Yearbook 1988

The 1988 BROADCASTING/CABLECASTING YEARBOOK shares with its predecessors the distinction of being the most comprehensive directory to the Fifth Estate. It covers the history and continuing growth of every field in the industry. To acquaint readers with the structure of the Yearbook, and to assist in locating information, the editors have provided general descriptions of each of the nine major sections: The Fifth Estate, Radio, Television, Cable, Satellite, Programming, Advertising and Marketing, Technology, and Professional Services. In addition, the editorial index begins on the following page. The general index is followed by an index to advertisers in the 1988 Yearbook. These are grouped according to service. Finally, each of the nine sections has a complete index on the first page of the section.

Section A: begins with "The Fifth Estate," the history and evolution of the broadcasting media. The "Short Course in Broadcasting" (A-2) provides a capsulized summary of the industry. A description of emerging technologies follows, reviewing recent and ongoing developments in broadcast technology. A subsection on Law and Regulation follows on page A-8, covering the Federal Communications Commission. It includes an organization chart of the FCC, names of its staff members, an extract of its principal rules and a guide to station application procedure. Government agencies of interest to the Fifth Estate are listed, including both the U.S. and Canada. A list of state cable regulatory agencies follows. The Group Ownership directory (A-36) is a list of individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Section A concludes with the directory of newspaper and magazine crossownership and crossownership by station.

Section B: The Radio section of the Yearbook begins with the directory of AM and FM stations in the United States, followed by stations in U.S. territories and Canada. Information on U.S. International Radio, the Voice of America, American Forces Radio and Television Service (AFRTS), and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) is included here. Listings provide call letters, address, telephone number, programming information, and names of principal executives. Cross-reference lists of AM and FM stations by call letters and frequencies for the U.S. and Canada follow this directory. The frequency cross-directories have been expanded to include power and antenna information for both AM and FM stations. Next is the table of FM allotments. Section B concludes with a guide to the 259 Arbitron U.S. Radio Markets.

Section C: This is the Television section of the Yearbook. The first part, "The Facilities of Television," begins with detailed directories of TV stations, addresses, telephone numbers, names of principal executives, with cross-references to the appropriate ADI's (Areas of Dominant Influence). Additionally, most listings now include 1987 Arbitron circulation figures. Among the other features of this section are lists of U.S. and Canadian stations by call letters and channels, lists of both independent and stereo TV stations, the table of TV assignments, a complete history of TV station transfers, a list of pending TV station applications, and information on experimental TV stations. There is also a section on Low Power TV (LPTV), listing LPTV grants, licensees and addresses. The second part of Section C, "The Television Marketplace," describes the commercial aspects of the medium, and has as its primary feature the "ADI Market Atlas," a 75-page section showing each of the 212 ADI's according to Arbitron Television. It is complete with coverage maps, and other important market rankings. Concluding the section are tables of market ranking by size, markets by Nielsen Marketing Research, and network delivery variations by market.

Section D: The Cable section of the Yearbook contains detailed information on cable systems throughout the United States and Canada. The "Anatomy of Cable Regulation" opens the section with an outline of federal cable television rules. On page D-3, "A Short Course in Cable" provides a concise summary of the industry. The cable listings provide the system name, address and phone number, names of principal executives, area served, type of TV market, statistical data, channel usage, information about pay cable and other types of programming, and ownership. Also in this section are a directory of Multiple System Operators (MSO's), a list of Broadcasters in Cable, a chart of the Top-50 MSO's, and a chart of cable penetration by market.

Section E: The section on Satellites begins with the list of satellites currently used by North American owners and operators. Included in the section are lists of satellite owners and operators, resale and common carriers, teleports and direct broadcast satellites. The section finishes with a directory of cable programming services, including pay, basic, automated, audio-only, regional sports and Canadian services.

Section F: This is the Programming section of the Yearbook. First is a directory of producers, distributors, and production services, followed by a list of international program producers. Addresses, telephone numbers, and names of principal executives accompany the listings. Other program-related material includes sections on closed circuit TV and major awards. Major network directories with radio and TV affiliates begin on page F-43. Next are sections on public broadcasting, Canadian networks, regional radio and TV networks, news services, radio format services and music licensing groups. Next comes a directory to radio stations according to format and special programming. Section F concludes with a new section listing the number of radio stations using a particular format for each state, including a chart of format statistics for the United States as a whole on page F-120.

Section G: The Advertising and Marketing section presents directories of advertising agencies handling major radio and TV accounts, media/planning services, U.S. and Canadian station representatives, and Industry Standard Commercial Identification System. Listings include address, telephone number, principal executives and branch offices. The section concludes with tables that provide information about radio and TV audiences, audience composition, and set usage.

Section H: This, the "Technology" section, begins with a list of U.S. and international equipment manufacturers and distributors, and continues with listings of frequency measuring services, videotext operations, teletext operations, videotext and teletext software and hardware suppliers, subcarrier/VBI services, automated-channel suppliers, broadcast automation systems, and a directory of companies providing mobile production services. These listings include addresses, telephone numbers, and names of principal executives. Next are lists of common carriers including land line, microwave & multipoint distribution services. On page H-61 a chart shows the growth of broadcasting, and on page H-63 a chart shows television and radio set sales from 1958-1986. The last part of Section H, beginning on page H-65, is the 1988 Buyer's Guide, the yellow pages, a commercial directory to equipment, programing and broadcast services.

Section I: is divided into three parts-Professional Services, Associations, and Broadcast Education. Part one provides listings of brokers and consultants, station financing firms, research services, technical consultants, law firms and attorneys in communications law, public relations services, talent agents, and employment services. Part two, Associations, begins on page I-55 with the National Association of Broadcasters and includes trade organizations, professional associations and societies, and unions. Broadcast Education, part three, opens on page I-69 with broadcasting schools. The section continues with reviews of recently published books related to the Fifth Estate. It has been expanded to include English-language titles dealing with international broadcasting, arranged geographically. Following that is a list of colleges and universities offering degrees and courses in radio and television. On Page I-79, a new chart derived from the Yearbook radio database breaks down radio programing in the U.S. and Canada, with totals for each format, AM/FM comparisons and commercial/noncommercial comparisons.

Performance and Portability

The S-1 Flyaway – Another Midwest Innovation

It's the world's first hi-performance, truly portable Ku-band satellite uplink. Each of the 13 A.T.A. approved cases weighs less than 100 pounds, and the complete system conforms to international baggage regulations. Checked as excess baggage, the S-1 arrives when you arrive. Economically.

The system utilizes a Vertex 1.8M offset-fed antenna with a transmit gain of 46.6 dbi. This precision, aluminum surfaced reflector antenna meets the 29-25 log  $\theta$  FCC 2° spacing curves.

Two STS phase combined power amplifiers provide fail-safe redundancy and plenty of reserve power. And an Intelsat-approved exciter with half and full transponder transmit capabilities allows you to operate on any available satellite system. The S-1 can be set up fast, on-line in less than 30 minutes. And the S-1's modular electronics make system repair or replacement in the field easy.

Video and audio control and monitoring equipment are included in the standard S-1 package. Options include a 2-way communications channel, and an international receive configuration is available. The S-1 is also easily adaptable for data transmission. Contact Midwest for complete information.

The S-1 Flyaway from Midwest. Built to perform. Packaged to go . . . anywhere.

A description of radio, television, cable and other electronic mass communication media how things evolved, how they work, how they are regulated

One of the most dramatic developments of 20th Century technology has been the use of radio waves—electromagnetic radiations traveling at the speed of light—for communication. Radio communication designed for reception by the public at large is known as "broadcasting." Radio waves of different frequencies (number of cycles per second) can be "tuned." Hence, signals from many sources can be received on a radio set without interfering with each other.

In everyday language, the term "radio" refers to aural (sound) broadcasting, which is received from amplitude-modulated (AM) or frequency-modulated (FM) stations. "Television," another form of radio, is received from stations making both visual and aural transmissions. AM radio, sometimes called standard broadcasting, was the earliest broadcast service and operates on relatively low "medium" frequencies. FM and TV are newer and occupy considerably higher frequency bands.

Radio communication was born of many minds and developments. In the 1860's, a Scottish physicist, James Clerk Maxwell, predicted the existence of radio waves. Heinrich Rudolph Hertz, a German physicist, later demonstrated that rapid variations of electric current can be projected into space in the form of waves similar to those of light and heat. (His contributions have been honored internationally by the adoption of Hertz as a synonym for cycles per second.) In 1895, an Italian engineer, Guglielmo Marconi, transmitted radio signals for a short distance, and at the turn of the century, conducted successful trans-Atlantic tests.

The first practical application of radio was for ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore telegraphic communication. Marine disasters early demonstrated the speed and effectiveness of radiotelegraphy for saving life and property at sea.

This new communication medium was first known as "wireless." American use of the term "radio" is traced to about 1912 when the Navy, feeling that "wireless" was too inclusive, adopted the word "radiotelegraph." The use of the word "broadcast" (originally a way to sow seed) stems from early U.S. naval references to "broadcast" of orders to the fleet. Now it is used to describe radio service to the public.

The origin of the first voice broadcast is a subject for debate. Claims to that distinction range from "Hello, Rainey," said to have been transmitted by Nathan B. Stubblefield to a neighbor, Rainey T. Wells, in a demonstration near Murray, Ky., in 1892, to an impromptu program from Brant Rock, Mass., by Reginald A. Fessenden in 1906, which was picked up by nearby ships.

There were other early experimental audio transmissions. Lee De Forest put singer Enrico Caruso on the air in 1910, and there were trans-Atlantic voice tests by the Bell Telephone Co. at Arlington, Va., in 1915. But it was not until after World War I that regular broadcasting began.

The identity of the "first" broadcasting station also is a matter of conflicting claims. This is due largely to the fact that some pioneer AM broadcast stations developed from experimental operations. Although KDKA Pittsburgh did not receive a regular broadcasting license until Nov. 7, 1921, it furnished programs under a different authorization before that date. Records of the Department of Commerce, which then supervised radio, indicate that the first station to receive a regular broadcasting license was WBZ, Springfield, Mass., on Sept. 15, 1921. (WBZ is now assigned to Boston.)

There was experimental network operation over telephone lines as early as 1922. In that year, WJZ (now WABC) New York and WGY Schenectady, N.Y., broadcast the World Series. Early in 1923, WEAJ (now WNBC) New York and WNAC Boston picked up a football game from Chicago. Later that same year, WEAJ and WGY were connected with KDKA Pittsburgh and KYW Chicago (now Philadelphia) to carry talks made at a dinner in New York. President Coolidge's message to Congress was broadcast by six stations in 1923.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Co., a subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, started the first regular network with 24 stations. For its first coast-to-coast hookup, in 1927, it broadcast a football game. In that same year, the Columbia Broadcasting System, first called the Columbia Phonograph Broadcasting System, was organized.

For some years NBC operated two networks, the Red and the Blue, but when the FCC adopted chain-broadcasting rules in the early 1940's, one organization was prohibited from operating two networks serving the same area at the same time. RCA sold the Blue Network to Edward J. Noble in 1943. It ultimately became the American Broadcasting Co. (In 1968, ABC itself was given a limited exception to the dual-network rule in order to operate four radio networks, each providing a specific service.)

FM and TV broadcasting emerged from their experimental stage just before U.S. entry into World War II. Wartime restrictions retarded expansion of radio facilities, although the emergency produced new techniques and apparatus that are in use today. In the decades following the war, broadcasting expanded domestically, and the development of communication satellites has opened new possibilities for international relay.

Regulation of Broadcasting—The Wireless Ship Act of 1910 applied to use of radio by ships, but the Radio Act of 1912 was the first domestic law for general control of radio. It made the Secretary of Commerce and Labor (then a single department) responsible for licensing radio stations and operators.

Early broadcasting was experimental and, therefore, noncommercial. In 1919, radiotelephone experiments were enabled to operate as "limited commercial stations." In 1922, the wavelength of 360 meters (approximately 830 kilohertz) was assigned for the transmission of "important news items, entertainment, lectures, sermons and similar matter."

Recommendations of the first National Radio Conference in 1922 resulted in further regulations by the Secretary of Commerce. A new type of AM broadcast station came into being, with minimum power of 500 watts and maximum of 1000 watts (1 kilowatt). Two frequencies (750 and 833 khz) were assigned for program transmission.

So rapid was the development of AM broadcasting that, upon recommendation of subsequent National Radio Conferences in 1923 and 1924, the Department of Commerce allocated 550 to 1500 khz for standard broadcast and authorized operating power up to 5000 watts (5 kilowatts).

Increasing numbers of AM stations caused so much interference that, in 1925, a fourth National Radio Conference asked for a limitation on broadcast time and power. The Secretary of Commerce was unable to deal with the situation because court decisions held that the Radio Act of 1912 did not give him this authority. As a result, many broadcasters changed their frequencies and increased their power and operating time at will, regardless of the effect on other stations, producing bedlam on the air.

In 1926, President Coolidge urged Congress to remedy matters. The result was the Dill-White Radio Act of 1927.

Federal Radio Commission—The Radio Act of 1927 created a five-member Federal Radio Commission to issue station licenses, allocate frequency bands to various services, assign specific frequencies to individual stations and control station power. The same act delegated to the Secretary of Commerce authority to inspect radio stations, to examine and license radio operators and to assign radio call signs.

Much of the early effort of the Federal Radio Commission was required to straighten out the confusion in the broadcast band. It was impossible to accommodate the 732 broadcast stations then operating. New regulations caused about 150 of them to surrender their licenses.

Communications Act of 1934—At the request of President Roosevelt, the Secretary of Commerce in 1933 appointed an interdepartmental committee to study electronic communications. The committee recommended that Congress establish a single agency to regulate all interstate and foreign communication by wire and radio, including telegraph, telephone and broadcast. The Communications Act of 1934 created the Federal Communications Commission for this unified regulation. This is the statute under which the FCC operates and which it enforces. Several of its provisions were taken from the earlier Radio Act.

Federal Communications Commission—The FCC began operating on July 11, 1934, as an independent federal agency headed by seven commissioners, who are appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Under legislation passed in 1982, the FCC was cut back to five commissioners in June 1983.

FCC Broadcast Regulation—One of the FCC's major activities is the regulation of broadcasting. This has three phases.

The first is the allocation of space in the radio frequency spectrum to the broadcast services and to many nonbroadcast services which also must be accommodated. In view of the tremendously increased use of radio technology in recent decades, the competing demands for frequencies are among the commission's most pressing problems. Fortunately, as technology has advanced, frequencies higher and higher in the spectrum have become usable. Apart from the frequencies used for broadcasting, frequencies in other portions of the spectrum are allocated for "broadcast auxiliary" use by remote pickup and other transmitters auxiliary to main broadcast stations (see Auxiliary Broadcast Services).

The second phase of regulation is the assignment of stations in each service within the allocated frequency bands, with specific location, frequency and power. The chief consideration, although by no means the only one, is to avoid interference with other stations on the same channel (frequency) or channels adjacent in the spectrum. If an application is granted, the applicant for a new station or for changed facilities receives a construction permit. Later, when the station is built and it is capable of operating as proposed, a license to operate is issued.

The third phase is regulation of existing stations: inspection to see that stations are operating in accordance with FCC rules and technical provisions of their authorizations, modifying the authorizations when necessary, assigning station call letters, licensing transmitter operators, processing requests to assign the station license to another party or transfer control of the licensee corporation and processing applications for renewal of license. At renewal time, the commission reviews the station's record to see if it is operating in the public interest.

The Nature of American Broadcasting

Although educational and other noncommercial stations share the airwaves, the American broadcasting system for the most part is a commercial system. In this respect it is supported by revenues from those who advertise goods or services to the audience. Advertising messages are presented as commercial "spot announcements" before, during and after programs, or as a part of "sponsored" programs.

Broadcast stations are licensed to serve the public interest, convenience and necessity. By law, each license must contain a statement that the licensee does not have any right to operate the station or use the frequency beyond the term of license. The maximum term of license for a radio station is seven years; the maximum term of license for a television station is five years.

Under requirements of the Communications Act, applicants must be legally, technically and financially qualified, and they must show that their proposed operation would be in the public interest. They must be citizens of the United States. Corporations with alien officers or directors or with more than one-fifth of the capital stock controlled by foreign interests may not be licensed.

Penalties for broadcast station violations, depending upon the degree of seriousness, range from reprimands, fines up to $10,000, and short-term probationary licenses to denial of license renewal, or even license revocation. Cease-and-desist orders may also be issued.

In 1965, the commission provided for public inspection of certain records of broadcast stations in the communities they serve. These are mainly duplicate copies of records in the public files of the commission in Washington, and include licenses, records of ownership, applications to the FCC and related

There were 10,244 radio stations operating in the United States at the end of 1987. Of these, 4,902 were commercial AM's, 4,041 were commercial FM's and 1,301 were noncommercial FM's. There were 1,342 operating television stations: 541 commercial VHF's, 476 commercial UHF's, 116 noncommercial VHF's and 209 noncommercial UHF's. Most commercial TV's are network affiliated; approximately 327 operate as independents.

No single entity may own more than 12 stations in each service (AM, FM or TV). In TV, the entity is permitted to own 12 TV stations as long as they don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters who buy interests in stations more than half owned by minorities are able to own up to 14 stations in a service, and are able to reach 30% of the nation's television households through their TV's, as long as two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Newspaper owners may no longer purchase broadcast properties in the same market, nor may radio station owners acquire TV stations there, nor TV owners radio outlets. TV stations may no longer acquire cable TV franchises in the same city, and networks may not own cable systems at all.

In 1986, according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising and the Radio Advertising Bureau, commercial broadcasting had total advertising revenues of approximately $28.6 billion. Television advertising accounted for $21.6 billion (75.5%) of revenues; radio advertising, for approximately $7.0 billion (24.5%). Public broadcasting had a 1986 income of $1.13 billion—16.4% from the federal government.

In 1986 television billings for stations and networks amounted to $8,600,000,000 (national network), $6,500,000,000 (national non-network), and $6,500,000,000 (local), according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising. The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated radio billings for stations and networks were $380,000,000 (national network); $1,332,600,000 (national non-network), and $5,313,100,000 (local).

There are more than 88 million U.S. homes (98% of all homes) with television sets, about 57% of which have more than one set. About 85 million homes have color. It is estimated that about 96% of TV homes can receive UHF signals, and that about 49.8% are linked with cable systems, according to Arbitron Television. (Further data on cable TV appears in "A short course in cable, 1988" on page D-3.) There are an estimated 505 million radio sets in the U.S., 366 million (72%) of them in homes and 139 million (28%) out of homes.

The average American home watches TV for seven hours and five minutes a day, according to A.C. Nielsen statistics for the 1986-1987 season. And the latest study by The Roper Organization (commissioned by the Television Information Office) shows that 66% of the U.S. public turns to TV as the source of most of its news, and that 55% ranks it as the most believable news source.

The average 30-second prime-time network television announcement now costs $100,000 (spots on a top-rated series cost $200,000; low-rated spots average about $80,000). An estimated 120 million people watched the 1988 Super Bowl telecast. Thirty-second announcements during that event cost $650,000. Thirty-second announcements on individual TV stations range from $20,000 in top-rated specials in major markets to as low as $10 in the second-hundred markets. Radio spots cost from $1,000 or more in major markets to less than a dollar in small towns.

material, network affiliation contracts and employment reports.

The commission is forbidden by law from censoring programs. The Communications Act, Section 326, states: "Nothing in this Act shall be understood or construed to give the commission the power of censorship over the radio communications of signals transmitted by any radio station, and no regulation or condition shall be promulgated or fixed by the commission which shall interfere with the right of free speech by means of radio communication."

Fairness—In a highly controversial move, the FCC voted in August 1987 to eliminate the fairness doctrine, which required broadcast stations to air issues of public importance and to present all sides of the issues. While most broadcasters cheered action as one that elevated their First Amendment standing, many members of Congress called for resurrection of doctrine in federal law.

Doctrine stems from a policy on editorializing announced in 1949, supported by a 1959 amendment to the Communications Act, which obligates broadcasters "to afford reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views of public importance." In 1967, the commission adopted specific rules requiring stations to notify persons when personal attacks were made on them in discussion of controversial public issues (with certain exceptions such as newscasts). The same requirement was also applied to station editorials endorsing or opposing a political candidate. These rules were upheld by the Supreme Court in 1969.

Only general fairness doctrine was affected by FCC's August vote. In response to petition from broadcasting organizations, however, FCC is considering dropping fairness "corollaries"—personal attack and political editorializing rules.

Section 315—Section 315 of the Communications Act provides: (a) "If any licensee shall permit any person who is a legally qualified candidate for any public office to use a broadcasting station, he shall afford equal opportunities to all other such candidates for that office in the use of such broadcasting station; provided that such licensee shall have no power of censorship over the material broadcast under the provisions of this section. No obligation is hereby imposed upon any licensee to allow the use of its station by any such candidate ..." (b) The charges made for the use of any broadcast station for any of the purposes set forth in this section shall not exceed the charges made for comparable use of such station for other purposes ..." In 1959, the act was amended to exempt from the equal-time requirement appearances by candidates on newscasts, news interviews and other news coverage.

A problem in connection with this statute is that it requires a station presenting one candidate to afford equal opportunities to "all" other legally qualified candidates for the same office, including, often, some who have no chance of prevailing in the election. In 1960, Congress suspended this requirement for the presidential election, thus making possible the broadcast debates between the Democratic and Republican candidates without stations having to give equal time to the numerous other presidential candidates representing small parties. A similar provision on a permanent basis is contained in legislation passed by Congress in September 1970.

Advertising—The commission does not regulate individual commercials. In considering applications for new stations, renewals and transfers, it does consider whether overcommercialization contrary to the public interest may be involved. Although FCC drop its limits on the amount of advertising in television commercials as part of general deregulation of medium in 1984, it issued inquiry in October 1987 that could lead to reimposition of such limits in children's programming.

Stations and producers of advertising are expected to cooperate in controlling the sound volume (loudness) of commercials.

"Payola" and "rigged quiz shows"—Revelations about programs in the late 1950's led to amendments to the Communications Act in 1960. These made more explicit a station's obligation to make an announcement when money or other consideration is received for the presentation of broadcast material (e.g., money received by a disk jockey for playing a record). They made illegal the presentation of programs purporting to be contests of knowledge or skill where the result is in any way prearranged.

Lotteries, obscenity and fraud—Congress, in January 1975, modified the law to permit the broadcasting of information or advertisements on a lawful state-operated lottery by stations in that state or adjacent states. A month later, the FCC amended its rules to conform to the changes. The U.S. Criminal Code prohibits broadcasting of lotteries other than state-operated. To be regarded as a "lottery," a giveaway arrangement must involve a prize, chance and "consideration." A number of commission and court decisions have dealt with these concepts in particular situations, especially as to what is "consideration." (It has been held, for instance, that having to go in a particular store or listen to a particular program is not "consideration.") The Criminal Code also bars obscene, indecent or profane language, or fraud by wire, radio or television.

Networks—The commission does not license networks as such, only individual stations. Station licensees are subject to the chain broadcasting regulations adopted by the commission in 1941 to further competition in broadcasting. These rules have been supplemented by further regulations adopted from time to time.

Monopoly—One of the commission's foremost concerns is promotion of diversification in the broadcast media, avoiding monopoly or undue concentration of control. Commission rules prohibit the same person or group from operating more than one station in the same service (AM, FM or TV) in the same locality. They also limit to 12 the number of stations in the same service that may be commonly owned in the nation as a whole. The TV stations may not operate in market collectively containing more than 25% of the nation's TV homes. New licensees are now also prohibited from owning more than one full-time station (AM, FM, TV) in the same locality.

Receivers—The advent of "wireless" prompted amateurs and others interested in listening in on Morse code radiotelegraph transmissions to acquire receiving sets. Inexpensive crystal frequency detectors boomed the production of homemade and commercially manufactured receivers. Then the rise of broadcasting aroused public interest in owning sets, battery-operated at first, to receive regular programs. Receivers operated by house current came on the market about 1928. Development of the transistor in 1948 led to their use in place of tubes in sets. Successive stages in TV receiver development have taken sets from black-and-white to color, and VHF-only to all-channel (VHF and UHF) capability (see chapter on TV Broadcast).

The commission does not license receivers. However, it does require manufacturers to limit radiation that may interfere with radio or TV reception.

Call letters—International agreement provides for national identification of a radio station by the first letter or first two letters of its assigned call signal, and for this purpose the alphabet is apportioned among nations. Broadcast stations in the United States use call letters beginning with K or W. Generally, those beginning with K are assigned to stations west of the Mississippi River while W is assigned east of the Mississippi.

During radio's infancy, most of the broadcast stations were in the East. As inland stations developed, the Mississippi River was made the dividing line between K and W calls. However, KDKA Pittsburgh and some other eastern stations authorized before this system went into effect have retained their K calls, and similarly some pioneer stations west of the Mississippi have kept their W calls. Most of the early broadcast call signs contained only three letters. These combinations were soon exhausted and stations were assigned four-letter calls. Since many AM licensees also operate FM and TV stations, a common practice is to use the AM call letters followed by "-FM" or "-TV."

National Defense—In cooperation with military and civil defense agencies, the commission has established the Emergency Broadcast System, based on voluntary participation by the broadcast industry. EBS facilities are for the primary purpose of giving emergency warning and advice to the public in event of attack, but they are put to peacetime use in alerting audiences to serious weather and other emergencies threatening life and property.

Broadcast Operation

Frequencies and Station Assignments—Radio frequencies differ in characteristics, and each service is assigned to a frequency band to suit its needs.

The AM aural service, sometimes called standard broadcast, occupies the band from 535 kHz to 1605 kHz. Radio waves travel with the same speed as light, and are of different "frequencies" (cycles per second) and "wavelengths" (distance between points in successive cycles). "Frequency" and "wavelength" vary inversely with each other. The latter term was formerly used generally to describe a particular radio wave, and still is in some other countries; but in the United States the use of "frequency" is much more common. The usable frequency spectrum has constantly expanded upward with developing technology, so that what were once "high" frequencies are near the low end of the total spectrum used. AM stations are assigned at 10 kHz intervals beginning at 540 kHz, providing 107 frequencies.

FM broadcasting occupies the frequencies from 88 to 108 mhz, with 100 channels of 200 kHz width each, the lowest 20 of them reserved for educational use. Both the center frequency (e.g., "93.1 mhz") and the designated channel number from 201 to 300 are used (e.g., "channel 201" is "88.1 mhz"), although channel numbers are not in popular usage since they are not on FM receivers.

In television, where wider channels are required to carry both picture and sound, each channel is 6 mhz wide. The very high frequency (VHF) portion of the television service occupies the frequencies 54 to 72 mhz (channels 2, 3 and 4), 76 to 88 mhz (channels 5 and 6) and 174 to 216 mhz (channels 7 through 13). The ultra high frequency (UHF) portion of the television service occupies the frequencies from 470 to 890 mhz (channels 14 through 83). Designated channel numbers identify the frequency assignments (e.g., 54-60 mhz is "Channel 2"). There is no "channel 1" in television.

Although "AM" and "FM" are often used to refer to the standard broadcast and FM broadcast services, these terms more properly apply to the methods, "amplitude modulation" and "frequency modulation," used to impress aural or visual intelligence on the carrier wave. The "AM" principle is used not only in the standard broadcast service but also in the picture portion of television and in the international "shortwave" service. The "FM" principle is used both in the FM broadcast service and in the sound portion of television.

In all the broadcast services, the same aural or visual channel can be used in different places if the stations are far enough apart not to interfere with one another or with stations on adjacent or technically related channels. A TV station may be required to "offset" 10 kHz above or below its normal carrier frequency. The channel assigned to such a station is then designated "plus" or "minus" as the case may be. This makes more TV assignments possible and reduces the possibility of interference.

AM and FM systems—Without being too technical, this is how an aural station works:

A person talks into a microphone as if it were a telephone. His voice sets up vibrations of varying intensity and frequency. The lower the pitch the slower the vibration. A cycle, or wavelength, is one complete performance of a vibration.

In the microphone, these vibrations are converted into electrical impulses which are then greatly amplified at the transmitter before being put on the "carrier" wave. The intensity and frequency of the carrier wave are constant. This wave, by itself, does not transmit music or speech, so it is varied to correspond with fluctuations of the speech or music received at the microphone. This is called "modulation."

In AM broadcast, the audio waves are impressed on the carrier wave in a manner to cause its amplitude (or power) to vary with the audio waves. The frequency of the carrier remains constant. This is known as amplitude modulation. In frequency modulation (FM), the amplitude remains unchanged but the frequency is varied in a manner corresponding to the voice or music to be transmitted.

These modulated waves radiate from the antenna tower at approximately 186,000 miles per second (the speed of light). Some of them follow the contour of the ground and are called "groundwaves." Others dart upward and are called "skywaves." At night, the skywave portions of transmissions in the standard broadcast (AM) frequencies are reflected back to earth by electrical particles in the "ionosphere" portion of the atmosphere. This gives the listener a choice of more distant AM stations at night, but also increases interference. Daytime reception is largely dependent upon groundwaves.

Radio waves may pass through buildings and other objects but are subject to absorption or interference. As in the case of ripples on water, radio vibrations weaken with distance. Seasonal disturbances and sunspot periods can throw them off course and cause "freak" reception.

AM broadcast stations use "medium waves." That is to say, they transmit 540,000 to 1,600,000 waves a second, or 540 to 1600 KHz. At 540,000 waves a second, the distance between waves is approximately 1,800 feet.

The so-called "shortwave" (international long-distance) broadcast stations transmit in the frequency range 6 mhz to 25 mhz. These waves are sent out one after another so rapidly that the distance between their crests (wave length) is only about 37 to 150 feet.

FM and TV stations, broadcasting in the very high and ultra high frequencies, send out even shorter, or very short, waves. (The word "shortwave" came into use before there was technology to use these other parts of the spectrum.)

The modulated radio wave from the radio station is picked up by the home receiving antenna. In other words, the wave sets up in the receiving antenna a current having the same frequency characteristics as the one transmitted. In the receiver, the audio and carrier waves are separated by a device called a detector or demodulator. The carrier wave, no longer needed, is dissipated while the audio wave is relayed to the loud speaker where it is transformed back into the sound that is heard by the listener. (Television operation is discussed in TV Broadcast.)

Stereophonic Service—Stereophony is not really a 20th Century innovation but dates back to experiments performed over wire lines by telephone engineers in the 1880's. Even at that time, contemporary accounts spoke of being able to "localize" a singer's position on an opera stage by virtue of the signal strength in either the right or left telephone. Over the next few decades, there were other experiments in transmitting binaural sound, but the general impetus to development came only with post-World War II technology in which multiplexing techniques were applied to FM broadcasting. In 1959, the National Stereophonic Radio Committee was created to examine the many proposed systems of FM stereo and submit a final recommendation to the commission. In the summer of 1960, six systems were field tested over KDKA-FM (now WPNT) Pittsburgh, with receivers set up at Uniontown, Pa. The system of stereo transmission proposed by the General Electric Co. and the Zenith Corp. was adopted, with broadcasting authorized to start on June 1, 1961. The FCC authorized AM stereo in 1982, but refused to select a standard from among five incompatible systems. In July 1982, KOKA(AM) Pittsburgh and KTSA (AM) San Antonio, Tex., began AM stereo programming with a Kahn/Hazeltine system, the first to win FCC type acceptance. By late 1987, only two systems, those of Motorola and Kahn/Hazeltine, continued to vie to win marketplace acceptance and became the nation's de facto standard.

Television stereo was approved by the FCC in spring 1984. Although the FCC did not adopt a single standard, it did provide interference protection for an industry committee-selected Zenith dbx transmission noise reduction system. The authorization allowed not only for stereocasts, but also a second audio program channel for bilingual or narrative broadcasts and a third channel for professional uses. Noncommercial WTTW(TV) Chicago became the first stereo TV broadcaster in August 1984. Within one year, 100 stations were providing multichannel sound. According to industry estimates, the number had grown to nearly 400 by the end of 1987.

Relay of Broadcasts—Simultaneous relay of broadcasting, including networks, depends upon wire, cable, satellites or radio connecting facilities (common carrier or private). Most radio network programs are sent over satellites. For local broadcasts, stations usually employ wire connections or radio links between studio and transmitter (see Auxiliary Broadcast Services).

Broadcast programs can also be picked out of the air for rebroadcast. TV, because of its characteristics, cannot be sent over ordinary wire lines but depends upon coaxial cable, satellite or microwave relay.

Transmitting Antennas—In the AM service, antenna height above ground is not usually a matter of much importance. The entire antenna structure acts as the antenna and usually varies in height with the frequency of the transmission. Few AM antennas exceed 1,000 feet in height and most are considerably less. By contrast, in FM and TV, where transmission follows "line of sight," service depends on the location of the receiver in relation to the transmitting antenna. Here, antenna height is extremely important. While FM and TV antennas themselves are short, they are often situated, for greater overall height, atop natural or man-made structures, such as tall buildings, mountain tops, or tall towers specifically built for this purpose.

In the interest of safe air navigation, authorizations for broadcast transmitting antennas must usually be coordinated with the Federal Aviation Administration. Those over a certain height (usually 200 feet) must be painted and lighted. To further minimize the hazard to air traffic, shared use of tall towers, or location of all tall antennas of a given area on an "antenna farm" is encouraged.

Radio and TV broadcasters must also limit public and occupational exposure to radiofrequency radiation emissions from antenna towers. Following enactment of new regulations by the FCC in January 1986, exposure levels will be routinely considered for construction permits of new or modified facilities and for renewal applications. The rules also apply to TV translators, low power TV, satellite earth station transmitters and experimental stations.

