EDITOR'S COMMENTS

For all of us here at A.R.C. it's been easy to enter into the holiday spirit, even though we produce the December issue before Thanksgiving. First, we had on hand the seasonal contributions of cover artist Geoffrey Brittingham and writers Fred Geer, Geoff Shearer, and Ellsworth Johnson to set the mood — a mix of humor and sentiment.

Then, of course, our bubblewrapped UPS deliveries from the Henry Ford Museum Auction are mindful of the best of Christmas mornings for a collector. Those of us who were fortunate enough to purchase a few treasures at that amazing event know for sure that Santa came early this year.

And finally, our present to subscribers is this — our first issue to include full color within the magazine. Besides the cover, we decided that Fred Geer's story about Rudolph and his red nose called for a color photo of the 1951 Airline set, which no doubt was inspired by the hit song of 1949.

A full report on the historic Ford Museum Auction, an exciting climax to 1995, also prompted color photos of many of the rare pieces. In addition to the descriptions and prices, we include commentaries on the event by Larry Babcock and your editor. Next month, we will continue with the vacuum tube price listing and more commentaries. It will be interesting to see what lasting effect this event will have on radio collecting.

The extensive coverage of the Ford Museum Auction makes this issue eight pages longer than usual and caused the elimination of Radio Miscellanea for this month only. But, we still have Photo Review with items from the early 1920s to the late 1940s.

Articles this month cover several unusual subjects. One is Norm Braithwaite's shop-built superhet, which has the quality of a manufactured unit but no manufacturer's name. The second article by Ray Bintliff covers two unusual cone speakers found by Ed Paski. Since neither of the "cones" on these speakers is shaped like a cone, we were intrigued by just how they operate.

Jim Crews has contributed a short follow-up article to the transformer testing article in the February 1995 A.R.C. We're always pleased when one article inspires another.

Alan Douglas continues his series on vintage tube testers with commercial Hickok models. This month, Alan explains the meaning of the unusual term "English" found on many tube testers.

Not all auctions are like the Ford. John Dilks reports on one of the many radio shop auctions which occur from time to time around the country. Thousands of items, from tubes, parts and test equipment to radios themselves, are usually in abundance. After reading John's report, you'll want to watch for a radio shop auction near you.

And, finally, we have the answers to Dave

Crocker's Radio Quiz in our July 1995 issue. The second installment will follow soon.

A.R.C. on the Web! As announced last month, A.R.C. now has a "site" on the World Wide Web, and in Web jargon, our URL is <http://www.antiqueradio.com/>. Please take a look and leave a message so that we can see how much interest there is in this new way of presenting old radio information. At present, we are making available radio event and club information, the Photo Review, selections from our printed version, links to other "sites," book reviews, and our marketplace of books and videos for sale.

Renew Now & Save. As announced last month, A.R.C.'s rates will be increased on January 1, 1996. This year, we have held the subscription rate increase to $2.00 for U.S. subscribers. You can still extend your subscription at this year's rates. Send in the coupon in the center of this issue today, or call us at 508-371-0512.

New advertising rates will be announced in the January 1996 issue. As with subscription renewals, display advertising for 1996 can be purchased before year-end at 1995 rates. Call A.R.C. for details.

Coming Radio Events. Our Coming Radio Events section lists 33 December events, and to aid in your planning next year, we have begun listing events for 1996. Also this month, we have included our complete listing of antique radio collector organizations, now totaling 75 in the U. S. and 22 outside the U. S. One of the best ways to learn about collecting old radios is to become associated with one or more of these organizations.

Holiday Greetings. With the first dusting of snow this morning, the winter holiday season is certainly evident here in Carlisle. From all of us at A.R.C. — John, Scott, Lisa, Cindie, Dorothy, Chris, Ray, Dave, Dick, Bobby and Jean — a happy holiday and a prosperous new year.

Happy collecting.

John V. Terrey

ON THE COVER

The Santa on our cover originally appeared on Geoffrey Brittingham's 1994 Christmas card, which inspired Fred Geer's Rudolph story in this issue. Geoffrey redesigned the card in color for us. A professional freelance illustrator, Geoffrey also accumulates old things, including old radios, which he likes to picture in his work. He is a member of S.P.E.R.D.V.A.C., an old-time radio show library, and has 2,000-plus shows on tape. His work first appeared in A.R.C. on the cover of the April 1994 issue, as well as in Fred Geer's article on radio entertainment. This collaboration of writer and artist is a definite plus for A.R.C. Geoffrey's address is: 1603 N. Observatory, Nashville, TN 37215.

RADIO ADVENTURES

How Rudolph Got His Radio Red Nose

BY FRED GEER

Christmas is for children — of all ages. When Fred Geer told us how Geoffrey Brittingham's Christmas card of last year, redesigned for our cover, had inspired a story based on Airline's Rudolph radio, we decided it was time A.R.C. entered into the spirit of the season. The story is one we can read to our grandchildren perhaps surreptitiously introducing them to the world of radio collecting. After all, serious collectors have to think about the next generation as keepers of their treasures. (Editor)

Santa's workshop was in full swing making toys when the whole operation came to a thunderous halt! The weather at the North Pole had warmed so much that the oil on Santa's toy machines became too thin. Every moving part overheated and produced little puffs of smoke as each machine broke down.

Santa was beset by the failure of his toy factories. "How am I going to get all these Christmas gifts made? Furthermore, I need snow to make my deliveries easily by sleigh," he said to himself. Thicker oil didn't help, and the weather report was not encouraging.

Santa is, of course, a magical elf. So, he quickly hit on an idea that would insure that there would be no disappointed children on Christmas Day — if it worked! He called a meeting of all his elves, helpers, and reindeer. He told them what he intended to do about the breakdown.

Santa said, "I am going to visit all the toy factory owners in the world and convince them to let you elves make our magical Christmas gifts in their factories at night when the employees have gone home. We will make enough toys for every child, as we always do, and we will not interfere with the factory owners' production. It will be about the same, and everybody will be happy!"

With some hesitation, all the elves and reindeer agreed to give his plan a try.

