The Concert Industry's Next Stadium-Level Act

As expected, Pearl Jam's sophomore album, Vs., debuted at the top of the album charts for the week ending October 24th. What was unexpected was that the Epic album easily shattered the record for first-week sales, with more than 950,000 copies blowing out the doors of retail outlets. That's nearly eight times what Meat Loaf sold to earn the top slot last week and more than the rest of this week's top 10 combined! The previous debut-week high since SoundScan went on line in 1991 was 770,000 units for Guns N' Roses Use Your Illusion II. Despite the band's attempts to hold down the hype, lead singer Eddie Vedder wound up on the cover of Time magazine last week even though he and the rest of the band refused to be interviewed for the magazine's story on twentysomething angst.

Axl And Stump Settle Lawsuit

Axl Rose and biker William "Stump" Stephenson came to an out-of-court settlement October 21st, resolving a $2 million civil suit brought against the rocker after a July 1991 riot at a Guns N' Roses concert at the Riverport Amphitheatre outside St. Louis. Rose said the settlement offer, which was for "a very minimal figure," was made before they went to court, but Stephenson didn't accept it until the case had gone to the jury. After the judge announced the settlement, a group of fans came up to Axl seeking his autograph. Much to Rose's surprise, his accuser was among the group. But Axl didn't hold a grudge, he happily obliged "Stump" with his autograph. After the dust had settled, Axl said Guns N' Roses may return to St. Louis for another concert. His willingness to return to the Midwestern city is a far cry from the negative pretrial attitude he had held, wearing his "St. Louis Sucks," T-shirt during his videotaped testimony. In addition to settling with Stephenson, Axl said he may have to curb his concert antics from now on, and will not be stage diving as much as he would like. The Stephenson case was the first in a series of civil lawsuits filed against Rose in connection with the riot in which more than 60 people were injured. Last year, Rose agreed to pay $50,000 to five St. Louis area charities in an agreement with prosecutors to resolve the four counts of misdemeanor assault and the one count of misdemeanor property damage which resulted from the '91 riot. He is now serving two years on probation for those misdemeanor charges.

Setting Sail After Six Sellouts

In honor of his commitment to his New York fans, Billy Joel is presented with an antique replica of a schooner by Madison Square Garden president Bob Gutkowski. Joel completed six sold-out shows October 2-12 at the Garden, bringing his total to 24 sellouts at the arena since 1978.

More "Dangerous" Cancellations

Michael Jackson's cancellation of his October 21st concert in Santiago, Chile was due to a pulled muscle in his lower back, according to MJ's personal physician. More than 5,000 fans already at the stadium that night hurled food and debris at the stage and screamed insults against MJ when they heard the news. The local press debated as to whether or not MJ was really hurt, reporting that he was seen playing with water pistols up and down the hotel corridors later that night. At first, the show, the first of two in that country, was postponed to October 25th, but then was cancelled after police said they had other commitments that day and couldn't provide security. Tour organizers told the press they hoped the date could be rescheduled for later in November. MJ also cancelled his October 26th concert at the

PAUL WESTERBERG

Lurking somewhere in the back of his mind is a way out. It's the scheme that will mean an end to the battle that pits the Paul Westerberg who wants to follow his artistic instincts against the Paul Westerberg who wants his music to break through to a larger audience. "I'm gonna bypass television and radio entirely," says Westerberg. "I think I'll make records and release them out of my basement and not go anywhere. Play in my backyard and people can travel and see me if they want." Oh, well. It's tough when a major music magazine has dubbed you "the soul of rock and roll;" when you've watched the Nirvanas and Pearl Jams storm through the barriers to mainstream acceptance your former band helped to break down; and still you find there's not a place for your songs on the radio. So when it came to recording his first solo album after the breakup of The Replacements, Westerberg did the only thing he knew how to do. He made a record he likes. "I never tailored any of [the songs] to sound like a top-40 or a triple-A, or whatever," Westerberg says of 14 Songs. "In this day and age, I would imagine there would be a way a record could be promoted and sold as that. In the past I've tried to tailor songs for the radio, and sometimes they've rang a little untrue and hollow."

