NO. 9 IN A SERIES TITANIUM

Pacemaker of progress is the Titanium Metals Corporation of America. Its Toronto, Ohio, plant—in the WTRF-TV area—is the world's first plant designed and instrumented specifically for rolling and forging Titanium mill shapes such as alloy sheets, plates and billets. The hundreds of highly skilled employees of TMCA at Toronto are more reasons why the WTRF-TV market is a super market for alert advertisers . . . a market of 425,196 TV homes, where 2 million people have a spendable income of $2½ billion annually.

* Titanium is the 20th Century metal that is stronger than aluminum, lighter than steel, and will withstand temperatures in excess of 800°; it is resistant to salt water, and practically immune to nitric acid, moist chlorine and most chemicals. Titanium is a vital metal in the planes, rockets and missiles program.

While other stations with stereotyped formats battle it out toe-to-toe for a share of audience, KRLD Radio continues to SCORE in an OPEN FIELD through audience preferred VARIETY PROGRAMMING — a tremendously important audience field, and a field it dominates almost exclusively. . . . With a 'round-the-clock schedule of excellent music, news, drama, sports, farm and big-name personality programming, CBS network shows and local programs, KRLD dominates with the BIG SCORE — the audience with the BUYING POWER. . . . While others split their audience approximately 50 different ways — (50 primarily record-playing stations operating in the KRLD coverage area) — no wonder more listeners are tuned to KRLD Radio than any other one station in Texas — (NCS #2, 1958). Check with KRLD or your Branham Company man and SCORE in the KRLD wide-open field — the field that's not cluttered with interference — a broad field stretching across Texas where an advertiser's dollar goes farther and reaps greater results.
MUST-BUY OUT • CBS-TV affiliates were thrown in tizzy by network's closed-circuit announcement Thanksgiving Eve that effective March 1 network would go to "minimum buy" base in lieu of "must-buy" which would have effect of shifting basic network buy from minimum specified stations to minimum dollars or unspecified stations. Must-buy, along with option time, was condemned in Barrow Network Study Report, now before FCC. ABC-TV uses "minimum buy" dollar base. CBS-TV affiliate spokesmen at Barrow hearing supported must-buy on ground that it gives affiliates in smaller markets opportunity to pitch for business.

* Hasle over option time report by FCC Network Bureau (p. 9) as one commissioner thinking aloud—along these lines: "Be damned if I'll be a party to ripping up industry. That's not to say nothing should be done about option time. Maybe deleting half-hour at night to allow for local, non-network programming... but by God, that's all!"

BOUNDARY DISPUTE • Clarification of areas of responsibility between NAB and Radio Advertising Bureau was purpose of hitherto unreported session in New York, Friday, Nov. 21, of elected officials of both groups with their paid executive heads—Harold Byrd, NAB president, and John F. Meagher, radio vice president, of NAB and Kevin B. Sweeney, president of RAB. Triggering session was exclusion by U. S. Census Bureau of radio count in 1960 census. Also debated was RAB's practice of holding its own regional meetings rather than scheduling joint regional meetings. Session, described as harmonious, also cited fact that many radio stations belong to one organization and not other, prompting demands for service foreign from each.

While Television Bureau of Advertisment was not directly involved in unprecedented session, broadcast executives did suggest there should be greater liaison among all three organizations, each operating with approximately $1 million annual budget. Present, aside from paid executives, were following broadcasters serving on NAB and RAB boards, or both: Kenyon Brown, KCOP-TV Los Angeles, who also owns several radio stations; Arthur Hull Hayes, president, CBS Radio; John S. Hayes, president, Washington Post Broadcast division (WTOP-AM-Washington, WJXT (TV) Jacksonville); Alex Reese, WFAA-AM-TV Dallas; Allen M. Woodall, WDAK Columbus, Ga., and J. Frank Jarman, WDNS Durham.

PASADENA SALE • Contract for acquisition of KXLA Pasadena from Loyal K. King, president-general manager and chief owner, by Donald R. Cooke, national station representative, for $900,000 (minus net quick assets of about $250,000) has been negotiated, with transfer application probably to be filed with FCC this week. Purchaser is 1110 Broadcasting Syndicate, Inc. (KXLA operates on 1110 kc with 10 kw but holds cp for 50 kw). Jack Kent Cooke, brother of Donald R. Cooke, negotiated transaction and holds seven year option to acquire stock. Jack Cooke is Canadian citizen and owner of CKEY Toronto, along with Toronto radio club and Frybrooke Ltd., magazine publishers, and would not exercise option unless he became U. S. citizen.

* Plans of some tv broadcasters to put local musical programs into syndication automatically have others seeing it short by notice from Harry Fox, trustee and agent for major music publishers, that they will have to pay synchronization rights for all music they use. These rights, not covered by BMI or ASCAP public performance licenses, have no set scale but are matter for individual negotiation. Price suggested to one broadcaster-syndicator was $25 per song per station, or $125 per song for unlimited distribution.

YEAS AND NAYS • While rumblings of further defections continue in wake of WJR Detroit's decision to drop CBS Radio, it appears that no stations who signed up short by notice from Harry Fox, trustee and agent for major music publishers, that they will have to pay synchronization rights for all music they use. These rights, not covered by BMI or ASCAP public performance licenses, have no set scale but are matter for individual negotiation. Price suggested to one broadcaster-syndicator was $25 per song per station, or $125 per song for unlimited distribution.

FCC Plans • FCC general counsel's office prepared to give Commission an opinion on whether and how it should handle Pittsburgh ch. 4 case—now that House Legislative Oversight Committee has spread bries charges far and wide. Best bet is that staff will urge Commission to investigate—as it has in all ex-parte cases publicized on Capitol Hill before.

ADVICE WANTED • If network broadcasters have any ideas on how radio spectrum should be managed or administered, they should send them to Telecommunications Advisory Committee, c/o Office of Civilian & Defense Mobilization, Washington 25, D. C. That is retort of one member of committee who bridled at reports broadcasters are uneasy because they aren't represented on committee. Committee is looking for ideas from all segments of telecommunications industry, he emphasized.

FCC's "Overemphasis" • FCC's "overemphasis" on broadcasting has caught eye of President's Telecommunications Advisory Committee, appointed two weeks ago to recommend clean up of radio spectrum management and administration (GOVERNMENT, Nov. 24). Interest became apparent when committee, in first meeting, rejected out of about 65 items on last week's FCC agenda, 60 were on broadcast matters.

CBS TO ABC • Look for announcement soon that Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy, is moving—within sponsorship by A. E. Staley Mfg. Co. intact—from CBS Radio to ABC Radio. Negotiations have been in progress several months, stemming to considerable extent from fact that since Peter Lind Hayes Show, with Miss Healy as frequent guest, started on ABC-TV (Mon.-Fri., 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.) they've been in competition with ABC's similar shows. Radio show, now on 12:05-15 p.m. Monday through Friday, is slated to move to 10-10:30 a.m., also across board, upon transfer to ABC Radio in January. Agency for Staley (starches, syrups) is Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, New York.

One Big Talent Union for Radio-Tv—That's a strong possibility as Screen Actors Guild votes for study of merger with American Federation of Television-Radio Artists. Door also open to other unions. Proponents cite rise of television and the videotape issue as factors that dictate feasibility of such an action. Page 39.

"Fortune" Misfortune — Television leaders counterattack against magazine's report on tv, charging bias and misrepresentation. ABC-TV disagrees with claim that "Fortune" was out to maze networks, but says piece was "brilliant distortion" and "clearly out of focus" nonetheless. Page 47.

Tension, Dissension on Network Study—Commission tense as it gives once-over to proposed draft of network study staff on option time. Charges fly (internally) that proposal includes judgments leading to inference option time must go. Proposed findings due to be submitted to Justice Dept. and some commissioners heatedly insist nothing in report gives Justice Dept. peg on which to hang antitrust opinion; let Attorney General make his own judgment, is feeling. Tv Promotion Climbs Toward $1 Million—Early NAB figures show 72 member tv stations in U.S. have set aside more than $836,000 worth of time in which to run NAB-produced, animated tv film spots in 13-week campaign to tell viewers how tv has affected American life. Page 86.

No Hard Liquor Ads in Arizona—At least that's the stand of the state broadcasters' association which terms its self-imposed taboo as being in the public interest. Page 86.

Muse in the Market Place—Many television administrators are not ready to admit that their business is an art form, says Ernest P. Zobian, products vice president of the Vick Chemical Co. It's time, he suggests, for administrators to make room for artists and for tv to take some lessons from older art forms—theatre's road-show tests, for instance. With videotape available, tv should start small-scale tape tryouts immediately, Mr. Zobian urges in MONDAY MEMO. Page 109.

Ten years ago today this dime put us in business.

An unidentified viewer used it to telephone us that he enjoyed our premiere performance, planned to buy his own TV set and asked to try any products we would advertise. We like to think that he is one of the 2½ million Central New Yorkers in our audience today.

Yes, ten years ago today WHEN Television signed on the air, proved it had a buying audience and the Meredith broadcasting family was born.

Perhaps this birthdate dime may mean as much to you, too. We know it will if you use it to place a collect call to Fred Meredith, our commercial manager, or to the Katz Agency.

KM&J, D&C Combine Facilities in N. Y., Chicago, Los Angeles

Keyes, Madden & Jones, Chicago, and Donahue & Co Inc., New York, are announcing today (Dec. 1) agreement under which two agencies will combine facilities in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles "in order to expand services to list of national advertisers with total billings of $150 million." It was stressed that arrangement, effective Jan. 1, 1959, does not constitute merger of two agencies.

E. J. Churchill, president of D&C, and Freeman Keyes, chairman of board of KM&J, said agreement enables each agency to retain "individual identity and corporate structure" while "achieving maximum advantages of their total facilities." Under arrangement, Keyes, Madden & Jones in Chicago will continue to service its accounts and also assume responsibility for accounts presently serviced out of D&C's Chicago office, including Norge, York and Presto. Similarly, D&C will service its own accounts in New York and Los Angeles, as well as those currently handled by KM&J in those offices.

Multiple Owner Not Foreclosed Court Says in Upholding Grant

How far FCC can go in favoring applicant with existing broadcast properties over newcomer in light of diversification of communications media and anti-monopoly policies of Commission was spelled out last week by U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington.

Three judge court, by split vote, upheld FCC's 1956 grant of Knoxville, Tenn., ch. 10 to WBIR Inc. Denied was appeal by Tennessee Television Inc., one of two unsuccessful applicants in three-year-old case. Other was Scripps-Howard Radio Inc. (WNOX Knoxville). WBIR-TV Knoxville has been operating since August 1956, with CBS affiliation.

Tennessee TV, comprising local businessmen headed by Guilford Glazer, claimed FCC preferences for WBIR in experience, past performance and programming plans were based on multiple ownership. WBIR is owned by Gilmore N. Nunn and associates and 30% by Taft family (WKRC-AM-TV Cincinnati, Ohio).

Circuit Judge Charles Fahy, for himself and Judge Warren E. Burger, said that choice of WBIR "does not rest simply upon its strength in matters that might be attributable to concentration of media of communication, but in good part upon the relative weakness of appellant in other respects."

Barter Judge Fahy declared: "The diversification of media is communication that would result were the permit granted to appellant [Tennessee Television] does not on the record so clearly warrant selection of appellant in the public interest as to outweigh other public benefits of the award to intervenor [WBIR], at least to a degree that requires substitution of our judgment for that of the Commission."

Judge Fahy also said that modification of ch. 10 grant was not substantial enough to infer that it is "new" grant or "significantly" affected comparative qualifications of applicants. After securing grant, WBIR asked for and received permission to move transmitter site and studies in Knoxville.

Disenterting vigorously, Circuit Judge David L. Bazelon maintained that Commission has nullified diversification doctrine "by thus attributing to these by-products of concentration a greater degree of importance than it attributes to the traditional and antipodal preference for decentralization of ownership of the mass media of communication. . . ."

TvB Clinic to Spotlight Auto Tv

More than 100 advertiser and agency executives are expected to attend Television Bureau of Advertising's "automation" clinic, presentation tomorrow (Dec. 2) at Detroit's Statler Hilton Hotel. New presentation traces relationship between automotive industry and tv.

TvB President Norman E. Cash and National Sales Vice President John Sheehan will introduce three auto dealers who will relate how tv works for them. They are John Spitzer, "World's Largest Dodge Dealer," from Elyria, Ohio; Dan Rohyans, one of top 10 Ford dealers in U.S. from Columbus, Ohio, and James Belcher, leading Delaware County (Pennsylvania) Buick dealer.

Denise of WSIZ Brings Protest From Douglas, Ga., Businessmen

Death of WSIZ Douglas, Ga., has brought formal complaint to FCC from local merchants and citizens. WSIZ ceased operation Nov. 14, asked FCC to cancel license and delete call letters because of financial difficulties. Telegram wired to FCC by local citizens protested close demise of WSIZ on grounds no prior notice was given to listeners and advertisers, station not offered for sale to local citizens and "station's vital part in unprecedented growth and industrial development of Douglas during the past year." Telegram was signed by 33 local businessmen.

Daytimer, on 1310 kc (with 1 kw), began operating in September 1957. Station is owned by Marshall W. Rowland and wife. Original grant was protested to no avail by WDMG Douglas on economic injury grounds.

In announcing closing in paid newspaper advertisement, Mr. Rowland stated that in his opinion there is no "reasonable" opportunity for second in Douglas.

Papers filed with FCC show that WDMG bought equipment and physical assets of WSIZ including $7,000 liability for about $30,000.

BACKFIRE IN MIAMI

Can anti-tv newspaper brochure backfire? Apparently that's what's happening in Miami where News (Cox paper) this week will rebut Herald (Knight paper) brochure that maintained Herald delivered 87% more customers per ad dollar than WTVJ (TV) Miami. News is slated to distribute to advertisers and agencies its own brochure stating that WTVJ "thoroughly and accurately" revealed "error" in Herald study when station recently fought paper's claim [PROGRAMS & PROMOTIONS, Nov. 24] that daily newspaper is not only "effective" media "available" for advertisers and that tv is very important force.

Paradox: Cox and Knight principals each has 42.5% interest in Biscayne Television Corp. (WCKR and WCKT [TV] Miami).

AFTRA, Networks Near Agreement

In New York, negotiators for American Federation of Television & Radio Artists and radio-tv networks scheduled formal meeting Friday evening (Nov. 28) in effort to reach agreement on new contract. It is reported that parties have reached agreement largely on "money matters" but have to resolve "certain policy matter" (see story, page 89).

WFRV-TV Switches to NBC

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME

Transplanting musical comedy from the theatre to television is a praiseworthy idea that has mostly failed in the execution. The stage-full of colorfully clad chorus boys and girls whirling in a gay and exciting dance routine overwhelms the audience with a barrage of color, motion and sound that is tremendously effective in the theatre but is pretty much lost on the 21-inch home screen, particularly the black-and-white screen which is still standard equipment in most homes.

"Kiss Me, Kate," the Nov. 20 presentation of Hallmark of Fame was the exception that proves the rule. Gay, rollicking and tuneful, it was 90 minutes of almost pure delight to ear and eye (even in monochrome). Chief credit, of course, goes to Sam and Bella Spewack's play-within-a-play adaptation of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" and to Cole Porter's gay words and music.

But the tv show would not have been the success it was without the expert touch of Producer-Director George Schaefer or the outstanding performances of the singing stars, Patricia Morison and Alfred Drake. They performed as ably for tv's closeups as they did onstage during the play's long run on Broadway, looking and acting their high-spirited roles to the hilt and singing with a clarity that delivered each clever word of Mr. Porter's lyrics as well as the beauty of his tunes to the audience at home.

Julie Wilson, as the soubrette, belted out her songs, particularly the provocative "True to You in My Fashion," as if she were trying to prove that decibels are stronger than sex. Harvey Lembeck and Jack Klugman won some laughs with their performances as a pair of gunmen. Bill Lawrence did the little he had to do very well and Paul McGrath was perfect as the stuffy cabinet member, in one hilarious scene with Mr. Drake and Miss Morison. Ernest Flatt's staging of the musical numbers left nothing to be desired.

Production costs: Approximately $210,000, plus release right charges.
Sponsored by Hallmark Cards through Foote, Cone & Belding; broadcast in color and black-and-white on NBC-TV, Nov. 20, 9-10:30 p.m.

THE RED SKELETON SHOW

The slapstick comedy of the silent movie days, when Charlie Chaplin, Ben Turpin and the Keystone Cops convulsed audiences with their rough-and-tumble antics, was brought back Tuesday (Nov. 25) in Red Skelton's Thanksgiving show. Except for an opening song-and-dance routine, the half-hour was done entirely in pantomime, with Art Gilmore, off camera, providing the verbal information that used to come from subtitles.

Red, it goes almost without saying, was great in the role of Freddy the Freeloader, a hungry derelict on the national fast food day. His ingenious but fruitless attempts to obtain the price of a Thanksgiving dinner were masterpieces of burlesque, topped only by Freddie's even more hilarious dilemma when fate hands him a series of turkey-and-trimmings repasts which he cannot refuse. Isabel Randolph, William Frawley, Henry Kelker, Ray Kellogg, James Burke, Dick Crockett, Dick Elliott and Ann Dore played their silent roles in appropriate low comedy fashion.

All in all, this was a fine holiday romp, provoking laughter more hearty than usually greets tv fare.

Production costs: Approximately $50,000.
Sponsored by Pet Milk Co. through Gardner Adv. Co., alternating with S. C. Johnson & Son through Foote, Cone & Belding, on CBS-TV, Tuesdays, 9:30-10 p.m.
Started Sept. 23.

RESTLESS GUN

It was bad enough for western posses to find citizens dead from one shot in the back, but when the victims resembled sieves, that was just "No Way to Kill," the title of the Nov. 24 episode of NBC-TV's Restless Gun.

The psychotic killer of John Falvo's fast-paced script set out for revenge on the men who had caused him to lose his right arm during a gun battle eight years earlier. Now, he has escaped prison and returned to the scene of his capture. Quicker than you can say "Comb the hills, men," the villain, convincingly played by Henry Corden, has killed two men by blasting off their right arms. His vengeance still not complete, Lefty nabs as a hostage the young son of the Restless one's best friend, recently deceased. Child hostages are not generally acceptable devices in television, but in this case viewers are confident that John Payne will not only save the boy, but send the mad villain to his demise.

So much is predictable, but the hero's method is more remarkable. He comes up with a nifty psychological ruse that catches killer Corden flat-footed. Mr. Payne laughs when Corden tells him to hold out his right arm. Then he drops his jacket to reveal an empty right shirtsleeve. The trick works, and as the star makes a lightning draw from under his shirt, Corden falls from a single, clean shot.

Western addicts are tough hombres to please, but even the most calloused easy-chair cowboy must have been satisfied with this one.

Production costs: Approximately $37,000.
Sponsored by Procter & Gamble through Leo Burnett, and Sterling Drug through Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample on NBC-TV Mon. 8-8:30 p.m. Started Sept. 22. Episode of Nov. 24, "No Way to Kill," written by John Falvo.

Executive producer: John Payne; producer: David Dorfport; director: Edward Ludwig; assistant directors: Edward Ludwig and Dolph M. Zimmer; writers: various.

ABC TELEVISION
OUR RESPECTS

to John Dexter Langlois

and

Cyril Ouellette Langlois Jr.

John and Cy Langlois Jr. consider themselves lucky fellows. There are two sons to fill the ample shoes of their late father, Cy Langlois Sr., a founder in 1935 of Lang-Worth Feature Programs, New York, pioneer radio transcription company [OUR RESPECTS, March 25, 1946].

The brothers vary in temperament and appearance. Their friends and business associates say that John, the older son (above, left), physically resembles Cy Sr., who was built solidly. Cy Jr., on the other hand (above, right), is a trim young man, but like his father, is more outgoing and demonstrative than John.

"We get along fine," John says, "because we keep out of each other's hair."

John is president of the parent company, Lang-Worth Features, and Cy is president of Langlois Filmusic Inc., which was formed three years ago to supply background music for feature, industrial, educational and documentary films and TV commercials. Each is a vice president of the other's company and each also is a vice president of another Langlois enterprise, Metropolitan Sound Service, New York, a recording company. The latter organization is headed by Winifred O'Keefe, who began her career with Lang-Worth in 1935 as secretary to the late Mr. Langlois (he died in June 1957) and now is a vice president of the parent company.

Lang-Worth is regarded as the backbone of the Langlois enterprises. Its present structure mirrors the changes in the radio industry over the past decade. Originally Lang-Worth functioned primarily as a musical transcription library firm to radio stations and also as a producer and distributor of syndicated radio programs. The advent of the long-playing album and the growing practice among some recording companies of providing stations with records at little or no cost convinced the Langlois family two years ago that the company had to adopt a new approach. It decided on a new service called "Radio Hucksters and Airlifts," which supplies local radio stations with 20 categories of commercials.

The service consists essentially of a library of transcribed commercials, covering 20 categories of local businesses (oil, automobiles, retail stores, food etc.), and is designed to help the radio station sell the local advertiser by offering professionally-written jingles that often cannot be produced on the local level. John reports happily that business this year is expected to be 22% ahead of 1957.

Cy confesses ruefully that Langlois Fiblmusic is faring "about the same" as last year. He believes the recession still is in force during the first half of 1958 hurt the film business generally but he is confident that the current business uprising will be reflected in an improved picture the beginning of next year. Many of Filmusic's clients, he points out, are business firms which order background music on a licensed basis for their industrial films or TV films and commercials and programs.

Metropolitan Sound Service serves as the common link between Cy's company and John's organization, recording background music for the former and commercials for the latter. In addition, Metropolitan records for many of the well-known labels and for organizations that require jingles or commercials.

John Dexter Langlois was born in Detroit on Dec. 16, 1918. The family moved to Great Neck, L.I., when he was 3. He attended New York U. in 1938-39 and left college to accept a position in the sub-contracting section of the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Bethpage, L.I. He remained with Grumman until the end of 1945 when he joined Lang-Worth as a salesman. He was named sales manager in 1950, secretary-treasurer in 1952 and president in 1956, when the elder Mr. Langlois went into semi-retirement.

John married the former Ruth Kennedy, a classmate at Great Neck High School, in November 1941. They live in East Williston, L.I., with their three children—John Jr., 16, Jeanne, 13, and James, 5. John is a member of the Radio & Television Executives Society and the Hempstead (L.I.) Golf Club.