"Directional antennas" consist of more than one radiating elements (the tower in AM), with phasing of the radiation from a series of towers so arranged that radiations cancel each other in some directions and reinforce each other in other directions. Sometimes they are used to increase radiation and service in a particular direction. More commonly, the purpose is to restrict radiation in one or more directions, usually to avoid interference to other stations.

As AM stations began to multiply on shared channels, it became necessary to employ directional antennas to prevent interference. Since 1937, directional antennas have helped new stations squeeze into the congested AM broadcast band. Most full-time (day and night) AM stations operate directionally at night. Directional antenna arrays can produce "figure eight" and more complicated service patterns. A complete array may include 12 towers. Directional antennas also are used in international communication and microwave relay to beam transmissions to particular points. Some FM and TV stations now use directional antennas.

AM Broadcast

Amplitude modulation is the oldest system of program transmission. The pioneer AM broadcast service started operation on the low frequencies it still uses now 535 to 1605 khz.

AM broadcast stations use power of 250 w to 50 kw (50,000 w)—the maximum power permitted by the commission.

Classes of AM Stations—There are four major AM classes:

Class I stations operate on "clear" channels and usually with 50 kw power (never less than 10 kw) to serve remote rural areas as well as large centers of population. The U.S. has Class I priority on 45 clear channels. (Other North American countries have their own Class I priorities, some shared by the U.S.) There are only one or two Class I stations on each clear channel.

A Class II station is a secondary station on a clear channel, operating with a power of 250 w to 50 kw. It serves a population center and an adjacent rural area, and is operated so as not to interfere with the extensive services rendered by major clear channel stations (both U.S. and foreign). There are 29 channels on which Class II stations may operate.

A Class III station shares a "regional" channel with numerous similar stations, using power of 500 w to 5 kw to serve a center of population and an adjacent rural area. There are 41 regional channels and more than 2,000 Class III stations.

A Class IV station operates on a "local" channel (shared by many similar stations elsewhere), employing a maximum power of 1 kw day and 250 w night. There are six local channels, each occupied by 150 or more stations.

"Clear channels" are frequencies set apart by international agreement for use primarily by high-powered stations designed to serve wide areas with ground-wave and, at night, skywave service, particularly remote rural areas. Listeners living outside populous communities depend on the skywave signals of distant clear-channel stations for night-time AM service. The signals of Class I stations receive a high degree of protection from interference to make this wide service possible.

Day and Night Service—Of the two types of signals—groundwave and skywave—groundwave service is steadier, more reliable and is called "primary" service. Skywave or "secondary" service is available at night because skywave signals, lost in the daylight, are reflected from the ionosphere. Since skywaves cover tremendous distances, Class I stations can render skywave service across 700 miles or more. This service is subject to "fading," varying with changes in such factors as time of day, weather, latitude, atmospheric noise and sunspot activity, hence the name "secondary." Because of the high power and extent of protection required for skywave signals to afford useful service, only Class I stations are authorized for skywave service.

Because skywave transmission is a factor in the AM frequencies at night, the number of AM stations operating at night must be limited. Therefore, slightly more than half of U.S. AM stations are licensed for daytime-only operation, sunrise to sunset, although on many frequencies most of them are also permitted to operate, usually with reduced power, starting at 6 a.m. when that is before sunrise (so-called "pre-sunrise" operation). More than 2,000 such stations may operate up to two hours after local sunset.

In the early 1960s, the AM band was experiencing congestion and interference. At the same time, some service needs, such as night-time primary service to large portions of the country, were not being met. Therefore, in 1964, the assignment rules for new AM stations, or for more powerful facilities, were tightened to prevent interference and preserve the AM potential for more efficient use.

Facilities authorized from 1964 to 1968 involved minimal interference and provided the first local radio outlets for a number of communities. Still, there were unfulfilled service needs, particularly at night, and so in July 1968, the commission stopped accepting AM applications while it studied how to utilize the limited potential for new stations in the AM band. At that time there were 4,215 AM stations on the air in this country; another 100 that had been previously authorized were expected to come on the air in succeeding months. There were more than twice as many AM as FM stations on the air.

The next year, new rules were proposed under which the commission would, to a greater extent, regard AM and FM as a single aural service. New AM stations would be authorized only where they would bring a primary service to a substantial area not receiving such service from existing AM or FM stations, and would not be granted if an FM channel were available which would bring the same service benefits. FM development would be encouraged because of technical qualities of this service, including ample nighttime coverage and relative lack of interference when new stations were added.

FM Broadcast

Frequency modulation broadcast has several advantages over the older amplitude modulation. FM has higher fidelity characteristics and is freer of static, fading and background overlapping of other stations.

FM's greater tonal range is due primarily to the fact that it uses a wider channel than that employed for AM broadcast. Then, too, it occupies a higher portion of the radio spectrum where there is less static and other noise than at lower frequencies. FM receivers have the particular ability to suppress weaker stations and other interference.

Since the frequencies on which FM operates do not ordinarily reflect back to earth from ionospheric layers (in skywaves), it is possible for many scattered FM stations to use the same frequency without interference, night or day, unlike the AM band.

History—The principle of frequency modulation has long been known, but its advantages for broadcasting were not realized until shortly before World War II. Largely as a result of interest evoked by extensive developmental work by Edwin H. Armstrong in the 1930's, the commission authorized increased FM experimentation, and in 1940, after extensive public hearings, provided for FM operation to start Jan. 1, 1941. It set apart 35 channels for commercial and five channels for noncommercial educational FM.

On Oct. 31, 1940, the commission granted construction permits for the first 15 FM stations. By the end of that year, there were 10 more. Though all radio construction was frozen during World War II, more than 40 prewar FM stations continued to serve some 400,000 receivers.

FM stations were initially assigned call letters with numerals added, but in 1943 the present letter system was adopted. There is optional use of the suffix "FM" to distinguish these stations from jointly operated AM stations.

Because of skywave interference experienced on the original FM band of 42-50 mhz per second, the commission in 1945 moved FM to its present higher and less vulnerable position of 88-108 mhz. At the same time, it increased the number of channels to 100, providing 80 for commercial and 20 for noncommercial educational use.

FM Zones and Classes—In 1962, the commission revised its commercial FM rules to divide the country into three zones (instead of the previous two). Zone I includes part or all of 18 northeastern states, plus the District of Columbia; Zone I-A is limited to Southern California, and Zone II includes the rest of the country.

Three classes of commercial FM stations (instead of the previous two) were created. Class A stations are assigned to all zones; Class B stations are assigned to Zones I and I-A, and Class C stations are assigned to Zone II.

Class A stations are low-powered with a maximum of 3 kw effective radiated power. The maximum power for Class B stations is 50 kw and for Class C, 100 kw.

An important factor in FM operation is the height of the antenna above surrounding terrain (see earlier section on Transmitting Antennas, line-of-sight transmission). Therefore, stations have maximum antenna heights in relation to power: 300 feet above average terrain for Class A, 500 feet for Class B and 2,000 feet for Class C. If the antenna height above average terrain is greater, power must be reduced commensurately. Minimum power requirements are also prescribed.

FM reception varies with location of the receiver in relation to the transmitting antenna. With maximum power and antenna height, good service extends about 15 miles for Class A stations, 33 miles for Class B, and 64 miles for Class C. The rules also include minimum mileage separations between stations on the same or adjacent channels. This is to protect the service from interference.

Subsidiary FM Service—To aid FM broadcasters, the commission in 1955 enabled them to apply for subsidiary communications authorizations for supplemental service such as background music. Sometimes called "functional music," this specialized service is offered to stores, factories and other business subscribers.

Originally, subsidiary communications were permitted on a simplex basis, the station devoting part of the time on its channel to regular broadcasting and part to this specialized service. Later, rules were adopted requiring subsidiary communications to be on a multiplex basis, that is, using one or more subchannels with the main channel used for regular broadcasting. The FCC permits FM broadcasters to use their subcarriers for a broad variety of new services.

TV Broadcast

Television broadcasting is synchronous transmission of visual and aural programs. The picture phase is accomplished by sending a rapid succession of electrical impulses which the receiver transforms into scenes and images. Here is a brief explanation of a complex process.

Monochrome—The scene to be televised is focused on a special tube in the television camera which has a small "screen" covered with about 367,000 microscopic dots of a special photo-sensitive substance. This can be likened to a tiny motion picture screen and is called a "mosaic." The varying light from each part of the scene being televised falls upon these dots and gives them an electrical charge, the strength depending upon the amount of light falling upon the individual dots. Thus each dot becomes a tiny storage battery and the scene is formed in a pattern of electrical charges on the mosaic.

The mosaic is "scanned" by a tiny beam of electrons, no larger than the head of a pin, moving from left to right and progressing downward (just as the printed page is read by the human eye). This complete process is repeated 60 times per second, and the horizontal lines of alternate scanning are interlaced so that 30 complete pictures or "frames" composed of 525 horizontal lines are produced each second.

As the electron beam strikes each dot on the mosaic, the dot is discharged through the electron beam and the electrical impulses produced are used to modulate the signals of the TV transmitter. Each time the dots are discharged by the electron beam they are recharged by the light produced by the succeeding scene falling upon them. The succession of individual "still" scenes creates the illusion of motion just as in the case of motion pictures made on film.

The reproduction by the TV receiver of the pictures transmitted is just the reverse of the transmission. The incoming succession of electrical impulses is separated from the "carrier" and, after amplification, is impressed on the picture tube grid and progresses downward on the face of the picture tube.

The face of the tube is coated with a material which fluoresces or gives off light at the point where it is struck by the electron beam. In the absence of a television signal, the whole face of the picture tube is illuminated equally by a series of closely spaced horizontal lines. When a TV signal is placed on the grid of the picture tube, it controls the strength of the electron beam and hence the amount of light on the face of the tube. If the scanning of the electron beam in the picture tube is kept in perfect step with the scanning of the electron beam in the TV camera, the picture tube will reproduce the lights and shadows of the subject scene, and the succession of such scenes produces the illusion of motion.

In brief, the picture seen by the viewer is actually produced by a flickering spot of light moving rapidly across and down the face of the picture tube. The viewer sees the "whole" picture because the screen continues to glow for a tiny fraction of a second after the electron beam has passed. Coupled with the retentive ability of the eye, this creates the illusion that the picture is there all the time. The high rate of repetition of the picture produced by the beam minimizes flicker and lends smoothness to motion.

The TV transmitter is, in effect, two separate units. One sends out the picture and the other the sound. Visual transmission is by amplitude modulation. Sound transmission is by frequency modulation.

Color—In color TV, a brightness component is transmitted in much the same manner as the black-and-white picture signal is sent. In addition, a color component is transmitted at the same time on a subcarrier frequency located between the visual and aural carrier frequencies.

Color standards are based on a simultaneous system of color transmission. Signals representing red, blue and green are transmitted simultaneously. These are the "primary colors," and when they are combined in various amounts, they produce all other colors. A magnifying-glass examination of the scene on a receiver will reveal that it is made up only of red, blue and green dots, no matter what color is being shown. Even scenes not transmitted in color and seen as varying shades of gray to white are made up of red, blue and green dots.

Only color receivers have the special picture tubes and the necessary circuitry to illuminate the colored dots. Under the "compatible color" system, color programs can be received in black-and-white on monochrome sets, and black-and-white programs can be received as they are on color sets.

TV History—Men of many lands contributed to the development of television. Like aural radio, TV was made possible by electronic discoveries in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. In 1884, Paul Nipkow, a German, patented a scanning disk for transmitting pictures by wireless. In this country, Charles F. Jenkins began his study of the subject about 1890. The English physicist, E.E. Fournier d'Albe, conducted experiments in the early 1900's. In 1915, Marconi predicted "visible telephone."

In 1923, physicist Vladimir Zworykin, a Russian-born American, applied for a patent on the iconoscope camera tube. In the years following, there were experiments by E.F.W. Alexanderson and Philo T. Farnsworth in this country and John L. Baird in England. An experimental TV program, in which Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover participated, was sent by wire between New York and Washington by the Bell Telephone Laboratories in 1927. The next year Bell experimentally televised outdoor programs.

The Federal Radio Commission (predecessor of the Federal Communications Commission) reported that a few broadcast stations were experimenting with television in 1928. In that year, WGY Schenectady, N.Y., broadcast the first TV drama. Large-screen TV was demonstrated by Radio Corp. of America (now RCA Corp.) at a New York theater in 1930. RCA tested outdoor TV pickup at Camden, N.J., in 1936.

By 1937, there were 17 experimental TV stations operating. The first incumbent U.S. President seen on TV was Franklin D. Roosevelt, when he opened the New York World's Fair in 1939. That year saw the first telecast of a major league baseball game, a college football game and a professional boxing match. In 1940, the Republican and Democratic conventions were first televised. Pioneer use of coaxial cable for long-distance relay was made for the Republican convention.

The first President's message to Congress over network TV was that of Harry S. Truman in 1950. The first TV debate between presidential candidates was in 1960 between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon. The first presidential message to Congress televised in color was that of President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1966.

Early Commercial Operation—The Journal Co. of Milwaukee, now licensee of WTMJ-TV, filed the first application to broadcast TV on a commercial basis. At a 1940 hearing the FCC found industry divided on technology and standards, but a committee appointed to work on the questions reached agreement on the present standards of 525 lines and 30 frames per second, and on April 30, 1941, the commission authorized commercial TV operations to start the following July 1 on 10 commercial stations which were on the air by May 1942, six continuing during the war.

In 1945 the commission allocated 13 VHF channels between 44 and 216 mhz for commercial television, but it noted that there was not enough spectrum space below 300 mhz for an adequate nationwide system. Twelve of the VHF channels had to be shared with nonbroadcast two-way radio services. To prepare for TV expansion, the UHF frequencies between 480 and 920 mhz were made available for experimental TV and those between 1245 and 1325 mhz for TV relay.

In 1948, because of interference with commercial TV, the VHF sharing was ended. TV channel 1 (44-50 mhz) was deleted and assigned to land mobile or two-way radio service.

TV Proceedings 1948-1951—As the commission had foreseen, it was increasingly evident that the available channels were too few for nationwide service. On Sept. 30, 1948, the commission stopped granting new TV applications in order to study the situation. This was the so-called TV "freeze" order. On July 11, 1949, comprehensive changes were proposed to improve and extend TV service. These included engineering standards, opening UHF channels for TV, consideration of color systems, reservation of channels for noncommercial educational use and a national assignment plan for all channels.

Color was considered first. Three competitive systems were offered for commission consideration. They were the "field sequential" system of Columbia Broadcasting System, the RCA "dot sequential" system and the Color Television Inc. "line sequential" system. The commission found that the field sequential system was the only one that met its criteria for color operation, even though this system could not be received in monochrome on existing receivers (the others claimed theirs could.) This method of operation was adopted in 1950, but the door was left open for development of a better system.

CBS began limited color broadcasts on June 25, 1951, but ran into problems. Because of a materials shortage, Defense Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson, in October 1951, requested the suspension of manufacture of color TV sets for the public and interest in the field sequential system lagged.

Thereafter, new standards for "compatible color," receivable both in color and monochrome, were developed by RCA and advocated by the industry through its National Television System Committee. These standards were adopted by the commission on Dec. 17, 1953.

Freeze Lifted 1952—On April 14, 1952, the commission reopened TV to expansion. It added 70 UHF channels (between 470 and 890 mhz) to the 12 VHF channels (54-216 mhz). It adopted a table making more than 2,000 channel assignments to nearly 1,300 communities. These included 242 assignments for noncommercial educational use.

The minimum effective radiated visual power of TV stations was set at 100 w. The maximum varies with antenna height. (No minimum height above average terrain is specified.) On VHF channels 2-6, maximum power is 100 kw; on channels 7-13 it is 316 kw; and on UHF channels 14-83 it is 5000 kw. With very high antennas, the amount of power is reduced.

Separation of stations on the same channels is determined by three geographic zones. In Zone I, minimum co-channel separation is 170 miles for VHF channels and 155 for UHF. This zone covers Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, District of Columbia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and parts of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Michigan and Wisconsin.

In Zone II, minimum co-channel separation is 190 miles for VHF and 175 miles for UHF channels. This zone includes Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Arkansas, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, North and South Dakota, Utah, Idaho, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Colorado, Oregon, Washington, California, Alaska, Hawaii and parts of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Texas.

In Zone III, the separation is 220 miles for VHF and 205 miles for UHF channels. This zone includes Florida and parts of Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

The first commercial TV grants after the freeze were made July 11, 1952, to three Denver stations. The first commercial UHF station to go on the air was KPTV Portland, Ore., on Sept. 20, 1952.

TV Service—Commercial TV stations are required to broadcast at least 28 hours a week, at least two hours every day, although they are allowed a shorter schedule when they begin operation.

TV service may be expanded to new areas through use of "satellite" stations—regular stations largely rebroadcasting the programs of parent stations—and "translators," lower power automatic installations which pick up and rebroadcast programs of parent stations on a different frequency. The rules also provide that UHF stations may use "boosters," low-power stations rebroadcasting on the same frequency, to fill in "shadow" areas within their normal service areas. These have not proved satisfactory and none are now in operation. Rebroadcasting requires the consent of the originating stations.

Unlike AM networking over ordinary telephone wires, TV networking requires special relay adjuncts. Network TV was made possible in large measure by the development of coaxial cable and microwave relay facilities. As early as 1937, motion pictures were televised and sent over the coaxial cable link between New York and Philadelphia. Network operation was begun by WNBT (now WNBC-TV) New York City; WRGB Schenectady, and WPTZ (now KYW-TV) Philadelphia in 1944.

Regular coaxial-cable relay service was inaugurated between Washington and New York in 1946. The following year microwave relay service was extended as far as Boston. A Midwestern relay system, opened in 1948, was joined with the Eastern system in 1949. The first link in the transcontinental relay system was opened between New York and Chicago in 1950. It reached San Francisco the following year and on Sept. 4, 1951, it carried telecasts of the Japanese peace treaty conference there.

Today, all three broadcast networks are using satellites to distribute programming to many of their affiliates. Of the three, NBC has the most extensive satellite network. It serves directly via satellite more than 170 of its affiliates.

UHF Development—Economic and technical problems have impeded full utilization of the UHF channels. Because of the large number of VHF-only receivers originally in use, advertisers preferred VHF stations which limited UHF revenues.

In 1956, the commission outlined plans to promote comparable TV facilities as a means of extending service throughout the nation. In the years following, it considered and rejected the idea of moving all or most of TV to the UHF band. It sought the cooperation of industry to find ways to increase the range of UHF stations. It made certain areas all-UHF and took other steps to put UHF and VHF on a more competitive basis. In 1966, it revised the table of channel assignments to make additional UHF assignments.

Public Broadcasting

AM—Educational institutions were among the pioneers in experimental broadcasting, and held many early AM licenses.

By 1925, educational groups had 171 AM licenses. For various reasons, notably the increased competition from commercial broadcasting, most of these stations were off the air by 1934 when the FCC was created. However, there are still two dozen educational stations operating in the AM broadcast band, although there are no longer any educational allocations there (see section on FM below).

As directed by Section 307(c) of the Communications Act, the commission in 1934 studied a proposal that Congress allocate fixed percentages of radio facilities for nonprofit programs. On Jan. 22, 1935, the FCC recommended against such a statutory allocation but recognized the need for extending broadcasting to education. It expressed its intention "actively to assist the determination of the rightful place of broadcasting in education and to see that it is used in that place."

FM Educational Stations—When regular FM broadcasting was authorized in 1941, five channels were authorized for noncommercial educational use as a substitution for AM allocations previously made to education.

In 1945, as part of an extensive revision of frequency allocations, the commission reserved 20 FM channels between 88 and 92 mhz for noncommercial educational FM stations. This part of the FM band is contiguous to the commercial portion, and FM receivers can tune both noncommercial and commercial stations. Since then, the number of noncommercial educational FM stations has grown slowly but steadily.

In 1948 the commission authorized 10 w operation on educational FM channels. With such low-power equipment, easily installed and operated, schools may broadcast to a limited area of two to five miles for an outlay of a few thousand dollars. High-power equipment may be added when desired. In 1951, as a further aid, the commission authorized remote control operation of low-power educational stations. Approximately half of all educational FM stations use power of 10 w.

Educational FM stations traditionally have been assigned on an individual-application "demand" basis, as AM stations are assigned. To permit planned development of the 20 reserved channels, it is proposed to adopt a table of assignments like that adopted in 1963 for commercial FM channels to allocate specific frequencies to communities.

Stations in the educational FM service are licensed principally to school systems, colleges and universities for student-teacher programs as well as for public education and information.

TV Educational Stations—The commission allocated TV facilities for noncommercial educational use after a lengthy study in the general television proceedings (see Broadcast). It determined that "the need for noncommercial educational stations has been amply demonstrated," that it would take longer for the educational service to be developed than for the commercial service, and that special channels should be reserved. Consequently, in 1952, channel assignments were made to 242 communities exclusively for noncommercial educational stations. Forty-six of these were made to primary educational centers. Of the total 242 channels, 80 were VHF and 162 UHF. There have been more assignments since. In 1966, a revised table of channel assignments was adopted for UHF, containing many more educational assignments than before. The new table contains altogether over 615 educational TV assignments in the mainland states, more than a third of all channel assignments.

The first educational TV station to go on the air was KUHT Houston on May 25, 1953. The first state educational TV network was established in Alabama on April 28, 1955.

A 1962 law enabled the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to make matching federal grants of money to build educational TV stations, and a 1967 law extended these benefits to educational radio.

Public broadcasting in its present form emerged with the passage of the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967. That act authorized the establishment of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, whose primary function is to funnel federal funds to qualified noncommercial licensees.

National Public Radio was established in 1971 to provide interconnection and programming service for public radio stations. The Public Broadcasting Service started operating in 1970. PBS provides interconnection and distributes programming to public television stations.

Emerging Technologies

Satellites—In presenting programmers and common carriers with a relatively inexpensive alternative for transmitting their services nationally, satellites have probably done more to speed the communications revolution than any other technology.

A satellite, in essence, is a radio relay station in the sky, one that receives transmissions from the earth, then retransmits them back to receiving stations on the ground. The satellite's actual transmitter/receivers are called transponders; they are generally able to relay a single color TV channel (or 1,000 telephone conversations) at any one time, but methods for increasing that capacity are being developed. Most communications satellites have either 16 or 24 transponders.

Communications satellites are launched into positions 22,300 feet above the equator, where they orbit the earth at the same rate the earth is rotating, which makes them appear to be stationary.

The first live trans-Atlantic telecast was relayed by Telstar 1 on July 10, 1962. That same year's Communications Satellite Act provided for the U.S. portion of a global satellite system that would be operated by the Communications Satellite Corp., a private corporation subject to federal regulation. (Comsat is owned partly by common carriers and partly by the public.)

Intelsat I on April 2, 1965, became the first commercial satellite to be put into orbit with its foreign partners in the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium. During the following year, some 80 hours of television were transmitted between the U.S. and Europe.

The real rush for satellite video transmission didn't begin until after 1975, when Time Inc.'s Home Box Office began transmitting its pay-TV programming over RCA's Satcom I to cable systems scattered across the country. Over the past 10 years, scores of companies have followed HBO's lead. By late last year, most of the transponders on three satellites were dedicated to the distribution of cable programming.

Cable programmers aren't alone in realizing the benefits of satellite distribution. The Public Broadcasting Service started transmitting programming via satellite to its noncommercial affiliates in 1978, and the major commercial networks have switched to satellites for the distribution of their programming as well.

In 1982 the FCC authorized a new service that would use a new generation of high-powered direct-broadcast satellites (DBS) to distribute programming directly to consumers' homes. Although DBS service has yet to materialize, more than 1.5 million homes have installed earth stations, allowing them to receive all programming transmitted via satellite. The "dish owners" have had to pay to receive some of the cable networks—those that started scrambling their satellite signals in 1986.

Although the FCC has traditionally regulated domestic satellites as common carriers, it has been loosening its grasp. In 1982 the commission permitted some operators to sell transponders on their satellites (they previously have had to lease those on a first-come, first-served basis, at rates approved by the FCC). The commission decided to reduce orbital spacing between satellites to two degrees. This move will be phased in over several years and will permit more satellites to be launched.

Cable Television—Cable TV got its start as CATV (community antenna television) in the late 1940's when entrepreneurs seized upon it as a method for boosting television receiver sales in areas that were underserved or unserved by standard broadcast stations. According to legend, one backwoods Pennsylvania appliance dealer rigged a large antenna on a mountaintop, then connected it to homes in the area with a network of wires. The gentleman's system reportedly did stimulate receiver sales, and his idea caught on.

After it was discovered that CATV could present consumers with better reception and could, via microwave relay stations, be used to import television signals from distant television stations CATV systems began sprouting up in areas that already were served, by local broadcast stations.

During the 1960's, equipment was developed that increased the capacity of CATV systems to 20 channels. Further advancements in the early 1970's permitted the transmission of more than 100 channels over dual-cable systems.

Attempts to wire the major urban areas in the early 1970's largely fell flat, with major companies discovering that laying coaxial cable in cities was far more expensive than they thought and that there wasn't an overwhelming demand for CATV in those areas, which were already well served by standard broadcast stations.

Demand for cable increased dramatically, however, in the mid-1970's when Time Inc.'s Home Box Office leased a transponder on RCA's Satcom I to distribute its pay-TV service. Other entrepreneurs followed HBO's lead, distributing programming of their own, via satellite, and cable started looking far more attractive to consumers in suburban and urban areas. By the early 1980's, most cities were either wired or franchising battles were being fought for the right to wire them.

According to A.C. Nielsen, as of November 1987, 44.9 million or 50.5% of the nation's television households subscribed to basic cable service.

The FCC started regulating cable TV in April 1965, adopting rules for CATV systems served by microwave. The commission required CATV operators to carry the signals of local stations and to refrain from duplicating the programs of local stations (by carrying other stations broadcasting the same programs) within 15 days of the local broadcast.

In 1966, the commission required all cable TV systems to carry local and nearby stations (the must-carry rules), and to protect their programs from duplications. Nonetheless, the 15-day protection requirement was repealed, and cable operators were required to provide that protection only on the day of the broadcast. In 1969, the broadcast requirements of fairness and sponsor identification were extended to cable.

In 1972, the FCC began deregulating cable, dropping most of its cable regulations over the next 10 years. In 1980, the FCC eliminated its distant-signal and syndicated exclusivity rules, and the Court of Appeals in New York upheld that decision the following year. In July 1985, The Court of Appeals in Washington repealed the must-carry rules. In August 1986, the FCC issued new rules which are much less burdensome on cable operators. Whether they will pass constitutional muster remains to be seen.

Subscription television (STV)—The major difference between STV and conventional TV is that you have to pay for the former.

STV stations are standard VHF or UHF television stations that scramble their signals. The STV operator then charges customers a fee for a decoder to decipher the scrambled signals.

Authorized in December 1968, STV did not really get off the ground until the late 1970's. It grew rapidly for a few years, and counted about 1.4 million subscribers in the summer of 1982. But it's been in a steep decline ever since, the victim of piracy and stiff competition from cable systems offering more channels for less money. Today, there are only a few stations, some of them low-power (see below), still offering an STV service.

Low-power television (LPTV)—LPTV stations are essentially television translator stations (stations that have traditionally been limited to rebroadcasting the signals of full-service stations) that are permitted to originate programming.

In authorizing the service in 1982, the FCC estimated that as many as 4,000 new stations would be spawned by the rules, adding to the more than 4,000 existing translators that can rise to LPTV status simply by notifying the FCC. However, the new medium has gotten off to a slow start, raising doubts about whether it will ever meet the FCC's original expectations. According to the FCC, as of November 1987, there were 409 licensed LPTV stations and another 219 with construction permits.

Under the rules, LPTV stations were given "secondary status," which essentially means they can't interfere with full-power stations. They were also limited to 10 watts VHF and 1,000 watts UHF.

The new stations have few regulatory obligations, and there are no cross-ownership or multiple-ownership restrictions. The stations must observe statutory prohibitions against broadcast of obscenities and lotteries; however, they only have limited equal time and fairness doctrine obligations.

Multipoint Distribution Service (MDS)—An MDS system uses omnidirectional microwave signals in the 2 ghz band to transmit video, data, text or other services to subscribers, who must be equipped with special antennas to receive the signals. It's regulated as a common carrier, and its operators generally lease most of their station time to pay-movie entrepreneurs who provide programming to hotels, apartment buildings and homes. To date, MDS has not amounted to very much, primarily because it is a single-channel service trying to compete in the multichannel cable environment. But having gotten some help from the FCC, MDS may yet become a significant factor on the pay television scene.

In 1983 the FCC reallocated eight channels from the underused Instructional Television Fixed Service to MDS, creating, in effect, a new service, which has come to be called wireless cable. The FCC also said pay television could lease excess channel capacity from ITFS broadcasters. Some observers believe that pay television will be able to compete with cable in some markets by offering similar programming over a mix of MDS and ITFS channels.

Despite difficulties in lining up programming, wireless cable services, combining MDS and ITFS channels, have been launched in several markets, including New York and Cleveland. Industry is now watching to see if wireless cable can preempt or compete with conventional cable.

Instructional Television Fixed Service (ITFS)—ITFS is another 2 ghz service that uses microwave signals to transmit programming. However, FCC rules reserve the ITFS channels for non-profit groups that intend to use a "substantial" portion of their channel capacity for the broadcast of instructional, cultural or other educational programming.

Perhaps the biggest user of ITFS frequencies is the Catholic Church, which uses the channels extensively to expand the reach of teachers in its schools.

According to the FCC, in late 1986 there were 250 ITFS licensees (and many of those control blocks of four channels) and 114 permittees.

Direct Broadcast Satellites (DBS)—This new generation of high-power satellites was authorized in the summer of 1982, opening the way for widespread, direct-to-home satellite broadcasting. However, the enormous financial risks involved in building the satellite and launching a national DBS service have cast doubt on whether the satellite broadcasting service will ever materialize in U.S.

DBS satellites work the same way cable satellites do: they receive signals from earth, then retransmit them back to the ground. But since they operate with higher power, their signals can be received with much smaller, and therefore much more affordable, earth stations.

The FCC created the high-power DBS service in June 1982, allocating 500 mhz (12.2-12.7 ghz) and granting construction permits to eight applicants.

In setting the high-power DBS rules, FCC gave broad leeway to the applicants to determine what sorts of services they want to offer and how they want to be regulated. DBS operators opting to offer broadcast services will be subject to broadcast rules; operators offering common carrier-like services will be subject to common carrier rules. The FCC declined to impose any ownership restrictions, and imposed no technical standards on the service beyond those required by international agreements, which were worked out at an international conference in Geneva in the summer of 1983.

None of the eight original DBS permittees has had much success bringing its planned DBS systems and services into being. Comsat's Satellite Television Corp., which led the way into DBS, dropped its plans in November 1984 after five and a half years of planning and after spending some $140 million.

The advent of high-power DBS spawned medium-power DBS, which employs fixed satellite, but requires larger dishes. United Satellite Communications Inc. launched such a service in November 1983, but it floundered when it began to run out of money shortly thereafter and was unable to raise more.

The proliferation of backyard earth stations to receive all sorts of programming relayed over satellites has given rise to low-power satellite broadcasting as cable programmers have scrambled their feeds and begun charging dish owners to receive it. Home satellite industry estimates that there were about two million homes with dishes in late 1987.

Satellite Master Antenna Systems (SMATV)—SMATV systems, cloned from cable systems, look like cable systems, and, in most cases, are operated like them. The essential difference is that SMATV systems operate on private property—apartment buildings, condominium complexes or private housing developments and mobile home parks. Instead of getting a franchise (the right to string or bury wire along city streets and rights of way) from local governments, SMATV operators sign contracts with property owners, allowing them to bring cable television into the homes on the property.

In most cases, that's done by hooking up an earth station that's aimed at a cable satellite to a multi-unit building's master antenna system. In other cases, it also sometimes involves wiring buildings with nonexistent or inadequate master antenna systems and interconnecting two or more buildings of a single complex with overhead or underground cable. One advantage SMATV operators have over their cable counterparts is that they are free from regulation. Because they don't need a municipal franchise, they aren't burdened with the local regulations that go along with those. Since SMATV operators are generally excluded from the FCC's definition of a cable system, they are also exempt from federal regulation.

High-definition television (HDTV)—When people talk about HDTV, they're not just talking sharper pictures, they're talking pictures with a wider screen, better color fidelity and stereo sound.

The most widely known HDTV system is one developed by the Japanese Broadcasting Corp. (NHK). First demonstrated in the U.S. in 1982 by CBS, the NHK systems presents 1,125 scanning lines of information, more than doubling the resolution of the current American 525-line television standard set by the National Television Systems Committee (NTSC).

Although many say HDTV is the wave of the future, there is not yet a practical way to transmit it, at least as it has manifested itself in the NHK approach. That's because the system requires about five times as much spectrum space as conventional TV signals do. (The NHK system uses a 30 mhz bandwidth; current television channels are only 6 mhz wide.)

There are possible solutions, however. NHK has developed the Muse, a bandwidth compression system that makes it possible to broadcast HDTV in 9 mhz channel with little picture degradation. NBC, meanwhile, is working on a 6 mhz system.

To consider the entire question of broadcasting and cablecasting HDTV, the FCC has launched a notice of inquiry and formed an industry advisory committee comprising top broadcast and cable industry. The committee's first report is due in the spring of 1988. The FCC also postpone decision of plan to reallocate spectrum from UHF television to mobile radio until it determines whether spectrum in question is needed for HDTV broadcasting.

Although Advanced Television Systems Committee, the U.S. standards-setting group, adopted the NHK system as U.S. standard, an international standards-setting group failed to adopt the NHK system as a world standard in 1985.

Teletext—Teletext, which the FCC authorized for TV station use in the spring of 1983, is a one-way electronic publishing service that can be transmitted over the vertical blanking interval of a standard television signal or the full channel of a television station or cable television system. One advantage teletext has over traditional print media is that it can be updated continually.

