Information show sales
Emerging sales patterns encourage hope that 1961 not only will see more information programming on television networks but also will find more of it commercially sponsored. It's reported, for instance, that CBS News already can account for close to $46 million in CBS-TV network billings next year (almost $25 million in time charges alone). This unofficial estimate assumes two "ifs" that network salesmen expect to become fact: that rest of CBS Reports will be sold, and that Face the Nation will be sold for 13 weeks.

Manhunt
There will be no dearth of prospects for FCC Democratic vacancy and/or chairmanship as change in administration approaches. New names heard last week included Harry M. Plotkin, Washington attorney and former assistant general counsel of FCC who resigned in 1951 to enter private practice in Washington; Kenneth A. Cox, Seattle attorney, protege of Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) of Senate Commerce Committee and special counsel of committee on communications-electronics matters, and Theodore Granik, American Forum of the Air producer who has maintained Washington law practice for two decades.

So far, however, there hasn't been slightest indication from President-elect John F. Kennedy as to his predilections on FCC or any independent agency. Elevation of Commissioner Robert T. Barley to chairmanship is still regarded as logical but not necessarily set. There's abundant support for interim chairmanship in hands of Commissioner T. A. M. Craven.

Closed circuit
FCC may find itself deadlocked 3-3 on ancient clear channel breakdown case. Seventh commissioner—Charles H. King, who has been in Hawaii on official business—so far has not participated because of lack of familiarity with case. If deadlock persists, FCC may have no alternative than to dismiss proceeding, pending since 1945.

Here's how commission is understood to line up: In favor of breaking down 12 of existing 24 clear channels (most of them network owned and operated stations in major markets) with other 12 to be held status quo but with potential of 750,000 watts: Ford, Hyde, Lee. In favor of selective breakdown of all 24 channels (killing super power prospects) by controlling assignments so they would go to under-served areas instead of major markets: Bartley, Craven, Cross.

New voices
Whether presidential news secretary James C. Hagerty takes over as news chief of ABC (and prospects are that he will) there'll probably be influx of new commentators and analysts on network. One of basic differences between John Daly, who has resigned as ABC vice president in charge of news and public affairs, and top management, was his insistence that basic staff he appointed in 1953 be retained. Management wanted some new blood.

Old habit
FCC officials expressed surprise at concern of broadcasters over so-called spot announcement numerical count in renewal form consideration (Broadcasting, Aug. 29 at seq.) in private meeting with NAB officials. Commissioners cited this as standard practice for last several years; also that screening occurs only in comparing promise vs. performance. They emphasized that spot count is subsidiary to other issues and that no station has ever been set for hearing on this matter alone.

One hour meeting to place Nov. 15 with five commissioners (Lee and King were not present) and following FCC staffers: Harold G. Cowgill, Broadcast Bureau chief; Joseph N. Nelson, renewal & transfer chief; Ashbrook P. Bryant, network study chief; and James B. Sheridan, special assistant to Chairman Ford. For NAB: Thomas C. Bestie, Cascade Stations, chairman of radio board; Merrill Lindsay, WSOY Decatur, III., vice chairman of radio board, and John E. Meagher, NAB radio vice president; Vincent T. Wasielkoski, government relations vice president and Douglas A. Anello, chief attorney.

Policy board
When Florida's Governor LeRoy Collins takes over as NAB president Jan. 4, he'll probably have new type policy committee to steer him until annual NAB convention in Washington in May. Committee, to replace present three-man policy group that has served as regency since death of President Harold E. Fellows last March, probably again will be headed by Clair R. McCollough. As one current prominent board member put it, this is indicated because of Clair's ability, his availability from his organization, his geography and his work on the policy committee. At NAB convention, it's likely that provision will be made for regular chairmanship, to be rotated among outstanding broadcasters. Mr. McCollough has been often suggested as first chairman.

First public appearance of Governor Collins after he assumes NAB presidency Jan. 4 will be in formal address before Federal Communications Bar Assn. annual meeting in Washington Jan. 13. Governor Collins hasn't indicated his subject and it won't necessarily be on communications law or Washington operations.

Cloudy on clear
FCC may find itself deadlocked 3-3 on ancient clear channel breakdown case. Seventh commissioner—Charles H. King, who has been in Hawaii on official business—so far has not participated because of lack of familiarity with case. If deadlock persists, FCC may have no alternative than to dismiss proceeding, pending since 1945.

Here's how commission is understood to line up: In favor of breaking down 12 of existing 24 clear channels (most of them network owned and operated stations in major markets) with other 12 to be held status quo but with potential of 750,000 watts: Ford, Hyde, Lee. Canon 35 aids Reds, SDX's Newton reports

Though waiver of equal time for Kennedy-Nixon radio-tv debates was "gain" for broadcasting, little progress has been made for electronic access to courtrooms, according to annual report of Sigma Delta Chi's freedom of information committee submitted yesterday (Sunday) by V. M. Newton Jr., chairman and SDX president.

Report said Congress could end bureaucratic secrecy "almost overnight" by simply blocking appropriations to agencies, bureaus and commissions which "persist" in withholding information from public. But Congress is slow, it said, because of political party "worship," hesitancy to "collide head-on" with President and "preference for political privilege" inherent in secret government. Mr. Newton charged there is more federal secrecy today than eight years ago when he assumed committee chairmanship.

Discussing American Bar Assn.'s Canon 35, Mr. Newton, managing editor of Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, said Soviet Union's widely distributed pictures of U-2 spy trial showed "great decorum and great dignity in the Russian courtroom." They refute ABA arguments that cameras would disturb decorum and dignity of court and abet Russian propaganda, he said. ABA thus "denies American press the opportunity of propagandizing the world on free American justice." Joint committee of media and bar representatives has failed to obtain funds for thorough study of Canon 35.

Mr. Newton called on all newsmen and public to keep "constant pressure upon the individual congressman" in interest of informed public opinion and free government. Report listed 173 cases of federal abridgment of freedom of information in five years with censorship removed in 95 and continued in 88 cases and restrictions partly removed in eight and partly continued in two others. But SDX fight is "now earning rich dividends in government information" in various states, he said.

NAB asks delayed date for finance comments

NAB Friday asked FCC to extend deadline from Dec. 9 to Feb. 1 for comments on proposed changes in financial form required yearly from every licensee of broadcast station.

FCC issued proposed changes earlier this month (BROADCASTING, Nov. 7).

New career

John Charles Daly, tv personality and recently resigned ABC vice president in charge of news, special events and public affairs, will marry Virginia Warren, daughter of Chief Justice and Mrs. Earl Warren, Dec. 22 in San Francisco, according to formal engagement announcement made Friday (Nov. 25) by Miss Warren's parents.

Mr. Daly resigned his ABC post over policy differences with ABPT President Leonard Goldenson (BROADCASTING, Nov. 21). He is also known as moderator of CBS-TV panel show What's My Line?

They include requirement for condensed balance sheet, analysis of all notes, itemization of technical and program sales and general administrative expenses, report of profits and losses from all sources, and accounting of all payments made to officers and directors. NAB request for extension said that since many broadcasters have not seen proposals, association sent duplicate copies to all members. Comments from individual broadcasters should produce "more affirmative result," NAB said.

Guterma denies guilt

Alexander L. Guterma and five others have pleaded not guilty of conspiring to sell $1.5 million worth of unregistered United Dye & Chemical Corp. stock.

Trial on this charge was scheduled Dec. 12. Mr. Guterma, one-time head of MBS, is serving 59-month prison term for violating securities laws. He's also under sentence of 8 to 24 months and $10,000 fine for failing to register as foreign agent. This involved 1959 charge he accepted $750,000 from Dominican Republic to air Trujillo propaganda on MBS. None was ever broadcast. MBS is now owned by Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co.

Disc firms sign consents

Three more record distributors have signed payola consent orders with Federal Trade Commission, bringing to 86 number of complaints settled this way. FTC issued 102 complaints in year-long attack on payola problem.

Latest consent judgments were signed by: General Distributing Co., Baltimore; Triumph Records Inc., New York; and Jay Kay Distributing Co., Detroit.

All three were charged with making under-counter payments to radio-tv disc jockeys. General and Jay Kay also were charged with payments to other broadcast station personnel.

Barbour appointed in ARTS expansion

As part of its expansion move into tv program packaging and production, Advertising, Radio & Television Services Inc., New York, is announcing today (Nov. 28) that Oliver Barbour, formerly vice president in charge of radio-tv for Benton & Bowles, New York, has joined ARTS as senior vice president and chairman of plans board.

Jerald Auerbach, ARTS president, said several tv programs on tape and film are in planning stage and their titles

ABC-TV claims No. 1

ABC-TV claimed Friday it had taken over No. 1 position in national Nielsen ratings for first time, with average evening program rating of 18.6 against 17.8 for CBS-TV and 17.5 for NBC-TV. Figures were based on Nielsen report for two weeks ended Nov. 6, which show ABC-TV and CBS-TV with four programs each in Top 10 and six each in Top 15, and NBC-TV with two in Top 10 and three in Top 15.

ABC announcement, which came while NBC Board Chairman Robert Sarnoff's attack on ABC-TV was still echoing (see page 27), claimed audience leadership on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights; gave CBS-TV leadership on Saturday and Sunday nights and NBC-TV top place on Wednesday night. ABC said Nielsen ranked Top 15 as follows (all periods 7:30-11 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 6:30-11 p.m. Sunday):

Gunsmoke (CBS) 36.3; Wagon Train (NBC) 33.9; Have Gun, Will Travel (CBS) 32.3; Debbie Reynolds Show (ABC) 19.7; Real McCoys (ABC) 27.6; Rawhide (CBS) 27.2; Untouchables (ABC) 27.0; Bonanza (NBC) 26.9; 77 Sunset Strip (ABC) 16.8; Danny Kaye Show (CBS) 26.4; Perry Mason (CBS) 26.1; Price Is Right (NBC) 25.7; My Three Sons (ABC) 25.2; Danny Thomas Show (CBS) 25.2; Lawman (ABC) 24.1.

On wpix-11 your commercials are in programs with the "network look." This "network atmosphere" also extends to our advertisers and our audience. 98% of our advertisers are national. “It’s a great selling tool. I don’t see how anybody stays in business without it... This market does more dollar volume of local business than a great many of the three-station markets in the country. A great percentage of that business is on Videotape*... It gets local business because it absolutely takes the risk out of it. For example, it’s awfully hard for an advertiser to visualize from a piece of copy paper with a video column and an audio column just what his commercial is going to look like on TV. But if the salesman can say, ‘I’ve got a spot all recorded for you on your fall coat sale, and I want you to see it,’ then he’s sold. This is just so much better than any other way to sell local television that you just can’t compare it!... What do we think of Ampex? No question but what they’re the leaders in tape. They put tape on the map, and as far as we’re concerned, it’s the Ampex VTR that’s keeping it there.” A single sheet of paper, an envelope addressed to Ampex and a 4¢ stamp is all it takes to get the complete profit-potential story about tape... and about the Ampex VTR as a basic sales-building component of any complete TV operation. Native ‘foreigners’

EDITOR: On pages F-79, 80 and 81 of the 1960 Broadcasting Yearbook the following languages were listed as “foreign”: Apache, Cherokee, Chippewa, Eskimo, Navajo, Thlinget and Ute. If they are “foreign” to the North American continent, pray tell where in this world, or any other, are they native?—Earl N. Hodges, Chief Engineer, KFFA Helena, Ark.

AFA’s ‘Advertising Year’

EDITOR: In reading your estimable magazine of Nov. 14, I am intrigued by your editorial on “A campaign for advertising” (page 124) . . . I couldn’t agree with you more on the fact that there has been more talk about doing something to improve the image of advertising than on possibly any other subject in the last few years and it is also equally obvious that little has been done to accomplish that task.

However, I feel that you may have overlooked a promising program which is now under way and which deserves the fullest support of your magazine and of all other media in the nation. It is our Advertising Year program to help create a better climate of understanding for the advertising industry. This campaign, which will be launched with a week-long salute starting Feb. 5, 1961, is being created by the famous McCann-Erickson Adv. (U.S.A.) with the public relations assistance of Daniel J. Edelman & Assoc.

It is the desire and has been the demanding purpose of the creators of this campaign to make it a positive presentation of advertising’s indispensable role in our American economy. The symbol for the campaign will be a concentric circle of arrows in which advertising, mass demand and mass production all play an equal role. We are not going [to claim] that advertising is the one and only element which makes America great. This is pure hogwash and we in advertising must learn to be moderate and honest in our claims for it. I think this is one of the great distinguishing characteristics of the present campaign.

McCann-Erickson, as its predecessor task force agencies, has created a complete campaign for all media in this case. It certainly deserves the fullest cooperation of all of us because this is a “bread and butter” educational drive.

Every time one of us runs an ad or gives air space to a commercial telling how advertising is an integral part of our economy, we help people understand that this is one of the ways by which they enjoy the finest mass communication system in the world today. They also understand a little better why the consumer is king in America and enjoys a privilege of choice 100 times each day.

One piece of information in your editorial of Nov. 14 needs further clarification. That is your reference to the Advertising Council and its responsibility for so many fine public service efforts. You are absolutely right in that regard, but it should be pointed out that it would be an impossibility for the Advertising Council, of which I am a director, to assume the role of a partisan pleading the case of the advertising industry. The very charter of the Advertising Council forbids it from conducting an educational campaign on behalf of a better understanding of our industry. It is limited only by its resources in serving unselfish public causes but this unfortunately precludes such a service to the advertising industry itself . . . .—C. James Proud, President and General Manager, Advertising Federation of America, New York.

Travelin' 'n' talkin'
EDITOR: I doubt if very many, if any, other radio stations in the country have such a widely traveled news editor on their staffs as our Porter Randall. He has just returned from an assignment that carried him through three continents, Africa, Asia and Europe.
He did broadcasts to KFJZ from the Valley of the Kings in Egypt, from Damascus and Jerusalem in the Holy Land and from Athens, Greece. Besides his regular broadcasts, which are fed by KFJZ to the Texas State Network, Mr. Randall currently is engaged in a series of speaking engagements before civic groups, schools and churches. His lecture dates are a promotion and public service of KFJZ. He does not have an open speaking engagement for the next 30 days. ARROW
MONDAY MEMO  from LARRY DUPONT of Tracy-Locke Co., Dallas

Take the client along when you film your tv spots

Whenever he mentions the fact that he likes to have the client along when he shoots a television spot, other agency people look at the writer as though he has wandered too far from his psychiatrist's couch. After all, why not take the client along? He's picking up the tab. He's entitled to know what goes on when his commercial is being shot. And it will make the agency's job easier.

"Easier! the man says!"

"Yes, easier," the man says.

In the first place, too often the client thinks taking a beauty shot of his product simply means setting a package down, turning on a couple of lights, aiming the camera more or less in the direction of the product and letting it "fly."

After several hours of this, clients who have been with me on such a shooting assignment, have squirmed uneasily in their chairs and turned wary eyes toward me and asked, "Does it always take so much time to shoot a simple scene like this?"

When he notices that the lighting man will try 10 or 12 different lights at varying heights and distances; when he sees that the label has been color corrected to reproduce it more faithfully on black-and-white tv; when he observes that the subtle pattern of shadow in the background is specifically designed to thrust his product more pleasingly into the viewer's awareness, he'll be more appreciative of such things in future commercials.

Understanding Costs = Then, too, there are the costs—and this is the hardest thing of all for a client to understand. Why do location sequences cost so much?

Take him with you next time and let him count with amazement the horde of people required to shoot on location—the chief camera man, his first and second assistants, the grips, the prop man, wardrobe lady, make-up and hairdresser, electricians, transportation personnel, director, assistant director, script girl, etc., etc. (Yea, even unto the "honey-wagon"!)

Let him sit with you while you call the weather bureau and Dr. Krick, and then, on the basis of their conflicting forecasts, decide with you whether or not you should issue a call for the next morning. Let him share with you the agony of making the decision to commit yourself for crew costs—only to find out that the guy who said it would rain was right.

Clients take a dim view of $1,700 down the drain for a canceled shooting schedule, generally. But they accept it with considerably more resignation if they know why the decision was made.

The same holds true of on-stage production. Let him stand by your side as you go through thousands of feet of rear screen projection material trying to find a "plate" that is just right for your background. Let him sit in with you on a casting session to find out that your selection isn't always based on measurements and beauty alone. Indeed, it'll be good for him to know that casting sessions are the cold, impersonal, businesslike operations they are—usually.

Details Add Up = Then, ask him to go with you to the set designer's office to see the sets he has sketched, and note the minute construction details that are meticulously specified, like an architect's drawing of a home. Then urge him to watch them put up a set, the shoring, finishing, dressing, rigging, etc.

Next, invite him to attend the pre-shooting planning session you have with your director and camera man. Let him discover that not all decisions are made on set. Let him find out how much you thought you had given this project.

These are the reasons I like to have clients come with me when I shoot. I suspect that the reason I don't have more company in my views is because many agency producers feel they don't want to be inhibited by the hot breath of the client blowing down their necks. That is a hazard. Personally, I infinitely prefer to have him breathing down my neck as I shoot than looking down my throat after.

