A New Arena For Atlanta

The city of Atlanta is close to finalizing plans to build a new $215 million sports arena to replace The Omni. The Atlanta Hawks basketball team and The Omni arena, both owned by Turner Broadcasting, have been in negotiations over building a new venue for more than two years. Omni GM Bob Williams told POLLSTAR the new 20,000-seat arena might be erected on the Omni site, which means the 25-year-old venue would be torn down. He said another option would be to build on a piece of land adjacent to The Omni. The final go-ahead for building the facility requires approval by three government entities — the city-county recreation authority, Fulton County and the Atlanta City Council. "The recreation authority has already voted 5 to 0 to approve," Williams said. "The City Council and the Fulton County Commission meetings are occurring in the very near future." Turner Broadcasting had threatened to move the Hawks to suburban Cobb County if an agreement wasn't reached. "But as it appears now, we're working harmoniously with all governmental entities and we appear to have struck an agreement," Williams said. The new arena is expected to open in the fall of 1999.

Tigrett Has A Change Of Heart

House Of Blues owner Isaac Tigrett agreed to change the venue's logo after confronting criticism from the Catholic church. The logo, a bleeding heart wrapped in thorns, was said to be too similar to the Catholic symbol that represents Christ's love. Chicago's late Cardinal Joseph Bernardin wrote a letter to Tigrett in July complaining about the logo and called it "an affront to religious expression and belief." Tigrett met with Rev. Thomas Paprocki, chancellor of the Archdiocese of Chicago, November 13th and presented a new logo. The wound, thorns and blood drops are gone from the new logo and replaced with a single unfolding rose. Paprocki reportedly said with the deletions, the logo no longer represents the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Tigrett thanked the Archdiocese for lending its support in the transformation of the logo. "House Of Blues' new heart symbol accentuates the message of House Of Blues bridging racial differences and attaining spiritual harmony worldwide," he said. The logo change will be corporate wide.

Dave's Day At RFK

Cellar Door's Dave Williams was inducted into the RFK Stadium "Hall Of Stars" during half-time of the October 27th Redskins vs. Colts game. It was quite an honor for the veteran D.C. concert promoter who is seen here being escorted onto the field by two members of the Redskins cheerleader squad.

KULA SHAKER

Kula Shaker may be called "hopelessly retro," with sounds derived mainly from '60s and '70s rock, but the British quartet's music is making a big hit in the land of decadence inspired Brit-pop. Kula Shaker's frontman, Crispian Mills, meshes Hindu influenced spirituality with the mystery of King Arthur and throws in some psychedelic sounds, anti-materialistic sentiments and ancient Sanskrit mantras to create what a British critic called "unquestionably, the biggest and most thrilling new [British] band of the year."

Released less than a month ago in the U.S., Kula Shaker's Columbia Records debut has already scored three hit singles in Great Britain. The three songs — the reincarnation ode, "Grateful When You're Dead/Jerry Was There," the Sanskrit-based "Tattva," and the rocking "Hey Dude" — provide the Kula-less with an overview of the band's vast sonic landscape. Whether its the influence of bands like Pink Floyd, Deep Purple, The Doors, The Beatles or Ravi Shanker that turns you on — or the ancient Indian mantras that touch your spirit — Kula Shaker's album, K, is said to move listeners to a very tripped-out, enlightened state.

That's a pretty lofty statement for pop music, but Kula Shaker has lofty ambitions. The band doesn't want to rule the world; it wants to change it. Mills speaks of Armageddon, the Millennia and catastrophic spiritual change while many pop singers concentrate on MTV. He envisions a mass elevation of consciousness and his songs send out 5,000-year-old mantras to usher in that new era.

The rest of the band shares Mills beliefs. They all feel like Kula Shaker is on a predestined divine mission. But in the business world, it's the combination of the four English mop tops' musical influences that make the band appealing. Keyboard player Jay Darlington told POLLSTAR that the best way to describe Kula Shaker's sound is to look at the individual bandmates. "It's an amalgamation of all the characters in the band, I suppose. There's crossover areas, but we're all into different stuff, i.e. Paul's into early '70s stuff. He likes progressive stuff, Little Feat, acts like that. Crispian's into the Beatles and Indian music. I like '60s pop and '70s progressive stuff. And Alonza likes folk and stuff like that. We're all into different things but there's little areas that crossover so I think [Kula Shaker] is a combination of all those bits. I don't think it's a style of music."

That combination of musical tastes provides a pleasant distraction from the sound-alike songs on many contemporary pop records. "We wanted it to be colorful and that was the main thing — to be colorful," Darlington said of the album. "You find a lot of albums these days, you put them on and you've got the single that was on the radio and then all the other tracks on the album are like shallow versions of the single. There's no depth to it. We wanted it to have a bit more guts."

Kula Shaker's eclectic appeal reaches beyond its CD, however. The band's live show is said to be a "natural force." And since the band hit the U.S. shores earlier this month, the inquiries into its business representation have been steady. (Kula Shaker is booked by Marty Diamond at Little Big Man and is managed by Kevin Nixon Management.) Darlington spoke of the live shows in the same mystical way Mills speaks of the band's songs and ambitions. "That's the thing we're really into, the live thing. It's an exchange of energy that's spontaneous. And you actually react with people and they can react with you. You can see how the music's affecting them.... [It's an] exchange of magic."

The bandmates live to perform and have been fortunate to spend quite a bit of time touring. While recording K, Kula Shaker toured Europe and England with bands like the Presidents of the U.S.A. The band spent the summer on the European festival circuit. Now, Kula Shaker is spreading its "spiritual, mystical, magic" across the U.S. "We've been working really hard this year," Darlington said. "We've done just about all the festivals this year and we just like to play live all the time. We get fidgety if we start sitting around doing nothing. You lose your mind."

Losing their mind may not hinder Kula Shaker since its members believe they're mere puppets hanging on fate's string. It's not their vision they are following. It's the Master's plan. "We're big believers in fate and whatever happens, happens for a reason," Darlington said. "So [you] just give yourself up to that, and go wherever it takes you. It's been like that all down the line, really, with this band." Darlington told New Musical Express, "We haven't done anything — literally nothing. It's nothing to do with us at all. We're just going along with the script. It's just that as soon as you hand yourself over to believe in something, all the obstacles suddenly disappear."

