AEG Joins 02 For Berlin Arena

NSCHUTZ ENTERTAINMENT Group and telecommunications group O2 Germany announced a comprehensive strategic alliance April 27th to build O2 World, a multipurpose arena planned to seat 17,000 in Berlin.

Construction is scheduled to begin in the second half of this year, and O2 World is expected to open its doors to the public in 2008. AEG and O2 Germany have agreed on a partnership for as many as 15 years, providing high-profile national and international sporting and entertainment events in the German capital.

The arena's most impressive feature will be an 1,800-meter LED wall that will turn O2 World's outer facade into a gigantic video screen. The wall's dimensions are touted by the two companies as more massive than the largest advertising space in New York City's Times Square.

"We said we will build the arena when we are certain that the company that will give our arena its name, its face, and its spirit, is a partner who will work with us to transform a dream into a specific vision and, from there, a reality. O2 Germany is this partner," AEG President/CEO Tim Leiweke said in a statement.

"I view O2's partnership with AEG as a cutting-edge step for the whole industry, not just for O2," added O2 Germany CEO Rudolf Gröger. "Through our comprehensive alliance, we are assuming a position at the vanguard, which shows that future collaboration between telecommunications companies as content providers and the entertainment industry will be far-reaching and substantive - to the benefit of consumers."

CONSTRUCTION CONTINUES on the 10,000-capacity Amphitheatre at the Wharf in Orange Beach, Alabama. The shed, part of a 220-acre mixed-use resort, is scheduled to open May 27th with a Hank Williams Jr. concert.

O2 World will have a total area of 60,000 square meters, with dimensions of 160 meters by 130 meters wide, and 35 meters tall. The cost of construction is estimated at euro 150 million.

"O2 World is a milestone in integrating Berlin into the international entertainment industry," said AEG VP Detlef Kornett. "Berlin needed this stage urgently, and it deserves it."

The venue will be built on the former site of the Ostgüterbahnhof (Eastern Depot) between Warschauer Brücke, Rummelsburger Platz, and Mühlenstraße. Efforts to zone the site began in 2004, according to Kornett.

Kornett and his team in Berlin have been the driving force behind the project for several years, from the purchase of the site to its connection to Berlin's transportation and utilities grid.

Heartbreak For Lupo's?

ichard Lupo of Lupo's Heartbreak Hotel in Providence says his business is being unfairly tied to the alleged problems of the club he shares space and a license with.

Rhode Island's Board of Liquor Licenses is in the process of determining whether to revoke the liquor license of Club Diesel, which has been called a "disorderly house" by the city, because of various incidents reported near the venue.

Because the two clubs operate under the same license, both would be forced to shut down if Diesel's license is revoked.

Lupo told Pollstar he couldn't comment on the case except to say he's confident of a positive outcome.

"The ultimate decision on this is about two years away. There's only two ways it can go for Lupo's," he said. "Either things will stay the same and we'll stop our shows at 10:30 p.m. on the weekends, or we will be able to keep our shows until 2 a.m.

"We've been downtown for 30 years and we have a great relationship with the city."

Club Diesel patrons are allowed in after the Lupo's crowd has left the building on the nights when both businesses operate in the 1,975-capacity venue.

Attorneys for the city reportedly submitted about 360 incident reports related to Diesel over a three-year period. Police Major Paul Fitzgerald testified that only a few arrests took place during Lupo's hours of operation, but they were still considered part of the city's case against Diesel.

Meanwhile, Lupo's has a full schedule of concerts through mid-July including The Fray, 30 Seconds To Mars, Les Claypool, Method Man, Thursday, and Yellowcard. Tina Amendola

Agency Surety Bond Confusion

HERE IS CONFUSION ABOUT the recently enacted Senate Bill 184, which increases the surety bond for talent agencies in California from $10,000 to $50,000.

The increase, proposed by former William Morris agent and current State Sen. Kevin Murray, aims to protect entertainers from loss of wages if their agents are fly-by-night or go out of business. The bill had the support of the Screen Actors Guild.

After placing calls to several agencies, Pollstar found that some firms weren't aware of the $40,000 increase while others had already paid it. The law went into effect January 1st, and the increase is effective when an agency's renewal comes up.

A representative from the California Department of Industrial Relations said most booking agents don't have to worry about the new law.

"Generally, booking agents are not required to obtain a Talent Agency License unless they are acting as a Talent Agency in addition to a booking agent," Department of Industrial Relations' Renee Bacchini told Pollstar.

But some who preferred to speak off the record questioned the accuracy of this statement.

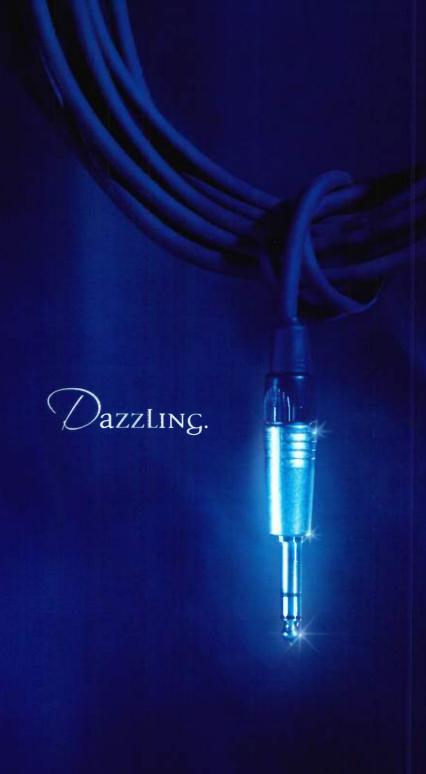

Several calls placed to the office of State Sen. Murray for clarification were not returned at press time. Mitchell Peters

Insider News Briefs

STUDENTS FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA wrap an early morning lecture about tour publicity at the Concert Industry Consortium at Las Vegas' Green Valley Ranch Resort February 14th with the help of Dr. Scott Douglas (L), and Insight Management's Maria Brunner (3rd from R, standing) and Andrea Kramer (R).

Arena. Quite a few have bypassed the mailrooms and have gone straight to assistant positions, he said.

