Another Giant Eagles Gross

The June 18th Eagles concert at the Sam Boyd Stadium in Las Vegas set a record for the highest grossing single concert tour date ever played in the state of Nevada. The $1.9 million gross resulted in commemorative plaques for all those involved. (L-R) Stadium manager Pat Christenson; promoter Barry Fey of Fey Concerts (the guy with the bulging deep pockets); and the Eagles brain trust of Irving Azoff and Terry Bassett.

Looks Like A Lawsuit

A man was left paralyzed from the waist down after attending a June 19th Metallica show at Riverbend Music Center in Cincinnati. Keith Phillips, 27, apparently participated in a "trust fall" which went awry. The fall involves being thrown into a crowd and trusting that you will be caught. Phillips was not caught and landed on his head. According to Phillips' sister, doctors told the family that he has about a 5 percent chance of walking again.

New York Judge Exonerates Ticketmaster

Ticketmaster easily hurdled another legal bump in the road when a New York state judge dismissed an antitrust lawsuit against the computerized ticketing agency June 23rd. In the attempted class action suit, a New York resident had accused TM of unfair business practices which included kickbacks, concealing service fees and operating a monopolistic business via exclusive contracts. But the judge found that TM's service charges are not deceptive. The plaintiff misled the court into considering that a vendor such as TM was acting in a misleading manner, according to court papers. The plaintiff's argument is nothing more than an attack on the manner in which TM computes its service charges, the court ruled. The judge said TM's business practices including exclusive contracts, variable service fees and what the plaintiff referred to as "kickbacks" are vertical relationships in contrast to the prohibited horizontal, anti-competitive agreements among competitors. And the court has consistently upheld vertical price fixing. The court also stated that the service charge amount is not a judicial issue. And complaints that TM may charge more than a scalper would be permitted to charge under the Arts and Cultural Affairs Law, is a matter for legislative consideration. A spokesperson said TM expects the courts to issue the same ruling on other similar cases pending in other states.

Mountain Winery Returns For '94 Season

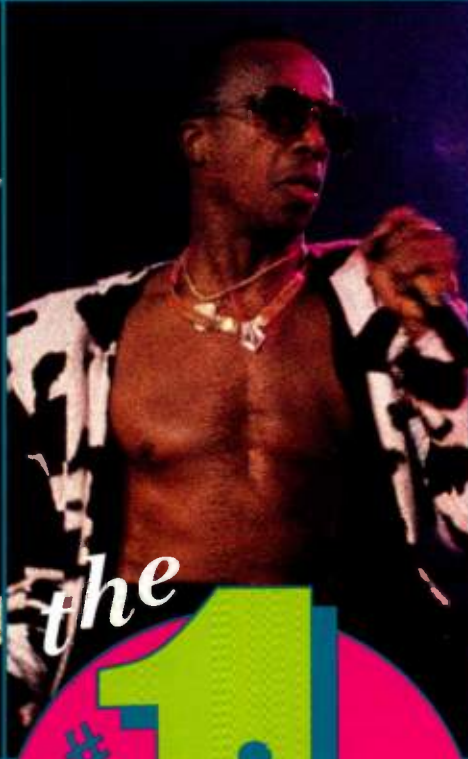

When the Mountain Winery's 1993 summer concert season came to a close last year amid a flurry of canceled shows, the company had filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection and had left between 4,000 and 5,000 ticket refunds unpaid. The refunds for cancelled shows including Ray Charles, Johnny Mathis and Dan Fogelberg are still being processed, said Mike Collishaw, who is the son of Mountain Winery owner Ray Collishaw. The Saratoga, Calif., winery is offering ticket holders from last season an opportunity to exchange their tickets for a concert this season. Collishaw said the company remains in Chapter 11 reorganization and is still working on refinancing packages under the protection of the court. Refinancing wasn't secured in time for this season but the judge gave the Collishaws approval to hold another season in an attempt to raise some revenue. Collishaw said this season is slow

On Pace For A Record Year

There is little doubt that 1994 will be the new watershed year for the concert industry. The previous record of $1.1 billion for major concert ticket sales in North America was set in 1990.