A producer who knows what he intends to do, who has carefully plotted out in his own mind how he intends to handle his assignment, has little to fear from most clients. I have found them to be understanding, cooperative and many times very helpful. After he gets his feet wet, the client frequently gets enthused about the whole thing, rolls up his sleeves and works just as hard as you do.

Contingencies = I can't count the number of times when circumstances have called for deviation from the storyboard on the spot. Going back home later and explaining (most of the time, defensively) why you changed it, is one thing. Having the client right there to understand why the change was advisable, is quite another thing.

There is another hazard: the possibility that his presence along with you may bring about the condition of too many chiefs and not enough Indians. In that case, a tactful discussion of the expensive confusion that can result from the cast or crew being bewildered by directions coming from more than one source will ordinarily head off this sort of thing.

Yes, take the client along with you next time. Chances are you'll come back from the trip with a new friend and ally.

And the incidence of "accepted as produced" commercials will take a pleasant rise.

but the television audience votes every night...

One day, come every four years, the electorate turns out to choose its President — and, come that same night, sits down to see how it turned out.

In doing so last week, the vote for the most election viewing went, convincingly, to Network Z. (It's smart politics not to name your opponent.)

Now, while in the credit-where-it's-due department, let us not forget that the television audience votes every night. And dial twisting, like lever pulling, can shift the vote from minute to minute.

By Popular Majority

That the dial twisters have, from recent week to week, shifted to ABC is now a matter of simple, available record.

So, too, went the voting for the week ending November 13. As the chart shows, this Nielsen TV Report gives ABC a clear lead in audience. Despite, we repeat, Network Z's victory on Tuesday night.

By nights of the week, if that's your gauge, ABC led our times (Sunday, Monday, Thursday, Friday). Net Z took Tuesday (Election Night) and Wednesday.

The Margin Grows

What happens when you look at the numbers uncluttered by the complication of election preemptions? When you base your rating on how the networks fared or the five nights following the Election Extravaganza? The margin grows bigger: ABC leads with 20.5... Net Z is second with 18.2... Net Z last with 16.4. (Actually this is a bigger rating for ABC than we rolled up for the same five nights of the previous pre-election week.)

Enough figures. Whether your measuring standards are broad or narrow in gauge, one truth emerges unchallenged. Where the 3 networks compete on an equal facilities basis, where the dial twister can dial in all 3 networks, most of the time he dials in ABC.

Heritage Recalling

This, despite any pious pronouncements to the contrary, did not happen by laurel resting or heritage recalling. It was achieved by hard work, not hard words. By a belief in pioneering new programming patterns, by trend-setting, not trend-spotting. By recognizing that the dial twisters hold the voting and veto-ing power. By knowing that you have to be there with the right new twist when they start twisting the dials.

Significant case in point: We were there first with the Westerns... and then, with the right new twist in Westerns: Maverick. Today, with the noble declarations about full range programming obligations being tossed about, it is enlightening to note that Network Z leads in the number of Westerns on the air (just as it trails in audience).

This, of course, is their privilege. We're off pioneering again. This time, trend-setting in completely new television country with The Flintstones... TV's first adult cartoon series... and TV's top-rated show among all new entries this season.

Coming Events

In the public service area, similar pioneering strides are in evidence. There is television's most ambitious visual project — Winston Churchill: The Valiant Years... 26 chapters of living history. There is also a vital departure in documenting current events, co-produced with Time Inc., leading off with Yanki—No!... a non-punch-pulling exposition of the coming showdown in Latin America.

If any or all of this comes as news to you, we'll be pleased to fill in the details. For the moment, suffice it to say we are where we are because of what we are... a forward-moving network alive to the changing moves of the dial twisters.

How else can a network find and keep favor with them?

ANYONE HURT BY SARNOFF BLAST?

- Shock waves linger from his explosive speech against ABC
- Both NBC and ABC claim some gains in station clearances
- But agencymen are divided in appraising speech's impact

NBC and ABC appeared last week to have held their ground without noticeable gain or loss among leading agency executives after NBC Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff's unprecedented public attack on ABC-TV's programming and business operations (Broadcasting, Nov. 21).

Officials of both networks claimed to have picked up additional clearances from "dual affiliates" after Mr. Sarnoff's attack, but neither would give details.

Top agency officials, responsible for millions of dollars in network billings, were divided between supporting Mr. Sarnoff and defending ABC. But in relatively few cases did they take unconditional positions. A typical reaction: "NBC's right about ABC not paying enough attention to public affairs programming. But ABC has been a growing network, trying to build audiences and sales, and you can't blame it for concentrating on mass-audience programs until it gets into a position to afford these other things. On the other hand it has reached the point where it had better begin putting on more of these 'quality' programs pretty soon."

Mr. Sarnoff let loose his charges in an address at the NBC-TV affiliates convention 10 days ago. He called ABC-TV a "narrow-gauge" network more interested in mass audiences than "full service" and indirectly accused it of "manipulating" audience claims, depressing rates and buying affiliations. ABC issued no formal reply, but officials privately countered that NBC was "full of sour grapes" and cited latest ratings reports to back up ABC audience claims (Closed Circuit, Nov. 21).

No Formal Statement = In declining to comment formally on Mr. Sarnoff's speech, ABC authorities took the position that "We're not competing with NBC. CBS is our opponent—for ratings, for advertisers and for affiliates." They also called attention to public-affairs programming already in their 1960-61 schedule and said plans for expansion in this area were already under way.

While reactions to the Sarnoff speech varied, there was no indication that agency officials' agreement or disagreement with it would affect their buying decisions. Here is how some of the most influential agency executives reacted:

The vice president in charge of radio-TV for a large agency voiced the opinion that NBC's criticism of ABC was "entirely warranted." But he questioned the "time and place" for such an action. He indicated that NBC might have chosen a forum other than a meeting of affiliates, some of whom also take ABC-TV, to deliver such a blistering critique. He took a dim view, however, of ABC-TV's rating claims and asserted many of them "are full of holes." In negotiation for sales of programs, he found it was his experience that networks rarely downgrade the competition but try to point up the value of buying into their particular network. He said the incident "certainly will not affect any buying decision I may have to make."

'Back-biting' = "It's only a tempest in a teapot," according to another highly-placed media executive. He pointed out that magazines "sometimes indulge in this kind of back-biting and nobody even notices it." He added that obviously NBC was trying to "sell against ABC," but he said the episode would not influence him for or against either ABC or NBC.

Another media official commented: "It isn't an insane criticism. Where there's smoke there's fire. Witness the John Daly incident. But I do think that Bob Sarnoff colored his remarks for competitive reasons. It would seem that there is at least an element of affiliation weakness at ABC."

But this executive felt there was a partial justification for Mr. Sarnoff's criticism. He pointed out that the advertising industry sympathized at first with ABC's plight in the years when it was clearly a struggling third network trying to build both audiences and sales. But, he indicated, the time has come for ABC to recognize that, like NBC and CBS, it has an obligation to present more informational programs.

The radio-TV vice president of another agency dismissed the Sarnoff incident as "sour grapes." He added: "In fairness, it must be said that ABC is not doing as well as it wants you to believe. Some of the claims the network makes in its ads just aren't true. He thought the inter-network rivalry for the dollar had reached the point where there is no advantage in going to any one network "just because it's CBS or it's NBC." He indicated that the "present balance" means that today the program and the time slot are the important factors to consider—not the network there is, on occasions, "competitive selling" by the networks and this is particularly true on daytime shows.

Wrong Place = ABC's blast against NBC might have been "self-serving," a tv-radio vice president at another leading agency ventured, and added: "If it had to be said, I don't think it should have been said at an annual meeting. For the good of the business, the less that is said about these feuds, the better."

An agency media official expressed the belief that NBC's criticism was "justified to some extent." It was his opinion that networks have an obligation to program in the public interest and carry shares of a cultural nature—either sponsored or unsponsored. For a long time, he continued, NBC and CBS fulfilled this obligation while ABC was, understandably enough, concentrating on gathering an audience and building sales. He remarked: "Today ABC is in a competitive position. It's about time that ABC started to carry a larger share of public service and cultural programs."

"None of the networks is clean" was the comment of a media executive at an agency that ranks among the majors in radio and television billing. At the same agency, a programming executive observed: "If I were in Bob Sarnoff's position I'd say the same thing." The programmer felt NBC-TV was justified in maintaining that with CBS it shares in "more public responsibility" than does ABC. But, he said, these two networks are in a "better position" to do this, because their "entertainment position is established." He found NBC-TV's coverage record commendable during the political conventions and the election, and, in his opinion, NBC-TV has an "additional right" to assume the "offensive." For ABC-TV, he continued, it would appear to be "realistic" to sell time on a basis of receiving 50 cents on $1 rather than receiving the whole dollar if the alternative is no sale at all. Yet, said this spokesman, "There's no show on ABC-TV that's cheaper than a Raven on NBC-TV or an Aquanauts on CBS-TV on the basis of minutes."

Forcible Competition = An executive in media for another large agency found Mr. Sarnoff's statement before affiliates a "commercial piety . . . and what can be expected when anybody gets in a competitive situation."

The executive said he was not praising one network above another, however, because though "ABC-TV has short sightedness, NBC-TV itself has short sightedness." Regardless of ABC-TV's methods, he saw NBC-TV's statement as indication that "ABC-TV has worked into the picture." NBC-TV, he surmised, was tightening up its affiliates and thought "If a network must lecture its affiliates, this evidently means affiliations have been somewhat loosened."

It is true in a sense, he said, that ABC-TV programs for mass audiences but that ABC-TV as the third network had to find a way of "splitting the pie" and of injecting a programming appeal to get a reasonable percentage of the total audience. He thought, too, that there's much truth in the feeling expressed by many that ABC-TV has reverted to programming on the "paperback novel level." Asked if it was not true that some of his own clients bought into these very same shows, this executive answered in the following way:

Suspicious = "There's the advertiser who deals with mass sales—the advertiser of food packages, drugs, cold remedies, cigarettes and the like. He wants to buy two things in volume: reach or coverage, and frequency. And some just don't care so long as they get a rating or obtain belief that an audience exists.

The charges and counter-charges, he said do not affect buying—"We are suspicious of any charge or statement that is too strident or too restrictive in the area covered."

One major agency executive brushed off the whole thing as "ridiculous," admonishing broadcast people to "spend more time" on more important matters.

Mixed Feelings = But according to another top executive: He looks at the situation with "mixed emotion." Basically, he believes ABC-TV probably is guilty of what it charged, and that although Mr. Sarnoff's statement is well taken in parts, "50% of it is sour grapes." This is what he feels ABC-TV is guilty of: "As a growing third network, it has thought of "ratings first and respectability second"; it's believed to have made higher payments to stations in certain markets in order to improve its competitive position. In addition he felt ABC-TV also is "partly guilty of running formula shows" that are on at an unpopular hour.

This procedure by ABC-TV, however, would not affect the agency's buying pattern—"these are but general statements." They are made, according to this executive, to permit a network to defend itself and to get publicity, though he pointed out that Mr. Sarnoff "is known to be against deals and doesn't approve of them, and when things get tough and NBC-TV is forced into a competitive situation and deals are made, Mr. Sarnoff, if he then knows of them, goes along begrudgingly." Each network makes deals, he said, "though CBS-TV does it least." He thinks network rivalry is good on the theory of "the greater the competition, the better for us and the industry in general." He would expect ABC-TV to increase its quality programming but points out that at present the network "tries not to get hurt," placing its Churchill series, for example, in a non-peak period of 10:30-11 p.m.

The executive vice president of a medium-sized agency expressed the opinion that Mr. Sarnoff's action was "ill-advised." He observed: "It certainly sounds as if NBC is desperate." He believes that ABC will expand more and more into public service programming as that network continues to gain in financial strength. The incident, he said, will not play any part in his buying decision, adding: "Any agencyman worth his salt makes his decisions in a hardboiled way, though I must say that Mr. Sarnoff's remarks left a bad taste in my mouth."

An agency partner summed up his feeling by saying: "NBC must be hurting." He said the networks usually are circumspect in references to competing networks during negotiations for the sale of programs and when the decision is "close" they resort to presentations that could be labelled "sniping."

Close to capacity, but...

A New York office building has started to advertise on a regularly scheduled radio program on WNTA Newark-New York. The building is at 444 Madison Ave., which owner-operator Oestreicher Realty-Freeman & Gerla fondly refer to as "The Communications Capital of Madison Ave." The program is Open End on radio Sundays, 10-10:30 p.m. According to Gerard Oestreicher, partner in the realty firm, the 43-story building is "close to capacity" in rentals but the objective is to continue "projection of the building's image to decision makers for whom we may have space at a future date." David Susskind, host on Open End and also a partner of Talent Assoc. which is housed at 444 Madison, will deliver one of the two institutional commercials carried on the radio show each week. Koehl, Landis & Landan, is the agency.

CIRCULATION OR QUALITY?
Whether to buy program quality or audience size debated by FS&R's Duram Filmways' Erickson

A discussion of buying audience size compared to program quality in network television last week drew Arthur E. Duram, senior vice president in charge of radio and tv, Fuller & Smith & Ross, and Rodney Erickson, president of Filmways, into opposite camps.

In a so-called “debate” of the issue at the Radio & Television Executives Society's timebuying-selling meeting in New York, Mr. Duram asserted that advertisers — particularly those which have the large portion of their budgets in a single network program — must reach interested tv viewers. And the way to do that, he intimated, was for the advertiser to choose a better program, or negatively, not select the show that fails to gain his interest or attention, or otherwise attract the viewer.

Crux of Mr. Duram's talk: better programming is possible if the advertiser seeks this but not numbers alone. "Your (advertisers') sight will be automatically lifted," he said, "because no matter how important or how trivial you consider the viewers' mental attitude, the only possible solution is to make programs more interesting, more exciting, stimulating and rewarding — not routine, nor dull, nor mechanical copies of the show ahead of it and behind it."

Not P & G * He admitted, however, that Procter & Gamble, Lever Bros., Colgate and General Foods do not fit this category. "If they run into a glob of passive viewers on one show, they are quite likely to catch those same women very alert on some other show," he said: "Neither the very good high rated programs of television nor the very good low rated programs present a basic problem in giving our commercials a maximum response. The viewer of Huntley-Brinkley is wide awake and those of Untouchables are very alert because they are likely to get shot if they're not.

"But this is not dependably so with respect to that huge area of middle mediocrity."

Mr. Erickson's talk began with: "It's time for plain talk." He then proceeded by noting that a way to get one's name and that of the agency in newspapers and trade magazines was to publicly declare oneself in favor of better programming. And, he quipped, it's also a sure way to get across a new business pitch — it may even bring in new advertisers. Another avenue, he continued, was for the agency executive to talk about financing pilots or of being in favor of live show origination in New York (even though you don't have any at the agency), or if "You are David Susskind, you can decide that if you attack everybody you are bound to get some business."

While it's possible "theoretically" for an agency to get a "better program," Mr. Erickson admitted, the agency's responsibility is to make a profile — "and hazards are very great to take such a course." It is the producer that counts. According to Mr. Erickson, "second guessing a producer is a waste of time and money."

His advice to agency programmers and network tv timebuyers: take chances on numbers ("spread it out on a few shows"). He also said there's not enough attention given to commercials ("get one that's attention-getting").

Mr. Erickson declared that he doesn't see shows "getting much better." Network tv is "not a selective medium. There are no signs of flexibility ("You can't sponsor better shows at lower costs"). His philosophy in summary for the agency and client: "Have the right medium instead of spending time improving it.

RAB pitches for travel ads

A special report issued by Radio Advertising Bureau, New York, tells how the nation's 1,300 travel agents can "educate" prospective customers through the "personal selling" advantages offered by radio advertising. Nearly 100 million Americans spent some $22 billion last year traveling in the U.S. and abroad, RAB claims in a report on the booming travel industry, which includes a series of seven reasons why radio can "book more business for travel agents." Many people, RAB says, are not familiar with the travel agent's services, nor do they realize that agents derive their income from charges to carriers, hotels, etc.

The big television push for State Farm

INSURANCE COMPANY PUTS 60% OF ITS AD BUDGET ON JACK BENNY

Comic Jack Benny not only paid off in nickels at his New York tax-and-tie automat party Nov. 10 but apparently is paying off for State Farm Insurance Co. and its 7,500 agents across the country.

This 1960-61 season, as some 23 million nighttime viewers surely must know by now, the comedian-violinist is appearing every week on CBS-TV under co-sponsorship of State Farm and Lever Bros.

Network tv is old hat to the giant Lever Bros. But the Benny purchase marks a milestone for State Farm in the Needham, Louis & Broby agency shop, which has handled the account for about 21 years. The midwest insurance firm (located in downstate Blooming-ton, Ill.) is pouring an estimated 60% of its $5.5 million advertising budget into Mr. Benny on both network tv and spot radio.

Well before the first 13-week cycle expires, State Farm hopes commercials will catch the fancy of an estimated 40% of the nation's Sunday evening audience (9:30-10 p.m. EST) and provide nearly 10 million male adult car insurance prospects.

Walk Before Running • State Farm is not new in broadcast media, for NL&B has been bringing its client along slowly in radio-tv, dipping into and there in scattered purchases (Game of the Week baseball on tv, The Red Barber Show and White Sox owner Bill Veeck's sports commentary on WKBK [TV] Chicago). But State Farm accepted the agency's recommendation for buying the Benny series with all the fervor of a teenager accepting a surprise date with Fabian.

