DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black ink (not pencil) on white. If used, reverse type must be limited to 25% of the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $14.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

With the spirit of April Fools' Day pervading both the Massachusetts offices of A.R.C. and the Kentucky offices of the A.C. Radio Renegades, A.R.C. again presents several pages on the lighter side — The Eliminator. In addition to the regular "Dear Doctor Radio" column and the unclassified ads, there is an excerpt from a forthcoming book on Philco by the well-known Ramsey/Precise/Butcher team. (Any resemblance to living persons is intended.)

The Eliminator also includes a report of a "from the grave" visit to your editor by Lee de Forest, as well as Lyle Ahrens' tips on the derestoration of radios and Meredith Young's proposal to use radio amateur spark transmitters as a solution to the world's ozone depletion problem.

We hope that The Eliminator will provoke a smile, even a few loud guffaws. Let us know, both pro and con, what you think, and send in your contributions of radio whimsy to next year's Eliminator soon.

We have two fine articles on British sets this month. Ian Sanders writes about the 2-tube Bumdept Ethophone Duplex — another in his excellent foreign set series. Bert Reeves reports on Radio Rentals, a mid-1940s British company engaged in what now seems an unlikely business — renting radios.

For those interested in British sets, there are several British publications that have advertised in A.R.C.; also A.R.C. carries many books on foreign sets. For those true Anglophiles, there is the National Vintage Communications Fair in Birmingham, England, on Sunday, May 14, 1995 (see the ad on page 42 of this issue). Several thousand attend this 300-plus dealer event, organized by Jonathan Hill, the author of Radio! Radio! Send a SASE to A.R.C. for a list of resources on collecting foreign sets.

We are always pleased to hear firsthand accounts of early radio days, and thus were pleased when Albert E. Nigus wrote about his Zenith 6-G-601M, a precursor to the Trans-Oceanic. This set was given to him as a gift from his employer, Zenith, when he joined the service in World War II. We can't help wondering if American companies offer such tokens of patriotism and appreciation in times of crisis today.

In a follow-up article, Jim Fred reports on two more Palco sets, both in mobile installations. Ray Bintliff adds a brief report on six other vanished manufacturers of amateur radio gear intended for mobile use.

Alan Douglas continues to encourage us to use vintage test equipment with an article on the URM-25 RF Signal Generators. Alan covers the evolution of the URM-25 over nearly twenty years. He gives a few restoration hints and suggests where they can be purchased and at what prices.

In an excellent book review, Mike Adams not only analyzes David and Robert Lane's Transistor Radios: A Collector's Encyclopedia & Price Guide, but he also compares it to books by Bunis and Handy on the same subject. In addition, Mike examines the book from the points of view of both the casual and the serious collector. Another review by Walter Worth of the Bunis and Breed Collector's Guide to Novelty Radios notes a welcome addition to our list of radio references.

Letters to A.R.C. often suggest follow-up articles. After publishing the article on Nipper in our November 1994 issue, we were delighted to receive a letter from Oliver Berliner, the grandson of Emile Berliner, inventor of the microphone and disk record player. This letter became a short article which clarifies a number of points in the original Nipper article.

Another letter and photo from James Clifford indicates how some radio subjects reverberate for years. Clifford's subject relates to the Triangle Electric/Silver Marshall set discussed in our October 1993 and April 1994 issues.

Photo Review this month shows a unique, 1930s, 4-tube, regenerative radio in a Repwood cathedral cabinet. A photo of a Pooley Atwater Kent breadboard prompts us to share more information. Although these breadboards were manufactured by Atwater Kent, they were mounted in cabinets manufactured by the Pooley Company, and thus the board edges were square instead of curved.

In Radio Miscellanea, we are pleased to be able to report on more set identifications, along with comments on A.R.C., its articles, the success of ads, and the new classified ad format.

Coming Radio Events. Nearly four dozen events dot the collectors' calendar for April. We again note that, beginning last month, A.R.C. is including non-club auctions and events in its Coming Radio Events pages. We hope that this new feature will be helpful to our readers.

The big event this month for radio collectors is an amateur radio event — the Dayton, Ohio, Hamvention on April 28 through 30. This is the largest amateur radio event in the U. S., having 2,600 outdoor flea market spaces, and drawing nearly 300 indoor exhibitors and over 35,000 attendees.

A.R.C. and a number of A.R.C. advertisers will be there, either indoors or outdoors. Although the Hamvention is a great place to find vintage communications gear, old broadcast radios and earlier gear are to be found as well. A.R.C. and the old-book dealer New Wireless Pioneers will be at indoor booths #207 and #206, so stop by and say "Hi!"

Happy collecting.

ON THE COVER

Our cover depicts a direct advertising technique of the 1930s, long before the electronic media invaded our lives and homes. We wonder if the Philips speaker mounted on the roof of Girard Faasen's 1930 Austin was used in a political campaign in his native Heideweg, Holland. Girard's photo enhances our Collecting Foreign Sets articles by Ian Sanders and Bert Reeves.

The Burndept Ethophone Duplex

BY IAN L. SANDERS

The Ethophone Duplex 2-valve receiver, shown in Figure 1, was produced by Burndept Wireless Limited of London, in 1924. Established in 1922, Burndept Wireless, as Keith Geddes and Gordon Bussey point out in their book The Set-makers, had such a reputation for quality and craftsmanship that the company was known as the "Rolls Royce of British wireless."

The Ethophone Duplex is somewhat unrepresentative of Burndept's product line in that its other battery receivers (and crystal sets of the same period) feature finely finished mahogany cabinets. The Ethophone Duplex, in contrast, is constructed in a low-cost, mass-produced moulded case. The set was targeted "...for listeners who want an efficient loudspeaker receiver at moderate cost...".

Ironically, with its externally mounted valves and plug-in coils, the set bears a certain similarity to the 1927 2-valve model by Brownie Wireless (see A.R.C., May 1992), a company at the other extreme of the market most noted for producing inexpensive designs.

Measuring 8 1/2 x 8 x 4 1/2 inches, the receiver is built in a one-piece, matte-surfaced case "moulded of an insulating compound having the appearance and properties of ebonite." It bears the embossed BBC symbol surrounded by the "British Made" designation. (There is no Post Office number since the set was introduced shortly after the registration scheme ended). The terminals for batteries, loudspeaker, aerial and earth connection are brass.

The receiver was designed for loudspeaker reception within 15 to 20 miles of the local BBC station and up to about 100 miles with headphones, using a 100-foot antenna. By means of standard plug-in coils, the wavelength range is variable between 250 and 5,000 meters. (See box.)

Variable reaction is controlled by a knob on the front of the ebonite cabinet and linked to the rotatable plug-in coil holder at the back of the set. Tuning is by a variable condenser with a 0-180 degree scale, and the third control is a dual filament rheostat. This consisted of two windings of different resistance in series and conveniently allowed the set to use either "R"-type valves with a 6-volt accumulator (storage battery), or "dull-emitter" valve types with a 4.5-volt dry battery.

The circuit design of the Ethophone Duplex is shown in Figure 2. The first valve — with variable reaction in the aerial circuit — acts as both radio frequency amplifier and detector. The second valve is transformer-coupled and functions as an audio frequency amplifier.

