The Hound's Tooth

PRESIDENT Eisenhower lost no time in filling the vacancy created by the forced resignation of Richard A. Mack from the FCC. In selecting John S. Cross, assistant chief of the Telecommunications Division of the State Department, the President picked up the first name on the eligible list. Capt. Cross had been an active candidate for the identical post when Mr. Mack was appointed three years ago.

Perhaps Capt. Cross' greatest asset in his selection was his availability and his pending candidacy. He can't be classified as a controversial figure. He has spent a dozen years at the State Department, all in telecommunications. He has been a delegate or advisor at some 18 international conferences in the last dozen years. He was in communications in the Navy during the war.

While Capt. Cross is not well-known among broadcasters, he is acquainted with many engineers identified with international allocations. He's no striped pants cookie pusher in career diplomacy, but rather a tough-minded bureaucrat with a sense of humor who admittedly has had his eye on the FCC for all the dozen years he has been with the State Department.

Because of the very events that precipitated the Mack resignation, more than ordinary importance attaches to the Cross nomination. While the selection of Mr. Cross was made at the White House staff level and cleared by Assistant to the President Sherman Adams; the responsibility for appointment lies solely with the President. It is a function he cannot delegate.

With the nomination made, the Senate Commerce Committee now has the responsibility for undertaking a careful examination of Capt. Cross' qualifications and background, before recommending to the Senate that his nomination be approved or rejected. In all too many cases in the past involving administrative agencies, the Senate has failed to examine agency heads with due care. If a nominee is found fit, the Senate should expect him to carry out his responsibilities without undue interference (or pressure) from members of Senate or House.

Capt. Cross may not possess all of the attributes that would make for an ideal commissioner. In the present climate, a man possessing them probably wouldn't accept an assignment on the FCC at quadruple the $20,000 salary. Mr. Cross may not even get along too well with all of his prospective new colleagues. But he does have an engineering-allocations background which should prove helpful in grappling with the FCC's unending problems. And we have no doubt that he's as clean as that hound's tooth President Eisenhower has been talking about.

Same Old Tune

THE ASCAP songwriters who are supporting Sen. Smathers' bill to divorce broadcasters from ownership in BMI are basing their case largely upon a phony allegation.

The allegation is that because broadcasters own BMI they favor BMI music and discriminate against ASCAP tunes.

The allegation has not been proved, and it won't be. It can't be. Every reliable piece of statistical information proves that broadcasters choose music for its popular appeal and not for its connection with any licensing agency. We are sure that when the Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee hears the facts from broadcasters and BMI when it comes their turn to testify, the absurdity of the songwriters' charges will be evident.

Meanwhile, we have accumulated some information of our own which we respectfully call to the subcommittee's attention.

At the first annual disc jockey conference held by the Storz Stations we asked leading d.j.'s if it made any difference to them in selecting music for their shows whether the music was BMI or ASCAP. Of 89 important disc jockeys who completed that part of Broadcastings questionnaire only four said they took the licensing authority into consideration. Of those four three said they tended to favor BMI music, and one favored ASCAP. One added the illuminating comment that he was in no position to know whether a song was ASCAP or BMI.

If there is a conspiracy to throttle ASCAP, it is a conspiracy without the conspirators who would be essential to its success. The disc jockeys who answered Broadcastings questionnaire are the men who choose the music that is played on radio. Their answers make it plain that they make their choices for reasons having nothing whatever to do with ASCAP or BMI.

A secondary allegation which the ASCAP songwriters themselves first made is that BMI is debasing musical culture by promoting rock 'n' roll.

We yield to no one in our personal dislike of rock 'n' roll, but we cannot agree that BMI has cornered the market in musical trash. A list of ASCAP titles contains items which are vulgar in the extreme. A good deal of music is published under both ASCAP and BMI licenses without regard for the elevation of the country's musical tastes.

But to kill or incapacitate one of the two major licensing authorities would be no guarantee of an improvement in the cultural level of American music. A monopoly would be under no compulsion to produce fine music than the two big organizations now in competition are. Indeed a monopoly, by its very power, could accentuate debasement.

The ASCAP songwriters who encouraged Sen. Smathers to introduce his anti-BMI bill and who are arranging the testimony in support of it have been harping on the same theme a long while.

The principal features of the case they are presenting in the Communications Subcommittee hearings are identical with those of the case they presented a year and a half ago to the Antitrust Subcommittee of the House and with those of the federal court case that filled several years ago.

One forum for this case ought to be adequate, and the appropriate forum—which the ASCAP songwriters themselves first chose—is the federal court.

Twice they have been warned by the court to quit trying the case outside the courtroom. The most recent warning came last week. If the ASCAP songwriters fail to abide by a double admonition it will clearly mean that they have abandoned hope for winning anything in a trial under present laws and have staked their future on changing the laws to suit their own fortunes.

John J. Dempsey

BROADCASTERS lost a good friend and the nation a distinguished and dedicated public servant in the death last week of Rep. John J. Dempsey (D-N. M.). He was 78.

Nearly 20 years ago Mr. Dempsey led the effort to establish the House Radio Gallery in the first move to give the radio news reporter privileges on a parity with those of the press in covering Congress. It was not an easy or popular undertaking because the old-line "press" offered formidable opposition.

It was on May 20, 1939, that the House Radio Gallery was established. There followed in rapid succession creation of the Senate Radio Gallery and White House and other departmental recognition. This spread through state and local governments. And 10 years later the right to editorialize was enunciated by the FCC.

In extending our sympathy to Rep. Dempsey's bereaved family, we also suggest that a fitting memorial to him by a grateful broadcasting medium would be the creation of a Dempsey award for meritorious achievement in broadcast news reporting or editorializing.
Judging by the ever-increasing number of new companies producing TV film commercials, the minute-movie industry is either exceptionally lucrative or extremely fascinating. Fascinating, perhaps. But given cut-down to 60-second size, something of the glamor associated with motion pictures remains. Lurecat? Well, that depends. As anyone involved in the production of film commercials will testify, an inside look at the production picture proves the minute-movie business to be one of the most exasperating, thankless jobs in the film industry. And mark this—sometimes, through no fault of the producing studio the job can be completely unrewarding, even financially disastrous.

After all, the studio must please. Costly remakes to correct storyboard mistakes, which often are the fault of either agency or sponsor, must be taken in stride and absorbed somewhere. This is reason enough to drive many producing companies into bankruptcy. Yet it seems that old studios never die—they just multiply!

Strangely, this seemingly endless multiplication of film "sources" brings little comfort to the agency producer. Contrary to the supposedly normal rules of supply and demand, increased competition among the film men makes his job much harder. Competition per se does not reduce costs in TV film commercial production. The prevailing rates for talent, stage sets, technicians, laboratories, film, etc., must still determine the base cost of each commercial. Cutting corners can be disastrous, as many a neophyte agency producer has learned to his sorrow.

Solicitation for agency business is brisk. Any agency producer can, without effort, schedule a sample reel showing for every day of his week. Week after week! Naturally, the agency producer doesn't want to seal himself off from any source that can be of help to his client or himself. But with so many producers competing for the same business, how do you decide which is the best qualified?

QUALITY AND RESULTS, NOT SALESMANSHIP

It seems easy enough to tick off on your fingers the obvious qualifications to look for. If a producing firm is to turn out a film with even minimum commercial effectiveness, it must possess certain physical qualities, and experience, plus the ability to achieve results on schedule.

But try fitting these qualifications to the number of producers who solicit your business . . . including all the new ones! Standards among those with established experience are almost uniformly good. Too good! Your most exacting requirements already can be met by enough now-existing studios to handle easily all the commercial business there is.

There's the rub. Your choice is already difficult enough, so why should you consider the new producer at all?

Usually the new producer asks to be considered on the basis of greater creativity. What if his firm is lacking in experience as a unit? After all, he points out, the same cameraman is available to any studio. In most cases, even the same crews are hired. And in his enthusiasm to tell his story, he hides an equally enthusiastic salesman, eager to stress the creative talents and special services of his new employer.

If agency producers become "difficult" and "hard to see" at this stage, it is simply because every day comes the deluge! In person, by phone, through the mail. And if agency producers seem wary, it is only because they have learned the hard way that there are still those seeking commercial business whose greatest skill is only their salemanship!

There remains the sample reel. Here, you say, is undeniable proof of performance. Surely an agency producer can judge the creativity and technical capability of a film studio by its sample reel! Well, he can't, because there can be an unknown factor. For example, director A, with a recognizable degree of creativity, is associated with company B. He may even be part-owner of B. But company C offers him a better deal, so director A moves over. When he leaves B, his sample reel stays—and also goes. There's no dishonesty about this.

Consequently, it's not at all unusual—or even necessarily unethical—for the same commercials (usually the good ones, of course) to turn up under the label of two, or maybe even three, producing studios. Who is really responsible for what?

It's on this crucial question that the success or failure of the agency producer turns. This is his cross and his crown. After all, he—like the film studios themselves—is really only as good as his last commercial!

MUST FIND OR BUILD RIGHT COMBINATION

So, the good agency producer acts always on this principle: it is a combination of talents and services, properly meshed, that results in a good TV commercial. Thus, when the agency producer, feels he has discovered a good working combination, it is understandable that, blandishments of out-promising salesmen or no, he should be hesitant about switching his film source. The value of the agency producer to his client is directly related to his ability to find—or build—the best source for the kind of commercial film required.

Because of the particularly close relationship that must exist between the agency producer and the film producing unit, it is impossible to deny that there is a personal element that will enter into his choice. You work best with the people you feel understand you and your problems best. And the minute-movie is a trying, obstinate sort of problem. It is measured off in seconds. It demands taut writing, and that indefinable "sense of pace" that is both craft and artistry. Realize that the very narrowness of the 60-second time limit can magnify a production flaw all out of proportion to comparable missteps in lengthier films.

Ideal personnel for a good TV commercial producing unit: (1) A director with a special talent for cramming a full-length interesting story into a 60-second feature. (2) A cameraman who recognizes that the client's product is the true star of the film. (3) An editor who is more than a cutter, who is equipped artistically to contribute to the overall tempo and flow of your film. (4) Most important, a producer who is a co-ordinating genius, with the time and patience to follow through personally on every last detail.

One final word . . . difficult as it may be, be sure to keep your eye on the embryo producing firms. You never know when one will create the minute-movie of the year.

TO THE STATION MANAGER: The insurance agent we're talking about in this ad typifies the "American agency system." He lives, works, pays taxes, and spends his money in your town. He's an independent business man, who represents stock insurance companies that provide quality protection with full-time service.

In any case, wouldn't you say ONE is enough?

1. For needed protection
2. For adequate coverage
3. To carry the load
4. For all your property insurance

Is it necessary to have three or four—or even more—insurance policies on your home, when just one might be enough?

You may qualify for a package insurance policy on your home and its contents, against fire and other perils. You can include protection on almost any risk you are likely to face as a property owner.

Your independent local agent or broker will be glad to tell you about a package policy. And when you buy it, insist on Stock Company Insurance. It's known for quality protection with full-time service. And remember: if you're not fully insured—it's not enough!

While other stations content themselves with an occasional snowman promotion, KIFI Idaho Falls, Idaho, has its call letters spread over snowy slopes all winter long.

KIFI's Junior Ski School this season is ten years old and counts 530 children enrolled for weekly free lessons. Young enthusiasts are guided by 100 instructors recruited by KIFI from local business and professional men, whose volunteer ranks are supplemented by younger sportsmen serving as junior instructors. They are easily identifiable as they swarm over the Pine Basin, Idaho, slopes by their "KIFI Ski School" badges.

Every Saturday, starting in January, at least 12 buses leave Idaho Falls loaded with budding skiers from 12 years old through high school age.

On Sundays, youngsters 6-11 years old have their chance at the slopes. Students pay only for transportation. Nearly half of this year's crop were strangers to skis, according to KIFI General Manager Jim Brady, but many have become racing veterans during their years of KIFI instruction. KIFI sends a ski team recruited from the student body to all regional racing events.

YESTERDAY'S students in the KIFI Ski School are today's junior instructors in the station's 10-year-old sports project.

WOWO Wows "Em With Gold Discs

More than 2,500 WOWO Fort Wayne, Ind., listeners reportedly sent in requests for "gold records" during promotion in which the station played and gave away discs which have sold a million or more copies. Based on the theme "WOWO's going back on the gold standard," the campaign got underway with disc jockeys and "golden girls" touring the city in the station's mobile units and gold colored automobiles and giving away bags of goldfoil-covered candy coins to shoppers.

Bags of the candy also were sent to present and prospective accounts with "back on the gold standard" promotional material. A two-hour evening show featured among others: the woman deputy sheriff of Goldfield, Nev.; the owner of King Midas gold stamping company, Ft. Wayne; a gold miner from Ontario; a former freight mover from the Klonkide gold rush; the superintendent of security at Fort Knox, and a member of the U. S. Treasury Dept. Peggy Lee, Tennessee Ernie Ford and others taped or beeped interviews in connection with the promotion and other stars sent congratulatory wires.

KNUZ Celebrates 10th Birthday

A budget of $10,000 went into KNUZ Houston's 10th anniversary promotions Feb. 17-18. Teaser and other newspaper ads, posters on buses and billboards and on-air saturation spots featured the letters "O-T-G." This was revealed as the abbreviation for "On The Go," the campaign's slogan. In front of KNUZ studios was erected a model of Jupiter C (which launched the Explorer satellite) to signify the station's modernity; other kinds of models—redhead, brunette and blonde—carrying French poodles tinted to match their hair, delivered birthday cakes to agency executives. They later paraded in Houston shopping centers. KNUZ held two birthday parties, one for agency personnel and newspapermen and the other for sponsors and station representatives.

How to Editorialize—WTVJ (TV)

Since September 1957 WTVJ (TV) Miami has telecast a daily editorial and it has set down the experience gained, plus an account of the series' five years of preparation, in a 13-page booklet, "The Television Editorial." Ralph Renick, vice president in charge of news, delivers the editorial and also is in charge of distributing the booklet. Described by the station as a "workbook for broadcasters who are considering a local television editorial," the booklet outlines the preparation, mechanics of presentation and the results of its editorializing.

WHCT (TV) Starts Editorializing

"A definite stand on important local and regional issues," is voiced by WHCT (TV) Hartford in Editorial (Sun. 1:15-1:30 p.m. EST). The program is an experiment for WHCT and it encourages viewer comment. Air time is given to letters opposing the station's opinions. The text of the editorial is shown while an (unseen) announcer reads it, thus keeping viewers from confusing WHCT's sentiments with those of the person delivering them.

N. Y. Philharmonic Plans Series

The New York Philharmonic announced last week that Robert Saudec Assoc., producer of Omnibus, has been selected to plan and produce a series of four to six Philharmonic concerts during 1958-59 for showing on network television. Bruno Zirato, managing director of the orchestra, said the presentation of the concerts on tv would be "subject to the securing of sponsorship."

Henderson Draws Fast in Denver

It was high noon at Magic Mountain, west of Denver on Feb. 22. A crowd of 6,000 had gathered to watch the flash of six-shooters in the Colorado sun. Kelo Henderson, star of ABC-TV's 26 Men, was there; so was "gunman" Sam Toole, Denver auto salesman. It was the first International Gunslingers Contest, sponsored by KBTV (TV) Denver and The Denver Post, and was being televised on KBTV.

Television's Henderson won the match by besting automan Toole in three sets of three quick-draw shots each. Their matches were clocked by a special timing device flown to Denver for that purpose. It is expected the second International Gunslingers Contest will be held this summer at Magic Mountain. Many entries from everywhere are anticipated. "Henderson announced he'll be only too glad to attend."

Color Pinocchio Series on WGN-TV

RCA Victor Distributing Corp. has signed with WGN-TV Chicago to sponsor a weekend strip of fantasy adventures in color. The program, conceived by Ed Roth, WGN-TV program manager, was developed as a special presentation to "promote living color." The quarter-hour colorcast, titled The Blue Fairy and based on the adventures of Pinocchio, is produced in association with the Rufus Rose Marionettes, Waterford, Conn. Mr. Rose has been identified with the Howdy Doody series since 1952.

The series will originate in a studio (7A) recently converted to all-color operation with WGN-TV's purchase of a second live color camera chain. The station is now programming color 4½ hours a week.

VETOES TOP 40

WISN Milwaukee tried the "top 40" record format Feb. 20 and scrapped it after five hours because of adverse listener and client reaction.

Without advance fanfare, WISN started the new music policy at 6:30 a.m., completely armed with top 40 records, including rock 'n' roll. Within ten minutes its switchboard lit up, the station reported, with callers appealing for the old standards. Advertisers also received calls from listeners protesting the new policy and some 500 Marquette U. students drafted a petition in the same vein.

Within minutes after reverting to standards, Carl Zimmerman, assistant manager of WISN, recorded an announcement for use every hour. Said he: "Within minutes after the Charlie Hanson show went on the air...you listeners told us in no uncertain terms what you wanted to hear. It was not rock 'n' roll. You told us you wanted the music that WISN has been playing for the last 18 months...."

AN ATTEMPT to water ski across San Francisco Bay was only one of the tasks set by KPIX (TV) there in a search for the ‘woman willing to do anything” promotion for its Money Tree quiz show. Mrs. Marilyn Mahan, pictured being helped from the water by Sandy Spillman, the show’s host, was chosen from the 300 women who volunteered after the station announced the project. Besides filming her skiing efforts, KPIX filmed her maniuring an elephant, looping-the-loop in a plane and roller skating across the Golden Gate Bridge. The films were shown on Money Tree the following day. As prizes, Mrs. Mahan received more than $2,000 and a trip for two to Hawaii.

KDUB Listener to Get Holiday

The winner of the “To Be a Millionaire” contest by KDUB Lubbock, Tex., will be announced Saturday and will be awarded an expense-paid trip for two to Europe. The contest ran Jan. 13 through yesterday (Sunday) and 12 times a day during that period the station aired two-line rhyming clues, a total 756 clues. The station scheduled a spot announcement before and after each clue and divided them between four advertisers at $200 a week. KDUB reports the 50,000 entry blanks it distributed to advertisers prior to the contest’s start were nearly all picked up by contestants within three days and it was necessary to print 50,000 more.

LEGAL STRINGERS

Indicative of WWDC Washington’s up-to-the-minute news coverage is the case of the defendant in a civil suit at a local court who died while in the witness box. A lawyer telephoned the station within 15 minutes with the news the defendant had died following a heart attack. Another lawyer called 10 minutes later with the same information. WWDC then received a third call, this time from the judge who presided over the case, also reporting the incident.

Johns Hopkins U.'s 'File 7'
Airs Special Edition on ABC-TV

Johns Hopkins, U., Baltimore, celebrated its 10th anniversary on television March 8, with a special edition of its ABC-TV program (Sun. 3:30-7 p.m., EST) "Johns Hopkins File 7." On the anniversary show, Lynn Poole, university public relations director and creator of the program, introduced several scholars and scientists, who speculated on discoveries and developments of the next decade.

The original Johns Hopkins Science Review was founded in 1946 by Mr. Poole, presenting faculty members and other experts over WMAR- TV Baltimore. Subsequently the show became a weekly feature on WAAM (TV) (now WIZ-TV) there and in 1949 was first carried by the former DuMont Network. Now an ABC-TV Sunday feature under the present title File 7 name, the program still originates at WJZ-TV.

A 76-page book, Ten Years With TV at Johns Hopkins, is being published to mark the anniversary.

'Crown' Concludes Road Show

The Crown Stations (KING-AM-TV Seattle, KGW-AM-TV Portland and KREM-AM-TV Spokane) wound up their coast-to-coast sales presentation-treasure hunt road show (Programs & Promotions, Feb. 3) with a "salmon bake" at San Fernando Valley Feb. 11. A reported total of about 300 agency executives, press representatives and tv stars fished in the streams of Sportsmen's Lodge there—John Bromfield (Sherlock of Cochise) caught the biggest salmon. With Walter Brennan as mc., the governors of Oregon and Washington awarded Crown Station "crows" to ABC-TV and syndicated tv stars who "dominate ratings" in their time periods in the Pacific Northwest.

CBS Airs Plugs From Pugs

Broad distribution of a two-record long-playing phonograph album containing "The Big News of 1957" is being made by CBS Radio among local boards of education, schools, libraries and universities. Close to 2,000 albums already have been mailed. The records are made up of the audio portion of a special CBS Radio year-end report heard on the network last December.

The radio network also is expanding its on-air promotion activities. For example, to stimulate audience acceptance for CBS Radio's exclusive Basilio-Robinson fight March 25, CBS Radio's advertising-promotion vice president, Louis Hausman, and staff have prepared a number of recorded announcements by the two pugilists, saying: "If you can't make the fight in person, be sure to hear it over this station." These spots are being mailed to affiliates.

Broadcaster-Sponsored Association Further Singing Careers

Cincinnati launched a half dozen of the country's most promising singers on international operatic careers Saturday. They were sought out and trained by American Opera Auditions, a non-profit association principally underwritten through a grant by Hulbert Taft Jr., president of Radio Cincinnati Inc. (WKRK-AM-TV Cincinnati and other stations).

The team heard in Cincinnati last week will be the first to take advantage of American Opera Auditions' plan to open professional doors for promising young vocalists at a cost to the artists. The young singers will go to Milan for study this summer and an Italian opera debut in Milan and Florence during the 1958 season.

Finalists in the last stages of the competition have been heard in a series of Sunday concerts on WKRK-AM-TV in recent weeks. On Saturday the winners were heard in concert with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in the annual Cincinnati United Arts Fund concert, an event that will be broadcast by CBS Radio at the conclusion of its New York Philharmonic Sunday series, WKRK has announced.

American Opera Auditions is sending abroad the cream of more than a thousand aspirants in its program. Some 300 singers were screened at auditions last fall in six cities and 22 brought to the Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music for grooming.

Submerged Promotion for WBAL-TV

A new underwater endurance record reportedly was set March 5 at WBAL Baltimore studios. The start of the promotion, run in connection with the station's Sea Hunt series, was carried on NBC-TV's Today March 4. WBAL-AM-TV kept listeners and viewers posted on the 29 hour 1 minute record-breaking effort with regular reports.

Postman Stars in WISN-TV Film

A typical day's work for a postman was portrayed Feb. 13 on WISN-TV Milwaukee's Documentary 12 (Mon.-Fri. 10:30 p.m. CST), titled "Your Mailman... Unchanging." WISN-TV's cameras followed a local mail-carrier throughout his working day, beginning with his early morning duties at the post office. Milwaukee postal officials have requested copies of the documentary for use in training.

Planning a Radio Station?

The plan above is one of three basic radio station designs, for new or modernized stations, now available from RCA. It approaches the ultimate for a spacious type of radio station. Spacious studio area is incorporated in this plan, with area for other operational requirements; the transmitter would be located in its own building. By considering each plan individually, you can suit your special needs exactly.

Now available free, without obligation, a complete station-planning brochure, its floor plans, discussion of trends and equipment requirements may save you time and money. Write RCA, Dept. BC-22 Building 15-1, Camden, N.J.

The elite buyers of spot television: What companies and brands spent in 1957

Procter & Gamble Co., top spot tv investor in 1957 with a gross expenditure of $25,916,840, bought spot television for a total of 39 brands, ranging from a high of more than $4.6 million for Zest beauty bar to a low of $980 on behalf of Bonus granulated soap.

The P&G spot television purchasing breakdown is contained in Television Bureau of Advertising listings released over the weekend of the top 100 tv advertisers along with the first 25 advertisers and their expenditures by brands. These statistics supplement total national and general advertiser expenditures which TVB issued a few weeks earlier [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, March 3], and which put the 1957 total for spot tv at $448,734,000.

On the product level, the No. 1 spot television investment for a brand last year was made by Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co. on behalf of its Viceroy cigarettes—an estimated $6,259,790. Runnersup were B&W’s Kool cigarettes, for which $5,031,830 was spent last year, and Miles Labs’ Alka-Seltzer with a $5,003,540 expenditure. Other heavyweight spot tv product spenders were Maxwell House coffee, on behalf of which General Foods invested an estimated near $5 million, and Robert Hall Colthes, which spent a similar sum.

Listings of the top 100 advertisers follow below. The top 25 advertisers by overall and brand totals begin on the facing page and continue on page 110.
Gordon MacIntosh, president and owner of WTVX Wilmington, Del., elected president of University Club of Wilmington.

2% of gross revenue for 1958. CAPAC had asked for this increase and for disallowance of live-talent and free-time deductions in calculating the gross revenue. The Copyright Appeal Board has ruled for the increase but with same deductions as last year. Because of the federal Canadian election March 31, it will be some time before the CARTB appeal will be heard by the secretary of state and the cabinet to be appointed after the elections.

Sleet, Ice Storm Wreaks Havoc
Among Newfoundland Stations

A sleet and ice storm in eastern Newfoundland on March 1 caused major power breaks in the capital city of St. John's that weekend and hit all St. John's broadcasting stations severely. The towers of CBN and VOCM at St. John's collapsed because of heavy accumulations of ice. CION-AM-TV St. John's and CJOX-TV Argentia remained on the air, the stations' engineers using rifle shots to keep ice from forming on the guy wires and tower structures.

VOCM was off the air only two hours after its 350-foot tower collapsed from the weight of accumulated ice. Power supply had been cut in the area when VOCM went off the air March 1 at 6:30 a.m. Emergency power installations kept the station on the air all day till its tower collapsed about 4 p.m. Within two hours engineers had rigged up a temporary antenna and continued to broadcast at half power until sign-off at 11 p.m. By next morning a new temporary antenna had been erected and the station began broadcasting Sunday morning, March 2, with full 1 kw power. VOCM engineers took time out to save the tower of noncommercial WOLR St. John's from collapsing on March 1.

CION-AM used mimeographed one-page news bulletins and a loudspeaker system to keep citizens informed of latest news and weather conditions, since many people could not use their radio and TV sets because of lack of power in the city. CBN was offered free time on other stations for its national news bulletins and other programs. When telephone lines between CION-AM's studios and transmitters were finally brought down by ice, operations continued direct from the transmitter building.

N. Y. State Educators Drop Request for WATV (TV) Ch. 13

The threat from educational forces in New York to New Jersey's only operating tv station was ended when the FCC granted a request by the Board of Regents of the U. of the State of New York for withdrawal of its petition asking allocation of New Jersey's commercial ch. 13 to New York City for non-commercial use.

Last month [GOVERNMENT, March 3] the New Jersey legislature adopted a resolution urging the FCC to retain ch. 13, licensed to WATV (TV) Newark. WATV (TV) was sold along with WAAAT-AM-FM Newark last year for $3.5 million to National Telefilm Assoc. and the sale is awaiting FCC approval [GOVERNMENT, Nov. 4, 1957].

Jacob L. Holtzman, chairman of the Board of Regents' Special Committee on Television for Education, said an announcement would be made shortly that would include "new plans" for an educational tv station in the New York metropolitan area. The board is the licensee of educational WREG (TV) (ch. 25) New York, which has not yet started operation.

EDUCATION

WOR-TV Plans Switch To Daytime Education

Tentative agreement was reached last week between RKO Teleradio Pictures Inc. and the New York Board of Regents to utilize WOR-TV New York (ch. 9), as an educational tv station during the daytime, starting September 1. The agreement is contingent upon approval of the state legislature, which must appropriate funds for the project.

A joint announcement by Thomas F. O'Neil, president of RKO Teleradio, which owns the station, and Jacob L. Holtzman, chairman of a special New York State Regents committee on television, stated that under the proposal, the station would operate as an educational tv station from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on weekdays and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. At other times the station would continue to operate as a commercial outlet and probably would extend its sign-off time to fulfill program commitments.

A spokesman for the station said there would be no conflict between the proposal for the station's educational programs and the night games of the Philadelphia Phillies this season. He pointed out that the educational tv program would not begin until Sept. 1 and no day games are set to be telecast during that month. Although a retransmission program is expected to be put into effect at RKO Teleradio Pictures Inc. [CLOSED CIRCUIT, March 10] a WOR-TV spokesman said the educational tv proposal is not regarded as part of any cutback. He said the station does not go off the air now until 1:30 p.m. and plans are afoot to extend sign-off time beyond the present 12:30 a.m.

Mr. Holtzman estimated that $545,000 would be required for the total cost of the educational tv project for one year. He said an initial request to the legislature for $212,912 already has been made.

The State Education Dept., would direct the educational tv program, according to Mr. Holtzman. The telecasts, directed both to classrooms and the general public, would consist of half-hour programs dealing with mathematics, physics, languages, chemistry and literature. If the legislature votes funds for the project, the regents will petition the FCC to use the call letters WRED (TV) during the time the educational programs are one the air.

The Board of Regents earlier had asked the Commission to declare WATV (TV) Newark a non-commercial station and permit the regents to purchase it. Two weeks ago the regents withdrew their petition. WATV has been sold to National Telefilm Assoc., pending FCC approval.

Fund Formed for Ad Education

Formation of the Advertising Educational Foundation, a non-profit corporation to be financed by contributions from firms and individuals in the advertising industry, was announced last week by Robert M. Feenster, board chairman of Advertising Federation of America. Incorporation papers are...
“Seems Like Old Times,” used a dozen times daily on CBS Radio and CBS-TV. The court upheld the ASCAP rule that a single theme royalty credit daily is reasonable. The pair wanted a full dozen credits daily.

Evans Sets Up New Corporation For Industrial Show Production

Maurice Evans, theatre-television producer, last week announced formation of Maurice Evans Industries Inc. to stage business presentations live and by closed-circuit tv. He named George Hoffman general manager and Charles Scheuer program- ning director, stating that both have had wide experience in the industrial presenta- tions field.

Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Scheuer will head a staff of directors, writers, lyricists, com- posers and technicians, Mr. Evans said. Negotiations currently are underway with the first clients of Maurice Evans Industries. The firm is located at 1860 Broadway, where the producer also conducts his theatre television and motion picture activities.

Sande, Greene Leave Song Ads

Robert L. Sande, president of Song Ads Inc., who founded the radio-tv commercial production company in 1950, and Larry Greene, vice president, have resigned from Song Ads and formed Sande & Greene Inc., creative consultants. The new firm is located at 8400 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood; telephone: Oldfield 6-0300. Sande & Greene has been retained on a long term exclusive consultant basis to create and produce commercials for Song Ads, Mr. Sande said in announcing the new company.

