LN-Ticketmaster Blocked In U.K.

The U.K.'s competition regulator has provisionally ruled against the Ticketmaster-Live Nation merger because it could lead to higher prices and less competition.

It said the two firms joining forces could damage the market for the sale of live music tickets and hurt LN's existing partnership with Germany's CTS Eventim, a new competitor in the British market.

"We believe that, if the merger proceeds, Live Nation will seek to limit its relationship with CTS, with the effect of putting CTS's future prospects in the UK in considerable doubt," Competition Commission deputy chairman Christopher Clarke explained.

The ticketing giant and the world's largest concert promoter announced their merger plan earlier this year, but it has raised antitrust concerns on both sides of the Atlantic and is also being examined by the U.S. Department of Justice.

The CC's ruling could establish precedent for the DOJ, if it is viewing the merger critically. Then again, a DOJ decision against the merger could still be overturned by the court system if the interested parties wish to take it that far.

Live Nation and Ticketmaster said in a joint statement that they respect the decision, "but we must be clear about the challenges of the music industry, which is at a decisive crossroad," noting the shell of what was the recording business and the increased importance of live music.

"During the course of this merger process, Live Nation and Ticketmaster have listened to our fans, artists and other stakeholders," the statement said. "We've heard a range of views regarding the issues and challenges facing the live music industry. We firmly believe that our merger achieves an important and much-needed public interest, and remain optimistic that it will ultimately be approved."

The CC said it would propose remedies – such as the divestment of the British business of either Ticketmaster or Live Nation, or other measures to ensure a smaller player can survive.

The Commission will consider responses to this proposal before publishing its final report, due Nov. 24. [John Gammon]

Broker Scalps TM & Front Line

Ticketmaster Entertainment's stance on the secondary market has wavered over the years, but a new breach of contract lawsuit claims the company cozied up to a broker to sell tickets to high-demand shows at markups beginning in 2007.

The suit, filed in Los Angeles Superior Court by New Jersey ticket broker Chuck Lombardo's Elite Entertainment, brings forth a wealth of other charges including fraud, rescission due to fraud, promissory fraud, defamation, trade libel and reveal that total overall sales of 60.15 million tickets are up by about 2.8 million units but much of it comes from increased stadium-level activity. Total arena-level sales were up about 1.8 million tickets, but theatre and club-level show sales were essentially flat. Despite rampant discounting, amphitheatre venues experienced a decline of nearly 1.2 million tickets. Fueled largely by the huge international stadium treks by Madonna, U2, and Springsteen, the stadium-level business showed a sales increase of 2.5 million tickets.

promissory estoppel against TM, Irving Azoff's Front Line Management and TicketsNow.

Elite was one of several brokers that TM and Front Line tried to enroll in "Project Showtime" – the alleged attempt to incorporate secondary ticketing companies into the TM system, according to the Wall Street Journal. The purported "Showtime" deal revealed that TM dabbled in the business of reselling tickets, and this lawsuit contends the effort was significant.

According to the filing, TM, and later Front Line, entered agreements with Elite Entertainment to manage, price and sell TM's tickets on secondary sites including TicketsNow, TicketExchange and TicketNetwork.

Shows included Eagles, Van Halen, Def Leppard, Kanye West, Steely Dan, George Michael, Journey, New Kids On The Block and Neil Diamond.

Additionally, Lombardo consulted for TM through his Event Analysis group on a "project-by-project" basis and helped the company develop its secondary ticketing software and build business, according to the suit.

Of course, Lombardo didn't sign on to help Ticketmaster and Co. simply out of the kindness of his heart.

The suit claims that during initial discussions in 2007, TM "promised and assured [Lombardo] that if Ticketmaster was satisfied with their services, it would acquire Elite and employ Lombardo and Elite's key employees for the management and operation of its secondary ticket services."

But when the time came to begin acquisition and employment talks in 2008, Ticketmaster presented Elite with a couple of conditions.

Lombardo alleges he was asked to sign a settlement agreement to release any claims against TM or Front Line and told that the companies would come to a "compromise" on amounts owed for the services Elite had already provided.

When he balked at the conditions in December, he was allegedly told by TM CEO Azoff that Elite could sign the agreement or sue Ticketmaster and be "blackballed" within the industry, the suit says.

Lombardo signed the settlement, but didn't see much movement on the TM deal until August 2009 when Elite was presented with a proposal from the company.

The proposal reportedly lacked any references to acquisition or employment, but did include a "posting agreement" that would permit Elite to access and sell tickets through TM's platforms – for a fee.

"Ticketmaster used plaintiff's knowledge and expertise contacts to build its secondary ticket platforms, inducing plaintiffs to provide their services, knowledge, expertise and contacts with false promises that Ticketmaster would acquire Elite and of full time employment for Lombardo and Elite's key employees with Ticketmaster," the suit says, adding that TM "ruthlessly cast [Elite] aside, without regard to irreparable harm done to their business and to Lombardo's ability to earn a living."

A representative for Ticketmaster called the suit "meritless" in a statement and said the company plans to defend itself with vigor.