Mills interrupts to explain how spiritual belief and following a divine plan are responsible for the rapid success of the song "Tattva." "Why the hell else do you think 'Tattva' went straight up the charts?" Mills asked in NME. "It was nothing to do with us."

That mystical viewpoint echoes some of the enlightenment that came out of the psychedelic '60s. But the bandmates deny they are hippies despite the fact that much of their music is derived from that era. "We've all got our own little trips within the big trip but I don't know about that hippie thing," Darlington said. "We haven't got long hair and we don't smoke dope either. (Though Mills does admit to occasional LSD use.) The thing that attracts us to that [era] was just that the vibe then was good. It was about questioning your existence and questioning everything around you, basically [questioning] society. I think we've lost a bit of that now. We've become subservient to whatever we're told is good for us.... I think that's a bit of a dead-end road, really."

Or as Kula Shaker says, "Be subversive and prosper." ★

Buffett Helps Provide Shelter

The Gateway Battered Women's Shelter in Colorado was presented $5,000 following Jimmy Buffett's October 1st concert at Fiddler's Green Amphitheatre. A portion of the funds came from the Fey/MCA Safe Summer project. Presenting Arapahoe County Commissioner Polly Page with the check are (L-R) Fiddler's Green GM Gene Felling, Page, Barry Fey and his children Alexis and Tyler, Buffett and MCA Concerts exec Larry Vallon.

Short Items Of Note

The Federal Trade Commission has closed its three-year investigation into alleged unfair distribution practices by the big six music conglomerates, according to the Los Angeles Times. Time Warner, Sony, PolyGram, Bertelsmann, MCA and Thorn-EMI were scrutinized for allegedly threatening to withhold product and promotional allowances from retailers who sold CDs at prices below suggested retail. But each of the six firms reportedly received a letter recently from the FTC explaining that "no further action is warranted by the commission at this time."..... Roy Clark recently announced he would leave his theatre in Branson, Mo., to pursue other interests but now there may be a change in his plans. "Once he made the announcement and decided that he was gonna leave, things changed and it became more attractive for him to stay," spokesperson Sandy Brokaw told POLLSTAR. Brokaw said it looks like Clark will be at his Roy Clark Celebrity Theatre about 55 days next year but nothing is written in stone yet.... When Marsha Vlasic leaves the William Morris Agency, apparently so will Neil Young. Manager Eliot Roberts told POLLSTAR last week Vlasic has been and will continue to be Young's agent.... In the latest edition of the Concert Venue Directory there are three listings that need corrections. The capacity for the San Angelo Coliseum is 6,646 and not 1,646. While the CoreStates Spectrum listing and contact details were correct, we failed to show the new CoreStates Center as part of the listing. And the Count Basie Theatre no longer has an outside booker but it does have a new phone number 908-224-8778 and fax 908-842-9323.

Waiting On Death Row

Marion "Suge" Knight will remain in Los Angeles County Jail pending a probation hearing. Knight, jailed since October 22nd, is accused of violating probation for a 1992 assault that yielded the music exec a nine-year suspended sentence. If his probation is revoked, Knight would be forced to serve the time. Superior Court Judge J. Stephen Czuleger denied Knight's request for bail November 7th after watching videotape of a beating which preceded the Las Vegas murder of Tupac Shakur. The tape shows a man, allegedly Knight, and a group of seven or eight men beating a man identified as Orlando Anderson outside the MGM Grand Hotel. Shakur was identified as one of the attackers. Defense attorneys said Knight was trying to make peace in the scuffle, but that's not the way the judge saw it. Czuleger said, "I look at the allegations ... and I look at the videotape, and I see combative, violent behavior." Knight is also accused of violating federal probation on a 1994 firearms conviction. A hearing on that allegation is set for November 25th. In related news, the out-of-court business dealings between prosecutor Lawrence Longo and Knight continue to be investigated. Longo's activities are being scrutinized because Knight signed the prosecutor's daughter, Gina Longo, to a Death Row recording contract. Knight also lived in a posh Malibu Colony house rented from the Longo family while the prosecutor was overseeing his probation. Gina Longo spoke out last week, claiming her father didn't have anything to do with her record deal. She told the Los Angeles Times that she got her deal because she can sing. "This was no sweetheart deal," Gina told

U2's new album isn't coming out until Spring '97, but two weeks ago, fans got a taste of two new tracks, including a 30 second sample of "DISCOTHEQUE." The unauthorized releases appeared on several Web pages and were circulated on the U2 fan mailing list The Wire, causing Marc Marot, managing director of Island Records UK (www.island.co.uk/island/), to release the following statement: "We are currently investigating how 30 seconds of an incomplete version of "Discotheque" by U2 came to be on the Internet. Obviously, this is an infringement of our copyright, so the Web page in question has now been blocked and can no longer be accessed." That may be so Marc, but once the genie is out of the bottle, try as you might, you just can't stuff her back in. An Excite search (www.excite.com) yielded 56 hits on the pairing of U2 and Discotheque. Of course, not all of those hits contained the sound samples, but you can bet more than just a few pointed the way to the tunes. Which is what more than one radio station must have done as the song fragments started showing up on the airwaves, causing yet, another statement, this one from Island Records U.S. saying, "Island is currently investigating how this version came to be on the Internet, but clearly its use on the Internet and its potential broadcast on radio are infringements on Island's rights."

Which makes this as good as time as any to talk a bit about COPYRIGHTS and TRADEMARKS. The Web's early years were filled with fan pages dedicated to bands, movies, TV shows and authors. Even now, many record company pages include links to these "unofficial" artist Web pages. But the corporate world is taking a close look at these unsanctioned pages and, in some cases, issuing stern warnings to the authors, forcing many to either change the content on their sites, or in some cases discontinue the pages altogether. As Fox Television's (www.fox.com) X-Files grew in popularity, so did the number of fan sites dedicated to the show. However, when a Web page dedicated to the network's highly anticipated new program, Millennium, appeared on the Net before the show even premiered, Fox wasted no time in contacting the page's author. According to the L.A. Times (www.latimes.com), a 25-year-old college student, was told that "if he was a 'true fan', he would remove his World Wide Web site paying homage to the show. Immediately." He did.