The advantages of such sponsorship were obvious—capitalization on a durable tv comedian, definitive leads for the client's agents, merchandising-promotion tie-ins for its agents, integrated commercials, a full-blown opportunity to trumpet a common theme to motorists—"Think Smart"—and several other plusses.

A perfect example is the special October promotion devised by the agency for State Farm agents and managers in advance of The Jack Benny Show's debut Oct. 16. They were invited to compete for the "Maxwell Award" for sales excellence between Oct. 1 and Oct. 31—one on the basis of accumulated points for selling different types of insurance. The prize: a striking bronze replica of Mr. Benny's celebrated Maxwell, complete with triple-horn sound.

As part of the tie-in advertising materials, agents and managers also received some 10,000 discs of "Jack Benny and Music to Write Apps By"—one side featuring Mr. Benny and his friends in behalf of the special promotion, the other featuring a State Farm medley of jazz, classical, Latin and folk variations on the State Farm theme.

That Horn • Responsible for the instrument that plays the infectious theme is Kenneth C. T. Snyder, NL&B vice president and tv-radio creative director, who picked up the original one day in a Chicago surplus store for about $17. The music was written by Jack Fasci-nato who, together with Mr. Snyder, is responsible for other album successes (including one dealing with music created from items found in a second-hand surplus store).

Other key agency people are Paul Belknap, account supervisor; Brad Wyatt, account executive; Pete Nelson, assistant account executive; Tom Thomas, agency producer on album and commercials, both live and film on the Benny show; Joe Crotaria, senior art director, animation of film commercials; Willis Davis, senior art director-designer of billboard with horns, and live action art direction; Jack Calnau, tv-radio writer on film commercials. Other credits: Pantomime Pictures (animation production house for film commercials); Lou Lilly Productions (live action production house for film commercials), Parapic Service Corp. (live action production house for billboard) and Dwayne Tillinghast of State Farm (promotion).

Explains Mr. Snyder, who typifies the fun and enthusiasm that seem to go hand in hand with production of the commercials: "You have to think in terms of what the guy on the other end of the tube likes. They go for certain types of music, whether it's corny or not, and there is immediate communication. The message is simple—it's the image of the campaign—and it says something about State Farm."

Variety • The State Farm messages are as varied as they are ingenious—like the one Nov. 6 when announcer Don Wilson tried to get Oscar the Seal to play the State Farm commercial theme on the three horns, only to be asked by Mr. Benny to play it himself ("blubber is blubber"); like another when clown Emmett Kelly confronts a broken-down jalopy (presumably the Maxwell) to communicate the message (see picture); or when a State Farm agent is shown with members of a Little League team. Still others feature actor Dan Duryea and singer Dennis Day with Mr. Benny in a lunchroom juke-box scene; actor Gale Gordon as the "shrewd" husband; the "smug" motorist who got a good State Farm buy; the "thrifty" Scotchman, and Messrs. Benny

Strong sell: how to build a house in six hours

With a “captivating audience” eager to get the election returns watching, WDAM - TV Laurel - Hattiesburg, Miss., provided also a demonstration of how a shell home could be built in only six hours.

Starting with the 6 p.m. election night telecast and every half hour thereafter, the commercials showed a live shot of a Jim Walter shell home being built adjacent to the station. The crew started working at 6 p.m. on a bare foundation (left picture). By midnight the staff of 16 carpenters, painters and roofing experts, aided by Ted West, district manager of the Jim Walter Corp., had completed the structure. Mr. West pointed out that the demonstration proved before the eyes of viewers that a Jim Walter home would be built with extreme speed and still maintain the company’s standards of quality. Plans for the commercial format were worked out by a committee consisting of Mr. West, Station Manager Marvin Reuben and Production Manager Charles Shade.

Mr. West noted that the model provided a real demonstration of how a building is constructed, with the foundation, walls, roof and windows all being completed within six hours.

At present, State Farm is not buying spot radio as such, but its agents may qualify for radio, tv and newspaper cooperative advertising programs as tie-ins with the network series. They also may order collateral materials (window banners, counter cards) at cost on a non-coop basis. The cooperative kit includes 10-, 20- and 30-second radio scripts and tv voice-over slides. Agents are urged to buy tv adjacencies to the Benny show “where it will count most” on the local station carrying it and to use live announcements on radio.

State Farm agents who sell auto, life and fire insurance seem to be happy with a new relationship that ought to put some nickels in their pockets, too, while they enjoy the commercials.

Chicago Art Club names winners of tv awards

Doner (art director, Manny Paul).

Ad Council gives awards to four ad agencies

Four advertising agencies and three campaign coordinators were given special awards by The Advertising Council, New York, for distinguished public service. Awards went to Foote, Cone & Belding, and to Michael P. Ryan, director of advertising, Allied Chemical Corp.

FC&B contributed its creative efforts to producing the “Contribute-Work-Vote” campaign, on which Mr. Ryan served as volunteer coordinator (conducted for the American Heritage Foundation).

Other awards: Campbell-Ewald Co., Detroit, for volunteer services on campaigns for U. S. Savings Bonds and the National Safety Council; Fletcher Richards, Calkins & Holden, New York, Religious Overseas Aid project; G. M. Basford, New York, National Safety Council and Savings Bond campaigns.

Citations went to Willard H. Sahloff, vice president and general manager, Housewares Div., General Electric, for coordinating an Aid to Higher Education campaign for the Council for Financial Aid to Education, and to Henry Schachter, executive vice president, Lever Bros., for coordinating the Radio Free Europe Fund project.
Ad Council reveals plans for two new campaigns

Advertisers and advertising media owners will be asked shortly to contribute time and space to support two campaigns of The Advertising Council: (1) to urge citizens to get the full report, "Goals for Americans," to be released by the President's Commission of National Goals (which will be published Dec. 12 by Prentice-Hall) and (2) to back a campaign designed to correct the present economic sag by raising public confidence to the point where consumer spending holds steady.

A third campaign was proposed by Neil McElroy, chairman, Procter & Gamble Co., on Nov. 22, when he was presented with the Advertising Council's Public Service Award for 1960, at the annual award dinner in New York. Mr. McElroy spoke on the need to upgrade public understanding of the quality and importance of the people who make up our government on the local, state and national levels. "We must develop more and better ways to encourage qualified people to devote themselves to government service. We need public support for sound steps to solve the problems that encumber recruiting efforts for government."

The council's drive to promote "Goals for Americans," with Young & Rubicam as the volunteer agency for the project, will break in national magazines at year-end and broadcast media in early 1961. The Council's economic "confidence campaign," has been researched in recent weeks under the leadership of Alton Ketchum, vice president of McCann-Erickson Inc.

Clinton Frank's new arm

Clinton E. Frank, fast-growing Chicago agency, has set up a separate corporation designed to offer clients specialized advertising research and marketing services.

Called Market Measurements Inc., it is headed by Louis E. Schueler as president and executive officer. He also continues as vice president in charge of research-marketing for the Frank Agency.

The new corporation is another step in the expansion of Clinton E. Frank, which has increased its billings from $1.8 million in 1954 to a projected total of nearly $20 million early next year with about 45-50% in radio-television. The Frank agency most recently landed the $3.5-$4 million Continental Oil Co. account.

First criticism of O-B-M's Shell deal

The new fee arrangement of Ogilvy, Benson & Mather with Shell Oil Co. along with an accompanying decision to place all of Shell's some $16 million of advertising in newspapers (Broadcasting, Nov. 21) got a couple of licks last week.

First agency-originated criticism of the fee (a flat fee based on the agency's actual costs plus a 25% profit in place of the traditional 15% commission) came from Marion Harper Jr., chairman and president of McCann-Erickson.

In a memorandum, Mr. Harper noted after the first year of a fee arrangement "subsequent revision annually would have the effect of making this a cost-plus contract, however. It is not clear whether David [Ogilvy] has substituted the client for the agency in financial responsibility to media."

Client's Status = Mr. Harper quipped it was easy for OB&M to become "the advertising department of Shell. In the process of course, this has the effect of putting the advertiser in the agency business. History has shown that this relationship to advertising is not generally tenable." He hinted that OB&M might have to get Shell's approval in changing manpower or in making other key switches at the agency. Mr. Harper thought also:

"It would seem necessary that each client of the Shell-Ogilvy agency will have to re-examine his relationship, since clearly a portion of the time of many key employees is, in principle, already charged to and pledged to one account by Mr. Ogilvy under his 'cost-plus' arrangement . . . ."
HOW TO TRAVEL IN THE BEST CIRCLES*

TvAR says Sunday afternoon is prime tv time

AND THE COST IS HALF THAT OF EVENING HOUR BUYS

Sunday afternoon tv is practically a prime-time buy at less than half the cost, Television Advertising Representatives Inc., N.Y., is telling prospects. Using winter 1960 Nielsen research for five markets served by the Westinghouse stations TvAR represents, it was found that 68% of families watch tv on Sunday afternoon (noon-6 p.m.) at stretches ranging from an average two hours in San Francisco to three hours in Pittsburgh and Boston.

It is a family audience, composed of 220 viewers per 100 homes, compared with 218 week nights between 8 and 9 p.m. It costs $1.31 per-thousand-homes for a 20-second message, compared with $2.70 for a 9 p.m. station break for all stations in the five markets.

Larry Israel, TvAR vice president and general manager, and Robert R. Hoffman, director of marketing and research, have sent the Sunday afternoon study to advertisers and agencies, directing their attention to "a real opportunity to reach the vast majority of television families."

More Males • Men in the five-market audience outnumber those at the 8-9 p.m. hour, at a 70-64 ratio per hundred homes, TvAR found. Women at the set on Sunday afternoon number 83 per hundred homes, compared with 96 at 8-9 p.m. Teenagers are the same at both times (26 per 100 homes), and children are more numerous than at the night hour (41 vs. 32 per hundred homes).

An advertiser who buys a schedule of six-on-the-hour announcements starting at noon on Sunday can expect this kind of an audience on the Westinghouse stations:

RAB study shows radio vital in advertising

RAB's 14-month study of retail advertising results is almost over. President Kevin Sweeney told the Milwaukee Advertising Club on Nov. 22, "Within two weeks radio will make a vital contribution to mapping advertising's most important but least-known frontier — what happens at the cash register when a retailer runs an advertisement."

The bureau has been working with a department store on controlled tests of advertising sales effectiveness.

Mr. Sweeney alerted listeners to the impending announcement in a speech criticizing advertising research of the past 30 years as mostly "irrelevant."

Agencies talk about Gallup-Robinson scores, Arbitrons, Nielsens, Audit Bureau of Circulations, Pulse and traffic counts, "But no one talks about sales results because no one apparently knows," he said. "Worst of all," Mr. Sweeney continued, "the retailer with easy access to the figures and the power to control the variables, knows less about what he sells as the result of his $4 million advertising investment than anyone else."

Stop being defensive, Frank tells agencies

Advertising agency profits the past five years have been "consistently too low" and it's time to stop being defensive about it, Clinton E. Frank, president of the agency bearing his name, told the Agate Club of Chicago last Monday (Nov. 21).

"For any business with the risk — 18 telephone calls today could put us out of business — hard work and late hours involved such as ours should certainly earn more than a certain per cent after taxes on total billings," he asserted. Mr. Frank added that most people in business feel this way and, in fact, all of our clients do about their own business."

The agency executive also scored "our own self-appointed critics" who make speeches coast to coast and "will readily censor you and me and our common business. Using his own client lists of some 18 different businesses, Mr. Frank said he didn't know of any "who are so openly self-critical about their own business and the people in it."

The rising cost of ads in national magazines

The general overall rise in cost per page per thousand circulation of national magazines is still high though there were improvements in 1959 compared to the preceding year.

In 1957 a black-and-white page in Life magazine had a one-time rate cpm of $4.02 (compared to $2.04 in 1940 and $3.01 in 1950). A year later the cpm rose to $4.32 but in 1959 it was reduced to $4.19, a figure, however, still above the 1957 level. On the other hand, a similar breakdown for Look shows the rate higher in 1959 over 1958 ($3.97 compared to $3.90). In 1940, Look had a $2.06 cpm, but in 1950 that figure was up to $2.73 and in 1956 hit $3.60.

The New Yorker magazine's cpm last year came to $7.01, a 6-cent reduction from the peak-year of 1958. That magazine's cpm in 1940 stood at $6.79, and in 1950 had gone down to $5.95. The Post came up from $2.46 in 1940 to $2.78 in 1950 and from $3.87 in 1958 to $4.09 a year later.

Cost of four-color pages in all four magazines show steady increases though the ratio has jumped noticeably. In 1940 Life had an 84-cent difference for four-color over black-and-white but in 1959 the difference was $2.10.

The continual move upward of black-and-white page rates (one-time) found Life with its latest rate change effective last February: $29.375, an 11% increase over its previous rate change made in February 1958. Other similar changes: Look in February 1960 went to $25,740, a 12% boost; New Yorker announced a $3,000 rate for January 1958, a 9.1% increase, and the Post moved up to $28,000, a 7.1% increase.

The rate and circulation information on national magazines is contained in a new addition of the Audit of National Advertisers' "Magazine Circulation and Rate Trends" covering the period of 1940 through 1959. The study was produced with the cooperation of the Audit Bureau of Circulation and Magazine Advertising Bureau.

This honor, the fourth this year for news alone, was presented by the Radio Television News Directors Association for outstanding on-the-spot reporting of the riot which took place during the San Francisco meeting of the House Un-American Activities Committee. This award was the only one made in the spot news category.

KRON/TV is proud to offer this high quality coverage to Bay Area Viewers on a regular basis.
Campaign to advertise advertising set

Destined to become a familiar sight in 1961, this is the symbol the Advertising Federation of America and Advertising Assn. of the West have picked for the trade's first year-long campaign on "advertising as a dynamic force for economic progress." With the art goes the slogan as finally okayed by the committee, slightly altered from earlier versions (BROADCASTING, Oct. 31 et seq.) to bring in other economic forces as well as the consumer.

Starting with Advertising Week, Feb. 5-11, and continuing the rest of the year, the AFA and AAW planners expect to rack up at least a half-billion impressions. The previous record for ad week alone was 200 million impressions in 1959. Broadcast kits are not ready yet, but scheduling of the free "ads" has already begun in anticipation of magazine deadlines for February.

George W. Head, advertising director of National Cash Register Co. and chairman of the ad week committee, said the unprecedented campaign was built on an "assumption that the role of advertising in the national economy has never been fully understood by the public." By taking a positive tack, not trying to answer or contradict "sheer volume abuse and distortion" heaped on advertising by its critics, Mr. Head and committee hope to "trade up the image of advertising more effectively than we could by any amount of defensive explanation." The campaign has been created by McCann-Erickson Adv. (U.S.A.) under supervision of Emerson Foote, president of the agency.

Pulse offers new 'audience profile'

The Pulse Inc. last week announced a new "audience profile" service that it will offer to advertising agencies, the tv networks and others in the tv advertising field.

Called the "Pulse Audience Profile," the service will cover any network program on a continuing four-times-per-year basis. First of these reports will be issued in January of next year with a time lag of a little less than two months. The service goes on sale this week with presentation to agencies. Pricing is set at $2,000 a year for an advertising agency, while cost to a tv network is $10,000.

The personal, in-home interviewing is nationwide, covering 500 sample places, or a 50-state sample of 1,750 video families. The quarterly report will present an audience breakdown covering at least 30 different characteristics for every network program on the air. Flexibility permits an advertiser to obtain extra information through the "extra-question" technique. Reports in the future will be coming out in November, February, May and August. A test run has been made successfully, Dr. Sydney Roslow, director of Pulse, explained, with various pilot studies conducted over the past two years.

Pilot studies have indicated that different programs and types of programs frequently attracted different kinds of viewers. A 22-market pilot report just completed by Pulse reveals daytime serials do a "far better job of attracting women who buy hair shampoos than daytime quiz and participation shows."

Confectioners feed tv's sweet tooth

Television advertisers in the confectionery field have had greater sales increases during the past 10 years than non-tv users in that category, according to Television Bureau of Advertising.

The current leading tv advertising confection company is Wm. Wrigley Jr., which had gross time billings of $2,749,420 in all of 1959, and spent $4,130,653 in the first half of 1960. Showing sales increases of 28% in the 1950-59 period, Wrigley used tv as its major medium for the first time last year.

The Sweets Co. of America Inc., ranking second in gross time billings, has had sales increases of 153% in the past 10 years, and had tv spot and network billings of $1,721,023 in January.

PUBLIC SERVICE

that holds public interest

Close study of programming is basic to our work as station representatives. Such study has deepened our admiration for the fine productions developed through creative talent, initiative and leadership of individual stations, from coast to coast.

Splendid examples of such leadership are the Civic Documentaries of KING-V, Seattle. Prepared by the station-staff and presented in prime time, these 90-minute programs have all the finesse of television "spectaculars."

The series started in June, 1959, with OST CARGO, dealing with the future of Seattle and the Puget Sound region: a major port. Subsequent programs included studies-in-depth of such problems as "School Levy Crisis"—"We Like It Here"—and "Civic Center crossroads."