DJ DANNYZZ

ONE OF THE MANY special shows taking place in and around Nashville during the International Entertainment Buyers Association conference is "It's Only Rock N Roll," Oct. 12 at the Wildhorse Saloon. The show, modeled on the legendary DJ Alan Freed's dance parties, will be hosted by another radio legend: Live Nation's Danny Zelisko, who hosts the weekly "Regular Guy Radio Hour" in Phoenix. He'll be introducing a bill featuring classic rock stars The Cowbills, Al Jardine, The Lovin' Spoonful, Atlanta Rhythm Section, Bob Welch, Rick Derringer, Gregg Rolie and Pat Travers. Buddy Lee Attractions' Steve Peck hopes to gauge interest in a 2010 tour based on the Alan Freed idea with local radio hosts and a full bill of stars, sporting a low-priced ticket.

Courtesy Georgia Theatre

PLANS ARE IN THE WORKS to rebuild the historic Georgia Theatre in Athens, Ga., which was gutted by fire in June. Owner Wilmot Greene told Pollstar he's working on funding to rebuild the 850-capacity club, where acts like R.E.M., B-52's and Widespread Panic got their starts, with the addition of a rooftop bar and restaurant.

Lombardo and Elite Entertainment's suit seeks a rescission of the settlement agreement, damages and punitive damages, costs and attorneys' fees.

PINNACLE ENTERTAINMENT will begin groundwork mid-October on the proposed Sugarcane Bay Casino Resort in Lake Charles, La., as part of a proposed $407 million, tropical-themed complex. The development, which will feature a 408-room hotel, riverboat casino, 3,000-capacity arena, restaurants and retail shops, will be located next to Pinnacle's L'Auberge du Lac Casino Resort and both will be connected by a covered walkway. Casino spokeswoman Kerry Andersen told Pollstar that pile-driving work for Sugarcane Bay begins Oct. 19 and construction will take about two years to complete.

THE KILLERS have made nice with former manager Braden Merrick over a breach-of-contract tussle, reaching a confidential settlement. "The Killers are pleased that the matter has been resolved and thank Braden Merrick for his contributions," a band representative said in a statement. Merrick also expressed his "best wishes" for the band. The multiyear legal entanglement, during which the band and Merrick sued and counter-sued, began when The Killers accused their former manager of "double-dealing" in representing the band after it hit the big time in 2004, secretly receiving pay from Island Def Jam Records. Merrick countered in 2006, filing a $16 million breach of contract suit claiming the band fired him illegally.

Austin Deals With Dillo

Three days of music at the Austin City Limits festival Oct. 2-4 included one day of heavy rain, leaving $2.5 million in improvements and new sod at Zilker Park under a layer of mud. City officials estimate it will take at least a month for the park to recover and reopen.

That didn't seem to dampen the spirits of festivalgoers, however, who made the most of the recreational opportunity all

Wheeling Theatre Needs Work

The historic Capitol Music Hall in Wheeling, W.Va., has reopened, but officials say they need to raise $3.3 million to finish restoring the 81-year-old theatre.

Frank O'Brien of the Wheeling-Ohio County Convention and Visitors Bureau said restoration and facility fees will be added to ticket prices to help raise the money.

Fees will depend on the price of tickets, with an extra 50 cents added to tickets costing $10 or less and $2.50 added to those costing more than $50, according to the Wheeling News-Register.

The most urgent improvements include $450,000 to construct a fire escape, as well as $270,000 for electrical, plumbing and HVAC upgrades, the paper said. Also needed are $400,000 for ballroom upgrades and $366,000 worth of sound, video and lighting upgrades.

Earlier this year, the WOCC borrowed about $1.5 million to get the theatre in condition to reopen. O'Brien says further upgrades won't be made with borrowed money.

O'Brien told the paper that despite the need to raise millions, he is energized by the community support.

The free show the venue hosted Sept. 23 was the first since Live Nation closed it in 2007, citing 23 fire code issues.

The theatre hosted Tim O'Brien Sept. 25 and has The Lettermen on the books for March.

U2 Can Get Stuck In Traffic

When it comes to an N.C. State / Wake Forest football game, officials in Raleigh, N.C., know how to handle traffic. U2, on the other hand, is a bit trickier.

When U2 visited Carter-Finley Stadium on the N.C. State campus Oct. 3, traffic was so backed up that some concertgoers never made the show, according to WRAL-TV. At one point, traffic was lined up for six miles along Interstate 40. Many people abandoned their cars and walked to the stadium.

One fan, who paid $250 for tickets for her husband's birthday, wasn't so lucky. She waited in traffic for three hours to find that all parking spots were depleted.

"One of the state troopers told us, 'Too late. All lots are full. Go home and see you next year,'" the would-be concertgoer told WRAL-TV.

According to the Highway Patrol, there was no problem with the planning, just that the U2 fans showed up simultaneously.

"When an event for 60,000 people is scheduled at a certain time, about 60,000 people are going to show up to the venue at that time," a person wrote on WRAL's online forum. "Did they expect people to come in shifts?"

As for the stranded concertgoer, she said a manager told her there would be no refund because the concert went on as scheduled.

Steve McLaurin, who manages the parking at all Carter-Finley events and about 200 special events per year for McLaurin Parking, told WTVD-TV that it was a "perfect storm." McLaurin has 30 years experience in the business.

"I do regret, lament that anyone had to sit in traffic for two to three hours," he said. "It was unprecedented the saturation that we got for this concert coming off of I-40."

