BUY THE CHOICE CUT!

Iowa has 25% of all the Grade A farm land in America—has 63 of the nation’s top-income farm counties as against 40 for Illinois, 29 for California, 28 for Minnesota.

There are many more top-income farm counties in WHO-TV’s 57-county area than in any other U. S. television-coverage area. In these 57 counties, the average farm income is more than $14,000 per year!

When you buy WHO-TV, you can figure that you’re buying Metropolitan Des Moines, Iowa’s largest metropolitan center, plus a ½ billion-dollar farm and small-town market bonus in Central Iowa!

No matter how you slice it, WHO-TV gives you the nation’s most important farm market in which there is also a large metropolitan center. Ask PGW for all the facts.

Color breakthrough?

One of America's biggest industrial corporations reportedly is on verge of announcing development of compatible color television receiver that could give big boost to color sales. Set is said to be thin enough to hang on wall and cheap enough to be within buying power of mass market. Company is one of most respected names in U. S. plastics industry and plastics are said to be used for many components of new color set. Prototype may be exhibited in weeks.

Meanwhile, cheap system of converting tv stations to color is ready for showing at experimental engineering station of Iowa State U. System uses two color tubes in camera, instead of present three. With it, black-and-white camera can be converted to color for about $10,000. Cost of new color camera now runs to $60,000. In Iowa State system black-and-white film chain and video tape recorders can be worked into color setup with little or no change. System will be demonstrated in early December.

Chairman McCollough?

Now that NAB has settled its leadership problem with selection of Florida's Governor Leroy Collins as president, next organizational move in trade association may be to set chairmanship of combined board of directors. Late Harold E. Fellows served both as chairman and president. Sentiment, however, has developed in favor of outstanding broadcaster as board chairman, with position to be rotated annually as is done in such trade groups as Assn. of National Advertisers and American Assn. of Advertising Agencies. Moreover it's felt that since Governor Collins has no broadcasting background, he should have guidance of broadcaster in chairmanship post.

Mentioned most frequently for first year's chairmanship is Clair R. McCollough, president of Steinman stations and chairman of three-man policy committee that has supervised NAB since Mr. Fellows' death last March. Proximity of Lancaster, Pa., Mr. McCollough's home, to Washington (10 mile) also is considered as extremely favorable factor, particularly during breaking-in period for Governor Collins, who formally will assume his post Jan. 4.

Deterrent to sales

It's good bet FCC, prior to convening of new Congress in January, will issue rule-making on proposed new regulation to prohibit transfers or sales of radio and television stations during regular three-year license period, unless there are extenuating circumstances (death, incapacitation, bankruptcy). Support for such restriction at last session motivated FCC consideration of proposal last week. Purpose would be to discourage speculators and "traffic-flocking." Action was deferred, however, for two weeks.

Question arises whether Commission by regulation can place limitation on right to transfer properties when Communications Act specifically provides for assignments of licenses under Section 310. Despite this, however, chances are better than even that proposed rule will come out.

Bowles to USIA?

There's at least outside chance that Chester Bowles, once half of Benton & Bowles, later ambassador to India, now ending term as Democratic congressman from Connecticut, will become director of United States Information Agency in new administration. Mr. Bowles is among those most prominently mentioned as possible choice for secretary of state. If that assignment does not pan out, he's considered strong candidate to succeed George V. Allen, who resigned Friday, effective Dec. 1, as director of USIA (see AT DEADLINE).

Seasoned performer

It's certain broadcasting will have adept performer in White House after Jan. 20. President-designate Kennedy's last campaign assignment election eve showed how he had developed professional ease in studio. Few know that in 11 p.m. telecast from Boston's Franklin Hall he had to do difficult walk-on down 13 steps and handle demanding narration assignments with scant 20 minutes preparation. Performance was marked by only one flub from which he quickly recovered.

New entry

Filmyways may well become early entry in serious bidding for station ownership—either outright acquisition or minority interest. For some time, Rod Erickson, newly-associated with Filmways (see WEEK'S HEADLINERS) has advocated principle of "ideal diversification" which would include production of tv film, feature movies and commercials as well as ownership of stations and possibly repair firm.

Negro persuasion

Activities of radio stations programming for Negro audience may have been important factor in swing of Negro vote to Sen. Kennedy. Political experts say Dr. Martin Luther King's public statement favoring Mr. Kennedy bore great weight. Statement came in interview with news director of WLIR New York.

In addition special transcriptions aired on Negro radio in big cities throughout country are credited with turning Negro votes toward Democrats. Produced by M. S. Novik, radio consultant of AFL, transcriptions featured Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and other white Democratic leaders who have strong Negro following.

They talked not about civil rights but about Mr. Kennedy's pledge to raise minimum wage—issue of direct economic appeal to many Negroes.

Diplomat from radio-tv

Herbert E. Evans, president of Peoples Broadcasting (WFD Worthington, WGAAM-FM Cleveland, Ohio; WMMN Fairmont, W.Va.; WTTM Trenton, N. J.; WNAK Yankton, S. D., and KTVF [TV] Sioux City, Iowa) and U. S. delegate to Inter-American Assn. of Broadcasters, will be that organization's representative before United Nations. He was unanimously elected to post last week by IAAB in Santiago, Calif.

Look in the ledger

Spectre of common carrier regulation is feared by some broadcasters following issuance of FCC proposal to expand information called for in annual financial reports (BROADCASTING, Nov. 7). Particular object of this apprehension is standardized condensed balance sheet, never before required of broadcasters.

There's one hidden reason for FCC's call for more financial details—some of which were required in pre-1952 annual reports. Staff has long wanted more complete financial "profile" of licensees for use in processing transfer applications. This is true particularly in cases payable analysts, which would be used, it's understood, to learn extent of interest in station by past owners.

WEEK IN BRIEF

The election’s over, but what will it mean to broadcasting and to the legislative-regulatory situation in Washington? Television made the Kennedy victory possible, but will broadcasting suffer even stricter regulation under a new administration? Answers to some of the industry’s toughest problems are discussed in a series of analyses covering the FCC, Congress and other agencies. The highlights of the late campaigning and record election coverage by radio-tv are reviewed. See . . .

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER JAN. 20 . . . 29

For the first time in eight years a Democrat will head the FCC, and the likely, if reluctant, candidate is Bob Bartley. It’s expected that Fred Ford will stay on as a commissioner, but another Republican, Charles King, is marked for departure. See . . .

TOUGHER REGULATOR TO HEAD FCC? . . . 30

A talent strike that could reduce network television programming to re-runs and old movies may be called tomorrow, if negotiators aren’t closer together than they were last week. Officials of the performer unions call the outlook “gloomy.” See . . .

TALENT MAY WALK OUT THIS WEEK . . . 54

A professional broadcaster, flanked by station and agency executives, directed the electronic campaign that the President-designate agrees made his victory possible. How J. Leonard Reinsch, Kennedy’s communication advisor, directed the buildup that led to the White House. See . . .

The non-network national coverage of Shulton Inc. has been so successful that the sponsor plans a dramatic series to start Nov. 18 on 97 stations. Shulton is delighted with the 105-station “Race for Space,” bought on a spot basis by its agency, Wesley Assoc. See . . .

FCC’s super sleuth has come out of hiding. John C. Harrington, head of new intelligence unit of the commission, tells how his staff of 19 has processed nearly a hundred complaints, ranging from clipped baseball reports to log error. See . . .

WHAT THE FCC’S G-2 IS UP TO . . . 72

NAB’s fall conference series resumes today (Nov. 14) in Washington with Chairman Frederick W. Ford, of the FCC, as guest speaker. Two more meetings—Chicago and New York—will wind up annual eight-conference series. See . . .

Key vacancies loom in Dept. of Justice and Federal Trade Commission as result of election. Earl W. Kintner, FTC’s chairman, is serving beyond actual expiration of his term and Commissioner Edward K. Legislative liaison formed in Md.-D.C.

Grass-roots move by broadcasters to educate congressmen on role of broadcasting in national life and effect of laws, regulations and proposed legislation was proposed Nov. 11 at fall meeting of Maryland-D.C. Broadcasters Assn. in Washington.

Lloyd W. Dennis Jr., vice president-general manager of WTOP Washington and president of association, said group adopted his proposal to name special political committee to arrange two luncheon or dinner meetings yearly with Maryland legislators. He named Tom Carr, WBAL Baltimore, as chairman.

Meetings will have organized agenda and prepared statements, followed by discussion. Northern Virginia legislators also will be invited. In addition, each member will call on legislators when they are in home area and visit them on Capitol Hill.

While new administration and Congress will be new, Mr. Dennis said, same committees will be there. He reminded Congress "is not going to be at all disposed to let our industry continue to regulate itself."

Adherence by radio and TV stations to NAB codes is important to industry's Washington image, delegates were told by NAB staff officials, including John F. Meagher, radio vice president; Charles M. Stone, radio code director, and Edward H. Bronson, TV code director.

Scranton elected as GOP congressman

William W. Scranton, holder of minority interest in WNET-TV Scranton, Pa., was elected to Congress from 10th Pennsylvania district, according to National Republican Congressional Committee. (See early congressional story page 42.)

Mr. Scranton resigned last Feb. 3 as special assistant to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter when he decided to run for Congress on Republican ticket. He resigned last March 26 as board chairman-director of WNET-TV, which is 60% owned by Transcontinental. He is banker and member of boards of several corporations. While serving with Secretary Herter he attended many international conferences and had been slated to attend ill-fated summit conference in Paris last spring.

Numerous bids for shorter separation noted by AMST

Analysis of comments filed in FCC's proposed rulemaking concerning interim VHF policy (BROADCASTING, Oct. 3) was mailed last week to members of Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters by Lester W. Lindow, executive director of association. Analysis contains review of all comments filed with emphasis placed on number of proposals involving short mileage separations.

According to AMST, broadcasters and other interested parties filing in rulemaking asked approximately 65 new or relocated assignments involving short mileage separations. These involve more than 100 individual instances of short co-channel separations and some 15-20 instances of short adjacent-channel separations, report stated.

Analysis also noted that comments asked for co-channel shortages as great as 90 miles with shortages of 20 to 80 miles fairly common. It also noted that comments asked for adjacent-channel shortages as great as 20 miles.

At least 100 different existing stations are threatened by at least one short separation, according to AMST report. Some stations would be affected by two or more proposed shortages and, report stated, it was not unusual to find single proposal involving short spacings from two or more existing stations.

AMST, which did not approve of commission's proposals, asked its members to file individual reply comments. These are due on Nov. 28.

NAB, educators study labor survey findings

Joint NAB-university project designed to provide basic information about station employment and attitude of staff employees is entering analysis stage.

Survey among radio-TV stations is described by NAB and Assn. for Professional Broadcasting Education as most comprehensive of type ever undertaken in broadcasting industry.

James H. Hulbert, NAB broadcast personnel-economics manager, said survey will provide valuable information aiding broadcasters in deciding where and how to recruit employees for radio and TV careers, type and temperament of employee most likely to achieve success and educational requirements for specific types of jobs.

Questionnaires were sent to cross-section of employees holding various positions ranging from general manager to salesmen and from chief engineers to continuity writers.

L. A. engineers drop IBEW

Engineering employees at KCOP (TV) Los Angeles voted Thursday to decertify International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as collective bargaining agent. Vote was 47 to 29 in NLRB election.

KCOF technicians are expected to form independent union to negotiate new contract with station. Present IBEW contract expires Dec. 15. IBEW has represented KCOF technicians for 12 years.

Winchell quits ABC

Walter Winchell, New York columnist, ended contract with ABC Nov. 11 because of lingering jaw infection, according to network. He had told network days before he wanted to be freed from contract, having been away from his tv shows for some time. He said he did not know when he would be able to resume.

Quizzers question legality

Legality of second-degree perjury charges lodged against defendants—all former tv quiz winners—is headed for court argument. Pleading has been adjourned to Dec. 1 in New York's Special Sessions court where Justice John M. Murtagh has permitted lawyers for defendants to enter motions attacking
WEEK'S HEADLINERS

Alan D. Courtney, formerly vp of program administration at NBC-TV, joins MCA-TV, N. Y., as vp of national sales for MCA-TV Ltd., effective Nov. 22. Since 1947, when he joined NBC, Mr. Courtney held positions as vp of nighttime programs, administrator for network's participating programs and executive producer of The Steve Allen Show.

Roy Danish, former advertising agency and network executive, named assistant director of Television Information Office, New York. He has been partner in Smith/Greenland Adv., New York, and before that was vp at Marschalk & Pratt Div. of McCann-Erickson, N. Y. He also served as project director in office of President Marion Harper Jr. of McCann-Erickson before moving to Marschalk & Pratt (now McCann-Marschalk). Mr. Danish entered broadcasting in Mutual's research department. He subsequently was MBS station relations director and, when he left network in April 1956, was vp and associated with general planning programming operations of Mutual and of RKO General stations, which at that time were associated with Mutual ownership.

William H. Trevathen, director of tv network operations at NBC-TV, elected vp of tv network operations. Mr. Trevathen, who has been with NBC since April 1959, formerly was in charge of studio and theatre operations, maintenance and plant facilities, and administration and scheduling of all engineering personnel. He had been vp of production services at ABC, after 16 years with that network. He joined ABC in 1943 as staff engineer; promoted to operations supervisor in 1947; national director of technical operations in 1950; director of engineering in 1950. He was maintenance engineer at NBC between 1938-42.

Ralph Brent, corporation vp of Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp., New York, since last March, named president of Worldwide Broadcasting, newly-created International Div. of Metropolitan. Earlier, for eight years, Mr. Brent had been vp of WIP Philadelphia, which was acquired by Metropolitan in 1959. He began in radio in 1938 as disc jockey with WTEN Trenton, N. J., and later worked as an account executive with WBBM Chicago and as manager of WGBN-FM Philadelphia. Walter S. Lemmon, founder-owner of Worldwide Broadcasting, will remain as consultant to operations, which broadcasts commercially to various parts in world.

Rodney Erickson joins Filmways Inc., New York, as president, it was announced last week by Martin Ransohff, who yields that title and becomes chairman of board and chief executive officer. Mr. Erickson's principal field of interest will be all phases of programming and company diversification including station ownership. At same time Milton R. Dubin, vp in charge of sales, becomes senior vp, reporting to chairman for tv commercial sales activities. Mr. Ransohff co-founded Filmways in 1952 with Edwin Kasper who left firm five years later. New president brings with him Rodney Erickson Enterprises Inc., which will be absorbed into Filmways. Part of Erickson Enterprises is 50% of Cantel Ltd., Toronto program firm, and interests in Walton-On-Thames Studios and Sapphir Films Ltd., London. Mr. Erickson was worldwide sales vp of Warner Bros. before forming his own firm and was with Young & Rubicam, New York, as vp and general manager of tv when he left in 1958.

Group of top winners, including several who became national celebrities (Charles Van Doren, Elfrida Van Nar doff, Hank Bloomgarden, among them), surrendered in October on indictments charging them with perjury. Grand jury that charged defendants has had its life extended (BROADCASTING, Oct. 31, 24).

Color plans aid sales

NBC-TV's expanded schedule of more than 18 hours of colorcasting over Nov. 11-13 weekend was opportunity for RCA Victor promotion of color tv receivers in dealer showrooms. Original promotion was set as "Color T v Day—U.S.A." (BROADCASTING, Aug. 29), when NBC-TV announced some nine hours of colorcasts for Friday (Nov. 11). But dealer-distributor enthusiasm, RCA said, was so great network increased color programming to cover Saturday and Sunday with 10 color shows. Many local stations also added more tints. R. W. Saxon, vice president, marketing, RCA Sales Corp., said RCA Victor distributors had pledged to sell 7,060 color sets during special weekend. RCA ran 1,100-line advertisements announcing event in 127 daily newspapers.

Allen to leave USIA

Resignation of George V. Allen, director of U. S. Information Agency who for time was under consideration along with Florida Gov. Leroy Collins to head NAB, was accepted by President Eisenhower Friday. Mr. Allen, who spent 30 years in government diplomatic service, leaves Dec. 1 to become president of Tobacco Institute. USIA is Voice of America parent.

Pr unit named for Ad Week

Advertising Week task force picked name for its "year" Friday (Nov. 11), subject to final committee approval over weekend. It is "Advertising Keeps Us Rolling Campaign," defining big public relations effort to be kicked off by Ad Week Feb. 5.

Today (Nov. 14) Advertising Federation of America and Advertising Assn. of West, co-sponsors of project, are announcing appointment of volunteer pr counsel for Advertising-Keeps-Us-Rolling: Daniel J. Edelman & Assoc., N. Y. Mr. Edelman, accepting "challenge," said campaign is vital because "dynamic force of advertising is diluted when it is not understood." Edelman firm will execute only one phase of campaign formulated by McCann-Erickson, task force agency, and Ad Week committee.

PROBLEM IN MATERNITY

Two ladies, timebuyers both, were harassed by a small but pressing $13,000 spot-buying project. "We need help," said Sue to Eve. Said Eve to Sue, "I'll get my daughter." Said Sue to Eve, "Good idea. I'll call on my daughter too."

The daughters, Marjorie and Karen, after careful briefing*, performed valiantly. When the smoke cleared away it was discovered that each person paid for each spot a number of dollars that was equal to the number of spots she purchased. Each mother-and-daughter combination spent the same amount. Sue bought ten more spots than Marjorie. Karen bought only ten spots.

Who is Karen's mother?

Answer this (with your reasoning) and win a copy of Dudeney's "Amusements in Mathematics"—Dover Publications, Inc., N. Y. (If you've already won it, say so in your entry and we'll provide a different prize.)

* Said mothers to daughters: "WMAL-TV should be on all shades. ARB Metro Area Survey shows it first from 6 p.m. to midnight, Sun. thru Sat."

Highest with Women:

More women were reached more often by The Play of the Week than any top-rated network program in the New York area, according to survey data by the A.C. Nielsen Company for a typical height-of-the-season eight-week period, ending February 7, 1960. It topped all network programs, bar none, with a total of 36,012,173 women viewer home impressions — fully 12,306,101 more than were attracted by the second-ranking Wagon Train. Can The Play of the Week sell soap, cosmetics, household goods, or anything else aimed at the feminine contingent? Put that down as the most academic question of the year.

CAN IT SELL CIGARETTES?

Highest with Adults:

When you examine the figures for adults — the ones with the real purchasing power, not possessed by the juvenile set — you have the real clincher. The audience for The Play of the Week is 98% adult. Its delivered audience of adult viewer home impressions totaled 59,439,469 — the highest of any top-rated network program, in the New York area, for the eight-week period studied. Reach the people with the dollars to spend...for higher sales and profits on the most economical basis...through The Play of the Week.

CAN IT SELL EVERYTHING?

No. 2 in reaching more different homes in the New York area:

Television's foremost dramatic series, The Play of the Week, attracted more different homes than any other top-rated network program in New York except Gunsmoke, according to the Nielsen data for the period studied. It attracted more different homes (2,780,860) than these highest rated television programs in the New York area: The Untouchables, Maverick, 77 Sunset Strip, Father Knows Best, U.S. Steel Circle Theatre, What's My Line?, Have Gun, Will Travel and Ed Sullivan show.

CAN IT SELL YOU? If not, you can't be listening!

THE PLAY of the WEEK

It is later than you think, Mr. Station Manager, and people (in 1960) are brighter than you think. A new wave is sweeping the land. A wave expressing the hunger and clamor for finer television entertainment that will stimulate people's minds, nourish their souls, prevent them from being reduced to paubum.

Dreamers, are we? Hopeless idealists and utopianists, too?

Well, Mr. Station Manager, perhaps you're the one that's in that Ivory Tower — out of touch with the mainstream and pulsebeat of the nation. Want figures? We've got them! Read them (at left) and rejoice, not weep. Read them — and you'll discover that if you want the vehicle to sell soap or cosmetics to women...cigarettes or cars to adults, or anything — from soup to nuts — you can do it...via The Play of the Week.

It's the vehicle that delivers for you class-in-the-mass...on the most economical basis possible. And it will deliver, too, a vast audience with a plus no other television program can claim — a loyalty and responsiveness from Play of the Week viewers that translate themselves into extra sales and extra profits. Take a good look at the 56 stations which are presently alive...and kicking up their heels for joy...for being associated with television's most spectacular dramatic series, The Play of the Week!

Brand new: Lively, five-minute features every day, 43 programs a week. These combine intriguing ideas and people, like "Your Man in Paris" with David Schoenbrun, "A Woman's Washington" with Nancy Hanschman. Others present Charles Collingwood, Douglas Edwards, Zachary Scott, Myrna Loy, Alan King and many more. Long-time CBS Radio information and cultural programs continue, of course, including "Capitol Cloakroom," "Invitation to Learning," "New York Philharmonic," "Face the Nation."

More good company than anywhere else in radio. There's just one place to find a regularly scheduled all-star lineup that includes Arthur Godfrey, Art Linkletter, Garry Moore, Bing Crosby, Rosemary Clooney, Mitch Miller, the colorful new "In Person" program nightly featuring Ron Cochran and people in the news. They're all on the CBS Radio Network.
The CBS Radio Network announces for the ’60s: an expanded program structure, new audience appeal and selling opportunities seven days a week—all starting November 28th.

