REWARDING TO VIEWERS... because only via KCOP can the viewer get away from run-of-the-mill TV... from the old movies, westerns, detective shows, situation comedies and the endless reruns of old shows. KCOP offers none of this. It is truly the different channel in Los Angeles, in all Southern California... and the ratings prove the viewers find it most rewarding!

REWARDING TO SPONSORS... because through KCOP and only KCOP, you reach a different audience. Men and women who want to be informed as well as entertained. Who want to escape from what is currently called TV's realm of escapism. KCOP's audience is down-to-earth, in a far better mood to listen to and accept your sales message. KCOP is future TV today!

AMERICA'S 10th TV MARKET

BROADCASTING, November 9, 1959
CLOSED CIRCUIT

Good bet • Odds are that Jim Aubrey will become president of CBS Television Network—perhaps within weeks. He's been running network since Presi- dent Louis Cowan was hospitalized Oct. 21 with blood clot in leg. If's reported doctors have tried to discourage Mr. Cowan from immediately resuming heavy duties of network presidency.

Return of natives • CBS Radio which suffered number of defections after in-stituting its Program Consolidation Plan (PCP) may witness return of some stations, including perhaps one per 50 kilo-watt. It's learned that at least two affiliates already have discussed reallif- iation with CBS Radio President Arthur Hull Hayes and that others which defected may have become dis-enchanted in attempting independent operation without network news and special events programming.

FCC and quizzers • Nettled by Congressional allegations that FCC did nothing and intends to do nothing about tv quiz rigging scandals, FCC com-missioners have been talking among themselves about need to put out "white paper." Discussions have gotten to point where commissioner-only meeting was held last Wednesday morning— even before agenda was taken up—to try and bring thinking into focus.

Just what FCC will say (if anything) is conjectural, but individual commis-sioners and staff have emphasized these points: When quiz scandals first broke, FCC queried networks and decided they had been duped and were not culpable. Commission has no jurisdiction over independent packagers. No law has been broken—except moral law. Commission cannot act on individual programs, but facts will be considered when network-owned station licenses come up for renewal. And FCC investigation of net-work programming practices is still un-derway.

Legal holiday • Bonanza in litigation is in offering as outcropping of tv quiz- rigging, according to some sources. They foresee scores of damage suits against sponsors, networks and package firms by unsuccessful contestants who may claim they were gyped of vast sums of money because answers were fed to their opponents. They also foresee com- petitive companies filing civil antitrust suits against quiz sponsors for unfair trade practices, asking for accounting of profits during big business upsurge by quiz sponsor and for fair share of al- legedly ill-begotten income. Attorneys are dead serious about legal basis for such suits.

One beneficiary of blood-letting be-fore House Committee's tv quiz inquiry is Internal Revenue Service. Every time there's mention of money being paid to someone (like testimony of Max Hess that he paid $15,000 to get employee on $64,000 Question and to tv columnist Jack O'Brien and to syndicated column- ists Bob Considine) IRS staff checks recipients' files to make sure such in- come was reported.

Network reps • Whether CBS and NBC television affiliates repped by their net- works in national spot sales will appeal FCC's ruling prohibiting such representa- tion, effective Dec. 31, 1961, will be determined at meetings to be held within next fortnightly. (NBC intends to appeal to U.S. Court of Appeals but CBS has not yet reached determination pending study of opinion, adopted finally Oct. 30 but released Nov. 2.) Five affiliated stations represented by NBC Spot Sales will meet in New York Nov. 10 in con-junction with NBC network affiliates meeting, at call of Nathan Lord, gen- eral manager, of WAVE-TV Louisville. CBS group meets in Chicago, Nov. 19, coincident with Tvb sessions, at call of John S. Hayes, WTOP-TV Washington and WJXT (TV) Jacksonville, Fla., who heads group.

Meanwhile there's considerable activity by reps in pitching for representation of stations which would become free agents if FCC severance order sticks. While nothing definitive has developed, network-repped outlets are talking var- ious alternatives separately and collect- ively, including (1) reps getting up their own organization with key personnel pos- sibly recruited from existing network spot sales organizations; (2) going en masse to established rep firm; (3) operat- ing on branch office basis. Also men- tioned but regarded as extremely un- likely is possibility of groups "crossing lines" with NBC-repped affiliate mov- ing to CBS Tv Spot Sales and CBS af- filiates doing same with NBC. Under FCC's order, this, according to re- sponsible opinion, is permissible but question arises as to feasibility.

NBC endorsement • Clearances under NBC Radio's new combination network- ing-and-program-service plan (BROAD- CASTING, Oct. 19) are beginning to come in, and network officials say they're pleased with trend. Returns already in from 61, broken down as follows: 49 promised 100% clearance of network programming immediately upon start of plan (scheduled Jan. 1); 12 said they would clear 100% and would indicate effective dates at Nov. 11 annual meet- ing of NBC radio and tv affiliates in New York; one said he didn't like plan, would clear some but not all programs. This last one, unless he changes mind, presumably will not be renewed when current contract expires. Network's position is that stations must clear 100%, though it's willing to allow some flexibility if needed while real problems are being worked out.

While NBC Radio gets ready to switch to new format Jan. 1 (see above), progress is being made on another radio front. Radio World Wide, group of major-market stations formed to pro- vide program service to members, ap- parently is getting its plans close to operational state. Members are not ready to talk, but it's understood they've set first tentative target date of Dec. 31 for start of service.

IBM on tv • Important new prestige ac- count may be added to television's client roster almost any time now. It's International Business Machines, re- portedly looking around for program up to its specifications. Benton & Bowles is IBM agency.

House 'rigging'? • Take it or leave it, but one story floating about Washington is that Oren Harris' Legislative Over- sight Committee decided to grab tv quiz rigging inquiry after Emanuel Celler's Judiciary Committee had made plans to undertake probe—albeit from a dif- ferent angle. Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.) al- ways has manifested extreme interest in all phases of show business indigenous to New York.

If Judiciary Committee, rather than Oversight Subcommittee, had conducted inquiry, would result have been differ- ent? There's no answer to that now but it's generally agreed that if New York grand jury "presentment" on its quiz inquiry of last July had been re- leased instead of impounded by court, entire affair might have blown over quickly.

WEEK IN BRIEF

Agencies plunged with meetings • To many brainstorming sessions are stifling the creativity of advertising agencies. More "lonely people" who know what they are doing and want to do their jobs better than anyone else are needed according to Draper Daniels, executive vice president in charge of creative services, Leo Burnett Co., Chicago. He states his case in Monday Memo. Page 29.

The scar in tv’s image • A second national survey by Sindlinger finds that public’s opinion of tv has fallen as result of Charles Van Doren’s testimony. Page 37.

An idol falls • Charles Van Doren confesses he was completely rigged. Others charge fixes on $64,000 Question, $64,000 Challenge and several other shows. Page 39.

FTC war on deceptive tv • FTC chairman announces saturation campaign against false tv commercials; first blow comes with charges against Libbey-Owens-Ford, General Motors. L-O-F, its agency and producers sturdily deny any ‘trickery.’ Tv Code Board officials meet with FTC executives. Page 56.

Ad budgets going up • Ten per cent average increase foreseen for 1960, Assn. of National Advertisers reports after survey of member companies. Big spenders will spend bigger. Page 68.

ANA looks at quizzes • Effect of investigation on tv programs and advertising to be explored in closed meeting at annual meeting of Assn. of National Advertisers. Page 68.

High interest marks BPA convention • The subjects are routine everyday problems, but delegates to the Broadcasters Promotion Assn. meeting in Philadelphia attack them with gusto. BPA signs 102 new members. Page 74.

Corinthian appoints H-R • Five tv and two radio stations’ national sales representation consolidated by Corinthian with H-R Representatives and H-R Television. Page 80.

First test of new Sec. 315 • Mayoralty candidate claims WCAU-TV Philadelphia refused equal opportunities on air with other candidates in news interview type program. FCC says it cannot determine that station faulted and it would be up to complainant to prove program was not bona fide news program. Question of reasonable opportunity to present conflicting views also raised. Page 84.

ASCAP accord seen • Major issues reported tentatively resolved in latest negotiations for new ASCAP radio music licenses. Formula developed for deduction of talent charges. Three other issues to be left for court decision. Page 90.

TIME SIGNALS

"Turn on the radio and get the time."

Millions of people check time via radio. That's why sponsorship of time signals is one of the best media buys you can find. The multi-access, ambi-active character of today's radio makes it a vital information medium to America's population on the go.

Shrewd local advertisers know the attention and association value of time signal sponsorship. At the national level it's a splendid tie-in approach for many time saving ready mixes or instant products, too.

Spot Radio time signals offer greater value today than ever before. Capitalize on this. Time no longer just flies—it sells!

P.S. To sell the surging Pacific Northwest market your best time buy is KJR, Seattle, KKL, Portland, KNEW, Spokane—The Northwest Nugget Stations.

Why the hullabaloo?

EDITOR:

Being highly critical of summertime television ("Hot at Hot Weather Network TV", Broadcasting, Oct. 26) has become "the thing to do" and is beginning to rank with love of motherhood, being against sin and a host of other "safe" activities. However, I would like to submit a minority report on summer television.

For me, personally, summer television repeats of "outstanding" or the "best of a series" programs offer the opportunity to see shows which my work schedule during the season precludes.

Summer repeats also allow the audience to see the best of what was on the "other channel" (over 90% of our markets are multichannel). The great overlapping of hour programs on the networks has discouraged channel hopping so it is conceivable that many people have missed shows of comparable quality to those they watch regularly.

Frankly, I am astounded at the size of the summer fallout of viewers. I would have estimated it to be higher because of the great traffic of vacations and the tremendous improvement of out-of-door conditions for all types of activity. It seems that Mr. Adams [of Campbell-Ewald] gave the pull of the out-of-doors only minor consideration in the change of summer viewing. I wonder if there is a difference in fallout in climates which are relatively unchanged year round and those which are not. And then, can you isolate the fact that we are far more on the move away from home in the summer, regardless of climate?

Maybe summer listening is not diminished by reruns as much as we think. Really, is the audience that discriminating? They do watch movies on TV which are old and reruns. And they get good ratings.

EDITOR:

I must take exception to Broadcasting's lead on the story of the roundtable discussion of the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences at Los Angeles (page 79, October 26).

The report says that I advanced a proposal of a tax of $1 per set on 50 million television receivers in America, this money to be used for educational television stations. I suggest this was highly inaccurate reporting...

You didn’t, Smidley!

Thought for a minute there you’d remembered this Cascade buy. But, you’ve skipped it again, old man. Jumped right on by a gem of a television market with more food sales than Toledo, more retail sales than Salt Lake. Why Smidley, the Cascade Television network serves a market with more people than Kansas City or San Diego. Yes, and the Cascade network is the only television reaching and selling in the entire market.

The lead was pegged on a casual “aside” made during a brisk debate. The panel had been discussing the fact that cultural and other minority programs had had a difficult time obtaining network exposure—a point made by Rod Serling. In that context, mention was made of the Canadian and British systems of having commercial and non-commercial services paralleling each other. As part of this discussion I asked, rhetorically, how much money might be raised to finance minority programming for exposure on educational television if every television set in America were taxed only $1 per year.

By no stretch of the imagination could this have been called a proposal that a tax to be levied nor, indeed, could this conceivably be regarded as the most important suggestion to come out of a serious discussion about the responsibilities of television at home and abroad.

I hope you will put the record straight.

were asked to make a connecting spiral groove between the cuts.

In a good many studios the deejay operating the turntables has to rescue the disc from the opening cut to the closing cut. This frequently results in damaging the broadcasting head and the average cost of replacement is $25.

A connecting spiral groove between the cuts would obviate this condition and automatically take the broadcasting head from the opening cut to the closing cut.

We are told by the sound and recording studios in the Detroit area this can be done, upon the agencies' instructions, at no added cost whatsoever, and they have agreed to advise the local agencies to produce commercial ET's with open-

It would be helpful if this matter

Isn't it about time advertising moved up from the Three-I League?

"If you're not quite sure what you're talking about, invent a fancy name for it!"

The shrewd man who said that would have loved advertising's current Three-I League:

Impact Image Involvement

The trouble is that too many people mouth the words without having the slightest idea of what they're talking about.

Isn't it about time advertising moved up from the Three-I League and brought the words to life by spelling things out?

For instance:

Get the customer's attention. Give her (or him) a clear-cut impression of the product, and make her feel it's made by honest people with good taste. Convince her that what you are saying is directed to her personally, and that what you are selling can play a useful or a pleasant part in her life.

This is what we preach. This is what we try to practice. If it seems simple, it's because it is. So is advertising that works.

WWL-TV
NEW ORLEANS

Here’s how to make it:

The original recipe is a closely guarded secret of Antoine’s, but here’s one that gives fine results. Serves 4.

Melt 4 tbsp. butter in saucepan and add 4 tbsp. minced raw spinach, 2 tbsp. each of onion, parsley, celery—chopped fine—3 tbsp. bread crumbs, 1 dash Tabasco, 1/3 tsp. any absinthe substitute, salt to taste. Cook 15 minutes; stir constantly. Press through sieve and set aside. Fill 4 pie pans with rock salt and place on top of each 6 freshly opened oysters on half-shell. (Total 24 oysters.) Spoon sauce on each oyster; place under broiler until sauce begins to brown. Serve with bottle of very cold Chablis wine.
Today, the advertising agency is almost the last bastion of individualism in American business, almost the one place where the uncommon man still has a chance to be himself without becoming hopelessly insolvent.

It would be nice if we could keep it that way. If we don’t, the survey-making, play-it-safe copycats are going to do to us what they did to the movies 10 years ago and what they’re doing to television programs now.

Ever since J. Walter Thompson hired an office boy and became a Company, the advertising agency has been plagued with meetings. As if that weren’t enough, large segments within our business have been busily engaged in thinking up reasons for more meetings. It’s so much easier to vote that an idea won’t work than it is to have an idea that will. The latter takes brains while the former requires little more than a dubious shake of the head and a calculated negative vote.

I hope the apostles of brainstorming will forgive me if I am not awed into abashed silence by the reports of all those sessions where 121 ideas were turned up in 58 minutes of which 3½ were found either immediately usable or worthy of future development.

Brainstorming Sessions • We’ve tried brainstorming and found it wonderfully stimulating and decidedly deceptive. I cannot prove, but I strongly suspect, that most of the usable ideas came from people who had them before the meeting started and that all the meeting did was to delay the process of working out the details.

The hope for break-throughs in our business, as in science, industry, and the arts, still rests upon the brilliant individual.

William H. Whyte Jr. writes in the Organization Man: “Go down the list of commercial inventions over the last 30 years; with very few exceptions the advances did not come from a corporation laboratory.” I suspect the corporation laboratories were too busy having meetings to be doing much inventing.

Not all brilliant individuals are gregarious, nor are they articulate in a group. Those who are not tend to be stifled in a meeting. Even those who find it difficult to resist the temptation to go along and be a good fellow when in a meeting.

Thinkers Needed • If you’re beginning to gather that I think our business needs fewer meetings and more lonely people sweating it out with a blank sheet of paper staring in the face from a typewriter, you have been following me all the way.

The question is, am I just making a lot of emotional noises or is there evidence that faceless men with gray flannel minds are sucking the individuality, personality, and spontaneity out of much of today’s advertising and replacing it with something as bland, as shining, and as tasteless as a bowl of unflavored gelatin?

The ads are better dressed and better mannered, and they carry fewer lies than they used to. But somehow as they parade before me, I am reminded of mannequins, flawless and mindless, as smooth as ice, and quite as cold. I seem to hear my wife saying, “The ads aren’t fun, any more.”

Need Unreasonable Men • By the very nature of his job, the creative man needs to be an unreasonable man. George Bernard Shaw explained it, far better than I can. He said that all progress was made by unreasonable men. The reasonable man, by definition, according to Shaw, seeks to adjust to his environment. The unreasonable man seeks to adjust his environment to himself. Therefore, all progress and all new ideas must emanate from the unreasonable man.

I blame most of advertising’s polished plagiarisms and most of its innocuous vulgarities upon the meeting.

As David Ogilvy once said, “A committee cannot create an ad, it can only criticize it.”

Being unable to create, the meeting copies. The philosophy was well expressed by the head of a most profitable agency who bluntly said that his organization was not interested in developing new techniques and initiating advertising advances; that it would leave that work to others and make use of those methods which had proved themselves.

Such a policy is good for the immediate profit and loss statement, but it leaves it to the long range benefit of advertising.

Public Naïve? • People never were as stupid as a lot of advertising experts thought they were. They were uninformed, and, in many instances, naively trusting. Today, they are less uninformed than they were a few years ago and 10 years from now they will be far less uninformed than they are today.

I strongly suspect that it is going to take more truth, better taste, and new ideas to sell this coming generation of uncommon men.

I doubt that it can be done by actors masquerading as doctors and pointing to animated charts showing anvils whacking away inside the head.

I think it’s going to take more well-written, factual copy in good taste such as we see today in the excellent advertisements for Rolls Royce; the freshness and imagination of the Chemstrand television commercials; or, if you’ll forgive one mention of our own product, the print and television advertising for Kellogg’s of Battle Creek.

No committee, no survey, nor any number of meetings can ever take the place of a man with a mind and a heart who knows what he’s doing, believes in what he’s doing, and wants to do it better than anyone else in the world.

In large part, progress or lack of progress made by advertising in an America that is growing up is going to be determined by the freedom that advertising gives to its gifted unreasonable men.

Years of neglect had made historic Lippitt Hill an ideal area for redevelopment, but the decision to level and rebuild brought questions, doubts and fears to residents and taxpayers. On October 23, WPRO-TV presented in prime time another in its series of "documentaries in depth" to explain economic impacts and human considerations.

WPRO-TV recognizes that to be accepted by the community, this station must be the leading participant in community affairs. This policy prompts WPRO-TV to program both sides of controversial issues, as well as editorials on such pertinent subjects as Section 315 of the Communications Act, The City Budget, and attempts to use public funds for public service announcements.
CBS and NBC are taking definite but different approaches to housecleaning in wake of quiz investigations. Approaches were described to House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee by Frank Stanton, CBS president, and Robert E. Kintner, NBC president, last week.

In testimony Nov. 6 Dr. Stanton re-affirmed CBS intention to be "masters in our own house" over "everything that appears on the CBS Television Network—and I mean everything." He also pointed out network had dumped 5½ weekly hours of quiz programs whose major appeal was in size of winnings and added network was determined all its broadcasts were "exactly what they purport to be." These policies were first outlined by him in speech to Radio and Television News Directors Assn. in New Orleans Oct. 16.

He announced Nov. 6 CBS in addition was studying tighter controls over commercials. Network is "now exploring" with NAB possibility of reaching general agreement among advertisers, networks and stations "on a new code [regarding commercials] which will recognize and eliminate legitimate complaints.

"Whether it is a quiz program or an advertising commercial or a news broadcast or whatever, we are held responsible for what appears on CBS," he testified. "We accept that responsibility and the quiz shows scandal has led us to re-examine the whole area of our responsibility."

He said in past networks had been criticized for asserting too much authority, but "it is possible that we have had all along more elbow-room for exercising authority than we believed."

NBC Not Involved • "NBC has never been a party to quiz show rigging," Mr. Kintner said. "We were just as much a victim of the quiz show frauds as the public." First he heard of any collusion, NBC president said, was in mid-August 1958 when Colgate-Palmolive approached him on Dotto show. Immediate review of all network quiz shows, headed by former FBI agent Thomas Burns, revealed no evidence of any wrongdoing, he said.

Answering subcommittee criticism that network had failed to act, Mr. Kintner said New York grand jury asked network not to interrogate witseph Cates, one-time director of program, both testified in executive session.

Mr. Levine testified that Hess often paid to get store mentioned on radio or tv and named Nightbeat, Arthur Murray Party, Danninger, Today, Person to Person and Garry Moore Show.

He said there were many more (plus newspapers, columnists) who had been similarly paid and he was asked to supply subcommittee with complete list.

Influence Peddling • Rep. Harris compared this “payola” with influence peddling in government agencies and promised subcommittee would dig further into matter.

Rep. Samuel Devine (R-Ohio) brought admission from Mr. Levine that he had identified himself as “Mr. Siegfried from the district attorney’s office” in Philadelphia. This was done, he said, in telephone attempts to reach Kenneth Hoffer, former Hess employee and Question contestant on whose behalf money was paid. He denied ever stating he was with FBI and said he only wanted to “help” Mr. Hoffer to “refresh his memory.” Mr. Hoffer was on Question in 1955.

NBC goes to DA with kickoff data

New York District Attorney Frank Hogan began probe Nov. 5 of alleged kickback system NBC says it found operating on one of its quiz shows. Network turned over details that day after contacting district attorney day before. Assistant District Attorney Jerome Kidder assigned head investigation. Show was Treasu Hunt.

Determination of what to do about persons believed to have lied before grand jury in New York during its investigation of tv quiz scandal will be made by district attorney and grand jury following end of House inquiry.

Mr. Hogan estimated 150 or more persons testified before grand jury out of some 300 questioned by his office and said that perhaps 50 told truth. It will be necessary to study matter and then “think about a presentation,” it was said. Penalty upon conviction of perjury holds maximum seven-year imprisonment.

Flint grant upheld

U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Nov. 5 upheld FCC’s 1954 grant of ch. 12 Flint, Mich., to WJR Detroit.

At issue was contention by unsuccessful applicants W. S. Butterfield Theatres Inc. and WFDF Flint that WJR’s change in transmitter site constituted new application. FCC granted WJRT(TV) antenna site move after grant but appeals court told Commission to reopen case to determine whether in fact change in site negated first grant. Commission held further hearing and reaffirmed grant. It was this latest order that appeals court upheld in per curiam decision. At same time court upheld FCC in refusing application for ch. 12 Flint filed by WKNX Saginaw just before second

Agriculture Dept. apologizes to radio-tv

Apologies came last week from U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, with full explanation of its recent article in the department’s Agricultural Marketing implying newspapers top radio and tv as best carrier of food marketing information (BROADCASTING, Oct. 19).

Following publication of USDA’s survey report, protest letters were sent to Agriculture Secretary Benson by TbB; W. D. Rogers, president of KDUB-AM-TV Lubbock, Tex., and other stations. Replies were mailed last week by R. Lyle Webster, director of information, on behalf of Sec. Benson, who was ill. Enclosed with Mr. Webster’s letter was copy of two-page letter from Ralph S. Roberts, administrative assistant secretary of USDA, to Cotys M. Mouser, chief clerk, Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, U.S. Senate.

Among Mr. Roberts’ remarks: “We regret exceedingly the circumstances which resulted in the marketing magazine article containing statements appearing to place this department in the position of favoring certain mass media over others. The circumstances are, in brief, that selected material from the earlier detailed and much-qualified study, which was primarily for internal guidance of federal and state extension service consumer marketing workers, was condensed and incorporated into the marketing magazine article in a somewhat different context and without the qualifications in the original study. Unfortunately, also, these materials have been further condensed in comments in certain of the mass media.”

Auto drives slacken

What’s auto advertising picture

Latest report: Plymouth (N. W. Aye postponed spot radio schedule when half way through, plans to schedule remaining three weeks at later date. Dodge’s Dart (Grant) ran spot radio three weeks in October and has suspended fourth and last week. Chevrolet (Campbell-Ewald) took two-week hiatus as of beginning of November, resuming spot radio to run through first two weeks in December.

DeSoto and Valiant (BBDO) halved spot radio; in spot tv where both are heavy, DeSoto has pared its drive (begun in mid-October) while Valiant cancelled some 90% of remaining spot tv barrage effective Nov. 8. Ford currently has no spot schedules in radio-tv. General trimming—which includes drastic cuts in magazine and newspaper placements—resulted from steel strike (AT DEADLINE, Oct. 19).

Business briefly

Well mixed • General Mills Inc., Minneapolis, today (Nov. 9) starts cross-country spot tv campaign for its Betty Crocker cake mixes. Five-week drive includes both daytime and nighttime minutes and 20-second spots in key markets. Agency: BBDO, N.Y.

Added to the collection • New Dodge dealer advertising group in Philadelphia has named Grant Adv., N.Y., for 1960 Dodge and Dodge Dart. This is Grant’s second Dodge dealer acquisition in month, bringing agency’s dealer total to 35 in addition to national car manufacturer’s account.
PIPELINE for fast data transmission

In steady gains of population and commerce, few areas in America can match the steady growth of the Southwest.

Advertising naturally keeps pace with business development. So today Texas alone has 105 advertising agencies, including fourteen Texas offices of nation-wide organizations.

In many of these agencies, spot television forms a major part of billing. And the accurate, down-to-the-minute data so essential to effective buying is made instantly available to them through our Dallas office.

Blair-TV operates on this basic principle: that alert informed representation is a service vital not only to stations but also to all Advertising and to the businesses dependent on it for volume and profit. From the first, our list has been made up of stations and markets we felt in position to serve effectively. Today these stations are located in 25 of America's greatest markets. Together they cover 56 percent of its population — virtually 60 percent of its effective buying power.

