Boguspalooza?

A would-be concert promoter in Anchorage, Alaska has been selling tickets and backstage passes for a concert he claims will feature Nirvana, Cypress Hill, Alice In Chains, the Breeders and Mudhoney. However, agents for the artists claim that no dates have been confirmed with promoter Dan Woods and his Knock On Wood Productions and that the concert, which he claims is scheduled for June 4th at the Univ. Of Alaska's Mulcahy Stadium, is completely bogus. Last week, Woods still claimed the concert is not a scam. "There's been a lot of confusion, but this concert is definitely going to happen, and it's going to be huge," he said. Campus police, who had earlier spotted him cruising around the school in a stretch limo, want to question him about the matter. Bob Lawton of TwinTowers Touring, who represents Mudhoney, said Woods had called him in an attempt to buy a date with the band, but when Lawton informed him of all the information he needed for an offer, he never heard back from him again. It was a similar story at William Morris. But Woods claims his June concert is not a fraud, and he also claims he has signed contracts for all the bands except Cypress Hill. How does Woods justify the discrepancy between the artists' agents and himself? He explained it to reporters by stating, "A lot of those agents are into heavy drugs and they get confused."

Target Center Owners Look For Civic Bail-Out

The city of Minneapolis held its first public hearing January 27th to examine the possibility of buying the 19,500-capacity Target Center. Arena owners Marve Wolfenson and Harvey Ratner claim that they may relocate the arena's main tenant, the NBA's Minnesota Timberwolves, if they are not relieved of the $75 million mortgage on the building. Wolfenson and Ratner, who reportedly are losing $10 million a year because of the mortgage, have reportedly said they would accept a deal in which they didn't receive any cash, but were just relieved of the exorbitant debt. The privately-funded Target Center has lost a great deal of expected income because its other main tenant, the NHL's Minnesota North Stars, moved to Dallas. The city is considering four proposals, two of which call for ticket surcharges and state funding. The third plan reportedly did not recommend a funding source and the fourth would extend video slot machine gambling to downtown Minneapolis hotels and use 50 percent of the profits for the buyout. The city has the option of accepting and/or customizing any one of the four plans, or coming up with an entirely new proposal. The parties must be careful because increasing the costs of playing the building might drive many events to the St. Paul Civic Center. Recognizing the plight of the Timberwolves' owners, the NBA extended by one month its March 1st deadline for making a move to relocate the team.

Don't Mess With The Man-ilow

Los Angeles radio station KBIG-FM quickly settled with the company that owns the rights to Barry Manilow's name after the firm filed a $28 million suit alleging a station promotion harmed the singer's reputation and used his name unlawfully. The station began running an advertisement earlier this month urging listeners to tune in because they don't play the likes of Manilow and the Carpenters. A spokesperson for the adult contemporary station said the campaign was an attempt to differentiate the station from soft rock competitor KOST-FM. Hastings, Clayton & Tucker, a Nevada-based entertainment firm which owns promotional and marketing rights to Manilow's name, withdrew the legal action when KBIG withdrew the ad. In another Manilow-related matter, an apparent mix-up over a $200,000 deposit for a canceled charity concert has been resolved. Manilow backed out of a January 15th performance when he discovered the children's hospital fundraiser was also a pre-inaugural gala for New Jersey Gov. Christie Whitman. Paul Anka took Manilow's place at the show, but Manilow's deposit check reportedly wasn't mailed back until about a week ago.

Woodstock 2 vs. Bethel '94

Plans for two competing music festivals to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Woodstock escalated earlier this month when Sid Bernstein, the promoter who brought the Beatles to the U.S. 30 years ago, announced that he is going forward with plans to stage an anniversary concert on the former Yasgur's Farm where Woodstock was originally held. The competing plan by Woodstock Ventures — involving original Woodstock producers

FAITH HILL

Faith Hill is a huge fan of Reba McEntire's. And this month a dream came true for the 26-year-old singer from Mississippi — she kicked off her touring career as the support act for McEntire's North American tour.

Hill knew all her life that she wanted to be a professional singer. Growing up in the little town of Star, population 1,500, Audrey Faith Perry — now known as Faith Hill — started singing at Star Baptist church when she was three years old. Her first paying gig came when her mother started paying her to perform — 25 cents to sing for family guests or at family reunions — 50 cents if it was a big family reunion.

