Contrary to published reports, Brooks has not announced a decision to keep Doyle as his sole manager.

Virgin Voodoo At D.C. Tour Opener

Yes And Leas In Legendary Beef

Leas Campbell of Legendary Concerts insists reports of him "walking away" from a Yes show August 10th at Miami Arena were distorted and factually incorrect. Campbell contends he never had a contract with ICM, the band or the arena because there was a dispute over band personnel. Campbell said he asked ICM's Terry Rhodes if Rick Wakeman and Steve Howe were among the personnel before he bought the date and he claims to have been assured they were. Campbell said when he received the contracts, there was not a listing of personnel so he didn't return them. Campbell said when he received his ad mats, he realized Howe and Wakeman weren't on the date so he called (Continued Page 5)

Moshing For Millions

An injured concert-goer, Brian Cross, filed a $100 million lawsuit against the Merriweather Post Pavilion in Columbia, Md., claiming security guards broke his neck while evicting him from a Pantera concert in June. Cross, 23, who is almost completely paralyzed from the incident, claims two guards grabbed him while he was bodysurfing and "violently" removed him from the shed. Cross claims the guards twisted his arms behind his back, slammed him to the ground face down and beat him. The two guards, assisted by two others, allegedly carried Cross from the amphitheatre spread-eagle, leaving his injured neck unsupported. The guards dropped Cross outside the shed's main gate and taunted him before leaving, according to the suit. Police eventually examined Cross and then called an ambulance. Cross has been unable to move from the neck down since the incident and remains at the Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore.

Another Lawsuit Over MJ's Aborted Tour

A Chilean concert promoter filed a $5 million suit against Michael Jackson August 23rd in Los Angeles Superior Court for last-minute cancellations of scheduled concerts in Chile and Peru. Alfredo Castellanos, lawyer for the production company Prodin Chile SA, said the company has video proof that MJ's excuse of back pain for canceling the concerts was bogus. MJ canceled the October 1993 concert in Chile only hours before it was scheduled to begin. He then pulled out of the show in Lima, Peru. The attorney said the situation is a clear breach of contract. The company had been trying to negotiate with MJ's representatives with little success, Castellanos said.

Doyle/Lewis To End Garth Co-Management Deal

The management partnership responsible for the superstardom of Garth Brooks, Pam Lewis and Bob Doyle, will officially dissolve at the end of the year. Lewis and Doyle have been co-managing Brooks for seven years. In addition to Doyle/Lewis Management, Doyle owns a publishing company and Lewis is CEO of a newly formed record label that's about to release an album by Brooks' sister Betsy Smittle. Lewis also owns the public relations firm PLA Media. No decisions have been made regarding the management company's other clients. Brooks, who is touring Australia with Doyle at his side, is expected to re-evaluate his management arrangement after the tour ends.

The members of 311 admit that "making it" this far in their career was a lot easier than they thought it would be. The group's latest release, Grassroots, has established a toehold on the charts and with a growing level of street buzz, they have been doing solid business in clubs.

The roots of the band go back to the mid 80s when music brought together five young men who were spread between two Omaha high schools. In 1990, they formed 311. The members put out three albums on their own and ended up with the number one selling CD at stores in their home town.

But you can only be the big fish in the little pond for so long, so they left Omaha for the big city lights of Los Angeles. They weren't there more than a month when Capricorn Records offered them a record deal.