Now CBS Radio becomes the first network to present ten minutes of news on the hour. This means more complete coverage, by the top news team in broadcasting. In addition: Edward R. Murrow, Lowell Thomas, Allan Jackson, Howard K. Smith, Robert Trout, “World News Roundup,” “World Tonight” on a regular schedule, plus the unrivaled coverage of special events by CBS News.

Ten more weekend sports programs are scheduled as ex-Yankee Jerry Coleman joins Phil Rizzuto and Pat Summerall in providing knowledgeable sports reporting all week long, 52 weeks a year. And important events—big Bowl games, the full New York Giants football season, horse racing’s Triple Crown, the Masters Golf Tournament—are all on the CBS Radio Network.
Only the CBS Radio Network offers advertisers such a range of selling opportunities, morning to night, seven days a week. From a single segment of Arthur Godfrey to a full-scale saturation campaign. For years, this network has been first in programs and audiences. Now the expanded schedule means even greater leadership. And more reason than ever to use the tremendous selling power of THE CBS RADIO NETWORK.

The spectacular shot is not always the bread and butter shot. It's that ability to sink putts consistently inside 6 or 8 feet which separates the pros from the amateurs. And so it is in business, too. The real pay-off comes when television and radio stations also possess that “quality touch”... a touch which is evident in day in and day out practices so vital in producing a winner. May we put this winner to work for you?

BROADCASTING, November 14, 1960
A little more than a year ago, the television quiz show investigations hit their highly publicized peak. In the aftermath came official and unofficial dictates to networks to be "responsible" for their programming. The implications were, and have been since, that whatever blame was attached could be laid on the doorstep of advertisers and their agencies. The networks were naturally delighted to be dissociated from these "evils." "We will assume responsibility from now on," they promised.

It turns out they didn't mean just "be responsible." They meant "control." They now want to license the programs they disseminate, which, in effect, is tantamount to owning them. In fact, in many cases they do have ownership and they would like to increase it. Why? Because ownership does mean control. A program a network controls is a program that cannot be moved to another network (where its sponsor may feel it would bring a better audience return).

The Metamorphosis • Unfortunately in their pell-mell rush to turn program "responsibility" into the bigger prize, program "control," the networks have lost sight of the first word entirely. True, they have done a little housecleaning here and there, creating program practices or "police" departments, but these are mostly extensions of already existing continuity acceptance departments, with broader powers in the areas of policy and taste. And as they have heaved up public service efforts.

But the big point is: in the realm of entertainment programming — the bulk of their output, seen by the greatest number of viewers — they are no more able to discharge their assigned (and accepted) "responsibility" than they were last year, or two years ago, or the year before that.

Responsibility for programming means supervision of programming. Day in, day out, episode by episode supervision. The networks can't provide it. They just plain don't have enough people. On all the occasions I have to be on Hollywood lots in connection with the several filmed shows produced for clients of Benton & Bowles, I never see any network program supervisors. To be sure, sometimes a program department executive (frequently out from New York) will be there to screen a finished film or talk to a producer about next year, but never a local network representative on the scene by assignment for the purpose of contributing to the production or quality of the product.

Agencies on the Scene • Meanwhile, how about the advertising agencies? Where are their program representatives? They are right there on those same lots and sets, perusing scripts, attending readings and rehearsals and shootings, helping to hold the line against violence and banality and other shortcomings the public and the critics and the networks decry — in short, creatively contributing in every way they can to upgrade the end product — not the commercial — but the program.

For every moment in the progress of every episode of every program, live or film, for every television client we have, there is a Benton & Bowles program department representative on hand from the first draft of the script through every stage until the final moment of air time. Benton & Bowles supervises all its shows. Probably other agencies can make this claim. I know of no network that can.

Picking the Show • And, lastly, what about program selection in the first place? Are the networks more qualified than the advertising agencies? I'm not talking about program suitability vis-a-vis the advertiser. Obviously we, as the advertisers' designated representatives, are better equipped and oriented and, yes, motivated to achieve the best possible climate, the optimum compatibility between our clients' products and services and the programs with which we associate them.

I mean the judgment, per se. A number of people have it. Some work for networks; more work for advertising agencies as a matter of numerical fact. The programming leopards in our business may be peripatetic, but the spots linger on. There are erstwhile agency men toiling in network program departments, just as there are refugees from networks peopling many agency television departments. The truth is that there are men both at the networks and agencies who are equally qualified as program judges and selectors.

Where the agency programmer has an obligation to his individual client, his network counterpart has an obligation to all the advertisers on the networks. Both have an obligation to the viewer. Failure to meet the latter reflects discredit on both; therefore, it should not be unilaterally discharged.

Open Market • At Benton & Bowles, we cannot afford to make distinctions between the various sources from whom we can buy television shows. Ours is an open-door purchasing policy; we will buy whenever the show is right, whether directly from a producer or from a network. All we insist on is the right to supervise any program we buy, not only for reasons of the client's commercial association, but because we know we can be (and are) constructive creative members of the producing group.

One thing is certain: an agency-selected and supervised program is not an item of irresponsibility. In fact, it looks more responsible each passing day of the current season, with its high incidence of network control.

Until this is not the case, until the networks evidence a truer objectivity in the selection and scheduling of programs, until they have sufficient and sufficiently qualified people to supervise their responsibilities, I mean the programs in the real sense of the word, until their interest in programs is less commercial and more academic and positively "for the good of all" — until all of these criteria are met, I for one will hold out for the cumulative influence on programming of advertisers and their agencies, for that influence is founded on real responsibility, honestly arrived at, willingly accepted and conscientiously implemented.

Reporting the election

EDITOR: Your editorial (Nov. 7 issue, page 114) is correct. The broadcast industry will be blamed for the defeat of certain candidates and commended for the victory of others. However, as a broadcaster, I feel that the race to be No. 1 reached an unbelievable low during the election night coverage on the three networks. It appeared to me that NBC, CBS and ABC took it upon themselves, individually, to name the next President of the United States.

I have always believed that the people’s vote should determine who the President is and that one of America’s great customs is to listen to the returns come in as they are officially tabulated by the various voting precincts. It appeared to me that this year’s election was reduced to a combination of “monster machine” predictions as to who was slated to do what to whom, backed up by the continuous claims of No. 1, i.e., “as this network told you over an hour ago,” “again first with the prediction” etc. In fact, while the networks were making these statements, they were giving the impression that they were speaking of actual official facts. Unfortunately this was not the case. It was only the network awarding something to a candidate, whereas I have always been of the opinion that broadcasters should merely report the results of the official election bureaus.

It could have been a pleasure to listen to the actual reports come in, and to watch the tabulation, without all the confusion and counterclamors as to which broadcasting network was first to name our new President. —Ed Winton, Vice President and General Manager, WQMR Washington-Silver Spring.

EDITOR: My compliments to Broad- casting for an excellent and enlightening article on the presidential candidates’ exposure on television (Oct. 24, page 27).

This information does great service to the entire TV industry in letting them know their contribution to this presidential campaign. Nowhere else do I believe we could counteract the post-election campaign. Nowhere else do I believe we could have statistics that have been made available and the equality of treatment that the candidates have been given should still make a lot of chatter about unfair distribution of time.

You showed splendid judgment in publishing the article at such a propitious time. —Albert Mark, President, Mark Assoc. Inc., New York.

Audience basics wanted

EDITOR: In working out plans for 1961 media expenditures in many markets across the country, I am interested in developing trend curves for several factors affecting television and radio viewership and listenerhip.

The presentation of figures showing radio and television ownership over the past ten years is the kind of information I am seeking for the following factors:

Weekly radio and television audience; homes using radio by county size; homes using radio by territory; listening in radio only versus listening in TV homes; radio listening per home per day; number of homes tuned to radio; looking-listening, summer versus winter; TV viewing per home per day; TV audience composition; types of TV shows and their audiences.—John A. Dillingham, Associated Coca-Cola Bottling Plants Inc., Daytona Beach, Fla.

Bedside companion

EDITOR: One of the brightest spots in the week during my lengthy stay here (Ross General Hospital, Ross Calif.) has been the arrival of Broadcasting Magazine. It allows me to keep on top of things . . . hope to get out of here the end of this month . . . —Ray Rhodes, KPAX San Francisco.

Pitluk Award to KCRS

EDITOR: The Pitluk Award for outstanding community service in Texas was not presented to Wendell Mayes, KBWD Brownwood, as you stated in your Oct. 24 issue (page 65). The trophy is not presented to any individual, but rather is awarded to a radio station for outstanding community service. Furthermore it was KCRS Midland, Tex., another Wendell Mayes station, which was awarded the Pitluk trophy and not KBWD Brownwood.

I think it would be an injustice to the employees of KCRS, whose hard work made it possible for KCRS to win the Pitluk Award, to allow this error to go uncorrected.—Wendell Mayes Jr., KCRS Midland, Tex.

[In the absence of other references during the presentation ceremony at the Texas Assn. of Broadcasters Oct. 17, our reporter assumed the award was made to Mr. Mayes as an individual.—The Editors.]

‘Pathetically low salaries’

EDITOR: I’ve never written a letter to the editor in my life, but this one is prompted by the asinine excerpt from a speech by Willard Schroeder in “Play-Back” in the Oct. 31 issue, page 18.

In these dreary years in live radio and television broadcasting I could not make a decent living. By quitting the broadcasting business and swapping it for a gray flannel suit I increased my yearly income 20% in one day. How? By simply crossing the street from the station where I was employed and going into the agency business. What am I doing now? The same things I did on the station level: writing and producing tv and radio commercials.

If the small and medium-market stations would come down out of the clouds and see how their own personnel manage to live on sweat-shop salaries, perhaps industry standards would improve, especially on the station level.

To rebut Mr. Schroeder’s comments about television, I must regret to tell him that it is being caused by bad scripts . . . let him look to his own backyard where pathetically low salaries are tv’s biggest problem. As has been said for centuries: you get exactly what you pay for.—R. W. Colon, Broadcast Director, Besson-Reichert Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

BOOK NOTES

The serious student of the potential and progress of educational television in the U.S. since its debut in 1953 will find much to occupy his interest in this collection of research studies. “What programming, when, where, for whom, and with what effect?” are the topics with which this report is concerned, according to the foreword by Robert B. Hudson, vice president, National Educational Television and Radio Center.

The book’s chapters are based on studies supported by research grants-in-aid made by NETRC during the period 1956-59. Areas covered by the book include educational tv in the community, etv in the classroom, etv and children, plus a proposed theory for the effect of etv by Lionel C. Barrow Jr., now assistant professor in the Communications Research Center of Michigan State U. Mr. Schramm is director, Institute for Communication Research, Stanford U.

Sales managers, promotion managers and program executives will find this booklet helpful in planning sales campaigns or tie-in events during 1961. A total of 852 special days, weeks and months are chronicled in this reference booklet that also provides a complete daily calendar which may be used for memoranda or appointments.

The special events listed are commercial as well as historic and civic. For example, January is “Break-a-Cold Month” and Nov. 24-30 is “National Indigestion Week.” Both are soda bicarbonate promotions by Church & Dwight Co. through public relations representative, Theodore R. Sills & Co., Chicago. And then there is always Oct. 21-28. It will be “International Whale Watchers Week.” Gerald B. Burnett, 5369 Kahalanaeole Highway, Honolulu 16, is chief watcher.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER JAN. 20?

■ Kennedy says he would have lost if it hadn't been for tv
■ But his party has history of tight broadcast regulation
■ Will new administration give radio-tv the break it earned?

A presidential campaign that made television history also set electronic precedents for the political future.

Television emerged from last week's election as the indispensable campaign medium, so labeled by the President-designate, John F. Kennedy.

His words were voiced at a Nov. 10 news conference in answer to the question: "In view of what your brother [Robert] said yesterday about the debates, do you feel you might have been able to win without debates?"

The terse answer, typical of the winning candidate's fast response to questions: "I don't think so."

And the comment of Robert Kennedy, general campaign manager, was an even more powerful tribute to the face-to-face broadcasts. Without the debates, he said, "it wouldn't have been close."

A dramatic legislative step—suspension of the Sec. 315 equal-time language that might have prohibited debates—had opened the way for this new form of campaigning. Temporary relaxation of the section has a good chance of becoming permanent when the new Congress meets. Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), of the Senate Commerce Committee, stated recently he planned to introduce legislation to this effect.

Here are some of the election after-maths:

■ First compilation of network time purchases (gross) amounted to an estimated $2.7 million, with Republicans outspending Democrats. Regional, state and local hookups plus spot radio-tv can't be estimated at this point. (See story page 36).

■ The major parties had a tough time getting audiences against the competition of established programs, judging by ratings. (Analysis of ratings, page 35).

■ Electronic computers provided exciting program material election night but the "scanty returns" of the early evening hours pointed to a Nixon victory. Later statistical findings gave Sen. Kennedy odds as high as 333 to 1, reflecting more optimism than post-midnight developments might have indicated. (Computer story page 41).

■ The FCC held that American Forum of the Air (Westinghouse stations) is not a news program within the exemption provisions of Sec. 315, the equal-time law (story page 42).

■ Washington is going to see some changes next year, particularly at the FCC and Federal Trade Commission. President-designate Kennedy plans to shift the FCC balance from Republican to Democratic. At stake are the FCC chairmanship of Frederick W. Ford and the interim term of Charles H. King. (See story page 32).

■ There will be familiar faces missing on Capitol Hill, including several legislators having broadcasting interests (story page 42).

Broadcasters were on the congressional and FCC spot during the campaign as their presentation of candidates and campaign information came under equal-time scrutiny. The FCC some weeks ago sent stations detailed instructions on what they were to tell it about campaign and political activities. A spe-
A TOUGHER REGULATOR TO HEAD THE FCC?
BARTLEY SEEN AS LIKELY, IF RELUCTANT, CANDIDATE

There'll be a new chairman of the FCC after John Kennedy takes office as President next January. There'll also be a replacement for Republican Commissioner Charles H. King to give the commission a Democratic majority.

The man who has been considered the most likely candidate for the chairmanship in a Democratic administration is Robert T. Bartley, senior Democratic member of the commission. If he wins up in the chair, broadcasters can expect tougher regulation than they have been accustomed to.

Since his appointment to the FCC in 1952 Mr. Bartley has made a reputation for dissents. In them and in his speeches he has built a pattern of advocacy of stronger federal control. Here are some excerpts:

- From a 1954 speech in Athens, Ga.: The FCC has a congressional mandate "to inquire into the qualifications of an applicant, the type of programming proposed, the financial qualifications, the question whether the applicant has the requisite character qualifications so that he could be entrusted with a license in the public interest, and the question as to whether or not the grant of a license to a particular applicant would enhance the diversification of ownership of the media of mass communication and, consequently, prevent the development of monopolistic control of the means of communication."

- From a 1957 speech in Washington: "The commission must itself represent the public interest in its deliberations. It must, in fact, be an affirmative defender of the public's right to the best possible communications service in carrying out the mandate of the Congress in this branch of commerce. The commission spends too much time "spinning wheels" over private rights."

- Over the years we have seen a whittling away of the powers of the commission in providing expeditious service to the public." On the FCC's right to look at programming, Mr. Bartley has used some strong language:

  "I think it can be validly stated that the commission not only has the authority to concern itself with program service, but that it has an affirmative duty, in its public interest determination to give full consideration to the use to which broadcast licenses are put." (Italics from original speech.)

Particularly direct are Mr. Bartley's feelings about the right of the FCC to bear down heavily on programming as it involves sponsor identification and fairness in presenting news and controversial issues.

Brake on Sales • Possibly the strongest position Mr. Bartley has taken has been in the realm of station sales and transfers involving multiple owners. Invariably it will be his position that a McFarland letter of inquiry be sent looking toward a hearing.

Here, Mr. Bartley is specific and unyielding. Underlying this position is his long-standing concern about the possible ill effects of absentee ownership or of concentrated control of mass media.

He has explained that these dispositions in transfer approvals involving multiple owners do not indicate he would veto all of them. He just wants all the facts brought out on a record so there will be no mistake about the commission having considered all the dangers he sees inherent in these combinations.

Big Money Bugaboo • Mr. Bartley particularly has looked askance at big money coming into broadcasting. He fears, he has said, "the entry by people more interested in the 'fast buck' than they are in assuming the responsibilities of a licensee; those who don't even know what their obligations are and care less."

During the 1955 controversy over the NBC-Westinghouse stations swap, he led a long and unsuccessful battle within the commission for a complete hearing on the allegations of network pressure, as well as the possibilities of undue concentration.

FCC/WHC Ties • Speculation on Mr. Bartley's appointment for a man under a Democratic president has been built partly on his seniority among Democrats on the commission and partly on his strong political ties to party leaders.

Mr. Bartley is a nephew of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn and close to Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson.

Mr. Bartley says that he does not particularly want the top job. "I am not seeking the chairmanship," he told Broadcasting last week. "No one is urging me to take it."

Mr. Bartley thinks the chairmanship ought to be rotated among all members. "I think each commissioner should be willing to serve his trick in turn."

The rotation system appeals to him because it would tend to remove the FCC, an independent agency, from "too much executive departmental watchdog subcommittee headed by Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough (D-Tex.) added heat to the final campaign weeks by directing all stations to report to it within 24 hours whatever complaints were received. The Yarborough demand brought resentment and confusion, though hundreds sent in reports (Broadcasting, Oct. 31, Nov. 7)."

Station Threatened • The watchdog called into a snarl on election eve when Creekmore Fath, subcommittee majority counsel, called a news conference to announce he had sent a subpoena threat to John W. Boile, president of the North Dakota Broadcasting Co. station group.

Mr. Fath had wired Mr. Boile for scripts and other matter involved in a taped documentary on a state tuberculosis sanitarium and an interview program. Before Mr. Boile had time to answer the wire, Mr. Fath sent a follow-up warning to this effect, "If it is a subpoena you want, rest assured I can provide a subpoena and a federal marshal to serve it." He told newsmen that if Mr. Boile "wants us to do it the hard way, that's the way we will do it."

Mr. Boile told Broadcasting he was "not inclined to accept threats and intimidation." He was assembling material for a complete report to the FCC on the incident, which he said grew out of demands by State Sen. Charles L. Murphy, Democratic candidate for attorney general. Mr. Murphy lost the election. By weekend the Fath-Boile controversy developed into a series of telegraphic exchanges.

It was that kind of a campaign for broadcasters—volumes of minor complaints by highly partisan and disgruntled elements but few incidents of consequence. The equal-time performance will be reviewed by the Yarborough subcommittee on the basis of its material and by the FCC on the basis of formal station reports.

Debates Did It • The Kennedys had ready agreement in their tributes to TV from a group of professional broadcasters who drew the electronic plans and directed their execution.

At the President-designate's side from late July to election day was J. Leonard Reinsch, executive director of the James M. Cox station group. "The first debate did it," Mr. Reinsch commented. He was top TV strategist in his role as...

ment influence."

During Dwight Eisenhower's administration four Republicans have served as chairman of the FCC: Rosel H. Hyde, still a commissioner; George C. McDunnough, who left at the expiration of his term; John C. Doerfler, who resigned under investigation by the House Oversight Subcommittee, and Frederick W. Ford, the incumbent. Mr. Ford presumably would remain as a commissioner. His term continues to 1964.

Barley's Background • The Texas Democrat was born in 1909. He attended Southern Methodist U. before moving to Washington in 1931 to be executive secretary of a House Commerce Committee special staff investigating public utility holding companies. It is from that experience that he now draws his belief that the FCC got a stern set of rules from it has been observing.

He was known for having helped prepare reports, while on the House staff, that became the basis for legislation that created the Communications Act that governs the FCC and the law establishing the Securities & Exchange Commission.

From 1934 to 1937 he served in the FCC as chief of its Telegraph Division. Later he joined the Yankee Network and became a vice president. In 1943 he went to work for the NAB as director of government relations, later becoming head of the association's firm department.

In 1948 he became administrative assistant to Speaker Rayburn and left that job to take the appointment to the FCC.

Mr. Barley is married to the former Ruth Adams of Washington. They have two sons and a girl. They maintain their voting residence at Bonham, Texas.

King's Way • What of the future communications advisor to the candidate (see 'Reich' campaign story page 32).

Leonard H. Marks, Washington communications attorney who served Sen. Lyman B. Johnson (D-Tex.) in a similar role, put it this way: "It wasn't hard thinking of Nixon. The election was won in the first debate when Kennedy personally disposed of the phone-GOP charge that he was immature and showed the result of 14 years in public life."

And Mr. Marks added that Democrats were the "local, state, and regional television. These telecasts reached large numbers of viewers, built interest in Sen. Kennedy and helped bring out the crowds.