Capitol to Complete Expansion

A $1.5 million expansion and building program announced by President Glenn E. Wallichs for Capitol Records Distributing Corp. will be finished by May in 16 cities, it is anticipated. The New York branch will occupy the ground floor of the Warner Bros. building at 315 W. 44th St. in May; the Chicago office will relocate in April at 1326 S. Michigan Ave., and the Los Angeles branch will move to 3117 San Fernando Rd. by May 1.

Quarters are being enlarged in Charlotte, Cincinnati, Dallas, Detroit, Hartford, Minneapolis, Kansas City and St. Louis. Other branches which already have expanded to at least double their old size: Boston, Buffalo, Newark, Oklahoma City and Pittsburgh. Addition of a new branch in Baltimore the first of the year brought total Capitol Records Distributing branches to 26.

Rudolph Offers ‘Healthcasts’

Dick Rudolph Productions of Baltimore is offering a Healthcasts script service, designed to provide radio material comparable to newscasts and weathercasts.

Health, diet and medical information is written in brief form for Healthcasts scripts priced at $25 a week in major markets and $15 in secondary markets with market ex- clusivity.

Initial subscribers are WITH Baltimore; WLEE Richmond; WHG Norfolk; WOL Washington; WCAP Lowell, Mass.; WNMC Barnesboro, Pa., and WAKU Latrobe, Pa.

Mr. Rudolph was sales manager of WITH before opening his production firm.

SRTS Offers ‘Musique’ Spots

Standard Radio Transmission Services Inc., Chicago, is introducing an instrumental “Musique” Spot Library for stations, recording studios and film firms, it was announced last week by Olga Blohm, SRTS general manager. The library contains more than 1,600 varied musical effects for use with commercials, slides and motion pictures. Included in the package: a complete selection of music for commercial announcements, openings and closers, jingles of various length, contrasts and backgrounds for 20-, 40- and 60-second announcements. Twenty-four clients have been signed so far for the Musique library, Miss Blohm said.

PROGRAM SERVICES SHORTS

Smith, Kline & French Labs, Philadelphia, has reported it has turned over $25,000 color tv projector to National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., for use in research in medical electronics, broadcast applications and other visual experiments. SKF “Medical Color Tv Unit” presents closed-circuit surgical and clinical programs at major medical association meetings throughout U. S.

Stone Assoc., also reports it has been appointed exclusive merchandising consultant for Crusader Rabbit cartoon film series by Tap Inc., L. A., owner of character and merchandising rights to series. Stone is authorized to license manufacturing of all products, such as toys, books, etc., based on characters in series, as well as creating all premiums and advertising, in their use.
Pressler, a former employee of Bruno-New York. His sentencing has been delayed until today (Monday).

Mr. Sarnoff, executive vice president of Bruno-New York and younger brother of RCA Board Chairman Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, issued the following statement: "Sidney Pressler has been out of Bruno-New York, Inc., for more than a year, and for several months prior to the termination of his employment, he was under surveillance by the Bronx district attorney's office with our knowledge.

"Bruno-New York was victimized by both theft and counterfeiting of receiving tubes and television kinescopes. The thefts represented some very substantial sums."

"Bruno-New York cooperated wholeheartedly with Bronx District Attorney Sullivan and his staff in this case and we are delighted with the results being obtained. Mr. Sullivan and his assistant, Mr. Blinder, alerted us to Pressler's activities and helped bring our heavy losses to an end."

"Pressler had never been general manager or an officer of Bruno-New York. When his activities were exposed, his job was manager of the tubes and parts department."

Schafer Offers Stations Device For Automatic Radio Programming

An automatic program package that can supply radio stations with unattended programming, for about $24-hour, 24 hours, or a full week of seven 24-hour days, has been developed by Schafer Custom Engineering Inc., Burbank, Calif. Last week Schafer technicians were installing equipment for 12-hour programming at KGEE Bakersfield, Calif., which on Saturday was scheduled to put it to work on an all-night show. Before the end of the month Schafer will have a seven-day programming unit in operation at a western MF station.

A typical 12-hour package comprises the electronic "brain" that controls the operation ($3,400), three tape machines ($1,575), two record players ($1,370) and one radio control ($660). Total cost, $5,435 for the complete package. The tape machines are new Concertone models made by American Electronics, with sonolonid controls. The record players are Seeburg machines. Stations can use their own tape and record-playing equipment if they prefer, instead of buying it from Schafer. Presto recording-reproducing equipment is added for the 24-hour unit, priced at $8,965, and special Seeburg LP record players for the seven-day package, listed at $10,155.

The Schafer program package "does its own timing and thinking," Paul Schafer, president, said. A clock mechanism permits the admission of station breaks at any interval desired, with accompanying announcements. A counting circuit inserts commercial spots after every second or third record, or whatever number is called for; the device is set to count up to 10 and can be set for as high as 20. Switching is done by silence and without the use of any control tone. It lacks of sound after the conclusion of a record or announcement triggers the "sensing unit" that controls the program changes into operation. Like the counting mechanism, the "sensing unit" can be set for tight or loose programming, shifting in as short a span as 1/4 second or not until 20 seconds or more of silence have elapsed. Some LP's have up to 15 seconds of silence between selections, Mr. Schafer noted, so with them it is necessary to provide for a longer silence period.

Eight hours of programming can be prepared in about an hour, by prerecording three tapes: one of station breaks and adjoining commercial spots, one of record introductions and one of floating spots. In normal station operation, the tapes would be recorded for each day of the week and then corrected from week to week in the same way station logs are corrected. Commercials would be retained for the balance of the schedule, with new ones added and old ones erased as needed. Only the introductions of the musical numbers would require a complete new tape.

The program package provides for cutting in live local programs, such as newscasts, weather reports, sports news, bulletin announcements, and also can be set up in network programs, Mr. Schafer said. Only program, not engineering operations are affected by the automatic program package, he stated, except for an automatic logging device.

January Radio-Tv Output Below Corresponding Month in 1957

Production of radio and tv receivers in January fell slightly below the same 1957 month, according to Electronic Industries Assn. Radio production in January totaled 1,026,527 sets, including 676,848 auto models, compared to 1,085,529 sets, including 707,617 auto models, in January 1957. Radio sales at retail totaled $34,640 sets in January compared to 56,363 in the same 1957 month. Sales do not include auto models.

Tv production in January totaled 433,983 sets compared to 450,190 in the same 1957 month. Of January's output, $1,115 tv sets had uhf tuners. Tv retail sales totaled $51,496 sets in January compared to 623,359 in the same month of 1957.

Ampex Steps Up Delivery Plans

A new production schedule has cut seven months from the delivery time of some $5 million worth of videotape records recorders, it was announced Thursday by Neal X. McNaughten, manager of the professional products division of Ampex Corp., Redwood City, Calif. Aside from a speed-up in U.S. deliveries, the advanced production schedule will permit earlier entry into foreign markets, he said. Ampex has distributors in 50 countries.

Ampex expects to deliver within two months the five units ordered by BBC and by independent film studios in the United Kingdom. Ampex has contracted with Siemens-Halske, Karlsruhe, Germany, to modify, market and service Ampex videotape recorders operating on European picture standards. Six units have been ordered with delivery starting in May. Another VTR goes to Australia in July while two units go to Oszake Tv Co. in Japan.

N.Y. Toll Tv Firm Charged With Fraud

New York State Supreme Court Justice Joseph Gavaghey has issued a temporary restraining order Monday on the sale of Selectivision stock by Gruber and directed P. G. Gruber, president; T. J. Hamilton, president of Selectivision, and Bernard L. Goldenberg, assistant to the president of the toll tv company, to appear for examination in court last Thursday. At that time, Justice Gavaghey delayed the examination until April 2 at the request of Selectivision, which said the company is employing new counsel and requires additional time to prepare its testimony. The temporary restraining order against Gruber continues.

State Attorney Louis J. Lefkowitz accused the Gruber company of making "false, misleading and deceptive" statements in some 30,000 pieces of literature sent to prospective investors. He said the Gruber company had claimed that some $4 million had been invested in Selectivision when actually only about $150,000 had been invested. Though Gruber literature stated that more than 15,000 homes in the Forest Hills, Queens, section of New York had been wired for Selectivision, Mr. Lefkowitz said an investigation by his office showed that "only a handful" of homes were wired.

As for comment, Mr. Goldenberg said Selectivision shortly will make a full explanation of what it considers to be "a misunderstanding." He stressed that Selectivision itself has not been charged with any wrongdoing by the state, and insisted the company still plans to place its tv system in operation on a paid basis in early April.

Its system provides for the local theatre to serve as a programming center for feature attractions, theatre and sporting events, with Selectivision and the local theatre sharing the revenue on the basis of a formula still undecided.

Subscribers to Selectivision, according to Mr. Goldenberg, must buy a "Selectivator," a decoder, for $10 and pay 150% of the theatre admission price for one toll tv presentation. Subscribers are "shown" to the local theatre for insertion into the "Selectivator."

Tube Fraud Sentences Passed, RCA Rapped

Major manufacturers of radio and television tubes "knew of an illegal rebranding operation that cost the industry and public about $5 million from 1953 to 1957," Bronx (New York) County Judge Samuel Joseph declared last Tuesday. He particularly criticized RCA for "not taking remedial action when it became aware of the situation in 1953."

Before passing sentence on ten persons and six corporations involved in indictments since an investigation of the practice began in 1956, Judge Joseph urged passage of a law to make it a felony for any manufacturer to knowingly give credit or cash refund for rebranded tubes and suggested that a state agency be created to provide standards and supervision for television dealers and repair men to impose penalties for violations.

Of the manufacturers, he said: "The court condemns the manufacturing corporations, and particularly RCA, as the court has had more particular knowledge of RCA; they are greatly responsible for what is now before this court and for what has transpired in the industry."

Judge Joseph, however, added that "credit must be given to the General Electric Co. for finally taking measures to detect rebranding and then placing the matter in the hands of the district attorney for full investigation."

The practice hit by the court involves the placing of restamped, useless or near-useless tubes into tv sets instead of good tubes when the tv sets are serviced. Because of the inaccessibility of the components to the set owner, the practice is hard to detect by the consumer.

RCA, in denying the charge, made the following statement: "RCA is pleased that Judge Joseph and the Bronx County grand jury have exposed the nefarious practice of tube counterfeiting and we welcome the steps they have taken to combat it. We also are gratified that in the long and painstaking investigation, no RCA employee has been linked in any way with the counterfeiters."

"RCA was but one of the leading manufacturers victimized by this fraudulent scheme. In addition, its New York distributor, Bruno-New York Inc., was victimized."

"In 1956, immediately upon learning of the scheme uncovered by the grand jury, RCA took measures against counterfeiting in its tubes. We believe that the steps we have already taken have been effective and we shall continue our vigilance."

"Prior to 1956, we had acted in good faith in giving credits to our distributors. They had represented that the tubes returned by them had resulted from adjustments made with their customers in accordance with industry practices. We will not countenance counterfeiting and similar dishonest practices trading on the good name of RCA and we will continue to cooperate with law enforcement agencies in such matters."

Almost two-thirds of the public got its first knowledge of three recent major news events through the broadcast media, according to an area study just released by Michigan State I. The survey was conducted in the Lansing area following President Eisenhower's latest illness and launchings of the Sputnik and Explorer satellites.

Fewer than one-fifth of the people surveyed gained first information on these news happenings through the newspapers, according to MSU's Communications Research Center. The press, however, was credited with being the overwhelming source for additional or supplemental details of these stories.

The remainder of the people, about 17%, initially heard of these news developments by word of mouth.

Noting that the press has been receiving less of all single media, Dr. Paul J. Deutschmann, director of the research center, stated, "Television now appears to be not only an entertainment medium, but an important element in news diffusion."

In addition to the Lansing surveys, Dr. Deutschmann revealed some figures of a Madison, Wis., area study made after the launching of Explorer. Dr. Wayne Danielson, research professor of the School of Journalism at the University of Wisconsin, compiled the Madison survey. Both Lansing and Madison were in close agreement in their listening habits, the survey showed.

Here's the percentage of people in Lansing who first heard of the three stories on radio or tv: Ike's illness—38% by tv, 32% by radio; launching of Explorer I—33% by tv, 40% by radio; launching of Sputnik I—33% by tv, 30% by radio.

In Madison, 36% of the public first heard of Explorer by television and another 29% learned of the same event through radio.

On the average, newspapers reached about 18% of the people with their first news.

The level of education had little bearing on whether a person received information initially through radio, tv or press, according to Dr. Deutschmann. "However," he added, "education is directly related to the amount of use made of supplemental media after first learning the news."

In some segments of the survey, it was found that a larger percentage were first informed by word of mouth than by newspaper.

The following sales of station interests were announced last week. Both are subject to FCC approval.

WGTO HAINES CITY, FLA. Sold to KSTP Inc. (Stanley Hubbard, associates) by KWK Inc. for $175,000. KSTP Inc. (KSTP-AM-FM-TV Minneapolis-St. Paul, KOBY-AM-TV Albuquerque) already owned 23% of KWK St. Louis. The sale of KWK-TV to CBS has been finalized [At Deadline, March 3]. WGTO operates on 540 kc with 1 kw, day. The sale was handled by Blackburn & Co.

WPFA PENNSACOLA, FLA. Sold to Edwin H. Estes by J. W. O'Connor for $85,000. Mr. Estes also owns and operates WEQD Birmingham, Ala., and WMOZ Mobile, Ala. The sale was handled by Blackburn & Co. WPFA operates on 790 kc with 1 kw, day.

Approved

The following transfers of station interests were approved by the FCC last week. For other broadcast actions see For the Record, page 111.

WOSA WAUSAU, WLIN (FM) MERRILL, BOTH WIS. Sold to Wisconsin Valley Telecasting Corp. by Rep. Alvin E. "K" O'Konski (R-Wis.) for $225,000. The sale is conditional in that Antigo Broadcasting Co., a holder in the assignee, and its officers, directors and stockholders must divest themselves of all interest and association in Wisconsin Valley and the latter must dispose of WSAU Wausau, prior to consummation of the WOSA assignment. Wisconsin Valley also operates ch. 7 WSAU-TV Wausau, and its officials have interests in WFHR-AM-FM Wisconsin Rapids and WATK Antigo, both Wis. WOSA operates on 550 kc with 5 kw, and is affiliated with ABC and MBS. WLIN (FM) operates on 100.7 mc with 9.7 kw.

KRBO LAS VEGAS, NEV. Sold remaining 80% to 20% owner, president and general manager of the station Joe Julian by Sherryl Hirschberg, David Cohen and Harry Brier for $30,000. KRBO operates on 1050 kc with 500 w, day.

'Globe-Democrat' Completes 25.2% Purchase of KTVI (TV)

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has consummated its 25.2% purchase of ch. 2 KTVI (TV) St. Louis after FCC approval of the sale of ch. 4 KKW-TV St. Louis to CBS [Government, March 3]; the newspaper had owned 23% of KKW-TV. In its purchase into KTVI, The Globe-Democrat has agreed to make a loan to the station licensee and to take over mortgages from stockholders totaling $500,000.

Signal Hill Telecasting Corp. owns and operates KTVI under special temporary authorization from the FCC. The Louisiana Purchase Co., formerly a rival applicant for the ch. 2 permit in St. Louis, has merged with Signal Hill and its stockholders are buying individually a total of about 10% of the Signal Hill stock.

Pabst Announces Appointments for New Oakland-S.F. Station

William D. Pabst, manager of KTVU (TV) Oakland-San Francisco, Calif., which went on the air March 2, has announced these appointments:

Kenneth B. Craig, former director of the ABC-TV western division, program director of KTVU; Gene Mulligan, writer for and producer of Lone Ranger, Suspense, Masquerade Party and other shows, producer-director-writer; Walt Harris, former production manager of KOVR (TV) Stockton, Calif., and Stan Lichtenstein, with KRON-TV San Francisco for eight years, film editors. Leslie A. Nichols, former foreign correspondent, is news director of KTVU, presenting a nightly news program. Other KTVU posts were filled earlier [STATIONS, Feb. 17]. A Bay Area salute, featuring community leaders and guest stars, was the ch. 2 outlet's opening show March 2.

WKTS Rebuilding After Fire

WKTS Brooksville, Fla., is rebuilding its studios following a fire which destroyed them March 3. Damage was placed by owner Elmo B. Kitts at $50,000-60,000. The fire apparently started in the WKTS transmitter room, Mr. Kitts said.

KTLA (TV) Calls Off Precon Plan

Because of letters, petitions and phone calls protesting the proposal of KTLA (TV) Los Angeles to begin experimental broadcast of messages below the level of conscious reception by the viewer, the station has indefinitely postponed any plans for subliminal communication, Lew Arnold, vice president and general manager, announced. KTLA and Precon Process & Equipment Corp., developer of the system which the station had planned to use [PROGRAM SERVICES, Jan. 20], agreed it would not be feasible to begin subliminal broadcasting until the public has been fully informed about it.

Quinlan Writes Novel On Radio-Tv

Sterling C. (Red) Quinlan, ABC vice president in charge of WBKB (TV) Chicago, completed negotiations last week with Doubleday to publish his novel about the radio-television industry sometime this fall.

Mr. Quinlan describes the novel as "enter-

Pennsylvania Judge Pulls Rank To Ban KDKA-TV Court Film

KDKA-TV Pittsburgh broke the camera barrier in Allegheny County court last week, for a three-day temporary victory.

The station blazed the way for visual coverage Monday, when its cameramen shot the first pictures through a courtroom window. By Wednesday night it was all over, when the chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court saw a picture of the Vincent Scatena murder trial in a Philadelphia newspaper.

With a call to William McNaugher, president judge of the Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas, Chief Justice Jones put an end to courtroom picture coverage. Judge McNaugher passed the order on to Judge Samuel A. Weiss, who had allowed the visual coverage. The dictum was issued because picture-taking disrupts court procedures. Chief Justice Jones told a news conference in Philadelphia Thursday.

His order destroyed full-coverage efforts that were based on careful groundwork by KDKA-TV. The station's news director, Bill Burns, had prepared the way by asking the judge to permit similar coverage of a pre-trial hearing. After cameraman Charles Boyle covered the trial last Monday, Judge Weiss and Samuel Strouss, assistant district attorney, said the television coverage had not interfered with court proceedings in any manner and could be continued throughout the trial. The Bendix "Weatherman" will give your audience greater accuracy in weather reporting and a clearer picture of weather happenings, to make an important public service even better. Weather conditions can be read instantly from large and easy-to-read dials, showing outdoor temperatures, relative humidity, rainfall, atmospheric pressure, wind speed, and wind direction.

Such stations as WFIL-TV, Philadelphia; KJQA-TV, Hannibal, Mo. and Quincy, Ill. and KWTV-TV in Oklahoma City, have found that this new presentation of the weather by the "Weatherman" is more interesting than relayed information. And with the Bendix "Weatherman" every installation is unique because the dials can be arranged in so many different positions.

With the exception of the barometric pressure unit, each indicator is actuated by a remote (roof top) transmitter and is connected to the transmitter by electrical cable. "Weatherman" indicators and transmitters can be obtained as individual units.

The "Weatherman" is made by Bendix Friez, makers of weather-data instruments for eighty-two years. For further information, write direct to this division, 1324 Taylor Avenue, Baltimore 4, Maryland, or telephone Valley 3-4040.

SAN ANTONIO—When Harry Van Slyke, news editor of KITE San Antonio, heard the station's police radio reporting a hold-up that was in progress, he called the finance office where it was happening and interviewed the manager by beep during the robbery. While the manager talked to Mr. Slyke, the bandit held a gun on him. KITE reports that it aired the taped report even before the police arrived at the scene. Later, while one of the secretaries from the station was on her way home from work she witnessed the capture of the fleeing bandit. She gave an eye-witness account to KITE listeners. CBS used KITE's tape on "The World Tonight," the station said.

BOSTON—WHDH-TV here reports that it scooped other media with film coverage of a triple murder in Hampden, Mass., although photographers were barred from the scene. It was able to shoot films through the windows of the home where the slayings took place. The "Boston Herald-Traveler" used stills from the WHDH-TV footage on its front page the following day.

HARTFORD—A railroad accident in this Connecticut town was recorded by WHCT (TV) there because cameraman Randall Swarthout happened to be on the spot. He had been assigned to cover the arrival of a group of visiting CBS Spot Sales representatives and as he prepared to get a picture of the train roaring into the station, a man turned toward the camera, removed his overcoat and stepped from the platform into path of the train. The films were carried that evening on a WHCT newscast.

FLORENCE—From this South Carolina city near Tuesday's atom bomb accident, WJMX dispatched its mobile unit to the 50-foot bomb crater and started an emergency broadcast schedule that lasted until midnight that day and dominated news in the days to follow. From the scene 4½ miles out of town, where a B-47 bomber let an "unarmed" atom bomb fall, WJMX originated reports describing damage, giving eyewitness accounts and following the search for scattered bomb parts.

WJMX's unit stayed on the scene until the Air Force gave an official account of the non-nuclear TNT explosion. An early WJMX report was carried on the AP wire. Paul Benson, station manager and emergency-coordinator, reports, and station personnel worked after sign-off feeding tape reports to 18 stations around the U. S. In the course of the story, WJMX worked with authorities to reassure listeners, broadcasting interviews with the Florence mayor and Maj. Gen. Charles B. Dougher, commander of the 38th Air Div. at Hunter. Air Force Base, Savannah.

Florence's television station, WBTW (TV), feared its promotion slogan, "The Milky Way Market," had become a reality Tuesday, as station cameramen hurried to the crater site. WBTW reporter-photographer teams got several hundred feet of film and interviews with witnesses and officials. The station telemcast bulletins and features throughout Tuesday evening, quickly becoming a focal point for coverage of the bomb story. WBTW reports supplying newsfilm to CBS, NBC, INS and Movietone plus feeding a dozen tapes to radio news editors who called from all over the country, also covering for its affiliated stations WBT-WBTB (TV) Charlotte, N. C., until Charlotte newsmen flew to the scene. The North Carolina television station had film on the air 65 minutes after the WBTB team left Florence.

KCMK (FM) on Air in K. C.

F. M. Broadcasting Inc. put KCMK (FM) Kansas City on the air March 3, broadcasting daily from 8 a.m. to midnight on 93.3 mc with 35 kw, it has announced. KCMK is programming hi-fi music, news and special events, and through a separate division, Accent Music Co., is multiplexing background music, claimed as the first full-time commercial multiplexing by an area FM station.

Officers of F. M. Broadcasting: F. A. Mosch, president; Thomas R. Bengima, vice president; Tudy Gulotta, secretary-treasurer. John L. Humphreys, formerly of KBBC Mission, Kan., is station manager. A man of KCMK and Leo E. Erb is technical engineer. Manager of Accent Music Co. is Curtis Vaughan.

What does the Partnership Power Policy mean?

The Administration’s Partnership Power Policy is in action in the Northwest. Its meaning to the U. S. as a whole is well stated in this reprint of a column by Raymond Moley.

The (power) partnership policy is not new. The entire concept behind the Hoover Dam was that of a partnership between the Federal government, which built and operates the enormous dam, and private and public bodies, which assured sound financing through firm contracts to buy power.

The Eisenhower policy is based upon the simple facts that the Federal government should keep out of competition with private business, and that it cannot justify spending great sums of taxpayers’ money when there is a chance to attract private investors’ capital to do the job.

This encouragement to private investors has been rewarded by the construction of many private projects throughout the Northwest. There are now under construction or under license thirteen private power projects, four by public-utility districts (PUD), three by the municipalities of Seattle and Tacoma. There are also seven Federal projects under construction.

PRACTICAL RESULT
The estimated production from the private projects will be 1,870,600 kilowatts; from the public-utility districts, 1,900,800; from the Federal dams, 1,869,000; from the municipals, 517,000. The split among the private companies, the public-utility districts, and the Federal government is almost even.

But this is not the whole story. For the production from some of the PUD’s has already in considerable part been contracted for by private companies. In fact, the PUD’s could hardly get the investment essential to such large projects without these contracts. Incidentally, these PUD’s share none of the fanaticism of the Federal power people. As they get into the practical job of production, they develop practical ideas.

The proof is ample here that if the Federal government will permit it, there are plenty of private and public local agencies able to do the job in all except the very large dams already under way.

But despite this construction, much more power will be needed in the years immediately ahead. One of the projects urgently needed is the John Day Dam on the Columbia River, already authorized by Congress. Two proposals were made for the construction of the power aspects of the project—one by the private companies, another by a PUD. There would have been repayment in power from the dams after completion.

The advocates of public power have consistently blocked this project. Their attitude toward this and other projects is all-Federal-or-nothing. Like the British Socialists, they are for fair shares of scarcity.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

John F. Meagher, NAB vice president in charge of radio, told the Sunday luncheon session that the 15 million set purchases last year reflect the healthy interest in radio. In addition, he pointed out, national radio advertising has reached an all-time high with even network reversing its downward trend.

Mr. Meagher urged a unified radio effort for a larger share of advertising, instead of "sniping" within the medium. Aim for better programming and more promotion as well as to gain "prestige and stature in the public mind," he advised. Mr. Meagher cited editorializing by radio stations as one means toward this end.

The NAB executive praised those who have "elevated the job of the disc jockey to the status of skilled craftsmanship,"

New programming ideas were discussed at the concluding session by Barry Kaye, WAMP Pittsburgh and Mr. Block. Mr. Kaye said that a study of the particular market, listeners' wants not being fulfilled by competition and related factors are prerequisites before embarkation on any new idea or revision of an old concept.

He cited the example of the top 40 record format that had been eminently successful but which since has been "copied and re-copied by the followers" to a point of less impact.

R. C. Embry, vice president, WITH Baltimore, speaking on broadcasting's future, said radio's revenue would double in the next decade because it is the medium of "greatest penetration." He pointed out that numbers of sets, places of listening, etc., are constantly growing and said that radio is the only medium that can reach people while they were doing other things. For the advertisement, Mr. Embry said, radio is the lowest cost mass medium.

The breakfast session on Saturday was hosted by Atlantic Records and on Sunday morning by Mercury Records. Saturday's luncheon was held by Columbia Records and the Sunday luncheon was under auspices of RCA Victor Records.

Saturday banquet host was Dot Records. The Storz Stations and Roulette Records held cocktail parties Friday and Saturday evenings, respectively.

Following the Saturday banquet, 34 of the nation's top recording artists [STATIONS, March 10] presented a five-hour musical show with Mr. Block and company.

Kansas City Mayor H. Roe Bartle participated and presented keys to the city to all the disc jockey delegates. The mayor contributed to the festivity by singing "Omaha, I Love You" in honor of Mr. Storz.

D. j. caters to child mentality—Miller

Mitch Miller minced no words in charging radio is derelict in its programming responsibility by selling out to the musical talents of the 8- to 14-year-old set. Columbia Records' artists & repertoire man hurled his accusation not only at disc jockeys, but also at station management and media buyers. Partial text of his address to the First Annual Pop Music Disc Jockey Convention:

This close to Independence, Mo., little voices whisper to me everywhere—"Give 'em hell, Mitch." And that's what I intend to do to a lot of you jockeys, and station owners, and the men who buy time on radio.

Gathered under this roof are a great many men of fantastic skill, taste, and imagination. You caused radio to jump out of bed and click its heels a few years back, while the public was dressing for the funeral. You made radio once again a vital force on the American scene, a source of first-rate entertainment, and—best of all—you made it pay.

But what's been happening in the last year or two?

You carefully built yourselves into the monarch of radio and then you went and abdicated—abdicated your programming to the corner record shop; to the 8- to 14-year-olds; to the pre-shave crowd that makes up twelve per cent of the country's population and zero per cent of its buying power.

I know that most of you agree with me that much of the juvenile stuff pumped over the air waves these days hardly qualifies as music. But your standard answer is—"We're not here to educate. We're here to give them what they want."

What who wants?

Certainly not the 75% of the nation over 14-year-olds! If they did, they wouldn't be buying hi-fi record players in unprecedented numbers, setting them up in the living room, shutting off the radio—and creating their own homemade programming departments!

Certainly not those who want variety, musicianship, a little bit of literacy, and a bit more sophistication in their music. And, gentlemen, that's the majority. . . .

O.K., so who's the "they" in radio's standard defense—"We're here to give them what they want." It is usually the mythical "they" who make up the Top Forty song lists. At its best, the Top Forty presents only a philosophical problem on a par with "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" Does the demand for a record come because you play it first, or do the kids demand it because they find it in the Top Forty?

If you media buyers think none of this applies to you, you're very much mistaken. It all translates quickly and painfully into advertising dollars and cents.

In printed media, you advertising buyers are careful to surround your products with an aura of dignity that will generate respect for them. You buy the venerable newsmagazines, the long-established women's magazines, the picture magazines only if they're not too cheesecakey. The settings in which the ads appear help paint a picture of your product—sound, reliable, trustworthy. Then, when you turn around and buy a radio spot, you don't care if it comes before a record made by the apprentices during lunch hour in the boiler works.

I can see you station owners objecting, "Why should we change our programming at a time when the business is going great?" But just because you're making money does not mean this is a seller's market, it doesn't follow that you're making the profit you should. And if the economy slumps further, which stations will best weather the storms ahead? I believe it will be the ones with distinct personalities, the ones that jump out at you as you twist the dial because they're not programming with the herd.

You stations aren't thinking clearly into the future when you gear yourself to the 8- to 14-year-old mentality. Every year, a large chunk of the audience, at the top end of your age span, gets over its musical growing pains and gives up the game of rebelling against parents, teachers, and the world at large. The smart station is the one that recognizes that you're grown-up a lot longer than you're a subteen, and works to build a permanent audience. If I read the signs right, the trend is starting in that direction, and some very important stations are changing their thinking towards this goal.