After the split of The Replacements, considered by many to have been one of the most influential rock bands of the '80s, Westerberg says he wanted to make a record that reintroduced his music. "I wasn't bending over backwards to show everyone, 'Hey, I can still play rock 'n' roll,'" he says. "I just didn't feel like playing it the last couple of years." The creative spark with The Replacements was gone in the band's waning days, he says. "It was not a good vibe from anyone. And once I shed myself of all that, I was ready to rock again. And I think even the ballads got stronger." The desire to bring his music to a larger audience led Westerberg to break with his longtime manager earlier this year. "I was unhappy with where my record was in the chart," Westerberg says. "I liked [the manager] personally a great deal, but I guess I've gotten to the point that perhaps my personal affection for him was clouding the fact that maybe I could do better with a different manager." Westerberg sought and found a West Coast manager, Lindy Goetz, who could deal with his label, Warner Bros., in person. "I understand it is a business, and that if you continually lose money, you might want to try another one," Westerberg says.

That's meant learning to cope with the higher-ups at major record labels. "If someone wears a suit as a suit of armor or a badge of honor, those are the people I have trouble with," Westerberg says. "I am not a businessman, I am definitely a musician." It has also meant learning to deal with one of his most loathed topics: music videos. "I hate to get this handle of the guy who hates them and complains, because I know there's a ton of bands out there who would die to make one," Westerberg says. "But it's always something I'm uncomfortable doing. It's the kind of thing I rebelled against because you don't have control." The first Replacements video was for "Bastards of Young," a cut from the band's first major-label release in 1985. The camera focused on a stereo speaker as the song played. And that was it. Needless to say, the video didn't make heavy rotation on MTV, but Rolling Stone magazine's recent list of the top 100 videos of all time ranked it at number 19. Westerberg has softened his stance since those days, and can be seen in videos from his solo album and some later Replacements songs. "I figure if we make one they play, wonderful," he says. "But I've never enjoyed making them, and I enjoy watching them less."

Westerberg is currently playing theatres in support of his album, with dates set through December 18th. He is booked by Brad Gelfond and Allison Hamamura at the William Morris Agency. "It is, without a doubt, a love-hate thing," Westerberg says of life on the road. "I love it when the shows go good and there's a little time to rest. And four- and five-nighters in a row with a day off as a travel day, that can wear you down physically and mentally. But it's in my blood, I'll say that." Unlike many artists, Westerberg didn't shun the songbook from his previous band after it split. After all, he wrote it. "In Chicago the other night the crowd was calling off 'Hold My Life' (from the 1985 Replacements album, Tim). I couldn't remember it, and I just played the chords and the audience sang the entire song for me. And I thought, okay, this is something, so I think I'm gonna learn that one."

Westerberg says he's seen his fans change from the early punk rock days of The Replacements. "I do have the fans who still like the rock 'n' roll stuff because I like the shit," Westerberg says. "But I would say it's people who like good lyrics and I guess people who are romantic in a way, even. I mean, it's not your average 'rock fan;' there are not a lot of people sitting on each other's shoulders with lighters. They're a little deeper, I'm finding out." However, the personal nature of many of Westerberg's songs can be a problem. "Some of them want me to solve their problems for them and they live vicariously through some of the tunes, which I don't mind because I did the same growing up. But some of these people are grown up, which is a little frightening."

Despite his gripes, Westerberg says his desire to make music far outshines the frustration that goes with it. He'll continue to play to his loyal fans, hoping a wider following catches up to him someday. And if that fails? "I don't know," he says, laughing. "Maybe I'll get my own television station. Then I wouldn't have to make records. I'd come out once a week and play my four new songs. Do that for the rest of my life. I could spout a little gospel, get Tom Waits to come and preach — who knows?"

National Stadium in Lima, Peru and went straight to his next stop in Mexico. A Peruvian promoter said he also hopes to reschedule the show sometime in November and no reason for the change was given. MJ, however, is expected to proceed with his four shows in Mexico City at the 130,000-seat Aztec Stadium. And while in Mexico he plans to visit Keiko, the ailing killer whale featured in his video from the movie "Free Willie."

Bosstones Check Out Mighty Mighty Damage

The punishment of 700 moshing Mighty Mighty Bosstones fans proved to be too much for the 100-year-old floor at the Horizontal Boogie Bar in Rochester, N.Y., to handle. The crowd managed to create an 18-by-26 foot sinkhole near the stage on October 21st. No one was injured. "They played one note, all the fans went up, came down, the floor blew out, we cut the power, and they left," owner Peter Sewell told POLLSTAR. Sewell said 24 joists split beneath the dance floor, causing it to sag about five feet. The floor was repaired in time for a show the next night. "We have had a lot of big bands up there and a lot of jumping around, but for some reason The Bosstones were the ones who were able to do it in," he said. The group returned October 23rd to make up the date. "They did a really dynamite thing for me coming back," Sewell said. "When the Bosstones' fans came back, they came back ready to break it again. They were bouncing as hard as they could, but the floor didn't give."