Other industry figures prominent in the campaign were: John S. Hayes, president of the Washington Post Broadcast Division, who helped produce Sen. Johnson's "Walks," Edward G. Shenstone, ABC network vice president, Washington office; who took an active role in publicity and promotion in Lyndon Johnson's campaign, and Gilbert L. Burton, vice president-account executive, and Reggie Schuebel, vice president-Democratic timebuyer, both of Guild, Bascom & Bond; advertising agency for the Democratic campaign; Jack Christie, radio/TV director of the Democratic National Committee; Jack Denove, Hollywood film executive, advertising manager of the Kennedy campaign; Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's news secretary, who will be White House news secretary.
The architect of a triumph on television
BROADCASTER REINSCH PLANNED KENNEDY'S USE OF TV

If Sen. Kennedy could not have won the Presidency without television, as he said last week, it may be added that he could not have won without the skillful advice he got from his television consultant.

Late last Thursday the man behind the television triumph of the President-elect was jewelry packed his bags in a Washington hotel and headed for the Atlanta home he has seldom seen during nine months of intensive political work for the Democratic party and Jack Kennedy. J. Leonard Reinsch, executive director of the Cox stations, was winding up a tour that began Feb. 15 when he moved into the Los Angeles Biltmore to manage the Democratic convention.

It was right after Sen. Kennedy won his party's nomination that he asked Mr. Reinsch to join his strategy team. Mr. Reinsch recalled the conversation last week, the candidate said: "Television may be the most important part of the campaign. It may decide the election. Will you handle TV arrangements?"

Mr. Reinsch suggested that Sen. Kennedy make the request of James M. Cox Jr., president of the Cox stations. "Jim said, 'Fine,'" Mr. Reinsch recalled.

Plan Is Formed The campaign strategy was drawn up at the Kennedy home in Hyannis Port, Mass., while the Democratic convention was under way in Chicago.

"I had lunch with the senator," Mr. Reinsch said last week. "He showed me a wire from Bob Sarnoff [NBC board chairman] suggesting a series of debates between the candidates. I recommended unqualified acceptance, leaving details of the programming format to a later date."

Sen. Kennedy conferred with Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), the party chairman, and Pierre Salinger, the candidate's news secretary. "After talking with them," Mr. Reinsch said, "Sen. Kennedy wired his acceptance to Bob Sarnoff and released the wire to the news media. He suggested that Republican representatives get in touch with me. They did, and we started a long series of debate meetings."

Why Debate Worked Mr. Reinsch agrees with other party leaders that the debates were the turning point in the Kennedy campaign.

"The first debate was the big one," Mr. Reinsch recalled. "First, we broke down the Republican charge that Sen. Kennedy was immature. Second, we solidified Democrats who had wondered if Sen. Kennedy was the right choice to defeat the Vice President.

"That debate convinced campaign workers, governors and others that we had a strong, fighting candidate. It scared and shocked Republicans. Our people were inspired.

"I had been flattered in July when the senator asked me to serve as his communications consultant, having greatly admired his campaigning ability last spring as well as his intellectual depth. I, too, was convinced after the opening debate that we had a great candidate."

Traveling Men During the three-month campaign Mr. Reinsch went with Sen. Kennedy on the 49-state itinerary, criss-crossing the nation on grueling trips and taking side jaunts to Washington and other cities when TV debate conferences and planning required. He kept in constant touch with his Washington office through Gloria Coe, his campaign secretary. Often he hopped ahead of the candidate to serve as communications advance man.

That Washington office bore little likeness to the plush quarters occupied by government officials and businessmen. It was a bare, dingy room in an old building at 18th & K, just off the Connecticut Avenue business district. Furnishings consisted of a beatup desk with a chipped glass top several sizes too large, a telephone, a desk chair and three straight chairs.

Rating Fan Sen. Kennedy was interested in TV arrangements and in ratings. "With a few exceptions, the senator had higher ratings than the Republican candidate," Mr. Reinsch said. "He always wanted to see the latest rating reports."

Mr. Reinsch clams up when asked about his professional role in the campaign, but his associates give him credit for the effective way Sen. Kennedy played the microphone, addressed both live and broadcast audiences, and met the demands of TV production people. His voice was alive, his delivery fast and dynamic. The impression was good, surpassing early hopes that he would be a good campaigner.

"One of the most effective telecasts took place in Houston," Mr. Reinsch said. "His appearance before the Protestant ministers' meeting was impressive and we gave it wide TV circulation."

In his appearances with the vice president the Democratic nominee debated as though his political life depended on television. It did, and the debates stirred interest in his personal visits around the country.

Mr. Reinsch sidestepped a question about 1964 debates, but appeared to reflect a belief it was too soon to take a position. So there's a good chance the idea of face-to-face debates will get serious Democratic consideration in 1964.

As to Mr. Reinsch: "I'm ready to go back in the broadcasting business, after a few days rest. That's where I belong. I'm only interested in government or party work if my services are desired on a consulting basis."

The Cox stations are part of a broadcasting-newspaper group founded by James M. Cox, one-time governor of Ohio who ran unsuccessfully as the Democratic presidential candidate in the 1920 election that Warren Harding won. The Cox group now comprises WSB-AM-FM-TV Atlanta, WHIO-AM-FM-TV Dayton and WSOC-AM-FM-TV Charlotte, N. C. The Cox interests and Mr. Reinsch also hold minority ownership in WCIR-WCKT-TV Miami.

President heading the antitrust division, will, as is customary, submit his resignation. It is not believed he will remain in the antitrust division, although there have been some reports that he may connect with another government department. Mr. Bicks' name was one of those also submitted to the Senate by President Eisenhower but was not acted on before Congress adjourned. He is, therefore, also acting as antitrust chief under a recess appointment.

How political shows rated against entertainment

If the television ratings of the major political speeches proved anything, it's that the politicians had a hard time drumming up audiences against established entertainment programming. Of all the half-hours of paid political time on the networks in the hectic last three weeks of the campaign, only two clearly dominated the entertainment shows they were up against. Both of these featured Kennedy the winner but Vice President Nixon the loser. And in both cases Mr. Nixon was appearing in time periods normally occupied by high-rated programs.

In other instances the politicians came off a poor second if not a poor third. This was especially evident in three appearances by President Eisenhower.

These generalizations are based on the American Research Bureau's multicity Arbitron reports on nighttime network viewing in seven major cities from the middle of October until the election eve, windups last Monday night. The analysis is generally confined to evening programs of 30 minutes or longer, thus disregarding the five-minute political inserts frequently tagged on to regular programs that had been booby trapped to make room. Omitted also are daytime political programs, including Mr. Nixon's four-hour "telethon" on ABC-TV (see page 56).

Nixon's High Ratings = The clearest dominance of the ratings, by paid political broadcasts, occurred on Wednesday Nov. 2 and Saturday Nov. 5. On Nov. 2, preempting The Price Is Right on NBC (8:30-9 p.m. EST), Mr. Nixon scored a 15.2 in the multicity Arbitron against a 12.7 on ABC and a 14.0 for Wanted Dead or Alive on CBS. On Nov. 5, appearing on the Gunsight spot on CBS (10:10-10:30), he drew a 20.0 against a 14.4 for ABC's weekly political round-up, The Campaign and the Candidates, and a 14.9 for Zeon on ABC.

Mr. Nixon's formidable margin is a telling indication that, in view of the head-on competition on other networks, the ABC's evening news cast's Huntley-Brinkley newscast's 13.4 on NBC (ABC was not providing network service). And still earlier that same evening, at 6-6:30, against no network programming by the competition, he racked up a 6.8 on ABC, a 6.5 on Nov. 4, at 9-9:30 on NBC, Mr. Kennedy edged out CBS' Presidential Countdown, 9.3 to 8.8, but 'trailing' ABC's 77 Sunset Strip, 24.5. On Oct. 31, on NBC at 8:30-9, he was low man in the time period, 11.3 against 14.6 for Surfside Six on ABC and 13.4 for Bringing Up Buddy on CBS.

He Draws Poorly = President Eisenhower suffered, worse, in those ratings, however. On Oct. 28, at 10-10:30 on ABC he had a 11.1 against 16.3 for Michael Shayne on NBS and 18.4 for Twilight Zone on CBS. On Nov. 1 at 8-8:30 on CBS, he rated 8.0 against 20.0 for NBC's Laramie, and 20.9 for ABC's Rifleman. And on Nov. 4, at 9-9:30 on NBC he came off with 7.7 against 14.3 for CBS Route 66 and 23.4 for ABC's 77 Sunset Strip.

The television audience, for the 10-10:30 p.m. EST, period of three-network coverage of election returns was, the largest ever to witness a single event, American Research Bureau said the past week: The panel, based on 83 million viewers, in 33 million homes.

The previous record, according to ARB, was 75 million viewers in 35 million homes tuned to the first Kennedy-Nixon debate, on Sept. 26.

The figures are based on Arbitron's rating reports, Average election-night time, from the 7:30-11 p.m. period, was placed at 27.5 million homes per average minute, as against the peak half-hour average of 30 million per average minute. ARB did not measure the audiences beyond 11 p.m., its normal nighttime shutoff hour.

NBC-TV Wins With Ratings The report placed NBC-TV first: 62.0 for CBS-TV second: 54.9; ABC third: 47.7. NBC's "Law and Order" was in first place, the report said, while NBC's "The Fugitive" was in second place, the report stated. ABC's "Buckskin Bill" was in third place, the report stated. But news stories were the dominant items of the election.
The last minute Nixon push almost worked

A surprise feature of the closing campaign hours developed Nov. 7 when Republicans sponsored a four-hour telethon on ABC-TV. A program that ordinarily would have taken weeks to prepare was blueprinted, organized and telecast in a two-day period by the originating station, WXYZ-TV Detroit, ABC-owned outlet.

John Pival, station president, was notified at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5, the program would go on the air at 2 p.m. the following Monday. Besides the complex engineering, WXYZ-TV arranged a 150-telephone bank, a studio for 100 telephone operators, a studio for Vice President Nixon, accommodations for 75 working newsmen, space for a dozen teletype machines and clerical facilities.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and Western Union started immediate installation of lines and instruments to handle the anticipated 8,000 phone calls and news dispatches. Actually the total was in excess of 11,000 calls. Station personnel worked Sunday rearranging offices and studios, accumulating over 350 hours of overtime. The publicity staff set up facilities that turned out hundreds of copies of a 121-page account of the telecast.

The Vice President arrived Monday at 1:45 p.m. Everything was ready, including hamburger and pineapple milk shake for the candidate.

Another example of broadcast legerdemain developed in New England at WMUR-TV Manchester, N. H., after the ABC-TV telethon. Sen. Kennedy's aides called the station Monday afternoon, asking the station to clear time for a special telecast 6:45 p.m. The station relayed the program to Boston where it was rebroadcast by the three TV networks.

Several stations around the country took editorial stands on candidates or issues. They offered reply time but nevertheless drew complaints that reached the FCC and the Yarborough subcommittee.

32 hours was sponsored.

It's hardly likely any of the network advertisers could complain about lack of exposure above and beyond the minimum contract terms. For example, Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s numerical breakdown of commercials on CBS-TV: Between 7:30 p.m. and midnight there were 18 Westinghouse commercials totaling 27 minutes; between midnight and 7 a.m. Wednesday, 22 commercials totaling 33 minutes, and from 12:45 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, one commercial of 90 seconds. In addition, the Westinghouse identification symbol was shown a total of 77 times—32 times before midnight, 44 times after midnight to 7 a.m. and once during the Wednesday afternoon election wrapup. On CBS Radio, Westinghouse one-minute commercials were aired 61 times between 7:05 p.m. Tuesday and 5:30 a.m. Wednesday signoff. Westinghouse had been guaranteed a minimum of three hours of election coverage, after which CBS broadcast the commercials at will as long as coverage was uninterrupted. Betty Furness presented her last live commercial for Westinghouse at 7 a.m. Wednesday (see separate story).

ABC-TV's coverage was continuous from 8:30 p.m. Tuesday to 4:30 a.m. Wednesday, resulting in eight Remington Rand commercials on the East Coast; seven Colgate commercials and eight Union Carbide commercials in both the Eastern and Pacific time zones, and a total of 46 commercials for Continental Oil Co. in the Mountain and Central zones. President-elect John F. Kennedy's victory statement in Hyannis, Port, Mass., was carried live on Wednesday by ABC-TV and ABC Radio from 1:39 to 2:06 p.m., 13 hours and 48 minutes after ABC News chief John Daly had, on the basis of returns from key states, declared Sen. Kennedy the victor. ABC-TV actually started its election coverage at 7 p.m., but at 7:30 p.m. the network returned to regularly scheduled programming until 8:30 p.m.

Big Payoff • NBC-TV's 12 hours of continuous coverage in which advertisers reaped extra dividends (7:30 p.m.-7:30 a.m.) resulted in a total of 72 commercials. Five sponsors with one-sixth purchases got 12 commercials apiece. They were Thomas J. Lipton, Brown & Williamson, B. F. Goodrich, Sandura, and Cowles Magazines. Field Enterprises and Remington Rand Electric Shaver Div. of Sperry-Rand, each there were 91,698,000 home hours of election coverage viewing, divided as follows: NBC 51, CBS 38, ABC 11%.

The record figure at 10-10:30 p.m. EST was partially attributable, ARB said, to the fact that the networks were feeding the West Coast live rather than on the normal delayed basis. Between 8:30 and 9 p.m. EST the report showed an audience of 75 million viewers in 28 million homes, but that was before heavy viewing hours had been reached on the West Coast.

The ARB multi-city rating for Mr. Nixon's four-hour afternoon telethon Nov. 7 was 4.9. By quarter-hours it started at 3.0 and built fairly steadily to 5.4 and then jumped to 7.5 for the last quarter-hour. The average rating for the network and local programs opposing him on CBS stations was 7.0; on NBC stations, 6.3.

why 125 million people watch NBC every week

"The Great Debate" was carried identically on all three television networks. More people watched on NBC than on any other network... just as more people watched the conventions on NBC than on any other network... just as more people regularly watch the news on NBC than on any other network. But NBC TELEVISION is many things for the American people. Turn this page for 25 more reasons why NBC reaches 9 out of 10 television homes again and again each week.
THE SAME VITALITY...

NBC TELEVISION provides substantially more hours of program service than any other network, from "The Dave Garroway Today Show" in the morning to "The Jack Paar Show" at night. And the same vitality which has won NBC its clear and decisive leadership in News and Public Affairs audiences characterizes this season's wealth of NBC entertainment programming. Summarized on these pages are programs that set the standards of quality for all of television. Note them well. In combination with the rest of the NBC TELEVISION schedule, this wide-ranging variety of programs helps to show you why 125 million people watch NBC every week.

with a one-twelfth order, got six commercials each. NBC-TV continued its coverage through the Today program (7:30-9 a.m.), making a total of 13½ hours of continuous coverage. NBC News rounded out its election story with a special broadcast that began at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday and ended at 2:11 p.m. It included full remarks of Herbert Klein, press secretary for Vice President Nixon, conceding the election to Sen. Kennedy. It also included the President-elect's acceptance remarks in a remote broadcast from Hyannis Port, Mass.

The RCA 501 was the only computer used by the networks that did not project a Nixon victory (see separate story). One of NBC co-anchorman David Brinkley's quips during the night concerned the RCA 501: "We have just given our electronic brain its two-o'clock feeding of warm election returns."

NBC Radio's uninterrupted election coverage lasted from 7:30 p.m. to 7:30 a.m., while CBS Radio began at 7:05 p.m. and ended at 5:30 a.m. During the mid-morning hours of Nov. 9, all networks continued their vigil for later developments in the uncertain states of California, Minnesota and Illinois.

Mutual Radio led all the networks in continuous election reporting, going from 7:30 p.m. Tuesday until 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. After two hours of regular programming, Mutual resumed coverage at 3 p.m. to keep on top of the critical California situation until 5 p.m. Brief reports were also inserted in regular newscasts. Mutual's anchorman, Taylor Grant, emphasized throughout the night the necessity of being cautious in analyzing returns, trends and in deciding on the victory—whatever Mutual didn't name under confirmation of the Minnesota vote to Sen. Kennedy at noon Wednesday. Mr. Grant said the influence of the broadcast debates between the candidates was made clear in the split ballot situation that developed in many states, where, for example, voters crossed party lines to vote for Sen. Kennedy, but at the same time voted for a Republican governor or congressman. Mutual's sponsor for the network half of the coverage was Oasis cigarettes, which had a total of 80 half-minute and minute commercials.

A fine point in political terminology was brought out by Mutual on Wednesday. MBS newsmen were instructed to call Sen. John F. Kennedy the President-designate until or after Dec. 19, when electors of the electoral college meet in their respective state capitals. Only after they formally cast their vote will they be making the man they represent the President-elect. It's all in the Constitution, Norman Baer, MBS news director, points out.

Will computers replace Huntley-Brinkley in '64?

All three television networks kept electronic computers whirring, stirring and forecasting throughout election night. Judging by the only things they didn't predict was how long it would take to find out who won—and which forecast would prove most accurate.

Viewers interested more in the odds than what the final margin would be or when the outcome would be known could have turned off their sets at 7 p.m. with the assurance that the chances were 10 to 1—for Vice President Nixon. If they had returned to their sets for a quick check two or three hours later they might have been surprised to hear that things had turned around quite a bit and that, at the same moment, Sen. Kennedy was now favored by (a) 5 to 1, and (b) 332.2 to 1.

Before they could have put any money down at either price, however, the odds moved to 250 to 1, then to 100 to 1, 90 to 1, 64 to 1 and then to 333 to 1. According to logs kept by Radio 7V Reports Inc., a monitoring organization retained by RCA for an election night study, a viewer could have gone to bed at 10:33 p.m., 1:22; 3:14; 5:46; 6:29 or 7:02 a.m. (EST) having just been assured—in each case—that the odds for Mr. Kennedy were 333 to 1. If he had trouble with his shoe laces and was delayed a few minutes, however—getting to bed at 10:40, 11:02, 11:45 or 12:11, for example—he could have carried with him the equally firm assurance that the odds were 331 to 1, 90 to 1, 64 to 1 or 100 to 1.

During one 64-minute span early in the evening, from 8:14 to 9:18 (EST), viewers with quick wrists could have learned that the odds favoring Sen. Kennedy were (in chronological order) 11 to 5, 6:30 to 1, 3 to 1, 7 to 5, 22 to 1, 49 to 1, 22 to 1 and 15 to 1, depending on which network they were watching at which moment.

As it turned out, the weight of the odds didn't matter—after momentary lapses—very early in the evening they ran uniformly and, as bookmakers regard such things, heavily in favor of Sen. Kennedy. Moreover the predictions regarding the final votes, popular and electoral, never fluctuated widely despite the erratic variations of the odds.

* Nixon Predictions *  Feeding the first smattering of returns into their computers, both ABC (using a Univac computer) and CBS (IBM 7090) reported early projections of victory for Mr. Nixon. At 7 p.m. ABC said, but with some qualifications, the odds favored the Vice President 10 to 1. Less than a half-hour later CBS said the trend at that point indicated Mr. Nixon would be elected and might get a whopping 459 electoral votes, although CBS noted that its projection was based on "completely inadequate information." At 8:14 the CBS computer got on the winning side, reporting odds 11 to 5 favoring Sen. Kennedy. At 8:44 ABC reported the odds at 7 to 5 favoring Mr. Kennedy.

NBC, using an RCA 501 computer, withheld its first projection until 8:23 p.m., at which time it reported the odds as 6.3 to 1 favoring Sen. Kennedy and projected his popular vote to 51.1% and Mr. Nixon's to 48.9%.

The first electoral-vote projections which NBC reported were over the required 269 as follows, according to the radio-tv reports log:

8:14 p.m.—CBS: Sen. Kennedy 297; Mr. Nixon 240. (Popular vote projection: Sen. Kennedy 51%, Mr. Nixon 49%.)

9:03 p.m.—NBC: Sen. Kennedy 349; Mr. Nixon 188. (Popular vote: Sen. Kennedy 51.4%, Mr. Nixon 48.6%.)

10:33 p.m.—ABC: Sen. Kennedy to have more than 307 electoral votes. (No popular vote projection at that time.)

Which of these "first" forecasts came closest to being right? With or without electronic brains, the tally-keepers still couldn't tell two days later. They were still splitting decimals and waiting for final returns. Sen. Kennedy was ahead by less than one percent of the popular vote and the electoral count stood at 300 for him, 185 for Mr. Nixon and 52 still undecided.

FCC makes last minute rulings on Sec. 315

The American Forum of the Air is not a news program, the FCC stated last week, and is not exempt from the equal time provisions of Sec. 315.

This decision stemmed from a complaint lodged against WBZ-TV Boston by Herbert W. Hill, the New Hampshire Democratic candidate for the Senate running against Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.). Mr. Hill complained to the commission through Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough's election watchdog subcommittee concerning Sen. Bridges' appearance on the American Forum show.

In his complaint, Mr. Hill charged that WBZ-TV had informed him, following a query, that the station considered the program exempt from Sec. 315 equal time provisions and offered him 15 minutes of free time on Oct. 12. However, asserted Mr. Hill, the station also gave Sen. Bridges another 15 minutes of free time on Oct. 19.

WBZ-TV, according to Mr. Hill, reaches two-thirds of the homes in New Hampshire.

Mr. Hill's complaint to the Yarborough committee was forwarded to the commission for review. Last week, the commission said that it did not consider the American Forum of the Air exempt from the Sec. 315 equal time provisions.