I'm not asking you to stuff out the musical life of these kids or their followers. But I am asking you to put new life in radio; I'm asking you to take radio away from the lists and give it back to all the people; I'm asking you to give up lazy programming—to play music for every age group and taste. The by-product of such a move will be aesthetic, and you can take pride in the public service. But principally you'll be doing it for your pocketbook by insuring a broader, healthier audience, and guaranteeing advertisers who are seeking that audience a fair shake for their money.

You don't see anyone on this canvas because actually there isn't anyone in this broad land of ours who isn't served by trucks.

Trucks keep the shopping center stocked with merchandise of all kinds... take the farmer's livestock, milk and crops to market... feed raw materials and parts to the manufacturing plant and move out finished products... provide goods and services for everybody's business.

Yes, the housewife, the farmer, the manufacturer, the businessman—YOU—everybody in America needs and benefits from the services of the motor truck.

THE WHEELS THAT GO EVERYWHERE
it would mean that every station would be doing exactly the same thing," he said. "This would be very harmful to all radio as a whole and would reduce the percentage of tune-in as well as the effectiveness of the advertising messages."

Mr. Fearnhead said that at WINS ratings are but one factor since in a market such as New York "it isn't too important as to whether you are first, second, third or fourth. The very nature of the New York market is such that a great many advertisers in order to use radio effectively will buy three, four, five or six stations. This is more or less a prestige thing, it is true in any major market, but especially true there."

Tom Edwards, WERE Cleveland; Bill Bennett, WDGY Minneapolis, and Paul Berlin, KNXU Houston, Tex., comprised the next panel that discussed ways that the disc jockey can augment his income and prestige through related outside activities. Mr. Edwards explained how he augmented entertainment at outside record hops with color slides of record artists. He said that the disc jockey's on-air chores are only part of his job; that it better serves the individual and the station if the personality participates in outside activities.

The topic of interviews on the air was analyzed by Varner Paulsen, program director of WIP Philadelphia; Bob DeBardeleben, program director, WLEE Richmond, and Jack Rowzie, WWDC Washington.

Mr. Paulsen said that in interviewing entertainment stars, the station interviewer should remember that the listeners are not disc jockeys. "They like music but are not interested in countless details of the artist's latest release or personal appearance," he maintained. "Use talent so that it doesn't sound like warmed-over hash."

Mr. DeBardeleben commented that interviews can be "deadly" and cause audience loss. He charged that most people do not interview well, the interviewer often is not well-versed on the subject and the audience is easily bored by too much talk.

Mr. Rowzie said that talent interviews just for the sake of an interview have outgrown their usefulness. He declared that stations are flooded with recording artists circulating around cities, creating a repetitive situation that invites "your audience to push the button on the dial."

Appearing on a panel concerned with programming according to the top 40 list, Jack Lacey, WINS New York, flatly stated that the top 40 list is not the answer to good programming. He was seconded by Stan Dale, WAIT Chicago, who labeled the top 40 song list as a "cancer."

A panel of Norman Wain, WDKO Cleveland; Ira Cook, KMPC Hollywood, and Phil Ladd, CHUM Toronto, agreed that album music is important in building the disc jockey's audience. Mr. Wain pointed out that 66% of the record sales are for LPs and said the commercial broadcaster should have consideration for the "disenfranchised millions" who prefer better pops and classics. Recognition of this has meant more sales and greater audiences for WDKO, he said.

Mr. Cook, who devotes 25% of his daily four-hour show to albums, warned that disc jockeys should be extremely selective in choosing LP fare. Some albums, he said, are "thrown together" with weak selection of songs and arrangement. He conceded that the general quality of albums has improved this year.

SUNDAY BREAKFAST

Speaking at the Sunday morning breakfast meeting, Gordon McLendon, president of the McLendon Stations, stressed the even brighter future for radio. "Radio will slice sharply into budgets now going into newspapers," he stated. Radio's nighttime sets in use and Saturday-Sunday listening are rapidly rising, a harbinger of "a major triumph for radio in the after-dark hours," Mr. McLendon said.

"The timebuyer must take a new look at newspaper circulation," he maintained, saying that KLIF (Dallas) circulation equals the circulation of both local newspapers combined. In addition, Mr. McLendon pointed out, "buyers will find out newspaper circulation does not mean readership."

In its programming, radio should not be reticent in competing editorially with newspapers, Mr. McLendon declared, saying it has been a "shame" that radio in the past hasn't fully lived up to this obligation.

He scored the newspaper "giants" with broadcast properties which have subordinated their radio and "violated the public interest." However, Mr. McLendon said, with radio's emergence to even greater power, it now has become a case of "the tail wagging the dog."

He urged a more active and aggressive role for radio as these new horizons open. "I hate to see radio stagnate in some markets," Mr. McLendon added.

Murray Kaufman, WAAT Newark, N. J., briefly outlined the objectives of the National Council of Disc Jockeys. He advised that the disc jockey not allow himself to become a nonentity in radio.

SUNDAY MORNING

Adam Young, president of Adam Young Inc., and Wells Barnett, station operations manager, John Blair Co., spoke on the first Sunday panel. Mr. Young outlined the objectives of the timebuyer in buying a market. He stressed the importance of keeping the buyer advised as to the specific type of listener to each show, so that product message can be slotted for the proper audience.

Mr. Young reminded that not only teenagers have some buying power but also that the teenagers are just a step away from the adult buying stage.

Mr. Barnett discussed the role the disc jockey can assume for the national advertiser at the local level. He declared that the d.j. is "the face of radio" and that a successful personality is part of the community. He urged the disc jockey to study the products concerned with the advertisers' commercial so as to render a more effective sales message.

A forum comprising Don Bell, KIOA Des Moines; Gene Plumstead, national program director, Plough Stations, and Chuck Blore, program director, KFWB Hollywood, explored means by which the disc jockey can maintain individuality within the framework of conformity required by management.

Mr. Bell said the disc jockey can exercise taste in selecting music even though he has no control over the supply; he can exercise ingenuity in introducing records; he can select music to cater to particular types of audiences; he can spend more time and thought in cultivating a personal approach to the commercial copy, and he can make an intensive effort to maintain individuality at functions outside the station, such as public service projects.

Mr. Plumsted said that before employment there should be "a mutual understanding between management and the disc jockey. Management must be frank. The disc jockey should know his limitations."

He cited advantages for the disc jockey in formula programming: "No longer is he dependent on writers, gags, or his own quickly-exhausted supply of bon mots or clever sayings; no longer will he have to wonder if a gag will be funny or an opinion will blow up in his face."

Mr. Blore assailed restrictions on the disc jockey, saying that at KFWB the lineup of seven d.j.s could "play what they want." He declared, "I don't believe in telling a
It helps curb inflation by holding food prices down.

Trading stamps are simply one of many competitive tools. Like anything else which exerts competitive pressure, trading stamps act to hold prices down and thus help curb inflation.

In a study of the effects of trading stamps on food prices in supermarkets conducted by marketing experts of a large state university, they found no evidence that stamp stores as a group charge higher prices than non-stamp stores. On the contrary, they found that stamps work to hold prices down in two ways:

1. Stamps have an active, competitive effect on non-stamp stores. This may result in the non-stamp merchant cutting some prices and offering giveaways or other inducements to gain customers.

2. Stamp stores, on the other hand, must also keep their prices competitive if they are to gain the increased business volume that stamps can provide.

The outcome is that whether a supermarket gives stamps or doesn’t give stamps, the stamps help hold prices down in either case. In these inflationary times, our economy needs every competitive tool, like the trading stamp, that it can get, because competition is the greatest single anti-inflationary force at work.

by describing the methodology used by Pulse Inc. as well as the constant revisions that ensure an accurate picture of listening habits.

Mr. Rogers pointed to the volume of business conducted by the present rating services and said they would not "long endure were they antiquated, disused or out of date." The Trendex executive charged that confusion "might creep in" in usage—"in what Nestle Advertising Manager Don Cady calls 'decimal point buying and selling.'"

Mr. Rogers deplored "the arbitrary rule-of-thumb where fractions and decimals are the only criteria. With the refinements in methodology and sampling...there is no excuse for sticking with a rule-of-thumb which might have been satisfactory in the palmier days of broadcasting."

On a panel dissecting the program director as friend or foe of the disc jockey, Ray Katz, WMGM New York program director, urged the delegates to establish close liaison with programming heads. Program Director Don Keyes of the McLendon Stations said the d.j. should recognize that program directors are usually good disc jockeys themselves.

At the same session, Eddie Clarke, program director of WHB Kansas City, touched on efforts by sales personnel at the station to influence music selection. He said the program director should defend the program commodity and remind the salesman, "Would you undersell your own rate card?"

Three disc jockey-panels on the question of whether rock and roll is a bad influence on teen-agers unanimously voted "no." Bob Lloyd, WHEC Rochester, N. Y., said those who contend youngsters are bad because the music they hear is bad should ask themselves if "the kids will be good if the music they hear is good?—and, most importantly, good by whose standards?"

Robin Seymour, WKMH Detroit, said rock and roll has been "the secret of our [disc jockeys'] success. Much of it, he admitted, is "just plain low-down junk and has no rhyme or reason or place anywhere but in the ash can. But there will always be enough of these characters around that are so hungry for the quick buck they don't care what monsters they create."

Reed Farrell, KWK St. Louis, however, said radio stations, are overemphasizing rock and roll's importance in programming. "Perhaps the teen-ager can help to hype ratings, but let's not hype ourselves—results from sponsors must have equal importance."

"The Storz, McLendon, Bartell, Plough groups and other smart independents have been successful not only by being influential in record sales to teen-agers, but also by being original and clever in production techniques, news coverage, station sounds and personality development. They went to the markets where there was no rock and roll and without competition captured the teen-age market. Why not now go where there is nothing but teen-age rock and roll programming and offer something different?"

G. W. Armstrong, vice president and general manager of WHB Kansas City, addressed a post-luncheon session on the qualities that management seeks in a prospective disc jockey. He listed the tenets of believability, sincerity, microphone integrity and ability to accept responsibility. He reminded that the d.j. is an "invited guest" in the listener's home and, accordingly, should render the proper respect.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Three top station executives on the first panel Saturday afternoon discussed the ingredients in "formula" radio.

Harold Krelstein, president of the Plough Stations, urged disc jockeys to "stand for something in your community, compete honestly with perseverance and tenacity. Set up a guide to go by and don't try to ad lib a day-by-day policy." Failure to do this, he said, means loss of community identification for the station and the disc jockey himself, "except possibly on a very temporary basis."

"The Stewart-Krelstein-Plough" has been successful for "Year appeal and urgency" for the station which should program major elements of daily importance to the community. In addition to fulfilling the needs of the community, the station must also program by "objectively studying your competition. ...

It is so much more important than to worry about what your competition is already doing that sets the pattern. For whatever plan you finally crystallize must be adhered to regardless of outside influence and criticism.

John Box, executive vice president of WIL St. Louis, said formula radio has grown big enough to attract public detractors and a constant current of criticism.

"The ingredients of 'formula' radio may remain fairly constant, but it takes a master chef to put them together—to create an appetizing mixture which provides excitement, entertainment, information and real community service day after day," he said, continuing:

"The rock-and-roll operators—the Top Forty imitators—have been lulled into a false sense of security by momentary ratings which are, for the most part, illusory and essentially invalid...These music and news Johnny-come-latelies had best make their fortunes while their imitations will bring the fast buck.

"The balanced approach to formula programming is based upon the modern concept of radio as a personal medium—a constant companion—designed to appeal to the local tastes within our markets. I firmly believe that the disc jockey or personality is an integral part of the 'formula' radio that will survive when the rock-and-roll operators find themselves surrounded by operations that sound exactly as they do."

The third panelist, Jock Fearnhead, executive vice president of WINS New York, emphasized that the ingredients in formula radio must be flexible, according to market, competition and a number of other variables.

Popularity of music based on record sales and juke box favor should be only one criterion in selection of music, he warned.

"If there were only one proper formula..."

WHAT MAKES THE MUSIC GO 'ROUND?

D. j. delegates to pop music convention tell what influences choices

The best seller list of recording hits and the disc jockey's own personal taste are the dominant influences in the selection of d.j. music. That was borne out last week in a special Broadcasting survey conducted at the first annual Pop Music Disc Jockey Convention in Kansas City.

Asked to specify the two most important factors in picking the platters, 54.7% of the disc jockeys delegated said that the top 20, top 30, etc., record listings serve as guidesposts. The d.j.'s personal music taste was the criterion listed by 50.5%. Next highest influence was the recording artist's name, according to 34.7% of the poll participants.

Promotional efforts by the record makers evidently have little effect on the disc jockey: only 3.2% said they were swayed by personal calls from representatives of publishers, recording artists, record companies, etc., and just 1.1% paid heed to the promotional literature received through the mail.

Station management directive was listed by 21.1% of the disc jockeys as affecting their music selection. Forecasts of new hits was listed as a prime consideration by 17.9% of the d.j. delegates, and 16.8% said listener requests served as an influence.

Practically all the disc jockeys said it made no difference to them whether the selected music is licensed by ASCAP or BMI. Only 4.5% expressed a preference for ASCAP of BMI music, the other 95.5% claiming impartiality to either of the music licensing organizations.

One disc jockey commented "I don't usually know whose music it is. There's no way to know."

Of the 4.5% minority to whom it did make a difference, 75% expressed a preference for BMI over ASCAP music.

Approximately 1,000 disc jockeys, sizable contingent from the major recording companies, a smaller number of station management executives and representatives from allied groups jammed Kansas City's Muehlebach Hotel March 7-9 for the convention and program seminar.

The final registration of 2,210 far exceeded expectations and prompted an announcement by Todd Storz, president of the Storz Stations, sponsor of the event, that the convention would be an annual function with the 1959 sessions again to be in Kansas City next March 6-8. Former President Harry S. Truman, in a message to the disc jockeys, expressed regrets that last minute business prevented his attendance, but said he could be listed as the first "delegate" to the 1959 convention.

The convention served as convincing proof that the disc jockey of yesterday, regarded as a secondary adjunct to station operation, has emerged as the big business factor in today's new concept of radio. Most of the panels and forums reflected the desire of the disc jockeys for greater programming freedom. The top 40 type of operation and formula radio came under particular attack at several sessions.

While rock and roll was generally defended, Columbia Records' Mitch Miller delivered the most controversial blast when he charged that disc jockeys, station management and media buyers had abdicated their hard-earned gains in radio's resurgence by catering to the tastes of the 8-to-14-year-old set (text, page 94).

In his message to the convention, Mr. Storz traced the evolution of the disc jockey to his present high status as a "professional man" in radio. He said:

"For some time, independents, though more numerous, still did not achieve importance or influence in radio's overall picture. Then came the revolution! Television entered the picture and panicked the network concept. Am stations, as previously conceived and operated, lost ground steadily as tv took over the living room and orthodox network programming.

"Enter here the new era of radio—paced by the heretofore lonely independent stations and their disc jockeys. These stations whose faith in radio's future held firm, provided the American public with entertainment unavailable on tv, popular music, latest news and local service features, both desirable and necessary to the communities served by the stations.

"The first successful years were rewarding for the d.j. in his new-found glory and for the stations, too. But with more importance came more responsibility, greater competition and an increased obligation on the part of disc jockeys to listeners, advertisers and stations."

The one factor that sets the disc jockey apart in today's radio is his "professional approach," Mr. Storz said.

Bill Stewart, national program director for the Storz stations and convention coordinator, emphasized that the Kansas City sessions were not an attempt to organize the disc jockeys but rather to formulate ideas concerning the work and the success of disc jockeys, radio stations and the music industry.

"Only by bringing this great array of talent together in a free exchange of ideas and objectives can we grow as an industry," he declared. "The disc jockeys of America will be richer in creative ideas, which is the backbone of radio.

Mr. Stewart served as moderator at all the panels with the exception of those on the morning of the last day when Mr. Storz presided.

SATURDAY BREAKFAST

Martin Block, WABC New York, who pioneered disc jockeying more than 25 years ago, told the Saturday breakfast session that despite his experience, he found the challenges and problems of present day programming more difficult than ever to meet. He said the best way to cater to listeners' music tastes is to first ask the people themselves about likes and dislikes.

Mr. Block described his own "Operation 60,000," a method of personally sampling a segment of the WABC audience. "If you ever get out and talk to the people, you'll be amazed," he told the disc jockeys, citing the varied music tastes throughout his audience.

SATURDAY MORNING

At the first panel session of the convention, three research executives agreed that today's rating services are not obsolete for radio. Participants were Frank Stüsser, president of C. E. Hooper Inc.; Dr. Sydney Roslow, president of Pulse Inc., and Robert B. Rogers, executive vice president of Trendex Inc.

Mr. Stüsser, noting the changed complexion of radio today, said that new factors such as the "where" of listening have become important to ratings. He compared rating services in former days, when the four networks' programming dominated and created a "static situation," with the more complex situation today which involves more stations, more sets in and out of the home, and a totally revised concept of programming. He stressed that the Hooper telephone co- incidental method provides "an up-to-date" reflection of today's radio audience.

Dr. Roslow underscored his declaration that ratings continue to serve a vital role

SAG, Film Commercial Makers May Reach Agreement This Week

The prospects are bright for an agreement this week on a new contract between the Screen Actors Guild and producers of TV film commercials, even though SAG has set tomorrow (Tuesday) as the deadline for strike authorization ballots from its membership.

As of late last week, the main stumbling block has been over the issue of "unit payment," while other points have been resolved satisfactorily [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, Feb. 10]. Even in the area of "unit payment," according to a producer spokesman, concessions have been made and the gap between the union and the producers is narrowing.

The Guild originally had demanded that payment for each commercial be made at its completion, whereas the producers had insisted upon payment for the commercials only when delivered to the agency for use. In each instance, talent is paid for the day's work but the difference arose over the union's contention that actors must be paid for each commercial produced and the employers maintained that payment be made only when the production is delivered to the agency.

IUE, DuMont Labs Sign Pact

A new three-year contract between Allen B. DuMont Labs., Clifton, N. J., and Local No. 420 of International Union of Electrical Radio & Machine Workers (IUE of AFL-CIO) has been announced. The contract covering approximately 1,800 production and maintenance employees provides a pension plan, liberalized vacation benefits, changes in the attendance bonus plan, modifications of other fringe benefits, a 3% general wage increase for the second year and a further 3% rise in the third year.

MPTF Fiscal '58 Fees: $4,850,000

The Music Performance Trust Funds of the Recording Industries last week issued its semiannual report which shows that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1958, total allocations to musicians' locals from the various recording and TV film funds will have reached $4,850,000. MPTF stems from American Federation of Musicians' agreement with industry. The report reveals that allocations from the TV film fund under agreements made before 1954 amount to $250,000 and from the recording fund agreement made in 1948, $750,000. In 1954, MPTF set up a unified fund covering both recording and TV film agreements, and allocations from this fund for the fiscal year will reach $3,850,000. It was pointed out that the $4,850,000 allocated for the present fiscal year compares with $3.9 million for the year ending June 30, 1957, and $2.8 million for fiscal 1956.

NAB’s Tower Proposes Course
To Develop Broadcast Execs

Plans for a management development course for broadcast executives were outlined by Charles H. Tower, NAB labor manager, at a Thursday conference of the Georgia Assn. of Broadcasters in Atlanta.

A two-week management course is being considered in conjunction with a major university, he said, with the university faculty handling the teaching load. He asked broadcasters to tell NAB what they think of the idea.

“The primary purpose would be to expose broadcast management to basic management skills and methods,” he said. “While some broadcast materials would be used, major emphasis would be on the techniques common to all management whether it be a radio station or a shoe factory, a tv network or a steel plant. Secondary emphasis would be given to acquainting broadcasters with the environment and the business problems of industries with which they come in contact, and also to give an insight into the disciplines which relate to the broadcast environment.”

The course would be limited to about 50 broadcasters, primarily station managers and those in line for top management position.

Further Radio Agenda Plans Set
For NAB Convention Next Month

The business outlook for aural broadcasting tops the list of subjects on the radio management sessions to be held during the NAB convention in Los Angeles, April 27-May 1. Radio’s role in national defense and standards of practice will be discussed.

Radio sessions will be opened Tuesday afternoon (April 29) by Merrill Lindsay, WSOY Decatur, Ill., chairman of the NAB Radio Board. A panel will follow, titled “This Business of Radio—Inventory 1958.” Speakers from spot sales groups, networks and the association will take part. Another panel that afternoon will include government speakers on radio’s role in defense.

The Wednesday afternoon program includes a presentation on the new visual and audio symbols of good radio practice, a research panel and a session directed by Radio Advertising Bureau. John F. Meagher, NAB radio vice president, will preside both times.

The Thursday morning program will be made available for an all-time program looking toward formation of an All-Industry Music Licensing Committee consisting of both NAB members and non-members. The ASCAP radio contract expires next Dec. 31. A similar committee was formed by tv stations at the 1957 convention. Tv contracts expired last Dec. 31.

A panel discussion on fm radio will be held Monday morning prior to formal opening of the convention.

RTES Job Placement Logging

A contest sponsored by Radio & Television Executives Society, which aims to prod the use of its “Listening Post” job counseling and personnel placement service, is dragging. This was reported last week by Albert B. Shepard of Select Station Representatives, station representative, and vice chairman of the Listening Post committee, who said too few job leads have been submitted. The contest now underway seeks to stimulate an immediate flow of current job openings. The persons supplying the most “definite” leads up to the May 2 deadline will win prizes which include a portable typewriter, radios, phonographs, record albums, tickets to the play “My Fair Lady” and Ross Reports-Tv Index subscriptions.

"I seldom miss an issue of Ad Age..."

says FRANK F. BELL
President
Pharma-Craft Corporation

"Over the years, I have learned to depend on Advertising Age for accurate and informative data on how all products—drugs included—are advertised and merchandised to the consumer. As a reservoir of vital information in its field, Ad Age is unique. I seldom miss an issue."

In the hustle-bustle world of marketing, Ad Age's unique weekly coverage ranks high with most of the executives of importance to you — those who influence as well as those who activate major broadcast decisions. For here they find not only the news of their fast-changing fields, but trends, developments and sharp analyses which help them decide on markets and media.

At the Pharma-Craft Corp., for example, where sales have tripled since 1954, broadcast will get the lion's share of the firm's advertising for the year ending July, 1958. The pharmaceutical company's products (including Fresh deodorants and Coldene cold medicines) have a $7,000,000 ad budget, about 70 per cent of which is earmarked for radio and tv. From October, 1957, through March, 1958, about 13,000 radio spots alone were planned.

Every Monday, 5 paid-subscription copies of Ad Age help Pharma-Craft executives with marketing responsibilities keep abreast of developments affecting them. Further, 430 paid-subscription copies reach decision-makers at J. Walter Thompson Co. and Cohen & Aleshire, Inc., the agencies handling Pharma-Craft accounts.

Add to this AA's more than 40,000 paid circulation, its tremendous penetration of advertising with a weekly paid circulation currently reaching almost 12,000 agency people alone, its intense readership by top executives in national advertising companies—and you'll recognize in Advertising Age a most influential medium for swinging broadcast decisions your way.

FRANK F. BELL
Mr. Bell has devoted almost all of his business career to the drug field, his early experience having been in sales, sales research and sales training. Among the positions he held before joining the Pharma-Craft Corporation was vice-president in charge of sales and advertising for Grove Laboratories, Inc.

Late in 1954, Mr. Bell was named president of Pharma-Craft, the pharmaceutical affiliate of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. Under his administration, P-C's advertising has been increased and new products are being introduced. Although the company's initial interests were proprietary medicines and cosmetics, Mr. Bell says Pharma-Craft also plans to enter the field of ethical drugs. As part of the firm's huge expansion program, executive headquarters were established at a new plant near Princeton, N. J., early in 1958, with full production also being maintained at the Batavia, Ill., plant.

MCA May Get DeMille Movies As Part of Paramount Package

Paramount Pictures Corp. is coining another agreement along as part of its overall $30 million sale of its feature backlog to Enika Corp., subsidiary of Music Corp. of America.

Reportedly in agreement are Paramount and its veteran producer Cecil B. DeMille on a $1.5 million sale of M. DeMille’s interest in 10 Paramount motion pictures.
Mr. DeMille’s Paramount productions total about 70. The 10-feature package, all pre-1948 releases, would be turned over by Paramount to Enika as part of the total sale.

Though terms generally were agreed upon, it was understood last week, that a pact had not yet been concluded. This latest negotiation follows disclosure that the motion picture company’s Paramount-Sunset
Corp., which already operates major studio facilities as a rental service to outside tv and film producers, plans to produce film for Television [Film, March 10].

Film Commercials Syndicated

Ad-Vantage Film Sales has been formed in Hollywood to handle sales and distribution of syndicated film commercial campaigns designed for use by local tv advertisers. Each campaign will be designed for a full year’s use, generally including 10 commercials of varying lengths, some live action, some animation, some a combination, with a new campaign to be ready for use the following year. Some 20 categories of local accounts, ranging from auto dealers, bakeries, banks and breweries to realtors, savings and loan institutions, supermarkets and tire dealers, are slated for early production, according to Robert M. Koenig, president.

Chris Petersen, Jr. is vice president, serving in an advisory capacity. Ad-Vantage is located at General Service Studios, 1040
N. Las Palmas, Hollywood. Telephone:

"T-1" Steel cuts cost 15% in 1,199-ft. TV Tower

This is the new 1,199-ft. WBZ-TV transmitting tower near Boston, Massachusetts. It's unique because up to the 838-ft. level its legs are of USS "T-1" Steel, a constructional alloy steel so strong that it enabled significant savings to the tower owner. This structure was designed and built by Dresser-Ideco for Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.

WBZ's tower presently supports a 6-bay channel 4 antenna, but future plans call for it to carry plenty of additional weight; pending FCC approval, another 300 feet of height will bring it to an ultimate 1,499 feet. The tower had to be built with the strength to accommodate this extra weight without the necessity of future structural modifications.

Round, hot-rolled, heat-treated bars of USS "T-1" Steel were used for the three legs up to the 838-ft. height because this alloy steel has nearly three times the yield strength of structural carbon steel. It therefore enabled Dresser-Ideco to reduce the size of the legs greatly, lowering shipping weight, welding costs, wind stresses and over-all weight and price. For example, consider the leg members at the bottom of the tower. Cross-sectional area of these "T-1" bars is only 56% of the area required with the usual structural carbon steel, resulting in a 44% material savings. Also saved: the cost of hot forging and machining, since carbon bars of the size required for the biggest members are too large to be produced economically by hot-rolling. Altogether, the builders estimate that "T-1" Steel cut the cost of this tower by 15%.

You, too, can achieve significant cost savings by specifying USS "T-1" Steel for large towers. For further information, write United States Steel, Room 2801, 525 William Penn Place, Pittsburgh 30, Pa.

Russians to See Serials by Ziv Under New Exchange Negotiated

Three Ziv Television Programs Inc. series—Sea Hunt, Favorite Story and Science Fiction Theatre—will be the first American TV programs to be telecast in Russia under the State Dept.'s new cultural exchange pact with the Soviet Union, it was announced last week by Edward J. Stern, president of International Television Programs Inc., distributor of Ziv shows outside of the U. S. and Canada.

Mr. Stern returned to the U. S. last week from Moscow where he and Joseph M. Brandel, vice president in charge of European operations for ITP, concluded arrangements for the exchange of programming in meetings with Soviet officials. Mr. Stern said there is no money involved in the contract.

Prints for 13 episodes of each of the three American series will be shipped to Russia on April 15 and will be dubbed in Russian for airing on that country's 37 stations. In turn, ITP will have the right to the first selection of Russian program material for distribution in Western countries. Mr. Stern indicated that Russian material that will be considered includes animated cartoons and films of ballet and puppets.

Abbott Sues Costello in L.A.

It once was the comedy team of Abbott and Costello, but there was nothing comic last Tuesday when it was Abbott vs. Costello in Los Angeles Superior Court, where William A. (Bud) Abbott filed a breach of contract suit against Lou Costello and TCA Inc. for at least $222,465. The complaint, entered by attorney Robert A. Elliott, alleges that in 1951 TCA and its president, Mr. Costello, contracted for Mr. Abbott to appear in a series of 52 Abbott and Costello TV films at a fee of approximately half of the net proceeds but not less than $7,500 a picture.

But Mr. Abbott charges he received only $167,525 instead of the $390,000 minimum. Probably his share should have been closer to $1 million, he estimates in the belief that the series netted $2 million or more, but he alleges he has not been able to get an accounting.

English Tv Distributor Buys World Rights to Movie Package

Mundus Television Corp., English television distributor, announced last week the purchase of world negative rights to 30 motion pictures from Sunset Securities Corp., a subsidiary of the Bank of America.

U. S. and Canadian rights to the package, sold by Sunset in 1953 to General Teleradio, expire October and Mundus will take over these rights at that time, according to Vernon Burns, head of the English firm.

Western Hemisphere rights to the films, excluding Canada, have been acquired by National Telefilm Assoc., Mr. Burns said.

Spot Announcements Top Programs in Cost—TPA

Advertising using television spot announcements spend as much as 85% more for an equal amount of commercial time than they do if they buy half-hour film programs on a combined time and talent cost basis, Michael M. Sillerman, executive vice president of Television Programs of America, said last week on the basis of a study made by TPA.

A half-hour program gives the sponsor at least three minutes (180 seconds) of commercial time. The cost of the half hour in the TPA study was figured in all instances on the cost for 10:30 p.m., regarded by some stations as A time, by others as B time and still others as AA or C time. Program cost was TPA's rate card for New Adventures of Charlie Chan.

The spot announcement cost was computed for nine 20-second spots per week, the same total time (180 seconds) as the three one-minute commercials that an advertiser would get if he bought a half-hour program. TPA officials acknowledged that on many stations the unit price of 20-second and one-minute commercials is the same, that nine 20-second spots would cost the same as three one-minute spots. But they asserted that it was virtually impossible to buy minute spots in desirable time.

ABC Top Ranks Filled in New Appointments

American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres Inc. last week buttoned up the executive alignment of its broadcast operations.