Besides their dramatic success in stimulating audience and community response, the Documentaries have also proved highly effective in traceable results reported by sponsors. The series won a first Award of the Ohio State Institute 1960.

At Blair-TV, watching the impact of national programming by great stations on KING-TVs is a constant source of satisfaction. For more than 50 stations, we are proud to serve as the national sales arm.

BROADCASTING, NOVEMBER 28, 1960

June this year. American Chicle Co., whose first-half 1960 billings of $1,648,975 rank third, had sales increases of 96% in the last decade.

Of the $15,593,038 in gross time billings for the first six months $7,969,000 was spent for spot tv advertising and $7,624,038 was for network. The confectionery industry, with sales of more than $2.4 billion in 1959, is expected to spend some $60 million in all media in 1960, with television getting about 60% of the total.

Other leading users of tv for confectionery advertising in the six-month period were (gross time billings based on spot figures of N. C. Rorabaugh and network figures from Leading National Advertisers-Broadcast Advertisers Reports): Beech-Nut Life Savers, $1,310,000; Mars Inc., $1,079,490; Food Manufacturers Inc., $986,190 and Peter Paul Inc., $717,639.

A bottleneck hampers the communicators

One problem hampering the production of effective tv film commercials is a communications bottleneck existing among (1) the various creative units at the agency and (2) the agency and the outside film producer.

A panel raised this problem last week at the Radio & Television Executives Society production workshop and suggested a solution: Encourage closer teamwork among the creative departments (writing, art, directing and producing) and then choose a strong leader who would be invested with the power to make the final decisions during the actual film production.

Participants in the panel were: David Strouse, Warwick & Legler; Don Smith, Donahue & Coe; Bill Duffy, McCann-Erickson; William Van Praag, Van Praag Productions and Pierre Garal, Ogilvy, Benson & Mather.

The wolves win out over 'true love'

A series of cliffhanging commercials — The Perils of Esmerelda — have radio listeners frantically telephoning radio stations to learn how they turn out. The suspenseful spots for Durkee's Fresh Egg Mayonnaise were turned out by Cunningham & Walsh, San Francisco, for the Durkee Div. of Shedd-Bartush Foods and are heard in the major markets of the states of California and Washington.

Each of the four commercials finds mayonnaise-loving Esmerelda waiting for her true love only to be surprised by the villainous Simon Viper. The wily Viper wants the frail heroine to marry him instead. She inevitably refuses this proposal and forthwith he hustles her to the rapids, a buzz-saw or the railroad tracks and doom—unless her true love can rescue her. The spots leave Esmerelda in the perplexed situation and the announcer advises the listeners to bestir from the edge of their seats and call a certain phone number. A recorded announcement from Esmerelda's true love tells them how it all turned out. Sample:

MUSIC: LIGHT, GAY MOOD ... SILENT MOVIE MELODRAMA-TYPE THROUGHOUT

ESMERELDA: Oh, I am so happy with all my Durkee's Mayonnaise ... SOUND: KNOCK ON DOOR

ESMERELDA: (almost singing) Come in ... SOUND: DOOR OPENS

ESMERELDA: (latches!) Simon Viper — why are you here?

VILLAIN: To collect the mortgage.

ESMERELDA: But I just spent my last penny on this case of Durkee's Mayonnaise.

VILLAIN: Then, Esmerelda, I shall be forced to foreclose ... unless...

The contents of Chet Long's wallet are written in fourteen languages. In fifteen years of gathering and giving the news for WBNS Radio, Chet has visited twenty countries, and traveled 120,000 miles outside the continental United States. His cards identify him in press clubs from Tokyo to Reykjavik. In good old Americanese, Chet's cards also show he's an annual visitor to the Circleville Pumpkin Show, a member of the local Charity Newsies, the Buckeye Boosters, Humane Society and forty other organizations.

Chet joined WBNS in 1945, after making more than 5000 broadcasts for the Fifth Joint Service Command during World War II. His news scoops range from an inside-the-walls coverage of the Ohio Penitentiary riot and fire in 1952 to a continuous 48-hour stretch reporting the flood in January, 1959. His most recent honor came this month when his documentary on Korea received the Headliners Award from Press Club of Ohio for best news story presented on radio or television. He has been a commencement speaker in most high schools in Franklin County, and somehow always seems to work a 26-hour day.

On the occasion of his fifteenth anniversary with WBNS, we acknowledge Chet's unique place of affection in Central Ohio. As the man says about men like Chet—"They don't come along every day."

NETWORKS, PRODUCERS, UNIONS HOLD NEW YORK WEEKEND MEETING

The tv-radio networks and tv film commercial producers scheduled a meeting with the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild last Saturday (Nov. 26) in an effort to reach an agreement on a new contract. The old pacts expired on Nov. 15 and the session was the first serious attempt to revive negotiations.

Spokesmen for the networks and the unions declined to be drawn into a discussion of the implications of the meeting. The unions reported they were proceeding with preparations for a strike, if necessary, and the networks continued to keep their personnel on call in the event a walk-out was ordered by the labor organizations. Both SAG and AFTRA have received strike authorizations from their memberships.

Negotiations came to a standstill Nov. 15 after almost two months of talks (Broadcasting, Oct. 3 et seq.) Though Federal Mediator J. R. Mandelbaum met with both sides for less than ten minutes on Monday (Nov. 21), it was reported that both management and the unions decided there was no need for the services of the mediator at that time.

‘Wild Spot’ Issue. The most serious area of disagreement is said to be in the rates and conditions for the so-called "wild spot" commercials on film and tape. For the first time, AFTRA and SAG are negotiating jointly in commercials (the networks' contract is with AFTRA and the Film Producers Assn. of New York's is with SAG).

The joint negotiation has led to complications. SAG's rates under the contract that expired Nov. 15 were about 20% lower than AFTRA's. Whereas the unions have sought increases on the basis of the AFTRA rates, management, in turn, has offered raises on the basis of the lower SAG rates. The unions were asking for an approximate 25% increase over the latest AFTRA rates, while management offered about 20% over the SAG rates (Broadcasting, Nov. 21).

Sources close to the tv film producers pointed out that between 90-95% of the "wild spot" commercials have been on film. They point out that a 20% increase over present AFTRA fees would mean about a 50% increase over the SAG fees. They commented: "In the past, a premium fee was paid for commercials taped at a network or a station because there were so few commercials made there. But you must remember that a raise based on the AFTRA rate would apply to 90-95% of the national spot commercials, which have been largely on film."

Swing to Tape. A union official replied: "We want to equalize the rates. There is no doubt in our minds that more and more agencies and advertisers will swing to tape, once they learn to use it, because tape can be more economical than film over the long pull."

In other phases of the contract negotiations, there were reports that the networks were insisting upon gaining concessions from AFTRA in rehearsal time; the use of kinescopes as promotions at educational and civic organization meetings and in the use of edited versions of a network program for subsequent re-use.

It was said that management offered no raises to performers on network tv or radio programs or in radio transcriptions with one exception—a modest increase would be granted to sportscasters of baseball and football games.

Management negotiators were reported to have a mandate from advertisers and agencies to "hold costs down." Representatives of the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies and the Assn. of National Advertisers were present at all negotiating sessions as observers.

SAG Meeting. SAG members authorized the union's national board to call the new strike by an 89% majority vote in a mail referendum. SAG President George Chandler told a mass membership meeting Monday evening (Nov. 21) at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills. Just prior to the membership meeting and just after receiving certification of the strike authorization, Mr. Chandler reported, the SAG board voted unanimously to reject the latest counter-offer of the employers and to call a strike.

The union's executive committee,

WCBS will be floating on air this week

Some 400,000 people a day will be seeing WCBS New York at work this week. Starting today (Nov. 28) WCBS will be testing a new type of portable radio studio set up on the main rotunda of Grand Central Terminal in New York.

Constructed by Airshelters Inc., Akron, Ohio, the vinyl-coated nylon fabric mobile studio will be in use by WCBS from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Using no interior supports, the studio is a low pressure, air-supported structure 30 feet long, 20 feet wide, 12 feet high, with transparent plastic windows at each side and one end (see picture).

Divided into two sections by a transparent soundproof curtain of twin plastic plates, the studio's control room will contain a remote console panel, turntables and tape equipment, while the program section will house microphones, music stands, instruments, chairs, tables and other appurtenances to be found in any studio originating five different programs, WCBS said.

composed of the officers, has been given the authority to set the time for the start of the walkout. Mr. Chandler told the guild's members. All indications at the meeting were that the strike would start very shortly after the results of the membership vote and board action are formally presented to the negotiators for the networks, agencies and commercial producers.

John L. Daley, SAG national executive secretary, reported in detail on the contract negotiations which had gone on in New York for several weeks. President Chandler stated that on receipt of the 89% membership vote, the board had unanimously decided to reject the "final" offer of the employers and to call a strike "in order to get a fair contract that the negotiators and the board can recommend to the membership."

Monday's meeting was dominated by the strike threat, but also included these other highlights:

* Report of President Chandler that for the 12-month period ending Oct. 31, 1960, SAG collected and distributed to members an all-time record sum of $6,512,607 in residuals on tv entertainment programs, payments on theatrical pictures sold to tv and claims against producers for contract violations. Of that sum, program residuals amounted to $5,316,307, also a new high, which brings the total of residuals since they began in December 1953 to $17,386,425.

* Election of the full unopposed slate of SAG officers: George Chandler, president; Dana Andrews, first vice president; James Garner, second vice president; John Litel, third vice president; Ann Doran, recording secretary; Frank Faylen, treasurer.

* During the SAG fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1960, the guild's income was $634,341, its expenses $738,679, with a deficit of $104,338, Treasurer Leon Ames told the membership. Both he and President Chandler pointed out that even though the guild still has a surplus of $678,562, the figure was $820,184 two years ago. Mr. Chandler announced the appointment of a special committee to study the guild's financial situation and make recommendations for "a long overdue overhaul" of the dues structure.

* SAG membership as of Oct. 31 was at the all-time high of 13,685 paid performers, 9,396 in the Hollywood area, 3,481 at New York and 808 in other cities.

* Through the strike against the motion picture producers, SAG "won, for the first time, a pension plan and a health and welfare plan for motion picture actors, to be paid for entirely by the producers," President Chandler told the meeting. The agreement for the employer to make a contribution equal to 5% of actors' total earnings "means a payment by the employer—in theatrical pictures alone—of more than $1,650,000 a year." To get the fund started, he noted, "we persuaded the producers to give us a little something over and above the 5% contribution, an amount totalling $2,625,000, of which $2,250,000 will be paid into the pension plan in 10 installments over the next 10 years and $375,000 is being paid immediately into the health and welfare fund."

* Negotiations with producers to tv entertainment films resulted in an extension of the pension and health and welfare plans to television and "that's at least another million dollars a year," President Chandler reported.

* Producers of theatrical pictures also agreed to pay a percentage of tv receipts in perpetuity on all pictures made since Jan. 1, 1960, and released to television, he said. And the contract can be opened at any time after 15 months from now, he noted, to deal with pay tv, should it become commercially successful. And of course the new contract for theatrical movies included substantial increases in minimum scale, he said.

* Martin E. Segal, authority on pension, health and welfare plans and consultant for the SAG program, told the performers that starting Jan. 1, 1961, a major portion of doctors' and hospital bills of SAG members and their families will be paid for them, with substantial life and accident insurance coverage as well. Any actor who has earned as little as $1,000 a year in pictures is eligible to participate.

* In response to a question, Mr. Segal revealed that it is expected that the AFTRA and SAG pension, health and welfare plans will be merged so that an actor's performances in radio and live tv may be combined with those in filmed and taped programs or commercials.

‘Quality Control’ a must item for Storer

Storer Broadcasting Co. is wondering how it ever got along without the Quality Control self-regulation plan it installed eight months ago.

The idea, announced last winter during the black days of government investigations, is providing unexpected benefits to Storer's five tv and seven radio stations.

Another surprise—it's quite inexpensive, and well below original cost estimates.

Quality Control was set up by George B. Storer and his executive staff to provide "a continuing safeguard against repeated violations of FCC, Federal Trade Commission, contract, SAG, company rules or policies by any Storer station."

Mr. McCarthy

The plan finds violations of these rules but naturally can't correct them. That's up to management. Instead of serving as a sort of unwelcome spy system, it has developed enthusiastic approval at all operating levels. Weekly cost amounts to $820, which translates to about one or two 20-second spot per tv station; five to 10 spots per radio station.

Storer executives describe Quality Control as "the most comprehensive self-monitoring system in American broadcasting." Its impact on overall station operation is expressed this way, "Worth three times its cost."

Autonomy: Directing the tv and radio monitoring is Dean McCarthy, former Storer station manager and once producer of The Catholic Hour (Broadcasting, Jan. 18). He reports to Stanton P. Kettler, Storer operations vice president, and has absolutely no direct contact with anyone at any Storer station.

To insure complete autonomy, the department is based away from Storer headquarters in Miami Beach, with the director making contacts through top management. He has a television monitor in Atlanta, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo. Each monitor reports directly to Mr. McCarthy and under no circumstances is permitted to contact the station. And station managing directors don't know the name or address of the local monitors, none of whom have any other jobs or connections in broadcasting.

Ewald Kockritz, Storer vice president and national program manager for tv, calls on monitors and keeps them briefed on company policies as well as NAB and FCC rules.

"The purpose of Quality Control is to improve the end product," Mr. Kockritz said. "It hasn't been instituted just to catch violations, although everyone breathes easier knowing that it will spot quickly any irregularity. We regard quality control as a systematic sampling of the product.
CODE INTEREST HIGH AT NAB MEET

Government and community relations top agenda at Chicago

NAB’s series of fall conferences moved into the stretch run on a high note of optimism in Chicago last week, with broadcasters radiating confidence over the improved climate of broadcasting regulation.

Attendance at the Chicago meeting Monday and Tuesday reflected continued gains over last year’s figures, with approximately 275 registrants on hand. Attendance was running about 10% over last year as the conference circuit moves to New York for the final round today and tomorrow (Nov. 28-29).

Interest in radio and tv code activities ran high in Chicago, with emphasis, too, on government and community relations and the need for better fulfilling public service responsibilities to viewers and listeners. The prospect for less government regulation and “more reliance” on broadcasters’ ability to operate in good faith and the public interest was raised by NAB staff members and other speakers.

Broadcasters heard:

A reminder by Edward C. Quinn, president of Chrysler Motors Corp., and vice president of Chrysler Corp.’s sales divisions, that broadcasters face a “real challenge” in programming because more viewers and listeners have become “more selective” (see page 50).

Broadcasters evidenced more than passing interest in the Tuesday morning radio session on the code, stereo broadcasting, engineering efficiency, public relations and other topics, with particular emphasis on self-regulation.

Liquid Advertising. One station manager wondered aloud why the radio standards of practice prohibit liquor advertising when “there’s plenty of free liquor advertising on tv?” John Meagher, NAB vice president for radio, acknowledged this was a “sore point” and Vincent T. Wasielwski, vice president for government affairs, conceded there might be “inequalities” between the radio and tv codes.

Another broadcaster urged strict compliance with the radio code instead of letting it serve as mere “window dressing,” while another wondered whether NAB might not be in effect penalizing non-code subscribers. Mr. Meagher pointed out that the support of subscribers is needed and claimed broadcasters “have to stand up and be counted.” Provisions of the code on multiple sponsored public service shows (shopping, market, similar types) were reviewed by George J. Volger, KWPC Muscatine, Iowa, and member of the NAB Radio Code Board.

Mr. Strouse told NAB delegates that 178 million Americans are, in effect, all “program directors” and suggested broadcasters “have the courage to try new formats and ideas, to experiment with new program patterns.” “Let’s be a force for good in our communities, a strong force in this mixed-up world… Let’s get to know our senators, governors, congressmen, state legislators better and keep them informed about our stations and our progress,” Mr. Strouse suggested. “Let’s do the kind of job for the 178 million program directors that will keep them informed, enlightened and entertained.”

Men elected or appointed to public office often make “the very human and understandable error” of deciding that 178 million Americans share their likes and dislikes or of letting a “pressure group” persuade them as to what the public purportedly wants, Mr. Strouse pointed out. Any government official has the right to be a program director, too, as long as he doesn’t confuse “that personal right and his official position,” he asserted.

“Depth studies” of a station’s audience are essential in determining the type of programming that will best serve the public’s needs and desires, he noted. WWDC maintains strong telephone contact with listeners to keep apprised of these needs and wants, Mr. Strouse said, adding that on the basis of the station’s audience, Washington is.

just as has long been the practice in manufacturing.”

Monitors are directed to report objectively on what went on the air, serving as reporters rather than critics. They supply Mr. McCarthy with a record of what was broadcast, including video-only material and exact timing of all video copy. These timings are compared with station logs. Audio times can be taken from stations’ tapes.

Tape Monitor System. A Storer station managing director can have a complete monitoring and evaluation of his local competition within 48 hours, even a list of competitors’ advertisers if needed.

Each Storer radio station is equipped with a Soundscriber tape machine recording 24 hours on a single roll. Tapes are kept for the entire broadcast output and monitored in the Miami Beach office on a selected-day basis. The advance monitoring schedule is staggered and secret.