Vermont Hook-up  The commission also acted last week on a complaint from the Democratic campaign headquarters in Burlington, Vt. The complaint charged that WCAX-TV Burlington refused its services, facilities and cooperation for a proposed visit to Burlington by Sen. Kennedy. The station, with several Vermont radio stations connected to its microwave, had broadcast an earlier local speech by Vice President Nixon.

The complaint stated that the station was not cooperative in obtaining the same radio connections for Sen. Kennedy's speech. WCAX told the commission that it had made all of its own services available for the Democratic candidate's appearance, but that it could not be responsible for other stations in the area.

The commission told the Burlington Democratic campaign headquarters that WCAX did not refuse its services, that it had taken care to provide equal opportunities for the use of its facilities. "No further action is warranted," the commission said, since WCAX could not be held responsible for soliciting other stations to connect with it for the broadcast.

A challenge to the FCC's primacy in ruling on the equal time provisions of Sec. 315 of the Communications Act was successfully turned back last week by educational WGBH-TV Boston in the U.S. District Court in Boston.

The educational tv station had been attacked by David Franklin, a write-in candidate for election to Congress from Massachusetts's Fifth Congressional District. He claimed the station failed to afford him equal time on a news interview program on which had appeared his Democratic and Republican opponents.

The new programs had been scheduled by WGBH-TV early in the campaign and had consisted of interviews with representatives of Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Nixon, Massachusetts candidates for the U.S. Senate, governor, attorney general, secretary of state and for Congress in five congressional districts.

Last Monday's argument was heard on a WGBH-TV motion to dismiss the complaint because Mr. Franklin had not first asked the FCC for relief. This was granted by federal district Judge Francis Ford. Washington attorney Ernest W. Jennes represented WGBH.

Four broadcasters won't be in the new Congress

Four members of Congress associated with broadcasting will be missing from the 87th Congress lineup next year as a result of last week's elections.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), Senate majority leader whose wife Claudia T. (Lady Bird) Johnson is board chairman and controlling stockholder of KTBC-AM-TV Austin and KRGV-AM-TV Weslaco, both Texas, will resign his Senate seat in January to assume the vice presidency, the nation's second highest office.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), whose wife Agnes V. O'Mahoney owns minority stockholdings in Cheyenne Newspapers, which in turn owns stock in KFBC-AM-TV Cheyenne and satellite KSTF (TV) Scottsbluff, Neb., did not seek re-election this year.

Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.), president and one-third owner of WKNX-AM-TV Saginaw, Mich., which also is permitted for ch. 9 at Alpena, Mich., did not seek re-election to the House. He ran for the Senate but lost to incumbent Sen. Pat McNamara (D-

As long as people are human they will continue to change their minds, their interests, their needs and tastes. And from this gem of wisdom we've arrived at the conclusion that the radio station that stays in tune with the times is bound to get the lion's share of the listeners' time. Right now there is a keen desire for enlightenment. In keeping pace with this trend, WJR emphasizes enlightening programs. The audience response has been overwhelming.

For example: a large group of housewives formed the "Don't Call Between 10 A.M. and 11 A.M." Club. That's when WJR's "Adventures in Good Music" is on the air. Cha-Cha-Cha-inclined listeners have not been abandoned, but good music and its equivalent in informative programs are receiving more and more time. Our listeners demand a finer grade of entertainment and they get it. We never could buy that ridiculous "12-year-old mentality" bit. If you don't either, call your Henry I. Mich.) for the latter's seat in the upper chamber.

Republican Donald C. Bruce, business manager of WIRE Indianapolis, was elected Congressman from Indiana's 11th district, unseating Democrat Joseph W. Barr. Mr. Bruce has been in broadcasting 19 years, holding the positions of program director, business manager and general manager. He joined WIRE in 1948 as a news commentator, was elevated to program director in 1957 and became business manager last year.

Salinger, Landis named in first Kennedy moves

President-elect John F. Kennedy last week said he will carry Pierre Salinger with him into the White House as his official presidential news secretary. In his first White House appointments, he also named Andrew Hatcher, a Negro and California state labor department official on leave, as associate news secretary.

Sen. Kennedy also disclosed he has asked James M. Landis, New York attorney who represented Skatron Electronics & TV Corp. in pay tv proceedings before the FCC, to make a study of federal agencies, including the FCC, and report his findings by Dec. 15. Mr. Landis is a former dean of the Harvard Law School and former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board and Securities & Exchange Commission.

What the politicians paid for television programs

The political parties placed an estimated gross time billing of $2,698,191 on the television networks during the national campaign. This does not include various pre-emptions or out-of-pocket expenses payment for which the parties are responsible. The $2.7 million, however, also is subject to future revisions (stations failing to clear on network line ups or overestimated production charges). Billing and payment of political time are in advance, with rebates made as indicated in revisions.

This is how the Democrats and Republicans split in time and in charges on each of the networks: ABC-TV—Republicans, 6 hours, 45 minutes ($420,650); Democrats, 2 hours ($137,650). CBS-TV—Republicans, 3 hours, 45 minutes ($772,200); Democrats, 2 hours, 25 minutes ($429,200). NBC-TV—Republicans, 3 hours, 45 minutes ($451,531); Democrats, 5 hours ($486,460). The time includes all network programs paid for by the parties including the 5-minute format.

The biggest chunk of time was Vice President Nixon's 2-6 p.m. telethon Nov. 7 on ABC-TV (estimated at some $160,000). Also on ABC-TV that day: a Democratic purchase of 6-6:30 p.m. featuring Sen. Kennedy and an election eve half-hour telecast by the Republicans (Mr. Nixon, Mr. Lodge and President Eisenhower) at 11 p.m. Election eve on CBS-TV featured the GOP half hour followed by the 11-11:30 Democratic rally (Sen. Kennedy in Boston) telecast. CBS-TV also fed stations a 15-minute telecast featuring the Democratic candidate at 6:30-6:45 p.m. if they could clear the time, then, if not in a period close to it. NBC-TV telecast Sen. Kennedy's 15-minute answer to the Nixon telethon at 7 p.m., followed with a Republican telecast (taped repeat of the CBS-TV program) at 11 o'clock.

An expensive purchase by the GOP on Sunday (Nov. 6) was its preemtion of GE Theatre at 9 p.m. on CBS-TV. That program cost the Republicans an estimated $130,000 including repayment of out-of-pocket expenses.

Variations exist in preemption costs charged to political parties. Costs usually are kept to a minimum by the advertiser extending the run of the new programs and cancelling one repeat. This means in effect that the preempted period is placed on the books as one which would have had a repeat show. In some cases—as in the GE Theatre program preemption—a time element interfered and out-of-pocket expenses had to be absorbed by the political party buying the period.

Shulton Inc. does a repeat performance

SETS UP ANOTHER 'FOURTH NETWORK' FOR SPECIAL HOLIDAY SERIES

Shulton Inc., encouraged by its success in sponsoring Race For Space on 105 television stations after being turned down by the three networks, is going ahead with bigger plans in national spot programming.

A five-part, half-hour Shulton Holiday Playhouse will go on the air on 97 stations in prime time beginning Friday Novm. 18, and continuing between the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. The big time-clearing job was handled by the toitley manufacturer's agency, Wesley Assoc., New York, which is busy now with more ambitious plans for next year. What Shulton has in mind for later is seven hour-long specials, but it is still too early to tell more.

The five half-hours of the Shulton Holiday Playhouse are unknown program pilots from the shelves of Desilu, Bernard Shubert Inc. and Cy Howard. They star Lloyd Nolan, Eddie Hodges, Gregory Ratoff, Sam Levene, Margaret O'Brien, Chuck Connors and others. In addition to this phase of holiday advertising for Old Spice men's and Desert Flower women's products, there will be spot radio schedules in major markets three weeks prior to Christmas and TV announcements between the two holidays. The advertising campaign, announced by Frank N. Carpenter, vice president of Shulton, includes stepped up schedules in all media to support the five TV shows.

Clearing Affiliates - All stations in the Playhouse lineup are network affiliates except WPX (TV) New York, KTTV (TV) Los Angeles and WGN-TV Chicago. All are big markets outlets. Charles Amory, vice president of Wesley Assoc., visited nearly half of them personally to contract for the time. Working with a number of assistants, he said the job was five times as complicated as last spring's Race For Space, when Shulton and Wesley worked out the prime-time "fourth network" plan (BROADCASTING, March 28 et seq.). The space show cost Shulton around $90,000; it was reported then, including $92,000 for time. Shulton doesn't want to say what it is paying for the Playhouse, but one item that runs up the bill is buying separate prints for nearly simultaneous showing in each market.

Unlike Race For Space, the Shulton Holiday Playhouse contracts include no re-run deals. Last spring stations got one-time rates for Race and then could have replay rights in exchange for commercial announcements. For this season's five shows Shulton is paying whatever ratecards specify, Mr. Amory said, and is getting promotional support by the stations.

New York audiences are irresistibly drawn to the programs they see on Channel 2. The inevitable outcome: day and night, month-in and month-out, WCBS-TV remains firmly fixed in the number one spot.

The first weeks of the new television season prove the point all over again! In a seven-station market, Channel 2 chalks up an over-all 32.4% share of audience, 34% larger than the second station, 113% larger than the third and 14% larger than all the other stations combined; 18 of the top 25 daytime shows and 20 of the top 25 nighttime shows; more top-rated news, public affairs programming, feature film shows, westerns, variety, dramas, situation comedies than any other station. Source: Arbitron, Oct. 3-22

Shulton is on the networks from time to time and cites as some of its tv "firsts" through the years a Victor Borge special, the Rogers & Hammerstein "Cinderella" musical and others. THE UPS AND DOWNS OF RATE CARDS

Ohio broadcasters hear complaints and suggestions

The problem of deciphering station rate cards to assure a fair buy for the national advertiser was put before Ohio broadcasters by several agency spokesmen last weekend. Appearing before the Ohio Assn. of Broadcasters fall convention in Columbus Nov. 3-4 were Harvey Mann, media manager at H. W. Kastor & Sons, Chicago and Ruth Leach, associate group supervisor, McCann-Erickson, Chicago.

Ruth Leach, associate group supervisor at McCann-Erickson, Chicago, told OAB that while the idea of a single rate card can't be done overnight, it should receive serious consideration from broadcasters. It hardly seems fair, she pointed out, that a national advertiser should pay a higher rate than a local client. In some instances, she pointed out, the national advertiser and its agency have been known to seek out a market with a test campaign and face a higher freight, only to get a lower one because a third or fourth rated station in that market was willing to reduce its rates to get the business.

But in the end, she suggested, the responsibility for defining the single rate in terms of national, regional and local advertisers and, of course, the term "retail" must inevitably fall on the broadcaster. She led a discussion of the problems of radio rate cards.

Harvey Mann, media manager at H. W. Kastor & Sons Adv., Chicago, claimed that perhaps the most important aspect of current rate structures lies in the inequalities of charging equal rates for unequal audiences. "The problem needs primary consideration and begs for an early solution," he asserted.

Mr. Mann cited certain major problems faced by clients and agencies in any decision to use broadcast media. An agency must be able to tell the client's field men "what depth of exposure we will have in a market as local merchandising and promotion is correlated to our planned advertising weight." He told OAB delegates, "If we cannot guarantee or at least approximately anticipate audience, how can we successfully coordinate a total sales effort?"

He also singled out a "mushrooming trend" in tv in which, under certain circumstances, announcements are offered with pre-emptible provisions. Thus, at no time, Mr. Mann claimed, does an advertiser know where his message is being exposed or is be able to determine his total audience.

An agency today is asked nearly every day to approve announcement schedules "where the cost per thousand fluctuates with differences in cost per thousand, ranging all the way up to 300%," he reported, citing certain examples in network tv.

In order to advance the objective of equal audience for equal charges, Mr. Mann suggested, programming responsibility would have to rest solely with network and station management and a universally accepted rating service would have to be evolved.

Mr. Mann recommended a "summit meeting" of various industry groups for the purpose of setting standards that a rating service would utilize and that the industry would adopt.

Selling, buying tv ideas on TvB agenda

Ways to sell television and ways to make it easier to buy—along with some case-history support for both objectives—will be spelled out this week in a series of speeches at the sixth annual meeting of the Television Bureau of Advertising. The meeting will be held Thursday and Friday at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

A new major sales presentation by TvB, "The Progress of Discontent," also will be shown for the first time at a breakfast meeting for some 2,000 agency and advertiser executives and TvB members preceding the Friday morning business session. Leslie B. Worthington, president of U.S. Steel, will discuss "Diagnosis: Economic Myopia," at the Friday luncheon.

The opening meeting, at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, will hear Dwight Shirley, president of Patterson Fletcher, specialty store in Fort Wayne, Ind., submit a long-awaited report on his store's use of television in a "laboratory" test conducted in cooperation with TvB.

Other Thursday afternoon speakers will include Thomas A. Wright Jr., vice president of Leo Burnett Co., on billing discrepancies; Henry McMahan, television advertising consultant, on "A New Approach to Selling the Potential

Television shines with polish and wax business

Makers of floor and furniture polishes and waxes had gross time billings on network and spot television in the first six months of 1960 of $10,406,922, compared with $4,049,000 in the same period of 1958 and $6,133,000 in 1959, Television Bureau Advertising said last week.

While three companies accounted for more than nine out of ten dollars spent in tv advertising two years ago, nearly a dozen wax and polish firms are making major use of the medium today, TVB notes.

S. C. Johnson, which pioneered successfully in the use of television, is still the measure, the bureau said. In the first half of 1960, S. C. Johnson led with gross time billings of $4,751,055. SimoniZ Co.'s $2,710,759 and American Home Products' 952,797 for Aerowax ranked second and third, respectively, according to figures from Leading National Advertisers-Broadcast Advertisers Reports.

Will AFTRA, SAG call contract strike?

QUESTION HANGS HEAVY AS NEGOTIATION OUTLOOK APPEARS 'GLOOMY'

Union and management negotiators were closeted for weekend talk sessions in an effort to reach a new agreement between the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild on one hand and networks and producers of commercials on the other before the deadline at midnight tomorrow (Nov. 15).

Union sources conceded that the outlook was " gloomy" for reaching a settlement by tomorrow, claiming that management negotiators, at the insistence of advertisers and agencies, were refusing stubbornly to offer even moderate increases over present AFTRA scales. Management spokesman declined to discuss the progress of discussions but acknowledged that " we are still far apart."

Officials to one would speculate whether AFTRA and SAG would call a strike. But an AFTRA official observed: "The atmosphere is much more strained that it was two years ago, when we negotiated our last contract. At time, management at least offered increases. It was the amount and certain fringe benefits that were at stake. At the moment management even wants to take away some of the benefits we have in the present pact, such as our international rebate fee on programs, under which the performer gets 45% of his fee when a program is carried through the world."

A complicating factor in the negotiations is that for the first time AFTRA and SAG are negotiating jointly in the area of filmed and tape commercials. In an attempt to equalize fees, the unions decided last summer on this approach and management agreed to sit down with both talent unions. AFTRA holds jurisdiction for live and tape commercials at the networks and stations, while SAG represents performers in tape and film commercials made at film studios. This circumstance has resulted in the unions' insistence on bargaining on the basis of the present AFTRA pact which has a higher fee basis; management, on the other hand, has offered counter-proposals that would raise the present SAG fees but, the unions contend, still fall short of the current AFTRA rates (BROADCASTING, Nov. 7).

Offer Criticized Management is reported to have offered modest increases over the present SAG rates but since these are from 10-15% lower than AFTRA'S current fees, the unions have termed them "highly unsatisfactory."

In turn the unions have sought to introduce a new concept in the crucial spot tv area, called the "unit system," originated by SAG, under which the population of the city in which the commercial is to be carried will be a key factor in determining the cost (BROADCASTING, Oct. 3 et seq.). Management to date has rejected the concept completely though union sources insist: "It's not the concept that actually is at stake; let's face it—it's the money."

The unions initially asked for a formula that would raise national spot rates as high as 1,400%, but subsequent reductions brought their demands to about 300% above the present AFTRA fees. It is understood that the unions have made several offers that would reduce their demands even further, but management still regards them as excessive.

Management, on the other hand, still insists upon bargaining on the basis of the lower SAG rates in the spot commercial field. Union sources contend that the industry "is not bargaining in good faith" in using the SAG base as the starting point.

As is customary in national negotiating, both AFTRA and SAG have sought strike authorizations from their memberships. AFTRA held a meeting in New York last Thursday (Nov. 10) and, as expected, received a vote of confidence from its members to call a strike if necessary. Other meetings were scheduled in Chicago Friday and in Los Angeles yesterday (Nov. 13) and it was a foregone conclusion that AFTRA would receive the strike weapon. SAG started a mail referendum of its membership almost two weeks ago and a vote for strike authorization is expected.

Agency Consent SAG's contract is with the Film Producers Assn. of New York, which acts on behalf of producers of tv film and tape commercials at studios in the East. Agencies sign letters of adherence to the contract. AFTRA's contract will be with the three tv and four radio networks and covers their owned and operated stations. The pact with AFTRA covers live and tape commercials, live and taped programming and radio programs and transcripts.

Though the national spot ("wild spot") is the principal area of contention in talks that began six weeks ago,

BROADCASTING, November 14, 1960
From sign on to sign off during the past 12 months the programs that came before our cameras attracted the biggest audiences in all television . . . as they have consistently done over the past five years . . . and as they show every promise of doing throughout this season.
The negotiators: labor's Conaway, management's Fitts

What kind of men are the respective "Mr. Negotiator" for labor and industry in the talent contract talks? A casual visitor meeting talent's Donald F. Conaway for the first time might guess that he is a successful lawyer or an army colonel. His guess would close.

A tall, solidly built man with a commanding manner, Mr. Conaway rose from private to lieutenant colonel during World War II and now is a full colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. From 1948 to 1956 he served as an attorney with the Chicago law firm of Hensley, Monik & Murray.

But for the past five years, as national executive secretary of the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists, Mr. Conaway has been "father confessor" to more than 16,000 performers in radio and television, including the star personalities as well as the beginners and veterans. As chief union negotiator, Mr. Conaway has maintained an arduous schedule for the past six weeks as AFTRA and SAG attempt to win a new two-year contract with networks and producers.

Mr. Conaway continues hopeful that an amicable settlement will be reached but warns: "We have never struck the networks, but there is always a first time. We think talent has been shortchanged too many years, and when you think of it, talent costs are only a percentage of an advertiser's overall cost in a program or commercial."

No Stereotype • It is fair to say that Mr. Conaway is a distinct departure from the Samuel Goempers school of "fire-eating" labor leaders, though his dedication to the welfare of his members is unswerving. He dresses conservatively in clothing of dark hues and speaks with a cultivated baritone voice that can be gentle as well as authoritative. Mr. Conaway projects an image of solidity and, like many business executives, he commutes from New York to his home in Stamford, Conn., carrying a well-stocked attaché case.

He appears typical of the growing coterie of lawyer-trained executives in the talent field, which also includes such officials as Herman Kenin of the American Federation of Musicians; Hy Faine of the American Guild of Musical Artists and John Dales and Harold Hoffman of the Screen Actors Guild. Mr. Conaway believes a background in law is highly useful in coping with the deepening complexities of broadcasting contracts and contract administration.

He credits Prof. Willard Wirtz of the Northwestern U. School of Law, an authority on labor law, with whetting his interest in that field. Armed with a law degree in 1948, he joined Hensley, Monik & Murray and soon was named to handle legal activities for one client, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. In 1955 when AFTRA was combining the country to find a successor to the late George Heller, who had been a co-founder and national executive secretary of the union, Mr. Conaway's employer wrote this recommendation: "For the past seven years Don Conaway has demonstrated outstanding ability as a trial lawyer and labor negotiator and has acquired a searching knowledge of labor law." He got the job.

Mr. Conaway, 41, was born in Newton, Kan., and attended Bethel College there and the U. of Southern California for his pre-law work. He enjoys boating on Long Island Sound with his wife and son, John, 3½. His daughter, Victoria Ann, 21, is married and lives in Texas. Like many executives, Mr. Conaway complains mildly that he is "away from home too much." In the past year he has flown more than 75,000 miles on union business.

Management's Man • A colleague once struck up a conversation with William C. Fitts Jr., vice president and director of labor relations for CBS, about an obscure episode in U.S. history concerning the Know-Nothing Party. He was floored when Mr. Fitts disclosed for half an hour about the incident, weaving in detailed background information to the event.

It was understandable that his associate was overwhelmed because (1) Mr. Fitts does not flaunt his knowledge willy-nilly; (2) he is usually taciturn, and (3) he had never before given an indication that he was so knowledgeable about American history. His colleague pointed out: "Mr. Fitts rarely talks that long—unless the subject really interests him."

The adjectives that both management and union officials use to describe Mr. Fitts include "unpretentious," "closed-mouthed," "unapproachable," "deliberate," "tough," "fair," "self-controlled."

Newsmen who have been trying to pry information from him about the progress of negotiations with AFTRA and SAG are likely to be greeted politely but briskly and the sum of his conversation will be: "There isn't much we can say. It's too early to tell. That's all I can say now."