Cyril Ouellette Langlois Jr. was born in New York City on March 30, 1922, and was raised in Great Neck. He attended the U. of Rochester for three years and left in 1942 to accept a post with the engineering department of Fisher Body Div., General Motors Corp., Detroit. He remained with Fisher Body until January 1946 when he joined the family business. Initially, Cy was involved with production, then moved to sales, and became head of Langlois Filmusic three years ago.

Cy, who is unmarried, lives in Massapequa, L.I. He enjoys boating, water skiing and hunting, and has a farm in Rutland, Vt. He is a member of RTES.

MUSCLE WITH BIG HEART • A large spot order for WVNA Tuscumbia, Ala., from Muscle Shoals TV Cable Corp. was accompanied by a request that the announcements plug the State Employment Service’s Hire-the-Physically-Handicapped organization. The cable company sponsored a Hire-the-Handicapped dance-banquet Nov. 7 that was promoted heavily by WVNA. Proceeds from the event went to Tri-Cities Cheer Club, a group that is doing social work for the physically handicapped. As a result of the dance two handicapped girls were hired fulltime. Muscle Shoals also employs handicapped workers. WVNA is distributing hundreds of painted signs promoting the cause.

TOTTING-UP TOYS • A 14-hour telethon was conducted by WOOD-AM-TV Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 22-23 in the station’s fourth annual Toys for Tots campaign. The aim of the promotion is to collect 100,000 new or used toys for distribution to needy children at Christmas. As in previous years, the local Marine Corps reserve unit manned telephone switchboards to take pledges of toys from callers and Shell service stations acted as “drop zones” for toys. The WOOD stations’ telethon at the Grand Rapids Civic Auditorium was emceed for the fourth year by Frank Sisson, WOOD-TV account executive.

WIVES’ BAZAAR • CKNW Vancouver-New Brunswick, B.C., staff wives sponsored an “Orphans’ Bazaar” to benefit the local Orphans’ Fund. Listeners contributed over $5,000 in merchandise, and national manufacturers and retailers provided prizes. At the end of the two day affair, $12,000 was added to the more than $200,000 that CKNW has raised over a 14-year period for the Orphans’ Fund.

CRIPPLE BENEFIT • WPSD-TV Paducah, Ky., area Lions clubs collected $40,000 for the benefit of crippled children through its Telethon of Stars. Personalities appearing on the 12-hour marathon show included George deWitt, Anita Wood, Dorothy Olsen, and Anita Bryant. Crippled Children’s Centers in Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri will share in the proceeds.

EXPENSIVE JACK-O-LANTERNS • WKY Oklahoma City d.j. Chuck Boyle raised money for the local United Fund by asking for listener donations of pumpkins, and then auctioning the 14 he received. The pumpkins went to a local children’s home, and $261 went to the Oklahoma City United Fund.

SAVINGS FILM • Screen Gems Inc., N. Y., under a grant from the AFL-CIO, has produced a special episode of SG’s Father Knows Best series, which will be used by the Treasury Dept. in 1959 for its sales campaign on behalf of U. S. Savings Bonds. The program, which will feature such regular cast members as Robert Young and Jane Wyatt, will not be telecast on CBS-TV but will be distributed for presentation before schools, churches, clubs and industrial establishments.

5,000 WATTS ON 1310 CBS
A CORINTHIAN STATION
Responsibility in Broadcasting
In New York's thriving upstate region, Syracuse is the vital commercial link between the Hudson Valley and the Great Lakes. Throughout the heavily populated Syracuse area, the 5,000-watt voice of WNDR has a commanding lead in audience—and in selling power. It is the only 24-hour station in Syracuse—the No. 1 Station in the keystone market by a wide margin.

5000 WATTS OF SELLING POWER!

as the No. 1 test station in America's No. 1 test market

Currently two of America's leading advertisers are engaged in national campaigns based on the conclusive results of WNDR's "Operation Test."

Many cities talk "test-market"—but few can meet the rigid test-market requirements of big agencies. Heading the limited list is Syracuse, for several reasons:

True cross-section—The Syracuse market has typical proportions of town and country, of white-collar groups, of skilled and semi-skilled workers.

Effective coverage—WNDR alone delivers the Syracuse market. It is the only 24-hour Syracuse station—with a long lead in audience and in sales-power.

Well isolated—Syracuse is a key distribution center, sufficiently isolated from the effect of activity in other markets.

Trade contracts—in every major field, WNDR has a close working relationship with distributors...vital in getting prompt, accurate sales records.

call your H-R man now!
By the dawn's early light...

On January 27, 1958, in a grim postscript to Sputnik, President Eisenhower said: "National security requires that prompt action be taken to improve and expand the teaching of science..." Only one high school student in four was studying physics, only one in three taking chemistry. Since 1950, the number of qualified high school science teachers had dropped an alarming 53%.

On October 6, 1958, the National Broadcasting Company, in partnership with leading American educational and industrial organizations*, undertook prompt action by launching the world's largest class. The subject: Atomic Age Physics. Telecast five times weekly from 6:30-7:00 a.m., NBC's Continental Classroom exposed a priceless national asset—the knowledge and teaching skill of eminent physicist Harvey E. White—to teachers and students throughout America. And strange things began to happen...

As dawn broke over America, television sets flicked on in homes, in fraternity lounges, in high school and college classrooms, in dormitories, in engineering laboratories. In rapid sequence, 144 stations cleared time for the course; 243 colleges and universities offered full academic credit; 27,000 students mailed in 50 cents each for a syllabus; an estimated 270,000 Americans began sitting in with Dr. White and his students on their home sets.

Dr. James R. Killian, Jr., White House scientific advisor, considers Continental Classroom "truly a bold educational experiment in the nation's interest." How far can it go, in one two-semester stroke, toward erasing the most perilous educational lag this nation faces? No one is certain. But the only television network ever to use its commercial facilities to create a national classroom is certain that it is worth finding out.

ONE BIG TALENT UNION IN TV-RADIO?

• Still big obstacles in the way, but it's strong possibility
• SAG votes study to find out if and how to merge with AFTRA
• Proponents say rise of tv, videotape are forcing the issue

The annual membership meeting of the Screen Actors Guild voted last week for an impartial study by an independent research firm to determine the feasibility of a merger of SAG and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. Between them, the two unions represent virtually all the organized performers in television and radio except musicians.

Immediately after the SAG meeting took its action, members of both unions began wondering whether it was a move toward merger or a delaying action designed to postpone amalgamation if not to prevent it. There were arguments on both sides.

The resolution which was adopted by the SAG meeting on recommendation of the union's board sounded pro-merger in parts. It authorized the "employment of an impartial research organization to make a thorough study of the feasibility of merger with AFTRA and to develop possible merger plans for consideration by the membership." No specific plan now exists, the SAG board pointed out.

But elsewhere the resolution contained references which some of its critics thought were devices to obstruct a merger.

The resolution pledged SAG to invite the other unions in the Associated Actors & Artists of America, the AFL-CIO parent union of all America unions, to join SAG and AFTRA in an expansion of the survey if they are "interested in the possibility of a more extensive merger."

A broad merger of that kind has been studied before. Each time the studies have run up against an insurmountable stumbling block, the diversity of performers represented by all the AAAA unions. Opera singers (members of the American Guild of Musical Artists) have protested they have little in common with acrobats (members of the American Guild of Variety Artists).

Several years ago two universities, Cornell and U.C.L.A., conducted a study looking toward a merger of five branches of the AAAA, AFTRA, AGVA, AGMA, Actors Equity and Chorus Equity. After a year's investigation, the universities came up with a plan that would enable the members of all five unions to carry a single card. But not one of the five accepted the plan.

One reason for the failure of that and other big merger plans is that they have usually called for increased dues, a prospect that strikes members as illogical. They believe a combination of two or more unions into one should effect savings in overhead. As a Hollywood actress lamented last week: "In recent months my mail has been full of appeals from AFTRA and SAG to support their opposing views about jurisdiction about videotape, and my dues are helping to pay the cost on both sides.

"It's like paying for both armies in a war. It's unfair. More than that it's ridiculous. If I've got to belong to a union to work in live tv and to a union to work in tv films, why can't they both be the same union and why shouldn't my dues in that single union be less than I'm now paying to SAG and AFTRA?"

The answer to that question, at least as far as previous merger plans in the entertainment field are concerned, is that the mergers would call for the employment of more top union executives rather than fewer. At present, the officials of each union and their executive staffs are presumably kept busy with the problems of their members.

(If they aren't, if any of them is drawing an unearned pay check, it's a matter to be settled with the union and one that won't be solved by a merger.)

If these officials are needed now to handle the union's problems, they'll still be needed.

THE SIZE AND INFLUENCE OF AFTRA AND SAG

AFTRA's membership • It has 12,512 dues-paying members (average during 1958), of whom 5,000 (39%) are in New York, 5,200 (41%) in Hollywood and the rest (20%) elsewhere.

AFTRA's jurisdiction • It has contracts with the four radio networks, the three television networks, 800 transcription companies which produce radio programs and commercials, 300 record companies and with radio and television stations (the number of which AFTRA won't disclose).

AFTRA's fees and dues • Initiation fee is $200 but can be cut by as much as half for a performer who also belongs to another union allied with the Associated Actors & Artists of America (parent of performer unions). The performer deducts from AFTRA initiation up to $100 of initiation fee paid to the other union. Dues are on sliding scale from $30 a year for members earning up to $2,000 annually to $134 for those earning over $50,000. (Members who pay full dues to another AAAA union pay only half-dues to AFTRA.)

SAG's membership • It has 12,457 paid-up members as of last Oct. 31, of whom 8,726 (70%) are in Hollywood, 2,960 (24%) in New York and the rest (6%) elsewhere.

SAG's jurisdiction • It has contracts with 484 theatrical film companies, supplemental tv contracts covering tv entertainment films with 529 companies: tv commercial agreements with 353, and industrial film contracts with 400. The tv commercial contract is also accepted, by letters of adherence, by 337 advertising agencies.

SAG's fees and dues • Initiation fee is $200 but, like AFTRA's, can be cut by as much as $100 for performers who have paid initiation fees to other AAAA unions. Dues are $2 a month.

AFTRA-SAG overlap • AFTRA officials estimate that at least 50% of AFTRA members are also members of SAG. SAG officials claim the figure is lower, that dual memberships run to no more than 3,000-3,500.
after a merger. The very fact of the merger calls for a new set of union officials, a sort of super board to coordinate the operations of the executive in handling the various employment of the various type of members. A general merger of all talent unions would still require officials to handle the problems of each branch of the entertainment business, plus new officials to make overall decisions.

This may be so for a merger broad enough to include both opera and circuses, but it's not necessarily so in the case of AFTRA and SAG, according to proponents of the mergers they say, are two unions whose memberships overlap to an appreciable degree with perhaps 50% of their combined membership holding cards in both unions. And, the argument continues, there is a similar overlap in the problems of the two unions.

AFTRA represents its members in radio and recording and SAG represents its members in theatrical motion pictures, but an increasing amount of employment for both AFTRA and SAG members is in tv where a single contract covering work in both live and film telecasts might be better for both performers than the present arrangement of separate contracts separately negotiated by separate unions.

How Videotape Figures

The matter is brought to a head by the advent of videotape. This new process is not exactly live, not exactly film, but it is definitely television and it seems destined to become a major field for employment for tv performers. Should these performers be represented by AFTRA or by SAG for their work in this new medium? By both, with the division of responsibility? Or by a single union, with jurisdiction over all employment of talent for material recorded on videotape? And if a single union, should it be SAG, AFTRA, or a new union?

At present, employment on programs or commercials at stations or networks falls under the jurisdiction of AFTRA. To date, this has constituted most of the VTR employment. But, in its new contract for tv commercials on film, signed by 353 companies producing such commercials and accepted, through letters of adherence, by 337 advertising agencies SAG included taped as well as filmed commercials [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, March 24]. This traditional decision of union jurisdiction might have continued without undue friction had not a new element been introduced—a company whose sole activity is the production of tv commercials on videotape.

Videotape meetings last spring, SAG firmly—publicly—rejected what it termed an AFTRA proposal for "joint administration of any 'grey' area in the field of taped tv commercials." AFTRA said that was not its proposal, that it had suggested a joint AFTRA-SAG committee to "determine which of the two unions' contracts would cover those studios as they developed [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, April 14]."

The following month [LEAD STORY, May 12], SAG issued an intelligence report that accused AFTRA of first having attempted to seize jurisdiction over all tv and now, after failing there, of seeking to invade SAG's jurisdictional field in videotape.

"It is the guild's belief," SAG stated, "that there is a natural line of demarcation in the field of taped commercials—the first problem to be faced in the tape area. That line is that the live producer (networks and tv stations) using their tape facilities should continue with AFTRA. Studios making commercials on film or tape should fall within the realm of SAG and its contract. True, this will give to AFTRA the overwhelming majority of tape work as it is now being done. However, it is a logical division, based on historical background, and it is true."

SAG went on to recommend that a special committee of its members meet with a similar AFTRA committee to explore this problem. When AFTRA rejected that suggestion, SAG came up with another one: That AFL-CIO President George Meany be asked to arbitrate the dispute, with both unions agreeing in advance to abide by his decision [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, May 26]. Again AFTRA refused. Instead of negotiations or arbitrations, AFTRA went to the NLRB with the petition for an election to determine jurisdiction over the whole field of videotape [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, June 16].

The hearing is still in progress with SAG and the tv networks opposing AFTRA's request for an election.

Meanwhile, videotape problems have brought contract negotiations between AFTRA and the tv networks to the verge of a breakdown—and a strike—more than once during the past few weeks. AFTRA's network contract expired Nov. 15; the union's major locals have given the board strike authority and AFTRA members last week were working at the networks under a still forbidding arrangement while contract talks continued (see story, page 89).

The SAG Meeting

The annual membership meeting of the Screen Actors Guild in Beverly Hills, Calif., last Tuesday took up other matters in addition to the resolution on AFTRA merger (see above).

SAG Treasurer George Chandler reported that residuals on filmed tv shows collected and distributed to SAG members in the 12 months ending Oct. 31 amounted to a record $2,711,134, bringing the total residual distribution to date to $7,501,753. This figure does not include money collected by the guild for the sale of post-1948 theatrical films to television, nor the millions paid distributors to guild members in use payments on tv commercials.

Claims for contract violations during the year collected for members totaled $209,483, bringing the total of such collections from the time of the guild's first contract in 1937 to $2,027,887. Despite heavy special expenditures for health and welfare survey and the fight against the right-to-work proposition on the California ballot, the guild wound up its fiscal year with a surplus of $3,621, bringing the SAG total assets to $820,185.

Howard Keel was installed as SAG president, succeeding Leon Ames, who continues as a board member. Other new SAG officers include MacDonald Carey, first vice president; James Lydon, second vice president; Rosemary DeCamp, third vice president; Robert Keith, recording secretary; George Chandler, treasurer; Leon Ames, secretary; Betsy Drake, Richard Crittenden, Thomas Gomez, John Hodiak, Joe Kellet, William Lundigan, Gene Raymond, Ronald Reagan, George Sowards, Bert Stevens, James Whitmore, directors for three-year terms; Ann B. Davis, director for two-year term; Douglas Kennedy, Ernie Kovacs, Millburn Stone, directors for one year terms.

Merger Study Resolution

Here is the full text of the merger study resolution voted by the meeting:

"Whereas, consideration of merger without a specific plan for merger is impossible, and there is at present no merger plan which the guild board could submit to the membership;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that

1. The board of directors of Screen Actors Guild recommends to the membership that it authorize the employment of an impartial research organization to make a thorough study of the feasibility of merger with AFTRA, and to develop possible merger plans for consideration by the membership;

2. The guild shall invite AFTRA to join with the guild in the proposed survey;

3. Other branches of the Four A's [Associated Actors and Artiste of America, AFL-CIO International parent union of all American actors unions] interested in the possibility of a more extensive merger will be invited to join in an exchange of views with the SAG-AFTA survey;

4. The costs of such survey shall be shared equally by the participating branches."
DURGIN: RESTORE BUYING BASICS

- Charges tv agencies that are neglecting media fundamentals
- Tells RTES that program departments are getting most say

The larger of the tv-minded advertising agencies were charged last week with moving away from "media fundamentals" in their buying decisions.

The assertion was made by Don Durgin, NBC-TV vice president and national sales manager, in a talk Tuesday (Nov. 26) at the Radio & Television Executives Society's timebuying and selling seminar in New York.

Mr. Durgin said he analyzed the top 20 of the 50 agencies in network tv billing as reported in Broadcasting [LEAD STORY, Nov. 24] and found that by his "own estimate" in seven of the top ten agencies in tv billing, "the tv program department has dominant control."

The media department, said Mr. Durgin, dominates in only one of those agencies and "in two the decisions are usually joint program-media department recommendations."

In the next ten, he found media controlling in three, program in three and about equal control between media and program departments in four.

He thought that today in the bigger agencies, "it is true . . . the program department-media department tug-of-war is being (or has been) won by the program department. This results sometimes in buying decisions based less on media fundamentals than on subjective judgments."

Mr. Durgin described "fundamentals" as recognizing the "power of the mass audience" or "maximum delivered audience (circulation)." He asserted this should come first, followed later by what he called "secondary considerations": audience and media characteristics (audience selectivity, advantages of one medium as compared to another, etc.).

Circulation and coverage data in the broadcast medium have become "old hat," said Mr. Durgin, with attention drawn away from "fundamentals" and toward attempts "to measure the secondary values more carefully." This trend he found evident in what he believes is a swing to program department dominance in the top ten agencies.

Mr. Durgin said some buyers have concerned themselves so much with "special advertising requirements of different products dictated by their different markets and individual marketing objective," they at times have lost sight of the mass audience.

He cited examples of national advertisers on NBC-TV sharing sponsorship of a single show, each with different market objectives, "but . . . in common need to reach maximum delivered audience."

Who Has The Say • He later explained that by "dominance" in an agency's buying decision, he means which department takes the "lead" in a buying decision or which has the "greatest persuasion or weight in the buying" because obviously both departments must be in accord when a buy is finally made.

In speaking of conflicting media claims, Mr. Durgin acknowledged that there is no single standard to be applied by media agencies and their clients to determine "relative value of different national media."

Moreover, he said, "too much time is wasted in industry trade association boards, panels and subcommittees trying to come up with an all-industry measure that will equate media and measure them on a common base." Such a standard on tv would be "doubtful value," he said, "because if a particular method would seem to short-change your station, your network, your program, your product, you would have to do a 'pilot survey' of your own and so here we are."

Mr. Durgin assailed what he said was called "the modern media mix" but which he labeled as "mixed-up media mix" because "the emphasis on so much media today is to be in every possible media rather than reach every possible person."

"It seems to me," he continued, "that the biggest need our modern marketers have today is the need to get back to fundamentals. I am afraid our very progress in media research has caused us to go farther away from the basic ad. Today is to be in every possible media and has contributed more to our confusion than to our better appreciation and command of the fundamentals."

Client Confusion • Most of Mr. Durgin's talk, some of which followed his speech of a week before in San Francisco, was comments on the confusion of advertisers. Such concepts of "secondary" considerations in buying decisions, and controversies of cost efficiency comparisons between newspapers and magazines, between tv networks themselves, of harping by tv critics, of "editorial" attacks (Fortune magazine), and of so-called "high cost of tv" by admen themselves, only compound the confusion of the moment.

Said Mr. Durgin: Concentration on "fundamentals" in media can only result in "more effective media buying" and "less confusion for the advertiser." He suggested that perhaps the tv networks should try to "run a school on tv network fundamentals . . . if the critics of the networks wouldn't come, maybe the advertiser would want to come."

According to Mr. Durgin, the "real advertising frontiers of opportunity in tv" are in "the institutional field, the new class A opportunities at class C rates in sports, during daytime and in Sunday afternoon" or in what he called the "class D proof of tv's prodigious power."

NOT ALWAYS BY THE BOOK

What helps lead to advertiser confusion? It's the so-called "pet buying theory" in television of an agency but which is rejected or put into use in an inconsistent manner. Don Durgin, NBC-TV vice president and national sales manager, includes some examples of pet theories and actual practice in his RTES timebuying & selling seminar talk.

In slightly condensed form:

• Important Package Goods Agency—Theory: Food product needs "happy show" and can't be advertised effectively on mystery, adventure, western or serious dramas. But: I'm the client "in one of the toughest shoot-'em-up shows," other agencies' food clients also are successful in the "taboo" formats.

• Big Madison Ave. Agency—Theory: Most effective tv use is specials with bursts of big impact instead of regular programming. But: Agency is bigger user of programming.

• Important West Coast Agency—Theory: Way to program and sponsor identification is weekly, single sponsorship not on basis of shared, alternate week or participation. But: Tv's economics dictates alternate-week sponsorship as the norm.

• Major Daytime Tv Agency—Theory: Low cost not large audience is key to daytime cost efficiency. But: Actually the most efficient daytime shows are the most costly, big audience shows "which they don't go after because . . .".

• Important Drug Agency—Theory: Most effective "selling" programs are live shows making for maximum use of live commercials or live lead-ins to film commercials. But: Most drug-sponsored tv shows are on film.
P&G LAPS THE FIELD IN SPOT TV

- More than doubles second-place Lever buying in quarter
- Leading 100 spot tv clients spend $75.6 million in period

The lion’s share of spot television’s $113.184 billion revenues during the third quarter of 1958 [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Nov. 17] was accounted for by the top 100 accounts. Their score: $75,633,500.

In its customary position on top was Procter & Gamble, whose $8,336,200 was a comfortable $4.4 million out in front of second place Lever Bros, ($3,966,900).

Television Bureau of Advertising which released the figures (prepared by N. C. Rorbaugh Co.), noted nine newcomers among the top 100. They were Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Cornell Drug Co, Continental Car-NA-Var, Eversharp, Fels & Co., Holsum Baking-Bakers, Jackson Brewing, Planters Nut & Chocolate and Taylor-Reed Corp.

Faller report on the top 100 spot tv clients and their spending, and the breakdown of spot tv by product categories, follow:

REAPPRAISAL

In the quick recap at press time of Broadcastings annual agency billing survey results [LEAD STORY, Nov. 24], J. Walter Thompson, which at $113.5 million led the top 50 in combined radio-tv billing, was credited with two additional marks it had not quite attained. Though the figures were correct, the agency was missed. It was McCann-Erickson, not JWT, which was both runner-up (at $40 million) to Ted Bates in combined spot billing and which tied with BBDO and N. W. Ayer as radio-only leaders. Again though the table was correct in the breakdown of figures, an incorrect set was picked up in the capsule of Lennex & Newell. I. N. & N.’s combined radio-tv billing: $40.1 million, $30.8 million in tv ($19.1 million in network, $11.8 million in spot); $9.3 million in radio ($6 million in network, $3.3 million in spot).