Maybe the suits in the glass towers have finally caught on to what everybody else on the Net has known for years. Corporate logos, trademarks, sound and video files have all been routinely included on Web pages, circulated through email, and downloaded from ftp sites. Many unauthorized pages dedicated to musicians include lyric sheets and sound files. Whether these sites are infringing on trademark or copyrights has yet to be determined. But with the growth of "OFFICIAL ARTIST WEB PAGES," there has also been a move to go after perceived copyright violations and to remove the unofficial sites. While some artists are impressed that fans would take the time and effort to build a Web site in their honor, others want to be the only game on the Net. When the author of an unauthorized Web page is contacted by an artist's representative about a site, the author usually acquiesces to any demands. In fact, just this week we couldn't help but notice that a popular unofficial artist Web page called it quits the same week as the artist's management announced its official page. Coincidence? After all, it's the record company, artist manager, or other rep that have the lawyers on retainer. All the Web author has is an HTML editor. Probably the only thing one can be sure of is that we'll be seeing lots more legal sabre rattling and court actions before things get settled.

In their ongoing crusade to selling more of their tickets on the Web, TICKETMASTER's Canadian branch (www.ticketmaster.ca) has now incorporated ticket sales onto its Web site, where the customer can view seating charts and venue maps. "This marks the beginning of a new era in computerized event ticket sales," said TM executive VP Peter Jackson. We're told it also gives Canadians something to look at other than televised curling matches.

the Times. The deal was celebrated at a dinner party attended by Gina, her boyfriend, her father, mother, brother and sister-in-law as well as Knight, his attorney David Kenner and several of the record executive's associates. Knight reportedly told everyone at the table that Gina had the potential to be a huge crossover star because she had "the voice of a black woman in a white woman's body." It was during that dinner that Lawrence Longo reportedly told Knight not to expect any special treatment from him because his daughter was signed to Death Row. Gina Longo never finished recording her debut and she said virtually all business at Death Row came to a halt after Shakur was shot September 7th. In fact, one of Knight's lawyers, Marcia Morrissey, urged the judge to release the music exec from jail because his business production is in danger. However, despite Knight's incarceration, sales at Death Row couldn't be any better. Tupac Shakur's posthumous release, The Don Killuminati: the 7 Day Theory, entered the SoundScan album chart at No. 1, selling about 664,000 units during its debut week. That's the second highest debut-week sales of any album this year. However, if Knight's probation is revoked and he's sent to prison, the controversial exec could no longer call the shots at the label and despite sales, business may suffer. California law prohibits prison inmates from actively running a business and sources say there isn't anyone who could effectively fill Knight's formidable shoes.

Stage Diver Death Trial Begins

Jury selection began November 12th for the trial of a former nightclub bouncer accused of pushing a stage diver to his death. James Gheida, 40, is charged with manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide for allegedly pushing Christopher Mitchell, 18, from the stage of the L'Amour nightclub in Brooklyn. The incident took place December 17, 1994, during a Life Of Agony show. Mitchell died of a fractured skull and brain hemorrhaging after apparently falling from the stage and landing on his head. Friends of Mitchell said he was going to dive off the stage when Gheida hurled him into the mosh pit. Instead of riding a wave of moshers, Mitchell landed on the floor. Gheida claims he wasn't on the stage when the incident occurred and never touched Mitchell.

United Kingdom

● The future of the NATIONAL BOWL at Milton Keynes has been secured in a short-term deal with the PACE FACILITIES GROUP. Pace will continue its relationship with Milton Keynes Borough Council as the sole managers of the 65,000-capacity open-air venue. The contract is for two years, starting January 1, 1997. It has been described as a "no strings attached deal," with no guarantee as to the number of events Pace will organise at the Bowl, and no further investment in the infrastructure of the venue. Milton Keynes Borough Council will meanwhile consider the long-term development of the Bowl as a leisure and entertainment facility. The council is keen to maintain the site as it is seen as a boost to the local economy. "Every concert at the Bowl is worth about £1 million for local businesses," said councillor Brian White in a statement about the new deal. The existing five-year joint-management deal for the Bowl with Pace and Sony Music Entertainment ends December 31.

● At the MUSIC WEEK sponsored BREAKING HITS IN AMERICA seminar November 7, MARK MORRISON was the act tipped as having the best US breakthrough potential. US radio programmers Bill Gamble from Q101, Egil Aalvik from Groove Radio and Micke Halloran from KUPR, gave Morrison the thumbs up. Jordan Berliant reiterated the fact that radio is the best way of generating US record sales to an audience of over 100 UK music industry executives. Although, citing the example of Kula Shaker, Columbia MD Ged Doherty stressed the importance of involving the US label at an early stage in a band's international career. The importance of touring in the recipe for US breakthrough was not discounted as looking at last year's seminar, the top tips were Oasis and Black Grape. Oasis scored a top 10 hit, but not without some significant touring in the States, while Black Grape's failure to make an impact was attributed to the fact the band didn't tour at all.

● GARY BARLOW has split from his manager Nigel Martin Smith after a six-year business relationship which saw Barlow through the Take That years and into his solo career. Reports say it was an "amicable" arrangement, so this is one Take That break-up which won't end up in the courts.

● Meanwhile three former Take That boys — Barlow, Mark Owen and Howard Donald were happily reunited at the Q MAGAZINE 10TH ANNIVERSARY AWARDS lunch. The event was also the first public reunion for the Gallagher brothers who picked up the award for the "Best Band in the World — Ever," and were evidently the best of mates at the table they shared. The Oasis boys "legendary" capacity for causing trouble seemed to start later on, culminating in Liam's arrest in the centre of London the following morning for suspected possession of cocaine. The Q awards was a brief but sparkling affair, a prelude perhaps to the high profile glitz of the MTV Europe awards which followed a week later. The awards were fairly split between the new school, with prizes for Pulp (best live act) the Manic Street Preachers (best album), Oasis, Alanis Morissette (best new act) and the old school, with awards for Elvis Costello (best songwriter), The Beatles (best re-issue), Rod Stewart (Q Merit Award) and U2 who appeared on stage together for the first time since the Zooropa tour, to collect the Q inspiration award.