Deals, Moves And Changes

The William Morris Agency has moved its Nashville offices to 2100 West End Avenue, Suite 1000, Nashville, Tenn., 37203. Their new phone number is (615) 963-3000. They now have three fax numbers. (615) 963-3090 is for Ginger Anderson, Joe Harris, Steve Lassiter, Keith Miller, Greg Oswald, Wally Saukerson and Rick Shipp; 963-3092 for Rob Beckham, Michael Cooper, Darin Murphy and Mark Roeder; and 963-3091 for agents in the Fairs or Christian department.... Ritchey Nolen Reeves Agency has closed its doors due to financial problems. Cass Scripps has gone on to form his own agency, Metro Talent Group, with Jack Tarver in Atlanta. Tracy Ritchey is hoping to land a new position on the West Coast.... Plans to build the new Spectrum II Arena in Philadelphia now appear to be dead in the water. The Philadelphia 76ers rejected Spectacor's final proposal for the project October 20th, putting a sudden stop to plans for a new arena to house the city's hockey and basketball teams. Spectacor founder Ed Snider said he intends to continue the effort to build a new world class facility. However, the terms of the existing financing for Spectrum II were contingent on Spectacor obtaining long-term agreements with the city's two pro sports teams. Speculation in Philly is that the Sixers' previously-abandoned plan to move across the river into New Jersey may be back on the table. If Snider can't patch up his tenuous relationship with Sixers owner Harold Katz, Spectacor might scrap the new arena idea and dust off its four-year-old plans to remodel the existing Spectrum.... The Agency in Canada has taken a big step towards becoming a full-service booking agency with a new co-venture with The Talent Group, another Canadian agency which represents composers, directors, actors, writers and cinematographers. The Agency's prexy, David Bluestein, expects the co-venture to give his acts better shots at soundtrack or theatrical composing projects and work in film, television and commercials.... Speculation that Jerry Moss and Herb Alpert would launch their own record company was validated when they chose Howard Thompson to come aboard as the first A&R exec at their new Rondor Records company. Thompson, who spent the past nine years as head of A&R at Elektra, will base his A&R department out of Rondor Music's offices in New York starting January 1st. Moss and Alpert kept controlling interest in Rondor Music publishing when they sold A&M to PolyGram in 1989. No distribution deal for the new label has been set.... Def Jam Records has entered into a joint venture with PolyGram's Great Entertainment Merchandise. The deal gives GEM the inside track on rights to new Def Jam signings plus a license to put Def Jam logos and trademarks on retail apparel.... Capitol Records will distribute the Beastie Boys' new Grand Royal label. First release will be Luscious Jackson's In Search of Manny EP. A new Beasties record on the Grand Royal label is set for April.

Coming And Going In Branson

Broadway is coming to the tourist haven of Branson, Mo., thanks to the unlikely pairing of Lee Iacocca and Pat Boone. Iacocca announced October 26th that he's investing in a group that plans to bring "The Will Rogers Follies" to Branson. Boone will star in the Branson production, which will be performed twice daily, six days a week, in the theatre Mel Tillis will vacate next year. Tillis is building himself a new theatre. Boone will play the lead for three months at which point the show's backers hope to get Keith Carradine, Mac Davis or Larry Gatlin to take over. Iacocca said he is also investing in a 1,000-acre development north of Branson and is a consultant to Branson Airlines. The Branson Theatre Corp. also unveiled plans for a $9 million theatre and restaurant complex to be built adjacent to what will be renamed the Will Rogers Theatre. Glen Campbell will move his shows from the Grand Palace to headline that theatre in a show which will be modeled after his 1960s TV series. Meanwhile, Ray Stevens has wrapped up his last full season in Branson. "I've played to over 1.6 million fans here in Branson in just under 17 months," Stevens said. "At the end of the season, I plan to head back to Nashville and do something I've watched them all do — take a vacation." His final show was October 30th. Stevens plans to sell his 2,000-seat theatre.

Looking Good Under The Pyramid

Rod Stewart's October 9th show at The Pyramid in Memphis set a box office record for the facility, grossing $479,000 on more than 18,000 tickets sold. The feat netted Rod a Waterford Crystal Pyramid which he displays backstage with arena VP Jerry MacDonald and (R) Bob Kelley of Mid-South Concerts.