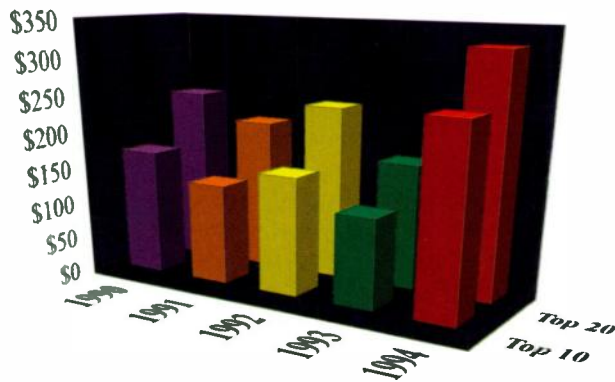

With the help of the strongest crop of touring acts in recent memory, that record probably would have been broken even without the dramatic increase in ticket prices which now makes a new record a foregone conclusion. It's still too early to tell how much the ticket sales volume will jump in '94 but a $1.5 billion year, while not likely, is also not out of the question.

sudden jump, you need look no further than the top 10 tours, which accounted for $255.7 million — and that's more than the top 20 tours have ever added up to for any year including 1990.

There were 65 grosses over $1 million as compared to 41 for the comparable period last year. Perhaps more telling are the number of grosses over $2 million — 27 as opposed to just 5 last year. But then the first half of 1993 was relatively slow so a better comparison would be with 1990. That year there were 39 shows with grosses in excess of $1 million but only 8 were over $2 million. Any way you look at it, the concert industry will set a new gross revenue record in 1994.

The Record Setters

Even after the first batch of dates went on sale, no one really thought that Pink Floyd might be in the process of doing the highest grossing tour in history. The Rolling Stones "Steel Wheels Tour" in 1989 set the North American record at $98 million, but that mark now looks like it could be topped by Pink Floyd before their tour ends in July. With a dozen dates still to go in July, the band has a shot at breaking $100 million.

When she finishes all the shows in her Madison Square Garden run, Barbra Streisand will have set a world record concert ticket sales gross of $16.6 million. Before this year, the previous record was the $11.6 million the Rolling Stones took in from their six shows at Shea Stadium in 1989. The second biggest gross was set by Bette Midler last year when her 30 shows at Radio City took in $11.1 million. Actually, Babs will have also beat both those previous records with the grosses from her Las Vegas and Anaheim shows, giving her the top three spots of all time.

The biggest single event gross looks like it will also be set by the 25th anniversary reprise of the Woodstock festival, which is set for August 13-14 in Saugerties, NY. The event has a gross potential of more than $33 million in ticket sales. Other festivals may have drawn more people, but at $135 per ticket, nothing will even remotely come close to the Woodstock II boxoffice figures.

And then there's The Eagles who have set a new high water mark for ticket prices with the best seats in some cities ranging up to $125. Those record level prices have allowed the band to gross well over $1 million for doing just one night at a shed.

First Half Ticket Sales Volume Is Up 88 Percent!

This year's top 20 tours generated $325.2 million as compared to $172.2 million last year or $242.7 million during the industry's previous watershed year of 1990. If you wonder about the commodity — especially the best seats at the hottest shows. While MOR acts like Frank Sinatra have been doing golden circle seating for decades, and several contemporary artists dabbled in it last year, 1994 will go down as the year when scores of major acts embraced the concept — and did so with little opposition from the public.

Pink Floyd started the upward trend early in the year when it put tickets on sale ranging in price from $50 to $75 and had little trouble selling them. Other artists (and let's not forget that it's the artists themselves who set the prices) saw what Floyd had done and the glow of all that gold in the golden circle must have wiped away any reluctance they might have had with having their names printed on tickets with such high prices.

And the days of one price for all seats appears to be about over. Only 23 of the top 100 grosses for the first half of this year used the single pricing system. Last year it was 50 and in 1990 75 of the top 100 shows used the single price system.

Among last year's top 100 grosses, which used a single price for admission, tickets averaged $27.31. For those with multi-tier pricing, the average was $24.23 on the bottom end and $47.16 on the top. And only 19 of the top 100 shows had top tickets priced at $50 or more — and half of those were by Sinatra or Liza Minnelli. This year 63, of the top 100 grosses had a top price of $50 or more. Those shows which used a single price ticket in 1994 averaged $25.65. But the drop from last year has more to do with the fact that bigger marquee names that would have commanded a higher price had moved up to the multi-price system. The multi-tiered average was $27.56 on the bottom and a hefty $92.13 on the top. Ticket prices are difficult to quantify because they vary so much from city-to-city and from artist-to-artist. The one thing that's certain is that the average price of tickets is up significantly.