SARRUT COMMERCIALS GO TO THE DEVIL

The latest of Andre Sarrut's French-produced animated commercials [FILM, Nov. 24] hit these shores is a cartoon for Chicago's Petroleum Heat & Power Co. The "Solar Therm" referred to is a term concocted by PH&P's agency, W.B. Donel Adv., Chicago, to give identification to the product. The sepulchral tones of agency President Marvin Frank are heard in the commercial.

The heat and power firm's $200,000 ad budget is all spent in local radio and television.

Producer of the commercial is Tele- France, a subsidiary of Fred A. Niles Productions, Chicago.

SEQUENCE OF COMMERCIAL: Actor in opera "Faust" takes bows on stage (left picture); goes to dressing room where he declares "I was magnificent tonight!" Reporter there starts interview, stops to comment on how warm room is. Devil actor, disrobing (center), answers "We like it warm here ... that's why we use Solar Therm." Dressed in ordinary clothes he walks to door, changes back to devil as he exits. Then he puts head back in door, with fires of hell in background (right), and closes: "It's warm where I go because they use solar therm."

Grant Names New York Board,
Confirms Bradley Resignation

The establishment of a three-man committee to handle management of the New York office of Grant Adv., effective immediately, was announced last Monday. (Nov. 24) by Lawrence R. McIntosh, executive vice president of the agency in Detroit.

The committee will be composed of John H. Pinto, vice president and creative director of Grant in New York, who will be chairman; Abbott Kimball, vice president and plans board member, whose agency merged with Grant last March, and Lawrence O. Reddy, administrative vice president of the office.

The announcement gave no reason for the change, nor did it refer to the resignation of Paul L. Bradley, who had been vice president and general manager of the New York office. The agency later confirmed that he had resigned on Nov. 21.

In recent months, Grant's New York office has had rough sledding. In July, Grant lost the Florists Telegraph Delivery Assn. account, which was to have billed more than $3 million by the end of this year. More than 90% of the budget was earmarked for television—CBS-TV's Person to Person program—but in mid-year, FTDA dropped the program and the agency, later appointing Keyes, Madden & Jones to handle the account. This setback was compounded two weeks ago when Grant, which handles the Dodge Div. of the Chrysler Corp., lost the New York Dodge dealer account ($1 million billing) to the Wexton Co., New York [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Nov. 24].
Shadows from the gaslight danced across the faces of the bustling and derelict townsfolk as they listened entranced to the street corner showman's magic claims for "Sure Corn Killer." Even the minstrels used by this early-day "communicator" to lure an audience appeared hypnotized by the golden words.

This was Newark, N. J., in the late 1870's and early 1880's. And the enterprising pitchman: Gerhard Mennen.

Today the minstrel is gone from the Newark corners. Just as surely has the Sure Corn Killer faded from the scene as America changed from a pedestrian to an automotive nation. But Gerhard Mennen's son and grandsons are still in show business and still selling goods.

Eighty-odd years later, the descendants of Mr. Mennen are still gathering crowds—in cities throughout the United States through the medium of television. The commercials now are being delivered on 15 products, toiletries for babies and men.

The confidence that Mennen places on television is underlined by this statistic: in 1958-59, the company will invest about 75% of an approximate $5 million in TV.

Two weeks ago, William G. Mennen Jr., executive vice president in charge of U.S. and international marketing and advertising, offered this comment on advertising during ceremonies heralding the addition of the television network. "Thus in 1929, Network programs under Mennen sponsorship included a CBS Radio show in 1931 that featured Ted Husing, Irene Beasley, Freddy Rich and his Mennen Men Orchestra; Famous Jury Trials over Mutual in 1936-37; Captain Flag and Sergeant Quirt over the NBC Blue Network in 1941; Ed Sullivan Presents on CBS Radio in 1943-44; and in 1945, a saturation schedule of one minute spot announcements on newscasts. By 1955, Mr. Mennen Jr. said, the company had acquired a "valuable franchise" with 94% of early morning news broadcasts on 125 stations. Since that time, Mennen has used radio on a limited basis but plans to step up its participation in 1959 as part of an overall effort to reach "the youth market."

Before 1955, Mennen made only a minimal investment in television. That year the company decided on its first national television property—the Wednesday Night Fights on ABC-TV. Mr. Mennen Jr. calls WNF "a tremendous salesman" for the three and a half years his firm backed the fights. But this fall, Mennen elected to drop WNF and sponsor Pursuit on CBS-TV (Wed. 8-9 p.m.) on an alternate week basis (Procter & Gamble and American Home Products share the alternate week).

"We decided on a new property," Mr. Mennen Jr. explains, "because we decided that after more than three years WNF had built up largely the same, loyal audience. We believe that Pursuit will give us a broader audience and, particularly, a younger audience."

Mennen, assisted by Grey Adv., which handles publicity-promotion for the company, intends to promote the youth phase of the company's marketing objectives by means of a dozen or more "Good-Grooming Seminars" for high school students. This project is being co-sponsored by Mennen and Scholastic magazines. Mr. Mennen Jr. and other company officials will participate in the seminars, aimed at showing teenagers how to achieve proper grooming. Portions of the seminars will be telecast locally.

The emphasis on the youth market for 1959 will result in additional spending in radio, according to Mr. Mennen Jr. Though specific plans have not been determined, the company intends to invest in radio programs throughout the country which are popular with teenagers.

The Mennen Co. is still a family-owned enterprise. William G. Mennen, son of founder Gerhard Mennen, is president and this year marked his 50th anniversary with the organization. Another of his sons, George, is vice president in charge of manufacturing. Gerhard Mennen occupied a small store in downtown Newark as his headquarters. Today, counting the recent addition, the Mennen Co. stretches over 400,000 square feet in a modern building in Morristown.

'FORTUNE'-AND HOW IT WAS TOLD

- TVB, CBS slam magazine for what it said—and didn't say—about tv
- ABC sees no evil, but calls critical article a 'brilliant distortion'

Television leaders for the most part last week pounced angrily on Fortune magazine's article attacking television's present and questioning the future [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Nov. 24].

In a detailed rebuttal, Television Bureau of Advertising charged the article omitted pertinent information and couched much of what it did say in a "near-pathological vocabulary." A CBS-TV inter-office memo analyzed and rebutted the article point by point. Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, RCA board chairman, sent off to Fortune head Henry Luce a sharp letter denying he'd ever made a "plumber and pipe" statement attributed indirectly to him in the magazine. On another tack, ABC-TV President Oliver Treacy called the Fortune piece "a brilliant distortion" but disagreed that "Fortune was out to axe the networks."

TVB Counterattack: President Norman E. Cash, holding that "the entire business fraternity should be deeply concerned with the superficiality" of the piece, asserted: "We at TVB have always respected Fortune's objective analyses of other industries, but now that we have had an opportunity to see Fortune's analysis of an industry of which we have first-hand working knowledge, we must begin to question the thoroughness of these other industry analyses."

Mr. Cash said it "is both our duty and obligation to report some of the information we previously provided Fortune which failed to appear" in the piece. Among his points:

Of Fortune's statement that network profits had dropped from $85 million to $71 million, TVB said Fortune failed to mention networks' investments in new programs and facilities and video tape and color, which "can easily account for much of the $14 million profit decline and attest to their interest in better servicing the advertiser and the public."

Fortune compared tv profits with those of "the 500 largest industrial corporations" but not with other communications media, TVB continued, adding: "Such a comparison, if restricted only to the Time-Life-Fortune block, would have shown a decline of over $17 million in the first 10 months of 1958 revenue...with no published information concerning profit from this revenue."

Fortune's point that some time periods and programs were late in becoming fully sponsored this year, the TVB statement said, "completely overlooked and showed no apparent appreciation of the third-quarter recession which hit many industrial companies and delayed their future advertising plans in all media....Equally overlooked was the fact that advertisers invested 5.5% more dollars in network television in the third quarter of 1958 than in the third quarter of 1957."

To the article's assertion that tv audiences are near saturation, TVB countered: "...If television homes increase by only 1% this year, it would be a bigger increase than Fortune's circulation level attained in 30 years."

TVB maintained that Fortune presented no evidence to back its claim that "the audience is getting choosier." Nielsen figures, according to TVB, show time spent viewing went from 4 hours 5 minutes a day in 1955 to 5 hours 9 minutes a day for the full year 1957. "The increase in network audience of 9% in the first 10 months of 1958 vs. the same period in 1957 has also been censored from Fortune's article," TVB declared.

Of the article's reference to Philip Morris' dropping I Love Lucy "because it wasn't selling cigarettes," TVB asserted: "Fortune ignores Philip Morris' current expenditures of $6,346,317 (Jan.-Sept. 1958) in television and Fortune also ignores the rapid re-sponsoring of I Love Lucy by other advertisers."

TVB continued: "Cadillac and Pontiac are cited as examples of automobiles not using television. In the 1951 Fortune article [on tv], they called attention to Chevrolet cutback in television and forget that in 1958 Chevrolet sponsors more television than ever."

CBS analysis: The CBS-TV inter-office memo analyzing the Fortune piece concluded that "the most important initial comment to be made is this is not basically an original article." Side-by-side the analysis then compared some conclusions found in Fortune's 1951 anonymous article on "Tv's Time of Trouble" and the December 1958 piece by Richard Austin Smith. Quotes from the 1951 article for which CBS-TV found comparable conclusions in the latest piece included: "An important percentage of the major tv market areas are already close to saturation"; "Tv's novelty is no longer glittering enough to mesmerize just any advertiser into continuing a $100,-000 program;" "potentially subscription tv can open up a whole new world for movies and education...."

The CBS-TV study cited the latest Fortune article's assertion that "few tv dramas have ever received such nationwide acclaim" as Orson Welles' Fountain of Youth tv show. The memo said that "among the quotations from the reviews [author Smith] addsuces in support of [his] statement, none can be found from Time, Broadcasting or The New York Times, Broadcasting and the Times didn't review it at all."

CBS-TV's study considered the article's reference to tv's "exotic economics" as "basically a forecast" even though "presented as a verdict."

To the article's talk of a tv "profit slump" this year, the memo offered rebuttals similar to those advanced by TVB, and added that Author Smith "neglects...to discuss the number of magazines that have been forced by economic crisis to merge or simply to go out of existence. Nor does he make any mention of the fact that last year's income slump in television was due very largely to one company's troubles and that CBS has just posted the largest nine-month earnings in its history."

The memo offered these answers to Fortune's references to a "cost-price squeeze": "CBS Inc. revenues for the first nine months of 1958 increased a 9.2% increase over 1957. Profits reflected a 20% increase. Television, network and station operations were the primary contributors to this increase. The CBS-TV network during this period spent nearly 10% more for programs than in 1957."

The CBS analysis said, "The most in-
Sarnoff Writes Luce, Denies 'Fortune' Quote

Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, RCA chairman of the board, last week denied a statement attributed to him in Fortune magazine's article on television. Here is the text of a letter which Gen. Sarnoff wrote Henry Luce, editor-in-chief of Fortune (and of other Luce publications):

"An article entitled 'Tv: The Light that Failed', in the December issue of Fortune, attributes the following statement to me in relation to network television: 'We're in the same position as a plumber laying a pipe. We're not responsible for what goes through the pipe.' Fortune does not say that I made this statement to any of its representatives. It says that it was the 'viewpoint' I 'once expounded' to John Crosby. Yet it quotes me.

"I categorically deny that I ever made the quoted statement to John Crosby or to anyone else. It is in direct conflict with my convictions and record.

"On various occasions I have compared the transmission facilities of wireless communication to a system of pipes laid by a plumber. For example, in an address I made at John Carroll U. in Cleveland, June 12, 1950, I told the following anecdote in connection with my early work as a boy in wireless communication:

"'One night when I came home my mother said that neighbors had asked her what sort of work I did. When she told them 'wireless', they didn't understand, and she could not explain it. I said, 'Well mother, neither can I, so just tell them that I am a plumber.' So the neighbors looked upon the mysterious wireless as plumbing, and actually that was not so far wrong, because ever since I have been laying pipes in space.'

"Never have I disclaimed or questioned the broadcaster's responsibility for the programs he transmits. To suggest that I have done so is to fly in the face of the consistent record of my words and deeds over more than 50 years of my career in radio and television. To cite one of many examples of my statements on this subject, I quote from an address before the Advertising Club of Washington, D. C. on Sept. 20, 1955, in which I said:

"'Radio-television happens to be an industry and an art whose power for affecting life in all its diversity is almost incalculable. That power implies responsibility, in terms of improving and enriching the nation's life. Under the surface of our busy affairs on the commercial level, we are also engaged in helping to shape contemporary civilization. In the long-run those in the industry who do not take cognizance of this deeper purpose will not survive in this field.

"'It is well for all of us in the industry, and those utilizing its facilities, to keep clearly in mind at all times the potential for good and evil at our disposal. We must regard it as a public trust, not merely another business. Radio and television are wonder-working instruments in our hands. We must dedicate ourselves to using them well and wisely.'

"My recognition of the responsibility of broadcasting goes back to its early days, when I brought to the National Broadcasting Co. Dr. Walter Damrosch and his Music Appreciation Hour, grand opera from the Metropolitan Opera House, Dr. James Rowland Angell, former President of Yale U., to direct NBC's educational programs and Maestro Arturo Toscanini to lead the NBC Symphony Orchestra, the first such orchestra especially created for network broadcasting.

"The same recognition of the broadcaster's responsibilities continues to the present day, and is fully shared by the management of NBC. NBC assumes full responsibility for programs broadcast over its facilities. This responsibility encompasses maintenance of a balanced schedule, consisting not only of broad appeal entertainment programs, but also presentations designed for specialized intellectual and cultural interests. In the latter field, the NBC management consistently encourages and presents such programs as Continental Classroom, the NBC Opera in English, Meet the Press and a wide range of special presentations embracing great music, the classics of literature, science, news and public affairs. This is the kind of programming that 'goes through the pipe,' and NBC is responsible for it.

"It is interesting to note that the last time Mr. Crosby interviewed me was on July 8, 1953—more than five years ago. This was in connection with an article on broadcasting for your magazine, Life. Shortly after the interview he sent me his manuscript of the article for my files. It did not contain either the statement now quoted in Fortune nor anything like it. Mr. Crosby informed me later that Life rejected his article for publication.

"Soon afterwards, on Nov. 18 and Nov. 20, 1953, Mr. Crosby devoted two of his columns in the New York Herald Tribune to our interview. Neither article contained the statement now quoted in fortune nor anything resembling it.

"If I had made such a statement to Mr. Crosby, surely he would have included it himself in the manuscript of his article submitted to Life magazine, or in his own newspaper columns when the interview was still fresh in his mind, instead of having it published secondhand in an article by Fortune more than five years later.

"Unfortunately, Fortune did not trouble to solicit my views about broadcasting, or even to check with me before quoting me. Had it done so, I would have had the opportunity to correct this obvious misstatement, to present my convictions, and to show how they have been fulfilled in practice. Since this opportunity was not offered me, I request that you publish this letter in full in your next issue so that your readers may be disabused of a false and unfair impression.

Music, news and service. KEX creates a fine balance of programming that meets the modern radio needs of the whole Northwest. Seven talented local personalities. A careful musical blend of pop tunes, standards and new releases. Lively on-the-spot local news covered by the outstanding radio news staff in Oregon. Complete, authoritative national and international coverage. Weather and traffic reports, time checks, where-to-go, what-to-do. Vital public service programming. These give KEX a distinct station personality and the kind of appeal that listeners habitually respond to.

It takes a knowing touch to strike the balance that pays off in audience leadership. Like all other Westinghouse Broadcasting stations, KEX has this winning combination. The right local talent. Leadership. Top-rated programs. They go together to serve the people of the area like no other station can. This is why no selling campaign is complete without the WBC stations.

ARB READY TO DISARM BLOCKBUSTERS
Expanded Arbitron, more frequent measurements to detect rating hypox

The blockbuster is about to lose its boom. Loaded TV audience ratings hypoed by famous movies during rating week will disappear, according to American Research Bureau. A defense against these blockbusters has been announced by James W. Seiler, head of ARB.

When the defense becomes fully operational in 1959 it will be difficult for one station to buy up enough high-power movie attractions to distort station ratings materially, Mr. Seiler said.

Here are the weapons ARB will use to counter blockbusting attacks:
- A big increase in its new One Week-Four Week rating service, which shows weekly figures and monthly averages.
- Spread of its automatic Arbitron service to three major markets as Chicago and Los Angeles join New York City in providing instantaneous and daily electronic ratings.
- A seven-city Arbitron network augmenting the separate Arbitron reports of the three major markets.

This new ARB rating package, plus publication of its reports of special rating-week promotions by TV stations, will tame the blockbuster in 1959, Mr. Seiler says.

One Week-Four Week is an audience measurement method that combines the advantages of the present one-week rating with a month-long report that can't very well be loaded with spectacular movies.

ARB is one of the hottest items in the history of audience measurements [Advertisers & Agencies, Dec. 23, 1957]. It is an electronic device that feeds the tune-in of a TV set into a central board where flashing lights show channel selection and changes instantly as they occur. ARB introduced the technique used by stations during the rate period plus a description of the technique used. Stations dread this publicity and ARB is effectively handling the problem, according to ARB.

ARB's One Week-Four Week plan, like Arbitron, is practically immune to the impact of blockbusting movies, Mr. Seiler said. It is based on a normal one-week rating that puts a direct spotlight on station programming, providing fast reporting based on diaries placed in the homes of viewers. This method has a built-in sensitivity to audience fluctuations.

Back-stopping the one-week ratings is a four-week report that provides averages protected against weather, network spectaculars, contests and special advertising promotions-plus, too, the immunity against blockbusters.

Mr. Seiler said agency timebuyers have been haunted for years by the famous old movies planted during rating week. Stations long have known when ARB diaries are placed in homes as well as when other research firms are conducting telephone co- incidental, aided-recall and other types of surveys.

The famous movies of the past, rich with glamorous talent and backed by fantastic promotion, leave their impact on survey ratings. Stations not equipped with these costly film libraries often charge that rating week results simply don't reflect normal listening patterns because programs are loaded with costly films.

For example, a Salt Lake City station in late 1956 featured a rating-week film based on the life of Brigham Young, prompting ARB to conduct a secret week survey in the market for its next report. This study was felt to be relatively foolproof since dummy diaries were used during a month-long test.

Next ARB tried out the One Week-Four Week plan in Sacramento, Calif., as a test. It had been tinkering with the idea for months. The results were used for internal study and never published. In April 1957, the One Week-Four Week plan was tested a second time in Houston. Delighted with the Special programming involving movie packages was suggested as the reason for the differences between these two one-week surveys taken in Wichita on successive weeks. The Feb. 11 figures are based on ARB's announced rating week. The Feb. 4 figures were taken by ARB during a secret, unannounced week unknown to any station.

*Change in programming during four-week period.
He keeps the kids in Lake View High

His name is Howard Miller. Occupation: disc jockey . . . and salesman for education. Why a salesman for education? Because U. S. Board of Education statistics show a 40% student "dropout" between the ninth and twelfth grades. As the most-listened-to station in Chicago, WIND used its talent to convince students and parents that "the greatest danger is dropout, not fallout." Howard Miller led this drive, turning his tremendous selling power to serve an important community purpose.

Time Magazine calls Miller America's No. 1 disc jockey. He's the kind of top local personality you find on all Westinghouse Broadcasting stations. Personable, talented, colorful—they attract and influence huge audiences. Teenagers listen to them. Adults listen to them. Advertisers love them. This is why no selling campaign is complete without the WBC stations.

Wide variances in ratings for one week and four-week averages are demonstrated by this Los Angeles measurement in September 1957:

Results for the one-week data were taken from additional sampling placed during the last week of the four-week survey. The program titles are those telecast during this last week. The Person to Person telecast was the first of the new 1957 fall series. Audience for this program is shown by the one-week rating of 22.3. The four-week period, however, covered three telecasts of the summer replacement which in a previous month's survey had been rated 6.1. The four-week rating of 9.0 reflects the high average of Person to Person and the lower ratings of the summer replacement.

This summary also shows how Person to Person cut into audiences of other programs in the time period. ARB explained an audience evaluation for an announcement, based on the four-week average taken alone, would be understated for Person to Person and overstated for any other program during the time period.

300 diaries.

Three weeks—

Additional samples of 75 separate diaries for each week.

The one-week 300-diary provides (1) a rating-week report similar to past ARB reports, and (2) a sample that is then proportionately (one-fourth) combined with the three other weeks, each based on 75 diaries, to produce a fourth-week average based on the equivalent of 300 diaries.

This means there are 75\% more diaries tabulated for One Week Four-Week reports than the former single-week study, according to ARB.

Since all studies can be compared on the same basis—the individual program ratings—they also permit valid comparisons to be made between various reports which are incorporated in ARB's complete service.

The combined ARB package will be a boon to timebuyers, according to Roger Cooper, ARB station relations director. He said, "Regular research information will now be provided on performance of network and local programs in a large number of markets. This will enable network advertisers to evaluate program performance on a market-by-market basis. The spot buyer can use more facts and less guesswork in choosing his best available.

"ARB's complete service will have a tremendous effect on tv timebuying in 1959. A huge part of the tv purchasing dollar is spent in the first 100 markets and four-fifths of these are dependent on One Week Four-Week reports."

"With tv costs steadily rising this flexibility becomes increasingly essential to sound programming and buying decisions."

These are the advantages ARB claims for its newly expanded service and revised techniques.

They provide a potent weapon to combat attempts to pack the rating figures, ARB believes, perhaps performing a statistical feat by reducing the boon of the block-buster to a futile puff.

The apparent effect of weather conditions on viewing levels was illustrated in a Columbus, Ohio, example. Comparison of sets-in-use for three days of two-week surveys conducted last summer follows:

The one-month test of One Week Four Week in Houston had shown that the technique is able to detect and measure a variation in program ratings from week to week, whether caused by promotion, weather or other factors. This test convinced ARB that a station can control ratings to some extent by blockbusters and gimmicks. One station increased its 10 p.m. night, the share of audience by 40\% during the one-week portion of the survey as compared with its four-week figure. The other stations decreased their shares during the major rating week by 12\% and 16\%.