In its area, each of these stations stands as a power-house of selling force. To help advertisers and their agencies make most profitable use of that force, is the constant objective of our entire organization.

A second survey of public opinion, nationwide, shows there's . . .

NOW A DEEP SCAR IN TV'S IMAGE

In the wake of Van Doren's confession: public disillusionment
Attitudes toward him and television are sharply changed in week

A national hero came tumbling down last week. With him fell the public's opinion of him and of the medium that pushed him into national prominence.

Two national opinion surveys made before and after Charles Van Doren's confession show that it had a marked effect on the public's attitudes.

The first was conducted for Broadcasting by the professional research firm of Sindlinger & Co., Philadelphia. The first was made Oct. 24-25-26, and its results were published in Broadcasting's Nov. 2 issue. The second was made Nov. 3, the day after Mr. Van Doren admitted to the Legislative Oversight Subcommittee that all his Twenty One appearances were rigged.

This is how public opinion was changed by Mr. Van Doren's confession:

- Before the confession: only 18.9% of those who knew about the quiz investigation said that they had changed their attitude or opinion of the television industry. After: 50.9% had changed.
- Before: Despite the fact that quizzes are rigged 57.4% said they found quizzes educational and entertaining enough to want them restored to the air. After: 39.9% wanted them back.
- Before: Only 14.7% who knew about Mr. Van Doren had negative reactions about him. After: 28% had negative reactions. And even more significantly, positive responses (40.2% before his testimony) had dwindled from sight.
- Before: Only 14.7% who knew about Mr. Van Doren thought he should be dismissed from his teaching job at Columbia U. After: 45.7% agreed with the decision to fire him.

The second Sindlinger survey also asked one question that was not included in the first: Who among these (networks, sponsors, producers or Van Doren himself) does the public feel is most to blame for the quiz rigging, and who the least? Results:

- The producers are most to blame, according to 53.8% of the people who know about the quiz investigations.
- Mr. Van Doren is least to blame, according to 38% of the people. (For complete tabulations of the Sindlinger surveys see page 38).

The dramatic shift in opinion after Mr. Van Doren's revelation of his role in the quiz fix demonstrated the degree to which the public identified the entire scandal with that one personality. In the "open end" responses to questions in the second survey (those which required actual opinions rather than yes or no answers) Sindlinger researchers detected still another facet of public reaction: people seemed more concerned that Mr. Van Doren had lied about the rigging than about the rigging itself.

Why Two Surveys?

- The second Sindlinger appraisal of American public opinion on the quiz study was dictated by the extent of the deception revealed in Mr. Van Doren's testimony in Washington. It was apparent from the first survey toward him, the quizzes and the industry itself was conditioned by lingering doubt that he was guilty. When that factor was removed, Broadcasting decided to commission the study.

In many ways the second survey was a more difficult job than the first. The time margin between initiation of the survey (Monday afternoon) and its publication was three days shorter. Questions to the 361 Sindlinger interviewers had to be sent out by telegram rather than mail, which meant that results had to be transferred to coded questionnaires by hand at Sindlinger headquarters before they could be tabulated. Interviewing could not be done until Tuesday night (Nov. 3) to assure that the public had ample opportunity to hear and read about Mr. Van Doren's testimony.

The second survey was based on 1,365 rather than 2,289 interviews, but covered the same 287 counties (including 187 metropolitan markets and representative rural counties). The second survey achieved a 90.9% completion ratio—the first, 91.6%.

The high correlation of responses among both sexes and in all parts of the country in the first survey, coupled with the high percentage of people who had heard about the quiz investigation, had demonstrated in the first survey that by research standards public opinion was uniform enough to be measured accurately with the smaller sample. In fact, a 1,365 interview sample is itself considered large by research standards; many accepted nationwide surveys are done with as few as 300 interviews. Also, as the special Broadcasting questions "hitchhiked" on one of Sindlinger's continuing surveys of media audience, it was possible to use the main survey as a check on accuracy of the special one.

Complete results of the Sindlinger surveys, including breakdowns by geographical area (East, South, Midwest and West) and by age and sex, are available from Sindlinger & Co., Ridley Park, Pa.
STORM FLAGS ARE UP AS PUBLIC OPINION GOES DOWN

Listed below are results of the two Sindlinger surveys on public attitudes toward the tv quiz investigations. The first survey was conducted Oct. 25-26, before Charles Van Doren admitted his winning on Twenty-One was rigged. The second was conducted Nov. 3, after his confession. These results have been projected to the entire U.S. population of 127,745,000 people who are 12 years old or older and not in institutions.

Most know about quiz scandal.

Have you heard or read anything about the television quiz show investigation?

*Results of the first survey’s response to this question were not tabulated in time for Broadcasting’s first report in the Nov. 2 issue. The conditional responses to the question in the first survey resulted from the public’s indecision on Mr. Van Doren’s guilt.

Responses in the second survey did not fall into the same categories, hence the new categories, “sympathetic and indifferent.”

Second Survey

(Not asked in first survey)

BROADCASTING, November 9, 1959
The television quiz era ended officially last Monday when its symbol took off his respected mask and showed the world a cheat.

Charles Van Doren, winner of $129,000 on NBC-TV’s Twenty One and after that a $50,000-a-year commentator for the network, confessed that all his 14 quiz performances had been thoroughly rigged. He was followed through the week by a dozen other witnesses who testified to quiz show rigging (see below) and by the president of CBS and NBC (see AT DEADLINE). But for all practical purposes the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee had made its case when Mr. Van Doren finished.

“I would give almost anything I have to reverse the course of my life in the last three years,” said Mr. Van Doren, in beginning his 3½-page prepared statement. “I was involved, deeply involved, in a deception.”

In his testimony he described how Albert Freedman, a producer for Barry & Enright who owned Twenty One, carefully coached him in subject matter and in dramatic technique.

Before all the programs on which he appeared Mr. Van Doren was given all the questions and, when he did not know them, the answers. Before some of his appearances he was given entire scripts to memorize.

Drama Coach • Of Mr. Freedman’s work Mr. Van Doren also testified: “He instructed me how to answer the questions: to pause before certain parts of the answers, to skip certain parts and return to them, to hesitate and build up suspense.”

Throughout his term as a contestant on Twenty One Mr. Van Doren was “deeply troubled” by the deceit, he testified. But he rationalized, fame and “more money than I ever had or dreamed of having” came to him. “I was almost able to convince myself that it did not matter what I was doing because it was having such a good effect on the national attitude toward teachers, education and the intellectual life. . . . I was able to convince myself that I could make up for it after it was over.”

Mr. Van Doren’s last appearance on Twenty One was on March 11, 1957. Before the program Mr. Freedman told him he was to lose that night. “I said: ‘Thank God,’” Mr. Van Doren told the subcommittee.

That night he lost to Mrs. Vivienne Nearing. He collected $124,000. The other $5,000 of the total winnings had already been paid as an advance before Christmas 1956 although at that time viewers believed it was possible for him to lose all he had won.

Trouble Begins • In August 1958 Herbert Stempel whom Mr. Van Doren had defeated on Twenty One charged that the program had been rigged. At the time Mr. Van Doren was appearing on Today as a replacement for Dave Garroway.

“I made a statement on the Garroway program the next morning to the effect that I knew of no improper activities on Twenty One and that I had received no assistance,” Mr. Van Doren testified last week. “I knew that most people would believe me. Most people did.”

Later an investigator for the New York district attorney interrogated him, as part of the grand jury investigation of quiz rigging. “I denied any knowledge of improper activities,” Mr. Van Doren recalled.

After that he hired a lawyer, Carl Rubino. “In my folly I did not even tell him the truth.”

Last January Mr. Van Doren testified before the New York grand jury and stuck to his story of innocence. Before his grand jury appearance he talked with Mr. Freedman, his coach on Twenty One, and with Dan Enright, of Barry & Enright. Both urged him to lie and both said they would protect him.

A month ago Mr. Van Doren learned that Mr. Freedman appeared before the New York grand jury after Mr. Van Doren testified and implicated Mr. Van Doren in rigging. “I became almost panic-stricken,” Mr. Van Doren said. last week. But he still denied he knew of any rigging when he was asked about it by investigators of the House subcommittee.

The Reckoning • The House subcommittee hearings began Oct. 6.

"I was involved in them from the first," said Mr. Van Doren. On the night of Oct. 6 NBC told Mr. Van Doren he must ask the subcommittee for a chance to testify or be suspended from his job.

"My life and career, it appeared, were being swept away in a flood," Mr. Van Doren testified. "I tried to save whatever part seemed in the most immediate danger. First I hoped to save the contract. I just was unable to walk out and slam the door on a $50,000-a-year job."

By Oct. 8 Mr. Van Doren was "completely confused and dismayed." Chairman Oren Harris of the House subcommittee had offered Mr. Van Doren a chance to testify. Mr. Van Doren had as last told his attorney the true story. The attorney had advised him that there were probably witnesses ready to testify against him. "I could not face the situation," said Mr. Van Doren.

"I simply ran away." For five days Mr. Van Doren and his wife drove aimlessly through New England while he tried vainly to come to some conclusion. They returned to New York Oct. 13, and he was served next day with a subcommittee subpoena. Still he was trying "hopelessly to seek a way out," he said last week.

"In the end it was a small thing that tipped the scales," Mr. Van Doren said. He received a letter from a woman who had seen him in the Garry Moore show. "She told me that the only way I could ever live with myself and make up for what I had done—of course, she too did not know exactly what that was—was to admit it, clearly, openly, truly. Suddenly I knew she was right. And this way, which had seemed for so long the worst of all possible alternatives, suddenly became the only one."

Upon completion of Mr. Van Doren's testimony, Chairman Harris and most other subcommittee members complimented him for his confession. "God bless you," Chairman Harris said.

A dissent came from Rep. Steven Derounian (R-N.Y.), "I don't think an adult of your intelligence should be commended for telling the truth," Rep. Derounian told Mr. Van Doren.

Secret Testimony • New revelations of TV quiz show "fixing" came to light last week when the subcommittee made public the testimony of seven witnesses given behind closed doors during the past month.

The witnesses: John Ross, personal manager of 12-year-old Patty Duke, who was a contestant on $64,000 Challenge and who currently plays the young Helen Keller in the play, "The Miracle Worker"; Edward Jurist, former producer of Dotto, $64,000 Challenge, Quiz Kids and Giant Step; Albert Freedman, former producer of Twenty One and Tic Tac Dough; Dan Enright, former partner in Barry & Enright Productions and supervisor-producer of Twenty One; Howard Felsher, former producer of Tic Tac Dough; Martin Dowd, former contestant on Tic Tac Dough; and Sy Fischer, head of Frank Cooper Assoc., which owned Dotto.

Among points made in their testimony:

Mr. Ross: Didn't know Patty Duke was given questions and answers in advance of her appearances on shows until Oct. 31, but suspected it and was almost sure when he heard associate producer Shirley Bernstein advise girl to study tune "Memphis Blues," about which she later was questioned. Said Entertainment Productions Inc. scout Irving Harris, who knew both him and Miss Duke, asked her to appear. She won $32,000 and Mr. Ross received 15% and gave $1,000 to Mr. Harris because "I just wanted to do something for him." During several appearances by Miss Duke he was afraid to ask her if she had been given advance information because "I was afraid I'd find out the truth."

Mr. Jurist: Said every effort was made to "control" Dotto and that some amount of control was exercised on every quiz show he's worked on since pre-war Quiz Kids radio show. This was by finding out what contestant knew, then asking questions he would be likely to answer right. Admitted Dotto control was meant to be "subtle" but wasn't always that way, noting one contestant (Marie Winn) took notes at screening session and used them during show for right answers. Various techniques were used to achieve excitement, such as ties, and about 70% of plans worked out as expected. Acknowledged prior testimony to effect

Mr. Freedman: Admitted furnishing advance questions and answers to contestant James Snodgrass for Twenty One and admitted Mr. Enright did same for contestant Herbert Stempel. Of some 125 to 150 contestants, figures he helped 15 to 20 with answers and coached them on acting. Said "control" had been used on quiz shows from their early appearances on radio; felt it was his idea to assist contestants, but acknowledged he knew Mr. Enright was doing same before Mr. Freedman joined show. Said Mr. Snodgrass told "lie" in saying Mr. Freedman "cried" when one contestant won $75,000; that he couldn't be more delighted to see NBC spending its money. Said he'd been on quiz shows on Tic Tac Dough and "slightly" on Big Surprise in early 1956. Acknowledged he ordered several contestants to lose. Said he lied to grand jury at first, telling contestants he was going to do so to take "terror" away from them. Dated he told contestants how to testify before grand jury. Said Mr. Enright has advanced him $15,000 in loans since he left his job and went to Mexico City, where he lives now. Said NBC officials didn't ask him if show was rigged and he probably wouldn't have told them if they had asked.

Mr. Enright: Claimed it was his own idea, not Mr. Freedman's, to help contestants. Acknowledged furnishing advance information to several contestants as well as coaching them on acting. Said he didn't think officials of the sponsor, Pharmaceuticals Inc., knew of irregularities. Said he didn't tell NBC officials Mr. Stempel was lying, but acknowledged telling them he had tape recording and signed statements of Mr. Stempel renouncing claims show was rigged. Admitted he guaranteed one contestant (Vivienne Nearing) $10,000 when she wanted to quit with $14,000 (she later dropped to $5,000, but received $10,000). He agreed with Mr. Freedman that more than half shows were fixed; that he and Mr. Freedman planned who would win, when ties would be made.

Mr. Fischer: Testified he knew Dotto was "controlled." That two radio shows with which he has been associated, Second Chance and Keep It in the Family, also were controlled. He said he made decision to pay Mr. Hilgemeier $1,500 to keep him quiet. (Several congressmen hinted strongly that Mr. Fischer had dodged subcommittee staffers with subpoenas. He also was criticized for refusing to sign waiver of immunity for testimony before New York grand jury).

"I have not been censured nearly so much for taking the money as for opening my big mouth," he said.

Rev. Jackson said that the public in Tennessee has been very critical of the subcommittee's investigations and has shown a "we couldn't care less" attitude.

Rev. Jackson, minister of the Disciples of Christ Church, Tullahoma, Tenn., said that it is his ambition to become "a Protestant Father Flanagan," founder of Boys' Town. He told of making efforts to get on several TV quiz shows to help pay debts in an unsuccessful promotion of a Florida home for boys.

After his $64,000 Question appearances, Rev. Jackson won $4,000 on Challenge which he said he took because tax officials told him he would have to pay tax on the amount anyway. He sent some of his winnings to the contestant he defeated—with help from the producers—he said.

Before his appearances on both programs the witness said he was given questions and answers which later were asked. He said he told fellow ministers and friends about this in Tennessee and "without exception" they said he had done nothing morally wrong.

Cugat's Testimony • Band leader
Xavier Cugat told how he consented to appear as a contestant on $64,000
Challenge strictly for publicity reasons,
"but I didn't want to make a fool of myself."

He said answers were supplied to him before each of his three appear-ces by Mr. Koplin, producer of the show.

Mr. Cugat's opponent was singer
Lillian Roth, author of the best-selling book I'll Cry Tomorrow. Miss Roth received the $16,000, level and Mr.
Cugat took home that amount in winnings.

"I thought it was entertainment—it was a show," Mr. Cugat told the congressmen. "Now I wish I'd never gone there for $16 million." He said he did not know if Miss Roth had been supplied with answers.

"If there was too much make believe, I wish you could do something about it without giving entertainment a black name," Mr. Cugat told the congressmen.

$64,000 Conflicts • Members of the subcommittee made it plain they are convinced that one or more witnesses lied in affixing the blame for controls placed on $64,000 Question and Challenge during Tuesday and Wednesday testimony.

Steven R. Carlin, executive producer,
Mert Koplin, producer, and Shirley Bernstein, associate producer of Challenge (via an affidavit entered in the record), swore that "control" of contestants was at the desire and direction of Revlon, the sponsor.

Revlon President Charles Revson, and his brother Martin Revson, former executive vice president, entered vehement denials. They were backed by James D. Webb, president of C. J.
LaRoche & Co., one of Revlon's agencies.

The position taken by the producers was supported by George Abrams, vice president of advertising for Revlon until last April.

Much of the testimony centered around weekly strategy meetings to discuss the two shows. They were attended by the producers, Revlon executives and its agencies. Memorandums were made outlining discussions and decisions reached at each meeting.

Messrs. Carlin and Koplin testified that at "virtually every meeting" Revlon representatives (Messrs. Martin Revson and Abrams) indicated they wanted certain contestants continued and often made "urgent suggestions" that this or that contestant be dropped.

Ratings were uppermost in everybody's mind, the producers said, and as ratings dropped "pressures" for more controls increased. The reaction was to do everything possible to place a more dramatic show on the air and

...advertising agencies do a lot of different jobs these days: art, copy, merchandising, research, media, cooking, TV production, publicity, package design... the list could go off the page.

Some agencies figure their art and copy departments are their creative departments and the rest are "supplementary services." But other agencies figure that a creative agency is creative in all departments. Items:

There is the contact man who thought up the cold remedy that combines the elements of two clients' products...

There is the merchandising man who made a hard goods promotion successful by surrounding it with the atmosphere of a private sale...

There is the production man who helped overcome the technical difficulties in a new process: high-fidelity color for newspapers...

There is the media man who originated the consolidated purchase of television time for a group of accounts...

There is the publicity man who put a model tropic island on a barge and had it towed around New York...

There is the research man who found a new way to test for taste...

There are such things as creative packaging, inventive combination deals, and new ways to inspire the trade. There are many ideas which sell goods.

And, most important of all, there is the creative advertising idea which puts a benefit into people's minds in a new and arresting way. After all, it isn't just products which people buy...

As a result of his testimony before the House Special Subcommittee on Oversight, Charles Van Doren lost two jobs last week. He was dismissed from his $50,000-a-year post at NBC, and the trustees of Columbia U. voted to accept his resignation as assistant professor of English.

An NBC announcement Nov. 3 stated the company's decision was prompted by disclosures NBC received for the first time through Mr. Van Doren's testimony before the subcommittee. A spokesman said Mr. Van Doren would be paid through Nov. 3.

NBC's announcement said in part:

"Mr. Van Doren's admissions in his testimony are completely at variance with his repeated denials of complicity in or knowledge of any rigging on Twenty-Three. . . .

"Those who have knowingly engaged in the frauds of quiz show rigging must be removed from the broadcast scene. With deep regret, we have concluded that no exception should be made with Mr. Van Doren."

How are Food Sales going, Tom?

WDAY-TV is certainly 'pushing food' like mad, these days! Thanks to our new 1206' tower we are reaching 96% more people—covering 60% more area and upping our area retail sales volume by 100%

Retail sales in our area total $670,475,000—of which $117,384,000 is in food alone!

What's more, Standard Rate & Data Service now points out that the Fargo area is the No. 1 Retail-Sales-Per-Household Area in the entire U.S.A. The national average is $3,944 . . . as compared to Fargo's whopping $5,970!

All in all—if you aren't advertising your food products on WDAY-TV, you're missing one of the surest bets in the nation. Why don't you ask P.G.W. for availabilities?

Yours,

Tom Barnes

Spending money is an adult affair. So is making it! That’s the reason advertisers with full-grown profits in mind use Philadelphia’s WCAU-TV. Because…

WCAU-TV reaches more adults than any other station in Philadelphia. In fact, a giant 83% of WCAU-TV’s audience is adult. Best of all, when it comes to women (the little ladies with the man-sized purchasing power) WCAU-TV leads, too… delivers 12½ million more women viewer impressions a week than Philadelphia’s second station. (Latest ARB, four-week average)

Grown-up results? They’re within easy reach on Philadelphia’s majority leader:

Abrams read into the record. Of particular interest to the congressmen was what has been labeled "the famous last memorandum"—of which no copy can be found by the subcommittee.

This memorandum was reported to say "bluntly that a certain match would end next week and another contestant would advance to another plateau on the Question show." Messrs. Koplin, Carlin and Abrams testified that Martin Revson was "quite upset at this memo and ordered that there would be no more . . ."

Martin Revson, who described testimony of the producers as "a bunch of hogwash," said he did not recall the contents of the lost memo and that the memos were stopped because they became editorial in nature, reflecting the opinions of the writer, a BBDO man assigned to the account. He said he chaired the weekly meetings and denied that there was ever any discussion of whether a contestant would be dropped.

"If we'd known any controls were being used, I can assure you we would have dropped it at once," he said. He described Mr. Koplin as a "mouse" who never spoke at the meetings. Martin Revson said that he has been a "private investor" since leaving Revlon in the spring of 1958.

Producers Deny Fix • On three different occasions, both Revsons said, Revlon asked producers of the two shows if any controls were exerted over contestants. In each instance, they said, denials were given. This was done verbally and Revlon had nothing in writing from EPI to this effect, it was stated.

Charles Revson pointed out that fix charges have been leveled against The Big Surprise, which has only one thing in common with the $64,000 shows. "It was not the sponsor, it was the producer," he emphasized. "This producer would have you believe that sponsor pressure from Revlon drove him to do what he did on our show. Then what caused him to rig The Big Surprise?"

Mr. Webb, who attended the weekly meetings, said that "nothing ever occurred to arouse my suspicions. I believed that the programs were honest. Surely, the producers never gave me the slightest reason to believe otherwise." Mr. Webb said that LaRoche bills about $2 million annually for Revlon (its fourth largest account) for which it receives approximately $240,000 in commissions.

Abrams Supports Producers • Mr. Abrams, in charge of advertising for Revlon during the time Question and Challenge were on the air, said that the sponsor "understood . . . the technique used for controlling the destiny of a contestant was to employ questions ranging from 'tough' to 'easy.' If a contestant was interesting, it was generally the consensus of opinion that he should continue on the show. If he was dull, we should suggest to the producer that it would be desirable that the contestant not continue in the future."

He said decisions were made at the weekly meeting as to who should continue on Question, how a match should go on Challenge—"and the sponsor and agency expected that the decisions would be carried out with a high degree of accuracy." (Of this testimony, Martin Revson said: "That's his personal opinion. It's not true.")

Mr. Abrams is now president of Cosmetics & Toiletries Div. of Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Corp. He did not appear before the subcommittee in person; his statement was read by subcommittee counsel Richard N. Goodwin.

Rigged on Instructions • Miss Bernstein, who also did not testify in person, stated in an affidavit that Challenge often was rigged on instructions from the sponsor. She said these directions were relayed to her through Mr. Carlin. It was her "complete understanding from the start," she said, that rigging instructions came from the sponsor.

By sponsor, she said, she meant Revlon. "I was given to understand that we had little or no interference from the Lorillard people." Miss Bernstein said that on occasion she supplied questions and answers in advance of a contestant's appearance on the show but that some programs were not tampered with at all.

Last Tuesday's and Wednesday's testimony brought forth the question of whether perjury had been committed— with several members of the subcommittee saying often that somebody was not telling the truth. Rep. Bennett said he thought there was "a clear case of perjury" and requested that the hearing record be sent to the Attorney General for action.

Rep. Derounian made the same observations. Rep. Harris said only that there were "differences" in the testimony and pointed out the Justice Dept. already had instituted an investigation of TV quiz shows.

Subtle Controls • Robert Foreman, executive vice president of BBDO, New York, agency for Revlon at the time of the $64,000 Question, told the committee that Revlon spokesmen discussed the merits of various contestants on the show and expressed their desires on whether a contestant should continue to win or should lose. He said that the sponsor and producer usually agreed about contestants' desirability and their desires "usually" worked out on the show.

From this, he said, he "assumed" that controls were being used. Mr. Foreman said he never anticipated anything as blatant as giving questions and answers, but assumed that control was exercised through knowing a contestant's strengths and weaknesses.

Mr. Foreman, author of a book about quiz shows, The Hot Half Hour, said his book was strictly fiction, and any controls described in it were based strictly on assumption and imagination. The book was published after Revlon left BBDO, because the agency was "no longer doing the job" Revlon wanted.

$10,000 Entry Fee • At a three-hour evening session, Nov. 4, the subcommittee directed its attention to a side-matter—that of outside advertisers purchasing plugs from program producers without the knowledge of the program's sponsor. The program concerned: The $64,000 Question.

Advertiser plugged: Hess Bros. department store, Allentown, Pa. Fee paid: $10,000 in cash.

The evening's first witness was Kenneth Hoffer, Reading, Pa. A former employee of Hess Bros., Mr. Hoffer was a three-question contestant on Question, in August 1955. He told the committee how he had applied to be a contestant and had told fellow workers about it. A few days later, he testified he received a phone call from Hess Bros.' owner Max Hess at 1:30 a.m. Mr. Hess told Mr. Hoffer he would go on the show and get to the $64,000 level, at which time he would lose.

The next day, Mr. Hoffer, Max Levine, Hess Bros., pr man, and David Gottlieb, furniture buyer, drove to New York where the first of several meetings which resulted in Mr. Hoffer's brief appearance on the show a week later were held.