What's Ahead For The Second Half Of The Year

The concert industry has compressed about 70 percent of its annual business into the three month period between Memorial Day and Labor Day. The fact that two of those three months lies ahead of us, means that activity levels will continue to increase as we head deeper into the summer. And as usual, every market in North America will have far more shows on sale at once than they could reasonably be expected to support.

Major stadium tours by Elton John & Billy Joel, the Grateful Dead, and Rolling Stones have yet to begin. Scores of major shed and arena tours including Lollapalooza, Steely Dan, John Mellencamp, Stevie Nicks, Aerosmith, Yes, James Taylor, H.O.R.D.E., and Stone Temple Pilots are also circling the trucks and getting ready to head out across the landscape.

The only problem is that it looks like there will be very few acts working in the last quarter of the year. Eric Clapton is one of the few major names even being mentioned by promoters for that time period.

Even though this fall's traffic looks to be light, the concert industry is still expecting to hit record levels for the year. But in a year when too many marginal headliners are demanding substantial six-figure guarantees, it's too bad that gross ticket sales and profitability weren't more closely related. As for concert promoters, it's still too early to tell if their bottom lines will look as impressive as their cash flows.

Pantera's Microphonic Assault

The lead singer of Pantera was arrested for bopping a security guard over the head with a microphone. Philip Anselmo committed the "head banging" at a June 28th concert at Darien Lake Performing Arts Center in upstate New York. He was released on $5,000 bail. Joseph Lewis, one of the guards trying to keep fans off the stage, was treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises. Apparently, Lewis and Anselmo have differing opinions on the extent of rowdy behavior that's acceptable at a concert. Pantera is already facing a lawsuit from a fan injured in a Michigan stage diving incident last summer. Representatives from the band had no immediate comment on the Darien fracas.

Congressional Hearings On Concert Tickets

Pearl Jam and Ticketmaster aired their differences on Capitol Hill June 30th at a House Subcommittee hearing to investigate antitrust complaints against TM. Pearl Jam's Stone Gossard and Jeff Ament, TM's CEO Fred Rosen, Aerosmith's manager Tim Collins, and Big Head Todd's manager Chuck Morris, among others, appeared at the hearing. Gossard and Ament said, "The victim is the fan who doesn't have a lot of money to spend on tickets. ... We do not want to force Ticketmaster to do business on our terms, but we believe we should have the freedom to go elsewhere if Ticketmaster is not prepared to negotiate terms that are acceptable to us. ... That freedom of choice — a basic principle of competition in this country — does not effectively exist in the music industry today." Tim Collins testified, "You're either on the side of the fans and the artists, or you're on the side of the middlemen who are in control of the American concert industry." Steven Tyler reportedly told Collins, "Mussolini may have made the trains run on time but not everyone could get a seat on that train." Collins said he and Aerosmith believe TM's "nearly absolute power over access and fees on performance tickets is corrupting the system and working to the disadvantage of an entire industry and its consumers." But Chuck Morris said he disagrees with the Pearl Jam's assertion that TM and major promoters conspired to boycott its tour. "Being an ex-promoter and current manager, I have found in my 25 years in the business that...promoters are much too greedy to pass on the biggest act in America today no matter what the situation," Morris said. TM's testimony thoroughly covered all recent complaints about its business practices. "It is frankly a matter of some concern to us that a rock band can, by virtue of their celebrity status, cause this kind of hearing to take place," the TM testimony read. TM said it is not a Goliath and it handled less than 2 percent of the 1.5 billion tickets sold in 1993. "There is a fundamental misconception about the size and power of Ticketmaster. ... While we are not privy to Pearl Jam's finances, we suspect that the band earned more than Ticketmaster last year," TM's statement read. TM then addressed the concern over ticket prices, pointing out it does not set those prices. "Ticketmaster collects the money but it does not decide how much to collect," the statement read. TM said it does not unilaterally determine convenience charges either. TM also brought forth an economist's testimony from a recent antitrust suit in California that concluded there was no anticompetitive impact from TM's business practices in California. The lawyers in that case said service charges had risen at a slower rate than ticket prices...and that the correlation between service charges and ticket prices was exactly what he would expect to find in a fully competitive market. TM also pointed out that it has established competitors and those companies can and do challenge TM's contracts at renewal time. TM said it has clients in most major cities across the U.S. but it also noted that there are major cities where it has no relationship with the significant entertainment venues. TM said it wouldn't address Pearl Jam's memorandum to the Justice Department point-by-point, but it did address some of the memorandum's concerns. Pearl Jam wanted tickets to its summer tour to be no more than $20 — $18 with a $1.80 service charge. TM said if it was paid only $1.80 for its services, it would lose money. "When Ticketmaster became aware of Pearl Jam's demand, Ticketmaster indicated to promoters that it was prepared to compromise. Notwithstanding its contractual rights, Ticketmaster was prepared to provide ticketing services for a convenience charge of $2.25 to $2.50. A compromise would have worked if the Pearl Jam members were willing to take $17.50 to $17.75 for themselves, rather than $18," TM said. But the band's terms were "not negotiable." TM said Pearl Jam's advisors insisted that TM's clients (venues and promoters) breach their contracts with the ticketing agency. But TM made it known that it expected its contracts to be honored. "There was nothing wrong with that response then and there is nothing wrong with it now," TM said. "Pearl Jam had no right...to use its popularity and power to pressure people to breach their contracts with Ticketmaster," TM said. TM intends to respond to Pearl Jam's memorandum point-by-point with the Justice Department. Still, TM did say it considered the memorandum "a work of fiction." TM said Pearl Jam could organize a tour without working with them. "The published reports that Pearl Jam has now decided to organize a tour without Ticketmaster demonstrates that [the original assertion was] false." TM also said it was ludicrous that it somehow organized a boycott by threatening its own clients. "There was no boycott [of the tour] and Ticketmaster would go out of business quickly if it threatened its clients," the TM statement read. And TM felt the "lie" about "kickbacks" was especially egregious. "A 'kickback' is done secretly, under the table, and is criminal in nature. There is nothing secret or unethical about the way in which Ticketmaster does business with its clients. If the consideration that Ticketmaster...pays to its clients constitutes kickbacks, every venue owner in this country that seeks or accepts such consideration from concessionaires (food and beverage, merchandise, parking, etc.) is involved in soliciting and receiving kickbacks, including the state and municipal authorities that own many of the most significant entertainment venues in the nation," TM said. The hearing was the first of several on the subject of concert ticket prices, said Chairman Gary Condit, D-Calif.