James G. Riddell, president of AB-PT subsidiary WXYZ-AM-FM-TV Detroit, was elected executive vice president of ABC, a division of AB-PT, and a director of AB-PT. He takes over the new administrative post July 1. In that position, the radio (ABN) and the TV (ABC-TV) networks will report to him and he in turn to AB-PT President Leonard H. Goldenson. (See Our Respects, page 26.)

Simon B. Siegel, financial vice president and treasurer of AB-PT, also was elected a director of the theatre-broadcast company.

Reports had been current since early winter that AB-PT would create an overall administrator of the company's broadcast operations. (Closed Circuit, March 10; Dec. 16, 1957). The renewed speculation had followed the elevation last month of Oliver E. Tregy from vice president in charge to president of the ABC-TV division. Robert E. Eastman is president of ABN. Both men, according to Mr. Goldenson's announcement Monday, will continue to operate the networks as autonomous units with no change in operating policy.

Although Mr. Riddell formally assumes his ABC post July 1, the WXYZ executive already is moving into his new duties on an informal basis. Mr. Riddell said he has set a meeting for today (Monday) and tomorrow in Detroit for general managers of all ABN-owned radio stations. Purposes: an orientation in WXYZ functions (the station is regarded as a successful radio operation) with which Mr. Riddell is most familiar and a chance to meet with the station heads.

Mr. Goldenson said Mr. Riddell's addition to executive management of ABC was part of "a long-range plan to meet the growing requirements of the company," noting that the broadcaster had compiled "an outstanding record" at the Detroit stations.

Mr. Siegel was elected to his current post at AB-PT in 1957 and was treasurer of AB-PT upon its formation in 1953 as a result of the merger of ABC and United Paramount Theatres. Previously, he was comptroller of UPT. He joined the comptroller's staff of Paramount Pictures Inc. in 1929.

NTA FILM NETWORK PLANS EXPANSION

- Landau outlines new shows
- Approach sound, he feels

National Telefilm Assoc., New York, last week reaffirmed its confidence in the concept of the NTA Film Network by announcing an expanded schedule for the fall, covering six major program series and the establishment of three-hour segments in prime time in certain markets.

Ely A. Landau, board chairman of NTA and president of the NTA Film Network, told a news conference in New York the company is convinced that the film network approach is sound. The expansion move is planned, even though the network's major effort during 1957—Premiere Performance, a weekly 11/2-hour presentation of 20th Century-Fox feature films—ended a 39-week cycle last January. Mr. Landau explained that film network activities were halted temporarily to evaluate accomplishments and plan for next season, although the company never questioned the soundness of the film network concept.

The programs to be carried starting next fall, Mr. Landau said, are How to Marry a Millionaire, a half-hour series based on the motion picture of the same name and filmed by TCF-TV; Man Without a Gun, another half-hour TCF-TV series built around the exploits of a newspaper editor in the West; This Is Alice, a half-hour series produced by Desilu Productions and centering around an impish youngster; The TV Hour of Stars, hour-long dramatic presentations produced for television by Warner Bros.; Premiere Performance, a new group of 39 first-run TV feature films produced by Fox, and Shirley Temple feature films, a series of motion pictures featuring the former child star at the height of her popularity.

This new programming, Mr. Landau said, involves a total expenditure of $12 million. He revealed that the network will offer all its fall programming in upward of 100 markets next season. A new programming pattern has been created called the "Big Night." Mr. Landau said that in the 17 markets where there are four or more stations, the independent outlet in each area will be invited to participate in this pattern and be indicated favorable reaction already in 15. The present plans call for the "Big Night" to be telecast 7:30-10:30 p.m. on a single night, with programming covering How to Marry a Millionaire, Man Without a Gun, This Is Alice and Premiere Performance. These markets represent 46% of U.S. TV homes, according to Mr. Landau, and include about 19.5 million TV homes.

In other markets, NTA hopes to clear Class A time for the half-hour series and Premiere Performance in late evening time slots. The TV Hour of Stars programming is earmarked for early evening presentations in the four-hour-more stations in markets, and in other areas. Plans are to slot the dramas during daytime periods, perhaps as a week-day strip. The Shirley Temple films, Mr. Landau said, will be programmed as a special holiday series, much in the manner of the recent Holiday Specials during the past Christmas season when four films starring Miss Temple were shown.

Mr. Landau reviewed the accomplishments of Premiere Performance and the Holiday Specials during 1957 and contended that in terms of ratings and in cost-per-thousand the presentations were "a client's buys" for the various participating sponsors. These included Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., P. Lorillard Co., Hazel Bishop Inc., Sunbeam Corp., Ideal Toy Corp., Toni Co., Phillips-Van Heusen Corp., Smith Bros. Inc. and Technical Tape Corp. He said the main objective of the NTA Film Network is its "pioneering concept, as many people are a bit afraid of anything new, of something that breaks with tradition." Mr. Landau felt, however, that the first year's efforts had smoothed the way for next year's activities.

Outside of the regular programming, the NTA Network, as previously announced, will feed a one-hour program titled The 20th Century-Fox Hour to a lineup of about 63 stations for 13 weeks [Film, Feb. 3]. The program, consisting of re-runs of films shown on CBS-TV several years ago, will be offered to advertisers under a plan called "Double Impact." Each week a one-hour film will be played twice on different days, enabling the advertiser to reach a new audience for each run.

Universal's Rackmil Optimistic Despite Loss for First Quarter

The "hold the line at 48" motto being adopted by Hollywood producers on release of old films to tv was echoed last week during a routine stockholders meeting at Universal Pictures Corp. President Milton R. Rackmil also told shareholders that Universal is in the motion picture business to stay. His optimistic outlook came in the face of a reported $450,000 net loss during the first quarter of fiscal 1958. (In the comparable first quarter of fiscal 1957, Universal had a net profit of $163,786.)

Mr. Rackmil said that the one-hour meeting denying various current "reports." Among them he denied (A) that Universal is in the process of selling its Universal City lot to NBC for an estimated $3.5 million, (B) that Universal is going to liquidate its physical plant and sell its property, (C) that Universal is going to merge with Decca Records which owns 81.4% of the film company's outstanding common, (D) that Universal is thinking of springing some 300 post-1948 films since it now has placed into distribution 600 pre-1948 films through Columbia Pictures Corp's Screen Gems Inc. at estimated earnings of $30 million.

Mr. Rackmil assured the shareholders that Universal is not going to release any post-1948 films at this time to tv in line with the stand of other studios. He apparently did not consider Republic (now-defunct) as a studio. He did not mention Republic Pictures Corp., United Artists Corp, which maintains no studio operations of its own, recently released a large number of post-1948 feature film to tv.

The Universal president declined to dis-

says Mr. Dale Hoaglan, Chief Photographer of station KMTV, Omaha, Nebraska.

Since the station opened in 1952, versatility has been the underlying theme of KMTV's operation. And to help achieve it, they chose Du Pont 930 Rapid Reversal film for newsreel use right from the start, and added 931 as soon as it was introduced.

Mr. Hoaglan tells us that during the last six years, "these films have met our every requirement, giving us the necessary speed to work at low light levels and in situations of extreme contrast. The high speed alone justifies the use of 930 and 931, and we get other benefits such as fast and easy processing, excellent contrast, good gray scale and optimum sound track quality.

"All our cameramen are primarily reporters," Mr. Hoaglan continues. "They simply do not have the time to master all the intricacies of photographic technique, so we must have a very versatile film with enough latitude to record any event, regardless of the circumstances.

"These qualities are reliably backed up by a sound service policy on the part of Du Pont. Whatever the problem involved, we know we can depend on the technical know-how of the Du Pont Company."

CBS-TV SPLIT IN SURPRISE MOVE

- Jones heads various operations of CBS TV Stations Division
- Cowan similarly named as president of CBS TV Network Division

CBS surprised the television business last week by announcing it has split CBS-TV into two separate divisions under separate presidents, Merle S. Jones and Louis G. Cowan.

Mr. Jones, who has been president of CBS-TV, was named president of the CBS Television Stations Division, consisting of owned television stations, CBS-TV Spot Sales, CBS-TV Film Sales, Terrytoons and other non-network activities, which altogether account for approximately half of the profits of CBS-TV.

Mr. Cowan, whose Louis G. Cowan Inc. created $64,000 Question before he moved over as CBS Inc. staff vice president for creative services in 1955, was named president of the CBS-TV Network Division. This includes “all operations having to do with network programming, sales, production, affiliate relations and the like.”

CBS Inc. President Frank Stanton, announcing the unexpected changes Tuesday, attributed them to “the growth, size and complexity of the television division.”

Explaining the move, Dr. Stanton said: “In 1955 when we completed the separation of our radio and television broadcasting activities, the CBS Television Division operated two wholly owned stations, New York and Los Angeles. The CBS Television Network had gross time billings at an annual rate of $42.5 million.

“The CBS Television Network’s gross billings for 1957 were approximately $240 million. The division now operates six company-owned stations and has an application pending before the FCC for the purchase of WCAU-TV Philadelphia. The other major units in the CBS Television Division today are CBS Television Spot Sales, CBS Television Film Sales Inc. and Terrytoons. Some idea of the importance of these non-network units may be gained from the fact that they account for approximately half of the profits of the division.

“Because of the growth, size and complexity of the television division, the time has come to divide it along functional lines into two new separate operating divisions: the CBS Television Network and the CBS Television Stations...”

Dr. Stanton said CBS is “indeed fortunate to have two such leaders as Merle Jones and Lou Cowan to head these new divisions.” He asserted that “the end result of this growth development will, I am confident, be greater efficiency for all television operations.

The changes were effective last Wednesday. On that same day, Mr. Cowan was elected a member of the board of CBS Inc.

Mr. Jones already was a board member and will continue to be. Both Messrs. Cowan and Jones also are vice presidents of CBS Inc.

Mr. Jones, who took over as president of CBS-TV Jan. 1, 1957, upon the retirement of J. L. Van Volkenburg, first joined CBS at the network’s KMOX St. Louis in 1936. Thereafter he served the company successively in key posts in Chicago, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, St. Louis and New York.

Mr. Cowan was head of the program production company bearing his name (now Entertainment Productions Inc.) before moving to CBS Inc. more than two years ago.

With the separation of CBS-TV into two divisions, CBS Inc. now operates seven divisions. The others are CBS Radio, CBS Labs, Columbia Records, CBS-Hytron and CBS International.

Tv Network Gross Time Sales
For January Up 11% Over 1957

The gross time sales of TV networks totaled $49,594,212 in January, or a 14% gain over January 1957, Television Bureau of Advertising has reported. (Monthly reports of network billings now are being computed for TVB by Leading National Advertisers Inc. and Broadcast Advertisers Reports Inc. Formerly, Publishers Information Bureau compiled this data.) ABC-TV compiled the greatest billing boost with a total of $9,134,917 in January, a gain of 36%. CBS-TV was up about 9% and NBC-TV approximately 11%. TVB soon will release a supplementary report with product classification totals, a list of leading advertisers and a breakdown of gross billings for day and night. The network figures:

Networks to Beat DST Problem
With 1958 Transmission Plans

The outlook in mid-March is that by April 27 when Daylight Saving Time comes around, the three tv networks will have beat the perennial networking problem of transmitting programs from DST areas to standard time zones.

ABC-TV is announcing today (Monday) that it will expand its system, thus maintaining most programs in their regular time periods during DST. The network is adding the Eastern Standard Time zone this year and as a result very few stations—except for David C. Adams, NBC executive vice president for corporate affairs, wound up the NBC presentation with an incisive statement on affiliation practices, rates and compensation.

He hit hard at the Barrow recommendation that affiliation criteria, contracts and compensation be made public. This is a common carrier concept, he insisted.

"... the proposal is typical of the whole series of recommendations in this area," Mr. Adams declared. "All of them would edge the Commission into common carrier regulation of networking, and involve it in the economics of the advertising business where it has no expert knowledge or authority to operate."

Mr. Adams recalled that until April 1953, NBC used to publish monthly circulation for each of its affiliated stations. This caused so much ill feeling, he said (because the network circulation criteria were different than those used for local and spot circulation) that it was discontinued at the insistence of the affiliates themselves.

"If the Commission now should require all networks to publish the station-by-station circulation figures used for network rate purposes," Mr. Adams said, "it will start one of the greatest Donnybrooks in the business."

He also raised the question of antitrust violations if networks publicized compensation data. Compensation arrangements represent a "business" agreement, Mr. Adams pointed out, and who is to determine the reasonableness of that?

Affiliates have no lack of bargaining power, Mr. Adams stated, which needs to be met through publication of circulation figures or rate specifications.

Multiple ownership plays no part in affiliation or inclusion in must-buy lists, Mr. Adams said. Seven basic affiliates do not meet NBC's statistical criteria for must-buy, Mr. Adams said, but there are reasons for their inclusions and none are associated with multiple owners.

In a discussion of the importance of option time, Mr. Adams pointed out that there are substantial amounts of syndicated film in the 6-11 p.m. option time periods in the top 100 markets—20%. Feature film in this period, amounts to 7.2%, other film, 0.5% and local live programs, 12.1%.
From its flower-trimmed main street to its humming factories...in its schools and civic gatherings...this bustling Pennsylvania Dutch community helps Western Electric make equipment that makes possible your Bell telephone service.

Any town that pretties up its lamp posts with flowers and waters them each night must be something special. Allentown, Pa., is that kind of city.

For ten years Allentown—where we make electronic telephone components for the Bell System—has been one of the home towns of Western Electric. As our employees, thousands of Allentonians have helped us with our job. Others have helped as employees of the 186 companies in town who furnish materials and supplies we need. (These companies, by the way, are just a fraction of our 2,336 suppliers throughout the state of Pennsylvania.)

Allentown, too, has benefited...through the jobs our work has made possible, in the payrolls spent with local merchants, in the taxes we have paid; and in the many ways in which we have become—either directly or through our employees—an integral part of the community itself.

Besides Allentown, Western Electric has factories in 25 other cities where we also make telephone equipment for the Bell System. Last year we purchased $1.4 billion dollars worth of raw materials, products and services from our nearly 33,000 suppliers located in every state. Of these, 90% are "small businesses." The things we make and buy are distributed to the Bell telephone companies through Western Electric distribution centers in 32 different cities.

He feels that Western Electric's active part in community affairs and its concept of community service has been as good for his town as the jobs made and the taxes paid.

exposure if owned and operated stations did not carry them. He also stated that the record for clearances by owned stations was about equal to the 25 basic affiliates with the best clearance records.

The staff report, Mr. Denny said, contains no evidence of any abuse of station ownership by networks. In fact, he added, divestiture would weaken network service.

Mr. Denny concluded his statement with these words:

"We believe that strong networks have been good for broadcasting and affirmative factors in the competition within television and between television and other media. We believe that their continued strength is essential to the well-being of the industry. We believe the public will be the real loser if the present network system is substantially weakened; as it will be, if network ownership of stations is further restricted."

Mr. Denny told the Commission, on request, that NBC owned stations became profitable in these years: WRCA-TV New York, 1949; WRC-TV Washington, 1950; WNBO (TV) Chicago, 1950; KRCA-TV Los Angeles, 1952; WNBK (TV) Cleveland, broke even in 1950, showed a profit in 1951; WNBC (TV) New Britain, was in the black when bought in 1956 and has remained so; WBUF (TV) Buffalo, in the red when bought in 1955 and still a deficit operation. The last two stations are uhf outlets.

He also stated, in response to questions from Mr. Schulkind, that NBC pays its owned stations the same as it pays affiliates when they originate programs for the network. He said also that NBC pays its own taxes.

The average commercial hour clearances for o&o stations, Mr. Denny disclosed, is 96.33%, compared with 90.2% for basic affiliates. Owned stations take network programs, Mr. Denny flatly stated; the choice is a corporate one.

Mr. Denny also explained a 1954 memo-

Spot sales arm competes against own, other networks

Thomas B. McFadden, NBC vice president of owned stations and of NBC Spot Sales, argued for the continuance of network spot sales representation.

He told the Commission that NBC Spot Sales represents seven tv stations in addition to its owned outlets, plus a non-interconnected station in Honolulu (KONA [TV]) and—on the West Coast and in D. Croit only—five Crosley stations. The national spot business garnered by NBC Spot Sales, Mr. McFadden said, amounted to only 2.5% of total national spot time sales.

With only two exceptions, all its spot sales list are NBC affiliates, Mr. McFadden said. He also stressed that the Spot Sales division was a distinct and separate NBC division, and that it has consistently sold against net-

Without option time plan network tv becomes "iffy"

Walter D. Scott, vice president, NBC Television Network sales, defended option time.

He emphasized network tv's competitive position versus print media: Wesson Oil now uses magazines exclusively, although in previous years it used both NBC and CBS nighttime; Kraft Foods just canceled daytime NBC for newspaper coverage (although continuing its nighttime use).

Advertisers using network tv look to national circulation in specific time periods, Mr. Scott emphasized. Outside of option time, clearances are an "iffy" thing, Mr. Scott declared, and if option time were eliminated, the whole network television operation would become "iffy."

NBC's basic 58 outlets provide exposure to more than 85% of the country, Mr. Scott said. He also pointed out the importance of the markets cleared, clearance of 10 optional markets may be offset by the failure to clear a single basic market.

Clearances of basic stations in evening option times is 93%, Mr. Scott reported; in station time it is only 64%. He illustrated the clearance problem with examples of NBC News, Jane Wyman Show, and Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour moving from option time to station time, resulting in a drastic drop in clearances; Twenty One, Norby and the Bob Cummings Show and others moving from station time to option time and resulting in a sharp rise in station clearances.

He also discussed the difficulty of maintaining network programming in station time—advertisers drop their shows, or programs fail to get exposure.

Orders from advertisers in option time are firm orders, Mr. Scott said. Those for station time are conditional, he added.

And, he went on, option time permits long-range basic planning for network program structure.

The elimination of option time, Mr. Scott maintained, would lead to the disruption of clearances, the backbone of network tv.

In questioning Mr. Scott, Comr. Ford expressed the belief that networks might use a "straddle" technique of starting a program in option time and running into sta-
BARROW HEARINGS GET BREATHER

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer announced last Thursday that the Barrow Report network hearings will resume today (Monday) and then recess until March 25. He made it clear, however, that the date for resumption is tentative, depending on the demands on commissioners' time by other duties. The commissioners are expecting to be called before the House Oversight Committee this week (story, page 46).

The network hearings continued Friday with NTM Film Network President Ely B. Landau on the stand. He was to be followed by multiple station owners last Friday and today. They include: C. Wrede Petersmeyer for J. H. Whitney & Co.'s Corinthian stations; Mrs. Dorothy Scott Bullitt and Otto P. Brandt, KINK stations; Hugh B. Terry and Weston C. Pullen, Time Inc. stations; Payson Hall, Meredith stations; George B. Storer, Storer stations, and Donald H. McGannon, Joseph E. Baudino and C.C. Woodard Jr., Westinghouse stations. Mr. Terry, who is sailing for Europe this week, was promised first appearance this morning. It was also announced last week that the following broadcasters have withdrawn their requests to appear:

Dwight B. Martin, WAFB-TV Baton Rouge, La.; Thomas P. O'Neill, RKO-Tele-radio Pictures Inc.; Donald W. Reynolds, Southwestern Radio & TV Corp.; George Hatch, Utah Broadcasting & TV Corp.; P. A. Sugg, WKY Television System Inc. (Mr. Sugg has joined NBC as vice president for owned stations and spot sales); Paul Bartlett, KFRE-TV Fresno, Calif.; Charles C. Cable, WMWD-TV Peoria, Ill.; and Edwin K. Wheeler, WWJ-TV Detroit, Mich.

Owned stations necessary for networking stability

Charles R. Denny, NBC executive vice president in charge of operations and former FCC chairman, bolstered the network's contention that owned and operated stations are required. Mr. Denny moving to NBC's parent company, RCA, to become vice president in charge of product planning.

He submitted financial statements on the seven NBC owned and operated tv stations, and also the competitive picture in each of these markets.

The profits from owned stations supply the stability essential to networking, Mr. Denny said.

NBC's home office is New York, since 1926, Mr. Denny recited, and about 4,600 people are employed there. Chicago is NBC Central Division headquarters since, 1927, and over 500 people are employed there. Radio network operations from Hollywood began in 1927, Mr. Denny pointed out, and NBC has 1,700 employees there. NBC ownership in Washington goes back to 1923, Mr. Denny said, and employs 264 people.

NBC's seven stations represent 1.4% of the 492 commercial tv stations on the air as of Jan. 1 this year, Mr. Denny said. Their share of tangible broadcast property as of 1954, he added, was only 11.2% and if network assets are excluded it drops to 3%. NBC-owned stations share of revenues, expenses and income is 7%, 6% and 10% respectively, he said.

NBC had A. C. Nielsen & Co. conduct a special survey Nov. 24-30, 1957 to determine the share of audience of NBC-owned stations; it was 7.21% of all tv viewing hours in the U. S., he disclosed.

Thus Mr. Denny emphasized, NBC-owned stations do not constitute undue concentration.

In each of NBC-owned markets, Mr. Denny related, the stations compete not only with other tv stations, but also with other media—radio and newspapers.

Mr. Denny also recited the record of performance of each of the NBC-owned stations.

In speaking against the Barrow Report recommendation that the networks be forced to reduce their ownership of vhf stations to no more than three in the top 25 markets, Mr. Denny told the FCC that the network would be forced to relinquish Washington and Philadelphia. This sparked a spirited exchange between Mr. Denny and Comr. Bartley.

Comr. Bartley maintained that NBC was not going to be forced to do anything—if the Commission decided in favor of the vhf station ownership limitations. The network he said, was going to be given a choice of which stations to divest. Mr. Denny's contention was that Washington and Philadelphia were the two stations NBC must give up, since the network must hold on to New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Among other points, Mr. Denny emphasized that many NBC high quality sustaining programs would not get as much quired (rejection) to stations infringing network rules.

Mr. Sarnoff told Comr. Frederick W. Ford that more facilities would certainly "alleviate" the situations complained of by the Barrow staff. He said further "selective" deintermixture and repeal of the excise tax on all-channel or uhf sets would help. But, nothing radical should be attempted, he said, until the report of the Television Allocations Study Organization (TASO) had been submitted for Commission consideration.

The NBC president told Comr. T. A. M. Craven that the deletion of 30 minutes option time in prime evening time would probably put the network in the red, if the time is not sold.

Publication of affiliations contracts might work to the disadvantage of stations, Mr. Sarnoff said.

Chairman John C. Doerfer asked for the accounting setup between network operation and owned stations, because, he said, over the years he has heard rumors that it was impossible to get the real facts on income. Mr. Sarnoff said the owned stations are treated like affiliates on the books. He said that NBC accounted for about 25% of RCA's income.

Mr. Sarnoff also told the FCC chairman that three or four unsold half-hours in prime time could put the network in the red.

Hugh M. Beville Jr., NBC planning and research vice president won laurels from all sides of the hearing parties for a knowledgeable presentation.

Mr. Beville's approach was to convince the Commission that the network study staff erred in not taking into account the intense rivalry among the three networks, and also for failing to match network tv against other advertising media—newspapers, magazines, Sunday supplements, and radio.

The Barrow Report's premise, Mr. Beville stated, is that if network television were sapped, national spot tv would gain. This is a fallacy, the NBC research chief declared. "Taking business away from the tv networks does not mean it will automatically go to spot tv," he said. It will go to magazines and Sunday supplements, he said.

He also attacked the tv time sales figures in the Barrow Report as incorrect and misleading. They include compensation paid affiliates, he said, also spot revenue retained by the independently owned represented stations, and they lump all three networks together.

The significant figure, he said, is the amount retained by the network from time sales on affiliates, plus total national sales on owned stations, plus commissions from represented stations—for each network organization individually.

In NBC's case this is 21.8% of national tv time sales, he said, and only 61% of the "relevant" market.

A fundamental "fallacy" of the Report, Mr. Beville said, is that weight is given the "intensity" of inter-network rivalry.

In the past year, he told the Commission, NBC's Program Dept. screened 145 outside programs, NBC obtained 35; other networks obtained others. Performers move from network to network, the NBC research chief said, mentioning Perry Como (from CBS to NBC), Red Skelton (from NBC to CBS), Frank Sinatra (from CBS to ABC), Walter Winchell (from NBC to ABC), Steve Allen and Jack Paar (from CBS to NBC).

The progressive increase in the prices of promising programs and successful performers is a typical characteristic of a highly competitive market, Mr. Beville said.

Networks also vie for outstanding producers, writers and directors, he added, naming Fred Cooke (from NBC to CBS) and Jess Oppenheimer (from CBS to NBC).

And the same thing happens to outstanding programs, Mr. Beville related. He named the following: U. S. Steel Hour (from ABC to CBS), Bob Cummings Show (from NBC to CBS and back to NBC).

The competition in news is as great, Mr. Beville said. He said that NBC has 400 people in its news department; CBS the same and ABC about 100. News is a money loser, he noted.

In relating the results of inter-network competition, Mr. Beville documented the flow of audiences among the three networks for selected time periods during the last few years: Milton Berle and NBC "owned" Tuesday 8-9 p.m. until 1955 when ABC's Westerns put it on top, he said.

He also cited these others:

CBS was tops for Wednesday 7:30-8:30 p.m. until 1954 with Doug Edwards and Perry Como and Godfrey and His Friends. ABC's Disneyland took the lead away from CBS in 1954, and this year NBC's Wagon Train topped the list.

NBC's Show of Shows topped Saturday 9-10 p.m. from 1950 to 1953. In 1954 CBS took the top with Two for the Money and Favorite Husband. In 1956, ABC's Lawrence Welk Show took top honors and this season CBS entries Gale Storm and Have Gun Will Travel forged to the lead.

Program changes are continually taking place, Mr. Beville pointed out. In the fall of 1957, 55 new evening programs were scheduled by the three networks—NBC alone programming 23 new shows, half of its total evening schedule.

Mr. Beville illustrated the importance of "lead-in" to program popularity with the Doggy Thomat Show and the Loretta Young Show. This points up the vital importance of option time, he declared. He also explained the necessity for integrated program scheduling to emphasize its significance to gaining audience.

The wide year-by-year fluctuations in "market" for the three networks compares unfavorably with the relative stability of the "market" for the three major cigarette manufacturers, the three leading cigarette makers, and the three leading magazines, he related.

"No change in brand loyalty or corporate position can match the speed with which the American viewer can switch the television dial from one network to another," Mr. Beville said.

Mr. Beville illustrated the results of this inter-network competition by telling the story of Colgate's spending in network tv. In 1952, Colgate spent 62% of its network tv budget on NBC; by last year, ABC and CBS had taken away all of Colgate's dollars except for 5% remaining on NBC.

The same fluctuations are evident in gross billings for network tv, Mr. Beville explained. In the fourth quarter of 1949 NBC accounted for 55% of network tv billings; last year this share had dropped to 38%. Mr. Beville said, CBS reached its peak of 46% in 1954, and ABC went from 12% in 1949 to 9% in 1952 to 17% in 1957.

The Barrow staff "artificially" restricted the market for advertising, Mr. Beville declared, and thus the "fallacious" case for network concentration.

American advertisers spend about $10 billion a year on advertising, Mr. Beville pointed out. Of this about $6 billion goes for national advertising; $4 billion for local advertising.

The $6 billion, he explained, goes to two national media groups: the "integrated" mass circulation informational and entertainment media, comprising network and spot tv, network and spot radio, national magazines, Sunday newspaper supplements and daily newspapers, and the other group, which does not supply advertisers with editorial background—direct mail, outdoor, airmail, catalog covers, point-of-sale display, regional farm and trade papers.

It is the "integrated" group in which network tv must be measured, Mr. Beville insisted. And, he added, it is option time which concerns to circulation of the print media which gives assurance that network tv can compete.

National advertisers invested $2.3 billion in "integrated" media in 1956, Mr. Beville said.
NOW

...with a point of view suited to these times

These are such unusual times that a baby is apt to grow up and reach maturity much faster than ever before.

Take the newcomer to America's television scene symbolized above, for example.

He was born eighteen months ago when the NTA Film Network was formed.

A mere six months later, he took his first big step forward... when America's dynamic new TV network began commercial operations... backed by some of the nation's most important advertisers and their agencies.

Then he discovered his "first love"... when the Shirley Temple attractions often made the NTA Film Network the Number One TV network in America in the time period.

Now he is reaching out again... with some very large plans ideally suited to these times. His position offers exactly what is needed during these days when advertisers are taking a long, hard look at their television coverage, their budgets, and their advertising plans in general... for this coming fall.

Today above all, the NTA Film Network offers a unique solution to these problems, in the form of...

Wider Flexibility
... to meet advertisers' varying sales patterns

Greater Economy
... thanks to the elimination of costly coaxial cables

No "Must-Buy" Station List
... to combat wasteful, needless circulation

Guaranteed Clearance
... of time and programming, of which you will hear more later

It's a program designed to solve the Number One problem in television today—the acquisition of maximum coverage at minimum cost with top-flight television programming.

If you're an advertiser or an agency faced with this knotty problem, before you make your plans for the fall, find out now about the all-new, big-time programming that will be telecast this fall on the NTA Film Network.

Today is the time for you to reach out and telephone, wire or write us... to hear the whole story.
such circumstances, the scope, vitality and effectiveness of the network service will inevitably suffer, and its values to the public, the affiliates and the advertisers will be reduced.

In discussing the vital need for option time, Mr. Sarnoff baldly stated that a network is "completely dependent on its affiliates..." And, he added, "an affiliated station is dependent on the network for programs which will compete effectively with other programming in the market... . As a result, the affiliation relationship—and in turn the whole network system—rests on the clearance of network programs."

Option time, Mr. Sarnoff said, is the feature which permits networks to perform their specialized function. It permits programs to be broadcast simultaneously on a national basis, it serves to permit a planned network schedule, it is a means of assuring "a reasonably" high level of clearances, and it promotes the fullest availability of programs.

The need for option time as an essential procedure for accomplishing the function of network is backed by affiliates, Mr. Sarnoff pointed out. And, he added, also by Edward Petry of the representative firm bearing his name.

Tampering with option time practices could impair the effectiveness of networks as a means of "a degree of self-restraint," Mr. Sarnoff stated. But this self-restraint is reasonable and essential to national networking.