When it authorized teletext services, the FCC refrained from establishing a technical standard. Thus there are two incompatible systems available to broadcasters: the North American Broadcast Teletext Specification (NABTS) and World System Teletext (WST).

By late 1987, teletext had yet to establish a firm foothold in broadcasting. The lack of a standard, the unavailability of decoders and the limited inherent capacity of teletext have combined to severely retard its development. CBS and a cooperative venture of Taft Broadcasting and Tempo Enterprises distribute teletext services nationally. CBS's uses NABTS and Taft-Tempo's, WST. Primarily because of the lack of low-cost decoders, the viewership of both services is negligible.

Other Broadcast Activity

International Broadcast—Under international agreement, certain high-frequency bands are allocated for broadcast between nations.

Authorizations for non-government international broadcast stations in the United States are issued by the FCC. Only a handful of these international stations are now authorized. A single station uses a number of frequencies between 5950 and 26100 khz, and it may need more than one transmitter because of seasonal considerations and other factors in broadcasting different programs simultaneously to different parts of the world. The minimum power for these stations, sometimes known as short-wave stations, is 50 kw.

During World War II, international broadcast stations in the United States were taken over temporarily by the Office of War Information and the Office of Inter-American Affairs of the Department of State, which programmed them in the interest of the war effort.

Under the peacetime program of the Department of State, the United States Information Agency broadcasts daily in many languages to other parts of the world through the Voice of America. VOA stations are not licensed or regulated by the FCC. There are about 30 VOA transmitters in the United States and about 70 located in foreign countries.

VOA is not the U.S.'s only foreign broadcast service. Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe, funded by Congress and supervised by the Board of International Broadcasting, serve as surrogate stations for the countries to which they broadcast—the USSR, in the case of RL, and other countries of the Eastern bloc in the case of RFE. Then, too, since 1985, Radio Marti, a VOA service, has been serving as a surrogate station for Cuba.

Auxiliary Broadcast Services—Broadcasters take portable or mobile transmitters to the scene of events to relay aural coverage of sporting events, parades, conventions, fairs, disasters and other newsworthy events. These remote-broadcast pickup stations use frequencies in the 26, 153 and 450 mhz portions of the spectrum.

TV stations also use small portable transmitters operating in the 2, 7 and 13 ghz-per-second (micro-wave) portions of the spectrum for visual coverage of out-of-studio events.

§73.14 AM broadcast definitions.

AM broadcast band—The band of frequencies extending from 535 to 1605 khz.

AM broadcast channel—The band of frequencies occupied by the carrier and the upper and lower sidebands of an AM broadcast signal with the carrier frequency at the center. Channels are designated by their assigned carrier frequencies. The 107 carrier frequencies assigned to AM broadcast stations begin at 540 khz and are in successive steps of 10 khz to 1600 khz. See §73.2 for the classification of AM broadcast channels.

AM broadcast station—A broadcast station licensed for the dissemination of radio communications intended to be received by the public and operated on a channel in the band 535-1605 kilohertz (khz). The term AM broadcast is synonymous with the term "standard broadcast" as may appear elsewhere in this chapter.

Amplitude modulated stage—The radio-frequency stage to which the modulator is coupled and in which the carrier wave is modulated in accordance with the system of amplitude modulation and the characteristics of the modulating wave.

Amplitude modulator stage—The last amplifier stage of the modulating wave which amplitude modulates a radio-frequency stage.

Antenna current—The radio-frequency current in the antenna with no modulation.

Antenna input power—The product of the square of the antenna current and the antenna resistance at the point where the current is measured.

Antenna resistance—The total resistance of the transmitting antenna system at the operating frequency and at the point at which the antenna current is measured.

Blanketing—The interference which is caused by the presence of an AM broadcast signal of one volt per meter (v/m) or greater intensity in the area adjacent to the antenna of the transmitting station. The 1 v/m contour is referred to as the blanket contour and the area within this contour is referred to as the blanket area.

Carrier-amplitude regulation—The change in amplitude of the carrier wave in an amplitude-modulated transmitter when modulation is applied under conditions of symmetrical modulation.

Combined audio harmonics—The arithmetical sum of the amplitudes of all the separate harmonic components. Root sum square harmonic readings may be accepted under conditions prescribed by the FCC.

Critical directional antenna—An AM broadcast directional antenna that is required, by the terms of a station authorization, to be operated with the relative currents and phases within the antenna elements at closer tolerances of deviation than those permitted under §73.62 and observed with a high precision monitor capable of measuring these parameters.

Critical hours—The two hour period immediately following local sunrise and the two hour period immediately preceding local sunset.

Daytime—The period of time between local sunrise and local sunset.

Dominant station—A Class I station, as defined in §73.21.

Effective field; Effective field strength—The root-mean-square (RMS) value of the inverse distance fields at a distance of 1 kilometer from the antenna in all directions in the horizontal plane. The term field strength is synonymous with the term "field intensity" as contained elsewhere in this Part.

Equipment performance measurements—The measurements performed to determine the overall performance characteristics of a broadcast transmission system from point of program origination at main studio to sampling of signal as radiated.

Experimental period—The time between 12 midnight local time and local sunrise, used by AM stations for tests, maintenance and experimentation.

Frequency departure—The amount of variation of a carrier frequency or center frequency from its assigned value.

Incidental phase modulation—The peak phase deviation (in radians) resulting from the process of amplitude modulation.

Input power—Means the product of the direct voltage applied to the last radio stage and the total direct current flowing to the last radio stage, measured without modulation.

Intermittent service area—Means the area receiving service from the groundwave of a broadcast station but beyond the primary service area and subject to some interference and fading.

Last radio stage—The radio-frequency power amplifier stage which supplies power to the antenna.

Left (or right) signal—The electrical output of a microphone or combination of microphones placed so as to convey the intensity, time, and location of sounds originated predominantly to the listener's left (or right) of the center of the performing area.

Left (or right) stereophonic channel—The left (or right) signal as electrically reproduced in reception of AM stereophonic broadcasts.

Main channel—The band of audio frequencies from 50 to 15,000 hz, which amplitude modulates the carrier.

Maximum percentage of modulation—The greatest percentage of modulation that may be obtained by a transmitter without producing in its output harmonics of the modulating frequency in excess of those permitted by these regulations.

Maximum rated carrier power—The maximum power at which the transmitter can be operated satisfactorily and is determined by the design of the transmitter and the type and number of vacuum tubes or other amplifier devices used in the last radio stage.

Modulated stage—The radio frequency stage to which the modulator is coupled and in which the continuous wave (carrier wave) is modulated in accordance with the system of modulation and the characteristics of the modulating wave.

Modulator stage—The last amplifier stage of the modulating wave which modulates in a radio-frequency stage.

Nighttime—The period of time between local sunset and local sunrise.

Nominal power—The antenna input power less any power loss through a dissipative network and, for directional antennas, without consideration of adjustments specified in subparagraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2) of 73.51 of the rules. However, for AM broadcast applications granted or filed before June 3, 1985, nominal power is specified in a system of classifications which include the following values: 50 kW, 25 kW, 10kW, 5kW, 2.5 kW, 1 kW, 0.5 kW and 0.25 kW. The specified nominal power for any station in this group of stations will be retained until action is taken on or after June 3, 1985, which involves a change in the technical facilities of the station.

Plate modulation—The modulation produced by introduction of the modulating wave into the plate circuit of any tube in which the carrier frequency wave is present.

Primary service area—Means the service area of a broadcast station in which the groundwave is not subject to objectionable interference or objectionable fading.

Proof of performance measurements or antenna proof of performance measurements—The measurements of field strengths made to determine the radiation pattern or characteristics of an AM directional antenna system.

Secondary service area—Means the service area of a broadcast station served by the skywave and not subject to objectionable interference and in which the signal is subject to intermittent variations in strength.

Secondary AM station—Any AM station, except a Class I station, operating on a Class I frequency.

Stereophonic channel—The band of audio frequencies from 200 to 15,000 Hz containing the stereophonic information which modulates the radio frequency carrier.

Stereophonic crosstalk—An undesired signal occurring in the main channel from modulation of the stereophonic channel or that occurring in the stereophonic channel from modulation of the main channel.

Stereophonic pilot tone—An audio tone of fixed or variable frequency modulating the carrier during the transmission of stereophonic programs.

Stereophonic separation—The ratio of the electrical signal caused in the right (or left) stereophonic channel to the electrical signal caused in the left (or right) stereophonic channel by the transmission of only a right (or left) signal.

Sunrise and sunset—For each particular location and during any particular month, the time of sunrise and sunset as specified in the instrument of authorization (see §73.1209).

White area—The area or population which does not receive interference-free primary service from an authorized AM station or does not receive a signal strength of at least 1 mV/m from an authorized FM station.

§73.1530 Portable test stations—A portable test station is one that is moved from place to place for making field strength and ground conductivity measurements, for selecting station transmitter sites, and conducting other specialized propagation tests. Portable test stations are not normally used while in motion, and may not be used for the transmission of programs intended to be received by the public.

§73.1700 Broadcast day. The term broadcast day means that period of time between the station's sign-on and its sign-off.

§73.1720 Daytime. Operation is permitted during the hours between average monthly local sunrise and average monthly local sunset.

(a) The controlling times for each month of the year are stated in the station's instrument of authorization. Uniform sunrise and sunset times are specified for all of the days of each month, based upon the actual times of sunrise and sunset for the fifteenth day of the month adjusted to the nearest quarter hour. Sunrise and sunset times are derived by using the standardized procedure and the tables in the 1946 American Nautical Almanac issued by the United States Naval Observatory.

§73.21 Classes of AM broadcast channels and stations.

(a) Clear channel. A clear channel is one on which the dominant station or stations render service over wide areas, and which are cleared of objectionable interference within their primary service areas and over all or a substantial portion of their secondary service areas. Stations operating on these channels are classified as follows:

(1) Class I station. A Class I station is a dominant station operating on a clear channel and designed to render primary and secondary service over an extended area and at relatively long distances. Its primary service area is free from objectionable interference from other stations on the same and adjacent channels, and its secondary service area free from interference except from stations on adjacent channels, and from stations on the same channel in accordance with the channel designation in §73.25 or §73.182. The operating power shall not be less than 10 kilowatts nor more than 50 kilowatts. (Also see §73.25 [a] for further power limitation.)

(2) Class II station. A Class II station is a secondary station which operates on a clear channel (see §73.25) and is designated to render service over a primary service area which is limited by and subject to such interference as may be received from Class I stations. Whenever necessary a Class II station shall use a directional antenna or other means to avoid interference with Class I stations and with other Class II stations, in accordance with §73.182 (and §73.22 in the case of Class II-A stations). Class II stations are divided into five groups:

(i) Class II-A station. A Class II-A station is an unlimited time Class II station operating on one of the clear channels listed in §73.22 and assigned to a community within a state specified in the Table contained in that section. A Class II-A station shall operate with power of not less than 10 kilowatts nighttime nor more than 40 kilowatts at any time.

(ii) Class II-B station. A Class II-B station is an unlimited time Class II station other than those included in Class II-A, II-C, and II-S. Except as subparagraphs (a) (2)(ii)(A) and (B) of this section provide otherwise, a Class II-B station shall operate with a power not less than 0.25 kW nor more than 50 kW.

(A) Class II-B stations authorized before June 1, 1985, to operate on any of the 25 Class I channels listed in §73.25(a) shall operate with the powers authorized as of June 1, 1980, or such other power as the Commission may subsequently authorize. Class II-B stations on these channels authorized after June 1, 1980, in the contiguous 48 states, must meet the requirements for primary service set out in §73.37(d)(2)(i).

(B) Class II-B stations authorized before June 3, 1985, to operate on any of the 14 channels listed in §73.25(c) shall operate with the powers authorized as of June 3, 1985, or such other power as the Commission may subsequently authorize during Stage 3 of the process described in §73.357(d)(4).

(C) The nighttime power of Class II-B stations which are authorized after June 1, 1980, to operate in any of the contiguous 48 states on any of the Class I channels listed in §73.25(a), and which do not meet the requirements for primary service set out in §73.37(e)(2)(i), shall not exceed 1 kW.

(D) Class II-B stations which are authorized after June 1, 1980, to operate in any of the contiguous 48 states on any of the Class I channels listed in §73.25(a), and which meet the requirements for primary service set out in §73.37(e)(2)(i), shall operate with power not less than 250 watts nor more than 50 kW.

(iii) Class II-C station. A Class II-C station is an unlimited time Class II station which operates with a daytime power of not less than 0.25 kW nor more than 50 kW and a nighttime power of not less than 0.25 kW nor more than 1 kW as follows:

(A) Class II-C stations authorized after June 1, 1980, on the 25 channels listed in §73.25(a) are those which do not meet the requirements for primary service set out in §73.37(e)(2)(i).

(B) Class II-C stations authorized after June 3, 1985, on the 14 channels listed in §73.25(c) or which operate for the first time on one of such channels after that date.

(iv) Class II-D station. A Class II-D station is a Class II station operating daytime or limited time. A Class II-D station shall operate with power not less than 0.25 kilowatts nor more than 50 kilowatts.

(v) Class II-S stations. Class II-S stations are former Class II-D stations which have been authorized limited power operation during nighttime on the 14 channels listed in §73.25(c). Class II-S stations operate with power less than 250 watts nighttime without protection from interference.

(b) Regional channel. A regional channel is one on which several stations may operate with powers set out in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph. The service area of a station operating on a regional channel may be limited to a given field strength contour as a result of interference.

(1) Class III station. A Class III station operates on a regional channel and is designed to render service primarily to a principal center of population and the rural area contiguous thereto. Except as provided in subparagraph (b)(2) of this section, a Class III station operates with a power not less than 0.5 kW and not more than 5 kW.

(2) Class III stations in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands are permitted a maximum power of 50 kW day or night. Use of such higher power is subject to amendment of the U.S./Mexican Agreement and final disposition of NARBA. Pending such amendment, the maximum power permitted station in these localities may not exceed 5 kW in accordance with the maximum power permitted by NARBA.

(c) Local channel. A local channel is one on which several stations operate unlimited time with powers no greater than provided in this paragraph. The primary service area of a station operating on a such channel may be reduced as a consequence of interference. Such stations operate with power no greater than 1 kW daytime or nighttime.

(1) Class IV station. A Class IV station is a station operating on a local channel and designed to render service primarily to a community and the suburban and rural areas contiguous thereto. The power of a station of this class shall not be less than 0.25 kilowatt, nor more than 1 kilowatt, and its primary service area is subject to interference in accordance with §73.182. Stations which are licensed to operate with 0.1 kilowatt may continue to do so.

NOTE 1: Under NARBA, the power for Class IV stations is 0.25 kw daytime as well as nighttime. The U.S./Canadian Agreement and the U.S./Mexican Agreement permit such stations to operate with power not in excess of 1 kw daytime. Pursuant to these Agreements and informal coordination with the NARBA signatories, the Commission will consider applications for Class IV stations on local channels with daytime powers in excess of 0.25 kw, up to 1 kw, if no objectionable interference would be caused (under the standards set forth in the pertinent international agreement) to a duly notified station in Canada, Mexico, or any foreign country signatory to NARBA.

NOTE 2: Class IV stations located within 100 kilometers (62 miles) of the Mexican border and presently authorized to operate with a daytime power of less than 1 kw, may file applications to increase their daytime and/or nighttime power to 1kw. However, such applications will be granted only after coordination with Mexico, pursuant to the U.S./Mexican Agreement.

NOTE 3: All authorizations of new or changed Class I-B, Class II-B, Class II-D, Class III or Class IV facilities after October 30, 1961, are subject to whatever interference may be received from, or whatever overlap of 2.0 mv/m and 25 mv/m groundwave contours may be involved with previously or subsequently authorized Class II-A facilities.

NOTE 4: The following table indicates the international classes of AM broadcasting stations with which the domestic classes of stations set out in the previous paragraphs of this section correspond:

(e) Applications not complying with this section. Applications for Class II-A stations which do not meet the requirements of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section will be returned without further consideration.

§73.24 Broadcast facilities; showing required. An authorization for a new standard broadcast station or increase in facilities of an existing station will be issued only after a satisfactory showing has been made in regard to the following, among others:

(a) That the proposed assignment will tend to effect a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of radio service among the several states and communities.

(b) That a proposed new station (or a proposed change in the facilities of an authorized station) complies with the pertinent requirements of §73.37.

NOTE: With respect to new Class II-A stations or to stations for which applications were accepted for filing before July 13, 1964, the provisions of NOTE 1 of §73.37 of this chapter shall apply. Special provisions concerning interference from Class II-A stations to stations of other classes authorized after October 30, 1961 are contained in §73.22(d) of this chapter and NOTE 3 to §73.21 of this chapter. The level of interference shall be computed pursuant to §73.182 and §73.186 of this chapter.

(c) That the applicant is financially qualified to construct and operate the proposed station.

(d) That the applicant is legally qualified. That the applicant (or the person or persons in control of an applicant corporation or other organization) is of good character and possesses other qualifications sufficient to provide a satisfactory public service.

(e) That the technical equipment proposed, the location of the transmitter, and other technical phases of operation comply with the regulations governing the same, and the requirements of good engineering practice. (See technical regulations of this subpart and §73.188.)

(f) That the facilities sought are subject to assignment as requested under existing international agreements and the rules and regulations of the Commission.

(g) That the population within the 1 mV contour does not exceed 1.0 percent of the population within the 25 mv/m contour: Provided, however, that where the number of persons within the 1 mV contour is 300 or less the provisions of this subparagraph are not applicable.

(h) That, in the case of an application for a Class II station the proposed station would radiate, during two hours following local sunrise and two hours preceding local sunset, in any direction toward the 0.1 mv/m ground-wave contour of a co-channel United States Class I-A or I-B station, no more than the maximum radiation values permitted under the provisions of §73.187.

(i) That, in the case of an application for a Class II-A station (see §73.22), 25% or more of the area of population within the nighttime interference-free service contour of the proposed station receives no nighttime interference-free primary service from another station.

(j) That the 5 mv/m contour (or, at night, the interference-free contour, if of a higher field strength) encompasses the entire principal community to be served. For Class II-C and II-S stations on the 14 frequencies listed in §73.24(c) it is not necessary to demonstrate the ability to provide such coverage during nighttime operation.

(k) That the public interest, convenience and necessity will be served through the operation under the proposed assignment.

§73.25 Clear channels: Classes I and II stations. The frequencies in the following tabulations are designated as clear channels and assigned for use by the classes of stations given:

(a) On each of the following channels, one Class I-A station will be assigned, operating with power of 50 kw: 640, 650, 660, 670, 700, 720, 750, 760, 770, 780, 820, 830, 840, 870, 880, 890, 1020, 1030, 1040, 1100, 1120, 1160, 1180, 1200 and 1210 khz. In addition, on the channels listed in this paragraph, Class II stations may be assigned as follows:

(1) On 670, 720, 770, 780, 880, 890, 1020, 1030, 1100, 1120, 1180 and 1210 khz, one Class II-A unlimited time station, assigned and located pursuant to the provisions of §73.22; and

(2) On any of the 25 channels listed at the beginning of this paragraph:

(i) the unlimited time, limited time, daytime-only, specified hours, and time-sharing Class II stations authorized prior to June 1, 1980, to operate on those channels; and

(ii) additional unlimited time Class II-B and II-C stations authorized after June 1, 1980.

(iii) additional daytime-only Class II stations whose transmitter sites are located inside the 0.5 mv/m 50% nighttime contour of the respective co-channel Class I-A stations.

NOTE 1: See the U.S./Mexican Agreement concerning Mexican use of 660, 760, 830, 1020, 1030, and 1180 khz.

NOTE 2: See U.S.-Mexican Agreement concerning Mexican use of 660, 760, 830, 1020, 1030, and 1180 khz.

(b) To each of the following channels there may be assigned Class I and Class II stations: 680, 710, 810, 850, 940, 1000, 1060, 1070, 1080, 1090, 1110, 1130, 1140, 1170, 1190, 1500, 1510, 1520, 1530, 1540, 1550 and 1560 khz.

NOTE: Class I and Class II stations on 1540 khz shall deliver not over 4 uV/m groundwave or 25 uV/m skywave at any point of land in the Bahama Islands, and such stations operating nighttime (i.e., sunset to sunrise at the location of the U.S. station) shall be located not less than 650 miles from the nearest point of land in the Bahama Islands.

(c) For Class II stations on 540, 690, 730, 740, 800, 860, 900, 990, 1010, 1050, 1220, 1540, 1570, and 1580 khz. Effective June 1, 1985 no applications for new Class II-D stations will be accepted on these channels.

NOTE 1: The U.S./Mexican Agreement is undergoing renegotiation. Until the new Agreement is completed, no applications involving new nighttime operation or major change in existing nighttime operation on 540 khz except for Alaska, or on 730, 800, 900, 1050, 1220, and 1570 khz will be accepted for filing. Also, pending completion of negotiations with the Commonwealth of the Bahamas, 1540 khz is subject to the same restrictions.

§73.26 Regional channels: Class III stations.(a) The following frequencies are designated as regional channels and are assigned for use by class III stations: 550, 560, 570, 580, 500, 600, 610, 620, 630, 790, 910, 920, 930, 950, 960, 970, 980, 1150, 1250, 1260, 1270, 1280, 1290, 1300, 1310, 1320, 1330, 1350, 1360, 1370, 1380, 1390, 1410, 1420, 1430, 1440, 1460, 1470, 1480, 1590, and 1600 khz.

(b) Additionally, in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands the frequencies 1230, 1240, 1340, 1400, 1450 and 1490 khz are designated as regional channels, and are assigned for use by Class III stations. Stations formerly licensed to these channels in those locations as Class IV stations are redesignated as Class III stations.

§73.27 Local Channels; Class IV stations. Within the coterminous 48 states, the following frequencies are designated as local channels and are assigned for use by Class IV stations: 1230, 1240, 1340, 1400, 1450, and 1490 khz.

§73.28 Assignments of stations to channels. (a) With respect to applications accepted for filing before July 13, 1964, the individual assignments of stations to channels which may cause interference to other United States stations only shall be made in accordance with the provisions of this part for the respective classes of stations involved. (For determining objectionable interference, see §73.22, and §73.21 (c) concerning Class IV stations, no U.S. assignment of a standard broadcast station will be made which would be inconsistent with the provisions of NARBA or the U.S.-Mexican Agreement. Similarly, as long as protection for U.S. assignments from Haitian assignments continues, no U.S. assignment of a standard broadcast station will be made which would cause objectionable interference (under the standards set forth in NARBA) to a duly notified Haitian station. (The Haitian stations considered to be duly notified are those notified and accepted in accordance with past agreements, and those subsequently notified in accordance with the procedures and understandings which have pertained thus far.) In all cases where an individual assignment may cause interference with, or may involve a channel assigned for priority of use by, a station in another North American country, the classifications, allocation requirements, and engineering standards set forth in NARBA and the U.S.-Mexican Agreement shall be observed. NOTE: In general, an application for a standard broadcast station assignment, the grant of which would be consistent with the provisions of NARBA and the U.S.-Mexican Agreement and would not cause objectionable interference to a duly notified station in Haiti, will be considered and acted upon by the Commission in accordance with its rules and established procedure for action upon such applications. However, in particular cases such applications may also present considerations of an international nature which require that a different procedure be followed. In such cases the procedure to be followed will be determined by the Commission in the light of the special considerations involved.

With respect to applications for facilities which would involve conflict with NARBA only as to a country which has signed but not completed formal ratification of that agreement, and facilities which would cause objectionable interference to a duly notified Haitian station, special provisions of a procedural nature are contained in §1.352 of this chapter.

(c) Engineering standards now in force domestically differ in some respects from those specified for international purposes. The engineering standards specified for international purposes (see §73.1650, International Agreements) will be used to determine: (1) The extent to which interference might be caused by a proposed station in the United States to a station in another country; and (2) whether the United States should register an objection to any new or changed assignment notified by another country. The domestic standards in effect in the United States will be used to determine the extent to which interference exists or would exist from a foreign station where the value of such interference enters into a calculation of: (1) the service to be rendered by a proposed operation in the United States; or (2) the permissible interfering signal from one station in the United States to another United States station.

§73.29 Class IV stations on regional channels. No license will be granted for the operation of a Class IV station on a regional channel, provided, however, that Class IV stations presently authorized to operate on regional channels will not be required to change frequency or power but will not be protected against interference from Class III stations.

§73.202. Table of Allotments.—(a) General. The following Table of Allotments contains the channels (other than noncommercial educational Channels 201-220) designated for use in communities in the

FCC Rules

United States, its territories, and possessions. All listed channels are for Class B stations in Zones I and IA and for Class C stations in Zone II unless otherwise specifically designated.

(1) Channels designated with an asterisk may only be used by noncommercial educational broadcast stations. Noncommercial educational FM allotments (Channels 201-220) available for use in various communities in Arizona, California, New Mexico, and Texas are listed in §73.504. The rules governing the use of noncommercial educational channels in other communities are contained in §73.501.

(2) Each channel listed in the Table of Allotments reflects the class of station that is authorized, or has an application filed, to use it based on the minimum and maximum facility requirements for each class contained in §73.211.

NOTE: The provisions of this subparagraph [(a)(2)] become effective March 1, 1987.

(b) Table of FM Allotments. [EDITOR'S NOTE: Channel assignments by cities are reprinted in the AM-FM directory and are not repeated here.]

§73.203. Availability of channels—Applications may be filed to construct FM broadcast stations only at the communities and on the channels contained in the Table of Allotments (§73.202(b) 1). Applications that fail to comply with this requirement, whether or not accompanied by a petition to amend the Table, will not be accepted for tender.

§73.205. Zones—For the purpose of allotments and assignments, the United States is divided into three zones as follows:

(a) Zone I consists of that portion of the United States located within the confines of the following lines drawn on the United States Albers Equal Area Projection Map (based on standard parallels 29 1/2 and 45 1/2; North American datum); Beginning at the most easterly point on the State boundary line between North Carolina and Virginia; thence in a straight line to a point on the Virginia, West Virginia boundary line located at North Latitude 37° 49' and West Longitude 80° 12' 30"; thence westerly along the southern boundary lines of the States of West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois to a point at the junction of the Illinois, Kentucky, and Missouri state boundary lines; thence northerly along the western boundary line of the State of Illinois to a point at the junction of the Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin state boundary lines; thence, easterly along the northern state boundary line of Illinois to the 90th meridian; thence north along this meridian to the 43.5th parallel; thence east along the parallel to the United States-Canada border; thence southerly and following that border until it again intersects the 43.5th parallel; thence east along this parallel to the 71st meridian; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the 69th meridian and the 45th parallel; thence east along the 45th parallel to the Atlantic Ocean. When any of the above lines pass through a city, the city shall be considered to be located in Zone I. (See Figure 1 of §73.699 [in complete copy of Rules].)

(b) Zone IA consists of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and that portion of the State of California which is located south of the 40th parallel.

(c) Zone II consists of Alaska, Hawaii and the rest of the United States which is not located in either Zone I or Zone IA.

73.207 Minimum distance separations between stations.—(a) FM allotments and assignments must be separated from other allotments and assignments on the same channel and five adjacent channels by certain minimum distances. If transmitter sites do not meet the minimum distances listed in paragraph (b) of this section, the Commission will not accept petitions to amend the Table of Allotments, applications for new stations, or applications to change the channel or location of existing assignments. Class D (secondary) assignments, however, are subject only to the separation distances contained in subparagraph (b)(3). (See §73.512 for other rules governing the channel and location of Class D (secondary) assignments.)

(b) The distances listed below apply only to allotments and assignments operating on the same channel or one of five critical channels adjacent to the desired channel. The five adjacent channels are the first (200 khz removed from the main channel), the second (400 khz removed), the third (600 khz removed), the fifty-third (10.6 mhz removed), and the fifty-fourth (10.8

mhz removed). The distances shown must be met regardless of which is the proposed station (i.e., distances shown from a new Class A station to an existing Class C station are also the distances between a new Class C station and an existing Class A station).

(1) Allotments and assignments in the United States must be separated from other domestic allotments and assignments by the following minimum distances.

(2) Under the Canada-United States FM Broadcasting Agreement, domestic U.S. allotments and assignments that are located within 320 kilometers (199 miles) of the common border must be separated from Canadian allotments and assignments by the following distances. Class B1 and Class C2 allotments and assignments must be considered Class B allotments and assignments when using this table.

(3) Under the Mexican-United States FM Broadcasting Agreement, U.S. allotments and assignments located within 320 kilometers (199 miles) of the common border must be separated from Mexican allotments and assignments by the following distances. Class B1 and Class C2 allotments and assignments must be considered Class B and Class C1 allotments and assignments must be considered Class C when using this table.

§73.211 Power and antenna height requirements.

(a) minimum requirements.

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (b)(2) of this section, the minimum effective radiated power for:

Class A	0.1 kw (-10 dBk)
Class B1	3 kw (4.8 dBk)
Class B	25 kw (14 dBk)
Class C2	3 kw (4.8 dBk)
Class C1	50 kw (17 dBk)
Class C	100 kw (20 dBk)

(2) Class C stations must have a minimum antenna height above average terrain of at least 300 meters (984 feet).

No minimum antenna height above average terrain is specified for Classes A, B1, B, C2, or C1 stations.

(b) Maximum power and antenna height.

(1) The maximum effective radiated power in any direction and maximum antenna height above average terrain (HAAT) for the various classes of stations are listed below:

Class	Maximum Power	Maximum Antenna HAAT in meters (feet)
A	3 kw (4.8 dBK)	100 (328)
B1	25 kw (14.0 dBK)	100 (328)
B	50 kw (17.0 dBK)	150 (492)
C2	50 kw (17.0 dBK)	150 (492)
C1	100 kw (20.0 dBK)	299 (981)
C	100 kw (20.0 dBK)	600 (1968)

(2) Antenna heights may exceed that specified in this paragraph if the effective radiated power is reduced so that the distance to the 1 m v/m (60 dbu) contour extends no farther than it would if the station were operating with the maximum power and antenna HAAT for its particular class of station. The location of the 1 m/v/m (60 dbu) contour is determined using Figure 1 of §73.333. The antenna HAAT is determined using the procedure contained in §73.313. When antenna HAAT is less than 30 meters (100 feet), an antenna HAAT of 30 meters (100 feet) must be assumed to determine equivalence. When a station's effective radiated power must be reduced below the normal minimum for its class (specified in paragraph (a)(1) of this section) the value determined will be the minimum for the particular station involved.

(3) In Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands:

(i) Class B stations may use antenna heights up to 600 meters (1968 feet) above average terrain with effective radiated powers up to 25.5 kw. For antenna heights above 600 meters (1968 feet), the power must be reduced so that the station's 1 mv/m contour (located pursuant to Figure 1 of §73.333) will extend no farther from the station's transmitter than with the facilities of 25.5 kw and an antenna height of 600 meters (1968 feet). For powers above 25.5 kw (up to 50 kw) no antenna height will be authorized which result in greater coverage by the 1 mv/m contour (located pursuant to Figure 1 of §73.333) than that obtained with the facilities of 25.5 kw ERP and an antenna height of 600 meters (1968 feet).

(ii) Class A stations may use antenna heights up to 335 meters (1100 feet) above average terrain with effective radiated powers up to 3 kw. For antenna heights above 335 meters (1100 feet), the power must be reduced so that the station's 1 mv/m contour (located pursuant to Figure 1 of §73.333) will extend no farther from the station's transmitter than with the facilities of 3 kw ERP and an antenna height of 335 meters (1100 feet).

(iii) Class B 1 stations may use antenna heights up to 335 meters (1100 feet) above average terrain with effective radiated powers up to 5 kw. For antenna heights above 335 meters (1100 feet), the power must be reduced so that the station's 1 mv/m contour (located pursuant to Figure 1 of §73.333) will extend no farther from the station's transmitter than with the facilities of 5 kw and an antenna height of 335 meters (1100 feet). For powers above 5 kw (up to 25.0 kw) no antenna height will be authorized which results in greater coverage by the 1 mv/m contour than that obtained with the facilities of 5 kw ERP and an antenna height of 335 meters (1100 feet).

(c) Existing stations. Stations authorized prior to [the effective date of the Report and Order in BC Docket 80-90] that do not conform to the requirements of this section, may continue to operate as authorized. Stations operating with facilities in excess of those specified in paragraph (b) of this section may not increase their effective radiated powers or extend their 1 mv/m field strength contour beyond the location permitted by their present authorizations. The provisions of this section will not apply to applications to increase facilities for those stations operating with less than the minimum power specified in paragraph (a) of this section.

(d) Stations designated as Class A, B1 and B may be authorized in Zones I and IA. Classes A, C2, C1 and C may be authorized in Zone II. The facilities for each class of station are listed in §73.211.

(e) The rules applicable to a particular station, including minimum and maximum facilities requirements, are determined by its class. Class designation is based on the zone in which the station's transmitter is located, or proposed to be located.

§73.220 Restrictions on use of channels.(a) The Frequency 89.1 mhz (Channel 206) is reserved in the New York City metropolitan area for the use of the United Nations with the equivalent of an antenna height of 150 meters (492 feet) above average terrain and effective radiated power of 20 kilowatts, and the FCC will make no assignments which would cause objectionable interference with such use.

(b) In Alaska, FM broadcast stations operating on Channels 221-300 (92.1-107.9 mhz) shall not cause harmful interference to and must accept interference from non-Government fixed operations authorized prior to January 1, 1982.

(b) In Alaska, television broadcast stations operating on Channel 5 (76-82 mhz) and on Channel 6 (82-88 mhz) shall not cause harmful interference and must accept interference from non-Government fixed operations authorized prior to January 1, 1982.

(c) Channel 37, 608-614 mhz, is reserved exclusively for the radio astronomy service.