Then Rudolph, often the fastest thinking reindeer, made a suggestion, hoping to simplify getting Santa's plan off and running. He said, "Santa, this is an emergency! Why don't you call all the factory owners to a meeting at the world's largest toy factory? Then you won't have to travel everywhere to see them."

Santa mused and said, "Rudolph, that will speed things up."

Rudolph added, "And every night we reindeer could visit the factories to check on how things are proceeding."

Santa agreed, "Right, Rudolph. That would free me from traveling, and I could stay right here to solve production problems all over the world."

Rudolph's eyes lit up. "Yes, Santa, we could give you a report each day." Pointing to a map on the wall with his tail, Rudolph said, "We can divide the world into eight zones, one for each reindeer."

Dasher and Dancer disagreed, saying in unison, "That's not fair — some parts of the world don't have any toy factories."

Santa quickly drew some lines on the map and put each reindeer's photo on a zone. "Now boys, I have made each zone equal, and that's one problem out of the way!"

Then Santa sent out a distress message, and the big meeting was held much to everyone's satisfaction. Santa's plan would be put to the test.

That night all the elves and reindeer loaded up

Santa's super sleigh with the needed supplies. At each factory the supplies and elves were dropped off. Soon the elves had toy production humming at record-setting speed.

Weeks went by smoothly, but one day Santa was alarmed when he read Rudolph's report. It said that the Airline Radio Division was having a big problem — the radios made by the elves all played backwards. Santa said to himself, "No child wants a backwards-talking radio. Why, everybody would have to learn a new language!"

Santa summoned Rudolph. "We are going to have to fix that radio production problem right away," he said. "Let's harness up the sleigh."

The heat from the melting ice made it very foggy around the North Pole. Pulling Santa's sleigh, Rudolph mumbled over and over, "I wish I had a light that would cut through the fog."

Finally, Santa came up with a solution. He said, "Here Rudolph, hold this flashlight in your mouth. You will see better when we land and take off."

Rudolph circled the radio factory, hunting for a place to land. Suddenly, he snagged a low antenna wire on the factory roof, which sent him into an uncontrollable spin. The sleigh bounced on the roof, and Rudolph went tumbling through a skylight, breaking his harness. Sailing through the air and down an assembly line, he crashed into a radio parts wagon. Bouncing off the wagon, he flipped through a door and landed on a designer's table, smashing a soft clay model of a radio cabinet.

Poor Rudolph disentangled himself from the clutter. Checking himself over for injuries, he found only a strange bump on his nose.

All the elves rushed to Rudolph. He assured them that he wasn't hurt, but that his nose felt funny. Then the elves began laughing because they saw that, indeed, Rudolph's nose was funny. In fact, Rudolph was bathed in a soft red glow because a red radio dial light had embedded itself in his nose!

One young elf, noting the perfect impression Rudolph's face had left in the soft clay model of the smashed radio, said, "Let's make a radio like this with a light inside for Rudolph's nose."

By that time Santa had picked himself up from the debris on the roof and scuffled down to where all the commotion was going on. But, he forgot his discomfort when he heard the young elf's idea for the radio cabinet with the light in Rudolph's nose. He liked it and instructed them to make lots of Rudolph radios.

All the clatter had brought the police and news reporters to the factory. Santa told them the whole story, and Rudolph posed for photos.

Rudolph made the front page of one of the biggest papers. The headline read: "Reindeer Makes Big Impression At Radio Factory!" The photo showed Rudolph's glowing red nose and the clay model radio with his likeness pressed into it. Rudolph became famous.

Santa solved the backwards-playing radio problem. The elves had had the production line running the wrong way. When they turned the line around, the radios came off the other end playing forwards.

It had been a busy year. Christmas was over, and all of the children had a special gift from Santa. It was a Rudolph radio.

Back at the North Pole, Santa took off his boots and relaxed in his favorite chair, listening to his own Rudolph radio. He thought about all that had transpired. Looking out the frosted window at the snow-filled air, he chuckled and wiggled his big toe. With a wink at Mrs. Claus, he said, "They will never figure out how I reversed the weather."

Fred Geer's radio collecting began in 1953 with a Shure microphone and an RCA R-32. In addition to his 300-plus collection, he owns around 2,000 old-time radio shows, which he can broadcast to any radio in his house. Readers will remember his article "The Golden Age of Radio Entertainment" (A.R.C. of April 1994), another collaboration with artist Geoffrey Brittingham, whose work appeared on that cover, as well as on this one.

Airline Model 05GCB-1540 Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer

Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer hit the air waves in 1951 with the Airline Model 05GCB-1540. Except for the Rudolph face, this plastic novelty radio appears to be identical to the Lone Ranger Airline Model 05GCB-1541, which has a 4-tube chassis, Types 12BE6, 12AV6 or 12AT6, 50C5 and 35W4. These superheterodyne AC/DC receivers used a loop antenna and had an AM tuning range of 540-1650 Kc.

The Rudolph and the Lone Ranger sets are remarkably similar to Majestic's Charlie McCarthy novelty radio, which was made in 1938.

Rudolph devotees may wish to reference the October 1993 A.R.C., page 22, which shows a contest display of various Rudolph novelty radios, phonograph, and record albums at the August 1993 Antique Radio Club of Illinois' Radiofest.

FORD MUSEUM AUCTION

The Henry Ford Museum Radio Auction Part 2 — Report and Reflections

COMPILED FROM INFORMATION FROM JOHN V. TERREY, LARRY BABCOCK, RICHARD ESTES, LUDWELL A. SIBLEY, WILL JENSBY, JIM KREUZER, AND AUGUST LINK

Last month, we covered the highlights of this extraordinary auction. Beginning this month, we will include the listing of auction prices — a composite of several reports — as well as the reflections of four collectors, including your editor, on their Ford Auction experiences. (Editor)

The Henry Ford Museum Radio Auction was held on October 7 and 8, 1995, in Dearborn, Michigan, where about a thousand lots drew a total of nearly $600,000. Auctioneer Richard Estes of Medina, Ohio, was assisted by Jim Clark and members of the Michigan Antique Radio Club, who provided preparatory labor and handlers during the sale. Bob Dobush of Cleveland got the tubes into logical order and did emission testing of the more interesting ones.

