Would You Like To Buy The Meadowlands Arena?

New Jersey Gov. Christie Whitman told reporters January 20th that she was considering selling the Meadowlands Arena. Almost immediately, New Jersey Devils hockey club owner John McMullen told the New York Daily News that he'd consider buying it. Whitman told reporters she wants to privatize the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, which operates Giants Stadium, the Meadowlands Arena, Monmouth Park Raceway, the Meadowlands Racetrack and the Atlantic City Convention Center. McMullen said he doesn't consider the building to be ideal, but thinks it could be a great arena if improvements are made — particularly, the addition of luxury suites. Meanwhile, Spectacor is reportedly interested in managing the Meadowlands Arena if it's privatized. SMG prexy Thomas Gibson told the Philadelphia Daily News that they were interested, but the company hasn't been in contact with the New Jersey governor's office at all on the matter. "This is not a new story," Spectacor founder Ed Snider told the paper. "We've said all along that we'd be interested in anything if it were privatized." Philadelphia-based SMG manages 45 facilities.

Promoters Meet To Seek Competitive Advantage

The North American Concert Promoters Association held their meetings January 23-25 at the Le Parker Meridien Hotel in New York City. The 61 reps from NACPA held a variety of special meetings which strived to improve promoter's relations with their strategic partners in an attempt to achieve a competitive advantage in today's changing industry. On January 23rd, Anheuser-Busch senior marketing exec Gary Goldstein met with the promoters to discuss the corporate perspective on live music as a marketing tool. John Petrafesa, a senior exec from the international office of IATSE, also met with the promoters in a closed door session for a candid exchange about the past problems NACPA members have had in dealings with various stagehand union locals. That meeting was said to have been positive, with both sides indicating a desire to improve relations. The concert liability insurance crisis was explored in another session with Kevin Topper of Reliance Insurance Group and Cindy Broschart of Gulf Insurance Group. Those two individuals are the underwriters who assess the risk and set the rates for a (Continued Page 5)

WHITE ZOMBIE

When decades are spent ingesting large doses of junk media and underground culture, things like White Zombie come to be. Watching bad horror movies, reading underground books, soaking up lots of television, and listening to theatrical rock stars like KISS and Alice Cooper were all part of the mix that created lead singer Rob Zombie and the rest of the group — Sean Yseult on bass, J on guitar and Phil Buerstatte on drums. "When you're a little kid, if you discover KISS first, and then you see Led Zeppelin, you're like, 'God, they're boring hippie guys,'" Rob says. "And it ruins everything else."

White Zombie is one of those groups that can take themselves seriously while keeping tongue firmly in cheek. They've been compared to the musical equivalent of a B-movie. Of course, the kids get it. And of course, most parents and fundamentalists don't understand at all. White Zombie's debut release for Geffen is titled La Sexorcisto: Devil Music Vol. 1, which Rob thought was pretty funny. He got a kick out of it when The 700 Club used a White Zombie album and video to illustrate the evils propagated through rock and roll, but admits he was surprised his band was attacked with such zeal. "Nothing was ever a calculated move," Rob says. "I mean, if my only goal was to upset people, I could really come up with something horrible. As far as upsetting people, this seems kind of lightweight."

If a pact with the devil is behind the success of Rob and his leather and polyester clad cohorts, the band was swindled by dark forces. The group caught on only after spending years on the club circuit, slowly picking up converts. White Zombie recently marked two years of almost non-stop touring behind La Sexorcisto, and will remain on the road at least into March before laying down tracks for the next album. "We keep getting ready to start [the new album], and then the record keeps selling and selling," Rob says. Concrete Management's Andy Gould became the band's manager and Pinnacle Entertainment's John Dittmar began booking the band at about the time La Sexorcisto was released. Rob says both Concrete and Pinnacle were told that the band's desire was to stay on the road, and both have made good on their promises to keep the band before audiences. "I think they kept their promise a little too well," he says.

