Pepper Punks

A punk rock concert at a small community hall in Kamloops, British Columbia, turned into a riot April 6th when police tried to put a halt to the oversold event. About 400 people reportedly crammed into the 160-capacity hall to see an Edmonton-based band called The Smalls. Promoter Cal Black said he oversold the hall accidentally but contended everything was under control until police crashed the party. Royal Canadian Mounted Police entered the hall and told the band to stop playing, singer Michael Caldwell said. He said the audience screamed for music as officers went backstage to try and pull the plug. When the band began another song, police threatened the members with arrest, pushed them back from the edge of the stage and began to spray the audience with pepper spray, Caldwell said. A police spokesman said when they asked everyone to leave, the crowd started spitting, throwing cans and rushing the stage and that's when the pepper spray was brought out. Outside the building, police were pelted with rocks, cans and bottles. Two officers suffered minor injuries, some teens were pepper-sprayed or struck with batons and a few cars were damaged. Police said 26 people were arrested, charged and released the next morning.

Retail Music Sales Profile

Americans spent $12.3 billion on recorded music last year, which is a 2.1 percent increase over 1994 sales, according to the Recording Industry Association of America. The RIAA's 1995 consumer profile found rock music, including everything from soft rock to punk rock, to be the favorite among consumers with a 33.5 percent share of the market. Country music was second with 16.7 percent followed by urban contemporary (11.3), pop (10.1), rap (6.7) and gospel (3.1). Consumers aged 15-19 continued to purchase the most music in '95 with 17.1 percent of the market, just edging out those 45 and over, who made up 16.9 percent. The CD format continued to rule the market with a 65 percent share. As for America's favorite outlet to buy music, record stores ended up with 52 percent of the market. That is down from 53.3 percent the year before, which is bad news for retail record stores. In fact, the retail record business is currently seeing hard times. Trans World Entertainment was at its peak two years ago with a chain of 700 music and video stores but has since shrunk to fewer than 500 outlets. Three other retail music chains — California-based Wherehouse Entertainment Inc., Peaches Entertainment Corp. of Florida and Kemp Mills Music Inc. in Washington, D.C. — recently filed for bankruptcy protection. And Musicland, the nation's largest music retailer, posted a $136 million loss last year. Competition from huge electronics stores, record clubs and the Internet has contributed to the dwindling popularity of record stores. Many outlets were casualties of price wars with electronic stores like Circuit City and Best Buy, which often price CDs at $9.99 to entice customers into the store. And though the Internet has yet to make much of a dent in sales, the ability to order music through computers is a definite threat. Part of the problem was also the ill-advised expansions by several chains. SoundScan's Mike Shalett pointed out, "As we were building bigger stores, we weren't creating more customers."

HotStar Of The Week

Dog's Eye View frontman Peter Stuart took a big bite of the reality sandwich early on in his musical career. He was on the road with Counting Crows when the August And Everything After album started to explode. Then seemingly overnight, he was opening the show in front of 2,000 people instead of 200. ."It was kind of bewildering being out with them going, 'Does this ever change? At what point does this become completely different?' It turns out it never changes."

Now, Stuart is the frontman in the headlining band and the realization that touring is basically touring no matter how big you get is serving him well. "Being on the Counting Crows tour and realizing how exactly the same touring is was an important thing for me. I'm glad I went through that with them before I went through it with me. Now that I'm out with our band, I really understand that this is the starting point and touring still means getting into a vehicle and traveling and doing interviews and playing every night." Even when he was backstage at a Rolling Stones concert, he could see the similarities. "Whether you're up in front of 10 or 1,000 or 10,000 people, it's essentially the same thing. Now I know the reason you do it is to get up in front of people and play every night and communicate with them."

Even before his stint with Counting Crows, Stuart had tasted the ups and downs of the touring life and found out he likes the bumpy road. "I had been opening up for a band called the Fat Lady Sings. It was then that I realized I really could do this and wanted to do this even though, at the time, it was miserable. We had nowhere to stay and there were seven of us in a van with all the gear. There were hardly any people at the shows, and I still loved playing every single night."

At the time, Stuart was a solo acoustic act, a situation he found absolutely liberating. "The whole thing about my solo show was that I could read the crowd and if the crowd was going one way, I could bring them back the other way," he said. "If I wanted to change a song in the middle, I could. If I wanted to do a different set, I could. I'd just wing it every night." Dog's Eye View is a band now with Tim Bradshaw on lead guitar, Alan Bezozi on drums and Dermot Lynch on bass. That took a little getting used to. When Stuart was by himself, his favorite shows were the ones where the PA would blow out. He liked the challenge of holding his audience under adverse circumstances and he liked to improvise. When the band started touring, he wasn't sure how he was going to pull off that kind of spontaneity.