Mr. Hoffer said Mr. Hess told him he would get $4,000, in cash value of the consolation Cadillac auto prize offered by the program. He never got that far (missing the $256 question), never got his $4,000, though he did get a $10 a week raise.

Messenger Boy • Mr. Gottlieb told the committee he was cast in the role of a messenger boy who made several trips to New York to negotiate with Elroy Schwartz, an employee of Cowan Productions, then producer of The $64,000 Question. On instructions from Mr. Hess, he said he offered $1,200 to Mr. Schwartz, to get Mr. Hoffer on the show. Mr. Schwartz replied this was insufficient.

Mr. Gottlieb testified he sat in on a phone conversation between Mr. Hess...
Sales up; stock down

Revlon sales figures entered in record of House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee tv quiz investigations last week showed a sharp rise in the firm’s income after it began sponsoring $64,000 Question in June 1955.

But, in the face of charges that Revlon was responsible for "controlling" that show and $64,000 Challenge, which it co-sponsored, Revlon stock dropped sharply on the New York Stock Exchange. Price of the stock dropped $3.25 at the close of business Wednesday (Nov. 4) from the high of the last market day, Monday. Trading of the shares skyrocketed, with 39,400 shares changing hands Wednesday, compared to 1,000 shares Monday.

Revlon stock closed Wednesday at $54.25, down from the $59.50 closing price Monday. It opened Wednesday at $56 and sold as low as $54.12.

In 1954, the year before Revlon began sponsorship of Question, its net sales were $33.7 million, 30.6% of the total sales of cosmetic companies listed in stock exchanges. For 1955, after the quiz show had been on the air six months, sales increased to 54% to $51.8 million and 38.7% of total market.

With a full year’s sponsorship of $64,000 Question and Challenge in 1956, sales skyrocketed to $85.7 million, a 66% increase, representing 48.8% of the total market. Figures for the final two years of sponsorship showed 1957 sales of $95.7 million (48% of market) and 1958 $111 million (46.6% of market).

Charles Revson, Revlon president, said he was unable to estimate what percentage of the sales increase could be attributed to TV, but that it "helped." He said the firm spends approximately $8 million annually in TV, some 65% of its advertising budget. The $64,000 Question, he said, cost about $80,000 weekly, including $40-50,000 for time and $15,000 for prize money.

Just entertainment • Band leader Xavier Cugat appeared for publicity. It was just a show, he said, but now he wishes he hadn't.

tee counsel Robert Lishman, Mr. Hess said his store had done this so often he didn't remember any names. Mr. Lishman refreshed Mr. Hess' memory whereupon Mr. Hess stated he himself had appeared on The Kate Smith Show and The Dunninger Show. He also said his firm had paid Jack O’Brien (New York Journal American tv-radio columnist) and Bob Considine (syndicated columnist of King Features) $1,000 each to visit the store and write articles about it. Messrs. O’Brien and Considine said they received money for personal appearances but not for plugs.

Refresher Course • In an effort to make the reluctant witness a little more enlightening in his answers, Mr. Lishman asked Mr. Hess about the first visit of a committee investigator to his store. Mr. Hess admitted he had refused to cooperate with the investigator and had told him to "drop dead." When served with a subpoena, Mr. Hess told his lawyer, "tear it up and forget it." At a second meeting Mr. Hess told the investigator he had not paid money to get Mr. Hoffer on the Question. Mr. Lishman said it was only Friday, Oct. 30 that Mr. Hess agreed to tell the true story after he received information that Mr. Gottlieb had agreed to testify.

Mr. Hess said he also had paid $5,000 to one of his new New York pr counselors (Gertrude Bayne) for her part in securing the $64,000 Question plugs. He said she "arranged" an interview for Messrs. Hoffer and Gottlieb with people "connected" with the show.

FTC EXPANDS ITS TV MONITORING
Auto glass commercial cited in new 'get tough' policy

The Federal Trade Commission last week delivered a promise—and its first lick—in a suddenly stepped-up campaign against what it feels is deception in television commercials.

In a statement released Nov. 2, FTC Chairman Earl W. Kintner announced the agency will combat tv commercials that deceive by doubling the FTC's radio-tv ad monitoring staff, by monitoring tv network programs around the clock during broadcast hours, by demanding scripts of all tv network commercials during the Nov. 15-Dec. 15 pre-Christmas period and by intensifying its investigations of non-network tv advertising throughout the country.

Two days later (Nov. 4) came the first action in the FTC's get-tough plan. (CLOSED CIRCUIT, NOV. 2): General Motors Corp., Detroit, and Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., Toledo, were charged with using "camera trickery" in tv commercials which deceptively minimized the amount of optical distortion of L-O-F plate glass used in GM cars as compared with other glass used in cars made by other manufacturers.

Libbey-Owens-Ford promptly issued a denial that its advertising was false or misleading (see below). General Motors saw it would have no comment in the immediate future.

The FTC action came as Charles Van Doren, onetime public hero No. 1 of the tv quiz shows, did public penance before the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee for taking part in the "rigged" shows (story page 39). It came, many thought surprisingly, only two weeks after Mr. Kintner had urged broadcasters at an NAB regional meeting to tighten their self-regulation of tv advertising lest the FTC step in and only three weeks after Mr. Kintner himself underwent questioning by the same House subcommittee, along with FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer.

Public Reaction • Mr. Kintner said the FTC is expanding its monitoring as a result of numerous letters it has received from the public stemming from revelations before the House group about rigging of tv quiz shows. Though his agency cannot control program content, he said, "the honesty of tv commercials is very much our concern."

In his statement, Mr. Kintner called on broadcasters to crack down on commercials whose "bad taste" the public has complained about to the FTC, even if no legal action is "now" possible concerning these. He said broadcasters have a responsibility to "clamp down" on "advertising excesses that dance on the edges of the law."

Broadcasters, he said, should cooperate with the FTC as a matter of "enlightened self-interest" by rejecting illegal advertising and by screening out commercials which "exaggerate, irritate and nauseate."

The FTC chairman said the agency's war on deceptive tv commercials is not new. Under way now are 53 investigations, he said, while 18 complaints and 11 orders have been issued since July 1958. These objectionable tv commercials, both audio and video, have taken weeks and months of "painstaking care" to develop legal proof, he said.

He noted other misleading radio and tv advertising has been stopped by FTC orders against the same advertising in print, since an FTC order forbids the challenged advertising in all media.

False Comparison • The FTC's complaint against General Motors and Libbey-Owens-Ford cites two specific instances in which, it claims, illegal deception was used, although an FTC spokesman said others will be described at the hearing itself, now scheduled for Jan. 18 in Chicago.

The two, both involving visual deception: that in one picture sequence, showing disparity between the optical distortion of safety sheet glass made by other manufacturers for non-GM cars and safety plate glass made by L-O-F for GM cars, different camera lenses were used for the two products, resulting in an "inaccurate demonstration" of the comparative distortion; that in another sequence, the picture, purportedly taken through an automobile window made of L-O-F's safety plate glass, actually was taken through an open window (with the glass rolled down).

FTC charged deceptive photography "and devices" were used to exaggerate the distortion in sheet glass (not produced by L-O-F) and to minimize distortion in L-O-F's safety plate glass. The glass used was in the side windows of cars.

The two companies have 30 days to file formal answers to the complaint.

The FTC's Bureau of Litigation, which will try the case, last week vetoed requests for more specific information beyond that designated in the formal complaint: i.e., actual commercials involved, pictures of the alleged deception in FTC files, networks, programs and dates.

FTC Is Watching You • But Charles A. Sweeney, chief of the radio-tv monitoring unit, and his boss, Sherman Hill, director of the Bureau of Investigation, described how FTC Chairman Kintner's orders to step up FTC policing actions will be implemented.

Mr. Sweeney said an increase will be made in the number of fulltime monitors, now two, and parttime monitors, now three. He didn't know exactly how many "man days" would be added, but thought it would be "more than double" that at present. The full day's schedule for the three tv networks will be monitored by watching programs over affiliate stations in Washington and was expected to have been in effect by last week, he said. He noted the FTC would have to pull people off other jobs to do this, since the agency has no extra money for the new work.

The monitoring unit's work will be supplemented and expanded by assigning specified hours for watching to the FTC's whole professional staff (mostly lawyers, but including economists, accountants and doctors), according to Mr. Hill. The FTC put such a plan into effect shortly after its monitoring unit was organized (BROADCASTING, Jan. 14, 1957), but discontinued it a year ago, instructing its professional people merely to report any questionable commercials they saw or heard on radio or tv on their "own" time, much as a policeman is expected to watch out for law violations while off duty, as Mr. Sweeney termed it.

Local Shows Too • The assignment of hours to watch tv apply to FTC staff people in Washington and in the FTC's nine field offices throughout the country, it was explained, and these are expected to keep an eye on the Washington monitors by watching a good cross-section of non-network national and regional and local advertising.

Besides this activity, the FTC for years has requested all radio-tv stations, from one to four times a year depending on the station's classification, to submit commercial scripts for a full broadcast day. This date is specified in advance, but only to make sure the station is prepared to furnish the specified day's commercial scripts or to make extra copies.

Mr. Sweeney indicated last week that although some papers in magazines and newspapers are not requested in advance because over many years the FTC knows what to expect and has streamlined its handling of these, whereas television is something "new and different."

Mr. Sweeney explained that tv networks for the Nov. 15-Dec. 15 period were requested in advance because, even though monitors will be watching and hearing the actual commercials, they want to see scripts to determine in advance which ones appear most questionable and to be especially watchful as these are aired.

Although the two FTC actions were released last week, they had been initiated the week before.

Commercial 'Not Faked' • The commercials were not faked. So went the reaction to the FTC complaint as expressed in New York by Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., its agency, Fuller & Smith & Ross, and Tv Graphics (which produced the commercial).

But a loose end was left dangling. What was contained in a mysterious "piece of film" selected from hundreds of thousands of L-O-F tv commercial footage?

Broadcasting editors in making a routine check of both agency and production firm connected with the commercials' filming were informed of a "piece of film that raised some doubt" in the mind of an FTC investigator. The investigator, it was learned, as far back as a year or more carefully questioned F&S&R executives, interviewed production people and sifted through batches of film footage made for L-O-F.

As related last week, the prober, who seemed to know what he was after, pinned his attention on one sequence. It was hinted it was this segment upon which FTC has based the substance of its allegations.

Pressed for a description of what this film showed, one of Tv Graphics' production people commented, "You'll have to ask the FTC in Washington. You know I cannot talk about that." Others with full or part knowledge of L-O-F commercial footage gave similar answers.

What heightened the mystery was the inability or reluctance to establish whether it actually appeared in a commercial (not all the footage presumably was used in the same 18 commercials produced of the type cited by FTC). Officials of Tv Graphics and F&S&R were quick to point out, however, that at no time was there any deception involved in the filming. "One hundred per cent perfection—no trickery," was the comment from Sid Greenhouse of Tv Graphics, the man in production control of the L-O-F commercials.

Work Stopper • Tv Graphics spokesmen said the FTC investigator had "tied up a lot of people" but had found nothing deceitful.

Those questioned said all commercials purporting to show action photo-graphed through the windshield of a General Motors automobile actually were shot that way. At no time, they said, was the photograph taken other than through a window, nor were special lenses used to trick the viewer into seeing a distortion via ordinary glass.

A. E. Duram, senior vice president in charge of tv and radio at F&S&R, said regardless of lens shifting, distortion via ordinary plate glass would still exist because it was really there. The "same distortion is apparent," he observed.

A Tv Graphics executive pointed out that it had actually made a "running test" employing "two sets of cars" along the East River Drive in New York City. The objective: "To see if it failed or succeeded to show what it was supposed to" (that the safety plate glass of the L-O-F make would be a clear picture but the sheet glass would show some distortion.

The result? Absolutely successful, he said, noting that it was on the basis of this test that the series of some 18 commercials comparing one piece of glass with another was produced.

Tv Graphics subsequently shot film on this theme in and around New York City, in Florida and elsewhere "whenever the weather was good." Cameras were mounted in various GM cars and in various GM cars which were not identified as to make. Tv Graphics this season has produced further commercials for L-O-F but not of the nature of those under FTC's fire.

Used Last Season • The series of commercials alluded to by FTC were produced for the 1957-58 tv season and seen on Perry Mason on CBS-TV. That series, according to the agency, proved to be unusually effective and earned a "success" label by the advertiser, the agency and by competitors. The commercials also were seen during NCAA football which L-O-F was sponsoring in that same season. They did not appear in spot tv. (L-O-F now is participating in "Bourbon Street Beat on ABC TV.)

Libbey-Owens-Ford is the sole glass supplier to General Motors. A substantial percentage of the glass manufactured by L-O-F goes to GM.

L-O-F in a prompt denial of the FTC complaint alluded to "complaints" made to FTC as prompting the commission's charges, and described these complaints—presumably from competitors—as constituting "an attack on the power of advertising effectively employed rather than a challenge of the facts which were actually presented in that advertising."

The company, stated L-O-F, "denies that its advertising was in any way false or misleading or that it rested upon or disseminated inaccurate photographic techniques," the advertising in question being "true and perfectly proper."

L-O-F asserted the issue as a "purely private controversy which resulted in the initiation of the commission proceedings."

The statement continued: "Objects viewed through safety glass made of sheet glass often appear distorted because of the surface waviness which is characteristic in such glass. On the other hand, this characteristic of waviness is not inherent in safety glass made of plate glass because the surfaces in plate glass are mechanically ground and polished."

The glass manufacturer said the advertising under questions "has done no more than to depict accurately and to compare the visual distortion in safety sheet glass with the lack of such distortion in safety plate glass."

L-O-F accused other parties, which it did not identify, as promoting "various efforts to bring about the discontinuance" of the comparative glass advertising. Concluded the firm: "No one challenges the fact that safety plate glass is better than safety sheet glass."

The objection by the complaints, L-O-F charged, "seems to be only the graphic and effective manner in which these facts have been portrayed."

Concluded the advertiser, "to silence us would serve only the self interests of those complainants."

NBC is doing some quizzing of its own

NBC last week confirmed reports that it had asked all its top television executives to file depositions outlining the knowledge they might have about the rigging of quiz programs.

Though spokesmen declined to discuss the signed affidavits, it was believed the objectives were to enable NBC to "voluntarily supply" the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight with evidence, as a sign of the network's cooperation and also enable NBC to dismiss summarily any executive who perjures himself on his deposition.

The depositions were circulated to all NBC vice presidents, department heads and station managers. Each executive was asked to list his name and position at NBC. The questionnaire continues:

"Please note that your answers to the following questions are to be sworn before a notary public."

"Return the completed questionnaire in attached envelope to the NBC legal department . . . as promptly as possible and in no event, later than Nov. 6, 1959. Apart from information you may have received from press reports and other public interviews or rigging, did you at any time learn or know, or do you know now, of the following:

1. Secretly giving contestants in quiz, panel or audience participation or contest programs questions or answers or any other individual assistance to help them win (yes or no).

2. Giving a winning contestant in such programs less than the full prize which the program announced he won (yes or no).

3. Receipt by anyone connected with such a program of anything of value from the contestant on the program (yes or no).

4. Charges by contestant or any other persons connected with such programs, relative to any of the foregoing points (yes or no)."

Complete details were requested on any of the four answers made in the affirmative. NBC spokesmen said they had knowledge if any of the replies were affirmative, since all envelopes were sealed.

A CBS official said the network has not asked its top employees to execute a similar affidavit.

CBS clarifies record on $64,000 shows

CBS-TV Network President Louis G. Cowan did not sell his stock in Entertainment Productions Inc. to his wife, and CBS did not know about any rigging of $64,000 Challenge six months before it dropped the show, CBS-TV declared last week.

It also indicated that Revlon, sponsor of Challenge, had known six months before CBS did that the question of rigging had been raised.

The assertions came in answer to a column by Drew Pearson. Thomas K. Fisher, network vice president and general attorney, denied the charges in a telegram sent to Mr. Pearson Monday night and made public by the network.

He said he had told Louis G. Cowan disposed of his interests in Entertainment Productions Inc. [which produced $64,000 Question and $64,000 Challenge] it was merely a paper transfer with his wife retaining a large share of the same," Mr. Fisher said. "The fact is that Mr. Cowan sold all his shares back to Entertainment Productions Inc. and none of it to his wife."

He said CBS started its investigation of quiz shows "immediately upon learning on Aug. 8, 1958, of a possible irregularity on one of our quiz programs. When we had sufficient evidence to act against any program, we did so promptly."

Mr. Fisher also told Mr. Pearson: "... You said that as early as March 1958 CBS discovered that Wilton Springer had been given the winning answers before his public appearance on Quiz Show. (Challenge) that the program producers had so admitted to both CBS and Revlon."

"This is not so. CBS received its first information concerning the Springer matter on Sept. 6, 1958; it was not until that date that we learned the Springer matter had come to the attention of Revlon six months before."

"You said that Revlon tried to drop its sponsorship in September; that I urged the company to wait until the network had investigated; and that CBS threatened to sue if Revlon broke its contract."

"This is not so. The facts are these: there were two remaining scheduled telecasts in the $64,000 Challenge series as of Sept. 6, 1958 — Sept. 7 and Sept. 14. We had insufficient proof on Sept. 6 to cancel the Sept. 7 telecast and we preempted the final telecast.

"The $64,000 Question was sched-

Congressmen promise tv reform legislation

The House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee investigations of tv quiz shows will have one very prominent effect on the 2nd Session of the 86th Congress convening in January.

The Congress will be hit by a deluge of television reform bills—ranging from some close to outright censorship to others drastically changing the format and operations of the FCC.

Whether any of this legislation will be passed into law is problematical. Reform bills upon reform bills were introduced following earlier disclosures of this same subcommittee. None has become law. None has been passed by either house. One only and that of an insignificant nature has been reported from committee.

Gaining added impetus and support is subcommittee member Rep. John Bennett's (R-Mich.) measure (HR 5042) placing networks under the direct regulation of the FCC. Several members of Congress are known to be joining the bandwagon in support of this measure.

Other members are calling for programming control. Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) said the disclosures may lead to more FCC authority over programming. Several members of the subcommittee have expressed feelings along this same line, as have appointed federal officials.

Only A Start • The current investigation into quiz programs is "only a starter," Rep. Steven Derounian (R-N.Y.), a member of the subcommittee, asserted during an interview on Mutual’s Capital Assignment last Wednesday (Nov. 4). He stated that there are other parts of television that will need going into and we will recommend some sort of action so that we in Congress can act in January if legislation is necessary.

Rep. Derounian criticized all elements involved in quiz programming—producers, the networks, the advertisers and agencies—for not investigating more thoroughly. He remarked: "I support the efforts of FCC and whoever owns the properties [to NBC] for $2.2 million. Here's an example of two people using a fraudulent show for two years, and then pocketing $1.1 million apiece on a capital gains basis. That just doesn't seem right. It's not moral for the country. It's not good for the children of the country."

Later, while quizzing witness Charles Revson, Rep. Derounian said advertising executives "may need a little lesson in not being so naive in the future. We'll have some action on this, I assure you."

Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.), has announced plans to introduce legislation revamping methods of appointing and confirming commissioners (Broadcasting, Oct. 19). Rep. Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), in accusing the FCC of failing to use the authority it has, said Congress may be forced to pass stricter regulations. Especially critical of FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer, Rep. Rogers told TV Guide he should resign if he "doesn't want to use the powers the law gives him."

Both are members of the Oversight body.

Rep. Frank Kowalski (D-Conn.) said Congress should investigate and put under federal control the tv ratings systems—a campaign Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Okl.) has been pushing for two years. Rep. Kowalski said ratings were "the true villain" in the tv quiz scandal, with the industry seeking "to achieve ever higher ratings with no regard to morality or conscience."

Misleading Cigarette Claims • Rep. John Blatnik (D-Minn.) said the "fraud perpetrated by certain quiz show contestants... is nothing compared to the fraud being perpetrated by the advertisers of many tv programs... in the promotion... of filter cigarettes."

He urged that hearings be scheduled on his bill, HR 8259, outlawing misleading cigarette advertising.

A bill designed to raise tv from "the lowest common denominator of public taste" is being drafted by Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.). He said his bill will require specified amounts of public service time; establish a system of competitive bidding for station licenses; use funds derived from such bidding to support educational and cultural tv and radio stations, and create an advisory panel on education and culture to aid the FCC.

Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn.), speaking in New York, proposed that networks be given complete control over programming, with sponsors forced to maintain a hand-off policy. He also took a swipe at ratings, calling for an end of "tv's worship at the false altar of ratings."

The marketing mix—which advocates radio and tv use along with other media—took over at the annual eastern conference of the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies held in New York last week. Window dressing was supplied by lively production samples offered by skilled artists in the radio-tv field during a production session appropriately held at the Museum of Modern Art.

For the less aesthetic agency executive, sessions on such ponderous problems as agency profits (a closed meeting held Nov. 5), account management, research and media planning were staged in the sedate Biltmore Hotel.

Tv—and to a lesser extent radio—cropped up in nearly every meeting. While speakers or panel members were cautious to consider the medium in perspective, tv could hardly be ignored. And in certain instances, it appeared that some agency executives intentionally tried to underplay the medium.

Media Panel • A panel offered four separate and independent media plans designed to solve this hypothetical problem: How to build greater brand familiarity for a frozen food specialty product and to pre-empt the national market before major competition develops from a product in the western part of the country? Two of the plans were based on a budget of $750,000 and two on a budget of $2 million.

Three panelists chose magazines (mainly women's service publications) as the dominant advertising medium for their plans, and one singled out daytime network tv for preference? Television and radio, however, were included in some of the recommendations for secondary impact. The media objectives of the various plans were strikingly similar: reaching a quality audience; presenting the product in an appetizing fashion; reaching urban markets that contain homes with children, and attaining geographic flexibility.

Michael J. Donovan, associate media director, BBDO, elected to place the entire budget of $750,000 into color advertising in magazines, Reader's Digest, Ladies Home Journal, Better Homes & Gardens, Life, Everywoman's Family Circle and Sunset. Mr. Donovan said that this list would keynote quality; would reach housewives throughout the country through messages in mass-circulation general magazines and women's service publications, and would have regional emphasis through the use of Sunset and the western edition of Everywoman's Family Circle.

Bernard Kanner, associate media director, Benton & Bowles, allocated the major share of the $750,000—$577,640 to be exact—to Women's magazines (color ads). He recommended the balance be placed into spot radio on the West Coast to bolster the primary effort and give added support in an area in which a competitive situation exists. The choice of radio by Mr. Kanner was based on its low cost-per-thousand and its flexibility in choice of markets and days of week and time of day to schedule commercials.

National women's magazines (using color advertising) were selected by Herbert Zeltner, vice president and assistant media director of Lennen & Newell, to receive $1,204,000 of a total budget of $2 million. He claimed the reason he chose the women's magazines for the primary campaign is that "the selectivity of audience is of primary importance and these magazines select our best customers." For secondary impact, he chose spot tv in the top 20 markets in the country and earmarked $605,000 for this support. Mr. Zeltner earmarked $41,000 for a campaign in grocery trade publications and charged $150,000 off to the production budget and a reserve for rate increases.

Warren A. Bahr, media director, Young & Rubicam, noted that in addition to a $2 million advertising budget, the advertiser allotted $800,000 for merchandising and promotional activities. He indicated he would use part of the latter budget, when necessary, to finance media and, in total, he spent $2.6 million. His plan recommended $1 million for a 39-week daytime tv network campaign to reach housewives with high frequency and to demonstrate the product effectively. The remainder was split among general magazines, newspapers and Sunday supplements.

Account Management • Close communication or liaison of client with agency is important in today's advertising—that was the consensus of a provocative—and apparently unrehearsed—panel dealing with account management.

Television was mentioned only indirectly but in an extremely interesting way. Faced with two different "situations" of an agency being forced to look into television despite the hypothetical agency's knowledge and recommendations that other media be used (one case proposed spot, the other network), the panel members agreed that agency had to document its "story" all over again.

The agency has no recourse but to show the client why tv, as in the case of the advertiser who wanted spot, was not the preferred medium for the client. Or, as in the matter of an agency who plumped for a "spectacular with Lily Rogers," two approaches could be taken: (1) Either unseel him by "carefully documenting" the objectives of the client's campaign and what he can expect along with the pros and cons, or (2) Be prepared to offer alternatives, perhaps some other form of tv.

Represented in this panel were advertisers Donald Cady, vice president and general manager of Nestle's Chocolate marketing division, and Ralston H. Coffin, vice president of advertising and sales promotion at RCA. Account executives were John H. Hatheway, Young & Rubicam, and William A. Taylor, Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample. The other "team" on the panel was agency "brass" as represented by James B. Briggs, executive vice president, Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, and John P.

Beresford, vice president and management service director, McCann-Erickson.

Taped dramatizations were used at this meeting to set the mood and theme for each discussion, the panel commenting extemporaneously. The novel method of presentation sparked questions and comments from the audience.