The Barrow staff's recommendations that affiliation criteria, contracts and compensations be made public is "regulation through publication," Mr. Sarnoff said. This is "based squarely on regulatory concepts in the common carrier field," Mr. Sarnoff declared. The Commission, the NBC president said, should not assume responsibility in areas where it has no authority. And, he added, the Commission is in no position to appraise the economics of advertising rates, compensation arrangements, or affiliation arrangements.

As to the study Staff's suggestion that the "must buy" practice be banned, Mr. Sarnoff said that no evidence has been produced that it is injurious to anyone. A business practice should not be barred simply because it is claimed it is not necessary, Mr. Sarnoff said. This same argument goes for the staff's recommendation that networks be forced to bow out of national spot representation, Mr. Sarnoff stated.

He also opposed the recommendation that networks be regulated directly by the FCC. "... they seek to extend government regulation into new areas of business enterprise without need or justification," Mr. Sarnoff said. Government intervention in these fields would involve it in business judgments, he said, which it is not equipped to handle. These are better left to the forces of competition and a free economy, he added. The present regulations which apply to stations are effective, he said.

Above all, the NBC executive declared, direct regulation of networks would put the government into the programming business. It would lead to government considerations on the merits of two programs, whether they should be sold to one advertiser or another, the financial arrangements to be made and the negotiations involving talent and programs.

If networks are to be regulated, Mr. Sarnoff said, then there would be no reason for not also regulating advertising agencies, program producers, spot representatives, film syndicators, and others in the program business.

"Experience has shown," Mr. Sarnoff concluded, "that NBC's government extends its regulation to new areas of business, the scope of regulation tends to spread and enlarge itself."

And, Mr. Sarnoff continued: "By weakening the network operation, it would also diminish the audience values on which spot television survives, and thus injure this medium instead of advancing its competitive position."

During the question period, Mr. Sarnoff said that NBC has no plans at present to enlarge its spot representations. It now represents its owned and operated stations plus seven affiliates.

In answer to FCC counsel Herbert M. Schulkind, Mr. Sarnoff said that the deletion or revision of option time will permit greater access to national spot in prime evening time, but, he emphasized, individual program purveyors do not supply the same type of service to stations that networks do.

The NBC president stated that if the network study staff had made a real study of the broadcast industry it would have arrived at the same conclusions NBC has.

He agreed that some stations may take more network programs than they would if option time was reduced or eliminated.

On multiple ownership, Mr. Sarnoff said the present arrangement on tv ownership (seven tv stations to one owner, not more than five of which may be vhf) is "satisfactory" but he added that NBC would be "happy" to be in a position to own more.

Mr. Schulkind asked Mr. Sarnoff if he knew what RCA profits were from the sale of tv receivers while the network was losing money in the early days of tv. Mr. Sarnoff said he did not.

Mr. Sarnoff said color has been a "small" factor in losses.

Mr. Sarnoff also said that NBC would seek to retain "first refusal" rights if option time is deleted or diluted.

In expanding on his opposition to the Barrow Report's suggestion that a minimum buy factor be substituted for the present must buy practice, Mr. Sarnoff asked why one practice should be substituted for another for no good reason.

Mr. Sarnoff also agreed with Mr. Schulkind that the Commission should be allowed to apply sanctions less severe than now recommended.

NBC FINANCIAL CARDS SPREAD OUT

Some facets of NBC's financial history—usually buried in the consolidated RCA annual reports—were given the light of day last week when NBC executives testified before the FCC on the Barrow Report.

NBC President Robert W. Sarnoff told the Commission that in the first eight years of NBC's tv operations, the network lost more than $4 million. For the whole 11 years of NBC-TV activities, from 1947 to 1957, the total net profit after taxes averaged $1.27 million a year.

Other highlights of Mr. Sarnoff's testimony:

- In 1952, NBC had network sales of almost $100 million, but the profit was less than $500,000. In 1953, NBC had network sales of $110 million, but the profit was nil.
- From 1950 to 1953, the network went from a loss of $5 million to a profit of over $1 million, to a reduced profit of less than $500,000, to a loss of about $250,000.
- From 1956 to 1957, the network profit dropped by more than half.

NBC owned stations, on the other hand, Mr. Sarnoff disclosed, reached a profit position in 1951 (the network did not reach this point until 1955). He also revealed:

- During 1947-1957, station profits averaged $3.33 million yearly. This represents a 14.4% ratio to net sales, compared to 1.3% for the network.
- Stability of station income is shown by the fact that as station sales increased since 1950, so have station profits. But, although the network had a number of years when sales increased, profits declined.
- Network profits dropped 53% from 1956 to 1957, but station profits declined only 18% in the same period.
- In 1957, network profit was 1.6% of sales, 7.1% of equity and 4.8% of total assets. Mr. Sarnoff here took a pot shot at the Barrow Report for not counting as assets $60 million in commitments (talent, programs, leaseholds). If this were counted to the $81 million carried as assets, Mr. Sarnoff said, the ratio of return to investment would be "very small indeed."
- The network went into the black in 1951. It went into the red in 1953, but returned to the profit side in 1954 and has remained there since. Profit from owned stations began in 1950 and has remained there since.
- The radio network subsidized tv before 1951; it went into the red in 1952 and has remained there.

March 17, 1958 • Page 70A
The FCC last week heard top level NBC executives staunchly defend network practices attacked by the Network Study Staff.

Throughout the three days of hearings (the Commission skipped last Wednesday when it held its regular mid-week meeting to transact business), the NBC contingent headed by President Robert W. Sarnoff hit at the Barrow Report and defended:

- The vital importance of owned and operated stations to network stability—particularly financially.
- The essentiality of option time for guaranteeing clearances—a basic network need.
- Must buy lists, affiliation practices, the confidentiality of affiliation agreements and compensation, and the need to permit the network to exercise its business judgment on the matter of rates.

The delicate balance between network profit and loss was summed up by Mr. Sarnoff when he told the FCC that three or four unsold half hours in prime evening time could put the network in the red. He also speculated that even a 30-minute deletion from the present three-hour evening option time segment would put the network in the loss column.

Mr. Sarnoff was backed by Hugh M. Barrow, Jr., Charles R. Denny, Thomas B. McFadden, Walter D. Scott and David C. Adams.

The hearings continued Friday with NTA Film Network President Eli B. Landau scheduled to testify. Following him will be a number of multiple owners, with the hearings scheduled to resume today (Monday) and then recess to March 25.

Last week's testimony follows:

Robert W. Sarnoff, president of NBC, shot his most significant shafts at the basic premises of the Barrow Report. The staff has not shown, Mr. Sarnoff declared, that network practices adversely affect the public interest. Although he was speaking about the multiple ownership recommendations (the Barrow Report recommended that multiple owners be cut back to three vhf outlets in the top 25 markets), the sense of Mr. Sarnoff's statement was contained in this:

"No evidence has been produced to indicate that the present multiple ownership rule or the operations of multiple owners have adversely affected the television service furnished to the public. Instead, the staff portrayed a limit and bar to multiple ownership, which have no application to the issue."

Mr. Sarnoff's attitude toward the Report was contained in these words:

"But then, after laying a solid base of descriptive material on issue after issue, the Report takes off on a theoretical flight: argues a series of abstract doctrines, and arrives at conclusions unrelated to the facts and unsupported by them. These conclusions, in turn, become the basis of recommendations for sweeping changes in network operations and in the pattern of television licensing and regulation."

The Barrow recommendations, the NBC president stated, are not based on any evidence that the present practices fail to provide proper tv service to the public. And he added, the public has not complained, nor affiliates or advertisers.

Mr. Sarnoff continued:

"The structure of the theory built up by the staff is used to advance a social and economic philosophy—that what is strong should be weakened, what is big should be fragmented and what is secure should be made insecure."

The staff, Mr. Sarnoff maintained, wants the government to require changes in existing practices unless the industry can justify the practices. This is a shift of the burden of proof, the NBC executive held, because the staff has produced no factual evidence justifying the recommendations.

In discussing the question of concentration, Mr. Sarnoff termed "the missing chapter" the staff's omission of any report on inter-network competition. It takes economic theory and claims, Mr. Sarnoff said, that there are only three tv networks, they do not compete.

Because the Barrow Report is pointed toward revising the balance between network tv and national spot tv, Mr. Sarnoff said, it seeks to change the balance of stations' sales and programming. This broad reference to 'national spot television' obscures the fact that stations constitute the spot television medium, since it is their time which is bought for this form of advertising," Mr. Sarnoff said.

The staff's recommendations on multiple ownership "rest on theory carried to the ultimate," Mr. Sarnoff stated.

The Barrow Report would make some of the recommendations—especially those relating to local ownership, diversity and divest—"a step which would substitute formula for expert judgment in the licensing process."

The further limitation on multiple ownership by networks, Mr. Sarnoff said, would most likely discourage the entry of a fourth or subsequent network.

The economic health of a network depends on the profits from stations it owns and operates, the NBC president stated. Tv networks entail "great risks, heavy financial commitments and low profit margins." They are the only broadcasting organizations which assume the burden of furnishing a daily national program service and of maintaining it whether programs are sold or not, Mr. Sarnoff said. Long range commitments for talent and programs, program experimentation and development, and news and public service programming require financial risks.

Network profitability is "anything but stable." It is the owned stations which provide the "relative" stability to networks. Mr. Sarnoff added.

Mr. Sarnoff explained the economics of network broadcast business. "If we do not sell a particular time period we still maintain programming in that period." A network, Mr. Sarnoff went on, not only loses the revenue the sale would have produced, but has the added burden of programming the period.

NBC has paid no dividends to its parent RCA for the past 10 years, Mr. Sarnoff said. All its profits have been plowed back into the business.

From 1947 to 1954, when the television network had a cumulative net loss of $4 million, Mr. Sarnoff pointed out that $25 million was invested in network plant and facilities. The great bulk of this development money came from station profits, he added. NBC has already invested $26 million in plant facilities for color, and it plans to put up another $28 million in the next five years.

NBC currently has 25 new programs in various stages of development, Mr. Sarnoff said. If earnings from stations are reduced, through divestment, Mr. Sarnoff predicted that "business judgment will dictate curtailling commitment and risk for such new program ventures, cutting back on high-cost, low-return public service projects, trimming news and special events coverage and restricting development expenditure. Proposed Baton Rouge Grant Off

The FCC last week directed preparation of a dismissal with prejudice of Port City Television's application for TV ch. 18 in Baton Rouge, La. Applicant has asked for dismissal although it had been recommended for the grant in an initial decision by Hearing Examiner Charles J. Frederick late last year, with Bayou Broadcasting Corp. as the losing applicant.

Louis S. Prejean, president of Port City, is a minority stockholder of ch. 28 WAFB-TV Baton Rouge, which is controlled by WDSU-TV New Orleans. WDSU-TV also controls ch. 9 WDAM-TV Hattiesburg, Miss., which has asked the FCC to shift its channel to Baton Rouge [GOVERNMENT, Feb. 3]. Under an agreement with Mr. Prejean, WDSU-TV would pay $7,500 to him to satisfy his obligations to Port City and the other stockholders in that corporation. WDSU-TV wants Mr. Prejean to remain with WAFB-TV to avoid "legal problems of stock evaluation." Mr. Prejean, for his part, had decided that an additional VHF station in Baton Rouge would be "best."

FCC Relents on FM Switch Date

FCC has relented and given 11 FM stations to March 31 to switch over to multiplex operation for functional music broadcasts or try again to secure waivers. Earlier, the Commission turned down requests by 11 stations for extension of time to convert from simplex operation, but approved such extensions for 15 other stations, [GOVERNMENT, Mar. 3] March 1 was the deadline for conversion to multiplex. The FCC's change of heart was engendered by the fact many of the 11 would have had to shut down functional music operations since FCC's action wasn't announced until Feb. 28.

Lorillard Clears With FTC—Gruber

P. Lorillard Co. submitted its advertising copy to the Federal Trade Commission in advance of its appearance, Lewis Gruber, president, told the Washington Ad Club's Tuesday luncheon. He said the company doesn't want to deceive the smoker because it feels the consumer can't be fooled for long and it doesn't believe in "hidden persuasion."

He said he did not believe smoking induces cancer and pointed to the upward trend in cigarette consumption. Every Lorillard brand has been improved in the last year, he added, and new ways have been developed to lower tar and nicotine content. Filter cigarettes now account for 44% of the 1.13 billion cigarettes smoked daily, he said.

Hosmer Joins Foes of SP

Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Calif.) Wednesday introduced a bill (HR 11363) which would amend the Communications Act to prohibit TV stations from using subliminal projection in the transmission of any message. The bill, referred to the House Commerce Committee, is similar to measures introduced by Rep. William Dawson (R-Utah) and Sen. Charles Potter (R-Mich.)

More Comments Filed Opposing FCC's Proposed Tall Tower Plan

Opposition to the FCC tall tower-antenna farm proposals, which would incorporate standards into TV regulations judging tall towers and their potential hazards to air navigation, was the tenor of a handful of reply comments that trickled into the FCC last week. Original comments, more numerous but just as unenthusiastic by most broadcasters, were filed early last month [GOVERNMENT, Feb. 3, et seq.].

ABC wants the FCC to postpone these tall tower proposals and adopt the revised procedures under which the Commission would reach decisions rather than the Airspace Panel. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. is against the proposals until adequate procedures for aeronautical study have been developed and it is assured that final jurisdiction will reside with the FCC. Westinghouse asked for an oral argument before the matter is decided. WHAS-AM-TV Louisville, Ky., also requested an oral argument, declaring that the adoption of the proposed rules would be premature.

A. Earl Cullum Jr., consulting engineer, requested that the Commission reject the proposed rules, stating the "representatives of the communications and broadcasting industries differ... primarily as to the degree of reluctance" in the matter. Mr. Cullum's views were supported by KMPC Los Angeles, Calif.; KSFO San Francisco, Calif.; KGNC-TV Amarillo, Tex., and KMBC-AM-TV Kansas City, Mo., among others.

The reply comments of the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters were "addressed in the main to two principal problems." AMST declared that "the rules should make clear that the antenna grouping policy is subject to reasonable exception." And also: "The Commission should make the ultimate determination whether an antenna proposal would constitute an undue hazard to air navigation."

FTC Cites Lack of Proof, Drops Charges Against Coca-Cola of N. Y.

Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New York has been cleared by the Federal Trade Commission on charges of granting unlawful promotional allowances to favored customers through merchandising plans offered by network-owned radio and TV stations.

The FTC Friday announced its adoption of an initial decision recommending the charges be dropped because of "lack of potential proof" that the New York firm was involved in incidents questioned.

Coca-Cola was one of a group of nine grocery manufacturers charged with customer favoritism through in-store promotion plans accompanying broad advertising schedules [GOVERNMENT, July 30, 1956, et seq.]. Most of the cases are still pending.

A CORINTHIAN STATION  Responsibility in Broadcasting

KOTV Tulsa · KGUL-TV Galveston, serving Houston · WANE & WANE-TV Fort Wayne · WISH & WISH-TV Indianapolis
The folks at Radio KMA, one of the Pioneers in broadcasting, are firm believers in balanced programming. Long ago KMA found that it can serve its listeners best if it maintains a good balance and an interesting variety of both information and entertainment.

Service to its listeners has been the keynote at KMA ever since the famous founder, Earl E. May, first put the station on the air back in August of 1905.

Going on 33 years now, KMA has built itself a reputation as one of the truly outstanding radio stations in the country. Although its transmitter is located at Shenandoah, Iowa, a town of some 7,000 people, known as the seed and nursery center of the United States, its 5,000-watts power on an excellent frequency of 966 gives KMA a far-reaching signal, as is attested by the preponderance of mail that rolls into the station.

In Shenandoah they have always believed in the neighborhood, sincere, friendly, money-back guarantee approach. This is the basic tenet spelled out by Earl May, the Master Showman who back in 1926 was proclaimed "world's greatest radio announcer" by no less an authority than RADIO DIGEST, then the leading radio fan magazine.

The station has always believed the vast majority of its thousands of steady listeners are old enough to have minds of their own. Its management objects vigorously to the idea of some that the average mentality of the listening public is that of a fourteen-year-old.

KMA Radio is not a "juke box" station playing just the top 10-20-50 records. Variety is the keynote in music.

Comprehensive and intelligent coverage is the hallmark of the KMA Pioneers. When it went on the air in 1905, the first thing it did was hire a conductor, Currier, and a musician, Heuer, to experiment with music. Their listeners' requests were the platform on which the KMA farm broadcasters and homemakers stand.

"Down to earth" personalities instead of "charlatans" are on the staff. Some of these personalities, who present themselves as guests in their listeners' homes, are Edward May, Frank Field, Merrill Langdill, Jack Gowing, Bernice Currier, Florence Falk, Dean Aven, Ralph Chillo, Warren Nielson, Tommy Burns and Mike Heuer.

KMA is an official U. S. Weather Bureau observer station. It broadcasts complete weather reports from U. S. Weather Bureau market terminals. It airs road conditions regularly when stormy conditions prevail. Its homemakers believe in the simple idea of catering to the desire of women to be more efficient in the home.

They're sports-minded at KMA, too. They bring the potent University of Iowa football games to rabid Hawkeye fans. Also the Kansas City Athletics' Major League Baseball games. They must be good, for they're always sponsored.

KMA listeners live in four states: Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, and Kansas. When one remembers that the KMA area is predominantly non-urban, it's easy to see why Homer Croy in his famous book "Corn Country" described KMA as the "Heart Beat of the Corn Country."

years ago, the number of unlicensed repeater stations has continued to grow. Translator stations differ from boosters in that they pick up vhf tv signals and convert them into one of the higher uhf channels. Among the comments in favor of boosters last January were the following: Colorado Television Repeater Assn.—Believes a licensed vhf repeater service in Colorado "can be provided at reasonable cost and without interference to other authorized services."

CTRA is a nonprofit association of repeater stations in that state. It desires no more boosters so that "its member stations may be placed on a sound legal basis." CTRA feels repeaters should only be allowed where they are essential and wants them "authorized only to local governmental and nonprofit organizations." It also wants a period of three years to allow existing stations "to bring their operations into full compliance with the new rules."

Cascade Broadcasting Co.—Agrees with the general concept of boosters but emphatically desires that "... no such station be authorized or permitted to operate within the 'A' or 'B' contours of an existing, regularly licensed commercial television station."

Montana Network—Supports boosters in general but wants more power for them. Montana would like to see some flexibility in repeater locations, though a "repeater station should not be located within the Grade 'B' contour of an existing television broadcast station for the transmission by the repeater station of programs from a primary station located outside that 'B' contour."

Montana also would want the repeater stations on the same channel as the primary station, licensed to the same licensee.

Two WSAY Protests Dismissed; Rochester TV, Am Grants Cleared

Two protests by WSAY Rochester, N. Y., were dismissed by the FCC last week and affirmation of tv and am grants were thus made over WSAY objections.

The Commission first disregarded the WSAY protest in the case of WHET-TV and WVET-TV, both Rochester, in affirming the 1953 grants of construction permits to the stations to operate on ch. 10 on a share-time basis. An initial decision nearly two years ago proposed affirming these grants. Comrs. T. A. M. Craven and Frederick Ford abstained from the decision.

In the second dismissal the Commission affirmed a 1954 grant of WBBF Rochester's application for renewal of license, and terminated the proceedings involved. Comr. Robert Bartley concurred and Comr. Ford abstained.

Comments Asked on Channel Move

The FCC has asked for comments by March 20 in a series of tv channel changes involving Greensboro, N. C.; Florence, S. C.; Winston-Salem, N. C., and Charleston, S. C., and also providing for show cause orders moving WBTW (TV) Florence from ch. 8 to ch. 13 and WTOB-TV Winston-Salem from ch. 26 to ch. 8.

LISTERINE, TVC, FCC Agree On Asiatic Flu Ads

In a stipulation agreement citing copy from Listerine television commercials, Warner-Lambert agreed to continue claims that Listerine Antiseptic protects against Asiatic flu "unless and until adequate scientific evidence establishes that such protection results to a substantial or significant degree."

The film copy quoted in the FTC stipulation document gives general suggestions for protection against Asiatic flu and then asserts that "tests just completed in the laboratory of a famous medical school clearly proved that Listerine kills the Asiatic flu virus on contact." This in the opinion of the FTC "has not been established by adequate scientific evidence." The stipulation does not constitute an admission by Warner-Lambert that it has violated the law.

Listerine is estimated to be spending at the rate of $3.5 million this year in radio-television advertising through its New York agency, Lambert & Feasley.

Examiner Would Revoke Permit Of KAKJ (TV), Canceling Sale

In what he termed "undoubtedly . . . a hard case," FCC Hearing Examiner Herbert Sharfman last week recommended revoking the construction permit of ch. 4 KAKJ (TV) Reno, Nev. He concluded in his initial decision that "misrepresentation and false statements to the Commission about the ownership, financing, and proposed construction" of the station had been made.

Revocation of a tv construction permit is a rare occurrence and Examiner Sharfman expressed sympathy for those who "contributed substantial sums" in this venture. He added, however, that "the inescapable factor here is that there were false representations knowingly made."

The construction permit for ch. 4 in Reno was granted to Nevada Telecasting Corp. in the spring of 1955 (FOR THE RECORD, April 25, 1955), though construction was never completed. The application for the channel showed Robert Fish as the sole owner of Nevada Telecasting although he actually advanced no money for the proposed station and went to Canada before the grant was made. Mr. Sharfman said that the firm is a syndicate of businessmen who later attempted to pull out of the situation by selling the permit for ch. 4 to Tower Telecasting Corp.

Examiner Sharfman felt that if a hearing examiner were to decide that "the construction permit may be held, even temporarily for the purpose of assignment, by a corporation financed by persons other than the sole stockholder upon whose purported testifying, apparently fearing the possibility of suits by those who are said to control ASCAP." He explained the subcommittee is not concerned about litigation (apparently the SPA suit) "in which ASCAP members are plaintiffs."

He explained the subcommittee wants to obtain information about problems of small businessmen engaged in composing, writing or publishing music and to find out if a small group, representing a few large publishers has control of ASCAP to the prejudice of hundreds of other members.

Herman Finkelstein, ASCAP counsel, opened the subcommittee's testimony with a general description of the society's operations. He detailed the formulas for distribution of funds, "Everybody who is really a professional wants to be in the organization," he said, adding there is almost no rock-and-roll in the catalog. He agreed tentatively with Rep. Roosevelt's observation that 80% of copyrighted compositions are in ASCAP's catalog, as well as a membership comprising 3,700 active, 450 non-participating and 970 publishing members.

Comparing the ASCAP and BMI payment formulas, he observed, "When a composer comes to ASCAP he really becomes a professional. Any writer who has had one song published can be a member but we would bar 'song shark' publishers. We've taken hundreds of composers from BMI after their contracts expired." He described the 2½% blanket radio contract (minus two 15% deductions for agency fees and business costs), saying all but 30 broadcasters use this contract instead of the 8% per program fee.

Hans J. Lengsfelder, songwriter and playwright, was the first witness to attack ASCAP, charging it took three years and a consent decree to get him into the society in 1942. He testified that a "weighted vote" enables a few society members "to control the destinies and livelihood of all." He said the current basis of performance payments follows "an inaccurate and distorted logging system." A few large music publishers comprising what he called "The Power House" control ASCAP, he contended. He said he and others had been denied access to vote tabulations in violation of the bylaws and added that the 12 publisher members of the classification committee held secret meetings without minutes.

Mr. Lengsfelder complained about what he called "dry-runs" in the classification process, with large publishers picking the formula most to their liking. He made these charges:

- The society keeps no public records of its proceedings, directives, meetings or deliberations; the grievance process is designed to discourage appeals rather than to provide justice; only one appeal is allowed per year though royalties are distributed quarterly; performance credits are rigged to bypass the 1950 commission that credits must be based primarily on current performances; compositions owned by board members receive greater weight than others.
- The numbers owned by the "Power House" group received "1,000 times the credit received by other members for music played in exactly the same way on exactly the same program," he said.
- A sampling technique used in logging radio performances drew his criticism. He said the 6 to 12 persons who work in the ASCAP logging room are not musically trained and lack other qualifications. He said large publishers get their "fabulous income" mainly from network performances where they have an advantage over other publishers.
- Radio and tv yield by far the major income of ASCAP, he said, but movie firms pay "ridiculously small amounts to ASCAP" because they own publishing houses represented on the ASCAP board.

Mr. Lengsfelder spoke bitterly about what he called inaccurate logging of performances of his music, charging ASCAP board members received preference in the logging. He listed network and station performances in which he received no credit. He is plaintiff in a suit filed against ASCAP Sept. 12, 1957, in Supreme Court, New York County.

Dissenters Speak Up to FCC

On Proposals for TV Boosters

Reply comments on the FCC's proposal to establish an on-channel booster service for TV have been received by the Commission and while there were numerous voices raised in favor of the repeater stations there was also more than one dissent. In original comments filed earlier [Government, Jan. 20], the only negative vote on a booster service was registered by the National Community TV Assn., spokesman for most of the nation's 500-odd antenna system operations. This time NCTA was not alone.

Farold Electronics Corp. declared its opposition to boosters for numerous reasons, including the opinion that adoption of the FCC proposals could pave the way for monopoly by major market stations. Stations lashing out against a booster service included KC-OV-TV Montgomery, Ala.; WARD-TV Johnstown, Pa.; WPN-TV Traverse City, Mich., and KMI-TV Fresno, Calif.

It was requested that action on boosters be deferred until after the publication of the TASO report, scheduled for later this year.

Among others outspoken in opposition to boosters were: Shirley Basin Transmission Co., Mesa Microwave Inc., New York Penn Microwave, Southwest Texas Transmission Co., Carter Mountain Transmission Corp., Valley Microwave Corp., Inland Microwave Co. and Collier Electric Co. These are all microwave systems feeding signals to community TV systems.

In favor of a booster service were: Aerocal Radio Inc., Joint Council on Educational Television, WFRV-TV Green Bay, Wis., WPTV (TV) West Palm Beach, Fla., and WKRG-TV Mobile, Ala.

The Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters, stated that "the Commission's rules must establish a feasible and effective method of protecting co-channel and adjacent channel stations from interference.

The Commission originally insisted its proposed rule-making on boosters—there seem to be literally hundreds of them, unlicensed, mostly in the northwestern U. S.—last July. The proposal suggested limiting on-channel boosters to 1 w, requiring prevention of interference to other services and requiring the use of automatic devices to prevent malfunction. It also proposed that repeaters must prevent interference to other stations but not receive protection from interference themselves.

The FCC has been upheld legally in its order that boosters be licensed, but despite its authorization of translator stations two was wrong with a group of disc jockeys deciding to feature certain music. He asked why ASCAP doesn’t have pinup sheets similar to those of BMI. He and other subcommittee members mentioned frequently the fact that only 624 broadcast stations own stock in BMI. Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) said only 11 Oklahoma stations own BMI stock, ranging from $45 in one case up to $1,600 for WKY Oklahoma City and totaling $5,155. “I don’t believe they can keep ‘Surrey With the Fringe on Top’ off the air,” he said.

Sen. Monroney loosed a blast against ratings in which “a base of 200 guinea pigs sets the tastes for millions. The automatic mind-reading is the Sermon on the Mount by Madison Avenue. Artists lose their careers, composers lose music and the audience loses sanity because someone figures more soap or detergent can be sold.”

Chairman Pastore insisted the committee was not interested in censorship or in setting the public’s musical tastes. He referred to the suit filed by 33 songwriters against BMI in federal court, with 30,000 pages of testimony and 9,000 exhibits in the pretrial proceedings (see box, page 60).

Mr. Hammerstein, who testified Tuesday and was called by the Roosevelt subcommittee to testify Friday, told the Senate group radio and tv are needed to launch rock and roll.

The chairman cited figures by Herman Finklestein, ASCAP attorney, showing ASCAP had 84.05% of radio performances of copyrighted works in 1955, with tv amounting to 89.64%.

Joan Whitney, composer, described an instance in which her “Man Is for the Woman Made” disappeared from performance lists because the other side of the RCA-Victor record had “The Man With the Banjo,” a BMI selection promoted by a contest. Dr. Louis Picherri, music director of Providence, R. I., public schools, and Prof. Arlan Coolidge, professor of music and music chairman of Brown U., testified about the banality of rock and roll. They are Chairman Pastore’s home city.

Mr. Packard’s testimony, like that of Mr. Schwartz, contained large numbers of excerpts from trade papers. These were used to show that BMI and broadcasters put pressure on disc jockeys and the power of air performances in introducing new numbers.

On questioning, Mr. Packard conceded he was being paid by SPA and that he hadn’t made any sort of spot check in preparing his testimony. At one point Sen. Potter said, “I’ve heard 18 pages and you haven’t got to the point yet.” Mr. Packard said that while he hadn’t made a special study, he had a friend who was a broadcaster.

When Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.) asked Mr. Packard to explain the difference between rock and roll and jazz, he said, “I don’t know a thing about music.” He contended a lot of rock and roll numbers have lewed lyrics, mentioning “Let the Good Times Roll” and “Hide and Seek.” He described the latter as “not a very allegorical description of the sexual act in progress.”

Eddy Rogers, composer, said that when he was at KOA Denver in 1950-53, Lloyd E. Yoder, manager, warned him for ignoring an order to program mostly BMI music.

Chairman Pastore, replying to claims by Mr. Schwartz that BMI exerts pressure to obtain station performance of its tunes, said, “What if you are a good, courageous American and you have an independent station and you like to do as you please, like most of us do, and you say, ‘Go fly a kite,’ then what?” Mr. Schwartz replied, “Not enough people have said, ‘Go fly a kite’.” He described in detail some of the BMI rebate practices.

Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, U. of Rochester, said the current rock and roll craze indicates public taste can be manipulated for selfish interests to the detriment of the public good.

Senate subcommittee hearings will resume March 19, with the SPA case expected to end the next day. Witnesses will be Mrs. DuBose Heyward, Rex Stout, Booton Henderson, Paul Creston, and Seymour Lazar, writers-composers; Mr. Schulman, and Martha Rountree Fresby, producer and co-owner of WKTF Warrenton, Va.