The Three Beards And McCue

ZZ Top members present a plaque to Jim McCue of The Palace of Auburn Hills to commemorate the fact that their current world tour visited the Detroit area arena for June 11-12 shows. A Missoula Mountain Horror Story

The Mountain Country Art & Music Festival, scheduled for four days starting June 23rd in Missoula, Montana, came unglued when promoter Benford Standley ran out of money. Both the David Grisman Quintet and Waylon Jennings were forced to scrap performances because Standley failed to come up with the cash to pay each group prior to showtime. Craig Miller, who manages Grisman, said Standley met his deposit obligations. But approximately one week before the show, Miller got a call from a reporter with the Missoulian newspaper who told him Standley had a history of bad check writing and nobody had bought tickets to the event. Jennings' management was also leery of the date and as a precautionary measure, co-manager Marylou Hyatt, had their road manager contact Standley to make sure he understood that the contract called for a cash payment prior to performance. The road manager was assured that there would be no problem with the money. But prior to showtime on June 23rd, Jennings still hadn't been paid so he cancelled his performance. When Miller heard Jennings had canceled, he called Standley and gave him the option of cancelling Grisman but the promoter insisted there would be no problem with his date and promised to meet the band at the airport with $3000 cash. Standley was told if the band showed up and wasn't paid, they were going to file charges. When the band arrived, Standley was no where to be found. After the band went to the hotel, Standley finally showed up with a check that his bank allegedly wouldn't honor. Grisman also didn't go on stage and by the end of the weekend, tech people, food vendors, local bands and nearly everyone associated with the event were left unpaid. The principal of Sentinel High School, where the festival was held, locked up the school after he found out the event's security staff had quit. Miller said he believes that Standley paid himself more than $10,000 out of the production money. Neither Jennings nor Grisman plan to file legal action for breach of contract since the likelihood of collecting anything is slim. Miller said he expects Standley will be charged and prosecuted for his actions, although no criminal charges have, as yet, been filed. And in a side note to this fiasco, it was a Missoula real estate agent, Rochelle Glasgow, who put up most of the money when she and Standley formed Sapphire Prod. to produce the festival. Glasgow invested about $80,000, all of which was allegedly spent on pre-production costs. On June 23rd when Jennings left town without playing, Glasgow was so upset she had to be sedated, according to a report in the Missoulian. Standley couldn't be reached for comment.