Research • Bud Sherak, vice president of Kenyon & Eckhardt, presented at a research panel, consisting of Arthur E. Tatham, board chairman of Tatham-Laird; Eric Marder, vice president and supervisor of market research at K&E, and Lyndon Brown, senior vice president, Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample. They probed the question of how the research contribution in an agency can be improved.

Mr. Tatham suggested a clear definition of purpose and a research program designed to solve practical problems rather than muddling through or covering up situations; Mr. Marder saw a new science of research emerging that would be analytical in its approach and demanding better trained people while costing more—but justified by its being able to “deliver” to the agency, and Dr. Brown saw research reaching its full potential as a backstop to executive planning, while being integrated in both product and agency planning.

The theatre of New York’s Museum of Modern Art resounded with uncanny Madison Avenue murmurs, as some 300 AAAA delegates met there for an all-day creative meeting dedicated to “getting through to people.” Other media may have been represented at times at the lectern, but in practice the house became a broadcast commercial showcase. Loudspeaker and screen got a workout as speakers illustrated points with samples of their work.

Leadoff speaker on the all-day program was John R. Tinker Jr., senior vice president in charge of creative services, McCann-Erickson, who asked creative people to stick to the arts and stay away from the businessman’s province. He stressed this point:

“I honestly believe that more fine artists and writers have weakened their genius by diluting it with over-indulgence in management ambitions than by liquor or sex; and that, by God, is a crime.”

Brainstorm Ban • Mr. Tinker and other speakers disparaged the group approach to creativity. In the end, the McCann-Erickson vice president said, “The great ads like the great paintings, novels, plays and songs will come from talented individuals.”

First speaker to switch on turntable and projector was the founder of Stan Freberg Ltd. (“Ars gratia pecuniae” is its motto), who played sample spots, both fanciful and actual, to illustrate what he called the “commercial barrier to consumer response.” Characteristics are raucous noise, ineptly handled music and amateurish humor. Mr. Freberg also played examples of successful radio and TV copy he developed with Cunningham & Walsh for Butternut Coffee and Contadina tomato paste.

The best way to crash the “commercial barrier,” Mr. Freberg feels, is to be musically memorable, unorthodox and humorous—all three if possible. He went on to give negative examples, playing radio commercials for Kiwi shoe polish, Royal Crown Cola, Toyopet automobile and Signal gasoline. He offered these as examples of “the dullness factor” and mishandled humor.

Tv Workshop • The afternoon was strictly a TV production session. Speakers, representing various production sidelines, showed samples and earnestly attempted to sell each other with one notable exception. The angry young man of the business, David Susskind, used his time on stage to attack networks and the admen he was addressing.

Raymond Lind, Benton & Bowles’ vice president in charge of TV commercial production, introduced Mr. Susskind earlier than he had been scheduled to appear on a card of six speakers. The vice president-executive producer of Talent Associates, pressed by another engagement, took the microphone for a quick attack and an account of how he

Advertising image combined with election returns

Ray Barron Inc., Boston advertising agency performed a turn-about and turned sponsor for the election coverage over WBZ-TV Boston in the 11:15 to 11:30 p.m. time slot Nov. 3. According to John V. Chervokas, copy director, the agency sponsored the program because “it hoped to dispel some of the common misconceptions so many people have about the ad business.”

The commercials used by the Barron agency emphasized similarities between voting and the freedom of choice exercised by the consumer in selecting advertised products.

To highlight the freedom of choice motif, film clips of Adolf Hitler making a speech were shown on the opening commercial. Announcer Frank Knight’s voice was heard over the closeup of the dictator, saying: “This is advertising...advertising nearly responsible for the downfall of civilization...Here there was no voting, no choice...you bought his product...or else!”

Mr. Knight went on to point out that advertising is the “very essence of democracy...every time you hear or see a commercial, read an ad, pass a billboard, you are witnessing the powerful expression of our freedom...You vote every time you buy, what companies shall succeed, what companies fall behind.”

Officials of the four-year-old agency, founded by former band leader Ray Barron and Parker V. Kirk, felt that the show was “extremely valuable” from the public relations standpoint.

While there have been scattered instances in which advertising agencies have bought broadcast time, the sponsorship of election returns is an unusual occurrence.

AD COUNCIL GETS FILM HELP

Public service spots on tv film shows, too

In the five years since the formation of the Advertising Council’s Hollywood radio and television committee the number of filmed tv programs using Council material has doubled each year, from 164 in 1955 to 755 last year. This information was contained in a report from E. W. Ebel, General Foods vice president for advertising and national radio-tv chairman of the Council, at a Council board meeting in Los Angeles.

Mr. Ebel praised the work of the Hollywood committee, (chairmaned for the past three years by Walter Bunker, vice president of Young & Rubicam and radio-tv director for the agency in Hollywood) in getting the same sort of cooperation from the tv film producers that the Council has previously had from the producers of live tv shows. Last year, he noted, Council public service messages, live and film combined, reached a total circulation of 16 billion tv home impressions on network tv programs alone.

Short Spot Trend • But there is still work for the Hollywood committee to do, Mr. Ebel stated. For example, he said: “We are disturbed about a trend to use our 10-second campaign film spots in the half-hour film shows, instead of the 20-second films that used to be the custom.”

“How,” he asked, “can we get filmed shows back to the pattern of carrying our 20-second films and change the habit of dubbing in 10-second messages that are interesting but rather quick?”

Mr. Ebel had other questions:

“Can we get more of our messages delivered by program stars, even those on film? Can more of the marshals and the detectives be persuaded to close their shows with personal appeals to vote or to drive carefully? Can such closings be done in advance on film?”

Mr. Ebel continued:

“Can Hollywood-originated shows join in having more nationally-known leaders appear as ‘guest stars’ on their shows? ‘Guest stars’ in our book include such distinguished people as Dr. Jonas Salk, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, General Sarnoff, who is president of The American Heritage Foundation, Gov. Pyle of the Safety Council, the Secretary of the Treasury, university presidents, the chairman of the United Funds, the Surgeon General and others. In other words, would appearances of such national figures who lead these campaigns enhance the public reputation of television, of sponsors and stars through association? We think so.

“Would our campaign films be improved if the volunteer agencies produced more of them on the West Coast?” Mr. Ebel asked.

Allocation Plan Proposal • “Should we adopt a proposal that has been made to the effect that specified shows in any film series (say every fifth show) should be cut a designated number of seconds short and that these specific shows should be identified for permanent public service allocation purposes for the tv life of that series, and so marked on the film leader?”

“Finally, are we giving our best efforts, our best time, our best talents to these vital national problems?”

Following the showing of a reel of current Council film spots, Mr. Ebel expressed the Council’s appreciation to the Screen Actors Guild and its president, Kenneth Thomson, “for the generous waivers and other forms of cooperation.”

Chief business of the board in its first meeting in Los Angeles was to approve an anti-inflation and growth campaign and authorize an increase of $20,000 in the current budget to get the campaign started.

Designed to drive home the point that our national growth does not depend on “dollar-eating” inflation, the new campaign will be based on conclusions reached by 64 representatives of Radio Advertising Bureau Inc., New York, last week told how eight of the nation’s instant coffee advertisers are using radio as an “economical and powerful sales stimulant.” The findings in RAB’s latest radio-activity report to member stations revealed that instant coffee advertisers use radio to accomplish such tasks as (1) to introduce a new brand; (2) to advertise price promotions; (3) to promote any improvement in the brand, and (4) to pitch iced coffee in summer, hot coffee in winter.

The Chicago-based marketer of Manor House Instant told RAB: “We couldn’t compete with the bigger companies in tv. It was much too expensive for us. But by switching to radio we became advertising giants ourselves because we could afford to mount bigger campaigns in an economical medium.”

Arons charges media research goes unused
Media researchers are working at a lonely and often thankless job.

An example of research that has gone almost unheeded was offered at an American Marketing Assn. discussion group in New York by Dr. Leon Arons, research vice president of Television Bureau of Advertising. TVB over the years has done a series of studies tying media data to market information on specific product groups such as gasoline, appliances, automobiles and some package items. Continuing information based on the Nielsen national tv audience panel was offered advertisers and agencies.

"How many advertisers," Dr. Arons asked, "do you suppose took advantage of this service? Hardly a handful." He concluded that "this is one more, among other indications, that all too frequently the media user himself doesn't realize too clearly what he needs to know to get done the job of informing and persuading." Dr. Arons' print counterpart on the Oct. 29 program presenting "The Case for Media-Sponsored Research" was Morton M. Lenrow, research director of American Weekly, who agreed that "media look to advertisers and their agencies for guidance in the kind of research that is wanted." It is a paradox, he said, that many millions should be spent for product research and advertising and so little for research to evaluate the efficiency of media used for sales messages.

Dr. Arons touched on the need for data to make inter-media comparisons. The Advertising Research Foundation committee assigned to the problem made a good start, but now, he said, "I have the impression ... [it] has softened in its revolutionary zeal. I hope I'm mistaken. In the meantime, many media users will continue to utilize current indirect and essentially non-comparable media information for making media decisions, after going through the appropriate incantations."

MORE ADVERTISING MONEY IN '60
Increase of 10% in budgets indicated by ANA survey

The average advertising budget will be 10% higher in 1960.

That's the word for members of the Assn. of National Advertisers, which includes almost all of the top 100 advertisers along with relatively modest spenders.

An ANA survey of its members, being released today (Monday) at the start of ANA's annual meeting (also see below), brought replies from 290 members representing 33 industry classifications, and spending collectively more than $1 billion a year for advertising.

Highlights:

• Among 266 companies reporting 1960 plans, 80% said they would spend more than in 1958; 12% said they would spend the same, 8% said they would spend less.

• Of those answering this question, 61.6% said their advertising budgets this year were higher than last; 22.8% said 1959 spending was at the same level as 1958 and 15.6% said they were spending less now than last year.

• Seven of the 33 industry categories represented in the survey "show a very strong upward trend in advertising expenditures": ale, beer and wine; confections and soft drinks, cosmetics and toiletries, drugs, electronics, metal fabrication and public utilities.

• Seventeen other classifications show an upward trend "among the majority of companies in the group" and nine categories "show variations with no consistent trend for either 1959 or 1960."

• A total of 70 advertisers said their 1959 budgets exceed $5 million and 74% of these said this year's allotment was higher than last year's. In the $1-$5 million group there were 119 companies, with 63% of these saying they increased budgets this year. In the under-$1 million group there were 88, with 52% reporting increased spending in 1959.

• In the $1-$5 million category 71% expect next year's budgets to be higher than 1959's. In the other categories 68% of the companies look for bigger budgets next year.

ANA president Paul West, releasing the results, said they "continue to bear out the increasing importance of advertising in members' marketing operations and the reliance placed on advertising as a major tool of management."

Of 170 companies reporting increased spending in 1959, the report continued, 165 gave estimates for 1960. Of these, 127 (77%) will increase spending again; 28 (17%) will continue at the 1959 rate and 10 (6%) will cut below the 1959 rate.

Of 63 companies reporting appropriations this year unchanged from last, 27 (47%) plan to increase in 1960; 28 (48%) again foresee no change and 3 (5%) will cut back.

Of 43 companies reporting lower budgets this year, 32 (74%) expect to increase in 1960; 6 (14%) see no change and 5 (12%) expect another cutback.

ANA: HAS SCANDAL HURT TV?

What the quiz scandal has done to the status of television programming and of advertising will be explored today (Monday) in the radio-tv workshop of the annual meeting of the Assn. of National Advertisers.

Officials said this look at the probe's effects was expected to highlight the workshop, one of three running simultaneously as ANA's three-day meeting gets under way at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va.

John Crosby, New York Herald-Tribune columnist, Rod Erickson of Warner Bros., Alfred Hollender of Grey Adv. and Don Durgin of NBC-TV are slated to participate in the appraisal. Howard Eaton of Lever Bros. is moderator of the workshop, to cover the general subject of "Television and Radio Advertising Problems."

The workshop session, to be held this afternoon, will be closed. So will the two others: One on "How to Shape Your Advertising Department and Agency Organization to Meet Your Needs" and one on "Merchandising Your Advertising to the Sales Force and Trade."

Some 600 ANA members and staff executives are expected to attend the meeting, which continues through Wednesday morning.

The opening session this morning will hear William Hesse, executive vice president of Benton & Bowles, on "A New Way to Measure Advertising Effectiveness." At the same session a panel will TPI uses the technique of personal coincidental interviews conducted where tv is watched.

Awards given by Chicago copywriters

Jack Baxter, president of Creative House Agency and former creative director of Earle Ludgin & Co., was recipient of the Chicago Copywriters Club's top award at its third annual Spotlight Dinner Tuesday (Nov. 3).

Award for the best written, locally-produced tv commercial of the year went to Steven Lehner, of MacFarland, Aveyard & Co., for his work on Formfit Co.'s Sleek foundation garments.

Mr. Baxter, whose agency handles over 20 accounts, was honored as "copywriter of the year" for a print ad on behalf of Carson, Pirie Scott, local department store. He also won one of CCC's "Golden 30" awards which drew 120 entries and produced four other winners. Mr. Baxter founded the club in 1957 and served as president for two years, winning three consecutive "30" awards. These honors are awarded on the basis of five samples with an aggregate of 30 or more points.

Golden 30 winners are:

- Charles Blakemore and Rudy Perez, Lee Burnett Co.; Dean Caron and John Jakes, Abbott Labs.; Thomas Cadden, Tatham-Laird; Winifred Snyder, North Advertising; Ted Barnett and John Rand, Foote, Cone & Belbeling; winner. Ken Snyder, Paul Young, Darle Lel, Donald Dickens, Jack Trindl, John Cahin, all Needham, Louis & Brophy. Blue ribbon awards were made to entrants whose individual work scored five points or more, but whose aggregate points did not total 30 or more.

Inc., N.Y., will sponsor "Thanksgiving Parade Jubilee," 90-minute holiday program produced by CBS News for showing on CBS-TV Nov. 26 (Thurs., 10-12 a.m. EST). Starring Captain Kangaroo as host, special will feature Macy's Parade from New York, Gimbel's Parade in Philadelphia and the J.L. Hudson's procession in Detroit. Additional feature will be visit to Bamberger's Universal Christmas City in Newark.

Musical salute • John Oster Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, in behalf of its electrical kitchen appliances, will sponsor ABC-TV's The Golden Circle, an hour-long musical special saluting a quarter century of song on Nov. 25 (10-11 p.m. EST). The programs stars Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence as co-hosts and guest stars Nat King Cole, the Andrews Sisters, Frankie Avalon, the Mills Brothers and Rudy Vallee. Agency: The Brady Co., Appleton, Wis.

One-time rate • Lanvin Parfums Inc. has selected NBC-TV's The Price Is Right for its first network tv purchase. Through North Adv., Chicago, the maker of Arpege scent has ordered the one-hour auction game for Nov. 9, 8:30-9 p.m. EST. Lanvin is a familiar network prize donor, last year spent more than $500,000 in tv spot. The one-shot network purchase was described by the sponsor as "only the first step" in a perfume educational campaign in which Lanvin hopes to make more use of network tv.

Ups budget • Acousticon International Div. of Dictograph Products Inc., Jamaica, N.Y., shifted its account from Anderson & Cairns Inc., N.Y., through which it invested more than $900,000 in national and local advertising in 1959, to the Wexton Co., N.Y. Acousticon's budget for nationwide campaign in 1960 was estimated at $1.5 million. Thirteen-week spot radio drive will start in March or April, it's reported, using network spots in some 50 markets and local tie-ins by Acousticon distributors. Also starting in spring will be spot tv campaign using ad agencies to leading network news programs. Heavy print ad campaign is also planned. In line with its enlarged advertising program Acousticon is broadening its distribution operations.

The youthful Broadcasters Promotion Assn. displayed its vigor and enthusiasm in Philadelphia last week during three days of round table and panel sessions on routine work-a-day promotion and merchandising problems. BPA signed 102 new members at the meeting, swelling its ranks from 200 to a total 302.

Nearly all members were there. Full registrations totaled 294 while partial registrations (single sessions) raised the total participation well over the 300 mark.

The promotion handicaps and the challenge to television evoked by the disclosures of the tv quiz scandal in Washington held the attention of the BPA delegates at several major sessions during the Nov. 2-4 convention at the Warwick Hotel. But for the most part, panels and round tables were more concerned with basic business—problems—such as how to obtain assured end-of-the-aisle displays in local supermarkets; are jumbo cards just sired ends, or problems more part, panels and round tables were more concerned with basic business—problems—such as how to obtain assured end-of-the-aisle displays in local supermarkets; are jumbo cards just sired ends, or problems more.

Among the major highlights, the BPA meeting heard:

- Louis Hausman, director, Television Information Office, who predicted the long-range future for tv is bright. But he was disturbed how the tv quiz scandal had disclosed a major misunderstanding in many important places about tv and its decision-making dilemmas. He called for admission of mistakes, correction, telling all the publics and active defense of "our contributions."
- Proposal for wide promotion of network and station public affairs and public service programs during prime evening time, using the talents of top personalities, to help put tv's image back in focus. It was offered by C. Wrede Petersmeyer, president, Corinthian Broadcasting Corp.
- Observation that broadcasters have a "moral obligation" to provide evening exposure for public service programming "on some sort of a continuing basis." It was made by Frank Shakespeare, general manager, WCBS-TV New York.

Godt Elected • Gene Godt, sales promotion and advertising director, KYW-TV Cleveland, was elected president of BPA for 1960 (see story page 97). He succeeds Charles A. Wilson, WGN-AM-TV Chicago.

Well-attended features of the convention were the revolving round table discussions held the second day. Five major topics were explored, one topic assigned to each round table. Five different 50-minute sessions were held on that topic at each round table, three during the morning and two in the afternoon, enabling delegates to "revolve" from table to table during the day and hear all discussions.

Louis Hausman, director, Television Information Office, acknowledged BPA's convention came in the "midst of an ordeal such as broadcasting has never known." But he was not mainly concerned with the tv quiz scandal. "We can solve the problems raised by the recent disclosures," he assured.

"What disturbs me more," he said, "is how vividly it has revealed misunderstanding about television in many important places; how fully it has exposed the simple lack of knowledge that makes some people willing to believe the worst about our medium.

"Essentially, I am referring to something more than the spirit of high glee with which various individuals have been anticipating our funeral. I am referring to the suggestion put forward by certain persons to the effect that the recent disclosures involving a handful of shows in a single narrow area of programming are somehow typical of the ethical conduct of the whole television industry. It is the suggestion, in effect, that we are a clutch of scoundrels, and, after all, who could expect any other behavior from such a medium?"

The suggestion is "outrageous and untrue," Mr. Hausman asserted. "All thoughtful people will reject it out of hand."

Those who think tv is profit-mad and without responsibility should consider the medium's public service contributions, the TIO chief said. He cited how the networks cancelled commercial shows and spent millions of dollars to file Premiere Khrushchev's U.S. visit and how the entire industry devoted $241 million-worth of time last year to such public causes as Red Cross, better schools and campaigns against disease. The latter figure is equal to 20% of the industry's entire revenue, he said.

How do those who charge us with irresponsibility, and say we cannot regulate ourselves—how do they account for the fact that broadcasting is the only advertising medium that voluntarily deprives itself of enormous revenues by refusing to take liquor advertising as the 'sales manager'? Mr. Hausman observed. Television by its "unique intimate impact within the home, breeds strong opinions," he said. "And since it plays to the largest audience in history, making it plainly impossible to please everybody all the time, some of those opinions are bound to be fiercely negative."

"I am persuaded that such negative opinions are merely a hard-to-please and generally uninformed minority—but it is an articulate minority with unusual opportunities to make itself heard."

The extent and depth of the American public's interest in TV "represents a fine target for public relations for everyone," he said. "The intense interest—the talk it generates and the space it fills in the press—may produce hard and distorted accusations, but it is testimony to the vitality and strength of the medium."

Information Cornerstones • His four cornerstones for building TIO's informational program (they apply to radio, too, he said): "Admit when things are wrong. Correct them. Inform all the publics. Actively defend our contributions."

Everyone makes mistakes, Mr. Hausman observed, and "to pretend otherwise is to do ourselves a disservice and to lose the confidence of our friends." Although he felt the quiz irregularities are symptomatic of a general moral letdown in society at large (ranging from traffic ticket fixes to outright bribery and not confined to any one group or industry), he did not feel "sagging standards can excuse or mitigate our own lapses."

Any medium that enters millions of homes "has a special obligation to stay above reproach," he said.

In informing the various publics about TV's decision-making dilemmas, Mr. Hausman suggested it is important to explain the repetition of "damned-if-you-do and damned-if-you-don't" situations. The latter, he said, is the argument that the networks ought to exercise greater control over the programs they transmit. But "how many who say it are aware that the networks are also on the griddle with the FCC and the Justice Dept. because they allegedly have too much control over programming and don't get enough op-

Sales promotion manager's 100 duties

If anyone feels the life of a sales promotion manager is a snap, Jack L. Williams, WBZ Boston, experienced in running a round table session on the subject, stands ready to shatter the illusion. A firm believer that the sales promotion manager should create ideas and entire campaigns, not merely execute them after someone else did the planning ("don't be a patsy for the sales manager"), Mr. Williams sent a questionnaire to 100 sales promotion managers and asked them what they do and how much. He got back 69.

Here's the 100 things sales promotion managers do, plus the percent they say they do, showing just how many sales promotion managers perform each individual function:

(1) Gather material for and produce fact sheets on programs, 89.9%; (2) Gather material for and produce fact sheets on market, 88.4%; (3) Gather material for and produce fact sheets on sales promotion, policies, other station information, 88.8%; (4) Maintain station files, 52.2%; (5) Maintain files on station and market data, 87.0%; (6) Prepare basic salesmen's handbook, 43.5%; (7) Order salesmen's name cards, 43.5%; (8) Attend in-station sales meetings, 73.8%; (9) Gather success stories from clients, 47.8%; (10) Write sales presentations for potential clients, 52.2%.

(11) Plan meetings with client-agency groups, 30.4%; (12) Develop sales-promotional film presentations, 65.2%; (13) Develop sales-promotional conference presentations, 72.5%; (14) Develop sales-promotional slide presentations, 60.6%; (15) Develop sales-promotional audio tape presentations, 43.5%; (16) Develop sales-promotional video tape presentations, 42.0%; (17) Write activity report (promotional) for sponsor, 79.7%; (18) Make calls on clients with salesmen, 58.0%; (19) Make calls on clients without salesmen, 58.0%; (20) Develop promotional idea for sale to potential client, 63.8%; (21) Conduct presentations at client sales meetings, 30.4%; (22) Plan and coordinate station parties for agencies-clients, 62.3%; (23) Handle exhibits at trade shows, conventions, 7.8%; (24) Conduct survey for client program, 34.8%; (25) Handle station audio-visual aid equipment, 26.1%; (26) Entertain local clients and prospects, 30.4%; (27) Negotiate trade deals for contests, gimmick mailings, 58.0%; (28) Negotiate trade deals for station equipment, 17.4%; (29) Prepare trade deal contracts and orders, 21.7%; (30) Schedule announcements for trade deal advertisers, 31.9%.

opportunities to independent packagers?"

Mr. Hausman wondered if inadvertently the industry has been creating the impression through program advertising and promotion that TV airs fewer public affairs shows than it does. "It's a question well worth examining," he said.

Another area worth exploring, he said, is the whole field of community service by broadcasters. He suggested community projects undertaken jointly by all the broadcasters in a city without competitive considerations.

Public service and prime time

C. Wrede Petersmeyer, president, Corinthian Broadcasting Corp., at the opening session Monday morning proposed that both networks and stations use their prime evening time and their top personalities to promote public affairs and public service programming. The objective: to make the public more aware of the whole range of TV's offering and to get the viewer at least to "sample" the non-entertainment shows available.

Mr. Petersmeyer appeared with Frank Shakespeare, general manager, WCBS-TV New York, on a panel on "Public Service and Your Station."

"We must create the programming that provides a full range of program service covering both majority and minority taste and we must make sure that our total audience knows of the full range of programming available to it," he said. This done, he continued, the problems of prestige and standing with the public and opinion-makers, the problem of the 'image' of television will largely vanish.

Cold Wind Rages • He said that while the winds of the quiz scandal raged, "all the fine words that tell of our medium's accomplishments, our phrases about public service and contributions to our communities—all is just a whisper in that wind."

He said it is vain to argue that the quiz shows, even in their heyday, represented less than one percent of total TV programming or that the dishonest quiz show represented only a small fraction of these, or that the real culprits are a mere handful out of the scores of thousands of men and women "dedicated to the sound ideals and service of this fabulous medium." But all are caught up in the "holocaust," he said, no matter how innocent. "We share the guilt whether we will or not."

Mr. Petersmeyer felt, however, that the long-range prospect is bright "simply because the American public has a sense of fair play and, I am convinced, a deep-rooted affection for our medium." After the initial shock, he said,

Get the picture • You can build a strong station image by planning and executing an all-out promotion campaign, according to WITH Baltimore Manager R. C. (Jake) Embry (l) and Arthur Schofield, assistant to the president, Peoples Broadcasting Co.