ASCAP CHARGES BMI, IS CHARGED ITSELF WITH MONOPOLY ON HILL

- Senate's Pastore group hears pros on Smathers Bill
- Songwriter alleges ASCAP illegalities to House unit

The two leading copyright societies—ASCAP and BMI—last week heard themselves called everything from crooks to monopolists.

Separate House and Senate hearings provided forums for some of the toughest name-calling heard in recent legislative proceedings.

ASCAP was the target at a hearing before a House Small Business subcommittee. Principal charges were that:
- It is a self-perpetuating grab bag dominated by a "power house" of big publishers.
- The big money (about $20 million) comes from broadcasting but it is apportioned unequally by a shoddy sampling-performance formula operated by unqualified personnel.
- The dominant dozen in ASCAP hold secret dry-run sessions before cutting the copyright melon, choosing formulas that give them the breaks.

These charges were made to Subcommittee No. 5 of the House Small Business Committee. The chairman was Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif.). The group is probing allegations that smaller publishers and writers suffer from an unfair allocation of royalty payments. Making the charges against ASCAP at the opening hearing Thursday was Hans J. Lengsfelder, songwriter-playwright and a longtime complaintant against the way ASCAP is operated.

BMI was described by a parade of ASCAP witnesses, testifying for Songwriters Protective Assn., before a Senate Commerce subcommittee, as a vicious conspiracy stifling good ASCAP music and stuffing short-lived, evil rock-and-roll songs into the unwilling ears of the nation. These charges were made:
- Broadcasters owning BMI stock and two major record companies (RCA-Victor and Columbia) control air performances and plug BMI songs to the detriment of ASCAP songs.
- BMI songs are low-grade rock-and-roll, hillbilly and Latin tunes.
- The public is buried in an avalanche of this inferior music because broadcasters force radio disc jockeys to feature BMI tunes.

Feature witnesses in the SPA group were Oscar Hammerstein, ASCAP member-director, librettist of "South Pacific" and " Oklahoma"; Arthur Schwartz, ASCAP composer-producer, and Vance Packard, author of the best-selling book, The Hidden Persuaders.

They repeatedly demanded that legislation be enacted to prevent broadcasters from having any interest in the recording or music publishing-selling-manufacturing business.

Mr. Schwartz contended broadcasters should not be allowed to violate a sacred public trust, granted by government license, to peddle soap or other merchandise, or engage in the music business.

The Senate hearings, which started Tuesday, were called by Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) in connection with a bill (S 2834) that would prevent the FCC from issuing radio-tv licenses to any person or firm engaged in the recording or music business. The bill was introduced by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.).

Hearings recessed Thursday noon until next Wednesday. The House hearings started Thursday and continued into Friday.

After three days of hearings it became clear that Chairman Pastore of the Senate subcommittee will insist on keeping testimony away from monopoly because the committee is concerned only with communications. He stressed the point dozens of times along with reminders that the Senate Commerce Committee and the FCC lack jurisdiction over networks.

Reminded repeatedly by Mr. Schwartz that networks can be reached through their owned-operated stations, Sen. Pastore bluntly told Sen. Smathers and Mr. Schwartz:

"This legislation aims at the problem by indirect action. Here's the harm you are doing. In Rhode Island a department store (Outlet Co.) owns broadcasting stations (WJAR-AM-TV). Under the bill the store could not sell records and own a radio station. You affect the little fellow on the bottom."

Sen. Smathers commented that a bill rarely goes through the legislative processes without amendment.

Chairman Pastore observed there is nothing in the Smathers Bill to prohibit a network from recording or publishing a song.

John Schulman, attorney for SPA, testified networks use their power over talent in connection with recordings. He appeared both as counsel and as a witness. He and Mr. Schwartz attacked Mitch Miller of Columbia Records, charging that he controlled the fate of songs and composers and that he accepted money to "edit" songs while in control of Columbia Record performances.

Chairman Pastore tangled frequently with Mr. Schwartz in his efforts to keep the witness within the scope of the legislation. He asked Mr. Schwartz, during testimony, what Nominee Cross: 'Clean as a hound's tooth'

For a "country boy," 53-year-old John Storrs Cross, nominated last week by President Eisenhower to succeed FCC Comr. Richard A. Mack, has gotten around.

Capt. Cross (World War II Navy rank) likes the rural appelation and uses it constantly in referring to himself. But it's hardly an apt description for this blunt-spoken engineer who was born in Birmingham in 1904 and who has represented the U. S. at international conferences in Geneva, Ottawa, Mexico City, Warsaw, Goteberg and The Hague.

He does call Eureka Springs, Ark., in the storied Ozarks, home and this might bolster the "country boy" reference. At least he has the unanimous backing of the Arkansas congressional delegation (Rep. Oren Harris called the nomination a "good" one and expressed the feeling that the nomination was "good judgment" on the President's part).

Capt. Cross goes before the full Senate Commerce Committee March 26 at 10 a.m. (There's likelihood of a 10-day postponement because of the customary Easter recess.) Because of the circumstances of Mr. Mack's resignation and the House committee's FCC investigation, the Senate confirmation hearings are likely to be intensive.

"I may not be too smart," Capt. Cross said last week, "but I'm awful clean." The gray-eyed State Dept. official (he's assistant chief of State's Telecommunications Div.) uses homespun phrases like that. It is common knowledge that he was considered for the very vacancy to which Comr. Mack was appointed three years ago, and again when Comr. T. A. M. Craven was named in 1956.

Those who have worked with John Cross at international conferences have a high regard for his toughness in the delicate area of diplomatic negotiations. A far cry from the stereotyped, striped-pants, umbrella-carrying State Dept. functionary, the FCC commissioner-designate has been called "dynamic," "independent-minded" and "forceful." He also has been described as "opinionated." But all who have worked with him agree that he is not soft. No give-away champion, he has been, it is understood, among the most adamant in resisting pressures for the U. S. to yield portions of the radio spectrum to other nations.

He has worked with the FCC since 1946 when he was appointed to his present post. Two of the FCC commissioners have been particularly close to him through the international conferences which he and they have attended. They are Comrs. Rosel H. Hyde and T. A. M. Craven.

Capt. Cross is a registered Democrat—although not active politically. The appointment of a Democrat is required since the Communications Act makes the FCC bipartisan; there are already four Republicans on the Commission (Chairman John C. Doerfer, Mr. Hyde, Robert E. Lee and Frederick W. Ford). Comrs. Robert T. Bartley and Mr. Craven are Democrats.

Capt. Cross received his electrical engineering degree from Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1923. He worked for the Studebaker Corp. for a year. He sold stocks and bonds for two years. He built five and ten cent stores throughout the midwest as construction superintendent for S. S. Kresge Co. He was an engineer with the South Carolina and Michigan state highway departments from 1927 to 1931.

At the age of 25, Capt. Cross made up his mind to make a million dollars and retire at 30, the New York Times said in a profile on the new FCC nominee last week. In 1929 he was riding high on the bull market and already had $100,000, when the stock market crash wiped him out; changed his plans and started him looking for another career. "It was like dice-game money—easy come—and it all went out in a hurry," he was quoted by the Times.

In 1931 he settled down. For the next ten years he was with the National Park Service, a part of the Interior Dept. He built everything, from dams to roads. He served in San Francisco and at the Hot Springs National Park in Arkansas. He left the Park Service as assistant chief of engineering.

Capt. Cross put on Navy blue in 1942. As a communications line officer in the Bureau of Naval Operations in Washington, he saw active duty in the Pacific and on four continents building a world-wide communications system. When he took off his uniform in 1946, he joined the State Dept. in his present position.

Capt. Cross' international meetings run the gamut, beginning with his chairmanship of the U. S. delegation to the 1947 New York and New London meetings on Marine desperate men who have by this conduct alone demonstrated their unfitness to be custodians of an important facility of mass communication. . . .

“Certainly, I cannot be expected to stand mute in the face of such reckless abuse of my personal reputation and I suggest that the committee may want to weigh the credibility of Baker and Hardy on other matters in the light of this unsupported personal attack on me. . . .

“Hardy and Baker have falsely asserted I perjured myself. . . . This claim, when compared with the facts of record . . . shows the depths to which National has stooped before this committee to vilify me in order to distract your attention from the real purpose of this investigation. . . .

“While Baker and his associates have used this committee as a forum for the vilification of myself, my associates and, indeed, this committee's investigatory staff, at the same time, they have protested loudly their own purity and utter innocence of any improper activities. But the fact is that both their damatory attacks upon me and their protestations of innocence are belied by their own admissions before this committee. . . .

“The simple truth is that Mr. Baker is pleading exoneration of his personal involvement because he got from Whiteside and Comr. Mack for nothing the very results for which he was prepared to pay $10,000. . . .

“I leave it with this committee to judge whether Baker told the truth when he said my charges about National's relations with Comr. Mack were ‘false and baseless.' . . .

Col. Katzenmile also attacked the actions of Mr. Baker in the operation of National Airlines in what he termed “callous and arrogant disregard” of the public. He charged National had willfully violated the law in at least three instances and that Mr. Baker had made conflicting statements before the CAB and FCC.

He denied he contacted Mr. Mack in Florida just prior to Mr. Mack's appointment to the Commission, as had been testified earlier. He repeated several times, in answering questions, that he never asked Comr. Mack or any other commissioner to vote for WKAT. His only goal, Col. Katzenmile stated, was to get Comr. Mack "released from any commitment he might have."

Prosecution of his ch. 10 application had cost "well in excess of $100,000," Col. Katzenmile told the subcommittee. Rep. Robert Hale (R-Me.) entered several letters into the record written by or to Col. Katzenmile and relating to efforts on behalf of his tv application. One mentioned the name of Dave Beck, former international president of the Teamsters Union, in connection with assistance in gaining Senate approval of George C. McConnaughy's nomination to the FCC.

Friday, Rep. Harris entered into the record his reply to a letter from Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee [Government, March 10]. At the request of Sen. Magnuson, his letter also was made a part of the record.

Rep. Harris said that the subcommittee "welcomes any information that you or any other senator can give that would be helpful in the course of our investigation. The subcommittee desires to give you or any of the senators whose names have been mentioned in the course of the hearings full and complete opportunity to appear personally and to provide any further information that you might desire."

“The subcommittee very greatly appreciates your interest in this all important investigation.

Sen. Magnuson had written Rep. Harris on behalf of the other senators explaining the role they had played in the ch. 10 case and offering “full cooperation" and any additional information desired by the subcommittee.

However, despite repeated demands by Republican members of the subcommittee for personal appearances by the senators, there is little chance this will transpire. House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) already has stated the senators would not be invited to testify personally.

During a March 9 appearance on Youth Wants To Know, Rep. Harris indicated his subcommittee probably will issue an interim report after completing hearings on ch. 10 case. He also said the committee is considering several forms of legislation to rectify the FCC situation.

These include proposals that the chairmanship of the FCC be rotated among the commissioners with the President having no authority to designate the chairman; that a code of ethics be adopted by the Commission, and that a provision be made for removal of an officer from a commission.

He also told his youthful interrogators: "There should be some serious question raised as to whether a member of Congress should pass on legislation which would seriously affect some enterprise in which he had some interest. . . . I think it is a question that each one will have to settle in his own manner." However, Rep. Harris denied that he sold his one-fourth ownership in KRBB (TV) El Dorado, Ark., because “I thought it was wrong."

On the court front last week, the Federal Grand Jury held three days of highly-secret proceedings regarding the FCC matter. Last Tuesday, an FBI agent and H. Earl Barber, Mr. Mack's legal assistant at the FCC, testified on the ch. 10 case.

Wednesday and Thursday, the jury called further unidentified witnesses for testimony regarding a second, still unannounced Commission action under Attack [DEADLINE, March 10]. The records turned over to the Grand Jury by Mr. Whiteside have been impounded for a “detailed examination by the FBI.”

FCC ASKS COURT OF APPEALS TO SEND BACK CH. 10 CASE

The FCC last week asked the U. S. Court of Appeals to return the Miami ch. 10 case so it could reconsider its Feb. 7, 1957, grant of the vhf channel to a National Airlines' subsidiary—amid widespread speculation that it might throw the Miami channel up for grabs.

In a formal motion to the District of Columbia circuit court, the FCC asked that the four separate appeals be remanded for reconsideration.

The Commission said that since the filing of the appeals, “public charges have been made in the course of a Congressional investigation that one of the Commissioners who participated in the proceedings before the Commission, but who has since resigned should have disqualified himself.”

Comr. Richard A. Mack resigned from the FCC two weeks ago under fire.

The Commission also said: "Additionally, matters have been brought out in the course of these investigative proceedings indicating that some of the applicants for a construction permit on channel 10 in Miami, including the grantee, may have conducted themselves in the furtherance of their applications in a manner which might affect the Commission's basic determinations in the comparative proceeding. The investigative investigation is still in process and, it is understood, an investigation into certain elements of the proceeding is also being currently conducted by the Department of Justice."

The Commission's motion came as similar legal steps were being considered by A. Frank Katzentine (WKAT Miami Beach), one of the losers in the controversial ch. 10 case, and by George T. Baker, National Airlines' president.

Mr. Baker said that if the Commission had not acted, he would have moved for reconsideration of the grant. "We are preparing papers asking them to reconsider," he said last Thursday. "We want this clean. We want it all to be put in the record."

The FCC action was taken just days before its brief in the cases was due.

The appeals are by WKAT against the Commission's 1957 grant to National Airlines, and refusal to reconsider, and by Eastern Airlines which was denied the right to participate in the hearing.

The Commission's move came as the House Oversight Committee was continuing its investigation into the financial relations between Miami attorney Thurman Whiteside and Mr. Mack (story page 50). A federal grand jury is also looking into the case.

Basis for the filing, it is understood, was the requirement that FCC General Counsel Warren Baker, as an "officer of the court," bring to the attention of the court the allegations brought to light during the House committee's investigation.

This is believed to be the first time the FCC has asked to have a case remanded under such serious circumstances. Several years ago the Commission asked to have a Grand Rapids television protest case re-

“pattern” of Commission votes and that certain commissioners always voted together. When first appointed to the FCC, he testified, a study conducted by his office of Commission votes of the previous year pointed out the fallacy of this conclusion.

The jobless ex-commissioner issued a general denial that any outside influence had been brought against him in any other FCC decision. He then, in answering specific questions, denied the existence of any “pressures” in Boston, Indianapolis, Sacramento, Calif., and Jacksonville by grants.

When Mr. Mack was excused from the witness stand, he invited Rep. Harris to visit him if the committee chairman ever came to Miami. Rep. Harris did not give any indication that he heard the invitation.

They're still picking up the pieces

As Sen. Magnuson prepared to throw more fat onto the FCC fire (story page 44), reverberations of the original controversy continued to echo around Washington.

On Capitol Hill the House Oversight Subcommittee pursued its investigation into the strange finances of ex-Comr. Richard Mack and the behavior of others involved in the Miami ch. 10 case.

At the FCC itself, that embattled body elected to recall the Miami case, on which Mr. Mack is alleged to have sold his vote, for another look. It asked the Court of Appeals, which currently has the case on appeal, to give it back (see page 52).

And at the White House, President Eisenhower named a career government employee, the State Dept.'s John Cross, to succeed Mr. Mack as an FCC member (see page 54). His nomination is due for careful scrutiny.

OLD WITNESSES TESTIFY AGAIN, NEW NAMES ENTER MIAMI CASE

The House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee, in its investigation of the FCC's grant of ch. 10 Miami to National Airlines, last week recalled three star witnesses but failed to uncover any substantially new information. Two other witnesses, however, threw new names into the growing hopper of those who played behind-the-scenes roles in the controversial case.

Last week's witnesses making their second appearances were ousted FCC Comr. Richard A. Mack, Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside and losing ch. 10 applicant Col. A. Frank Katzentine. Frank W. Miller, board chairman of Headley-Reed Co., and Alfred I. Barton, executive vice president of the Miami Surf Club, made their first subcommittee appearances after their names had been linked to the case by previous testimony.

In other ch. 10 developments, the Commission made a move to reopen the case (see page 52); a Federal Grand Jury continued its own investigation of the Miami grant as well as a second FCC action; Rep. William C. Cramer (R-Fla.) introduced still another measure (HR 11249) which would prohibit the using of improper methods to influence the FCC and repeal commissioner's authority to accept honorariums.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the subcommittee, hopes to complete the testimony in the ch. 10 case this week. Today's (Monday's) first witness will be Col. Gordon Moore (President Eisenhower's brother-in-law), the alleged behind-the-scenes "engineer" of the National application. Col. Moore has denied participating in the case in any way.

Following Col. Moore to the stand, but not necessarily in the order listed, will be Downey Rice, former FBI agent who wrote a letter involving Vice President Richard M. Nixon's office in the ch. 10 activities; John Knight, winning applicant of ch. 7 in Miami; Lou Pollar, broadcaster and advocate of pay tv; Harry McDonald, a close friend of Col. Katzentine who reportedly stated he "might be able to pull [Col.] Moore off of helping Baker [National president] or at least find out whether Moore was actually helping Baker"; Harry Plotkin, Washington attorney practicing before the FCC and former FCC and Senate Commerce Committee counsel; George C. McConnaughey, chairman of the Commission at time of February 1957 grant of ch. 10 to National, and current members of the Commission who voted in the Miami case. All of this week's witnesses have been prominently mentioned in previous testimony.

After the ch. 10 case is finally concluded, Rep. Harris indicated the commissioners will again be called on misconduct charges made against them by Dr. Bernard Schwartz, former chief counsel of the committee. Commissioners facing such charges are Rosel Hyde, Robert T. Bartley and Robert E. Lee, FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer already has been confronted with the charges against him (GOVERNMENT, Feb. 10) and Comrs. T. A. M. Craven and Frederick Fox have not been accused of any wrongdoing.

Mr. Mack, who resigned a fortnight ago (GOVERNMENT, March 10) under impeachment threats, returned to the subcommittee stand Wednesday. With a privately-expressed feeling of "Why kick a man when he is down?" subcommittee members were more than friendly in their questioning. Mr. Mack had been accused of pledging his vote to National and of allowing unauthorized persons to discuss the case with him.

He was unable to shed any additional light on his financial dealings with Mr. Whiteside or two Miami insurance agencies —Stember-Shelden Inc. and Andar Inc.— in which he was given ownership interests. Mr. Mack repeatedly told the subcommittee that all his financial records were in the custody of the Justice Dept. and were not available to him.

A complete list of Mr. Mack's bank deposits, as compiled by the subcommittee's staff, during the time he served on the FCC was entered into the record. They covered deposits made in the First National Bank, Coral Gables, Fla., and the Munsey Trust Co., Washington. The compilation showed that Mr. Mack had deposited $79,608 from May 27, 1955, to Feb. 28, 1958, and the source of $7,986 could not be determined.

Mr. Mack told the subcommittee his income tax returns, which have been requested by the investigators, also would not show the source of the unidentified $7,986 in income.

Dear Jack:

Now it can be told: After twelve months of continuous advertising on your program, only one word can appropriately tell the story - "Magnifique."

Yes, the Jack Eigen Show has proven to our organization, that results can be obtained consistently month in and month out.

At the present time, we have seven accounts participating, and I am happy to inform you ALL SEVEN ARE HAPPY, SATISFIED CLIENTS. Your program now is a must in any advertiser's budget.

Our entire sales force has been instructed that a part of every budget must go to the Jack Eigen Show. We have a term for it and it is appropriately called "Insurance."

There is no doubt about it. The success enjoyed by our accounts is due to your wonderful co-operation. We want you to know that we sincerely appreciate your efforts.

With best personal regards, I remain,

Sincerely,

A bill to abolish the FCC and replace it with a Federal Communications Administration and a special Communications Court of Appeals has been drafted for study and possible action by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The bill was drafted at the order of Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Commerce Committee. The idea for it came from ex-Sen. Clarence C. Dill (D-Wash.), onetime chairman of the Commerce Committee and co-author of the Radio Act of 1927 and the Communications Act of 1934. It was the Communications Act that established the body that Mr. Dill would now abolish.

Mr. Dill has occasionally served as a consultant to the Commerce Committee during recent years. He outlined the bill to dissolve the FCC in a letter to Sen. Magnuson.

Principal provisions of the proposed bill:
- Establishment of a Federal Communications Administration under direction of a single administrator.
- Establishment of a Communications Court of Appeals presided over by three judges.
- Abolition of the FCC with its functions to be taken over by the new Administration and Communications Court.
- Stipulation that present and former commissioners would not be eligible to serve on the new Administration or Communications Court.

If the single administrator would be appointed by the President, subject to Senate approval, for a four-year term. His salary, as is that of the three judges, is left blank as the bill now stands.

Powers of the FCC under the Communications Act, except Section 405 (rehearing provision), would revert to the new administrator. Powers of Section 405 would be given to the new court. All records, property, personnel (except commissioners), appropriations and allocations of the Commission also would be assumed by the proposed Administration.

Decisions made by the FCC would remain in effect after the new bill has become law and all appeals of prior Commission decisions would be handled by the Communications Court.

Under further provisions of the proposal, the Communications Court would be established, for administrative purposes, within the Federal Communications Administration, but would be completely independent of the administrator and in no way under his authority. The three judges also would be appointed by the President subject to Senate approval. Their terms would run for 15 years, with the first three appointments to be made for staggered terms of 5, 10 and 15 years.

The judges could be removed by the President, upon due notice and a hearing, for neglect of duty, malfeasance in office and mental or physical disability, but for no other cause. (The bill makes no provision for removal of the administrator.) The judges would be eligible for reappointment but not more than two could be appointed from the same political party.

The Communications Court would hear all appeals made from decisions of the administrator, who would be bound by decisions of the court. The bill provides that appeals must be filed within 30 days of a decision by the administrator.

Specifically prohibiting current or former FCC members from being appointed administrator or judges, the bill states that any individual who has at any time held the position of commissioner shall not be eligible for appointment to either position.

Sen. Magnuson Thursday said the bill is one of several proposed FCC changes his committee will study. The bill, as yet, has not been seen by other members of the committee but will be considered in the near future.

"The people generally have lost all confidence in the Communications Commission," 73-year-old Sen. Dill wrote Sen. Magnuson in recommending that the FCC be abolished. He cited current exposures made in the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee hearings on the Commission's grant of ch. 10 Miami to National Airlines. Sen. Dill further stated:

"This is an opportune time to abolish it [FCC] and set up a director with Communications Court of Appeals, to which all decisions of the director could be appealed before they were taken to a judicial court. . . . This plan would wipe out a lot of the red tape that has become so burdensome to those who must make applications to the Commission and should simplify the procedure in many respects.

"If you would hold hearings on such a bill, it would start a nationwide discussion as to the lack of efficiency of these commissions. The commissioners never hold hearings. They never write opinions. It seems to me their usefulness is pretty largely confined to talk and telling somebody else what to do. . . . Of course it [the bill] should have one special provision, namely, that none of the present commissioners should ever be permitted to serve either as a director or on the Communications Court of Appeals. That might even apply to past commissioners, too."

Sen. Magnuson attached added importance to the new bill because it was proposed by Sen. Dill, who played a large role in the establishment of the FCC. Sen. Dill served in the House from 1914-1919 (he was defeated in the 1918 election) and in the Senate from 1922 to March 1935.

A second bill, also drafted and under consideration by the Senate committee, would make uniform the laws covering the FCC, ICC, FTC, FPC, and CAB with respect to the termination of office of commissioners and authority for their removal.

Under this bill, commissioners would continue in office until their successors had been appointed and duly approved by the Senate. It also provides that any commissioner may be discharged from office by the President for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. The acts establishing the ICC and FTC already contain both the above clauses and the CAB Act contains a removal provision. Neither of the provisions currently is covered by the Communications Act.

Unlike the "ripper" bill, this bill has been circulated among members of the Commerce Committee and a majority of them have reacted favorably. However, the bill calling for the abolition of the FCC would supercede the second bill.

When we first talked about filming our UNION PACIFIC engines-and-Injuns series 18 months ago, we couldn’t tell a papoose from a caboose. So far as we knew, firewater was what they put in locomotive boilers, and “Hell on Wheels” was the name of a famous lady tennis player!

Our aim was to film an authentic epic of a continent-spanning epoch, where every stretch of track had its own set of historic ties! The saga of railroadin’ men who faced mountains and floods with equanimity... come hill or high water, they were going through! The tale of Indian-fighting out on the far prairie, where a man might be without a cent, but never lack for a Sioux!

We know a lot about railroads now. One thing for sure—UNION PACIFIC is just the ticket for you.

WHAT WE DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT RAILROADS!...
Sometimes it’s hard for even management—that’s Ben Beckham and Winston Linam and Deane Flett—to realize how thoroughly KSLA-TV dominates television in Shreveport. In the national spot field in particular, one look at a Rorabaugh Report will show you how Raymer Salesmanship has given KSLA-TV thirty percent more national accounts than its competition, twice as many sponsored programs and an overwhelming slice of the national spot dollar. Needless to say, that dominance in the national spot field spills over into every aspect of KSLA-TV operation—merchandising, local sales, coverage, community service and ratings.

then

talk to Raymer

But with that in mind, bear this in mind. Though rating dominance is one thing, dollar dominance is from a source of a different color. Sales leadership takes more than ratings; above all, it takes a very special brand of national spot representation, custom-made for the station and customer made for the advertiser. At Raymer, that means the right salesman in the right place at the right times with the right story. If you think that you’re not getting that kind of representation, salesmanship and dominance, it will surely pay you to talk to Paul H. Raymer

AAA Releases Partial Lineup Of Events for Greenbrier Meet

Creativity and marketing will be the dominant themes of the open sessions of the three-day annual meeting of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, to be held April 24-26 at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Two showings of the television commercials chosen for awards by the Art Directors Club of New York will be among the highlights of the convention program. The award winners will be announced at the outset of the Art Directors Club's own exhibit, to be held April 1-10.

Although mentioned nowhere on the partial program released last week, the final "Frey Report" on advertiser-agency relationships and agency compensation issues, which C. J. Neely, chief economist, Claude Robinson, New York, and W. T. M. Benard, Chicago, chairman of the association. Election of officers also will be held on opening day. Second and third-day meetings will be open to advertiser and media guests as well as the agency delegates.

A showing of the prize-winning tv commercials will launch the second day's program at 9:30 a.m., with a business meeting starting at 10. Arthur E. Tatham, of Tatham-Laird, Chicago, and Joseph H. Epstein of Fitzgerald Adv., New Orleans, will preside over consecutive sessions on "The Modern Concept of Marketing."

Speakers will include Wendell G. Moxley of Mediacraft, and Robert L. Witherspoon & Eckhardt, New York; Reuel Denney, sociology professor at the U. of Chicago and co-author of The Lonely Crowd, and Leroy M. King, merchandising director of Food Topics and Food Field Reporter.

Another showing of tv commercials is slated for April 25. The stand-up buffet dinner will be held that night, with entertainment including a specially produced closed-circuit television show featuring NBC-TV's Steve Allen and his "Men on the Street."

Hotpoint Plans Single Agency

Hotpoint Co.'s $4 million tv receiver appliance trade advertising account, now split among three agencies, will be consolidated in one shop by June 1 as part of its new centralization policy.

The bulk of the business (ranges, refrigerators, other appliances) is currently handled by Maxon Inc. tv receiver advertising is serviced by Needham, Louis & Brocly Inc. and trade by J. R. Pershall Co.

The single agency concept stems from Hotpoint's creation of a sales and distribution department last November and the need for integrating functions involving various product lines.

The new department is headed by John McDaniel. A. A. Ut is overall advertising manager.

Hotpoint already has begun to hear presentations from interested agencies, including those now handling its advertising.

C-W Retrenchment Causes BDA To Drop Radio-Tv Department

The prospects of Burke Dowling Adams Inc., New York-Atlanta-Montclair, N. J., of becoming a major factor in radio-tv advertising are about to be severely tested as BDA's latest summer move from Grey Adv. Timebuying now will be conducted out of the agency's media (print) department.

Industry observers linked the BDA action to the annual report by Curtiss-Wright President Roy T. Hurley detailing his company's financial setback during 1957. Curtiss-Wright is BDA's largest single account, and Studebaker-Packard Corp., in which C-W holds interest, is one of BDA's principal broadcast users. S-P, together with the other broadcast accounts in the agency—Scandinavian Airline System (SAS), Southern Bakers, Benrus Watch Co.'s Sovereign timepiece, and Delta Airlines—billed approximately $750,000 over the past six months. According to C-W's annual report, 1957 net income dropped $3.1 million from 1956's $43.2 million, although overall sales rose from $571.1 million to $598.8 million.

It was understood that the loss in income has caused C-W to reassess its advertising expenditures as well as general operations.

Burke Dowling Adams (billing less than $8 million) was in the limelight last year when it acquired the Studebaker-Packard account from Benton & Bowles (which resigned it), following this up with other new accounts including 'Air Express, Colt Fire Arms and Cinzano (later lost to Lennen & Newell) until it ended up the year with $17.5 million billing and moved its headquarters from Atlanta to New York.

Donahue & Coe Opens in L. A.

The opening of a Los Angeles office, its fifth in the U. S. and Canada, has been announced by Donahue & Coe, New York, Atlanta, Chicago and Montreal. The agency bills a total $307. million, services such broadcast accounts as Corn Products Refining Co. (Bosco, Kasco), Chemway Corp., Loew's and Columbia Pictures. The Los Angeles office will be at 3245 Wilshire Blvd., with arrangement for Miss H. R. Adams, Mrs. E. R. Ryan, Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan executive, in charge. Mr. Moses' title is executive vice president (West Coast).

Edsel Radio Spot Drive to Use 1,000 Stations in 400 Markets

There's a "spot" in Edsel's future for radio—at least for two weeks starting April 1—on the basis of commitments placed through Foote, Cone & Belding for that Ford Motor Co.

The agency has contracted for a heavy saturation campaign of announcements on about 1,000 stations in over 400 markets to key a spring dealer traffic push. One-minute and 20-second spots have been lined up in prime driving periods, ranging from 20 to 45 per week per market.

FC&B also has purchased an undisclosed number of weekend segments of CBS Radio's "Impact" buying plan, it was reported.