In high school, Hill discovered Reba McEntire, Patsy Cline, Emmylou Harris and Amy Grant. When she was 17 she started a band that performed wherever they got the chance — at rodeos, youth festivals, fairs and churches. But it was in 1987, when she was 19 years old, that Hill took the big leap, pulled up stakes and moved to Nashville. She had never been on her own, but she was determined and she had the full support of her family. Hill said it seemed unusual for a family to let their only girl — their youngest child — move to a big city on her own at such a young age. "I think that my mom and dad knew that I was gonna do it anyway. I was so driven and had made my mind up. The best way to make it work was for them to support it," she said.

Hill's first job in Nashville was selling t-shirts at Fan Fair. She said she knew Fan Fair was associated with the music business, but she had no idea how large and significant an event it was. "I just thought it was a job for a week." After that, she landed a job with Gary Morris' publishing company as a receptionist. She worked there for three and a half years, then she got a job at the place of her dreams, Reba McEntire's company Starstruck. "I thought workin' at her company was the best I could do because I was such a big fan of hers." While she was working in the merchandising department at Starstruck she was also singing around Nashville in clubs with her friend Gary Burr.

Burr had taken Hill under his wing when she first moved to Music City. He would ask her to join him on stage, and they also did some demo recording on an eight track in his living room. One night Hill was singing harmonies with Burr at the Bluebird Cafe and Warner Bros. executive Martha Sharp was in the audience. "That's where I got discovered," Hill said enthusiastically. But she didn't get signed to a recording contract right away. A couple of months went by before Sharp ever talked to Hill. When she did, Sharp told her that she had seen her sing with Burr at the Bluebird and was impressed. They discussed Hill's desire to be a solo artist and Hill also told her about the tape she and Burr had been working on. "It's not any big deal," Hill told Sharp. "It's not some big studio production; we just did it to get me more demo work." But Sharp didn't care and asked to hear the tape. After she heard it, she called Hill and told her "we want to do a deal with you."

Hill's initial deal with Warner Bros. was for development. "We were trying to find the right producer. I didn't come with anything;

I didn't really have songs.... So they signed me under development to find the right producer." It took about a year and a half before they agreed on Scott Hendricks as the producer. Hill speaks highly of Warner Bros. because of the time and effort they went through to find her the right deal and the right people to work with. "If they believe in you, they really take time and have patience with you. They want to get it right before they throw you out to the wolves."

Hill was still working at Starstruck when she got the call that Warner Bros. wanted to offer her a recording contract. "I was downstairs at the front desk [when] I got a phone call.... I was really excited. It's tough in this town, and there's a lot of labels, but there's only a few that really have all the 'powers that be' behind it. They've got a big enough staff, distribution company and promotion — all that together. Warner Bros.... is one of the five or six major labels in town, so I was very lucky. And very happy."

In between the time Hill was signed to a development deal and the release of her debut album, Take Me As I Am, she compiled a strong team to support her career. Gary Borman of Borman Entertainment has been her manager since last March, and through him she met John Huie from Creative Artists Agency, who became her responsible agent. Hill said it is important for her manager and agent to have the enthusiasm and commitment that the record company does, and she feels Borman and Huie do. "There's a big huge risk that you take in this business with a new artist. You don't know [if the act will be successful], you just have to believe in them. That is the bottom line for people in my organization.... That's how I started, I just believed. You just gotta have, excuse the reference to my name, you gotta have faith."

Hill spoke with POLLSTAR literally on the eve of her touring debut with McEntire. "I don't think I'll actually believe it until tomorrow night after I've done the show. It's incredible — she was definitely my biggest influence. I used to go see her perform, and I wanted — so bad — to be in her position. And now they've asked me to open the shows for her. It's just incredible. It's really the highlight of everything that's happened to me so far. The number one record, that was unbelievable and great. You can't wish for more than that. But to be able to open for someone who influenced you musically tops the cake," she said.

After Hill wraps up dates with McEntire, she will join Brooks & Dunn from May through September.