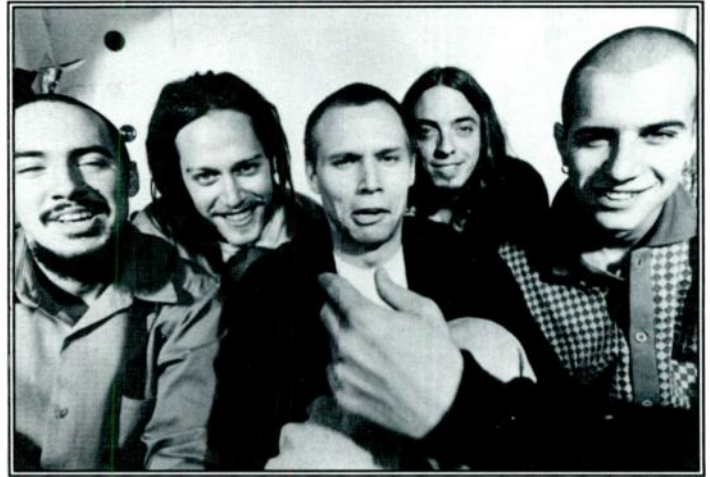

Lead man Nicholas Hexum said 311's good fortune started at its debut gig in 1990 — opening at a sold out Fugazi show. Hexum said, "From then on, it's like everybody knew who we were and there was a buzz on us." Since then, they've relied on word of mouth to spread that buzz. Hexum said the band is glad that it's gotten attention without having to sacrifice its integrity. "We realize we don't have to conform or change our style to try and fit in or really have any commercial considerations because we're doing fine without it."

Though Hexum says signing to an established label is a bit of a compromise, the band has been able to work well with Capricorn. "On the first record, they were a lot more involved and then on the second record, they were more just watching from a distance, just making sure everything was o.k. And I think they really have learned to trust us."

311's soulful mix includes influences of metal, rap, reggae and jazzy funk and, like some other bands today, inspires fans up onto their feet and into the mosh pit. But unlike many of today's bands, 311 encourages positive attitudes. Hexum said, "It's always, to me, been kind of clear cut whether people were trying to be positive and look on the bright side. And the trend in music in the early '90s so far has not been that. Grunge has been expressing alienation and pain and 'life sucks' and we're not with that. We're kind of trying to be an antidote to all that sort of negativity."

Grassroots describes the 311 approach of relying on touring and live performance to build a strong fan base. "We really place our whole emphasis in our career on the live show because that's when you're making direct contact with the people and that's what music is about. If you can't cut it in the live arena, then you ain't got it. Bands that can only do it in the studio, their days are numbered... If your live show has got it, then the album thing almost doesn't matter."

An intense live show where moshing is almost inevitable can create problems and 311 has had its share. But Hexum doesn't blame the fans. He said the main problem is overzealous bouncers. "A lot of times, the security people are just these big meatheads, these big steroid heads that really don't have any specific instructions and are just basically supposed to take out trouble makers." Hexum said many times he has stopped the show to say, "What's the problem here?"

He said at a festival in Alabama, "There were all these cool bands but we were the only band with sort of a moshing attitude crowd. They had the Neville Brothers and all these country bands, a total wide variety of music. But we were the only hard band in the lot. And there were probably 10,000 people we were playing to and the front 2,000 became this huge pit to the point where the police became scared and moved into riot formation. And they started spraying mace at everybody because they just had never seen that before or something. I mean, maybe it's not common in Birmingham."

Hexum said even though 311's crowd is prone to moshing, it's not a violent crowd. He said, "With punk shows, you're gonna get more people that are out for violence and a destructive attitude. But our vibe has always been, 'it ain't nothing but a party.' If you're out to do damage, we're not down with that. We have crazy, wild [mosh] pits but they're not particularly violent is what we've heard."

Presently, the members of 311 have put all their belongings in storage and are living on the road. Hexum said the touring lifestyle is just fine since they've graduated from traveling in vans to getting their own bus. "We always talk about how great it is having a bus because last year we started out in vans and then we moved into an RV. And when we finally got an RV, we were like, 'Oh God, this is the life.' We had found our niche. And then our first RV went up in a ball of flames with our equipment and all of our possessions." They went through one more RV before getting a bus. Hexum is thrilled with the band's mobile living situation. "We each have our own little bunk so we basically go to sleep, the bus drives on and we wake up in the next town. And we can sleep all we want. It's really cush."

Though a bus may not sound like everyone's idea of a dream home, Hexum is thankful to be out on the road. "Being a musician satisfies so many different things because the way we see it is that you've got to work — you've got to have a job in life. And the fact that we can do something that we love so much, it's so much better than any other job that we might get. So it satisfies the work side of life and the creative side of life."

The band is in the midst of a North American tour and has no plans to come off the road any time soon. "There's still just tons of people that don't know who we are and it's up to us to change that," Hexum said.