Originally, the set was supplied without valves, and contemporary advertisements of 1924-1925 show it pictured with a variety of valve types. For a short period between 1925 and 1927, however, Burndept Wireless Limited manufactured a range of valves of its own, and later advertisements show the use of the Burndept general purpose 2-volt type H.L. 213 (filament current 0.65A) or H.L. 512 (filament current 0.12A).

The price of the Ethophone Duplex in 1924, without valves, coils or batteries, was five guineas* (£5.25) to which an additional one pound five shillings (£1.25) was added, to cover the cost of the Marconi license fee.

ETHOPHONE TRIPLEX

Sometime after the introduction of the Ethophone Duplex (probably 1926 or 1927), a matching 1-valve amplifier was offered and sold together with the Duplex receiver as the "Ethophone Triplex." These two units were mounted side-by-side on a polished wood base (Atwater Kent style). The amplifier was supplied with a Burndept Type L. 240 2-volt power valve.

Sold complete with coils No. 35 and 50, and with three Burndept valves, the Ethophone-Triplex was priced between 8 pounds, 17 shillings, 6 pence and 9 pounds, 18 shillings, 6 pence (£8.875-£9.925). With the addition of the valve amplifier, the Marconi royalty on the Triplex was increased to £1.875.

Burndept Coils

"Burndept coils give better results because they have lower distributed capacity and less high-frequency resistance than other coils." (Modern Wireless, June 1924, p. 93).

Burndept Wireless Limited claimed the distinction of being the first British maker of plug-in coils. Burndept coils were available to cover wavelengths from 80 to 25,000 meters, and were supplied separately or in sets: the Extra Short Wave Coils, A-C, (80-150 meters), the Concert Coils, S1-S4, (for broadcast reception 150-800 meters), and Coil Nos. 75-1000 (750-20,000 meters).

The Extra Short Wave and the S1-S4 series were single layer coils wound on ebonite, while the 75-1000 series were of the patented Burndept multi-layer construction. Both types were finished with a wound insulating tape and were mounted on a non-reversible plug with spring contact pins. Each coil was shipped in a distinctive orange-colored carton.

The Story of My Zenith Model 6-G-601M

BY ALBERT E. NIGUS

Not long ago, David Nigus, son of Albert, sent a photo of the Zenith 6-G-601 for publication in our "Photo Review" section. However, the caption hinted at a larger story of how this radio came into the Nigus family, and here Albert Nigus shares his memories with us. (Editor)

In the late spring of 1939, after having completed a correspondence course by DeForest's School of Radio, Television and Sound, now DeVry Institute of Technology, I went to Chicago, Illinois, for the final two weeks of the course in practical training at its headquarters.

At the end of the first week, a call came in from the Zenith Radio Corporation asking for qualified men experienced in radio training to apply for immediate employment at its Cicero, Illinois, factory. Several of us at the school did report for this job. On the following Monday, I was hired and worked as a final repairman in the console division of the Zenith plant. The company was getting countless orders for radios from foreign countries, especially in Europe, since World War II was escalating there. Consequently, I put in many hours of overtime.

Television was in its infancy then, and Zenith was experimenting with this new concept. I remember quite vividly that Mr. McDonald, the company president, designated areas throughout the factory where we would gather during coffee break, and he would speak to us over closed-circuit television. Among other things, he wished us a very merry Christmas.

I continued working at Zenith until the summer of 1940. I had already served a 3-year hitch in the Kansas National Guard, and it looked as if the Guard would be mobilized. The war was getting hotter, and personnel were needed to train draftees. I reenlisted in my home unit of the Kansas National Guard, which was mobilized in December 1940, and sent to Camp Robinson near Little Rock, Arkansas. Pearl Harbor was still a year away.

Shortly after getting settled at Camp Robinson

Zenith Model 6-G-601M

Zenith advertised its 6-G-601 series of portable radios as the "Universal Portable Radio. The only portable guaranteed to play where other portables fail...or your money back." These radios featured the Zenith-patented "Wavemagnet" loop antenna.

Housed in cabinets with a range of finishes, the radios were 6-tube superheterodynes that operated from a self-contained battery pack or 110-volt AC/DC.

Unlike the Trans-Oceanic models, the 6-G-601 series tuned the AM broadcast band only. The Model 6-G-601M was finished in brown airplane cloth and sold for $29.95 in 1942. At the high end, Model 6-G-601L was supplied in a top grain cowhide cabinet for $39.95.

in 1941, I received a package containing the portable radio, complete with battery, shown in Figure 1. On the face of the dial was the inscription, "Presented to Albert E. Nigus by Zenith Radio Corporation." To show its appreciation, Zenith gave a radio to each of its employees who had joined the armed forces. Figure 2 is a photograph of me, on the left, along with Army buddies Bob Wilson, Ben Gentzler, and Warren Erdley, who is holding the radio.

I do not know how many received this award, but I know of several with whom I used to work who did. The Zenith 6-G-601M has been a very dependable radio. I took it with me wherever I went on military maneuvers, and it works well even today.

If there are any other former Zenith employees out there who received this radio in appreciation of military service, it would be great to exchange stories.

Another Mystery Radio

BY JAMES C. CLIFFORD

The following short article reached us recently in the form of a letter to Ray Bintliff regarding his October 1993 A.R.C. article on the Triangle Electric/Silver-Marshall Model 47-A. A follow-up article appeared in the April 1994 issue. Although a year has passed since the original article was published, it's good to know that information in A.R.C. continues to provoke thought and long-term interest. (Editor)

In reference to Ray Bintliff's article in the October 1993 issue of A.R.C., I have a radio which I am restoring that bears a remarkable similarity to the Triangle Electric/Silver-Marshall Model 47-A [the "mystery" radio discussed in the article]. I am unable to provide any information about the "mystery" radio because, unlike Mr. Beaudet's set, mine has no manufacturer's name.

My radio, shown at right, was purchased by my late father sometime between 1936-1940. It worked until the mid-1960s when it broke down. I believe the ballast tube failed and could not be replaced. My dad gave me the radio to experiment with at that time.

Last year, I began to restore the set. After much research, and particularly after studying the Bintliff article, I was able to return the set to operation but not to the original design of the set. My revised circuitry is patterned after the schematic in A.R.C.'s October 1993 article.

I am certainly no expert, but there appears to be one significant difference in the two sets. Mine has B- connected to the chassis ground and thus to the mains. The Triangle Electric Company radio appears to have a floating chassis.

I would be very interested in corresponding with anyone who might be interested in the particulars of my radio. For my own part, I hope to identify and restore my father's radio as completely as is practical. I am sorry I cannot provide any useful information to Mr. Beaudet on his "mystery" radio. For my own part, I found your article very helpful. Thank you.

Palco Engineering Co. Revisited

BY JAMES A. FRED

After my story on the Palco Engineering Co. appeared in the June 1994 issue of A.R.C., I expected a large number of readers to respond. Actually, I received only a few responses.

One caller from Washington State said he knew where one Palco Bantam was. He was going to try to buy it. Another reader from the East Coast said he had never seen the transmitter, but he had seen several power supplies in his area. The other responders said that they had seen advertising in ham magazines.

I've been searching through boxes of papers here at home and finally found the photo shown in Figure 1. This photo shows a pre-production Palco Bantam mounted under the dash of a 1954 Buick automobile. On this set, only one wave band has been calibrated. Located to the left is a Morrow Model 5BR series converter.