Rob thinks the current popularity of White Zombie and other bands that made it through constant work is a good sign for the music business. "The days of talentless, stupid idiots are over," he pronounces. "Not completely, but we don't have to suffer through the whole Milli Vanilli syndrome too much more, I hope. All the bands that are big now — from Soul Asylum to Soundgarden — are bands that have been kicking around for years that we played with in really small clubs years and years ago, or that I'd seen in small clubs. Real people deserve real success, not someone who can't even sing, or who sings over someone else's voice, and then does a $2 million video to it. That's just a joke. It makes you want to quit."

As the band tours, La Sexorcisto has so far racked up near-platinum sales. White Zombie also picked up a Grammy nomination in the Best Hard Rock Performance With Vocal category this year for the single "Thunder Kiss '65." That means larger venues have been packing in White Zombie's less-than-sedate fans. "We don't want to play seated venues, because it almost becomes worse," Rob says. "The kids just need an open floor, and they know what to do with it. When you put in the seats, they start jumpin' up and down on 'em, stage diving into the seats, they're ripping them out, throwing them around, causing 10 times more damage than if there were no seats to begin with." Rob is not one to try to settle down a rowdy crowd. "I usually do nothing to help the situation, and probably make it worse," he says. "I want the crowd to go off as much as possible. It gets to the point where the individual kid has to decide, 'If I jump 30 feet off the PA stack and land on a concrete floor with my head, will I survive?' I guess that they believe that their spines are made out of iron or something. You can't do anything to help that. You can have all the security in the world, and if some kid's gonna jump off the balcony, he's gonna jump off the balcony."

Getting the larger venues to prepare for White Zombie shows can be a problem, Rob says. "Bigger places just don't understand. They'll say something like, 'Hey, we had Jerry Seinfeld in here last week, and we had no problems whatsoever.' Well, I'm like, 'It's not going to be the same crowd. Maybe we should take the seats out.'"

White Zombie got a boost earlier this year when MTV's Beavis and Butt-head gave the band their huh-huh of approval. That's turned out to be a blessing and a curse, Rob says. He says that the record enjoyed the small increase in sales that almost everything on Beavis and Butt-head enjoys, but things really picked up when MTV put White Zombie into regular rotation as a Buzz Clip.

"Because [Beavis and Butt-head] were such a big media thing, we started getting a lot of press in big things like Entertainment Weekly or L.A. Times, New York Times-type of stuff. And they don't know about the history of the band, and they don't care about the history of the band. They don't care about the facts, period." The result, he says, is that the animated characters have ended up with an undue amount of credit for the band's success. Years of work — White Zombie formed in 1985 — tend to get lost in the shuffle. "The kids know," he says. "They're like, 'What a load of horseshit.' But it gets kind of annoying to have your accomplishments completely whittled down to nothing in the press sometimes. It just gets kind of stupid after awhile."

Don't expect Rob or his bandmates to lose any sleep over any of this. "The way our type of thing goes is it translates directly to the kids," he says. "So that's all we care about. Put out the record and, boom, they're all standing out in front of us and we play."

large chunk of the insurance being written for the concert industry. The NACPA members also held private discussions on music licensing, sponsorships, the ADA, and where the industry is headed in the '90s. On January 24th, NACPA hosted a breakfast attended by the senior agents from QBQ, Artists & Audiences, APA, and ITG. That was followed by an afternoon meeting at the hotel with the entire staff of Premier Talent. The NACPA members attended that evening's Concert Industry Awards Party en masse, but were all still able to make the following morning's meeting at ICM. The promoters then went over to William Morris for a meeting with that agency's staff. NACPA executive director Ben Liss described the three day gathering as the organization's most productive meetings to date. NACPA has tentative plans to meet again in April in Nashville.