Stuart said he had to go through a period of adjustment. "I didn't want to do things in the middle of the show and throw the band off. We had a set list and we did a 'band' show." Then they got to San Diego. "We were playing a 200-seat theatre and there were about 80 people there. About the third song in, I was thinking, 'This feels so stupid. It's a really small crowd; I could sing in this theatre without amplification.' So in the middle of a song, I threw my guitar off and ran into the middle of the audience, gave hand signals to the band so they'd play really quietly, and sang from there. Then I made the band come up to the front of the stage and play without amplification and sit on the edge of the Much to his surprise, he found the band loved the unexpected twist. "That was when I knew I could still do whatever I wanted to do and the band will follow along." Luckily, Stuart is a good natured guy who can take it as well as dish it out. "We were at the Bluebird Theatre in Denver and I had done something to my bass player, so as we got to the third verse of the single ['Everything Falls Apart'], he just stood in front of my microphone and wouldn't let me get to it. So I jumped off the stage, ran to the back of the hall, got up in the balcony and sang the rest of the song from there just to prove that he couldn't stop me."

Since Dog's Eye View's single and its debut Columbia release Happy Nowhere are doing well, Stuart is able to bring his exuberant antics to larger and larger audiences. He seems to be completely in his element and it's hard to imagine him ever questioning his music or his ability to win over a crowd. "A couple of years ago, I was still pretty insecure. I would write songs on stage at the audience's suggestion just to keep people entertained. That changed while I was in Europe with Counting Crows and all of a sudden, I couldn't make jokes. My lyrics weren't going to carry the same weight and I couldn't really be clever. All I could do was play my songs with conviction. The first night I did that was in Hamburg, Germany, and it was probably the pivotal show of my career because I went, 'OK, that felt great and it worked.' The next show I did was in the States and I tried that and it failed miserably. No one listened to a word; people were just sitting around getting drunk."

Throughout his career, that kind of risk taking has served Stuart well. Maybe his willingness to take chances has inspired others to take a chance with him. He got his first break that way from the folks at Jam Productions. They took a shine to him and would occasionally book him as the opening act at the Park West in Chicago. Later, Marty Diamond and Stuart chose to take a chance on each other. Diamond is well established as a Little Big Man among booking agents, but he opted to take on management responsibilities for Dog's Eye View. "It's much more important to me to work with people who are really passionate about what I do rather than someone who's merely professionally connected and adept," said Stuart. "Marty is all of those things. As a manager, his entire heart is in this. If someone comes to us and says 'This is the way it's done,' he says, 'But that's stupid. Why would we want to do it that way? Let's do it this way.'

Stuart has another independent thinker, Frank Riley at Monterey Peninsula, for a booking agent. Right now, he isn't sure what the summer holds for Dog's Eye View. But he knows the band will be on the road, pulling some unexpected stunts whenever possible.

to meet June 27th at the Hotel Feria Palace in Barcelona, Spain. Participants are expected to discuss whether a world council of facility management associations should be formed to create an avenue of communication among members. Other organizations that have agreed to participate in the gathering include the Stadium Managers Association, European Stadium Managers Association, Brazilian Association of Conventions & Fairs, and Asia-Pacific Exhibition & Convention Council.

Dynamics Of Concert Tours

These music biz executives took time away from finishing their copies of the book "Wild Thing" to serve as experts on the L.A. Music Network's "Dynamics of Concert Tours" panel. The group discussed dangers to the live business from corporate takeovers. Seen at the March 26th gathering are attorney Anita Rivas, FBI's Ian Copeland, A&M's Larry Weintraub, Goldenvoice's Moss Jacobs, LAMN's Tess Taylor and Metro Networks' Larry Lewis.

Did The Music Make Them Do It?