Opening Act Points Finger At Bolton

BDS Airplay Reality Called Into Question

Soundscan revolutionized the way the music business looked at retail record sales. And Billboard magazine's highly touted Broadcast Data Systems airplay monitoring service had the same kind of initial impact. Instead of the questionable reliability of verbal airplay reports from station reps, BDS placed computerized monitors in each market to listen to every station and ID what records it was playing and how often. Seemingly overnight, the record companies shifted their yardsticks for measuring a record's success to the number of plays it received rather than just some chart number between 1 and 200 on various radio tip sheets. But a series of recent events have called into question the accuracy of the BDS data. KFMB-FM in San Diego spent three weeks airing a format-of-the-day experiment which included formats ranging from country to all-Motown to all-Disney. Yet the airplay stats published by BDS closely resembled the station's past Hot Adult Contemporary lists and not what it had played during that time period. A spokesperson for KFMB said the BDS computer apparently didn't identify what was actually being played and instead substituted some previous week's detections. The same thing happened to other stations around the country including KRY5-FM in Corpus Christi. Station PD Scott Ward said they received three calls in one day from record companies complaining the station's verbal reports were dramatically different from what BDS said they were playing. On one day, BDS reportedly credited the station with airing records it didn't even have in its library. Ward said his station loves the concept of BDS and he characterizes the anomaly as a pot hole on the information highway. "It's like any other system. It's going to have problems. It's still a pretty young system ... and I attribute it to growing pains," Ward said. Another incident occurred on Memorial Day when KPWR-FM in Los Angeles ran an oldies special, yet the BDS log for that day shows normal play levels for the songs in current rotation at the station. And then there is MCA Records which became so angry with BDS it took out an ad in HITS magazine questioning the validity of the "supposed reality-based" service because of an incorrect chart position for Meat Loaf's current single. In the ad, MCA claimed 15 percent of Meat Loaf's plays of "Objects In The Rear View Mirror" didn't appear in the BDS data causing it to go down on the charts when it should have actually gone up. BDS issued a memo confessing the under-detections on the Meat Loaf single and it was reportedly sent to radio programmers after intense pressure from MCA. Bruce Tenenbaum, MCA's senior VP of promotion, later downplayed the incident. "The problem is with people who interpret BDS as gospel... We're telling people they should consider many sources of information, not just one." So how could such serious mistakes be made by BDS? The only apparent explanation is that the BDS system was based on now-archaic technology. Certainly that's the opinion of Radio & Records publisher Bob Wilson who is in the process of rolling out his own state-of-the-art airplay monitoring system. And apparently, Billboard agreed that BDS needs more than a little fine tuning. In its July 2nd issue, the magazine announced that it will invest $5 million to install a whole new BDS system which it hopes to have fully in place sometime next year.

Traffic Stops At House Of Blues

Virgin Records throws a shindig for Traffic at the House of Blues in Hollywood to celebrate the band's reunion album and Steve Winwood's 30 years as a recording artist. Joining in the festivities are (L-R) Virgin proxy Phil Quartararo; manager Ron Weisner; Virgin Music Worldwide chairman Ken Berry; Virgin exec veep Nancy Berry; Traffic's Jim Capaldi and wife Nina Capaldi; Steve's wife Genia Winwood and Winwood.

Woodstock Ticket Sales

Tickets for Woodstock '94 went on sale June 26th and nearly half of the 250,000 ducats available were reportedly sold by the end of the first week. "Clearly, by the pace we're going, we'll sell out well in advance," said promoter John Scher. The $135 tickets had only been available through bus and air packages prior to the 26th. About 35,000 tickets have been sold as part of travel packages. Promoters hope to sell 100,000 tickets as public transportation packages and 150,000 in blocks of four which include one parking pass for lots scattered around the Hudson Valley area. Since no single tickets are being sold, fans wanting to experience the two more days of peace and music need to cough up $540 (plus service charges) for the four ticket and one car pass package, and that's something a lot of young fans can't readily do. Ticket buyers receive a receipt for their purchase and the actual tickets will be sent by Federal Express at the beginning of August. At that time, concert-goers will receive an information packet containing all the data needed to survive what is more like a camping weekend than a typical rock concert. In addition to the high-powered line-up, several new bands will play Friday night before the festival begins because organizers want part of the crowd to come early to avoid congestion on Saturday. A minimal amount of camping gear will be permitted but promoters are encouraging everyone to sleep under the stars. But what if it rains? Now wouldn't that be a nice nostalgic touch.