The sale was held in a large tent on the museum grounds — a wise precaution, given rain on both days. Running time was 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. the first day, and 10 A.M. to 3:30 P.M. the second day — without lunch breaks. The pace was fast, the atmosphere intense.

To prepare this report, A.R.C. solicited information, photos, and impressions from many knowledgeable sources. The detailed listing of items and prices represents Ludwell Sibley's laptop computer tabulation, Larry Babcock's handwritten record, auctioneer Richard Estes' auction records, and your editor's own notes. In addition, we have supplemented these lists with queries to several collectors who were there — Jim Kreuzer, August Link and Will Jensby.

To report fully on this, in today's jargon, "awesome" auction, we have also included in sidebars

This simple but elegant entrance to the Henry Ford Museum opens into a single 14-acre space filled with steam locomotives, automobiles, farm equipment and other artifacts from the past. (McElroy photo)

the personal reflections of your editor and Larry Babcock. Next month, we will add those of Ludwell Sibley and Richard Foster, a collector who was unable to attend. Each reports from his own perspective.

Jim Kreuzer, realizing the uniqueness of many of the items to be auctioned, arranged with Rob McElroy, a professional photographer, to record the event. Many of his photos are included here along with those taken by your editor and Larry Babcock.

We cannot thank the contributors enough for their cooperation. Without their input, A.R.C. would not be able to achieve the degree of accuracy that we want to offer you readers.

We remind those of you who were successful bidders at the auction that the museum will provide more information on your purchases upon request. Send your request, along with the museum's de-accession number (e.g. 40.118.9) and a description of the item, to: Attn.: Research Center, The Henry Ford Museum, P.O. Box 1970, Dearborn, MI 48121-1970.

These six modules from International Radio, broken into three lots, sold for a total of $3,550. (McElroy photo)

Now that most of us have returned to reality, perhaps there are others out there who would like to contribute comments and reactions to this memorable event. If so, I'm sure the antique radio community would like to hear from you.

SALE HIGHLIGHTS

The exact sales total for both days was $590,693. That is over ten times the amount sold at the AWA auctions in Rochester, N. Y., in September 1995. Auctioneer Richard Estes said that the Ford auction brought the highest dollar amount of any auction he has ever run.

The single highest price bid for one item was $49,000 for the 1913 Marconi Model 101 receiver, complete and in good condition. The bidding for this item opened at $10,000 and increased in $5,000 steps!

There were two rare Marconi magnetic detectors, an early British 1909 model and an American 1911 unit. The earlier "mag-gie," missing one coil, sold for $11,000. The other unit in excellent condition and with a beveled glass cover brought $25,500.

Other items selling at high prices included an Adams Morgan RA-6 tuner, at $24,000; a DeForest OT-10 Radiophone voice transmitter, at $14,500; a Radiola VII in good condition but poorly refinished, at $10,000; and a Marconi shortwave multiple tuner, at $11,000.

This 1914 DeForest 2-step amplifier, missing the two spherical audions and sockets, sold for $27,500. (Terrey photo)

A Marconi 71 receiver sold for $4,000, and the small mule pack receiver pictured in the sales brochure brought $4,500. A Wireless Specialty IP-77 Navy receiver sold for $9,000; an early French radio compass for $7,000; and a Washington Navy Yard triple detector for $3,000. A Marconi quenched spark gap brought $3,000; a Cutting and Washington 8B receiver sold for $2,900; a Wireless Specialty 1P64 loose coupler for $4,900; and a 1910 Marconi wave meter for $3,000.

There were two 6-tube Magnavox audio amplifiers without tubes which sold for $2,700 and $1,800. An IP-175 Wireless Specialty went for $2,400; and an Aeriola Grand, for $4,200.

If you collect World War I radio equipment, you will be interested to know that it brought really high prices at this auction. Tops was a Western Electric SCR-68 with tubes selling for $3,000. Two Western Electric SCR-59 receivers sold for $1,500. A BC-215 unit, similar to the SCR-68, received a top bid of $900, and a GN4 bullet-shaped Signal Corps generator sold for $575. A BC-15A transmitter went for $1,500, while a cigar-sized SCR-57A wood switch box alone brought $400. You could have bought almost a complete set of this equipment here, but your wallet would have been a lot lighter when you left!

The auction listing follows; tubes will be listed next month. Condition indications ignore numerous missing knobs and parts and easily removable dirt and tarnish; gear is 70-plus years old. All amounts ending in ".50" are rounded down to the dollar.

Reflections on the Ford Museum Auction

BY JOHN V. TERREY

As everyone in the antique radio community knows by now, the Henry Ford Museum Radio Auction on October 7 and 8, 1995, in Dearborn, Michigan, was a unique — perhaps a once-in-a-lifetime — experience. Assembled there was such an abundance of early and rare items that even the most sophisticated collector had to be impressed.

I myself was overwhelmed by the quantity of rare and unusual items and, I have to admit, disappointed at not getting a fair proportion of what I wanted. And yes, I'm still in shock at the prices I found myself paying for some items!

This fact led to long thoughts about what this remarkable auction means to the future of antique radio collecting. The recurring question is, "Will the prices realized at the Ford now drive prices up to sustainable levels?" The answer cannot be a simple "yes" or "no" because this auction was certainly an aberration.

Special Factors. Why an aberration? Because the factors driving prices up may never again all be present in one place. First, the items were from a world-famous museum, and many collectors were there hoping to acquire something from this source. Second, many items had additional associative value; that is, they were from such sources as the RCA-George Clark Collection, the NBC Radio City Museum, and the Edison Institute, or they were contributed by McMurdo Silver, Magnavox, Alfred Goldsmith, and others. Third, there was a preponderance of both early and rare items, such as Marconi, DeForest, Electro Importing, and Hammond, as well as Federal, Cardwell, and Magnavox from the 1920s.

The fourth, and certainly not the least important factor was that preplanning was possible. It is not the usual thing to see all of the major U.S. collectors at one event with money in their pockets. They had come prepared to spend, and they did. Some even developed an altruistic side to their bidding — they wanted to keep the American pieces in the country. Add to this the strength of the international collecting community's bidding, and the frenzy built to unusual proportions.