"The whole reason we're at CIC in the first place, the reason we know about CIC, is because of the emphasis instructors put on it. The instructors clearly state that it is important for students to attend this meeting," Douglas said.

The one-of-a-kind certification program at UMT features classes that are taught "99 percent" by guest lecturers straight from the business, Douglas said.

Those include Miles Copeland. technology guru Marc Geiger from William Morris Agency, UMT grad Keith Miller from William Morris Agency, and AEG's John Meglen. The students also produce campus events with university funds.

Maria Brunner from

Insight Management works closely with the class and is a former Montana State University "Bobcat."

About 35 students are accepted into the program each year.

One student was promoted after six months and was put on the marketing management team for Linkin Park and is a personal assistant for some of the band members. At press time, one student had a job interview lined up at CAA as an agent's assistant.

Douglas said that the program allows students the opportunity to approach industry veterans who often act as mentors to the students, and meet other important people through them. Last year, a student left CIC with an informal job offer from William Morris Agency that later materialized.

"It provides them with an opening to an industry that is usually very difficult to find an opening to get into," Douglas said.

The idea for the course developed during the CIC conference visits to Las Vegas in 2000 and 2001. The university's business school dean, Larry Gianchetta, and Talent Buyers Network president Brian Knaff (another alum) talked about creating a course on the entertainment business and met with possible participants.

MGM Grand Makes Foxwoods Deal

ONNECTICUT STATE OFFICIALS recently demanded to review a deal that would put the MGM Grand moniker on a new hotel and casino expansion at the Foxwoods Resort Casino in Mashantucket.

The Mashantucket Pequot tribe announced it is leasing the name from MGM Mirage for the $700 million project. The new hotel will be called the MGM Grand, but will be operated by Foxwoods, according to MGM and tribal officials.

The state's gaming compact with the tribe requires the state to sign off on any casino expansion, Attorney General Richard Blumenthal said.

"The nature of their business relationship is a mystery," Blumenthal said. "They have given us no details nor have they given details to any state agency, including the Department of Revenue Services."

Blumenthal and Paul Young, the state's special revenue commissioner, sent a letter to the tribe requesting copies of the agreement and any related documents.

The tribe did not respond to that request by press time.

The Foxwoods expansion includes plans for an 825-room hotel, 5,000-seat theatre, a convention center and ballroom, nightclubs and 1,500 more slot machines. It is expected to open in 2008.

Terry Lanni, chairman and chief exec of MGM Mirage, said the Las Vegas-based company will only help the tribe design and develop the project, and will have nothing to do with its management.

Michael Thomas, chairman of the Mashantucket Pequot Tribal Nation agreed, saying, "We'll run our own thing at Mashantucket forever."

The agreement gives Foxwoods an experienced partner as it tries to expand its convention and entertainment business and attract more minorities. Foxwoods will have access to MGM's database of more than 22 million customers and will use MGM's partnerships with other companies to help attract new restaurants and top-tier entertainers to eastern Connecticut, Foxwoods chief exec William Sherlock said.

By partnering with Foxwoods, MGM gets brand exposure in the lucrative Northeast market, which is dominated by Foxwoods and Mohegan Sun resorts. MGM does not operate an East Coast casino, though it is a partial investor in Borgata Atlantic City.

Sherlock said he expects to add the MGM name to future projects as part of an ongoing marketing deal between the two companies.

Terms of the deal were not immediately released. The tribe does not release financial figures.

The two companies also agreed to collaborate on casino investments off the reservation, with MGM lending $200 million to the tribe's development company. The Mashantuckets are already planning a 600-acre resort and casino in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

ter of superstar clients, the companies jointly announced April 17th.

But the deal isn't just about selling tickets – TM will also work with the company to develop, market and distribute fan club memberships and digital media for UltraStar clients including the Rolling Stones, Sting, David Bowie, Red Hot Chili Peppers, and INXS.

The partnership pushes Ticketmaster toward its goal of providing more services and offers for consumers in order to sell more tickets. For UltraStar, the deal gives it a global reach.

The agreement isn't the first collaboration between TM and UltraStar. Last year, the two companies developed a new technology that enabled an Internet pre-sale program that packaged concert tickets with fan club memberships that were sold in a single transaction.

In addition, potential members could preview available seating selections before committing to the fan club membership or ticket package purchase – allowing them to choose the best price point and seat location for their money.

Pellicano And Ovitz Linked

HE SAGA OF HOLLYWOOD gumshoe-to-the-stars

Anthony Pellicano has already spilled its share of ink in the national press but, according to TMZ.com, 75 percent of the recordings he made while working for celebrity clients haven't even been heard yet by investigators.

That thought alone has much of Hollywood nervous. But one doesn't have to be recorded by the private investigator to have been

Supermarket magnate and billionaire Ronald Burkle recently accused a New York Post gossip columnist of trying to extort hundreds of thousands of dollars from him as "protection" from the poison pens of Page Six. In covering that story, The New York Times discovered it wasn't the first time he was on the receiving end of a shakedown.

Burkle has told federal investigators that in 2002 Pellicano demanded $100,000 to $250,000 in exchange for not investigating him as requested by Creative Artists Agency co-founder and ex-Disney prexy Michael Ovitz, a former business partner of Burkle's.

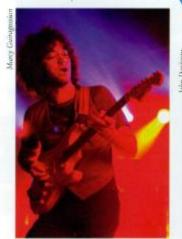

Ovitz has been subpoenaed to testify in Pellicano's wiretapping case as a "person of interest," not necessarily as a suspect.

The Times reports that Ovitz has claimed Pellicano investigated him on Burkle's behalf, yet acknowledged paying Pellicano $75,000 to dig up dirt on about 15 people including Burkle.

Ovitz attorney Barth Williams told the paper that Ovitz never hired Pellicano to investigate anyone except those who were suing him – which does not yet include Burkle – and Ovitz neither knew of illegal activity by the P.I. nor asked him to commit any.

Workers Install SEATS – with cupholders – at the $1 million Mountain Lakes Amphitheatre in Flatwoods, W.Va., last month in preparation for its May 20th opening concert with John Anderson. The 2,000-seat shed will host gospel, bluegrass, country and oldies acts through October.