AFTRA also is seeking increases in program fees on television and for sporcasters on radio.

The American Assn. of Advertising Agencies has an official observer at the negotiating meetings and the Assn. of National Advertisers is represented by an unofficial observer.

In the event that a strike should materialize, it would affect actors, singers, dancers, announcers and models who appear on radio and television networks and on filmed, tape and live tv commercials and on transcribed commercials. There was no estimate as to the number of performers who may be involved as many are on a casual basis.

Industry Reaction • In Chicago, Ward L. Quaal, vice president and general manager of WGN-AM-TV, that city, and chairman of NAB's Labor Relations Advisory Committee, said Thursday the unions' demands would, if met, bring an "astronomical increase" in the cost of producing tv commercials for spot use. He charged they constitute "a grave disservice to both the television industry and to many members of both AFTRA and SAG."

Mr. Quaal claimed the increases would "seriously reduce" tv's ability to compete with other media and lead advertisers to buy fewer stations, make fewer commercials and utilize less talent. He urged the unions to "reconsider these extreme demands and make new proposals which will not upset the delicate balance among advertisers, the television broadcasting industry, and the AFTRA-SAG relationship."

Text of Mr. Quaal's statement follows:

"If the demands of AFTRA (American Federation of Television and Radio Artists) and SAG (Screen Actors..."

industry is obviously the major interest of all the parties concerned. Increases of the magnitude demanded can only damage the growth of our industry and lessen substantially employment opportunities for the members of both AFTRA and SAG. CBS Inc. sales up, but income is down

CBS Inc. net sales for the first nine months of 1960 rose by more than $18 million over the corresponding period of last year, but net income dipped by more than $2 million from the corresponding 1959 earnings, according to a report issued last week by William S. Paley, CBS board chairman, and Dr. Frank Stanton, president.

Net income for the first nine months of this year totaled $15,496,000, as against $17,497,000 for the comparable 1959 period, and net sales amounted to $336,582,000, up from $318,291,000 for the first nine months of 1959. The reason for the decline in income despite the increase in sales, the report showed, was that the cost of sales and selling, general and administrative expenses increased by almost $22 million this year over those for the 1959 period. Current earnings were said to be equivalent to $1.85 per share, compared with $2.09 per share (adjusted for stock dividend) for the first nine months of 1959.

The CBS board of directors declared a stock dividend of 35 cents per share on its common stock, payable Dec. 9, 1960, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 25. The board also declared a stock dividend of 3%. No fractional shares will be issued in connection with the stock dividend, but stockholders will receive non-transferable order forms for their interest in fractional shares. The stock dividend will be paid on or about Dec. 19, 1960, to holders of record at the close of business No. 25.

Clarence H. Hopper, recently appointed president of the CBS Electronics Div., was elected to the board of directors at last week's meeting.

'Television' magazine purchase completed

BROADCASTING's purchase of Television magazine was formally effected last week. The purchase agreement had been announced two weeks earlier. (BROADCASTING, Oct. 31), subject to customary audits.

Television was purchased from the estate of Frederick A. Kugel, publisher and founder of the magazine, by Broadcasting Publications Inc., the corporation that owns BROADCASTING. Upon completion of the purchase, Sol Taishoff, president of Broadcasting Publications and of the subsidiary corporation formed to own Television, announced that a program of editorial expansion of Television was put into effect immediately. The January issue of the monthly Television will be the first to be published under the new ownership.

Both BROADCASTING and Television will be published under the policy direction of the executives of Broadcasting Publications Inc. These are Mr. Taishoff, who is editor and publisher as well as president; Maury Long, vice president and general manager; Edwin H. James, vice president and managing editor; Irving C. Miller, comptroller, and John P. Cosgrove, director of publications, circulation and readers' service.

Mr. Taishoff also announced last week the promotion of Winfield R.
Most national and local advertisers of all Pittsburgh TV stations!

Most top-rated news shows of all Pittsburgh TV stations!

Most public service awards of all Pittsburgh TV stations!

WHICH MEANS THE MOST (to us and to you???)

The answer is number 3. We recognize that without advertisers we'd go broke. And that without top-rated news shows, we wouldn't have the audience that pulls advertisers.

But to keep top ratings in a market where two other channels compete, we believe you have to serve the personal needs of your listeners...the everyday problems, big and little. Meeting them makes the difference between a community you enjoy living in, and one you simply put up with.

We've met them...as shown by the Thomas Alva Edison, Alfred P. Sloane Safety, and Freedoms Foundation awards...as well as special recognition from the District Attorney, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and many, many other civic groups.

That, we think, is what prompts people to turn to KDKA-TV more consistently than to any other station. It builds confidence in the products advertised on KDKA-TV, too.
Survey shows fm set ownership increasing

60% OF NEW YORK HOMES ARE EQUIPPED TO RECEIVE FM

FM set ownership is on the rise, both inside and outside the home.

That's the gist of a survey conducted by FM Broadcasting System Inc. among its 61 affiliated stations and announced the past fortnight by Sidney J. Wolf, president of the national fm network and sales representative firm. FMBS is a subsidiary of Keystone Broadcasting System, sales and transcription organization also headed by Mr. Wolf. All FMBS affiliates also belong to the National Assn. of Fm Broadcasters.

The study shows that 1) two out of every three FMBS stations report between 31% and 50% of families in their markets have fm receivers, and 2) that the number of fm receivers outside the home is rising rapidly as business concerns install single or multiple fm units. Mr. Wolf described the findings as "representative of national fm patterns."

Other findings:

- Most of the FMBS stations are located in areas where nearly one-third to one-half of homes have fm receivers, with 63% reporting between 31% and 50% homes as fm-equipped. The 61 FMBS stations are located in 28 states, the greater proportion in major markets.
- Eighteen percent report less than 20% fm saturation; another 18% between 21% and 30%; 29% from 31% to 40%; 34% from 41% to 50%; and 1% over 50% saturation. Highest fm penetration: 60% for New York, with WRFM (FM) estimating a total of 2.5 million households. Other cities: Los Angeles — 1,066,753; Chicago — 900,000; Philadelphia — 800,000; Baltimore — 650,000; San Francisco — 404,000; Boston — 366,955; Houston — 163,310; San Diego — 137,557; Kansas City — 136,000.
- The study showed average tune-in of between six and seven hours per household per day, though many station managers reported some listeners with their fm sets on "all day." Stations also noted sizable gains in the installations of fm receivers in hospitals, industrial and business offices, motels and other establishments.

Affiliates’ convention agenda set by NBC

Final program plans for the annual convention of NBC radio and television affiliates, to be held Wednesday and Thursday (Nov. 16-17) in New York, were being put into shape late last week.

The meeting opens with a session for radio affiliates Wednesday morning, followed by a tv affiliates meeting Wednesday afternoon. The television session will continue Thursday morning with a programming and sales presentation by Don Durgin, sales vice president, and David Levy, programs and talent vice president.

An address by Robert W. Sarnoff, NBC board chairman, at the Thursday luncheon is expected to be one of the convention highlights. Another will be the Wednesday luncheon, with reports by NBC’s newsman.

Mr. Sarnoff, President Robert E. Kintner and Walter Scott, executive vice president in charge of the tv network, and William K. McDaniel, vice president in charge of the radio network, will head the network participants in the respective tv and radio meetings.

A question-and-answer session with both affiliates and network executives participating is slated to wind up the convention Thursday afternoon. The meetings will be held at the Plaza Hotel.

KIFI-TV to join NBC-TV

KIFI-TV Idaho Falls, Idaho, new station operating on ch. 8, becomes an NBC-TV affiliate effective Dec. 15, according to a joint announcement by James M. Brady, president of Eastern Idaho Broadcasting & Television Co., owner of station, and Harry Bannister, vice president, station relations for NBC.

Where the 3 networks have equal facilities, where the people have a 3-way choice, most homes watch ABC-TV most of the time. The chart on the left nails that proposition down beyond quibble. But it doesn't give you the whole story. For the time in question (week ending October 30) ABC had 26 firsts out of 51 half hour periods, more than the other two combined. Network Y had 14, Network Z, 11. In the nights-of-the-week department, ABC led with 4 out of 7. Network Y took 2, Network Z, 1. On a program basis ABC had the highest rated program and 3 out of the top 5. It's smart to do business with ABC TELEVISION
NAB MEETS IN FINAL ROUNDS

FCC chairman headlines Washington conference, series will conclude in New York and Chicago

NAB starts the final leg of its Full Conference series today (Nov. 14) at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Washington, with Chairman Frederick W. Ford of the Federal Communications Commission as guest speaker.

A Republican appointee, Chairman Ford's address may have post-election overtones. He speaks at the Nov. 15 luncheon, last event of the Washington meeting.

The conference series began Oct. 13 in Atlanta, followed by similar meetings for the NAB membership in Dallas, San Francisco, Denver and Omaha. The two final meetings of the series will be held Nov. 21-22 in Chicago and Nov. 28-29 in New York.

Keynote address of the Washington conference will be delivered at today's luncheon by Clair R. McColough, Steinman Stations, chairman of the three-man NAB Policy Committee. The committee has been represented at all five earlier conferences.

Opening the meeting will be a joint radio-tv session titled "People—and Profits." Howard H. Bell, NAB vice president for industry affairs, will preside. On the program are William Carlisle, NAB station relations manager; John M. Couric, public relations manager, and James H. Hulbert, broadcast personnel-economics manager. Dr. Bruce A. Linton, president of Assn. for Professional Broadcasting Education, will discuss joint NAB-APBE efforts to train qualified employees for the industry.

More Politics • Monday afternoon will be devoted to a "Broadcasters and Politics" session with Vincent T. Waszowski, NAB government affairs vice president, presiding. Others taking part in the discussion will be Mr. Bell; John F. Meagher, NAB radio vice president, and Charles H. Tower, tv vice president.

Separate radio and television meetings will be held the morning of Nov. 15. Robert B. Jones Jr., WFBR Baltimore, a member of the NAB Radio Code Board, will discuss the expanded radio code program. Robert Hyland, KMOX St. Louis, will give a forecast on radio in the next decade.

At the separate tv session Louis Hausman, director of Television Information Office, will discuss the "image asset" of television. E. K. Harten-bower, KCVO-TV Kansas City, chairman of the Tv Code Review Board, will join Edward H. Bronson, tv code director, in a review of code activities. A Television Bureau of Advertising presentation will cover the future of television.

The Chicago meeting Nov. 21-22, to be held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, will have E. C. Quinn, sales vice president of Chrysler Corp., as guest speaker at the closing luncheon. The similar spot at the New York meeting, to be held Nov. 28-29 at the Biltmore Hotel, will be filled by Arthur E. Motley, president of Parade Publications as well as the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

NAB's new president-elect Gov. LeRoy Collins of Florida, is not taking part in the conference series. He will send a message to each meeting. Gov. Collins takes over at NAB Jan. 4 after his gubernatorial term ends.

Gavel time • The American Bar Assn. has announced that the deadline for its annual Gavel Awards is April 1, 1961. Materials published, broadcast or produced during the one year period ended Feb. 15, 1961 will be considered for this year's awards. Detailed information is available by writing to the ABA, 1155 E. 60th St., Chicago, III.

NLRB orders vote • An election to be held by Nov. 26, covering film editors of Hartford (Conn.) Phonevision Co., WHCT (TV), has been ordered by National Labor Relations Board. The station is owned by RKO General Inc. Film editors will vote for or against International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as bargaining representative.

Out of print • The Detroit Times ceased publication Nov. 7. The Times plant, printing equipment and other physical assets were sold to the Detroit News. The newspaper was one of the Hearst publications and had been in business for 60 years. Hearst broadcast interests include WBAL-AM-FM-TV Baltimore; WISN-AM-FM-TV Milwaukee; WCAE-AM-FM and WTAE (TV) Pittsburgh. Detroit News, purchaser of the Times plant, is published by the Evening News Assn., licensee of WWJ-AM-FM-TV Detroit.

New discount rate • KROY Sacramento, Calif., has announced a new advertising agency cash discount (on rate card No. 5) of 2% if the account is paid by the 20th of the following billing. The plan goes into effect Dec. 1. The idea is the brainchild of KROY's general manager Bill Weaver who felt that agencies were not being compensated properly.
High sensitivity and high signal output of RCA-4401 make possible quality color pictures at black-and-white light levels.

Now every TV studio can be made into a color studio. RCA-4401 eliminates the need for extra lighting and air conditioning. It produces high-quality color pictures with a scene illumination of 150 footcandles. Satisfactory color pictures can be obtained with a lens opening of f/5.6 at scene illumination as low as 40 footcandles.

A single color camera equipped with RCA-4401’s can put you in business. It can be used in the studio or taken to remote locations and operated as light levels change from daylight through dusk to artificial lighting. These versatile tubes have been successfully used to colorcast night sports events at light levels once adequate for black-and-white pickup only.

Designed to fit color cameras using 3-inch image orthicons, the 4401 is unilaterally interchangeable with RCA types 6474 or 7513. RCA-4401’s are provided in factory-matched sets of three, including one tube preselected for the blue channel. Availability is no problem; the RCA-4401 is in full production.

HAUSMAN ISSUES CALL TO ACTION
Says public, advertisers have duty to help improve TV

The public can do something about television programming aside from just griping about it. So can advertisers. In fact, they have a responsibility.

On this theme Louis Hausman, director of the Television Information Office, told members of the Rotary Club of Baltimore last Tuesday that they and other “citizens at the community level” might do three things “to encourage broadcasters in doing what they think useful and discourage those programs they think not useful”.

“...You can cultivate discrimination and discipline for yourself and your family.” This, he said, means taking a positive attitude by finding out what programs are going to be available for viewing, and by developing in children certain “standards of evaluation and criticism.” Parents and school board members, he said, should encourage schools to use TV programs as an adjunct to teaching and thus also help raise the critical level of students.

“...As an advertiser you can support by sponsorship public affairs programs which contribute to understanding of current issues and problems.” He told the Rotarians that “you will find, as [a number of national advertisers] have found, that there is an identity and a value to sponsorship of such programs among people who could be your most important customers.”

As advertisers, “...if you have any say-so on the subject of commercials you can employ the very taste and restraint which you would like to see exercised in the programming itself.” He warned that ads acceptable in print media are not necessarily acceptable in television. “...You can't take advantage of the greater impact of television advertising without realizing that it has a greater capacity to offend or annoy than print advertising, which can be passed over more readily.”

In his speech Mr. Hausman, who was introduced at the meeting by E. K. Jett, vice president and television director of WMAR-TV Baltimore, took issue with critics who contend that television programming is aimed too much at the masses and that in fact viewers have little choice of fare.

“I submit that the discriminating viewer does have quite a wide choice if he will only exert the smallest fraction of effort to find out just what is on television,” Mr. Hausman declared, ticking off some 60 hours of “better” programming available to Baltimore viewers during the rest of this month.

“The value to our society of popular media such as Life magazine and television is based on their broad appeal. It is this which has given them their wide circulation and their opportunity to broaden the base of our culture...”

“It is because Life magazine provides a steady diet of movie stars, athletes and human interest stories that it can, from time to time, publish a story on the origin of species or color photos of the great masterpieces of Western art. ... Likewise, it is the steady bread-and-butter programming which has created the almost universal television set ownership in this country and which has built the pattern of viewing that keeps the television sets in working order. It is because some 50 million people watch Gunsmoke that six to seven million people watched Walter Lippmann. It is this habit of attention that brought 73 million people to watch and listen to Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy in their joint discussions.”

NABET withdraws Corinthian charge
An unfair labor practice charge against KXTV (TV) Sacramento, Calif., has been withdrawn by National Assn. of Broadcast Engineers & Technicians, according to announcement Nov. 10 by Herman W. Land, Corinthian Broadcasting Corp.

A notice of the NABET withdrawal was received by Robert Salk, acting general manager of the Corinthian station. He was sent this message by Gerald Brown, regional director of National Labor Relations Board: “This is to advise you that the charge on the above matter has, with my approval, been withdrawn without prejudice.”

Both union and station met Nov. 9 before a federal conciliator but no settlement was reached in the dispute. KXTV has continued on the air since a Sept. 26 walkout by NABET and American Federation of Television & Radio Artists. The unions charged unfair labor practices. Two bomb incidents have been reported (Broadcasting, Oct. 24).

31 stations join RAB
Radio Advertising Bureau announces three prominent radio station groups were among the 31 stations to become RAB members during the addition of the Star Stations (KICN Denver, KISN Portland and KOIL Omaha); the Stanley Hubbard Stations (KSTP Minneapolis-St. Paul, WGTO Cypress Gardens, Fla., and KOB Albuquerque); and the Buckley-Jaeger group (WDRC Hartford, WHIM Providence and KGIL San Fernando, Calif.) will add $29,000 to the bureau’s annual income.

COURT DENIES WCAN SUIT AGAINST CBS

Not guilty of conspiracy or trade restraint in 1955 deal

A 2-1 decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last week found CBS innocent of conspiracy in restraint of trade and of monopolistic practices in the network's 1955 purchase of television equipment from Lou Poller's WCAN-TV Milwaukee (ch. 25) and transfer of CBS-TV affiliation to the network's newly-purchased WOKY-TV Milwaukee (ch. 19).

The court thus denied Mr. Poller's appeal of a 1959 order by the U.S. District Court in Washington granting a summary judgment and dismissing his triple damage suit for $1,450,000 against CBS.

Chief Judge Wilbur K. Miller and Judge E. Barrett Prettyman held CBS' purchase, at Mr. Poller's request, of WCAN-TV equipment for $500,000 was brought about, not by illegal means, but because Mr. Poller unwisely contracted for the equipment with the unreasonable expectation that CBS would continue its affiliation with him; that the network insisted on a six-month cancellation clause and legally exercised its right of choice in switching affiliation to WOKY-TV, which it had bought from Bartell Broadcasters.

There was no conspiracy between consultant Thad Holt, who obtained an option from Bartell to buy WOKY-TV, and Bartell, since Bartell didn't know Mr. Holt was acting for CBS, the appeals court held. Neither was there any conspiracy between CBS and its owned CBS-TV, since a corporation cannot conspire with itself, they said. Since Mr. Poller's action was voluntary, no restraint of trade was involved.

Position Irrelevant • The judges saw no monopoly in CBS' purchase of WOKY-TV for $335,000; its purchase of WCAN-TV equipment for $500,000, which included transfer of Bartell equipment to WCAN-TV; and its subsequent attempt, and failure, to make a go of uhf in Milwaukee with WOKY-TV (later WXIX-TV) against vhf competition. They said Mr. Poller had indicated he would operate with the Bartell equipment, though he didn't. Even if CBS were monopolizing, Mr. Poller's loss was caused by his own "improvidence" in contracting for equipment to use a network affiliation "he knew he did not have."

Judge George T. Washington in his dissent said the lower court erred in giving summary judgment and that a jury trial should have been ordered. He said Mr. Poller is entitled to a trial, though his case might be hard to prove if allegations made by CBS were true.

He felt there can be conspiracy within a corporation. He thought the CBS action was "highly damaging" in a competitive sense. CBS, he said, by its action eliminated both Mr. Poller and Bartell from uhf broadcasting in Milwaukee, thus reducing competition.

Discouraged uhf • CBS also could have scared and discouraged potential uhf operators elsewhere by waiting for Mr. Poller and Bartell to develop uhf in Milwaukee and then using its economic and contractual power to establish itself there in their stead, he said.

Judge Washington felt the case against CBS, if proved, would be even stronger than the charges against RCA-NBC in the Philadelphia-Cleveland station swap with Westinghouse Broadcasting.

"Certainly," he said, "there are substantial indications that CBS had monopoly power over uhf in Milwaukee at the time it cancelled Poller's affiliation."

FCC bows to court order on Boston case

The FCC yielded last week to an order by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington which puts the court in the position of reviewing the commission's action in the Boston ch. 5 case.

Most observers had expected the agency to appeal the court's order of Oct. 7—staying the agency's July 14 decision in the case and directing the FCC to make no disposition of the case without first telling the court its intentions—on grounds such court supervision makes a mockery of the commission's supposedly "independent" role in government regulation.

What it all boiled down to last week was that the FCC told the court it plans to do exactly what the commission ordered last July 14; namely, to reverse a special hearing examiner's proposal to reaffirm the FCC's April 1957 grant of ch. 5 to WHDH Boston, set aside the grant to WHDH, chalk up black marks against WHDH and another applicant (Massachusetts Bay Telecasters), "re-evaluate" the applicants on the record up to now and "make a new determination." The other applicant is Greater Boston TV Corp. (Allen B. DuMont Labs., a fourth applicant has withdrawn.)

In its Oct. 7 order the FCC was reminded by the court that the latter's order of July 31, 1958, remanding the case for rehearing also directed that the court be advised of findings and recommendations in the ch. 5 case; the FCC's July 14 order "altered" the status quo, the court said (Broadcasting, Oct. 17).
Give jagged nerves break: Tune in soothing Broadway After Dark

By Robert E. Lee, News radio-TV editor

Are you one of those who are hooked, and I mean bad, to the extent that if you don't have your daily shot of TV your eyes become clear instead of teary, the pain goes from your back as you move around without sitting for hours before the black box with the changing eye? Well, Mr. Addich, it's time you took a break, not a full cure, of course, but an hour or so of relief. After the dishes are done tonight instead of plopping down into that easy chair click on that radio about 7:35 to WAPI and listen to some good music.