All of these factors were at work, especially in regard to the early and rare items. Since for these there is no benchmark, we can't say whether or not the prices were high. What we can say is that the early, unique pieces have reached the status of true antiques and are beginning to be recognized as such.

Future Price Expectations. Should readers look at the prices realized at this auction and expect the same? I would say not for the commonly exchanged items, especially those listed in the price guides. But for those not in the price guides, the Ford Auction offered the first available prices, and they may go higher. At least this auction gives us an idea of the worth of rarely seen items.

The prices of common receivers presented a more confused picture. Of course, the variable factors that influenced the prices of the early and rare pieces had an effect on the prices of the more common items. A number of these sold at amounts comparable to the prices in Bunis' Collector's Guide to Antique Radios and to commonly seen prices by collectors. However, others sold at prices inconsistent with market value.

For example, a Radiola VIIB, which sold for $1,700, has been known to go for more; a Federal 61 with a damaged lid, listed in Bunis for $1,200, sold for $950; a Grebe CR-9 listed at $500 sold for $600, while a Grebe MU-1 listed at $225 sold for $700; a Radiola 26 listed at $350 sold for $1,500, while a Kennedy 110 listed at $1,100 sold for $2,250!

Of course, there were some factors present that may have — or should have — moderated prices. The most obvious one was that the condition of the majority of the equipment had been compromised in some way. The degree of compromise varied from missing knobs, parts, cabinets, etc., to the extreme of inappropriate refinishing for museum display purposes. The latter was done years ago before the current thinking that an item should be conserved authentically took hold.

From My Seat at the Henry Ford Museum Auction

BY LARRY BABCOCK

Call it the antique radio auction of the century or of a lifetime. In my opinion, either would be correct. This vintage radio auction at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan, on October 7 and 8, 1995, was like no other auction I have ever attended!

In recent years, the items for sale at antique radio meets have become a little newer and, to some collectors, less desirable. Many of us wish that we could go back in time and attend a meet like the ones years ago, especially if we yearn for the very early historical items. That is what we saw at the Henry Ford Museum Radio Auction.

No plastic radios, Catalins, transistor or novelty sets were visible there. Practically nothing newer than the early 1930s was sold. And very much of it was wireless equipment built and used in the teens before the days of radio broadcasting. These were artifacts which had been in storage for many years, and which the museum had decided to de-access. Well over 1,000 lots were sold.

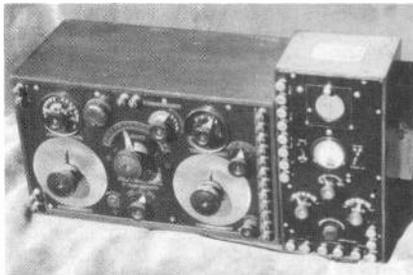

Some of the artifacts had previously been displayed inside the Henry Ford Museum, and these could be recognized by the way the cabinets had been refinished. Many of them had been stripped completely and covered with a thin layer of polyurethane, perhaps used as an archival preservative. Although this technique may protect the wood underneath, the result did not look anything like the original finish.

A Personal Story. When I retired almost ten years ago, I put $1,000 in my pocket to spend whenever I found an old radio item I just had to have. I have been attending 6 to 10 meets every year and have found some nice, less expensive items, but the thousand bucks remained in my pocket until now.

What I really needed was an audion control box to go with my Marconi CM-294C tuner. The only one I had ever seen was in the AWA Museum, but one was pictured in the auction brochure. I had been told it would probably bring about $2,500 — out of my price range. However, I was both shocked and pleasantly surprised when the bidding stopped with my $1,000 bid! So I had accomplished my objective. I got the piece I wanted at my price. Even more surprising was that I got the better of the two auctioned.

Reality Check. On the other hand, I was also interested in an item listed in the auction brochure as "Federal Detector First Audio (no cabinet)." As I had suspected, this turned out to be the rare Federal Model 8 unit. Without a cabinet, I had hoped I might have a chance to buy it for maybe $500. Was I ever wrong! The bids kept soaring way beyond my price, up to a final of $1,900! The reality was that there were rare items at this auction but few, if any, bargains.

The Future. I think perhaps this auction gave a view of the prices we can expect in the future. Here was a group of the top historical collectors from all over the world competing for rare treasures. On the other hand, some of the items were nice early pieces but not impossibly rare. Still, they also drew very high prices. It was no surprise when DeForest interpanels sold for $2,000 and $2,450. But, would you believe $2,600 for a CR18 Grebe that lists in Bunis for $750?

I know the Grebe Synchrophase MU1 is not a rare set, and for many years the price was $100. The latest list is $225, but here one brought $700! A Western Electric 7A amplifier without tubes went for $425, and a nice Radiola 26, listed at $350, brought $1,500! These are all extremely high prices on items that I have recently seen sold for much less.

A single wing DeForest Audion with a good filament but short leads sold at $1,400. This is the highest I have seen for that item.

An interesting story behind this auction may also be significant to the future of American collectors. A group of European collectors in the second row were bidding only on the finest items. They just held their bidder cards up until everyone else gave up. They didn't seem to care how high the price went. I noticed that one fellow spent about $100,000 the first day, and he started the second day the same way! The only item he didn't get was an American Marconi magnetic detector. He gave up at around the $25,000 level.

In the real world, Richard Estes regularly holds vintage radio auctions at the Seville Auction Barn just south of Medina, Ohio. I have attended these auctions and found that they are well run, and that Richard has a good knowledge of antique radios. Of course, the merchandise cannot be like what was at the Henry Ford Museum. That event is over, and we are back in the real world!

PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other old radio-related items from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short, descriptive paragraph MUST be included with each photo. ### PRESTO TYPE J5 SERIAL NUMBER 355 –

This 78 rpm portable disc recorder, ca. 1934, was manufactured by the Presto Recording Corp., New York, for home entertainment. It features a solid brass panel and hardware, an Audax magnetic recording head, a VU meter to set recording level, a crystal playback pickup and a crystal microphone. The tube complement includes a Type 80 rectifier, two Type 45 power amplifiers and two Type 6C8 dual triode amplifiers. The turntable is made of cast aluminum and is driven by a 4-pole, heavy duty, constant speed motor. (Richard Bartle – Anderson, CA)

HUDSON ROSS MODEL UNKNOWN – This 1933 cathedral is a simple design, but the "three pigs" motif makes all the difference. (Johnny Johnson – Denver, CO)

TOWER MEISTERSINGER –

This horn speaker, ca. 1925, is enclosed in a very attractive mahogany cabinet. The front is an unusual and fragile piece of brown translucent celluloid. There is a knob for adjusting the driver diaphragm on the side of the cabinet. (Greg Farmer – Fridley, MN)

PHOTO REVIEW

BELL GAP – Manufactured by the Electric Machine Co. of Indianapolis, Indiana, this rotary spark gap, ca. 1920, has an aluminum housing. (Larry Chestnut – Ellington, CT)

INDUSTRIAL TOOL AND DIE MODEL W6T2B – Of the 150 radios in my collection, I think this is the oddball. The cabinet has a blonde finish. The chassis has 6 tubes with AC/DC, broadcast and shortwave. (Vernon Blaine – Canby, MN)

ZENITH MODEL 6-D-030 – This 1946 radio is a member of the famous Zenith Consoltone family. It has an AC-DC superhet chassis and is also available in a Bakelite version. (Robert Bailey – Jacksonville, FL)

DEWALD MODEL A-501 – Is this set a factory experiment, repair or home brew? The set has all Catalin parts and factory grille cloth. The cabinet pieces are glued with old-fashioned, dark brown glue. The patina is consistent throughout. Note that the vertical grille bars and the horizontal bar below the slide-rule dial are not compatible with standard A-501 design. (Ray Carroll – Wayne, NJ)

EMERSON MODEL 1003 – This 1947 6-tube set is of collector interest due to the adaptation of the circuit for the hearing impaired. An additional audio amplifier stage with separate volume control allows control of audio output to either a crystal or magnetic ear piece independent of normal speaker output. The two smallest knobs do not appear to be original. (Ed Paski – Berwyn, PA)

Exceptional Shop-Built Superheterodyne

BY NORMAN S. BRAITHWAITE

Somewhere between the home-built receivers and the manufactured receivers of the 1920s were the shop-built receivers custom-built for individual clients. These receivers included a variety of circuits ranging from simple tuned receivers to complex superheterodyne receivers. These sets were sometimes featured circuits in popular radio publications or complete radio kits such as those by the Scott Transformer Company or Silver Marshall. Occasionally, they were completely unique circuits.

For the most part shop-built sets were built by radio shops or custom set builders because individuals did not have the skills, confidence or time to build the desired sets. Many of these sets had superheterodyne circuits and were shop-built in part to avoid conflict with the Radio Corporation of America's claim to the rights to manufacture superheterodyne receivers.

The unnamed receiver shown in Figure 1 was purchased a couple of years ago at a California Historical Radio Society swap meet. Conversations with the seller, and corroborated by an independent party, indicate that this set had been found in the basement of Douglas Hall at Menlo School and College in Menlo Park, California.

The set had been built sometime around 1926 by a San Francisco Bay area radio shop owner and set builder for Mr. Leon Douglas, chairman of the board of directors of the Victor Talking Machine Corporation. Although I have never been able to confirm this ownership, the set itself is worthy of mention.

The set is one of the smallest and best built portable superheterodyne receivers I have seen. Chassis dimensions are 7 inches high by 14 inches wide and 7½ inches from front to back, including knobs. The Remler tuning dial scales were turned down to a smaller diameter to accommodate the small front panel size. Chassis construction is of ¼-inch thick brass sheet metal with an engraved Bakelite face panel backed by brass sheet metal. A rear view of the radio is shown in Figure 2. Unfortunately, the chassis was found without the cabinet, speaker and loop antenna.

The circuit is a 9-tube, regenerative superheterodyne. Visible in Figure 3 are the fully shielded first detector and oscillator located under the chassis. In addition to a regenerative first detector and three stages of intermediate frequency amplification, the set features a push-pull audio output stage. A schematic for the set is shown in Figure 4. As is often the case with home-built and shop-built receivers, there are a couple of mysteries in the circuit. Several components have one lead connected into the circuit and the other lead floating. The Roman numerals on the schematic relate to the battery connections identified by Roman numerals on the chassis. It appears the builder was experimenting with improving stability, although I do not fully understand the existence of these mystery components. These mystery components are also shown on the schematic.

Components used in the as-

sembly of this set include Precise interstage and audio transformers, Remler tuning capacitors and dials, a Silver Marshall oscillator coil, General Radio trimmer capacitors and tube sockets, Carter rheostats, Allen Bradley fixed resistors and a Jewel voltmeter. Controls include loop and oscillator tuning, "regeneration," "selectivity," "volume," "filaments," and an unlabeled stage switch for one or two stages of audio amplification.

Performance of this set must have been considered good, as the logging scale shown in Figure 5 indicates. Additional stations are identified on the back of this scale. Based on this and the companion scale, tracking, selectivity and sensitivity were good. Images must not have been much of a problem in this set. After replacing both audio transformers and a couple of tubes, the set worked again. No problems related to stability were encountered during the recent operation of the set.

Two Unusual Cone Speakers — DeForest Audalton and Dictogrand

COMPILED BY RAY BINTLIFF FROM INFORMATION CONTRIBUTED BY ED PASKI

Two unusual early cone-type speakers — the DeForest Audalton and the Dictogrand — are described by Ed Paski. These speakers differ from conventional cone speakers because of the manner in which their "cones" are actuated.

THE DEFOREST AUDALION

The rare Audalton loudspeaker by Lee DeForest, Inc., New York, N. Y., shown in Figure 1, is one example of the many variations of the cone-type speaker. The speaker's sound reproducing element is a cylindrical-shaped diaphragm made of heavy parchment paper that is actuated by a high impedance (1,000 ohms) magnetic driver. The speaker, housed in a decorative cast metal enclosure, can be operated in either a vertical or horizontal position. The unit is 18½" high and 10" in diameter.