311 is managed by Adam Raspler Management and booked by John Harrington at Variety Artists International.

Australian News Report

(Sydney) GARTH BROOKS arrived in Australia late last week for a brief, but busy, round of media appearances before heading to New Zealand for the first dates of his tour. Amongst his appearances was a two song performance and interview on Australia's highest rated entertainment program, "Hey Hey It's Saturday." When he got to New Zealand, Brooks also did some TV and an in-store appearance where he signed autographs for nearly six hours..... Also appearing live for one song on "Hey Hey It's Saturday" was TRISHA YEARWOOD who arrived last week for the most bizarre Australian tour we've seen in a long time given that it includes just one live performance — at a country music festival in Queensland. Yearwood will be doing heaps of media but no other concerts. In Sydney her sole public appearance is at a newly established country club at a suburban venue where she'll simply meet fans and sign autographs..... The much-rumoured November tour of Australia by THE EAGLES was officially announced last week via a satellite link with the band from Raleigh, North Carolina. Answering questions from the press, Don Henley and Joe Walsh insisted money had nothing to do with the band getting back together. And, as has been the case in the states, they defended their ticket prices ($A70.80 to $A127.80) by saying, "We think we're worth it. ... The fans will decide on whether the prices are too high." The tour is being promoted by Frontier Touring Company. The band has announced one show each for Flinders Park in Melbourne, the Cricket Grounds in Sydney, and the Brisbane Entertainment Centre..... Following successful dates earlier this year in Melbourne and Sydney, ROBBEN FORD returns for a more extensive tour in October which includes dates in all Australian states. The tour is being promoted by The Trading Post Agency..... Currently in the country for a brief tour is frequent visitor TOM ROBINSON who's doing a low-key tour at 400 seat venues..... BILLY JOEL's November-December Australian tour for Frontier Touring continues to sell well around the country. A fourth concert has been added at the 12,000-capacity Sydney Entertainment Centre..... Tickets have just gone on-sale for a national tour by JANIS IAN in October..... Australia has a steadily growing market for some of COUNTRY MUSIC's more cultish performers. Butch Hancock and Jimmie Dale Gilmore have made a number of visits here, as has Townes Van Zandt, Hugh Moffatt, Billy Joe Shaver, and Lucinda Williams. Guy Clark is confirmed for a second tour early in '95. Also on the rumour list is a first visit from Iris DeMent. And if Nanci Griffith wants to come, there's a lot of people who'd like to see her!..... The U.S.-based cable channel COUNTRY MUSIC TELEVISION (CMT) will start broadcasting in the Asian region next month and will be available in Australia via a link with Sydney-based Cable Television Pty Ltd. It's already screening in New Zealand..... SEAL is about to arrive in Australia for a national promotional tour..... The Full Court of the Federal Court of Australia handed down another legal victory August 5th to Adelaide-based APPLE HOUSE MUSIC. That company created a storm of controversy in Australia last year when they were granted permission to release "UNAUTHORIZED LIVE RECORDINGS," despite the best efforts of major record companies to stop them. The Australian market is currently flooded with more than 200 titles from the likes of Prince, Madonna, Michael Jackson, U2, Guns 'N Roses, Soundgarden, Neil Young, Metallica, and many other artists. They sell for as little as $A4.95 per CD. A quirk in Australian copyright law allows the issuance of such live recordings here. Now that AH has prevailed in court challenges, other manufacturers of these bootleg recordings are starting to pop up. The latest court case involved the ROLLING STONES and was a question of trademark law. In late 1993, Musidor BV, the Dutch company which controls the use of the Stones name in Australia, alleged that AH was infringing its trademark by selling CDs of the Stone's music and using their name on the cover. Apple House sued Musidor BV and in December the court ruled in their favor. Musidor appealed and lost and was then ordered to pay AH's legal costs. (Reported by Stuart Coupe)