Philly Sends Tupac Packing

Philadelphia city officials canceled a rap concert headlined by Tupac Shakur that was scheduled for June 28th at the city owned Robin Hood Dell East. The cancellation was based on the opinion that Shakur's music and image is unsuitable for families. The promoter of the show, Olivia Davis of D-Way Productions, was not happy with the city's decision. "This is a blatant disregard for freedom of speech and the First Amendment," she said. A spokesperson for the city indicated Davis had violated her contract by failing to obtain insurance. Das EFX, Father MC, and Black Moon were among the other acts who had been scheduled to perform at the event Davis dubbed "The Bomb."

L.A. Memorial Coliseum Being Glued Together

The Los Angeles Raiders will stay put for the 1994 NFL season, it was announced June 23rd. The Raiders and the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission reached a one year agreement June 22nd that will, most likely, allow the team to play rent-free. The contract reportedly releases the team from rent obligations until major conditions are met. These conditions include a written agreement to bring the stadium and its surroundings in Exposition Park up to the level of other NFL facilities. Pat Lynch, the Coliseum's new GM, said SMG is working hard to ensure that a long term deal with the team can be reached. But the Los Angeles Times reported that the Raiders could still move elsewhere for next season if the Coliseum's earthquake repairs are not satisfactory and if at least 67,500 seats are not ready to be occupied by September 11th, the date of the team's regular season home opener. Earthquake repairs at the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum are expected to reach $50 million — a 40 percent increase over the original estimate. The additional expenses are partly because the press box must be demolished and temporarily rebuilt. But one of the biggest surprise costs of repair stems from the need to use much more high-strength epoxy glue than expected to seal the approximate 10,000 cracks caused by the Northridge earthquake. The super strength glue costs $100 a gallon and before they are done, it may take more than 1000 gallons to glue the stadium together. The cost of stadium repairs already exceed the $30 million cost of repairing the Santa Monica Freeway, which was also damaged in the November '93 quake.

Hard Rock Cafe's 100k Music City Opening

Fiery Comic Pleads Ignorance...err Innocence

Bobcat Goldthwait pleaded innocent June 23rd to charges of illegally setting fire to his chair during a May 6th taping of "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno." The plea was entered by the comedian's lawyer. Bobcat faces charges of unlawfully causing a fire and possession of a flammable substance or device with intent to burn property. Each count carries a maximum $1,000 fine and six months in jail. Bobcat is reportedly the first guest of "The Tonight Show" ever to be charged with a crime based upon on-air behavior. Don't expect the trial to be on Court TV.

Short Items Of Note

Bertelsmann Music Group officially signed aboard the video music channel being developed by Warner Music, Sony Music, EMI Music, PolyGram and Ticketmaster. Of the big six recording conglomerates, only MCA remains uninvolved in the project. BMG had been in talks with cable giant TCI about a separate music video channel but when that deal fell apart, BMG elected to join forces with the other industry giants..... Gaylord Entertainment Co., is reportedly in negotiations to sell off its cable network holdings. Gaylord owns various local cable systems and The Nashville Network (TNN) and Country Music Television (CMT) cable channels. Century Communications, a Connecticut-based cable company is reportedly in intense talks to acquire those assets from Gaylord, which the Wall Street Journal valued at more than $350 million..... The 11th annual MTV Video Music Awards will be broadcast live from Radio City Music Hall September 8th. It's been eight years since the ceremony was held in New York..... Sting was honored with the Nordoff Robbins Silver Clef award June 24th for his outstanding contribution to the music industry. The ceremony was held at London's InterContinental Hotel and proceeds benefited the Nordoff Robbins Music Therapy charity..... Rick Trevino has reportedly been asked to audition for the lead role in the upcoming Steven Spielberg produced film, "Zorro."

MJ's Private(cy) Is Preserved

The sealed search warrant affidavit that allowed investigators to photograph Michael Jackson's genitals won't be released to the press or the public, by order of the 2nd Appellate District Court June 23rd. At the request of the New York Times Co., Superior Court Judge James Slater had ordered the affidavit in the sexual molestation investigation to be unsealed June 27th. MJ's legal team appealed and that led to the temporary stay of Slater's decision. MJ's attorney Howard Weitzman said he was pleased with the appellate order. And there has been no recent word from L.A. District Attorney Gil Garcetti about the Grand Jury investigation. For the moment, it seems the arrest of O.J. Simpson is keeping the D.A and media attention off of the child molestation accusation brought against MJ last August. The Santa Barbara Grand Jury apparently also continues its sexual molestation investigation but no indictments have been handed down in either county.