April, but Hurricane Katrina thwarted those plans. The team delayed its inaugural season until 2007.

Problems with current plans include four years remaining on a deal with the company that Smith-Wills is leased out to and the amount of time it would take to build the proposed arena.

Baseball Mississippi LLC, to which the city leases Smith-Wills, used to own the now-defunct Jackson Senators minor league baseball team. The company now schedules events such as little league, high school, college and semi-pro baseball, and football and soccer games.

The manager of Mississippi Baseball has said the company wants to do what's best for the city, and also said he wants to honor current commitments.

Local architects told the paper putting up an arena such as the one proposed would likely take longer than a year. Any delays could force the Headhunters into the 43-year-old Mississippi Coliseum, which seats 7,200, according to the Ledger. Disotell said the new arena would not be rushed, but that he thinks it could be ready to go in time.

Disotell bought the team when it played in Georgia as the Columbus Waterdogs.

The af2 is a feeder league for the Arena Football League. Its season runs from April to July.

FCC Opens Radio Probe

with negotiations stalled with four major radio chains, the Federal Communications Commission has followed in New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer's footsteps with its own investigation into alleged pay-for-play practices.

Two FCC officials confirmed the probe of Clear Channel Communications, CBS Radio (formerly Infinity), Entercom Communications and Citadel Broadcasting, according to the Los Angeles Times.

All four companies reportedly received "letters of inquiry" from the FCC seeking information on possible gifts, money or other compensation their employees may have received for playing certain songs.

Letters of inquiry are the first steps in FCC investigations that can result in sanctions ranging from monetary penalties to station license revocations.

The investigation is considered the largest of its kind since the payola scandals of the early 1960s.

In recent weeks, Spitzer complained bitterly about the FCC negotiating settlements with radio networks, accusing the commission of undermining his own efforts and offering fines that amount to wrist slaps the conglomerates. Reports had indicated, for example, that Clear Channel was mulling over a $1 million fine after having offered to pay $500,000.

"We were in the process of trying to reach settlements, but when talks were inconclusive, we decided we needed more information," said an FCC official who spoke to the Times on the condition of anonymity because the investigation was ongoing. "We will continue to speak with the parties and to hold those who have violated commission rules accountable."

Radio execs have said that company policies prohibit accepting gifts for airplay and that internal probes have not revealed widespread wrongdoing.

Federal regs require that radio listeners be informed any time there is an exchange of items of value for airplay of specific songs.

Heavy Merriweather Parking Lot

HEN I.M.P. TOOK OVER operations of the aging

Merriweather Post Pavilion in Columbia, Md., in 2003, it added improvements like a sculpture garden and a mosh pit to attract patrons. The next step is cinema.

"The idea is, like everything we try to do at Merriweather Post, to make the place just a blast to go to," I.M.P.'s Seth Hurwitz said of his latest investment. "After walking around the grounds this year and realizing there's not much more we can do to improve the actual venue, I started thinking content."

To capture the correct mise en scène, Hurwitz hired filmmaker Jeff Krulik, creator of cult classic "Heavy Metal Parking Lot," to help produce the video series for the coming season. Krulik's original film about '80s Judas Priest fans partying outside a venue captured the essence of the mulletized heavy metal fan of the era.

Merriweather's series is expected to include parking lot interviews with fans as well as visual "wall art" comprising snippets of avant-garde films and specially created film shorts. Interspersed in the presentations will be more traditional aspects of venue video presentations, including sponsor messaging and the marketing of upcoming shows.

The promoter recently spent $250,000 for five new video screens inside the pavilion that will showcase Krulik's wall art clips, as well as eight plasma screens that will feature the videos in the artists' dressing rooms.

"The way the contract is worded, it protects the Venue management then sent a check for the deposit on Good Friday, as requested, to a Chicagobased company, Fouquier said. The Advertiser ran a front-page story on the show, announcing tickets would be $35.

Fouquier was reluctant to say who the con artist was, and would only say that the amount sent to the phony was significant.

Axl Scam Thwarted

BOOKING FOR A SOLO AXL Rose concert at a Lafayette, La., nightclub turned out to be the work of a scam artist, but the club ended up without a loss because the scammer was apparently disorganized.

Chad Fouquier, the entertainment coordinator for 307 Downtown, told The Daily Advertiser t he May 26th booking initially didn't raise any red flags. A show by Rose would have been a coup for the 250-to-300-capacity venue, as staff had heard rumors Axl was planning a promotional tour.

Shrinking Ballparks

OME MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL park officials are using the "less is more" approach to get fans to fill seats and secure muchneeded income for the lean times.

The trend to cut seating capacity, patterned after historic revival ballparks, gives patrons a more intimate stadium with better sight lines but reduces the amount of available tickets. In turn, the ticket shortage inspires fans to buy earlier as well as plunk down the cash for season tickets, according to The Boston Globe.

In the last 11 years, average seating capacity at major league parks has fallen 11 percent, from 51,106 to 45,395, while the average per-game attendance has risen 22 percent to 30,936. Meanwhile, ticket prices have more than doubled to the current average of $22.21, the paper said.

Teams implementing the change include the Boston Red Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies, New York Mets and Yankees, and the Oakland Athletics.

N ATTORNEY REPRESENTING Clear Channel Communications, the parent company of Chicago's WGCI-FM, has objected to a proposed $1.5 million partial settlement between the owners of the city's E2 nightclub, where 21 people died and 95 were injured during a crowd crush.

Attorney Michael Freeborn reportedly told Cook County Circuit Judge Kathy Flanagan April 19th that since Clear Channel Communications is not part of the settlement, the company could bear no more than its fair share of the responsibility for future damage claims.

Part of the $1 billion expansion plan for Bloomington, Minn.'s Mall of America includes a 6,000-seat performing arts center, according to a preliminary development plan filed with the city. The PAC will present live orchestras, among other acts, according to the Minneapolis Star Tribune. The Phase II expansion plan also reportedly calls for a museum including traveling exhibits, along with a 74,000-square-foot dinner theatre. Mall officials hope to break ground on the project this fall and complete development by the end of 2009, the paper said.