U.K. News Report

(London) Leading concert production personnel in the U.K. have set up an association to act as a democratic voice for the industry and campaign for better safety standards and self regulation. Led by Mike Lowe, director of Britannia Row (the sound company for Pink Floyd), the soon-to-be-formalised PRODUCTION ASSOCIATION (it is currently going under the working title of Entertainment Services Bureau) is opening its doors to members. Rhodes to see what the problem was. Campbell said Rhodes told him, "We'll work it out. Go on sale in Miami and make re-offers to me." Campbell submitted re-offers for three Yes dates with a lower guarantee and for smaller venues. Those offers were rejected for being too low, Campbell said. Meanwhile, Campbell discovered that German promoter Marcel Avram had bought the entire Yes tour, a business arrangement Campbell objected to. Campbell said, as a promoter, he has a right to know who he is doing business with and since he didn't, he believes he had just cause to contest the date. Campbell tried to get in touch with Bill Elson to help clear up the confusion but when he couldn't, he spoke with Rob Franklin, COO of the Miami Arena. Franklin reportedly told Campbell he understood the problem and would work with him to save the date. By August 6th, the arena, Rhodes, and Campbell reached an agreement to let the show go on, according to Campbell. He said, "I allowed ICM and the arena to enter an agreement without me." Campbell said Rhodes then sent him a "demand" letter to honor the first offer. Campbell refused, claiming he was under no contractual agreement to honor that offer. Campbell contends he was not wrong in the situation and feels he was misled by ICM as to what exactly he was buying. He believes the "blatant buy and re-sell" of the Yes tour violates his rights as a promoter and he is considering legal action. "I have a very strong legal position and I have been checking with other promoters that played Yes dates and some of them are reluctant to do anything because they're afraid of the after-blast of repercussions from the agency and the manager [who] also has other acts," Campbell said. "Some of them are not afraid and have said, absolutely, they would join me. So I think our only legal decision now is whether to make it an individual action or a class action on behalf of promoters." But Terry Rhodes sees the situation in a very different light. He told POLLSTAR, "I never sold him these dates on the basis of Rick Wakeman being in the band." Rhodes said Campbell didn't ask about personnel until after he put the show on sale. And when Campbell did ask, Rhodes said he told Campbell the touring band was comprised of the members on the current album. And Rhodes denies he told Campbell to put the show on sale and "we'll work something out." "That's not the way I do business," Rhodes said. "If the show would have sold 10,000 tickets, I would have never gotten a phone call [from Campbell]. Once he saw this date wasn't doing any business, he had no plans to play it anyway." Rhodes said the agreement to call in Cellar Door and continue with the show was made out of duress. "It was a couple of days before the show and Leas [Campbell] wasn't around," Rhodes said. "He wasn't returning the contracts and he wasn't returning the deposits." Rhodes said he was forced to cut a deal directly with the arena out of pure necessity, not as an amicable resolution to Campbell's problem.

New Manager Can Hold Up Roof Trusses

Lee Eskilsen, the new executive director for the Ogden Entertainment managed Manchester Arena, measures his upcoming workload. Europe's largest arena is scheduled for completion next summer.

Woodstock: The Aftermath

New York state Attorney General G. Oliver Koppell, who at one point threatened to stop Woodstock '94 because sign language interpreters weren't going to be allowed on stage (they ended up on platforms near the stage), now faces another problem in connection to the semi-historic concert — possible ticket refunds. Koppell said about 100 people have complained they had tickets but couldn't get into the concert. A spokesperson for Woodstock organizers said the promoters will work with state officials to try and satisfy customers, although they would not commit to refunds. The prospect of a refund procedure is dismal since none of the people who actually attended the show had their tickets taken or ripped. Theoretically, anyone who attended could claim they didn't get in. However, Koppell said, "I don't think there are a lot of people who lie that way." Some paying concert-goers have also lodged complaints claiming it is not fair that so many people got in free when they had to pay. But the executive director of the state Consumer Protection Board said he sympathized but doubted there was anything that legally could be done. He said paying fans received the service they essentially contracted for when they bought the ticket. Another repercussion of "2 More Days of Peace & Music" is the garbage left behind. Winston Farm was deluged with rain the week following the festival so the group overseeing the cleanup said they may have to wait until mid-September to clear out the mega-tonnage of garbage that was left behind. Human waste and rotting food has mixed with the mud and it's really starting to smell, said Charles Shaw, director of the Ulster County Resource Recovery Agency. The cleaning crew of nearly 300 people has picked up 500 tons of debris from areas surrounding the site but have barely ventured into the field itself. A recycling program designed to recover 25 percent of the plastic, cardboard and glass used during the concert was a dismal failure, Shaw said. Because of the rain, everything was contaminated with soil and unless items are washed clean, they are not acceptable at any recycling center. Frank Schaller, who owns Winston Farm, has been given a performance bond by the promoters guaranteeing him up to $250,000 if he is not satisfied with the cleanup job. Schaller will also be the one to decide the fate of the site. Michael Lang submitted a proposal to turn it into a performing arts center but the farm was originally slated to be a dump. And it seems there were a lot more people sitting in their living rooms watching Woodstock than were on the site. The preliminary buy-rate was officially estimated at between 1.2 and 1.5 percent — making it the highest grossing pay-per-view musical event ever. That would mean nearly 24 million households tuned in to the event.