The Morrow converter acts as the front end of a double conversion superheterodyne receiver. This 4-tube converter tunes the 80-, 40-, 20-, 15-and 10-meter amateur radio bands. The tuner converts the incoming signal to an IF frequency of 1500 kHz. This signal is fed through a signal splitter to the antenna input of a broadcast auto radio.

A setup such as this was popular during the 1960s. Many small 4- or 5-band transmitters were made and sold during this period. For example, I have a Babcock Engineering Co. "DX-mitter" which is a mobile ham transmitter. Of course, transistors put an end to the tube-type mobile equipment.

As I was getting ready to mail this story, I received a letter from Dale Smith of Manassas, Virginia. It seems that in 1985, he was at the city dump where the fellow parked next to him was unloading a bunch of radio equipment. There was a Palco rig which he took home. He built a homebrew power supply for it and tried it a few times on the 40-meter ham band. During one of his contacts, a capacitor went off like a firecracker.

At the next hamfest in Manassas, Smith sold the Palco, but he sent me the photo, shown in Figure 2. Smith's set differs from the one in Figure 2 in my first Palco article in A.R.C. (June 1994). The front lettering on his set is red, and there is a toggle switch on the right side of the panel.

Once again, I would like to hear from anyone who has Palco equipment, advertising, or literature.

Mobile Transceivers in the 1960s

BY RAY BINTLIFF, K1YDG

During the early and mid-1960s, a number of radio manufacturers offered mobile HF rigs to amateur radio operators. Many of these companies were relatively small and short-lived. The radios described below are representative of the mobile equipment produced during that period.

Sideband Engineers, located in San Francisco, produced the SB-33. This single-sideband (SSB) transceiver is a hybrid — instead of vacuum tubes, it uses transistors and diodes in all applications, except for the RF drivers and the final. The radio's small size — 5 1/2" x 11 3/4" x 10 1/4" — and low current drain made it a desirable radio for mobile use. The set covered the 75-, 40-, 20- and 15-meter ham bands and was priced at $389.50.

Galaxy Electronics, in Council Bluffs, Iowa, offered the Galaxy III at $349.95. This 300-watt transceiver is similar in size to the SB-33 (6" x 10 1/4" x 11 1/4"). It too was a hybrid, but I believe the use of transistors was not as extensive as that found in the SB-33. Although the set covers only the 80-, 40- and 20-meter bands, it operates in the CW mode as well as SSB.

Justin, Inc., located in San Gabriel, California, had a different approach to mobile radio. The company offered single-band transceivers. For example, its "Mobiltran 40" operates only on the 40-meter band. This 40-watt AM rig does not include a complete receiver, but contains a converter that must be connected to the automobile's AM radio. Advertised at $99.50, the set enabled a ham to go mobile rather inexpensively. Justin offered similar transceivers for the 75- or 160-meter bands. The installation of a 160-meter antenna on a car must have been an interesting task, although it has been done.

Multi-Products Company, of Oak Park, Michigan, sold the Multi-Elmac AF-68 "Trans-citer" that covers not only the HF ham bands from 80 through 10 meters, but the 6-meter VHF band as well. It is a 65-watt AM/CW rig.

And speaking of 6 meters, the VHF bands were popular for mobile work because of the small-sized VHF antennas.

Utica Communications Corp. of Chicago advertised its Utica 650 installed in an automobile along with a separate Variable Frequency Oscillator (VFO). The Model 650 is a 6-meter AM transceiver. It is only a guess, but the "50" in the model number probably indicated that the transmitter's input power rating was 50 watts.

Another VHF transceiver of the day, circa 1962, was the Poly-Comm 62B. Produced by Polytronics Lab Inc. in Clifton, N.J. As its model number implies, it operates on both 6 and 2 meters and is an 18-watt AM rig. (The widespread use of 2-meter FM was to come later).

There were many more manufacturers of mobile equipment in the 1960s, but this article is limited to coverage of a few companies much like Palco.

Like Palco, the manufacturers in this article and many other U.S. manufacturers have disappeared from the amateur radio scene.

Radio Rentals

BY BERT REEVES

On looking through the September 1994 issue of A.R.C., I was surprised to see a photo of a Radio Rentals car in Collecting Radio Novelties on page 18. As an Englishman who came to live in Texas last year, it was not a name I expected to come across in America.

I'm not sure when Radio Rentals was founded in England, but when I moved back to London in 1945, Radio Rentals was already a thriving company. It had a wired (cable) system in the vast majority of homes in London. The customers paid a weekly rental fee for a speaker, usually mounted on the wall and a switch that would select BBC radio programs — "Home," "Light," and "Third."

For towns without wire facilities, Radio Rentals produced its own radio sets. (Because of tax laws these sets were available for rental only). These radios were extremely well made and followed well tried and proven circuitry. The chassis could be replaced in the customer's home in minutes. This meant that the service engineer could do far more work in one day (he didn't, of course, get more pay!).

SERVICING

To service the radio, four screws are removed from the back cover, two of which retain the chassis in the cabinet. The four control knobs of the set are pulled off and the speaker unplugged; then the whole chassis is lifted out complete with dial glass, leaving only the cabinet and speaker behind.

The set employs a total of five valves (tubes) as follows: EZ80, EL84, EBC41, EF41, and ECH81. For those of you who know the British valve number system, you will see it uses a mixture of B9A and B8A valve bases; this would have been due to the change-over period when the new type valves were becoming available.

The frequency changer is a triode-hectode type ECH81 which is also the first IF amplifier; the second IF amplifier is an EF41. The detector and first AF stage is an EBC41; the audio amp is an EL84, and the AC rectifier is an EZ80. The use of the EZ80 meant that a single low voltage winding (heaters) could be used for all the low voltage supplies as this valve has an indirectly heated cathode.

The set works on 200- to 250-volt AC mains only, with selectable 200 to 225 and 225 to 250 taps. The chassis is isolated from the mains by the use of a transformer which supplies the high and low voltage valves. The set covers long wave 1,000-2,000 meters, medium wave 200-550 meters, and shortwave 16-55 meters. The IF frequency is 475 kHz, and the oscillator is high to the receiver signal.

resistance/capacitance (RC) network, and the DC voltage rail is approximately 260 volts. The tone control is a 3-position switch with an RC network to the grid circuit of the output valve. The wave change switch has all the coils and trimmers built into it; this made a very neat assembly and could be more readily replaced and could even be prealigned. Band tuning is the standard drum and cord arrangement.

There are no surprises to be found when servicing this receiver (except for its complete accessibility). All resistors are adequately rated, and the chassis can be worked on in any position without the use of props or another pair of hands.

THE BAIRD COMPANY

This rental system was an ingenious system, and in the 1950s when Radio Rentals moved heavily into TV rentals, the system was carried forward. Radio Rentals bought the Baird Company out, and all Radio Rentals products then carried the Baird name.

In 1968, the year color TV started in England, Radio Rentals produced a very satisfactory color TV. In the early 1970s, the company was purchased by Thorn E.M.I. Group. Radio Rentals still exists today, only now you can rent any brand of TV instead of just its own brand.

I have no idea of what became of the wire system. Could it be that some houses still have the speakers and switch which started the whole thing?

The photos in Figures 1 and 2 show my Radio Rentals set, Model 210, which would have been among the last range of table radios to bear the name Radio Rentals.