CONSTRUCTION

The diaphragm is not a complete cylinder, but it is formed into a cylindrical shape that is split longitudinally, as shown in Figure 2. About 9 inches in diameter and covering an arc of 300 degrees, the diaphragm is supported along its edges by soft felt strips and buttons. These provide mechanical isolation between the vibrating diaphragm and the rigid speaker housing.

The armature of the high impedance magnetic driver is mechanically connected to a corner of the diaphragm, as illustrated in Figure 3. When connected to a radio's audio output, the driver's armature will vibrate in accordance with the audio signal. In turn, mechanical coupling between the armature and diaphragm will produce sound waves.

A view of the electromagnetic driver is shown in Figure 4. This unique speaker differs from conventional cone speakers in that the cone is driven from its edge rather than its center.

THE DICTOGRAND SPEAKER

The Model R 50 Dictogrand speaker, circa

1926, is shown in Figure 5. Its construction and operation is probably similar to that of the DeForest unit described above. Because the Dictogrand is housed in a sealed cabinet, specific details of its construction are not available. Most likely, the driver is connected to the point at which the two half-cylinders meet at the center of the cabinet.

Transformer Testing

BY JAMES F. CREWS

I enjoyed very much the transformer testing article in the February 1995 issue of A.R.C. It will surely be a great help to restorers who are learning.

Another test that can be done is to measure the current drawn by the power transformer as voltage is applied. This is accomplished by putting an AC ammeter in series with one of the two wires between the variac and the transformer primary as in Figure 1. A good meter to use is 1 amp full scale, or even 2 amp full scale. These meters are not too commonly found. (A good place to look for such a meter is at hamfests.) Make sure you use an AC, not a D.C., ammeter.

Run the unloaded test first; that is, remove all tubes and the pilot lights. Using the voltmeters described in the article and watching the ammeter, slowly bring up the variac output. Stop at 120 volts or so on the primary. If the ammeter ever reads more than 0.3 amps, there is the likelihood of shorted turns in one of the windings, which means the transformer is bad. Most often, I measure about 0.125 amps with the variac at 120 volts. Assuming that the current stays down to less than 0.3 amps, and the voltage measurements are OK, then your transformer is likely to be OK. To illustrate the current drain to expect from a bad transformer, I measured a transformer which is definitely shorted because it begins to overheat and to smoke almost immediately when power is applied even without a load. (Previous testing had also shown that the high voltage winding halves differed by about 10 volts.) As I brought up the variac, the current was 0.5 amps at 40 volts.

The loaded test is also important since it can point to problems that left unattended may well cause failure of an otherwise good transformer. In this test, plug in all tubes, and watch the ammeter come up as you slowly turn up the voltage. Usually somewhere on the set or posted in the cabinet will be the rated power or watts that the set is expected to consume at usually 115 volts. To calculate the current rating in amperes, divide the rated power in watts by the voltage. For example, a 50-watt rating at 115 volts AC should give about 0.4 amps. A variation of 10% is acceptable. If the calculated current is significantly exceeded before arriving at a variac output of 115 VAC, then, if you don't do something, you may soon have a failed transformer, even though the set might play. Numerous things can load down the transformer, notably shorted or leaky filter capacitors, other bad capacitors, shorted rectifiers, or even shorted or gassy tubes (output tubes particularly).

VINTAGE TEST EQUIPMENT

Vintage Tube Testers — Part 3 Commercial Hickok Models

BY ALAN S. DOUGLAS

This is the third of a series of four articles by Alan Douglas on vintage tube testers. The first, on the calibration of a Hickok tester, appeared in the July 1995 issue, and the second, on military models, appeared in the October 1995 issue. (Editor)

Continuing the discussion of Hickok tube testers, I have compiled a list of models, years advertised, and prices. Some of these may have been made later, but Allied and Lafayette stopped listing Hickoks in their catalogs, and the company didn't advertise often. As mentioned before, nearly all Hickok checkers used the same basic circuit. The Model 600 (later 6000) series seems to have been the most popular, along with the 539 "laboratory" models. The Hickok Model 539C is illustrated in Figure 1. The Model 600 will do almost anything you need, but if you can find one, the Model 539 with its extra meters and DC bias supply works really well.

Hickok also made equivalent models for Western Electric (WE) to somewhat higher mechanical standards than the commercial models, and, of course, the company listed WE tubes on its roll charts. The WE version, a Model KS-15750-L1, is shown in Figure 2.

Some examples of military versions of Hickok tube testers appear in Figures 3 and 4.

Back when a TV serviceman would suddenly be faced with a couple dozen tubes to test in a hurry, speed in setting up the instrument was of some concern. The Model 6000 made a start at this by eliminating the multiposition "shorts" switch in favor of a bank of neon lamps. But the real advance was Hickok's Cardmatic machine, where all the setup was done by a punched card inserted in a slot. There was a military version of this too. But I can't imagine what the attraction is now; even though the punches and blank cards are available, who would want to stop and create a card just to test one previously unseen tube?

Years ago I used to wonder how you put "English" on a tube while testing it, but now I know that it is simply a shunt around the Gm meter (and in fact is labeled "shunt" in later models). "English" meant that it moved the minimum Gm reading to coincide with the center of the "good-bad" or English-reading scale; this is faster and easier than trying to read a numerical value of Gm and then referring to the chart for comparison with a standard value. Sometimes the two dials are simply marked L and R, but whatever they're called, the left one sets grid bias, and the right one changes the meter sensitivity.

What if you need to test a tube not on the chart? Usually you can find something close, a 6-volt equivalent, say, or a tube with the same basing and similar characteristics. But if necessary, you can set up the basing directly from the switches, as the numbers correspond directly in most models. The heater switches correspond too, except they use letters instead of numbers: A is 0 (disconnected), B is pin 2, etc. For the second heater switch, P is disconnected, R is pin 1, S is 2, etc.

In early Hickoks, the socket numbers are juggled to put the heaters on switch positions J and R for all tubes; on the octal socket, for instance, pins 1 and 2 are interchanged, as are pins 7 and 8. The 4-pin socket is numbered 1, 2, 3, 8; the 5-pin, 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, and so on, while the numbering of the miniature 7-pin socket is hopelessly scrambled: 3, 2, 1, 8, 5, 6, 7! Mercifully Hickok later abandoned this system.