Unlike football crowds who know the shortcuts and quicker exits, many concertgoers came

SHORTS

WILL BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN be trying his hand at comedy? The Boss, along with Stephen Colbert, has been added to "Stand Up for Heroes: A Benefit for the Bob Woodruff Foundation," to take place in New York City Nov. 4. Louis C.K. and Lisa Lampanelli are already booked for the show with NBC News anchor Brian Williams hosting, according to Variety. Woodruff suffered a brain injury while reporting in Iraq for ABC News in 2006.

STAGECOACH'S relationship with daytime soap operas has been such a success that the next installment will be sponsored by ABC Daytime. The California country music fest that dovetails off of Coachella began a relationship last year with soap operas. ABC Daytime learned that 25 percent of soap opera fans are country music fans so, at the last installment of Stagecoach, several daytime stars were there to introduce acts on the main stage and hold autograph sessions. In return, Stagecoach got advertising time on ABC. Next year's Stagecoach is presented by ABC Daytime and Soapnet. It takes place April 24-26 in Indio with headliners Keith Urban, Toby Keith, Brooks & Dunn and Sugarland.

to the stadium for the first time and were hitting the lots via the interstate in a disproportionate amount. All the parking lots were open, McLaurin said, and he used more parking attendants than normal.

A spokeswoman for N.C. State was out of the office until Oct. 9 and could not be reached for comment.

Pollstar did contact one source who experienced no traffic congestion and noted the stands appeared to be near capacity by the time the lights went down.

Owl City

Let's introduce Adam Young – aka Owl City – not through his backstory but through numbers.

First, music sales. As of Sept. 29, in all of Universal Music Group, Young was in second place in singles sales, behind Miley Cyrus. In third place were the Black Eyed Peas.

Then there's the tour. All the 500- to 1,500-capacity venues on Owl City's current jaunt are either sold out or about to be.

As for radio, Owl City's "Fireflies" is No. 1 among requests on several formats.

Finally, digital sales. The single from the full-length Ocean Eyes sold 68,392 units online in one week, not including the 650,000 that iTunes gave away – making it the second-most popular "single of the week" in history.

Now let's introduce Owl City through the business team.

Creative Artists Agency's Brian Manning, James Kronos and Fall Out Boy / Panic At The Disco agent Andrew Simon are all over the project. So are Brian Loucks, Stephanie Langs, Christine Beldon, Laura Hutsless, Maribeth Ables. CAA has thrown major sponsorship, marketing and television/film power behind this quiet, God-fearing 23-year-old Baptist.

"I got a call from Rob Light last week," manager Steve Bursky told Pollstar. "I've never met Rob. He was just saying how excited, obviously, the agency is across the board. Basically said it's fun having a young band and a young manager and seeing so many people rally around it."

Owl City even has a fan in music industry columnist Bob Lefsetz, who recently devoted an OTT love letter to "Fireflies."

"Some things are immutable. You've got to show up for appointments on time," Lefsetz wrote. "But I couldn't get up from the computer, I needed to hear 'Fireflies' one more time. And then again. And again."

All of this for an admittedly private young man from Owatonna, Minn., who only recently took his first airplane ride and recorded all of his music from his parents' home and put it on MySpace. Young was basically loading trucks for FedEx and Coca-Cola, dabbling in community college and experimenting with musical ideas on his computer – not trying to be a rock star. He made an EP, Owl City, that was sent to iTunes and CD Baby. It drew enough attention to get noticed by Universal Republic.

Eventually Young met Bursky, and it was time for Owl City to perform live. That was going to be a chore.

"By the common definition, I am the 'shyest' person ever to walk the face of the Earth," Young wrote Pollstar, feeling more comfortable with an e-mail interview.

"I had no friends in high school. I didn't eat lunch with the other kids. I can remember going through entire weeks of school days without opening my mouth or saying a single word to anyone. People dismissed me as being shy or insecure or weird."

Because Young likes to be by himself, he was "disgusted" that he would have to perform live – not that he wasn't capable, just because he preferred things the way they were.

"I'll be the first to admit I'm a bit stubborn. I hated the idea of touring because I hated the idea of 'acting' or, in a sense, pretending to be anything other than who I really was."

There was also the issue of converting lush, electronic music to a live format. But Young ended up getting booked for two shows in February at Minneapolis' Varsity Theatre and at Chicago's Schubas Tavern. They weren't fantastic but something interesting happened.

"He texted me on his way back to Owatonna," Bursky said. "He said, 'This was amazing. I can't wait to do more. I can't wait to go back out.'"

Young has since traded his laptop for guitar and keys and has a band that includes a backup multi-instrumentalist, a drummer, a cellist and violinist.

"We put up a Salt Lake City date really late, after the whole tour had been announced," Bursky said. "The promoter didn't know who Owl City was, and was really hesitant to put us in the market. It was a Sunday [show] and he was really concerned given that Mormons don't go out on Sundays. And in 10 days we sold through 800 tickets. He said he's never seen anything like it and he moved us up to a 2,000-seater."

According to Bursky – who is also known for managing the unique story that is Dispatch – there are similar anecdotes from coast to coast. And he's made it clear to promoters to avoid spending money on radio and strip ads. This is strictly an online affair.

"The ones who are listening to me and investing in Facebook social advertising are blowing out their dates," he said. "These online campaigns are proving to be incredibly effective and saving them a ton of money."

After wrapping his U.S. October dates, Young will travel to China and Japan, and maybe take a jaunt to Australia. He returns in 2010 for an even bigger tour with holds already secured for 2,000- to 3,500-capacity venues.