● The race for the number one single spot has begun, with the SPICE GIRLS tipped as the favourite following the release of their debut album which rocketed to the top of the charts, outselling the competition by four to one. The Spice Girls have turned the boy band phenomenon on its head with the Spice album crowning their earlier single successes, which have both charted across Europe. The all-girl band has become the pop phenomenon of the year, although their only mainstream live performance to date has been turning on the Christmas lights in Oxford Street. Andy Woolliscroft at Primary Talent is the agent for the Spice Girls, but he says their are no confirmed tour plans at this stage.

● TONY ROUNCE has departed the Country Music Association's UK office. Jeff Green, senior director of strategic marketing at the CMA in Nashville says no successor has been appointed. He described Rounce's departure as a "parting of the ways" and says that a new appointment will provide an opportunity to reassess the situation at the UK office and take it to a "new level."

Germany

● PEARL JAM continued their European tour with two sell-out German dates. Co-promoted by MCT and Target, Scumek Sabottka said they were very please that no forged tickets were found — despite concerns that the limited number of shows would be a prime target for the forgers and ticket touts. Sabottka said: "Our ticket security system and the publicity (about buying only from legitimate sources) before the shows worked really well."

● Industrial rockers RAMMSTEIN, whose current album has sold approximately 150,000 units in Germany, are looking for a US support slot in March. Just signed by Scumek Sabottka at MCT —who will act as the band's agent/promoter — Rammstein have a 40-date European tour scheduled to start in May.

Russia

● TINA TURNER celebrated her 100th show on this year's tour in Russia last week. Turner played three sold-out 5,500 capacity shows at the Kremlin Palace concert hall in Moscow, November 5, 6 and 7. The ticket price ranged from around £25 to £100, but while the front rows may have been filled with Russian officialdom, die-hard Tina Turner fans outnumbered them by far. The Russian promoter, Sav Entertainment, has promoted other big international stars, such as Elton John, Diana Ross, Sting and David Bowie. Tina returns to the UK this week for the last stretch of the tour — she has 19 arena shows still to perform. The last show is on December 20 and her manager, ROGER DAVIES, apparently plans to celebrate the end of the tour by getting married the following day.

Sweden

● The latest 'palooza' spin-off is the VOLVOPALOOZA — yes, you guessed it, it's a multiple-bill tour of Swedish bands. Five of the hottest Swedish punk acts on the Burning Hot label — No Fun At All, Satanic Surfers, 59 Times The Pain, Liberator and Mindjive will be playing a four-date tour of German clubs in December. Booker Tobbe Lorentz at Motor says the idea was to give the newer acts a chance to build on the success of No Fun At All and the Satanic Surfers. "We want to take the new bands to the next level," he said. "We chose the name of the tour because of the (obvious) Swedish association. There's a really good buzz about the dates and we've been getting a lot of interest from other European promoters for a similar package."

Holland

● PAPERCLIP has re-signed cult grunge act, TAD. The last Tad tour booked by Ruud Berends at Paperclip was in 1991, prior to which the band had been to Europe on a co-headlining tour with Nirvana in 1989. The band then moved to Fair Warning agency and haven't been back to Europe since. Tad are now negotiating a new record deal and despite there being no new album, Paperclip reports a positive response from promoters and a club tour of Europe is in the works for 1997.

● The second UNTITLED MUSIC FESTIVAL takes place on November 23 at the Willem II club in den Bosch. Peter Hammill will headline this mini-travelling festival which is a co-promotion between clubs in the Brabant region of Southern Holland. At the first Untitled Music festival, in April this year, dEUS were the main attraction. The plan is to rotate the event among the clubs every few months.

Denmark

● EUROSPOTTING (November 6-9), the four-day festival at Vega, was a real success, says promoter Mads Sorensen at Motor in Copenhagen. Around 3,000 tickets were sold over the four days to see a mixed bag of new bands, selected via the European Broadcasting Union. The BMU has links with radio stations across the continent and co-ordinates a Eurospotting event in a different country each year. It was the first time Motor had been involved and this year's line-up featured Placebo, Eat Static, Urban Dance Squad, Liberator, and some hotly-tipped newcomers: Unun from Iceland have recently been signed by Jeff Craft at Fair Warning Wasted Talent and perhaps, not surprisingly, the band line-up does include a few former Sugarcubes; Talent Bleeder are a new Danish band causing a bit of a stir domestically because the band has been put together by the ex-guitarists of cult Danish band, Sort Sol. The festival also provided the opportunity for Vega to open the 500-capacity hall at the arts complex. The final phase of the Vega project is the 200 capacity Ideal bar which will be used as an occasional acoustic venue. It opened on November 15 with a spoken word show by Michael Franti.

● The ROSKILDE FESTIVAL is aiming to repeat the success of last year's pre-sales when the first 90,000 tickets go on sale between December 2 and 31. There won't be any details of the bill available, but last year all of the early-release 90,000 tickets were snapped up regardless.

Belgium

● The AUDI JAZZ FESTIVAL has passed the half-way mark with a strong showing for the new jazz generation. Attendances have been averaging around 85 percent, although the opening concert with Philip Glass was "disappointing," perhaps proving a little too abstract for jazz fans. Highlights so far of the six-week festival include the Groove Collective, Incognito, Little Axe and Maceo Parker, who broke the festival's record for the longest performance. "I told them there was no curfew at the club," says festival booker Hugh Phillimore, "and they just carried on playing..." Phillimore says the less conventional club venues such as the Mirano and the Fool Moon in Brussels and the Monty in Antwerp have worked well and that he intends to book more shows there in the future. The festival ends with Ronny Jordan on November 26. Phillimore says he has started booking acts for the 1997 Beach Rock Festival in Zeebrugge and confirmed the date has been set for July 20.