Promoter Threatens Lawsuit Over Cancellation

A local concert promoter said he will file a lawsuit against the Appleton School District after administrators canceled a February 20th Onyx concert he was promoting. School officials in Appleton, Wisc., said the promoter misrepresented the group, and upon listening to its music discovered that Onyx' lyrics are "violent, abusive, vulgar, sexually explicit and [include] obscene language and subject matter." The school district also said the promoter, Reginald Goodman of Azyra Entertainment in Green Bay, failed to get the "special events" permit required by the city of Appleton. Administrators also said the venue's rental contract requires that minors be accompanied by an adult, a stipulation that Goodman ignored in advertising the event. A spokesperson for the band said the cancellation was "no big deal" and "the tour goes on." At press time, calls to the promoter were unanswered.

MJ Solves A Major Part Of His Problems

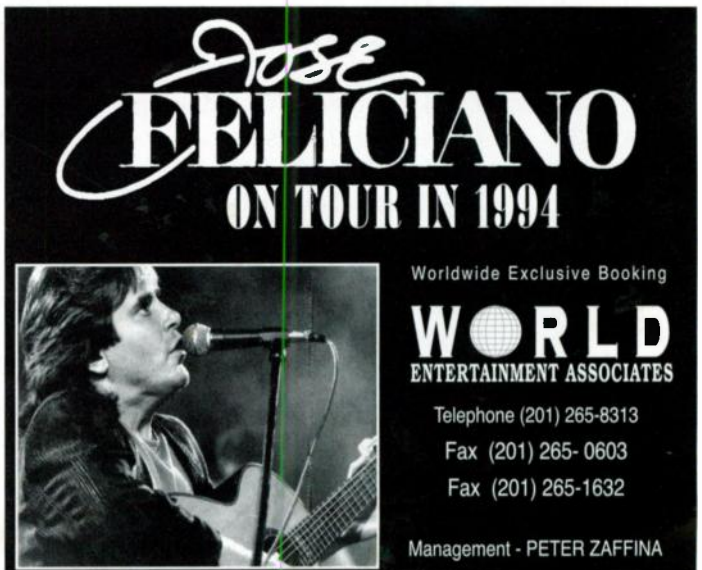

For those who speculated that the sexual molestation civil case brought against Michael Jackson would never actually reach the hallowed halls of justice, the January 25th announcement of a multi-million dollar settlement was no surprise. The exact amount of the settlement payment was not disclosed. Various sources have indicated that the amount being paid the 14-year-old boy is anywhere from $5 million to $40 million. And the boy's father, who had been accused of bringing the suit because of a failed extortion plot, had the threat of extortion charges lifted the day before the settlement was revealed when the Los Angeles District Attorney's office announced that no charges would be brought. Settling the case has generated speculation on all fronts, from what it really means in terms of MJ's innocence or guilt, to the effect it will have on his career. MJ's attorneys said the settlement is by no means an admission of guilt. The word from the Jackson camp is that MJ just wanted this thing to be done with, since going to trial would have meant a sensational public spectacle which would have touched on the most private and personal aspects of the superstar's life — something MJ, or anybody in his place for that matter, would not want to go through. But the two big questions remaining are, does this mean that the criminal investigation is stalled? And what does all this mean to MJ's career? As far as the criminal investigation goes, Larry Feldman, the teenager's attorney, said the settlement does not require his client to keep silent about the accusations. He also said all of his evidence has already been turned over to the criminal investigators. If MJ would have testified in the civil case, that information would have also been turned over and could have possibly been used in the pursuit of criminal charges. Regardless, the criminal case is going forward, according to the D.A.'s office. Nevertheless, last week Feldman indicated that his teenaged client wants to put the whole incident behind him. If that is the case, there will likely be no criminal charges because in California, the government cannot force a minor to testify against his will. And without the boy's testimony, the D.A. would be hard pressed to build a case. But the question that concerns the music industry more is what this means to MJ's career. The cancellation of his tour has resulted in another multi-million dollar lawsuit brought against him by tour promoter Marcel Avram. Until that matter is resolved, he would have a difficult time getting reputable promoters to invest their money in another tour. And MJ's career as a corporate spokesperson has certainly been severely tarnished. But with his recent $200 million publishing deal, and the fact that his records and videos are still selling despite the controversy, his enormous financial empire shouldn't suffer too much. And on the good side for the troubled singer, two of the more conservative companies he is involved with, Sony and Disney, seem to be standing behind him. His landmark recording contract with Sony will stay intact, and the Walt Disney Company has no plans to pull its "Captain EO" attraction from Disneyland. However, that shouldn't be taken as an indication of the future of MJ's career — only time and the public's willingness to accept his next artistic statement will determine if he retains the title "King Of Pop."