Is Young comfortable with all this touring? He didn't mince words.

"I love it," was the reply from Owl City. [Joe Remartz] ✦

"I hated the idea of touring because I hated the idea of 'acting.'"

NEC GROUP DIRECTOR OF ARENAS Phil Mead (R) presents contest winner Ian Ross a golden ticket good for attendance to any show at the newly refurbished LG Arena in Birmingham, England, through Dec. 31.

The Glastonbury tickets went on sale Oct. 4 and the last ones were snapped up at about 9 p.m. The bookies were offering odds within 24 hours.

The only confirmed act at press time was The John Vistic Experience, which earned its slot by beating 23 other acts to win the festival's rock competition. The Bristol-based band won the final at Pilton Sept. 4.

Although festival tickets are priced at £185 plus £5 booking fee and £4.95 post and packaging, fans need only make a £50 deposit to reserve a ticket. They can pay the balance by the end of February. Emily Eavis, daughter of festival founder Michael Eavis and co-organiser of the event, has confirmed that more tickets for the festival from canceled or unfulfilled orders will go on sale in 2010.

"Registration will reopen on Oct. 12 and there will be another chance to buy tickets from canceled orders in 2010," she explained.

Next year's Glastonbury is June 23-27.

MusicTank's Big Fight Bill

The University Of Westminster's next MusicTank forum is getting big fight billing, as U.K. Music chief Fergal Sharkey and Metropolitan Police chief inspector Adrian Studd are due to square up over venue licensing.

Sharkey will address the gathering, which takes place in the basement of the PRS building in London's Berners Street Oct. 13, with a repeat of his seemingly logical argument that the licensing act is causing small venues to stop promoting live music.

He says the cost and drag of paperwork are enough to deter some landlords, particularly for lower-capacity rooms. He believes that making exemptions for smaller venues will lead to an increase in the number of pubs prepared to stage live music.

The next point of discussion will be about how much noise they can make. It will focus on certain regions, such as the Digbeth area of Birmingham, where venues have had their live entertainment cut short by noise-abatement orders.

The most recent of these venues, The Rainbow, relies heavily on concerts to get by and had its plans to install a £30,000 soundproof roof hampered by their noise-abatement order.

Rainbow landlord Kent Davis will also address the event, pleading for joined-up thinking and a pragmatic approach to noise-abatement issues.

Noise Abatement Society head Lisa Lavia and Mark Duval, leader of policy development for local councils' organisation LACORS, will be among those ducking and weaving.

The scrap with police chief Studd, who's described as "the brains behind Form 696," will no doubt have Sharkey insisting the Met should scrap it.

Form 696 required venues to disclose the name, age, address and phone number of artists and promoters, along with details of the target audience and music style.

More than 50 music organisations opposing the form sent a complaint to the Equalities and Human Rights Commission. It asked the EHRC to intervene because the form was "potentially racist."

The Met has agreed to drop the bit about "music genre," which was seen as a way for the force to take a closer look at venues putting on types of music known for attracting certain ethnic groups.

Chief superintendent Richard Martin, who is head of the Met's clubs and vice unit, admitted there had been "some clumsy bits" in Form 696.

In May, during a review of the 2003 Licensing Act, the House Of Commons' culture, media and sport select committee said the form should be scrapped. Sharkey wants to know why the government ignored it.

MusicTank's ringside seats are £35, with concessions for MusicTank and other trade body members, and are available at musictank.co.uk.

Festival Conference Gets Bigger Capacity

The U.K. Festival Conference that Steve Jenner bolted on to his organisation's U.K. Festival Awards is proving so popular that it's been moved to the larger Vue Cinema in London's O2 complex.

The organisers are expecting 500 people, far more than could have fit into the Gibson Guitar showroom in the city's Rathbone Place where last year's inaugural event took place.

The festival topics under discussion include noise levels, festival crime including tent burglary, forged tickets and fake

UNITED KINGDOM Stones Glasto Favourites

No sooner had Glastonbury Festival sold all its 137,500 tickets in 12 hours than the bookies were chalking up odds on who'll headline, with William Hill making The Rolling Stones the favourite at 4/1.

Others at short odds to close the weekend by headlining the final Sunday night include Coldplay and David Bowie at 8/1 each.

John Giddings from Solo, agent for the Stones and Bowie, and X-Ray Touring's Steve Strange (for Coldplay) are the stable insiders to call to get inside info straight from the proverbial horse's mouth.

"We have lost a few quid on the headline act for two years running and it will be interesting to see if punters get it right again," said William Hill spokesman Rupert Adams, as his firm went Muse at 10/1, U2 and Arctic Monkeys at 12/1, and Radiohead at 14-1.

Anyone believing the Gallaghers will make up and re-form Oasis can get on at 33/1.

The conference is supported by trade magazines including Music Week, Live UK, TPI Magazine and IQ.

"We're extremely proud of how we have developed this year's U.K. Festival Conference as we feel that now is such an important time for the industry to join forces," said UK Festival Conference & Awards co-director Chris McCormick.

"The U.K. festival industry is the most vibrant and exciting in the world, but it is essential for the global festival industries to come together and network, share information and discuss the burning topics."

The U.K. Festival Conference is Nov. 19 and the awards are in the neighbouring Indigo2 in the evening.

Lawyers Stall New Sugababes Debut

The first appearance of the new Sugababes lineup was reportedly stalled because of "legal issues."