Michael Lang, John Roberts and Joel Rosenman — has a festival slated the same weekend, August 13-14. John Scher and PolyGram Diversified will reportedly be involved in that event, however it has yet to be announced in what capacity. That festival, which will carry the "Woodstock" name, will be held in Saugerties, N.Y., which is 80 miles away from Bethel, where the original festival was held. Bernstein will call his festival "Bethel '94" because Woodstock Ventures controls the rights to the "Woodstock" name. The two festivals have decidedly different approaches. Bernstein wants to sign some of the bands from the original festival. He also reportedly has offered $25 million to the three surviving Beatles to perform, either together or individually. Bernstein hopes to pull off a concert that will target an 18 to 50-year-old demographic, with tickets starting at $150. On the other hand, Woodstock Ventures' plans call for a festival geared toward a younger demographic, featuring current artists. However, Woodstock Ventures has not ruled out the possibility of booking some original acts as long as they have some contemporary relevance. Bernstein has reportedly made unsuccessful overtures to consolidate the Woodstock projects.

The Walt Disney Co. announced February 2nd that it plans on renovating the landmark New Amsterdam Theatre on 42nd Street in NYC. Disney plans on investing $8 million in the renovations on the theatre, and the New York Urban Development Corp. is contributing a $21 million low-interest loan. The project puts Disney in the forefront of NYC's plan to revitalize the decaying Times Square area.... MTV Networks has entered an agreement with Fingerhut to jointly develop and operate the test of home shopping programming on its MTV, VH-1 and Nick at Nite cable networks scheduled to begin in late April. Fingerhut, a veteran direct product marketing firm, will take and fill telephone orders, and handle other customer services.

The Dead Platform

Two Notre Dame students were elected to head the Irish student government on a platform that promised a university-subsidized Grateful Dead concert, free football tickets, and a dissolution of student government. David Hungeling and Matt Orsagh, who consider themselves "free-spirited, regular guys," didn't think anyone would take them seriously when they entered the race just one week before the deadline. Now that their campaign was successful, they would like to make good on at least the Grateful Dead portion of their platform, although at this late stage, it may prove more elusive than affordable health care.

Warner Bros. And Capricorn Split

In the second move of its kind within one month, Warner Bros. is dissolving its joint venture with Capricorn Records. The relationship between the Bunny and the Nashville-based independent began when Phil Walden revived Capricorn in 1991. A spokesperson for Capricorn said the company feels like this is a positive move and they are now seeking to finalize another deal that definitely won't involve a WEA label. The original three-and-a-half year contract between the two companies had .....

reportedly expired. The end of the joint venture may have some effect on Capricorn's Ian Moore and The Freddie Jones Band. Moore's debut album has been doing well at radio and retail, and he is currently in the midst of a North American club tour. And The Freddie Jones Band, which is special guest on the Big Head Todd tour, is expected to be Capricorn's next big thing. It isn't clear if Capricorn is seeking another joint venture partner, or just a distribution deal. Warner Bros. also ended its relationship with symbol man's Paisley Park Records February 1st.

Tupac Shakur Convicted For Beating Director

Tupac Shakur, aka 2Pac, was found guilty of assault and battery February 10th in Los Angeles Superior Court. The charges stemmed from an incident in which Shakur assaulted director Allen Hughes on the set of a music video. Hughes had fired Shakur from a bit part in the film Menace II Society because of alleged problems Shakur created on the set. One of the key pieces of evidence in the six-day trial was a videotape in which Shakur bragged about the attack in an MTV interview last July. He is scheduled to be sentenced March 1st, and faces up to six months in jail. Shakur has also been indicted in Atlanta for allegedly shooting at off duty police, and in New York for allegedly participating in a sodomy gang rape. Shakur was convicted August 6th for possessing a concealed .45-caliber pistol at an L.A. nightclub. He was sentenced to 45 days on a freeway maintenance crew and two years probation for that offense.

They Won. We Lost. Next.

Paramount shareholders have accepted Viacom's nearly $10 billion offer to take over the company, passing on QVC Network's rival bid. The merger ends a five-month battle that began when Viacom and Paramount announced plans for a friendly merger on September 12th. The merger's most direct impact on the concert industry is in the combined ownership of Madison Square Garden and Blockbuster's amphitheatre empire. The venues will now fall under the umbrella of the new, as-yet-unnamed company. The turning point in the bidding apparently came when Viacom merged with Blockbuster Inc. in January, which upped Viacom's bid for Paramount by $1.25 billion. Before the Viacom/Blockbuster merger, Viacom's board had thrown its support behind QVC's offer. QVC issued a terse statement conceding defeat on February 13th, reportedly penned personally by chairman Barry Diller. "Our current position demands brevity," the statement said. "They won. We lost. Next." The new company will be headed by Viacom's billionaire chairman, Sumner Redstone. It is estimated that the merged company will rank as the world's fifth largest entertainment company, based on annual media-related revenue. Among the other holdings of the new company are 12 television stations, 14 radio stations, six cable television networks and 50 percent shares in three others, a 3,790-title film library, 3,593 video retail outlets, 507 music retail stores, four publishing firms, four professional sports teams and part ownership of another, six theme parks, 1,927 movie theatre screens, eight syndicated television shows, a dozen network TV shows and the Paramount television network, which is due to be launched in January '95..

