First... some of the sharpest guys in Cable TV got together and formed a little company called CAS to make amplifiers.

Then... in 1958 they threw out the tubes . . . and developed the industry's first successful solid-state amplifier.

Then... they decided to make a better signal processor, and offered the first solid-state heterodyne headend unit.

Then... in 1963, they introduced the first silicone solid state strand mounted trunk and distribution amplifier.

Now... they've joined the giant AVNET organization, and become one of CATV's leading suppliers. They're still the same sharp guys who started an amplifier company 16 years ago. Plus other sharp guys who helped develop new two-way amplifiers, and headend equipment that does things other headends won't. They have everything you need for a better cable system, and the design talent and turnkey facilities to help you build it. They even have money to help with your financing problems.

So?

So here's what you should do:

- 1) Avoid hasty decisions.
- 2) Send for the big new CAS catalog.
- 3) Visit systems using CAS and ask questions.

First in the battle against second-order
beat distortion

THE NEW "JERROLD GENERATION" OF PUSH-PULL AMPLIFIERS

Jerrold was the first manufacturer to employ push-pull circuitry in CATV system amplifiers to control second-order beat distortion. That expertise, augmented throughout the years, has culminated in the finest push-pull equipment available in today's market.

Remember the Jerrold LSA-795 amplifier? It was the first amplifier in the industry incorporating push-pull circuitry. That was more than ten years ago. Shortly thereafter, the Jerrold LSA-410 AB, the first push-pull amplifier ever used in a CATV transportation system, was introduced.

How about the Jerrold TLSA-510. That was the very first solid-state push-pull amplifier used in a CATV transportation system.

With the advent of Starline came the Jerrold SLA-series of solid-state amplifier stations, by far the best units ever designed for economical, 12-channel, low-sub (6-95 MHz), long-haul CATV systems.

And today? It's the new "Jerrold Generation" of Starline Twenty Push-Pull amplifier stations for CATV distribution trunk systems and Push-Pull line extenders for feeder lines that give second-order distortion a real beating. With its multiple options available to CATV system operators, Starline Twenty Push-Pull equipment dominates the field.

For more information on the new "Jerrold Generation" push-pull CATV equipment, contact the firm backed by ten years of experience in the application of push-pull circuitry to CATV systems. Write or phone the Jerrold Regional Office nearest you.

Scala*COLOR
LOG*Model CL 26 & CL 713 • VHF TV Channels 2-13*Applications • VHF TV pick-up & transmitting CATV • Commercial off-the-air monitoring

- A frequency-independent array designed to meet the most exacting requirements of VHF TV pick-up antennas.

- Excellent color response. Careful design and exhaustive quality control guarantee that the gain will be held to less than 1/2db throughout the channel.

- High gain: Unique combination of double boom and flexible transmission line makes it possible to take advantage of larger active regions, resulting in more efficiency. Model CL26 covers channels 2-6 with gain exceeding 10 1/2db over isotropic source. CL713 covers channel 7-13, with gain exceeding 11db over isotropic source.

- Lower tower load: Two models cover all 12 VHF TV channels, providing a coverage equal to or exceeding that of a dozen 5-element single-channel yagis.

- Co-channel rejection is possible because the Scala Color Log has a minimum of side lobes and a very high front-to-back ratio. Special arrays can be designed to solve additional co-channel problems.

- Thoroughly tested: This product is the result of two years of research; and before release to the CATV industry, 24 Color Logs were field-tested (for a full year) nationwide.

- Extremely rugged: Booms are 2" x 2" square 6061-T6 aluminum tube. Elements are 3/4" OD tubing laminated over 5/8" tubing, fastened to boom with 1/2" studs locked in position with 1/2" lock nuts. Fastenings are stainless steel. Scala Color Logs are fastened to tower at the balance point, not on an end, where a small load on the opposite end can cause an extreme load to tower and mounting brackets.

- Experience: Scala developed the first professional CATV antenna. The third CATV system in the country is still using its original Scala Yagis.

Write for detailed specifications—and complete catalog on corner reflectors, color logs, UHF-VHF yagis, ground plane antennas, and Paraslot and Paraflector antennas by Scala.

less is more

Less signal distortion, less interference, less noise and less maintenance result in a more profitable operation with Scientific-Atlanta equipment. Consider these examples:

Demodulators have phase-locked synchronous detectors. Quadrature distortion is eliminated. Differential gain and phase distortion are reduced to the lowest levels in the industry.

Solid state signal processors have crystal controlled converters with FET circuitry to minimize cross-modulation. Modular design reduces system down time.

Cavity-tuned VHF preamplifiers in weatherproof enclosures minimize adjacent channel interference, noise, and maintenance.

Rugged broadband antennas, designed for optimum electrical characteristics, have demonstrated less co-channel interference, less maintenance and maximum gain.

See what we mean.

Dynafoam® vs. Alumifoam®

The challenger goes up against the champ

Alumifoam® was our most recent state-of-the-art breakthrough in CATV cable. Its low-loss seamless aluminum-tube sheathed lengths of up to ½ mile made believers out of everyone in the business. Then came Dynafoam — trunk and feeder cable with a revolutionary polystyrene foam dielectric that meant lighter weight, lower attenuation and 20% greater amplifier spacing.

For both Alumifoam and Dynafoam, we guarantee 30 db return losses, thus creating another standard for the CATV industry.

We'll also show you how Dynafoam can save you 20% of every db dollar you spend per mile of cascade...and that translates into 2 extra miles for every 10 you install!

Whether you "bet" on Times' Alumifoam or on Times' Dynafoam, in this arena you come away the winner. The choice of which is best for you is yours to make — we at Times Wire & Cable feel we owe it to you to offer this choice.

Futura Chromadyne Head-End Equipment

- Completely shielded modules insure R.F. integrity, permit modern high gain sections, sharp skirted filters not possible with open type module designs.
- Metered outputs, indicate levels of video carrier, audio carrier, substitution carrier. Color keyed function knobs simplify set-up.
- Fixed bandpass filters ahead of broadband I.F. amplifiers assure response stability at any signal level. Balanced mixers in up and down converters.
- Plug-in input attenuator permits optimum operating conditions, prevents overload on strong local signals.
- No critical voltage adjustments — all AGC and substitution carrier thresholds preset at factory. Alignment switch defeats AGC for ease of sweep adjustment.
- Spurious signal into up converter eliminated by elliptical filters followed by band-pass filters.