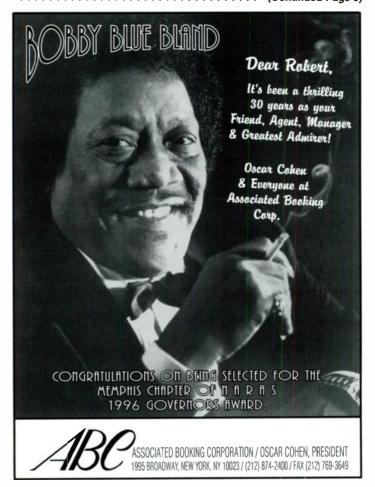

A woman who survived a vicious beating during a 1994 robbery and murder filed an $11 million lawsuit last week against two bands and their record companies, alleging that death metal music drove her assailants to violence. Donna Ream, who was a Dari Mart clerk in Eugene, Ore., when the attack occurred, is suing Roadrunner Records act Deicide and Metal Blade Records act Cannibal Corpse. The suit also names EMI, Virgin Songs Inc., Sony Music Distribution and Record Garden, a Eugene shop where some of the music was purchased. The suit claims the men who killed clerk Francis Wall and assaulted Ream listened to the music just before entering the store, according to testimony at the murder trials. "There is no question the message [of the music] is targeted to young men prone to violence." Ream's lawyer, Karsten Rasmussen, said. "For people already tending in that direction, it puts them over the top." The lawsuit also names the four young convicted felons and their parents, arguing the parents were negligent for allowing their sons to listen to the music and failing to supervise them.

It's Hammer Time For The LAPD

M.C. Hammer was briefly detained by Los Angeles police who believed the rapper fit the description of a suspect brandishing a gun. When officers responded to a call saying there was a man with a gun on a Hollywood street corner, they reportedly saw several men, including one who fit the description of the suspect with the gun. Police said the suspects, one of whom was Hammer, were made to lie face down on the sidewalk, handcuffed and searched for weapons, according to the Los Angeles Times. Officers released Hammer and his friends after discovering they were unarmed.

Stadium Briefs

Its name won't have the nostalgic charm of Candlestick Park, but it appears the San Francisco Giants will get a new home — Pacific Bell Park. The team has struck a $50 million, 24-year agreement with the telecommunications monolith. The deal puts the Giants at the halfway mark of the needed $100 million in corporate sponsorships. The team is said to be looking into deals with Bank of America, Visa, Sun Microsystems, Apple Computers, Intel and Oracle as well. The Giants hope to have the new park ready for opening day in the year 2000..... The New York Yankees are looking to relocate and a new study is pointing the team towards Manhattan. The study concentrated on the current Yankee Stadium site in the Bronx and on Manhattan, but an unidentified baseball official said it leans towards the Manhattan locale. The team's lease at the current stadium expires in 2002 and New York officials are ready to do just about anything to keep the team from moving to New Jersey..... It may take $197 million to overhaul the Kingdome for the Seattle Seahawks. That was the amount cited in an April 2nd consultant's report, which added that $43 million of the work should be done right away. The $197 million figure is nearly three times the original cost of the venue and does not include the $70 million recently spent on roof and ceiling repairs. The work, if approved, is expected to take three years..... San Diego has won another round in its battle to expand Jack Murphy Stadium. In an April 2nd ruling, a Superior Court judge said its plan to sell $66.6 million in lease-revenue bonds doesn't need to go before

- Mr. Stacey La Barbera is LD for GEORGE STRAIT's in-the-round production for '96. (Stacey calls Mr. Lyda, Uncle Morris... seriously). Production manager is Paul Rogers with Dallas Backup handling sound and lights. High End has provided 32 LT fixtures, the newest Cyberlight using high resolution etched glass instead of metal gobo's.
- LD Bob Stamp is out on THE RANKIN FAMILY with Christie Lights of Toronto providing the conventional system.
- VARI*LITE EUROPE has equipment out with Simply Red, Eric Clapton and Mike & The Mechanics.
- TRACY LAWRENCE is now out with Dallas Backup providing technology with lighting direction by Michael Shucker. MD Systems is supplying the sound with Ralph Mastrangelo running front-of-house. Monitor man is Russ Avery, who also serves double duty as the production manager. Russ is breaking in the new AMEK "LANGELEY RECALL" console featuring virtual dynamics. With just the push of a button you can snapshot and restore entire board settings. This is the cutting edge of technology with the end result being less outboard gear, greater use of space and smoother set changes and will fix the side stage monitor "kluge" of the past. What, no more tripping over racks and "Don't set your drink here" signs? More space for band gear boxes? Does this mean that the truck pack will have more rcom for the jacuzzi? More on this in the future.....
- If you have ever seen a NATALIE COLE show and heard her "Mona Lisa" then you have undoubtedly witnessed the work of JOHN CHIODINI. Not only is John a fine acoustic guitarist, but he is also a "good guy" and fellow Road Warrior. So it really was no surprise when Natalie's band and crew joined forces last weekend to do a benefit to raise money for hospital expenses after John was diagnosed with leukemia. John supports a wife and three daughters who attend college in the L.A. area. Four shows were organized by John's bandmate Jim Hughart and wardrobe tech Jennifer Jacobs at the SONIC CAFE in Los Angeles. Tom and Paula Bradley (crew mates who serve as stage manager and wardrobe, respectively) secured the Sonic Cafe and owner David Han donated all food and drink proceeds. Natalie Cole tour manager Steve Powell, production manager Jerry Pfaff with crew members Paul Sarault, Brent Jeffer and Jack Valencia all donated time and efforts while Delicate Production, LiveLight Inc. (Vari*lites Fresno) provided the equipment that made this thing happen. Other touring organizations got involved such as Yanni crew member Susan Smela. Ms. Cole performed with her quartet - Terry Trotter, Harold Jones, Lanny Morgan and Dave Trigg — and was also joined by various artists including Evette Hughart, John Pizano, sax guy Pete Christlieb and Barry Zweig, who covered the Natalie Cole dates for John. Word is that they raised several thousand dollars to help the Chiodinis. Sometimes the best insurance is to have good friends but it shouldn't have to be that way. Good luck, John.
- COMMENTARY: "Sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll!" Hey, do you remember that old anthem of an over-indulgent, under disciplined, antiestablishment youth? A time when "auto immune" meant you had car insurance? A time when "disabled" was bad and "enabled" was good and "dysfunction" usually referred to passing out before you had sex? Do you remember when being one of the gang meant you were hangin' out instead of being a tattooed target for a drive-by shooting? Do you remember when the only ones who used computers were geeks.... When "On The Road" brought to mind Jack Kerupac instead of per diems? Who would have ever thought that David Crosby would live longer than his liver, or that Jerry Garcia would make the Grateful Dead band name... ironic.