Switzerland

● GOOD NEWS has confirmed that it will be using the Out In The Green name for the Frauenfeld festival, which takes place July 11-13, next year. Philippe Schnell at Good News says it will be the only festival booked and promoted exclusively by the company and that it will probably become a bi-annual event.

AUSTRALIAN NEWS

● The ongoing battle over who gets the profits of next year's THREE TENORS tour of Australia continued in the Supreme Court in early November with the arrival of international promoter MATTHIAS HOFFMAN of Germany. Hoffman told Justice Hulme that he had threatened to run the show alone if the U.S. giant, International Management Group (IMG), was involved in the tour. IMG demanded to be involved in a consortium, which included Kevin Jacobsen Productions and Edgley Ventures, to negotiate for promotional rights to the concert at the Melbourne Cricket Ground. Jacobsen and Edgley eventually secured the rights in a deal — brokered with Hoffman — which initially promised $22 million in gross income. IMG then took legal action to gain compensation from Jacobsen and Edgley. The company claimed its name was used to secure sponsorship in the corporate sector, and to promote the concert to the public, before it was locked out of a three-way deal for rights which were secured in a verbal agreement last August. IMG claims to have exclusive rights in Australia for one of the three tenors, Jose Carreras, but Hoffman says he has his own contract with Carreras. Hoffman, who has the worldwide rights for eight concerts by The Three Tenors, said he was 100 percent behind Jacobsen and Edgley. "I have sworn (sic) there is no IMG in Australia or otherwise I do it myself," he said. "For me, there was only Kevin Jacobsen and I told him hundreds of thousands of times, 'This show will not happen if IMG are involved.'" He agreed with IMG's barrister, Stephen Rares that he had great difficulty getting IMG to guarantee any income, whereas Jacobsen had guaranteed him $7.5 million.

● A press release has been issued by the band TUMBLEWEED via its International Music Concepts (IMC) management describing how a promoter took off with a sizeable part of the receipts from ticket sales generated by the band's tour. According to the statement from IMC, "between February 23 and March 10 this year, Tumbleweed and the American-based MONSTER MAGNET (then promoted by NASSER SULTAN and his then company Nightmare Music) completed a successful national tour. A gross amount (after venue splits) of $223,362.94 was accumulated in ticket sales for this tour. The majority of ticket sales funds — $196,094 — was collected after each show by Sultan. The remainder — $27,268 — was collected by IMC and placed in the IMC Trust Account so as to pay for advertising debts etc accrued during the course of this tour. A 50 percent share of profits totalling $72,735 was reconciled as the amount due to Tumbleweed from net receipts (after combined costs were deducted). A cheque for this amount was drawn by Sultan from the Nightmare Music account (where all funds were allegedly deposited) on the 21st of March 1996. This cheque was banked within 48 hours of being issued but was dishonoured. The cheque was re-presented another two times with dishonoured notices being received in each instance. Legal (involving both civil and still current criminal) proceedings commenced during late March in an attempt to recover the money owed to Tumbleweed." A court hearing was held on October 15 and resulted in an order for Winding Up and Notice to Liquidator of Appointment being issued. The receivers are from Sydney-based Love Rogers Hall Chadwick. Sultan is currently understood to be trading as Sultan Int'l Pty Ltd and has Cheap Trick and Fishbone scheduled for Australian tours in December.

● MICHAEL JACKSON has been treated just like anybody else wanting to fly noisy BOEING 707 planes into Sydney's Kingsford Smith airport — he was banned. A spokeswoman for Jackson's concert tour promoter Dainty Consolidated Entertainment said on October 11 that airport officials had stipulated MJ's two Boeing 707s were too noisy to land in Sydney. Jackson instead hired an Air New Zealand Boeing 767-300 to fly him and his 200-strong entourage into Sydney so he could begin the Australian leg of his HIStory tour. Equipment for the shows was carried by three Russian-made four engine Antonov 124 freight planes, which were not affected by the ban.

● Frontier Touring has announced a February tour by BRYAN ADAMS, which begins at the Sydney Entertainment Centre on February 3.

● The ever-busy Michael Coppel has announced December dates for THE FUGEES who'll begin their tour with a show at the 6,000-capacity Hordern Pavilion in Sydney on December 7. Coppel also has TONI CHILDS visiting early December, JACKSON BROWNE and BONNIE RAITT at the same time, and THE CORRS towards the end of January.

● BIG DAY OUT promoters Ken West and Vivien Lees have, as expected, announced extra dates for SOUNDGARDEN after their appearance at the annual festival. They'll play Sydney's Hordern Pavilion on January 30 before moving around the country. Special guests YOU AM I.

● Adrian Bohm has announced that GALLIANO will tour Australia next month. They perform at Sydney's 1,000 capacity Metro Theatre on December 18 and 19.

● Promoter PAUL DAINTY is expected to foot a (AUS)$7,000 noise bill incurred when the ROLLING STONES played two concerts at the Sydney

A Porno Halloween

Halloween always brings out the finest in humans, especially in eccentric music biz types. Bill Silva Presents pays homage to that curious holiday with the perfectly peculiar Porno For Pyros. Celebrating October 30-31 shows at the Mayan Theatre in Los Angeles are (back L-R) Cloudbreak Management's Roger Leonard, promoters Andrew Hewitt, Bill Silva and John Wojas, Cloudbreak's Paul V. and the band's Thomas Johnson, Mike Watt and Stephen Perkins; (front L-R) Artists & Audience's Leo Chelyapov and Adam Schneider, PPF's Peter Distesano and Perry Ferrell and Christine Cagle.

Win Some, Lose Some

The real deal on the November 9th Tyson vs. Holyfield fight at the MGM Grand Garden arena in Las Vegas depends on one's perspective. For promoters, it was a record setting night with an estimated 1.6 million fans plunking down $45-$50 to buy the pay-per-view broadcast from Showtime Event Television. That's a gross of more than $80 million without counting the live gate. On the other hand, the bookies in Vegas got beat up far worse than Tyson. Nearly all of the money bet on the fight was placed on Holyfield at 25-1 odds. So much money was bet on Holyfield that the odds dropped to as low as 5-1 at fight time. For oddsmakers, Holyfield's 11th-round TKO of Tyson probably set a record for most punishing bookie bloodbath in boxing history.