These may be related to the fact Keisha Buchanan, the only original Sugababes still in the lineup, quit the act a month ago, claiming she'd been pushed out.

"Following the recent and well documented change of line-up to Sugababes, there are a number of legal issues to be finalised by all parties in order that the band can move forward," read a note on the act's Web site.

"Sadly, whilst these negotiations are approaching completion, it will not be possible for the band to finalise its business affairs prior to Thursday's event."

The plot so far is that former bandmates Heidi Range and Amelle Berrabah denied they'd gotten rid of 24-year-old Buchanan, who has since been replaced by Jade Ewen – the U.K.'s Euro-vision Song Contest entrant this year.

Range, Berrabah and Ewen were to debut at the Scottish Royal Variety Performance at Glasgow's Royal Concert Hall Oct. 8.

Band manager Mark Hargreaves is said to be confident that within a week it will be "business as usual for Sugababes" and there will be no need to cancel further engagements.

The Scottish Royal Variety Performance was being held in honour of The Royal Blind Society. Sugababes are said to be planning their own event and donating the proceeds to the same charity.

Brits Thrash Yanks At MOBOS

British artists hit back against American dominance of the urban music scene by taking eight out of 13 categories at the MOBO Awards.

JLS and N-Dubz were the big winners, taking two awards each. Tottenham rapper Chipmunk beat Kanye West and Eminem to collect the award for best hip hop act.

Chipmunk, aka teenager Jahmaal Fyffe, raps about rather un-American subjects such as drinking tea and his school exam results.

West, Eminem, Beyoncé, Jay-Z, Lady Gaga, Akon and Mariah Carey were among the U.S. acts that were nominated but didn't show for the 15th MOBO Awards.

Newspapers speculated that the low American turnout might be because the ceremony moved from London to Glasgow.

"Glasgow just isn't sexy and it's a very white city," Paul McKenzie, former MOBO panelist and former editor of Touch magazine, told the London Evening Standard.

MOBO organisers said the lineup was a sign that British talent is showing that it can be as successful as its U.S. counterparts.

As it turned out, Beyoncé was the only one who would have needed to make it to the SECC Sept. 30 – winning best international performer – because all the others would have gone home empty-handed.

LATOYA JACKSON AND JERMAINE JACKSON, who performed at the event, were among the few Americans to turn up for the MOBO Awards, which this year took place at the SECC in Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 30.

Jermaine Jackson was the only U.S. visitor of note, singing "Smile" as part of a special MOBO tribute to his brother Michael.

The MOBO Awards, which were founded in 1994, celebrate artists of any race who perform black-influenced music.

BELGIUM Toutpartout Parties At Le Botanique

The boutique booking agency Steven Thomassen started in 1994 will celebrate its 15th anniversary by showcasing acts in Brussels and London.

Toutpartout acts including Texan-bred troubadour Micah P.

Hinson, Seattle contemporary folk trio The Cave Singers, U.K. grunge-inspired singer-songwriter Scout Niblett, and U.S. indie rockers The Black Heart Procession will play London's Scala Nov. 26 and Brussels' Le Botanique Nov. 28.

Thomassen, who started Toutpartout while working for distribution company Konkurrent, has also been the force behind JJ Records Hasselt and Labelman.

Toutpartout also acts as promoter for Andrew Bird, Fleet Foxes, Dirty Projectors, Peaches, Spoon, Explosions In The Sky and many others throughout The Netherlands and Belgium.

Café Stars In Couleur Film

Popular world music festival Couleur Café was the subject of a Belgian national TV documentary Oct. 11.

RTBF, or Radio Télévision Belge, the national broadcasting organisation for the French-speaking southern parts of the country, followed Couleur Café's Jérôme Colin on a tour of the Brussels festival site, accompanied by some of his favourite acts including Keziah Jones, Ayo, Groundation, RZA, Solomon Burke, Neg' Marrons, Babylon Circus and Amadou & Mariam.

It was called "Hep Taxi!" referring to the old Tour and Taxis industrial estate where it's held.

The 2010 edition of Couleur Café Festival, the 21st time it's been staged, will be June 25-27.

DENMARK Roskilde Creates World Music Award

Roskilde Festival has set up a new award for societies or organisations that work with creating musical development in locally based music genres.

The first presentation of Roskilde Festival World Music Award will be at this year's WOMEX, which will be based in Copenhagen for the next three years.

The award is worth euro 30,000 ($44,208) and will be presented by Copenhagen Mayor Ritt Bjerregård Nov. 1.

The winner will be chosen based on recommendations from Roskilde, WOMEX, and the European Forum of Worldwide Music Festivals (EFWMF). It's not possible for festivals, societies or organisations to apply for the award.

Roskilde says for many years it's had the pleasure of presenting world music to its festival audience, so it's an obvious thing for it to want to give something back to the genre.

This year's WOMEX is Oct. 28 to Nov. 1.

FRANCE MIDEM Sets Out Its Stall

After seeing numbers tumble in 2009, MIDEM looks to be turning to digital companies to help swell attendance for February's gathering.

Along with Germany's Popkomm, it's struggled to attract enough live music business delegates to offset the ever-decreasing number of recorded music biz execs.

"The music industry is continually reinventing itself and so innovation is essential," said MIDEM director Dominique Leguern, calling for the digital sector to help keep the numbers up.