Billy Joel Finds Anaheim Just Ducky

Billy Joel was made an honorary member of the NHL's newest franchise, the Mighty Ducks, when he performed at the Anaheim Arena on December 18th. The venue walked away with the 1994 Concert Industry Award for Best New Major Concert Venue last week. (L-R) Arena GM Brad Mayne, Joel and Mighty Ducks' exec Jenny Price.

Deals, Deals, Deals

Feuding Profile Records co-founders Steve Plotnicki and Cory Robbins have reached an agreement on the future of the company. Plotnicki has acquired Robbins' interest in the company and has assumed the title of president. Robbins, who had been president, will continue as a consultant to the label. The sale also includes Profile's related companies, Landmark Distributors, Inc., Profile (U.K.), and several music publishing companies..... The Nederlander Organization and Ogden Entertainment Services announced a long-term agreement January 21st, making Nederlander the exclusive concert promoter at the Anaheim Arena. The new arrangement commenced with the January 13th Luther Vandross and Oleta Adams concert..... The IAAM will begin publishing a new quarterly magazine addressing issues of safety and security in places of public assembly. The first issue of Crowd Management is scheduled to come out during the third quarter of 1994.

Marky Mark Sued Over Stage Rush Injury

A 26-year-old woman with rheumatoid arthritis claims she was trampled by fans at a Marky Mark concert when the rapper dropped trou and urged the audience to rush the stage. She is suing the former underwear spokesperson, his production company, manager Dick Scott, former promoter Frank Russo and his Gemini Concerts company, and the city of Portland, Maine. Sandra Gressner now alleges that she can no longer care for herself because of the injuries sustained during the concert at the Portland Expo in January 1992. Gessner is claiming the entertainer, building, and the promoter were negligent for not providing adequate security and for violating federal disability laws, which call for reasonable accommodations for the disabled. Gessner was allegedly knocked over a friend's wheelchair by the crowd as it rushed the stage. The pair were apparently "seated" in an aisle, which they claim violated fire and safety codes. She is seeking unspecified damages.

For Some, It Wasn't As Bad As It Looked

Earthquake damage to the Los Angeles Sports Arena and Sony's Santa Monica offices didn't turn out to be as severe as initial reports made it sound. At the Sports Arena, though plaster fell, cracks were visible in concrete and several roof trusses were slightly damaged, a four-day inspection by engineers didn't turn up anything that compromised the building's structural integrity. "The [Los Angeles Clippers and USC basketball] games were moved as a precautionary measure until our engineers could go through the building," Sports Arena spokesperson Cindy Rubin told POLLSTAR. Arena GM Jay Hagerman said hopes were that the necessary repairs would be made in time to host January 29th's scheduled match between the Clippers and Minnesota Timberwolves. "We are taking every precaution to ensure that the building is safe before we open the doors," Hagerman said. Sony's relatively new Santa Monica offices were a huge mess following the quake, but inspectors found no evidence of major structural problems there either. A spokesperson for Sony Music Entertainment said a major cleanup of the building was underway last week. The quake caused numerous windows to break, trashed computer systems and cut phone lines. Sony employees, who had been working at home, started returning to the office on January 24th. Now if only the ground would stop shaking.