ARB felt that by combining Arbitron and One Week Four Week it could (a) cope with rating-week influencing gimmicks and (b) make possible informed buying of specific programs (and adjacencies).

EASTERN RADIO COPY NIXED BY STATIONS

- Strike spots 'unacceptable'
- Radio schedules suspended

Eastern Air Lines—which spends about $800,000 a year in spot radio in 53 major eastern and midwest markets to promote its Miami-bound flights—last week found itself grounded on two fronts: from the air and off the air.

It's 188 planes strike-bound by a walkout of 550 members of the Flight Engineers International Assn. and 5,383 members of the International Assn. of Machinists, Eastern last week tried to tell management's story on its spot schedules. But in numerous instances, the stations prop-washed the copy right back to the agency as "unacceptable." Eastern thereupon asked for a suspension of its contract with these stations pending settlement of the labor dispute. Most stations agreed to this and said they would not penalize Eastern by canceling frequency discount clauses and agreed to "reserve" Eastern's time slots.

With the agency, Fletcher D. Richards Inc., New York, declining comment, it was impossible to determine the number of stations refusing the "emergency copy" (see box), but it was learned there were less 10-12 stations that wasted no time in grounding the airline client.

Most of the stations queried gave the reasons for their action: (1) hesitancy to get involved in labor disputes outside the WBZ Boston threw a whale of a party in Brockton, Mass. On Sept. 22, WBZ aired its first announcement for the Brockton Block Party, a fund-raising promotion to aid the Old Colony Association for Mental Health. Three days and 51 spot announcements later, a crowd of 40,000 showed up. A great community project ... and graphic proof that WBZ is far and away New England's most powerful voice.

You measure the worth of a station in power, coverage, ratings. That's only part of the story. WBZ, and all the Westinghouse Broadcasting stations, are interested in people and active in community affairs throughout their coverage areas. This interest gives the WBC stations their character and impact. People believe what the WBC stations say. And that helps you sell. This is why no selling campaign is complete without the WBC stations.

broadcasting realm, (2) fear of antagonizing unions which might strike the station in a sympathy move, (3) station policy prohibiting use of paid time for non-political, controversial topics, (4) the "inability" to give both sides of a controversy within a minute's time and (5) the problem of granting "equal time."

In New York, citadel of Eastern's operations, only three out of six stations regularly carrying Eastern commercials carried the copy the first day. The morning after, the three—WOR, WCBS and WABC—had second thoughts and asked to be let off the Miami hop. WRCA; WNEW and WMGM carried no Eastern "strike copy." Network-owned stations, had they wanted to carry the Eastern spots, would have been forbidden by the networks. WABC New York, for example, was told by the ABC continuity acceptance department that it could not sanction controversy cropping up in the news program (Eastern sponsors the local Charles P. McCarthy news strip). ABC suggested that Eastern buy a program in which it might fully detail its case but this suggestion apparently was ignored. So was WOR New York's offer of paid "equal time" to the striking unions. (WOR, declining to allow personality John Gambling to become embroiled in controversy, asked the Richards agency to transcribe its "strike commercials"; this suggestion, too, was spurned and the contract suspended.)

Speaking on behalf of three CBS-owned radio outlets carrying Eastern's regular schedule—WEEI Boston, WCBS New York and KMOX St. Louis—CBS Radio vice president Jules Dundes told Broadcasting: "Its copy went a shade beyond the aspect of merely informing listeners that Eastern's superlative service would be temporarily halted . . . into the discussion of inflammable issues." CBS, he added, "does not sell controversy within a framework of entertainment." It could not be determined from the copy whether three CBS radio affiliates—represented by CBS Spot Sales—had accepted or rejected the copy. They are WBT Charlotte, WMBR Jacksonville and WTOP Washington.

It's understood that the agency is particularly vexed over this problem of what to do with long-term schedules in event of unexpected interruption in service. It cannot rightfully ask for "stop-and-go" availabilities such as an umbrella advertiser might demand of a newspaper. nor can its client afford to sustain paid schedules when there is no service to sell. The Richards agency, it is learned, has a brief against television stations which have rejected its ads, but it is gritting its teeth for being damned both ways.

Explains one station representative: "The agency looks at it this way. They'll read newspaper editorials that more or less echo the commercials and rightfully regard these editorials as something they didn't order or have to pay for. But when they're willing to spend money in order to tell their story to a vast listening public that might not be reached by this paper, they're told they cannot do so. It's tough. . . ."

So would be the lot of the station opera-

GROUNDED COPY

Drowned out by the roar of continuity acceptance was this "live" one-minute commercial for Eastern Air Lines, written by its agency, Fletcher D. Richards Inc.: "Here is a message from Eastern Air Lines to its passengers and citizens of this community. The flight engineers union and mechanics union have refused to accept the recommendation of the President's fact-finding boards and have called strikes against Eastern Air Lines, forcing the company to suspend all operations. The strike of the flight engineers was brought about by the refusal of the union to permit its members to acquire, at company expense, additional flight training which Eastern Air Lines considers necessary for jet operations and which the Presidential Board recommended.

"The International Assn. of Machinists also refused to accept a recommendation of a Presidential fact-finding board and called their members out on strike. Eastern deeply regrets the inconvenience and hardship this unnecessary strike is imposing on its hundreds of thousands of passengers, on the travel and business enterprises which depend on Eastern's services and on Eastern's 60,000 employees. Eastern Air Lines sincerely hopes that the flight engineers union and the International Assn. of Machinists will recognize their own as well as Eastern's responsibility to the public so that service may be resumed promptly."

Nielsen Station Index
To Cover 100 Markets

Expansion of the Nielsen Station Index from the present 40 markets to 100 markets by the fall of 1959—whether purchased or not initially—was announced Tuesday (Nov. 25) by Henry Rahmel, executive vice president and broadcast division manager, A. C. Nielsen Co., Chicago. Individual market TV coverage reports also will be made available.

Mr. Rahmel said Nielsen is aiming toward "a complete local television service, reporting on both program audience and station circulation for all TV markets." This combination also will provide full local details on all national, regional and local campaigns to the users of the national Nielsen TV index, he said.

Complete details of the Nielsen expansion are to be disclosed tomorrow (Dec. 2) before the Timebuying Seminar of the Radio

He paid it entirely in pennies. Other sponsors sent nickels, dimes, dollars. Together they created the Fort Wayne Fine Arts Center, with Radio Station WOWO and its talent spearheading the drive. For almost a year, WOWO aired local operettas, symphonies, spots, to build nickel by nickel, this center that any city would be proud of.

No wonder WOWO gets action. WOWO's powerful 50,000-watt voice creates its own rich, responsive, three-state market . . . 37th largest radio market in the U.S. Like all Westinghouse Broadcasting stations, WOWO wins people because it is dedicated to local needs, tastes, and problems. People respond to this interest—time after time after time. That's why no selling campaign is complete without the WBC stations.

In radio, plans are under discussion to update the radio coverage survey. Mr. Rahnel said. Expansion of local program rating service to additional radio markets is "done in most prominent nation station needs."

Increased reporting frequency in many markets was cited by Mr. Rahnel, who also said plans are being discussed with advertiser, agency and network clients for fast multi-city service in 8, 12 or 24 markets. Nielsen's instantaneous tv service is to begin commercially in New York by March. Nielsen's Canadian subsidiary plans to begin station audience measurement in Toronto in early 1959 and field work for a radio-tv coverage survey for Ontario is now underway.

As Judge Orders Ad Tax Rebate

Over $1.25 million in advertising taxes collected by Baltimore City during 1958, as of Nov. 20, are scheduled for refund in the wake of an order by Circuit Court Judge Joseph L. Carter, last week.

On Nov. 21 the Maryland Court of Appeals had refused a Baltimore city petition to hear re-argument of the city's tax case. The state court declared the ad tax illegal last month [at Deadline, Oct. 20]. The initial ruling on the ad tax came from Judge Carter last summer, when he declared the tax an impediment to freedom of the press.

Baltimore enacted the tax last November to begin Jan. 1, 1958, but repealed it last spring, effective Jan. 1, 1959. The tax consisted of a 4% levy on the purchases of advertising time and space and a 2% levy on the gross receipts of broadcasters and publishers handling advertising. City officials last week pointed out that they still have 90 days from the time of the Court of Appeals mandate to seek appeal—to the U.S. Supreme Court. Judge Carter's refund order is to be obeyed "on or before Dec. 10."

INTERNATIONAL COUP

Gotham-Vladimir Adv., New York—an international advertising agency who makes domestic news—last week pulled off a coup of sorts by acquiring the complete international advertising program of American Tobacco Co. Previously handled in part by BBDO and a "network" of local agencies, the account is described by Board Chairman Irwin A. Vladimir as "one of our biggest" and with "sizable" broadcast expenditures—particularly in Latin America. All American cigarette products—Lucky Strikes, Pall Mall, dual filter Taretyn and Hit Parade—will be handled overseas by Gotham-Vladimir.

C&W, BBDO CHIEFS LIMIT AGENCY ORBIT

- Disclaim tastemaking role
- Sound off on WNTA-TV show

Though advertising's prime role is as a mover of goods from shelf or showroom to the consumer, there are limitations to its "influence" in at least three controversial areas: in "upgrading" tv entertainment, in misuse of program ratings and in political campaigns.

This is the substance of a public discussion on a late night, local telecast Tuesday (Nov. 25) in which two well-known advertising agency practitioners participated.

The practitioners: John P. Cunningham, Cunningham & Walsh's board chairman, and Robert L. Foreman, BBDO's executive vice president.

Their Comments:

(1) On lifting taste in tv—Advertisers and their agencies would attempt to upgrade tv considerably, if the demands to sell goods so dictated. But the agency, noted Mr. Cunningham, is not concerned with taking the "lead" because "our job is to adapt the arts toward one purpose: to sell goods."

(2) On program ratings—They are misused by some in the field who pay more attention to "fractional nonsense" than on the light ratings sheds on relative trends, that is, whether a show is going up over a period of time or declining in the face of its competition. So stated Messrs. Foreman and Cunningham, who also agreed that ratings were not, as often charged, "statistically unsound." Stressed was a program which had a specific job to do for the advertiser, irrespective of rating competition.

(3) On political candidates—Mr. Foreman, whose agency has been active in handling campaigns for the Republican party, said that constant "repetitive use" of spots hurts rather than helps a candidate; Mr. Cunningham referred to C&W's current study underway on the "before and after" effects of tv on the New York victory of Governor-elect Nelson A. Rockefeller, saying it was the in-person appearance of the candidate on tv and not the slotting of commercials that made for winning candidates.

Panelists: The program was Open Mind, a "talkathon" telecast live by WNTA-TV New York. Last week's show started at 11 p.m. and wound up at 12:15 a.m. Also taking part: host David Susskind, partner of Talent Assoc., Ltd., packager of such network properties as CBS-TV's DuPont Show of the Month and The Armstrong Circle Theatre (BBDO is agency on both these shows); Martin Mayer, author of the best-selling Madison Avenue, USA and Marya Mannes, radio-tv critic for The Reporter magazine, and author of More in Anger [in Review, Nov. 24].

During the program, Mr. Foreman, who earlier in the show blamed "pabulum" for having perpetuated the "myth" of the ad-man, admitted that the agency might be "bastardizing" the public arts. He also explained that what might be good in tv programming for DuPont (sponsor of a Susskind series) may not necessarily be good for a soap company (Lever Bros. is also a BBDO client). Mr. Cunningham echoed this sentiment, that the aim of package goods advertisers is to move low-ticketed items off the store shelves and "if you don't reach this mass market," someone else will.

Mass Medium – Television, said Mr. Foreman, is far too expensive a medium to be selective, in reaching certain types of audiences, and that he "many times" dis- suades clients seeking such audiences from using tv "since they would be wasting their money." Mr. Susskind disagreed. Pointing to the low-rating (19.6 Trendex) of An Evening With Fred Astaire he said that this "marvelous" show "probably" got "precisely the type of audience Chrysler Corp. wanted to reach" and that many automakers might be badly mistaken in their "reckless pursuit of millions." This, in turn, led to the question of should carmakers sponsor westerns? Mr. Cunningham said no, feeling that the brand image was lost "by the fact that there are too many" westerns. Mr. Foreman agreed and said it was "madness to set a modern instrument in a period piece" but declined to discuss the "wisiness" of Ford Motor Co. sponsoring westerns and "such bucolic" fare (Mr. Susskind's description) as NBC-TV's Tennessee Ernie Ford Show, preferring to leave this matter to Ford (J. Walter Thompson Co. is Ford's agency).

Other Hand Mr. Cunningham also observed that a major national advertiser such as Ford had advertising in other media, some vehicles seeking the selective audience, while its tv use is aimed for the mass audience. He noted that more men, perhaps the most likely auto purchasers in family groups, like westerns better than any other type of tv program.

He also pointed out that some advertisers have a mass product and want people, while others (such as C&W's Texaco) want to convey an "image." The mass-product advertiser, the two agency men said, cannot afford to select a certain million on tv. If the advertiser sells chewing gum, it wants all the millions.

Both agency executives felt that there should be "some control" to regulate the uneven expenditures of the two political parties and Mr. Foreman, in particular, said that the two-party system was in jeopardy unless "some way is thought of extending similar benefits—in buying of prime network.
Detergent "A" is moving well tonight

The store's locked up tight—but tomorrow's sales are being made tonight on KYW's Program PM. Nighttime radio with a difference. Program PM is a magic carpet of sound that travels the listener through the color and variety of life after dark. It follows a squad car's wailing siren. It catches the shrill blast of a trumpet belting the blues. It buttonholes the visiting celebrity. It goes behind the scenes to probe music, sports, theatre, news. And it sells. After a year of operation on KYW, Program PM's share of audience is tops. Advertising revenue for the time period is up 340%.

Program PM sells nightly on five Westinghouse Broadcasting radio stations. It reflects WBC's belief that, night or day, the key to sales success is creative programming. Radio advertisers buy listeners. They buy more on WBC stations because the imaginative use of radio gives WBC stations undisputed leadership in all their markets. This is why no selling campaign is complete without the WBC stations.

KYW Cleveland
time, for instance—to both Democrats and Republicans."

Mostly Right • Mr. Cunningham, toward the end of the program, admitted that he had "to eat certain words" a year after publishing his Index of Boredom [Advertiser & Agencies, Nov. 17, 1957] but that he was "right" in two out of three cases in that quiz shows and musicals are on the decline.

Mr. Foreman suggested the only way to "end" boredom is to devise a rating service to tell the agency what actually is going on before the tv set, "rather than just tell us how many people have their sets tuned in." Mr. Cunningham's final warning: Agencies may be doing too much sleight of hand in tv commercials.

Pidgeon, Savage-Lewis Merge; New Research Firm Announced

Two Minneapolis advertising agencies, Vance Pidgeon & Assoc. Inc. and Savage-Lewis Inc., will merge next month. Mr. Pidgeon and Erle B. Savage Jr., presidents of Pidgeon and S-L, respectively, have announced.

Mr. Pidgeon remains as president of the new agency to be known as Pidgeon-Savage-Lewis Inc. Addison Lewis is chairman, Mr. Savage executive vice president, Robert L. Sturgis and Donald C. Allen, vice presidents, Margie M. Saunders secretary and Eulalia Richardson treasurer.

The internal communications research previously conducted by Savage-Lewis is being handled by a new research-consulting firm—Communications Services Inc. Headed by Don N. Chamberlin, formerly S-L research director. This company headquarters at 10 W. 25th St., Minneapolis.

Pidgeon-Savage-Lewis will have marketing affiliations in 44 markets.

Woolite, a premium-priced cold-water soap, seems equally adept at washing out wooden socks and advertising agencies. Originally serviced (since 1954) by Charles W. Hoyt Co., New York, the account last year came to the attention of Eugene I. Harrington, then president of Fletcher D. Richards Inc., New York-Los Angeles, while he was on the road for some clients. He liked the product so well he made a pitch at the account—and got it. A few months ago, when Mr. Harrington packed his socks and quit Richards to join Honig-Cooper, Harrington & Miner, San Francisco, he also included a Woolite Travel-Pak and the $500,000 account. Meanwhile, in New York, Hoyt President Everett Hoyt who had missed his supply of Woolite, announced the return of the prodigal account—the sixth account to return to Hoyt after trying other agencies. Woolite Inc. has used "some" broadcast media, principally on a co-op basis with leading department stores. A Hoyt executive declined to identify the other five.

REVLO X BUYS SCHICK ON STOCK EXCHANGE

- Control costs $3.1 million
- Merged tv bill: $17 million

Two major national advertisers—both of whom spend over 60% of their budgets in television—have been married. Rites were performed on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

United for "a consideration of" $3.1 million were Revlon Inc.—reputedly the world's largest cosmetics house—and Schick Inc., which claims 35% of the U. S. electric shaver market.

Last Monday (Nov. 24) Revlon president Charles Revson announced his firm had purchased 242,000 shares of Schick stock—or 20% of the Lancaster, Pa., firm's 1.2 million outstanding shares. The preceding Thursday and Friday 124,600 shares of Schick stock had been traded on the exchange floor, closing at $16—up $2 for a new 1958 high. But financial circles believe Mr. Revson and associates picked up their controlling interest at $13 a share at which Schick traded earlier that week.

While announcing its stock purchase, Revlon also disclosed that Schick president-board chairman Kenneth C. Gifford had resigned both posts and that the Schick board, reduced in membership from seven to five, would have on it four Revlon directors and one incumbent Schick director, banker William R. White, vice president of Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.

On Wednesday (Nov. 26) Mr. Revson named as board chairman Chester G. Gifford, former president of Schick Inc. until 1954, when he joined Avco Mfg. Co. as vice president and president of its Bendix and Crosley home appliance divisions. Named president was John J. Reidy, Schick's advertising manager until 1946, when he joined Casco Products Corp. (auto accessories and home appliances) in Bridgeport, Conn., where he became executive vice president and general manager.

The new board chairman is a brother of the former chief executive officer. While there are no immediate merger plans, we was intrigued by Revlon that it might operate Schick as a subsidiary, but supervise its advertising-marketing strategy. Thus Benton & Bowles, Schick's agency since last year, apparently becomes Revlon's "eighth agency," but industry talk—cognizant of Revlon's habit of realigning accounts and agencies—suggests this status is by no means "a sure thing."

The four Revlon directors on Schick's new board: senior vice president Charles Lachman, president Revson, Harry Meersman and William D. Mewhort. Resigned from the Schick board: Mr. and Mrs. Gifford (she is the widow of founder Col. Jacob Schick); her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Schick Coyle; James H. Carmine; O. A. Petty, and W. J. Ryan, who continues as treasurer.

line with its year-old diversification-expansion pattern. Last winter, it purchased for an estimated $9 million cash the 31-year-old Knomark Mfg. Co. (Esquire, Scuff-Kote boot polishes), Brooklyn, N. Y. [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Jan. 13]. Since that time, its product line also has broadened to include household deodorizers, medicinals and pharmaceuticals. (In 1957 it acquired an 8% interest in Schering Corp., ethical drug manufacturer.)

The fact that Revlon picked up Schick is in line with long-standing Wall Street reports that Schick—faced with dwindling earnings (1957 drop of 8.7% from $27.5 million to $25.1 million) and omitted dividends—also sought diversification. This past quarter, Schick introduced a "Lady Schick" women's shaver and marketed a French-mad butane gas cigarette lighter. (Interestingly, rival Ronson Corp. several years ago reversed this procedure by adding electric shavers to a line of cigarette lighters.)

For the first half of 1958, Schick's sales dropped 34.3%, registering a first half net loss of $168,671 (as against 1957 first half profits of $880,996).

Unlike Revlon (anticipated 1958 sales in excess of $100 million), Schick's sales are seasonal in character, with about 65% of its business transacted during the final six months of the year. This explains why Schick usually bolsters its network properties with sizable spot expenditures in the fall. Last year, for example, it supplemented NBC-TV's Dragnet (alternate sponsor: Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.) with about $200,000 of tv spot in the top 50 markets. This season, it backs CBS-TV's Phil Silvers Show (alternate sponsor: R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.) with $500,000 of tv spot in the same markets. It's total advertising appropriations have grown somewhat since 1956 when it listed $8.4 million as "advertising, selling and administrative expenses." Last year, the budget rose to $8.7 million and the current tv budget of about $5 million represents close to 70% of its total advertising allocations.

Not only does Revlon take over a firm which accounts for 35% of the shaver market; it also strengthens its own distributor network by absorbing 1,100 wholesale jobbers (electrical, drug, jewelry, hardware) and Schick's wholly-owned subsidiary, Schick Service Inc., operating a total of 71 service-repair branches (U.S. and Canada) accounting for 18.5% of total Schick sales. Though its sales have slipped, Schick is regarded in financial circles as "a highly effective merchandiser," engaging in "ag-

(and how it paid off)

Once upon a time we rock-n-rolled our way through the day, running gimmicky programs and giveaway shows. Our 275 disk jockies spun frantically hour after hour and we received 3,789,004 letters a day (give or take a few million) from our loyal if somewhat incoherent listeners, most of whom were 12 years old.

Then one day a highbrow on the staff announced, "I CAN'T STAND IT ANY LONGER! My friends have stopped speaking to me! Parents groups are hanging me in effigy from every tree! Besides, our sponsors need purchasers — not dervishers! Change the format, men! Leave us be dignified!"

Nothing loth, we "went dignified", as they say and launched our "Theatre of Beautiful Music", a program of good popular and light classical music woven throughout the day from 9 A.M. 'til half past midnight. Our former deejays are now spinning buffing wheels instead of rock-n-roll platters.

What's happened? We've thrown away our Miltowns, we sleep the peaceful sleep of honest men, and our great big, wonderful audience has suddenly grown up. We still get 3,789,004 fan letters a week — but there's one big difference: our sponsors are now sure of reaching an "able-to-buy" audience!

SALES PANEL AIRS TV

Responsibility for tv program quality—hence its effectiveness as an advertising medium—was dropped on the doorstep of the networks last month during an advertiser-agency panel discussion before the Sales Executives Club of New York. A warning also was voiced that television cannot long succeed if it dictates to the advertiser.

But the panel admitted advertisers and agencies are doing their best to help dull their “greatest selling tool” by sitting back and consenting to cost structures and industry practices which enable an advertiser to afford “only bits and pieces” of programs, diluting the message identification and impact.