The program Broadway After Dark tonight, for example, will present The Sound of Music, a hit show from Broadway. Your host is Jim Lucas. It's kinda nice, believe me, I took the break last night and heard The Flower Drum Song.

Lucas is a very talented guy, so much so that he is under contract with NBC.

After an hour of Broadway music Lucas takes you pub hopping, catching entertainment from the brighter spots on the Great White Way, all via your magical radio.

Well, it seems when he was in Spain filming some bullring shots for a special show, Paar draped himself in fighting togs and prepared to tussle with a friendly milk giving cow.

Instead, someone, probably an irate fan from the states, let loose a real fighting bull. Needless to say, Paar didn't fight, or shoot, the bull but ran for the exit. He suffered a couple of bumped ribs from the expose, shots of TV a black eye. Instead, let loose a fan, a real fighting or shootle of TV, with the time you took a break from Broadway.

Instead, it's an hour or so of your self in fighting a cow. Are you friendly milk giving probably bull. Are you done tonight instead of a full cure, of course, but an hour or so of relief. After the dishes are done tonight instead of plopping down into that easy chair click on that radio about 7:35 to WAPI and listen to some good music.

Jim Lucas' popular BROADWAY AFTER DARK is the sort of show people have come to expect from WAPI. It's a typical example of the way WAPI delivers the programs that deliver the audience!

What the FCC's G-2 unit is up to

The FCC's new intelligence agent came out from behind the beard for the first time last week to talk about what he and his staff have been doing. One example of their work had come to light a week before when the FCC filed a license revocation proceeding against KWK St. Louis, on charges of conducting fraudulent contests (BROADCASTING, Nov. 7). Last week a wider look at the operations of the Complaints & Compliance Division was provided by its chief, John C. Harrington.

To judge by Mr. Harrington's description of his caseload, the FCC's G-2 division of 19 persons is amply staffed. In the two months that the division has been operating it has received a grand total of 95 complaints, many of them on subjects over which the FCC has no authority and some of them plainly from the lunatic fringe.

Trickle of Business • Complaints serious enough to warrant investigation are in the minority, Mr. Harrington said last week. Most are like the letter from a man who testily demanded that the FCC put the quiz shows back on television.

Several baseball fans complained when a Chicago station cut away from a game in the 10th inning to honor a commitment to broadcast a horse race feature sponsored by a beer distributor. Later, when the station cut into a symphony program to play a tape of the 10th inning, several music lovers sent objections to the FCC.

When CBS Radio announced it was eliminating daytime serials, a few housewives asked the FCC to keep the weepers on the air.

A scattering of protests came in when David Susskind interviewed Nikita Khrushchev.

One woman complained to the commission that a station failed to carry a program at the hour it was listed in a newspaper log.

The Caseload • Right now, Mr. Harrington said, his Complaints & Compliance Division has 12 cases under active investigation.

One was started after receipt of a complaint, accompanied by a tape recording of a disc jockey on a western station saying: "If you don't like my choices [of records] you can kiss my ass. It's tied up outside the studio."

Another was based on a complaint that a station was carrying a program using records provided by a local record distributor. The program is entitled The [distributor's name] Parade of Hits. The question under investigation there is whether the show ought to be identified as a sponsored program in accord with the FCC's sponsor identification rules.

Mr. Harrington would not identify the sources of these complaints, but he said, speaking generally, that his division had found that complaints divided into three main categories—the public, disgruntled employees of stations and rival broadcasters.

Contest Problems • Among the dozen cases now actively in work are some resulting from complaints about rigged contests. The KWK action, which was the first to result from the investigations of Mr. Harrington's division, arose that way. The FCC has charged that KWK misrepresented contests in several ways. In a treasure hunt featuring a prize of diminishing value, the station did not hide the prize until late in the contest, the FCC alleged. In other contests requiring that winners telephone the station within 60 seconds of an announcement, participants found the switchboard busy until the time limit had passed. In still other contests, according to the charges, the station misrepresented prizes. KWK has denied all the allegations.

The rest of the cases now under investigation involve payola, Mr. Harrington said. In addition, his division inherited a stockpile of payola information that had been collected by the FCC's Broadcast Bureau before the G-2 division was formed. Gradually Mr. Harrington's staff is sifting through the stockpile and disposing of cases that seem unworthy of pursuit.

At one time the FCC had some 600 stations on temporary license, the bulk of them because of payola questions raised by investigations at the House Oversight Subcommittee and the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Harrington says that there are now "between 100 and 200" payola cases left to be screened.

G-2 Setup • The Complaints & Compliance Division, with Mr. Harrington at the top, is divided into two branches, one screening complaints and the other carrying out investigations. Each branch has six professional staff members, mostly lawyers, in the $9,000-per-year-and-up pay bracket. The whole division has six stenographers and clerks.

All broadcasting complaints the FCC gets—except those dealing with political broadcasting—now are directed to Mr. Harrington's division. There they are screened by the complaints branch. Many never get beyond that stage. If complaints deal with matters outside FCC jurisdiction, the complaints branch tells the complainants so and suggests they write the station or the advertiser.

If the complaints strongly suggest that irregularities have taken place—say, a listener complains that he sent money for merchandise that he never received—the complaints branch asks the station for an explanation. In most instances, the station replies are enough to settle the matter. The explanations are sent to the complainants and nothing more is done, unless the complainants challenge the explanation.

If the complaints branch thinks a case is worthy of deeper inquiry, the investigation branch goes into action.

Thorough Search • Mr. Harrington's investigators are under orders to check all logical sources on any case. Thoroughness has exonerated some suspects. One case, which the investigators thought was built on airtight evidence of a fraudulent contest, was abandoned when careful checking of the key witness turned up a history of crackpot acts.

After an investigation is completed on a case that the G-2 division thinks is sound, the results are submitted to the full FCC. It is the responsibility of the commission, not Mr. Harrington's division, to decide whether punitive proceedings ought to be begun.

Mr. Harrington said that several in-
The most important minute in radio is, naturally, your commercial. And KBIG's new sales-minded personalities now make it sound bigger, better, more believable. Joe Niagara, Jim O'Leary, and Bob Gage make even small budgets on KBIG the biggest buy in Southern California radio...at an average 71% less cost than stations with comparable coverage. This new Selling Sound of Radio Catalina is promoted by newspaper, outdoor, bus, and mail advertising throughout the Los Angeles area. Ask your KBIG or Weed rep for a tape and new fact folder.
vestigations will be submitted to the FCC before Christmas.

Two Worlds • In his two months of intelligence work Mr. Harrington has decided that broadcasters divide into two groups. One deserves the name "broadcasters," he says. The other he calls "licensors."

The broadcaster is a station owner who is sincerely interested in doing a profession job.

The licensor is the Joe who's got a piece of paper, who's out to make some bucks quick and who is looking for a buyer for his station, all at the same time."

In FCC records broadcasters outnumber licensees nearly 50 to 1. That measurement can be calculated, says Mr. Harrington, by a survey of station folders in the commission's "complaint file."

About two-thirds of the some 4,800 stations on the air are represented by at least one complaint in the commission's complaint file. Most of the representations are innocuous. But about 100 station folders in the file are bulging.

When Mr. Harrington's division gets a complaint, it checks the station folder. If the folder is fat, the division's interest is immediately aroused. It assumes it is dealing with one of the 100 "bad actors," as Mr. Harring describes them.

Things to Come • What of the future of the Complaints & Compliance Division? Obviously some members of the FCC would like to see its work expanded. In its present form it is a smaller operation than they would like.

When FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford submitted his budget request, he asked for $300,000 for the unit. Congress gave him half that amount.

Mr. Harrington spoke last week of hopes for eventual development of intense investigation of major subjects like trafficking in station licenses, unauthorized transfers of station control, hidden ownerships. Ultimately, he said, the division might even survey listeners to find out what they think of stations.

Meanwhile, he is contenting himself with projects within his budget. One is an attempt to effect a working relationship with the NAB.

New alert system keyed to AP, UPI

A new and instantaneous Conelrad alerting system which will tie virtually every radio and TV station in the United States directly to the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo., was announced last week by FCC Commissioner Robert E. Lee.

The heart of the new system is the use of AP and UPI teletype lines to transmit a special tone signal. This will automatically trigger the Conelrad alert mechanism at each station which subscribes to any of these two news services. The alert signal will be initiated at the Colorado Springs command post.

Equipment to establish the new system is officially to be supplied to each station by the Office of Civil & Defense Mobilization. The special receiver equipment is expected to cost less than $200 when it is put into mass production; FCC engineers fabricated a prototype from spare parts for $180.

Contract signing between the news services and the Air Force will take place Nov. 21, Mr. Lee said. The hot line from Colorado Spring to the AP and UPI offices will be paid for by the Air Force.

The news of the new hookup was made by the FCC's defense commissioner at a meeting of the Florida Defense Network in Miami last week.

The meeting reviewed the experiences of the FM stations which played a major role in relaying Weather Bureau information during the Hurricane Donna blow. The meeting also saw the establishment of a Greater Miami Industry Advisory Committee, with Gene Rider, WCKR-WCKT (TV) Miami as chairman.

WAVZ ANSWERS FCC

Cites public service record in 'McFarland letter' case

A broadcaster defended himself last week against the FCC's "get tough" policy on programming and spot announcements by saying that his station's public service programming has been accomplished by means of, not in spite of, what the commission refers to as "constant and lengthy interruptions."

WAVZ New Haven answered the commission's "promise vs. performance" inquiry (McFarland letter) with a lengthy report on its spot announcement policies. The station had been told in September that it was using more commercial spot announcements per week than it had promised and, consequently, the FCC had stated that its application for license renewal would have to go to hearing (Broadcasting, Oct. 3). At that time, the FCC stated that WAVZ had promised in a previous application for license renewal to broadcast 1,052 commercial spots per week but had, in performance, used as many as 2,369.

Daniel W. Kops, president of WAVZ and of WTRY Troy, N. Y., pointed out to the FCC in his letter of last week that the station's earlier estimate of the number of spots was filed shortly after the station changed from a daytime only operation to a 24-hour operation. The station, he said, had little experience on which to base an accurate forecast.

He further noted that operating costs at WAVZ continued to rise over the three-year license period. "Nevertheless," he said, "we considered it in the public interest to increase our news, announcing and program staffs and purchase new mobile equipment." He noted that competition for local advertising in the area also increased with four new independent stations moving into the market.

A reduction in the number of spot announcements, he said, would not only "fail to serve the public interests but, in fact, would be harmful thereto."

COULD CUT SERVICE • A reduction in spots could very well require a cut in operating costs, Mr. Kops told the commission. He listed the various ways in which operating costs could be cut. He cited elimination of one of the two news services the station employs; a reduction in the WAVZ four-man news department; elimination of the post of Community Service Director; dropping post-midnight operations; cutbacks which might force elimination of on-the-air and off-the-air public service activities "over and above simple productions."

"We do not believe that it is in the public interest for us to curtail or eliminate any of these [public] services," he stated.

WAVZ's current application for license renewal proposes 975 non-commercial spot announcements per week. These non-commercial spots, Mr. Kops noted, "are not interruptions to programming but rather an integrated part of the programming as well as the journalistic activities and the community service of WAVZ." In analyzing the public service spots broadcast by the station, he pointed out that 310 spots were broadcast in behalf of the United Fund and 372 safety announcements were used, and in these two areas alone the station has received commendations for its service.

The station's current application also proposes broadcasting 1,850 commercial spots per week along with a new and stricter control system to maintain and carry out the proposal. "In fact," he said, "our more recent logs reveal that we have been broadcasting less than the maximum number of spots proposed."

PROUD SERVICE • Mr. Kops further told the commission that "WAVZ has achieved a reputation not only in its community but nationally as a community-oriented, community-oriented

He also protested the commission’s procedures “which permitted a delay of a week between the commission’s release to the press and the licensee’s receipt of the actual letter.” Advance notice to the press, he said, put the station in the position of not being able to acquaint its own community with the facts and its side of the story.

WAVZ did not receive the commission’s McFarland letter until Oct. 5 and stories appeared in various publications prior to that date.

In reaching its decision to send the letter to WAVZ, the commission was originally split 4-3 (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Oct. 3). Commissioner T. A. M. Craven asked that the minutes show he regarded the letter as an attempt at censorship in violation of Sec. 326 of the Communications Act and that it was “persecution” of small stations. Other commissioners dissenting were Rosel H. Hyde and Charles H. King. The commission sent a similar letter to KORD Pasco, Wash., at the same time.

NLRB appeals television case to Supreme Court

Can a union call a strike to force an employer to assign a specific type of work to its own members? This question will be argued before the U. S. Supreme Court this week. The argument is on the national Labor Relations Board’s appeal of a court reversal of NLRB’s finding against Radio & TV Broadcast Engineers Union Local 1212. The NLRB finding followed the union’s 1957 strike which forced CBS-TV to cancel its scheduled telecast of the Tony Awards (BROADCASTING, April 29, 1957).

NLRB issued a cease and desist order against IBEW Local 1212 in New York after the union called a strike of its technicians upon CBS-TV’s decision to turn the task of remote lighting over to another union, International Alliance of Theatrical & Stage Employees. The U. S. Court of Appeals in New York reversed the decision, holding NLRB should not have issued such an order without first “affirmatively” allocating the work to one union or the other. The court held that it’s not enough for NLRB to determine that a union is not entitled to work, but that it also should “impose settlement” of the jurisdictional dispute. NLRB had held the remote lighting work was not covered in the Local 1212 contract with CBS-TV.

The FCC last week...

- Dismissed petitions filed by KGUN-TV Tucson, Ariz., for a review of a hearing examiner’s rulings involving field strength measurement data concerning KOLD-TV and KGUN-TV, both in Tucson. Latter stations proposed power increases and moving their towers to a common site on Mt. Bigelow, the same location used by KGUN. Protesting the move, KGUN was not allowed by the hearing examiner to introduce evidence showing a Grade A overlap of KOLD with KOOL TV Phoenix, Ariz. Both stations are Gene Autry stations. KGUN protested the hearing examiner’s ruling but was overruled by the commission.

- Received a joint petition from WGUN Decatur and WEAS College Park, both Georgia, asking that the FCC permit the station to change its call letters to WEAS and add a 50,000-watt transmitter. This would enable the station to reach areas around Atlanta not now covered by WGUN. The FCC allowed the change.

KRLA’S RENEWAL HEARING

Donald Cooke, present and past employees, try to reconstruct 1959 format change troubles

More of the trials and tribulations attendant upon the launching of a new radio program format in a major market were recited last week in Los Angeles as the FCC hearing continued on the application of KRLA Pasadena, Calif., for its license renewal.

Second week witnesses, all present or former employees of KRLA starting with the station’s owner, Donald Cooke, and including both programming and accounting personnel, reported on what went on during the turbulent time when KRLA, country and western music station, was being transformed into KRLA, with its modern musical programming. That period having passed into history well over a year ago, their recollections frequently tended to produce confusion rather than clarification, adding to the burdens of James D. Cunningham, FCC chief hearing examiner who presided, and the FCC and KRLA counsel in trying to keep the record straight.

Thomas N. Dowd and William S. Green, both of the Washington law firm of Pierson, Ball & Dowd, represented KRLA. Federal Communications' attorneys were Robert J. Rawson and Lewis Cohen.

As during the previous week, the testimony was focused on four major questions: Were the program proposals in the original application for assignment of the license of the station to Mr. Cooke made in good faith? Was the conduct of the “Find Perry Allen” contest contrary to the public interest? Were the KRLA logs for Oct. 18-24, 1959, altered to deceive the FCC? Has Jack D. Cooke, Donald’s brother and a Canadian citizen, actually controlled KRLA’s operations? (BROADCASTING, Nov. 7).

Donald Cooke Testifies... Donald Cooke, on the witness stand Monday morning (Nov. 7) as he had been the preceding Thursday afternoon and all day Friday (Nov. 3-4), strove hard to prove he was licensee of the station in fact as well as in title. Mr. Cooke declared that despite maintaining his residence and station representation business in New York, he had exercised control of KRLA by means of continuous correspondence with the KRLA department heads in the station’s Pasadena studios and KGUN office (and introduced a staggering pile of copies of letters, memos and reports to and from the station to prove his statement), augmented by frequent telephone calls and seven visits to the station, ranging in length from five days to as many weeks, in the 18 months since he assumed control of KRLA on May 1, 1959.

He had been interested in acquiring ownership of a radio station for many years, Mr. Cooke stated, but lacked the capital to purchase a station outright and so had looked for a chance to get an interest in one, but without success. In the meantime (late 1958), he learned that his brother Jack, owner of CKEY Toronto, proposed the deal that eventuated in the purchase of KXLA Pasadena (now KRLA). In brief, this plan was that Jack Cooke set up a company (Broadcast Equipment Co.) to acquire the physical plant and facilities of a broadcasting company and to lease them to a broadcasting company (Eleven Ten Broadcasting Corp.) owned by Donald Cooke. The plan was conceived by Jack Cooke’s Washington attorneys, Pierson, Ball & Dowd.

Spelling out the financial details of the transaction, Mr. Cooke said that of the $900,000 paid to Pacific Coast Broadcasting Co. for KXLA, Broadcast Equipment Co. put up $551,000 and he contributed $110,000, the balance being accounted for by cash and securities owned by Pacific Coast and acquired by Broadcast Equipment and Eleven Ten. The $110,000, he testified, included $10,000 in cash and a loan of $100,000 from the Empire Trust Co. at 5% interest. “I’m personally responssible for this loan and it would take more than I'm worth to pay it back," he stated.

Everything • To protect his station, which he reported as losing a lot of money, Mr. Cooke said he had to put up his home, his car, his 50% interest in his station representation business and all of the stock (10,000 shares) of Eleven Ten Broadcasting. The balance owed on the Empire Trust loan is between $40,000 and $50,000, he said. Asked by FCC counsel how he could have made the quarterly payments on the loan if KRLA has consistently lost money, he replied that he did it by borrowing from Broadcast Equipment Co. Empire Trust can foreclose, he said, but until it does it has no power to vote the stock in Eleven Ten, so that KRLA remains under his exclusive control.

Even when his brother Jack was acting as program head of KRLA during the difficult period when the station was trying to get started with its new sound in the Angeles market, Donald Cooke retained complete control of the station, its programs and its promotions, he averred. He authorized the expenditure of $50,000 for inaugural promotions, he said, adding that most of that sum was spent for contests and advertising. The contests included the Golden Key contest, with $50,000 originally offered and $5,000 eventually paid to the finder of the key (the amount of the prize decreasing as the clues got plainer) and the "Find Perry Allen" contest for which $10,000 was expended.

After reading Broadcasting's report of the contest in September 1959, Mr. Cooke said, he called Edwin V. Schulz, general manager of KRLA, for an explanation. Mr. Schulz told him that the impression that Perry Allen was in Los Angeles when he was really in Buffalo had been given by the ad lib remark of an announcer. On his next visit to the station he had attempted to listen to the tapes. Mr. Allen had prepared them for broadcast, but he had been unable to locate them.

Questioned by Mr. Rawson about the proposed program schedule submitted with the application for transfer of KXLX's license from Pacific Coast Broadcasting to Eleven Ten Broadcasting, Mr. Cooke said that it had been patterned after the schedule of KKEY in accordance with his desire to follow a format that had been successful elsewhere. Public service programming formed an important part of the proposed schedule, he stated, because a station "has a job to do to its community to win an audience." From the beginning he had ruled out commercial religious programs, he said, planning to replace them with sustaining programs put on the air on Sunday mornings with the cooperation of various religious groups, plus a daily inspirational spot.

Sales Slump • Shown a copy of a letter written Oct. 15, 1959, by Mr. Schulz to Donald Cooke Inc., sales representative of KRLA, stating that "KRLA has gone to the trouble of duplicating our Monday-Saturday schedule on Sundays," Mr. Cooke admitted this had been done with his approval. Sales were so bad "I would have done anything to stop the disastrous losses," he said, adding that Mr. Schulz felt a seven-day popular music schedule would help ratings. However, he refused to sell time for commercial religious programs, he stated, although he was told he could increase KRLA's income by $150,000 a year that way.

In November 1959 and again in January 1960, Mr. Cooke's visits to KRLA were designed to get public service programming going in accordance with the schedule originally proposed, he said, and in January he set up a crash program to get this accomplished by Jan. 30, completing the task already well under way.

 Asked about a letter he wrote in April to Herb Heiman, in charge of programming at KRLA, stating that no changes were to be made in Sunday programming until after the FCC had approved the station's license renewal and then that no change was to be made without the "full approval of Mr. Ball & Dow," Mr. Cooke said that this was in response to an inquiry from Mr. Heiman.