Short Items Of Note

The reports that Perry Farrell and manager Ted Gardner split because Porno For Pyros was denied the opportunity to headline Lollapalooza this year were emphatically shot down when Gardner told POLLSTAR that the traveling festival had nothing to do with Farrell leaving Larrikin Management. Gardner said he and Farrell are still very good friends, and they will continue to work together as part of the Lollapalooza team..... Reba McEntire offered up to 100 free tickets to her February 19th performance at the Mabee Center in Tulsa, Okla., for anyone who turned in a gun. Apparently Reba's fans like to maintain their firepower, however, because only six people showed up on the first day of the offer..... Rod Stewart has been awarded the special "Michael Jackson International Artist Award," which recognizes those artists whose popularity and impact cross national boundaries. Stewart will be presented with the award at the American Music Awards February 7th. Stewart is only the second honoree since the inception of the award — the first being Mr. Jackson himself..... Roman Glick, guitarist for Brother Cane, rejoined the band on stage January 20th in Houston after six weeks of convalescing due to injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident..... Sebastian Bach and his wife Maria welcomed their second son to the family with the birth of London Siddhartha Halford Bach January 22nd. Bach said his four-year-old, Paris, named his new baby brother London, and the Halford is in honor of Rob Halford, with whom Bach was jamming at a NYC club when he got the news that his wife had given birth..... Former Country Joe & The Fish member Barry Melton has a new gig as a public defender in Mendocino County in Northern California. Melton, who earned a law degree in 1982, will presumably refrain from doing the fish cheer in court..... George Burns celebrated his 98th birthday January 20th with a sold out performance at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas — the same stage on which he plans to celebrate his 100th birthday..... A tribute concert to commemorate the untimely death of vocalist Ray Gillen is being held at Irving Plaza in New York February 9th. Gillen, who was best known for his singing stint with Black Sabbath and Badlands, died from a prolonged illness which culminated in fatal bleeding ulcers on December 1st. The concert is being spearheaded by former Deep Purple frontman Glenn Hughes, who was a close friend of Gillen's, and will feature a host of musicians including Sebastian Bach and Ace Frehley.

A Major Threat To MTV's Dominance

Reports emerging last week indicated that Time Warner and Sony's new joint venture into a music-video television service to compete with MTV will begin in Asia and Europe. The service reportedly will debut in some of MTV's fastest-growing markets before being expanded into the United States. Several other major distributors, most notably EMI and PolyGram, are rumored to be mulling joining the new venture. Some speculate such a partnership might refuse to supply or limit MTV's access to their artists' videos when the service starts up. If that happens, it could raise antitrust issues in the U.S. and in Europe. MTV, however, seems to be facing the rapidly emerging competition head-on by incorporating aspects of a home shopping network into its standard programming. MTV Networks announced January 25th that it will test market some home shopping programs on MTV, VH-1 and Nick At Night starting in April. It will feature direct sales of recorded music, concert tickets and merchandise, music paraphernalia, and other fashion and lifestyle items. If successful, MTV Networks said it will consider adding a stand-alone shopping channel to its stable of programming.