Mating With Michael

Michael Jackson has said "I do" once again, this time to the woman carrying his baby. MJ wed longtime friend Debbie Rowe after his November 14th concert in Sydney, Australia. Rowe is six months pregnant. "Please respect our privacy and let us enjoy this wonderful and exciting time," MJ said in a statement. Meanwhile, reporters in Sydney were scrambling for details. Jackson's frazzled publicist, Christine Holevas, said, "This is it, the only thing being released." Back in the land of Neverland, Southern Californians generally reacted to the marriage with disbelief and chagrin. This is the second marriage for both. Lisa Marie Presley divorced MJ last January citing irreconcilable differences after less than two years of marriage. MJ disclosed November 4th that Rowe was pregnant with his child and denied a tabloid report that the couple used artificial insemination and that Rowe was getting paid to carry the baby. The child is due in February.

Pros On The Move

Bob Cavalieri has taken on the role of executive director for the under-construction West Valley Event Center near Salt Lake City. He also serves as president of the arena's management company, Centennial Management. He told POLLSTAR the multi-purpose Event Center will be home to the IHL's Utah Grizzlies as well as the site of men's hockey and short track speed skating at the 2002 Winter Olympic games. The building's capacity is 10,500 for hockey and about 12,500 for concerts. Cavalieri previously had his own facility management consulting company. Before that, he held executive positions with Ogden, Madison Square Garden and the Spectrum..... Connie Campanaro was appointed VP of operations at Shea's Performing Arts Center in Buffalo, New York. Campanaro spent the past three years programming and talent buying at SUNY Buffalo's Center for the Arts.

Home On The Mend

Frank Sinatra was sent home after an eight-day stay at Cedars-Sinai hospital in Beverly Hills. Officially, Sinatra was suffering from a pinched nerve but during his hospitalization, his daughters Nancy and Tina implied to the media that he may have had a light case of pneumonia. Sinatra was released November 9th and a spokesperson said Ol' Blue Eyes was deeply annoyed by all the cameras hanging out at the end of his driveway. At one point when Sinatra was thought to have pneumonia and a minor heart attack, the media dove into a death watch frenzy. Sinatra turns 81 on December 12th..... Mel Torme was glad to be home in Beverly Hills with his wife and dog three months after suffering a stroke. Torme had the stroke in August and was in the hospital until November 9th. He has regained his speech and continues to undergo therapy. A publicist said Torme is "beginning the process of walking." The publicist said Torme, 71, hopes to perform again one day.... Gospel singer Kirk Franklin was released from a Memphis hospital 10 days after falling off a stage and sustaining serious head injuries. Franklin, 26, fell from the stage into the orchestra pit of the Auditorium North Hall on November 1st. A spokesperson said Franklin has gone home to Texas to recuperate. He is expected to make a full recovery.

The Smilin' Eyes Of Texas

The '96 season for the State Fair of Texas set the second highest attendance record in its 110-year history. More than 3.5 million people gathered during the 24-day-run and the fair attributes that record in part to the 14 national headliners brought in by Glenn Smith Presents. Lorrie Morgan was just one of the mainstage acts during the fair's September 27th through October 20th run. (L-R) State Fair proxy Errol McCoy, Morgan and promoter Glenn Smith.

Brown Settles Suit Over Pleasure Island Fight

Prosecutors in Bobby Brown's criminal trial dropped the charges of aggravated battery and disorderly conduct after the singer reached a settlement with the alleged victim. Neil Kelly had sued for $6.6 million after getting in a fight with Brown, the singer's bodyguard, and publicist at Disney World's Pleasure Island in Orlando last year. Witnesses said Kelly was brutally beaten and stomped on. He nearly lost an ear in the battle. Brown's attorney, Robert Buonauro, said the singer settled because the costs of defending his bodyguard against liability would be a financial drain. "Brown never touched the guy and there is no question in my mind we had an excellent criminal case," Buonauro said. He would not disclose the terms of the settlement. Prosecutors said charges against Brown and his posse could be refiled later. The three had faced more than three years in prison.

Diamond Dave Wants To Shake His Quake Insurer

David Lee Roth is seeking punitive damages from his insurance companies saying they didn't fully reimburse him for earthquake damage to his Pasadena home. In his lawsuit, Roth said the 1994 Northridge quake substantially damaged his house but insurance carriers only paid a $350,000 repair bill for a damaged walkway. The singer claims he is owed money for harm to his career, saying he's been forced to live out of boxes and has no heat. RLI Insurance Co., one of three firms named in the suit, filed a motion to eliminate the possibility of punitive damages saying the company hadn't shown "evil intent." A Superior Court judge refused the request but told RLI to bring evidence that it acted in good faith. Roth is seeking $5 million.

Tupac Witness Murdered

A member of Tupac Shakur's entourage who witnessed the rapper's murder was shot to death in New Jersey last week. Yafeu Fula, 19, was shot once in the head and found slumped in a third-floor hallway of a housing project in Orange, N.J., early November 10th. Fula, a member of Shakur's backup group, the Outlaws Immortalz, was riding with bodyguards in the car behind Shakur's when the rapper was shot September 7th in Las Vegas. Las Vegas homicide Sgt. Kevin Manning said Fula's death creates another roadblock in the investigation into Shakur's murder. "He spoke to us the night of the shooting and based on what we got from him that night, we wanted to speak to him again," Manning said.

Eddie Harris

Tenor saxophone virtuoso Eddie Harris, 62, died November 5th in a Los Angeles hospital. He had been ill with bone cancer and kidney disease. Harris was one of the first jazz artists to score a crossover pop hit. His 1961 "Theme From Exodus" sold more than 1 million copies, earning him great popularity and the disdain of jazz purists. Harris wrote several books on music theory and composed music for "The Bill Cosby Show" from 1969-1971. Last March, Harris ended a year of cancer treatment and recorded several solos for Bernard Purdie's latest album.

Between The Dates

■ THE OFFSPRING will hit the concert trail in January for "Big Day Out" festival dates in Australia with Soundgarden. That will be followed by a European tour. Don't look for dates in the U.S. until May.