Reba In Raleigh

The August 6th Reba McEntire concert marked the first time a country artist has sold-out in advance at the 4-year-old Walnut Creek Amphitheatre in Raleigh, NC. (L-R) Venue GM Wilson Rogers, McEntire, Starstruck's Mike Allen and Wilson Howard of Cellar Door of the Carolina's.

Short Items Of Note

Drummer Dave Abbruzzese is leaving Pearl Jam. His departure was confirmed by manager Kelly Curtis and is said to be an amicable one. No details of his future plans or plans to replace him in the band were available..... For the first time since 1977, Prince Charles will return to Southern California at the end of October. While he is in the States, His Royal Highness will reportedly host the first Prince's Trust Concert ever held on U.S. soil. No line-up has been announced but previous Prince's Trust concerts have featured the biggest names in the U.K. music business..... Ted Nugent had to beef up security on his "Spirit of the Wild" tour because the gonzo rocker and avid hunter has been receiving an increased number of death threats by animal rights groups. The Nuge went public with the threats because he felt the media needed to be exposed to "the utter hypocrisy and the evil intent" of certain animal rights activists..... It looks like The Grateful Dead have found themselves another annual tour stop where they are openly welcomed by the community. Residents of Highgate, Vt., say the band is welcome to return to the tiny town although next time the city wants better traffic management and more portable toilets. The Dead drew an estimate 80,000 fans in July, many of whom pitched their tents at unregulated camp sites on nearby fields. Meanwhile, $24,000 of Highgate's promised $54,000 payment for the concert is tied up in a tax dispute with the state..... A labor dispute that kept Willie Nelson from performing at Chateau Ste. Michelle winery in Yakima, Wash., has succeeded in winning the right to have union elections despite the lack of state legislation to regulate the process. The United Farm Workers call the move a "huge victory," though they plan to continue the 7-year boycott of the winery and have yet to agree to terms in an election..... A Tennessee court ordered the late Conway Twitty's personal belongings to be auctioned off because his family couldn't decide how to divide his estate. Twitty's widow, Dee Jenkins, is overseeing the public auction to be held October 1-16 at Twitty City outside Nashville. The 9.5-acre Twitty City was sold to Trinity Broadcasting Network, which plans to turn the property into a Christian television production studio and theme park..... John Denver is under investigation in Colorado for driving under the influence of alcohol — again. Deputies were called to Aspen Valley Hospital August 22nd to see Denver who had apparently been injured as a result of an automobile accident. Two of Denver's associates reportedly found him on the side of the road in the Starwood residential compound where he lives. Colorado State police are looking into the accident and Denver, who suffered head and facial lacerations, is under investigation for DUI. Last August, the "Rocky Mountain High" singer was convicted of driving-while-impaired after being pulled over in his Porsche. Denver had been charged with DUI but he agreed to plead guilty to the lesser charge. He had to pay a $50 fine and sing at a benefit under the plea-bargain agreement..... The force of a live Nirvana concert will be captured on an early November DGC Records release titled Verse Chorus Verse. The double album will include Nirvana's entire "MTV Unplugged" special plus two songs that didn't make it into the broadcast. The release, compiled by Krist Novoselic, Dave Grohl and DGC exec Mark Kates, also will feature previously unreleased tracks recorded from 1989 to 1994.