Tv monitors are notified a month in advance of monitoring days. All radio and tv station tapes are monitored by Mr. McCarthy, who checks each item against the logs. Radio stations submit approved music lists. Mr. McCarthy reports to Storer headquarters, including a recapitulation of promotional and public service spots. At least twice a year a week’s logs and tapes are analyzed, including a complete spot count.

Tv monitors describe what they see on the screen, using %14-inch ruled sheets. They supply comments on visual material, note crooked slides and other flubs, and keep a running account with stopwatch notations.

Mr. McCarthy reported a full day’s tv programming can be monitored in four hours, a 24-hour radio operation in eight hours. Naturally musical selections aren’t heard in full.

Stalking the Networks. Mr. McCarthy gives special attention to network programming, especially at tv stations. In one case a network was found to be giving opening and closing sponsor billboards in quarters that contrary to Storer rules and the NAB tv code.

The network promptly corrected the violation. And monitoring has led to better placements for the announcements.

Grady Edney, national radio program manager, said poorly-spotted announcements can be just as irritating to listeners as hard-sell commercials. The monitoring system shows bad scheduling, he said, adding, “Thanks to our continuous taping of everything broadcast we can now demonstrate, not remonstrate. The result has been better broadcasting.”

Cost for tapes and machines for all 12 stations and headquarters ran under $10,000. Salaries and operating expenses are under $3,000 a month. Storer officials believe an average radio or tv station can set up a similar checking system for less than $10,000 a year per station. Storer stations are WSPD-AM-TV Toledo, Ohio; WBKB-AM-TV Detroit; WAGA-TV Atlanta; WWAM-TV Cleveland; WITI-TV Milwaukee; WGBS Miami; KGBC Los Angeles; WBKG Philadelphia and WWVA Wheeling, W. Va.

programs they tune in than they used to be. I know that you are not waiting passively for some kind of slow shaping of your media to occur. You help it occur by taking bold steps in the right direction."

Quality Programs • Mr. Quinn cited "a new surge of quality programming" in the areas of news, public affairs and special documentaries, plus "fresh drama and musical shows." He expressed belief these programs are not aired "because of any tremendous ratings they may pull" but because "you men and women in radio and television management have recognized your obligation to introduce quality into your programming concepts."

Discussing the "importance of aggressive marketing" for economic growth, the Chrysler executive acknowledged that both television and radio have been "especially valuable to automotive manufacturers as a vehicle for introducing new car models. He pointed out that 84 out of every 100 cars (or over 50 million) are equipped with radio today and "to the extent that you make your radio programs attractive, then to that extent you help make motoring attractive."

5 broadcasters get AP news awards

Five broadcast news departments took honors at the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. annual convention in Williamsburg, Va. Citations for outstanding participation in news coverage went to eight newspapers and these broadcasters:

General Manager Verne Paule and newsman Bob Wilson of WJPS Evansville, Ind., for consistent protection to the AP, including outstanding on-the-spot help covering an airliner crash at Tell City, Ind., and the sex killing of 11-year-old Avril Terry at Boonville, Ind.

News Director Mike Morgan of WELM Elmira, N. Y., who telephoned AP with a hunch that police proved out, linking a former Elmira reformatory inmate to a double murder.

News Director Eddie Barker of KRLD-AM-FM-TV Dallas for a series of exclusive interviews with Mrs. Frances Spears, wife of a Dallas naturopath questioned about the possible bombing of an airliner which crashed, taking 42 lives.

News Director Al Crouch of KNUZ Houston, Tex., who with his staff gave AP members a 42-minute beat on the Amoco tanker explosion at Houston.

John Columbus, manager of WPUV Pulaski, Va., who covered for the AP two days last April when a man barricaded himself in his father-in-law's home with his wife's sister as hostage and stood off police for 30 hours.

RADIO-TV NOTEBOOK—

Give jagged nerves break: Tune in soothing Broadway After Dark

BY ROBERT E. LEE, News radio-TV editor

Are you one of those who are hooked, and I mean bad, to the extent that if you don't have your daily shot of TV your eyes become clear instead of teary, the pain goes from your back as you move around without sitting for hours before the black box with the changing eye?

Well, Mr. Addict, it's time you took a break, not a full cure, of course, but an hour or so of relief.

After the dishes are done tonight instead of plopping down into that easy chair click on that radio about 7:35 to WAPI and listen to some good music.

The program Broadway After Dark tonight, for example, will present The Sound of Music, a hit show from Broadway. Your host is Jim Lucas.

It's kinda nice, believe me. I took the break last night and heard The Flower Drum Song. Lucas is a very talented guy, so much so that he is under contract with NBC.

After an hour of Broadway music Lucas takes you pub hopping, catching entertainment from the brighter spots on the Great White Way, all via your magical radio.

Well, it seems when he was in Spain filming some bullring shots for a special show, Paar draped himself in fighting togs and prepared to tussle with a friendly milk giving cow.

Instead, someone, probably an irate fan from the states, let loose a real fighting bull.

Needless to say, Paar didn't fight, or shoot, the bull but ran for the exit. He suffered a couple of bumped ribs from the bull's charge. The bull showed photos of his bull whippings, and exposure, to his ire before the bull took his exit.

Jim Lucas' popular BROADWAY AFTER DARK is the sort of show people have come to expect from WAPI... entertaining, imaginative. It's a typical example of the way WAPI delivers the programs that deliver the audience!
The Sun Also Rises in Tulsa

"Please stop saying 'A-a-a-ah-h-h-h!' when you drink your Cain's coffee. You're teaching grandpa bad habits."

So wrote a little girl to KOTV's local Helios, whose enthusiastic coffee breaking on "Sun-Up" prompted the bit of sponsor identification quoted above.

KOTV's sun chariot rolls across the Tulsa sky every morning from 7 to 8. For half that time a long-established early morning network program tries to make a race of it on another channel—but our program out-rates it two- or three-to-one. We think we know why.

There's the program's spontaneity. (If someone goofs, corrections are made on camera. It's not unusual for a cameraman to shout, "What do we do next?" The audience usually sees the behind-the-scenes answer.)

But the most significant reason for the program's success is its happy blend of local service and entertainment. It is indigenous. Without the unlimited budget of its network competitor, without the pick of the nation's brain power or talent—although visiting national personalities frequently put in an appearance—"Sun-Up" is nevertheless fresh and informative. It does not offer the academic charm of national weather reports—it tells how to dress the kids this morning. It presents conversation-making neighbors, not headline-making global celebrities. And, while it is important to keep up with world affairs—as "Sun-Up" does through newscasts—what the viewer really sees is a reflection of life in his own community.

"Sun-Up" interprets Corinthian's basic programming philosophy. Through the unequalled CBS eye, we bring our viewers entertainment and information from the outstanding network. In addition, regional needs and tastes are met by creative local programming. This, we believe, builds audience loyalty, wins viewer respect, and helps make friendly prospects for our advertisers.

Okla. Supreme Court affirms radio-tv ban

The Oklahoma Supreme Court last week reaffirmed its ban on news cameras, including tv.

The action came virtually a year after state broadcasters, led by KWTW (TV) Oklahoma City, petitioned the court to reconsider its 1959 order and permit a hearing on the prohibition.

Last week's short-order ruling was written by Chief Justice Denver Davison. It stated: "All petitions for rehearing and motion for oral arguments denied."

The original Supreme Court order adopted without hearing or argument a request of the Oklahoma Bar Assn. that its Canon 35 be accepted as a rule of the court (BROADCASTING, Oct. 12, 1959).

Motions for reconsideration and an oral hearing were filed with the court by the Oklahoma Television Assn., Oklahoma Broadcasters Assn. and the Oklahoma Press Assn., as well as KWTW.

Bruce B. Palmer, KWTW news director, who is also president of the Oklahoma chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, expressed astonishment that the court "arbitrarily refused" to rehear the case in view of the fact that there never had been any formal hearing whatever on the issue.

A division of opinion in the state's two highest courts results from the state supreme court ruling. Holding parallel jurisdiction is the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals which, since 1958, has permitted radio and tv the same rights in its courtrooms as the press. This position was reaffirmed last year when the supreme court announced its ban.

Switch from u to v pays off

It was a happy anniversary this month for WVEC-TV Norfolk-Hampton, Va., as the seven-year-old station celebrated its first year of operating as a vhf. The extent of management's happiness was dramatized in President Thomas P. Chisman's fiscal report. After one year on ch. 13 WVEC-TV showed a profit exceeding $100,000. The previous year's operation on ch. 15 ended with a red-ink entry of $172,000. (There are two other vhf stations in the market.)

U.N. radio-tv coverage awards

WNTA-TV New York has won the American Assn. for the United Nations' top television award for outstanding news coverage of the 15th General Assembly of the United Nations. Awards, which were the first to be presented by the AAUN to the radio-tv industry, were made at a luncheon in New York last Monday (Nov. 21) as part of the AAUN's second biennial convention ceremonies.

Other broadcast winners were: Pauline Frederick, NBC; John McVane, ABC; Richard McCutcheon, CBS, and WNYC New York, winner of AAUN's only radio award.

Crowell-Collier net up 27% for 9 months

Crowell-Collier Pub. Co., New York, had a record nine-month financial report last week, with net sales of $34,012,353, a 27% increase over the same period last year. Consolidated earnings after federal income tax were $4,665,055, or $1.82 a share.

The interim report includes income for three radio stations but gives no breakdown. Last year they accounted for nearly $2.5 million of a $35.5 million total. But two of the stations were acquired during that period. Crowell-Collier stations are KFWB Los Angeles, KEWB San Francisco-Oakland and WISK St. Paul, Minn. Awaiting FCC approval are acquisitions of WGMS-AM-FM Washington and WMGM New York.

The current nine-month statement lists $188,725 in dividends from the Macmillan Co. The company began buying Macmillan shares in 1959 and acquired a majority interest last July. C-C publishes Collier's Encyclopedia, Macmillan principally textbooks.

Honors WBC stations • The National Assn. for Mental Health has presented an award to Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. "for its devoted service over the years to the cause of mental health."

The award was presented by Mrs. A. Felix duPont Jr., association president, to Richard M. Pack, vice president-programming for WBC, at the annual conference of the NAMH in Denver Nov. 18.

WEOL appeals • Notice of appeal was filed last week by WEOL Elyria-Lorain, Ohio, in its $1 million civil antitrust suit against the Lorain (Ohio) Journal. The appeal was taken in the Sixth Circuit court in Cincinnati against the district court ruling last May denying the radio station's suit against the newspaper (BROADCASTING, May 30). The suit, filed in 1953, was an outgrowth of practices whereby the newspaper refused to accept advertising from merchants who also advertised on WEOL. This was the basis for a successful government antitrust suit in 1951.
Tenn. Broadcasters told strong points of "spot"

Three outstanding characteristics of spot radio and television are selectivity, flexibility and efficiency, Ed Fleri, associate media director of BBDO New York, told the Tennessee Assn. of Broadcasters at its 14th annual meeting in Memphis Nov. 18.

Radio campaigns have increased in total weekly frequency, he pointed out, and more thought is being given to broadcasting's selective audience in the cumulative overall performance of a campaign. Network radio and network television both offer a large degree of flexibility, Mr. Fleri said. He also stated the belief that network television was more flexible than it had been two years ago through short-term commitments, confirmations of schedules months in advance of starting dates and availability of prime nighttime minutes.

Efficiency, Mr. Fleri said, applies to both radio and tv. But he cautioned stations to be prepared to justify rate increases. "While rates increase due to greater performance," he said, "there are very few instances I can recall where rates have decreased because of decreased performance."

Seven Deadly Sins • Ernest B. Cummings, president of Cummings Adv., Memphis, spoke of the "seven deadly sins of advertising," to the Tennessee broadcasters. He named too little advertising as the greatest and most wasteful of advertising sins. Lack of repetition or "failure to plant impressions," lack of coordination in ad campaigns and the failure to utilize each medium for its own special effective purpose also came under Mr. Cummings' fire.

An ad should tell the essential sales story each time, Mr. Cummings insisted, but to avoid boring the customer a different aspect of the story should be emphasized. Try to tell your sales story in such a way as to persuade the buyer rather than merely thinking of the seller's angle, he suggested.

Bay Area stations settle promotion fight

KQBY San Francisco, which sued KABL Oakland (San Francisco) for damages last September on charges of "malicious intent" to injure and deception of the public (BROADCASTING, Sept. 5), said the two stations are jointly announcing a financial settlement and KQBY's dismissal of its suit.

KQBY said the settlement gives that station exclusive use of the promotional slogans "I. Q. Radio" and "America's First Family of Fine Music Stations." KQBY, which had sued KABL for $1,328,000 and also complained to the FCC, said it obtained a court injunction restraining KABL from using slogans KQBY claimed to be its own.

The dispute had centered about promotion involving KQBY's change of call letters (from KQBY) on Sept. 12 and its charges that KABL, before the change, inaugurated a teaser ad campaign using the letters "I.Q." and made announcements that "intelligent quality programming" would be on KABL as of Sept. 12, date of the KQBY call letter change.

Networks may get bill for Inauguration seats

A tentative proposal that the networks be required to help underwrite the costs of viewing platforms for events attending the 1961 presidential inauguration in Washington — on the ground that some people who would normally pay for seats on the stands stay home and watch the ceremonies on television instead — ran into skepticism, if not resistance, from the networks last week.

The tentative proposal, not yet definitely decided upon by Inauguration Committee officials, was discussed during a meeting of representatives of the various news media Wednesday with Sam Brightman, the Democrats' public relations director, and Jack Christie, tv-radio director.

Mr. Brightman promised network news and special events representatives Robert Fleming (ABC), Lew Shollenger (CBS), Steve McCormick (Mutual) and Elmer Lower (NBC) that he would find whether Edward H. Foley, newly-appointed general chairman of the Inauguration Committee, plans to follow through on a preliminary group's recommendation that the networks be required to put up $10,000 apiece for the platforms along the parade route. Seat and souvenir sales have been more than enough in the past few inaugurations to repay those costs, it was understood.

Uppermost in the minds of the network spokesmen last week was the question of whether Mr. Foley would carry out the proposal, and, if so, whether similar money deposits would be required from other media.

Changing hands

Shift of WNAC-TV to ABC may be on interim basis

WNAC-TV Boston will join ABC-TV as an affiliate on Jan. 1, 1961, according to Julius Barnathan, ABC vice president for affiliated tv stations, and William McCormick, president and general manager of WNAC-TV.

The affiliation may be on an interim basis, however, since RKO General and NBC have agreed to swap stations whereby the network would acquire WNAC-TV in return for WRCV-TV Philadelphia. The proposed transaction, which also involves NBC buying KTU (TV) San Francisco, has been challenged by Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., owner of WBZ-TV, the present NBC affiliate in Boston, and by KRON-TV San Francisco, also an ABC affiliate.

If the exchange is finally effected, WNAC-TV will become the NBC-TV outlet in Boston. CBS-TV, which now has WNAC-TV, is set to switch in January to WHDH-TV in Boston, now an ABC-TV affiliate. ABC-TV will affiliate with WBZ-TV.

KTHS, WMAS to CBS

KTHS Little Rock, Ark., and WMAS Springfield, Mass., are joining CBS Radio as affiliates today (Nov. 28), according to an announcement by Arthur Hull Hayes, president of the network. KTHS, which left CBS Radio in January 1959 and has been operating since as an independent outlet, operates with 50 kw on 1090 kc. The station is owned and operated by Radio Broadcast Inc., of which W. H. Bronson is president. WMAS operates with 250 w on 1450 kc. It is owned by WMAS Inc., of which Gerald Harrison is president.
KWK St. Louis charged last week that the FCC's revocation proceeding against the station "... has thus far been shrouded in mystery to an extent which is most, most unusual in commission practice."

In asking the commission for a "bill of particulars" to substantiate charges that it was "perpetrating a fraud on its listeners," KWK claims that the proceeding was "initiated in a ... most unfair fashion."

KWK also entered a strong protest against a Broadcast Bureau request that the scheduled hearing be postponed from Dec. 14 to Jan. 16, 1961, in St. Louis with these words: "This unprecedented proceeding has subjected Station KWK and its owners, employees and sponsors to some most adverse publicity ever inflicted upon a broadcast station."

On Nov. 3, the FCC instituted revocation proceedings against KWK on the basis of complaints received by the commission concerning the "conduct of contests" over the station's facilities (Broadcasting, Nov. 5). An investigation of the charges was made by the FCC's Office of Complaints & Compliance.

Unknown Charges = In its petition for a list of specific charges, KWK said that the first and only official notice of the revocation proceeding has been the commission's order to show cause. "Thus, the long-established custom of the commission to forward copies of any complaints received by it to the licensee, with an opportunity ... to reply thereto, was not observed in this case," the station maintained.

Moreover, it was pointed out, the FCC did not issue a Section 309 (b) (McFarland) letter, as required by the Administrative Procedures Act, assigning the licensee of the matter under commission scrutiny. KWK continued: "Not only was the license not apprised of the facts in advance of the designation for hearing, but the commission's order to show cause contains only the vaguest and most general allegations as to the nature of the charges against which the licensee of KWK must defend itself. The licensee knows only that the commission proceeded on the basis of some unspecified complaints regarding contests which were run by the station. It has no information as to the time, place or content incidents upon which the commission relied. It is impossible to prepare to defend against unknown charges."