Oakland, Calif., city officials have tentatively chosen Another Planet Entertainment to manage the city's Fox Theatre following the historic venue's restoration. Officials have secured $41 million of the estimated $45 million needed to reopen the 78-year-old venue as part of a city revitalization project, according to the San Francisco Chronicle. Engineers working on a new downtown arena in Tulsa, Okla., say the $141 million project is $32 million over budget. According to the cameraman's attorney, the bodyguard then pulled him to the side of the stage, threw him on the ground and pummeled him, leaving him with a sprained knee and other injuries. Arons apparently thought the cameraman was videotaping the show.

Curtis Salgado, the singer and bluesman who inspired John Belushi's Blues Brothers act, has been diagnosed with liver cancer and canceled his upcoming tour dates. Salgado, 52, was diagnosed with cancer about a month ago and expects to begin radiation treatment in May. He hopes to eventually have a liver transplant, according to his manager. Belushi, who turned into Jake Blues on stage, met Salgado while in Eugene, Ore., during the filming of "Animal House" in 1977. Salgado was singing and playing harmonica for Robert Cray at the time. Right then, Belushi got the idea to take Salgado's look, complete with Ray-Ban sunglasses, and create the Blues Brothers, according to Cray.

Bonnie Owens, 76, the Bakersfield cocktail waitress who married both Buck Owens and Merle Haggard and had a substantial music career of her own, died April 24th in the California city after a long battle with Alzheimer's. Her death came 30 days after that of first husband Owens. She married the future country star in 1948, separating in 1951 and divorcing several years later. Bonnie Owens recorded the hit duet "Just Between the Two of Us" in 1964 with Haggard and married him in 1965. Though Haggard and Owens divorced after a decade, Bonnie continued to tour with Haggard and his band, The Strangers, into the late '90s. She was the ACM's female vocalist of the year in 1965. Two years later, she and Haggard were named ACM's best duo.

Phil Walden, 66, the Capricorn Records founder who launched the careers of Otis Redding and the Allman Brothers, died April 22nd after a long battle with cancer. Walden was also instrumental in developing the careers of the Charlie Daniels Band and Wet Willy. During the '70s, Walden was an early backer of then-Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter. Walden financially helped Carter's upstart bid for the presidency along with The Allman Brothers and other Capricorn artists who played benefits. Otis Redding's widow once said Walden's passion for black music and close friendship with Otis made him an outcast in the segregated south.

In arguing why Flanagan shouldn't approve the settlement, Freeborn said it would be unfair to leave Clear Channel and the City of Chicago as the only remaining defendants, according to the Chicago Sun-Times.

E2 owners previously agreed to pay $1.5 million to settle dozens of lawsuits brought on by victims and their families. Freeborn reportedly said Clear Channel was not invited to be part of the settlement.

Flanagan was scheduled to rule on May 10th whether to approve the settlement, according to Medill News Service.

In other action April 19th, E2 co-owner Dwain Kyles reportedly told Criminal Court Judge Dennis Porter that he wants to be tried separately from co-defendants Calvin Hollins Ir., Marco Flores and Calvin Hollins III.

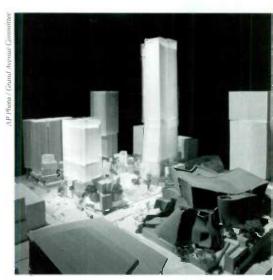

Hollins Jr. was a co-owner with Kyles, Flores was the party promoter, and Hollins III was the club's manager.

The judge reportedly scheduled a May 16th hearing.

RCHITECT FRANK GEHRY introduced his massive downtown Los Angeles redevelopment project April 24th, unveiling a three-dimensional model of the proposed "village center" for the City of Angels near the Gehrydesigned Disney Concert Hall.

restaurants. Los Angeles city officials have long complained that the second-largest city in the U.S. needed a community center.

"I hope that people will wander through it," Gehry said. "It's a spread-out downtown. It's an L.A. downtown; it's not a New York downtown."

Gehry's plan includes a 50-story tower facing the Disney hall that will have a wide "skirt" design as its base, the architect said. It would include a five-star hotel, rooftop pools and 250 condominiums. A 25-story tower will anchor the other end of the street and will contain 150 condos or lofts and 100 affordable housing units.

A 16-acre park, a market, seven restaurants, a health club and retail space are also included in Phase 1, which could begin next year. The whole project is expected to wrap by 2014.

Ground was broken last year on a $1.7 billion redevelopment project near the Staples Center. The sports and entertainment complex would include a West Coast headquarters for ESPN, a Grammy museum, a hotel and restaurants. The under-construction Nokia Theatre is also part of the project.

The Phone Zone

 Sometimes the future isn't all it's cracked up to be.

But that depends on whose future you're looking at. During the 1960s, Stanley Kubrick and Arthur C. Clarke envisioned a pretty nifty day-after-tomorrow in their epic "2001: A Space Odyssey." Irwin Allen launched his Space Family Robinson, along with Dr. Smith and the Robot, in the very futuristic year of 1997. And the Family Jetson had it all, including flying cars, video phones and three-day workweeks. However, "The Jetsons" was set in 2062, so we still have some wiggle room.

But while past TV shows, movies and books all took turns predicting what our world would be like today, no one managed to correctly forecast what would happen to phones.

In "2001," travelers to an orbiting space station still had to duck into phone booths to keep in touch with family and business associates. Same with the Jetsons, while John Robinson and his "Lost In Space" kin had to rely on old-fashioned walkie talkies for wireless communication. When it comes to telephones, the futurists of the past got it wrong more often than not.

But it wasn't so long ago when cell phones were analog, weighed about the same as a fully-packed briefcase and lasted only a few hours on a single battery charge. With camera and music capabilities, today's wireless handsets seem almost light years ahead of those phones from yesteryear. What's more, if you think today's high-end, high-tech mobiles are the ultimate in phone technology, you ain't seen nothing yet.

Nokia recently announced three new phones that the company is referring to as "multimedia computers." Sure, these phones do anything other available handsets do, like snap digital pictures and download music, but Nokia is trying to position the new phones as devices to replace dedicated digital cameras and personal MP3 players.