When he visited KRLA in January-February of this year to investigate the FCC's charges of false entries in the station's logs, he was given an affidavit by Mr. Schulz in which the station manager assumed full responsibility for the alteration, Mr. Cooke testified Nov. 4, explaining that Mr. Schulz had blamed the omission of a daily religious two-minute program on a traffic department oversight and had authorized it inserted in the log "to reflect what had actually taken place" (At Drabble, Nov. 7). On Nov. 7 Mr. Cooke testified that only a few weeks ago he had learned that the insertions were wrong and the religious spots had not been broadcast during the Oct. 18-24, 1959, week covered by the log. Mr. Heiman had been present when Mr. Schulz told Mr. Cooke that the broadcasts had been made, but had said nothing to correct him then, the station owner reported.

Log Changes • Following Mr. Cooke to the stand, Mr. Heiman testified that on the last weekend of October 1959, he and his wife, Mr. Schulz and his wife and Janice Crosby, then traffic director of KRLA, had worked on the analysis of the program broadcast during the week of Oct. 18-24 for the FCC. Late Sunday night, he said, Mr. Schulz was double checking the report and noted there was no religious programming in either the analysis or the logs and "we ought to have some." He turned to Mr. Heiman and "with a wink said, "I didn't tell you I, Herb, to put Word for the Day on, starting that week?" Mr. Heiman stated that his reply was, "If you say so," and before he left the room he heard Mr. Schulz instruct Miss Crosby the two signatures, with no signature at all on the voucher.

Jack Cooke had testified that he could not recall what he had written the $200 check for. Mr. Dobson did not know either. He said that he did not post the voucher in his ledger, but could not explain why as normally it would have been entered immediately and he was at the station until Sept. 24. He denied altering the vouchers or receiving any instructions to alter them and said he did not know whether Mr. Schulz's signature could have been added to the checks at some later date, since he did not remember seeing it there originally.

Contests • Back on the stand on Wednesday (Nov. 9), Bill Wheatley, former KRLA program director who testified the previous week, identified the station's program logs for Sept. 1-4, 1959. The first two days, he said, were programmed with continuous clues to the "Golden Key," interrupted twice each quarter-hour with the reading of names at random from telephone directories, offering prizes if the owners of those names called the station within stipulated times, the amount of the cash prize diminishing as the time lengthened. Then, at 6 a.m. on Sept. 3 regular programming began with The Perry Allen Show, which he described as a disc jockey show with two contest promotion announcements—the telephone quiz and the golden key—in each 15-minute segment. Other KRLA programs at the time were similar, he said.

He had learned about the "Golden Key" contest from Jack Cooke, Mr. Wheatley said. Mr. Cooke had told him that FCC approval of the start of operation with 50 kw power seemed likely to be delayed and the search for a "Golden Key" to unlock the new transmitter had been devised to fill the interval. "The key would be hidden, clues broadcast and when the key was found the finder would receive a cash prize, starting with $50,000 and decreasing as the clues got more explicit."

Mr. Wheatley reported that he had written the clues that were broadcast, many of them before he knew where the key was hidden. He was given this information a few days before Labor Day, the date on which Mr. Cooke wanted the key to be found, Mr. Wheatley said. The key was buried across the highway from Marineland, sure to be crowded on the holiday, and Mr. Wheatley was instructed to make his clues clear enough so that someone would find the key that day.

The size of the award was $20,000 when the first Labor Day clue was broadcast at 8 a.m., he testified, and was down to $6,000 at 2:30 p.m. when Mr. Cooke altered the original plan to let it sink to $2,000 if it hadn't been located before that point was reached and ordered $5,000 as the minimum.

Cecil H. Goodwin, disc jockey who worked at KXXL-KRLA Aug. 24-Sept. 15, 1959, testified that on Sept. 2 Jack Cooke had called him into his office and told him he was to handle the Perry Allen Show at 6-9 a.m. each day, starting the next morning, until Mr. Allen arrived in Los Angeles. Mr. Cooke told him to listen to the tapes. Mr. Allen had prepared so that he could amplify what Mr. Cooke had said on the tapes. The substance of this, he recalled, was to urge listeners to go out into the streets, into restaurants and business places and ask for KRLA's Perry Allen.

At a meeting of program personnel, Mr. Goodwin said, Mr. Cooke assigned the various disc jockeys to regular hours of on-the-air duty and explained the way in which records to be broadcast were selected. He said he also explained the "Find Perry Allen" contest, with the prize starting at $10,000 and dropping $1,000 a day until Mr. Allen had been found. Mr. Goodwin recalled that Frank Pollack, one of the disc jockeys, had remarked that Chuck Blore and Bob Purcell, program director and general manager respectively (of KFIV Los Angeles), knew where Mr. Allen was, but Mr. Cooke said only he and a few others had this information.

On Sept. 3, Mr. Goodwin stated, he did handle the Perry Allen Show and did play some of the tapes prepared by Mr. Allen and did augment them by his own solicitation to listeners to go out and look for Perry Allen.

Another disc jockey, Bob Cole, employed at KRLA from Aug. 23, 1959, to Oct. 4, 1960, similarly testified that Jack Cooke had announced the "Find Perry Allen" contest at a staff meeting on Aug. 28, 1959, and a couple of days later, Mr. Cole said, Mr. Cooke had given the details of the contest. He said that Perry Allen tapes, saying "I'm Perry Allen" and describing his physical characteristics and clothes and urging listeners to "come look for me," were to be broadcast, with a Los Angeles restaurant mentioned as a likely place to look.

Objection • Mr. Cole said he objected to the plan on ground that if any one should find out that Perry Allen was not in Los Angeles "we'd be in trouble." He said he suggested instead that the contest be built around Mr. Allen's cross-country trip from Buffalo to Los Angeles, with the prize going to the person who guessed most nearly the time of his arrival. Mr. Cooke's reaction, he recalled, was in substance, "Don't you worry. I'll take care of it."

On Sept. 3 all the KRLA disc jockeys were given fact sheets about Perry Allen, from which they were to make their own ad lib remarks, Mr.

I'd like you to meet my new helper—a new mail

Here! The first fully automated U.S. Post Office—in Providence, R. I. Its immediate objective: To speed up handling of mail and parcels right now! Its long-range objective: To handle all the far bigger mountains of mail anticipated in the not-too-distant future! And—as the pilot project in modern mail handling—it is the fore-runner of other such installations for speedier mail delivery all over the U.S., and for greater and more efficient postal service to the public. In the postal past, all operations were carried on by hand. As postal things stand now, much of the more than 65 billion pieces of mail yearly must be picked up by human hands, its addresses read by human eyes, its bulk put somewhere or other on an average of 12 times! No wonder that love-letter or that check was late! It's all a big job. And a dull one, by and large. A job that calls, indeed shrieks for automation. A job that demands the resources, and experiences in similar Communications challenges, of ITT, the worldwide communications and electronics organization. For the Providence job oller, canceler, sorter and Parcel Post engineer.

- says a recent Barron's article - ITT "was a logical candidate since it can furnish more of the basic paraphernalia than anyone else." If we (ITT) had written the article, we'd have added that we were chosen for this job because of our success with semi-automated post offices in the U.S. and fully automated ones in Europe... because fully automated delivery is basically a challenge in over-all Communications - not just isolated mechanization. And Communications (via telephone or cable or letter or interstellar satellite) is ITT's business. ITT is 7,200 idea-exchangers exchanging ideas in 24 countries - a total of 101 plants and 130,000 employees. Happy thought: Just think of our friend up there on the left. Soon to be relieved of all that culling and squinting and endless reaching into endless boxes! His ITT friend (on the right) is going to free him for more productive postal work. Cole said on Sept. 4, at Mr. Cooke's request, he conducted the 6-9 a.m. Perry Allen program, using the taped clues and adding his own comments.

The details of the contest and the negotiations preceding it once more and finally, so far as the Los Angeles hearing was concerned, were recited by the hearing's last witness, Mr. Allen, or, as he identified himself, Perry Allen Gerstein. Mr. Allen said that a friend in Los Angeles had given an audition tape of his to KRLA (which Mr. Wheatley had rejected as "too frantic for the sound (or time wasted)") and that he had also contacted Hal Cooke (brother of Jack and Don) at CKEY.

Sometime during the last week in August 1959, Jack Cooke called him from Los Angeles, Mr. Allen related, and told him he was interested in hiring him as the morning disc jockey at KRLA and would he be there that weekend. "I was very excited and said I'd like to try," Mr. Allen recalled, but he had a contract with WKWB Buffalo and said he'd have to talk to the station management and see what could be worked out. Mr. Cooke told him to do him back.

WKWB refused to release Mr. Allen until he had found a satisfactory replacement, he said, and he did, but the replacement had to give notice at the station he was then with, so Mr. Allen had to stay at WKWB, which threatened him with a lawsuit if he left without permission. All of this had been relayed to Mr. Cooke in numerous long-distance conversations. Mr. Allen said the defense attorney he had consulted at Mr. Cooke's request had told him his contract with WKWB was binding, it was agreed that he would join KRLA as soon as possible, which would be about Sept. 12, 1959.

How It Began  Mr. Cooke said that promotion was needed to compensate for his late arrival at KRLA and suggested a cross-country tour contest, then said that he had a better idea and outlined the "Find Perry Allen" idea, Mr. Allen related. He prepared the tapes suggested by Mr. Cooke and the next day received a call from him to say they were fine but too long and could he cut the spots down to 30 seconds. Mr. Allen agreed and taped more announcements.

His next conversation with Mr. Cooke was on Sept. 4, when he called to report he had been found (in a WKWB studio during a newscast) and to ask what he should do now. Mr. Cooke's first reaction, Mr. Allen stated, was "Good God, Perry, do you know how much $10,000 is?" but later he said perhaps the unexpectedly early discovery of Mr. Allen could be turned to KRLA's advantage. Cross examined by Mr. Dowd, Mr. Allen said he first tried to reach Mr. Wheatley but had been unable to do so and later he had talked to Mr. Cooke.

 Asked about his first broadcast on KRLA, Mr. Allen said that his first regular broadcast was on Sept. 14, but on the 13th, a Sunday, he had made a brief announcement to end a write-in contest KRLA had conducted on the exact time of his arrival. KRLA reimbursed him for his fare from Buffalo to Los Angeles, he said, but he could not recall when this payment was made. He is a little vague as to details, he stated, because the excitement of arriving in Los Angeles was intensified when he was handed a bunch of dollar bills and told to join other KRLA personalities in selling them at 50 cents apiece.

This unexpected remark seemed to Mr. Dowd to offer a possible explanation of the $200 cash check signed by Jack Kent Cooke and on his urging that "Mr. Allen's vague memory not be allowed to impeach Mr. Cooke's earlier testimony." Mr. Cunningham ordered the hearing continued in Washington, D. C., at a later date.

EQUIPMENT & ENGINEERING

Two-way radio value to newsmen stressed

Two-way radio is helping radio and TV stations to bring on-the-spot coverage of news events to audiences faster than ever before. In a round-up on installations of two-way radio equipment, Motorola Inc. reports that such equipment, coupled with its "Handie-Talkie" portable radiophone, was enabling at least three stations to cover fast-breaking stories with speed and thoroughness.

The report cited the WFBFR Baltimore, Md., coverage of a fire aboard an oil tanker in the Baltimore harbor. The station employed two shortwave ground units and a portable airborne unit to report on the scene from several vantage points.

The report also noted that WPRO-AM-TV Providence, R. I., were able to more than double the amount of on-the-spot news coverage with the two-way radio system. During a recent New England manhunt, the stations broadcast on-the-scene accounts of the final moments of the manhunt by the use its two-way system and portable radiophones.

The two-way radio system also played an important part in a big story for WVET-TV Rochester, N. Y. It was used first in getting WVET staffers to a tragic fire and was later used to relay news bulletins to the station.

The two-way system is being used by an increasing number of stations, the Motorola report states, including WISN Milwaukee, WCOM Parkersburg, WNYC Rochester, WNYK Cin-cinnati, Ohio, and KSFO San Francisco. All stations report faster coverage of news events by using the system.

Admiral reaffirms fears about Japanese imports

Japanese electronic imports continue to harass Chicago suppliers, rising 75% the first six months this year, and threatening to put some firms out of business in the next 12 years, an Admiral Corp. spokesman asserted Thursday.

Martin Sheridan, its public relations director, told the Electronics Electrical Commodities Group of the Chicago Purchasing Agents Assn. that shipments in second quarter alone were 41 million higher than those for the entire year of 1958. He based the report on U.S. Government statistics. Unless restrictions are imposed on the current free flow of low cost Nipponese products, he declared, a lot of firms in Chicago and elsewhere will go under. Already their business has shrunk sharply, he pointed out.

Long distance tv system developed for U. S. Army

Development of a long-distance, interference-free television system for the U.S. Army was claimed last week for Colorado Research Corp. by its parent company, Bell & Gossett Co., Morton Grove, Ill.

The system is capable of transmitting clear TV pictures over several miles regardless of interference from "radio noise activities," sunspots, lightning, aircraft and other sources, according to R. E. Moore, president of B & G, manufacturer of hot water heating systems and pumps and heat exchangers. The system is called digital television transmission and can even transmit signals from outer space.

Mr. Moore stated the system may have application in space technology, military communications, reconnaissance and, finally, in private industry.

Colorado Research Corp., Broomfield, Colo., received a $376,000 contract from the Army signal supply agency to begin to develop a system, following contracts for research. The system breaks a signal into millions of "off-on" impulses every second and, though they may be distorted by interference, they can be recognized by a special receiver capable of rearranging them into a perfect picture.

ASCAP explains drop in quarterly payments

Sharp reduction in performance rights payments to ASCAP members for the third quarter of the year was due in part to the new consent decree, but there were also other non-related reasons, President Stanley Adams and Special Counsel Howard Millman told a west coast membership meeting Thursday (Nov. 10) at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The third quarter, a time of summer replacements, is always the low quarter of the year, the speakers explained to the sparsely attended afternoon meeting, and this one looks particularly bad when compared to the exceptionally-good second quarter. ASCAP revenue dropped 4.6% in comparison with the third quarter of 1959.

The deduction of 5% off the top for special awards for serious composers and to writers of special material for night clubs and other places not measured by the performance surveys brought the drop in payments to members to almost 10% "under any system," they pointed out. Finally, an increase in performance credits from $28 million for the year ended Nov. 30, 1959, to $35 million in the year just ended reduced the cash value of each credit from 22¢ to 16¢.

Mr. Millman described in detail ASCAP's negotiation with the Dept. of Justice. He said Justice had first insisted that all distribution to members be made on the basis of current performance, but had agreed to permit each member to choose for himself whether he wanted to change to that system or to remain on the previous four-part distribution plan (involving calculations based on recognized works, continuity of membership, a five-year performance average and current performances).

"We didn't go to Washington. The Dept. of Justice came to us," he declared, noting that the ASCAP board, faced with a choice of trying to negotiate the best terms possible or going to court and taking its chances of being dissolved, decided to negotiate. The government charges were very fair, he said, and the original time limit of a few weeks was extended many months while the compromise was worked out.

If the present terms prove too much of a hardship, they can be modified, he

WNTA-TV lampoons its own business

WNTA-TV New York is poking fun at itself twice a day, Monday through Friday. It's tv within tv on Studio 99½, daily at 5:30-6 p.m. and repeated the next morning at 9:30. The cast of characters gives a fair indication of what goes on:

Ventriloquist Jimmy Nelson plays a harrassed floor man with these puppets: M. Ingmar Megaphone, hot-tempered director; David Summkind, a producer; Fuzzy Focus, myopic cameraman; Herman Hush, sound man who can't stand noise; Flash, a stagehand, very tolerant of show people; J. Bannister Flapdole, advertising-agency account executive; Six-Gun Sidney, cowboy star, and Bentley Hinkley, newscaster-weather man. Mr. Nelson's established characters of Danny O'Day, Humphrey Higgsby the actor, Farfel the dog and Ftatateeta the cat all take part, too.

Crew and talent mix it up on a set equipped with prop flats, microphones, audio consoles and weather maps, producing quiz shows, interviews, drama and all the staples of the television day, including commercials, real and fake. The real ones are for a group of food, toy and other participating sponsors who've joined Studio 99½ since it went on the air this fall.

Budd Getschal (head of the New York advertising agency, bearing his name and a man who gets his "kicks" producing an occasional tv show) created Studio 99½ and produces it. Lee Polk directs and the two share the writing.
NOW THAT the frost is on the pumpkin and ducks are writing V's overhead, Eastern Iowans have a choice of fall spectacles: the farm-, or town-, or city-born availability of near-by nature, or cosmopolitan entertainment, bought with the twist of a television dial. We compete with the changing seasons. Fortunately, it rains—and the nights grow frigid.*

Middle Western Eastern Iowa is east of the West that has been described as the place where it's always a long way from here to there. In WMT-land it's always a middle way from here to there. The scale is comprehensible. Distances, compressed by train and car and four-lane highway, have yielded to the march of mechanization and electronics. Yet Iowan's live spread out. The top six metropolitan centers account for only 31% of Iowa's population—and WMT-TV is home-town station for three of those centers.

In this spread-out market you need the coverage WMT-TV provides: 51 counties in Eastern Iowa with about 400,000 tv homes—more than half of all tv homes in all Iowa.

*Sets-in-use figures are often in the seventies. WMT-TV has the largest Eastern Iowa audience of all tv stations. ARB Metro Area Reports, Feb. '57—Nov. '59; NCS 1, 2, 3.
Color fashion show hits syndication trail

It's a matter of advertising arithmetic now to determine the future of a syndicated half-hour, Fashion Firsts. The numbers above decorate the set of one edition last season from a show that had a 39-week, sponsored run on WHDH-TV Boston. Now the producers are ready to take it on the road via color tape, with New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Detroit on the early itinerary, other markets to be added as orders come through.

Ironically, for a program that anticipated a national tv fashion trend, Fashion Firsts has had to delay its airdate this fall while the Frith Corp., Boston producer, gathers the signatures that will make it a national show. The selling effort is being aimed both at stations and advertisers. Based on its three-cycle success last season in Boston and subsequent tv fashion developments in other markets (Broadcasting, Sept. 19), Frith is confident its time is here. There is a four-market deal in progress, covering the first leg of the syndication route. Another pending sale to Naygay hoji Krishna, Ltd. of Japan for network showing and local sale, awaits resolution of the show's U.S. distribution. Frith is shooting for a November airdate here.

Fashion Firsts went on the air Sept. 2, 1959, for a group of participating sponsors selling air and ship fares, books, women's wear, men's wear and all kinds of apparel, banking, hotel accommodations, house furnishings, optical goods and photography.

WHDH-TV scheduled it in late morning time on Fridays and established a habit with kaffee-klatchers that showed up in post-show sales, ratings and attendance at promotional events, according to results files prospects are screening along with the new pilot.

The format is patterned on a fashion magazine, extending to control by an executive editor. But the tv features, unlike some of the periodical's, stress average appeal rather than high fashion. These features, gathered here and abroad, alternate with variety entertainment and segments on decorating, beauty and other women's-interest topics. The production corps includes two mistresses of ceremonies, models, announcers, singers, dancers and musicians, besides executive and technical staff. They work in color facilities of WHDH-TV, where Frith between seasons has been producing local fashion specials.

Frith, an organization of television, advertising and money men, is offering Fashion Firsts on a test lineup for 13 weeks in four cities at $780 for a sixth of a show. This covers production and talent, time (day availabilities have been scouted in metropolitan markets), live-on-tape production of one commercial and all insertion costs. The plan lends itself to national cooperative advertising as well as local and local selling. If a group of advertisers wants the same markets, they can ask for program rates for a further saving. Frith provides promotion kits to station and sponsor.

There are many numerical possibilities in the complicated marketing exercise Frith is working out according to national, regional and local formulas. The company is counting on a winning combination this fall.

Legion Auxiliary 'mikes' awarded best tv shows

Awards for outstanding television programs have been announced by the American Legion Auxiliary. The organization will make the presentations of the "Golden Mike" awards at the preference of the recipients.

Winners were determined by a poll of the auxiliary's nearly 1 million members. The Hunley-Brinkley Report, NBC-TV, was chosen best current events program; Father Knows Best, CBS-TV, best family entertainment; The Loretta Young Show, the program with the greatest women's appeal, and The Theo. Hamm Brewing Co. for the most appealing commercial spot announcements. Father Knows Best and Hamm's Beer won similar awards from the American Legion Auxiliary in 1959. There were no radio awards this year.

The Junior Golden Mike award, voted by members under 18 years old, went to The Man and the Challenge, produced by Ziv and shown on NBC-TV.

Safety Council lists radio-tv winners

NBC Radio and the California Farm Network, plus the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and CBS-TV, emerged with network public interest awards announced by the National Safety Council Friday (Nov. 11). The council also cited eight tv and 30 radio stations for “exceptional service to farm safety” in connection with the 17th annual National Farm Safety Week this past July and during the preceding 12-month period.

Television stations honored were WKIG-TV, Fort Wayne, Ind.; WIBW-TV, Topeka, Kan.; WHDH-TV Boston; KOMU-TV, Columbia and KFEQ-TV, St. Joseph, both Missouri; WRGB (TV), Schenectady, N. Y.; KGW-TV, Portland, Ore., and WCAU-TV, Philadelphia, Pa. WIBW, WHDH, KFEQ, WGY and KGW also won companion radio honors. Additionally, 13 farm magazines were recipients of awards.