The panel was composed of Richard A. R. Pinkham, former NBC vice president who now is vice president in charge of tv-radio for Ted Bates & Co. (with 33 network shows in its tv stable); Walter Craig, vice president in charge of tv-radio for Norman, Craig & Kummel; Robert B. Smallwood, board chairman of Thomas L. Lipton Inc. and Ben Gross, New York Daily News radio-tv columnist. Panel moderator was Jerome R. Feniger, vice president in charge of tv-radio programming, Cunningham & Walsh.

“If I believe in television,” Mr. Smallwood said, “and my company does. It is the most exciting medium there is today. It has great power, but it is getting to be very costly.” He said Lipton spends 30% of its total advertising budget now on regular programs, another 28-30% on spot and the rest in non-broadcast media.

Mr. Smallwood didn’t know how much longer Lipton could afford tv, “We can afford only bits and pieces now,” he said.

“arbitrarily moved us to another time. They ipped the price and asked us to buy a pig in a poke in the fall. . . . I can’t say how long it will be before television will pay for this high handed way of doing business.”

Lipton dropped Mr. Godfrey’s Talent Scouts on CBS-TV last June 16. It had added Californians on NBC-TV last January and is continuing with this series now. Lipton agency is Young & Rubicam.

Mr. Pinkham felt that principal responsibility for program quality does not fall to either the agency or advertiser. “I lay it at the door of the networks. The vitality of programming is their responsibility,” he said. If they continue to offer “bland programs, the advertiser can expect to get just that audience, he explained, those who are described as “sitting in front of their sets for hours” with “opaque eyes.”

Mr. Pinkham pointed out television may gressive advertising policies.”

As such, it fits in perfectly with the hard-hitting Revlon firm, which employed a no-holds-barred advertising strategy to propel its 1949 sales of $19.2 million to the $96 million plateau within eight years. The primer: network television. Current advertising appropriations well exceed $17 million a year, of which about $12 million goes to radio-tv—“a rate far beyond the capabilities of most of [its] competitors,” according to a recent Wall Street security analysis.

Bache Rating, Says Bache & Co.: “Of course, mere expenditure does not guarantee success. It takes experience and wisdom to know what products will find wide acceptance. Revlon has an important asset in its reputation for the quality of its merchandise—you cannot successfully promote mediocre products no matter what you spend on advertising... .”

With 50% sponsorship of the hour-long CBS-TV Garry Moore Show and alternate sponsorship of CBS-TV’s Person to Person (both replacing the defunct $64,000 tv quizzes that shot Revlon into orbit), Revlon recently has moved more and more into spot tv to the point where today spot tv alone accounts for over $1 million. It also spends an annual $250,000 in spot radio but almost exclusively on testing of new products.

Two major questions were being pondered last week by the advertising fraternity following Revlon’s announcement:

The first: Will Benton & Bowles hold the account, one it won from Warwick & Legler in mid-1957? The second: Should Revlon now take over Schick ad placement, what will it mean to the current tv show lineup?

Revlon advertising officials said “no thought” had yet been given to the agency situation, and suggested that a “review” of B&B’s past, present and future Schick campaigns first might be in order. It would be sheer irony should Revlon decide to award the Schick account to W&L in that this agency sued Schick (and by indirect) Benton & Bowles for using an idea Warwick & Legler claimed was rightfully the property of the former agency, not the client. Litigation ended last month when W&L was awarded $25,000 “in lieu of damages” and a permanent injunction forbidding Schick to use the “cotton test” idea [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, NOV. 10].

As to whether Revlon would rework the current Schick program schedule, Revlon executives pointed to “what happened at Esquire” last winter. “What happened” was this: Knomark was taken over as a wholly-owned Revlon subsidiary, but its management left intact. The fact that its agency, Emil Mogul Co., also happened to be a Revlon agency, resulted in no agency shift and Esquire brand commercials began popping up on Revlon programs and vice versa. Thus, there exists the possibility that Revlon now may insert Schick commercials in its own shows, and in return participate in Schick’s Friday night Silver Show.

be more costly today, but not more expensive. He indicated cost-per-thousand has held relatively steady, while total price has risen with increased audience. The Bates executive suggested the networks plow back part of their income for some form of experimental program showcase or workshop, whether on the network or on key market local stations where the networks would buy time for the showcase.

Mr. Craig said tv “is our greatest sales tool,” but by permitting commercial dilution to grow “we are doing our best to dull it.” He recalled radio first set the pace with the 13-week contract which brought advertiser and medium into “steady company” with strong entertainment and star association to produce high “sell effect.” Then, with tv’s impact, he recalled, radio declimated its program segments into smaller bits and has ended up providing mostly spot or mere “circulation.” He felt this “sells the medium down the river” because so much of its effectiveness is lost. By becoming more and more costly, causing futher program segmentation, alternate sponsorships and participation in showing the “same path,” he contended. If continued, the impact of “entertainment compatible with the commercial message” will be totally lost to tv also, he concluded.

Mr. Craig said the agency can do something about it, however, recalling the discovery of $64,000 Question as an instance in which the agency bought open time on a network in lieu of the offered fare and produced its own vehicle.

A leading independent radio operator's station goes network: a leading network affiliate goes independent—that's the radio story in Oklahoma City this week.

Todd Storz, one of the nation's leading exponents of independent radio, has signed his newly acquired KOMA, as an NBC Radio affiliate. In the NBC lineup, KOMA replaces WKY, which is going independent in the belief that it can give better service to its listeners that way. By mutual consent, WKY and NBC Radio are severing an affiliation that dates from the early days of NBC. The changes are effective today (Dec. 1).

Mr. Storz said affiliation of KOMA was based on a study of programming in the Oklahoma City market which convinced him that in this section there was a need for "a broad type of programming service." He said: "We felt we could fill this void by molding the extensive programming facilities of a major network with programs tailored to the local and regional needs of this growing market."

"The answer was NBC Radio with its national and international news, sports, music, entertainment, dramatic and public interest programming facilities, NBC is well known in the market. We will continue to do the intensive type of local and regional job that has marked our stations in other markets, and will control a majority of the actual hours KOMA is on the air."

Mr. Storz told Broadcasting that KOMA would not depart from the Storz stations' basic music-and-news format. He said the music of KOMA, which under former ownership leaned to pop standards and ballads, would be "up-tempoed" and that other programming and promotion would be aggressive, in line with the policies at other Storz stations.

He said there were no plans to affiliate any of the other stations in the Storz group. While he didn't feel that a network was the right answer in every market, Mr. Storz said, he did think a network affiliation was "right" in Oklahoma City.

Mr. Storz said "we realize that to some extent this blending of two basic types of broadcast service is a new departure for Storz Broadcasting Co. However, we consider that a logical programming and commercial move in an era of changing local, national and international concepts."

Mr. Stewart said, "The history of Storz . . . stations has been marked by flexibility. We believe this dramatic new step will keep pace with the policies of the Storz stations and this important market."

Jack Sampson, sales manager of Storz' WHB Kansas City, has been appointed general manager of KOMA, according to George W. Armstrong, Storz executive vice president. KOMA is on 1520 kc with 50 kw. The Storz company bought it for $600,000 from Myer Feldman, Burton Levine and others in a deal approved by the FCC in October [CHANGING HANDS, Oct. 13] and took over operation Nov. 20. Other Storz stations: WHB; WITX New Orleans; WDGY Minneapolis and WQAM Miami.

Matthew J. Culligan, executive vice president in charge of NBC Radio, in a joint announcement with Mr. Storz said that his network "applauds the forward thinking of Storz Broadcasting Co. in its decision to add the unique advantages of network affiliation to its local and regional services. There has always been a compatibility between network affiliation and leadership in a radio market."

WKY's move in the other direction—greatest emphasis on local programming—has been in progress for the past few months, Station Manager Norman P. Bagwell told Broadcasting.

He said WKY had decided that "due to changes in radio, as evident over the country, by discontinuing our radio affiliation we would be better able to serve our listeners."

This, he explained, would enable WKY to expand "our programming activities in public service, farm service, news and other entertainment features."

Mr. Bagwell said that in line with this belief WKY had been cutting back on network programs until, toward the end of the affiliation, it was carrying relatively little from NBC. (Network sources, also noting this trend on WKY's part, said that in contrast KOMA would clear a minimum of 90% of NBC commercial programming.)

The WKY executive said he felt the most popular radio in Oklahoma City was independent, "companion radio."

WKY, on 930 kc with 5 kw, has been affiliated with NBC since December 1928. P.A. (Buddy) Sugg, NBC vice president for owned stations and NBC Spot Sales, headed WKY for many years.

'No Requiem' for NBC, Sarnoff Asks in Letter

NBC board chairman Robert W. Sarnoff has taken the occasion of CBS Radio's announced program "consolidation" [LEAD STORY, Nov. 3], to ask that NBC be "excused from any contemplated requiems."

Mr. Sarnoff acknowledges that radio's functions have "changed drastically" and that its economy has declined. "But," he adds, "the functions of network radio are still vital ones, and its economy can improve with continued concentration on performing these essential functions with maximum effectiveness."

Mr. Sarnoff's remarks are contained in the November "letter" to the nation's radio-television editors—one of a series begun earlier this year.

NBC, which claims 48% of all measured network radio sponsored time, does not face "the problem" of ratings and sponsorship level, Mr. Sarnoff declares. "The problem," he feels, "is one of general industry psychology. With one network's cutback following another's, the temptation to write off all network radio can become too acute." He cautions the industry against allowing fear and uncertainty to stampede network radio to death.

Mr. Sarnoff quotes a speech his father—RCA board chairman-president David Sarnoff—made in Chicago four years ago. At that time the elder Sarnoff urged that "every effort must be made to find new sales patterns, new types of programs to arrest the decline . . ."

NBC Radio, Mr. Sarnoff goes on in the letter, has done just that. It has forced new sales and programming patterns that to advertisers "meant novel merchandising and marketing opportunities and greater cumulative advertising impact." NBC, he notes, now is "selling cost-per-thousand economy in large bottles . . . furnishing flexibility, frequency and mobility, the reach-where-television-can't principle." Result? Says Mr. Sarnoff: A 20% increase in commercial business over a year ago, an increase in

Dynamic Power

Jupiter (Zeus to all Greeks) was top man on the totem pole, so far as the Olympian gods were concerned. He was described as Supreme Ruler, Lord of the Sky, the Rain-God and the Cloudgatherer. Like a lot of male mortals, he also had an eye for pretty girls, but we’re not concerned with that here.

So— to the Greeks, he represented Power, and his symbol and weapon was the Thunderbolt, which he may have used a little indiscriminately here and there.

And what does all this have to do with WCKY? Well, we want you to know we’re POWER, too—50,000 whole watts of it; in fact, we’re “as powerful as any station in the entire United States.”

We try to use our power constructively in the public interest. We operate 24 hours a day, serving the Cincinnati market, and doing our darndest to do a good selling job for our advertisers. Cincinnatians like WCKY’s 50,000 watts of POWER for its good clear signal covering all of the Cincinnati trading area. Advertisers like WCKY for its selling POWER to the Cincinnati adult audience, and by Jupiter, with a combination like that, how can you lose?

If you want to know more about WCKY’s POWER to reach listeners and produce sales, call Tom Welstead at WCKY’s New York office or AM Radio Sales in Chicago and on the West Coast.

network clearance from 76-86% and increased compensation to 201 affiliates.

Network radio, he concludes, “still lives and breathes. To paraphrase Joe E. Lewis, it has been rich and it has been poor. It likes being rich much better, but it probably never will be again. It can, however, look forward to a useful and reasonably prosperous future if all those who have faith will hold to it.”

BAR Station Monitor Service
Ordered by Television Networks

The three TV networks last week added their names to those retaining Broadcast Advertiser Reports to keep tabs on what’s going on the air from stations around the country [CLOSED CIRCUIT, Nov. 24].

The BAR service, now in 75 major markets, records a station’s signal minute-by-minute during unidentified test periods (from sign-on to sign-off four to six weeks a year in 25 markets, from 6 p.m. to sign-off four times a year in 50 markets). The track record, among other things, tells subscribers who’s being triple-spotted (or worse), who isn’t, who’s being cut off network programs by local stations, not getting product protection, etc.

Already on the BAR client roster are “a score” of advertising agencies and various stations in the monitored markets.

NBC-TV Names McFadden, Abry
In Action to Strengthen Sales

In a move attributed to a desire to beef up network sales, NBC-TV last week announced the promotion of two executives effective today (Dec. 1). Named to the newly-created post of vice president-general sales executive with direct responsibilities for NBC-TV’s eastern, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco offices was Thomas B. McFadden heretofore vice president of NBC Spot Sales. Also slotted in a new post: Charles R. Abry, manager of NBC-TV eastern sales, to general sales executive with responsibility for client contact in the eastern and Detroit areas. He reports to Mr. McFadden.

Mr. McFadden, 41, has been at NBC for 24 years, having joined the company in 1934, first with NBC News, after World War II rising through managerial ranks. Mr. Abry was national sales manager of ABC-TV when he joined NBC-TV as eastern sales manager in January 1957.

Meanwhile, NBC announced the promotion of Richard H. Close to director of NBC Spot Sales. He had been director of represented stations in the Spot Sales department.

FCC TORN BY OPTION TIME QUESTION

Have networks been mousetrapped by FCC staff, Justice Dept.?

An explosive schism has split the FCC. At loggerheads are some FCC members and the Commission's network study staff. The object of the intensity is the staff's draft of proposed findings on the ultra-significant question of network option time.

The staff report was submitted for FCC approval last Monday. It is due for a second airing next Monday (Dec. 8). Tempers ran high after the commissioners gathered for the first go-round on the proposed report.

The question of who put the editorializing in what is supposed to be a straight factual report has the commissioners and staff executives buzzing.

It is supposed to be an analysis of the testimony and evidence on the subject of option time. It is, some contend, not only a digest of the evidence on this touchy subject, but makes findings.

What widens the split is that this report must be relayed to the Justice Dept. for a formal opinion on the antitrust implications of option time.

In April of this year, Justice Dept. officials—including Assistant Attorney General Victor R. Hansen and his first assistant, Robert A. Bicks—told FCC Chairman John C. Doerr and his top aides that in their opinion option time (and must buys) are per se violations of the antitrust laws. It was at this meeting that FCC executives promised to submit proposed findings to the Justice Dept. before coming out with a final decision.

The document, running about 100 pages, was circulated among commissioners only two weeks ago. It was prepared by Warren Baum, chief of the Office of Network Study, and was based on the October 1957 Barrow Report and the testimony of witnesses in the Barrow Report hearing last spring.

The document, it was learned, contains no recommendations. It does, however, support two major conclusions:

- Networks are necessary in the conduct of television broadcasting.
- Option time is not essential to networking.

There is no clear cut recommendation for option time abolition, it is understood, but the implication is clear—according to someone who has studied the report—that there is slim ground for maintaining that option time is necessary in the public interest.

What ranked some Commissioners was the tone of the document.

Although it set out the evidence according to testimony, it also drew what lawyers call conclusionary evidence.

For example, it sets out the arguments pro and con on option time and relates the testimony of the affiliates committees and the station representatives. These testified that they were not opposed to option time with the affiliates joining the networks in testifying that option time was required as a business practice.

The report, however—gratuitously in the opinion of some who have seen the document—goes one step further. It brands the testimony of the affiliates and the reps as suspect on the assumption that they have been cowed by the networks.

The document, it is understood, is replete with this type of judgment.

What makes the matter so awkward is that this document is required to be submitted to the Justice Dept. If submitted as proposed, the Attorney General would have no difficulty in backing up his view that option time is a violation of antitrust laws.

The matter of procedures also has some of the FCC Commissioners worried. If the document is considered the usual Commission report and order on rule-making, then the Commission must accept it as it is promulgated. However, in the view of some, this is just an interim "factual" report for submission to the Justice Dept. and should not contain any recommendations—even by implication.

There is also a strong belief that the document should be made public so networks and others may answer the findings.

The Office of Network Study was established as a division of the Broadcast Bureau in 1957 after the massive Barrow Report was issued. With the issuance of its report the special Network Study Staff came to an end.

ONS is headed by Mr. Baum, an economist, and a member of the original Network Study Staff. Also detailed to the Office of Network Study is Herbert M. Schulkind, assistant chief of the Broadcast Bureau's Rules & Standard Division. Mr. Schulkind is preparing the proposed findings on network must-buys. He was not a staff member.

The Network Study Staff was organized in September 1955, with Dean Roscoe Barrow of the U. of Cincinnati Law School as director. Working with an appropriation that totaled $221,000, Dean Barrow and his 13-man staff compiled a sweeping study of the television broadcasting industry and in October 1957 released their recommendations.

The abolition of option time was one such recommendation. So was the abolition of must buy station line-ups and the practice of network spot sales divisions acting as representatives for stations other than network-owned outlets.

Among other recommendations—there were 37 of them—it was suggested that (1) networks be licensed by the FCC, (2) controls be imposed over rate-making to prevent networks from influencing affiliates in setting spot rates, (3) multiple ownership be limited to three vhf outlets in top 25 markets, (4) all stations sales required to be conducted for cash so applicants other than proposed buyer could bid for station, (5) networks be forced to make public all affiliation agreements, including compensation agreements.

The Report also stated that there was a close affinity between the motion picture "block booking" practice—declared illegal in the Paramount case—and option time. It also declared that there was a strong possibility that option time was a violation per se of Sec. 1 of the Sherman Act.

Besides Mr. Baum, two other members of the original study staff are members of the Office of Network Study. They are Ashbrook P. Bryant and James F. Tierney. Both attorneys, they are still working on a program report. This was not completed in time for inclusion in the original Barrow report.

Listed as consultants to the Office of Network Study are Dean Barrow and Drs. Louis H. Mayo and Jesse Markham. The last two were also members of the original study staff.

During the three weeks of open hearings on the Barrow Report last spring, the Commission en banc heard testimony from network officials, station owners, multiple owners, network affiliate committees and station representatives. The hearings were concluded by Dean Barrow.

Old Mansfield Antitrust Issue Questioned in Current Transfer

The Mansfield (Ohio) News-Journal, which was denied a new radio station grant by the FCC in 1948 on grounds it violated antitrust laws in its competitive practices, was notified by the FCC last week that a hearing is necessary for the newspaper's proposed purchase of WCLW Mansfield from Frederick Eckhardt for $45,000 (Government, Sept. 15).

The McFarland letter sent by the FCC last week followed a request by WMAN Mansfield for a hearing on the sale. WMAN figured in the FCC's 1948 decision against the newspaper company.

In the letter last week, the FCC said a substantial question "still exists" as to whether the Mansfield Journal Co. "engages and will continue to engage in activities . . . inconsistent with the Commission policy on treatment of controversial issues, and in business practices tending toward the suppression of competition and the attainment of a monopoly in advertising and news dissemination."

The FCC said it is unable to determine at this time that a grant of the sale would be in the public interest "in the light of the history of Mansfield's practices as reflected in pleadings and the record, the continued participation in the activities of the company of persons who have been closely associated with Mansfield Journal throughout the years, and the existence of unresolved questions pertaining to Mansfield's present and past business practices."

The newspaper company, denying WMAN's charges, held that company policies have changed since the death of the former editor of the firm, S. A. Horvitz, on June 15, 1956, and that his three sons—Harry R., William D. and Leonard C.—had no control over policy until his death. The FCC's denial of a broadcast license to the Mansfield Journal Co. in 1948 was made on grounds the company violated antitrust laws in its competitive practices with WMAN and with WEOL Elyria, Ohio, the latter through the newspaper company's affiliated Lorain (Ohio) Journal. The FCC decision was supported in a later decision by the U.S. Supreme Court, which found the Lorain Journal was acting illegally in refusing to sell advertising to those also advertised on WEOL. WMAN charged similar practices by the Mansfield News-Journal against WMAN.

Triple damage suits have been filed against Mansfield Journal Co. in Ohio federal district court under antitrust laws by WMAN ($1,282,749, filed in 1952) and WEOL ($938,000, in 1951) and a pre-trial conference in the WEOL action is scheduled Dec. 18 in Cleveland, with pre-trial action in the WEOL case expected to come afterward. WCLW has broadcast since Dec. 30, 1957.

Wisconsin Stations in Doghouse For Not Attributing NAM Film

The FCC last week renewed the licenses of WKOW-AM-TV Madison, WFRV-TV Green Bay and WNMN Neenah-Menasha, all Wisconsin, but reprimanded KHOW-TV and WFRV-TV for carrying kinescopes of the "Kohler hearings" earlier this year without disclosing that they were furnished by National Assn. of Manufacturers. S. N. Pickard, WFRV's parent stock in WFRV-TV held in a trusteeship, is owner of WNAM.

The FCC said that although licenses are being renewed, the letters to the broadcasters on the violations are being associated in the files of their respective stations for "such further consideration as their future operations may warrant."

Some two dozen tv stations were charged by the FCC with carrying the films made of the "Kohler hearings" before a special Senate Labor-Management Committee last March [GOVERNMENT, April 21, et seq.]. Other licensees which have been chastised for showing the films include: Storer Broadcasting Co. and Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. WBC has protested, in its own behalf, the action [GOVERNMENT, Nov. 3].

Airspace Acts on KFDX-TV Tower

The Airspace Panel of the Air Coordinating Committee last week recommended FCC approval of a tower not to exceed 1,049 feet above ground for ch. 3 KFDX-TV Wichita Falls, Tex. The tower would be located west of Wichita Falls. The Airspace Panel also recommended an antenna farm for that location.

STATIONS' RECORD-KEEPING EASED

- FCC proposes simpler, more streamlined program forms
- Craven argues FCC shouldn't dictate any specifications

The FCC last week proposed to simplify and modernize some of the record-keeping required by broadcast stations.

In a notice of proposed rulemaking, the Commission submitted revised program forms which substantially change some of the information heretofore required. The changes relate to Sec. IV of broadcast application forms required to be furnished when applying for a new station, for license renewals or for changes in ownership.

The Commission asked for comments on or before Jan. 19.

Broadcasters who participated in working out the changes with FCC staff men declared that they were "delighted" with the result. They indicated that the Commission had gone along with their recommendations in most important categories.

The notice was accompanied by a six-page dissent by Comr. T.A.M. Craven. Mr. Craven argued that the Communications Act and the First Amendment to the Constitution prohibits censorship of radio-television programs. He declared the Commission is actually telling broadcasters what kinds of programs they should carry through the listing of program categories in the form.