The average viewer will recognize "the elementary truth that not all broadcasters are villains. He will recognize the great service the medium has rendered and its many fine accomplishments."

Commercial Success First • Mr. Shakespeare said commercial success is a prerequisite to public service programming. "Only a financially sound station can do it," he pointed out. Effective public service cannot be done on a "shoestring," he said.

The WCBS-TV manager said stations should budget as much for production of the public service shows as for the purchase of a syndicated show of the same length. The five major weekly public service programs on WCBS-TV each have an average budget of $3,000 weekly.

Evening exposure for public service shows "on some sort of a continuing basis" constitutes broadcasters' moral obligation to their audiences today, he said.

Upgrading TV Awards • Mr. Shakespeare also observed that stature for awards in television is lacking and he urged promotion managers to consider the value of the awards more carefully before submitting their entries. He said too many awards today are mere self-serving promotion devices of those wishing "to ride the television train."

With video tape now generally available to permit local programs to be screened and judged, a new award structure akin to the newspaper industry's Pulitzer Prize or movie's Oscar Awards is needed, he said.

War of labels underway

Max Buck, manager of WRCA-TV New York, warned broadcasters to ask and listen to the guns of the marketing war now being fought in the retail merchandising field, especially foods. He said the nationally advertised brands in some situations are being outsold by the private label brands of the big supermarket chains.

"They can set advertising back 25 years if they win the war," he warned. Mr. Buck was participating in Monday's panel on "How to Manage the Merchandising Maelstrom."

Broadcasters must hire or learn to be retail specialists, he indicated. "Get on your feet and get into a supermarket this week," he said. "Get the 'whys' as well as the 'whats','" he urged.

Supermarket stores' "selling muscles" are becoming more powerful than ever, he said, and these "showmen of retailing" have cut distribution costs from 30¢ to 17¢ per dollar gross. "They've struck terror in the hearts of the department store moguls," he said.

Short Change • Sharing the panel with Mr. Buck, Emil Mogul, president of Mogul, Williams & Saylor, New York agency which is heavy in radio TV, said station managements are "shortchanging" their merchandising departments with "insufficient budgets, inept personnel and less than token cooperation." He urged broadcasters to study the huge merchandising departments of newspapers and magazines to learn how to give real sales impetus to the products advertised on the air.

Stations must learn to think in terms of the "total marketing concept," Mr. Mogul said, and to provide clients with a strong merchandising program which is in harmony with this concept.

His three-point platform for easing the merchandising problem: Stations should (1) set aside a merchandising budget based on a fixed percentage of total volume; (2) separate the merchandising department from the functions of the station promotion manager, and (3) give the merchandising manager

Trade up trade ads • Broadcasters should practice what they preach and do more advertising. Sponsors might follow the example, suggest R. David Kimble, Grey Adv., New York, and Henry J. Kaufman, head of his own Washington agency.
free rein to hire competent personnel with merchandising experience on the retail level.

Keeping the station image is a day-to-day problem, R. C. (Jake) Embry, manager, WITH Baltimore, told a Monday panel on "How to Create a Station Image." Also taking part was Arthur C. Schofield, assistant to the president, Peoples Broadcasting Co.

Mr. Embry said two station images are involved: one to listeners, the other to advertisers and agencies. The image must be sold "just like any product," he said.

The station must achieve complete agreement internally on the image it wishes to project through its program format and service, he said. Then it must be sold to all the staff and "100% cooperation" obtained.

Helpful to promoting the image is a station trademark or slogan, he said. Then stations must practice what they preach and advertise their product on a continuous 52-week basis in the trade papers, press papers and other media as well as on the air. "Consistency over 52 weeks of the year is paramount," Mr. Embry said.

Other factors bearing significantly on the station image, Mr. Embry said, include: quality of advertising, billing and accounting accuracy, rate structure ("nothing should be as invariable as your rates"), participation in community activities ("every member of the staff should be active in some local organization"), salesmen ("they should be well trained, make a good appearance, be honest, command respect") and atmosphere of civic interest ("all stations should editorialize").

What's in a Name? • Mr. Schofield didn’t like the word "image." To him it connoted something fabricated. He felt rather that it is the station "name" or reputation which is important.

"You seldom can change the original," he said, "you can only translate it." But promotion does enter into the function of translation, he asserted.

Mr. Schofield offered these "don’ts" to help do an effective promotion job: don’t rush ("don’t go to sleep either"); don’t always have to be first; don’t be afraid to make a mistake, and don’t think what you do has to be the biggest ("but what you do must be important."). His big "do": "Do make it personal. There is no such thing as mass. Everything important that ever happened to anyone is personal."

Spend enough to count

How to improve trade paper advertising was explored by a Monday afternoon panel comprising R. David Kimble, senior account executive for NBC at Grey Adv., New York, and Henry J. Kaufman, president, Henry J. Kaufman Assoc., Washington.

Mr. Kimble told stations they must either spend enough for trade advertising to do the job "or forget it." The reason for trade ads is to achieve "memorability," he explained. It is not impulse motivation as in the case of many consumer products, he said.

Mr. Kimble’s other key factors for trade advertising success: frequency; run big enough ads to tell the story: have a story to tell, and, "make good ads." He said a recent study shows program information is mostly desired in the ads by agency timebuyers with success stories and qualitative audience data following in preference.

Size and space are important in trade ads, Mr. Kimble said, while color, bleed and illustration or good use of type are enhancing factors. Ads should make a single point, he said, and in view of their agency audience they should have a certain amount of sophistication.

Set the Example • Mr. Kaufman found broadcasters fail to budget and plan their own advertising as efficiently and thoroughly as they expect sponsors to do on their radio and tv stations. Yet, he said, FCC’s reports on market billings disclose some "startling inconsistencies" which can only be attributed to the influence of trade advertising.

Most national radio-tv billing gravitate to the major metropolitan markets, he observed, while radio, in the smaller markets, is dominated by local billing. "Yet Cedar Rapids" national, non-network radio billing is twice as big as its local billing. This market, called Cedar Rapids which is only 171st in national ranking (population) has a national spot radio volume that approximates America’s 25th market and is almost double America’s 110th market.

There are "dozens of cases where small but aggressively promoted markets produce a volume of radio and tv billing unequalled by many larger markets," Mr. Kaufman said. "I wonder how many of you have ever studied similar operations—and evaluated the national trade promotion program responsible for focusing attention on markets and stations no better than yours. I wonder how many of you have fully utilized the knowledge and experience of your stations’ representatives, your agencies and your trade paper representatives for the purpose of determining the circumstances under which you might promote your station, your market or both, with some assurance of success."

Promote for top spots

There is a direct relation between a station’s national spot billing and its promotion excellence, H. Preston Peters, president, Peters, Griffin, Woodward Inc., station representatives, told a Wednesday morning panel on "How to Equip Your Reps Effective." He shared the panel with Adam J. Young, president, Adam Young Inc.

How good a job the station representative performs depends in large measure on the promotion placed in his hands by the station, Mr. Peters said. The "staples" to be fed to the representative include information and data on the market, programs, coverage and rates. But this must be consistently and periodically freshened. His examples of typical "extra" promotions included "the tallest tower east of the Atlantic ocean, a new studio larger than the Kremlin, the $3 million film package, or a safari to your market or area."

Mr. Young told of several case histories in which over-all promotion plans by the stations helped sell radio campaigns and win renewals. The promotion ideas, he said, help to induce advertisers and agencies to test radio in new ways and find new selling patterns.

Mr. Young urged station promotion managers to make sure their representative understands the scope and depth of services which the station can provide; to be sure when an order is obtained based upon a promotion plan that it is carried out in every detail, and to report in full detail what has been done when the promotion is over.

Suggest self promotion

At the revolving round table session Tuesday on audience promotion, led by Robert V. Freeland, KOTV (TV) Tulsa, participants felt stations should give more attention to self-promotion on their own facilities. Over-emphasis on newspaper advertising was critical, although use of all media was considered desirable in a balanced promotion.

BC-1T 1000 Watt AM Transmitter

Relax... lean back in your chair and imagine having a power plant of such unequalled reliability in your station... breaks all known records for performance... really a confidence builder just thinking about that day-in, day-out, day-in, day-out steady and unvarying dependability.

And... dependability comes only through the big design. A glance at the inner cabinet tells you the story. Big transformers that invite 24-hour schedules... big, husky GATES-built edgewise tank and Tee network coils... a scientific design for cooling.

You could say, "everything I want or need is wrapped up in this one GATES transmitter..."

Why don’t you write to our transmitter products manager, to give you all the details? The GATES BC-1T is so easy to own.

Mr. Freeland estimated tv stations spent $35 million last year on local promotions. KOTV spent between $35,000-40,000, he said.

Considerable difference of opinion was displayed about the role of contests in audience promotion, some feeling contests serve merely to hype ratings while others considered “fun” contests with reasonable prizes to be a desirable device to stimulate audience interest.

Similarly, considerable difference of opinion was expressed by participants during the merchandising workshop about how much merchandising—if any—a station should provide to advertisers. It should not become a rate cut in disguise, most agreed. This round table was under the leadership of Heber E. Dorton, WHBF-AM-TV Rock Island, Ill. The big gambit currently seems to be “jumbo card” mailings, but some felt this device overworked and was perhaps symptomatic of the “game”—agencies requesting merchandising merely to impress clients, stations agreeing to the requests in order to build up case files to impress the agency and stores consenting to merchandising displays (not always performed) just to get the trade deal of spots on the air.

Big Payoff • However, when carefully planned and honestly performed, the group learned, the merchandising programs can result in making regular cash sponsors out of supermarket chains.

Other round tables included publicity and exploitation, led by Montez Tjaden, KWTW (TV) Oklahoma City, and trade paper advertising, led by Kirt Harriss, KPRC Houston.

H-R to represent Corinthian stations

Developments in the station representation business were topped last week by appointment of H-R Representatives/H-R Television to represent the Corinthian stations.

Corinthian Broadcasting Corp. owns five tv and two radio stations, one of which—KXTV (TV) Sacramento—has been represented by H-R Television since the station's establishment (under other ownership) in 1955.

The combined stations represent substantial billings in national spot. The appointment last week is considered as a coup for H-R, which already is a major in station representation.

Three other station representatives are affected by the Corinthian move to H-R. They are Edward Petry & Co., which reportedly was approached about representation of the Corinthian group but which had several conflicts, the Bolling Co. and CBS-TV Spot Sales.

Effects • KHOU-TV Houston, is represented by CBS-TV Spot Sales. Its departure will mark the first in the Spot Sales list to dissociate since the FCC ruling that networks may not represent affiliates. But, it was pointed out, the decision was Corinthian's and was made well in advance of the FCC order.

In addition to KHOU-TV and KXTV, the following stations (and former reps) are in the Corinthian group: WISH-TV Indianapolis (Bolling), KOTV (TV) Tulsa, WISH Indianapolis and WANE-AM-TV Fort Wayne (Petry).

C. Wrede Petersmeyer, Corinthian's president, said the decision came after a long study, during which the management became convinced that the stations' “policies and facilities can best be sold to advertisers and agencies through a single selling force.”

Effective dates of the change will be announced later, he said.

The Corinthian group is part of a $50 million broadcasting-publishing organization (Whitney Communications Corp.) which is headed and principally owned by John Hay (Jock) Whitney, U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain.

Changing hands

ANNOUNCED • The following sales of station interests were announced last week, subject to FCC approval:

- KRAK Stockton, Calif. • Sold by L.E. Gene Chennault and Alan Torbet to Manning Slater and associates for $550,000. Mr. Slater is former commercial manager of WICC Bridgeport, Conn. Broker in sale was Edwin Tornberg & Co. KRAK is 5 kw on 1140 kc and holds construction permit for 50 kc.

- WCLG Morgantown, W.Va. • Sold by C. Leslie Golliday to William S. Freed for $67,000. Mr. Freed is former owner of WDOV Dover, Del. Mr. Golliday also owns WPEM Martinsburg, W.Va. Transaction was handled by Blackburn & Co. WCLG is 1 kw daytimer on 1300 kc.

New KFVS-TV tower

A television transmitting tower 2,000 feet above average terrain and 1,676 ft. above ground, is being constructed by KFVS-TV Cape Girardeau, Mo. Oscar C. Hirsch, owner and general manager of the channel 12, CBS affiliate, said that construction of the tower is being undertaken by RCA, as general contractor and Dresser-Ideco Co. as sub-contractor. In addition to the tower, KFVS is constructing a new transmitter building at the tower site and a new traveling wave antenna will be installed on top of the tower.

McLendon files suit, hits contract jumping

Gordon B. McLendon, multiple station owner, lashed out this week against other broadcasters who, he charged, are luring his air personalities away with "fabulous offers" that lead to breaches of contract.

Mr. McLendon also announced that he is filing suit for breach of contract against a disc jockey who left his organization to go to Oregon.

"We regret having to resort to the courts to enforce our personnel contracts," Mr. McLendon said, "but we are tired of being used as a training camp by overly anxious announcers and desperate operators who feel that they might save the day by simply hiring one of our disc jockeys." This procedure, Mr. McLendon asserted, works to the detriment of both his organization and the disc jockeys who jump their contracts; when they fail to produce high ratings, he said, they are fired. Mr. McLendon maintained station owners cannot "possibly hope to sustain" the financial lure promised.

Asks For Damages • The Oregon suit undertaken by the McLendon Corp. has been filed against Art Wand erlich, a disc jockey who is alleged to have jumped his contract to go with KXL Portland and against station owner, Lester M. Smith, and asks for damages in excess of $10,000.

Mr. McLendon said that "we have made the decision that we will go to court from now on to enforce all of our contracts in every instance of contract jumping. We are going to take out not only against the disc jockey but against the station for inducing a breach of contract, and we are going to sue for exemplary damages."

Mr. McLendon disclosed that another suit, against a d.j. who left his organization to join a competitive Texas station, will probably be filed. He has not yet named the parties involved.

The McLendon Corp. owns KLIF Dallas, KILT-AM-FM Houston, KTSA San Antonio, all Texas; KABL Oakland, Calif WAKY Louisville, Ky., and KEEL Shreveport, La.

'Let's avoid formulas,' Mo. broadcasters told

Radio broadcasters ought to concentrate more on selling their own product and not "cannibalize" each with selling tactics involving one or another type of formula radio, the Missouri Broadcasters Assn. was told at its fall meeting Oct. 30-31.

Robert H. Teter, vice president-radio, Peters, Griffin, Woodward, claimed that broadcasters have tended too often to "label" their radio formats and square off against each other, instead of selling the values of their individual stations. He urged them to keep total audiences in mind in selling agency buyers. The automobile radio audience, he added, is practically a market in itself.

Other speakers during the two-day meeting at the Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City included Bruce Barrington, general manager of WEW St. Louis; William T. McKibben, assistant to the vice president, WIL St. Louis, and Gov. James T. Blair of Missouri.

Missouri Broadcasters Assn. adopted a resolution calling for cooperation with the Big Eight Conference on matters involving fees for sports rights to college football broadcasts and suggesting reciprocal agreements among schools and broadcasters.

MBA members also agreed to revise by-laws calling for a permanent dues structure that would, among other things, permit the employment of a full-time legislative representative in Jefferson City, Mo. Also approved were plans for a news seminar in cooperation with the U. of Missouri's School of Journalism (see DATEBOOK) and succeeding seminars in sales and management fields. MBA hopes to evolve a "continuing educational program" for students in electronic media.

Gov. Blair lauded the group for its assistance in helping the state push its promotional (including tourist) activities. For election of new MBA officers, see FATES & FORTUNES, page 95.

AMST board to meet

Board of Directors of the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters will meet tomorrow, Nov. 10, in Washington to take up among other things recommendations of the AMST technical committee for an extensive program of technical studies to add data on the TV allocations situations. AMST's technical committee met in Washington last week on this subject. Those present: Henry Rhea, WFIL-TV Philadelphia, chairman; Joseph Epperson, WEWS (TV) Cincinnati; Philip B. Laeser, WTMJ-TV Milwaukee; Orrin W. Towner, WHAS-TV Louisville; Carl G. Nopper, WMAR-TV Baltimore; Howard Head and Stephen Kerschner, A. D. Ring & Co., AMST engineering consultants; Ernest W. Jennes, Covington & Burling AMST legal counsel. Lester W. Lindow, AMST executive director, and Arch Madsen, AMST staff, also attended.

Fort Worth, Denver next on NAB circuit

A swing to the West starts off the second round of NAB's fall regional conferences beginning tomorrow (Tuesday) with a two-day session at the Texas Hotel in Fort Worth. The week winds up Thursday-Friday with a regional session at the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver.

Besides speeches by NAB's executive staff and other circuit experts, presentations in Fort Worth will include an address to the general assembly at noon Wednesday by Dr. W. H. Irons, president of the Federal Reserve Bank, 11th District, Dallas.

Participating in a radio editorializing panel at the radio session Tuesday afternoon will be George D. Cowan, KGBG Galveston; Dave Morris, KNUZ Houston, and Allan Page, KGWA Enid, Okla. At Wednesday morning's radio session Murray Cox, WFAA Dallas, will make a National Assn. of TV & Radio Farm Directors presentation and George Armstrong, WHB Kansas City, Mo., will talk on "Programming for Sales."

Addressing the general assembly luncheon Friday at Denver will be Clarence Daane, Denver division advertising manager, Safeway Stores Inc.

Thursday afternoon's radio session on editorializing features J.D. Hill, KWHK Hutchinson, Kan.; Rex Howell, KREX Grand Junction, Colo.; Homer K. Peterson, KALL Salt Lake City, and William J. Strothman, KQTE Missoula, Mont. Chuck Muller, KOA Denver, will give the NATRFD talk at Friday's radio session and Robert J. McCauley, KBIG Los Angeles, will talk on "Programming for Sales." The tv session Friday morning will feature a discussion on community antenna matters.

Crosety to colorcast Redlegs' night games

WLWT (TV) Cincinnati plans to follow its color telecasts of day baseball games last summer (which it claims are the first in the country on a local and regional basis) with colorcasts of the Cincinnati Redlegs' night games next season. The contests will be shown under normal field lighting conditions, which the station feels will open the door to colorcasts of such traditionally nighttime events as basketball and hockey.

Coordinating the announcement of its innovation with the fifth anniversary of color tv, as well as National Color Television month (November), Crosety Broadcasting Co., owner of WLWT, has announced plans for 143 hours of local and network colorcasting this month.

In a brochure, just released to the trade, Crosley presents results of a survey in Cincinnati which shows that color programs rated twice as high in color television homes as the same programs in black-and-white homes. This pattern was consistent among all seven programs tested.

Before local color programming began there, about 6% of RCA color sets sold were color; today 20% are, the brochure also states.

Crosley tv stations are WLWT; WLWD (TV) Dayton, Ohio; WLWC (TV) Columbus, Ohio, and WLWA (TV) Atlanta.

WFIG-TV expands local color schedule

WFIG-TV Philadelphia starts telecasting weekly feature films in color Nov. 18.

World's Best Movies (Wed. 11:15 p.m.) will add about two hours to the station's color tv schedule. In October WFIG-TV began colorcasting the RCA TV newsreel and Bell Telephone's What's the Weather? twice each week night. WFIG-TV also colorcasts Starr Theatre and breakfast time shows on weekdays.

Among the World's Best movies: "Drums Along the Mohawk" with Claudette Colbert and Henry Fonda; "Centennial Summer" with Jeanne Crain and Cornel Wilde; "Inspector General" with Danny Kaye and Walter Slezak; "Dodge City" starring Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland, and "The Magic Box" with Robert Donat and Sir Laurence Olivier.

Medical network may start in fall of '60

NBC Radio hopes to have its new medical-service FM network (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 14) in operation by next fall. Authorities confirmed this objective last week, although they emphasized that it was tentative.

Called Medical Radio System, the new service is designed to deliver news about developments in the medical field direct to doctors' offices via multiplex FM. It will be offered to doctors at a fee of $120 a year, including equipment, and NBC hopes to start with 16 markets, expanded gradually to about 70. Except that the markets in which NBC owns stations presumably would be included, the market list was not disclosed. Stations would be paid to carry the service but authorities said the compensation formula had not been worked out.

Programming • MRS, whose development is headed by Henry T. Sjogren, would be programmed 12 hours a day, five days a week. There would be three quarter-hour "newscasts" a day summarizing latest news and information from medical journals and other sources. These would be repeated often enough so that doctors could be sure of not missing one. In between the programming would be music.

Mr. Tower stated, based on administrative remedies.

"This section," Mr. Tower said, "raises the possibility of a back-door criminal sanction for unfair labor practices."

Mr. Tower said that he considered the ban on coercive picketing and secondary boycotts as the most significant of the provisions of the new labor laws.

The Labor bills were passed by Congress last summer (Broadcasting, Sept. 14).

Meanwhile, NAB President Harold E. Fellows announced the membership of the 1959-60 Labor Relations Advisory Committee.

FIRST TEST OF NEW SEC. 315

Philadelphia mayoralty aspirant complains
WCAU-TV denied him equal time on news show

The first test of the newly revised equal time provisions of the Communications Act hit the FCC six days before Election Day, 1959—and the outcome could spell out the limits of the new law.

The test was originated by Joseph A. Schafer, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of Philadelphia. Mr. Schafer, running as an Independent write-in candidate in the general election, complained to the FCC on Oct. 29 that WCAU-TV Philadelphia had refused his request for equal time.

Mr. Schafer claimed that the CBS-owned station refused to put him on Eye on Philadelphia, an 11:30-11:55 a.m. Sunday show, although it had three other candidates on this segment on successive days. The program is a community affairs type of format featuring people in the news interviewed by the WCAU-TV news director. It began last April.

CBS, answering for the Philadelphia station, recounted its correspondence with Mr. Schafer, and explained that it considers Eye on Philadelphia a regularly-scheduled news broadcast and thus exempt from the provisions of Sec. 315 which apply to candidates. Leon R. Brooks, network attorney, stated that “It is our firm view that the appearance of the three candidates do not constitute ‘use’ of the broadcasting station within the meaning of Sec. 315 as amended…”

Mr. Brooks also said that Mr. Schafer had implied that his appearance on WCAU-TV was necessary to present his conflicting views on issues of public importance. He recounted that Mr. Schafer’s claim was considered by the station’s news director and that it was decided that Mr. Schafer’s views were not required.

Burden of Proof • The CBS statement also expressed the viewpoint that the burden of proof be placed on Mr. Schafer to establish his newsworthiness or the necessity of his appearance to present “significant conflicting views.”

When Congress revised Sec. 315 last September it exempted bona fide newscasts, news interviews, news documentaries and on-the-spot coverage of news events from the requirements of equal time for candidates (BROADCASTING, Sept. 7). There was added, however, a proviso that required broadcasters to “afford reasonable opportunity for the discussions of conflicting views on issues of public importance.”

The Sec. 315 revisions came about after the FCC’s now notorious Lar Daly decision was issued. This held that the appearance of a candidate, no matter how incidental his presence to a program, constituted use under Sec. 315.

On Nov. 2 the FCC wired Mr. Schafer that “absence of a specific factual allegation on concrete evidence that Eye on Philadelphia is not a bona fide news interview, Commission unable to determine at this time that you are entitled to an equal opportunity with the meaning of Sec. 315.” It also said: “Information presently before Commission not sufficient to permit determination whether or not WCAU-TV has afforded reasonable opportunity for discussion of conflicting views on issues of public importance.”

TOWER PAINT

Waiver for test asked by WHAS-AM-TV

A question of color decoration has been presented to the FCC—and the answer may involve human lives.

WHAS-AM-TV Louisville last week asked the FCC to waive the requirement that its antenna towers be painted orange and white with each color about 40 ft. in width. Under present FCC regulations, all broadcast towers must be so marked by Jan. 1, 1960.

The Louisville station stated that it was working with the Federal Aviation Agency in testing out different color schemes to determine which was best for high visibility to aircraft pilots. It has cooperated in these tests—which include various types of lighting and devices—for the last several years, the Louisville station said. It proposes to paint its tower black and white, it said, because it feels these colors painted in very wide bands, would present a more highly observed structure than the orange and white bands. The FAA has evidenced an interest in testing this theory, WHAS said, but cannot make a firm commitment until next year.

If WHAS is required to comply with the present regulations, the document stated, it might force WHAS to withdraw its offer to cooperate with the
New High-Gain Broadband FM ANTENNAS
Ideal for Multiplexing

The new BFA series of FM Transmitting Antennas is designed for maintaining the high-fidelity sound normally associated with FM. Its broadband characteristics make it ideal for multiplexing. Featuring simplified design, it consists of four tubular stainless steel radiating rings attached to a supporting frame. The shunt-fed antenna sections are interconnected by 3/4-inch Universal Transmission Line. Thus, any number of sections can be stacked as shown. Sectionalized construction, low weight, and mechanical simplicity make installation quick and easy.

Reduced "Q" for Broadbanding—Necessary broadband for multiplexing is accomplished by stacking the four rings of a single section to reduce the "Q". A "Q" value of approximately 30 is easily achieved. Higher gains are obtained by discreet spacing of the sections.