Well, Baby Boomers are passing their first kidney stones. Those over indulgent road dogs of the past are either dead, in and out of rehab, or have cleaned up their acts (OK, there were some who were sparkly clean and above reproach and still are). The HMOs laughed when "technical touring personnel" banded together as a consortium to try to get group health insurance. "Hah!," they laughed and you can still hear them snickering in Hartford. "Geez, we were thinking of talking to you guys about where to get drugs real cheap!" Then there were all sorts of embarrassing questions like, "Is hepatitis B a pre-existing condition?, and "Do you guys want a group discount on liver transplants?" Not good.

The times they are a'changin' and so is the profile of your average Road Warrior. Sex and drugs and rock 'n' roll have given way to safe sex, acupuncture and alternative rock. The last hold-outs would have to be the Deadheads but what can I say, there's always counseling and Prozac. And what about that Eagles reunion? A bunch of balding old guys singing 20-year-old songs while complaining about the millions of dollars they're making. And what about the Rolling Stones? A bunch of balding old guys singing 20-year-old songs and complaining about... wait a minute, I just said that. But I digress.

Road Warriors now have spouses and children and mortgages (although we still don't have a boat) and if my last show-of-hands poll is any indication, they also have alimony and child support. You now have to take an AIDS test to get life insurance. If you didn't admit that you were just a little concerned about whether you were gonna pass that bad boy, then you're lyin' or already on AZT.

Today's independent contractor shouldn't consider health insurance a luxury. Boats are a luxury. Stopping over in Hawaii on the way back from Japan for a week of surfing is a luxury. Twenty thousand dollars in hospital bills are not a luxury; they are a disaster. So listen up touring personnel, pass up the newest state of the art DAT system or Sony Playstation or Chris Craft and invest in some health insurance; $1,000 deductible, co-pay, HMO, whatever, and like the Nike ad says — just do it. Hillary stirred up this national healthcare thing and the Blue Shields and Crosses are running scared and becoming more competitive and thus more affordable. Don't think that if you get injured on the road that the production will pay the bill. Collection agencies don't go after production offices.

Garcia On The Gange's

Some of Jerry Garcia's ashes were sent swirling down the Ganges River April 4th on farewell notes from members of the Grateful Dead. Garcia's widow, Deborah Koons Garcia, and Dead member Bob Weir waded into the waters of India's holy river to release the ashes following a lunar eclipse. The ceremony was held secretly near the holy city of Rishikesh on the upper Ganges. Weir reportedly prayed that Garcia would "have peace and travel to the stars" when the ashes were released. Many, including Garcia's four daughters, expected his ashes to be scattered at sea in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Marin County. The San Francisco Chronicle reported that neither Garcia's brother, Cliff, nor his daughters were notified of the ceremony in India. Annabelle Garcia said she and her sisters had planned to spread her father's ashes in the Pacific Ocean in accordance with his wishes. "It was all done 100 percent without our knowledge. And it is gut-churning to say the least." Annabelle Garcia was quoted as saying. Band spokesman Dennis McNally said Koons and Weir sprinkled only "a portion" of Garcia's ashes in the Ganges and there were also plans to sprinkle some of the ashes in the Pacific at a later date.