(d) In Hawaii, the frequency band 488-494 mhz is allocated for non-broadcast use. This frequency band (Channel 17) will not be assigned in Hawaii for use by television broadcast stations.

§73.606. Table of Assignments—(a) The following Table of Assignments contains the channels assigned to the listed communities in the United States, its territories, and possessions. Channels designated with an asterisk are assigned for use by noncommercial educational broadcast stations only. A station on a channel identified by a plus or a minus mark is required to operate with its carrier frequencies offset 10 khz above or below, respectively, the normal carrier frequencies.

(b) Table of Allotments. [EDITOR'S NOTE: Channel assignments by cities are reprinted in the AM-FM directory and are not repeated here.]

§73.607. Availability of channels—(a) Applications may be filed to construct television broadcast stations only on the channels assigned in the Table of Allotments (§73.606(b)) and only in the communities listed therein. Applications which fail to comply with this requirement, whether or not accompanied by a petition to amend the Table, will not be accepted for filing. However, applications specifying channels which accord with publicly announced FCC orders changing the Table of Allotments will be accepted for filing even though such applications are tendered before the effective dates of such channel changes.

(b) [Deleted; see note below.] A channel assigned to a community listed in the Table of Assignments is available upon application in any unlisted community which is located within 15 miles of the listed community. In addition, a channel assigned to a community listed in the Table of Assignments and not designated for use by noncommercial educational stations only, is available upon application in any other community within 15 miles thereof which, although listed in the table, is assigned only a channel designated for use only by noncommercial educational stations. Where channels are assigned to two or more communities listed in combination in the Table of Assignments the provisions of this paragraph shall apply separately to each community so listed. The distance between communities shall be determined by the distance between the respective coordinates thereof as set forth in the publication of the United States Department of Commerce entitled Air Line Distances Between Cities in the United States. (This publication may be purchased from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.) If said publication does not contain the coordinates of either or both communities the coordinates of the main post office in either or both of such communities shall be used. The method to be followed in making the measurements is set forth in §73.611(d).

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Subsection (b) was deleted by order adopted 2-17-83 (Docket No. 82-320). Applications on file on the date of adoption will be processed under the former rule; all applications filed after that date will be accepted only if tendered as valid competing applications to applications already found acceptable by the staff under the rule.]

§73.609. Zones—(a) For the purpose of allotment and assignment, the United States is divided into three zones as follows:

(1) Zone I consists of that portion of the United States located within the confines of the following lines drawn on the United States Albers Equal Area Projection Map (based on standard parallels 29 1/2 and 45 1/2; North American datum); Beginning at the most easterly point on the state boundary line between North Carolina and Virginia; thence a straight line to a point on the Virginia-West Virginia boundary line located at North Latitude 37 49' and West Longitude 80 12' 30"; thence westerly along the southern boundary lines of the states of West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to a point at the junction of the Illinois, Kentucky, and Missouri state boundary lines; thence northerly along the western boundary line of the state of Illinois to a point at the junction of the Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin state boundary lines; thence easterly along the northern state boundary line of Illinois to the 90th meridian; thence north along this meridian to the 43.5 parallel; thence east along this parallel to the United States-Canada border; thence southerly and following that border until it again intersects the 43.5 parallel; thence east along this parallel to the 71st meridian;

§73.610. Minimum distance separations between stations.—(a) The provisions of this section relate to allotment separations and station separations. Petitions to amend the Table of Allotments §73.606(b) other than those also expressly requesting amendment of this section or §73.609 will be dismissed and all applications for new television broadcast stations or for changes in the transmitter sites of existing stations will not be accepted for filing if they fail to comply with the requirements specified in paragraphs (b), (c) and (d) of this section.

NOTE: Licensees and permittees of television broadcast stations which were operating on April 14, 1952 pursuant to one or more separations below those set forth in §273.610 may continue to so operate, but in no event may they further reduce the separations below the minimum. As the existing separations of such stations are increased, the new separations will become the required minimum separations until separations are reached which comply with the requirements of §73.610. Thereafter the provisions of said section shall be applicable.

(b) Minimum co-channel assignment and station separations:

(1) Zone	Channels 2-13 Kilometers (Miles)	Channels 14-28
I	272.7 (169.5 mi.)	248.6 (154.5 mi.)
II	304.9 (189.5 mi.)	280.8 (174.5 mi.)
III	353.2 (219.5 mi.)	329.0 (204.5 mi.)

(2) The minimum co-channel distance separation between a station in one zone and a station in another zone shall be that of the zone requiring the lower separation.

(c) Minimum allotment and station adjacent channel separations applicable to all zones:

(1) Channels 2-13	95.7 km (59.5 mi.)
Channels 14-69	87.7 km (54.5 mi.)

(2) Due to the frequency spacing which exists between channels 4 and 5, between channels 6 and 7, and between channels 13 and 14, the minimum adjacent channel separations specified above shall not be applicable to these pairs of channels (see §273.603[a]).

(d) In addition to the requirements of paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section, the minimum assignment and station separations between stations on channels 14-69, inclusive, as set forth in Table II of §273.698 must be met in either rule making proceedings looking towards the amendment of the Table of Assignments (§273.606[b]) or in licensing proceedings. No channel listed in column (1) of Table II of §273.698 [see box] will be assigned to any city, and no application for an authorization to operate on such a channel will be granted unless the mileage separations indicated at the top of columns (2)-(7), inclusive, are met with respect to each of the channels listed in those columns and parallel with the channel in column (1).

(e) The zone in which the transmitter of a television station is located or proposed to be located determines the applicable rules with respect to co-channel mileage separations where the transmitter is located in a different zone from that in which the channel to be employed is located.

§73.614. Power and antenna height requirements.—(a) Minimum requirements. Applications will not be accepted for filing if less than 10 dbk (100 watts) horizontally polarized visual effective radiated power in any horizontal direction. No minimum antenna height above average terrain is specified.

(b) Maximum power. Applications will not be accepted for filing if they specify a power which exceeds the maximum permitted boundaries specified in the following formulas:

Maximum visual effective radiated power in db above Channel Nos.	one kilowatt (dBk)
2-6	20 dBk (100 kw)
7-13	25 dBk (316 kw)
14-83	37 dBk (5000 kw)

(6) The effective radiated power in any horizontal or vertical direction may not exceed the maximum values permitted by this section and Figure 3 and 4 of §73.1700.

thence in a straight line to the intersection of the 69th meridian and the 45th parallel; thence east along the 45th parallel; to the Atlantic Ocean. When any of the above lines pass through a city, the city shall be considered to be located in Zone I. (See Figure 1 of §73.699).

(2) Zone II consists of that portion of the United States which is not located in either Zone I or Zone III, and Puerto Rico, Alaska, Hawaiian Islands and the Virgin Islands.

(3) Zone III consists of that portion of the United States located south of a line, drawn on the United States Albers Equal Area Projection Map (based on standard parallels 29 1/2 and 45 1/2; North American datum), beginning at a point on the east coast of Georgia and the 31st parallel and ending at the United States-

Mexican border, consisting of arcs drawn with a 241.4 kilometer (150 mile) radius to the north from the following specified points:

North Latitude	West Longitude
a) 29° 40'00"	83° 24'00"
b) 30° 07'00"	84° 12'00"
c) 30° 31'00"	86° 30'00"
d) 30° 48'00"	87° 58'30"
e) 30° 00'00"	90° 38'30"
f) 30° 04'30"	93° 19'00"
g) 29° 46'00"	95° 05'00"
h) 28° 43'00"	96° 30'30"
i) 27° 52'30"	97° 32'00"

When any of the above arcs pass through a city, the city shall be considered to be located in Zone II. (See Figure 2 of §73.699.)

(7) The effective radiated power at any angle above the horizontal shall be as low as the state of the art permits, and in the same vertical plane may not exceed the effective radiated power in either the horizontal direction or below the horizontal, whichever is greater.

(c) The zone in which the transmitter of a television station is located or proposed to be located determines the applicable rules with respect to maximum antenna heights and powers for VHF stations when the transmitter is located in Zone I and the channel to be employed is located in Zone II, or the transmitter is located in Zone II and the channel to be employed is located in Zone I.

§73.1635 Special temporary authorizations (STA)—A special temporary authorization (STA) is the authority granted to a permittee or licensee to permit the operation of a broadcast facility for a limited period at a specified variance with the terms of the station authorization or requirements of the FCC rules applicable to the particular class of station.

(1) A request for an STA should be filed with FCC in Washington, D.C. at least 10 days prior to the date of the proposed operation.

(2) The request is to be made by letter and shall fully describe the proposed operation and the necessity for the requested STA. Such letter requests shall be signed by the licensee or the licensee's representative.

(3) A request for an STA necessitated by unforeseen equipment damage or failure may be made without regard to the procedural requirements of this section (e.g., via telegram or telephone). Any request made pursuant to this paragraph shall be followed by a written confirmation request confirming to the requirements of paragraph (a)(2) above. Confirmation requests shall be submitted within 24 hours. (See also §73.1680 Emergency Antennas).

(4) An STA may be granted for an initial period not to exceed 180 days. A limited number of extensions of such authorizations may be granted for additional periods not exceeding 180 days per extension. An STA necessitated by technical or equipment problems, however, may, in practice, be granted for an initial period not to exceed 90 days with a limited number of extensions not to exceed 90 days per extension. The permittee or licensee must demonstrate that any further extensions requested are necessary and that all steps to resume normal operation are being undertaken in an expeditious and timely fashion.

(5) Certain rules permit temporary operation at variance without prior authorization from the FCC when notification is filed as prescribed in the particular rules. See §73.62, Directional Antenna System Tolerances; §73.157, Antenna Testing During Daytime; §73.1250, Broadcasting Emergency Information; §73.1615, Operation During Modification of Facilities; and §73.1680, Emergency Antennas.

(b) An STA may be modified or cancelled by the FCC without prior notice or right to hearing.

(c) No request by an AM station for temporary authority to extend its hours of operation beyond those authorized by its regular authorization will be accepted or granted by the FCC except in emergency situations confirming with the requirements of §73.3542. Application for Emergency Authorization. See also §73.1250, Broadcasting Emergency Information.

§73.1650 International broadcasting agreements. (a) AM broadcast (1) The U.S.A. is signatory to the North American Broadcasting Agreement (NARBA) with the Bahama Islands and the Dominican Republic.

(3) The U.S.A. and Canada are signatories to a separate agreement (U.S./Canadian Agreement). (4) The U.S.A. and Mexico are signatories to a separate agreement (U.S./Mexican Agreement).

(5) The U.S.A. has separate, bilateral agreements with Canada, Mexico and the Bahama Islands pertaining to pre-sunrise authority and a separate agreement with Mexico for post-sunset authority.

Multiple Ownership

§73.3555 Multiple Ownership—(a) No license for an AM, FM, or TV broadcast station shall be granted to any party (including all parties under common control) if such party directly or indirectly owns, operates, or controls one or more broadcast stations in the same service and the grant of such license will result in:

(1) any overlap of the predicted or measured 1 mv/m groundwave contours of the existing and proposed AM stations, computed in accordance with §73.183 or §73.186 or

(2) any overlap of the predicted 1 mv/m contours of the existing and proposed FM stations, computed in accordance with §73.313; or

(3) any overlap of the Grade B contours of the existing and proposed TV stations, computed in accordance with §73.684.

(b) No license for an AM, FM, or TV broadcast station shall be granted to any party (including all parties under common control) if such party directly or indirectly owns, operates, or controls one or more such broadcast stations and the grant of such license will result in:

(1) the predicted or measured 2 mv/m groundwave contour of an existing or proposed AM station, computed in accordance with §73.183 or §73.186, encompassing the entire community of license of the TV broadcast station(s) or the Grade A contour(s) of the TV broadcast station(s), computed in accordance with §73.684, encompassing the entire community of license of the AM station; or

(2) the predicted 1 mv/m contour of a proposed FM station, computed in accordance with §73.313, encompassing the entire community of license of an existing or proposed TV broadcast station(s) or the Grade A contour(s) of station(s), computed in accordance with §73.684, encompassing the entire community of license of the FM station.

(c) No license for an AM, FM, or TV broadcast station shall be granted to any party (including all parties under common control) if such party directly or indirectly owns, operates, or controls a daily newspaper and the grant of such license will result in:

(1) the predicted or measured 2 mv/m contour for an AM station, computed in accordance with §73.183 or §73.186, encompassing the entire community in which such newspaper is published; or

(2) the predicted 1 mv/m contour for an FM station, computed in accordance with §73.313, encompassing the entire community in which such newspaper is published; or

(3) the Grade A contour for a TV station, computed in accordance with §73.684, encompassing the entire community in which such newspaper is published.

(d)(1) No license for a commercial AM, FM or TV broadcast station shall be granted, transferred or assigned to any party (including all parties under common control) if the grant, transfer or assignment of such license would result in such party or any of its stockholders, partners, members, officers or directors, directly or indirectly, owning, operating or controlling, or having a cognizable interest in, either:

(A) more than fourteen (14) stations in the same service, or

(B) more than twelve (12) stations in the same services which are not minority-controlled.

(2) No license for a commercial TV broadcast station shall be granted, transferred or assigned to any party (including all parties under common control) if the grant, transfer or assignment of such license would result in such party or any of its stockholders, partners, members, officers or directors, directly or indirectly, owning, operating or controlling, or having a cognizable interest in, either:

(A) TV stations which have an aggregate national audience reach exceeding thirty (30) percent, or

(B) TV stations which have an aggregate national audience reach exceeding twenty-five (25) percent and which are not minority-controlled.

(3) For purposes of this paragraph:

(A) national audience reach means the total number of television households in the Arbitran Area of Dominant Influence (ADI) markets in which the relevant stations are located divided by the total national television households as measured by ADI data at the time of a grant, transfer or assignment of a license. For purposes of making this calculation, UHF television stations shall be attributed with 50 percent of the television households in their ADI market. Where the relevant application forms require a showing with respect to market data are unavailable, then the applicant shall make a showing as to the number of television households in its market. Upon such a showing, the Commission shall make a determination as to the appropriate audience reach to be attributed to the applicant.

(b) TV broadcast station or "TV station" exclude stations which are primarily satellite operations.

(c) minority-controlled means more than 50 percent owned by one or more members of a minority group.

(d) minority means Black, Hispanic, American Indian, Alaska Native, Asian and Pacific Islander.

(e) No renewal of license shall be granted for a term extending beyond January 1, 1980, to any part that as of January 1, 1975, directly or indirectly owns, operates or controls the only daily newspaper published in a community and also of January 1, 1975, directly or indirectly owns, operates or controls the only commercial aural station or stations encompassing the entire community with a city-grade signal during daytime hours (predicted or measured signal for AM, predicted for FM), or the only commercial TV station encompassing the entire community with a city-grade signal. The provisions of this paragraph shall not require divestiture of any interest not in conformity with its provisions earlier than January 1, 1980. Divestiture is not required for aural stations if there is a separately owned, operated or controlled TV broadcast station licensed to serve the community.

(f) This section is not applicable to noncommercial educational FM and noncommercial educational TV stations.

NOTE 1: The word control as used herein is not limited to majority stock ownership, but includes actual working control in whatever manner exercised.

NOTE 2: In applying the provisions of this section, ownership and other interests in broadcast licensees, cable television systems and daily newspapers will be attributed to their holders and deemed cognizable pursuant to the following criteria:

(a) Except as otherwise provided herein, partnership and direct ownership interests and any voting stock interest amounting to 5% or more of the outstanding voting stock of a corporate broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper will be cognizable;

(b) No minority voting stock interest will be cognizable if there is a single holder of more than 50% of the outstanding voting stock of the corporate broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper in which the minority interest is held;

(c) Investment companies, as defined in 15 USC §80a-3, insurance companies and banks holding stock through their trust departments in trust accounts will be considered to have a cognizable interest only if they hold 10% or more of the outstanding voting stock of a corporate broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper, or if any of the officers or directors of the broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper are representatives of the investment company, insurance company or bank concerned. Holdings by a bank or insurance company will be aggregated if the bank or insurance company has any right to determine how the stock will be voted. Holdings by investment companies will be aggregated if under common management.

(d) Attribution of ownership interests in a broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper that are held indirectly by any party through one or more intervening corporations will be determined by successive multiplication of the ownership percentages for each link in the vertical ownership chain and application of the relevant attribution benchmark to the resulting product, except that wherever the ownership percentage for any link in the chain exceeds 50%, it shall not be included for purposes of this multiplication. [For example, if A owns 10% of company X, which owns 60% of company Y, which owns 25% of Licensee, then X's interest in Licensee would be 25% (the same as Y's interest since X's interest in Y exceeds 50%), and A's interest in Licensee would be 2.5% (0.1 x 0.25). Under the 5% attribution benchmark, X's interest in Licensee would be cognizable, while A's interest would not be cognizable.]

(e) Voting stock interests held in trust shall be attributed to any person who holds or shares the power to vote such stock, to any person who has the sole power to sell such stock, and to any person who has the right to revoke the trust at will or to replace the trustee at will. If the trustee has a familial, personal or extratrust business relationship to the grantor or beneficiary, as appropriate, will be attributed with the stock interests held in trust. An otherwise qualified trust will be ineffective to insulate the grantor or beneficiary from attribution with the trust's assets unless all voting stock interests held by the grantor or beneficiary in the relevant broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper are subject to said trust.

(f) Holders of non-voting stock shall not be attributed an interest in the issuing entity. Holders of debt and instruments such as warrants, convertible debentures, options or other non-voting interests with rights of conversion to voting interests shall not be attributed unless and until conversion is effected.

(g)(1) A limited partnership interest shall be attributed to a limited partner unless that partner is not materially involved, directly or indirectly, in the management or operation of the media-related activities of the partnership and the licensee or system so certifies.

(2) In order for a licensee or system to make the certification set forth in paragraph (a)(1) of this section, it must verify that the partnership agreement or certificate of limited partnership, with respect to the particular limited partner exempt from attribution, establishes that the exempt limited partner has no material involvement, directly or indirectly, in the management or operation of the media activities of the partnership. The criteria which would assure adequate insulation for purposes of this certification are described in the Memorandum Opinion and Order in MM Docket No. 83-46, FCC 85-252 (released June 24, 1985) as modified on reconsideration in Memorandum Opinion and Order in MM Docket No. 83-46, FCC 86-410 (released November 28, 1986). Irrespective of the terms of the certificate of limited partnership or partnership agreement, however, no such certificate shall be made if the individual or entity making the certification has actual knowledge of any material involvement of the limited partners in the management or operation of the media-related business of the partnership.

(h) Officers and directors of a broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper are considered to have a cognizable interest in the entity with which they are so associated. If any such entity engages in businesses in addition to its primary business of broadcasting, cable television service or newspaper publication, it may request the Commission to waive attribution for any officer or director whose duties and responsibilities are wholly unrelated to its primary business. The officers and directors of a parent company of a broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper, with an attributable interest in any such subsidiary entity, shall be deemed to have a cognizable interest in the subsidiary unless the duties and responsibilities of the officer or director involved are wholly unrelated to the broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper subsidiary, and a statement properly documenting this fact is submitted to the Commission. [This statement may be included on the appropriate Ownership Report]. The officers and directors of a sister corporation of a broadcast licensee, cable television system or daily newspaper shall not be attributed with ownership of these entities by virtue of such status.

(i) Discrete ownership interests will be aggregated in determining whether or not an interest is cognizable under this section. An individual or entity will be deemed to have a cognizable investment if:

(1) the sum of the interests held by or through passive investors is equal to or exceeds 10 percent; or

(2) the sum of the interests other than those held by or through passive investors is equal to or exceeds 5 percent; or

(3) the sum of the interests computed under (1) plus the sum of the interests computed under (2) is equal to or exceeds 10 percent.

NOTE 3: In cases where record and beneficial ownership of voting stock is not identical (e.g., bank nominees holding stock as record owners for the benefit of mutual funds, brokerage houses holding stock in street names for the benefit of customers, investment advisors holding stock in their own names for the benefit of clients, and insurance companies holding stock), the party having the right to determine how the stock will be voted will be considered to own it for purposes of these rules.

NOTE 4: Paragraphs (a)-(d) of this section will not be applied so as to require divestiture, by any licensee, of existing facilities, and will not apply to applications for increased power for Class IV stations, to applications for assignment of license or transfer of control filed in accordance with §73.3540(d) or §73.3541(b) of this part, or to applications for assignment of license or transfer of control to heirs or legatees by will or intestacy if no new or increased overlap would be created between commonly owned, operated or controlled broadcast stations in the same service and if no new encompassment of communities proscribed in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section as to commonly owned, operated, or controlled broadcast stations or daily newspapers would result. Said paragraphs will apply to all applications for new stations, to all other applications for assignment or transfer, and to all applications for major changes in existing stations except major changes that will result in overlap of contours of broadcast stations in the same service with each other no greater than already existing. (The resulting areas of overlap of contours of such broadcast stations with each other in such major change cases may consist partly or entirely of new terrain. However, if the population in the resulting overlap areas substantially exceeds that in the previously existing overlap areas, the Commission will not grant the application if it finds that to do so would be against the public interest, convenience, or necessity.) This section will not apply to major changes in UHF television broadcast stations authorized as of September 30, 1964, which will result in Grade B overlap with another television that was commonly owned, operated, or controlled as of September 30, 1964, or to any application by a party who directly or indirectly owns, operates, or controls a UHF television broadcast station where grant of such application would result in the Grade A contour of the UHF station encompassing the entire community of license of a commonly owned, operated, or controlled AM or FM broadcast station or would result in the entire community of license of such UHF station being encompassed by the 2 mv/m contour of such AM broadcast station or the 1 mv/m contour of such FM broadcast station. Such UHF overlap or community encompassment cases will be handled on a case-by-case basis in order to determine whether common ownership, operation, or control of the stations in question would be in the public interest. Commonly owned, operated, or controlled broadcast stations, with overlapping contours or with community-encompassing contours prohibited by this section may not be assigned or transferred to a single person, group, or entity, except as provided above in this note. If a commonly owned, operated, or controlled broadcast station and daily newspaper fall within the encompassing proscription of this section, the station may not be assigned to a single person, group or entity if the newspaper is being simultaneously sold to such single person, group or entity.

NOTE 5: Paragraphs (a)-(d) of this section will not be applied to cases involving television stations which are primarily satellite operations. Such cases will be considered on a case-by-case basis in order to determine whether common ownership, operation, or control of the stations in question would be in the public interest. Whether or not a particular television broadcast station which does not present a substantial amount of locally originated programming is primarily a satellite operation will be determined on the facts of the particular case. An authorized and operating satellite television station the Grade B contour of which overlaps that of a commonly owned, operated, or controlled non-satellite parent television broadcast station, or the Grade A contour of which completely encompasses the community of publication of a commonly owned, operated, or controlled daily newspaper, or the community of license of a commonly owned, operated, or controlled AM or FM broadcast station, or the community of license of which is completely encompassed by the 2 mv/m contour of such AM broadcast station or the 1 mv/m contour of such FM broadcast station may subsequently become a non-satellite station with local studios and locally originated programming. However, such commonly owned, operated, or controlled non-satellite television stations and AM or FM stations with the aforementioned community encompassment, may not be transferred or assigned to a single person, group, or entity except as provided in Note 3. Nor shall any application for assignment or transfer concerning such non-satellite stations be granted if the assignment or transfer would be to the same person, group or entity to which the commonly owned, operated, or controlled newspaper is proposed to be transferred, except as provided in Note 3.

NOTE 6: For the purposes of this section a daily newspaper is one which is published four or more days per week, which is in the English language and which is circulated generally in the community of publication. A college newspaper is not considered as being circulated generally.

Studio Location, Program Originations

In AM, FM and TV rules...

§73.1120 Station location. Each AM, FM and TV broadcast station will be licensed to the principal community or other political subdivision which it primarily serves. This principal community (city, town or other political subdivision) will be considered to be the geographical station location.

§73.1125 Station main studio location. (a) Each AM, FM and TV broadcast station shall maintain a main studio within the station's principal community contour as defined in §§73.24(j) (%mV/m daytime contour), §§73.315(a) and 73.685(a), respectively, of this chapter, except:

(1) AM stations licensed as synchronous amplifier transmitters ("AM boosters") or,

(2) AM stations whose main studio is located at the collocated main studio-transmitter site of a commonly owned AM station licensed to the same principal community or,

(3) Any AM, FM or TV broadcast station whose main studio is located in the community which the station is licensed to serve at a point situated outside the principal community contour or,

(4) AM, FM or TV stations, when good cause exists for locating the main studio outside the station's principal community contour and that to do so would be consistent with the operation of the station in the public interest.

(b) Relocation of the main studio may be made:

(1) From one point to another within the principal community contour or from a point outside the principal community contour to one within it, without specific FCC authority, but notification to the FCC in Washington shall be made promptly; however,

(2) From a point within the principal community contour to one outside it or from one such point outside the community contour to another, only by first securing modification of construction permit or license (FCC Forms 301 for commercial stations and 340 for noncommercial educational stations).

(3) Exceptions to paragraph (b)(2) of this section are:

(i) Relocation of the main studio of an FM station to the collocated main studio-transmitter site of a commonly owned AM station licensed to the same principal community;

(ii) Relocation of the main studio from one point to another within the principal community of license or from a point outside the principal community to one within it; and

(iii) Notification to the FCC in Washington shall be made promptly of such relocations described in (b)(3)(i) and (b)(3)(ii) of this section.

(c) Each AM, FM and TV broadcast station shall maintain a local telephone number in its community of license or a toll-free number.

(d) Where the principal community to be served does not have specifically defined political boundaries, applications will be considered on a case-by-case basis by the FCC to determine if the main studio is located within the principal community to be served.

Operating Schedules

For AM stations ...

§73.72 Operation during the experimental period—(a) An AM station may operate during the experimental period on its assigned frequency and with its authorized power for the routine testing and maintenance of its transmitting system, and for conducting experimentation under an experimental authorization; provided no interference is caused to other stations maintaining a regular operating schedule within such period.

(b) No station licensed for daytime or "specified hours" of operation may broadcast any regular or scheduled program during this period.

(c) The licensee of an AM station shall operate or refrain from operating its station during the experimental period as directed by the FCC to facilitate frequency measurements or for the determination of interference.

§73.99 Pre-sunrise service authorization (PSRA) and post-sunset service authorization (PSSA). (a) To provide the maximum uniformity in early morning operation compatible with interference considerations, and to provide for additional service during early evening hours for daytime-only stations, the provisions are made for pre-sunrise service and post-sunrise service. The permissible power to be assigned in pre-sunrise or post-sunset service authorization will not exceed 500 watts, or the authorized daytime or critical hours power (whichever is less).

(b) Pre-sunrise service authorization (PSRA) will permit:

(1) Class II stations operating on Mexican, Bahamian, and Canadian Class I-A and I-B Clear Channels to commence PSRA operation at 6:00 a.m. local time and to continue such operation until the sunrise times specified in their basic instrument of authorization.

(2) Class II stations situated outside the respective 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave contours of co-channel domestic Class I-A and I-B stations to commence PSRA operation 6:00 a.m. local time, and continue this operation until sunrise times specified in their basic instruments of authorization.

(3) Class II stations located inside a co-channel 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave contours of domestic Class I-A and I-B stations, to commence PSRA operation either at 6:00 a.m. local time, or at the time of sunrise at the nearest Class I station located east of the Class II station (whichever is later), and continue this operation until the sunrise times specified in their basic instruments of authorization.

(4) Class III stations to commence PSRA operation at 6:00 a.m. local time and to continue this operation until the sunrise times specified in their basic instruments of authorization.

(c) Post-sunset service authorization (PSSA) will permit:

(1) Class II-D stations located on Mexican, Bahamian, and Canadian Class I-A and I-B Clear Channels to commence PSSA operation at sunset times specified in their basic instruments of authorization and to continue for two hours after such specified times. In addition, Class II-S stations may operate pursuant to (2) Class II-D stations situated outside the respective 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave contours of co-channel domestic Class I-A and I-B stations to commence PSSA operations at sunset times specified in their basic instruments of authorization and to continue up to two hours after such specified times.

(3) Class II-D stations located inside co-channel 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave contours of domestic Class I-A and I-B stations to commence PSSA operation at sunset times specified in their basic instruments of authorization and to continue such operation until two hours past such-specified times, or until the time of sunset at the nearest Class I station located west of the Class II station (whichever is earlier). (Those west of the dominant station do not qualify for PSSA operation.)

(4) Class III daytime only stations to commence PSSA operation at sunset times specified on their basic instruments of authorization and to continue such operation until two hours past such specified times.

(d) Procedural Matters. (1) Applications for PSRA and PSSA operation are not required. Instead, the FCC will calculate the periods of such operation and the power to be used pursuant to the provisions of this Section and the protection requirements contained in applicable international agreements. Licensees will be duly notified of permissible power and times of operation. Presunrise and post-sunset service authority permits operation on a secondary basis and does not confer license rights. No request for such authority need be filed. However, stations intending to operate PSRA or PSSA shall submit by letter, signed as specified in §73.3513, the following information:

(i) Licensee name, station call letters and station location.

(ii) Indication as to whether PSRA operation, PSSA operation, or both, is intended by the station.

(iii) A description of the method whereby any necessary power reduction will be achieved.

(2) Upon submission of the required information, such operation may begin without further authority.

(e) Technical Criteria. Calculations to determine whether there is objectionable interference will be determined in accordance with the AM Broadcast Technical Standards, §§73.182 through 73.190, and applicable international agreements. Calculations will be performed using daytime antenna systems, or critical hours antenna systems when specified on the license. In performing calculations to determine assigned power and times for commencement of PSRA and PSSA operation, the following standards and criteria will be used:

(1) Class II stations operating in accordance with (b)(1), (b)(2), (c)(1), and (c)(2) are required to protect the nighttime 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave contours of co-channel Class I stations. Where a 0.5 mv/m 50% skywave signal is not produced, the 0.5 mv/m groundwave contour will be protected.

(2) Class II stations are required to fully protect foreign Class II stations when operating PSRA and PSSA and Class II-D station operating PSSA are required to fully protect domestic full time Class II stations. For purposes of determining protection, the existing nighttime RSS limit will be used in the determination of maximum power permissible.

(3) Class II stations operating in accordance with (c)(2) and (c)(3) are required to restrict maximum 10% skywave radiation to any point on the daytime 0.1 mv/m groundwave contour of the co-channel Class I station to 25 uv/m. For purposes of performing these calculations the 0.1 mv/m contour of the Class I station will be determined by use of Figure M3, Estimated Ground Conductivity in the United States. When the 0.1 mv/m contour extends beyond the national boundary the international boundary shall be considered the 0.1 mv/m contour.

(4) Class III stations operating PSRA and PSSA are required to provide full protection to co-channel foreign Class III stations.

(5) Class III daytime-only stations operating PSSA beyond 6:00 p.m. local time are required to fully protect domestic full-time Class III stations. (6) The protection that Class III daytime-only stations will be required to provide when operating PSSA until 6:00 p.m. local time is as follows:

(i) For the first half-hour of PSSA Operation, protection will be calculated at sunset plus 30 minutes at the site of the Class III daytime-only station;

(ii) For the second half-hour of PSSA operation, protection will be calculated at sunset plus one hour at the site of the Class III daytime-only station;

(iii) For the second hour of PSSA operation, protection will be calculated at sunset plus two hours at the site of the Class III daytime-only station;

(iv) Minimum powers during the period until 6:00 p.m. local time shall be permitted as follows:

Calculated Power	Adjusted Minimum Power
From 1 to 45 watts	75 watts
Above 45 watts to 70 watts	75 watts
Above 70 watts to 100 watts	100 watts

(f) Calculations made under paragraph (d) of this section may not take outstanding PSRA or PSSA operations into account, nor will the grant of a PSRA or PSSA confer any degree of interference protection on the holder thereof.

(g) Operation under a PSRA or PSSA is not mandatory, and will not be included in determining compliance with the requirements of §73.1740. To the extent actually undertaken, however, pre-sunrise operation will be considered by the FCC in determining overall compliance with the past programming representations and station policy concerning commercial matter.

(h) The PSRA or PSSA is secondary to the basic instrument of authorization with which it is to be associated. The PSRA or PSSA may be suspended, modified, or withdrawn by the FCC without prior notice or right to hearing, if necessary to resolve interference conflicts, to implement agreements with foreign governments, or in other circumstances warranting such action. Moreover, the PSRA or PSSA does not extend beyond the term of the basic authorization.

(i) The FCC will periodically recalculate maximum permissible power and times for commencing PSRA and PSSA for each Class II and Class III station. These original notifications and subsequent notifications should be associated with the station authorization. Upon notification of new power and time of commencing operation, affected stations will make necessary adjustments within 30 days.

(j) A PSRA and PSSA does not require compliance with §73.45, 73.182, 73.188, and 73.1560 where the operation might otherwise be considered as technically substandard. Further, the requirements of paragraphs (a)(5), (b)(2), (c)(2), and (d)(2) of §73.1215 concerning the scale ranges of transmission system indicating instruments are waived for PSRA and PSSA operation except for the radio frequency ammeters used in determining antenna input power.

(k) A station having an antenna monitor incapable of functioning at the authorized PSRA and PSSA power when using a directional antenna shall take the monitor reading using unmodulated carrier at the authorized daytime power immediately prior to commencing PSRA or PSSA operations. Special conditions as the FCC may deem appropriate may be included for PSRA or PSSA to insure operation of the transmitter and associated equipment in accordance with all phases of good engineering practice.

NOTE: Extended hours operations are subject to international agreements governing all operations. These agreements are in the process of revision, but until this process is completed it will not be possible to allow full operation as outlined above.