Radio Rentals sets are not too easy to find, as the laws stipulated that these sets had to be destroyed when returned, and this policy was ruthlessly carried out.

More On Nipper

FROM INFORMATION CONTRIBUTED BY OLIVER BERLINER

The following information does much to define what A.R.C. is all about — the exchange and amplification of radio information. We are always glad to open or reopen the discussion of any radio topic near and dear to the heart of a collector. We encourage further contributions to the story of Nipper, as well as to any other subject of interest. (Editor)

A letter from Oliver Berliner, grandson of Emile Berliner, inventor of the microphone and disk record and player, clarifies and amplifies some of Chris Russo's points in his article "Nipper's Many Masters" (A.R.C. November 1994). According to Berliner, an "Edison-Bell," not an "Edison" phonograph was used in the original painting by Francis Barraud. However, the painting was never used commercially. Instead, it was rejected by Britain's Edison-Bell Co. because "dogs don't listen to phonographs," as the company president had said. Thus, Edison was not Nipper's first corporate master.

Berliner takes issue with Russo's use of the term "gramophone disc-type phonograph." He contends that the proper name for a disk (not disc) talking machine is "gramophone," a word coined by his grandfather, Emile Berliner. However, gramophones were often mislabeled "phonographs" in France and the Americas.

Another of Berliner's points is that the original painting does not carry the name "Victor," as shown in Figure 1 of our article. Victor was not founded until 1901, while the painting had been completed in 1899. In a later advertisement, Victor placed its name on a Victor Model B talking machine — a Berliner trademark model. Victor called these players "talking machines" because it had not acquired the right to use Berliner's term "gramophone."

Russo's article mentions the fact that the Victor Talking Machine Co. (VTMC) of Camden, New Jersey, acquired the U.S. rights to the "His Master's Voice" (HMV) trademark. Berliner adds that VTMC secured those rights via the acquisition of the assets, including the patents, of the Berliner Gramophone Co.

Berliner tells us more about his grandfather who was the first to use the Nipper trademark in May 1900. After Britain's Gramophone Co., Ltd. (now EMI) had given him permission to do so, Berliner acquired a trademark registration on July 10, 1900. He had become the second largest shareholder in this company, which was founded in 1898 by his emissary, William Barry Owen. The enterprising Berliner was also a large shareholder in Victor and in Deutsche Grammophon, a company he cofounded with his brother Joseph.

As Russo's article says, GE purchased RCA in 1986. Berliner adds that GE not only discontinued most of RCA's business activities, but also licensed others to use the RCA name. Once the greatest manufacturer of broadcast equipment, RCA is now out of that business. But, as we all know, Nipper lives on.

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other old radio-related items from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short, descriptive paragraph MUST be included with each photo. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.

GRUNDIG MODEL 101-U – The sound quality of this early 1960s AM/FM table radio is very good. The cabinet is finished in a deep, high gloss lacquer, typical of the German sets. (Robert Bailey – Jacksonville, FL)

REGAL ULTRADYNE – The April 1993 Photo Review claimed that the Regal Model L-76 is the only wooden table model. Surprise! Here is another wooden Regal, probably made just before World War II. Are there any more out there? Write to A.R.C. and let everyone know. (Steve Wallace – Fleetwood, PA)

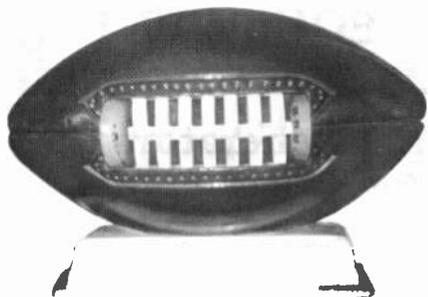

HARTCO MODEL UNKNOWN – This is a 4-tube regenerative AM radio, circa early 1930s, said to have been made by Hart Co. of St. Louis, Missouri. The front is a beautiful Repwood design. Instead of a dial pointer, it has a light behind the dial which moves as the tuning knob is turned. (Arthur Kreitner – Belleville, IL)

ATWATER KENT MODEL 10C – This set is mounted on a Pooley cabinet board. Note the holes in the corners where the radio attaches to its cabinet. (Richard Arnold – Lone Grove, OK)

GRIDIRON RADIO – This football radio is very similar to the Frank Leahy Notre Dame set shown in the Photo Review of November 1991. Manufactured by Empire Co. of Amarillo, Texas, the radio is made of aluminum casting. (Frank Moore – Billings, MT)

PRESTOLITE "BATTERY RADIO" ARVIN MODEL 12R29 – This radio is made to mount in an actual car battery case. It was a promotional "give away" item for battery dealers. (Ted Townson – Clyde, NY)

SENTINEL MODEL 212 – Listed in Rider's, Volume 12, page 1, this 6-tube Art Deco radio has a white plastic (Plaskon or urea?) cabinet with beautiful green and rust marbling. It operates on shortwave frequencies of 5.7 to 18.3 MHz, as well as the broadcast band. Dimensions are 12" x 8" x 7". (Merrill Mabbs – Rapid City, SD)

MINERVA TROPIC MASTER – This metal set was almost passed up at a flea market, as it looks like a power tool carrying case when closed! The set covers broadcast plus 5.5 to 19 MHz and has an RF stage and push-pull output (50L6's), which is somewhat unusual for an AC/DC set. Although it's not clear what market this set targeted, it looks as if it belongs to the Pan American flying boats era. (Tom Clinton [photo by Chuck Clinton] – Marietta, GA)

WOR PROMOTIONAL RADIO MANUFACTURER UNKNOWN – This 1930s(?) radio was made for radio station WOR, New York. Note the WOR call letters on the dial at the station's frequency, 710 Kc, AM. The set uses 4 tubes — Types 43, 6D6, 6C6, and 25Z5. If anyone knows who made this set, please write to A.R.C. (Jon Andreasen – Newton, NJ)

VINTAGE TEST EQUIPMENT

The URM-25 RF Signal Generators

BY ALAN S. DOUGLAS

In a previous A.R.C. article (May 1994), I covered test equipment in general, including brief mention of the URM-25 signal generators; however, they warrant more detailed treatment.

Vacuum-tube equipment 30 to 40 years old is, of course, out of favor nowadays, long since abandoned by commercial and military users. But, you wouldn't be reading this if you didn't appreciate old stuff, so I'll skip the suggestion to go out and buy some Far Eastern wonder. Cost differences aside, the old workhorses do offer features you can't otherwise get now — a solid "feel," accurate tuning, calibrated output level, and the satisfaction of owning something that will last.

If you're in the market for an RF signal generator, you could do a lot worse than buy an old commercial or military model. In my previous article I highly recommended the Hewlett-Packard 60 series, and I still do. But, these are not portable by anyone's definition except the Navy's (anything that can be carried on a battleship). And even the U.S. Navy had a smaller series of generators that served during the 1950s and 1960s — the URM-25 series.

The original Model URM-25 was designed about 1949 by the Federal Manufacturing & Engineering Co. of Brooklyn, New York. Federal made photographic enlargers and other equipment beginning in 1933. During the war, when the General Radio Co. couldn't produce enough 605B and

By 1944, Federal was advertising 804C models for general sale. Perhaps a wartime contract had already been cancelled, leaving them with a surplus stock of instruments. With the production expertise thus gained, Federal was in a logical position to solicit government business later, and it's no accident that the URM-25 is similar in some mechanical details — the dial and band-change mechanisms are especially similar to the older 804C.