For instance, Nokia calls its new N93 phone a "digital camcorder and multimedia computer in one easy-to-use compact package." The phone shoots MPEG-4 VGA video at 30 frames per second and includes stereo recording for what the company calls "DVD-like quality video."

Along with video capabilities, the N93 also boasts a 3.2 megapixel camera with a Carl Zeiss Vario-Tessar lens, a 3x optical zoom and up to a 20x digital zoom. The camera's internal memory can reach up to 50 MB, but even that can be expanded up to 2 GB by using miniSD cards. Translated to plain-speak, that means you can capture up to 90 minutes of video, or close to 2,500 high-quality photographs.

Then there's the phone's music capabilities. Not only can you play music files, but you can store up to 1,500 songs, create playlists or listen to the integrated FM tuner.

Oh, yeah, you can also make a phone call with N93. Set to hit some markets in July, the N93 is priced just under $700.

While not as high-tech as the N93, Nokia's N72 also features music and visual capabilities. The phone includes a 2 megapixel camera and can take both video and stills. Like its big brother, the N72 also comes with an FM tuner and has plenty of room for music files.

Then there's the N73, which also has similar video, photo and music capabilities, but Nokia is also pushing the handset's Internet capabilties for people who need to check email while they're shooting video, snapping photographs, listening to music and making a call or two.

Of course, other phones have similar capabilties. In fact, it's getting tough to buy a phone that doesn't include a camera or MP3 features.

None of these features was ever forecasted when the sci-fi creators of the past made their predictions about our present. We don't have flying cars, robot maids, or sentient computers. At least not yet.

But cell phones have surpassed even the most visionary of all futurists. What's more, no matter what manufacturers release this year, chances are they'll be back with more bells and whistles next year. We may not be living in the time of "The Jetsons," but good old George never had a pocket phone that could shoot video, play music or receive radio transmissions. In some ways, we have it better than Mr. letson.

On the other hand, we wouldn't mind having George Jetson's 3-day workweeks. Maybe that's why they call it science fiction.

multicasting several different programs over the same frequency.

Called digital or HD radio, it means that a digital broadcast frees up a frequency band for transmitting several other channel streams at the same time. These subchannels can carry anything from a niche music format to lifestyle programming, such as cooking, fitness or health.

Leading the charge into the future is Clear Channel Radio. The radio colossus recently announced it would offer several different programming choices, including video, text and audio, to be delivered over same frequencies used by its radio stations. What's more, Clear Channel isn't even keeping this one in the family. The radio conglomerate will also offer programming content to rival broadcasters.

All in all, Clear Channel will create programming for some 75 new radio channels. The channels will be available for non-CC broadcasters, and the company expects the new programming will become the foundation for several non-traditional radio media outlets, such as Web sites, satellite broadcasts, iPods, in-vehicle navigation units and HD digital radio multicasts. Suddenly, current AM/FM radio transmissions seem so yesterday.

The new programming choices were created by Clear Channel's once-secret Format Lab. Created in 2004, the Format Lab combines the talents of both radio professionals and non-radio experts. For example, a personal trainer contributed expertise to the Lab's workout channel, while a Broadway veteran was consulted for the project's show tunes channel.

"We have become agnostic about delivery and are completely passionate about content," said John Hogan, president and CEO of Clear Channel Radio. "And we'll continue to lead the radio industry on to new platforms. Radio programming is the most engaging and compelling media today. Our power to connect with, and hold, consumers will continue to reveal itself as we supplement our outstanding AM/FM properties with programming for new devices."

We Have Ways Of Making You Watch

Do you hate TV commercials?

Do you fast-forward past the ads when viewing recorded programming on your DVR? Do you purposely start watching a TV broadcast 20 minutes past its start time so you can TiVo past the commercials? Do you look at TV commercials as a few minutes of your life that you'll never reclaim?

Then Royal Philips Electronics has some good news/bad news for you.

First the bad news. The company has applied to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office for a patent covering technology that could allow broadcasters to freeze a channel during a commercial, thus making viewers a truly "captive audience."

According to the patent application, the technology would be used on a program-by-program basis, but it's not hard to imagine a TV network applying it to all their programs.

But there's also good news. The same technology would allow viewers to skip commercials.

The idea is that broadcasters could charge a fee to viewers who want to bypass the ads. For instance, you could watch "CSI" for free with the ads, or you could pay a fee and watch it commercial free.

So far, Philips has said the company doesn't have any plans to use the technology in its own products, but plans on licensing it to other manufac-

"We developed a system where the viewer can choose, at the beginning of a movie, to either watch the movie without ads, or watch the movie with ads," the company said. "It is up to the viewer to take this decision, and up to the broadcaster to offer the various services."

MySpace Banned

► MySpace.com might be the most popular networking Web site on the planet, but students at one community college have been told to go elsewhere for their Net connections if they want to hook up with their friends.

Del Mar College in Corpus Christi, Texas, has told its students to use off-campus connections when connecting to MySpace. The reason? The school discovered that a large chunk of its network bandwidth was eaten up by students logging on

"This was more about us being able to offer Web-based instruction, and MySpace.com was slowing everything down," college president Carlos Garcia

While student reaction has been predictably negative, not all students see the MySpace ban as a bad thing.

Saio one student, "The library is pretty much full with people on MySpace, and with them banning it you won't have anything to distract уоц."

The company had "moved quickly" to confirm a total of 14 gigs, he added.

"We did have additional shows at Earls Court ready to go, but the demand has been such that we've moved quickly to have these on sale."

Tickets went on sale at 9 a.m. April 22nd and the November 17th show at the huge Manchester Evening News Arena sold out within minutes. Shows for November 18th and 19th were added immediately and all three were sold out by midday.

In addition to the Manchester dates, the schedule includes seven dates in London, three in Birmingham and one

Michael has dubbed the tour "25 Live." It will be a greatest hits tour with a selection of songs taken from all his albums over the past 25 years, including some classic Wham! songs.