Serving as judges were Preston J. Foster, information service director, American Farm Bureau Federation; William Mason, farm program director of WBBM Chicago; Jim Thompson, managing editor, Prairie Farmer, Chicago, and Maynard H. Coe, farm safety director of the council.

List of the winners follows by states:

Program notes

Name change • WOR Recording Div., RKO General Inc., has changed its corporate name to RKO Sound Studios, according to John B. Poor, vice president and treasurer of RKO General. The recording division’s name is being changed to “identify it more closely with its corporate structure and its client services.”

New cartoons • Snip and Snap and Foo Foo, two new animated film series, will be distributed by Interstate Television Corp., New York, according to an announcement from Lloyd Lind, general sales manager of the firm. Snip and Snap, containing 26 episodes, is designed for the children’s market. Foo Foo, also with 26 shows, is an adult cartoon series.

More movies • Jayark Films Corp., N.Y., has acquired ownership of five motion picture features produced by Cagney Productions Inc., Hollywood, and will place them into tv distribution in this country immediately and in theatrical re-issue abroad. The films are “Bugs in the Afternoon” (1952); “Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye,” (1950), “Only the Valiant” (1951), “I Sang on the Sand” (1945) and “Johnny Come Lately” (1943). Reub Kaufman, Jayark president, said the company now has more than 50 post-’50 features in its library and plans to augment the number by negotiating with independent American producers.

‘Diver Dan’ debut • Diver Dan, a new children’s fantasy tv series featuring animated puppets, live fish and two live characters (Diver Dan and Minerva the Mermaid) is scheduled to make its debut in 25 cities tomorrow (Tuesday). The program, a product of Young Productions, Philadelphia, is being produced by Brian Cartoons, that city.

Language broadcasts • KMLA (FM) Los Angeles has added international flavor to its programming by inaugurating foreign-language programs from 6 a.m. to noon daily. The languages include Yiddish, French, Spanish, German, Italian and Hungarian with each show hosted by a leading figure from the communities represented.

Home thoughts from abroad • Local stations can get exclusive overseas taped reports from local citizens who are visiting in Great Britain through a newly established programming service. In addition to interviewing servicemen, students or businessmen, etc., located in Great Britain, the service will supply.
NEVER MIND WHAT IT COSTS... I'LL TAKE IT!

That isn’t the wisest way to buy—not knowing what you must pay.

But these days most all Americans are paying for one thing without having any idea of its great cost—putting the U. S. government in the electric light and power business in certain parts of the country.

So far, more than $5,000,000,000 has been spent on these so-called “public power” projects. Billions more are proposed for the future.

The cost has been coming out of federal taxes. So would much of the cost of expansion. But such costs are not itemized in anyone’s federal tax bill. No one knows how much of his money federal government power takes, or might take.

In fact, most of the American people don’t even realize that the government is using their tax money for “public power.”

MORE BILLIONS NEED NOT BE SPENT

All of the electric power that America will conceivably need can be supplied by America’s independent electric companies.

They will use investors’ money to build the facilities. Taxpayers’ money will not be needed. And the independent companies will produce taxes, to boot.

NEW BOOKLET FOR WRITERS, BROADCASTERS, EDITORS

A special free booklet on federal “public power” spending has been published for newspaper, TV and radio people. It discusses costs, and trends, in a situation which is unfamiliar to much of the reading and broadcast public. Please fill in the coupon below.

Back to school

A four-year training course in advertising has been started this year at a cost of $700,000 by the Canadian Assn. of Advertising Agencies. Held at the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Toronto, Ont., it has 75 Toronto agency employees enrolled. The first year will cover the broad field of business. The second year will cover marketing, the third advertising and the last year agency management. The CAAA at its annual convention at Montreal, Que., decided to establish advertising courses at major universities so advertising men can have the same professional status as lawyers, etc.
Money is—despite its popularity—a widely misunderstood subject.

As a tool of business, money must be sound. It must be as dependable as any other tool, in order to provide predictable performance from year to year.

Sound money is indispensable for lasting, genuine prosperity; for national strength, and for economic integrity in this country. Unnecessary spending schemes make money unsound. Spending more than we earn now means ability to buy less later. Remember, the man who has to pay the Piper is you...if you earn a living, if you pay taxes.

Republic Steel helps produce wealth for lasting prosperity

Industries need money to work with—just as much as individuals do. Republic Steel is continuously replacing worn out equipment; continuously planning for increased facilities; continuously developing new processes and new products. These are the seeds of future production, future jobs.

One of Republic's newest products is X-TRU-COAT* plastic coated steel line pipe. This pipe eliminates the most severe problem facing utility and petroleum companies—underground corrosion.

Recently completed facilities at Youngstown, Ohio, now make it possible for Republic to produce X-TRU-COAT in sizes up through 8-5/8" O.D. Maximum size previously was 5-9/16" O.D. Only Republic applies plastic to steel pipe to serve customers' needs in the transmission of fluids.

“We have received many fine compliments on the sound of WCRB-FM and we attribute much of this to the quality of the performance of our GEL 1 KW Transmitter.”

GEL's Multiplex Transmitter, Model FMT-1B, produces dependable performance with reliable stability of adjustment and minimum maintenance because of its high quality components and superior engineering. Original purchase price becomes minimal when compared with its trouble-free operating characteristics and steady day-in-day-out level of performance. Designed for unattended local and remote operation.

As in all GEL FM Transmitters, its fundamental unit is the GEL Exciter Model FME. This field-proven assembly has won the approval and confidence of broadcast station owners, operators, and engineers from coast to coast. The Exciter was designed especially for Multiplex operations, with characteristics providing the optimum main channel, a design feature followed in succeeding stages.

Either one or two sub-channels can be installed at any time without modification of the basic transmitter. Sub-channel quality closely approaches that of the main channel. Consistently low cross-talk is effected by complete RF shielding, separate Power Supplies, and other design features.

Model FME Exciter, consisting of main channel audio, oscillator-modulator, frequency multiplier, and 10-watt output units, each mounted on separate panels 5 1/2" high, is installed in a standard 19" Rack. Layout is vertical with components mounted so as to provide ready accessibility to circuitry and tubes for signal tracing and maintenance.

Exciter output is fed to the Power Amplifier. Power Amplifier cabinet also houses associated power supplies for plates, screens, and grids. Screen and bias supplies use silicon rectifiers saving space and reducing undesirable heat.

GEL makes available a complete FM Line including 15KW and 1KW Transmitters, and Exciters for converting conventional FM Transmitters to Multiplexing operation.

FANFARE

A radio spectacular

Chattanooga's five fulltime stations have combined forces to present a five-hour intra-city campaign in behalf of the TB Assn.'s Christmas Seal drive to-day (Nov. 14) from 7 p.m. to midnight. Two daytime stations, WNCO and WRIP, will also give time separately to the campaign. Each of the five participating fulltime stations (WAPO, WDEF, WDOD, WDXB and WOGA) will prepare four 15-minute programs, featuring their disc jockeys. These will be fed, in rotated order, straight on through midnight from a master source. Stations plan to cut in and out during this period to allow for pre-sold newscasts, other commercial features, networks, etc. To insure a smooth five-hour program, one of the stations was designated to select the music and other stations will program their segments in accordance with this. The Hamilton County Tuberculosis Assn. has commended the stations for this public service effort.

How to cover a fair

Getting shot from a cannon is hardly the normal way for a broadcaster to look for a story, but that was one of several unusual techniques used by Harvey Dinkins, farm director at WSJS-TV Winston-Salem, N. C., in covering the Dixie Classic Fair in that city. To gather material for his daily On the Farm program during the recent fair, Mr. Dinkins did his initial show from a helicopter hovering over the Midway to describe the various offerings. He followed this up with a broadcast from the top of the Midway's Sky Wheel ride, and later joined his earthbound listeners for a more conventional tour of all the exhibits including livestock prize shows and farm product displays. But his feat of the week was to be bodily loaded into the muzzle of the Thrillcade Cannon and taking off on a non-scheduled solo flight. Bouncing up from a successful firing, WSJS-TV's version of Superman thought it would be best to keep both feet on the ground in the future, but added, “for once I was a real big shot.”

Drumbeats

Plugs competition • WLOD Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has its competition happily confused. A quality music daytimer, WLOD is repeatedly plugging good music shows on other Ft. Lauderdale stations—after WLOD signs off, of course. Those enjoying WLOD’s spots are WFTL, WWIL-FM and WFLM (FM), all in Ft. Lauderdale.

A goose a day • That’s what WINS New York is giving away from now until Thanksgiving. The station is distributing the birds on the basis of the most unusual letter received each day, telling in 110 words or less “Why My Goose is Cooked.”

Four squared • San Francisco’s four TV stations cooperated this year in the United Bay Area Crusade. Each station produced a series of four video tape spots promoting the campaign. The resulting 16 spots were rotated on all four stations—KGO-TV, KPIX (TV), KRON-TV and KTVU (TV).

Anti-litter effort • WIL St. Louis cornered the market on old political posters last week, as it offered a penny each for post-election signs.

Spooks’ friend • Charleston, W. Va., “trick or treaters” had sound effects to aid them on their Halloween activities—courtesy of WCHS. The station programmed 90 minutes of weird sounds (haunted castles, black cat howls, etc.) for the use of transistor radio-equipped ghosts and goblins. WCHS billed itself as the “best fire friend of spooks, goblins, witches, Frankenstein and Draculas everywhere.”

Halloween march • Instead of the usual “trick or treat,” many Richmond, Va., youngsters joined the “WLEE-Children’s Fund Halloween March.” The children rang doorbells equipped with a handful of pledge cards for the fund, instead of the usual bagful of tricks. WLEE Richmond, which originated the idea, provided “march kits” with appropriate badges to youngsters requesting them after a spot campaign explaining the “march.”

KDWB’s treasure hunt

KDWB Minneapolis-St. Paul staged a $7,000 treasure hunt for media and agency executives in the Twin Cities and everybody came away a winner—some bigger than others, however.

Fifty contestants took part in the hunt which started in a St. Paul restaurant and continued zanily around the area to pick up such other clues as a blindman, a beachcomber, a professional basketball player and a trip to

FM broadcasters: high receiver cost—the big drawback to expansion of potential FM audiences—has been licked. NOW you can boost your FM audience with this dynamic . . . CBS Films honors WSB-TV promotion girl

Fortune of Jean Hendrix, assistant to the general manager and program director of WSB-TV Atlanta, is the promotion and merchandising of syndicated programs aired by the station.

At height of her preparatory work for the Oct. 29-31 WSB-TV Fall Festival, which was spotlighted by personal appearances of syndicated program stars, Miss Hendrix received a trophy for outstanding achievement in creative merchandising and promotion for CBS Films' programs in the past year.

Sam Cook Digges, CBS Films' administrative vice president, traveled from New York to present the trophies (one to Miss Hendrix and the other to the station) at a luncheon Oct. 28 at the Capital City Club in Atlanta. The station now has a few CBS Films' shows on its schedule. Last year's trophy winner was Carling Brewing Co. for its promotion-merchandising of The Phil Silvers Show.

a haunted house (with corpse).

The four-member winning team was composed of Art Lincoln, Bolen-Smith Agency; Eric Forain, John W. Forney Inc.; and Connie Bleyer and Betty Hitch, both of BBDO. All received RCA stereo sets except Mr. Lincoln, the grand prize winner, who got an RCA combination stereo and television set for his troubles. The losers received assorted smaller prizes but agreed they all had a good time.

OUR RESPECTS to Lester Richard Rawlins, general manager, KDKA Pittsburgh

He scuttled a network and welcomed the Pirates aboard

The first regularly scheduled broadcast by KDKA Pittsburgh Nov. 2, 1920, was an historic event of no interest to 12-year-old Les Rawlins, a farm boy who lived some hundreds of miles away in Byer, Ohio, a rural community most map makers haven't bothered to chart.

But the 40th anniversary of KDKA is a big event in his life, and will be until the end of November when a month-long celebration closes. As general manager, Les Rawlins presides over one of the best-known radio call letters in the world.

A favorite souvenir in his office is a pen stand made from the wood in the desk of the late Dr. Frank Conrad, whose pre- and post-World War I experiments at Westinghouse culminated in KDKA’s formal debut Nov. 2, 1920, with the broadcast of the Harding-Cox presidential election returns.

Going to Town — Les left Fairfield Township High School with a diploma, an intimate insight into the niceties of farming and an urge to be an accountant. In lieu of college he took the more economical way into his chosen field — a correspondence course operated by the International Accountants Society. He had an affinity for figures and in 1927 landed a job with the Frigidaire Corp. His work soon drew front office attention and he moved up from accounts receivable clerk to office manager of the Cincinnati and Dayton retail offices. In 1932 he left the company to become auditor for a Frigidaire dealer in the area. In six years he was manager of the company.

His move to Westinghouse came early in World War II when he accepted a job as supervisor of employment at the Louisville (Ky.) ordinance division of the company. He kept moving forward at Westinghouse, rising to supervisor of industrial relations where he spent three years, 1943-46, in charge of the division’s labor relations. In this post he left a lasting monument — a record of no lost time from strikes.

In 1946 Westinghouse closed down the ordnance plant and Les moved to Philadelphia as industrial relations manager for Westinghouse radio stations. Promoted to manager of KYW radio in 1950, he began his station management career. Thus, the 40th anniversary of the first KDKA broadcast is also his 10th anniversary in Westinghouse station management. He moved to the KDKA management post in 1952.

No tampering — This 52-year-old executive (born March 30, 1908) has followed definite management patterns. First, he is careful in hiring key personnel. Second, having hired, he lets the individual do his job with minimum interference.

“Each department head is charged with the responsibility of operating his department as though it were his own business,” he said. “The overlapping cooperation between department heads helps to achieve the overall objectives of the station.” Weekly meetings of department heads are held so each has a full picture of what’s going on at the station. Managers of sales, programming, engineering, promotion, publicity and auditing departments join the meetings.

At KDKA Les Rawlins has made some of the most important changes in the pioneer station’s history. First among these was the break from tradition in 1956 when he became convinced KDKA would be more successful if it dropped its NBC affiliation and operated as an independent. “Six months after the independent programming policy was inaugurated our audience had more than doubled,” he recalled. Ratings mounted steadily and the 1960 billings will reach an all-time high.

Buildup — With the transition to independent operation he signed a number of top personalities in the market and built them up via promotion, publicity and participation in community projects. In addition he brought in others from out-of-town. He won’t have any part of anonymous, formula radio for these on-the-air entertainers. “It’s our thinking our talent should have a sense of balance toward programming besides functioning as convincing salesmen and participants in community activities.”

Another step in the Rawlins formula was expansion of the news department, with modern communications and transportation facilities and techniques utilized to get the news quickly, accurately and from the scene. He’s usually the first one with a break in praise for a scoop or an especially thorough news report. A plaque was given Mike Levine when the newsmen gained an exclusive interview with Nikita Khrushchev in Pittsburgh.

One of the Rawlins nifties was acquisition of rights to Pirate baseball broadcasts four years ago. At that time the team’s main asset was the loyalty of faithful fans who stuck with the club during dismal years. The step was a fortuitous one, it developed early this year, as the ball club moved into first place in the National League. Share-of-audience, KDKA claims, passed the 75% mark at times during game broadcasts. And finally, when the club won the pennant and World Series, the station figured it completely dominated the audience during games. Baseball-angled shows with Pirate figures as talent are boosting revenues and audience long after the wild end of the World Series.

High Time — Another Rawlins step was to start editorializing just two years ago. “Our experience in editorials indicates radio should long ago have started taking a stand on public issues. Marked interest has developed in the editorials and positive action has resulted in such matters as mass transit,” he said.

Les Rawlins is on the quiet side and gets results without shouting or arm-waving. Around Pittsburgh he has been active in all sorts of community projects. He’s past president of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club and has been active in promoting an overhaul of the city’s somewhat elderly industrial area.

KDKA sits in the heart of the magnificent new Gateway Center.

Away from the office he pursues two hobbies — gardening and golf. His skill in the latter has slipped from a zero handicap to an eight. Thanks to golf and gardening, his six-foot frame stays at a trim 185 pounds. He has a ruddy complexion and brown hair.

He and Mrs. Rawlins live near Pittsburgh Field Club, his home course. He has scored three holes-in-one and is a past champion of Shawnee Golf Club in Louisville.

Decorating his office is a huge golf trophy given by the Pittsburgh Sales Executive Club, where he has twice held the club championship.

His gardening interest dates back to the Byer, Ohio, farm but he now specializes in lilies and roses.

A campaign for advertising

It has become a cliche to say that advertising ought to do something about improving its image. Pick an agenda from almost any advertising convention held in the past two years, and you will find at least one speech or panel session devoted to a discussion of image-building.

So far it has been mostly talk. A few companies are individually working on public relations plans; advertising and media associations have taken steps to elevate standards; television broadcasters have organized the Television Information Office. But nowhere is there any serious plan for a public education campaign conducted on behalf of advertising in general.

The individual projects will no doubt have a cumulative effect from which all advertising will benefit, but the advertising business needs more help than that. Advertising needs to be explained through a professional program of public education, to which the whole advertising community would contribute. The instrument for that program already exists.

In more than a decade of service the Advertising Council has had conspicuous success in winning public support for useful causes, through voluntary contributions of advertisers’ agencies and media. It seems to us that the techniques the council has used to get out the vote or reduce forest fires could also be used to tell people how advertising works and why it is essential to our economy.

Why not make an advertising campaign for advertising a major project for the council in 1961?

Post-mortem & prognosis

Now that the sound and fury of the elections have subsided, a post-mortem and a prognosis are timely for the broadcaster and the broadcast advertiser.

The tide turned for John F. Kennedy on Sept. 26. That was the day of the first of the four debates with his Republican adversary, Vice President Richard M. Nixon. It gave the less-known man maximum exposure before the electorate that he otherwise could not have had. It gave the voters the opportunity to appraise the two candidates as they appeared face-to-face.

What’s ahead under President Kennedy and his Democratic-controlled Congress—the first time in six years that both the executive and the legislative branches will be of the same party? The congressional pattern is established. But President-elect Kennedy is an enigma vis-a-vis broadcasting.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was elected to an unprecedented four terms largely through his magic with the microphone, was disposed to love the radio to death. He looked with deep suspicion upon newspaper ownership of radio because the press was preponderantly against him. He spoke of radio as the medium that overtook the “innuendoes and the half-truths” of the press.

Senator Kennedy, whom some see as a sort of junior FDR, must know that television provided his biggest gun in this year’s strenuous campaign. He isn’t likely to forget it in his role as the chief of state.

As a senator, Mr. Kennedy has made no significant statements concerning broadcasting. During the campaign, his observations were confined to the importance of the tv debates, and to the need for reappraisal of the functioning of the independent agencies, of which the FCC has been the most controversial.

But the observations of some of those surrounding Mr. Kennedy have sent cold chills down the spines of advertising and marketing men. They have written and talked about taxes on advertising to discourage purchases of unneeded goods and services. Mr. Kennedy, however, has disclaimed any such notions.

Of immediate concern is what President-elect Kennedy will do about appointments on the FCC. Practical politics dictate that Fred W. Ford will be called upon to relinquish his chairmanship. Mr. Ford’s term runs until 1964 and he unquestionably will revert to a commissionership—one of the new three-man GOP minority.

An FCC vacancy will exist for a Democratic replacement since Commissioner Charles H. King of Detroit is a recess appointee. Barring the unexpected he will step out when his Democratic successor is qualified.

It has been assumed that Commissioner Robert T. Bartley, who has served for eight years and is the ranking Democrat, would succeed to the chairmanship. He is the nephew of Speaker Sam Rayburn and close to Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson. But this isn’t necessarily so. President-elect Kennedy may have other ideas. He may want to infuse new blood in the agency through a new chairman named from the outside.

What President-elect Kennedy may lack in communications expertise is offset by the first-hand knowledge of his vice president, Mr. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson, for more than a decade has been the owner of broadcast properties in Texas, with which Mr. Johnson is not entirely unfamiliar.

Broadcasters in the Kennedy camp include J. Leonard Reinsch, Cox radio and tv station executive director, and Myer (Mike) Feldman, an administrative assistant of Senator Kennedy. Mr. Feldman is co-owner of stations in Klamath Falls, Ore., and Newport, R. I. (Broadcasting, Oct. 31). He will sell his interests however, since he is slated for the white House secretariat.

At the new vice presidential level are three men who know the vicissitudes of broadcasting. John S. Hayes, president of the Washington Post Broadcast Division, has been Mr. Johnson’s television consultant. Leonard H. Marks, Washington communications attorney, handled finance and broadcast matters for Senator Johnson. Edgar Shelton, an ABC Washington vice president on leave, has worked with the Johnson entourage.

It is thus evident that there’s no dearth of broadcasting know-how available to the incoming administration. The hope is that this reservoir will be tapped, instead of the reservoir of economic theorists who think advertising is a waste and broadcasting an intellectual blight that ought to be taken over by government.

"Just a minute! How do I know this isn't one of those Candid Camera stunts?"