Pros On The Move

Jay Marciano has been named president of MCA Concerts and is relocating back to Los Angeles. He succeeds Marc Bension, who has left the company. Marciano has worked for MCA in a variety of lead roles including most recently heading the successful launch of MCA Concerts Canada..... PolyGram Music Publishing Group has named David Simone the company's new president. Simone most recently was senior VP of business affairs at Capitol Records..... Steve Crane was appointed the new GM of the Cumberland County Civic Center in Portland, Maine. Crane was previously the assistant GM, and has been with the venue for 16 years.

Paycheck Sued For Coos Bay Cancellation

In response to a canceled Johnny Paycheck concert scheduled for November 19th in Coos Bay, Ore., promoter Avrum Fried of Pacific Coast Music Productions filed a breach of contract suit against the singer February 8th. Fried contends that Paycheck "capriciously" failed to honor his contract for the concert, which was to be a benefit to raise money for the Coos Bay Police Explorers group. But Bill Quisenberry of Talent Group Int'l in Nashville, who sold Fried the date, said that the concert had to be canceled because of transmission problems with Paycheck's bus. Nevertheless, Fried believes that the cancellation was deliberate, and he is seeking a monetary judgment against Paycheck and his management, Boshar Inc. Quisenberry said that the original contract provides for cancellation due to act of God, and he also said canceling a concert because of transportation problems falls in that category. However, Fried doesn't believe the bus was really broken down because he talked to a waitress who saw it drive off with the band inside. Quisenberry said the transmission was not functioning properly, but they were able to drive the bus to the hotel in first gear. He added that it would have been impossible to travel any distance without repairs. Another spokesperson for the agency said that Paycheck has the receipts for the bus repairs which prove the transmission was actually malfunctioning. Quisenberry also said he offered Fried two separate make-up dates, but Fried refused, claiming Quisenberry and Paycheck had "ruined him." Fried said he fully intends to make Paycheck accountable for his actions, and it is his intention, if he wins a monetary settlement, to put on a free concert to try and "eliminate the odor Paycheck has left in his refusal to live up to his word." He also claims the Coos Bay Chief of Police will no longer support fundraising concerts for the Explorer Program. Fried also filed, and was granted, a motion to serve the suit on Paycheck via Talent Group. But at press time, Quisenberry had yet to receive any notification of a pending lawsuit.

Jackson Charms North Charleston Again

The North Charleston Coliseum welcomes back Alan Jackson February 4th for his second sell-out at the new South Carolina arena. Jackson did the first concert ever held at the venue when it opened in January '93. Presenting him with a framed commemorative poster is executive director David Holscher.

L.A. Coliseum Repairs Underway

Though more study is needed to determine the full extent of earthquake damage, the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission voted to award repair contracts without a bidding procedure last week. The Tutor-Scaliba construction company and HNTB architects were given the job after commissioners declared an "urgent necessity" to do emergency work. Don Webb was named the project manager. The firms were given instructions to do everything necessary to finish the work by September 1st, in time for the start of the Raiders and USC football seasons. Webb's preliminary estimate put repair costs at $33 million, but only if no further damage is revealed when structural engineers take a look at hidden areas of the stadium's superstructure. Federal disaster funds should cover 90 percent of the repair costs, with the remainder being picked up by the state.