It's backed by the launch of MidemNet Lab, a new project designed for innovative digital companies. Companies are invited to send in their ideas and ongoing projects. The best 15 will be invited to present their business as part of MIDEM's industry market.

"By staging the MidemNet Lab, our aim is to put the spotlight on young companies from around the world that are providing new solutions for the future of our industry," Leguern explained.

The start-ups to be showcased will be chosen by U.K. consulting and research company Music Ally and a jury of entrepreneurs.

GERMANY

Scorpio's Creature Comforts

FKP Scorpio will have eight German festivals when it starts two new ones on the Baltic coast at Weissenhäuser Strand in November.

Company chief Folkert Koepmans is launching two events at a holiday camp, where the ticket price includes overnight accommodation in a chalet or hotel room.

"There's an audience that has reached an age when it still enjoys festivals, but it wants something more comfortable than camping," he said, explaining why the German edition of Rolling Stone magazine is the ideal media partner for the opening event Nov. 6-7.

The first Rolling Stone Weekender will have three stages, with capacities of 500, 800 and 2,000, and a lineup that includes The Flaming Lips, Wilco, Editors, Gov't Mule, Kettcarr, The Soundtrack Of Our Lives and Kashmir.

There will also be a chance to listen to the goofy prank calls and biting political and cultural satire of German entertainer Heinz Strunk, Hollywood film director and author Frank Schaeffer and veteran German promoter Fritz Rau.

The following weekend Weissenhäuser Strand will become "Plage Noire" as The Goths take their turn at a holiday fest to see a lineup that includes Corvus Corax, Fiddler's Green and Rabenschrey.

Apart from running the annual popular Goth festival M'era Luna, FKP Scorpio's other German outdoors include Hurricane, Southside, Highfield, Chiemsee Reggae and Area 4.

Tokio Hotel Almost There

Multimillion-selling Tokio Hotel is making history with the music industry's first-ever 3D holographic tour.

Rather than having to hang around in airports, hotels or the backs of vans, a band performance will be broadcast via 3D holographic images in 12 stores owned by consumer electronics retailer Media-Saturn Group.

Hologram technology allows 3D images of the four musicians to be projected onto a stage.

This "groundbreaking new technology" will have Tokio Hotel performing songs from its new Humanoid album in France, Spain, The Netherlands, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Belgium.

The Oct. 5-27 itinerary climaxes with a real live performance in a new Saturn store near Paris.

"This is the perfect innovation, using new technology to bring the excitement of one of Europe's biggest bands to their fans in different countries," said Universal Music Group International VP Max Hole.

second bankruptcy in as many years.

New co-owner Arild Buli told TVZ television network that the 2009 event in Kristiansand went down for 15 million kroner ($2.63 million). It was one-third more than he predicted to Pollstar at the time. It filed for bankruptcy Sept. 28.

After this year's edition, Buli and partner Trond Age Nyhus immediately committed to restaging the event in 2010. But that was before Norwegian newspapers discovered the losses may be much higher and doubted if it is possible to underwrite a similar downside next year.

The harder Quart has tried vying against Oya and Hove to be the country's biggest festival, the more money it has lost.

Buli and Nyhus, who've made money out of real estate and running festival bars, bought the festival from the official receiver after the 2008 edition took it down with reported debts of 16 million kroner ($2.8 million).

The local Kristiansand council wrote off millions to keep the event afloat for the previous three years but could not continue doing so.

Political and media opinion was beginning to question if the event would ever be financially viable.

The Norwegian regional papers doubted it's possible to make such an event happen in Kristiansand. VG claimed the 2009 festival would stop after two days if the security company wasn't paid. The head of the security company denies saying anything to the press.

"They came with this story a day before the money was even due to be paid, but they made it look as if we hadn't paid something that we should have already paid," Buli complained, blaming the papers for trying to kill the event with negative stories.

He had two VG reporters escorted off the site because he didn't like what their paper had written Quart 2009 (June 30 to July 4) had former Guns N' Roses guitarist Slash among the headliners. Others on the bill included Black Eyed Peas, Marilyn Manson, Placebo, Korn, Ozzy Osbourne, Ronnie Wood, Chris Cornell and Volbeat.

Three thousand people bought five-day tickets and the rest of the 10,000 or so daily crowd bought tickets for one or more days.

Buli said he was about 5,000 five-day tickets short of where he had needed to be.

It's not clear if Quart 2010 will open June 29 as scheduled.

PORTUGAL EAA Bends Rules For London O2

London Wembley Arena general manager John Drury was quick to welcome the city's O2 Arena to the European Arenas' Association, which waived its rule about allowing only two members from each country.

"With our previous successful year, we have shown that London is a big enough market to sustain two big arenas, therefore Wembley Arena is pleased to welcome London's The O2 to the EAA," he said, as a third English venue was allowed to join the European network. Birmingham's LG Arena is also a member.

Also joining the EAA is Zurich Hallenstadion, which brings the Swiss contingent up to two. Basel St. Jakobshalle is also a member.

At its twice-yearly meeting at Lisbon Atlântico Pavilion Oct. 1, the consensus among the EAA's leading lights was that the old "two per country" rule was preventing the continent's best new arenas from joining.

"It is important for London's The O2 to be part of the EAA, with its many benefits such as benchmarking, but also to speak with one voice in Europe," said O2 business operations director Steve Brice.