Pros On The Move

Michigan-based Prism Productions opened a satellite office in Paris earlier this month. Company president Lee Berry relocated to France and will continue as chief talent buyer while exploring new options in the European market. Eric Cole is now GM of the Ann Arbor operation..... SMG says it is in the final stages of negotiating a contract to take over management of Soldier Field in Chicago. If successful, Bob Glazebrook, who currently manages the Peoria Civic Center for SMG, will be named the stadium's new general manager. Replacing Glazebrook in Peoria will be Don Welch, who is the current GM of the St. Louis Arena. That facility is slated to close by early fall..... The Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games has named Mitchell Gershenfeld music producer for the Cultural Olympiad. Gershenfeld was director of the Atlanta Symphony's Chastain Park concert series prior to joining ACOG. He will be in charge of the music programs associated with the 1996 games.

Between The Dates

It may not be called LED ZEPPELIN, but a Jimmy Page / Robert Plant album, possibly followed by an MTV appearance and a tour in early '95, are in the works. The duo are currently in the studio working on new material. Zep's bassist, John Paul Jones, is not involved in the project according to a report in the New York Times. Michael Lee, who has toured with Plant will reportedly play drums.... Contrary to reports published elsewhere, no plans have been made for former HIGHWAY 101 member PAULETTE CARLSON to rejoin the group. A spokesman for Highway 101 said Carlson has mentioned the possibility of a reunion but said no plans have been made. The band will be taking a break when vocalist Nikki Nelson has her baby. The group is not breaking up and Nelson is not leaving the band.... The DON LAW CO. has decided not to book a summer concert series at HOLMAN STADIUM in Nashua, N.H., saying weak ticket sales in the market, competing venues and limited facility avails made it difficult to book strong acts. The series started in 1991 with 11 concerts but last summer only two shows were held. The company has dropped its exclusive rights to promote concerts at the stadium, according to Robert Daniels of the Nashua Center for the Arts which manages the stadium. They hope to find another promoter who might be interested in booking shows for 1995.... BOBBY ROBERTS was visibly surprised when the Nashville Association of Talent Directors presented him with its "Talent Director of the Year" award during a recent breakfast meeting with the International Entertainment Buyers Association.... The Glen Helen Blockbuster Pavilion has invited fans to shower expectant mother WYNONNA JUDD at her July 6th performance at the shed. Fans can bring cards, notes or small gifts to the venue the night of the show.... BARBRA STREISAND added two more shows to her Madison Square Garden run and both of them sold out last week. This boosts the gross for her 7 show Gotham engagement to $16.6 million, setting a new boxoffice record for the largest concert gross in history. Up until this year the record was held by The Rolling Stones and their $11.6 million gross from six shows at Shea Stadium in 1989.... "WOODSTOCK '94" promises to be more than two days of "Peace & Music." Organizers of the 25th anniversary event, taking place in Saugerties, NY, August 13th and 14th, promise that it will be the sight of an "Eco-Village." The Eco-Village will feature a diverse array of organizations representing topical issues ranging from AIDS to energy conservation. Among the many on-site organizations approved to participate is Very Special Arts, an international organization that provides arts programs for people with disabilities. Among the board of directors of that organization is Senator Edward Kennedy. And that connection resulted in Woodstock receiving an endorsement from the Senator and that's certainly something the first Woodstock didn't have. Despite the kind words, fans shouldn't expect to see Ted standing in line with them at the Porta-Sans.... Jack Gordon sure has his work cut out for him. La Toya Jackson's manager/husband has taken on new client JOHN WAYNE BOBBITT, and has advertised in Daily Variety for a comedy writer. It seems that Bobbitt wants to carve out a career as a stand-up comic. Once he finds a sharp writer on the cutting edge of comedy, Bobbitt expects to do a club tour sometime in August. And you thought he was going to be the next spokesperson for Snap On Tools.... Or perhaps it's us who have snapped after putting together this double issue. While the POLLSTAR offices will be open this week, please remember that there will not be an issue dated July 11th.