He called for the Commission to withdraw from the program field by discontinuing the use of program proposals as one of the criteria on which it bases approval or disapproval of an application. He declared that the FCC should call only for program information when or if it has information that the law is being violated.

"Otherwise," Mr. Craven said, "the Commission should leave the task of programming in the public interest exclusively to the licensee where it belongs as a matter of right and duty.

The proposed new program forms are the result of two years' work among a committee of broadcasters, the Bureau of the Budget and an FCC liaison group. The Bureau of the Budget is responsible for overseeing government forms which business men must report on to agencies.

Broached in 1956 • The idea of revising what many broadcasters considered outmoded program information was broached more than two years ago. It came to a head at the 1956 NAB convention. At that time, all members of the FCC agreed that changes should be made.

In the intervening 24 months, broadcasters and FCC staff executives had many meetings. A proposed revision was worked out last May, but broadcaster objections caused it to be re-evaluated. Last week's proposal was the result of further consultations between the broadcasters' committee and the FCC.

Three new categories are listed in the proposed form. These are "Public Affairs," "Instructive," and "Sporting Events."

Also new is the listing for spot announcements. At present these must be calculated on a 14½-minute period basis. In the proposed new form, these are figured on an overall weekly basis for three major time periods—6 a.m.-6 p.m.; 6-11 p.m., and all other hours. This also calls for the figuring of the average number of spot announcements per 15-minute segment and the number of such segments where the average exceeded. Daytime radio stations would be permitted to limit themselves to the 6 a.m.-6 p.m. category.

The definition of a commercial program has been revised. At present any 14½-minute program which contains any amount of commercial copy must be counted as commercial; in the proposed form, the segment is charged to 14 minutes—thus providing for a one-minute spot without causing the program to be classified as commercial.

The definition of a live program has also been amended; at present if a live program uses recordings in whole or in part, it must be classified recorded. In the revised proposal, a program which is live at least half the period may be classified live.

Wire commercial and wire sustaining have been eliminated entirely.

Where the station carries promotional announcements and no charge is made, no classification is required. At present all such promotion announcements relating to a commercial program are required to be classified as commercial.

How It Should be Split • The new percentage program classifications run as follows:

1. Religious (include here all sermons, religious news, music and drama, etc.).
2. Agricultural (include here all programs containing farm or market reports or other information specifically addressed to the agricultural population).
3. News (include here news reports and commentaries).
4. Public Affairs (include here talks, discussions, speeches, forums, panel round table and other programs primarily concerning current local, national and international affairs or problems).
5. Instructive (include here programs, not classified in 1 to 4, involving primarily the discussion of, or primarily designed to further an appreciation of or understanding of, literature, music, fine arts, history, geography, and the natural and social sciences, and similar programs intended principally to instruct).
6. Entertainment (include here all programs which are intended primarily as entertainment, such as music, drama, variety, comedy, quiz, breakfast, children's, etc.).
7. Sporting Events (include here play-by-play and all pre-game and post-game related activities whether or not broadcast in behalf of educational institutions).

The program classification continues the educational formula asking for percentage
Best insurance you can buy against long periods of interrupted service. With an elevator, it's possible to get a technician up on the tower fast ... and in almost any kind of weather ... to locate and correct trouble. This kind of fast action is just not possible without an elevator, especially at night or during icy winter weather.

Easy to give on-the-spot supervision. When there's work being done way up the tower, an elevator enables you to supervise and inspect the job yourself; get a first hand close-up view of equipment in safety and comfort.

Greatly simplifies routine maintenance. Light bulb changes, fastener and paint checks, periodic inspections all take less time, less effort, cost less money. An elevator puts men on the job fresh and ready to work, not tired after a long climb.

assures speedy, safe service, inspection and maintenance

Dresser-Ideco elevators are engineered and built for complete safety and simplicity of operation and maintenance. A single switch moves the car up or down, or stops it at any point on the tower. The system is completely equipped with automatic safety devices. A radio control system eliminates the need for elevator wiring circuits on the tower, greatly simplifies installation and maintenance.

An elevator is practically a "must" on a tall antenna tower. Dresser-Ideco recommends that all towers in the 700-foot height range, or higher, be elevator-equipped, and suggests under certain circumstances that an elevator would be a practical investment in a tower of lesser height.

Charges FCC Dictates • Comr. Craven’s dissent hit what he called the FCC’s practice of “consistently” censoring broadcast stations’ programming by among other things “dictating the program pattern to be followed by all stations.” This is done, he claimed, through the establishment of program categories in the application forms.

“The establishment of program categories, the Commission has long insisted, falls entirely within its regulatory powers since these categories serve merely as guideposts for the applicants and need not be followed. Such argument sounds quite reasonable to anyone not familiar with the practical applications of these ‘guideposts,’ or the ‘lifted eyebrow’ technique used by this administrative agency. But to one whose broadcast experience has been more practical than theoretical, it is obvious that no licensee is free to program according to his personal opinion as to what constitutes the best public service when he knows full well that his views are destined to be evaluated in the light of pre-conceived and pre-stated opinions of the regulating agency.”

The Commission’s position is both “illegal and impractical,” Mr. Craven added. “For, here the Commission prescribes what programs it considers to be in the best interest of the public and, by this prescription, creates either an artificial demand or an artificial need, or both—which does violence to principles of freedom of expression; to the clear statutory principle that choice of programs is the licensee’s exclusive duty and responsibility; to every social aspect of programming as it applies to the varying tastes, customs, needs and demands of the many communities of this nation; and to the economic well-being of the stations themselves.”

HARRIS COMMITTEE ENDS CH. 4 TEMPEST
- Rumor source still unsolved
- Year end report forthcoming

The House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee last Wednesday (Nov. 26) wrote finis to its investigation of the FCC’s grant of ch. 4 Pittsburgh—and to all other cases —without finding out who started rumors of alleged bribes.

After two weeks of testimony on whether former FCC Chairman George C. McConnaughey solicited or was offered bribes totaling $250,000 for his vote [GOVERNMENT, Nov. 24, 17], last week’s hearing was called to attempt to determine if the rumors were “started deliberately.” Three witnesses, Earl F. Reed, Lee W. Eckels and George Sutton repeated under oath what they previously had told the subcommittee. Messrs. Sutton and Eckels were in direct conflict in their testimony, while a fourth witness, William Matta, contradicted testimony given by Mr. Reed.

Testifying Wednesday, Mr. Reed, president of winning applicant TV City Inc. after its merger with Hearst-WCAE Pittsburgh, repeatedly told the subcommittee that he did not remember who first told him of the alleged bribes. “If I knew where I heard these things, I would tell you,” he stated.

He said he first heard the rumor Mr. McConnaughey was to receive $200,000 from Hearst sometime before the June 3, 1957, oral argument before the Commission. He first learned of a second rumor—Mr. McConnaughey had solicited $50,000 from TV City—June 3 or 4, 1957. Mr. Reed stated.

Several other witnesses testified they first heard of the bribe rumors from or through Mr. Reed, to which Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) referred when he told the witness, “Everything, very frankly, points in a certain direction . . .,” regarding the source of the rumors.

Mr. Reed again testified, as he did two weeks ago, that Mr. Matta was the only person, although not the first, he could specifically remember telling him of the alleged bribe solicitations. Subcommittee Chief Counsel Robert Lishman, after reading Mr. Matta’s testimony of Monday that he (Matta) did not tell Mr. Reed of the alleged bribes, asked Mr. Reed if he wanted to change his statement. “No, I don’t wish to change my testimony,” the witness replied.

Mr. Matta, one of three applicants for ch. 4 who withdrew after being paid $5,000 in expenses, testified Mr. Reed had in fact told him of the alleged Hearst bribe. He said Mr. Reed stated Mr. McConnaughey had told of the alleged Hearst offer during a party in New York. The bribe rumors, Mr. Matta stated, were one of the considerations involved in the decision to withdraw his application. (A previous witness and applicant for ch. 4, Scott Fink, also attributed the withdrawal of his application to the rumors.)

Mr. Reed also stated, in answer to repeated questions, that he did not remember

Removal of Protest Denied, KISD Will Seek Review by FCC

Commission review of an examiner’s denial of a request by KISD Sioux Falls, S. D., that it be allowed to withdraw its protest of a station sale will be asked by KISD, it was learned last week.

FCC Chief Hearing Examiner James D. Cunningham denied KISD’s petition to withdraw its protest against the sale of 51% of KIHO Sioux Falls by James A. Saunders to William F. Johns Jr. for $9,000, giving Mr. Johns sole ownership of the station [At Deadline, Nov. 24].

KISD last week said that while its next action will be to ask for more time to reply to the examiner’s action, it intends ultimately to ask the FCC to review the decision. The station said the positions taken by the Broadcast Bureau—which opposed the requested withdrawal of protest—and the examiner represent a “whole, brand new idea.”

The decision is a departure from present policy and the FCC is “faced with deciding whether it is going to adopt a new policy” in such decisions, KISD added.

FCC openings and alleged attempts to prohibit any person (except as authorized by law) from making a presentation to the commissioners except on the record.”

The subcommittee has uncovered many instances of ex parte contacts and alleged attempts to influence the Commission in its year-long investigation of the FCC and other agencies. The new Commission recommendation would apply to members of Congress. At present, the law specifically prohibits those representations by persons who have assisted in preparing an applicant’s case or who appeared before a hearing examiner who first told him the (1) FCC was split 3-3 for TV City and Hearst and (2) Messrs. McConnaughey and Sutton planned to form a law association. Both pieces of information came to him via telephone the night of June 3, 1957, he said.

Rep. Harris countered that this seemed to him “perfectly ridiculous that you [Reed] can remember everything else about this but cannot remember where you heard this important information.” Mr. Reed, when asked if a certain individual was the party that called, repeatedly replied: “I have no idea where I got the information.”

Messrs. Eckels, TV City official, and Sutton, former TV City attorney, were recalled by the subcommittee in its attempt to find out if Mr. Sutton was discharged. Mr. Eckels again stated that he told Mr. Sutton at a June 4, 1957, luncheon the attorney no longer would represent the TV applicant or its radio station, KQV Pittsburgh. “I not only claim it, I did tell him” he (Sutton) was discharged, Mr. Eckels emphasized. He also claimed one or two 3-3 tie votes were discussed.

Mr. Sutton denied that he was either fired or the Commission vote was discussed with Mr. Eckels on June 4. He said he first learned of the Commission vote, taken June 3 immediately after the oral argument, a week or 10 days later. And, to this day, he claimed, he has never been discharged by TV City.

At the close of the Wednesday session, Rep. Harris announced the subcommittee’s lengthy, stormy hearings on several FCC matters were concluded. He said the subcommittee would meet in executive session Dec. 10 to consider its report, due for release by the end of the year [Government, Nov. 24].

"I have been very much impressed by our BTA-50G's long-term stability"

Says William Sadler, Chief Engineer, KSTP, St. Paul

"Our 50 KW Ampliphase Transmitter has provided outstanding savings in installation costs, and reduced power bills!"

Installation of the RCA Type BTA-50G Ampliphase Transmitter at KSTP, St. Paul, was accomplished in three weeks under the supervision of William Sadler, Chief Engineer. The 15-foot long BTA-50G was placed along one face of the octagonally shaped transmitter room at KSTP, while the old 50 KW composite transmitter occupies approximately one-half of the remaining wall area.

Since the BTA-50G went into operation at KSTP there has been an outstanding reduction in power cost. Smaller size of the Ampliphase Transmitter has reduced maintenance time and expense.

Stability of the BTA-50G Transmitter, a most important factor in 50 KW operation, has really sold KSTP on the Ampliphase system of modulation. The dual exciter-modulator units assure stable and continuous service. As a result, W-GTO, Cypress Gardens, Florida, a KSTP affiliate, has purchased a BTA-50G Transmitter.

For installation and operating savings, streamlined improved program coverage, the best sound possible, you need the RCA BTA-50G. Now in daily operation at five stations. See your RCA Broadcast representative. In Canada: write RCA VICTOR Company Limited.

AT&T, WU Get Rate Boost
In Spite of All-Media Protests

The FCC last week, despite protests from NAB, news wire services, American Newspaper Publishers Assn. and others, authorized interim increases in tariffs for private line teletypewriter services by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Western Union, effective tomorrow (Dec. 2).

Groups using the services had asked for a 90-day suspension of the new tariffs. The new rates, an increase of $8.5 million a year for AT&T and $4.2 million for WU, originally were scheduled to go into effect today. They were suspended one day, however, for action requiring the two carriers to keep records of the increased revenues for possible refunds when the FCC makes a final decision in its two-year-old investigation, which is to determine among other things whether the new rates are lawful.

AT&T originally had filed for an increase totaling $11 million and WU for $6.7 million, but they were denied by the Commission, which then accepted the revised figures.

FCC said its preliminary findings in the investigation support "the need for some increases on an interim basis" for private line teletypewriter rates.

NAB and others had charged the boosts would tend to restrict the free flow of news since higher costs would force small radio stations and newspapers to curtail or discontinue their news agency services.

Court Sets Boston Deadline

FCC has been given to Dec. 15 to designate the Boston ch. 5 case for rehearing. The U.S. Court of Appeals told the Commission to either set the case for hearing by that date or tell why. This was the court's response to an FCC notice of last month that it was still investigating the case [Gov-ernment, Nov. 10]. The Appeals Court required the Boston ch. 5 case last July for investigation of influence charges and asked for interim status reports.

Honma CP to St. Anthony Corp.

The FCC last week made effective immediately an initial decision of early November and granted the application of St. Anthony Television Corp. for a tv construction permit in Houma, La. The grant in Houma was for ch. 11. Originally, Mitchell Wolfson and Sidney Meyer, owners of WTVJ (TV) Miami, Fla., and WLOS-AM-TV Asheville, N. C., had also applied for this facility.

FCC Supported on Interference

A federal court has put teeth into the FCC's campaign to eliminate unlicensed and uncertified electronic heating equipment in industrial areas which interferes with radio and tv broadcast reception. At the same time, the FCC's Field Engineering & Monitoring Bureau issued a bulletin indicating concern about interference to radio-tv from similar heating equipment, reported to number in the hundreds in the New York area. The letter was written by V. P. Bryan of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York last week ordered Edmar Separator Co., New York, which uses heat from radio frequency generators in processing plastic material into articles of wearing apparel, to cease operating its equipment in defiance of an FCC cease and desist order issued last month.

Minneonto Seeks 8 Translators
To Provide Intl. Falls Signal

Minneonto TV Inc. has filed applications for eight translator stations with the FCC to serve as a two-channel station and relay system between Duluth and International Falls, Minn. The system "has been designed to cover the majority of the population in Virginia and the sparsely populated area between Virginia [Minn.] and International Falls . . ." according to the applications. The translators are planned as a substitute for a tv station on ch. 11 (KIFS (TV)) at International Falls granted Minneonto by the FCC.

The proposed translator operation would relay the signals of ch. 3 KDAL-TV and ch. 6 WDSM-TV, both Duluth, 140 miles by establishing two translators each at Virginia (chs. 72 and 74), Orr (chs. 80 and 82), Kabetogama (chs. 76 and 78) and International Falls (chs. 71 and 73).

Single Tv, Am Grants Made

The FCC last week granted Rocket City Television Inc., Huntsville, Ala., a construction permit for a new tv station to operate on ch. 31. At the same time, the Commission granted Harold J. Arnoldus, Page, Ariz., a construction permit for a new am outlet on 1340 kc with 250 w. The Commission noted that Page is still under construction as part of a dam project. For other FCC actions of last week, see For The Record, page 99.

Explain Delay, FCC Tells WSRB

WSBR Warwick-East Greenwich, R. I., was informed by the FCC last week that unless it replies within 30 days requesting a hearing, its application for time to complete construction will be dismissed, its construction permit cancelled and call letters deleted. Also, the application for transfer of control of WSRB to Milton E. Miller (WADK Newport, R.I.) would require a hearing, according to the FCC, on the issue of duopoly.

ABC Chicago Stations Renewed

The licenses of ABC's broadcast properties in Chicago—WENR-FM, WBKB (TV) and 50% of WLS—were renewed last week by the FCC. But the renewals were made "without prejudice" to whatever the FCC may decide when it finalizes its recommendations on its Network Study (Barrow) Report and on related studies and inquiries now being considered or conducted by the Commission. The other 50% of WLS is owned by Prairie Farmer Publishing Co. (Prairie Farmer).
You wouldn’t knowingly pay a cent toward socializing the U.S.A. You’ve seen what happens to the rights and freedoms of the individual in other countries when government takes over and runs things.

Yet you and other Americans have already paid more than five and a half billion dollars in taxes toward the socializing of the electric light and power business. So-called “public power” has now put control of almost 1/5 of the country’s electricity in government’s hands.

And that’s just the beginning. The federal “public power” pressure groups are pushing the idea that Congress should spend another ten billion dollars to carry this grab farther—with taxes to be collected from you.

And it’s all so unnecessary. For America’s many independent electric light and power companies are able—and ready—to supply the electricity the nation needs—without spending a cent of your taxes.

The reason this socialism by taxation goes on is simply that most people don’t know about it. So you can help halt it by spreading the word.

As soon as enough people know that their taxes are being used to buy socialism, they will stop it.

WHEN “PUBLIC POWER” WINS—YOU LOSE!

Every time the lobby for federal “public power” pushes another government electricity project through Congress, you are taxed to pay the bill.

Hammell, Four Firms Hit in FTC Complaint

Arthur Hammell and four New York firms of which he is an official were charged by the Federal Trade Commission last Wednesday (Nov. 26) "with using misrepresentation to sell such advertising promotional plans as 'a millionaire's weekend trip to Las Vegas' to radio and television stations." The companies cited were Advertisers Associ. of America Inc., Teleradio Advertisers Inc., United Publicity Inc. and Teleradio Advertisers ("the trade name of Mr. Hammell"), all of 350 Fifth Ave.

The FTC complaint also said other "typical" contests sponsored by Mr. Hammell were "juvenile delinquency essay contest" and "safety on the highway essay contest."
The FTC said the complaint charged that Mr. Hammell, "through the firm's salesmen, enters into contracts with the stations and local merchants. The latter are to receive radio and tv advertising for their businesses while the stations are to receive certain percentages of the merchants' payments. Mr. Hammell promises to provide the advertising scripts as well as the prizes."

"...The firms made false claims to both the stations and merchants when selling these plans. For example, the stations are led to believe that all checks obtained from merchants will be made payable to them. In reality, many checks were made payable to the respondents, and without authority they endorsed some made jointly payable to them and the stations and kept the station's share."

FTC said "Teleradio advertisers and its affiliates are further charged with falsely claiming that they will provide free trips to Las Vegas or a cash substitute, advertise the promotion in local newspapers, or exhibit subscribers' merchandise on television."

Other false claims charged by the complaint, FTC said, included: "That they would handle each merchant's commercial copy monthly; each merchant would be furnished an attractive display bearing the radio station's call letters; all leading businessmen in the area were participating; that backdoor tv advertising conformed to a sample shown to subscribers; that the firm's salesmen were agents of the stations, and that only one business of a kind in a specified area would be permitted to sponsor the plan."

FTC granted the parties 30 days to file an answer and scheduled a hearing Jan. 21, 1959, in Washington.

Empire State Bldg. representatives reported Wednesday Mr. Hammell is no longer a tenant there. The office of Arthur Hammell at 80 Eighth Ave., New York, reported Mr. Hammell has been ill for a week and could not be reached for comment.

Norman D. Levy, an attorney in the Empire State Bldg. who said he has served as counsel for Mr. Hammell, said all comment would be withheld until the FTC complaint has been received. He declined to say whether the four firms named in the FTC complaint are active now, but he did say they have not been corporately dissolved.

Political Science Group Offers Nine-Month Congressional Stint

The American Political Science Assn. has begun accepting applications from political journalists and political scientists for its 1959-60 congressional fellowship awards. Each winner receives $4,500, most of which is tax-exempt, plus travel expenses for a nine-month stay in Washington.

Fellowships are open to political scientists and journalists between the ages of 23 and 35 who have had advanced training combined with experience. Competition is on a nationwide basis with winners to be selected by members of Congress, Washington journalists and political scientists.

The fellowship winners will work as staff members in the offices of senators and congressmen and on congressional committees. Journalism candidates are required to have an A. B. degree and at least one year of professional experience in radio-tv, newspaper or magazine work. Applications must be submitted prior to Feb. 15, 1959, with winners to be announced early in April.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from The American Political Science Assn., 1725 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.
Producers Survey Accounting
For Guidance of IRS on Taxes

Price Waterhouse is engaged in interviewing member companies of the Alliance of Television Film Producers regarding their tax accounting procedures. Information from the study, ordered by the producers, will later be collated for submission to the Internal Revenue Service as an aid in determining a method of taxing these companies.

The interview method of collecting the data is necessary, ATTP President Maurice Morton told Broadcasting, because different procedures employed by the 22 member producers would make answers to a mail questionnaire meaningless. For example, he pointed out, sales commission paid to agencies like MCA or William Morris are included by some film producers in the cost of production, while other companies charge them to overhead.

This method is also protracted, Mr. Morton said. One interviewer who is familiar with the procedures of a number of companies can do a more efficient fact-finding job with other companies than 22 interviewers, each reporting on a single film producer, he explained. He estimated that the job might be completed around the first of the year.

The Alliance embarked on its survey of tax accounting following a proposed change in Treasury Dept. requirements that would force producers to shift from a cost recovery method of computing taxes to an estimated gross receipts method which the TV film producers felt could tax them out of business [Trade Assns., Sept. 1; Government, July 28; Filmed, April 7].

AAP Sells 'Popeye' to Four More, Makes New Warner, Other Sales

Four more TV stations have bought Associated Artists Productions' cartoon series of "Popeye," it has been announced by AAP General Sales Manager W. Robert Rich. Sales to date total 137 stations. New buyers are KQN-TV Anchorage, KFRR-TV Fairbanks, both Alaska; WSAV-TV Savannah, Ga., and KRBB (TV) El Dorado, Ark. "Popeye" renewals were ordered by WPRO-TV Providence and KBTV (TV) Denver.