Specific Facts = KWK said that the commission has proceeded in error and that, if afforded a reasonable opportunity to present the true facts, it can demonstrate this error. Specifically, the embattled St. Louis station asked the commission for (1) a list of all of the complaints which formed the basis for the show cause order, (2) the name and address of each complainant, (3) the date and time of each program or other incident complained of.

Also, (4) the date, time and place of the commission inquiry into each complaint and the name of the commission employee who conducted such inquiry, (5) a summary of the facts obtained by the commission as a result of its investigation, (6) copies of all documents, affidavits, statements and evidence obtained by the commission, (7) facts relied upon for charge that KWK's telephone number was busy "approximately half of the time" during contests urging listeners to call, (8) particulars concerning vacation trips and prizes which allegedly were not as represented.

KWK asked the commission to list "... the specific facts relied upon ... in concluding that a fraud was perpetrated upon KWK's listeners [and] the specific provisions of the KWK license which are alleged to have been violated and set forth the facts relied upon by the commission in reaching its conclusion that the alleged violation ... was willful and repeated."

If the bill of particulars is supplied as requested, KWK asked that it be received by Dec. 4 so that it will have time to prepare for the hearing scheduled 10 days later.

Adverse Effect = In urging that the hearing be held when scheduled, KWK said that "each day the commission's unknown and undocumented charges go unanswered, the greater is the adverse effect upon KWK." The station said that under the circumstances it is entitled to an immediate hearing. "Fairness and equity, which have not been accorded as yet in this proceeding, require the commission to proceed with the hearing without the delay requested by the Broadcast Bureau," KWK stated.

The bureau, on the grounds other pressing business did not give it time to adequately prepare for the St. Louis hearing, earlier last week asked for a month's delay. KWK countered that "it is impossible to believe" that the Broadcast Bureau has not had time to prepare its case. "If the commission now needs more time to "adequately prepare for hearing," it is obvious that the commission did not and does not have facts adequate and sufficient to support its conclusions that KWK "willfully and repeatedly failed to operate substantially as set forth in its license," the station charged.

At an informal conference two weeks ago, KWK said commission counsel expressed concern over the possibility that the hearing might not be concluded by Christmas. The station suggested that if this is the real reason for the requested delay, the hearing date be advanced or that evening, Saturday and Sunday sessions be scheduled.

"KWK already has been severely and unjustly injured by the unprecedented procedures followed by the commission and by the unwarranted conclusions of the order to show cause which were supported only by vague and sweeping statements unsupported by a statement of a single specific and relevant fact," the St. Louis station charged. "A delay in the hearing will compound the adverse publicity and injury which KWK already has suffered..."

Another group aims at regulatory agencies

SENATE HEARING TOMORROW BOASTS ALL-STAR LINEUP

The federal regulatory agencies, which have been shot at and hit individually by you name it on Capitol Hill, are going to get it collectively next year, from a growing group of snipers, both on and off the Hill.

The latest to issue itself a shooting license is the Senate Administrative Practice & Procedure Subcommittee, which last week announced it will hold a hearing tomorrow (Tuesday) through Friday on the regulatory agency problem.

Increasingly apparent is that the entire concept of government by regulatory agency is at issue, though complaints center on such well-worn phrases as backlogs and "regulatory lag" and their causes, executive versus congressional control of the commissions, split decisions or opinions, administrative versus judicial functions of members, fairness of statutes and regulations and expenses as compared to efficiency.

The witness list announced by Chairman John A. Carroll (D-Colo.) for this week's hearing practically guarantees some blue air over the hearing room on the regulatory agency question. It includes James M. Landis, who's making a study of the federal regulatory agencies at the behest of President John F. Kennedy, with a view to possible reorganization of the commissions (BROADCASTING, Nov. 21); Judge E. Barrett Prettyman, who heads an organizing committee named by President Eisenhower to form an administrative practice conference for long-range planning at the behest of President red tape and improve agency efficiency; and Louis J. Hector, former Civil Aeronautics Board member who resigned his post in 1959 with a denunciation of antiquated and outmoded practices among the agencies.

Mr. Landis, former dean of Harvard Law School and former chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission and the CAB, represented Skatron Electronics & TV Corp. in pay TV hearings before the FCC in 1957.

Mr. Landis' report and recommendations, which may call for a reorganization of government regulatory agencies, are due in Sen. Kennedy's hand by Dec. 15.

Principles - The group headed by Judge Prettyman met last week to set up operating principles for a prospective administration conference which in five or ten years would be operating actively to snip government red tape and improve regulatory agency efficiency.

But the conference's birth may have to await the official sanction of the incoming Kennedy administration.

This is the position taken by the organizing committee set up by President Eisenhower several months ago, which met last week and disbanded after recommending a group of operating principles for the prospective conference. Besides chairman Prettyman, William C. Koplovitz, Washington communications lawyer, is secretary.

The conference, to be composed of top level government regulators, practitioners before the various agencies, and representatives of Congress and the White House, will be set up on a continuing advisory basis to look into and recommend changes in procedures—all for the purpose of reducing the present long delays and expense of cases before federal agencies. The body would be made up of 65 delegates, it was recommended, and would use the Office of Administrative Procedure at the Dept. of Justice as a secretariat.

Support for the idea is expected to be forthcoming from President-elect Kennedy. Mr. Landis is known to be sympathetic to the idea.

The fourth study of regulatory agencies, by the Senate Commerce Committee, was announced last summer by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman, who termed it a long-range, "Hoover-Commission-type undertaking. Sen. Magnuson, as chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, has jurisdiction over the regulatory agencies. As chairman of the Independent Offices Appropriations Subcommittee he exercises control over their fiscal budgets. He has announced the General Accounting Office has agreed to make a "pilot" study of the Interstate Commerce Commission, largest of the regulatory agencies. The ICC study will be used as a basis for committee studies of the other agencies.

FCC delays robots

Robots will just have to get along for awhile without their own exclusive frequency allocation, the FCC decided last week. The commission turned down a request by Hughes Aircraft Co. that 100 mc in the 13000-to-15000 mc band be reserved for the use of radio-controlled robots—called "Mobots."

Because of the domestic and international frequency situation, the agency said that it cannot provide exclusive frequencies for such specialized use at this time. However, the commission said it recognizes the importance of robot operation and will entertain an application in the future for such operations on an experimental basis.

In its request for the reservation filed last summer, Hughes said the Mobots could be used in places dangerous to or unlivable for humans.
Air Express takes priority on all scheduled U.S. airlines

AIR EXPRESS is in the auto business, now! This crew is just finishing off the latest model. Hours from now, it will bow at a glamorous auto show. Many new parts were completed just in time, and flown to this assembly point with jet speed. All 35 scheduled U.S. airlines pampered them with priority treatment. AIR EXPRESS trucks (13,000... many radio-dispatched) rushed them door-to-door at both ends of their flights. As each part arrived, the shipper got a teletype receipt. That's service! AIR EXPRESS is in other businesses, too. It should be in yours. There's no finer partner and rates are low. One phone call is all it takes.

FCC deletes 26 uhf construction permits

FAILURE TO CONSTRUCT CITED; DEAD UHF'S TOTAL 234

Twenty-six permittees for uhf television stations who had not constructed their proposed physical plants were denied extension of their construction permits by the FCC last week. This means that the grants have been wiped off the commission records and the station permits no longer are outstanding.

With last week's action, by a 4 to 2 vote, the FCC closed its books in rather spectacular fashion on the "get tough" policy instituted last February against the idle uhf permittees. At that time, the agency ordered 54 grantees to explain why they had not started construction of the proposed stations (BROADCASTING, Feb. 22).

As a result, 21 construction permits were cancelled early last spring (BROADCASTING, May 2) and those stations which were deleted last week were among 28 which pleaded their cases for extension in an oral argument before the FCC en banc two months ago (BROADCASTING, Sept. 26). They had argued that failure to build was due to reasons beyond their control, citing the commission's indecision on allocations and resultant confusion over deintermixture as the principal reasons.

In addition to the stations deleted, the FCC granted to WEL-TV New Haven, Conn. (ch. 59), an extension of time to complete construction. A commission majority said that WEL-TV has shown an intention to go on the air and has expended over $70,000 toward that objective. Commissioners Robert T. Bartley and John S. Cross dissented, with the former stating he could see no distinction between the New Haven station and those deleted.

Because of pending rulemaking to add additional vhf channels in Grand Rapids, Mich., and Birmingham, Ala., the commission deferred action on extension applications by ch. 23 WMCN (TV) Grand Rapids and ch. 42 WBMG (TV) Birmingham.

Sans Permits — The following permittees were denied extensions of completion dates or replacements for expired permits and had their call letters deleted: Thames Broadcasting Corp., ch. 26 WNLC-TV New London, Conn.; Star Broadcasting Co., ch. 15 WCBF-TV Rochester, N. Y.; Ajax Enterprises, ch. 23 WPHD (TV) Philadelphia; David E. Mackey, ch. 52 WOCN (TV) Atlantic City; Hazleton TV Corp., ch. 63 WAZL-TV Hazleton, Pa.; Robert W. Rounsaville, ch. 54 WCIN-TV Cincinnati; WHFC Inc., ch. 26 WEHS-TV Chicago, Ill.; Air-Pix Corp., ch. 48 WTVX (TV) Gastonia, N. C.; Business Management Inc., ch. 30 WPOX-TV Milwaukee; J. D. Whathere Jr., ch. 44 WJDW (TV) Boston; WKAP Inc., ch. 39 WOCY (TV) Allentown, Pa.; Cornell U., ch. 20 WHCU-TV Ithaca, N. Y.; Woodward Broadcasting Co., ch. 50 WBID-TV Detroit and ch. 79 WTOH-TV Toledo; Tri-Cities Telecasting Inc., ch. 29 WTLC (TV) Canton, Ohio; Ajax Enterprises, ch. 38 WXEL (TV) Boston; Philadelphia Broadcasting Inc., ch. 29 WSFS (TV) Philadelphia; Stevens-Wismer Broadcasting Co., ch. 34 WHLS-TV Port Huron, Mich.; Peoples Broadcasting Co., ch. 21 WLITV Lancaster, Pa.; WGAL Inc., ch. 36 WRRA-TV Williamsport, Pa.; Malco Theatres Inc., ch. 48 WAMT (TV) Memphis, ch. 54 WTMV (TV) Utica, N. Y.; and ch. 19 KMPF-TV Oklahoma City; Sherrill C. Corwin, ch. 34 KMYR (TV) Los Angeles and ch. 27 KFMX-TV San Diego; O'Neill Broadcasting Co., ch. 14 KTRB-TV Modesto, Calif.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert E. Lee both issued strong dissent's to the deletions on the ground FCC still is undecided what it plans to do with uhf. They generally agreed that the commission should devise overall allocations policy before proceeding to remove the 26 grants in question from the records.

With last week's action, there now have been 234 uhf permits deleted for one reason or another since that portion of the frequency was opened to tv in 1952.

Tv cited in report by National Goals group

Television has been given two challenges as one of the means of communicating traditional goals to the public. The challenges are contained in the report of the President's Commission on National Goals, issued today.

The video medium has improved in its mission of informing the public, Clinton Rossiter, Cornell U. educator and writer, said in a chapter on "The Democratic Process." But, it can do better, he added.

"Improvement of the democratic process requires a constantly better informed public," he wrote. "Television, although it has improved, can do better still in communicating serious ideas."

Newspapers, according to Mr. Rossiter, have an even longer way to go. "In far too many communities," he said, "newspapers are inadequate in their coverage of significant public affairs."

The second mention of television occurred in the chapter on "American Culture,” written by August Heckscher of the 20th Century Fund. Referring to the need to raise critical standards and widen the area and depth of public appreciation in the arts and sciences, Mr. Heckscher said:

“Thus far, television has failed to use its facilities adequately for educational and cultural purposes, and reform in its performance is urgent.”

The Commission on National Goals was established by President Eisenhower last February. It was headed by Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown U., with Frank Pace Jr., chairman of the General Dynamics Corp., as vice chairman. Among the “national goals”: safeguarding the rights of individuals, equality, economic growth.

TV’S ‘GREAT DEBATES’
Make them permanent, says Sarnoff in monthly letter

A proposal that the “Great Debates” between presidential candidates on tv become a “permanent institution” was offered last week by Robert Sarnoff, NBC board chairman, in his monthly letter to radio-tv editors throughout the country.

Mr. Sarnoff indicated that some politicians might oppose this suggestion, and added:

“The public’s right to this knowledge (about both candidates) must take precedence over any party’s jockeying for political advantage, or the reluctance of one candidate to give his opponent the benefits of such a forum.”

Mr. Sarnoff devoted his letter entirely to the “Great Debate” theme and praised the project warmly. He touched upon criticism made about the debates and replied in this fashion:

“It has been objected that the exchanges were not on a lofty intellectual plane, that the candidates resorted to sloganeering and emotional appeals. To the extent that this was true, I believe it was far less true of the televised encounters than of other forms of campaign expression.

“It has been objected that the broadcasts left it mainly to newsmen rather than to the candidates themselves to determine the issues for discussion. Yet, a study of the debates will show they covered every issue that the candidates raised in their own barnstorming all over the country; the only exception was the religious issue, on which both had made their positions clear repeatedly before the debates began.”

Mr. Sarnoff observed too that some critics claimed that the broadcasts provided “a test of personality and physical appearance, of quick memory, articulateness and debater’s skill, instead of such far more important presidential attributes as wisdom, judiciousness and patience.” Mr. Sarnoff coun-

Gila asked the FCC for permission to go off the air on Oct. 25. The station actually ceased operation at the close of the broadcast day Oct. 29. The FCC wired its refusal of Gila’s request on Nov. 8.

Since Gila’s license renewal applications are already in hearing status, it is not known just what action the commission will take concerning revocation.

Some Dissent: In its wire to Gila, the FCC noted there are no other broadcast services in some communities served by Gila stations. KCKY Coolidge, KCLF Clifton, KGLU Safford and KVMC Winslow are the only stations in those communities.

Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Charles H. King, while issuing no statements, dissented in the FCC’s action. They both maintained that all of the communities involved were able to obtain broadcast service from other area stations.

The stations’ requests to “go dark” stemmed from a loss of $36,992 in fiscal 1959 and a loss of $20,600 this year. The firm’s applications for license renewals have been set for FCC hearing since June 23. These applications were set for hearing by the commission to determine if they contained technical “misrepresentations” and if the firm had actually relinquished control of the chain to a buyer without reporting that fact to the FCC. The company filed for transfer of control of the stations to the Earl Perrin Co., a Chicago advertising firm, in December 1959.

Mr. Powell said last week, “We have been serving the public interest in Arizona for 22 years. We want to continue to serve it in one capacity or another. We cannot keep these stations operating at a loss. We do not want to be punished financially any longer. We sincerely hope that the commission will review the case.”

Tv repeaters get fast action from the FCC

While many applicants and licensees complain about the delay in FCC processing, no such complaints have been voiced by the operators of vhf repeater stations.

Last July, the President signed legislation authorizing vhf boosters, translators or repeaters, whichever term is used. The commission immediately set up machinery to recognize repeater stations that had been operating “illegally.” To date, 927 applications for special temporary authorization have been accepted with 839 granted by the FCC’s Broadcast Bureau. Another 40 applications have been tendered for filing but problems connected with them, an FCC spokesman stated.

After the vhf repeaters were author-

ONE PROBLEM FACING THE COMMISSION IS GETTING WORD TO THE REPEATER STATIONS IN REMOTE AREAS TO FILE THEIR APPLICATIONS.

MR. CORDON SAID HIS BRANCH STILL GETS OCCASIONAL LETTERS FROM VHF BOOSTER OPERATORS SAYING THEY HAVE HEARD "RUMORS" THAT THEIR OPERATIONS NOW CAN BE OFFICIALLY SANCTIONED. REQUESTS FOR THE STA PERMITS MUST BE FILED BY DEC. 30. ALSO, MR. CORDON STRESSED, APPLICATIONS FOR REGULAR LICENSES MUST BE FILED BY THE BOOSTER STATIONS ON FCC FORM 346.

CURRENT DEADLINE FOR FILING OF THESE APPLICATIONS IS FEB. 1 BUT THIS PROBABLY WILL BE EXTENDED BECAUSE THERE STILL IS NO TYPE-APPROVED EQUIPMENT FOR THE BOOSTER OPERATORS.

NETWORKS SEEK TO SAVE OPTION TIME

KTTV asked the court to set aside the FCC's September order which reduced the current practice of optioning three-hours per day broadcast segment to two-and-a-half-hours (BROADCASTING, SEPT. 19). The order is effective Jan. 1, 1961, and was promulgated on a close, 4-3 vote.

FILING PETITIONS TO INTERVENE—AS PARTIES MOST AFFECTED BY THE ORDER AND AS PARTICIPANTS IN THE PROCEEDING BEFORE THE FCC—WERE ABC, CBS AND NBC. ALSO JOINING IN THESE PETITIONS ON AN INDIVIDUAL BASIS WERE THE ABC AND NBC AFFILIATES GROUPS. IT IS PRESUMED THE CBS AFFILIATES COMMITTEE WILL SEEK TO INTERVENE.