New releases will appear on either Curb Records or on a newly formed label, Curb AG..... Two bids have been made for Viacom's Madison Square Garden, the New York Knicks and Rangers teams and the MSG Network cable operation, but both are lower than Viacom hoped for, according to a report by CNBC. A joint offer by ITT Corp. and Cablevision Systems reportedly was the higher of the two at between $1.3 billion and $1.4 billion. Tele-Communications Inc.'s bid was between $1 billion and $1.1 billion. Viacom reportedly notified both bidders that they should boost their offers. Nike and John Labatt Ltd. had separately considered making bids but ultimately did not.

Legal Grievs

Bobcat Goldthwait said he will videotape a public service announcement and pay restitution for setting fire to a chair on the "Tonight Show" May 6th. Bobcat pleaded not guilty June 23rd to two misdemeanor charges, unlawfully causing a fire and possession of a flammable substance or device with intent to burn property. But he told prosecutors he would agree to the plea which will be presented to a judge September 21st. Under the plea bargain, Bobcat would plead no contest to one of the charges and would be placed on probation..... Ozzy Osbourne won his battle against Music Confidential magazine which falsely reported a misleading and defamatory story that said the Oz was suffering from a disabling medical problem and was concealing it from his fans. Osbourne was awarded an undisclosed financial settlement, all of which he is donating to the Bridge School and the International Rett Syndrome Association charities..... Reebok was hit with a lawsuit for allegedly using a Jesus & Mary Chain song in a "Planet Reebok" commercial without the band's permission. The British group filed suit August 15th in Manhattan Federal Court. BMG Music Publishing, on behalf of the group, had written Reebok in April stating the band "vehemently resisted any commercial use of their songs."..... Rod Stewart filed a $40 million lawsuit August 19th against the publishers of the British tabloid, The Sun. The suit claims a February article said Stewart suffered from inflamed throat nodules and was unfit to perform. Stewart reached a settlement with News of the World, another tabloid published by News Group. That tabloid had published nude pictures of Stewart and his wife. The recent suit claims that previous settlement stipulated the company would inform Stewart before publishing any articles about him. Stewart claims the publisher tried to get around that agreement by running the item about his voice in its sister publication, The Sun..... Brian Wilson's mother, Audree, and his brother Carl filed a $15 million lawsuit against the publisher of Wilson's book, "Wouldn't It Be Nice," and his former therapist-turned-business-partner, Eugene Landy. Wilson's mother and brother Carl say there are passages in the book that are false and defamatory. Carl said the book falsely portrays him as an alcohol abusing drug user who was emotionally troubled, weak and easily intimidated. The book also makes it appear that Carl used trickery to obtain control of Brian's money, the suit said. Audree Wilson claims the book falsely portrays her as an unfit alcoholic mother and a person so emotionally demoralized that she couldn't defend herself or her children against severe abuse..... The legal action between PolyGram-owned Phonogram Ltd. and Rick Rubin's American Recordings escalated when Phonogram announced that it issued a multimillion dollar counter claim against American in California, according to Music Week. London-based Phonogram asked the British High Court to issue a stay on the U.K. proceedings until the dispute has been settled in the U.S. In its counter claim, Phonogram alleges American failed to honor a long-term international distribution agreement by holding back albums from the Black Crowes, Johnny Cash and Slayer. American is seeking to be released from its Phonogram deal while Phonogram wants to stop American from finding another distributor for its product outside North America.

Luther's Birmingham XS

Luther Campbell was busted for inciting a riot August 20th at Club XS in Birmingham, Ala. Eight of his dancers were also arrested for sexual misbehavior during the performance. Police Lt. LaFaree King-Walker said Campbell's dancers stripped down to G-strings then performed simulated sex acts. The show ended after officers at the packed club told Campbell's manager and the club manager that the show was getting out of hand. Campbell reportedly told the audience that police were going to take him to jail. The rapper asked for the house lights to be turned off and when they were, he and his entourage bolted out the side door. Club-goers then began throwing bottles at uniformed officers. One woman was trampled and was later treated for minor injuries. The dancers, four women and four men, were charged with obscene, lewd and indecent conduct. Campbell was charged with inciting to riot. All nine were released after posting bail.