Toronto Garden Party

The battle over ownership of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. and the Toronto Maple Leafs NHL hockey team is coming closer to a resolution. A tentative settlement announced April 4th requires Gardens chairman Steve Stavro to pay an additional C$23.5 million to a charitable foundation established by the late Harold Ballard who owned the arena, according to the Wall Street Journal. In return, two government agencies in Ontario agreed to drop a lawsuit that challenged Stavro's takeover of the company, the paper reported. The lawsuit dates back to 1994 when Stavro, an executor of Ballard's estate, said he would purchase the estate's 60 percent controlling stake in the Gardens for C$34 a share. Further transactions after the takeover bid eventually gave Stavro control of 90 percent of Gardens stock. The Office of the Public Trustee and the Ministry of the Attorney-General claimed Stavro should have offered the shares in a public auction to get the best price for shareholders and the charities named in Ballard's will. Under the reported agreement, the C$23.5 million donated to charities puts the shares at a value of C$49.50, the Journal said. Despite the probability that this suit will be dropped, two additional lawsuits remain outstanding. The first is a shareholder class-action suit. The other suit was brought in February by Harold Ballard's son Bill Ballard (who is also Michael Cohl's partner). Bill Ballard claims the true value of the assets was deliberately kept from him when he was making his decision to sell his interest in the operation.

The Tommy Boy Rap

Time Warner Music Group chiefs Bob Daly and Terry Semel launched a joint venture with Tommy Boy Music chairman Tom Silverman that gives back to Silverman half of the label he founded. The pact also extends Silverman's employment contract five years, retroactive to 1995. In an unusual move, Time Warner also gave Silverman an option to buy its equity interest in the label at the end of the year 2002. Silverman founded Tommy Boy in 1981 and sold half of it to Time Warner four (Continued Page 11) years later. Time Warner purchased the 50 percent balance of the company in 1989. The new alliance allows Time Warner to keep a top rap and hip hop music executive at a time when the media monolith can use the credibility of both the Silverman and Tommy Boy names. Silverman began negotiating to reclaim ownership interest in the label in the early '90s but was waylaid by the numerous executive changes at Warner Music Group.

Copperfield's Batmobile Battle

David Copperfield filed a $1 million lawsuit April 5th against Butterfield & Butterfield auction firm, charging they sold him a car that was one of five built for promotions for the film "Batman;" the magician said he thought the Batmobile he bid $189,500 for was actually used in the 1989 movie. Andrew Vorzimer, a lawyer representing the owner of the car and the auction house, said Copperfield had "full disclosures and knew exactly what he was purchasing." Apparently, the purchase of the car was contingent on strict use agreements that said the Batmobile couldn't be driven publicly and it couldn't be exhibited outside a museum. Copperfield reportedly wanted to use the car on stage in his act and was hoping Warner Bros. would relax the rules. Batmobile owner Michael Eisenberg told USA Today that it was only when Warner refused to relax the use-rules that Copperfield started saying he was duped. A countersuit has reportedly been filed because Copperfield refuses to pay for the car. A Copperfield spokesperson said thε magician never had plans to use the Batmobile in his stage shows.

Short Items Of Note

A new $50 million arena and convention center complex in Grand Forks, N.D., will break ground in February of 1997. The 15,000-capacity arena is scheduled to be completed in the summer of 1999..... Metropolitan Entertainment Group was scheduled to produce a retrospective Art Garfunkel concert at Ellis Island in New York April 12-13 to be aired on the Disney Channel in the Fall. The program, tentatively titled "Journey Across America," will also chronicle Garfunkel's recently completed 10-year walk across America. MEG, as part of its new deal with Ogden, also has plans to release a video and CD of the show..... Shania Twain's grandmother called the Canadian singer a liar for saying she is of Native American heritage. Twain defends her heritage, saying she was adopted by a full-blooded Ojibwa Indian when she was 4 years old. "As the adopted daughter of my father, Jerry [Twain], I became legally registered as 50 percent North American Indian," she said. But Twain's biological grandmother, Regina Nutbrown, is apparently tired of being disregarded as part of the rising star's family. Nutbrown said Twain's biological father, Clarence Edwards, is a railroad engineer in Canada, and not a Native American. Twain countered by saying she was raised to believe she is part Indian and she considers it her heritage.