THE GIST OF THE KTTV APPEAL IS THAT THE FCC HAS NO RIGHT TO DETERMINE THAT OPTION TIME IS "REASONABLY NECESSARY" FOR NETWORK TV OPERATIONS. IT URGED THE COURT TO ORDER THE FCC TO SUBMIT THE QUESTION OF OPTION TIME LEGALITY TO THE DEPT. OF JUSTICE. THE DEPT. OF JUSTICE AT ONE TIME SAID THE OPTION TIME PRACTICE WAS A "PER SE" VIOLATION OF THE ANTITRUST LAWS. LATER THE ANTITRUST CHIEF OF THE JUSTICE DEPT. SAID IT APPEARED TO VIOLATE THE SHERMAN ACT.

NLRB rules d. j. work is easy—technically
The technical tasks performed by disc jockeys require little technical know-how and can be learned in a short time, a three-member panel of the National Labor Relations Board ruled last week in ordering that disc jockeys at four Portland, Ore., radio stations vote for either of two unions or neither as their separate bargaining agent.

The board thus upheld a petition by American Federation of Tv & Radio Artists for inclusion of the disc jockeys with straight announcers for labor bargaining purposes. The four stations—KPOJ, KGW, KOIN, KXL—had asked that announcers, disc jockeys and engineers be included in the same bargaining unit, while the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had requested the disc jockeys be included with engineers.

NLRB ruled that a three-year contract between the stations and IBEW, effective July 1, 1958, may not serve to bar AFTRA's petition any longer than the first two years. The disc jockeys are included in this contract.

The board rejected the position of IBEW and the four stations that a fifth station, KWJJ Portland, should be included in the four-station, multi-employer bargaining group.

NLRB ruled that operating turn tables and tape recorders, cueing records, attending potentiometers and making log entries of meter readings are easily learned and require no formal technical education. Disc jockeys also differ from engineers in hours, promotional structure and supervision and their interests in general are more akin to those of announcers, NLRB found.

The FCC last week...
- Granted a protest by WIBB-TV Topeka, Kan., and stayed a Sept. 16 grant of microwave stations to provide signals of three Kansas City stations (KCMO-TV, WDAF-TV and KMBC-TV) for catv systems in Manhattan, Junction City and Salina, all Kansas. A hearing will be scheduled on grant for microwave to Mid-Kansas Inc. but petition for reconsideration filed by WIBB-TV was denied.
- Denied a petition by losing applicant Veterans Broadcasting Co. for reconsideration of a July 13 grant of ch. 10 Vail Millin N.Y., to Capital Cities TV Corp. (WTEN [TV]). WTEN had been operating with special temporary authority since 1957.
- Granted a petition of WHYY Inc., one of five applicants in comparative hearing for ch. 12 Wilmington, Del., and enlarged issues in proceeding to include programming service proposed by each of the applicants. WHY is seeking the channel for educational purposes while other applicants, Rollins Broadcasting Inc., Wilmington TV Co., Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp., and National Tel efilm Assoc. Inc., all seek commercial operation. Commissioners Robert T. Bartley and John S. Cross dissented. Commissioners Robert E. Lee and Charles King did not participate.
- Asked for comments by Dec. 26 on rulemaking to eliminate 1955 requirement that tv stations employ type-approved frequency monitors while on the air. Although the rule was adopted over five years ago, date for compliance has been continually postponed, the latest coming two weeks ago (Broadcasting, Nov. 21). The commission said it believes that improved transmitting equipment no longer makes frequency monitors necessary and that stations can use simpler means to check their operating frequencies.
- Was asked by the National Council of Churches of Christ to issue a declaratory ruling that radio and tv spots and programs of the council would be exempt from sponsorship identification requirements of Sec. 317. In the alternative, the council asked for waiver of the rule before Dec. 1 as it plans to film and tape general assembly sessions for radio and tv.

QUOTES WORTH REPEATING

Editorials on the air
Robert Lewis Shayon, writing in the "Audio/Video" column of the Nov. 12 issue of Saturday Review, briefly scans the problems of broadcasters and editors on the air. Citing WTOP-AM-FM-TV Washington as the station which he personally feels does the best editorializing, Mr. Shayon notes WTOP has a fulltime editorial writer, Jack Jurey, and that editorial policy is directed closely by a board of station executives and stockholders. Mr. Shayon concludes:

... One reward for WTOP's courage and responsible effort is prestige in the Capital. Congressman, ambassadors and government officials have become aware of the station; doors are open to it; it has been repeatedly mentioned in the Congressional Record. On the very doorstep of the FCC, WTOP has shown how broadcasters can usefully editorialize. The station's example should encourage others.

Editorializing in the WTOP fashion is costly: it requires a new kind of broadcaster, the full-time editorialist. It demands participation by station executives who must become professionals, akin to newspaper editors and publishers, not just announcers or time-savers. More broadcasters will have to get into the editorial act in the future, if only for marginal differentiation. If enough stations editorialize responsibly, viewers and listeners may begin to discern the image of portentous boxes of sound and vision that are more than entertainment machines.

Demand for consistency
Marion Harper Jr., president and chairman of the board of McCann-Erickson Inc., N.Y., York, examined some of advertising's 'neuroses' before the Aderact Club of Detroit earlier this month. One of these illnesses, 'hit or miss advertising,' operates in all media and there is a need for consistent high performance, he said. Concerning television, Mr. Harper related:

We are currently engaged in an extensive study of factors which make tv commercials effective. In a sample of more than 700 commercials, the highest rated was recalled by four times as many respondents as the lowest rated.

You can even find major differences in commercials for the same product—with one getting a noting of almost 60%, and another of less than 30%.

Television programming, as we all know, is heir to all the disparity in ratings you find in advertising. In cost-per-thousand television viewers, the average program in the lowest rated 25% costs the advertiser twice as much as the average program in the top rated 25%. The most expensive program costs more than six times as much as the least expensive. Many of the lower rated programs, of course, may reach an audience otherwise difficult to reach. Nevertheless, these results of observation and impact should demonstrate that what's wanted in television programs, as in print advertising, is a consistent record of high performance. The occasional solo is not good enough.

Radio's exciting future
Radio's future is more exciting than it's past, Wilmot (Bill) Losee, general manager of Am Radio Sales Inc., New York, stated at the Nov. 14 meeting of the Cleveland (Ohio) Sales Executives Club. In an address titled 'Radio: A Forgotten Domination,' Mr. Losee said in part:

Life begins at 40 and...
cators, advertisers and, judging from all the rating reports, the listening public. And yet there are voices referring to radio in the past tense and nightclub comedians can get a laugh by saying "Whatever happened to radio?"

In this television era it is understandable to confuse radio's health with radio's image. The fact is radio has never been healthier—from all points of view, new programming ideas, new advertisers, larger schedules from old advertisers, more stations on the air for more hours per day, more radios being bought and more people listening.

Radio's image, however, is another matter. A lady from the PTA can talk very persuasively about the effect of "Mack the Knife" on our children. And there are a lot of articulate ladies and a lot of PTA's to cloud radio's image. But even as they criticize, they support the tremendous reputation of radio as the most powerful communications medium yet invented. For speed, for impact, for saturation, there is nothing like it.

Perhaps I sound as if I am comparing radio to a boy scout, since radio is brave, clean, loyal, helpful and trustworthy. It is certainly as reflective of the American way of life as the boy scouts are. And of course, it is big business. When a man plunks down $11 million for a radio station, as someone did last month for WINS [New York], you know there is faith aplenty in radio's future.

I dare not trumpet the virtues of radio without a word of warning. An advertiser needs a radio specialist in his own office or in his agency. You can't borrow the copy from your newspaper ad or the voice track from your television commercial and expect it to do a job on radio.

Communications is a dynamic art. The broadcaster and the advertiser play vital roles in it. We need every weapon at our command because the art of listening also must be trained and developed and everyone is not a good listener in the sense of ability for detail. ... We ask for the chance to serve you because we know that we can help them listen to what you as an advertiser would like them to hear.

Serious, dedicated citizens

Lionel F. Baxter, vice president and director of radio operations for Storer Broadcasting Co., assured the 30th annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women in Las Vegas Nov. 2 that the average broadcaster is a serious, dedicated citizen, vitally interested in his community and his nation:

State-controlled broadcasting operates under the philosophy which says in effect to the listener and viewer: "This is not necessarily what you want; it is what we believe you should have."

Under the American system broadcasters annually spend millions of dollars on audience research, seeking to establish what our listeners and viewers like. We are above all things realists. We do not sit in ivory towers—as do a great many of our contemporaries in the medium of the printed word—and wring our hands in despair, viewing with horror the scientific fact that the most popular television program in the country is a western adventure show and the most popular radio stations are those which primarily present the 50 to 100 best-selling records of the day.

On the other hand, this information does not lead us to the conclusion that all television programs should be westerns or all radio programs should be popular records. The program schedules of the 12 Storer radio and television stations offer service and entertainment to a great variety of tastes and interests. We believe that the tastes of a whole people cannot be dictated by ourselves, the government, or anyone else.

Life will have to go on without Ma Perkins

The soap operas are no more.

Last Friday (Nov. 25) the surviving four of a legion that went back to the early days of network radio made their last stands on CBS Radio. Beginning today (Nov. 28) the network embarks on a schedule of 10-minute news programs on the hour, 5-minute informational programs on the half-hour, plus a cluster of entertainment shows such as Arthur Godfrey and Garry Moore.

Happy endings were the order of the day as the four serials—Ma Perkins, Right to Happiness, Young Dr. Malone and The Second Mrs. Burton—wound things up. (Three other daytime strips—Whispering Streets, Best Seller and The Couple Next Door—also died last Friday but none of these was in the classical soap formula.)

Oldest of the shows that went off Friday was Ma Perkins, which presented its 7,065th broadcast. Virginia Payne, who played Ma, has handled the role since its start on Dec. 4, 1933. In the concluding episode, listeners heard that Charlie Lindstrom had accepted a job in the East and that he and Mary would take leave of Ma Perkins and Rushville Center. As the family gathered for Thanksgiving at Ma's house, they foresaw happiness ahead, primarily because Anushka and Ma's grandson, Junior, were to be married next month. Ma's last line: "I give thanks that I have been given this gift of life, this gift of time, to play my little part in it."

The Right to Happiness ended script No. 5,430 and a story line that found Dick Braden paroled from prison, his parents reconciled and the Braden family united again. Grace has assured Skip that he is the only boy in her life, and Lee's court case has come to a satisfactory close, even though the missing witness had not been found. Carolyn and Lee faced the future with assurance, the events of the past few weeks having brought them closer together than ever. Carolyn's last line: "Happiness depends upon our relationship with those we love. I like that. The best of all."

Young Dr. Malone, leaving the air after 5,075 broadcasts, ended with this story line: During a hospital board meeting, Judge Allen attempts to force Dr. Ted Mason to resign as director of the clinic, a post formerly held by Dr. Jerry Malone. The latter refuses to accept the board's offer to reinstate him. Ted's first reaction is that of relief. But, after Molly West makes him see the truth about his untenable position, he calls on Jerry, asking him to go back to his old job. When Mason tells him that he is leaving immediately for a destination somewhere out West where he can think out his many problems, Jerry agrees to return as head of the clinic. Meanwhile, plans for the wedding between Scotty and Jill proceed, despite the open antagonism of his possessive mother. In a last effort to effect a reconciliation, Dr. Malone calls upon Mrs. Scott and makes her realize that her son's love must be shared. Finally, she tells her son and future daughter-in-law that she will attend the wedding after all. Dr. Malone's last line, in answer to a question, gives his antidote for trouble: "Love [pause, quizzically]. Is there any other one?"

The Second Mrs. Burton, a relative newcomer with only 3,823 episodes under its belt, ended on this note: Terry Burton realizes that Mother has gotten herself into a trap by agreeing to take her young artist-protege, Fenno, to Paris. Arranging to send Fenno abroad with a young friend in her place, Terry gets Mother out of that predicament, much to the relief of the rest of the family. As for Mother Burton, she now concentrates all her energies into preparing for an ambitious Christmas bazaar. Thanksgiving Day dinner at her house is highlighted by the return of Lew and Marcia from their Caribbean vacation. Terry Burton's last line: "Oh, life is pretty nice, isn't it?"

Music: Up and out.

Network computers' performance assayed

Savants of the computer industry have snapped back at critics of their election night projections.

Spokesmen for IBM (on CBS), RCA 501 (on NBC) and Remington Rand's Univac (on ABC) swapped success and problem stories within the ranks of their own organization, the Assn. for Computing Machinery. The scene was a Nov. 17 meeting of the ACM Washington chapter.

They explained why two sets of computers pointed to a Nixon victory as first scattered returns came in and then switched to Kennedy where they stayed.

NBC waited until it had 1% of the vote and then at 8:25 p.m. came out with a Kennedy forecast. CBS switched between 8:09 and 8:16 from Nixon to Kennedy, according to an ACM log of network projections.

Dr. Eugene E. Lindstrom, who directed computing for the IBM-CBS team, took a dim view of the network’s insistence on rounded percentage figures. He said this explained why CBS came out with 50-50 or 51-49 projections, insisting that fractional points were highly important. “Television is panic squared,” he observed. CBS took odds for each state, combining them into national projections. The voting curves were placed over 1956 curves.

Dr. Lindstrom described the elaborate precinct analysis system set up in advance with the aid of state universities. “The criticism by the mathematically illiterate is hard to understand,” he said. As to network use of the data, he said graphic presentation could be improved.

Dr. Jack Moshman, of CEIR Inc., whose firm was part of the RCA-NBC team, outlined the sociological factors used to devise mathematical equations with high predictive powers. Hundreds of indicators were studied, he said, including urbanization, population increase, religion and educational level in carefully selected key precincts.

The influence of absentee ballots was not taken into consideration, he said. “With an elaborate NBC-RCA communications system, the entire machine operation after punching of tape took only 40 seconds,” he said. “A few seconds made a big difference in the odds.”

Steve Wright, of Applied Data Research, Princeton, N. J., said ABC’s Univac was limited to AP and UPJ data. “The lack of information affected us adversely,” he said. He explained the 7:04 p.m. projection giving odds of 10 to 1 for Nixon by saying that early returns came from Tennessee, Kansas and Kentucky where the Nixon vote was heavy.

"We made new predictions every 20 minutes after the first projection," he said, "but the second and third were never put on the air." The ACM log showed no broadcast projection in Washington between 7:04 and 8:46 p.m. He recalled the trend toward Kennedy after the first projection, explaining Univac swung to Kennedy at 8:29 p.m.

The probable state vote pattern created another problem, Mr. Wright said, citing the early returns from upstate New York that ran well ahead of New York City. "We overestimated the mental age of the tv audience," he said. Another problem, he added, was the confusion arising from a formula calling for three probabilities—Democratic, Republican and undecided. "We were almost 100% right in the House and Senate predictions but they received little attention," he said.

The scientists predicted the next generation of computers should accept data from teletype lines.

New U.N. tv series announced

The U.S. Broadcasters Committee for the United Nations announced Nov. 16 a new public affairs tv series of 13 half-hour programs entitled International Zone, starring Alistair Cooke. For the past two years, the committee has been responsible for the Dateline U.N. tv program. Programs in the new series will be produced at UN headquarters in New York. Opening in mid-December with Assignment Children, starring Danny Kaye, programs will be presented every three weeks.

Financial problems rock Hagerstown's etv boat

The bellwether, closed circuit educational tv system—that in Washington County, Md.—is having weaning troubles.

Supported for virtually five years by Ford Foundation grants and donations of equipment by tv manufacturers, the full scale etv operation becomes a ward of its own taxpayers beginning July 1, 1961.

Some taxpayers are already beginning to protest.

The experiment—which covers the entire school system of Washington County, including the cities of Hagerstown, Hancock, Williamsport, Boonesboro and Clear Spring—is being used in dozens of courses in the 18,200-pupil school system. Actually, some 16,700 students are tied into the etv program. The etv operation originates from a control center in the Board of Education Bldg. in Hagerstown and pipes classroom instruction to 640 21-in. tv receivers in more than 550 classrooms. Instruction runs the gamut from elementary arithmetic to advanced mathematics for gifted high school students. It includes virtually all subjects in the high school and junior high school curriculum as well as an evening course for adults.

The Ford Foundation, it is estimated, has invested more than $1 million in underwriting the operation of the education by tv system. Equipment donations are valued at $300,000. There are 28 teachers used annually.

In order to continue the program for the six months after June 30, County School Superintendent William M. Brish has included $90,000 in his 1961 budget request of $6.7 million. He estimates that it will cost about $180,000 a year thereafter.

The bulk of this cost is the $115,000 yearly to be paid for telephone coaxial lines to the schools. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. donated the lines in the first two years of the program, but has had to institute regular charges in the last two years. These have been covered by the Ford Foundation grants.

Balkey Commissioners • The county school board has approved this budget, but some of the county commissioners have reared back.

Commissioner John Easterday charged that the television program is being "rammed" down the throats of Washington County taxpayers by the local newspapers.

"I understand that when some of these teachers are supposed to be planning next year's lessons, they are out pitching horseshoes," the commissioner has said.