Low VSWR—The new antennas will meet a VSWR specification of 1.2/1.0 or better when antenna is top-mounted. If side-mounted, a VSWR of 1.5/1.0 is achieved. Built-in input transformer permits field trimming, to obtain a VSWR of 1.1/1.0 or better.

Excellent Circularity—A horizontal circularity on the order of ±1 db is normally obtained when the antenna is pole-mounted. When the antenna is side-mounted on a supporting tower, the circularity is normally better than ±3 db. In those cases where close-in coverage is desired, this antenna can be supplied with null fill.

Built-in De-icers—These new antennas are available with built-in de-icers which are installed at the factory. Under normal icing conditions the 250 watt heating unit should prove adequate, however, for severe icing conditions, the heater may be supplied with 220 volt AC to increase the heating capacity to 1000 watts for short periods of time. An optional item, Automatic Sleetmelter Control, MI-27369, is available, which will serve to operate the de-icers automatically under conditions necessitating their use.

Flexibility in Mounting—The antennas can be mounted in a variety of ways. Mounting hardware brackets and supports are supplied for both pole and side-mounting.
FAA. The cost of painting its 600-ft. radio tower in Eastwood, Ky., would be about $10,000, the station said; the tv tower adjacent to its studio in Louisville would cost even more, since there undoubtedly would be claims for color spotting of cars parked in an adjacent parking lot.

A number of broadcast stations have cooperated over the last few years with aviation interests in testing different types of painting and lighting to increase the visibility of radio and tv towers. A special working group has drawn up several suggestions, but none has been made official by the FAA or the FCC.

The FCC regulations (Sec. 17.23 and 17.43(a)) require that a broadcast tower be painted aviation orange and white in equal alternating bands, with each band one-seventh the height of the tower but in no case wider than 40 ft. or less than 1½ ft. They also provide that the top and bottom band of the tower be orange.

These rules were issued in 1953, and provided that all towers must be so painted by Jan. 1, 1960.

Prior to the 1953 regulation, towers were required to be painted in orange and white, with the white stripe one-half the width of the orange.

Initial decision would affirm KFDM-TV grant

An FCC hearing examiner has recommended that the 1954 grant of ch. 6 Beaumont, Tex. to Beaumont Broadcasting Co. (KFDM-TV) be affirmed. Hearing Examiner Annie Neal Huntting made the recommendation in a supplemental initial decision issued Oct. 30, which also proposed that the application of the Enterprise Co. (KRIG-AM-FM-Beaumont Enterprise) be denied.

The case involves the payment of $55,000 to KTRM Inc. by Beaumont Broadcasting for out-of-pocket expenses in connection with the ch. 6 proceedings.

The money was loaned to Beaumont Broadcasting by W. P. Hobby, owner of KPRC-AM-TV Houston-Houston Post. Mr. Hobby had held an option to acquire a minority interest in KTRM if it were successful in its application for ch. 6. He received an option for a minority interest in KFDM-TV in exchange for the loan. KTRM received the $55,000 when it withdrew from the ch. 6 hearing.

The supplemental initial decision came after a reopening of the record to determine the itemization of the $55,000. The record was reopened after issuance of a U.S. Court of Appeals order requiring an examination of the payment.

Examiner Huntting ruled against contentions of the Enterprise Co. that the payment should be disallowed and that the amount was more than was actually spent by KTRM. The examiner referred to the 1958 proposal by the FCC to prohibit "pay-offs," but said until this was made final she must abide by existing FCC policy which permits the payment of out-of-pocket expenses to applicants who withdraw.

Network rep report officially released

The FCC last week issued its long-awaited report which forbids networks to represent non-owned affiliates in the spot advertising field (BROADCASTING, Oct. 12).

The report, which had been approved early last month, has been under review by the FCC's general counsel since then.

As issued last week and approved by a majority of the Commission, with Chairman John C. Doerfer concurring and Comrs. Rosel H. Hyde, Robert T. Bartley and T.A.M. Craven absent, the document has not been changed in appreciable degree from the original draft.

In essence it held that networking and spot representation are competitive activities and that because network affiliation is so important in tv, a network could use its power of affiliation to force a station into signing up for spot representation.

The order gives CBS and NBC until Dec. 31, 1961, to divest themselves of their present spot lists. ABC has not been in the representation business since 1952. CBS-TV Spot Sales represents seven independent affiliates; NBC-TV six. It is estimated that the combined spot billings of these 13 stations amounts to $15 million annually.

Radio representation by networks was not forbidden. The order stated, because radio networks lack the power of persuasion held by tv networks.

Both CBS and NBC have refused to comment publicly on the FCC's order, pending its issuance. Last week CBS-TV iterated its stand that it would fight; NBC-TV said nothing.

Ruling seen this week on claim against MBS

A decision is expected to be handed down this week by U.S. Referee Asa Herzog on the Dominican Republic's claim to recover $750,000 from MBS. Referee Herzog reserved decision last Monday (Nov. 2) after a three-day trial and presentation of evidence in New York (BROADCASTING, Nov. 2, et seq.).

Legal confirmation of Mutual's re-organization plan, already verbally approved by filing creditors, is set for Nov. 17. The final obstacle to action on the plan by Referee Herzog is the Dominican claim.

Mutual reported also that since its financial reorganization is headed for completion, President Robert F. Hurleigh has accepted invitations to speak before five advertising and sales groups throughout the country within the next few months. Mutual also has scheduled regional meetings with its Pacific coast affiliates for Dec. 7 at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco and with midwest affiliates for Dec. 8 at the Palmer House in Chicago.

Two new v's granted, in Texas, W. Virginia

The FCC made two new tv grants last week:

In making its Beaumont decision the Commission reversed an examiner's recommendation that the vhf channel be given to the Brown company.

The FCC also made effective immediately an initial decision granting the application of WJPB-TV Inc. for ch. 5 Weston, W.Va. This was conditioned that program tests would not be authorized until WJPB-TV Inc. has divested itself of all interest in ch. 35 WJPB-TV Fairmont, W.Va. The Fairmont vhf went off the air in 1955. A competing application for Weston's ch. 5 by Telecasting Inc. was dismissed, since the principals of both applicants have agreed on a merger.

Calif. transaction questioned by FCC

The sale of a Los Angeles fm station and a permit for fm in San Francisco, involving almost $230,000 in the aggregate has caused the FCC to raise its eyebrows. The Commission has ordered a McFarland letter sent to the stations and the buyer which indicates the necessity of a hearing.

The owner of the Los Angeles operating station (KBQA[FM]) and the permit for San Francisco (KBCO[FM]) is Saul R. Levine. Both stations are being sold to International Good Music Inc.; KBQA for $185,000 plus $30,000 in obligations and the permit for KBCO for $14,700.

The FCC said it wants to make sure the high price for the Los Angeles station doesn't contain hidden sums for the San Francisco permit.
'Excessive' spots behind FCC inquiry

The question of possible "excessive" number of spot announcements is understood to be at the root of the FCC's inquiry involving the sale of KCOP (TV) Los Angeles to the NaFi Corp. (BROADCASTING, Aug. 17). Also raised is the alleged contradictory count on spots between the transfer application and information on file with the FCC.

The Commission, in addressing its letter to KCOP, asked that additional information be submitted in 20 days. The FCC's action was announced Oct. 22.

Also at stake is the renewal license of the ch. 13 independent.

KCOP is owned by Kenyon Brown, Harry L. (Bing) Crosby, George L. Coleman, Joseph A. Thomas and Alva G. Flanagan. Purchase by NaFi Corp. is through payment of 44,000 shares of NaFi stock (quoted last August at $18) plus assumption of obligations.

Mack-Whitewide case

Richard A. Mack, former FCC commissioner, and Thurman A. Whiteside, have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review a lower court ruling that they must undergo a second trial on charges they attempted to rig the award of Miami ch. 10 to National Airlines.

The first trial, in U.S. District Court in Washington, ended last June in a hung jury. The jury stood 11-1 for conviction. Both men asked for a direct verdict of acquittal. Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews refused. They then appealed to the Circuit Court, which upheld Judge Matthews. The petition to the Supreme Court is from that latter ruling.

Both men are scheduled to go on trial again in Washington Nov. 12 before District Judge Charles F. McLaughlin.

'Trafficking' charge leveled at WKNB sale

WHCT(TV) Hartford, Conn., has filed a protest against the FCC's approval last September of the $750,000 sale of NBC's WKNB-WNBC(TV) New Britain, Conn., to Connecticut Television Inc. (BROADCASTING, Sept. 28).

The ch. 18 Hartford station charged that Connecticut Television's immediate resale of WKNB to Beacon Broadcasting Co. implied trafficking in licenses.

It also claimed that there was a tie in between Connecticut Television and Springfield Television Inc. (WWLP[TV] Springfield-WRLP[TV] Greenfield, both Mass.) and that there was an overlap between WNBC and WWLP.

Both NBC and Connecticut TV Inc. denied the charges. They asked the FCC to dismiss the protest on the ground that WHCT had no standing and had failed to specify the charges with particularity. They denied there had been any trafficking or excessive profits, since not only did NBC know WKNB would be resold, but the information was in all papers filed at the FCC.

NBC revealed that it had been offered as high as $300,000 for the New Britain radio station. The am outlet was resold by Connecticut TV to Beacon Broadcasting Co. for $255,000. Both NBC and Connecticut TV countered the argument that there was a tie-in between Connecticut TV and Springfield TV by emphasizing that Springfield could not exercise its option (which it does not yet hold officially) without FCC permission.

WHCT charged, is due to Springfield's original one-third interest in Connecticut Television. Because of the overlap, WHCT said, Springfield dropped its third interest, but retained an option to recapture it. When the FCC approved the WKNB-WNBC sale, it stated that this option could not be exercised without FCC involvement.

approval. WHCT also claimed that there is an understanding between Connecticut Television and Springfield Television to jointly apply for a vhf station if such an outlet becomes available in the Connecticut River Valley. This indicates the closeness between them, WHCT said.

Connecticut Television is owned by Plains TV Corp., licensee of WICS(TV) Springfield, Ill., and parent company of WCHU (TV) Champaign, Ill. Plains is half owned by H.E. Balaban and half-owned by Transcontinental Properties Inc. The Balaban group has interests in tv stations in Rockford, Birmingham, Grand Rapids and radio interests in St. Louis, Dallas and Milwaukee. Transcontinental owns a Duluth tv station.

Fulton Lewis' appeal denied in libel case

A request by radio commentator Fulton Lewis Jr. to have a second trial in the libel suit against him by Pearl A. Wanamaker, former Washington state superintendent of schools, take place in Baltimore was turned down last week by federal district Judge Burnita S. Matthews in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Lewis' attorneys had asked for the change of trial on the grounds that excessive publicity in Washington precluded a fair and impartial jury. Earlier this year Mrs. Wanamaker won a $145,000 verdict against Mr. Lewis, MBS and WWDC Washington. Mrs. Wanamaker claimed Mr. Lewis libeled her in a 1956 radio broadcast. Judge George L. Hart Jr. granted a new trial on the ground that the verdict was excessive (BROADCASTING, May 11).

Mrs. Wanamaker had filed 17 suits throughout the United States as a result of the 1956 broadcast. She was awarded damages in two of these suits, one resulting in a jury verdict and the fourth resulting in a verdict for the defendants. In his broadcast Mr. Lewis stated that a brother of Mrs. Wanamaker had renounced his American citizenship and fled behind the Iron Curtain. Three days later he apologized publicly over the air for his "horrifying mistake."

Simplex order stayed

FCC on its own stayed the effectiveness of an order forbidding fm stations to continue functional music broadcasts on a simplex basis. In an announcement Oct. 25 the Commission said it would have to study the implications of a Supreme Court refusal last month to review a lower court ruling that the FCC's multiplex regulation was in error. Stations affected, all fm: KUTE Glendale, KDFC San Francisco, KMLA and KRKD, Los Angeles; WDSS Syracuse and WBFM New York, N.Y.; WLDM Detroit, Mich.; WWDC Washington, D.C.; WKJF Pittsburgh, Pa.; WCFM St. Louis, Mo.; WMT Charlotte, N.C.; WEAW Evanston, Ill.; WNAV Annapolis, Md. and WMMW Meriden, Conn.

'Private Secretary' has tax problems

Television's "private secretary" is fighting a tax rap. Ann Sothern, television actress and star of the Private Secretary series, has filed an appeal in the U.S. Tax Court against a government claim that she owes over $700,000 in back taxes for the three years 1953-1956.

The Internal Revenue Service claims that Miss Sothern's income from the tv series should be taxed as ordinary income. Miss Sothern claims that the 25% interest she had in the program should be taxed at the lower capital gain level. IRS also claims that Miss Sothern should have paid an income tax on the proceeds Vincent Productions received from the sale of the program in 1955 to Television Programs of America Inc. Vincent Productions is owned by Miss Sothern.

Also involved is Miss Sothern's deductions for operating a cattle farm with 500 head of breeding cows. She bought the herd four years ago for $50,000.

Hung jury dismissed in FCC perjury case

A federal jury, trying Vincent J. Marcello of New Orleans on the charge he lied to the FCC, failed to agree on a verdict last week and was discharged.

U.S. District Judge Charles F. McLoughlin ordered the jury dismissed after the foreman informed him that the jury was unable to agree. Mr. Marcello was charged with giving the FCC false information in 1957 when he applied for a two-way radio system for the Jefferson Music Co., a pinball and jukebox company in the New Orleans area. He was indicted by a grand jury in August. In his FCC application, Mr. Marcello claimed he was the sole owner of the company.

The government contended that Mr. Marcello's brother, Carlos, actually is a half owner and that Carlos is an alien. Aliens are not allowed to hold radio licenses. Carlos, an ex-convict, was ordered deported in 1953 but this order was held up during various legal proceedings. He was involved in testimony several months ago before the Senate Rackets Committee at which time charges were aired that Jefferson's radio permit was used for illegal gambling purposes.

Asst. U.S. Attorney James T. Dowd said that the government would ask for a new trial. Justice has asked the FCC to withhold any action on Mr. Marcello's license pending outcome of the criminal case.

Wants uhf drop-in • Usually requests for tv drop-ins refer to vhf channels, but last week the FCC received a drop-in request referring to a uhf channel. Blythe Telecasting Co., Blythe, Calif., asked the Commission to move ch. 25 from Brawley, Calif., to Blythe. The company, headed by James E. Peaden, said the if the uhf frequency is moved to Blythe, an application would be filed for it. Ch. 25 was previously allocated to Brawley, but ch. 16 was substituted there some time ago.

FCC expanding into third building • FCC, which is outgrowing its Post Office Bldg. (13th & E St., N.W.) space in Washington, has made arrangements to expand into a third building. Come December, all hearing examiners except Chief Hearing Examiner James B. Cunningham, will be moved to the Federal Division Bldg., 9th St. & Mt. Vernon Place, N.W. It is also planned to have two hearing rooms there. FCC has promised 11,000 sq. ft. by Government Services Administration in this six story building. The Field Engineering & Monitoring Bureau is already established at 718 Jackson Place, N.W. The Commission has funds to hire about 50 extra people, including two additional hearing examiners.

Educators want vhf in Corpus Christi

A drive to reserve a vhf channel, which the FCC proposed to allocate to Corpus Christi, Tex., for educational purposes was apparent at the commission, when comments were filed on a notice to assign ch. 3 to Corpus Christi. Favoring reservations was a series of communications beginning with Texas Gov. Price Daniels and including Bishop Adolph Marx, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic diocese of Corpus Christi, Ernest H. Poteet, president, Texas College of Arts & Industries; W. A. Miller, president of the U. of Corpus Christi, and the Southwestern Area Educational, TV Council.

Favoring the move of ch. 3 to Corpus Christi for commercial use was ABC. Opposing the move was ch. 6 KRIS-TV, Corpus Christi, which suggested that if ch. 3 is moved into the area, it be reserved for educational use. The FCC issued its proposed rule-making notice to move ch. 3 into Corpus Christi Sept. 10.

RADIO, ASCAP REACHING AGREEMENT

Reported terms would retain economy feature of stalled pact

Tentative oral agreement was unofficially reported reached last week on most major issues standing in the way of a new contract for the use of ASCAP music by radio stations (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Nov. 2).

Three lesser questions were said to remain unresolved. But both sides reportedly agreed to let these be decided by the U.S. District Court in New York, under whose auspices the negotiations were first resumed after private stalemate almost a year ago.

Legal counsel for the All-Industry Radio Music License Committee declined to discuss the reported agreement, and ASCAP counsel would not go into details beyond saying that it was "a good meeting" at which, except for some matters, to be left to the court, agreement seems to have been reached.

But it was learned that the tentative agreement modified ASCAP's earlier insistence that talent costs be counted as part of the revenues on which stations compute their payments to ASCAP.

The agreement, it was indicated, will not materially affect the approximately $800,000 saving—about 9% less than radio paid to ASCAP in 1957—which broadcasters contemplated under the "agreement" that was "reached" several months ago which later came un-stuck.

Scale By Volume • The new agreement on this score reportedly sets up a scale, based on each station's volume of business, and permits talent charges for announcers and deejays in excess of this scale to be deducted from the revenues on which ASCAP fees are based. Such deductions may not be made, however, unless the performer works exclusively on the air; for instance, payments to a general manager who also does on-air work may not be deducted.

The scale tentatively agreed upon varies according to a station's net receipts. A station in the up-to-$500,000 class would be allowed to deduct applicable talent charges exceeding $150 a week. With net receipts between $50,000 and $150,000, the figure is $77.5. Others: $150,000 to $300,000, $500 a week. $300,000 to $500,000, $675 a week. $500,000 to $750,000, $750 a week. $750,000 to $1 million, $875 a week. Over $1 million, $1,000 a week.

The talent-deduction formula was understood to be the major issue outstanding when the negotiators started last week's session.

Unsettled Points • Others, still unresolved and slated to be left to the court for decision, were reported to include (1) ASCAP's claim that newspaper-owned stations must include in their fee-base a "reasonable" amount for any announcements broadcast for the newspaper; (2) ASCAP's insistence that, in the court's discretion, charges of contract violation become a matter of court jurisdiction, which would mean going to New York to defend against any such charges; (3) a formula for applying the standard 15% advertising agency deduction in the case of revenues from participating announcements.

The new contract embodying all areas of agreement is being drafted by Emanuel Dannett, counsel to the all-industry committee, and Herman Finkelstein, ASCAP counsel. When completed and approved by those groups and by the court it will be submitted to stations and become effective, retroactive to last Jan. 1, when the old ASCAP contracts expired. In the meantime stations continue to use ASCAP music on the understanding that payments since Jan. 1 will be adjusted to conform to the new contract.

Robert T. Mason, WMRN Marion, Ohio, heads the all-industry committee.

AFM HITS FOREIGN TV MUSIC

Boycotts 20 tv series so far in reprisal

The American Federation of Musicians is echoing an old refrain: a boycott by musicians' locals throughout the country against sponsors and producers of tv films using foreign and domestic canned music to the exclusion of American instrumental musicians.

President Herman D. Kenin last week urged musicians to enlist central labor bodies, others, unions and music lovers generally in a nationwide demand upon sponsors to correct what he described as "paste pot-and-shears" substitution of foreign and domestic music for taped music for the services of American musicians.

"We can hope that Senate Resolution 126 in which Sen. Wayne Morse seeks a Congressional inquiry into what he vigorously asserts is a 'species of fraud being perpetrated upon the American public by many producers of filmed entertainment,' will bring eventual relief," Mr. Kenin said. "But, meanwhile, the musician must help himself by every legitimate means at his disposal."

In Hollywood, John Tranchitella, president of AFM's Hollywood Local 41, last week charged the boycott "has been forced upon us by the growing practice of dubbing in music made abroad at cut rates and then using it on so-called American-made television shows to sell American products to the American public. As a result, more and more American musicians are losing employment which is rightfully theirs."

Mr. Tranchitella said that efforts will be made to enlist the support of the L.A. County Federation of Labor, individual unions and other organizations and consumer groups in boycotting the sponsors and producers of a list of 20 tv series described as "the first to be named in the boycott."

The boycotting programs are: The Betty Hutton Show, sponsored by General Foods on CBS-TV and produced by Hutton Productions; Wichita Town, Procter & Gamble, NBC-TV, Mirisch-McRea Productions; Lassie, Campbell Soup, CBS-TV, Jack Wrather Organization; Death Valley Days, U.S. Borax, Spot TV, Filmster Productions.

Also seven Ziv-TV produced programs: Bat Masterson, Sealtest, NBC-TV; Men Into Space, Longines-Wittnauer, National Carbon and American Tobacco, CBS-TV; The Man and the Challenge, Chemstrand and R.J. Reynolds, NBC-TV, and four syndicated series: The Lockup, Seahunt, This Man Dawson and Tombstone Territory.

Decries Dubbings • Decrying the dubbing of foreign musical soundtracks onto American tv programs as "A real menace to the perpetuity of the music profession in America." Mr. Tranchi- tella concluded: "One of the bitterest aspects of the entire situation is that among those advertisers are some of the largest and wealthiest businesses in America, whose advertising budgets amount to millions of dollars annually. Live music for their tv shows would be the smallest item of cost. Yet in order to save a few dollars on each show they go to cheap foreign-made music. This small savings to the sponsors deprives American musicians of thousands of extra hours of gainful and badly needed employment."

Producers air gripes to agency group meet

Independent film producers have a bevy of gripes in normal working relationships with agency producers. That was apparent at a Chicago agency broadcast producers' workshop dinner meeting on Oct. 19.

Airing their gripes and views before agency members were Earle Klein, president-producer, Animation Inc., Hollywood; Fred A. Niles, head of the Chicago-based production firm bearing his name; and Lee Blair, executive vice president of Film Producers Assn. of New York and president of Tv & Film Graphics Inc., that city.

Mr. Klein warned agency producers not to "stand over our shoulders looking for technical flaws in our product" and told them they had lost sight of the primary purposes of the commercial, while searching for "petty technical errors." He claimed that "there is an over-emphasis on technical aspects of film-making to the detriment of the sales message. The agency should provide the broad outline and give the producer the freedom of that outline to operate." An "unreasonable" number of changes to correct minor or suspected deficiencies "can bring production costs out of all reasonable bounds," he asserted.

Buyer Types Cited Mr. Niles emphasized that it takes a good buyer to make a top-notch commercial. He characterized buyers in various categories: "The man who does not have the authorization to make changes to fit the shooting," the "chisler," the "disorganized buyer," the "let's shoot it again" type, the "alibi buyer" and the "payoff" breed.

Among other gripes, a large problem for producers is insufficient time to bid a complex job and receiving bids when the bidder has already farmed out the job to another producer, Mr. Niles reported.

Mr. Blair said he's most disturbed by the "basic unpreparedness" shown by many agencies when submitting bids for commercials to film companies. Preparing a script and story-board, he added, is "not enough" and agencies should submit more definitive presentations. He called for more "inventive and daring" creativity among agencies.

'Desilu Playhouse' budget is halved

Westinghouse Electric Corp. has nearly halved its budget for Desilu Playhouse (CBS-TV, Fri. 9-10 p.m. EST), dropping back from weekly to alternate-week sponsorship, effective January. The decision reflects a hard look at the budget in view of Westinghouse's sponsorship next year of political convention-election package on CBS-TV.

Cutback should save Westinghouse about $4 million, but with election package added, advertiser still is spending some $2 million more than last year.

Spokesman for McCann-Erickson, Westinghouse's agency, said 19-show cut was based on "good but not great" evaluation of program. CBS-TV is filling alternate weeks with special programming.

Radio-tv unions wage jurisdictional battle

A jurisdictional battle was shaping up last week among three unions serving radio, television and tv film directors.

The aggrieved union is the Screen Directors International Guild, which claims to represent more than 350 directors employed at film studios in the East on production of tv film commercials and programs, industrial and feature films. SDIG is protesting a merger of two other unions in the field—the Screen Directors Guild of America and the Radio and Television Directors Guild—because SDIG is being “excluded from the consolidation.” A referendum now is being carried on by memberships of SDGA, covering employees in film activities on the West Coast, and RTDG, covering employees in radio and live and taped television at networks, stations and independent producers.

SDIG, in an open letter last week, charged the proposed merger “would create a larger union.” The union claimed that last May, SDGA had agreed to consolidate with SDIG and “final agreement was only a matter of formalities and small details.”

SDIG said it was “shocked” to learn in July that the boards of SDGA and RTDG had agreed on terms for any amalgamation “without any reference to the SDIG position or jurisdiction and without our participation in the discussions leading up to this agreement.”

SDGA asserted that if the merger is approved, it will “mean dual unionism, it will mean chaos.” It called upon members of the SDGA to urge its board of directors to hold a meeting with representatives of SDIG to help plan “a truly national” organization.

• Program notes

Top of the week • WMCA New York has initiated an editorial policy of airing four-minute editorials on the same subject for a full week to assure maximum exposure.