URM-25s were made for nearly 20 years, through suffix "L" models, by a variety of contractors. There were changes made at every contract, some of them radical. The first model (no suffix letter), shown in Figure 1, was the most attractive and symmetrical model. However, within two years it had become the "D" model, shown in Figure 2, with a different panel layout and a new tube lineup. This is the most common type and was probably made by several different companies simultaneously. Trad Television of Asbury Park, New Jersey, seems to have made most of them, as well as a commercial clone — SG-25 — after the government production had ended.

By 1955, the New London Instrument Co. of New London, Connecticut, was making "F" models to an entirely new design, as shown in Figure 3. Where the earlier oscillator stages were enclosed in elaborate castings, the "F" oscillator is in an easily removable cylindrical can, while its entire panel is a casting. There are some electrical refinements too, such as a wider-range RF amplifier stage and a better attenuator with 10 dB steps rather than 20 dB. For reasons unknown, the "J" model, with a contract date of 1968, reverted to the older "D" version; possibly they were remanufactured from actual "D" instruments.

URM-25s came originally with an assortment of adapters, cables, impedance-matching networks, attenuators, and a manual stored in the lid, but you will hardly ever find all of them in place. The manual is practically indispensable. Of the accessories, the most useful are the 20 dB attenuator (for very-low-level radio-receiver measurements) and the 50-ohm termination (the URM-25 attenuator is calibrated only into a 50-ohm load). The other gadgets can be made as needed, or found loose at flea-market tables.

URM-25s are available from Fair Radio Sales, Tucker, and probably other military-surplus dealers, at $100 to $200 depending on the model and whether "as-is" or "checked out." You can expect some cleanup work (for those of us who enjoy radio restoration, this is part of the fun), but try not to get one that needs too much; a poorly-treated instrument will have other faults that will only appear later.

Rotary switches and band-change-turret contacts ought to be cleaned while you're in the mood; you won't feel like removing a zillion screws to get inside the casing more than once. I recommend Caig Labs DeOxit applied with a Q-tip or equivalent (a bit of cotton wrapped around a toothpick). Sometimes the pots will be noisy, and the best way of dealing with these is to remove them, take off the cover by prying up the metal tabs, and wipe the carbon element clean with DeOxit on a Q-tip.

Other people have reported problems with sticky meters. This condition is usually caused by bits of rust lodging in the magnet gap, and the cure is a bit of masking tape on a toothpick (it does help to be near-sighted). I also had to replace a number of leaky paper capacitors, particularly those in mold-ed black cases, which look like micas but aren't, mounted on the phenolic terminal board.

These instruments also appear frequently at ham radio flea markets, for anywhere from $10 to $50. Many of them were disposed of through the MARS (Military Affiliate Radio System) program so they ended up in the hands of hams.

If anyone has further information on Federal, Trad, New London, or other military contractors, I'd love to see it. For that matter, I'm looking for material on any makers of lab-grade test gear.

Suppliers:

DeOxit, well worth its expense, is available from: Caig Laboratories Inc., 16744 West Bernardo Dr., San Diego, CA 92127-1904.

The best source of military radio and test equipment, as well as parts and manuals, is: Fair Radio Sales Co., PO Box 1105, Lima, OH 45802.

A good source of lab-grade test equipment, though not the cheapest, is: Tucker Electronics &

Figure 2. The Model URM-25 "D" is the most common type and was probably made by several different companies simultaneously.

Computers, 1717 Reserve St., Garland, TX 75042, which currently offers the URM-25F for $179.

Dear Doctor Radio,

Dr. Radio answers those tough restoration problems sent in by our readers

Q: Dear Dr. Radio,

I have an inconsiderate coworker who plays his FM radio at such a high volume it's driving me nuts! Is there anything I can do about this?

Desperate in New York.

Dear Desperate,

You're in luck! All you have to do is pick up an old FM radio to help you even the score. Early 88-108 Mhz FM radios from the mid-forties through the mid-fifties emit what is called "Local Oscillator Radiation." Like any other superhet, each of these radios has a local oscillator. This oscillator is usually 10.7 MHz above the frequency indicated on the dial. Newer radios have a shielded oscillator (to comply with Part 15 of FCC regulations so they won't interfere with other radios and TVs), but the older radios don't have this shielding. This lack of shielding in the older FM radios makes them prone to interfering with the reception of a radio if tuned to the right frequency. It is this feature that can create an interesting and new use for that old FM radio. If your coworker has his FM radio tuned to a 98.1 MHz station, all you need to do is tune your old FM radio to 87.4 (98.1 MHz station frequency minus the 10.7 MHz frequency of the local oscillator) to jam his reception. This can be more fun if you hide your radio and keep the volume turned to its lowest setting. When his radio dies, a listener will almost always turn up the volume. At this point you can switch off your radio, and he'll be blasted when his radio comes back on. Any radio tuned between 95 and 108 MHz can effectively be stifled if within thirty feet of a 1948 RCA RC-1060. Hide your radio and then turn it on, and watch the fun begin. Once you have your radio tuned to the correct frequency to jam the other radio, watch your coworker's reaction. Let him hit his radio a couple of times, and then turn yours off so he'll think it's fixed. Get a friend to help, and you can pretend to fix the problem by doing something like stomping your foot in a particular spot on the floor. Another radio that has proved useful for this purpose is a 1952 Zenith 8H20Z. One of these may even be effective in an apartment, although the thickness of the walls may present a problem.

The Philco With The Big Round Dial

CONTRIBUTED BY DON RAMSEY

The following is an excerpt from the book "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Philco But Were Afraid to Ask" by Don Ramsey with Mickey Precise. The book features art work by renowned artist Don Butcher, who also collects radios and plays with computers in his spare time. The book promises to have thousands of illustrations, showing not only every Philco ever made during the pre-World War II era, but every Philco that was even considered for production. Sorry, but ordering information and the availability date are not known at this time. Although the publisher promised publication last year, the book has been delayed indefinitely. (Editor)

All of us are familiar with the extremely popular Zenith radios of the thirties and early forties with the big, round black dials. However, you may not be aware that the concept of the big round dial was actually first thought of by Philco, not by Zenith!

The story of the Philco round dial set is shrouded in mystery, since it never made production. A former Philco employee was recently found in a nursing home (sorry, he insisted on anonymity, so we can't divulge his location), and he was willing to share this fascinating tale with us. Since this gentleman spends most of his time screaming at people who are not anywhere around, we cannot verify the accuracy of his statements.

In early 1933, Philco engineers were busy trying to come up with a way for their receivers to produce high fidelity sound. Philco was not alone in this endeavor, as other manufacturers were also interested in high fidelity reproduction of AM signals. Philco, however, wanted to be the first to make high fidelity a reality. Therefore, many hours of research were put in by loyal employees who wanted to be a part of the first radio company to market a high fidelity receiver.

Meanwhile, as research into a viable high fidelity receiver chassis continued, Philco commissioned several industrial designers to come up with a suitable cabinet for the forthcoming "super set." The design which was ultimately chosen was the masterpiece shown in the illustration by Don Butcher.

Notice how this cabinet represented a radical departure from other Philco sets of the period, most especially the dial! This was during an era when most manufacturers — Philco included — still made sets with small window dials.