Legal Grievs

Billy Joel quietly settled his $90 million lawsuit which charged his former law firm, Grubman, Indursky, Schindler & Goldstein, with fraud and breach of contract. The suit, which was filed last year in New York, charged that Joel's former lawyer, Allen Grubman, and his firm, had paid kickbacks to Joel's former business manager and ex-brother-in-law, Frank Weber. Grubman had claimed the payments were made to Weber for his personal financial and investment planning services. Joel had sought $30 million in compensatory damages and $60 million in punitive damages. Terms of the settlement were not released.... One of Sandi Patti's former attorneys was sentenced to 25 months in prison October 8th for bank fraud. Samuel Chappell pleaded guilty to two counts of bank fraud, the first stemming from a scheme whereby he established a $200,000 line of credit in Patti's name and then withdrew $100,000 of it for his own use. The second count resulted from an incident where Chappell forged gospel singer Carmen Licciardello's signature on a $100,000 check and cashed it for his own benefit. Chappell was also ordered to make more than $407,000 in restitution.... A lawsuit filed in Atlanta by a group of '60s recording artists charges that they were shorted $750 million in union pension and health benefits over the years. Sam Moore is the lead plaintiff in the case, which is seeking class action status. Other plaintiffs include Curtis Mayfield, members of the Shirelles, and the estates of Jackie Wilson and Mary Wells. Under a 1958 agreement, record companies are supposed to pay a percentage of an artist's income into the AFTRA benefits fund. Moore's suit charges that although Sam & Dave's record sales were in the millions, his pension is based on earnings of about $100,000. That gives him a union pension of $73 a month and a lump sum of $2,285. Defendants named in the case include AFTRA and dozens of record companies.... When Columbia Records artist Chris Whitley landed in New Zealand for a series of concerts to promote his new Living With The Law album, he was turned away because the airport police found a two-joint stash of pot hidden in a shoe. Kiwi police decided not to arrest him and instead put him on a flight back to Los Angeles.

Oakdale Takes Billy Ray Into Hartford

Billy Ray Cyrus displays a plaque noting his September 23rd sold-out concert at the Hartford Civic Center. The concert was the first at the venue since it came under Ogden management. (L-R) Tour manager Al Schultz; Oakdale Concerts Jim Bozzi; Cyrus; Ogden's Steve Peters; and promoter Beau Segal.

Short Items Of Note

Bette Midler broke concert industry records left and right with her 30-show run at Radio City Music Hall September 14 - October 23. The Divine Ms. M, with a box office gross exceeding $11 million, set the all-time record as the highest grossing continuous concert engagement by a single touring artist in one venue. The run at Radio City, which was originally only scheduled for 20 nights, also broke the venue's record for the most shows in one engagement by a single performer and the greatest number (177,747) of concert tickets sold.... They're not expected to win many hockey games this year, but the Florida Panthers won big on the merchandising front. At the expansion NHL franchise's inaugural game at Miami Arena October 25th, gross merchandising sales exceeded $500,000; a whopping $37 per person in attendance. That's the highest per cap ever for a concert or sporting event, according to FMI, which is the lucky company holding the merchandising rights..... Rosemont Mayor Donald Stephens and Rosemont Horizon arena executive director Harry Pappas, were on hand at the October 28th ground-breaking for the $20 million, state-of-the-art Rosemont Theater. The 4,200-capacity suburban Chicago-area theatre is scheduled to open in the Spring of 1995..... MTV has conferred presidential status on two senior execs. Judy McGrath has been upped to entertainment president and executive veep Sara Levinson moves to president of business operations. Between the two of them, the pair will oversee MTV's day-to-day operations.

Two New Geezers For Fleetwood Mac

Madonna Sure Knows How To Make Headlines

Madonna continues to stir up controversy at nearly every stop on her "Girlie Show" world tour. After her October 19th concert in Philadelphia, a DJ in Toronto said he will never play her records again because she dissed the city's baseball team during her show. At The Spectrum show, which was just a stone's throw from Veterans Stadium where the Toronto Blue Jays were playing the Phillies in the third game of the World Series — Madonna said she understood that there was some stiff competition for her across the street. Then she said, "Fuck Toronto! Fuck the Blue Jays!" It went over well with that crowd, but no surprise it didn't sit well with the folks up in the Great White North. Meanwhile in San Juan, Puerto Rico, Roman Catholic churches stayed open the night of her October 26th concert and urged people to pray during the show. A Catholic Diocese spokesman said the people of Puerto Rico should tie black ribbons on trees to show their distaste of Madonna's moral corruption. An evangelical minister also joined in the protests and claimed to have information that some of Maddie's fans were preparing a "black mass" and holding a "satanic" ritual near the stadium. And the police chief in San Juan said the vice squad would watch the show for any obscenity violations. However, the biggest complaint after the show was that Madonna caressed her body with the Puerto Rican flag during one of her songs, which some in the crowd of 26,000 thought desecrated their flag. And in Mexico, 30,000 people have protested her upcoming visit because they don't want the country to become a "dump for other countries' social trash." Heh, what about NAFTA?