■ TINA TURNER is just winding up her hugely successful stadium tour of Europe. She and tour sponsor Hanes Hosiery will take her legendary legs on the road again in North America starting in the Spring of 1997, although over here, the dates won't be in stadiums. The tour will visit about 40 markets.

■ The 3 TENORS — Luciano Pavarotti, Placido Domingo and Jose Carreras — say the time has come for their grand finale. The trio have added a March 8th date at Pro Player Stadium (formerly Joe Robbie) in Miami and will reportedly end their collaboration at Houston's Astrodome March 16th. The Tenors have been playing a handful of large outdoor dates around the world since 1990 and claim the Astrodome show will be the absolute last opportunity to see the three together in concert.

■ MICHAEL JACKSON fans in America are saying "finally" to the news that the self-styled King Of Pop will actually appear on U.S. soil for a concert. But don't bring out that single glove just yet. MJ's only U.S. show is not on the mainland. It's at Aloha Stadium in Honolulu January 3rd. Island promoter Tom Moffatt is doing the date and it will be interesting to see just how hot of a ticket the show will be and to what degree the U.S. press dwells on MJ's ongoing legal struggles.

■ The BUTTHOLE SURFERS just concluded the second leg of their tour which left singer Gibby Haynes with a punctured ear drum. Haynes' ear was injured on the road but wasn't diagnosed until the band returned home. Haynes was ordered by his physician to lay off the loudness and stay off the road for at least a few months in order to prevent any further hearing loss.

■ The URBAN TOURING business is picking up according to Famous Artists Agency. Famous, which represents some of the hottest urban acts in the world, claims its business was up about 20 percent in 1996 thanks to tours by Patti LaBelle, R. Kelly, George Clinton, Xscape, Solo, LL Cool J, De La Soul, Notorious B.I.G., Montell Jordan, Blessid Union Of Souls, Reel To Real and more.

■ Veteran comedian AL ROMERO tried to squelch a heckler at a Pennsylvania comedy club but the woman jumped up on stage and delivered a punch line of her own. Judy Strough was badgering Romero November 9th while he was on stage at the Italian Villa Comedy Club near Lancaster. Romero told Strough, "Your husband needs to tell you to shut up." Strough yelled back, "I'm from Arkansas." Romero responded, "Then your husband-brother needs to tell you to shut up." Apparently Strough was not amused. She went up on stage and slugged Romero in the face then she threw a drink at the audience. She went out kicking and was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and public drunkenness. Once at the police station, Strough slipped out of her handcuffs and tried to run. Charges of harassment and escape were added to the list. Romero was not seriously hurt.

■ Maria Espinosa Ayala never told anyone about the boy she kissed at a school dance when she was 15 years old. But it's not a secret any longer. That boy was BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN and he called out "Maria Espinosa, where are you tonight?" during his November 8th benefit concert in his hometown of Freehold, New Jersey. Well, she wasn't at the show but she still lives in the area and heard about Springsteen's inquiry. Mrs. Espinosa Ayala, now 48 and a mother of four grown children, told the Asbury Park Press her parents were strict so she couldn't let anyone know about the kiss with a boy she remembers as a hippie and a loner. After Springsteen became famous, she didn't think anyone would believe her story about the kiss. Mrs. Espinosa Ayala said Springsteen was the only guy at Freehold High School with a leather jacket and long hair. "He was kind and nice and I thought he was cute," she said. "And he was not prejudiced." The proceeds from Springsteen's concert in Freehold, which was strictly limited to local residents, went toward services for the borough's Hispanic community.

● The Mitch Schneider Organization, otherwise known as MSO, has staked out a piece of the Web. You'll find it at www.msopr.com. MSO's roster of PR clients includes Bad Religion, David Bowie, Alanis Morissette and Tom Petty. The firm's site looks like it is updated regularly.

● Will they be serving coffee, or Java? Last week, Apple Computer (www.apple.com) announced the pioneer personal computer company will be opening a series of cyber-based restaurants, becoming the first computer company to go into the theme restaurant biz. The first APPLE CAFE will open somewhere in Los Angeles in late 1997 and will be able to accommodate upwards of 250 people. Landmark Entertainment Group, which is responsible for such attractions as Jurassic Park: The Ride for Universal Studios Hollywood and Terminator 2-3D for Universal Studios Florida, has been retained to conceptualize the sites. Apple Cafes plan on featuring the latest Apple technology and will emphasize multimedia and the Net. Customers will be able to sample the latest CD-ROMS, cruise the Web, and even video conference with nearby tables, and eventually, with customers at other Apple Cafes.

● BLOCKBUSTER ENTERTAINMENT (www.blockbuster.com) is staking out their own piece of cyberturf in a big way. The company is handing out Sprint's Internet Passport software (www.sprint.com), which includes a customized version of Netscape. Blockbuster plans on selling music online from its Web page, and by giving out the Sprint software package on CD-ROM, this is one way to entice its unwired customers to log on and spend. In addition to the dialup software, the Sprint package also includes an electronic phone book for the U.S., and a listing of online stores.

● One site we bookmarked this week is THE INTERNET GUIDE or iGuide (www.iguide.com). Last week we reported on iGuide's (www.iguide.com) latest addition — a series of interviews done with The Beatles during their last-ever tour. This week we want to point out that iGuide is also packed with entertainment news, including the latest on music, movies and television. The site is owned by Rupert Murdoch's News Corp., and includes one of Murdoch's most popular publications — an online version of TV Guide, with program listings grouped by time zones, which makes it a lot easier when your next tour stop is Kearney, Nebraska, and you're trying to arrange your schedule so you can be in front of the motel TV for Seinfeld.

● ONLINE EVENTS: Mr. Big bassist, BILLY SHEEHAN does a music workshop at his own Web site, (www.billysheehan.com), November 19th at 11 p.m. ET. Make sure you've loaded up with RealAudio (www.audionet.com) and CuSeeMe's video conferencing software (goliath.wpine.com/cu-seeme.html) before you check it out. BARENAKED LADIES will be hosting a chat session November 19th at Rocktropolis (www.rocktropolis.com) at 10 p.m. ET. CITIZEN FISH will be broadcast from the Nile Theatre in Arizona (www.crux.com), November 21st. BETTER THAN EZRA will be chatting on Pepsi Live (www.pepsi.com) and TicketMaster (www.ticketmaster.com) November 20th at 8 p.m. ET.