Between The Dates

The ROLLING STONES Voodoo Lounge tour is set to roll into Oakland Stadium on October 28th, and keeping with the flamboyant showmanship of the late Bill Graham, the announcement by Bill Graham Presents wasn't just your typical press conference. BGP proxy Gregg Perloff announced the date from a gigantic Sateria voodoo altar which was built on the stage of The Fillmore. Behind the altar, clips of the band in action flashed on an array of video monitors. Next to Perloff, dressed in feathered headdress and wearing a painted face, was Dr. Goo Goo. The doctor spoke an exotic lingo, while Perloff translated. On stage along with Perloff and Dr. Goo Goo was a giant boa constrictor. During the press conference the snake managed to escape his basket and slither among the candles on the altar. In other Stones news — the group will perform at the upcoming MTV Video Music Awards on September 8th at Radio City Music Hall. This will be the first time the band has played the awards presentation. And, in what had to be a major headache, the advertisement that appeared in the August 21st issue of the Los Angeles Times announced the second Stones date for the Rose Bowl as being October 22nd. Actually the date is October 21st. Fingers of blame point to an unnamed ad agency.... Making up ERIC CLAPTON's band this time out will be Andy Fairweather Low on guitar, bassist Dave Bronze, Andy Newman on drums, keyboardist Chris Stainton, Jerry Portnoy on Harmonica, trumpeter Roddy Lorimer, tenor saxophonist Tim Sanders, and Simon Clarke on baritone sax. Jimmie Vaughan supports on what will be the must-see tour of the fall. The arena dates are in this week's Route Book but don't be surprised if Slowhand also does a few surprise club gigs along the way.... Inflamed vocal chords were responsible for BILLY DEAN cancelling about 3 weeks of dates. Expect him to be back on the road September 2nd in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa for the Old Threshers Reunion.... And it was lead singer Chris Cornell's inflamed vocal chords that forced SOUNDGARDEN to cancel an upcoming European tour. The band hopes to make it overseas by Christmas.... The KIEL CENTER, the new 21,000 seater in St. Louis, announced its opening week schedule. Included will be performances by Billy Joel and Frank Sinatra. It seems that the folks in St. Louie just can't get enough of the piano man. Joel played there August 9th while touring with Elton John.... There's been another boss sighting. This time BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN showed up unannounced at the Marz American Style nightclub in Long Branch, New Jersey, to crank it up with Pittsburgh-based Joe Grushecky And The Houserockers. Springsteen is producing songs for Grushecky's latest album which is being shopped to record companies. Grushecky and Springsteen shared vocals on Wilson Pickett's "Mustang Sally," Chuck Berry's "Reelin' and Rockin'," and Van Morrison's "Brown-Eyed Girl." Drawing from the Springsteen catalogue, the Boss soloed on "Lucky Town," Darkness At The Edge Of Town," "Atlantic City," and "Glory Days." As if that wasn't enough, Dion showed up and sang "The Wanderer." John Eddie, who hosts a Saturday night show at The Marz, said, "People were freaking out... Bruce Springsteen in a 400-seat club playing great music, and then to have Dion come out... it was magic. I was sitting there like I just saw a flying saucer or something.".... COLONEL BRUCE HAMPTON (Ret.), formerly of the Aquarium Rescue Unit, has formed a new band — The Fiji Mariners. Look for the first set of dates in this week's Route Book.

the finest bands, from St. Louis and throughout the 16-state Mississippi River region

For three nights in September, the Mississippi River Music Festival (MRMF) rolls ashore in St. Louis, bringing 200 of the best local and regional acts to 20 of the city's finest clubs.

MRMF also includes two days of panels and workshops where leading industry professionals lend their expertise in the music business.