"We are proud to add our support and be part of the organisation."

To incorporate more new venues in major cities, the rules have now been modified to allow more than two venues from each member country to be part of the EAA, even permitting sometimes competing venues from the same city, such as Wembley and The O2.

EAA managing director Linda Bull explained how the EAA initially met as a group of friends from a small number of cities across Europe with similar issues and challenges.

"As Europe changed and the demands on our arenas grew, more venues expressed an interest to join our club," she said. "We now present a united group of the very best arenas in Europe, valued by the live entertainment industry and an important focus for promoters looking to tour across Europe."

Hallenstadion GM Felix Frei was also pleased that, given the size of the country, the EAA was happy to welcome a second Swiss venue.

"We very much value the ability to compare and discuss issues facing all our venues," he said. "The Hallenstadion is a very important venue in Switzerland, but it is a big competitive market and we see the EAA as a way of optimising the market."

St. Jakobshalle managing director Thomas Kastl said it's in the EAA's interests for major venues to be members and was more than happy to welcome the Hallenstadion.

The EAA membership is now 29 venues spread across 21 European countries.

THE NETHERLANDS Mojo Hopes To Break Even On TEG Shows

Mojo Concerts doesn't expect to do any better than break even on the Diana Ross shows it rescued from the bankrupt The Entertainment Group BV, but company chief exec John Mulder was keen to see the live industry keep faith with its market.

If the Diana Ross dates at Arnhem Gelredome Oct. 16-17 were canceled, the 50,000 fans who paid between euro 50 and euro 70 for a ticket would have seen their money disappear in TEG's reported euro 26 million demise.

"We hope at the very best to break even," Mulder told Pollstar as more than euro 300,000 had been lopped off the show's potential gross. "The official receiver has everything now."

Top Dutch singer Marco Borsato, founder and major shareholder of TEG which also managed him, has agreed to do two shows for free to help fund the Ross dates.

"We contacted Marco through the official receiver because of the number of fans that are holding tickets and it gave him a

ADE Conference Sold Out

The Amsterdam Dance Event conference has sold out in the last two years, but this year is the first time all the tickets have gone three weeks before the event.

The 2,000 tickets for the Oct. 21-24 gathering have gone to visitors from 46 countries, confirming the Buma Cultuur initiative as the international dance music industry's No. 1 European event.

Its aim is to provide the electronic music industry with an important platform for international business, exchanging knowledge and keeping up to date on the latest developments and trends.

This year's speakers include Moby's manager Eric Harle, Mark Jones from Wall Of Sound, New Order guitarist Peter Hook and Richie Hawtin, who will also be playing the evening festival.

Tickets are still available for the 700 performances spread across 40 Amsterdam venues.

The lineup includes Armin van Buuren, Fatboy Slim, Deadmau5, Faithless, Pete Tong, Carl Craig, David Guetta, Junkie XL, Groove Armada, Laurent Garnier and Simian Mobile Disco.

Strong Start For Summer Festivals

The Parklife tour (Sept. 26 to Oct. 3) set a strong start for the summer festivals.

Unofficial figures had it drawing 28,000 to the Gold Coast, 15,000 to Perth, 13,000 to Adelaide, 17,000 to Melbourne and 40,000 to Sydney.

The major draw was headliner Empire Of The Sun, which unveiled its kooky theatrical live show.

Parklife's strong draw came weeks before tickets went on sale for Big Day Out, Soundwave, Good Vibrations and Playground Weekender.

Almost 100 Parklife patrons faced drug charges. A sad story was the Sydney drug dealer who figured he'd bury his stash on the site months in advance so he wouldn't be caught by drug-sniffing dogs at the gates.

chance to also take some responsibility," Mulder explained.

Despite Borsato's financial interest in TEG, his own career means he had little involvement in the company's day-to-day running. He said it was a "sledgehammer blow" when he learned TEG was in deep trouble.

The Hilversum-based company he co-founded in 1994 had been under Chapter 11 protection since the middle of September and was declared bankrupt by an Amsterdam court Sept. 22.

"It's the first contact I've ever signed for zero euros but I think it's the best contract I've ever signed," he told a press conference at Amsterdam Paradiso Sept. 23.

Other artists including Guus Meeuwis, Paul de Leeuw, Jan Smit and Trijntje Oosterhuis have announced they will also perform free of charge.

They will be at the Gelredome Oct. 20-21 and proceeds will be used to cover the ticket money that sunk with TEG and fund the Ross shows.

Dutch papers are still asking how the company can have gone under with so much debt and speculating over whether there has been any wrongdoing.

Alas, he arrived to find a stage built over his hiding spot.

Swift, G Love Returning

Michael Coppel Presents locked in Taylor Swift for five arena appearances Feb. 4-12.

G Love & Special Sauce will return for Handsome Tours, behind an Australia-only album called Long Way Down, Nov. 18-21.

Dainty Consolidated Entertainment is bringing baritone crooner Paurizio Buane May 16-30 for five theatre dates.

Frontier Touring Company rescheduled The Used's four November club shows to mid-March after the band had to cancel.

Sydney R&B vocal group Human Nature will take a break from its headlining run at The Imperial Palace Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas to return to Australia for a one-off show at Wyndham Estate on Dec 12 with mentor Smokey Robinson for New Vine Entertainment.

Festivals Awarded

Adelaide's world music event WOMAdelaide won this year's global Greener Festival Award, acknowledging its efforts to reduce its environmental impact.