For some reason, however, no information can be found on the designer of this unusual Philco cabinet. It is not mentioned in Philco Furniture History, a virtual encyclopedia of Philco cabinet designs that was never actually published.

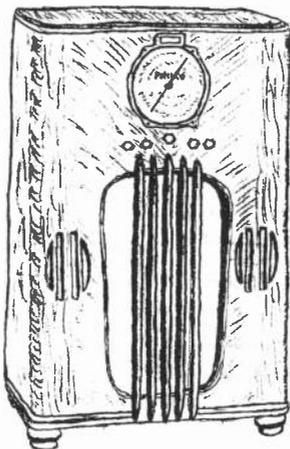

The "super set" was to include many unusual features, such as a large 15-inch woofer and two tweeters. This was strange for Philco, since only a year earlier in its own Book of Facts the company had insisted that large speakers for low notes and small speakers for high notes were not the proper way to achieve good quality sound.

In addition, the set was to include reception of standard AM and shortwave to 23 Mc, just like the current Model 16. A shadow meter was provided above the big dial of the set. It was hoped that the unusual dial would be an attention-getter and, therefore, result in quite decent sales of what was planned to be a fairly expensive receiver.

Unfortunately, things did not go as planned for this set. Problems developed with the high fidelity system, forcing postponement of a high fidelity receiver until the summer of 1934 for the 1935 season. The receiver which Philco ultimately introduced as the industry's first high fidelity receiver was the Model 200X, which covered only the AM band.

The design for the cabinet with the big round dial was put on hold. By 1937, when Philco designers got around to considering this radical cabinet design for the planned 37-690X (which did use a 15-inch woofer and two tweeters, as well as four passive radiators called "acoustic clarifiers"), Zenith had already beaten Philco to the punch with its own line of sets with big, round dials. For 1937, Philco had to be content with small round escutcheons with a curved window through which the dial could be seen.

Ordinarily, Philco introduced its new sets to its dealers in May and to the public in June. In addition, new models were often added to the line in January. But for some strange reason, this "super" Philco, which, unfortunately, never saw production or even a prototype assembly line, had been given a scheduled introduction date of April 1, 1934.

An Exclusive News Flash

Radio Pioneer, Dr. Lee de Forest, Contacts A.R.C. Editor John Terrey!

CARLISLE - A bizarre "call from the grave" leaves A.R.C. publisher and editor stunned!

John Terrey explained: "At first I thought it was another one of those guys trying to sell me a lawn service, because he sounded as if he was talking on one of those cheap cordless telephones."

John was so shaken by this experience that he contacted the local police. The Carlisle Police Chief thought it was just a prank phone call. However, because of the Contact by a Deceased Radio Pioneer Act, passed in 1983, the Chief reported the incident to federal authorities. The FBI, having had a tap on all phone lines at the A.R.C. offices since the big bust in 1989, sent a recording to its headquarters in Washington. After extensive testing and analysis, the FBI has determined this is no hoax. The voice talking to John Terrey was, in fact, the voice of the late Dr. Lee de Forest!

Although still visibly shaken by his experience, John granted the staff of The Eliminator this exclusive interview. "I guess he called me because I could warn the readers of A.R.C." At this point John retreats into the kitchen for a Spam and peanut butter sandwich. "My health consultant, Alan Jespersion, said this will help my nerves."

John continued, "Dr. de Forest warned that because of dwindling markets and excessive format changes the future of AM radio was in jeopardy. New FCC regulations looming in the future could be the final blow to AM radio as we know it today."

When we asked John if Dr. de Forest had touched on the future of the radio hobby, John replied, "He said the early spark gap market will drop like a rock during the next two years." That statement seemed to have a sobering effect on John as he just sat there with a glazed look in his eyes. When quizzed about where or how Dr. de Forest made the call, John just shook his head. "He didn't say, and I was too shaken up to ask." As we were wrapping up the interview John wandered back into the kitchen. Spreading a layer of hot fudge on another Spam sandwich, he asked if we would like one also. We decided to pass.

Derestoration Hints and Kinks

BY LYLE W. AHRENS

Why would anyone want to "derestore" an old radio? Because it gives a collector like me something to do.

Antique radio derestoration is far too deep a subject to go into in the limited space of The Eliminator. However, here are a few ideas to start the new derestorer in the right direction.

1. Tube Substitution. Be creative! Remove a few. Replace a few with different types. Rewire sockets so they don't match anything in Rider's. Remove tube location labels and replace with bogus handwritten versions. Replace working tubes with shorted, weak or gassy ones.

2. Decapitation. Replace working filters with leaky or shorted capacitors. Try "decapping" your own capacitors by heating them or placing too high a voltage on them. Replace electrolytic innards with golf-ball stuffing.

3. Resistance. Replace a few 1/2-watt resistors with

1/4-watt ones. Great for the Fourth of July festivities! Try building your own resistors using black licorice, solid wire, and model paint.

4. Speaker Decoding. BBs work well. Try using butter knives, corrosives, or simply place the speaker with the cone side up on the bottom of a bird cage. Many old speakers can be creatively readjusted.

5. Alignment. Fiddle around with a power screwdriver. Better yet, simply replace anything resembling a screw.

6. Cabinet Refinishing. Plenty of possibilities! Try a theme such as "Woman with Plants" or "Home with Children" or "Careless Smoker." Any radio can be derestored by a simple 3-step process: scrape with 80-grit sandpaper and then jiggle the veneer loose with a chisel. Wash by leaving the set out in the rain or apply caustic substances. Dry in a 330° oven or unventilated attic until crispy.

Hams Can Save the World

BY MEREDITH L. YOUNG

According to many technical publications, TV and Radio News, etc., the ozone layer is being depleted. We hams can come to the rescue. It will be easy.

With over 1,000,000 hams in the world, we can all use spark transmitters. Junk all the SSB-AM-FM equipment and go spark!

Thus, ozone will be generated and will help replace the depleted ozone layer. The big operators will put their spark gaps on the roof. More ozone, as well as light, will be emitted. Wonderful! We will also conserve electricity, as the street lights and night lights are controlled by photocells, and they will be turned off when the high power ham is on the air.

Due to the relatively short distance of spark signals, many more hams will be needed to relay data over long distances. Many more people will become hams the world over — thus, more magazines and club publications will be distributed, and more people will have jobs.

It has been many years since the Ford Model T went out of production. The Ford coils are very scarce (they made a fine spark transmitter). To give hams spark coils for their transmitters, we would have to start building them — more people go to work!

Think of all the man hours spent in research and development laboratories to develop a good system to modulate the spark with voice. It was done in the early days of spark, but we need a better system. Many more people will go to work.

A "DXCC Two-Way Spark Award" could be added to the DX Century Club Awards Department of the American Radio Relay League. This award would be another challenge for the ham.

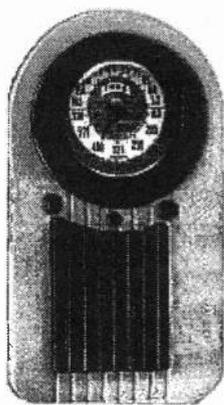

The government will no longer have to worry about the balance of payments. The importation of TVs and electronic equipment will be eliminated, as they will be of little value in an era of spark transmitters. No more TV, so we will go back to reading.