The tour begins in Madrid on September 27th before coming to Britain in

CSNY SPEAK OUT

➤ Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young take to the road this summer on their first tour since

The two-month-plus trek, produced by The Next Adventure, crosses North America starting July 6th in Philadelphia and runs through mid-September, visiting more than 30 cities nationwide. Additional dates are still being confirmed Shows were set to go on sale beginning April 29th in Detroit, Washington, Seattle, Portland, Concord, Holmdel, Wantagh, and Winnipeg, with additional on-sale announcements following in the next few weeks.

Billed as "An Evening With Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young," the Freedom of Speech '06 tour will spotlight an extended set from CSNY. Repertoire will include their classic work together, as well as favorites from their individual careers.

Music from Neil Young's forthcoming album, Living With War, will make its concert debut during the tour.

All four members of the band "believe that in light of the current environment, it's time for them to be out on the road fighting for America, and for people's rights to stand and be counted."

During an interview with CNN last month, Young said, "There's a conscience in the country, and I don't think it's being spoken. Everyone deserves a chance to be heard. We don't have to believe what our president believes to be patriotic."

FULL SPEED AHEAD

Last summer, three Norwegians became Internet stars of viral video when their band played the U.S. to some excited, and some indifferent, audiences. Of course, you know who we're talking about - Hurra Torpedo - the younger, Web-based version of Spinal Tap.

Instead of drums, they played deep freezers. Instead of a bass, they smashed the holy heck out of stoves. They wore old Adidas sweatsuits that didn't quite cover their midsections. They played kiddie parties, steakhouses and wrapped their tour at Los Angeles' Roxy in a triumphant denouement.

Now they're back for a Monterey International-booked tour of the U.S., playing every other night for an incredible I hour and 15 minutes, the longest set of their career. The tour is sponsored by Ford, which means Hurra Torpedo will not have to rely on appliance delivery trucks for transportation.

The band kicks off in Boston on June 6th at the Paradise.

New Tours

➤ Shakira takes over Spain for several dates before moving on to North America..... Steely Dan plays sheds through July and August John Fogerty spends several summer weeks playing outdoors..... Melissa Etheridge does a full tour of the U.S. and Canada..... Pink goes to Europe in the fall Les Claypool has a big theatre tour coming up.... Widespread Panic heads out this week... Mat Kearney has a hot album and a tour to go with it Also watch for Stiff Little Fingers, Keane, Train, Lizz Wright, Alice In Chains, Kasev Chambers, Charlatans UK, Hank III, and The Automatic.

ason lenner took his first vacation after graduating from law school, flying from New York City to San Diego for a week. With him was a stack of CDs courtesy of Epic Records where he had been interviewing. San Diego would give him a chance to consider his career options.

While there, he started playing a CD with a tune on it called "Over My Head (Cable Car)." Ienner found himself listening to the song constantly. He was the first of many.

When he got back to NYC, he knew he didn't want to work for the record label but he did know he wanted to work with the band on that CD. He got in touch with The Fray in their hometown of Denver and scheduled a meeting. Unfortunately, it was the night after the Yankees lost to the Boston Red Sox in Game 7 of the 2004 ALCS. Ienner had stayed up until 2 a.m., then took a 6 a.m. flight, arriving in Denver on October 21st.

"First impressions are important," Ienner told Pollstar. "I walk in (to a Denver bar) and the guys look at me and go, 'You're from New York, right?' Then they just start laughing at me about the Yankees. Which is something I would have done. It seemed like a family environment."

The band had just signed with Epic but was still DIY. The signing brought a half-dozen potential managers to The Fray. The band members weighed each offer carefully.

But lenner had an ace up his sleeve: Gregg Latterman, with whom he had worked during John Meyer's developmental years. According to Fray guitarist and co-songwriter Jay King, that was the tipping point: the combination of lenner's young enthusiasm matched with Latterman's seasoned experience.

"These days, I think you need someone who lives, sleeps and drinks everything The Fray ... and Jason is 100 percent committed to the band," King told Pollstar. "And I knew about Gregg because of what he had done and the respect he has in the industry. The combination was ideal."

The Fray – which also includes Isaac Slade, Dave Welsh and Ben Wysocki – quickly moved from opening for Ben Folds and Weezer to a headlining tour early this year. It was a risk, lenner admits, but the tour sold out.

Epic's press kit includes a promo DVD that shows how popular the band is. It's one song in length – "Over My Head (Cable Car)" – and it shows a montage of various tour stops. In every market, the band lets the audience sing the chorus – and at every tour stop, the audience knows every word to the song.

The Fray is climbing fast, and not just on that one tune. The debut, How to Save a Life, has received acclaim for solid songwriting. Radio loves the first single. Meanwhile, its MySpace page, created a year ago January, took 14 months to get a million song plays. It took three weeks to reach 2 million, and 11 days to reach 3 million.

"We've been in some markets and cities where we had no radio play and it'll be almost the same response as the market that has radio play," King said. "I remember going into Washington, D.C.'s 9:30 Club for the first time and we really didn't have any radio there, and the show was off the hook. The show was sold out and people were singing every song."

What hasn't been happening is the Blender-slash-Rolling Stone-slash-Spin level of media. But within a year, the band went from playing in front of eight people in Philadelphia to selling out the city's 1,000-capacity Theatre of the Living Arts.

"I think we came out of nowhere," King said. "We haven't gotten the mass exposure and pasted all over every big publication, and I think that's cool. Looking back, as much as I kind of wanted that big Rolling Stone thing or to be on VH1 and MTV right away, it's really cool to have something like that before the big players came in.

"As I was learning about the business, I thought success equals having all these things. It kind of happened backwards. And not that we're there yet but we're definitely going outside those boundaries."

The band has had some unfortunate comparisons to Coldplay – probably because the piano is a significant instrument in both bands. That's not a criticism of either group, but The Fray has its own sound and creative voice. What The Fray probably has in common with Chris Martin's band – apart from the same booking agency – is a career that will soon reach beyond the theatres.

The Fray's next tour starts in early May and the band is already holding down two-night stays at House of Blues in Hollywood and Chicago.

More EMI-Warner Merger Stories

AS THE WEEKEND'S BUSINESS PAGES carried further speculation that EMI and Warner are heading for a £4 billion tie-up, an unnamed financial pundit told The Sunday Times, "This deal's going to happen. The only question is timing.