Musical Police Blotter

Wilson Pickett was arrested April 1st after a woman who he was dating ran screaming from his home in Englewood, N.J. The partially clothed woman, Elizabeth Trapp, was treated for undisclosed injuries at Englewood Hospital but she refused to press charges against Pickett. Police said she was "screaming about Wilson Pickett, Wilson Pickett," but wouldn't say anything else. Later, she told police that she fell on a glass-top table at Pickett's home. When police rushed to Pickett's home, they found the singer alone with a swollen black eye. They also found two grams of cocaine in a bedroom nightstand. Pickett was charged with possession of a controlled substance and released on his own recognizance. Police found the broken glass table and said they believe there was a violent struggle. Pickett faces the possibility of being charged under the state's domestic violence act if Trapp changes her mind and provides information about what actually happened..... Tupac Shakur was ordered April 4th to spend four months in jail for violating probation and failing to work on a roadside cleanup crew as part of a community service sentence. The judge in Los Angeles also fined Shakur $1,000 and ordered him to start his 120 day jail term on June 7th. Shakur's lawyers immediately appealed the ruling and the rapper can remain free during the appeal process. Shakur was on parole for assault and battery on a music video producer and for carrying a loaded, concealed gun. He violated his parole by being arrested in April 1994 on a charge that he carried a loaded 9 mm handgun in a car, and for being convicted in November 1994 on sex abuse charges in New York. The roadside cleanup sentence was part of the assault and battery conviction. Shakur told MTV he has never cleaned up along the roadside and he doesn't see why he should start now..... California rap artist C-Bo, aka Shawn Thomas, 24, was arrested April 6th near Cincinnati for carrying a concealed weapon and trafficking in marijuana. Thomas was wanted by the FBI in connection with his alleged role in a fatal shootout in Sacramento. During the filming of a video on November 27, 1994, Thomas allegedly pulled a gun and fired several shots in the air amid rival gang members. The shots apparently incited a fight that left one fan dead and three others wounded.

The new Club de Wash's capacity will be expanded from 250 to 400-plus and will include several improvements to make it more attractive to touring bands.

New record company style color posters and coordination with Bayside Distribution will help give visibility in the area to new venues. /// Those Darn Accordions are returning for the fourth straight year to Summerfest in Milwaukee, (6/27-30). We're looking to fill after that in the Great Lakes region. /// Lightnin' Willie & The Poorboys just inked a contract with Country Time Records of L.A., making their recent listing as one of L.A.'s "Best Unsigned Bands" a bit of a misnomer. Pete Anderson (Dwight Yoakam) will produce the record with recording beginning later this month. /// We want to welcome Bay Area Cajun rockers The Sundogs to our roster. Though not exclusive, we'll boost the efforts of leader Tom Rigney, who essentially is handling their local bookings.

Between The Dates

- PETER TOWNSHEND is playing both east and west coasts to promote his latest "best of" release. See Route Book for the dates. While we're on the subject. Since Tommy has been a veritable gold mine between the album, movie, the touring stage show, etc., could a reworking of QUADROPHENIA reap some of the same success? An all-star presentation of the album is planned for London's Hyde Park on June 29th. Although details are sketchy, the performance is to benefit the Prince's Trust. Along with the news of this performance come rumors that the remaining members of THE WHO are considering taking Quadrophenia on the
- As to those rumors about ERIC CLAPTON that have been circulating in the past few weeks mentioning tours or individual performances, the word we hear is that Slowhand is not working this summer. Period.
- The permit application that the city council approved last March said that the promoters wanted to bring some BIG BANDS to perform at the Northampton Airport in Massachusetts. When city officials found out that the big bands in question were not of the Count Basie variety, but Metallica, Soundgarden and The Ramones, in other words, LOLLAPALOOZA '96, they cancelled the permit. Anthony Cagiano, president of UNICO, an Italian-American fraternal group that has sponsored concerts at the airport for several years said it did not purposely mislead the council in its application for the July concert. "We would never do that," Cagiano said last week. "When we were asked to do this we were told it was 'big bands." City Council member Mary Tymoczko, who lives near the airport, said before the council's unanimous decision to yank the permit that city ordinances require that set-up and dismantling time be included in the 12-hour concert permit. Tymoczko said that when she questioned Lollapalooza promoters, she was told that it would take up to a week to erect the stages, fencing and field hospital, and another 36 hours to take it all down. City council members also pointed out that they approved the original permit after being told to expect 12,000 people, not the 35,000 to 50,000 expected for Lollapalooza.
- SID BERNSTEIN just won't go away. The man who promoted THE BEATLES at their historic Shea Stadium concert 31 years ago, has offered Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr $500 million if they returned to Shea for a 20 minute concert on August 23rd. The offer was promptly rejected. "Money is not an issue," said Paul McCartney. We wouldn't do it for twice as much. The answer is no." In response to the rejection, Bernstein said, "I'm not stopping here." Bernstein was in the news two years ago when he tried to promote a Woodstock 25th reunion concert to compete with the one John Scher and Michael Lang had in the works. Those plans fell through when he couldn't get the proper permits, financing or acts. Nor for that matter, could he get the proper name, with "Woodstock" being trademarked by the organizations involved with putting on the three days of mud, music and rain that did take place in 1994.
- A press conference scheduled for the Intrepid Museum in New York City at high noon on April 16th is expected to announce the upcoming KISS reunion / all-make up tour.
- The first musical booking for The Tonight Show when Jay Leno takes the program to Chicago is, appropriately enough, CHICAGO. Watch for the band to appear on April 29th.
- Dozens of Boston area PEARL JAM fans drove for two hours in hopes of seeing a free concert by their heros, ended up instead at a gas station. The directions given by Worcester station WAAF told listeners to head west out of Boston to the intersection of Routes 119 and 202. The station said that is where Chelbridge is, and the group would be playing at a venue called Larkey's. Instead that is where a Citgo gas station is. Seems none of those listeners happened to look at the calendar that day. "You'd think people would realize it's an April Fools' joke," said WAAF promotions coordinator, Therese Campanelli. Gas station owner Karen Hodgman said, "they just kept coming, and we just keep sending them home."