Not only do we hams save the world from skin cancer by restoring the ozone layer, but we also put our people to work. The government will be in the black on balance of payments, and we will have fun following our hobby.

Transistor Radios: A Collector's Encyclopedia & Price Guide

BY DAVID R. AND ROBERT A. LANE
REVIEWED BY MIKE ADAMS

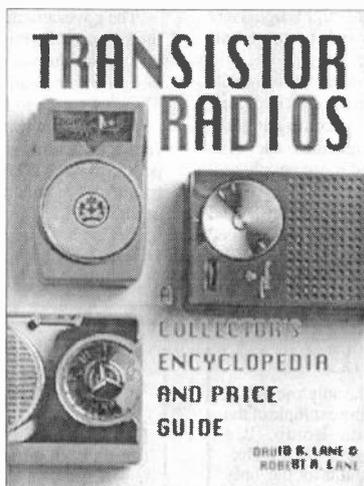

First things first. If you are like most collectors, you need books to help you identify what you have, what you want, and what you see at the flea markets. So, just as you had to have the Morgan McMahon book to identify broadcast sets, 1930-1950, or you had to have the Phillip Collins book because you admire Catalins, so too you'll probably have to have the two recent books designed to help you identify and price transistor radios. You'll want the subject of this review — Transistor Radios: a Collector's Encyclopedia & Price Guide by David R. and Robert A. Lane, as well as the Marty and Sue Bunis book, The Collector's Guide to Transistor Radios [see January 1994 A.R.C. review by Bill Burkett].

I've looked at the Lane book from two points of view: as a writer who comments on our hobby, and as a journalist/reporter who seeks the opinions of the knowledgeable and serious collectors of transistor sets. I have read both the Lane and Bunis books since they are identical in their purposes — the listing of collectible transistor radios complete with model numbers and collector prices.

In many ways, the books are quite similar. Both are mostly comprised of lists, including model numbers and prices. However, the Bunis book offers a listing of radios only; Lane adds historical perspective and a section on novelty sets. Both have photos of a selection of radios, but the Bunis book is color while the Lane one is mostly black and white.

I liked the history section of the Lane book best of all. Here you'll read about the evolution of the transistor, the companies that made the Regency TR-1, and the others that followed in the U. S. and in Japan. Overall, the book presents a good brief perspective on the transistor radio in American life.

You'll also learn how the introduction and success of transistor sets was connected to the popularity of rock and roll and the desire of teens to listen to their own music. You're told that most collectors want sets made in America and Japan between 1954 and 1964, and that, with a couple of exceptions, all of these desirables can be identified by the CD (Civil Defense) triangle at 640 and 1240 kHz.

How might you use this book? The authors say that they want to provide, "both pricing and background information to help you get started and improve your skills as a collector of transistor radios." And while the history, lists, and photos are adequate, don't take this or any other price guide too seriously. Instead, look at the overall usefulness of this book as just one more reference, one more small piece in your education as a collector.

Because it is likely that price guides will soon become dated, an identification book like this one is probably most valuable to the casual collector, the antique mall dealer, and those among us who just like to read about and look at the pictures of our radio past. That is its real value.

But what about the serious collector? What about that small handful of trendsetters who ultimately set the value of our hobby? What do they think about this book?

According to my sources, the coverage of this book is largely OK with most of the big-name collectible sets being listed — Toshiba, Sony, Regency, Raytheon, and others made between 1954 and 1962. On the other hand, my serious collector friends believe that there are not enough of the truly desirable but less well-known Japanese sets listed. Although two Kobe Kogyos are listed on page 58, the Lane book omits what collectors believe to be this brand's most important and valuable model — the KT-63. Overall, both Bunis and Lane focus primarily on American collectors, but Bunis is sometimes criticized for listing too many non-collectible radios made in Hong Kong.

While everyone agrees it is difficult to assign value to a collectible as volatile as a transistor radio, one of my sources described some of the prices in the Lane book as "shooting in the dark." One of his examples is a Philco priced at $60 to $100, which he considers as way too high, while a Continental priced at $30 to $40 is way too low. Both the Bunis and Lane books undervalue the Japanese sets and overvalue those made in America.

There are some other errors in the Lane book. For example, the Sharp TR-222 on page 96 is listed as worth $20, while the Stantex TR-222 on page 107 is said to be worth $45. The problem is that these are identical sets.

On page 83, a Raytheon 8-TP1 (leather at $325) is priced considerably higher than the T-100-1 (plastic at $200). According to my experts, these prices are backwards, as the plastics are worth more than the leathers. Another example is the Emerson 849, listed on page 41, as being worth $95; now, it's closer to $200.

Isolated examples? Nit-picking? Probably, but remember it is the authors' goal that this book present pricing information. As I said, a price guide can only be one resource; read A.R.C., go to meets, and do your own research. Get informed.

So what does the knowledgeable collector really want, even need these days? A very serious transistor collector says that his fellow collectors want late 1950s and early 1960s Japanese sets with fronts called "reverse painted plastic" by collectors or "second-surface silk screening" by manufacturers. This technique gives the front a deep look and it won't rub off.

This collector is right; such sets are beautiful. He also adds that one of the best books on transistor sets is really Roger Handy's Made in Japan, an artistic pictorial portrait of transistor radios, which includes an analysis of why people collect. However, it is not a price guide.

Some final advice on the maturing of the hobby came from this same collector — "In the beginning people wanted anything with the CD markings, but they had no advice or knowledge of what was eventually going to be in demand. After awhile, you meet other collectors and begin to determine what's rare and what the sets are worth."

Oh, I almost forgot to comment on the Lane book section on novelty sets. This is not a complete section by any means, and I'm told that a serious collector of transistor sets could not care less about novelty radios. It's a whole different audience.

However, my advice is to get the Lane book because eventually you'll want to know more about novelties, a subsection of the radio collecting hobby. In fact, buy this book and all the others. In that way, you are helping the economy of our hobby, you are reinforcing those who research and write about radio history, and you insure that this history is well-documented into the future when all radios are going to be truly scarce.

Transistor Radios: A Collector's Encyclopedia & Price Guide by David R. and Robert A. Lane is published in an 8 1/2" x 11" format by Wallace-Homestead Book Company, Radnor, Pennsylvania. The book identifies and prices over 2,500 transistor and novelty radios in 170 pages. Priced in the U. S. at $19.95 and in Canada at $24.95, it is available from the publisher, A.R.C., and other suppliers. Please check with them for ordering information.

Collector's Guide to Novelty Radios

BY MARTY BUNIS AND ROBERT F. BREED

REVIEWED BY WALTER WORTH

Collector's Guide to Novelty Radios continues the excellent coverage of novelty radios given in a previous book by Robert F. Breed, Collecting Transistor Novelty Radios. This new 223-page book is a welcome addition to the libraries of collectors.

Collector's Guide to Novelty Radios contains fine color photos, terse descriptions, and a complete index. The convenience of a price range under each photo is a welcome aid to any collector. In its 600 photos, the book displays only a very few repeats from earlier books, and then only to show some variations in color or design.

The list of 14 categories for the radios is a good idea, as you can immediately find the ones you are looking for. These categories also include all of the newest styles and variations.

In reading the book through word for word, I did notice something I would like to comment on; that is, not all the radio descriptions point out where the controls are located. This would be very helpful information to a novice collector. On a personal note, many of the novelty sets in my own collection are not pictured. However, I am sure these will show up in the second book, planned for the future.