Legal Grievs

The original keyboardist for the Moody Blues has reportedly sued the rest of the band, alleging they took secret profits. Michael Pinder, in a complaint filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, said a 1981 agreement gave him an equal share of royalties from recordings made when he was with the group, according to Daily Variety. The suit claims the group profited from a record company audit in 1983, but did not share the money with him. Pinder seeks unspecified damages and a dissolution of the band's partnership..... One of the songwriters of the 1954 hit song "Release Me" filed suit in San Francisco federal court seeking damages and back royalties. The suit, filed on behalf of songwriter Robert Gene Yount and his son, Robert Blue Yount, names the heirs of the song's original publisher, BMI, and current publisher Acuff-Rose. The elder Yount is seeking a declaratory judgment certifying his authorship rights to the song..... The class action antitrust lawsuit brought against Sony, WEA, EMI and MCA, which stemmed from the used-CD controversy, has been settled, according to the L.A. Times. Under the agreement, the four corporations reportedly have agreed to pay millions in retail advertising support to the members of the Independent Music Retailers Association that was withheld last year from the hundreds of mom and pop record stores selling used-CDs. However, the agreement does not include money for the large Wherehouse Entertainment chain, the company that ignited the controversy when it started selling used-CDs. It had filed a separate action, but had already made peace with the majors. The settlement will also have no apparent impact on the FTC investigation into price-fixing allegations on new CDs..... A state lawmaker in Missouri said the state should consider halting advertising money for Branson unless the country music boomtown cooperates with a building safety investigation. State Senator Mike Lybyer said Branson officials have refused to hire a consulting engineer recommended by the governor in an attempt to resolve safety concerns. Officials in Branson have contended that their town does not have a serious safety problem. Lybyer wants to put an amendment on a spending bill that would spread the state Division of Tourism's advertising spending evenly among Missouri's 10 tourism regions.

Bozo And Bela

While in Chicago, Bela Fleck & The Flecktones made a special appearance on the Bozo The Clown show. The band performed a special jazzed up version of "Pop Goes The Weasel" on the long-running children's program. Bozo was obviously impressed; he was spotted at each of the four Flecktones performances throughout Chicago the following week. (L-R) are Bela Fleck, Bozo's sidekick Spiffy, Victor Lemonte Wooten, Bozo and Future Man.

Beatles Tribute Act Settles Apple Dispute

A federal judge in Nashville ruled January 24th that the group formerly known as "1964 as The Beatles" can continue paying homage to the Fab Four as long as they don't use the name "The Beatles," or any props or backdrops with any likeness of John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison or Ringo Starr. They can, however, continue to dress like the Beatles and call each other John, George, Paul, or Ringo on stage. The tribute band will now be known simply as "1964 The Tribute." The settlement ends the legal dispute which started when Apple Corps sued the tribute group in 1991.

College Greeks Find Asylum In The Snow

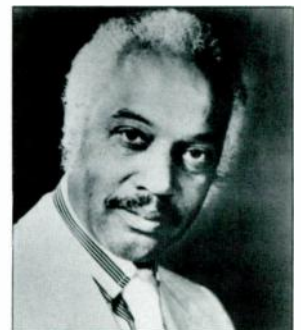

L.A. Ski & Sun Tours topped off its 8th Annual All-Greek Ski Trip in Reno with a private Soul Asylum concert January 15th. The company hosted 6,500 college students as part of their on-going travel vacations that combine daytime recreational sports with nighttime entertainment by well known recording artists. In a continued effort to strengthen its relationships, the company also hosted a number of industry guests including Sony's Missy Worth, John Branigan of William Morris, Mitch Okmin of F.B.I., Larry Weintraub of A&M Records, Jamie Loeb of ICM, Rob Kasino of American Records, Cathy Lincoln from Capitol Records, and a bevy of others. But by far the highlight of the event was when Dave Pirmer of Soul Asylum left the stage during the middle of his smash hit "Runaway Train" to spend a few not-so-private kissy moments with his new flame Winona Ryder.