○ Kudos to High End Systems for the classy invitation to their "Martinis and Cigars Under the Stars," in conjunction with the LDI Convention in Orlando, Fla., November 22-24. Those clever guys sent an aromatic stogie with the invite. It just makes you want to go out and buy a fedora. High End is hosting the exclusive cocktail party and is suggesting that attendees wear "classy attire." (I think in road dog terms that means to make sure that your black jeans at least look like the are clean). LDI-96 is sponsored by Lighting Dimensions magazine, TCI and Sound & Video Contractor and is taking place at the Orange County Convention Center. It's a great opportunity to attend some workshops, check out the latest technologies and software, and work the rumor mill like: "Didya hear who landed lighting designer for the half time show at the Super Bowl in New Orleans?" I know the answer to that one but you'll have to twist my arm to find out. For more information on LDI-96 check out their website, <http://www.etcnyc.net> or call the LDI hotline at 800-288-8606.

○ Ah-h, It's a sad day at Delicate Productions in Camarillo, Calif. Spy Matthews has announced that he will be relocating to his home city of Melbourne, Australia, in late December to attend to pressing family matters. Spy came to Los Angeles in 1976 as production manager for the British group Supertramp and in 1980 he co-founded Delicate with his current partners and former Supertramp techs, Smoother Smyth, Steve Dabbs and Gus Thomson. Spy will continue as a shareholder of Delicate Productions and it's subsidiary, Delicate Electronic Sales, Inc., and will act as a consultant to both companies. "I look forward to continuing to work with my partners and our dedicated staff and to further contributing to Delicate's success in the touring and corporate special event production industry," said Matthews. "I also look forward to renewing old friendships and to exploring business opportunities Downunder." Spy can be contacted through the Delicate Productions office or by e-mail to spy@delicate.com. Best of luck, Spy and many happy trails.

○ Just Hanging Around — Harry Donovan and Jay Glerum are presenting a series of three and four-day seminars on principals and operation of arena and stage rigging. The seminars are constructed to serve the needs of riggers, venue employees, IATSE locals, stage and scenery companies, contractors and installers as well as other students and professionals. A four day class is being offered in March in San Francisco on principals and operations, and personal safety. A three day class is being offered in Las Vegas in February on principals and operations and a four day class is scheduled for Orlando in May on principals and operations. Donovan is a working professional who has rigged more than 3,500 performances during the last 20 years and Glerum is the author of "Stage Rigging Handbook" and has worked in the entertainment industry for 35 years. He is also the chairman of the Rigging Standards Committee for the USITT. For more info, send a fax to (812) 278-3141 or visit <http://www.riggingseminars.com>.

○ "Hey Hey It's Saturday," an Australian television series, made a visit to Walt Disney World's EPCOT Center to highlight a musical show featuring Bryan Adams. The lighting design using Vari-Lites was by Rohan Thornton with operator Dave Haar.

○ The Obie Company is enjoying a busy fall with crews still out on Reba McEntire. Out with Metallica for Obie is crew chief Ian "Cammo" Cameron and assistant crew chief Steve Roman. Techs out there include Mike Hanson, Storm Sollars, Jeff Wilson, John Duncan, Victory Mirabal, Gary Waldie, Jeff Gregos, Ben Richard and Terry Smith. The newest coup on the block for Obie is the landing of general lighting contractor for the inimitable Bette Midler who's tour starts in December.

○ Road Rant Of The Week: Don't you hate it when you go to take your shower and you spend all your time trying to get that stupid piece of paper off that special Holiday Inn soap which is only the size of a credit card? Why do they wrap the soap anyway? Are they afraid it will get dirty? And will someone please tell me are you supposed to throw the "sanitized for your protection" banner in the waste basket or are you supposed to flush it? Just wondering.

Crickert Ground early last year. The Land and Environment Court of NSW heard on November 7 that the band had played two concerts at the venue, which had been monitored by the Environment Protection Authority (EPA), and were found to be excessive. While the SCG Trust was fined by the court — $2,000 for one incident and $5,000 for the other — a spokesperson for the body said it would be up to the Dainty Corporation to pay. "The Dainty people were the promoters of the concert and as part of their contractual arrangement with us, are responsible for the problem," the Trust's general manager of administration, Bernie Lamerton said. "As such they have been directed to pay the money." EPA monitoring found the noise to be above the 70 decibel acceptable limit.

● "The Greatest Show On Earth" goes the publicity tag for KISS' Australian tour which sees them begin on February 3 in Brisbane at the Entertainment Centre before jaunting around the country. The promoters are Frontier Touring.

● The Sydney Morning Herald's BRUCE ELDER has been awarded the prestigious Pascall Prize for criticism. As the SMH correctly pointed out, "his award is a victory not just for himself, but for Australian criticism. It is the first time a rock critic has taken the Pascall, the first time a reviewer of one of the so-called low arts has received the honour." Aside from the prestige the award carries a cash prize of $15,000.

● Already there's an impressive amount of overseas interest in Australian act THE HUNTING PARTY with releases confirmed from Sony Music in both France and Germany. The companies heard the EP after Jonathan Williamson, Sony Australia's international marketing manager, shopped it around whilst travelling through Europe with Midnight Oil. The word is that both companies were astonished to find out that it was actually an Australian recording.

● There was a big turn out on November 7 at Mansion's Hotel in Sydney's bohemian district of Kings Cross for the launch of BILLY THORPE's book, "Sex And Thugs And Rock'n'Roll," which is subtitled "A Year in Kings Cross 1963 - 1964." The place was crawling with folks who looked like they'd certainly been around way back then. Also spotted were rock historian Glenn A. Baker, Mushroom Records' Sue MacAuley, former Split Enz drummer Mal Green, and yours truly. Oh yeah, Thorpe was there as well, delivering a speech that distorted the PA in much the same way that he does with his band!