Harry Straus, board chairman of WMCA and pioneer in editorial broadcasting, is heard twice daily at rotating times every day except Sunday, when the time has been fixed to follow the 10:30 p.m. news program. In addition WMCA uses spot announcements, newscasts and other station promotions to back up each week’s editorial stand.

'Coronado 9' sales • MCA-TV announces the sale of its new mystery adventure series, Coronado 9, in 90 markets, paced by the regional purchase of the series by Falstaff Brewing Co., St. Louis, in 67 markets across the country. Falstaff’s agency is Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, St. Louis.

Third year 'Sea Hunt' • Ziv Television Programs reports that production will start in January on the third year of its Sea Hunt series, which in its 20 months of syndication has been sold in a total

Wanted: award winning shows with high ratings

"It doesn’t do any good to win awards and get a less-than-10 rating. What we want is awards—and a one-third share of audience."

That’s how Harris Katleman, vp of Goodson-Todman Productions and head of their west coast office, sums up his company’s philosophy. Based on the G-T track record it seems to work out very well. They’ve never put a show on the air that didn’t last at least a year and some of their products — What’s My Line, I’ve Got A Secret, Beat The Clock—seem to have been around as long as television.

The company’s filmed program operations, which this year are represented on the air with two new series, The Rebel and Philip Marlowe, both on ABC-TV, has eight programs in the works for next year. Mr. Katleman said, “I’m hoping we’ll get all eight on the air.” He said, “but to be realistic I’d guess we’ll make it with maybe four or five.”

One that he’s most enthusiastic about is an anthology of westerns written by members of the Western Writers of America. To become a WWA member, Mr. Katleman noted, one must pay an initiation fee of $12, but a further requirement is that the applicant has had published three western novels or 200 magazine stories, or has had 30 dramas on the air. There are only 250 members.

Another projected G-T film program is Heave Ho, Hurigan, a comedy series which will star Myron McCormick of South Pacific as the Navy’s oldest living seaman. “The pilot was shot in June at MGM, but the network evening time was virtually filled up by then, so we decided not to show it until some sponsor or agency comes around looking for a replacement, perhaps around the end of the year. If we let them see it now it would be old stuff by then. This way, it will be a new property which they can see when they’re ready to buy.”

Goodson-Todman has two more situation comedy series in preparation, Mr. Katleman said. One is Her Honor, the Mayor, the story of how a woman with four children and a brilliant husband, “a successful lawyer, not a dope,” tries to fulfill her responsibilities as a wife and mother while taking on a new set of responsibilities following her surprise election as mayor. John Michael Hayes, successful screen writer (Rear Window, But Not For Me), wrote the pilot and will supply the story lines and script supervision for the full series. The other is a series created by Rod Alexander, author of the Broadway hit Time Out For Ginger, which Mr. Katleman declined to say more about at this time.

Adventures • There are also a couple of adventure-action series on the G-T future list, one dealing with two brothers who get in and out of trouble in a Hollywood locale, the other a straight adventures series, he said, and two more programs which he is not ready to talk about.

The pilot film of a new series costs Goodson-Todman $10,000-$70,000 on the average, Mr. Katleman said. He pointed out that they won’t shoot a pilot until they have at least three and preferably five scripts completed, to give them the chance of selecting the best one for the pilot; that they take five days to make it—a full day of rehearsal and four of shooting.

The remainder of the series is scheduled at four days an episode—one of rehearsal, three of shooting—filmed in bunches of five, at an average cost of $40,000 or perhaps a little more than that. He pointed out that both The Rebel and Philip Marlowe use live music accompaniment (The Rebel is the only western with live music), which adds about $2,000 a week to their cost.

Mr. Katleman, who left MCA five years ago to open a one-man office for Goodson-Todman on the coast and now heads a staff of 25, is enthusiastic about tv films, but he said they will never replace live programming at G-T. “We’ll always maintain a live-film balance,” he said. “It’s good business. If any agency wants a live program for this client, a filmed series for that one, he can get them both from us.”

Lance productions • "The Head That Wouldn't Die," a mystery feature movie has been filmed at Lance Productions' studios in New York. Three other movies were filmed by Lance this year plus scenes from the David Niven-Mitzi Gaynor film "Anniversary Waltz."

Crash coverage • The Civil Aeronautics Board has asked WJZ-TV Baltimore for a complete print of the station's coverage of the Oct. 31 plane crash in Virginia for CAB's investigation into the accident. WJZ-TV says it shot the only film of the actual rescue of a sole survivor. Jack Marsh, WJZ-TV camera-man, boarded an Army helicopter with para-medics and CAB officials to obtain the newsfilm.

"Naked City' grows • ABC-TV will finance a pilot film of a new hour-long version of Naked City, which was carried on that network last season as a half-hour program. Production will begin in New York within the next few weeks.

Mago's check-up • The American Cancer Society has named UPA Pictures Inc., Burbank, Calif., to produce Mago's Check-Up for its 1960 Cancer Crusade. The cartoon, with voice by Jim Backus, is designed to alert men to cancer's danger signals. It will be telecast and shown to theatres, schools and service clubs.

Russia on WTV (TV) • A Soviet-produced film of highlights of a visit of nine U.S. governors to Russia was telecast Nov. 1 by WBTB (TV) Charlotte. A Russian sound track, translated into English, accompanied the 30-minute show. In the picture the governors toured farms, factories and housing developments in the U.S.S.R.

Boarder for WJW • General Pictures Corp., Cleveland, has moved into the studios of WJW-TV on Pleasant Valley Rd., there.

All or nothing
A desire for togetherness by visiting Soviet composers Dmitri Shostakovich and Dmitri Kabalevsky prompted cancellation of their scheduled appearance on the CBS television show Face The Nation yesterday (Nov. 8). Producer Michael J. Marlow announced Nov. 4 that the decision to cancel the Russians was made because of a Soviet demand that three other composers and a critic accompanying them on their U.S. tour also be included on the program. "It would have turned the program into a completely unwieldy half hour," Mr. Marlow said. "The 30 minutes allotted does not lend itself to a mass interview." Mr. Marlow disclosed that both composers have personally told him they would appear on the Sunday program, but a State Dept. representative told him last week that they had changed their minds.

Paramount-Tandem to produce tv pilots
An exclusive contract has been signed between Tandem Productions Inc., Los Angeles, and Paramount Pictures Television providing for the production of pilots for six tv film series. Two series will have titles—Henry T. and Meet Me At Danny's—and are slated for completion by March 1.

Tandem is a new film company formed by Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear, a tv producer-writer-director team. In addition to the film series, Tandem will develop tv "spectaculars" and theatrical films, operating on the Marathon lot.

The new contract follows other Paramount Pictures moves in tv, namely new programming development under George Cruskin, formerly with William Morris, and tv tape activity with stepped-up syndication next year (Broadcasting, Nov. 2).

PAY TV IN WEST
California Commission surveys its problems

The State of California Public Utilities Commission currently has no regulatory power over closed circuit pay tv systems feeding programs to subscribers by wire, William Bennett, chief counsel of the commission, stated Nov. 4. He spoke during a hearing held in Los Angeles by an interim committee of the State Assembly on Public Utilities and Corporations appointed to investigate pay tv and report to the legislature not later than the fifth day of its regular 1961 session.

However, Mr. Bennett said, the state legislature can enact a statute giving regulation over closed circuit pay tv to the Public Utilities Commission, provided the system operates only within the boundaries of the state and does not use the air waves for program transmission.

Chester I. Lappen, vice president of the International Telemeter Division of Paramount Pictures, asked the legislators not to take any action now that might hinder the growth of pay tv but to let it develop as a new entertainment medium in an atmosphere of free competition, with the public free to decide whether or not it wants to pay for the programming that pay tv has to offer. Mrs. Fred S. Teasley, radio-tv chairman of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, voiced opposition to pay tv in any form on the grounds that it would work a hardship on the underprivileged citizens of the state by depriving them of the entertainment they now get free.

No Risks Taken • William J. McLean, general supervisor of taxes, Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., said that PT&T could provide transmission channels for wired pay tv as it has provided them for education, business and theatre television, provided pay tv is of public interest and that the company asking for the service is financially responsible. PT&T will not make large risk investments, he said. PT&T can provide facilities to get pay tv programs from their source to the homes of subscribers, with the rates charged for this transmission service subject to the approval of the State Public Utilities Commission. PT&T would have nothing to do with the program charges made by the pay tv operators to the public, he said.

Manley Edwards, telephone and telegraph engineer of the California Public Utilities Commission, said that if PT&T were to file rates for a pay tv service, the Commission would look very carefully into the costs involved and the financial responsibility of the operator of the pay tv system, to insure that the costs of the phone company's pay tv facilities do not get added to the bills of telephone subscribers throughout the state.

Movie writers' strike may come this month

The screen executive board of Writers Guild of America has been authorized to call a strike against Hollywood major motion picture producers at any time after Nov. 17, when current contracts expire.

Action was taken Nov. 3 when nearly 500 WGA members attended an evening meeting, the largest in the Guild's 11-year history. By an overwhelming majority, the meeting gave the board the right to strike any major studio which has not agreed to the union terms for contract.

These terms have already been accepted by five major motion picture companies of the 56 such organizations against which WGA is already out on strike (Broadcasting, Nov. 2).

Chief point of the new pact is an agreement by the five producers that writers—and other motion picture guild members—are entitled to payments when post-'48 theatrical pictures for which they were sold to tv. The new five-year contract called for 4% of gross receipts from such sales, after deduction of stipulated distribution fees to be paid to writers. The same percentage will apply to theatrical pictures sold to pay tv after they have been shown in theatres for at least two years. These terms are to go into effect, however, only after an overall industry pattern has been achieved.

The five companies which have signed new contracts with WGA are: Mirisch Co., Harold Hecht Productions, Stanley Kramer Pictures, Pennebaker Productions and 7 Arts Productions.

At last week's meeting a strike assessment of $25 a piece was voted for all WGA members, plus 2% of earnings retroactive to Oct. 1. The meeting also authorized the use of funds of the WGA treasury by the Screen Writer's Guild if necessary. The recommendation was made to the WGA Council calling for the expulsion of any member who violates the strike.

New RCA tv tube has auto wheel size

RCA Labs is developing a picture tube that compares to a standard automobile wheel in diameter and thickness. It is being developed to improve brightness, detail and compactness of large-screen military and commercial radar display systems. The tube, a "reflected-beam kinescope" type, displays images on a screen 21 inches or more in diameter and has a tube structure only 10 inches long. A recessed rear area is large enough to hold most of the receiving circuit equipment.

The installed picture tube resembles a large bowl standing on edge, with a bulging front surface and scooped out rear. From the center of the recessed back a short slender neck extends containing the electron gun. It has an effective 180-degree deflection angle (compared with 110 degrees for the standard tv picture tube).

Although capable of displaying standard television pictures, the new thin tube would operate with about a fourth of the efficiency of present black-and-white tv display tubes, Harold B. Law and Edward G. Ramberg of the RCA Labs technical staff said. They described the tube Oct. 30 at the 1959 electron devices meeting in Washington.

West Coast merger

A proposal to merge Consolidated Electrodynamics Corp., West Coast electronics firm, into Bell & Howell has been approved by directors of both companies and will be submitted shortly to shareowners.

If the merger is finally approved, three additional common shares of B&H will be distributed for each four shares presently held. CEC shareholders will receive one share of B&H common in exchange for each share of CEC.

Consolidated will contribute its electronic and instrumentation know-how to Bell & Howell's future programs for the application of electronic techniques in photographic fields, according to Charles H. Percy, B&H president.

Magnavox stock split

Common stock of the Magnavox Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., has been split two-for-one and authorized shares increased to 3.5 million from 2 million. After stockholders approved the move, directors raised the quarterly dividend on new shares to 25¢, equivalent to $1 a year on each new share, a one-third increase. It will be payable Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Nov. 25.

At the annual meeting Oct. 28, Magnavox President Frank Freimann reported that profits and sales for the quarter ended Sept. 30 were the company's highest for this quarter. After-tax profits were $1,244,000 on sales of $25,661,000. Earnings per share were $1.06 compared with 61¢ last year.

Sales for the six months ending Dec. 31 were projected at "probably over $60 million" and at $135 million for 1960.

• Technical topics

Zenith unveils fm-only • A new fm-only table-top radio was announced last week by Zenith Radio Corp., Chicago. Unlike many fm-equipped receivers, the model is certified to the FCC as "conforming to its specific radiation limits, to avoid interference with television reception in the home-with-tv," according to Zenith. No suggested retail price is reported. However, the model is claimed to be low-priced.

Profit picture • Allen B. Du Mont Labs Inc., Clifton, N.J., reports a profit of $148,426 on sales of $5,482,681 for the 16 weeks ended Oct. 11. For the first 40 weeks of 1959, on sales of $14,726,117 income of $30,754 was realized, which is not subject to federal income tax because of the company's tax loss carry forward. Comparisons with like periods of 1958 were omitted because the company has since discontinued its consumer television set and picture tube business, it was announced.

RCA's tape sales • RCA reports shipment of six tape machines, four of them color. Two color machines went to NBC-TV in New York and one each to KSTP-TV St. Paul, Minneapolis and WRAP-TV Fort Worth. Monochrome tape machines were shipped one each to KWTV (TV) Oklahoma City and to KPHO-TV Phoenix.

Jerrold's revenues • Jerrold Electronics Corp., Philadelphia, reported first half year's sales and service revenues of $3,723,000, up 15% from $3,214,000 in same 1958 period. Net income for first six months of the fiscal year, ending Aug. 31, was $340,544, or 44 cents per share compared to $37,182, or 5 cents share in the corresponding period a year ago. Net income included $272,841 from 240 non-recurring income representing profit on sale of community antenna system in Key West, Fla. Jerrold still owns nine catv systems, serving 30,000 as of Aug. 31, the report stated. Jerrold is also promoting TV-FM Receptor, indoor antenna for tv and fm receivers, now running at a rate of 9,000 daily. It also introduced a transistorized field strength meter during first half of the fiscal year. Jerrold is working on a pay tv installation in Toronto, Canada, for Famous Players Canadian Corp. in conjunction with International Telemeter Co., a Paramount Pictures subsidiary.

Tape cleaner • The Distributor’s Group Inc., Atlanta, Ga., has introduced FilMagic Pylon, subtitled “Lubricating Dispenser for Lubricating Strip Material.” The device is designed to clean and protect films and recording tapes by applying a coating of fluid silicones to the moving surfaces while the reproducing equipment is operating. FilMagic’s principle is a reservoir of fluid silicones from which the lubricant is filtered through a movable sleeve onto the tape or film. The silicone coating sets up an invisible protective barrier against heat and abrasion. The moving tape or film surface is used to carry silicone into parts of the equipment otherwise difficult to lubricate. Address: 204 14th St. N.W., Atlanta 13.

3M sales • Consolidated sales of $112,377,309 and earnings of $15,145,895 (89 cents a share of common stock) are reported by Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co., St. Paul, for the three months ended Sept. 30. This compares with sales of $95,104,809 and earnings of $11,921,415 (71 cents a share) for the same period last year.

For the first nine months of this year, sales totaled $323,079,201, with earnings of $42,583,641 ($2.50 a share) compared with sales of $271,366,401 and earnings of $29,568,080 ($1.75 a share) for the same period last year.

There were 17,029,090 shares outstanding on Sept. 30 of this year, compared with 16,901,184 in 1958.

Zenith keeps rising • Zenith Radio Corp. Nov. 2 reported estimated net consolidated earnings of $9,319,921 ($3.15 per share on 2,954,784 shares outstanding) and consolidated sales of $175,990,037 for nine months ended Sept. 30—an increase of 42% and 37%, respectively, over the same period last year. Consolidated profits were $4,418,200 and sales reached $69,127,237 for the third quarter of 1959, with these figures representing boosts of 25% and 29%, respectively, over a comparable three months in 1958.

Canada out • Sylvania Electric Products Inc., N.Y., announced Nov. 2 that its Canadian subsidiary, Sylvania Electric Ltd., has suspended indefinitely the manufacture and distribution of tv sets in Canada and will concentrate on expansion in the fields of lighting and non-home electronic products. Robert E. Lewis, Sylvania president, explained that Canadians are purchasing 400,000 tv sets a year while the country has production capacity for three times that many tv receivers. “The outlook over the next 10 years does not indicate a sharp upturn in consumer demands for tv sets,” he stated. Sylvania’s tv set sales in the U.S. are 50% greater than they were a year ago, Mr. Lewis said.

Atlas boom • Atlas Sound Corp., Brooklyn, N.Y., has introduced Proto Boom, a microphone boom that can be collapsed to fit into an automobile and reassembled in a few minutes without tools. Model BS-37, the new boom, has a brake-shoe type clutch assembly that locks the telescopic upright. A piston type air check mechanism prevents accidental collapse of the upright and an adjustable pneumatic orifice valve in the base permits height adjustment while preventing sudden downward motion.

The microphone is supported by a rubber-loaded vibration absorbing cage that can be adjusted to compensate for the weight of any microphone. Price: $375. Length retracted: 5½ ft. Extended: 9 ft. Address: 1449 39th St., Brooklyn 18.

Admiral up • Admiral Corp. reported an 18% increase in consolidated sales for the first nine months of 1959 over a comparable period last year. Sales for the period ended Sept. 30 were $145,849,148 against $123,529,953 for the first three quarters of 1958, according to Ross D. Siragusa, president. Profits before taxes reached $4,906,253 compared with $1,757,481 a year ago, he claimed: while profits after taxes were $2,371,376 against 1958 earnings of $947,254. Earnings were equal to 99 cents a share on 2,390,196 shares outstanding for the nine-month period compared with 40 cents a share last year.

Stereo components • Sargent-Rayment Co., Oakland, Calif., has introduced SR-7000 and SR-8000, stereophonic am and fm tuners and preamplifier-tone control. A feature of the units is “Stereo Separation Control” which is designed to regulate the degree of separation between the two stereo channels. Both SR-7000 and SR-8000 utilize germanium diodes for freedom from heat damage, and a one-tube, one-diode assembly to replace four triode functions in the fm “tuning heart” of the units. SR-7000 price $199.40; SR-8000: $249.40. Address 4926 E. 12th St.

Expansion • Kahn Research Labs Inc., formerly located at 22 Pine St., Freeport, N.Y., has moved its office and plant operations to 81 S. Bergen Place, same city. Telephone: Freeport 9-8800.

Ampex shipments • The Professional Products Div. of Ampex Corp., Redwood City, Calif., has delivered 12 more Videotape recorders bringing the number of stations equipped to 154 as of Oct. 15. Vtr’s were shipped to KFDM-TV Wichita Falls, KFDM-TV Beaumont, both Texas; WDBJ-TV Roanoke, Va.; WHYY-TV Philadelphia; KGBC-TV Corvallis, Ore.; KUAT (TV) Tucson, Ariz.; WLIW-TV Urbana, Ill.; WMSB-TV East Lansing, Mich.; KDSP-TV Des Moines, Iowa; WTHS-TV Miami, Fla.; WGBH-TV Cambridge, Mass., and the U. of Michigan.

Remote mike • Collins Radio Co., Dallas, has introduced M-60, a 12-ounce remote microphone designed to take the place of as much as 45 pounds of conventional amplifier, battery and cable equipment. M-60 is self-contained. The remote mike includes a transistorized amplifier, mercury battery and earplug headphone. Eighteen feet of line and lavalier clip and cord are provided.

Jampro shipments • Jampro Antenna Co., Sacramento, has sent a ch. 2 tv antenna to Radio Diffusion, Panama City, Panama; a 12-bay fm antenna to...
WPTA (TV) Roanoke, Ind.; a 12-bay fm antenna to WTVT (TV) Blooming- ton, and an eight-bay fm antenna to KSRM-FM Sacramento, Calif.

Portable turnable • Collins Radio Co., Dallas, has introduced Collins An- nouncer, a 68-pound, all transistor hi-fi portable turntable unit for remote broadcasts. The company says the unit is small enough to fit in the rear seat of a standard automobile. Self-storing legs detach and fit into the cabinet.

Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Repair service • The American Micro- phone Mfg. Co., Rockford, Ill., has authorized the Radio Telephone Service Co. of Los Angeles to handle its with- in-warranty repairs. Radio Telephone is at 14723 Aetna St., Van Nuys, Calif. It will provide service on out-of-war- ranty repairs for 11 western states.

Mx distributor • Musicast Inc., owner of KMLA (FM) Los Angeles and pio- neer in background music in that city, has been named national sales represent- ative for the Calbest MX-707 multiplex receiver, designed exclusively for recep- tion of background music. Selling for less than $100, the receiver is now wide- ly used by background music operators in Southern California. A nationwide sales campaign is now underway ac- cording to Irving Dubin, president of Calbest Electronics.

Organization chart • Ampex Profes- sion Products Co., established Nov. 1 to manufacture and distribute video and audio equipment for broadcasters, re- corders, producers of programs and commercials and government and defense agencies (BROADCASTING, Nov. 2), is one of five integrated companies through which Ampex Corp. conducts its domestic business. Others are Ampex Audio Inc., Ampex Military Products Co., Orr Industries and Ampex Prod- ucts Co. The last is another new com- pany, also established Nov. 1. Foreign operations are handled by Ampex Inter- national. Growth of Ampex Corp., with sales of $60 million forecast for the cur- rent fiscal year, has necessitated the de- centralization, the company explained.

FANFARE

No peaks in L.A.'s auto traffic pattern

Los Angeles, where the average worker drives 1 hour and 36 minutes a day, to and from work, is almost as well known for its crowded freeways as for its smog (to which the motor traffic makes a major contribution) or its World Champion Dodgers. Yet the area's traffic is not bunched into two tall traffic-time peaks, but distributed with surpris- ingly small fluctuation throughout the entire day and evening, with the peak hours of 7-8 a.m. having not much more vehicular traffic than the mid- afternoon hour of 3-4 p.m.

That traffic data comes from a study made by Southern California Broad- casters Assn. and is included in an SCBA slide film presentation which the association's president, Robert M. Light, showed to agency gatherings in Los Angeles last week and the week before and will show to similar groups in San Francisco this week and in Se- attle next week. Earlier, Mr. Light took the presentation on the road to New York and other major advertising cen- ters. It is also available for private showing to clients whom agencies feel could profit by exposure to the strong radio pitch.

Measuring traffic on the freeway and at major intersections throughout the full weekday, from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., SCBA found 7.9% of the total traffic for the 16-hour span was on the road in the hour of 7-8 a.m. and slightly less (7.6%) at 8-9 a.m. But the 11 a.m.-12 noon hour accounted for 6.5% of the full day's traffic and the afternoon was even busier, with 7.2% of the total volume at 3-4 p.m. and 6.6% at 4-5 p.m. before the homeward rush of workers pushed the figure up to the evening peak of 7.6% at 5-6 p.m.

"There is no such thing as 'traffic time' in Southern California," Mr. Light stated. "Or rather," he added, "all the time is traffic time."

Another surprising statistic in the SCBA presentation is the relatively low volume of listening by children and teenagers, compared to listening by adults. During the daytime hours the women of the family make up most of the radio audience and during the even- ing hours men and women listen in about equal numbers, many times greater than juvenile listeners. Even at 4-5 p.m., when school is over and many programmers—and advertisers—apparently believe that the youngsters have taken over the family radios, both at home and in the cars, listening by children and teenagers is well below 20% of the total for the hour. SCBA reported. The audience figures were de- rived from the Los Angeles Pulse sur- vey for March-April 1959.

In addition to Los Angeles, the half- hour presentation, titled "The Sound of Selling in Southern California," covers such other Southern California markets as San Diego, Imperial County, San Bernardino-Riverside-Ontario, Santa Barbara, Ventura-Oxnard, San Luis Obispo and Bakersfield.

On the road

Representatives of National Telefil- m Assoc. and its affiliated station WNTA- TV Newark-New York are putting their sales story on the road.

The NTA syndicated Mike Wallace Interview originated in Oklahoma City Oct. 26 and 27, for its debut as a daily afternoon feature on WKY-TV there, 1:30-2 p.m. Mr. Wallace video-taped in- terviews with Oklahoma Gov. J. How-'Bat Masterson' comics • That dapper TV hero of the sage country, Bat Masterson, now in his second season on NBC-TV (Thurs. 8-8:30 p.m. EST), in the past six weeks has been introduced to the comics page readers of 82 newspapers. Syndicated for newspapers by Columbia Features Inc., New York, the Ziv-produced western series was developed and promoted as a comic strip by Robert R. Max, manager, NBC Merchandising. Mr. Max is considering a similar treatment for the network's Peter Gunn series, it was reported. The Bat Masterson comic strip represents the first successful transition from television to the newspaper comic form. NBC Merchandising has licensed some 50 Bat Masterson products, including comic books, a paper-back novel, coloring books and picture story books. In the comic strip, which is drawn by Howard Nostrand and written by France E. Herron, Bat is the only continuing character and the story lines are original. NBC achieves a dual impact with the feature, in terms of revenue from sales of the strip and the extra exploitation.

ard Edmondson for the show's local sendoff under sponsorship of Independent Grocers of America. The tape series regularly originates at WNTA-TV.