In A State Of Flux

Paramount Communication's board of directors withdrew its endorsement of QVC Network's bid to buy the company after rival-bidder Viacom upped their offer. On January 21st, the board recommended that Paramount shareholders tender their shares to Viacom, which has submitted a bid of nearly $10 billion. Paramount has set a February 1st deadline for all bids, so the four-month battle between QVC and Viacom should be winding down. Or as Bobcat Goldthwait asked from the stage of The Paramount during the Concert Industry Awards, "Does this mean Diller's check didn't clear?"..... An annual three-day music festival in Eau Claire, Wisc., won't be held this year because of financial problems. And it is possible that it will never return. Pat Bischel, president of Summer Festivals and one of the eight investors in the oldies festival "Shake, Rattle & Roll," also said that "Country Jam USA," an annual four-day country music festival, may leave Eau Claire after this summer's run..... It was a good sign for NKOTB when 4,000 fans turned up January 25th at a Boston record store to see the group's first public appearance with their new abbreviated moniker and more manly image. A number of people were in their late teens and had been New Kids fans since their first album release. The group plans to tour this summer, but Donny Wahlberg is thinking even farther down the road. He wants to do a double bill with fellow Beantowners Aerosmith for next New Year's Eve at the Boston Garden.....The only live album ever recorded with solar power, Alternative NRG, will be released February 1st on Hollywood Records. The album features the only live performance from R.E.M. in 1992 — staged specifically for this benefit album for Greenpeace International.

Between The Dates

Although Cleveland promoter JULES BELKIN was already in New York City for the NACPA meetings, he had not planned to make last Monday's Concert Industry Awards Party because he had to fly back for a BILLY JOEL show that night at the Richfield Coliseum. But come the night of the party, there was Jules schmoozing his way across the room. What changed his plans? A kidney stone. Not his, but Joel's. The show was pushed back 24 hours so the artist could recuperate after spending 12 hours receiving treatment for the gastrointestinal pebble....

If Toronto was a test market for the PINK FLOYD tour, the results certainly came back positive. The folks at CPI are all smiles over last weekend's ticket sales for the group's July 5th show at CNE Stadium. All 54,000 seats sold out in about 5 hours at a rate of about 180 tickets per minute.... It only took about 30 minutes for GARTH BROOKS to sell out the Iowa City's Carver-Hawkeye Arena, so the promoters added two more shows. The second show also sold out within 30 minutes, and by the end of the day there were just a few ducats left for the third show. The dates are March 24-26.... Ticket prices for a LUCIANO PAVAROTTI performance scheduled for Manila have sparked a controversy. Concert organizer, Rosemarie Arenas has announced that tickets for a proposed March 18th show may go as high as 25,000 Pesos ($909 U.S.). Filipino Senator Blas Ople has urged President Fidel Ramos to arrest any official who would spend that much money for a ticket. It seems that there is a Filipino law on the books that bans ostentatious displays of wealth at a time of national calamity. The country has suffered from four typhoons in recent months. Ople is willing to compromise. He has proposed that Arenas schedule a free Pavarotti show in a public park. This way, according to Francisco Tatad, chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Information, officials could see the artist without having to flash their bankrolls.... DAVID LEE ROTH kicks off a world tour with some warm-up dates in Puerto Rico and the States before heading for Japan, and then Europe. Roth's last outing - a 1991 co-bill with Cinderella suffered from a severe attendance deficiency and was aborted two months into the tour. This time out Diamond Dave is playing major clubs for his U.S. warm-up dates, then medium to large halls once the show travels overseas.... T.A.G. (The Agency Group, Ltd.) has dropped down a floor. It now can be found in suite 433 at 1775 Broadway, NY, NY, 10019.... There's a new professional audio sales equipment company based in San Francisco. Jeff Briss, who has been the Grateful Dead's leading sound equipment source for years has joined with Brian Botel, Sig Knapstad and Tom Richardson to form the CUTTING EDGE AUDIO GROUP. We're talking extremely high tech stuff here. Briss said, "One of our specialties will be sales of digital audio workstations." In the past individual members of the group have worked with LucasFilm/Skywalker Sound and were instrumental in the design of Hammer's Bay Area studio.... Here's a very eclectic line up: PHILIP GLASS, PAUL SIMON, EDIE BRICKELL, RICHIE HAVENS, THE ROCHES, and ALLEN GINSBERG will be performing at a February 10th fund raiser at Carnegie Hall to benefit Tibet House, an organization dedicated to preserving the cultural heritage of Tibet.