A 56-point checklist covered green office policies, energy use and carbon reduction, travel and transport, support for green initiatives, waste management, recycling, water use, environmental protection and noise pollution.

Apollo Bay Music received the Contemporary Cultural Development Award from the state of Victoria for how it engaged community groups and provided exposure for local acts in the past 17 years.

Short Notes

The copyright infringement case between the Australian Federation Against Copyright Theft (AFACT) and Perth-based Internet Service Provider iiNet began in Sydney Federal Court Oct 6. The firms claimed iiNet had not done enough to stop its customers from illegally sharing files. The outcome will have global repercussions on the responsibilities of ISPs. AFACT represents 34 entertainment firms.

Queensland-based Jeff Chandler has taken over management of singer/songwriter Shane Nicholson, who has had platinum records for his duets with wife Kasey Chambers.

To promote the upcoming Golden Rule album, rock band Powderfinger did three impromptu acoustic shows in city squares in Brisbane, Sydney and Melbourne. Fans were twittered 15 minutes before the performance. The three shows drew 4,000 fans.

A survey found that sponsorships and donations to the Australian arts sector grew to $202 million in the 2007/08 fiscal year, an 18 percent increase on the previous year.

Zaccaria Events set up the inaugural five-city national theatre tour of Australian Rock Symphony Jan. 22-30. It sees former Divinyls singer Chrissy Amphlett,

CHINA Foreigners Blocked From Fest

Chinese authorities put a serious crimp in the country's main underground music festival, Modern Sky, which took place Oct. 4-7 in Beijing's Chaoyang Park.

Modern Sky Records head Shen Lihui, who organized the 3-year-old festival, was informed by local police Sept. 30 that all 14 foreign acts scheduled would not be permitted to play, according to China Music Radar. The acts included the Futureheads, Radio 4, Regurgitator, British Sea Power, Shonen Knife, International Noise Conspiracy and the Buzzcocks.

Authorities did not give any reason for the cancellation, but various bloggers have speculated that the festival was too close to the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the establishment of Communist rule.

Though the government has prevented foreign artists from performing in the past, it's always been for stand-alone concerts. This is the first time it has prevented foreign acts from playing at a Chinese festival.

The remaining 30 bands on the Modern Sky roster, all Chinese artists, were unaffected by the ban and the festival went ahead as planned, though ticket prices were reduced and refunds were offered.

The cancellations were not extended to two other foreign acts playing separately.

Beyoncé's single concert at the Wukesong Gymnasium in Beijing Oct. 23 is going ahead as planned. Skid Row's show at the Star Live venue in the capital, which opened the latest incarnation of the Midi Festival, received no interference, even though it took place on Oct. 2, the day after the 60th anniversary parade and festivities.

However, two other China shows by the International Noise Conspiracy were canceled, but apparently it had nothing to do with the authorities.

Modern Sky reportedly asked the venues involved to not go ahead with the concerts.

KOREA Don't Blame It On The Rain

Korean pop star Rain is on tour in Asia, and some people are taking advantage of his popularity in a bad way.

One of the tour organizers, J. Tune Entertainment, announced Sept. 30 that a Web site selling tickets to a Rain concert in Shanghai was a scam.

"The site selling the Shanghai concert tickets is not a seller with a contract from us," the announcement said. "We would like to inform you that this is a scam. We do not have any concerts [scheduled for] Shanghai at the moment."

The site is said to have originated in China.

In addition, there was a site in Japan selling travel packages to the tour's opening concert in Seoul Oct. 9 that J. Tune said was also a scam.

Rain is set to play only in Seoul and Hong Kong.

"If there are any sites that sell tickets that are not in these cities," said the announcement, "then it is a scam."

MALAYSIA Gary Chaw Arrested

Hong Kong police arrested Malaysian pop singer Gary Chaw for fighting with a friend on the street Sept. 23, an act that was caught on video.

If convicted of assault, Chaw could face up to a year in prison.

The video clip shows Chaw attacking Justin Lo and trying to bash him over the head with a signboard.

The next day, he apologized for the incident but it has since been turned into a big news story, prompting police to investigate further. Chaw reportedly sneaked back into Malaysia to avoid reporters.

On Oct. 2 he returned to Hong Kong after being requested to do so by local police and was arrested upon arrival. He has since been released on bail.

As a result of the attention, all of Chaw's upcoming concerts and TV appearances have been canceled and his record company has dropped his contract.

The media has reported that Chaw's marriage to a Taiwanese woman is also on the rocks because of the singer's drinking problems.

JAPAN Pictures Worth A Million

Members of two boy bands represented by Johnny's Jimusho, Japan's most powerful talent agency, are suing a publisher for the use of unauthorized photographs of the groups.

The 11 young men in the groups Arashi and Kat-tun have filed a suit in Tokyo District Court against R's Publishing Inc. for a total of 171 million yen ($1.9 million).

They are also demanding that publication of the books in question be suspended. The publisher has said he plans to fight the suit in court.

According to the complaint, between 2005 and 2008 the company published 12 different photo books with titles that contain the names of the two groups as well as names of members of the groups.

Plaintiffs' attorneys contend that the publisher did not receive permission to use the photos contained in the books.

R's Publishing said in a statement that "the legal framework for publicity rights has not yet been clearly established, and we don't consider that the content of the books violates these rights."