§73.653 Operation of TV aural and visual transmitters—(a) During the operating hours of a TV station, between its regularly scheduled sign-on and sign-off times, the aural and visual transmitters shall not be operated separately, or to present different or unrelated program material, except in the following cases: (1) Emergency fills due to either visual or aural equipment failures leaving the licensee with only the audio or video programing to announce the equipment failures to the audience; (2) For equipment tests or experimentation pursuant to §73.1510 (Experimental authorizations) and §73.1520 (Operation for tests and maintenance).

(b) During the normal non-operating hours of a TV station between sign-off of one broadcast day and sign-on of the next but, in any event, no earlier than 12 Midnight nor later than 6 a.m., the aural and visual transmitters shall, if the licensee chooses to broadcast, be operated as follows: (1) as described in paragraphs (a)(1) and (2) of this Section, or (2) separately, with either (i) no aural transmissions, or (ii) aural transmissions of non-related, different program material. (3) All rules and all policies of the FCC apply to the operation of stations presenting programs described in this paragraph (b).

(c) Stations signing on after 6 a.m. may present visual transmissions of a test pattern, still pictures or slides, with aural transmission consisting of a single tone, or series of variable tones, a presentation of the upcoming program schedule, aural news broadcasts, or music. This type program material shall not exceed 15 minutes immediately prior to the start of the station's scheduled sign-on.

(d) During the non-encoded operating hours of a Subscription TV station, between the regularly scheduled sign-on and sign-off times in which it presents such non-encoded programming, the aural and visual transmitters shall not be operated separately, or to present different or unrelated program material, except in the following case: (1) During installation of decoders and orientation of receiving antennas at subscriber locations, non-integrated, different or unrelated material may be presented to aid installers in their function.

For AM, FM and TV stations ...

§73.1250 Broadcasting emergency information—(a) Emergency situations in which the broadcasting of information is considered as furthering the safety of life and property include, but are not limited to the following: Tornadoes, hurricanes, floods, tidal waves, earthquakes, icing conditions, heavy snows, widespread fires, discharge of toxic gasses, widespread power failures, industrial explosions, civil disorders and school closings and changes in school bus schedules resulting from such conditions. See also §73.3542, Application for Emergency Authorization, for requirements involving emergency situations not covered by this section for which prior operating authority must be requested.

(b) If requested by responsible public officials, a station may, at its discretion, and without further FCC authority, transmit emergency point-to-point messages for the purpose of requesting or dispatching aid and assisting in rescue operations.

(c) If the Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) is activated for a national level emergency while a local or state level emergency operation is in progress, the national level EBS operation shall take precedence. If, during the broadcasting of local or state emergency information, the attention signal described in §73.906 is used, the broadcasts are considered as being carried out under a state level or local level EBS operational plan.

(d) Any emergency operation undertaken in accordance with this section may be terminated by the FCC if required in the public interest.

(e) Immediately upon cessation of an emergency during which broadcast facilities were used for the transmission of point-to-point messages under paragraph (b) of this section, or when daytime facilities were used during nighttime hours by an AM station in accordance with paragraph (f) of this section, a report in letter form shall be forwarded to the FCC in Washington, D.C., setting forth the nature of the emergency, the dates and hours of the broadcasting of emergency information, and a brief description of the material carried during the emergency. A certification of compliance with the noncommercialization provision of paragraph (f) of this section must accompany the report where daytime facilities are used during nighttime hours by an AM station, together with a detailed showing, under the provisions of that paragraph, that no other broadcast service existed or was adequate.

(f) AM stations may, without further FCC authority, use their full daytime facilities during nighttime hours to broadcast emergency information (examples listed in paragraph (a) of this section), when necessary to the safety of life and property, in dangerous conditions of a general nature and when adequate advance warning cannot be given with the facilities authorized, because of skywave interference impact on other stations assigned to the same channel, such operation may be undertaken only if regular, unlimited-time service, is non-existent, inadequate from the standpoint of coverage, or not serving the public need. All operation under this paragraph must be conducted on a noncommercial basis. Recorded music may be used to the extent necessary to provide program continuity.

(g) Broadcasting of emergency information shall be confined to the hours, frequencies, powers and modes of operation specified in the station license, except as otherwise provided for AM stations in paragraph (f) of this section.

(h) Any emergency information transmitted by a TV station in accordance with this section shall be transmitted both aurally and visually or only visually. TV stations may use any method of visual presentation which results in a legible message conveying the essential emergency information. Methods which may be used include, but are not necessarily limited to, slides, electronic captioning, manual methods (e.g., hand printing) or mechanical printing processes. However, when emergency operation is being conducted under a national, state or local level Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) plan, emergency information shall be transmitted both aurally and visually.

§73.1500—Automatic transmission systems (ATS)—An automatic transmission system consists of monitoring devices, control, and alarm circuitry, arranged so that they interact automatically to operate a broadcast station's transmitter and maintain technical parameters within licensed values.

(a) Licensees of AM, FM or TV broadcast stations may utilize an automatic transmission system (ATS) in lieu of either direct or remote control of the station transmitting system.

(b) No authorization from the FCC is required to operate the transmitter using an automatic transmission system. Prior to commencing use of the ATS, the station chief operator, technical director, or consulting engineer shall certify in writing to the station licensee that the system has been installed, tested, and fully complies with all prescribed technical standards of the rules applicable to the particular class of station.

(c) Broadcast stations operating automatic transmission systems must be provided with one or more ATS duty operator points. Each such point shall have a means to turn the transmitting apparatus off at all times.

(d) Whenever an automatic transmission system duty operator point is established at a location other than the main studio or transmitter, notification of that location must be sent to the FCC in Washington, D.C. within 3 days of initial use of the point. This notification is not required if responsible station personnel may be contacted at the transmitter or studio site during hours of operation when the ATS duty operator is elsewhere.

(e) The ATS must incorporate circuits that will terminate station transmission within 3 minutes if the adjustment controls do not correct an operating condition which is capable of causing interference.

(f) The transmitting apparatus must be manually activated at the beginning of each broadcast period.

(g) For AM station operation, the ATS may incorporate a means to transmit emergency information under the provisions of §73.1250(f).

§73.1510—Experimental authorizations—(a) Licensees of broadcast stations may obtain experimental authorizations to conduct technical experimentation directed toward improvement of the technical phases of operation and service, and for such purposes may use a signal other than the normal broadcast program signal.

(b) Experimental authorizations may be requested by filing an informal application with the FCC in Washington, D.C., describing the nature and purpose of the experimentation to be conducted, the nature of the experimental signal to be transmitted, and the proposed schedule of hours and duration of the experimentation. Experimental authorizations shall be posted with the station license.

(c) Experimental operations are subject to the following conditions:

(1) The authorized power of the station may not be exceeded, except as specifically authorized for the experimental operations.

(2) Emissions outside the authorized bandwidth must be attenuated to the degree required for the particular type of station.

(3) The experimental operations may be conducted at any time the station is authorized to operate, but the minimum required schedule of programming for the class and type of station must be met. AM stations also may conduct experimental operations during the experimental period (12 midnight local time to local sunrise) and at additional hours if permitted by the experimental authorization provided no interference is caused to other stations maintaining a regular operating schedule within such period(s).

(4) If an experimental authorization permits the use of additional facilities or hours of operation for experimental purposes, no sponsored programs or commercial announcements may be transmitted during such experimentation.

(5) The licensee may transmit regularly scheduled programming concurrently with the experimental transmissions if there is no significant impairment of service.

(6) No charges may be made, either directly or indirectly, for the experimentation; however, normal charges may be made for regularly scheduled programming transmitted concurrently with the experimental transmissions.

(d) The FCC may request a report of the research, experimentation and results at the conclusion of the experimental operations.

§73.1515 Special field test authorizations—(a) A special field test authorization may be issued to conduct field strength surveys to aid in the selection of suitable sites for broadcast transmission facilities, determine coverage areas, or to study other factors influencing broadcast signal propagation. The applicant for the authorization must be qualified to hold a license under Section 303(l)(1) of the Communications Act.

(b) Requests for authorizations to operate a transmitter under a special field test authorization must be in writing using an informal application in letter form, signed by the applicant and including the following information:

(1) Purpose, duration and need for the survey.
(2) Frequency, transmitter output powers and time of operation.

(3) A brief description of the test antenna system, its estimated effective radiated field and height above ground or average terrain, and the geographic coordinates of its proposed location(s).

(c) Operation under a special field test authorization is subject to the following conditions:

(1) No objectionable interference will result to the operation of other authorized radio services; in this connection, the power requested shall not exceed that necessary for the purposes of the test.

(2) The carriers will be unmodulated except for the transmission of a test pattern on a visual TV transmitter, and for hourly voice station identification on aural AM, FM and TV transmitters.

(3) The transmitter output power or antenna input power may not exceed those specified in the test authorization and the operating power must be maintained at a constant value for each phase of the tests.

(4) The input power to the final amplifier stage, and the AM antenna current or the FM or TV transmitter output power must be observed and recorded at half hour intervals and at any time that the power is adjusted or changed. Copies of these records must be submitted to the FCC with the required report.

(5) The test equipment may not be permanently installed, unless such installation has been separately authorized. Mobile units are not deemed permanent installations.

(6) Test transmitters must be operated by or under the immediate direction of an operator holding a commercial radio operator license (any class, unless otherwise endorsed).

(7) A report, containing the measurements, their analysis and other results of the survey shall be filed with the FCC in Washington, D.C. within sixty (60) days following the termination of the test authorization.

(8) The test transmission equipment, installation and operation thereof need not comply with the requirements of FCC Rules and Standards except as specified in this section if the equipment, installation and operation are consistent with good engineering principles and practices.

(d) A special field test authorization may be modified or terminated by notification from the FCC if in its judgment such action will promote the public interest, convenience and necessity.

§73.1520 Operation for tests and maintenance—(a) Broadcast stations may be operated for tests and maintenance of their transmitting systems on their assigned frequencies using their licensed operating power and antennas during their authorized hours of operation without specific authorization from the FCC.

(b) Licensees of AM stations may operate for tests and maintenance during the hours from 12 midnight local time to local sunrise, if no interference is caused to other stations maintaining a regular operating schedule within such period. No AM station licensed for daytime or "specified hours" of operation may broadcast any regular or scheduled programs during this period of test and maintenance operation.

(c) Licensees of AM stations may obtain special antenna test authorizations, and operate under the provisions described in §73.157, to operate with nighttime facilities during daytime hours in conducting directional antenna field strength and antenna proof of performance measurements.

§73.1705 Time of operation—(a) Commercial and noncommercial educational TV and commercial FM stations will be licensed for unlimited time operation. Application may be made for voluntary share-time operation.

(b) Noncommercial educational FM stations will be licensed for unlimited and share time operation according to the provisions of §73.561.

(c) AM stations will be licensed for unlimited time, limited time, daytime, share time or specified hours.

§73.1715 Share time—Operation is permitted by two or more broadcast stations using the same channel in accordance with a division of hours mutually agreed upon and considered part of their licenses.

(a) If the licenses of stations authorized to share time do not specify hours of operation, the licensees shall endeavor to reach an agreement for a definite schedule of periods of time to be used by each. Such agreement shall be in writing and each licensee shall file it in triplicate original with each application to the FCC in Washington, D.C. for renewal of license. If and when such written agreements are properly filed in conformity with this section, the file mark of the FCC will be affixed thereto, one copy will be retained by the FCC, and one copy returned to the licensee to be posted with the station license and considered as a part thereof. If the license specifies a proportionate time division, the agreement shall maintain this proportion. If no proportionate time division is specified in the license, the licensees shall agree upon a division of time. Such division of time shall not include simultaneous operation of the stations unless specifically authorized by the terms of the license.

(b) If the licensees of stations authorized to share time are unable to agree on a division of time, the FCC in Washington, D.C. shall be so notified by a statement filed with the applications for renewal of licenses. Upon receipt of such statement, the FCC will designate the applications for a hearing and, pending such hearing, the operating schedule previously adhered to shall remain in full force and effect.

(c) A departure from the regular schedule in a time-sharing agreement will be permitted only in cases where an agreement to that effect is put in writing, is signed by the licensees of the stations affected thereby and filed in triplicate by each licensee with the FCC in Washington, D.C. prior to the time of the proposed change. If time is of the essence, the actual departure in operating schedule may precede the actual filing of written agreement; provided appropriate notice is sent to the FCC.

(d) If the license of an AM station authorized to share time does not specify the hours of operation, the station may be operated for the transmission of regular programs during the experimental period provided an agreement thereto is reached with the other stations with which the broadcast day is shared; and further provided, such operation is not in conflict with §73.72 (Operating during the experimental period). Time-sharing agreements for operation during the experimental period need not be submitted to the FCC.

(e) Noncommercial educational FM stations are authorized for share-time operation according to the provisions of §73.561.

§73.1720 Daytime—Operation is permitted during the hours between average monthly local sunrise and average monthly local sunset.

(a) The controlling times for each month of the year are stated in the station's instrument of authorization. Uniform sunrise and sunset times are specified for all of the days of each month, based upon the actual times of sunrise and sunset for the fifteenth day of the month adjusted to the nearest quarter hour. Sunrise and sunset times are derived by using the standardized procedure and the table in the 1946 American Nautical Almanac issued by the United States Naval Observatory.

§73.1725 Limited time—(a) Operation is applicable only to Class II (secondary) AM stations on a clear channel with facilities authorized before November 30, 1959. Operation of the secondary station is permitted during daytime and until local sunset if located west of the dominant station on the channel, or until local sunset at the dominant station if located east of that station. Operation is also permitted during nighttime hours not used by the dominant station or stations on the channel.

(b) No authorization will be granted for: (1) A new limited time station; (2) A limited time station operating on a changed frequency; (3) A limited time station with a new transmitter site materially closer to the 0.1 mv/m contour of a co-channel U.S. Class I station; or (4) Modification of the operating facilities of a limited time station resulting in increased radiation toward any point on the 0.1 mv/m contour of a co-channel U.S. Class I station during the hours after local sunset in which the limited time station is permitted to operate by reason of location east of the Class I station.

(c) The licensee of a secondary station which is authorized to operate limited time and which may resume operation at the time the dominant station (or stations) on the same channel ceases operation shall, with each application for renewal of license, file in triplicate a copy of its regular operating schedule. It shall bear a signed notation by the licensee of the dominant station of its objection or lack of objection thereto. Upon approval of such operating schedule, the FCC will affix its file mark and return one copy to the licensee authorized to operate limited time. This shall be posted with the station license and considered as a part thereof. Departure from said operating schedule will be permitted only pursuant to §73.1715 (Share time).

§73.1730 Specified hours—(a) Specified hours stations must operate in accordance with the exact hours specified in their license. However, such stations, operating on local channels, unless sharing time with other stations, may operate at hours beyond those specified in their licenses to carry special events programming. When such programs are carried during nighttime hours, the station's authorized nighttime facilities must be used.

(b) Other exceptions to the adherence to the schedule of specified hours of operation are provided in §73.72 (Operating during the experimental period), §73.1250 (Broadcasting emergency information) and §73.1740 (Minimum operating schedule).

§73.1740 Minimum operating schedule—(a) All commercial broadcast stations are required to operate not less than the following minimum hours:

(1) AM and FM stations. Two-thirds of the total hours they are authorized to operate between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. local time and two-thirds of the total hours they are authorized to operate between 6 p.m. and midnight, local time, each day of the week except Sunday. (i) Daytime AM stations need comply only with the minimum requirements for operation between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., local time.

(2) TV stations. (i) During the first 36 months of operation, not less than 2 hours daily in any 5 broadcast days per calendar week and not less than a total of: (A) 12 hours per week during the first 18 months. (B) 16 hours per week during the 19th through 24th months. (C) 20 hours per week during the 25th through 30th months. (D) 24 hours per week during the 31st through 36th months.

(ii) After 36 months of operation, not less than 2 hours in each day of the week and not less than a total of 28 hours per calendar week.

(iii) Visual transmissions of test patterns, slides, or still pictures accompanied by unrelated aural transmissions may not be counted in computing program service (see §73.653).

(3) Operation includes the period during which the station is operated pursuant to temporary authorization or program tests, as well as during the license period.

(4) In the event that causes beyond the control of a licensee make it impossible to adhere to the operating schedule of this section or to continue operating, the station may limit or discontinue operation for a period of not more than 30 days without further authority from the FCC. Notification must be sent to the FCC in Washington, D.C. not later than the 10th day of limited or discontinued operation. During such period, the licensee shall continue to adhere to the requirements in the station license pertaining to the lighting of antenna structures. In the event normal operation is restored prior to the expiration of the 30-day period, the licensee will so notify the FCC on this date. If the causes beyond the control of the licensee make it impossible to comply within the allowed period, informal written request shall be made to the FCC no later than the 30th day for such additional time as may be deemed necessary.

(b) Noncommercial educational AM and TV stations are not required to operate on a regular schedule and no minimum hours of operation are specified; but the hours of actual operation during a license period shall be taken into consideration in the renewal of noncommercial educational AM and TV broadcast licenses. Noncommercial educational FM stations are subject to the operating schedule requirements according to the provisions of §73.561.

Operator Requirements

In AM rules ...

§73.61 AM directional antenna field strength measurements—(a) Each AM station using a directional antenna system must make field strength measurements at the monitoring point locations specified in the instrument of authorization, as often as necessary to ensure that the field at those points does not exceed the values specified in the station authorization. Additionally, stations not having an approved sampling system must make the measurements once each calendar quarter at intervals not exceeding 120 days. The provision of this paragraph supersedes any schedule specified on a station license issued prior to January 1, 1986. The results of the measurements are to be entered into the station log pursuant to the provisions of §73.1820.

(b) Partial proof of performance measurements using the procedures described in §73.154 must be made whenever the licensee has reason to believe that the radiated field may be exceeding the limits for which the station was most recently authorized to operate.

(c) A station may be directed to make a partial proof of performance by the FCC whenever there is an indication that the antenna is not operating as authorized.

In AM, FM and TV rules ...

§73.1580 Transmission system inspections—(a) Each AM, FM and TV station licensee or permittee must conduct a complete inspection of the transmitting system and all required monitors as often as necessary to ensure proper station operation.

(b) The results of the inspections required by subsection (a) of this section are to be entered in the station maintenance log as specified in §73.1830(a)(1)(ix).

§73.1860 Transmitter duty operators—(a) Each AM, FM or TV broadcast station must have at least one person holding a commercial radio operator license or permit (any class, unless otherwise endorsed) on duty in charge of the transmitter during all periods of broadcast operation. The operator must be on duty at the transmitter location, a remote control point, an ATS monitor and alarm point, or a position where extension meters are installed under the provisions of §73.1550.

(b) The transmitter operator must be able to observe the required transmitter and monitor metering to determine deviations from normal indications. The operator must also be able to make the necessary adjustments from the normal operator duty position, except as provided for in §73.1550.

(c) It is the responsibility of the station licensee to ensure that each transmitter operator is fully instructed and capable to perform all necessary observations and adjustments of the transmitting system and other associated operating duties to ensure compliance with the rules and station authorization.

(d) The transmitter duty operator may, at the discretion of the licensee and chief operator, be employed for other duties or operation of other transmitting stations if such other duties will not interfere with the proper operation of the broadcast transmission system.

§73.1870 Chief operators—(a) The licensee of each AM, FM or TV broadcast station must designate a person holding a commercial radio operator license or permit (any class, unless otherwise endorsed) to serve as the station's chief operator. At times when the chief operator is unavailable or unable to act (e.g., vacations, sickness), the licensee shall designate another licensed operator as the acting chief operator on a temporary basis.

(b) Chief operators shall be employed or serve on the following basis:

(1) The chief operator for an AM station using a directional antenna or operating with greater than 10 kw authorized power, or of a TV station is to be an employee of the station on duty for whatever number of hours each week the station licensee determines is necessary to keep the station's technical operation in compliance with FCC rules and the terms of the station authorization.

(2) Chief operators for non-directional AM stations operating with authorized powers not exceeding 10 kw and FM stations may be either an employee of the station or engaged to serve on a contract basis for whatever number of hours each week the licensee determines is necessary to keep the station's technical operation in compliance with the FCC rules and terms of the station authorization.

(3) The designation of the chief operator must be in writing with a copy of the designation posted with the operator license. Agreements with chief operators serving on a contract basis must be in writing with a copy kept in station files.

(c) The chief operator is responsible for completion of the following duties specified in this paragraph below. When these duties are delegated to other persons, the chief operator shall maintain supervisory oversight sufficient to know that each requirement has been fulfilled in a timely and correct manner.

(1) Weekly (or monthly for stations using automatic transmission systems) inspections and calibrations of the transmission system, required monitors, metering, and control systems; and any necessary repairs or adjustments where indicated.

(2) Periodic AM field monitoring point measurements, equipment performance measurements, or other tests as specified in the rules or terms of the station license.

(3) Review of the station operating system inspections to determine if the entries are being made correctly or if the station authorization. Upon completion of the review, the chief operator or his designee is to make a notation of any discrepancies observed and date and sign the log; initiate necessary corrective action, and advise the station licensee of any condition which is a repetitive problem.

Personal Attack and Political Broadcasts

In AM, FM, TV rules ...

§73.1910 Fairness Doctrine—The Fairness Doctrine is contained in Section 315(a) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, which provides that broadcasters have certain obligations to afford reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance. See FCC public notice Fairness Doctrine and the Public Interest Standards, 39 FR 26372. Copies may be obtained from the FCC upon request.

FCC Rules

§73.1920 Personal attacks—(a) When, during the presentation of views on a controversial issue of public importance, an attack is made upon the honesty, character, integrity or like personal qualities of an identified person or group, the licensee shall, within a reasonable time and in no event later than one week after the attack, transmit to the persons or group attacked: (1) Notification of the date, time and identification of the broadcast; (2) A script or tape (or an accurate summary if a script or tape is not available) of the attack; and (3) An offer of a reasonable opportunity to respond over the licensee's facilities.

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this Section shall not apply to broadcast material which falls within one or more of the following categories: (1) Personal attacks on foreign groups or foreign public figures; (2) Personal attacks occurring during uses by legally qualified candidates. (3) Personal attacks made during broadcasts not included in (b)(2) and made by legally qualified candidates, their authorized spokespersons, or those associated with them in the campaign, on other such candidates, their authorized spokespersons or persons associated with the candidates in the campaign; and (4) Bona fide newscasts, bona fide news interviews, and on-the-spot coverage of bona fide news events, including commentary or analysis contained in the foregoing programs.

(c) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section shall be applicable to editorials of the licensee, except in the case of noncommercial educational stations since they are precluded from editorializing (Section 399(a), Communications Act).

§73.1930 Political editorials—(a) Where a licensee, in an editorial, (1) endorses or (2) opposes a legally qualified candidate or candidates, the licensee shall, within 24 hours after the editorial, transmit to, respectively, (i) the other qualified candidate or candidates for the same office or (ii) the candidate opposed in the editorial. (A) notification of the date and the time of the editorial. (B) a script or tape of the editorial and (C) an offer of a reasonable opportunity for the candidate or a spokesman of the candidate to respond over the licensee's facilities. Where such editorials are broadcast on the day of the election or within 72 hours prior to the day of the election, the licensee shall comply with the provisions of this paragraph sufficiently far in advance of the broadcast to enable the candidate or candidates to have a reasonable opportunity to prepare a response and to present it in a timely fashion.

(b) Inasmuch as noncommercial educational stations may not engage in editorializing nor may support nor oppose any candidate for political office (Section 399, Communications Act), the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section do not apply to such stations.

§73.1940 Broadcasts by candidates for public office—(a) Definitions.

(1) A legally qualified candidate for public office is any person who:

(i) has publicly announced his or her intention to run for nomination or office;

(ii) is qualified under the applicable local, state or federal law to hold the office for which he or she is a candidate; and,

(iii) has met the qualifications set forth in either subparagraphs (2), (3) or (4), below.

(2) A person seeking election to any public office including that of President or Vice President of the United States, or nomination for any public office except that of President or Vice President, by means of a primary general or special election, shall be considered a legally qualified candidate if, in addition to meeting the criteria set forth in subparagraph (1) above, that person:

(i) has qualified for a place on the ballot, or
(ii) has publicly committed himself or herself to seeking election by the write-in method and is eligible under applicable law to be voted for by sticker, by writing in his or her name on the ballot or by other method, and makes a substantial showing that he or she is a bona fide candidate for nomination or office.

Persons seeking election to the office of President or Vice President of the United States shall, for the purposes of the Communications Act and the Rules thereunder, be considered legally qualified candidates only in those states or territories (or the District of Columbia) in which they have met the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) and (2) of this Rule: Except, that any such person who has met the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) and (2) in at least 10 states (or nine and the District of Columbia) shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for election in all states, territories and the District of Columbia for purposes of this Act.

(3) A person seeking nomination to any public office, except that of President or Vice President of the United States, by means of a convention, caucus or similar procedure, shall be considered a legally qualified candidate if, in addition to meeting the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) above, that person makes a substantial showing that he or she is a bona fide candidate for such nomination: Except, that no person shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for nomination by the means set forth in this paragraph prior to 90 days before the beginning of the convention, caucus or similar procedure in which he or she seeks nomination.

(4) A person seeking nomination for the office of President or Vice President of the United States shall, for the purposes of the Communications Act and the rules thereunder, be considered a legally qualified candidate only in those states or territories (or the District of Columbia) in which, in addition to meeting the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) above:

(i) he or she, or proposed delegates on his or her behalf, have qualified for the primary or Presidential preference ballot in that state, territory or the District of Columbia, or

(ii) he or she has made a substantial showing of bona fide candidacy for such nomination in that state, territory or the District of Columbia; except that any such person meeting the requirements set forth in paragraphs (a)(1) and (4) in at least ten states (or nine and the District of Columbia) shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for nomination in all states, territories and the District of Columbia for purposes of this Act.

(5) The term "substantial showing" of bona fide candidacy as used in paragraphs (a)(2), (3) and (4) above means evidence that the person claiming to be a candidate has engaged to a substantial degree in activities commonly associated with political campaigning. Such activities normally would include making campaign speeches, distributing campaign literature, issuing press releases, maintaining a campaign committee and establishing campaign headquarters (even though the headquarters in some instances might be the residence of the candidate or his campaign manager). Not all of the listed activities are necessarily required in each case to demonstrate a substantial showing, and there may be activities not listed herein which would contribute to such a showing.

(b) Charges for use of stations. The charges, if any, made for the use of any broadcasting station by any person who is a legally qualified candidate for any public office in connection with his campaign for nomination for election, or election, to such office shall not exceed

(1) during the 45 days preceding the date of a primary or primary runoff election and during the 60 days preceding the date of a general or special election in which such person is a candidate, the lowest unit charge of the station for the same class and amount of time for the same period, and

(2) at any other time, the charges made for comparable use of such station by other users thereof. The rates, if any, charged all such candidates for the same office shall be uniform and shall not be rebated by any means direct or indirect. A candidate shall be charged no more than the rate the station would charge if the candidate were a commercial advertiser whose advertising was directed to promoting its business within the same area as that encompassed by the particular office for which such person is a candidate. All discount privileges otherwise offered by a station to commercial advertisers shall be available upon equal terms to all candidates for public office.

(3) This paragraph shall not apply to any station which is not licensed for commercial operation.

(c) Discrimination between candidates. In making time available to candidates for public office, no licensee shall make any discrimination between candidates in practices, regulations, facilities, or services for or in connection with the service rendered pursuant to this part, or make or give any preference to any candidate for public office or subject any such candidate to any prejudice or disadvantage; nor shall any licensee make any contract or other agreement which shall have the effect of permitting any legally qualified candidate for any public office to broadcast to the exclusion of other legally qualified candidates for the same public office.

(d) See §§73.3526 and 73.3527. Records, inspection. Every licensee shall keep and permit public inspection of a complete record (political file) of all requests for broadcast time made by or on behalf of candidates for public office, together with an appropriate notation showing the disposition made by the licensee of such requests, and the charges made, if any, if the request is granted. When free time is provided for use by or on behalf of such candidates, a record of the free time provided shall be placed in the political file. All records required by this paragraph shall be placed in the political file as soon as possible and shall be retained for a period of two years. See §§73.3526 and 73.3527.

(e) Time of request. A request for equal opportunities must be submitted to the licensee within one week of the day on which the first prior use giving rise to the right of equal opportunities occurred: provided, however, that where the person was not a candidate at the time of such first prior use, he shall submit his request within one week of the first subsequent use after he has become a legally qualified candidate for the office in question.

(f) Burden of proof. A candidate requesting equal opportunities of the licensee, or complaining of noncompliance to the Commission shall have the burden of proving that he and his opponent are legally qualified candidates for the same public office.

(g) General requirements. (1) Except as otherwise indicated in paragraph (g)(2) of this section, no station licensee is required to permit the use of its facilities by any legally qualified candidate for public office, but if any licensee shall permit any such candidate to use its facilities, it shall afford equal opportunities to all other candidates for that office to use such facilities. Such licensee shall have no power of censorship over the material broadcast by any such candidate. Appearance by a legally qualified candidate on any (i) bona fide newscast, (ii) bona fide news interviews, (iii) bona fide news documentary (if the appearance of the candidate is incidental to the presentation of the subject covered by the news documentary), or (iv) on-the-spot coverage of bona fide news events (including, but not limited to political conventions and activities incidental thereto) shall not be deemed to be use of a broadcasting station. (Section 315(a) of the Communications Act.)

(2) Section 312(a)(7) of the Communications Act provides that the Commission may revoke any station license or construction permit for willful or repeated failure to allow reasonable access to, or to permit purchase of, reasonable amounts of time for the use of a broadcasting station by a legally qualified candidate for federal elective office on behalf of his candidacy.

(h) Political broadcasting primer. A detailed study of these rules regarding broadcasts by candidates for federal and non-federal public office is available in the FCC Public Notice of July 20, 1978, "The Law of Political Broadcasting and Cablecasting" [43 RR 2d 1353]. Copies may be obtained from the FCC upon request.

Equal Employment Opportunities

In AM, FM, TV rules ...

§73.2080 Equal employment opportunities—(a) General policy. Equal opportunity in employment shall be afforded by all licensees or permittees of commercially or noncommercially operated AM, FM, TV or international broadcast stations (as defined in this part) to all qualified persons, and no person shall be discriminated against in employment because of race, color, religion, national origin or sex.

(b) EEO program. Each broadcast station shall establish, maintain, and carry out, a positive continuing program of specific practices designed to assure equal opportunity in every aspect of station employment policy and practice. Under the terms of its programs, a station shall:

(1) Define the responsibility of each level of management to ensure a positive application and vigorous enforcement of the policy of equal opportunity, and establish a procedure to review and control managerial and supervisory performance.

(2) Inform its employees and recognized employee organizations of the positive equal employment opportunity policy and program and enlist their cooperation.

(3) Communicate its equal employment opportunity policy and program and its employment needs to sources of qualified applicants without regard to race, color, religion, national origin or sex, and solicit their recruitment assistance on a continuing basis.

(4) Conduct a continuing program to exclude all unlawful forms of prejudice or discrimination based upon race, color, religion, national origin or sex, from its personnel policies and practices and working conditions; and

(5) Conduct a continuing review of job structure and employment practices and adopt positive recruitment, job design, and other measures needed in order to ensure genuine equality of opportunity to participate fully in all organizational units, occupations and levels of responsibility.

(c) EEO program requirements. A broadcast station's equal employment opportunity program should reasonably address itself to the specific areas set forth below, to the extent possible, and to the extent that they are appropriate in terms of the station's size, location, etc.:

(1) Disseminate its equal opportunity program to job applicants and employees. For example, this requirement may be met by:

(i) Posting notices in the station's office and other places of employment, informing employees, and applicants for employment, of their equal employment opportunity rights. Where it is appropriate, such equal employment opportunity notices should be posted in languages other than English;

(ii) Placing a notice in bold type on the employment application informing prospective employees that discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin or sex is prohibited;

(iii) Seeking the cooperation of labor unions, if represented at the station, in the implementation of its EEO program and the inclusion of nondiscrimination provisions in union contracts;

(iv) Utilizing media for recruitment purposes in a manner that will contain no indication, either explicit or implicit, of a preference for one sex over another and that can be reasonably expected to reach minorities and women.

(2) Use minority organizations, organizations for women, media, educational institutions and other potential sources of minority and female applicants, to supply referrals whenever job vacancies are available in its operation. For example, this requirement may be met by:

(i) Placing employment advertisements in media that have significant circulation among minorities residing and/or working in the recruiting area;

(ii) Recruiting through schools and colleges, including those located in the station's local area, with significant minority-group enrollments;

(iii) Contacting, both orally and in writing, minority and human relations organizations, leaders and spokesmen to encourage referral of qualified minority or female applicants;

(iv) Encouraging current employees to refer minority or female applicants;

(v) Making known to recruitment sources in the employer's immediate area that qualified minority members and females are being sought for consideration whenever you hire and that all candidates will be considered on a nondiscriminatory basis.

(3) Evaluate its employment profile and job turnover against the availability of minorities and women in its recruitment area. For example, this requirement may be met by:

(i) Comparing the composition of the relevant labor area with composition of the station's workforce;

(ii) Where there is underrepresentation of either minorities and/or women, examining the company's personnel policies and practices to assure that they do not inadvertently screen out any group and take appropriate action where necessary. Data on representation of minorities and women in the available labor force are generally available on a metropolitan statistical area (MSA) or county basis.

(4) Undertake to offer promotions of qualified minorities and women in a nondiscriminatory fashion to positions of greater responsibility. For example, this requirement may be met by:

(i) Instructing those who make decisions on placement and promotion that qualified minority employees and females are to be considered without discrimination, and that job areas in which there is little or no minority or female representation should be reviewed;

(ii) Giving qualified minority and female employees equal opportunity for positions which lead to higher positions. Inquiring as to the interest and skills of all lower paid employees with respect to any of the higher paid positions.