There is no foolproof way of finding the grid-bias setting, but generally it is the value which makes the plate current 50 to 100 percent of the recommended current in the RCA tube manual. You must insert a milliammeter in the plate circuit, either using the posts provided on some models (539) or by making a socket adapter. Some tubes require lower plate and screen voltages, and tubes with low bias settings usually need reduced grid-signal voltage, so as not to drive the grid positive.

Roll charts were updated periodically, with new tubes added and obsolete ones removed. The deleted information was compiled into books, along with listings for foreign or special-purpose tubes that never appeared on the roll charts. Even years ago, Hickok did not stock roll charts for older models, but would sell these books instead.

(Alan S. Douglas, PO Box 225, Pocasset, MA 02559)

Alan Douglas, an electrical engineer, has been interested in old radios since the age of ten. His extensive collection includes a library of 5,000 radio-related books and magazines, now occupying a special addition to his house. He has written well over 100 articles and papers for radio and engineering publications. His books, "Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's, Volumes 1, 2, and 3" are highly regarded resources for the radio collecting community.

AUCTION REPORT

Joe's Radio Shop Auction Bridgeton, New Jersey — September 22-23, 1995

BY JOHN H. DILKS

Imagine going to an old radio shop auction set up in a basketball court-sized warehouse with thousands of old items for sale. Imagine that almost no one shows up to bid against you. We all dream of this kind of opportunity. Well, that's what happened on September 22 and 23 in Bridgeton, New Jersey. Twenty-some bidders were there for opening bid at 10 A.M., forty-four by the day's end. Although the sale was well advertised locally and nationally, few people came.

Of course, the serious tube resellers and parts merchants were there. They pretty much controlled the early buying of more than 10,000 new tubes, hundreds of boxes of components, and more than 500 new, boxed transformers of every type. But the lots were small enough that if someone wanted to bid on a particular box, bidding was affordable.

Some novice tube buyers also attended. They were easy to spot, as they held the Antique Electric Supply "Tube-Wanted" lists in their hands and tried to examine each box for tubes on the list. I'm sure a few of them got burned because, as so often happens, some of the new boxes contained used tubes. The regular tube buyers knew this and bid accordingly.

Midway through the tube auction, the auctioneer took a break. When he returned, he announced that he had a bid for $6,000 for the remaining tubes from an absentee bidder. This upset some bidders, many of whom had traveled several hundred miles expecting to bid on small lots. Some bidders just left.

Then it was pointed out to the auctioneer that he had promised small lots and to change the rules now would be unethical. After 40 minutes, the auctioneer continued as before, selling small lots of tubes. But the delay had been noticeable, making bidders less enthusiastic. After that, the bids seemed lower.

At 3 P.M., with all of the tubes sold and about half of the items remaining, the auction ended for the day. It was announced that 25 pallets of additional test sets and radio parts would be added to the sale for the next day.

On Saturday morning, the warehouse again was full. This time only about a dozen bidders were there for the opening. But more importantly, many of the big bidders from the day before were not there. During the day, the number of bidders rose to only about 30.

The remaining items sold were old and used for the most part, but most were complete, with a small percentage good for parts only. More than 100 pieces of General Radio test equipment were sold, most for less than $10, plus many lots of Hewlett-Packard test sets. More than 50 old audio amplifiers sold from a low of $2 to over $100.

Old 2-way radios, aircraft radios and IFF gear were in abundance, along with several 6-foot relay racks, complete with transmitters and receivers selling at $10 to $20 each. One Technical Material Corporation (TMC) 1950s high frequency AM-CW radio transmitter went for $175. To list all the items sold would be meaningless, as a well-attended sale would have brought higher prices.

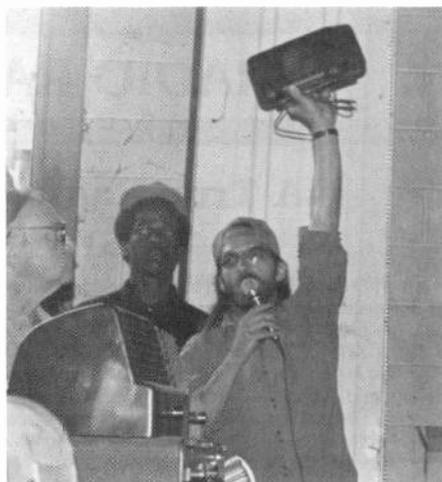

Buyers had to pay close attention since the auctioneer spoke in layman's terms. Variable resisters became "knobs," rotary switches became "tuners" and there were several "another interesting thing here" descriptions. On the other hand, one bidder observed, "There were plenty of people on hand to load your car. They were very pleasant and helpful. And pricing was reasonable."

Bargains were everywhere. I bought more than 400 technical books in several lots for a total of $25. I also bought a 1960s Gonset 2-meter ham transceiver with a matching Gonset 2-meter linear amplifier for $10; Brush earphones, old but "like new," for $1; a pair of Western Electric earphones for $10; boxes of magnet wire for an average of $2 per box; and boxes of new ceramic insulators of all types for $2 a box. I went home a tired but happy collector.

Radio Quiz Answers — Part 1

REPORTED BY DAVE CROCKER

Part 1 of the "Radio Broadcast Quiz" published in the July 1995 issue of A.R.C. appears to have been an interesting challenge to many readers. Gus Stellweg called it "diabolical," but he was still one of the top scorers. Others who got more than 20 of the 38 answers were Tony Verdi, Fred Geer, Max Berman, and John Dodge. Tony, who was the top scorer, said that he had had "lots of fun trying to pull these answers out of the fading static." Look for more fun in Part 2 in a later issue, in which we will also include questions 37 and 38 missing from Part 1.

RADIO RAMBLINGS...