High-Income Families Do, Too, Like Good Music—WITH-FM Study

Sam Kravetz, manager of WITH-FM Baltimore, has taken issue on music and money with Charles F. Adams, vice president and account supervisor on Cadillac Motor Car Div. of General Motors Corp., at MacManus, John & Adams, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

To Mr. Adams' assertion that he's never had satisfactory proof of a correlation between appreciation of good music and ability to purchase [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Jan. 20], Mr. Kravetz offers a study made for WITH-FM showing a median family income among listeners of $8,840. About two-fifths of families responding to the survey had incomes over $10,000, more than two-thirds over $7,000 and nearly ten-thirteenth more than $5,000. This indicates, the survey says, "that WITH-FM reaches people who have the means to buy."

Mr. Kravetz, who obviously believes his listeners are in the Cadillac class, sent a copy of the WITH-FM survey to Mr. Adams, noting that he had said, "We would change our minds if someone would make a definitive study."

The WITH-FM study was based on a mailing of 2,000 with close to a 60% response. Listeners' names came from the station's regular mailing list of 15,000 classical music devotees.

Quaker Names Thompson for Ken-L

The appointment of J. Walter Thompson Co. to handle its Ken-L dog food line was announced by Quaker Oats Co. Wednesday. JWT has handled Quaker's Aunt Jemima line for the past four years and recently relinquished the Swift & Co. account, including Pard dog food [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, March 10, 3].

Thompson inherits the $3.4 million account (Ken-L Ration, Biskits, Meal, Treats) from Needham, Louis & Broby, with official take over "sometime in the latter part of 1958." NL&B had serviced the Ken-L line for the past seven years.

AGENCY APPOINTMENT

Weco Products Co., Chicago, appoints Keyes, Madden & Jones, that city, to handle advertising for new Dr. West's push-button tooth paste.

Roughly $2 million is allocated to five-month push with emphasis in magazines, but radio-TV will play vital part with 1,800 weekly announcements seen and heard on total 40 TV and 55 radio stations.

Grassroots Agencies Have Answer To Compensation Problem—Briggs

"Grassroots agencies" around the country have solved the agency compensation problem for themselves without needing to rely on studies and reports like the Assn. of National Advertisers' so-called "Frey Report" (see page 33). James H. Briggs, executive vice president of Erwin Wasey, Rubrauff & Ryan, New York, asserted last week.

Addressing the newly-formed Advertising Club of Reno, Nev., Mr. Briggs said: "the largest agency in not only Reno but the entire state of Nevada employs only a limited number of people. Obviously agencies of this size cannot live within the classical 15% method of compensation. As a responsible advertising executive, I cannot confirm nor deny the Frey recommendations. Nor do I have to, because the answer to the report is right here in Reno."

He noted that Reno agencies handled their compensation by various methods, including the straight fee basis, charge by project and by retainer. "And," he added, "you have found it not only profitable but compatible with the business needs of your clients."

If the grassroots agencies can solve the agency compensation problem, Mr. Briggs continued, perhaps they could also tell larger agencies how to approach the problem of marketing in secondary and smaller markets. "It has become too expensive to attempt extensive coast-to-coast advertising push in major markets today," he said. "That being the case, the advertiser today must look to the secondary markets for his volume. And in looking at them he must know how to exploit them."

Talent Assoc. to Take Over 'Kraft TV Theatre' Production

J. Walter Thompson Co. no longer will produce Kraft Television Theatre (NBC-TV, Wednesday, 9-10 p.m.). Talent Assoc. Ltd., an independent producer-packager, takes over April 16. Kraft Foods Co., sponsor of the weekly dramatic show that has held down the Wednesday time period on NBC-TV for nearly 11 years, continues as a JWT client.

But the move is significant because, by relinquishing production on the show, JWT now can entirely cut out house production of a major network TV program. It marks the demise of the agency-produced regularly scheduled major TV show with the remaining exception of BBDO-produced Your Hit Parade on NBC-TV.

Public Boredom Forcing New Ad Trends—Cox

New trends in advertising which are being forced by public boredom with present advertising concepts were predicted by Edwin Cox, board chairman, Kenyon & Eckhardt, in a speech last Wednesday before the combined membership of the San Francisco and Los Angeles Advertising Clubs.

"The sickness of the advertising business—if we have one," he told the group, "is not that we are wicked. It is only that we are dull. Sometimes I am appalled at the public's concept of the advertising man that has been built up by novels and films. The public are quite able to defend themselves against our alleged machination. But they are becoming increasingly irritated with us for being bores.

"It has been quite well established that one-third of all the people who view the average television program pay no attention to the commercial. Yet one-third of the annual bill that American business pays for television is $440 million. Such a truth can not long be hidden and the signals are set for a change."

Mr. Cox believes the change will come through the "force of many young minds who are working in advertising today and who are beginning to reject a number of our inherited fetishes and some of our inbuilt logic."

The fetishes, he pointed out, add up to the notion "that if an idea worked once, it will work a thousand times. That is safer to repeat or adapt what someone else has done (if successful) than to seek an original solution to a problem."

Mr. Cox said, "We have a school of cigarette advertising, a school of motor car advertising, a school of refrigerator advertising and a school of whiskey advertising." These schools have come to be by "thinking the language of the trade, by placing an undue value on a too-limited experience and by watching each other."

In television, for example, Mr. Cox pointed out, "some producer discovers that a show described as an 'adult western' can get a large audience. So right away the waves are deluged with such a bedlam of horse neighs and gunfire that we all pull the mental covers over our heads."

Mr. Cox also stated that an electronic effect can be obtained from the new, the bright and the original, and a single engaging commercial can compensate for a whole evening of stupid ones. Mr. Cox believes, too, that in time more and more advertising men will achieve the uncommonplace.

ABC-TV Affiliates to Cease 'Wyatt Earp' Triple-Spotting

ABC-TV has notified Compton Adv. that a dozen affiliates, including some owned-operated stations, have agreed to eliminate instances of triple-spotting. In a letter to Frank B. Kemp, Compton media director, R. R. Keeman, ABC-TV station relations vice president, said he had notified affiliates of the impossibility of triple-spotting "without cutting into time which had been contracted for" by network advertisers. He added that the practice "was a violation of our affiliation agreement," and told Compton all stations have been contacted and "have assured us of their cooperation."

Mr. Kemp had written ABC-TV President Oliver Treyz pointing out instances of 12 ABC-TV affiliates triple-spotting before and/or after Wyatt Earp (Tues., 8:30-9 p.m.), which Compton services for Procter & Gamble. ABC-TV has been waging a crusade against triple-spotting.

Hollywood to Pay Tab For 'Oscar' Simulcast

A world-wide audience is expected to watch or listen to the 30th annual awards presentations of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences, to be simulcast by NBC's radio and tv networks, March 26, 7:30-9 p.m. (and perhaps for another 15 minutes if the academy succeeds in getting clearance from NBC), according to George Seaton, academy president.

Departing from tradition, the academy this year is sponsoring a show on the networks and passing up the support of commercial sponsorship it had in previous years, a gesture that will cost the group around $850,000, Mr. Seaton stated. In addition to buying the network time, the academy also is endeavoring to buy from all NBC affiliates the mid-program station break which the FCC requires, to eliminate all tv ID and radio station break commercial announcements, replacing them with an announcement that the awards ceremonies are being presented by the motion picture industry, he said.

Financing for the awards ceremony will come from everyone who participates in the profit of motion picture directors, writers, directors, producers and distributors—Mr. Seaton said, each contributing 0.25% of his domestic profits. Receipts are expected to finance the operation of the academy as well as perhaps leave a surplus for other activities, such as the establishment of a motion picture museum, he explained. Theatre owners will not contribute in money, but 2,000-3,000 theatres will be closed March 26 and most of the nation's movie houses will give the event intensive advance publicity.

In addition to domestic broadcasts, Armed Forces Radio & TV Services will show the coverage of the awards presentations to 120 million radio listeners around the globe and provide delayed pictorial coverage to some 500,000 tv viewers. The academy itself will also provide films of the event to foreign television stations and networks, Mr. Seaton said, estimating that some 200 million individuals will see the show on tv, including 65-75 million U. S. viewers.

The problems of presenting a show that will keep viewers at home watching for 90 or 105 minutes without sacrificing the primary purpose of the event, the industry honoring outstanding achievements by every phase of motion picture activity, were discussed by a number of speakers, who promised that everything possible is being done to keep the show a fast-moving entertaining event.

Asked whether the tv coverage and closed theatres might not give the public the feeling that the movie makers are in effect lauding the new medium of tv to the detriment of "that old fashioned thing, the movie," Mr. Seaton said that the telecast at the end will include "a gimmick, not a commercial, but something that will make the people at home say, 'Let's go out to a theatre and see a new movie.'"

RTES PANEL AIRS
BROADCAST ISSUES

- Mike Wallace quizzes trio
- Sensitive topics explored

Mike Wallace in an "interview" with three executives representing agencies, station representatives and rating services last Tuesday pilliated the fancies of agency and broadcast executives at a luncheon in New York.

Although amusing and entertaining to the audience, the questions and answers nonetheless provided a barometer of what the broadcast business considers to be current controversy or points of issue.

Among them: rate deals, buying according to ratings only, alleged "kickbacks" from representative to station sales managers, triple spotting, inconsistencies, misuse or abuse of ratings and overemphasis on the top 10.

Interviewed at the Radio & Television Executives Society's final timebuying and selling seminar of the season were George Polk, in charge of radio-television programming and planning at BBDO; Martin L. Mierman, vice president and national sales manager of Edward Petry Co.'s tv division; and James Seiler, director of American Research Bureau.

Mr. Polk maintained the media buyer will purchase the "best deal" obtainable from stations and explained the agency's function in buying time in answer to Mr. Wallace's question of whether BBDO ever accepted a "station package deal." Mr. Polk parried another query on whether the agency tells its other clients about a package deal it obtained for a certain client, noting that each client's needs are different and that a 52-week firm "deal" good for one client may not be "applicable" to another.

The agency executive agreed that BBDO uses ratings as a guide in its buying but for an advertiser which is "selling ideas and not products" there are "other factors beside ratings which are important." BBDO knows that these "extra values" exist, Mr. Polk continued, but "we do not know to what degree in every case." Ratings, he said, are used "analytically" at the agency but "they are only one of many criteria" in the buying decision.

To inject excitement in the interviews, Mr. Wallace frequently read excerpts from a newly-published book, Madison Avenue, U. S. A., by Martin Mayer. He noted, for example, that a network executive is quoted as saying that agency people only care about their 15% commission. Mr. Polk commented that "certainly the agency is in business for a commission—that the agency wants to "make money." When a client puts his money into advertising it means that the agency "gets 15% anyway" but the agency still would like to see the medium work for the client, Mr. Polk asserted.

At another point, Mr. Polk denied that some agencies prefer to buy network time when available because it is "easier to handle" than spot, adding that there is no difference "economically" and that the buyer does what he thinks is right for his client. He also differed with intimations in Mr. Mayer's book that media buyers are "clerks" or that they have no "integrity."

As to agency-client relationship (signing of accounts because the agency cannot go along with the client or because the agency believes the client is not sure how it should spend its money), Mr. Polk noted that the advertiser generally is conceded the right to do as it pleases and shop for agencies even while it is being handled by an agency—but an agency "for some reason" is not permitted that right.

Station representatives no longer can ignore the "problem" of triple spotting though there is no real evidence to show that values in a commercial are lessened in the second or third spot position, Mr. Mierman said.

Mr. Mierman admitted the practice has become a "problem," particularly because "two major agencies" now are probing the practice.

The solution? Mr. Mierman suggested clarification of the NAB code dealing with triple spotting and said he thought the prime movers should be the stations, advertisers and representatives.

Mr. Mierman said he was aware of the practice by some stations of holding representatives to rates but offering discounts and lower rates direct to advertisers. He thought such dealings "hurt us, the agency and the station" and they are "not good."

Asked about rate cutting as a solution to reduced ad budgets, Mr. Mierman flatly stated his company is against it and that persistent action along this line leads to "malpractice" in the business. Mr. Mierman denied knowledge of "kickbacks" from representatives to station sales managers.

Mr. Seiler said Arbitron—the American Research Bureau's electronic instantaneous measurement service—is nearing operating status in New York City, that 281 homes, out of 300 homes to comprise the sample, already have had units installed and connected and that the hold-up has centered on AT&T's need for much more time than anticipated in setting up amplifiers on each line (each line serves about 30 installations).

The ARB director, to Mr. Wallace's probing questions, asserted that differences in the results by the different rating services are "explainable." He defended differences in a single service's surveys by noting that these variances are never beyond what would be expected normally with two different samples and agreed there is misuse of ratings.

Asked if he were ever offered a "bribe," Mr. Seiler sighed, "Oh, yes" and proceeded to explain that such approaches come from people who hear so much talk about "getting to the rating services" that they feel "everybody else is doing it and they ought to get into it." He said he is sure all other rating services have had similar experiences. But, he warned, "altering figures" for people who are serviced "is like telling a person he has a stomach ache when he has a ruptured appendix."

He asserted it would be "absurd" for anyone to so engage himself.

Noxema Shaving Cream Drops
MJ&A for DC&S Over Differences

Should shaving creams be pushed in drugstores or in supermarkets? The answer apparently has cost MacManus, John & Adams, New York, some $500,000 of billing (much of it in tv-radio) as Noxema Chemical Co., Baltimore, reassigns agency responsibility for its shaving creams and lotions from MJ&A to Doherty, Clifford, Steers & Shenfield, New York. The switch-over becomes effective April 1.

With MJ&A since that agency two years ago absorbed the former David J. Mahoney Agency, Noxema shaving cream executives felt the way to improved sales lay via the drugstore and that the shaving creams could ride the Noxema (skin cream) coattails. But the MJ&A account group was understood to have felt otherwise, pointing out that shaving cream sales are quite apart from sales of cold creams and sunburn lotions and urging a campaign geared for the supermarket traffic. "The movement led to the split. In DC&S, Noxema has an agency well-versed in the pursuit of drugstore business. The new agency services an impressive amount of Bristol-Myers business (labs and products divisions—Ammens, Ipana, Minit-Rub, Mum, Theradan, Vitalis) and also places advertising for Pharmaco (Feen-a-Mint, Regutol, Chooz, Medigum). The bulk of Noxema is handled by Sullivan, Staufter, Colwell & Bayles, N. Y.

SIGNALING the entry of Hancock Oil Co., Long Beach, Calif., into local radio, a 52-week contract for newscasts on 15 stations is signed by (1 to r) Walter Lake, McGavren-Quinn Co., representation firm; Diana Wear, media director of Heintz & Co., Los Angeles, Hancock's agency, and Kasson Lunt, Heintz account executive for the oil company. Hancock's schedule calls for five-to-nine times weekly in afternoon traffic time in the 15 California markets [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Feb. 17].
tion type proposal to a point where it might be brought in for around $1.5 million a year—as compared with the $4.1 million estimate submitted to a selected few affiliated and independent stations 10 days ago [At Deadline, March 10].

The $4.1 million proposal, it was understood, envisioned ABN as a transmitter of nothing but news—about three minutes on the hour and about three on the half-hour, with "subscribers" free to add a couple of minutes of local news to the network newscasts. The $1.5 million plan, accordingly, would be little more than a skeleton of the larger plan and, indeed, the bulk of its cost would be in line charges. But according to its advocates it would at least offer a starting point and could be expanded as the intake from subscribers grew.

In either of the two "press association" plans, subscribers would be free to use the newscasts they wanted and omit the others, paying ABN either on a straight-fee basis or on some other formula that might be agreed upon.

Live Concept Dead

Whatever the future of ABN, it was obvious that the all-live programming concept was virtually dead. This concept, initiated by Mr. Eastman shortly after he took over the presidency last spring, was curtailed sharply a few weeks ago [Networks, Feb. 3]. Late last week came news that the two remaining "new" live programs—Jim Backus Show (Mon.-Fri., 10-10:55 a.m.) and Merv Griffin Show (Mon.-Fri., 1-2:55 p.m.)—would be dropped shortly, leaving the veteran Breakfast Club (Mon.-Fri., 9-10 a.m.) as the only all-live entertainment program. Replacements for the Backus and Griffin shows were expected to be named soon.

Among the other networks there was this disagreement as to the wisdom of the all-live concept in the first place, although some competitors did think it had merit and would have paid off eventually. There was considerable unanimity, however, that it had not been given a full test—that, having been given the go-ahead on it, Mr. Eastman should have been allowed more time in which to try to prove it.

From the standpoint of the AB-PT board, however, there was the financially strong counter-argument that with ABN losing around $4 million a year, something had to be done to give and the all-live concept was the place where the greatest savings could be made quickest.

Among all the other reports circulating last week was speculation that Mr. Eastman might resign. This was not confirmed either by him or by other responsible officials, one of whom also pointed out that Mr. Eastman joined ABN under a five-year contract which still has a little more than four years to run.

WEST COAST MEET ENDS ANA SERIES

- Frey Report overshadows talks
- Client-agency data to continue

The Assn. of National Advertisers' "Frey Report" overshadowed a three-day program last week of the association's 12th annual west coast meeting held at Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach, Calif.

Highlights of the meeting, held Wednesday-Friday, included:

- Word from ANA that it will continue to dispense data on client-agency relationships now that the bulky, statistics-laden "Frey Report" is in circulation [Advertisers & Agencies, March 3].
- Warning that advertisers depreciate their television messages when they overdo them—there is a law of diminishing returns, said Norman Best, vice president-media, Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, Los Angeles.
- A call on media to ease off intra-warfare of statistics and claims. Albert Brown, vice president in charge of advertising and public relations of Best Foods Inc., New York, admonished that infighting among different media is a destructive approach.
- Product research by agencies can pinpoint where advertising pressure delivered at the right time at the right place will boost sales. Paul Gerhold, vice president in charge of media and research, Foote, Cone & Belding, New York, observed his agency found that for certain clients a 15% increase in the ad budget allocated to a specific area could increase sales as much as 20%.

Mr. Best told a media session Thursday he thought the network of TV made it necessary for advertisers to give careful attention to the principle of commutual messages. He noted the value and the cumulative effects of strategic TV messages as compared to commercials spotted indiscriminately. He took a dim view, however, of commercials which take up extensive attention at the expense of the program on which they are used. He also outlined the use of network radio by the Carnation Co. to supplement the saturating of other the markets not covered by television—as a result of agency research findings.

The closed session on the "Frey Report" was held Wednesday, the last stop on a country-wide schedule of meetings for ANA members which started in New York March 4 and continued on to Detroit March 5, Chicago March 7 and then Pebble Beach.

ANA President Paul West said now that the 424-page report on agency-client relationships is published the ANA will continue its research and gathering of information and "provide the vehicle for communicating the attitudes and needs of advertisers to the agencies and media, the government and others [and] provide the means of exchanging the experiences and successful practices of members through meetings" such as the four-city sessions.

Mr. West observed, "Whether or not we will continue to have the 15% commission as the basic method of compensating for agency services and for how long, or whether a better way will evolve, and how soon, cannot be predicted.

"It depends on the individual decisions of advertisers, agencies and media," he said.

Mr. West continued, "It is not a matter of who is right, or who is wrong, but rather a question of what is right."

He called on ANA members "as advertisers ... to get on with the job of putting our own houses in order," and added, "I am sure the agencies and the media will soon follow suit."

Mr. West asked members to see that their agencies order a copy of the report "and see to it that all of the people on your account ... read it" and at the same time, ANA's "Advertising Management Guidebook Series" which has a related value, he said.

Also discussing the report were its principal author, Prof. Albert W. Frey, and his associate, Prof. Kenneth R. Davis, both of Dartmouth College. A statement by Donald S. Frost, vice president, Bristol-Myers Co., who is chairman of the ANA's agency relations committee, was read by George E. Molsby, vice president, Seagram-Distillers Co., and former ANA chairman. Mr. Frost, who appeared on the "Frey Report" in sessions held in other cities, did not attend the Pebble Beach meeting.

BBDO's Silvernail Plans To Retire at End of Month

Frank Silvernail, manager of station relations, radio and television department, BBDO, New York, and a veteran of radio-tv timebuying, is retiring March 31.

Mr. Silvernail entered radio in 1925 when he played the guitar with the South Sea Islanders on WEAF [now WNBC] New York. He joined BBDO in 1943 as a radio timebuyer. Before that he was merchandising counsel for NBC and member of the timebuying departments of Pedlar & Ryan and Young & Rubicam, New York.

He has served as chairman of the broadcast media committee for the AAAA, president of New York chapter of the Radio Pioneers and has been a member of the planning committee for the timebuying seminar of the Radio-Television Executives Society since its inception. Mr. Silvernail will continue to live in Crestwood, N. Y. in both programming concept and relationships with affiliates. Unlike the others, it has no owned stations to rely on for extra income. But its officials also profess confidence; some go so far as to doubt that any network will survive which does not operate basically as a “service network.”

On the contrary Mutual stresses news, music and special events, and is planning shortly to set up a “special services department” which would provide special programs to individual stations on their request—interviews with national figures on questions of local interest, for example.

Yes. In the face of all this optimism the feeling persisted—among most of the same people—that in the long run probably no more than two radio networks would survive.

A key official of one network felt that although two networks might drop by the wayside, the result would be better network radio service. With two networks fighting aggressively for business, he reasoned, each would have more income than any of the four has now. The greater income would mean better program service and in time would enable the networks to raise their rates, forget about off-card deals and, he hoped, quit selling quick spots.

Television Blamed

This executive thought the emergence of three television networks was a strong contributing factor to the likelihood, in his opinion, that two of today’s four radio networks would eventually drop out. Conversely, he thought that four rather than three networks could be supported in tv.

A top executive at another network, while agreeing that the survival of more than two networks was unlikely, thought nevertheless that the demise of even one would be “unfortunate.” In his view, the more salesmen there are grubbing for business, the more excitement they will generate for network radio as a whole.

Another felt that some dropouts would be inevitable in the current climate of network selling. “Getting money by cutting rates accomplishes nothing,” he asserted. He ventured that ultimately it “will probably narrow down to two aggressive networks.”

At ABN the only thing certain was the uncertainty about what would be done. Dissolution of the network—or, preferably, sale of the network or assignment of whatever advertising contracts are assignable—was only one of the possibilities being considered. Aside from the press association type of operation, there was the feeling that a reversion to the sort of programming of a few years ago—music, news, variety, daytime dramas, etc., but on a tighter, more economical basis—might provide a workable solution.

It was known that ABN President Robert E. Eastman had distilled the press associa-

ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES

SILF SKIN IN TWO-WAY STRETCH

- Grey, Regal differ on which agency is handling tv campaign
- Girdle firm’s President Reiner admits he’s ‘equally confused’

There was doubt last week as to which of two agencies is in charge of placing the first “million dollar tv spot campaign” for Silf Skin to be handled by a Grey Girdle maker. The agencies are Grey Adv. and Regal Adv., both New York, with the latter not an agency in the usual meaning but, according to its principals, “a timebuying organization.”

The “spooner” is Garson Reiner. He is head of an exclusive "sales organization" marketing Silf Skin. He also is president of Exquisite Form Brassiere Inc., another Grey client which also uses Regal. Mr. Reiner said he also has an “interest” in Regal Adv.

The confusion between Grey and Regal apparently is not new. It came to a head last week following a news release issued by Irwin Roseman, Silf Skin advertising director, who also happens to be Exquisite’s advertising director. The release announced a $1 million “nationwide tv advertising program, sparked by from four to seven 1-minute commercials daily in the nation’s top markets.” The release did not name the agency placing this $1 million in new “money” for tv.

Silf Skin indicated about 60 top markets would be used. But there seemed to be a question of how much cash expenditure actually is involved. Here is where Regal enters the picture.

Regal was formed last fall by Charles Weigert and Sidney Barbet, two alumni of Paul Venzu Assoc., Baltimore, house agency for Charles Antell Inc. Regal was formed for the express purpose of serving advertisers who wish to make use of the film-for-time barter system. Antell has been an extensive barter user. According to Mr. Weigert, Regal’s only facility is that of buying time; it does no creative work, no research and no marketing. Regal is paid in cash for its services by the advertiser, while the client’s regular agency deducts its 15% commission from media.

Mr. Weigert said Regal is placing the Silf Skin tv campaign through the barter system. “Where we can’t make barter deals we’ll use cash,” he said. In some barter situations, he explained, “we do give stations some cash to sweeten the deal.”

Silf Skin spokesmen claimed the $1 million push was only “part barter,” with Grey Adv. buying time for cash in some 20 additional markets. Ralph Axthelm, Grey vice president and Silf Skin-Exquisite Form account supervisor, noted that Grey hadn’t yet bought a single station spot but that it was about to do so.

Mr. Weigert, however, that so far as he knows, the entire Silf Skin campaign is being handled through Regal. Silf Skin’s only connection with Grey, he said, concerned the actual production of the filmed commercials. “As regards buying anything, we are Silf Skin’s agency,” he said.

Regal Adv. said it also places Exquisite Form in barter to the tune of $5 million. But here again Grey and Regal are at odds. Mr. Axthelm confirmed the current campaign involving 173 Exquisite Form stations, adding that this deal is two-thirds cash (approximately through Grey) and one-third barter (through Regal). Mr. Weigert disagreed, saying, “We are also placing the entire Exquisite Form spot campaign.”

Later he admitted that Exquisite Form had put an awful lot of cash in stations’ (through Grey) before Regal came into the picture.

Regal’s bait to stations is “excellent film product” from such diverse sources as Official Films, NBC’s California National Productions, ABC Film Syndication, Television Programs of America, Interstate Tv Corp., Screen Gems, United Artists Tv, Gross-Krasne and others. Mr. Weigert said “all” film companies did business with Regal save for Guild, CBS Film Sales and Ziv Television Programs. He could not name films by title but said that there were either theatrical films or old syndicated half-hour series. He explained that before a client enters a specific market, he allocates a set budget with which Regal has to work. In the case of Baltimore, Silf Skin allocates $25,000 for the year and asks Regal to fill the bill accordingly.

Who’s on First

What seems to pose a problem for both Grey and Regal is who supervises whom—and when? Silf Skin executives said that any negotiations by Regal must first be cleared through Grey which, if satisfied with the terms, gives the go-ahead on a “buy.”

Mr. Weigert disputed this arrangement and maintained that his shop is empowered by Silf Skin to make all deals direct, with schedules then being handed over to Grey which ships the filmed commercials to the station lineup. He distinctly disavowed any implication that should a barter deal fall flat, Grey would step in to fill this vacuum with a cash-purchase station availability.

Mr. Axthelm held that “as far as we are concerned, we are still the agency of record and supervise all Silf Skin campaigns. We have received no notice of cancellation.”

Regal may sincerely believe they are Silf Skin’s radio-tnv agency. . . . I’m sure they’re not trying to be clever. We believe otherwise. At any rate, this is a situation which must be cleared up by Mr. Reiner.”

Late Thursday Mr. Reiner said the “confusion” has been “going on for two weeks now” and admitted he was “equally confused.” He said a solution should be effected “within 10 days.” He said “this thing will work itself out.”

The postscript by Mr. Weigert: “We get along very well with Grey.”

IS ABN ABOUT TO PULL THE PLUG?

- Crisis at ABC’s radio network points up problems of three others
- Network officials themselves wonder if more than two can survive

Top officials of ABC were wrestling last week with the temptation to give up the radio network business.

It was not the first time that the leadership of a radio network had come to grips with this ultimate means of getting out from under heavy financial losses—in this case reported to be running at a rate of about $4 million a year. Nor was network abandonment the only escape hatch ABC was examining. It was the most extreme.

To widely circulating reports that the ABC Division might take its ABN radio network out of operation, Leonard H. Goldenson, president of the parent AB-PT as well as ABC, replied that there was nothing to the reports “at this stage of the game.” He said a number of plans were being considered, including the proposal for conversion to a press association type of operation. [AT DEADLINE, March 10]. But no decisions had been reached, he asserted, and he said he could not predict when they might be.

From other sources it was learned that at a meeting in New York early last week top ABC officials came close to pulling the plug on radio networking. A proposal was seriously considered to send a delegation of high ABC executives to Washington at midweek to advise the FCC of ABC’s intentions. This extreme measure was finally voted down until more study could be given the situation.

The series of crisis meetings that engaged the top executives of AP-PT and its ABC Division did more than point up the likelihood of changes in the ABN network. It also dramatized the apparently deepening pessimism with which the future of today’s radio networks is regarded—by men whose business is to operate radio networks.

Network officials, for the record, are optimistic about the outlook for their respective organizations. But there’s scarcely a one who has not said privately that he doubts all four can continue indefinitely—and many think that ultimately only two will survive. None will concede that his own may be the first to go.

The reason for this bleak outlook is simple. It is no secret that the radio networks are losing money—millions of dollars a year.

Mutual, which now is an operation drastically different from the three others, claimed to have edged over into the black late last year and after a first-of-the-year downswing is reported to be moving back toward the black again. No other network pretends to make that statement. They’re all losing money and they say so.

Less than two weeks ago, Mr. Goldenson testified at the FCC’s hearings on the Barrow Report that the ABN radio network was running at a deficit—subsidized by income from owned-and-operated stations. In the same proceeding Dr. Frank Stanton, president of CBS Inc., testified that the CBS radio network was in the same fix, dependent upon o&o revenues to offset losses from networking. Pointing up the extent to which this is true, Dr. Stanton said that where the o&o radio stations represented 55% of the radio division’s income in 1954, they accounted for 122% in 1957 [LEAD STORY, March 10].

NBC also is losing money on its radio network—but not as much now as a few years ago, its officials claim. In 1955 its loss for the 12 months was estimated at $2 million. President Robert W. Sarnoff testified, last week, also in the Barrow hearings, that the radio network had been in the red since 1952. Like CBS and ABC—but unlike Mutual—NBC has owned radio stations to help recoup the network losses.

Except for ABN, where such predictions would be meaningless until the future form of operation has been decided upon, the operators of networks doggedly display a chins-up attitude about their own prospects.