(5) Analyze its efforts to recruit, hire and promote minorities and women and address any difficulties encountered in implementing its equal employment opportunity program. For example, this requirement may be met by:

(i) Avoiding use of selection techniques or tests that have the effect of discriminating against qualified minority groups or females;

(ii) Reviewing seniority practices to ensure that such practices are nondiscriminatory;

(iii) Examining rates of pay and fringe benefits for employees having the same duties, and eliminating any inequities based upon race or sex discrimination.

Network Affiliation

In AM rules ...

§73.132. Territorial exclusivity—No licensee of an AM broadcast station shall have any arrangement with a network organization which prevents or hinders another station serving substantially the same area from broadcasting the network's programs not taken by the former station, or which prevents or hinders another station serving a substantially different area from broadcasting any program of the network organization; provided, however, that this section does not prohibit arrangements under which the station is granted first call within its primary service area upon the network's programs. The term network organization means any organization originating program material, with or without commercial messages, and furnishing the same to stations interconnected so as to permit simultaneous broadcast by all or some of them. However, arrangements involving only stations under common ownership, or only the rebroadcast by one station of programming from another with no compensation other than a lump-sum payment by the station rebroadcasting, are not considered arrangements with a network organization. The term arrangement means any contract arrangement or understanding, express or implied.

In FM rules ...

§73.232. EDITOR'S NOTE: Same as §73.132.

In TV rules ...

§73.658. Affiliation agreements—(a) Exclusive affiliation of station. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with a network organization under which the station is prevented or hindered from, or penalized for, broadcasting the programs of any other network organization. (The term network organization as used herein includes national and regional network organizations. See chapter VII, J. of Report on Chain Broadcasting.)

(b) Territorial exclusivity. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with a network organization which prevents or hinders another broadcast station in the same community from broadcasting the network's programs not taken by the former stations, or which prevents or hinders another broadcast station located in a different community from broadcasting any program of the network organization. This regulation shall not be construed to prohibit any contract, arrangement, or understanding between a station and a network organization pursuant to which the station is granted the first call in its community upon the program of the network organization. As employed in this paragraph the term community is defined as the community specified in the instrument of authorization as the location of the station.

(c) Term of affiliation. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with a network organization which provides, by original terms, provisions for renewal, or otherwise for the affiliation of the station with the network organization for a period longer than 2 years: Provided that a contract, arrangement, or understanding for a period of up to two years may be entered into within 6 months prior to take commencement of such period.

(d) Station commitment of broadcast time. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with any network organization, which provides for optioning of the station's time to the network organization, or which has the same restraining effect as time optioning. As used in this section, time optioning is any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, between a station and a network organization which prevents or hinders the station from scheduling programs before the network agrees to utilize the time during which such programs are scheduled, or which requires the station to clear time already scheduled when the network organization seeks to utilize the time.

(e) Right to reject programs. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with a network organization which, with respect to programs offered or already contracted for pursuant to an affiliation contract, prevents or hinders the station from (1) rejecting or refusing network programs which the station reasonably believes to be unsatisfactory or unsuitable or contrary to the public interest, or (2) substituting a program which in the station's opinion, is of greater local or national importance.

(f) Network ownership of stations. No license shall be granted to a network organization, or to any person directly or indirectly controlled by or under common control of a network organization, for a television broadcast station in any locality where the existing television broadcast stations are so few or of such unequal desirability (in terms of coverage, power, frequency, or other related matters) that competition would be substantially restrained by such licensing. (The word control as used in this section is not limited to full control but includes such a measure of control as would substantially affect the availability of the station to other networks.)

(g) Dual network operation. No license shall be issued to a television broadcast station affiliated with a network organization which maintains more than one network of television broadcast stations: Provided that this section shall not be applicable, if such networks are not operated simultaneously, or if there is no substantial overlap in the territory served by the group of stations comprising each such network.

(h) Control by networks of station rates. No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station having any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, with a network organization under which the station is prevented or hindered from, or penalized for, fixing or altering its rates for the sale of broadcast time for other than the network's programs.

(i) No license shall be granted to a television broadcast station which is represented for the sale of non-network time by a network organization or by an organization directly or indirectly controlled by or under common control with a network organization, if the station has any contract, arrangement, or understanding, express or implied, which provides for the affiliation of the station with such network organization; provided, however, that this rule shall not be applicable to stations licensed to a network organization or to a subsidiary of a network organization.

(j) Network syndication and program practices. (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, no television network shall:

(i) after June 1, 1973, sell, license, or distribute television programs to television station licensees within the United States of non-network television exhibition or otherwise engage in the business commonly known as syndication within the United States; or sell, license or distribute television programs of which it is not the sole producer for exhibition outside the United States; or reserve any option or right to share in revenues or profits in connection with such domestic and/or foreign sale, license, or distribution; or

(ii) after August 1, 1972, acquire any financial or proprietary right or interest in the exhibition, distribution, or other commercial use of any television program produced wholly or in part by a person other than such television network, except the license or other exclusive right to network exhibition within the United States and on foreign stations regularly included within such television network; provided that if such network does not timely avail itself of such license or other exclusive right to network exhibition within the United States, the grantor of such license or right to network exhibition may, upon making a timely offer reasonably to compensate the network, re-acquire such license or other exclusive right to exhibition of the program.

(2) Nothing contained in subparagraph (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall prevent any television network from selling or distributing programs of which it is the sole producer for television exhibition outside the United States, or from selling or otherwise disposing of any program rights not acquired from another person, including the right to distribute programs for non-network exhibition (as in syndication) within the United States as long as it does not itself engage in such distribution within the United States or retain the right to share the revenues or profits therefrom.

(3) Nothing contained in this paragraph shall be construed to include any television for educational, non-commercial, or public broadcasting exhibitions or uses.

(4) For the purposes of this paragraph and paragraphs (k) and (l) of this section the term network means any person, entity or corporation which offers an interconnected program service on a regular basis for fifteen or more hours per week to at least twenty-five affiliated television licensees in ten or more states; and/or any person, entity or corporation controlling, controlled by or under common control with such person, entity or corporation.

(k) Prime time access rule. Effective September 8, 1975, commercial television stations owned by or affiliated with a national television network in the 50 largest television markets (see Note 1 to this paragraph) shall devote, during the four hours of prime time (7-11 p.m. E.T. and P.T., 6-10 p.m. C.T. and M.T.), no more than three hours to the presentation of programs from a national network, programs formerly on a national network (off-network programs) other than feature films, or, on Saturdays, feature films; provided, however, that the following categories of programs need not be counted toward the three-hour limitation:

(1) On nights other than Saturdays, network or off-network programs designed for children, public affairs programs or documentary programs (see Note 2 to this paragraph for definitions).

(2) Special news programs dealing with fast-breaking news events, on-the-spot coverage of news events or other material related to such coverage, and political broadcasts by or on behalf of legally qualified candidates for public office.

(3) Regular network news broadcasts up to half hour, when immediately adjacent to a full hour of continuous locally produced news or locally produced public affairs programming.

(4) Runovers of live network broadcast of sporting events, where the event has been reasonably scheduled to conclude before prime time or occupy only a certain amount of prime time, but the event has gone beyond its expected duration due to circumstances not reasonably foreseeable by the networks or under their control. This exemption does not apply to post-game material.

(5) In the case of stations in the Mountain and Pacific time zones, on evenings when network prime time programming consists of a sports event or other program broadcast live and simultaneously throughout the contiguous 48 states, such stations may assume that the network's schedule that evening occupies no more of prime time in these time zones than it does in the Eastern and Central time zones.

(6) Network broadcasts of an international sports event (such as the Olympic Games), New Year's Day college football games, or any other network programming of a special nature other than motion pictures or other sports events, when the network devotes all of its time on the same evening to the same programming, except brief incidental fill material.

NOTE 1: The top 50 markets to which this paragraph applies are the 50 largest markets in terms of average prime time audience for all stations in the market. For broadcast years before fall 1980, the 50 markets are the largest 50 as listed in the Arbitron publication Television Markets and Rankings Guide, generally published in November, which will apply for the broadcast year starting the following fall, except that, for 1978-79, Syracuse-Elmira will not be included and the Salt Lake City market will be included. For broadcast years starting in the fall of 1980 and thereafter, the 50 largest markets to which this paragraph applies will be determined at three-year intervals, on the basis of the average of two Arbitron February/March audience surveys occurring roughly 2-1/2 years and roughly 3-1/2 years before the start of the three-year period. The 50 markets to which this paragraph will apply for three years from fall 1980 to fall 1983 will be determined by an average of the prime time audience figures (all market stations combined) contained in the reports of Arbitron February/March 1977 and February/March 1978 audience surveys. Shortly after the results of the 1978 survey are available the Commission will issue a list of the 50 largest markets to which this paragraph will apply from fall 1980 to fall 1983. The same procedure will take place, on the basis of February/March 1980 and 1981 surveys, for the three-year period from fall 1983 to fall 1986.

NOTE 2: As used in this paragraph, the term programs designed for children means programs primarily designed for children aged 2 through 12. The term documentary programs means programs which are nonfictional and educational or informational, but not including programs where the information is used as part of a contest among participants in the program, and not including programs relating to the visual entertainment arts (stage, motion pictures or television) where more than 50% of the program is devoted to the presentation of entertainment material itself. The term public affairs programs means talks, commentaries, discussions, speeches, editorials, political programs, documentaries, forums, panels, roundtables, and similar programs primarily concerning local, national, and international public affairs.

(l) Broadcast of the programs of more than one network. The provisions of this paragraph govern and limit the extent to which, after October 1, 1971, commercial television stations in the 50 States of the United States, which are regular affiliates of one of the three national television networks, may broadcast programs of another network, in markets where there are two such affiliated stations and one or more operational VHF or UHF stations having reasonably comparable facilities which are not regular affiliates of any network. Whether or not the stations in a particular market come within the provisions of this paragraph is determined by whether, as of July 1 of each year with respect to programs beginning October 1, or as of January 1 of each year with respect to programs beginning April 1, there are in the market the stations specified in the last sentence.

(1) Definitions. As used in this paragraph, the following terms have the meaning given:

(i) Station means a commercial television station in the 50 States of the United States.

(ii) Operational station means a station authorized and operating as of June 10 (with respect to programs beginning October 1) or as of December 10 (with respect to programs beginning April 1), or as a station authorized and which gives notice to the Commission by such June 10 or December 10 date that it will be on the air by such October 1 or April 1 date (including request for program test authority if none has previously been given), and commit itself to remain on the air for six months after such October 1 or April 1 date. Such notice shall be received at the Commission by the June 10 or December 10 date mentioned, and shall show that copies thereof have been sent to the three national networks and to the licensees of all operating television stations in the market.

(iii) Affiliated station means a station having a regular affiliation with one of the three national television networks, under which it serves as that network's primary outlet for the presentation of its programs in a market. It includes any arrangement under which the network looks primarily to this station rather than other stations for the presentation of its programs and the station chiefly presents the programs of this network rather than another network.

(iv) Unaffiliated station means a station not having an affiliation arrangement as defined in this subparagraph with a national television network, even though it may have other types of agreements or pre-program arrangements with it.

(v) Network means a national organization distributing programs for a substantial part interconnection facilities.

(vi) Unaffiliated network means a network not having an affiliated station (as defined in this paragraph) in a particular market, even though it may have other types of agreements or pre-program arrangements.

(vii) Market means the television markets of the United States, and the stations in them, as identified in the latest publication of American Research Bureau (ARB), together with any stations which have since become operational in the same communities.

(viii) Evening programming means programming (regular programs or specials) starting and concluding on a network between the hours of 7:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. local time (except 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. in the Central time zone), plus all programs other than regular newscasts starting on the network between 7 and 7:30 p.m. local time (6 and 6:30 p.m. local time in the Central time zone). It does not include portions broadcast after 7 p.m. of programs starting earlier, or portions broadcast after 11 p.m. of programs starting earlier.

(ix) Specials means programs not carried on the network at least as often as once a week. It includes both programs scheduled very well in advance and those scheduled very shortly before broadcast on the network.

(x) Reasonably comparable facilities means station transmitting facilities (effective radiated power and effective antenna height above average terrain) such that the station's Grade B coverage area is at least two-thirds as large (in square kilometers) as the smallest of the market affiliated stations' Grade B coverage areas. Where one or both of the affiliates is licensed to a city different from that of the unaffiliated station, the term reasonably comparable facilities also includes the requirement that the unaffiliated station must put a predicted Grade A or better signal over all of the city of license of the other regular (non-satellite) station(s), except that where one of the affiliated stations is licensed to the same city as the unaffiliated station, and puts a Grade B but not a Grade A signal over the other city of license, the unaffiliated station will be considered as having reasonably comparable facilities if it too puts a predicted Grade B signal over all of the other city of license.

(2) Taking programs from unaffiliated networks. No affiliated station, in a market covered by this paragraph, shall take and broadcast, from an unaffiliated network, any programming of the times and types specified in this subparagraph, unless the conditions specified have first been met:

(i) Any evening programming (as defined in this paragraph), unless and until the entire schedule of such programs has been offered by the unaffiliated network to the unaffiliated station as provided in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, and the unaffiliated station has either accepted 15 hours per week of such programs, plus additional special hours when part of the "special" is included in the 15 hours, or has accepted a lesser amount and indicated that it does not wish to carry any more. Such acceptance shall be governed by the provisions of subparagraph (4) of this paragraph.

(ii) Any programming beginning on the network between 12 noon and 7 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, and consisting of sports events (without limitation, college football and basketball, professional football, baseball, ice hockey, golf, tennis, horse racing and auto racing), unless and until the program has first been offered to the unaffiliated station and that station has indicated that it does not wish to accept it.

(iii) Any programming broadcast after 11 p.m. local time (except 10 p.m. local time in the Central time zone) which is a continuation of programs starting earlier and carried by the unaffiliated station; or any material broadcast after 7 p.m. (6 p.m. in the Central time zone) which is a continuation of sports programs beginning earlier and carried by the unaffiliated station.

(iv) Any program presented in the same week by the unaffiliated station.

(3) Carriage of programs of a network which has an affiliate. No affiliated station in a market covered by this paragraph shall broadcast, from another network which has an affiliated station in the market, any evening programming or Saturday, Sunday or holiday sports programming, unless such programming has been offered to the unaffiliated station in the market and the latter has indicated that it does not wish to carry it.

(4) Offer and acceptance (i) the offer by a network referred to in this paragraph means an offer to the unaffiliated station of the programs for broadcast. Programs so offered cannot be withdrawn by the network until the following April 1 or October 1, unless the station does not in fact broadcast the program as accepted, in which case the provisions of paragraph (1) (4) (ii) shall apply, or unless the program is cancelled on the network, in which case the replacement or substitute program shall be offered to the station as a new program under paragraph (1) (2) or (1) (3). If a program accepted by the unaffiliated station is shifted in time, the station may exercise its right of first call either with respect to the program at its new time, or the previous time segment, at its option.

(ii) The acceptance referred to in paragraphs (1) (2) and (3) means that the unaffiliated station agrees to broadcast the program accepted, at its live network time or a delayed time acceptable to the network, unless in its judgment the program is not in the public interest of it wishes to substitute a local, or other live, program for it. The provisions of §73.658(a), prohibiting agreements which hinder the presentation of the programs of other networks, shall not apply to material covered by this paragraph. If a program is not presented in a particular week or at a delayed time acceptable to the network, the network may place this particular broadcast of the program on another station; and if this occurs more than 4 times in any 13-week period the network may withdraw the program from the station without obligation to offer it any additional programming. The unaffiliated station is free to seek and obtain other terms of acceptance from the network; but the offer of programming by the network on the foregoing terms satisfies its obligations under this paragraph.

(ii) The offer by the network shall, to the extent possible, be on or before July 15 with respect to programs beginning in the fall season, and by January 15 with respect to programs presented after April 1, or otherwise as soon as possible. The unaffiliated station's acceptance or indication of non-acceptance shall be within two weeks after the date of the offer; where any negotiations between the network and the station concerning particular programs are involved, programs not accepted within 30 days of the date of the offer shall be deemed not accepted.

NOTE 1: If there are in a particular market two affiliated stations and two (or more) operational unaffiliated stations with reasonably comparable facilities, the provisions of paragraph (1) shall require an offer of programming to each; but the 15-hour-per-week first call provision applies to the total programming taken by all such stations.

NOTE 2: The provisions of paragraph (1) do not apply to a market in which there are two VHF affiliated U.S. stations, and a foreign VHF station to which a national U.S. television network transmits programs pursuant to authority granted under Section 325 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and which serves as that network's primary affiliate in the market.

(m) Territorial exclusivity in non-network arrangements. No television station shall enter into any contract, arrangement or understanding, expressed or implied, with a non-network program producer, distributor, or supplier, or other person which prevents or hinders another television station located in a community over 56.3 kilometers (35 miles) away, as determined by the reference points contained in §76.53 of this chapter, (if reference points for a community are not listed in §76.53, the location of the main post office will be used) from broadcasting any program purchased by the former station from such non-network program-producer, distributor, supplier or any other person except that a TV station may secure exclusivity against a television station licensed to another designated community in a hyphenated market specified in the market listing as contained in §76.51 of this chapter for those 100 markets listed, and for markets not listed in §76.51 of this chapter, the listing as contained in the ARB Television Market Analysis for the most recent year at the time that the exclusivity contract, arrangement, or understanding is complete under practices of the industry. As used in this subsection, the term community as defined as the community specified in the instrument of authorization as the location of the station.

NOTE 1: Contracts, arrangements, or understandings that are complete under the practices of the industry prior to August 7, 1973, will not be disturbed. Extensions or renewals of such agreements are not permitted because they would in effect be new agreements without competitive bidding. However, such agreements that were based on the broadcaster's advancing seed money for the production of a specific program or series that specify two time periods—a tryout period and a period thereafter for general exhibition—may be extended or renewed as contemplated in the basic agreement.

NOTE 2: The provisions of this paragraph apply only to U.S. commercial television broadcast stations in the 50 states, and not to stations in Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, foreign stations or noncommercial educational television or public television stations (either by way of restrictions on their exclusivity or on exclusivity against them).

NOTE 3: New stations authorized in any community of a hyphenated market listed in §76.51 of this chapter or in any community of a hyphenated market listed in the ARB Television Market Analysis (for markets below the top-100 markets) are subject to the same rules as previously existing stations therein. New stations authorized in other communities are considered stations in separate markets unless and until §76.51 is amended by Commission action, or the ARB listing is changed.

NOTE 4: New stations authorized in any community of a hyphenated market listed in §76.51 of this chapter or in any community of a hyphenated market listed in the ARB Television Market Analysis (for markets below the top-100 markets) are subject to the same rules as previously existing stations therein. New stations authorized in other communities are considered stations in separate markets unless and until §76.51 is amended by Commission action, or the ARB listing is changed.

Common Antenna Site

§73.635. Use of common antenna site—No television license or renewal of a television license will be granted to any person who owns, leases, or controls a particular site which is peculiarly suitable for television broadcasting in a particular area and (a) which is not available for use by other television licensees; and (b) no other comparable site is available in the area; and (c) where the exclusive use of such site by the applicant or licensee would unduly limit the number of television stations that can be authorized in a particular area or would unduly restrict competition among television stations.

Reports to be Filed

All broadcast stations ...

§73.3526 Local public inspection file of commercial stations—(a) Records to be maintained. Every applicant for a construction permit for a new station in the commercial broadcast services shall maintain for public inspection a file containing the material described in paragraph (a)(1) of this section. Every permittee or licensee of an AM, FM or TV station in the commercial broadcast services shall maintain for public inspection a file containing the material described in paragraphs (a)(1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7) and (10) of this section. In addition, every permittee or licensee of a TV station shall maintain for public inspection a file containing the material described in paragraphs (a)(8) of this section; every permittee or licensee of an AM or FM station shall maintain for public inspection a file containing material described in paragraph (a)(9) of this section. The material to be contained in the file is as follows:

(1) A copy of every application tendered for filing, with respect to which local public notice is required to be given under the provisions of §73.3580 or §73.3594; and all exhibits, letters and other documents tendered for filing as part thereof; all amendments thereto, copies of all documents incorporated therein by reference, all correspondence between the FCC and the applicant pertaining to the application after it has been tendered for filing, and copies of Initial Decisions and Final Decisions in hearing cases pertaining thereto, which according to the provisions of §0.451 through §0.461 of the rules are open for public inspection at the offices of the FCC. Information incorporated by reference which is already in the local file need not be duplicated if the entry making the reference sufficiently identifies the information so that it may be found in the file, and if there has been no change in the document since the date of filing and the applicant, after making the reference, so states. If petitions to deny are filed against the application, and have been duly served on the applicant, a statement that such a petition has been filed shall appear in the local file together with the name and address of the party filing the petition. The file shall also contain a copy of every written citizen agreement. For purposes of this section, a citizen agreement is a written agreement between a broadcast applicant, permittee, or licensee, and one or more citizens or citizen groups, entered for primarily noncommercial purposes. This definition includes those agreements that deal with goals or proposed practices directly or indirectly affecting station operation in the public interest, in areas such as but not limited to community ascertainment, programing, and employment. It excludes common commercial agreements such as advertising contracts; union, employment, and personal services contracts; network affiliation, syndication, program supply contracts and so on. However, the mere inclusion of commercial terms in a primarily noncommercial agreement such as provision for payment of fees for future services of the citizen-parties [see Report and Order, Docket 19518, 57 FCC 2d 494 [35 RR 2d 1542] (1976)—would not cause the agreement to be considered commercial for purposes of this section.

NOTE: Applications tendered for filing on or before May 13, 1965, which are subsequently designated for hearing after May 13, 1965, with local notice being given pursuant to the provisions of §73.3594, and material related to such applications, need not be placed in the file required to be kept by this section. Applications tendered for filing after May 13, 1965, which contain major amendments to applications tendered for filing on or before May 13, 1965, with local notice of the amending application being given pursuant to the provisions of §73.3580, need not be placed in the file required to be kept by this section.

(2) A copy of every application tendered for filing by the licensee or permittee for such station which is not included in paragraph (a)(1) of this section and which involves changes in program service, which requests an extension of time in which to complete construction of a new station, or which requests consent to involuntary assignment or transfer, or to voluntary assignment or transfer not resulting in a substantial change in ownership or control and which may be applied for on FCC Form 316; and copies of all exhibits, letters, and other documents filed as part thereof, all amendments thereto, all correspondence between the FCC and the applicant pertaining to the application after it has been tendered for filing, and copies of all documents incorporated therein by reference, which according to the provisions of §0.451 through §0.461 of these rules are open for public inspection at the offices of the FCC. Information incorporated by reference which is already in the local file need not be duplicated if the entry making the reference sufficiently identifies the information so that it may be found in the file, and there has been no change in the document since the date of filing and the licensee, after making the reference, so states. If petitions to deny are filed against the application, and have been duly served on the applicant, a statement that such a petition has been filed shall appear in the local file together with the name and address of the party filing the petition.

NOTE: The engineering section of the applications mentioned in paragraphs (a)(1) and (2) of this section, and material related to the engineering section, need not be kept in the file required to be maintained by this paragraph. If such engineering section contains service contour maps submitted with that section, copies of such maps and information (State, county, city, street address, or other identifying information) showing main studio and transmitter locations shall be kept in the file.

(3) A copy of every ownership report or supplemental ownership report filed by the licensee or permittee for such station after May 13, 1965, pursuant to the provisions of this part; and copies of all exhibits, letters, and other documents filed as part thereof, all amendments thereto, all correspondence between the permittee or licensee and the FCC pertaining to the reports after they have been filed, and all documents incorporated therein by reference, including contracts listed in such reports in accordance with the provisions of §73.3615(a)(4)(i) and which according to the provisions of §0.451 through §0.461 of the rules are open for public inspection at the offices of the FCC. Information incorporated by reference which is already in the local file need not be duplicated if the entry making the reference sufficiently identifies the information so that it may be found in the file, and if there has been no change in the document since the date of filing and the licensee or permittee, after making the reference, so states.

(4) Such records as are required to be kept by §73.1940 concerning broadcasts by candidates for public office.

(5) A copy of every annual employment report filed by the licensee or permittee for such station pursuant to the provisions of this part; and copies of all exhibits, letters and other documents filed as part thereof, all amendments thereto, and all correspondence between the permittee or licensee and the FCC pertaining to the reports after they have been filed and all documents incorporated therein by reference and which according to the provisions of §0.451 through §0.461 of the rules are open for public inspection at the offices of the FCC.

(6) The Public and Broadcasting—A Procedure Manual [see FCC 74-942, 39 32288, September 5, 1974.]

(7) Letters received from members of the public as are required to be retained by §73.1202.

(8) For commercial TV broadcast stations, every three months a list of programs that have provided the station's most significant treatment of community issues during the preceding 3 month period. The list for each calendar quarter is to be filed by the tenth day of the succeeding calendar quarter (e.g., January

FCC Rules

10 for the quarter October - December, April 10 for the quarter January - March, etc.). The list shall include a brief narrative describing what issues were given significant treatment and the programming that provided this treatment. The description of the programs should include, but is not limited to, the time, date, duration and title of each program in which the issue was treated.

(9) For commercial AM and FM broadcast stations, every three months a list of programs that have provided the station's most significant treatment of community issues during the preceding 3 month period. The list for each calendar quarter is to be filed by the tenth day of the succeeding calendar quarter (e.g., January 10 for the quarter October - December, April 10 for the quarter January - March, etc.). The list shall include a brief narrative describing what issues were given significant treatment and the programming that provided this treatment. The description of the programs should include, but is not limited to, the time, date, duration and title of each program in which the issue was treated.

(10) Each applicant for renewal of license shall, within seven days of the last day of the broadcast of the local public notice of filing announcements required pursuant to §73.3580(h), place in the station's local public inspection file a statement certifying compliance with this requirement. The dates and times that the pre-filing and post-filing notices were broadcast and the text thereof shall be made part of the certifying statement.

(b) Responsibility in case of assignment or transfer.

(1) In some cases involving applications for consent to assignment of broadcast station construction permits or licenses; with respect to which public notice is required to be given under the provisions of §73.3580 or §73.3594, the file mentioned in paragraph (a) of this section shall be maintained by the assignor. If the assignment is consented to by the FCC and consummated, the assignee shall maintain the file commencing with the date on which notice of the consummation of the assignment is filed with the FCC. The file maintained by the assignee shall cover the period both before and after the time when the notice of consummation of assignment was filed. The assignee is responsible for obtaining copies of the necessary documents from the assignor or from the FCC files.

(2) In cases involving applications for consent to transfer of control of a permittee or licensee of a broadcast station, the file mentioned in paragraph (a) of this section shall be maintained by the permittee or licensee.

(c) Station to which records pertain. The file need contain only applications, ownership reports, and related material that concern the station for which the file is kept. Applications, permittees, and licensees need not keep in the file copies of such applications, reports, and material which pertain to other stations with regard to which they may be applicants, permittees or licensees, except to the extent that such information is reflected in the materials required to be kept under the provisions of this section.

(d) Location of records. The file shall be maintained at the main studio of the station, where such studio is located in the community to which the station is licensed, or any accessible place (such as a public registry for documents or an attorney's office) in the community to which the station is or is proposed to be licensed, and shall be available for public inspection at any time during regular business hours.

(e) Period of retention. The records specified in paragraph (a)(4) of this section shall be retained for periods specified in §73.1940 (2 years). The manual specified in paragraph (a)(6) of this section shall be retained indefinitely. The letters specified in paragraph (a)(7) of this section shall be retained for the period specified in §73.1202 (3 years). The "significant treatment of community issues" list specified in paragraphs (a)(8) and (9) of this section shall be retained for the term of license (5 and 7 years for TV and radio, respectively). The certification specified in paragraph (a)(10) of this section shall be retained for the period specified in §73.3580 (for as long as the application to which it refers). The records specified in paragraphs (a)(1), (2), (3) and (5) of this section shall be retained, as follows:

(1) The applicant for a construction permit for a new station shall maintain such a file so long as the application is pending before the FCC or any proceeding involving that application is pending before the courts. (If the application is granted, subparagraph (2) below shall apply.)

(2) The permittee or licensee shall maintain such a file so long as an authorization to operate the station is outstanding, and shall permit public inspection of the material as long as it is retained by the licensee even though the request for inspection is made after the conclusion of a required retention period specified in this subparagraph. However, material which is voluntarily retained after the required retention time may be kept in a form and place convenient to the licensee, and shall be made available to the inquiring party, in good faith after written request, at a time and place convenient to both the party and licensee. Applications and related material placed in the file shall be retained for a period of 7 years from the date the application is tendered for filing with the FCC with two exceptions: First, engineering material pertaining to a former mode of operation need not be retained longer than 3 years after a station commences operation under a new or modified mode; and second, all of the material shall be retained for whatever longer period is necessary to comply with the following requirements:

(i) Material shall be retained until final FCC action on the second renewal application following the application or other material in question; and (ii) Material having a substantial bearing on a matter which is the subject of a claim against the licensee, or relating to an FCC investigation or a complaint to the FCC of which the licensee has been advised, shall be retained until the licensee is notified in writing that the material may be discarded, or, if the matter is a private one, the claim has been satisfied or is barred by statute of limitations. Where an application or related material incorporates by reference material in earlier applications and material concerning programing and related matters (Section IV and related material), the material so referred to shall be retained as long as the application referring to it. If a written agreement is not incorporated in an application tendered for filing with the FCC, the starting date of the retention period for that agreement is the date the agreement is executed.

(f) Copies of any material required to be in the public file of any applicant for a construction permit, or permittee or licensee of any commercial TV or radio station shall be available for machine reproduction upon request made in person, provided the requesting party shall pay the reasonable cost of reproduction. Requests for machine copies shall be fulfilled at a location specified by the applicant, permittee or licensee, within a reasonable period of time which, in no event, shall be longer than seven days unless reproduction facilities are unavailable in the applicant's, permittee's or licensee's community. The applicant, permittee or licensee is not required to honor requests made by mail, but may do so if it chooses.

§73.3612 Annual employment report.—Each licensee or permittee of a commercially or non-commercially operated AM, FM, television, or international broadcast station with five or more fulltime employees shall file with the Commission on or before May 31 of each year, on FCC Form 395, an annual employment report.

§73.3613 Filing of contracts.—Each licensee or permittee of a commercial or noncommercial AM, FM, TV or International broadcast station shall file with the FCC copies of the following contracts, instruments, and documents together with amendments, supplements, and cancellations (with the substance of oral contracts reported in writing), within 30 days of execution thereof:

(a) Network service: Network affiliation contracts between stations and networks will be reduced to writing and filed as follows:

(1) All network affiliation contracts, agreements or understandings between a TV broadcast or low power TV station and a national network. For the purposes of this paragraph the term network means any person, entity or corporation which offers an interconnected program service on a regular basis for 15 or more hours per week to at least 25 affiliated television licensees in 10 or more states; and/or any person, entity or corporation controlling, controlled by, or under common control with such person, entity or corporation.

(2) Each such filing on or after May 1, 1969, initially shall consist of a written instrument containing all of the terms and conditions of such contract, agreement or understanding without reference to any other paper or document by incorporation or otherwise. Subsequent filings may simply set forth renewal, amendment or change, as the case may be, of a particular contract previously filed in accordance herewith.

(3) The FCC shall also be notified of the cancellation or termination of network affiliations, contracts for which are required to be filed by this section.

(b) Ownership or control: Contracts, instruments or documents relating to the present or future ownership or control of the licensee or permittee or of the licensee's or permittee's stock, rights or interests therein, or relating to changes in such ownership or control shall include but are not limited to the following:

(1) Articles of partnership, association, and incorporation, and changes in such instruments;

(2) Bylaws, and any instruments effecting changes in such bylaws;

(3) Any agreement, document or instrument providing for the assignment of a license or permit, or affecting, directly or indirectly, the ownership or voting rights of the licensee's or permittee's stock (common or preferred, voting or nonvoting), such as:

(i) Agreements for transfer of stock;

(ii) Instruments for the issuance of new stock; or

(iii) Agreements for the acquisition of licensee's or permittee's stock by the issuing licensee or permittee corporation. Pledges, trust agreements, options to purchase stock and other executory agreements are required to be filed. However, trust agreements or abstracts thereof are not required to be filed, unless requested specifically by the FCC. Should the FCC request an abstract of the trust agreement in lieu of the trust agreement, the licensee or permittee will submit the following information concerning the trust:

(A) Name of trust;

(B) Duration of trust;

(C) Number of shares of stock owned;

(D) Name of beneficial owner of stock;

(F) Name of the party or parties who have the power to vote or control the vote or control the vote of the shares; and

(G) Any conditions on the powers of voting the stock or any unusual characteristics of the trust.

(4) Proxies with respect to the licensee's or permittee's stock running for a period in excess of 1 year, and all proxies, whether or not running for a period of 1 year, given without full and detailed instructions binding the nominee to act in a specified manner. With respect to proxies given without full and detailed instructions, a statement showing the number of such proxies, by whom given and received, and the percentage of outstanding stock represented by each proxy shall be submitted by the licensee or permittee within 30 days after the stockholders' meeting in which the stock covered by such proxies has been voted. However, when the licensee or permittee is a corporation having more than 50 stockholders, such complete information need be filed only with respect to proxies given by stockholders who are officers or directors, or who have 1% or more of the corporation's voting stock. When the licensee or permittee is a corporation having more than 50 stockholders and the stockholders giving the proxies are not officers or directors or do not hold 1% or more of the corporation's stock, the only information required to be filed is the name of any person voting 1% or more of the stock by proxy, the number of shares voted by proxy by such person, and the total number of shares voted at the particular stockholders' meeting in which the shares were voted by proxy.

(5) Mortgage or loan agreements containing provisions restricting the licensee's or permittee's freedom of operation, such as those affecting voting rights, specifying or limiting the amount of dividends payable, the purchase of new equipment, or the maintenance of current assets.