Jury Rules MJ Is "Dangerous" Author

A Denver jury ruled February 15th that Michael Jackson did not steal his hit song "Dangerous" from an unknown Denver songwriter. Jackson appeared in court to testify February 14th, and while on the stand, sang a few bars from another song to illustrate to the jury how he composes songs. One of the key bits of testimony during the trial was reportedly the fact that MJ and his businesses have a strict policy of not accepting unsolicited tapes. The case was the third copyright infringement case that MJ has successfully faced recently. The plaintiff, Crystal Cartier, may have ruined her credibility when she showed up in court the day MJ testified wearing a revealing black leather dress. The judge ordered her to wear a coat until she could go home and change for the afternoon session. The defense had portrayed Cartier as an obsessed fan — and used a fantasy novel she wrote as an example of her obsession. In the novel, "Immortal Obsessions," the leading lady's song is copied and a character apparently modeled after Jackson leaps to her defense. Meanwhile, the grand jury in Santa Barbara continued hearing evidence concerning accusations that MJ sexually molested a teenage boy, however no criminal charges have been filed. Also last week, MJ's attorneys advised him to file suit against "A Current Affair" for its irresponsible "sleazy checkbook journalism." The attorneys are particularly ticked off over a recent episode in which the TV tabloid simulated depositions and alleged remarks of MJ's accuser. And as far as his performance at the "Jackson Family Honors," which was scheduled for February 19th in Las Vegas, a spokesperson for the superstar said there will not be a solo performance by Michael. MJ now suddenly says he was never scheduled to perform alone, but was to appear only to pay tribute to Elizabeth Taylor and Berry Gordy. And the controversy and bickering in the Jackson family hasn't helped ticket sales for the event. Ducats originally priced at $350 and $200 have been reduced to $150, $100 and $50. Anyone who paid the higher price can get a partial refund.

CEMA, UNI, Sony and WEA only enacted the policies for four months, and they contend that their policies were lawful. The four companies expressed a desire to restore harmonious relationships with the retailers and also noted that no retailers would be discriminated against for bringing the suit. The settlement is still subject to court approval.

Gangsta Takes The Rap

Rap music — particularly gangsta rap — containing violent, misogynistic, and other controversial lyrics remains a hot issue nationally. On February 11th, a House subcommittee heard from critics and defenders of the music. "Because this pornographic smut is in the hands of our children, it coerces, influences, encourages and motivates our youth to commit violent behavior — to use drugs and abuse women through demeaning sex acts," said DeLores Tucker, chairperson of the National Political Congress of Black Women. Female rapper Yo Yo disagreed. "We see and hear violent acts every day, whether it may be through the eyes of the media, movie producers or businesses," she said. "There was violence before rap and there will continue to be violence after rap." Don Cornelius, of Soul Train fame, also criticized some of the music, but told the subcommittee that it should be labeled, not censored. The three-day series of hearings was called by Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., who has expressed concern about controversial lyrics in popular music. Last month, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference asked record stores to stop selling recordings containing offensive lyrics and Tucker's group demonstrated in front of a Washington, D.C., retail store to protest sales of offensive recordings. Also, a report by a task force in New York concluded that violent acts against women shown in music videos promotes sexual harassment and influences popular culture in objectifying women.

No Beatles Reunion Unless John Returns

Reports of a live Beatles reunion concert were adamantly shot down by the surviving members of the band February 14th. A London tabloid had reported that Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr would be joined by Sean and Julian Lennon for a concert in Central Park later this year. McCartney said there is as much a chance of a Beatles reunion as "reheating a souffle." He added that when John Lennon was alive it could have been a possibility, but with Lennon gone, "it will never happen." Harrison agreed, saying, "There will never be a Beatles reunion as long as John Lennon remains dead." The surviving trio have had several big money offers thrown at them lately but all of them were apparently spurned without much consideration.

Canadian Music Week Fireworks

This year's Canadian Music Week festivities will be held at The Sheraton Centre in downtown Toronto March 14-20. The conference will host over 60 workshops, panels and keynote speeches. The focus this year will be on the integration of new technologies and their application to the marketing of musical products. The conference will also address ways to improve the business acumen and managerial skills necessary to take full advantage of new technologies. Keynote speakers include Alan Grubman, Peter Grant, Robbie Robertson, Malcolm McLaren and Ed Bicknell. In other news, Bryan Adams' manager, Bruce Allen, blasted the Juno Awards for not nominating Adams in any category. Allen said leaving artists like Adams, David Foster, Bruce Fairbairn and Bob Rock off the ballots "screams of disrespect. What is even sillier is that it shows a complete lack of showmanship. People watch the Junos to be entertained and star power is usually what is foremost in the minds of award show producers. These buffoons just don't get it."