Sophie Ridley (agent and tour director for Simply Red), Tim Norman of Edwyn Shirley, Bryan Grant (also a director of Britannia Row), Alan Escombe and Mike Llewellyn of Rock-It Cargo..... WEMBLEY ARENA has announced its busiest first half year since 1991, with a total of 74 live event days (including concerts and sports). This represents an increase of 63 percent in terms of concerts. Barbra Streisand broke all the per-cap records of the venue with her four sell-out shows at £260 per ticket. For many of the artists who have performed there, the trend has been towards longer runs, with Bryan Adams topping the league with six sell-out nights. Adams will soon be beaten by Take That's run of nine shows next month and ten by Cliff Richard in December. As far as next year goes, a second Wembley Arena show has been added to Wet Wet Wet's U.K. tour in June. The good news at the arena helps offset the lack of shows at WEMBLEY STADIUM, although enquiries for 1995 appear to be healthy..... At MANCHESTER ARENA, set to become Europe's largest, an executive director has been appointed. Lee Escklisen arrived this month to take up his position at the 19,500 capacity venue, which is due for completion next summer. Escklisen has been with Ogden Entertainment, developers and managers of the arena, for seven years, most recently as executive director of the Mullins Center at the Univ. of Massachusetts..... The UB40 concert at the Sony-Pace managed National Bowl at Milton Keynes sold over 40,000 tickets at the 60,000 capacity open-air venue. The show was also the launching pad for CUBE TV, a project backed by the band's management team of Mick Cater and David Harper who also promoted the show. Cube TV (run by Fiona Ryder, Mick Ryder and Adam Walton), creates a customized package of programmed music footage with commercial advertising breaks to cover the cost of hiring screens at outdoor events. The concept will be marketed to festival organisers for next summer..... At the internationally-reknonwed EDINBURGH FESTIVAL, local promoters Regular Music are trying to increase the profile of rock and roll. The city's venues prefer to rent themselves to comedy acts during the festival, as they don't need a sound check and only play for fifty minutes. Regular have therefore set up a dedicated music tent with a capacity of 750, and a program of 65 shows over the three weeks of the festival. These include, Waterboy, Mike Scott, The Fall, Jah Wobble, Davy Spillane and American Music Club (warming up for their headlining slot in the Melody Maker tent at the Reading Festival). Shows in the first week are selling out in advance. Regular is also promoting several acts at the Edinburgh Playhouse, including Lyle Lovett and the only three nights Ryuchi Sakamoto has planned for the U.K..... Lyle Lovett is just one of the "NEW AMERICAN MUSIC" (British marketing terminology for "Country") acts who is returning to the U.K. this autumn. Nanci Griffith returns in October, while Michelle Wright follows in November. The biggest selling country act to hit the U.K. so far, Garth Brooks, returns for two shows at Sheffield Arena and the Aberdeen Exhibition Centre in the second week of October. Brooks only hit the southern half of the country on his last sell-out visit in the spring. Meanwhile, Ricky Van Shelton will make his British debut with two shows on September 26th and 28th in Glasgow and London, to coincide with the release of his "Love and Honor" album..... The BARENAKED LADIES, who returned to the U.K. this week, met with a sell-out reception at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire. Promoted by Metropolis and booked by Geoff Meall at The Agency, the band also broke the records for merchandise sales at the venue, which opened some four months ago..... On the British band scene, OASIS, the media-hyped darling of the indie music press, have embarked on their highest profile tour of the country to date. The band has sold out most shows in advance, including dates at London's Astoria and The Forum, in what has been a slow month for ticket sales. Oasis' debut album is released on August 30th..... BLUR has already sold out an October show at the 7,250 capacity hall at Alexandra Palace. As champions of the current pop scene, Blur will headline the concert, with Pulp and Corduroy supporting, to make the show a quintessential British night out. The historic exhibition venue is rarely used for concerts and this unusual choice by the promoters (Metropolis) and Blur's agency (Primary Talent) has made the event an even hotter ticket..... London-based MTV EUROPE has announced that the first MTV European Music Awards will take place in Berlin at a specially-constructed site at the Brandenburg Gate on November 24th. Launching the event at POPKOMM, Germany's biggest music industry conference, MTV has stressed that awards will be made to European artists for music talent, rather than video performance. The ceremony will provide the platform for a major live show featuring performances by Aerosmith, Bjork, Eros Ramazzotti, Roxette, Take That, Therapy? and Ace Of Base.