(6) Any agreement reflecting a change in the officers, directors or stockholders of a corporation, other than the licensee or permittee, having an interest, direct or indirect, in the licensee or permittee as specified by §73.3615.

(c) Personnel:

(1) Management consultant agreements with independent contractors; contracts relating to the utilization in a management capacity of any person other than an officer, director, or regular employee of the licensee or permittee; station management contracts with any persons, whether or not officers, directors, or regular employees, which provide for both a percentage of profits and a sharing in losses; or any similar agreements.

(2) The following contracts, agreements, or understandings need not be filed: Agreements with persons regularly employed as general or station managers or salesmen; contracts with program managers or program personnel; contracts with attorneys, accountants or consulting radio engineers; contracts with performers; contracts with station representatives; contracts with labor unions; or any similar agreements.

(d) The following contracts, agreements, or understandings need not be filed but shall be kept at the station and made available for inspection by any authorized representative of the FCC: Contracts relating to the sale of broadcast time to time brokers for resale; subchannel leasing agreements for Subsidiary Communications Authorization operation; franchise/leasing agreements for operation of telecommunications services on the TV vertical blanking interval; time sales contracts with the same sponsor for 4 or more hours per day, except where the length of the events (such as athletic contests, musical programs, and special events) broadcast pursuant to the contract is not under control of the station; and contracts with chief operators.

§73.3615 Ownership reports—(a) With the exception of sole proprietorships and partnerships composed entirely of natural persons, each licensee of a commercial AM, FM, or TV broadcast station shall file an Ownership Report on FCC Form 323 once a year, on the anniversary of the date that its renewal application is required to be filed. Licensees owning multiple stations with different anniversary dates need file only one Report per year on the anniversary of their choice, provided that their Reports are not more than one year apart. A licensee with a current and unamended Report on file at the Commission may certify that it has reviewed its current Report and that it is accurate, in lieu of filing a new report. Ownership Reports shall provide the following information as of a date not more than 60 days prior to the filing of the Report:

(1) In the case of an individual, the name of such individual;

(2) In the case of a partnership, the name of each partner and the interest of each partner. Except as specifically noted below, the names of limited partners shall be reported. A limited partner need not be reported, regardless of the extent of its ownership, if the limited partner is not materially involved, directly or indirectly, in the management or operation of the licensee and the licensee so certifies.

(i) Any change in partners or in their rights will require prior consent of the FCC upon an application for consent to assignment of license or permit. If such change involves less than a controlling interest, the application for FCC consent to such changes may be made upon FCC Form 316.

(3) In the case of a corporation, association, trust, estate, or receivership, the data applicable to each:

(i)(A) The name, residence, citizenship, and stockholding of every officer, director, trustee, executor, administrator, receiver, partner, member of an association, and any stockholder which holds stock accounting for 5% or more of the votes of the corporation, except that an investment company, insurance company, or bank trust department need be reported only if it holds stock amounting to 10% or more of the votes, provided that the licensee certifies that such entity has made no attempt to influence, directly or indirectly, the management or operations of the licensee, and that there is no representation on the licensee's board or among its officers by any person professionally or otherwise associated with the entity.

(B) A licensee shall report any separate interests known to the licensee to be held ultimately by the same individual or entity, whether those interests are held in custodial accounts, by individual holding corporations or otherwise, if, when aggregated:

(1) the sum of all interests except those held by or through "passive investors" is equal to or exceeds 5 percent; or

(2) the sum of all interests held by or through passive investors is equal to or exceeds 10 percent; or

(3) the sum of the interests computed under (1) plus the sum of the interests computed under (2) is equal to or exceeds 10 percent.

(c) If the majority of the voting stock of a corporate licensee is held by a single individual or entity, no other stockholding need be reported for that licensee;

(ii) Full information as to family relationship or business association between two or more officials and/or stockholders, trustees, executors, administrators, receivers, and members of any association;

(iii) Capitalization with a description of the classes and voting power of stock authorized by the corporate charter or other appropriate legal instrument and the number of shares of each class issued and outstanding; and

(iv) Full information with respect to the interest and identity of any person having any direct, indirect, fiduciary, or beneficial interest in the licensee or in its stock accounting for 5% or more of its votes. For example:

(A) Where A is the trustee of stock held for beneficiary B, A shall be reported if A votes the stock or has the sole or shared power to dispose of the stock; B or any other party shall be reported if B or such party votes the stock or has sole power to dispose of the stock or has the power to revoke the trust or replace the trustee at will;

(B) Where X is not a natural person and has attributable ownership interests in the licensee under §73.3555 of the rules, regardless of its position in the vertical ownership chain, an Ownership Report shall be filed for X which, except as specifically noted below, must contain the same information as required of a licensee. If X has a voting stockholder interest in the licensee, only those voting interests of X that are cognizable after application of the multiplier described in NOTE 2(d) of §73.3555 of the rules, if applicable, shall be reported. If X is a corporation, whether or not its interest in the licensee is by virtue of its ownership of voting stock, the officers and directors shall be reported. With respect to those officers and directors shall be reported. With respect to those officers and directors whose duties and responsibilities are wholly unrelated to the licensee, and who wish to be relieved of attribution in the licensee, the name, title and duties of these officers and directors, with statements properly documenting that their duties do not involve the licensee, shall be reported.

(4) In the case of all licensees:

(i) A list of contracts will in effect be required to be filed with the FCC §73.3613 showing the date of execution and expiration of each contract; and

(ii) Any interest which the licensee may have in any other broadcast station.

(b) Except as specifically noted below, each permittee of a commercial AM, FM or TV broadcast station shall file an Ownership Report on FCC Form 323 (1) within 30 days of the date of grant by the FCC of an application for construction permit and (2) on the date that it applies for a station license. The Ownership Report of the permittee shall give the information required by the applicable portions of paragraph (a) of this section. A permittee with a current and unamended Report on file at the Commission may certify that it has reviewed its current Report and it is accurate, in lieu of filing a new Report.

(c) Before any change is made in the organization, capitalization, officers, directors, or stockholders of a corporation other than licensee or permittee, which results in a change in the control of the licensee or permittee, prior FCC consent must be received under §73.3540. A transfer of control takes place when an individual or group in privity, gains or loses affirmative or negative (50%) control. See instructions on FCC Form 323 (Ownership Report).

(d) Each licensee of a noncommercial educational AM, FM or TV broadcast station shall file an Ownership Report on FCC Form 323-E at the time the application for renewal of station license is required to be filed. Licensees owning more than one noncommercial educational AM, FM or TV broadcast station need file only one Ownership Report at 3-year intervals. Ownership Reports shall give the following information as of a date not more than 30 days prior to the filing of the Ownership Report: (1) The following information as to all officers, members of governing board, and holders of 1% or more ownership interest (if any): Name, residence, office held, citizenship, principal profession or occupation, and by whom appointed or elected. (2) Full information with respect to the interest and identity of any individual, organization, corporation, association, or any other entity which has direct or indirect control over the licensee or permittee.

(3) A list of all contracts still in effect required by §73.3613 to be filed with the FCC, showing the date of execution and expiration of each contract. (4) Any interest which the licensee or permittee or any of its officers, members of the governing board, and holders of 1% or more ownership interest (if any) held in any other broadcast station.

(e) Each permittee of a noncommercial educational AM, FM or TV broadcast station shall file an Ownership Report on FCC Form 323-E within 30 days of the date of grant by the FCC of an application for original construction permit. The Ownership Report of the permittee shall give the information required by the applicable portions of paragraph (e) above.

(f) A supplemental Ownership Report on FCC Form 323-E shall be filed by each licensee or permittee within 30 days after any change occurs in the information required by the Ownership Report from that previously reported. Such report should include, without limitation: (1) An change in organization; or

(2) Any change in officers or directors;

(3) Any transaction affecting the ownership (direct or indirect) or voting rights with respect to the licensee or permittee (or with respect to any stock interest therein).

(g) A copy of all Ownership and supplemental Ownership Reports and related material filed pursuant to this section shall be maintained and made available for public inspection locally as required by §73.3526 and §73.3527.

License Renewals

General ...

§73.3539 Application for renewal of license—(a) Unless otherwise directed by the Federal Communications Commission, an application for renewal of license shall be filed not later than the first day of the fourth full calendar month prior to the expiration date of the license sought to be renewed, except that applications for renewal of license of an experimental broadcast station shall be filed not later than the first day of the second full calendar month prior to the expiration date of the license sought to be renewed. If any deadline prescribed in this paragraph falls on a non-business day, the cut-off shall be the close of business of the first full business day thereafter.

(b) No application for renewal of license of any broadcast station will be considered unless there is on file with the Commission, the information, if any, currently required by §73.3611-73.3615, inclusive, for the particular class of station. The renewal application shall include a reference by date and file number to such information on file.

(c) Whenever the Commission regards an application for a renewal of license as essential to the proper conduct of a hearing or investigation, and specifically directs that it be filed by a certain date, such application shall be filed within the time thus specified. If the licensee fails to file such application within the prescribed time, the hearing or investigation shall proceed as if such renewal application has been received.

If issued after such date, it will run to the next renewal date determined in accordance with this section. Radio broadcasting stations will ordinarily be renewed for 7 years and TV broadcast stations will be renewed for 5 years. However, if the FCC finds that the public interest, convenience, and necessity will be served thereby, it may issue either an initial license or a renewal thereof for a lesser term. ### §73.3535 Application to modify authorized but unbuilt facilities, or to assign transfer control of an unbuilt facility.

(a) If a permittee finds it necessary to file either an application to modify its authorized, but unbuilt facilities, or an assignment/transfer application, such application shall be filed within the first nine months of the issuance of the original construction permit for radio and other broadcast and auxiliary stations, or within twelve months of the issuance of the original construction permit for television facilities. Before such application can be granted, the permittee or assignee must certify that it will immediately begin building after the modification is granted or the assignment is consummated.

(b) Modification and assignment applications filed after the time periods stated in paragraph (a) will not be granted absent a showing that one of the following three criteria applies: (1) construction is complete and testing is underway looking toward prompt filing of a license application; (2) substantial progress has been made i.e., demonstration that equipment is on order or on hand, site acquired, site cleared and construction proceeding toward completion; or (3) no progress has been made for reasons clearly beyond the control of the permittee (such as delays caused by governmental budgetary processes and zoning problems) but the permittee has taken all possible steps to expeditiously resolve the problem and proceed with construction. A certification by the permittee or the assignee that it immediately will begin building after the modification is granted or the assignment is consummated is also necessary. A seller must make the "one of three criteria" showing in an assignment application.

(c) If the modification is granted, the time period allowed for construction will be six months from the issuance of the authorization to modify or the remainder of the construction period, whichever is longer. Also, in the case of an assignment the time period allowed for construction will be twelve months from the consummation of the assignment or the remainder of the construction period, whichever is longer. The extension will be given subject to the condition that the modification is completed or the assignment consummated. Failure to modify or consummate within the time allowed will result in cancellation of the construction permit.

(d) We will not entertain an application for modification of an authorized but unbuilt facility or an application for assignment or transfer of control of an unbuilt facility if filed after the expiration of the initial construction period.

Station Identification

All broadcast stations ...

§73.1201 Station Identification—(a) When regularly required. Broadcast station identification announcements shall be made: (1) at the beginning and ending of each hour of operation, and (2) hourly, as close to the hour as feasible, at a natural break in program offerings. Television broadcast stations may make these announcements visually or aurally.

(b) Content. (1) Official station identification shall consist of the station's call letters immediately followed by the community or communities specified in its license as the station's location: provided, that the name of the licensee or the station's frequency or channel number, or both, as stated on the station's license may be inserted between the call letters and station location. No other insertion is permissible.

(2) A station may include in its official station identification the name of any additional community or communities, but the community to which the station is licensed must be named first.

(c) Channel. (1) Generally. Except as provided in this paragraph, in making the identification announcement the call letters shall be given only on the channel of the station identified thereby.

(2) Simultaneous AM-FM broadcasts. If the same licensee operates an FM broadcast station and a standard broadcast station and simultaneously broadcasts the same programs over the facilities of both such stations, station identification announcements may be made jointly for both stations for periods of such simultaneous operation. If the call letters of the FM station do not clearly reveal that it is an FM station, the joint announcement shall so identify it.

(3) Satellite operation. When programming of a broadcast station is rebroadcast simultaneously over the facilities of a satellite station, the originating station may make identification announcements for the satellite station for periods of such simultaneous operation.

(i) In the case of a television broadcast station, such announcements, in addition to the information required by paragraph (b) (1) of this section, shall include the number of the channel on which each station is operating.

(ii) In the case of aural broadcast stations, such announcements, in addition to the information required by paragraph (b) (1) of this section, shall include the frequency on which each station is operating.

(d) Subscription television stations (STV). The requirements for official station identification applicable to TV stations will apply to Subscription TV stations except, during STV-encoded programming such station identification is not required. However, a station identification announcement will be made immediately prior to and following the encoded-Subscription TV program period.

Announcement of Sponsored Programs

§73.1212 Sponsorship identification; list retention; related requirements—(a) When a broadcast station transmits any matter for which money, service, or other valuable consideration is either directly or indirectly paid or promised to, or charged or accepted by such station, the station, at the time of the broadcast, shall announce (i) that such matter is sponsored, paid for, or furnished, either in whole or in part, and (ii) by whom or on whose behalf such consideration was supplied; provided, however, that "service or other valuable consideration" shall not include any service or property furnished either without or at a nominal charge for use on, or in connection with, a broadcast unless it is so furnished in consideration for an identification of any person, product, service, trademark, or brand name beyond an identification reasonably related to the use of such service or property on the broadcast.

(1) For the purposes of this section, the term "sponsored" shall be deemed to have the same meaning as "paid for."

(b) The licensee of each standard broadcast station shall exercise reasonable diligence to obtain from its employees, and from other persons with whom it deals directly in connection with any program matter for broadcast, information to enable such licensee to make the announcement required by this section.

(c) In any case where a report has been made to a broadcast station, as required by Section 507 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, of circumstances which would have required an announcement under this section had the consideration been received by such broadcast station, an appropriate announcement shall be made by such station.

(d) In the case of any political broadcast matter or any broadcast matter involving the discussion of a controversial issue of public importance for which any film, record, transcription, talent, script, or other material or service of any kind is furnished, either directly or indirectly, to a station as an inducement for broadcasting such matter, an announcement shall be made both at the beginning and conclusion of such broadcast on which such material or service is used that such film, record, transcription, talent, script, or other material or service has been furnished to such station in connection with the transmission of such broadcast matter: provided, however, that in the case of any broadcast of 5 minutes duration or less, only one such announcement need be made either at the beginning or conclusion of the broadcast.

(e) The announcement required by this section shall, in addition to stating the fact that the broadcast matter was sponsored, paid for or furnished, fully and fairly disclose the true identity of the person or persons or corporation, committee, association or other unincorporated group, or other entity by whom or on whose behalf such payment is made or promised, or from whom or on whose behalf such services or other valuable consideration is received, or by whom the material or services referred to in paragraph (d) of this section are furnished. Where an agent or other person or entity contracts or otherwise makes arrangements with a station on behalf of another, and such fact is known or by the exercise of reasonable diligence, as specified in paragraph (b) of this section, could be known to the station, the announcement shall disclose the identity of the person or persons or entity on whose behalf such agent is acting instead of the name of such agent. Where the material broadcast is political matter or matter involving the discussion of a controversial issue of public importance and a corporation, committee, association or other unincorporated group, or other entity is paying for or furnishing the broadcast matter, the station shall, in addition to making the announcement required by this section, require that a list of the chief executive officers or members of the executive committee as of the board of directors of the corporation, committee, association or other unincorporated group, or other entity, shall be made available for public inspection at the location specified by the licensee under §73.3526 of this chapter. If the broadcast is originated by a network, the list may, instead, be retained at the headquarters office of the network or at the location where the originating station maintains its public inspection file under §73.3526 of this chapter. Such lists shall be kept and made available for a period of two years.

(f) In the case of broadcast matter advertising commercial products or services, an announcement stating the sponsor's corporate or trade name, or the name of the sponsor's product, when it is clear that the mention of the name of the product constitutes a sponsorship identification, shall be deemed sufficient for the purposes of this section and only one such announcement need be made at any time during the course of the broadcast.

(g) The announcement otherwise required by Section 317(a) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, is waived with respect to the broadcast of "want ad" or classified advertisements sponsored by an individual. The waiver granted in this paragraph shall not extend to a classified advertisement or want ad sponsored by any form of business enterprise, corporate or otherwise. Whenever sponsorship announcements are omitted pursuant to this paragraph the licensee shall observe the following conditions:

(1) Maintain a list showing the name, address and (where available) the telephone number of each advertiser;

(2) [Reserved]

(3) Make this list available to members of the public who have a legitimate interest in obtaining the information contained in the list. Such list must be maintained for a period of two years after broadcast.

(h) Any announcement required by Section 317(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, is waived with respect to feature motion picture film produced initially and primarily for theatre exhibition.

NOTE: The waiver heretofore granted by the commission in its report and order adopted November 16, 1960 (FCC 60-1369; 40 FCC 95), continues to apply to programs filmed or recorded on or before June 20, 1963, when §73.654, the predecessor television rule, went into effect.

(i) Commission interpretations in connection with the provisions of the sponsorship identification rules are contained in the commission's public notice, entitled "Applicability of Sponsorship Identification Rules," dated May 6, 1963 (40 FCC 141), as modified by public notice, dated April 21, 1975 (FCC 75-418). Further interpretations are printed in full in various volumes of the Federal Communications Commission reports.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: In a statement issued in 1950, the FCC warned that the sponsor or his product must be identified by a distinctive name and not by one merely descriptive of the type of business or product. The following are acceptable, the Commission said: "Henry Smith offers you ...." or "Smith Stove Co. offers you ...." or "Ajax Pens brings you ...." The following are not acceptable: "Write to the Comb Man ...." or "Send your money to Nylons, Box ..." or "This program is sponsored by your Sink man ...."]

Public Notice

In AM, FM and TV ...

§73.1202. Retention of letter received from the public.

(a) All written comments and suggestions received from the public by licensees of commercial AM, FM and TV broadcast stations regarding operation of their station shall be maintained in the local public inspection file, unless the letter writer has requested that the letter not be made public or when the licensee feels that it should be excluded from public inspection because of the nature of its content, such as a defamatory or obscene letter.

(1) Letters shall be retained in the local public inspection file for three years from the date on which they are received by the licensee.

(2) Letters received by TV licensees only shall be placed in one of the following separated subject categories: programming or nonprogramming. If comments in a letter relate to both categories, the licensee shall file it under the category to which the writer has given the greater attention.

Rebroadcasts

§73.1207 Rebroadcasts—(a) The term "rebroadcast" means reception by radio of the programs or other transmissions of a broadcast or any other type of radio station, and the simultaneous or subsequent retransmission of such programs or transmissions by a broadcast station.

(1) As used in this section, "program" includes any complete program or part thereof.

(2) The transmission of a program from its point of origin to a broadcast station entirely by common carrier facilities, whether by wire line or radio, is not considered a rebroadcast.

(3) The rebroadcasting of a program relayed by a remote pickup broadcast station is not considered a rebroadcast.

(b) No broadcast station may retransmit the program, or any part thereof, of another U.S. broadcast station without the express authority of the originating station. A copy of the written consent of the licensee originating the program must be kept by the licensee of the station retransmitting such program and made available to the FCC upon request.

(1) Stations originating emergency communications under a Detailed State EBS Operation Plan are deemed to have conferred rebroadcast authority to other participating stations.

(2) Permission must be obtained from the originating station to rebroadcast any subsidiary communications transmitted by means of a multiplex subcarrier or the vertical blanking interval of a television signal.

(3) Programs originated by the Voice of America (VOA) and the Armed Forces Radio and Television Services (AFRTS) cannot, in general, be cleared for domestic rebroadcast, and may therefore be retransmitted only by special arrangements among the parties concerned.

(4) Except as otherwise provided by international agreement, programs originated by foreign broadcast stations may be retransmitted without the consent of the originating station.

(c) The transmission of messages of nonbroadcast stations may be rebroadcast under the following conditions:

(1) Messages originated by privately-owned non-broadcast stations other than those in the Amateur and Citizens Banc (CP) Radio Services may be broadcast only upon receipt of prior permission from the non-broadcast licensee. Additionally, messages transmitted by common carrier stations may be rebroadcast only upon prior permission of the originator of the message as well as the station licensee.

(2) Except as provided in paragraph (d) of this section, messages originated entirely by non-broadcast stations owned and operated by the Federal Government may be rebroadcast only upon receipt of prior permission from the government agency originating the messages.

(3) Messages originated by stations in the Amateur and Citizens Band (CB) radio services may be rebroadcast at the discretion of broadcast station licensees.

(d) The rebroadcasting of time signals originated by the Naval Observatory and the National Bureau of Standards and messages from the National Weather Service stations is permitted without specific authorization under the following procedures:

(1) Naval Observatory Time Signals. (i) The time signals rebroadcast must be obtained by direct radio reception from a naval radio station, or by land line circuits. (ii) Announcement of the time signal must be made without reference to any commercial activity. (iii) Identification of the Naval Observatory as the source of the time signal must be made by an announcement, substantially as follows: "With the signal, the time will be ... courtesy of the U.S. Naval Observatory." (iv) Schedules of time signal broadcasts may be obtained upon request from the Superintendent, U.S. Naval Observatory, Washington, D.C. 20390.

(2) National Bureau of Standards Time Signals. (i) Time signals for rebroadcast must be obtained by direct radio reception from a National Bureau of Standards (NBS) station. (ii) Use of receiving and rebroadcasting equipment must not delay the signals by more than 0.05 second. (iii) Signals must be rebroadcast live, not from tape or other recording. (iv) Voice or code announcements of the call signs of NBS stations are not to be rebroadcast. (v) Identification of the origin of the service and the source of the signals must be made by an announcement substantially as follows: "At the tone, 11 hours 25 minutes Coordinated Universal Time. This is a rebroadcast of a continuous service furnished by the National Bureau of Standards, Ft. Collins, Colo." No commercial sponsorship of this announcement is permitted and none may be implied. (vi) Schedules of time signal broadcasts may be obtained from, and notice of use of NBS time signals for rebroadcast must be forwarded semiannually to: National Bureau of Standards, WWW/WWVB, 2000 East County Road 58, Ft. Collins, Colo. 80524. (vii) In the rebroadcasting of NBS time signals, announcements will not state that they are standard frequency transmissions. Voice announcements of Coordinated Universal Time are given in voice every minute. Each minute, except the first of the hour, begins with an 0.8 second long tone of 1000 hertz at WWV and 1200 hertz tone at WWVH. The first minute of every hour begins with an 0.8 second long tone of 1500 hertz at both stations. This tone is followed by a 3-second pause, then the announcement, "National Bureau of Standards Time." This is followed by another 3-second pause before station identification. This arrangement allows broadcast stations sufficient time to retransmit the hour time tone and the words "National Bureau of Standards Time" either by manual or automatic switching. (viii) Time signals or scales made up from integration of standard frequency signals broadcast from NBS stations may not be designated as national standard scales of time or attributed to the NBS as originator. For example, if a broadcasting station transmits time signals obtained from a studio clock which is periodically calibrated against the NBS time signals from WWV or WWVH, such signals may not be announced as NBS standard time or as having been originated by the NBS.

(3) National Weather Service Messages. (i) Messages of the National Weather Service must be rebroadcast within 1 hour of receipt. (ii) If advertisements are given in connection with weather rebroadcast, these advertisements must not directly or indirectly convey an endorsement by the U.S. Government of the products or services so advertised. (iii) Credit must be given to indicate that the rebroadcast message originates with the National Weather Service.

Recordings, Tapes and Films

§73.1206 Broadcast of telephone conversations—Before recording a telephone conversation for broadcast, or broadcasting such a conversation simultaneously with its occurrence, a licensee shall inform any party to the call of the licensee's intention to broadcast the conversation, except where such party is aware, or may be presumed to be aware from the circumstances of the conversation, that it is being or likely will be broadcast. Such awareness is presumed to exist only when the other party to the call is associated with the station (such as an employee or part-time reporter), or where the other party originates the call and it is obvious that it is in connection with a program in which the station customarily broadcasts telephone conversations.

73.1208 Broadcast of taped, filmed, or recorded material—(a) Any taped, filmed or recorded program material in which time is of special significance, or by which an affirmative attempt is made to create the impression that it is occurring simultaneously with the broadcast, shall be announced at the beginning as taped, filmed or recorded. The language of the announcement shall be clear and in terms commonly understood by the public. For television stations, the announcement may be made visually or aurally.

(b) Taped, filmed or recorded announcements which are of a commercial, promotional or public service nature need not be identified as taped, filmed, or recorded.

Time

For AM, FM and TV ...

§73.1209 References to time. Unless specifically designated as "standard (non-advanced)" or "advanced," all references to time contained in this part, and in license documents and other authorizations issued thereunder, shall be understood to mean local time; i.e., the time legally observed in the community.

Political Broadcasts

For AM, FM and TV ...

§73.1940 Broadcasts by candidates for public office—(a) Definitions. (1) A legally qualified candidate for public office is any person who: (a) has publicly announced his or her intention to run for nomination or office; (b) is qualified under the applicable local, state or federal law to hold the office for which he or she is a candidate; and, (c) has met the qualifications set forth in either subparagraphs (2), (3), or (4), below.

(2) A person seeking election to any public office including that of President or Vice President of the United States, or nomination for any public office except that of President or Vice President, by means of a primary, general or special election, shall be considered a legally qualified candidate if, in addition to meeting the criteria set forth in subparagraph (1) above, that person: (a) has qualified for a place on the ballot, or (b) has publicly committed himself or herself to seeking election by the write-in method and is eligible under applicable law to be voted for by sticker, by writing in his or her name on the ballot or by other methods, and makes a substantial showing that he or she is a bona fide candidate for nomination or office.

Persons seeking election to the office of President or Vice President of the United States shall, for the purposes of the Communications Act and the rules thereunder, be considered legally qualified candidates only in those states or territories (or the District of Columbia) in which they have met the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) and (2) of this rule. Except, that any such person who has met the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) and (2) in at least 10 states (or nine and the District of Columbia) shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for election in all states, territories and the District of Columbia for purposes of this Act.

(3) A person seeking nomination to any public office, except that of President or Vice President of the United States, by means of a convention, caucus or similar procedure, shall be considered a legally qualified candidate if, in addition to meeting the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) above, that person makes a substantial showing that he or she is a bona fide candidate for such nomination: Except, that no person shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for nomination by the means set forth in this paragraph prior to 90 days before the beginning of the convention, caucus or similar procedure in which he or she seeks nomination.

(4) A person seeking nomination for the office of President or Vice President of the United States shall, for the purposes of the Communications Act and the rules thereunder, be considered a legally qualified candidate only in those states or territories or the District of Columbia in which, in addition to meeting the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) above, (a) he or she, or proposed delegates on his or her behalf, have qualified for the primary or Presidential preference ballot in that state, territory or the District of Columbia, or (b) he or she has made a substantial showing of bona fide candidacy for such nomination in that state, territory or the District of Columbia; Except, that any such person meeting the requirements set forth in paragraph (a)(1) and (4) in at least ten states (or nine and the District of Columbia) shall be considered a legally qualified candidate for nomination in all states, territories and the District of Columbia for purposes of this Act.

(5) The term "substantial showing" of bona fide candidacy as used in paragraphs (a)(2), (3) and (4) above means evidence that the person claiming to be a candidate has engaged to a substantial degree in activities commonly associated with political campaigning. Such activities normally would include making campaign speeches, distributing campaign literature, issuing press releases, maintaining a campaign committee, and establishing campaign headquarters (even though the headquarters in some instances might be the residence of the candidate or his campaign manager). Not all of the listed activities are necessarily required in each case to demonstrate a substantial showing, and there may be activities not listed herein which would contribute to such a showing.

(b) Charges for use of stations. The charges, if any, made for the use of any broadcasting station by any person who is a legally qualified candidate for any public office in connection with his campaign for nomination for election, or reelection, to such office shall not exceed (1) during the 45 days preceding the date of a primary or primary runoff election and during the 60 days preceding the date of a general or special election in which such person is a candidate, the lowest unit charge of the station for the same class and amount of time for the same period, and (2) at any other time, the charges made for comparable use of such station by other users thereof. The rates, if any, charged all such candidates for the same office shall be uniform and shall not be rebated by any means direct or indirect. A candidate shall be charged no more than the rate the station would charge if the candidate were a commercial advertiser whose advertising was directed to promoting its business within the same area as that encompassed by the particular office for which such person is a candidate. All discount privileges otherwise offered by a station to commercial advertisers shall be available upon equal terms to all candidates for public office. (3) This paragraph shall not apply to any station which is not licensed for commercial operation.

(c) Discrimination between candidates. In making time available to candidates for public office, no licensee shall make any discrimination between candidates in practices, regulations, facilities, or services for or in connection with the service rendered pursuant to this part, or make or give any preference to any candidate for public office or subject any such candidate to any prejudice or disadvantage; nor shall any licensee make any contract or other agreement which shall have the effect of permitting any legally qualified candidate for any public office to broadcast to the exclusion of other legally qualified candidates for the same public office.

(d) See §73.3526 and §73.3527.

(e) Time of request. A request for equal opportunities must be submitted to the licensee within one week of the day on which the first prior use, giving rise to the right of equal opportunities, occurred: provided, however, that where the person was not a candidate at the time of such first prior use, he shall submit his request within one week of the first subsequent use after he has become a legally qualified candidate for the office in question.

(f) Burden of proof. A candidate requesting equal opportunities of the licensee, or complaining of noncompliance to the Commission shall have the burden of proving that he and his opponent are legally qualified candidates for the same public office.

(g) General requirements. (1) Except as otherwise indicated in paragraph (g)(2) of this section, no station licensee is required to permit the use of its facilities by any legally qualified candidate for public office, but if any licensee shall permit any such candidate to use its facilities, it shall afford equal opportunities to all other candidates for that office to use such facilities. Such licensee shall have no power of censorship over the material broadcast by any such candidate. Appearance by a legally qualified candidate on any (i) bona fide newscast, (ii) bona fide news interview, (iii) bona fide news documentary (if the appearance of the candidate is incidental to the presentation of the subject covered by the news documentary), or (iv) on-the-spot coverage of bona fide news events (including, but not limited to political conventions and activities incidental thereto) shall not be deemed to be use of a broadcasting station. (Section 315(a) of the Communications Act.)

(2) Section 312(a)(7) of the Communications Act provides that the Commission may revoke any station license or construction permit for willful or repeated failure to allow reasonable access to, or to permit purchase of, reasonable amounts of time for the use of a broadcasting station by a legally qualified candidate for federal elective office on behalf of his candidacy.

(h) Political broadcasting primer. A detailed study of these rules regarding broadcasts by candidates for federal and non-federal public office is available in the FCC public notice of July 20, 1978, "The Law of Political Broadcasting and Cablecasting". Copies may be obtained from the FCC upon request.

Candor; Truthful Responses to FCC

§73.1015 Truthful written statements and responses to Commission inquiries and correspondence.—The Commission or its representatives may, in writing, require from any permittee or licensee written statements of fact relevant to a determination whether an application should be granted or denied, or to a determination whether a license should be revoked, or to some other matter within the jurisdiction of the Commission. No applicant, permittee or licensee shall in any response to Commission correspondence or inquiry or in any application, pleading, report or any other written statement submitted to the Commission, make any misrepresentation or willful material omission bearing on any matter within the jurisdiction of the Commission.

Revocations, Modifications, Suspensions

§1.87 Modification of license or construction permit on motion of the Commission.—(a) Whenever it appears that a station license or construction permit should be modified, the Commission will notify the licensee or permittee in writing of the proposed action and reasons therefor and afford the licensee or permittee at least thirty days to protest such order of modification, except that, where safety of life or property is involved, the Commission may by order provide a shorter period of time.

(b) The notification required in paragraph (a) of this section may be effectuated by a notice of proposed rulemaking in regard to a modification or addition of an FM or television channel to the Table of Allotments (§§73.202 and 73.504) or Table of Assignments (§73.606). The Commission shall send a copy of any such notice of proposed rulemaking to the affected licensee or permittee by certified mail, return receipt requested.

(c) Any other licensee or permittee who believes that its license or permit would be modified by the proposed action may also protest the proposed action before its effective date.

(d) Any protest filed pursuant to this section shall be subject to the requirements of Section 309 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, for petitions to deny.

(e) In any case where a hearing is conducted pursuant to the provisions of this section, both the burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence and the burden of proof shall be upon the Commission except that, with respect to any issue that pertains to the question of whether the proposed action would modify the license or permit of a person filing a protest pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, such burdens shall be as prescribed by the Commission.

(f) In order to utilize the right to a hearing and the opportunity to appear and give evidence upon the issues specified in any hearing order, the licensee or permittee, in person or by his attorney, shall, within the period of time as may be specified in the hearing order, file with the Commission a written statement stating that he or she will appear at the hearing and present evidence on the matters specified in the hearing order.

(g) The right to file a protest or have a hearing shall, unless good cause is shown in a petition to be filed not later than five days before the lapse of time specified in paragraphs (a) or (f) of this section, be deemed waived:

(1) In case of failure to timely file the protest as required by paragraph (a) of this section or a written statement as required by paragraph (f) of this section.

(2) In case of filing a written statement provided for in paragraph (f) of this section but failing to appear at the hearing, either in person or by counsel.

(h) Where the right to file a protest or have a hearing is waived, the licensee or permittee will be deemed to have consented to the modification as proposed and a final decision may be issued by the Commission accordingly. Irrespective of any waiver as provided for in paragraph (g) of this section or failure by the licensee or permittee to raise a substantial and material question of fact concerning the proposed modification in his protest, the Commission may, on its own motion, designate the proposed modification for hearing in accordance with this section.