George Michael Takes The Stand Against Sony

George Michael took the stand during the second week of testimony in a London High Court to explain why he wanted to void his long-term contract with Sony. Michael said he was treated well by CBS Records, the company that signed him. But he said when Sony bought CBS Records in 1988, things went sour. "Sony have by and large refused [to provide proper] support, financially and otherwise," he said in a 66-page statement. Sony's lawyer portrayed Michael as an egotistical star who consistently renege on promises and contracts. The lawyer charged that Michael's sagging sales resulted because Michael attempted to change his sexy image, not because of lack of promotion. Michael's last Sony album, Listen Without Prejudice, sold about 500,000 copies, about a third as many as Faith, which was recorded for CBS. Michael told the court he has more money than he knows what to do with, but that it's the principle at stake. When asked how much money he was worth, Michael wrote a figure on a piece of paper that was shown to the judge and lawyers. "I think [journalists in the courtroom] might be a little shocked actually," Michael said. Michael also surprised onlookers by telling the lawyer he used a "body double" in his video for "I Want Your Sex." "He was rather a lot larger than me and had no hair on his chest," Michael said, drawing laughter from the crowded courtroom.

Between The Dates

If you want to see CONCRETE BLONDE, you better catch the current tour, because there may not be another one. After this tour, which supports the new album Mexican Moon, lead singer Jhonette Napolitano will pursue solo projects. A spokesperson for the band's management, Frank Volpe Management, would not call it a split or a break-up but could not say whether there would ever be another album or tour by Napolitano, or any other band member, using the name Concrete Blonde..... A torn vocal chord is responsible for the postponement of the mid-portion of the DURAN DURAN North American tour following an October 17th performance at Stabler Arena in Bethlehem, Pa. At first Simon LeBon thought his throat problems were temporary, and only the next two dates were postponed. Now it looks as if the band won't be back on the road until November 19th in Jacksonville, Florida..... Organizers of the 1994 WORLD CUP have announced the entertainment lineup for the festivities that will surround the final drawing at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas of teams that are eligible to play in the championships. Included on the list of performers are soccer fans Rod Stewart, Elton John, Julio Iglesias, and Eros Ramazzotti. However, before you start making travel plans please note that the only performer that will be performing live will be Julio Iglesias. The other performers will appear through the magic of video tape. Both the drawing and the entertainment will be included in a 90 minute live broadcast to be aired December 19th on ESPN..... ELTON JOHN's upcoming dates in the Sun City enclave of South Africa marks the full scale return of major contemporary superstars to the country since the lifting of the U.N. cultural boycott. Elton, along with percussionist Ray Cooper will take his acoustic tour to the Valley Of The Waves, a large entertainment area located near the Sun City hotel complexes on December 6-7, and 9-10..... The "Nocturnal Audio and Sensory Awakening See The Light Tour" is quite a mouthful, not to mention a helluva lot of space on the marquee, so you will see this U.S. tour promoted as "NASA's SEE THE LIGHT." The rave spirited modern dance tour, described as "the largest American electronic live festival of it's kind," and as a "combination of musical mood and orgasmic, intelligent lights, lasers and projections," features Moby, Orbital, Aphex Twin, Vapour Space and DJ Tim from the Utah Saints. The tour will also include vendors selling handmade clothes, jewelry, toys and "smart nutrition." Plans are to also include local dance DJ's. To find out more about the show in your market, call (800) 357-1474..... The ROBERT PLANT tour rolls on. European dates are in this week's Route Book. Plant will rock South America in January, and then it's more European dates, followed by shows in Japan, Southeast Asia, and Australia. Look for RUSH to start a North American tour in mid-January..... TANYA TUCKER and her four-bus entourage were delayed in Charleston, S.C., October 21st after a driver topped off a bus's tank with gasoline instead of diesel fuel, then spilled some while attempting to siphon the fuel out. The fire department showed up after hearing that some fuel might have gone down a storm drain. Tucker used the down-time to hand out autographs in the parking lot, and was back on the road in plenty of time to make her next show in Augusta, Ga..... You have until November 20th to learn how to set your VCR. That's the day that HBO will air a one time only broadcast of MADONNA, taped just hours earlier at her performance in Sydney, Australia. Air time will be 10:15 pm for both East and West Coast feeds. Flyovers should check local listings.