Mr. Rich also reported sales of Warner Bros. feature film group to the following: WMTW (TV) Portland, Maine, six groups; KGGM-TV Albuquerque, three groups; WCYY-TV Bristol, Va., two groups, and single groups each to WLOS-TV, Asheville, N. CNP Plans New TV Film Products

California National Productions, NBC's film syndication subsidiary, has indicated that it intends to go ahead with pending arrangements for new TV film product next year. Frank Cleaver, CNP's vice president in Hollywood, conferred last week with New York officials of CNP including President Earl Rettig. After the meeting, Mr. Rettig said the company initially had planned to limit its production schedule in the year ahead because of the recession but that "our current sales success, a general business upturn and "wave of optimism" from producers of goods and services in the country, caused a change of plans.

QUOTES WORTH REPEATING

A PLACE FOR ALL MEDIA

Sig Mickelson, vice president of CBS Inc. and general manager of CBS News, adressing the national convention of Sigma Della Chi, professional journalism fraternity, in San Diego Nov. 21.

I will admit frankly that broadcast journalism was born with a bar sinister.
It sprang from the loins of show business.
Many of its early practitioners were retreads from vaudeville, the theatre and the carnival business. That was a long time ago. But first impressions die hard.

There have been firm indications that we are now coming around to being considered as equals. We have earned this equality not through competing with newspapers. We have earned it by carving out for ourselves a unique and indis-ispensable place in the spectrum of information media. We have determined what we can do best—and are making the most of it.

It is most unfortunate that a competitiveness between print and broadcasting appears to exist on the business side.
Certainly there is competition for the advancing dollar. But such a feeling should not slop over onto the editorial side. Actually, newspaper and broadcast journalism complement each other—and each is stronger for having the other on hand.

This was brought home most forcefully to me just a few days ago—specifically, the morning after the elections. As you know, CBS News presented the most complete election coverage it had ever undertaken. From 9 p.m. until after 2 a.m., more than 200 CBS News People worked in our central election studio to bring viewers and listeners from coast to cost the most detailed election coverage.
By 2 a.m. the big issues had been decided. My head was full of election re-results as I had a late supper and went to bed. Yet, the next morning, I hurried to buy the Times and Herald-Tribune and read all about it—just as avidly as though I had been nowhere near a television or radio set. I was able to sit back and absorb the great mass of election information while I had my coffee. There were charts, columns of figures, photos, sidelights—all there for me to study at my pleasure.

I'm sure the reaction was similar in the case of the millions who followed all three networks' election coverage from beginning to end. As a matter of fact, a strong case could be made for an even greater interest in the newspaper coverage as a result of the excitement communicated by the air coverage of the night before.

Tossing a few counterblasts at radio's detractors, Cecil Woodland expresses the view that inter-media criticism can be harmful to advertising as a whole. Mr.
Woodland, general manager of WEIL
Scranton, Pa., and first vice president of the Pennsylvania Astrn. of Broadcasters, told this to the Wilkes-Barre Advertising Club Nov. 5. His remarks, in part:

How about radio's acceptance by advertisers? Well, the average radio station in Pennsylvania carries advertising schedules for 44 national, 25 regional and 226 local advertisers. That, I know you will agree, is hardly the business pulse of a dying industry.

Let me assure you that the pall bearers
we mention do not come from the television industry. Men and women in both radio and television—like those in other advertising fields—are sold on and believe in all advertising. They are smart enough to realize that criticism of any advertising medium is criticism of all advertising media.

It is my conviction—and a deep one—that no advertising medium will ever displace any other advertising medium. Instead, each will go its own way in search of the available advertising dollar, selling its own medium against others and, in doing so, selling all adversising without which America could not be the great nation it is.

Westinghouse Forms New Firm To Rep Its Owned TV Stations

The formation by Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. of Television Advertising Representatives Inc. to serve as national sales representative for the five WBC TV stations, effective next July 1, is being announced today (Dec. 1) by Donald H. McGannon, WBC president. WBC had announced last summer it would form its own national sales organization and drop its current representative.

Larry H. Israel, now general manager of the WBC station in Baltimore, WJZ-TV, has been named general manager of TAR. It will represent the following WBC stations: WBZ-TV Boston, WJZ-TV, KDKA-TV Pittsburgh, KYW-TV Cleveland and KPIX-TV San Francisco. Two weeks ago, Westinghouse named Am Radio Sales Corp., of which WBC is majority owner, representative of its six radio stations, also effective July 1.

Mr. McGannon indicated that Mr. Israel will be appointed to the board of directors of TAR and recommended to the board for the position of vice president.

Mr. Israel’s successor as general manager of WJZ-TV will be announced shortly. Mr. Israel will turn over management of the Baltimore station to his successor in early January and devote full time thereafter to selection of staff and offices for the new company and other organizational details.

Sun Ray Agrees in Principle To Consolidated Retail Merger

Sun Ray Drug Co., which owns WPEN Philadelphia, has agreed “in principle” to a merger with Consolidated Retail Stores Inc., it was announced last week. Harry S. Syk, Sun Ray president, said each Sun Ray stockholder would receive eight shares of Consolidated common for each Sun Ray share held.

Stockholders of both companies must approve the merger plan. Mr. Syk said the preferred stock of both companies would be eliminated.

Sun Ray also has an application pending at the FCC for the purchase of WCKR-AM-FM Miami from Biscayne TV Corp. (Knight-Cox-Trammell interests) for $800,000. This transfer has been held up by the Commission until it considers testimony before the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee alleging ex parte activities in the award of Biscayne’s ch. 7 WCKT (TV) Miami [Government, Nov. 10].

KENS-TV, WOAI-TV Put Tower Up

A 1,531-ft. tower is scheduled to be put into use by KENS-TV and WOAI-TV, both San Antonio, next Sunday (Dec. 7). The tower represents a $1 million investment by the two stations. It took 15 months to construct. Engineers estimate that the structure, near Elmendorf, Tex., will nearly double the stations’ effective coverage area. KENS-TV and WOAI-TV are maintaining their present towers as auxiliaries.

Independents Are Biggest Draw In 20 of Top 25 Markets—Young

Adam Young Inc., New York, last week said that a study completed by its research department shows that non-network stations are the number one outlets in terms of audience in 20 of the top 25 markets. The Young computations were based on the latest figures by The Pulse Inc., covering either August or September.

The study claims that whereas network stations were in either first or second place in 18 markets last fall, they are now either number one or two in only 14 markets this fall. In the fall of 1957, a total of 32 network stations were in the top three positions but this figure has dropped to 27 stations in the fall of 1958, according to the Young study.

The Young president also said that business placed by Young in the first nine months of 1958 exceeded the same period of 1957 by 77%. He said this financial information had been filed recently with the Station Representatives Assn.

NAB Pro-Tv Animations Receive Wide Exposure

More than $836,000 worth of television time is being allocated by 72 tv stations throughout the country to air a series of animated film spots produced by NAB to promote the tv medium.

NAB last week announced that an initial sampling of NAB tv members brought reports from the 72 outlets of their activities in a intensified 13-week promotion of television. The promotion campaign began during National Tv Week Nov. 16-22 and continues into next February. NAB members have received two of the eight-second tv spots and will receive eight others during December and January.

Other tv stations are expected to swell the total as the campaign progresses, NAB said. The 72 outlets already reporting show they will schedule the spots a total of 25,506 times by February.

The tv spots tell viewers of the impact of various types of tv programs that have had on American life. The spots were produced under supervision of NAB's public relations service on the theme, "Nothing Brings It Home Like Television."

Average weekly air time given to the spots by the 72 outlets totals $64,315, the amount the time would be sold commercially. A breakdown shows an average total of 1,962 spots weekly for the stations.

The time allotted by each station exceeds $11,600 for the drive, or over $890 each per week. Each outlet is running an average total of 354 spots, or 27 a week.

Two stations reporting say the average value of time each is devoting to the spots weekly exceeds $4,000; four report more than $3,000 each, nine more than $2,000 and 17 more than $1,000 each. Three outlets are airing the spots more than 50 times a week and seven more than 40 times. At least 65 of the stations are spotting the films throughout their daily schedules, including prime evening time.

The eight-second film spots show cartoon characters popping out of a home tv screen into a family living room. The two in current distribution emphasize tv public affairs programs and variety shows.

Figures from the first NAB sampling show that member outlets are fully supporting the drive as they were urged by C. Howard Lane, chairman of NAB's tv Board and managing director of KOIN-TV Portland, Ore., who asked that they "buy some time on your own station ... and schedule the 'Impact of Television' spots as if they were paid commercials."

Arizona Broadcasters Affirm Stand Against Hard Liquor Ads

Liquor and air make a bad mixture, according to the Arizona Broadcasters Assn. Representatives of 30 of the state's 46 radio stations and all eight tv stations unanimously adopted a resolution to maintain their self-imposed ban against hard liquor advertising on radio and tv.

Pointing out that there is no legal prohibition of such advertising, Tom Wallace, president of ABA and of KTKT Tucson, commented that what the resolution means "is simply to reafirm what has always been our position against accepting liquor advertising and to demonstrate that the broadcasting media recognize their responsibilities in the public interest."

Arlo Woolery, KSUN Bisbee, was elected president of ABA. Other new officers are: John Hogg, KOY Phoenix, vice president, and Fred Vance, KVOA-TV Tucson, secretary-treasurer. New directors are: Mr. Wallace; Harry Chambers, KCNA Tucson; Charles Saunders, KCLS Flagstaff; Howard Stalnaker, KPHO-TV Phoenix.

ALFORD Manufacturing Company
299 ATLANTIC AVE., BOSTON, MASS.
RAB: We're Not Biting Hand That Feeds Radio

Radio Advertising Bureau President Kevin Sweeney denied last week the charge by the Western States Advertising Agency Assn. that he or RAB has urged department stores to turn their advertising dollars over to RAB and bypass agencies. He attributed the charge that RAB is "biting the hand that feeds radio" to the personal frustration of a WSSA officer entangled in a department store situation which misunderstood RAB's "$64,000 Challenge" retail radio test plan [TRADE ASSNS., Nov. 24].

Mr. Sweeney outlined the test plan in a speech six months ago before the National Retail Merchants Assn. RAB proposes to offer $64,000 plus technical staff help to a major retailer for a one-year test of radio and presently is investigating 41 store offers to participate before choosing the test case. The retailer must add $32,000 of its own to the radio budget. No agency would be bypassed, RAB assured.

"Anyone who has read the speech knows what was said about advertising agencies and department stores," Mr. Sweeney said. "To paraphrase it, we stated that the only way that department stores could use radio successfully was the way they used newspapers—advertising items, many different items each week. We pointed out that under the standard 15% agency arrangement, no advertising agency could afford to handle an account which involved dozens of different pieces of copy each week, dozens of different buying patterns, and three to four fulltime people. We specifically told stores they would have to pay a fee to agencies."

Mr. Sweeney said anyone reading his speech "would know how completely absurd the charge is that we want any retailer to turn over his advertising dollars to RAB or that we are bypassing advertising agencies ... among the 41 stores that qualified for participation there is not one that is not represented by an agency." He said incidentally that "since over three-fourths of the expenditures on this research project are RAB's, we felt we had some small rights in saying how the money should be spent."

To the WSSA charge that "plans like RAB's for radio to capture the department store business were falling on their face before there was an RAB," Mr. Sweeney retorted, "To our knowledge our plan has never been tried before and we would stack our knowledge of department store radio against the combined knowledge of any group of agencies."

To the WSSA suggestion that radio subsidize advertising agencies by paying them extra commissions on department store business, Mr. Sweeney felt not many station operators would favor that. "It is suggestions like this which cause media to be even more puzzled about the 15% commission system and its implications," he said. "Broadcast media are already paying commissions on retail business which are not paid by newspapers—yet newspapers still have the bulk of the money."

A NEW BOARD of directors for Television Bureau of Advertising was elected at the fourth annual members' meeting Nov. 21 at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. New members (standing 1 to r) include Payson Hall, Meredith Publishing Co.; Dea Moines (treasurer); Alexander W. Dannenberg, Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., New York; John P. Blair, Blair Television Assoc., New York; Craig Lawrence, CBS-TV, New York; Donald Davis, KMBC-TV Kansas City; Lawrence H. Rodgers II, WSAS-TV Huntington, W. Va.; Sterling C. Quinlan, ABC-TV, Chicago; Otto Brandt, KING-TV Seattle (secretary); A. Louis Read, WDSU-TV New Orleans; Richard A. Moore, KTV (TV) Los Angeles. (Seated 1 to r): Glen Marshall, WJXT (TV) Jacksonville, Fla.; Roger W. Clipp, WFLI-TV Philadelphia (board chairman); Benjamin Cash, TV, New York (president); P. A. (Buddy) Sugg, NBC-TV, New York; Campbell Arnoux, WTAR-TV Norfolk, Va.; Robert R. Tinchet, WHSN-TV Huntington, W. Va. Not in picture: W. D. Rogers Jr., KDUB-TV Lubbock, Tex., and Joseph J. Radio's Hopes in Next Decade

Rest With the Young—Sweeney

Radio's "young turks" are the white hope of the medium for the next 10 years, president Kevin Sweeney of Radio Advertising Bureau told the Omaha Advertising Club last week. There are more of them around than in any other business today, he said. As "young turks" (of which some are enfants terribles, too, according to Mr. Sweeney) he cited aggressive executives willing to experiment in any way to improve radio's audience, sales and stature.

Mr. Sweeney referred to the transistor pocket radio as a "status symbol" for both rich and poor, and predicted that at least one million Japanese transistor sets will be sold in the U. S. next year. He also said that radio is the ideal match for the regional advertiser who spends less than $500,000 annually—the "only medium that will permit them to compete on even terms with national manufacturers."

Gay Heads Country Music Assn.

Connie B. Gay, president-board chairman, Town & Country Network, is the first president of The Country Music Assn., a group comprising radio-television-station owners, disc jockeys, recording companies, publishers, artists and songwriters, etc., from U. S., Canada and Mexico. The election was held at the seventh annual National Country Music Disc Jockey Festival [TRADE ASSNS., Nov. 24] in Nashville.

AFTRA, Networks Closer Together

The issues holding up agreement on a new contract between the radio and television networks and the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists appeared to have narrowed considerably as negotiators prepared for the resumption of formal negotiations over the weekend.

An AFTRA source agreed that "money matters" largely have been settled but pointed out that "certain policy matters" still require negotiations. Included in these areas are AFTRA's demand for a clause banning the "stockpiling" of videotapes and kinescopes by networks and stations for possible use in "breaking" an AFTRA strike and for inclusion of "the unfair station clause" under which networks would agree not to provide live programming to a station on strike against an AFTRA local.

The networks and the union held an informal meeting last Wednesday before the Thanksgiving holiday but were scheduled to resume formal talks this weekend. The old contract expired Nov. 15 but AFTRA has committed its local representatives to picket producers on the job until further notice.

AFTRA is understood to have reduced its wage demands of several weeks ago on the important issue of rates for taped commercials. It was reported that tentative agreement has been reached giving a performer $312 for an on-camera appearance and $205 for off-camera, covering 13 weeks' use of a videotaped one-minute commercial for the entire U.S. It was agreed also that if the taped spot is carried in either New York, Los Angeles or Chicago, a rate comparable to that for a spot presented in from six to 20 cities will apply. Use in a combination of two of these three cities, it was agreed, will call for the application of the full national rate.

One network demand made in recent talks is the right to syndicate a network taped program in non-network markets without paying any additional fee. AFTRA is understood to have replied that the program fee covered only one usage and that any form of syndication, even in non-network markets, called for additional payment.

AFTRA also is seeking to establish a principle that it believes will prevent possible reduction of announcing staffs by networks and stations. It wants payments to announcers for tapes they make while on duty but are used when they are not working. AFTRA fears that the networks may use taped announcements during an eight-hour day for the preparation of commercials and lead-ins for the entire broadcast day, so that approximately half the present staff will be required.

WGN-AM-TV at Peace With Unions, WLS-NABET Stalemate Continues

Amid protracted national negotiations between the networks and American Federation of Television & Radio Artists, one radio-entertainment unit made its peace with two unions and another was stalemated in contract talks with still another labor group.

At the same time stations continued local talks with AFTRA's Chicago chapter.

WGN-AM-TV announced Monday it has signed a three-year pact (through Sept. 30, 1961), first of its kind, with Local 1220 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Radio-television engineers were granted a weekly pay boost of $7.50 retroactive to Oct. 1 and an additional $7.50 starting Oct. 1, 1959. Any future discussions after Oct. 1, 1960, will be limited to wage increase talks. Starting pay scale is $100 per week, progressing over four years to $182.50. Supervisory engineers receive $207.50 and assistants $195.

Negotiations were handled by Carl J. Meyers, engineering director of WGN Inc., and Marvin W. Balouck, president of IBEW Local 1220.

Earlier WGN-AM-TV consummated an agreement with the AFTRA local covering salary increases for staff announcers. The agreement calls for a $20 weekly base pay boost (from $170 to $190). As a result, according to Ward L. Quaal, vice president and general manager of WGN Inc., the stations would not be affected by any AFTRA strike. The stations also reached a "substantial agreement" with the union on other demands.

Talks between WLS that city and the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians Chicago local were still stalemated last week. The station has referred the contract dispute involving engineering employees to its attorneys.

Fund Plans Series on News

U.S., Dutch Manufacturers Sued On Canadian Conspiracy Charges

The Justice Dept. last week accused General Electric, Westinghouse and a Dutch electronics company of conspiring to keep U.S.-manufactured radio and television sets out of Canada. A civil antitrust suit, filed in federal district court in New York, accused the three firms of operating an illegal conspiracy through a Canadian patent pool controlled by the companies' Canadian subsidiaries.

This pool, the government charged, prevented the importation into Canada of radio and tv sets made in the U.S. As a consequence, the suit contended, U.S. manufacturers have been compelled to establish plants in Canada, which they normally would not have done. The Dutch firm is N.V. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken.

Four other American companies—RCA, Western Electric, North American Philips Co. and Hazeltine Corp.—were named co-conspirators but were not listed as defendants.

Ray H. Luebbe, vice president and general counsel of GE, labeled the government action "unfounded in fact, unwarranted in law and ill-advised in terms of public policy." He said the suit concerns activities and decisions of the Canadian GE company "made independently by their Canadian management in the best interests of Canadian industry in conformance with Canadian law." Westinghouse said it would have no comment until its legal department has studied the charges.

RCA Consolidates Home Products In 3 Plants, Realigns 5 Others

RCA's home instrument manufacturing operations will be consolidated in three recently expanded plants and new facilities for electronic products and component production will be provided in realignment of five midwestern areas, it was announced last week. Frank Sleeter, vice president, manufacturing services, said the move is to "meet the new demands of the growing electronics industry" and when completed next year "is expected to result in an overall increase in RCA's total employment in these midwestern areas."

Involved will be television, radio, phonograph and electronic component production in Indianapolis and Bloomington, Ind.; Cambridge and Findlay, both Ohio, and Canonsburg, Pa. The home manufacturing facilities of Cambridge, Bloomington and Indianapolis facilities have recently been expanded. Changes will affect the five plants as follows:

Cambridge—Added to present production of tape recorders and some high-fidelity instruments will be RCA Victor radios and combination am-fm-high fidelity units. Bloomington—will continue its production of black-and-white television receivers and remain as RCA's color television production center utilizing a recently completed 120,000-square-foot addition to its facilities. Indianapolis—will take on the manufacture of television components, ferrite cores, and radios, as well as continue with production of portable television sets, records and electron tubes. Findlay—will become a manufacturing facility of RCA semiconductor and materials division for expanded product of transistors and other semiconductor devices. Canonsburg—RCA contemplates production of another type of electronic equipment with present manufacturing activity being transferred to other RCA plants. The rearrangement of production facilities, Mr. Sleeter said, will necessitate a reduction of the Canonsburg work force.

All equipment transfers are scheduled for completion by April 1, 1959, with full production at Bloomington, Indianapolis, Cambridge and Findlay expected to be underway by June 1, 1959, Mr. Sleeter said.

Muntz Books No Longer in Red, Federal Debt Cut Considerably

Business operations of Muntz TV Inc. have improved considerably since a reorganization early in 1957 following involuntary bankruptcy proceedings.

Harold S. Lansing, attorney and director of the company, announced Nov. 18 that the company now is "in a position to proceed and make money." He reported total sales of over $4 million and net profit of nearly $25,000 for the fiscal period ended last Aug. 31 compared with sales of $653,849 and a net loss of $1,024,842 for the previous fiscal year. Muntz TV Inc. now claims some 1,200 dealers compared with less than half a dozen under the former management.

But the most encouraging factor, he told a news conference, is that the firm is less in debt to the federal government—only $371,000 as against $1,531,000 for the same period last year.

Earl Muntz left the firm in January 1957 and has since taken over control of Sonora Electronics Inc., another Chicago-based radio-tv set firm, in conjunction with Frank Atlas, program director of WBVM-TV Chicago. He also has dabbled in electronics production in Cuidad Trujillo in the Dominican Republic.

The newly-formed Muntz TV Inc. has expanded its line to include console and portable tv sets, stereophonic and high fidelity phonograph and radio models.

Silicon Controlled Rectifier
In New Kliegl Remote TV Dimmer

A completely new method of light intensity control employing high power miniature silicon controlled rectifiers was introduced last week by Kliegl Bros. Universal Electrical Stage Lighting Co., New York. The new dimmer device is only a fraction of the size of existing equipment and will operate with much greater efficiency and flexibility, Kliegl claimed. The new SCR dimmer can be attached to a light bank or spot on the TV set and remotely controlled, not possible with older systems such as the motor driven autotransformer, magnetic amplifier or electronic (thyatron) dimmers, it was said.

The heart of the new Kliegl unit is the silicon controlled rectifier, developed by General Electric Co. and just entering commercial production. The initial SCR dimmer is a 4 kw model, but models in the 5 kw, 10 kw and 12 kw range will be available soon. The SCR dimmer is said to be 98.5% efficient electrically, losing only 40 w in each 4 kw, responds instantaneously to control and has infinite loading capacity from 1 w to 4 kw. It does not require any auxiliary boosters or transformers, Kliegl said, and per kilowatt weighs only 114 lbs., compared to the 8 to 25 lbs. of other systems. Because of its tiny size, a complete control board can be enclosed in a single suitcase, Kliegl said. The price is not set but will be comparable to magnetic amplifier dimmers.

facts about the Gates Sta-Level Amplifier from one station engineer to another

TOM: "Say Joe, I understand you've been using a Gates Sta-Level for about a year now. Do's it do the job?"

JOE: "Boy, we'd be lost without it. Sta-Level has done wonders for our station operation."