NBC authorities report that especially within the past year the NBC radio network has gained “dramatically,” and they look for this movement to continue. They say the network is not lagging at all behind their timetable for reaching a profit position, but they have not disclosed details of this timetable beyond saying that profits are in sight.

At CBS Radio there is similar optimism. This network, too, has been moving upward for about a year, authorities report, noting that the fourth quarter of 1957 was the best for that period in years. They also expect the gains to continue.

Mutual differs from the other networks

■ DARK DECADE

The clearest measure of the dilemma facing radio networks is the record of their time sales in the past 10 years. The biggest annual sales volume in network history was recorded in 1948. From then on, television boomed, network radio skidded. In 1956, radio network time sales hit bottom with a volume only one-third that of 1948. Sales in 1957 turned up slightly but not enough to pull the profit-and-loss curve out of the red.

GIFT TO FARM CENTER • WNBF-AM-FM-TV Binghamton, N. Y., contributed more than $25,000 to the new Broome County Farm, Home and 4-H Center Feb. 28. The donation will provide broadcasting facilities and other non-broadcast equipment to enable the farmers of the region to benefit from experiments and classes conducted at the center.

BILL BANS KNIFE • WMGM New York was credited with a share of the support for a new law banning the manufacture, sale and possession of a type of knife whose blade slides out of the handle when a button is pushed and which has been used in a number of crimes of violence by teen-agers. Gov. Averell Harriman signed the new bill in Albany last week. For two months WMGM has conducted an around-the-clock campaign to secure postcard support for the legislation. New York Supreme Court Justice John E. Cone, chairman of the Committee to Ban Teen Age Weapons, praised WMGM's contribution.

BIDS RISE • KRNT-TV Des Moines raised $1,960 for the March of Dimes through auctions during January. Daily telephone auctions were featured on a noontime show for two weeks when one item a day was sold. A special auction Jan. 26 offered two used cars plus other merchandise during a 25-minute live show produced and emceed by d.j. Bill Riley.

In this vital nighttime period KETV soared from third to first place in less than 90 days!

Moreover, from sign on to sign off, seven days a week, KETV increased its share of audience 2.1% while station A increased 1.9% and station B lost 3.0%.

Here is additional evidence of KETV’s growing stature and larger audience. Advertisers are buying KETV with confidence that they can receive maximum audience at lowest cost per thousand.

James G. Riddell, who was elected executive vice president of the American Broadcasting Co. last week (see Networks), is looking forward to the challenge of his new responsibilities—but has one understandable misgiving: he is sorry to leave Detroit after more than 35 years of residence there.

His affinity for Detroit, no doubt, stems in part from the successful career he carved for himself at WXYZ-AM-FM-TV Detroit. He joined WXYZ in 1931 as an office boy and rose through a series of promotions to president and general manager of the radio and tv stations in 1950. His entire broadcasting career, to date, has been with the WXYZ organization.

Mr. Riddell is an adopted son of Detroit, however. James Gilmour Riddell was born in Glasgow, Scotland, April 8, 1912, and moved to Detroit with his family when he was 9.

His first position was with Prince & Whiteley, a stock brokerage company in Detroit, as a clerk. Late in 1931, he started as an office boy at WXYZ and today scorns at a statement attributed to him that at the time “a radio career was uppermost in his mind.” He points out his first job was that of a beginner, appropriate for a youngster of 19, but he became enthralled with the business as time progressed.

Mr. Riddell is a medium-size, stockily-built man with a friendly and down-to-earth manner. His associates regard him as an individual “with no frills,” who knows how to get things done by delegating responsibility.

This approach apparently has been effective for Mr. Riddell personally and for the WXYZ outlets. He confesses he is hazy about the dates of his own jobs at the stations but he advanced from office boy to traffic clerk, traffic manager, assistant sales manager and sales manager. He recalls that in 1946 he was appointed general manager and in 1950 was elected president and general manager of WXYZ Inc.

There is little doubt that both Mr. Riddell’s business acumen and the highly successful operation of the Detroit stations played a significant role in his election to the post of executive vice president of ABC. WXYZ-AM-FM-TV are considered by many to be the front-running stations in American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, the parent company, and enjoy a highly creditable standing in the Detroit community.

Mr. Riddell, who was elected simultaneously to the AB-PT board, will assume his new duties officially July 1 and in the meantime he will commute between Detroit and New York. During this transition period, he hopes to give considerable thought to the direction AB-PT’s broadcasting activities will take, particularly operations of American Broadcasting Network and the owned radio stations.

Mr. Riddell realizes that he faces a formidable task in attempting to place the radio network on a profitable basis. He is not disheartened by the fact that owned radio stations’ operations can be improved and observes that with many of the outlets under newly-appointed general managers, the prospects are bright.

As the chief executive officer for ABC’s broadcasting operations, Mr. Riddell is responsible only to Leonard Goldenson, president of AB-PT. Mr. Riddell believes the formula to success is “good organization” and plans to exert his efforts toward this end at ABC. Though the radio and tv networks and the owned radio and tv stations will continue as autonomous units, Mr. Riddell will serve as the planner at times; at other times, as the catalyst to give a new project a push.

Mr. Riddell looks upon ABC’s television operation as a sound one. Between now and July 1, therefore, he will concentrate his efforts mainly on radio (in addition to tending the shop at the WXYZ stations). But he acknowledges he has no concrete plans in mind. At WXYZ, he remarked, the station has achieved excellent results with programming stressing local personalities, five-minute newscasts and public service broadcasting tied to community needs. He revealed that the WXYZ approach to community service relies on spot messages, rather than 15-minute or half-hour shows spotlighting a particular civic or charitable organization. He realizes the WXYZ pattern may not be so effective at other owned radio stations, but he hopes to have other o&o managers visit Detroit and observe the operation.

It is obvious that Mr. Riddell likes golf. He is a member of the Oakland Hills (Mich.) Country Club, governor of the Detroit District Golf Assn. and currently is serving a second term as president of the Red Run Golf Club. He confesses to having a low handicap of four. He is chairman of the radio-television committee of Crusade for Freedom (Radio Free Europe), and a member of the Radio & Television Executives Society, the Detroit Athletic Club, the Variety Club, the Radio Pioneers Club and the Junior Achievement Advisory Board.

He married the former Fadellis Bradley of Detroit in 1936. They live in Birmingham, with their two daughters—Suzanne, 18, and Sandra, 12.

MRS. McTHING

NBC-TV's Omnibus program continued its high-level quality of dramatic presentation with its performance of Mrs. McThing, which won critical acclaim on Broadway several years back. The play posed a challenge to the producer to capture the spirit of fantasy. Within the limitations of time and the medium itself, the presentation was a highly creditable one.

The plot centers on a boy who runs away to join some gangsters and is replaced in his home by a witch's stick. What ensues is broad farce and delicate fantasy. It must be acknowledged that at times the viewer's credulity was stretched. But there were so many moments of sheer delight that certain interludes of confusion and exaggeration could be pardoned.

The cast was uniformly excellent, including many of the players who were featured in the Broadway play. Young Eddie Hodges was masterful in the dual role of a normal youngster and a boresome dandy. Helen Hayes, Sam Levene, Iggie Wolfington, Irwin
Corey and Minnette Barrett returned in highly commendable characterizations.

Production costs: $60,000.
Sponsored by Aluminum Ltd. through J.
Walter Thompson Co. and Union Carbyde
Corp. through J. M. Mathes Inc. on NBC-
TV on March 9, 4-5:30 p.m.

GRAND MARCH

Just look at this calendar of stars appearing this month on The Late Show!

This month, any month, you won't find anywhere a greater galaxy of stars in so many box-office hits as appear night after night on television's most famous feature film program. For WCBS-TV's vast library from M-G-M, Warner Brothers, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists and Columbia has more major-studio releases than are programmed by New York's six other channels combined!

The Late Show audience, an average of 1,320,000 viewers nightly, is assured of top entertainment every time (not just an occasional good picture, or one repeated several nights a week). No wonder Nielsen, the only four-week rating service, finds The Late Show far ahead not only as New York's favorite late-evening entertainment but also as the area's most popular multi-weekly feature film program series.

Right now, at television's peak viewing season, here's a unique opportunity for you to reach bigger New York audiences at lower cost-per-thousand on The Late Show. Contact CBS Television Spot Sales today.

EDITOR:

Your news survey in the Feb. 24 issue was great—certainly the best statistical study of news we have ever had. I thought stations were making money out of news but I didn't think the "take" was as big as your study revealed. I am sure news directors are happy to have these figures. I spent an entire session of my graduate course in radio-television news operations going over the findings. Would it be possible to obtain more copies of the survey?

How to Get Right Answer

EDITOR:

It's annoying to note that in the majority if not all the surveys that are taken by newspapers to play down the power of radio advertising, they quote only those influenced in buying certain products as advertised in newspapers, on television and radio. Since newspapers get the lion's share of the advertising dollar they naturally can point out impressive figures, but they never indicate that radio receives only 6% of the advertising dollar against approximately 43% spent in newspapers.

Not THE Conelrad

EDITOR:

May I point out that a story, "Conelrad Storm System Launched" [Government, March 3], might well be misinterpreted. The story states, "A report on the tornado at Houston, La., activated Conelrad, which was activated through the facilities of KWKH Shreveport."

Of course Conelrad was not activated. In our language when Conelrad is activated it means that those stations with emergency assignments convert to 640 or 1240 kc while stations without emergency assignments and f.m. and tv go off the air. The fact that the 1000-cycle tone used in connection with Conelrad to activate Conelrad receivers in key warning places is used to precede weather warnings does not mean that stations either in cluster or on-off will operate on Conelrad frequencies.

You and I know that. So does the FCC and the Weather Bureau. But it seems that a whale of a lot of news writers don't know it. Consequently we have a befuddled public plus wondering civil defense directors.

First Step

EDITOR:

My very first step toward going into the radio business was a letter to your very fine magazine back in May 1955 requesting subscription and all the information possible on "small town radio." I read every issue avidly and completely. I would not now be on the verge of going on the air without your excellent magazine.

I have dreamed up my own "Definitions of TV Terms":

Dissolve—Sudden disappearance of director after blowing live spot.
Matched Dissolve—Sudden disappearance of producer and director after blowing live spot.
Standby—Command used to call the attention of the crew to watch academy leader on the air monitor, usually when live cut-in show is on.
A Take—This term denotes director has put wrong camera on the air. It is done electronically.
Double Take—The reaction of the director after a "Take."
Ready One—This is the signal for camera two to be put on the air.
Superimposition—Director can't make up his mind which camera he wants.
Credits—List of personnel fired last week.
Remote—The possibility of a client renewing.
Musical Bridge—Audio man is in the men's room.
Cigarettes—Something used in lieu of a script.
Agency Man—A person who, 10 minutes before air time, comes in and says, "Well, what have we got for tonight?" (most likely found in markets with population under 100,000)
Boom—Something general managers have a tendency to lower, usually mistakenly referred to as a piece of studio equipment.

NTA'S LANDAU URGES FCC: MORE OPTION TIME

Ely A. Landau, president of NTA Film Network, told FCC Friday at Barrow hearing that temporary answer to allocations problem is extension of public option time from three hours (instead of three as now)—with "wired" networks limited to one, two or three hours out of the four depending on market's competitive condition.

Commission also heard Wrede Petersmeyer, president of Corinthian stations (J. H. Whitney & Co.), defend multiple hookup of stations and oppose staff recommendation that local ownership be given greater weight than experience in deciding contested cases.

Hearings resume today, with Mrs. Dorothy Scott Bullitt, King stations, as first to testify. Following Mrs. Bullitt will come representatives of Time Inc., Storer, Meredith and Westinghouse multiple owners (see page 70).

Specifically, NTA's chief suggested (1) in three-station markets, network be prohibited from opting more than three hours; (2) in two-station market, network be banned from opting more than two hours; and (3) in one-station markets network be prohibited from opting more than one hour.

Mr. Landau, whose testimony favoring option time came as surprise (most expected NTA to agree with Barrow Report recommendation to prohibit cut back option hours) held that even film network must have clearance assurances before it can sell programs. He maintained that other program sources in addition to NTA would benefit from arrangement— independent stations, which have great need for program material; film syndicators, package producers, and possibly fourth, fifth or sixth network.

He also disclosed that NTA Film Network plans encompass live sports interconnected hookup this fall, maximum ownership of owned station, filmed weekly news program, cultural, educational programs, and regular affiliation contracts with stations.

Ultimate answer to scarcity of stations problem, Mr. Landau agreed, is more stations. He said he was disciple of W. R. G. Baker, former GE electronics vice president, who believed tv must move to uhf. He suggested stations be permitted simultaneous vhf and uhf operation, predicted transition period to uhf would be less than 10 years.

NTA Film Network is owned jointly by National Telefilm Assoc. and 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

Multiple owner provides service equal or better than single owner, Mr. Petersmeyer told Commission. Public interest best served by 'responsible ownership combined with experienced management and operating personnel who have the interest and capacity to become well integrated into the local community,' he said. Multiple owners have resources to improve facilities, can pool experience and exchange ideas—all of which benefits public, Corinthian president said. Dupoly rule (which prohibits one owner from owning more than one station of a kind in same market) prevents any concentration of opinion in community, he held.

He also spoke against other recommendations of Barrow staff, including rescission of Avo rule providing "open bidding" on stations up for sale.

Comr. Ford raised question on sale process. He referred to "lengthy and full" processes required to be undergone by applicants in competitive hearing case, and wondered whether whole organization of "due process" is not being regulated by virtual pro forma transfer approvals. Other commissioners asked whether individual managers or home Corinthian office represent stations in negotiations with networks on affiliation terms (all Corinthian stations are CBS), and in setting editorial policy. Mr. Petersmeyer's answer was that local managers run stations.

Christal Stations Buy Playoff

All 18 radio stations represented by Henry I. Christal Co. will be linked in unique hookup to cover championship basketball game under contract announced Friday. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co. (through Ted Bates & Co., New York) will sponsor one-half of March 22 National Col- legiate Athletic Assn. championship game on all 18 stations, while Gulf Oil Co. (through Young & Rubican, New York) and H-A hair arranger (through R. Jack Scott Inc., Chicago) will share sponsorship of other half in markets in which they have distribution. The game will be played in Louisville and originated by WHAS there, one of Christal group.

Suit to Dissolve Lewislor Filed By Lewis, Mismanagement Charged

Tom Lewis, tv-radio vice president of C. J. LaRoche and Co., N. Y., seeks dissolution of Lewislor Films Inc., corporation owned jointly by Mr. Lewis, Loretta Young (his wife) and Robert E. Shewalter, in suit filed in Los Angeles Superior Court. Lewislor produces Loretta Young Show on NBC-TV for Procter & Gamble.

Complaint charges that Miss Young and Mr. Shewalter have controlled Lewislor to "complete exclusion" of Mr. Lewis and have been guilty of "persistent mismanage- ment, abuse of authority and unfairness." Mr. Lewis asserts that corporation had net profits of $19,030 in 1955, $39,178 in 1956 and $37,233 in 1957 but did not declare any dividends.

He alleged that after his resignation in May 1956 as director and officer of Lewislor at request of Miss Young and Mr. She- walter, they more than doubled their salaries, which complaint lists as $12,000 in 1955, $14,400 in 1956 and $32,293 in 1957.

WFMM (FM) Gets 10 Days Stay

FCC Friday told WFMM (FM) (Chicago) that it would hold up enforcing its multiplex order (requiring fm stations to multiplex functional music services after March 1) until 10 days after federal court in Washington rules on station's motion for preliminary injunction. WFMM, which has been battling Commission's multiplex policy, asked court to reverse Commission's 1957 order requiring all fm stations engaging in functional music services to multiplex that service, with March 1 as deadline. FCC had given WFMM to March 15 to ask for waiver of rule.

Winner gets six-month leave of absence for service with NBC newsman overseas as official NBC foreign correspondent. Mr. Leeds' award based on series done inside Leavenworth prison and carried on NBC's Monitor.

New RCA Superpower Transmitter

RCA has developed new superpower am radio broadcasting transmitter that permits stations to increase their power to maximum of 750 kw, E. C. Tracy, manager, broadcast and television equipment department, RCA Industrial Electronic Products, reported Friday. Transmitter will be available to stations as soon as FCC revises rules and regulations concerning top limit power of stations (now 50 kw), Mr. Tracy said.

WFBG Asks 5 kw Day on 1290 kc

WFBG Altoona, Pa., asked FCC Friday for permission to move from 1340 kc to 1290 kc and to boost power from 250 w to 5 kw daytime, 1 kw nighttime. Change in frequency and power would be accompanied by move of transmitter to new site between Holidaysburg and Altoona.

RACKETS PROBE SPECIALS

Catering to community interest, newly-formed Badger Television Network (WISN-TV Milwaukee, WFRV-TV Green Bay and WKOW-TV Madi- son), starting today (Mon.), will sponsor one-half of March 22 National Col- legiate Athletic Assn. championship game on all 18 stations, while Gulf Oil Co. (through Young & Rubican, New York) and H-A hair arranger (through R. Jack Scott Inc., Chicago) will share sponsorship of other half in markets in which they have distribution. The game will be played in Louisville and originated by WHAS there, one of Christal group.
Katzentine Further Defends Self Before House Oversight Committee

House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee Friday morning completed questioning of A. Frank Katzentine, losing applicant, in its investigation of FCC grant of ch. 10 Miami to National Airlines (earlier story, page 46). And, during grilling of Col. Katzentine by Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.), congressman charged subcommittee has only "scratched the surface" in developing all facts of case which already has led to resignation of Comr. Richard A. Mack.

Rep. Bennett charge came after subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) stated belief Rep. Bennett questioning was repetitious and reminded him other members were waiting to question witness. Michigan Republican countered he had more questions and defended his purposes in what they. Rep. Harris answered that he had had an hour to "scratch the surface," but told Rep. Bennett he was recognized to "start digging deep. . . ."

Col. Katzentine defended his contacting of several senators as only course remaining open to him to assure FCC decided case on merits. Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.) agreed but Reps. Bennett and Charles A. Wolverton (R-N.J.) accused Col. Katzentine of instigating behind-the-scenes fighting in case. Commenting on FCC move to reopen record, Rep. Wolverton said: "I'm inclined to think . . . they [FCC] may find that the pot is calling the kettle black."

Rep. Wolverton thought Col. Katzentine's admitted offer to help George C. McCon- naughey secure 1954 appointment to FCC at time ch. 10 application pending was "grossly improper."

Col. Katzentine defended his actions throughout ch. 10 case and he had obvious backing of some subcommittee members. He denied any "blackmail" involved in move by Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside to withdraw support for National. Mr. Whiteside received "not one thing . . . of any sort," Col. Katzentine stated Friday.

Rep. Joseph P. O'Hara (R-Minn.) asked Col. Katzentine if, in light of all testimony, he still contended Comr. Mack's vote was "pledged" for National. Witness replied question was "moot . . . [but] any reasonable analysis of what went on between Mack and Whiteside . . . would lead to that conclusion."

Rep. Harris Friday expressed concern over "rumors" FCC move to have ch. 10 case returned from Court of Appeals (see page 52) was dodge to escape questioning this week by subcommittee. "They can't get out from under by this action," chairman promised.

Two names in Thursday testimony by Frank W. Miller, Headley- Reed board chairman, Friday denied they talked to Mr. Miller about ch. 10 or played any role whatsoever in case. They were Rep. Joseph Martin (R-Mass.), House minority leader, and Eddie Higgins, administrative assistant to Sen. Theodore Green (D-R.I.).

First witness when hearings resume this morning (Mon.) at 10 a.m. in Caucus Room of Old House Office Bldg. will be Col. G. Gordon Moore, President Eisen- hower's brother-in-law. Col. Moore has been accused of "engineering" application for National.

Chairman Harris Friday said he hoped to complete the ch. 10 phase of probe this week.

O'Mahoney, Monroney Offer Bill To Ban Airplane Ownership in TV

Two Democratic senators—Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.) and A. S. (Mike) Monroney (Okla.)—Friday introduced bill which would prohibit airlines from owning tv station. In joint statement, senators said since FCC plans to re-examine grant of ch. 10 Miami to National Airlines, "it is apparent that Congress also ought to reconsider the matter from the legislative point of view."

Airlines should not be permitted to own tv station because they operate under CAB, while FCC controls broadcasters, senators stated. They continued:

"We think it is absurd for Congress to permit a law to stand under which an airline is eligible to receive a television license. . . . It could easily be that an airline with a tele- vision station as its subsidiary could obtain, for example, free advertising for itself which would be altogether unavailable to a competing airline. . . . We [Congress] created both the CAB and the FCC and we should be able by law to eliminate the complexities that have brought about the present absurdity in the National Airlines case."

Bill, as amendment to Sec. 310 of Com- munications Act, provides that no license for tv station shall be granted or held by airline or any person or corporation con- trolling airline. "Control" is defined as ownership of more than 30% of voting stock.

Sen. Monroney, chairman of Aviation Subcommittee of Senate Commerce Com- mittee, prior to February 1957 grant to National asked FCC to defer action on decision [GOVERNMENT, Feb. 4, 1957, et seq.] Committee objected to this and made grant in face of opposition of Sens. Monroney, Alan Bible (D-Nev.) and Frede- rick G. Payne (R-Me.).

Oklahoma senator soon after grant an- nounced plans to introduce anti-airline bill similar to measure placed on Senate floor Friday. He actually had bill drafted but it was never introduced.

BUSINESS BRIEFLY

Late-breaking items about broadcast business; for earlier news, see Adver- tisers & Agencies, page 32.

BREWERS DIVVY TAB • Three regional brewers understood signed with NBC-TV to sponsor in their distribution areas one- half of Major League Baseball weekly presentations (Sat. 2:30 p.m. to conclusion), starting April 5 and continuing for 26 weeks. Sponsors are Theo. Hamm Brewing Co., through Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis-St. Paul, for Midwest and Far West; Jackson Brewing Co., New Orleans, through Fitz- gerald Adv., New Orleans, for south central and southwest areas, and National Brewing Co., Baltimore, through W. B. Doner Co., Baltimore, for Southeast. NBC-TV trying to line up another beer advertiser for North- east.

CURTAIN FOR 'MATINEE' • Procter & Gamble, Cincinnati, understood considering dropping sponsorship of NBC-TV's Matinee Theatre (Mon.-Fri. 3-4 p.m.) and considering two half-hour serials in same time period. Matinee Theatre, network weekday live color tv drama series, would presumably be ended. Benton & Bowles and Com-pton Adv., N. Y., are agencies.

AFTER THE BOUTS • Bristol-Myers, N. Y., planning to sponsor quarter hour following the fights on NBC-TV Friday nights (10 p.m. to conclusion) with show tentatively titled Ringside. Program probably will start April 3. Agency is Doherty, Cliff- ford, Steers & Shenfield, N. Y.

Precision Timing for Columbia

Columbia Pictures Corp., New York, is seeking time at 12:15 a.m. March 27 on as many NBC-TV affiliates as it can in those markets where Columbia has playing dates for "The Bridge on the River Kwai." Reason for unique buy: Columbia seeks tie-in to Oscar awards telecast on the 26th, wants to get local commercial immediately following close of special program. Some 70 markets are reportedly involved. Meanwhile, Columbia's agency, Donahue & Coe, also servicing Loew's is considering using tv to push new Danny Kaye film, "Merry Andrew," instead of routine radio campaign. Reason here: "Andrew" has distinct children's appeal and D&Co feels daytime tv spots will pull in vacationing children.

Code Board Meets in D.C.

NAB Tv Code Review Board will meet March 24-25 in Washington, association announced Friday. William B. Quartan, WMTV Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is board chairman.

DOUBLE TROUBLE • That new "facet" being investigated by federal grand jury in Washington is Pittsburgh ch. 4 case (grand jury has been investigating ch. 10 Miami case for several weeks). Among witnesses called last week in ch. 4 proceedings were Earl F. Reed and Lee W. Eckels, identified with Television City Inc., corporation which survived following merger with WCAE Inc. (Hearest) and drop-out of three other applicants. New station, under Hearst operation but 50% ownership of Reed group, is expected to go on air in September. FCC had more or less openly urged merger to get third v on air.

* In ch. 10 Miami case, grand jury heard several additional witnesses last week and it is understood to be calling others, including several who have testified in House Oversight Committee inquiry into case. Among those who testified last week were H. Earl Barber, who was legal assistant to former Conr. Richard A. Mack, and Harry M. Plotkin, Washington attorney who formerly was associated with Paul A. Flader, in representation of A. Frank Katzenin, WKAT, one of unsuccessful applicants for ch. 10.

THAT CH. 10 • Preparatory to extending inquiry into Miami's controversial ch. 10 case, two staff investigators of House Oversight Subcommittee conferred last Tuesday with Comrs. Hyde, Bailey and Lee at their FCC offices. Chairman Doerfer was interviewed last Wednesday. All four had voted in ch. 10 case along with former Comrs. McConnaughey and Mack. Investigators were Joseph P. O'Hara Jr. and Francis X. McLaughlin.

Rep. Harris is making every effort to conclude House Oversight Subcommittee's hearings on Miami ch. 10 this week. And, Republican members are just as determined record will not be closed until several other witnesses not currently scheduled have been called. Dispute, following party lines, flared into open briefly during testimony of Col. Katzenin Friday and in-fighting promises to become more heated this week.

TURNABOUT • It's had no publicity yet, but NBC News has organized miniature wire service for newspapers, is currently serving about 10 papers and hopes soon to extend its string. It works this way: Each day NBC news department picks out a few stories with fresh or unusual angles from network's foreign and domestic correspondents. These are worked into approximately 1,500-word report which goes to affiliates in cities where NBC has such newspaper working arrangements, and affiliates relay to papers. It's pure promotion; NBC makes no charge for service, but newspapers credit NBC News and give bylines to NBC correspondents who originated stories.

* Application for transfer of remaining 50% stock interest in ch. 5 KRGB-TV Weslaco, Tex., from O. L. (Ted) Taylor to LBJ Co., of which Claudia T. Johnson, wife of Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, is president and principal stockholder, was filed with FCC late Friday. Because negative control only is involved (LBJ already owns 50%) transfer is routine and does not require formal FCC approval. Mr. Taylor receives $100,000 cash, plus 10-year consultancy and retains ownership of Taylor Radio & TV Corp., which is not licensed. LBJ Co. owns KTBX-AM TV Austin and 29% of KWTX-AM -TV Waco, which owns KBTX TV Bryan.

DOWN TO WIRE • It was two-man race for Richard A. Mack vacancy on FCC until about eleventh hour. Also considered along with Commission-somitee John S. Cross were Edward Jarrett, chief clerk of Senate Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee and veteran of quarter century service on Capitol Hill. Mr. Jarrett asked White House to withdraw his name from consideration Wednesday, March 5 and Mr. Cross' nomination went to Senate following Monday.

When Mr. Cross assumes his FCC commissionership, possibly by April 1, he will start with clean slate as to staff personnel. H. Earl Barber, Conr. Mack's legal assistant, already has resigned, and John E. Doune, engineering assistant, is being transferred to FCC staff as career employee. Mr. Cross will appoint his own three secretarial assistants.

MONEY FOR ETV • Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) plans hearings on educational TV by Senate Commerce Committee next week. Congress returns from Easter recess. Hearings would be begged on Senator's own bill (S 1759) to provide up to $1 million to each state for educational television but would be broadened to encompass much wider scope than provisions of bill. Sen. Magnuson feels that educational TV has not been overly successful because state legislators and educational groups have failed to provide funds.

Radio Advertising Bureau has won its first point with Lever Bros.—it will get "audience" with Pepsodent Div. Tentative meeting set for this week at Lever House in New York by T. E. Hicks, vice president in charge of marketing for Pepsodent, RAB vice president—general manager Jack Hardesty and Don McDonald, RAB's national account executive (drug field). Subject: Pepsodent's sudden turn-about in spot, from radio to TV, cancelling $2.5 million per year Pepsodent toothpaste radio spot budget in process [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, March 3].

DUBBING DUBBED • Latin tempears are flaring south of border as Mexican Actors Guild (ANDA) and state-run Dept. of Cine (films) are protesting use by Desilu and CBS-TV Film Sales of Spanish dubbing organization in Madrid for South American version of I Love Lucy series, which premiered March 6 on XEW-TV Mexico City under sponsorship of Bourjois perfumes. It reportedly met with unfavorable reaction because Madrid studio executives dubbed Castillian Spanish rather than An- dalusian (Mexican) Spanish. Protests concerning differences in accents may be merely pretext. Insiders say Mexican actors guild is unhappy over lack of reciprocity and also over fact that CBS is farming out dubbing assignments abroad rather than keeping them in this hemisphere.

Semi-monthly newsletter titled Views from the Front Office, has been created by George Vogel, newly-elected Mutual executive vice president, in which he will explain to employees network's operating philosophy and upcoming plans. First issue to be distributed shortly, is subtitled "One Stop Shopping" and likens local station to department store and network to central buying group for such stores. It points out central buying group (network) provides store (station) with ingredients it requires. Mr. Vogel asks employees to submit ideas for new trademark to replace "world's largest network" so that one will stress "significance" and "impact" of Mutual and points out suggestions will be placed before Mutual Affiliates' Advisory Committee at meeting March 28.

STATUS QUO • Don't look for replacement for James G. Riddell as president of WXZ-Am-TV Detroit, now that he's been elevated to executive vice president of ABC (effective July 1; see page 80). Plan is to have stations continue operation under John Pival, tv vp, and Harold Neal, radio vp. WXZ-Am-TV is subsidiary of AB-PT, of which ABC is division.

Resignation of Melville Shoe Corp. (Thom McAn) shoes, N. Y., account by Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, N. Y., announced Friday. Melville—with 800 nationwide retail shoe outlets—said to sell approximately $900,000—usually on d. stations—was with O.B.A.M. for less than four years. Split, effective June 30, said to have stemmed from disagreement on media strategy.
It is an established fact that over the years there has never been the slightest wavering in the high standards of WGAL-TV programming and public service. WGAL-TV viewers and advertisers have learned they can rely implicitly on continuing stability. WGAL-TV is housed in a new and modern building which provides the finest possible facilities for both black and white and color transmission.