Between The Dates

The movie could be called "War Room II." When PINK FLOYD ticket sales go up, the folks at CPI gather together to watch the results flow into Toronto. Like a political campaign team waiting for the election results, the generals at CPI watch each venue's ticket count grow. If multiple dates are added, the extra shows can be put on the block within twenty minutes of the decision. CPI's going to be extra busy next weekend when tickets for 11 shows go on sale. Venues have been "Comfortably Numbered" by record sell-outs. Fans withstood the heaviest blizzard in more than a decade to snatch tickets for Floyd's Yankee Stadium concerts. The first show sold out in 37 minutes. An added second show sold out by mid afternoon bringing the total tickets sold to 100,000. The 66,000 tickets for the Rose Bowl sold out in 42 minutes, and the largest single-day concert sale in San Diego's history occurred when tickets went on sale for the Jack Murphy Stadium show. It was also the first time in the stadium's history that fans were allowed to camp overnight to buy tickets.... Amid rumors of a full-fledged EAGLES reunion, former members Glenn Frey, Don Henley, and Joe Walsh pounded out "Heartache Tonight," "Lynin' Eyes," and "Desperado" for a standing-room-only crowd at Aspen's Double Diamond Club on February 13th. Though Frey and Walsh did a co-bill tour last year, and Henley and Frey have done a couple of performances together in the past few years, it was the first time these three members had played in public since 1980. The show was a benefit for Grassroots/Aspen Experience, a non-profit organization that brings inner-city youth from several U.S. cities to the Colorado resort town. Rumors of an Eagles reunion have been carrying more weight than usual. With the band members on speaking terms, and Henley still involved in contract battles with Geffen Records, insiders have been speculating that the time is right for the classic 70's band to reopen the "Hotel California." In a related action, police seized film shot by a freelance reporter on assignment at the show for the Aspen Daily Times. Reporter Stewart Oksenhorn said police grabbed his arms and demanded he turn over his film after he refused to give it to security guards. The police officers exposed the film after he gave it to them. The artists had been guaranteed there would be no photographers at the concert. But Police Sgt. Loren Ryerson said, "I didn't know he was a journalist." If he had identified himself as a reporter, it would have been different." Oksenhorn said he had identified himself as a reporter several times and made it a point to say that he worked for the local paper.... PEARL JAM is gearing up for their first string of North America dates for 1994, and a couple of dates are gaining special attention. The band, along with L7 and Follow For Now will kick off the Rock for Choice commemorative concerts at the Pensacola Civic Center on March 9th. The concert is to commemorate the one year anniversary of the murder of Dr. David Gunn by anti-abortion extremists. Pearl Jam also plans on doing a radio freebie. It's April 3rd show in Atlanta will be broadcast live and will be available to any station that wants to carry it. Meanwhile it's been sell-out city for the Seattle grungers. A Boston radio station made a single announcement that tickets would go on sale in 30 minutes for the Boston Garden. The April 10 & 11 shows sold out within 90 minutes.... No dates or cities have been finalized, but the now "official" word is that BARBRA STREISAND will tour the U.S. and Europe this year. Though speculation from concert insiders was that Babs would tour, the final decision was not made until last February 11th. Watch for U.S. dates to run from mid April through July with specifics to be announced within the next few weeks.... It could be dueling pianos! Plans are in the works for a summer stadium co-billed tour by ELTON JOHN and BILLY JOEL. The buzz is the tour will take place during July & August.... STEELY DAN liked it so much last summer that they'll be back again this year. Look for Fagen and Becker to be playing the sheds starting in late August.... The COCTEAU TWINS have beefed up their line-up. In addition to original members Elizabeth Fraser, Robin Guthrie, and Simon Raymonde, the band has fattened their sound with four more musicians. The Twins will also make their first-ever live appearance on U.S. TV when they appear on The Tonight Show April 4th.... The upcoming JETHRO TULL tour is going to be a "greatest hits" tour since there won't be new product to support.... EXILE is calling it quits. After a 30 year run which included about 20 musicians over the years, the band says it's time to close the curtains. The country band's biggest hit was the number 1 pop song "Kiss You All Over." Of course, breaking up is always the first step to planning that future reunion tour.... Original "high-heeled boys" Steve Winwood and Jim Capaldi are planning a new TRAFFIC album and tour. Winwood describes the new music as what Traffic would be playing if they hadn't broken up 20 years ago.