All in all, I was very impressed with the crisp photos, the layout, and the written material. The authors' notes are particularly useful, and Marty and Bob deserve kudos for tackling this wide-ranging work. Their glossy book should be on any novelty collector's shelf. It also is bound to attract new collectors to the hobby.

Published by Collector Books, Paducah, Kentucky, in an 8 1/2" x 11" format, Collector's Guide to Novelty Radios is priced at $18.95. It is available from the publisher, Marty Bunis, A.R.C., and other suppliers. Please check with them for ordering information.

Emerson Table Model Identified

Dear Editor:

Your March 1995 Photo Review shows an Emerson tabletop, model unknown. In response to a recent ad in A.R.C., I received the same radio, also missing model information. However, in pouring through my Rider's, I was able to match the part numbers from the dial, volume control, and IFs as being a Model GA-439, chassis GA.

More on Stromberg-Carlson 500, 561

Dear Editor:

As a P.S. to the Stromberg-Carlson Model 500 (U.S.A.), Model 561 (Canada), shown in Photo Review, February 1995, the company also made a Model 541, made in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. This is a battery-operated set using (1) A7, (1) N5, (1) H5, and (1) Q5 tubes. The chassis is different, but the cabinet is the same style, and the dial face is different from the Model 561.

Side by side the Models 541 and 561 look the same, except for the coloring of the dial face. Also, when you look in the back, you can see a difference.

A.R.C. Bonding

Dear Editor:

As a subscriber for less than one year, I would like to express how much A.R.C. has helped me. I am somewhat new in collecting, and the info has been of great help to me. Also the members whom I have contacted or those that have contacted me have been just great. A great form of bonding seems to be there with the people I have had contact with. We all enjoy our interest in old radios, and it shows.

Tom Zenisek, Cedar Rapids, IA

Great Ad Response

Dear Editor:

Just a note to let you know how well A.R.C. works for us. Our ad in the February issue of A.R.C. prompted calls from 35 states, 3 continents, and 4 countries, and brought 224 registered bidders to our auction. There is nothing I can advertise in that gets these results for such a modest cost.

Richard Estes, Estes Auctions, Medina, OH

Dear Editor:

My "Help Wanted" ad requesting information to build a foxhole radio got over 50 responses. Truly enough to fill a foxhole! A.R.C. readers are the greatest!

Walter Mosley, Crosby, TX

Dear Editor:

Just a quick note of appreciation. Not only is A.R.C. the most "fun" publication I get, but it pulls results! Picked up a cherry Bell triode amp thanks to one of your subscribers — had been looking for years.

Am getting some response from each of my ads thus far. You folks are dynamite! Thanks.

Kent Waterman, Oakland, CA

New PARS President — A First?

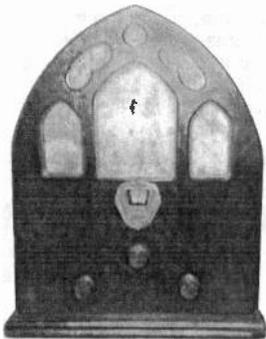

Dear Editor:

I think PARS has a first — we just elected a woman, Bonnie Novak, as president of the Pittsburgh Antique Radio Society (PARS). She is quite a gal — restores cabinets and the electronics of cathedral sets. She also represented PARS at a special IEEE plaque presentation for the site of KDKA's first radio station.

Richard Brewster, Pittsburgh, PA

P.S. A.R.C. is great. I look forward to each issue. Time stands still while I drop everything to review the ads! The articles are very interesting, and I enjoy the auction results. And I do get items that I see advertised. Thanks for a great job.

It's great to see the increased participation of women in radio collecting. The fewer "radio widows," the better!

Wants Mercury Mantel Set Info

Dear Editor:

I have been collecting radios for about four years, and I really enjoy it. I look forward to going to as many meets as possible each year. The Rochester AWA meet has to be the best. At the last one I bought a cathedral [see above] from a guy, and he told me it was a Gloritone 26P. There were no tags or numbers on the set. The tube layout did not match Gloritones. I showed the set to fellow collectors, but no one could help me on the make.

But, when I got my November Old Timer's Bulletin, there it was on page 11 — a Mercury mantel set by the H.M. Kipp Co., Canada. I was hoping A.R.C. readers could help me out. I would like to know how many sets like this are out there among the collectors.

Greg Bogel, Cherry Tree, PA

New Format, New Reading Habit

Dear Editor:

I really like the new format. Now I really read the "Wanted" ads, which I didn't take too much time to read in the past. I hope you continue the "page" segregation.

David Metz, Staunton, VA

EXTRAVAGANZA '95

Hosted by the Michigan Antique Radio Club

July 7-9, 1995

Holiday Inn South Convention Center
6820 S. Cedar Street, Lansing MI 48911
(517) 694-8123

Come join us and celebrate our 10th anniversary!

MARC'S TOP 10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD ATTEND EXTRAVAGANZA '95

1. Some lucky attendee will win our raffle prize of an AK Model 10 breadboard, AK horn speaker, both restored and working, along with an ARBE-III power supply!
2. We have over 400 contiguous flea market spaces available (no walking past spaces occupied by parked cars of non-sellers). Come help us fill them up!
3. $10 . . . In celebration of our 10th anniversary, we are only charging $10 for each flea market space after your first one!
4. Flea Market . . . we started the trend by not allowing early selling. You really can get here Friday morning and not be a day or two late!
5. By having EXTRAVAGANZA on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, most working people only have to take a day or two off . . . not an entire week!
6. Come and socialize under our Big Top, a large tent located in the middle of our flea market that we use for our registration and superb hospitality area!
7. Our auction features high quality items, no junk!
8. Our Social Hour on Friday night, which includes entertainment and a keynote speaker, is unrivaled, and there is NO additional charge to attend!
9. Last year we had attendees from 25 states & Canada. If you can attend only one major antique radio show this year, EXTRAVAGANZA '95 should be your choice!
10. Partake in our daily Seller's Drawing whereby we give away $50 Friday, $75 Saturday and $100 Sunday!

EXTRAVAGANZA '95 Registration

Note: Everyone attending EXTRAVAGANZA must register! Additionally, you must be a current MARC member or join MARC at this time in order to participate in the auction or equipment contest and/or to sell in the flea market.

Radio Restoration Parts

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary between radio models.

“Do you know me?”

I started the world's first broadcasting station. I'm Charles Herrold, and between 1912 and 1917 I was sending music and news to an audience in San Jose, California, on a regular schedule. But while I may have been first, most people forgot all about me. Now there's hope; my story is told in this exciting new videotape from the creator of the award-winning PBS series 'Radio Collector.' It's available from the Perham Foundation. Don't leave home without it!"

“Broadcasting's Forgotten Father: The Charles Herrold Story”

VHS-Hi-Fi, close-captioned, $29.95 plus $3.50 S&H.

Order directly from the Perham Foundation,
101 First St., Suite 394, Los Altos, CA 94022.

Or call 1-800-771-KTEH and use your credit card.

All profits go to support the preservation of electronics history.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 22¢ each. See details below. Classified ads sent by mail, fax or by any other method must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the classified ad deadline date to guarantee inclusion in the current issue. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page 2 for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Faxed ads: Please see additional information on the inside front cover.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Also: 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.
