantor

Two Hollywood veterans will take over for Eddie Cantor when the Pabst show enters the summer hiatus period soon. Tony Martin, who for many weeks was rumored to be replacing Frank Sinatra for Old Golds, will co-star with the orchestra of David Rose for the 13-week period through the warm months.

Martin has been featured on a dozen network programs in the last decade. He hit the national limelight after a stint with Tom Gerun’s band as a singing saxophonist. Rose, former musical director of the Don Lee west coast net, also has been prominent in radio for many years. He and Martin have done their share of film work also.

Martin and Rose checked out of the profession during the war to wear army khaki.

Cantor, on whose program Margaret Whiting has been featured as vocalist since last October, will return in the fall to head up the cast again for the beer-maker. It’s an NBC offering.

There are scars on Louie’s chest, too. But he considers himself lucky. “You know,” he confided, “somebody might have gotten hurt.”

Bob Allen, baritone long featured with the late Hal Kemp’s crew and as a baton twirler himself, hopped on the Carmen Cavallaro bandwagon and will chant the lyrics with heavy billing.

Marilyn Hare off to Las Vegas to sing at Hotel Biltmore.

Chick Floyd at the Town House took on Linda Lombard as canary.

Lillian Lane married John Halliburton, musician, in Hollywood. Both are former Tex Beneke attractions.

Jane Harvey, former Benny Goodman thrush, is sharing the spotlight at Ciro’s with Jerry Wald’s new string orch and Don Alfredo’s rumba unit.

Joe Carioca and his boys will be seen in “The Road to Rio” playing atmosphere music.

MGM inked Emmy Lou Welch for a spot in “The Birds and the Bees.”

Stan Kenton wants it made known, to all who are interested in his new vocal quintet, the Pastels, that Dave Lambert coached and trained the combo for its heavy recording schedule and current run at the L.A. Avadon.

Tex Ritter Hits Jackpot; '47 Will Be His Big Year

By LEE GILLETTE

ABOARD THE SUPER-CHIEF (By Stagecoach Courier Special Delivery)—Rolling along over the plains between New York and Los Angeles, the news of the month in the western folk music field appropriately centers around the fabulous career of Tex Ritter. If the months to come in 1947 prove half as fruitful—and exciting—as the first two have proven, then Ritter will certainly enjoy the greatest year of his career.

It all started on Jan. 8 when Tex became a father. His son is named Thomas Matthews Ritter and he's ready to rope already. Then came a week at the L.A. Million Dollar Theater, where regular vaudeville is now just a memory. Tex broke it up, and at the box-office, too. Then the government notified Tex that his application for a radio station in San Bernardino had been accepted. Finally, a major studio popped up with a boffo offer for Ritter to make a series of westerns. Ritter now is planning a tour of Texas and Oklahoma. And the wheel of fortune is spinning like crazy—in his favor.

Stone's "My Pretty Girl"

Cliffie Stone's first record for Capitol was such a success that they've re-released another—but fast. On his new etching Cliffie features a vocal trio, the Three Stepping Stones, who render—render, that is—"My Pretty Girl." The other side is an instrumental version of the old favorite, "Tiger Rag." Cliffie also is hitting the jackpot with his original songs, and of course he continues his heavy radio schedule over L.A. stations.

Wesley Tuttle's new band opened at the Painted Post in the San Fernando Valley. He's doing a bang-up job, they say, and doubling with Stone on Cliffie's KXLA programs.

Spencer Ork Has Job

Earle Spencer and his "mystery band" are playing weekends at Joe Zucca's Meadowbrook, in nearby Culver City. The contract called for four weekends starting Feb. 7.

Wedo Marasco in Town

Wedo Marasco, alto saxist with Vaughn Monroe who operates a booming record store of his own in Ansonia, Conn., is in H'wood with Monroe's ork. Wedo's wife runs the store while he's on the road.

MEET THE JOCKEY!

JACK WILSON spins 'em every morning, from midnight to 5 a.m., on Louisville's powerful WHAS, using Kenton's "Painted Rhythm" as his theme. Jack regularly receives mail from as far away as Tokio, New Zealand and the Baffin Islands. Before affiliating with WHAS, he served as program director of KARK in Little Rock. Still unmarried, Wilson has three years in the service to his credit, and gets his big kicks interviewing prominent performers in the wee small hours. Modestly, but with assurance, he claims the widest coverage of any all-night disc show in the world.

CLIFFIE STONE is the genial song salesman who has recently leaped into the national spotlight as a singer of western tunes on records and radio airings from the west coast. He's no slouch as a tune-cleaver, either. Lee Gillette's story above tells about it—and Cliffie—elegantly. —Photo by Charlie Mihn.