(i) Any order of modification issued pursuant to this section shall include a statement of the findings and grounds and reasons therefor, shall specify the effective date of the modification, and shall be served on the licensee or permittee.

§1.89 Notice of violations.—(a) Except in cases of willfulness or those in which public health, interest, or safety requires otherwise, any person who holds a license, permit or other authorization appearing to have violated any provision of the Communications Act or any provision of this chapter will, before revocation, suspension, or cease and desist proceedings are instituted, be served with a written notice calling these facts to his or her attention and requesting a statement concerning the matter. FCC Form 793 may be used for this purpose. The Notice of Violation may be combined with a Notice of Apparent Liability to Monetary Forfeiture. In such event, notwithstanding the Notice of Violation, the provisions of §1.80 apply and not those of §1.89.

(b) Within 10 days from receipt of notice or such other period as may be specified, the recipient shall send a written answer, in duplicate, directly to the Commission office originating the official notice. If an answer cannot be sent or an acknowledgment cannot be made within such 10-day period by reason of illness or other unavoidable circumstance, acknowledgment and answer shall be made at the earliest practicable date with a satisfactory explanation of the delay.

(c) The answer to each notice shall be complete in itself and shall not be abbreviated by reference to other communications or answers to other notices. In every instance the answer shall contain a statement of action taken to correct the condition or omission complained of and to preclude its recurrence. In addition:

(1) If the notice related to violations that may be due to the physical or electrical characteristics of transmitting apparatus and any new apparatus is to be installed, the answer shall state the date such apparatus was ordered, the name of the manufacturer, and the promised date of delivery. If the installation of such apparatus requires a construction permit, the file number of the application shall be given, or if a file number has not been assigned by the Commission, such identification shall be given as will permit ready identification of the application.

(2) If the notice of violation relates to lack of attention to or improper operation of the transmitter, the name and license number of the operator in charge (where applicable) shall be given.

§1.91 Revocation and/or cease and desist proceedings: hearings— (a) If it appears that a station license or construction permit should be revoked and/or that a cease and desist order should be issued, the Commission will issue an order directing the person to show cause why an order of revocation and/or a cease and desist order, as the facts may warrant, should not be issued.

(b) An order to show cause why an order of revocation and/or a cease and desist order should not be issued will contain a statement of the matters with respect to which the Commission is inquiring and will call upon the person to whom it is directed (the respondent) to appear before the Commission at a hearing, at a time and place stated in the order, but not less than thirty days after the receipt of such order, and give evidence upon the matters specified in the order to show cause. However, if safety of life or property is involved, the order to show cause may specify a hearing date less than thirty days from the receipt of such order.

(c) To avail himself of such opportunity for hearing, the respondent, personally or by his attorney, shall file with the Commission, within thirty days of the service of the order or such shorter period as may be specified therein, a written appearance stating that he will appear at the hearing and present evidence on the matters specified in the order. The Commission in its discretion may accept a late appearance. However, an appearance tendered after the specific time has expired will not be accepted unless accompanied by a petition stating with particularity the facts and reasons relied on to justify such late filing. Such petition for acceptance of late appearance will be granted only if the Commission determines that the facts and reasons stated therein constitute good cause for failure to file on time.

(d) Hearings on the matters specified in such orders to show cause shall accord with the practice and procedure prescribed in this subpart and Subpart B of this part, with the following exception: (1) In all such revocation and/or cease and desist hearings, the burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence and the burden of proof shall be upon the Commission; and (2) the Commission may specify in a show cause order, when the circumstances of the proceeding require expedition, a time less than that prescribed in §1.276 and §1.277 within which the initial decision in the proceeding shall become effective, exceptions to such initial decision must be filed, parties must file request for oral argument, and parties must file notice of intention to participate in oral argument.

(e) Correction or promise to correct the conditions or matters complained of in a show cause order shall not preclude the issuance of a cease and desist order. Corrections or promises to correct the conditions or matters complained of, and the past record of the licensee, may, however, be considered in determining whether a revocation and/or cease and desist order should be issued.

(f) Any order of revocation and/or cease and desist order issued after hearing pursuant to this section shall include a statement of findings and the grounds therefor, shall specify the effective date of the order, and shall be served on the person to whom such order is directed.

§1.92 Revocation and/or cease and desist proceedings: after waiver of hearing—(a) After the issuance of an order to show cause, pursuant to §1.91, calling upon a person to appear at a hearing before the Commission, the occurrence of any one of the following events or circumstances will constitute a waiver of such hearing and the proceeding thereafter will be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(1) The respondent fails to file a timely written appearance as prescribed in §1.91(c) indicating that he will appear at a hearing and present evidence on the matters specified in the order.

(2) The respondent, having filed a timely written appearance as prescribed in §1.91(c), fails in fact to appear in person or by his attorney at the time and place of the duly scheduled hearing.

(3) The respondent files with the Commission, within the time specified for a written appearance in §1.91(c), a written statement expressly waiving his rights to a hearing.

(b) When a hearing is waived under the provisions of paragraph (a) (1) or (3) of this section, a written statement signed by the respondent denying or seeking to mitigate or justify the circumstances or conduct complained of in the order to show cause may be submitted within the time specified in §1.91(c). The Commission in its discretion may accept a late statement. However, a statement tendered after the specified time has expired will not be accepted unless accompanied by a petition stating with particularity the facts and reasons relied on to justify such late filing. Such petitions for acceptance of a late statement will be granted only if the Commission determines that the facts and reasons stated therein constitute good cause for failure to file on time.

(c) Whenever a hearing is waived by the occurrence of any of the events or circumstances listed in paragraph (a) of this section, the Chief Hearing Examiner (or the presiding officer if one has been designated) shall, at the earliest practicable date, issue an order reciting the events or circumstances constituting a waiver of hearing, terminating the hearing proceeding, and certifying the case to the Commission. Such order shall be served upon the respondent.

(d) After a hearing has been terminated pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section, the Commission will act upon the matters specified in the order to show cause in the regular course of business. The Commission will determine on the basis of all the information available to it from any source, including such further proceedings as may be warranted, if a revocation order and/or a cease and desist order should issue, and if so, will issue such order. Otherwise, the Commission will issue an order dismissing the proceeding. All orders specified in this paragraph will include a statement of the findings of the Commission and the grounds and reasons therefore, will specify the effective date thereof, and will be served upon the respondent.

(e) Corrections or promise to correct the conditions or matters complained of in a show cause order shall not preclude the issuance of a cease and desist order. Corrections or promises to correct the conditions or matters complained of, and the past record of the licensee, may, however, be considered in determining whether a revocation and/or cease and desist order should be issued.

Suspension of Operator Licenses

§1.85 Suspension of operator licenses.—Whenever grounds exist for suspension of an operator license, as provided in Section 303(m) of the Communications Act, the Chief of the Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau, with respect to amateur operator licenses, or the Chief of the Field Engineering and Monitoring Bureau, with respect to commercial operator licenses, may issue an order suspending the operator license. No order of suspension in any operators' license shall take effect until 15 days' notice in writing of the cause for the proposed suspension has been given to the operator licensee, who may make written application to the Commission at any time within said 15 days for a hearing upon such order. The notice to the operator licensee shall not be effective until actually received by him, and from that time he shall have 15 days in which to mail the said application. In the event that physical conditions prevent mailing of the application before the expiration of the 15-day period, the application shall then be mailed as soon as possible thereafter, accompanied by a satisfactory explanation of the delay. Upon receipt by the Commission of such application for hearing, said order of suspension shall be designated for hearing by the Chief, Safety and Special Radio Services Radio Bureau or the Chief, Field Engineering Bureau, as the case may be, and said order of suspension shall be held in abeyance until the conclusion of the hearing. Upon the conclusion of said hearing, the Commission may affirm, modify or revoke said order of suspension. If the license is ordered suspended, the operator shall send his operator license to the office of the Commission in Washington, D.C., on or before the effective date of the order, or, if the effective date has passed at the time notice is received, the license shall be sent to the Commission forthwith.

Logs and Records

§1.6 Availability of station logs and records for Commission inspection.—(a) Station records and logs shall be made available for inspection or duplication at the request of the Commission or its representative. Such logs or records may be removed from the licensee's possession by a Commission representative or, upon request, shall be mailed by the licensee to the Commission by either registered mail, return receipt requested, or certified mail, return receipt requested. The return receipt shall be retained by the licensee as part of the station records until such records or logs are returned to the licensee. A receipt shall be furnished when the logs or records are removed from the licensee's possession by a Commission representative and this receipt shall be retained by the licensee as part of the station records until such records or logs are returned to the licensee. When the Commission has no further need for such records or logs, they shall be returned to the licensee. The provisions of this rule shall apply solely to those station logs and records which are required to be maintained by the provisions of this chapter.

(b) Where records or logs are maintained as the official records of a recognized law enforcement agency and the removal of the records from the possession of that law enforcement agency will hinder its law enforcement activities, such records will not be removed pursuant to this section if the Chief of the law enforcement agency shall promptly certify in writing to the Federal Communications Commission that the removal of the logs or records will hinder law enforcement activities of the agency, and stating insofar as feasible the basis for his decision and the date when it can reasonably be expected that such records may be released to the Federal Communications Commission.

Lotteries

§73.1211 Broadcast of lottery information.—(a) No licensee of an AM, FM or television broadcast station, except as in paragraph (c) of this section, shall broadcast any advertisement of or information concerning any lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme, offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance, or any list of the prizes drawn or awarded by means of any such lottery, gift enterprise or scheme, whether said list contains any part or all of such prizes. (18 USC §1304, 62 Stat 763).

(b) The determination whether a particular program comes within the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section depends on the facts of each case. However, the Commission will in any event consider that a program comes within the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section to any person whose selection is dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance, if as a condition of winning or competing for such prize, such winner or winners, are required to furnish any money, or thing of value or are required to have in their possession any product sold, manufactured, furnished or distributed by a sponsor of a program broadcast on the station in question.

(c) The provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section shall not apply to an advertisement, list of prizes or other information concerning:

(1) A lottery conducted by a state acting under authority of state law when such information is broadcast:

(i) by a broadcast station licensed to a location in that state; or

(ii) by a broadcast station licensed to a location in an adjacent state which also conducts such a lottery. (18 USC §1307, 88 Stat 1916).

(2) Fishing contests exempted under 18 USC §1305 (not conducted for profit, i.e., all receipts fully consumed in defraying the actual costs of operation).

(d) For the purposes of paragraph (c)(1) of this section:

(1) "Lottery" means the pooling of proceeds derived from the sale of tickets or chances and allotting those proceeds or parts thereof by chance to one or more chance takers or ticket purchasers. It does not include the placing or accepting of bets or wagers on sporting events or contests.

(2) A broadcast station licensed to a location in a state that conducts a state lottery may broadcast advertisements of or information concerning such lottery in its state of license and advertisements of or information concerning such lotteries conducted in any adjacent state. (See 18 USC §1307.) The exemption would, for example, permit a broadcast station licensed to a location in New York, which now conducts a lawful state lottery, to broadcast advertisements of or information concerning the New York State Lottery as well as the lawful State Lotteries of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, since these states are adjacent to New York, and also conduct a state lottery. The exemption, however, would not permit a broadcast station licensed to a location in New York to broadcast information concerning the Maine or Michigan State Lotteries since those states are not adjacent state to New York. Nor would the exemption permit a station licensed to a location in Virginia to broadcast information concerning the Maryland State Lottery, since although Virginia is adjacent to Maryland, Virginia does not conduct a state lottery.

FCC Rules

§1304 (Of U.S. Criminal Code) Broadcasting Lottery Information.—Whoever broadcasts by means of any radio station for which a license is required by any law of the U.S. or whoever, operating any such station, knowingly permits the broadcasting of any advertisement or information concerning any lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme, offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance, or any list of the prizes drawn or awarded by means of any such lottery, gift enterprise, or scheme, whether said list contains any part or all of such prizes, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Each day's broadcasting shall constitute a separate offense.

Tender Offers and Proxy Statements

§73.4266 Tender offers and proxy statements—See Policy Statement, MM Docket No. 85-218, FCC 86-67 [59 RR 2d 1536], adopted January 30, 1986. 51 FR 9794, March 21, 1986.

Censorship

§326 (of Communications Act) Nothing in this Act shall be understood to give the Commission the power of censorship over the radio communications or signals transmitted which shall interfere with the right of free speech by means of radio communications.

Forfeitures

§503 (of Communications Act) (a) Any person who shall deliver messages for interstate or foreign transmission to any carrier, or for whom as sender or receiver, any such carrier shall transmit any interstate or foreign wire or radio communication, who shall knowingly by employee, agent, officer, or otherwise, directly or indirectly, by or through any means or device whatsoever, receive or accept from such common carrier any sum of money or any other valuable consideration as a rebate or offset against the regular charges for transmission of such messages as fixed by the schedules of charges provided for in this Act, shall in addition to any other penalty provided by this Act forfeit to the United States a sum of money three times the amount of money so received or accepted and three times the value of any other consideration so received or accepted, to be ascertained by the trial court, and in the trial of said action all such rebates or other considerations so received or accepted for a period of six years prior to the commencement of the action, may be included therein, and the amount recovered shall be three times the total amount of money, or three times the total value of such consideration, so received or accepted, or both, as the case may be.

(b) (1) Any person who is determined by the Commission, in accordance with paragraph (3) or (4) of this subsection, to have

(A) willfully or repeatedly failed to comply substantially with the terms and conditions of any license, permit, certificate, or other instrument or authorization issued by the Commission;

(B) willfully or repeatedly failed to comply with any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Commission under this Act or under any treaty, convention, or other agreement to which the United States is a party and which is binding upon the United States;

(C) violated any provision of Section 317(c) or 509(a) of this Act; or

(D) violated any provision of Sections 1304, 1343, or 1464 of Title 18, United States Code;

shall be liable to the United States for a forfeiture penalty. A forfeiture penalty under this subsection shall be in addition to any other penalty provided for by this Act; except that this subsection shall not apply to any conduct which is subject to forfeiture under Title II, Part II or III of Title III, or Section 507 of this Act.

(2) The amount of any forfeiture penalty determined under this subsection shall not exceed $2,000 for each violation. Each day of a continuing violation shall constitute a separate offense, but the total forfeiture penalty which may be imposed under this subsection, for acts or omissions described in paragraph (1) of this subsection and set forth in the notice or the notice of apparent liability issued under this subsection, shall not exceed

(A) $20,000, if the violator is (i) a common carrier subject to the provisions of this Act, (ii) a broadcast station licensee or permittee, or (iii) a cable television operator; or

(B) $5,000, in any case not covered by subparagraph. (A) The amount of such forfeiture penalty shall be assessed by the Commission, or its designee, by written notice. In determining the amount of such a forfeiture penalty, the Commission or its designee shall take into account the nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the prohibited acts committed and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.

(3)(A) At the discretion of the Commission, a forfeiture penalty may be determined against a person under this subsection after notice and an opportunity for a hearing before the Commission or an administrative law judge thereof in accordance with Section 554 of Title 5, United States Code. Any person against whom a forfeiture penalty is determined under this paragraph may obtain review thereof pursuant to Section 402(a).

(B) If any person fails to pay an assessment of a forfeiture penalty determined under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph, after it has become, a final and unappealable order or after the appropriate court has entered final judgment in favor of the Commission, the Commission shall refer the matter to the Attorney General of the United States, who shall recover the amount assessed in any appropriate district court of the United States. In such action, the validity and appropriateness of the final order imposing the forfeiture penalty shall not be subject to review.

(4) Except as provided in paragraph (3) of this subsection, no forfeiture penalty shall be imposed under this subsection against any person unless and until—

(A) the Commission issues a notice of apparent liability, in writing, with respect to such person;

(B) such notice has been received by such person, or until the Commission has sent such notice to the last known address of such person, by registered or certified mail; and

(C) such person is granted an opportunity to show, in writing, within such reasonable period of time as the Commission prescribes by rule or regulation, why no such forfeiture penalty should be imposed. Such a notice shall (1) identify each specific provision, term, and condition of any Act, rule, regulation, order, treaty, convention, or other agreement, license, permit, certificate, instrument, or authorization which such person apparently violated or with which such person apparently failed to comply; (ii) set forth the nature of the act or omission charged against such person and the facts upon which such charge is based; and (iii) state the date on which such conduct occurred. Any forfeiture penalty determined under this paragraph shall be recoverable pursuant to Section 504(a) of this Act.

(5) No forfeiture liability shall be determined under this subsection against any person, if such person does not hold a license, permit, certificate, or other authorization issued by the Commission, unless, prior to the notice required by paragraph (3) of this subsection or the notice of apparent liability required by paragraph (4) of this subsection, such person (A) is sent a citation of the violation charged; (B) is given a reasonable opportunity for a personal interview with an official of the Commission, at the field office of the Commission which is nearest to such person's place of residence; and (C) subsequently engages in conduct of the type described in such citation. The provisions of this paragraph shall not apply, however, if the person involved is engaging in activities for which a license, permit, certificate, or other authorization is required, or is a cable television system operator, or if the person involved is transmitting on frequencies assigned for use in a service in which individual station operation is authorized by rule pursuant to Section 307(e). Whenever the requirements of this paragraph are satisfied with respect to a particular person, such person shall not be entitled to receive any additional citation of the violation charged, with respect to any conduct of the type described in the citation sent under this paragraph.

(6) No forfeiture penalty shall be determined or imposed against any person under this subsection if—

(A) such person holds a broadcast station license issued under Title III of this Act and if the violation charged occurred more than one year prior to the date of issuance of the required notice or notice of apparent liability, or prior to the date of commencement of the current term of such license, whichever is earlier so long as such violation occurred within three years prior to the date of issuance of such required notice; or

(B) such person does not hold a broadcast station license issued under Title III of this Act and if the violation charged occurred more than one year prior to the date of issuance of the required notice or notice of apparent liability.

Station Application Procedure

Any qualified citizen, company, or group may apply to the Federal Communications Commission for authority to construct a standard (AM), frequency modulation (FM), or television (TV) broadcast station.

Licensing of these facilities is prescribed by the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, which sets up certain basic requirements. In general, applicants must satisfy the Commission that they are legally, technically and financially qualified, and that operation of the proposed station would be in the public interest.

Full details of the licensing procedure are in Part 1 of the Commission's rules, "Practice and Procedure" and Part 73 "Radio Broadcast Services." This includes technical standards for AM, FM and TV stations, and TV and FM channel (frequency) assignments by states and communities. Copies of the complete rules may be purchased from the Government Printing Office.

Most applicants employ engineering and legal services in preparing their applications. The Commission does not make technical or other special studies for prospective applicants nor does it recommend individual lawyers or engineers. Names of firms and individuals practicing before the Commission are listed in various trade publications.

Following is a summary of the consecutive steps to be followed in applying for authorization to build and operate a broadcast station. The application procedure is substantially the same whether the facility sought is AM, FM or TV.

Selecting a Facility

An applicant must make his own search for a frequency on which he can operate without causing or receiving interference from existing stations and stations proposed in pending applications. AM broadcast stations operate on "local," "regional," or "clear" channels. Stations of 250 watts power nighttime and up to 1 kilowatt daytime serve small communities; stations of 500 watts to 5 kilowatts cover population centers and surrounding areas; stations of 10 to 50 kilowatts are for large area coverage, particularly at night.

An FM station applicant must request an FM channel assigned to the community in which he proposes to operate. Power, antenna height and station separation are governed by the zone in which the station is located.

The Commission authorizes three classes of commercial FM stations and three zones. Class A stations use power from 100 watts to 3 kilowatts to cover a radius of about 15 miles; Class B stations, 5 kilowatts to 50 kilowatts for 40-mile service and Class C, 25 kilowatts to 100 kilowatts for 65-mile range.

Noncommercial educational FM stations are in a separate category and may operate with power as low as 100 watts. FM stations as well as AM stations may engage in stereophonic broadcasting, for which no special application is required.

An applicant for a TV station must request a VHF (Very High Frequency) or a UHF (Ultra High Frequency) channel assignment to the community in which he proposes to operate, or a place having no channel assignment within 15 miles of that community. Power depends upon the kind of channel used (VHF or UHF) and station separation is determined by three zones.

TV "translator" stations serve remote communities by picking up and rebroadcasting the programs of outside stations, with the latter's permission. "Low power" TV stations may originate programming and/or operate subscription service. They operate on any VHF channel or on any unassigned UHF channel, provided they do not cause objectionable interference to full service stations. Low power channels are to be allocated on a demand basis. There is a "Community Antenna Relay Service" for non-common carrier microwave facilities to relay TV signals to cable TV systems.

Applying for a Construction Permit

FCC Form 301, "Application for Authority to Construct a New Broadcast Station or Make Changes in an Existing Station" is utilized when applying for a construction permit. This form covers AM, FM, or TV broadcast, with the exception educational applicants (who use FCC Form 340), FM and TV translators (Form 346) and FM booster stations (Form 349P). These forms require information about the citizenship and character of the applicant, as well as financial, technical and other qualifications, plus details about the transmitting apparatus to be used, antenna and studio locations, and the service proposed. Triplicate copies are required. Nonprofit educational institutions apply for new or changed instructional TV fixed stations on Form 330-P.

Applicants Must Give Local Notice

Applicants for new broadcast stations, license renewals, station sales or major changes in existing stations must give local public notice of their plans and also of any subsequent designation of their applications for hearing. This is done over the applicant's local station (if any) and by advertising in the local newspaper. It affords an opportunity for public comment on these applications to the Commission. Applicants and stations also must maintain public reference files in their respective localities.

Applicants for new broadcast stations and major changes in existing facilities must be placed on a cut-off list. The cut-off procedure entails issuance of a public notice announcing that an application has been accepted for filing and establishing a date by which competing applications and petitions to deny may be filed. The cut-off is usually about 30 days from the release date of the notice. Prior to the cut-off date, an application cannot be processed.

Applications generally are processed in the order in which accepted. They are reviewed for engineering, legal and financial data by the Mass Media Bureau which, under delegated authority, acts on routine applications and reports to the Commission those involving policy or other particular considerations. If an application has no engineering or other conflicts and no valid protests have been received, the applicant is found qualified. Assuming all other requirements are met, the application may be granted without hearing and a construction permit issued. All such grants are announced by the Commission. Petitions for reconsideration of grants made without hearing can be filed within 30 days but must show good cause why the objections were not raised before the grant.

Hearing Procedure

In instances where it appears that an application does not conform to the Commission's rules and regulations or that serious interference would be caused, if there is protest of merit, or if there are other serious questions of a technical, legal or financial character, a hearing is usually required. The FCC must accord a hearing to competing applications filed within specified time limits.

In designating an application for hearing, the Commission gives public notice of the issues for the information of the applicant and others concerned. The hearing notice generally allows the applicant 60 days or more in which to prepare. Even after the hearing has been set, an applicant may amend his application to resolve engineering or other problems, if he or she so requests. (Commission approval is required for all mergers or situations in which a competing applicant withdraws on payment of expenses.) Hearings customarily are conducted by an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ).

Within 20 days after the close of a record by the ALJ, each party and the Chief of the FCC Broadcast Bureau can file proposed findings of fact and conclusions to support their contentions. After review of the evidence and statements, the ALJ issues an initial decision. An applicant or any other party in interest wishing to contest the initial decision has 30 days from the date on which the initial decision was issued to file exceptions. In all cases heard by an ALJ, the Commission or its Review Board may hear oral argument and may adopt, modify or reverse the ALJ's initial decision. In cases where the Review Board has acted on the exceptions, an appeal from its decision may be taken to the FCC within 30 days. However the Commission may deny an appeal for review without stating its reasons. Court appeals may be filed within 30 days following release of the final decision, in which case the Commission's action is stayed pending court decision.

Construction Permit

When an application is granted a construction permit is issued. The new permittee may then request call letters that, if they are available and conform to the rules, are issued. A period of 60 days from date of the construction permit is provided in which construction shall begin, and a maximum of ten months (AM, FM, FM and TV translators and ITFS) thereafter for completion (or twelve months in all) and a maximum of 16 months (commercial and educational television [UHF-VHF]) thereafter for completion (or 18 months in all). If the permittee is unable to build his station within the time specified, he must apply for extension of time on Form 701 ("Application for Additional Time to Construct a Radio Station"), giving reasons. Upon completion of construction, the permittee conducts equipment tests and in the case of a nondirectional station, the permittee may begin program tests prior to filing a license application. However, a license application must be filed within 10 days of commencement of program tests.

Licenses

The final step is to apply for the actual license on Form 302 ("Application for New Broadcast Station License"), or one of the following: Form 330-L (Instructional TV Fixed stations), Form 341 (Noncommercial Educational FM stations), Form 347 (TV and FM translators), or

FCC Rules, Government Agencies

Form 349L (FM boosters). Applicants must show compliance with all terms, conditions and obligations in the original applications and the construction permit.

Not until he applies for a license can the holder of a construction permit for a directional station request authority to conduct program tests. The license application form provides a space for program tests requests, or it can be made separately. A station license and program test authority are issued if no new cause or circumstance has come to the attention of the Commission that would make operation of the station contrary to public interest.

Renewals

An applicant for renewal of a station license must show that he has operated according to the terms of his authorization and the promises made in obtaining it. Most renewal applications are made on Form 303 ("Application for Renewal of Broadcast Station License"). However, Instructional TV Fixed stations use Form 330-R; noncommercial educational licensees use Form 341; TV and FM translators Form 348 and FM boosters Form 349R.

Pending the disposition of any Commission hearing or other proceeding involving license renewal or revocation considerations, the station continues to operate even though its license term may have expired.

Sales and Transfers

If the holder of a construction permit or license desires to assign it to someone else, he makes application on Form 314 ("Application for Consent to Assignment of Radio Broadcast Station Construction Permit or License"). Should the permittee or licensee wish to transfer corporate control, he applies on Form 315 ("Application for Consent to Transfer Control of Corporation Holding Radio Broadcast Station Construction Permit or License"). Form 316 ("Application for Assignment or Transfer Short Form") may be used when the transfer or assignment involves no substantial change in interest. Sales of stations held less than three years are subject to hearing except in case of death, hardship or other mitigating circumstances beyond the licensee's control.

Construction Changes

Applicants for authority to make construction changes in existing stations apply on the same form used for a construction permit for the type of station involved.

Printed Rules

FCC rules may be obtained only through the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The rules on FCC practice and procedure are contained in Volume I. The broadcast rules are contained in Volume III. Orders should be sent to the Government Printing Office direct (not through the FCC).

Applications Forms

Application forms may be obtained from the FCC's Operations Support Division, Service and Supply Branch, Room B-10, 1919 M St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20554. (202) 632-7272.

Group Ownership

Listed here are individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Included are all those controlling three or more radio stations and/or two or more television stations. FCC rules limit multiple ownership to 12 AM stations, 12 FM stations and 12 television stations, as long as the 12 TV stations don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters may own up to 14 stations in a service if two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Ownership of cable TV systems, as reported by these stations, is also listed. Unless otherwise noted, the first station listed is group headquarters.

Television's top 20

These will be the 20 companies at the top in TV group ownership (ranked by their penetration of the total U.S., including 50% UHF discounts) should all proposed sales take place. The number in parentheses after each city is the Arbitron ADI market rank. The percentages reflect Arbitron's 1986-87 market ADI household and percentage figures released in October. UHF stations are figured at a 50% discount in coverage, according to FCC rules. As of August 31, 1987.

(1) Date station first went on air (regardless of subsequent ownership changes).

(2) Frequency in kilohertz; power and hours of operation. WOF operates with one kilowatt in daytime hours, 250 watts at night, and uses a directional antenna in daytime. Nighttime operation is limited to hours when dominant station KQSL is operating in daylight. WOF holds a construction permit for five kilowatts power day and night. WOF broadcasts in stereo. (See Operational abbreviations).

(3) Address and zip code, telephone, Teletype Writer Exchange number.

(4) Licensee name and date of acquisition (if not original owner). If the licensee is a group owner—a company with several broadcast properties—it is so identified, as a group owner of which the licensee is a subsidiary. Details on group owners are listed in section A.

(5) Network, audio news service, rep and programing. WOF national affiliates are ABC Entertainment Network and AP Network. The regional affiliate is Mountain State. Sales representatives are also listed—national rep first, then regional. The WOF program format is part middle-of-the-road, part country and western, with three hours weekly of special programing in Spanish.

(6) Personnel.

(7) Advertising rates. The prices the station charges for a 12-times-a-week, one-minute spot are shown for each of four day-parts:

6 a.m.-10 a.m.; 10 am.-3 p.m.; 3 p.m.-7 p.m.; 7 p.m.-midnight in that order. If a day-part is inapplicable, a dash (—) replaces the rate.

Co-owned FM. WOF-FM has the same ownership as WOF(AM), and the FM listing contains only information different from the AM. Co-owned AM and FM stations are always listed together, even when they have dissimilar call letters.

(8) Frequency in megahertz, effective radiated power and antenna height above average terrain. WOF-FM broadcasts in stereo.

(9) Programing. WOF-FM duplicates WOF programs 50% of the time and has a C&W format.

(10) Co-owned TV. WOF-TV has the same licensee as WOF-AM-FM.

Listings for independent FM stations follow the format of AM station entries.

You can take it with you

No other medium is as personal or portable as radio. At home or on the road, at work or at play, 96 percent of all Americans sing its tune, hear its message. That's the power of radio.

How do we know? Listeners tell us in our diaries every week that radio is their constant companion. That's why advertisers are confident investing billions of dollars in radio each year.

Books for Broadcasters/Cablecasters

Professionals and students — knowledge and information are your most powerful tools in a very competitive field—

COPYWRITING FOR THE ELECTRONIC MEDIA: A Practical Guide by Milan O. Meeske & R.C. Norris

The best way to improve your writing skills is to practice, and that is the approach of this practical book. As the authors discuss both basics and specifics, keyed to the ways TV and radio operate today, they offer you ample opportunities to hone your writing skills in numerous realistic exercises. Topics covered include broadcast vs. cable copywriting; PSAs, promotional and direct response spots; legal requirements for commercials and contests; getting a job in a small market or a national agency. Glossary and index.

1987, paper, 380 pp W06636-4 $29.95

DIRECTORY OF EXPERTS, AUTHORITIES & SPOKESPERSONS edited by Mitchell P. Davis

This directory offers sources from the news and public affairs oriented talk show circuit; sources available for in-person and telephone interviews. "Phone numbers that work, people who say yes"—original 1987 research by Broadcast Interview Source found thousands of experts who welcome inquiries. Radio & TV programers have dubbed this useful guide the TALK SHOW GUEST DIRECTORY. An alphabetical topic index makes finding the right source to answer questions easy—listings include contact name, expertise, phone number and full address. According to Pat Piper, who produces the Larry King Show, the DIRECTORY is "something every talk show producer must have."

MODERN RADIO PRODUCTION by Lewis B. O'Donnell, Philip Benoit & Carl Hausman

The latest equipment and how to use it in editing, news production; commercial production and on-air work is presented clearly and concisely in this handy guide. It offers how-to information you can use to create dramatic effects and hard-hitting commercials: pull an airshift, mike a poor speaker, organize a complex production or integrate a variety of techniques necessary for successful news coverage. Numerous illustrations, bibliography, glossary, index.

1986, hard, 258 pp W05064-6 $29.95

CHILDREN'S TELEVISION by Cy Schneider

Enter the world of children's television with the leading authority on marketing products to children, Cy Schneider. Learn to communicate your message effectively to children, with greater sensitivity, knowledge and awareness. CHILDREN'S TELEVISION is the first and only guide to this $600 million a year business. Schneider has written, directed or supervised the creation of over 1,000 commercials for children's products. His book is essential reading for anyone involved with the booming children's market, and for anyone interested in the factors that motivate young minds. From the foreword by Fred Silverman: "I'm certain you will find Cy Schneider's thoughts and historical overview of the subject fascinating and informative, leading to a real understanding of the complexities and challenges of children's television in the 80's."

AUDIO IN MEDIA, 2nd Edition by Stanley R. Allen

More than just a how-to manual, this book covers all the sound production skills and techniques used in radio, television and film. Allen's definitive, up-to-date second edition combines teaching the proper use of audio equipment with the appropriate techniques and aesthetics, demonstrating the relationship between operations and "sound shaping." The author explains technical and complex concepts, including the latest digital recording theory, in straightforward layman's language. Glossary, bibliography, index.

WRITING FOR TELEVISION AND RADIO, 4th Edition by Robert L. Hilliard

This highly successful book stresses practical, bread-and-butter aspects of broadcast writing—without neglecting the artistic, ethical and social responsibilities of the writer. It is designed to help you succeed as a pro in the lucrative field of broadcast writing. In contrast to texts that concentrate on specialized topics (such as radio newswriting or TV drama), Hilliard's book offers detailed coverage of all areas where career opportunities exist. WRITING FOR TELEVISION AND RADIO takes a systematic approach to each type of writing: news and sports; commercials; features and documentaries; music and variety shows; talk shows; drama; children's and minority scripts; educational, industrial and government programs. This comprehensive 4th edition includes sample scripts, glossary, bibliography and index.

1984, paper, 385 pp W02782-2 $29.95

THE TECHNIQUE OF TELEVISION NEWS, 2nd Edition by Ivor Yorke

This practical guide describes in detail how television gets its news, defines the duties and organization of editorial, production and technical teams, and goes on to build up, step-by-step, the processes by which items are written and prepared for the screen. The up-to-date second edition of TELEVISION NEWS covers the main developments of the electronic revolution which is making its impact on television news in the 80's. Electronic newsgathering and picture editing and the introduction of computer graphics are fully covered, and an entirely new chapter deals with videotex, how computers are replacing traditional news-processing methods and the effects of cable and satellite services on conventional news programming. Illustrations, glossary, index.