TOM: "Let's see, the basic function of Sta-Level is to provide constant level output, isn't it?"

JOE: "That's right, Tom. Sta-Level brings up the low passages while it holds down excessive output level."

TOM: "And what's the result?"

JOE: "The result is always higher level of transmission, the equivalent of greater signal output."

TOM: "Is Sta-Level expensive?"

JOE: "Heaven no! Only $253.00, and it comes complete with tubes and ready to operate. Why don't you call or write Gates and order a Sta-Level today? They're in stock for immediate delivery."

TOM: "Where's a phone?"
Don't Give All Gravy to Papers,
WTTM's Chief Counsels Teachers

"All too often teachers, in conducting campaigns for better salaries or school ... issues, ask and receive free cooperation from radio and then place paid advertising in newspapers," Fred E. Walker, vice president-general manager of WTTM, Trenton, N. J., charged at the New Jersey Education Assn.'s annual convention in Atlantic City last month.

WTTM's chief reminded the 3,000 public school teachers he was addressing, that saturation radio was used by local teachers to help gain a wage increase that previously had been turned down. "... Radio changed the minds of the officials by arousing public opinion ..."

"Responsible radio stations with editorial integrity," Mr. Walker said, "are on a par with newsmen in every way. ... Complete public relations cannot be accomplished in any community ... unless radio is afforded an equal place in the planning, administration and budget of community campaigns."

In Assets, Shareholders, Shares

An all-time high in net assets, number of shareholders and shares outstanding has been established by Television-Electronics Fund, mutual investment organization, with the observance of its tenth anniversary.

The annual report, released Monday by Chester Tripp, president, shows net asset value of $12.75 per share, 78,743 shareholders and 13,038,227 shares outstanding as of Sept. 30, 1958, end of the 10th fiscal year. WTVD Plugs Carry Special Advice

Something new in the way of plugs was sent to advertisers and agencies last week by WTVD (TV) Durham, N. C., to promote its increased coverage area. Bright red plaster fire hydrants, which double as bottle storage units, were used to "put in a plug" for WTVD's new 1,500-ft. tower, the highest man-made structure in North Carolina, according to WTVD. A postscript to the station's market information enclosed in the hydrant replica suggested its use as an "in-conspicuous plug for your fire water," and cautioned recipients to "avoid all dogs on your way home."

WFIL Cultivates Good Neighbors

Three winners were named in the first day of WFIL Philadelphia's "Good Neighbor Game" promotion, the station reported. WFIL's personalities announce on-the-air that they will be calling a family named Smith, Jones, or whatever. Listeners are urged to be good neighbors by calling people with the family name mentioned. Immediately before each call is made "a phrase that pays" is aired. To win the prize of $50 the person must answer the telephone with the proper phrase. The "good neighbor" who alerted the winner receives $25. The "phrase that pays" is changed after each call.

KPOA Extends Aloha to Presley

It's not likely Elvis Presley will be neglected by his fans at Christmas but through a promotion stunt at KPOA Honolulu, Pvt. Presley will receive greetings from approximately 750 of his followers in Hawaii. KPOA has arranged to send 6 x 12 ft. Christmas card to Elvis, now stationed in Germany. The card is on display in a downtown Honolulu music store and has space for 750 signatures of fans, one of whom will be the first Army uniform worn by Presley. D.J. Tom Moffatt obtained the uniform worn for pre-induction publicity photo from Presley's manager, Col. Tom Parker. The uniform, encased in glass and insured for $1,000, is on display next to the giant greeting card.

WAVI Issues Cards for Giveaway

Listeners who send their names to WAVI Dayton, Ohio, will receive their official "Lucky Number" card for eligibility in that station's giveaway promotion. Regularly through each broadcast day lucky numbers are chosen at random and announced by WAVI's d.j.'s. The card carrying listener who holds the selected number has 15 minutes to claim the prize offered with each number. The list of prizes includes such items as appliances, furniture, trips, food, merchandise certificates and cash.

Further Promotions for 'Ellery'

Over 30 NBC-TV affiliates are conducting one-week contests in support of the network's Further Adventures of Ellery Queen (Fri. 8-9 p.m.), through a cooperative set-up arranged by NBC Director of Exploitation Al Rylander. Stations are offering five-year, three-year, and one-year free subscriptions to Ellery Queen's mystery magazine as awards to viewers who write the best reviews of the program. Ten-volume sets of the best Ellery Queen novels will also be presented winners, in arrangement with Pocket Books Inc.

U-1 Star Offered as TV Prize

A joint promotion effort by Universal-International and NBC-TV will result in some civic organizations winning" a real live movie star who'll teach members the mambo. U-1 is giving away as a prize film star Linda Cristal, billed as "an Argentine Bombshell," to some qualified organization which submits the most interesting reason for having Miss C.—starring in U-1's new "The Perfect Purlough" film—trust them in learning the mambo. Miss Cristal appeared last week on NBC-TV's County Fair series (Mon.-Fri., 4:30-5 p.m.). Meanwhile, last week County Fair's packager, Gale-Gernann Productions Inc., appointed the Ted Baldwin Organization to handle the firm's promotion and publicity.

Pulse Reveals WWDC's 'Profile'

A brochure for advertisers and agencies has been prepared by WWDC Washington, D. C., to present its share of total radio audience in the greater Washington area, according to statistics released by Pulse Inc. Entitled "Personality Profile of a Radio Station," the 16-page, illustrated booklet also contains the results of a special Pulse survey in which 1,000 residents were polled to find out what they think of radio and of WWDC. The station concludes from the study that its best points are being "lively, modern and friendly," in addition to "leading all other stations in supplying the music and news the people want; in being tuned in first by more people than any other station, and in being of aid in emergencies."

KVTV Plays Teacher for a Day

Seventeen students and their instructors from the U. of South Dakota were familiarized with the operation of a television station Nov. 20 at the invitation of KVTV (TV) Sioux City, Iowa. In observance of National Education Week and National Television Week KVTV "turned over" its facilities to the television, journalism and business majors for instruction in routine operating jobs. Students with air experience were introduced to viewers and assisted on weather programs, an open house program for women and a children's show. Other students learned management problems from KVTV Manager Don Sullivan, while others made calls with salesmen. The students were supervised by James Slack, general manager of the university radio station KUSD, and Mort Miller, KUSD production director.

More Markets for CCS Campaigns

The American Tobacco Co., New York, has added four markets to its participation in Community Club Awards Campaigns...

WHNT-TV Campaigns for 'Raiders'

Huntington and Charleston, W. Va., shoppers recently were greeted by colorfully dressed models who handed out tabled newspapers proclaiming the "daring exploits of Col. Ronald Mackenzie and his famed Mackenzie's Raiders." The four-page papers were part of a WHNT-TV Huntington promotion campaign to announce its premiere showing of the Mackenzie's Raiders film series. Other phases of the campaign included premiere parties for the show's sponsors, Canada Dry and Vietti Foods, in the WHNT-TV studios and heavy on-air promotion, the station said.

Admen Invited to KYW Breakfasts

Early morning good will is being proffered by KYW Cleveland in a series of "Tally-Ho Breakfasts" for the personnel of Cleveland's advertising agencies. Maintaining the fox hunt theme, the breakfasts are complete with champagne stirrup cup, kidney-beef pie and eggs Brittany. KYW General Manager Gordon Davis and other station officials have been hosting the 8 a.m. get-togethers in the penthouse suite of the Hotel Manager.

Mining Safety Show on KROD-TV

Safety is important to the Kennecott Copper Co. of Hurley, N. M., and the firm recently utilized television to help keep its safety record good. According to KROD-TV El Paso, Tex., the Kennecott people purchased a half-hour of prime time on the El Paso outlet to bring its safety program into its employees' homes. Although Hurley is nearly 140 miles away from El Paso, KROD-TV serves as a main source of the Kennecott workers' evening entertainment, according to the station.

TURKEY (BONES) TROT

Thanksgiving turkey eaters in the Trenton, N. J., and Minneapolis-St. Paul areas can reap extra dividends with their leftover turkey wishbones by participating in holiday contests sponsored by stations WTTM Trenton and WDGY Minneapolis. Gene Graves, host of the WTTM Morning Show asked his listeners to mail their turkey wishbones to him. For the three largest bones received, Mr. Graves will deliver a Christmas turkey the exact weight of the Thanksgiving bird. The competition closes Dec. 5. WTTM reported. WDGY has featured two turkey contests. In one, Twin Cities children are asked to decorate the wishbones and mail them to the station. A board of d.j.'s will select the most originally decorated and the winner will receive a gift certificate from a toy store. In WDGY's pre-Thanksgiving "Spot the Turkey" contest winners received a 20-pound turkey for spotting intentional errors in a daily newscast. Winners were chosen in a drawing of the postcards bearing the correct entries.

KTIX Waves Banner Over Stadium

Spectators at the U. of Washington-UCLA football game in Seattle Nov. 1 witnessed a KTIX Seattle promotion stunt during the half-time period and part of the play-by-play. A rented plane carrying a streamer reading "No Rock 'n' Roll—KTIX—1590" circled the stadium for more than a hour. The phrase represents the station's programming of the "album sound," KTIX reported.

Spot Study Follows KLFT Event

Promotion activities associated with the third anniversary of KLFT Golden Meadow, La., last month were based on the station's 1600 kc number. With 1,600 prizes for 1,600 winners and a first prize of 1,600 pounds, contest entries received 30 days to copy on entry forms the names of 160 advertisers aired. The top winner recorded 144 corrects. Sales information also was obtained in the contest, KLFT reported. The comparative effectiveness of various spot schedules was determined by the number of times an advertiser was recorded on entry forms. One schedule of 12 spots in one day received 1,792 out of the total of 2,304 listings. Another schedule of 12 spots during a three-day period polled 2,301 listings. It was assumed therefore, KLFT said, that the three-day plan was more effective than the single day saturation.

Hounds, Kisses Announce KLEO

Wichita listeners learned that KANS changed its call letters to KLEO the past fortnight—with the help of aggressive promotion by the station. Giving teeth to the drive were three attractive ladies and three basket hounds who mixed with shoppers in the downtown section of the Kansas city. They passed out candy kisses bearing the inscription, "Here's a kiss from KLEO and have you tried listening to 1480 kc?"

Snow's Arrival Closes Contest

Predictions of when the season's first snowfall would fall in Sioux City, Iowa, were received from more than 29,000 persons in the "First Snowfall" contest promoted by KMNS, that city. A local woman was awarded $100 for guessing the exact time of the first measurable snowfall—5:10 p.m., Nov. 17. Contest entry blanks were distributed by various stores in the area, KMNS said.

D.J.'s Weight in Chips Guessed

National Potato Chip Month was recognized at KING Seattle with a contest for listeners of Jim French's d.j. show. Mr. French asked his audience to guess how many chips it would take to equal his weight, 196 pounds, six ounces. The person who guessed closest to the actual figure of 29,834 chips won a year's supply of chips, KING reported.

Listeners Keep WSAI Slogan List

After broadcasting 100 safety slogans over a four-week period WSAI Cincinnati received approximately 2,500 entries in its "Safety Slogan Contest," which offered as first prize a 1959 Fiat automobile for compiling the most complete list. The winning entry contained all 100 slogans in correct order, WSAI reported. A Cincinnati car dealer used the contest to promote his new location.

See How WFBM-TV Dominates Mid-Indiana!

First by a good margin, WFBM-TV dominates all other stations in Mid-Indiana both in total coverage and market penetration—map shows county percentages measured by Nielsen Coverage Study No. 3, Spring 1958.

Where else...
- Will you find satellite markets that are 33% richer and 50% bigger than the metropolitan trading zone itself?
- Does a central market exert such an economic pull on so many specific areas that are retail trading centers in their own right?
- Do you find such a widespread marketing area covered from one central point... and by WFBM-TV!
- Can you buy just one station with no overlapping penetration by basic affiliates of the same network?

Only here—where WFBM-TV is first in Mid-Indiana—can you buy more honest market penetration, more consumer influence, for fewer dollars expended than anywhere else. Now it will pay you to take another longer, better look! We are proud of our current ARB... and of course we have 100% in Marion County, too!

The Nation's 13th Television Market...
...with the only basic NBC coverage of 760,000 TV set owning families.

Indianapolis itself—Major retail area for 18 richer-than-average counties, 1,000,000 population—350,600 families with 90% television ownership!

11 Satellites—Each a recognized marketing area—and well within WFBM-TV's basic area of influence. Includes Marion, Anderson, Muncie, Bloomington, Vincennes, Terre Haute, Danville, Illinois, Lafayette, Peru, Logansport, Kokomo.

Where are the 60-minute Zanucks of tv?

There is a substantial school of thought that business, in controlling the purse strings of communication, does a mediocre job of utilizing the arts. There is a constant rumbling of criticism of advertising, particularly of broadcast advertising. Many critics say that business downgrades and degenerates the literary, dramatic and musical arts.

Without going to the defense of advertising and all the good it has done for our way of life, advertising is young in this world and the arts are as old as mankind. The significant factor today is that advertising and broadcasting are important art forms and, as such, are dominated by commercial mentalities. But much can be learned from the world of art in improving the role of art in business. There has always been a good deal of business in art—books must sell, the show must pull.

In the business of selling art as entertainment, the investor would not think of doing some of the things which are common practice in the business which uses the arts to sell commodities. Here are some of the basic differences:

(1) Basic themes. In the world of the arts basic themes are fully developed by creative talent and approved by the entrepreneur. The entrepreneur does not have "tight" control of creative effort. Themes vary in style, in subject matter, in time format. In the business world themes tend to be more limited in style—we have the soap opera, the horse opera, the quiz show, repeated in boring cycles.

(2) Use of talent. In the arts if you have a writer, a playwright, a director, conductor, or composer, actors and musicians, each of these artists is acknowledged to have a creative artistic interpretation of his particular role. In action he is given the opportunity to express himself and to add to the performance.

Now some buyers of television do operate this way and we are making progress, but the majority of sponsors render lip-service to these principles of show business.

(3) Development of talent. In the arts, development of talent is the major preoccupation, talent is constantly searched for and evaluated. The area for development is cultivated—the literary sand lots, the summer theatre, bush leagues and the musical minors and charlatans, as carefully as in baseball.

In manufacturing organizations that control the budgets which support television, the great preoccupation is with the development of executives in the administrative and fiscal aspects of business. We need more George Washington Hills, more Revisions, more E.H. Littles, more McElroys and Mortimers in the lower ranks. Are we producing them? Where are the 60-minute Zanucks, the 60-second John Hustons of television? Are not the networks, the agency TV departments following the lead of business in emphasis on administrative and fiscal problems?

This results in television programming and advertising that is follow-the-leader to mediocrity conformism, to anonymity of communication values, the dulling sameness of the newest variety show, still old as vaudeville without vaudeville's bright personality acts, the almost unanimous psycho-negative style of television dramas. There are exceptions, of course, and a few bright spots, but the over-all pattern of TV entertainment and salesmanship is dull in presentation, unimaginative in concept and stereotyped in style.

Nowhere, in business or in the art world, has so much money been committed on unproven properties as in television. The mortality of shows is appalling. The turnover of writers, producers and directors is rapid, without the time or atmosphere for normal development of new reputations.

If in the future we are to have improvement in television programming and commercial messages we need a combination of developments:

(1) More attention by business to development of its creative responsibility in communications. The protectors of profits are seldom good pioneers. They ride the going franchise and the horsepower of a rising economy. The ability for creative development of products and advertising should lead, not follow, the administrative function.

It is probably significant that some companies that are highly successful, organizations like General Foods and Procter & Gamble, are advertising oriented. The chief executives are advertising men and the client-agency relationship is close.

(2) We need more emphasis in advertising agencies on the creative function. The trend to marketing and research emphasis in advertising agencies parallels a trend in business. With the tremendous growth of markets we have had a tremendous housekeeping job to do. The intelligent administrator runs rampant. Never before have there been so many non-creative people in the advertising agency business. It is true of course that we cannot do a fully effective creative job unless we know people's wants and markets. But the housekeeping side of marketing is a manufacturer's job. The agency's major responsibility is to mold the creative services of communications around the marketing function.

(3) As a third development we need a road-show system for proving and improving shows before they have hit the Broadway of millions of dollars of network time. Doesn't the live-tape technique make this economically feasible?

Why shouldn't we test shows in smaller sections of the country instead of the country as a whole? This would enable networks, advertising agencies, and manufacturers to broaden the area for experimentation and development in television. More artists, more shows, more techniques could go to bat more often at lower cost. It would also enable us to experiment and to improve commercial techniques. It would enable us to set up a system of search, evaluation, and reward for talent. Without such a system, or with a system as rigid as we now have, we cannot reach for optimum development of television as an art form and as a commercial medium.

Ernest P. Zobian, born in New York. Served with Zonite Products Corp. from 1935 to 1943, in charge of clinical development, as division manager and advertising manager. His next move was to Pedlar & Ryan agency in the post of vice president in 1944, followed by a change to Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample in 1947 in a similar position. Became president of Ludex Chemicals Inc. in 1948-50, then vice president of Warner-Lambert 1950-57. Last year he moved to Vick Chemical Co., where he is now vice president, Products Div.
The Essential Ingredient

As in financial reports, bank statements and menus, the right-hand column in Broadcastings seventh annual survey of agency broadcast billings, published a week ago, tells an important story. This is the column which reports the amount of change, up or down, which each agency registered in broadcast billings during the current year. The string of pluses is broken only here and there. Actually, 37 of the top 50 agencies put more money into radio-tv this year than last; eight put less, one reported no change and four were not clear because they were not among the top 50 in 1957. In dollars, the total increase came to $100 million, raising the top 50's total to $1.3 billion for 1958.

These figures leave no question about either the continuing growth of television or its still-growing importance in agencies. The latter point is dramatized particularly at the agency which leads the list this year, J. Walter Thompson Co. Six years ago JWT spent $27 million in radio-tv; this year it's spending almost that much ($24.5 million) in radio-tv spot alone and its total broadcast billings have reached $113.5 million (and promise to keep rising). Its total volume is rising faster than the general rise of all advertising—and, according to President Norman H. Strouse, its tv billing is going up even faster than its total volume.

One moral appears clear from the top 50 study. While an agency may not become big simply by using television, it has little chance today of achieving and maintaining bigness without television. With television's selling power, an agency that knows how to use tv smartly can hardly fail to attract clients and tv billings.

Much Better Than Nothing

The FCC finally accepted one contemporary fact of broadcast life: that its traditional system of obtaining information on station programming and commercials is archaic. Last week the Commission issued proposed new forms which would cover applications for new stations, renewals and transfers. The proposed forms are in line with recommendations made by an advisory group of broadcasters with the mouthfilling name, Committee on Radio & Television Broadcasting of the Advisory Council on Federal Reports. Key members of that committee say they can live more comfortably with the proposed changes.

In essence the revised forms propose two distinct changes: Program classifications are more realistic, and the system of counting spot announcements is more precise in the light of the actualities of station operation.

Not the least advantageous to broadcasters is the acknowledgement that promotional spots are not classifiable; in the present forms they must be counted as commercial if they promote a commercial program, non-commercial if they advertise a non-commercial program. Another notable improvement is the acceptance of the fact that a narrative report of a station's activities can be submitted to supplement the digital report if a station operator feels that mere numbers do not give a clear picture of his operation.

So far so good. It would have been even better news for broadcasters if the whole Commission had accepted the views of Comr. Craven. In a dissent to the proposed revision of the forms, Mr. Craven said the FCC should eliminate all references to programs and spot announcements. To do otherwise, he said, constitutes censorship which is forbidden by the Communications Act.

We believe that Mr. Craven is right (and a reading of his dissent is well worth the time of all broadcasters), and we hope that some day his colleagues may be brought to share his opinion. It was unfortunate that they chose not to agree with him now.

The News Fraternity

Not many years ago Sigma Delta Chi, the national professional journalistic fraternity, was strictly for, by and of the printed page. So were-the "press" galleries of Congress, the "press" rooms of government departments and the courts and the "press" departments of industry.

A fortnight ago Sigma Delta Chi elected a broadcaster as its national president, to serve during its golden anniversary year.

James A. Byron, news director of WBAP-AM-TV Fort Worth, is a distinguished newcomer who has moved from the presidency of his local chapter to the national presidency of SDX with its membership in excess of 20,000.

Sigma Delta Chi has fought on every front in defense of the public's right to know. Through its undergraduate chapters it has encouraged young people of talent and energy to make writing their careers. It has developed great prestige as a society of thoughtful individuals in journalism.

The election of Mr. Byron in San Diego came naturally. That is because SDX was among the first to break down the barriers among the various segments of journalism. Its membership is made up of men of good will in all media, not those who deal in movable type alone.

At the San Diego convention, Sig Mickelson, vice president of CBS Inc. in charge of news and special events, called upon SDX to spearhead a combined effort to "strengthen and vitalize all media of journalism" in this perilous atomic age on the ground that there is no place for petty, competitive bickering when the need is so great to keep the public fully informed.

The Mickelson mandate is one that will be picked up avidly by Sigma Delta Chi. Competition among news media, engendered largely by the evolution of electronic journalism, has benefitted public and media alike. There are better newspapers and magazines and better over-all reporting and analysis. This competition should and will continue.

But in the larger task of keeping the news lines open to enable the public to know swiftly and accurately, all media must work together. Sigma Delta Chi is the umbrella under which this can be done.

Giveaways Go Thataway

clairvoyance wasn't needed to predict the fate of the television quiz giveaway. Simple elementary research would have provided the answer.

Just 11 years ago when the radio giveaway mania was at its ridiculous peak, more than a million dollars worth of prizes was distributed. There were some 50 giveaways regularly scheduled on the radio networks. The audience became fed up, and the giveaways all but disappeared.

Practically the same thing is happening on network television. The programs were attractive because of the expectancy of high ratings with low programming cost. When the ratings began to drop, the sponsors became disenchanted. And another programming era ends for tv, just as it had ended for radio 11 years earlier.

Thus, the equation is clear: Public acceptance (as reflected by ratings) plus low program costs equal advertiser satisfaction (and program imitators by the dozens). Conversely, public rejection (as reflected by ratings) irrespective of program costs equals advertiser dissatisfaction.

Can there be a clearer answer as to who controls programming?
Among twelve Olivetti figure-work machines and five Olivetti typewriters there is probably at least one that can help total up the profits when you run your television advertising on KPRC-TV in Houston, Texas.