Later that week a team of WNTA-TV personalities led by Malcolm C. Klein, vice president and general manager of the station, spent two days in Chicago making advertising presentations. Station officials reported that Chicago agencies place a minimum of $100,000 business weekly on New York's TV outlets—but none of it on WNTA-TV. The independent outlet is investing over $4 million on local shows to prove they can pay off (Broadcasting, Oct. 26). The troupes included David Susskind, Fay Emerson, Mr. Wallace and Henry Morgan. They spent two days making sales calls. On Oct. 29, they entertained 150 advertising agency men and clients at a breakfast conference.

Leaves over Miami felt in Cuba: a promotion that backfired

Autumn leaves dropped over Miami, Fla., and a TV station publicity stunt backfired into an international incident, when WPST-TV took "to the air" on Oct. 26.

WPST-TV, a wholly owned subsidiary of National Airlines, decided to fly leaves down from the northlands and sprinkle them over the balmy, tropical Miami area. Jack Gregson, news editor, arranged to meet the National Airlines plane and rush films to the studio in time for his 6:30 p.m. show. However the plane landed leafless, leaving Mr. Gregson holding an empty bag.

Mr. Gregson, a licensed pilot, arranged to fly himself and instead of importing leaves from the north, hurriedly rounded up sackful of the local product.

Fifteen pilots, members of a local Aero club, took to the air to "bomb" Miami with leaves. During the course of the flight a pilot radioed to ask, "Did you drop the leaves yet?" His remark was picked up by Castro-sympathizing Cubans monitoring his frequency. The intercepted remark was immediately forwarded to Castro.

In the wake of recent Cuban accusations of U.S. based planes dropping leaflets on Cuba, the unfortunate mixup created an immediate chain reaction which saw the Chief Customs officer in Miami alert border patrols, the FBI and State Department.

The resulting commotion was unknown to Jack Gregson as he went on the air with his story of the autumn leaves falling on Miami.

Eat, drink, and pick 'em

Tait Cummins, sports director of WMT Cedar Rapids, Iowa and Jim Bowermaster, promotion manager have developed a "double threat" promotion. Mr. Cummins compiled his "All-Time All-Iowa Football team" and designed it for restaurant placemats. In addition to pictures and reading material, one corner of the mat is labeled "Tait's Table Fun" and features football and other sports contests which patrons can fill out while they wait for their food.

Restaurants are given placemats in proportion to the amount of radio time they buy on WMT. Using the placemats, the station reports, 15 new restaurant and nightclub accounts have been picked up in eastern Iowa.

WADO debuts

WADO (formerly WOV) New York commemorated its debut under new management Nov. 2 by casting its first commercial copy in bronze. One-minute continuity read for Thor Food Service early last Monday was engraved on a plaque for Leon C. Hirsch, president of Federated Foods Corp. which owns the Thor food subsidiary. WADO signed on under Bartell Family Radio management at 5:30 A.M. and the National Anthem, a record and the Thor spot were next.

Open house in Springfield

More than 8,000 people from all over the Ozarks visited the new KTTS-TV Springfield, Mo., studios during its open house. The occasion was preceded by a private preview party that was attended by some 450 sponsors, city, county and state officials plus network, agency and representative staffers. G. Pearson Ward, KTTS-TV vice president-general manager, Jack Cooper, president, and members of the directors board conducted tours of the facility.
As others see WBNS

An attractive brochure entitled "WBNS, As Others See Us," has been prepared by WBNS-AM-FM Columbus, Ohio.

WBNS cites its programming "for the educated ear," pointing out the eight colleges and universities in the area and Columbus' high "literacy rate."

Based on a special Pulse survey, the brochure claims that more people tune to WBNS first for news, first in an emergency, and "believe most in us."

* Drumbeats

'Leo' roars • More than 100 advertising directors and agency men were guests at a cocktail-dinner to hear how WAPI-TV Birmingham, Ala., plans to program its 716-feature MGM library. Entertainment for the affair was provided by staff personalities, a WAPI staff orchestra, and a program of excerpts from the MGM library.

Color promotion • WTMJ-TV Milwaukee, RCA and Admiral distributors designated October "Color Tv Month" to acquaint the area with the quality and quantity of tint TV. The campaign included a full-color, full-page ad in the Milwaukee Journal's TV section of which 800 reprints were sent to TV set dealers. WTMJ-AM-TV constantly reminded their audience about color month and more than 70 Journal delivery trucks bore colorful signs announcing the color month. Dealers report increased interest and sales in color sets since the promotion.

'Slave for a Day' • WQAM Miami, Fla. offered their most popular air personalities 'for sale' to their listeners. Recently, a contest on the Miami station asked listeners to write in their requests for the services of their favorite deejays and why they wanted them as a slave for a day. The three selectees were baby sitters for a thirteen-year-old in a plaster cast, did a listener's school homework, and another's household chores.

Well-fed viewers • WHEN-TV Syracuse, N.Y., is distributing "eight-shaped" donuts throughout the city. The promotion is based on a motivational research idea to "reach an audience through its stomach," and have well-fed viewers tuned to ch. 8.

Smashing success • George Millar, station manager of WRVM Rochester, N.Y., carefully placed a certificate redeemable for a mink coat under a cast iron ball on a metal post. Back at the studio, WRVM deejays were reading the first clues for the station contest. As Mr. Millar stepped back to survey the hiding place, a car veered across the street and smashing into the metal post, wrecked car, iron ball and WRVM contest. Mr. Millar postponed the contest and went out to look for another hiding place.

Sleepy-time gals • WSAN Allentown, Pa., gave a snore-by-snore description of the sleeping marathon staged by Hess's Department Store, that city. Two husky boys and two shapely girls competed with eyes closed in sleeping position during a celebration of the store's 62nd anniversary. Time was lost for snoring, sleepwalking or talking; on it ran for nine days with WSAN giving hourly bulletins and broadcasting its night-owl show directly from ringside, bedside.
CAB, HIT NEW PROPOSALS

New rules would set minimum hours to be programmed with Canadian product

Proposed regulations for Canadian television were criticized this week by both private broadcasters and the government owned CBC at public hearings before the Board of Broadcast Governors. The Board, which made proposals earlier this year, will announce final regulations Nov. 15.

In separate briefs, the Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters and CBC argued particularly against a BBG proposal that 55% of all programming on Canadian TV stations be Canadian in origin. CAB warned that quality inevitably would suffer because of the limited local talent available. It suggested heavy capital and operating expenses needed to expand Canadian production facilities would be hard to find, particularly with a BBG-proposed limit of 25% on foreign investment in "Canadian companies."

CAB urged the regulation be dropped, or reduced to 35% Canadian content during the first year of implementation with gradual increases thereafter. Canadian content requirements for private stations should be less than for the government-subsidized CBC, it added.

CBS suggested 50% Canadian content is more reasonable, with the rule applying only in evening hours for non-network stations. It also asked that the percentage be calculated on a two-week basis instead of weekly because of the increasing number of programs scheduled on a non-weekly basis.

The other major point of attack was the proposed regulation that a "maximum of two hours broadcasting time each day between the hours of 8 p.m. and 11 p.m. be reserved for purposes prescribed by the BBG. Programming during the two hours in whatever way provided will have a minimum of 55% Canadian content."

Disrupting Influence Both CBC and CAB warned the regulation could disrupt long term program planning. CAB added that BBG-prescribed programs could upset block programming and work to advantage of the stations' competitors. It said the 55% Canadian content demand during prime time could eliminate many U.S.-based sports events and spectaculars, giving competing U.S. border stations undue advantage.

Proposed regulations limiting morning TV broadcasts also were attacked by CAB and CBC as aiding U.S. stations who can capture early viewers and hold them through the day. CAB argued that a restriction on broadcasting hours reduced returns on capital investment.

CAB's view was supported by the Canadian Assn. of Advertising Agencies and Assn. of Canadian Advertisers, as well as by private stations.

In another brief, Metropolitan Educational TV Assn. of Toronto urged that at least one channel in each area be reserved for educational purposes. In areas like Toronto where only one channel is still available, it suggested the license be split between commercial and non-profit educational groups. The Association consists of the U. of Toronto, local school boards, Toronto's museum, art gallery and public library.

Proposals were supported by the Canadian Labour Congress and the Canadian Broadcasting League which includes, labor, farm and women's groups. Over emphasis on advertising by private stations was attacked by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Tv is Thailand's biggest ad medium

With just two television stations in Thailand (both in Bangkok) and a total of 35,000 sets in a population area of nine million, TV is still the country's greatest advertising medium, according to Pichai Vassnasong, TV director and producer from Thailand, who last week concluded a 10-day visit to New York as the guest of ABC-TV (Broadcasting, Nov. 2).

In line with current thinking on overseas expansion of U.S. television program interests (Lead Story, Sept. 21) Mr. Vassnasong said that if television's growth is to be speeded up in Southeast Asia, there must be more trained technicians and the outmoded electrical systems must be modernized. Nonetheless, TV gets approximately 50% of Thailand's advertising budgets, he said. Radio, newspapers, magazines and billboards split the rest. By the end of 1960, when there will be three new TV stations, coverage will include 80% of the nation's 23 million people, the ABC-TV guest said.

HST-TV Bangkok, the state-owned station which employs Mr. Vassnasong, works on a 60-40 plan; selling 60% of its time commercially, and devoting the remainder to public service program. ming such as information on agriculture, health and education. An advertiser may take two kinds of time buys; either a one-minute commercial inserted in a back-to-back lineup of five or six commercials, or a standard half-hour program buy. All half-hour filmed shows in Thailand are U.S. product. One-minute commercials cost approximately $30, while the half-hour filmed show costs $120. HST-TV pays $50 to $55 per film, but after adding transportation and insurance costs, the station makes about $30 on the half-hour. Mr. Vasnasong reported.

- Abroad in brief

Potter in England • Peter Potter, whose Juke Box Jury tv show has been telecast in Los Angeles and by network, has leased rights to the show for viewing in England, France, Germany, Sweden and Norway. The show will be telecast twice weekly in England. Emcee, panelists and records will be supplied by the country it plays in.

Jamming • No official reference to Soviet jamming of U.S. British, French or other short wave broadcasts has been made during the International Telecommunications Conference in Geneva since it began Aug. 17, despite acknowledged fact that these are in derogation of international treaties. Reason: subject is political and regarded as outside jurisdiction of technical conference. It’s generally understood that sensitive subject is being handled at “highest level” which means President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev. It was discussed during the Soviet chief’s visit to U. S. last month, and presumably conversations will be resumed next Spring in Moscow.

Three new stations • Trans-Ocean Radio and Television Representatives have been appointed reps for three new radio stations: CFLM La Tuque, Que., which went on the air last month; CJLQ Quebec City, aiming at mid-November as a starting date; CHQM, Vancouver, which plans to be operating by Dec. 1.

Stovin-Byles has been appointed national representative of new radio station CJME Regina.

Tv quiz • Like their U.S. counterparts, most newspapers in Great Britain played up—mainly on Page 1—cable reports of the U.S. House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee inquiry into quiz programs. British press, with few exceptions, relish opportunity to crack tv, even though important segments own interests in program contractor companies which have made big money for them in commercial tv.

RADIO

Situations Wanted

Production—Programming, Others

This picture was taken after my ninth year behind a phone. Radio is not too wearing on a man, but there are those times when taking a second gulp at the watercooler, you hear the words "now back to your announcer"—or the sudden strange feeling when a slow speed transcription switches away at a devilish 7 8 RPM speed. Seriously.

Radio has been good to me and I've been good to radio but I do want to enter the TV phase to broaden my experience in the communications field. Interviewing and news reporting are my specialties and selling a product comes naturally. A film, resume, pictures and letters of recommendation are yours for the asking. The other face of world trade

A surprising number of Americans—in this day of international and even outer-spatial limits—still think we ought to be padlocking our borders. To them, world trade is the villain of the piece. A give-with-no-get proposition. A threat to home markets. Happily, growing numbers of us are aware of world trade's other face. A welcoming, productive, mutually profitable face. One we, in turn, should turn freely and fully to the world.

Q. Why not live and let live? Why become heavily involved in world trade?
A. We're already heavily involved. Take oil for example. (It happens to be the biggest single item in world trade with some 51.4% of the total value.) By 1957 figures, the latest available, some 150 American oil companies had $9 billion in direct private interests abroad. They held a direct interest in 64% of the Free World's oil supply.

Q. Don't these interests concern, at most, a tiny minority of Americans?
A. Not so. These American companies represented an estimated two million stockholders. And over the last two years, even this number has grown.

Q. Does what you say for oil necessarily hold true for all our business?
A. Judge for yourself. It's true that our oil companies' $9 billion was our largest private foreign investment. But—again in 1957—the U.S.'s total private investment outside the country was a whopping $25 billion plus.

Q. You've only talked investment. How much actual trading do we do?
A. In 1957, we imported $13 billion in goods. We balanced that figure with $20 billion in exports. When you compare the total with our Gross National Product for that year—$440 billion—our world trade can obviously stand some growing. But $33 billion in world trade is still a lot of money.

Q. The activity is impressive but what specifically was in it for us?
A. Our investments gave us a measure of this. They yielded us a $3.4 billion return. However you figure it, that's a healthy percentage of capital. And a good part of this return found its way into the pockets of America's stockholders.

Q. You seemed to suggest our world trade yields dividends beyond money.
A. Yes it does. Bear in mind that American investors will naturally seek out friendly countries. In doing so, they help develop the strength and stability of these allies. Our private interests further our national interests—and at no cost to the taxpayer. Over and above this, of course, the act of doing business itself adds to mutual knowledge and understanding.

Q. Let's focus on imports for the moment. As the richest country in the world, can't we get by without them?
A. Just run down the list of things we don't have enough of. Iron ore, bauxite, tin, nickel, wood pulp, platinum, special minerals we use in the super-alloys of such items as our jet engines, many more. And a lot of us would be less than happy without such items as our coffee, tea, cocoa, spices, hides and furs. We still count on foreign sources for much of our newsprint, too.

Q. Are our governmental policies generally helpful to our world trade?
A. Yes and no. The government allows some tax advantages to U.S. corporations that invest in the Western Hemisphere. It usually exempts foreign earnings from double taxation. But our policies—and thus the effort they support—fall a lot short of our national competitors.

Q. Can you give us some example of the competitive effort we are facing?
A. One might be the "common market" plan six of our European Allies are developing. They've seen how, in our own industrial development, mass marketing has led to mass production and, hence, lowered prices. They are now lowering trade barriers so that, within a decade, none will exist. An Italian buyer, for example, will pay about the same price for a German car as the German will.

Q. As a nation, what can we do to improve our world trading position?
A. For one thing, we should rework our policies to a point where we are on a competitive par. That means exempting our companies from taxes on foreign earnings until they are returned to this country. This in itself would free money for reinvestment. And we should apply the tax exemptions which our Western Hemisphere companies enjoy to all of our outside U.S. investors.

Q. Can we hope to match our competitor nations on the world price front?
A. Here again, some reworking is needed. In spite of higher labor costs, strangely enough, a U.S.-made product often carries a lower price tag than the same item made abroad. To cite one reason, our labor, with its modern tools, is often more productive. But we have to intensify our efforts to hold the line on inflation, particularly on such basic costs as industrial power and energy.

OUR RESPECTS TO...

Odin Sayles Ramsland

A bank failure back in 1931, when many financial institutions hit bottom, was "possibly one of the most fortunate events" in his early life, Odin Ramsland recalled recently. When it happened to his father, he was faced with the problem of getting out of the business of North Dakota or working his way through school. He stayed and became self-supporting, an attribute that later characterized much of his broadcasting career.

There were other incidents, perhaps the most significant being his association with the late Dalton LeMasurier and A. H. Flaten, now a sales executive with CBS. As a team, they launched KDAL Duluth, Minn., and went on to enjoy a rewarding association and friendship. Much of the esprit de corps rubbed off on its employees.

In 1941, when WTMJ (Mild (Wisconsin) market today, both KDAL radio and KDAL-TV are established community entities and profitable operations, due largely to the policies and philosophies of Mr. Ramsland as vice president and general manager.

Mild-mannered and personable, Odin Sayles Ramsland was born in Faith, S.D., Oct. 29, 1912. He planned to follow in his father's footsteps as a small-town banker. He entered the U. of North Dakota in 1930. After the bank failed in 1931, he continued in school, selling university publications and working for the local power company. He encountered Mr. LeMasurier, then general manager of KFJM Grand Forks, N.D., a struggling independent, and Mr. Flaten, his commercial manager. He continued his schooling, getting his law degree from the U. of Minnesota in 1936.

Helped Start KDAL • Messrs. LeMasurier and Flaten were putting KDAL Duluth on the air and welcomed Mr. Ramsland as a salesman in August 1937. When Mr. Flaten left to join CBS in 1941, Mr. Ramsland became commercial manager. In 1949 Mr. LeMasurier sold 10% of the company's stock to R. A. Dettman, chief engineer, and Mr. Ramsland and elevated both to vice presidents. (Mr. Dettman is credited with helping KDAL secure its 610 kc frequency and upper-three-state-area coverage and with possessing the technical knowledge needed to win ch. 3 for KDAL-TV during competitive hearings.) Before Mr. LeMasurier's untimely death in 1957 in an airplane crash, he made provision for holding stock in trust, to be administered by Messrs. Ramsland and Dettman, as vice presidents and as general manager and secretary, respectively.

Through the years (1941-1957) they worked as a team with Mr. LeMasurier, controlling stockholder and an acknowledged taskmaster and perfectionist. Looking back, Mr. Ramsland reports, "The three of us made an excellent combination and rarely got in each other's way. . . . It was one of the happiest ownership relationships I have ever known." He adds, with characteristic humility:

"The philosophy of KDAL-AM-TV is a difficult one to put your finger on. I am sure that no one in an executive position . . . has ever taken himself very seriously, and everyone has been invited to comment and make suggestions. For example, the station has always been operated on a first-name basis, and from the day an employee is hired, he is instructed to call everyone by his first name. There are never any closed doors; the manager's door is open 99% of the time, and everyone feels free to walk in and discuss his or her problems or make suggestions for improvements of the operation."

Incentive Plan • This philosophy was translated into dollars and cents with the initiation of a profit-sharing plan for employees in 1950. The trust fund, administered by employees and handled by a local bank, now claims $150,000; for the past few years, it has amounted to about 10% of the employees' total annual income. Says Mr. Ramsland: "It epitomizes my philosophy that incentive is necessary for everybody. I like to have my sales people on a commission-incentive arrangement with an increased percentage for higher production." It works for KDAL-AM-TV, allowing everyone to share in the profits.

Much of the sales spark is still engendered by Mr. Ramsland, though not to the same degree he was active from 1941 to 1957. In Duluth proper, a two-station market in radio and TV, KDAL-TV is a primary affiliate of CBS-TV (and ABC secondary). It began operation March 14, 1954, with Red River Broadcasting Co. as owner and licensee. KDAL-TV also maintains a string of translator stations in Minnesota.

KDAL radio is an affiliate of CBS, whose Program Consolidation Plan Mr. Ramsland moderately criticized at the recent network radio affiliates annual convention in New York. At best, he said on a panel, it appears to be only a stopgap plan (At Deadline, Sept. 28).

"I did not like the idea then and I still do not like the principle," he told affiliates, but KDAL couldn't program adequately without network news, special events and public affairs services. But, with a revamped operation, he concedes, ratings increased substantially and the station's "overall tone" improved. He expressed hope CBS will provide still better service within the 30-hour structure and eventually resume "payment for our time in the blue areas."

With PCP as the catalyst, KDAL beffed up its news department by installing shortwave equipment in "prowl" cars, recording all CBS newscasts, hiring an additional reporter-legman and changing its editorial policy. KDAL replaced daily opinions with periodic 90-second "minitorials," saturating the air for one day. KDAL also upgraded local shows and launched a "something for everybody" music concept.

Station Ownership • Mr. Ramsland owns 11.11% of the stock (77.77% is still controlled by Mr. LeMasurier's estate) and he and Mr. Dettman also presently own 20% of WECI Eau Claire, Wis., and 16% of KBIZ Ottumwa, Iowa. He also holds 18.6% of KWEB Rochester, Minn.

Mr. Ramsland is a member of the NAB Radio Board, reflecting his participation in industry affairs. He served on the original Sales Managers Executive Committee of NAB and was active in founding Radio Advertising Bureau. His main civic interest is the industrial bureau of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce, on which he's been active since 1945. He married the former Vivian Helgerson and they have two children—Nancy, 18, a freshman at the U. of North Dakota; James, 16, attending Shattuck Prep School at Faribault, Minn., and Linda, 12. He claims two hobbies—hunting in the fall and working on their new lake home in Wisconsin, a project he began four years ago.
EDITORIALS

Pilgrims' progress

TELEVISION has become the central figure in a morality play as classic as any ever written. All the elements are there: innocence in conflict with guile, moral principle in conflict with stupidity. So far the play lacks only one detail, an ending.

It seems to us that the ending must be supplied by television itself if television is to profit from the adversities it has suffered. By "television" we mean the networks and stations that make up the television system of the U.S. It is they that will be damaged if this play turns out badly. It is they, and they alone, who must take the initiative in fashioning an outcome that will turn the Harris committee hearings into an instrument for lasting good.

Television inherited from radio a set of operating practices that encouraged diffusion of authority. Some shows are owned outright by their sponsors, others by independent producers, others by the network or the station; some are owned 50-50 by sponsor and producer or by producer and network; the ownership of others is even more diverse. To the same degree that ownership is divided, so is authority. On the air today are many programs over which networks and stations exercise practically no control.

Diffusion of authority has led inevitably to diffusion of responsibility. Put another way, it has created the perfect excuse to escape responsibility. The history of the quiz programs on radio tells the story. CBS-TV and NBC-TV demonstrate the escape hatch in action. Take Twenty One as an example.

At the time Charles Van Doren was a contestant, Twenty One was owned by Barry & Enright Productions and sponsored on NBC-TV by Pharmaceuticals Inc.

Did NBC try to find out whether Mr. Van Doren was being rehearsed? No, Mr. Van Doren told the Harris committee last week, never. Was Pharmaceuticals Inc. keeping a close watch on the preparation of the show? No, he never met anyone from the sponsoring company or its agency.

It is now appropriate to ask the question: Who was responsible for keeping Twenty One clean? The answer is: Nobody. The network was acting only as a vehicle carrying the program. The sponsor and its agency were thinking of the show only as a vehicle carrying advertising messages. Barry & Enright was thinking of it only as the source of a fast and very large buck. Among all the people who in some way had a direct connection with the show, not one felt a personal sense of editorial responsibility.

IF TIME could be recalled and Twenty One revived under new rules of control, who should be given the authority and responsibility to make certain it met reasonable standards?

Should the sponsor be put in charge? A company buys television advertising for the same purpose that it buys any other kind of advertising. In television the advertiser and its agency may become more directly involved in the production of the vehicle carrying the advertising than they do in the production of newspapers and magazines. But no matter how extensive the contribution of the sponsor and its agency to the production of a television show, the purpose of the advertiser's participation remains the same. It is silly to suppose that the advertiser's obligation goes beyond the objective of obtaining exposure for its advertising.

Should the packager or producer be put in charge? Assume that all producers are motivated by purest principle, an assumption difficult to make on the record of the quiz hearings. Even so, the producer is acting with narrowness of view. He is wholly preoccupied with his own shows which, at most, constitute a fraction of a network's or station's total output. To cede authority to the producers would hopelessly fragmentize editorial control.

If order is to be brought to television operations, the networks and stations themselves must take command of all their programs. Present circumstances, we suggest, will force them to take command.

IT IS EASY to understand why networks have hesitated to assert authority over their total program structures. For years they have been threatened with antitrust reprisal for "freezing out" independent program producers from prime time.

Yet we suggest that the quiz hearings and the legislative comments they have provoked have reversed the attitudes in government. In the atmosphere that prevails now, networks could assume total program control, without risking antitrust prosecution, providing of course they did not also extend their influence over affiliates through stricter arrangements for option time.

By total program control we do not mean total program production. There is no corporation big enough to supply all the creative manpower needed to fill a network's program schedule. No corporation of that size could be created. But we suggest there is an analogy to the type of program control that networks could exercise. It is the type of editorial control that a large magazine, Life for example, is accustomed to exert.

Life has a large staff over which Life editors exercise authority. Life also buys art and articles from outside contributors, but Life itself must take—and indeed its editors would not wish to avoid—responsibility for the outside contributions that it uses. The assumption of editorial responsibility by the editors in charge is fundamental in American journalism. It must also become fundamental in television.

Why should a television network not take responsibility for everything it broadcasts? Why should it not have a board of editors who can supervise its programs to the same degree that Life's editors supervise what Life prints, whether created by staff members or contributors?

Until editorial authority is centralized, responsibility in television will continue to be diffused and the temptation to avoid it irresistible.

"I just hope CBS doesn't carry that 'no deceit' policy too far!"