A True Radio Christmas Story

BY GEOFF SHEARER

Geoff Shearer submitted this story anonymously, but we prevailed upon him to permit us to give credit where credit is due. We think the story illustrates a side of our avocation that is too often forgotten in the everyday excitement of buying and selling, and especially in the heat of high-powered auctions. Restoring an old radio to its former place in the hearts of the owners is a pretty satisfying way to preserve a little bit of radio history. (Editor)

A co-worker, knowing my interest in old radios, brought a Crosley "Fiver" tombstone to me with the intent of selling it. It was in excellent physical condition with an obviously replaced transformer and one wrong knob. While discussing the origin of the radio, I learned that it had belonged to his grandfather and then passed on to his mother. Rather than attempting to purchase the set, I offered to fix it for him.

The replaced transformer was cooked, so I wired in a new one with full-wave vs. half-wave rectification. I had been told this would ease the load on the transformer. I replaced the electrolytic capacitors, and because I didn't want any further difficulties with capacitors, I changed all the others. The set had two bad tubes and a tear in the speaker, which I replaced and fixed. The missing knob was furnished by "Mr. Radio" in Myersville, Maryland. By Christmas morning, all the repair was complete.

When my co-worker presented the radio to his mom as a gift, she broke down and cried, and subsequently, he cried with her. For many years, this radio had sat on the kitchen window sill, and Mom had listened to it while doing the dishes. All the memories of youth and family came flooding back to her when she held that radio in her hands.

On that Christmas day, the family turned off the hi-fi set and the TV and cranked up the little 5-tuber. They set the dial on the oldies station and listened to Christmas music all day.

My co-worker couldn't wait to tell me what a hit the radio had been and wanted to pay me for my work. You can't put a price on what I had received already — preservation of memories and radios. Isn't that what our hobby is all about? Peace to all.

(Geoff Shearer, 14101 Mesita Cliff Rd., NE, Albuquerque, NM)

Philco Model 37-690 — Christmas 1948

CONTRIBUTED BY ELLSWORTH JOHNSON

A.R.C.'s article on Francis Yonker's Philco 37-690 in the November 1995 issue jogged Ellsworth Johnson's memory and sent him to his family photo album. There he found the 1948 photo shown here of the imposing Philco occupying a prime living room location, upstaged only temporarily by the shining Christmas tree.

The Philco Model 37-690 had true sentimental value to the Johnsons. Ellsworth had given it to his then fiancée as an engagement present in the fall of 1941. He paid $60 for it from the local Philco wholesaler for whom his family business — Johnson Electronic Supply (1934-1974) — was a dealer. The set had belonged to the wholesaler's CEO and was the kind of bargain A.R.C. collectors would appreciate.

The set stayed in the Johnson family for many years, but eventually went to a Seattle collector. By that time, Ellsworth — who had begun his career as a radio repair technician and had been around radio tubes in his father's business since childhood — shifted his interest to high tech. Still, he retains a taste for radio nostalgia and has a collection of replica radios.

We conclude that such a weighty engagement present was a measure of Ellsworth's commitment to a long-term relationship — he and his wife have just celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary.

Radio Restoration Parts

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary with radio model.

"Do you know me?"

I started the world's first broadcasting station. I'm Charles Herrold, and between 1912 and 1917 I was sending music and news to an audience in San Jose, California, on a regular schedule. But while I may have been first, most people forgot all about me. Now there's hope; my story is told in this exciting new videotape from the creator of the award-winning PBS series "Radio Collector." It's available from the Perham Foundation. Don't leave home without it!"

FOR SALE: TRK-12 Pre-war TV. This is the most popular deco pre-war television, the RCA 12" console with mirror-in-the-lid viewing. In good cosmetic shape except for the typical cracking along the top edges; electronically restored and working. Missed last years? Why not try again! TRK-12 $5,450 + shipping

FOR SALE:
RCA 630-TCS.

The console version of the 630 table top, this set is probably as rare as the RCA 621. It has a more elaborate case and the controls are hidden behind tambour doors. Missing 2" of wooden trim above the screen, and the finish is flaking, so it's really cheap! This RCA 630-TCS is priced at $415 + shipping.

FOR SALE: RCA
Nipper cast bank.

This white, brown, black and green painted cast metal bank of Nipper and phonograph appears to be a 1960s remake of the early (and very valuable) model. It is not a recent piece of junk--it's a good quality painted bank with "131" stamped on the bottom. It's 6" high x 8-1/4" long. Save some money with our bank--$115 ppd

FOR SALE: RCA 8-track player! New, boxed MARK 8 player, which features, believe-it-or-not: an automatic changer for your 8 tracks!

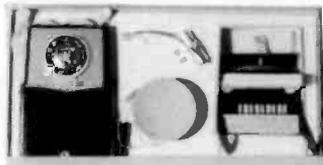

You put in up to 5 of the cassettes, and the Mark 8 automatically plays and stops after the last one. I don't know if it still works, but it is new, boxed, unsold merch from the heyday of the 8 track. Brushed aluminum front with clear plastic 8-track cover--it's impressive! With intructions and a flyer on RCA 8-track players. Mark-8 new $68 + UPS

FOR SALE: DAGE TV camera. Similar to the portable camera we had a few months ago--but this has only 1 lens on the turret. DAGE...$295 + UPS

FOR SALE: Iconoscope tube + camera! This is a nice display piece--the RCA 1850A Iconoscope tube is a great collectible, and we'll throw in the military camera, labled WR B 78. Priced at $645 for the pair.

FOR SALE: RCA "CAR" transistor radio. This black T-1D comes in a bright red and white RCA box, with a RK-260 auto-adapter. So you thought RCA never made a car radio--this is how they managed to market a transistor set, and then add an adapter to go automotive. Includes radio, adapter, suction-cup aerial, generator-condensor, and instructions. RCA Transistor radio, all new, unsold and boxed! $155 plus UPS.

FORSALE: Kadette "Autime" This two-tone brown wooden radio has brass trim and brown Catalin knobs. It might have inspired the Clockette series with a clock in the center, a tiny cutout which shows the time to switch on, plus another cutout at the lower right corner which shows the AM station. Kadette Autime...$78

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 22¢ each. See details below. Classified ads sent by mail, fax or by any other method must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the classified ad deadline date to guarantee inclusion in the current issue. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page 2 for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Faxed & e-mailed ads: Please see additional information on the inside front cover.

When including ads with other A.R.C. correspondence, write the ads on a separate piece of paper. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Also: 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name (or company name) and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)