U.K. News Report

The Mean Fiddler Organisation's sell-out TRIBAL GATHERING dancefest (May 4) ran into a temporary setback when the local authority refused the event license. Cherwell District Council refused to grant a license on two counts - sound and traffic. The sound issue was resolved within 36 hours of the license being refused, by an agreement to reduce the dB level slightly between 4 and 5 a.m. However discussions over the traffic problems continue. MFO's Melvin Benn says he was surprised at the council's decision, but says that he had met with unprecedented opposition from the local police ever since the application for a license had been submitted, which may have contributed to the council's decision. According to Benn, Thames Valley Police had been opposed to the event since last year's problems with the Reading Festival (which is in the same policing area as the Gathering) when there was a last minute disagreement over policing costs. While the Reading Festival license has already been granted, the Tribal Gathering has a less established track record. The council is due to make a final decision on the license this week and Benn is confident that any problems will be resolved.

With JOHN SQUIRE announcing his departure from the STONE ROSES, the remaining members of the band have said they plan to continue together and complete a third album. Squire is reportedly planning a solo career, although details of his management, record company and agency arrangements are as yet unclear. The Stone Roses' agent, Nigel Kerr at ABS, would not comment on the split, except to tell POLLSTAR: "There are no tour plans at the moment. Although I fully expect both the Stone Roses and John Squire to be working before the end of the year."

Claims that OASIS' so-called past lives of crime will be investigated by the police have been dismissed by the band's record company and management. The throwaway comments made by Noel Gallagher in a Melody Maker interview generated a flurry of indignance among the tabloid papers and Conservative MP's with nothing better to do are insisting on an investigation into the band members' alleged offenses. A spokesperson for Creation Records dismissed the affair. saying it was nothing more than a storm in a tea cup, while Alec McKinlay of Ignition Management told POLLSTAR: "We will not make any comment on what is speculation in the gutter press. There is no investigation of Oasis." With shows at the band's hometown football ground, Maine Road, at the end of this month, plans for Oasis summer shows are due to be announced next month.

GREEN DAY have cancelled all remaining dates on their European tour, citing "nervous exhaustion." The band played two weeks of the planned tour, but were forced to cancel the 20 dates still to come, many of which had sold out weeks in advance. None of the shows will be rescheduled, leaving promoters to go down the insurance claim route while all the tickets will be refunded. Green Day had been touring for about three years almost continuously, according to their European agent, Martin Horne at ITB. He says he does not expect the band to return before next year - he says they will spend the rest of '96 recovering and working on a new album. Meanwhile, Horne has taken on two new bands, Ammonia, signed to Epic and Hum on BMG.

TAKE THAT's career was brought to a neat, corporate close, with the band's final TV promos leaving a trail of bereft fans across Europe. The last show performed by the group was for a Dutch TV programme in Amsterdam. There is no word yet on which of the former band members will be the first to release new material as they pursue solo careers. Meanwhile the Take That Greatest Hits album is spending a second week at No. 1.

While Sir CLIFF RICHARD is busy with his Heathcliff musical extravaganza in the UK - including 16 sell-out performances at the NEC in Birmingham, with more to be added, his only performances outside the UK this year will be in Denmark. Promoted by Arne Worsoe at ICO, he will headline shows at the 50,000 capacity Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen on May 1, and at the 20,000 Silkeborg Stadium in Jutland on June 1.