A day later, on April 24, The Guardian followed suit and said that regulators, who were once expected to look harshly on the deal, might have softened their views since direct sales by musicians online are on such an increase.

It also said the U.S. regulators might be swayed by the fact that a combined Warner-EMI would have a combined American market share of about 28 percent, which would still make it smaller than Universal, at 31 percent, and Sony BMG at 29 percent.

The Sunday Times piece pointed out that the two companies have had a couple of goes at merging and failed on regulatory grounds, but also said "the changing nature of the music industry has led analysts to suggest that a deal would now be viewed more favourably by competition authorities."

Neither company responded to The Guardian's efforts to get confirmation that they're beginning talks. But The Sunday Times piece went as far as saying EMI is understood to have lined up Citigroup and UBS to assist it, with Goldman Sachs and Lehman Brothers in the frame to advise Warner.

Warner Music was bought from media giant Time Warner in 2004 by a consortium led by Edgar Bronfman Jr., heir to the Seagram whiskey fortune.

The private-equity firms backing him, including Providence and Bain Capital, reaped huge returns when the group went public.

EMI has a market value of £2.2 billion, while Warner, quoted on the New York Stock Exchange since last May, was worth about US$3.6 billion (£2 billion) at the close of business April 21.

According to The Guardian, management issues will also be an important factor. EMI chairman Eric Nicoli and Bronfman, his opposite number at Warner, are both understood to be keen to take senior roles.

Last week, EMI reported its first real revenue growth in five years, announcing that stronger-thanexpected sales by such artists as Coldplay and KT Tunstall should lift revenues by almost 4 percent this year.

The news reversed a long decline that the company blamed on piracy and the growth of digital downloads.

On April 25, both The Times and The Daily Telegraph reported that the prospects of an EMI-Warner Music tie-up helped to propel the London-based music group to the top of the FTSE 250 "risers' board."

During the course of the previous day, the shares rose 15.75 pence to 294p.

The recorded music industry is also awaiting another significant deal. The German media company Bertelsmann is preparing to sell its stake in Sony BMG.

Sanctuary Needs To Toughen Up

IN EXPLAINING THAT SANCTUARY chairman Andy Taylor is still "on probation," an unnamed company investor told The Independent that "Shareholders may have to get tougher if things get difficult next time round."

The paper claims two institutional shareholders, who own more than 15 percent of the company between them, said Taylor is no longer in control of the company.

These anonymous investors also said new non-executive chairman. former British Airways chief executive Bob Ayling, and new finance director James Wallace are in control and have the final veto over decisions.

And if trading doesn't improve over the next 12 months, they said Taylor will be asked to step down altogether.

Most analysts blame Sanctuary's problems on over-ambitious global expansion, particularly the acquisition of Music World Entertainment, the U.S. urban music management company owned by Mathew Knowles, father of pop diva Beyoncé.

Sanctuary's AGM was scheduled to take place April 28, when shareholders are expected to vote for KPMG to replace Baker Tilly as company auditor.

Royalty Puts Acts In Bloody Tower

BEE GEES, ANNIE LENNOX AND Lionel Richie are among the acts appearing at the Tower of London May 20, part of the celebrations to mark the 30th anniversary of the Prince's Trust.

Being sent to the old prison historically known as "the bloody tower" - was once the fate of traitors. But this will be more of a royal family outing.

Prince Charles and Camilla, the Duchess of Cornwall, will both be there along with the younger princes William and Harry.

While Charles and Camilla may hold hands and tap their feet to songs like Bee Gees' "How Deep Is Your Love," William and Harry may prefer the music of Ronan Keating, Pink, Embrace, and Sugababes.

The Tower of London concert follows the scrapping of the trust's annual Party in the Park event amid rumours that not enough quality acts could be booked in a year saturated by festivals.

Last year, it was dropped to make way for Live 8.

The concert will be accompanied by an advertising and fund-raising campaign for the charity. It will not be the only time musicians are in the Tower this summer.

Between June 28 and July 14, the second Tower Music Festival will be held. It kicks off with the Pet Shop Boys and includes such artists as James Brown, Dionne Warwick, Madeleine Peyroux, Al Jarreau, and Jamie Cullum.

Novello Nominees Announced

COLDPLAY, JAMES BLUNT, ARCTIC Monkeys, Gorillaz, and KT Tunstall are among the artists nominated for the Ivor Novello Awards.

TAKE THAT'S Gary Barlow and Mark Owens share a close moment at the Metro Radio Arena in Newcastle, England, April 23. Take That now performs without Robbie Williams.

This year's ceremony will be at London's Grosvenor House May 25.

The event is organised by the British Academy of Composers & Songwriters in association with The Performing Right Society.

For writers, it is generally accepted that winning an Ivor Novello award is the highest honour because it is recognition from fellow writers.

Simon's Pockets Get Fuller

TV TALENT SHOW MASTERMIND AND former Spice Girls manager Simon Fuller has quadrupled his fortune in the past year, according to The Daily Mirror.

Using figures from the annual The Sunday Times Rich List, it calculated that his financial stash has risen from £75 million to £300 million.

The man behind "Pop Idol" made more than £69 million of that by selling his 19 Entertainment to U.S. entrepreneur Robert F.X. Sillerman.

Another huge boost was due to the worldwide success of "X Factor," "American Idol" and "Pop Idol," of which he owns the majority rights.

ANSCHUTZ ENTERTAINMENT GROUP is reported to be in talks to have Cirque du Soleil do a residency at its new multimillion-pound O2.

Sensitive to the venue being referred to as "The O2 Dome," AEG is said to be looking to book the Canadian circus troupe for a series of shows in the 1,800-seat theatre that forms part of the new venue.

Two weeks ago, the company unveiled illustrations showing how the finished O2 will look and announced a completion date of July 2007

GERMANY

Did CTS Want To Rock & More?

Unequivocally denying there's any truth to the rumour that he's in negotiations to hive off his company to German ticketing giant CTS Eventim, Wolfgang Klinger said, "No - we are not for sale anyway."

The live music biz grapevine running through Germany and Austria has been ripe with gossip stories saying Klinger's Vienna-based Rock & More will be bought by CTS.