EUROPEAN FESTIVAL UPDATE: Well, Neil Young is definitely touring Europe this summer, with confirmation so far of two headlining festival appearances. TOURHOUT-WERCHTER FESTIVAL celebrates its 20th anniversary this year with the headliners including Neil Young and Crazy Horse, David Bowie, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Bjork, Rage Against the Machine, Radiohead, Pulp, Prodigy, Therapy?, Foo Fighters, Alanis Morissette, Cypress Hill, Dog Eat Dog, Skunk Anansie,

Australian News Report

- The word from Warner Music is that initial sales for k.d. LANG's first performance tour of Australia have been exceptionally strong with a number of shows selling out in each city for tour promoter Paul Dainty.
- Just when you thought it was safe to start going out again, AIR SUPPLY have announced a 20th Anniversary Tour which sees them playing five nights in Sydney at the Hilton Hotel.
- It's been interesting to note that Australian dates for THE CRANBERRIES have been announced in POLLSTAR, as there has been no official notice of this tour in Australia. When it happens the promoter is tipped to be Michael Coppel who toured the band last time
- Coppel has however announced national dates in May for EMMYLOU HARRIS - however, contrary to earlier rumours, it appears that Daniel Lanois will not be sharing the bill.
- Premier Artists have announced late May dates for American rock'n'roll band SPAIN who'll be accompanied on all dates by up and coming Melbourne-based band The Paradise Motel.
- As if CD PRICES weren't expensive enough in this country already - with little fanfare late last month Warner Music raised their CD price by a further 74 cents. The result is that retailers have had to mark Warner product up at least a dollar - or accept a reduced profit margin. At this rate well see the $40 CD by the end of the decade. Current list price for a new release CD in Australia is a dollar either side of $A30 depending on the company releasing the product. To give an indication of what that means, whilst in the States late last year I saw silverchair's Frogstomp album advertised for around under $US12, or roughly the equivalent of $A16 - meaning that Australians are, across the board, paying around double for their CDs, even if the album was recorded and released in this country by a local company.
- The rumour mill was working overtime just prior to Easter with rumours about the future plans of rooArt's TODD WAGSTAFF. First up was the talk that he was taking up the American management of You Am I. Contacted by phone a rather circumspect Wagstaff said that he and You Am I's long standing manager Kate Stewart were "coming to an arrangement." There were mutterings about some negotiations with Warner Music in the States. Then there was the talk that Wagstaff had been offered an A&R gig by Warners in the States "Not me, that's someone else," Wagstaff spluttered. Just to add grist to the mill I reckon the money's on Wagstaff moving to Los Angeles and opening a management office there - with You Am I likely to be one of his clients.
- There's equal speculation going on as to ROOART's future business associations. Industry observers have commented that their late March Kinselas showcase in Sydney seemed more like a chance for other record companies to inspect the available merchandise rather than any particular celebration. Roadshow Music and Shock have been mentioned as companies having talks with rooArt. Then, late last week, a source whispered that rooArt head honcho (and former INXS manager), Chris Murphy, was "lunching this week with a major label chairman." That kinda tells us nothing - except to fuel the rumours that something's going on. RooArt is currently distributed by Warner Music.
- BEN HARPER's tour is beginning to remind me of my own experiences a few years back with Chris Whitely. On April 5, Harper's plane to Australia was forced to turn back to Auckland after running into a flock of ducks. According to a Telegraph-Mirror newspaper report, after hitting a flock of speckled brown birds, "the blood-covered plane was forced to turn back immediately." At least Harper wasn't nabbed at Auckland with a joint stuffed in his boot, and deported, as was Mr Whitley's fate.

- WEA artist ENYA capped of a successful promotional tour late March/early April by receiving a plaque representing sales of one million units in Australia. Enya was in Australia to promote her fourth album, The Memory Of Trees, which has achieved the No. 1 spot on the national ARIA chart and triple platinum status. Such was the popularity of her two week visit, three catalog albums all recharted in the Top 50.
- An Australian hearing expert has warned that Walkman-style portable cassette players cause irreparable HEARING DAMAGE to many users who turn the volume up too high. The warning from Dr. Eric LePage, a research assistant at Australian Hearing Services, comes as France plans legislation to limit the maximum volume of cassette players to 100 decibels. Dr. LePage said exposure to loud noise through portable players and rock concerts was aging teenagers' ears at three times the rate of their parents'. There are no mandatory limits on portable cassette player volumes in Australia and many can produce a volume of about 125 dB. LePage said people tend to listen to portable players at 95 dB, while the standard industrial noise level is 85 dB. The French bill provides for a health warning on such products.