But the results of Pollstar's enquiries suggest that - should a deal be done - it's not likely to be in the immediate future.

CTS chief Klaus-Peter Schulenberg wasn't so unequivocal in his denial.

First he said, "I cannot confirm this" and then he followed up with: "CTS has not acquired part of Wolfgang Klinger's Rock & More in Austria."

The rumour probably grew because the story made sense. Schulenberg already has promoting interests in Austria through his Medusa Group promoters.

Folkert Koopmans' Hamburgbased FKP Scorpio has a share in Nova Music and three major festivals (Frequency, Nova and Lovely Days). And Marek Lieberberg and Dieter Semmel share offices in Vienna.

But what might interest CTS most is the ticketing business in the neighbouring countries.

It has had a share in the Austrian ticketing business since 1999, when it bought a majority holding in Ticket Express from Klinger and his former Rock Production promoting partner Andy Eggar. But the countries that once made up Yugoslavia are still relatively untapped markets and obvious targets for development.

The portfolio of acts Rock & More promotes, including major outdoor shows such as this summer's Rolling Stones gigs, hardly puts it in direct competition with either Koopmans, Lieberberg or Semmel. The fact it has these high-profile events in such places as Zagreb and Belgrade makes it an ideal content provider for Schulenberg's expanding ticketing business.

As the live music business develops in old Yugoslavia and the Balkan region, Schulenberg's main ticketing competitor would look to be Serge Grimaux and his Prague-based Ticketpro.

Grimaux is also a co-director of Interkoncerts, the promoting company he and Robert Porkert sold to then-Clear Channel, so he also has a strong content provider.

Ticketpro is the market leader in Czech Republic and Hungary, where Live Nation's Multimedia is content provider, and also has a Polish office.

It already has a toehold in Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia, where Live Nation competes directly with Klinger for the major acts.

The tickets for the upcoming Rolling Stones shows in Belgrade and Zagreb, both co-promoted by Rock & More, will go through CTS.

Schulenberg did take a look at the Austrian live music business about five years ago. He passed up the chance to finance a rescue package for Austrian Promoters Group (APG) in return for a stake in the company.

The financial collapse of Libro, APG's parent company, had left the Austrian promoters without financial backing and CTS looks to have decided to just let the whole thing collapse.

At the time, Rock Production Klinger's part of APG - had already tanked with debts of a couple million euros.

However, Schulenberg has shown an interest in picking up some of the old APG pieces including a share (through Scorpio) of Nova Music. But Ewald Tatar, Paul Debnam and Thomas Zifkovits had all left the APG umbrella before the wind blew it over.

Bertelsmann Forced To Choose

THE FAMILY CONTROLLING BERTELSmann looks as if it's being pushed into a choice between shelling out about euro 5 billion (US$6.1billion) to buy out its only independent shareholder or going through with a long-resisted market listing.

Belgian financier Albert Frère, whose Groupe Bruxelles Lambert (GBL) owns 25.1 percent of Europe's biggest media company, has indicated that he's pressing for talks on a flotation.

'Mindful of guaranteeing the liquidity of its investment, GBL has decided to exercise its right to request that Bertelsmann launch an initial public offering," he said.

"In accordance with our agreement, discussions with Bertelsmann on the IPO are expected to begin next month," he added.

The Mohn family and the Bertelsmann Stiftung foundation, which own three-quarters of the company, are now set to choose between going ahead with the flotation or buying out GBL.

The family and the foundation, which was set up by chairman emeritus Reinhard Mohn in 1977, will be expected to retain majority control if the flotation goes ahead.

The Mohn family has always been keen to keep the company private, but buying out GBL would mean borrowing money or selling assets to raise it.

There's uncertainty over which way the Mohn family will jump. A couple of months ago, Bertelsmann chief exec Gunter Thielen refused to rule out selling off Bertelsmann's stake in music group Sony BMG to fund the acquisition of the GBL stake.

COLOMBIAN STAR JUANES continues his mission against land mines with a performance at the European Parliament in Brussels, Belgium, April 19. He is the first musician invited to perform at the auditorium, which is usually reserved for world leaders and parliament members.

However, at the same time, he also told the U.K.'s The Guardian that the company had "made the necessary efforts in the last years to prepare for a possible IPO."

GBL acquired its Bertelsmann shareholding in 2001 as payment for its stake in the pan-European TV group RTL (parent company for the U.K.'s Channel Five), which is now 90 percent owned by the German group.

As part of that deal, GBL reserved the right to seek a stock market listing for its Bertelsmann stake, which has been valued at up to euro 5 billion - although the Mohn family has "first refusal" rights on it.

FKP Gets More Elbe Room

FOLKERT KOOPMANS' FKP SCORPIO has moved across Hamburg to new and larger offices overlooking the River Elbe.

The 50 or so full-time staff are now at Grosse Elbstrasse 277-279, 22767 Hamburg, and the phone number (+49 (0)40 853 88 888). All e-mail addresses remain the same.

Scorpio, which has or has part of more festivals than any European promoter, reports all 90,000 tickets for this year's twinned Hurricane and Southside Festivals June 23 and 25 have already sold out.

Koopmans said moving his Area 4 Festival to later in the year, September 1-3, will see it do better than last year's debut.

Last year, he wasn't able to offer a camping facility and the dates available at the Oberhausen site were too close in the calendar to Marek Lieberberg's Rock Am Ring and Rock Im Park and also to his own Hurricane-Southside Festivals.

He seems confident he has the right formula this time. He's decided to up the event from one to three days and was likely to start naming the bill by the end of April.

FKP's August festivals, M'era Luna, Highfield and Chiemsee Reggae are also selling well. Greenfields (June 16-18), the Swiss festival the company started last year with Dieter Boes at Koko Entertainment, has already shifted half of its 25,000 tickets.

The lineup for Greenfields, which is set in a picturesque background at Interlaken, includes Depeche Mode, Placebo, Tool, Seeed, The Cardigans, and Apocalyptica.

Apart from seven arena shows with James Blunt, FKP's upcoming national tours include Billy Talent, Coheed and Cambria, The Kooks, and The Subways.