If the vtr operation is dropped, Superintendent Brish said, nothing will be saved, since the county will have to hire 25 more secondary school teachers at a cost which would equal, if not exceed, the saving. He also stressed the above-average achievement levels scores received by pupils who received their instruction via the tv screen as compared with similar groups who were taught in the conventional manner.

The County Commissioners had scheduled a full-scale poll of parents and teachers, but acceded to a PTA request that the matter be postponed until more facts can be gathered. The commissioners, however, said they planned to poll the teachers on their opinions.

The entire program is scheduled to be evaluated this spring by a team from the Ford Foundation.

New vtr remote unit has its Hollywood debut

International Video Tape Recording & Production Inc., Beverly Hills, Calif., displayed its new $350,000 custom-built video tape liner to advertising agency and tv production people last Tuesday (Nov. 22) at an open house in Hollywood. Equipped with four Marconi image orthicon cameras, two Ampex tv tape recorders equipped with Inter-Sync signal synchronizers, the "liner" can easily convert any stage into a vtr production center, according to William F. Wallace, executive vice president.

Location taping can be done anywhere, with running shots as readily made as fixed location shooting, Mr. Wallace said. An eight-ton air conditioning-heating system and a 50 kw stabilized power generator enable the "liner" to perform in any location at any temperature, regardless of the availability of an outside power source.

Joint stereo venture airs Philly orchestra

In an unusual programming venture, WNCN (FM) New York and WOR-AM-FM New York have banded together to present over the stations a stereophonic concert each week featuring the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy conducting.

The concerts are taped at the Philadelphia Academy of Music at the actual performances. WNCN (FM) is assigned the left channel and WOR-AM-FM the right channel when the tapes are broadcast on Sunday, 2:05-4 p.m. The broadcasts began on Nov. 6 and will continue for a 13-week cycle.

The stations are working jointly on obtaining a sponsor. The total cost for each program is estimated at $1,500 for broadcast on both stations. The stations are suggesting commercials in stereo. Plans are being formulated to extend the series after the completion of the first 13-week cycle, but this move will be contingent upon sponsor interest.

Amateur night

Utilizing the amateur radio operators of the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service, WSAU-TV Wausau, Wis., was able to provide speedy and accurate local and area election returns. One ham operator stationed himself at each of the 19 county clerk offices. They sent the tabulation results every half hour to a second operator via a two-meter band radio. The second operator, using the 10-meter band, would relay the information to a third group of radio amateurs located on Rib Mountain, site of WSAU-TV's transmitter. By phone the figures were sent to the station's news department. The returns flowed smoothly and quickly, thanks to three months of careful preparation for election night. The RACES members were happy to cooperate because it gave them a good opportunity to test equipment and check their service as a Civil Defense communications system.

KMPC, KNXT (TV) news called 'most outstanding'

Managements of KMPC and KNXT (TV) Los Angeles were given special awards Nov. 18 for "support of the most outstanding news operation" in radio and tv, respectively, by the Radio and Television News Club of Southern California. KMPC also got a top award for its coverage of the Los Angeles visit of Nikita Khrushchev and an honorable mention in the radio documentary category for Story Without Ending.

Other radio honors went to Orval Anderson, ABC, for the best newscasting; Tom Harmon, KNX Los Angeles, for the best sports reporting; William Winter, ABC, for the best commentary; KLAC Los Angeles for its series on Caryl Chessman as the best news reporting by an independent station; KNX for Blackboard Dilemma as the...
Talk that pays: what CBS' KMOX found out

What happens when a radio station revises its format, deletes all music for seven hours and schedules nothing but talk—news, news features, entertainment vignettes, cultural items, listener phone calls to city officials, local authorities, provocative interviews?

This is what happened at KMOX St. Louis, according to Robert Hyland, KMOX general manager, when the CBS-owned radio station changed over eight months ago to nothing but talk from noon to seven o'clock:

- Ratings up by almost 85%.
- Schedule was sold out commercially.

Not only that, Mr. Hyland told the NAB fall meeting in Washington (Broadcasting, Nov. 21), but—"...it has created more interest and excitement for radio in our city than any program in the past twenty years."

The program is called "At Your Service," and has actually increased the percentage of radio listening in St. Louis. The new radio audience, Mr. Hyland suggested, comes from previous non-listeners, from afternoonen to "to housewives who plan their home activities around the program, from salesmen setting their route so they can tune in the broadcasts, and from office workers who make it a "radio break" as well as a coffee break.

The discussion of the KMOX afternoon format emphasized one point Mr. Hyland made in his speech to the NAB radio session: The radio listener is better educated than is realized. He's far likelier, Mr. Hyland said, "to be a high school graduate than his father, far likelier to be a college graduate than his older brother, and far likelier to be an active, vocal citizen regardless of the number of diplomas. And likewise, Mrs. Radio Listener today is not limited to a world of home and children. She's aware of the problems of her community, her nation and the world. She wants to be informed, to express herself, to take part as an active citizen."

Muscle and Thought • Mr. Hyland urged his listeners to stimulate radio by stimulating ideas. And the cost is not beyond the reach of any station—big market or small market."...you will find often that it requires more effort than money, and more ideas than staff," he stressed.

Radio now represents about 6% of the annual advertising dollar, Mr. Hyland said. There's no reason why this shouldn't be increased to 20% in the coming decade.

He foresaw the rise of "special interest" stations, in the next decade, and a change in radio's position to become more a voice of the community. This includes "getting your hands dirty" in community affairs.

"Progressive radio of the future," Mr. Hyland stated, "will play the same role in its community that newspapers have traditionally played as fighters against corruption and injustice and against the kind of stranglehold on information that perpetuates corruption and injustice."

KMOX is following this advice right now, Mr. Hyland reported. It is airing an editorial campaign urging that St. Louis city councilmen and judges not be impannelled without a full airing of each juror's qualifications, including the broadcast media.

Editorializing does not end with the broadcasting of an opinion, Mr. Hyland warned. "You'll soon discover there is no half-way approach to being involved — really involved in community affairs."

In television, KNXT's Hellflower, dealing with the narcotics problem, won the award as the best documentary and Irwin Rosten of KNXT for the best newswriting. KRCA (TV) Los Angeles also won three of the club's "Golden Mike" trophies: '59 Final as the best special news program on tv; Jack Lafram, of the KRCA news staff, for the best tv newscasting; LeGene Sage Barlow for the best tv film coverage. Award for the best reporting by an independent tv station went to KTTV (TV) Los Angeles.

News directors of San Francisco radio and tv stations served as judges in selecting the winners in the various news categories. The special awards to station managements for overall news excellence were decided by the bureau chiefs of AP, UPI and City News in Los Angeles.

42 post-'48 movies put on the tv market

A package of 42 post-'48 theatrical feature pictures, including 14 Roy Rogers westerns never before offered to television, has been assembled by Hollywood Television Service (a division of Republic Pictures). They will be marketed to stations under the name of "The Saturn Group."

In announcing the package, Earl R. Collins, vice president and general manager of its tv operations, said that approximately 75% of the films were released in 1957, '58 or '59, making them the newest movies ever offered to tv as a group. David Bloom, newly appointed syndicated sales director, is enlarging the sales staff to handle the 52 series of as many as 800 other theatrical pictures and tv half-hours which the company is now distributing.

Program notes...

Taxing problems • The IRS Mailbox, a series of 13 five-minute programs answering the questions most often asked about federal income taxes, is available in script form to southwestern stations only from the Internal Revenue Service district offices in Dallas, Austin, Little Rock, Albuquerque, New Orleans and Oklahoma City. During the last filing period, more than 150 southwestern radio and tv stations carried the show.

What Florida needs • WCKT (TV) Miami, Fla., has launched a series of hour-long documentaries, scheduled on an irregular monthly basis, on the needs of the south Florida community. The first telecast of the series, on Nov. 20, was entitled "The Yankee Dollar" and dealt with the tourist problems on the Florida Gold Coast. Subject matter for the series was suggested by civic leaders in replies to questionnaires sent out by the station last spring.

Christmas specials • WBZ-TV Boston will televise two special Christmas programs that will stress American values. Film is being prepared of eleven English towns that have New England namesakes, such as Plymouth, Manchester, etc. The programs will show Christmas customs, preparations, and exchanges of greetings between the same-name towns.

Grows and grows • Independent Television Corp., N. Y., which recently acquired Heritage Productions, has applied the assets of that company to form Javelin Productions, according to Arthur (Skip) Steloff, general manager of the new ITC division, and former president of Heritage. Mel Schlank, formerly general sales manager of World-Wide Tv, is Javelin's sales head.

'Sing along' series • Sing Along With Mitch, with Mitch Miller as star and host, will return to NBC-TV as a regular colorcast program on alternate Fridays starting Jan. 27, 1961 (9-10 p.m. EST). The series, which will alternate with Bell Telephone Hour, was de-developed from a program with the same title seen last spring on NBC-TV as a Ford Startime special. Bill Hobin will produce and direct the series originating in NBC's Brooklyn studios.

‘Our Town’ series • Filmaster Inc., Hollywood, has acquired tv rights to Thornton Wilder’s Pulitzer Prize winning play, “Our Town,” which will be produced by Filmaster as a half-hour film series, starting in January. Negotiations for the rights to the play, which has been seen full-length on network tv, were conducted by Robert Stabler, president of Filmaster: Sy Weintraub, president of Banner Productions, previous owner of the rights, and Harold Breach of the William Morris Agency. Banner Films will participate in the series as a joint venture with Filmaster, but full production responsibility will be with Filmaster, it was announced.

Civil War dramas • NBC-TV has scheduled a full-hour drama series marking the Civil War centennial year. Titled The Americans, the filmed weekly program will replace Riverboat on Jan. 23, 1961 (7:30-8:30 p.m. EST). Darryl Hickman and Dick Davalos will co-star in the NBC-TV production filmed at MGM studios in Hollywood. Frank Telford was named producer, and author Henry Steele Commager will serve as historical consultant. Riverboat’s last run on the network will be Jan. 16.

They didn’t ask for this • Alphonso Woodall, known as the “Human Kite,” was awarded $135,000 for injuries sustained March 25, 1959, while filming his act for the You Asked For It tv show by a Los Angeles jury. The suit was brought against Wayne Steffner Productions and four individuals: Cran Chamberlain, producer of the program; Don Henderson, director; Jerome Whello, tow car driver, and Ken Carlson, also in the tow car at the time of the accident. An appeal is expected.

“Hush” toys • National merchandising of a variety of items associated with the children's tv cartoon series Q.T. Hush, Private Eye has been announced by M&A Alexander Productions, distributor of the five-minute programs. Paste up and coloring books are being produced by the Saalfeld Publishing Co., Akron, Ohio. The Leslie Henry Co. is manufacturing “Q. T. Hush” guns, holsters, rifles and badges, according to the JAC Agency, L.A., which is handling the merchandising. New items will be introduced next spring at the New York Toy Fair.

Consuming half-hour • Consumers Union Film Library is distributing a new 30-minute 16mm film, “Consumers Want to Know,” telling the story of the union and its monthly magazine, Consumer Reports. Richard de Rochemont produced the film at Consumers

BEHIND THE SCENES STORY ON HOW 'CANDID CAMERA' IS PRODUCED

Since Candid Camera joined the CBS-TV Sunday night lineup on Oct. 2, the program has garnered some 300 letters weekly—with a typical letter starting off this way: "You think that lunch counter scene with Martha Raye was funny . . . wait until you hear what happened where I work . . ."

The flow of viewer suggestions coming into the New York offices of Bob Banner, executive producer of Candid Camera, and Allen Funt, creator of the program, provides clues as to what the audience likes to see and offers an endless source of ideas to be followed up by Mr. Funt’s busy film crews. Candid Camera’s well-filled film library has grown at a steady clip through two decades of exposure as movie-theater shorts, subjects, as a radio feature and from previous runs in other TV programs such as the Steve Allen Show and Jack Paar Show in the past decade. The library keeps growing.

Headed by Mr. Funt, film crews are on location five days a week, often wandering far from home base. Upcoming shows may utilize film from last summer’s European trip, a recent shooting session in the Midwest, or from many other widely-separated points. Candid Camera has a permanent technical staff of two cameramen, two assistant cameramen, two film editors with assistants, a production manager, a production coordinator and a film coordinator. A three-to-four-minute film segment on the show ordinarily requires two full days of shooting. Editors then cut down the two hours or more of film to a running time of 15 minutes or so, which is run off for Mr. Banner, producer-director Julio Di Benedetto and others on the production staff. Further cutting gets the film down to proper length for one of the three or four filmed portions of the otherwise live show. Each program is video taped for possible future use in syndication or as summer re-runs.

Air of Distinction ■ The film segments are not shot for any one particular television show. During the week, which "acts" will be included in one show, Mr. Banner said in a recent interview, may be delayed until right up to the day the show is taped, to be sure of having the strongest possible production for that particular week and night. In telling how the veteran feature is being handled as a prime-time network program hosted by Arthur Godfrey, Mr. Banner said Candid Camera was developed as "a distinctive tv comedy program in which the film segments are treated as acts in a variety show." The present format was polished on The Garry Moore Show of last season, when Candid Camera was a regular weekly feature. Mr. Banner, also executive producer of Mr. Moore’s variety show, and Mr. Funt had it in mind from the start of last season to make Candid Camera a 1960-61 contender on its own merit.

Viewers sometimes get the idea that Mr. Funt’s victim must know he is on-camera because it seems the person is looking directly at it. In most instances, Mr. Funt has learned through the years, little effort is needed to disguise either the camera or the microphone. The reason for this, Mr. Banner explained, is that people are so intent on what they are doing at the time that they fail to recognize, until they are told, that all is not normal. Their preoccupation, 49 times or more, keeps them from questioning, or even spotting the presence of a microphone attached to an object next to them. It’s much the same way, Mr. Banner said, as when movie stars go unrecognized in places not generally associated with them. One other point in this connection, he said, is that few people pass up the opportunity to check on their appearance when a mirror is conveniently placed.

Favorite device ■ When it is not possible to have the camera in the same room with the subject, it may be necessary to cut a hole in a wall. Arrangements for repairs are made when that Union offices and laboratories. Requests are being taken by the library at 276 W. 25th St., New York 1, N. Y.

Recent history ■ NBC-TV has staked a claim on “The Eisenhower Years” as the subject of a Project 20 program for next season. Donald B. Hyatt, director of NBC special projects, said it would be a human story, not political analysis, and the show will select a leading figure of the time as narrator. Richard Hanser will write the script and Robert Russell Bennett the music for “The Eisenhower Years.”

Turning the spit ■ Jack Hurdle has been named by the New York Academy of Television Arts & Sciences to produce “The Roast of the Town,” lampoon show honoring Ed Sullivan at the ATAS “Close-Up” dinner Jan. 13. Herb Susan is executive producer, heading an advisory committee staffed by Ted Potter, ABC-TV vice president and director of publicity; Hal Graham, vice president of M-E Productions; Jerry Danzig, NBC-TV vice president, participating programs, and Martin Kummer, vice president, MCA.

Disaster documented ■ Boston citizens are still mindful of the catastrophe that took place in November 1942—the Coons Mill fire in which 490 persons were killed. Last year WBZ Boston presented an hour-long documentary interviewing people connected with the tragedy, people in the nightclub at the time of the fire who survived, fire department officials, hospital attendants and relatives of victims. The program had sufficient impact that there were numerous requests for a repeat. The program, Night of Panic, was repeated at a public service this year.

Chance company expands ■ The Albert Chance Co. of San Francisco, fine music stations representative, has acquired two new fine music radio stations and opened a New York sales office. The stations are KWME Walnut Creek and KITT San Diego, both California. The new sales office, being headed up by Joel B. Fairfax, is at 8 West 40th St.

Sermons on tape ■ Taped messages by outstanding Protestant clergymen are now being offered by “The Churchmen’s Recorded Library,” a cooperative venture of Sermons and Pictures Inc. and the Protestant Radio and Television Center, Atlanta, Ga. The library is said to fill a need felt by ministers looking for reference material in preparing sermons and by church study groups. Non-church groups have also expressed an interest in the service, according to the library. A catalog of the library’s offerings is available.

World-wide correspondent ■ Point of Origin Inc., Washington, is offering local radio and tv stations full-time roving-news-correspondent service for less than a cub reporter’s salary. According to Jeff St. John, president and director, Point of Origin’s roving correspondent will provide on-the-spot news reports, side bars and interviews with news makers from all parts of the globe, at rates starting at $22.50 weekly. The service becomes available Jan. 3.

Hearty congratulations ■ The Heart Assn. of Maryland has awarded its 1960 Communications Award to WBAL-TV Baltimore, citing the station for “its outstanding contribution to public understanding of the nature of heart disease.” The prizewinning program was a 65-happens, but most often the camera is hidden behind a two-way mirror. A common device used is a three-fold screen with a mirror installed in the middle panel. Among the details at most filming sessions is the matter of payment and contract signing. If people involved in a scene are not inconvenienced, they may be thanked for their trouble or they are given a small amount. But if the film is expected to be shown, a minimum fee of $25 is paid and the person must sign a contract giving Bob Banner & Assoc. and Allen Funt Productions full claim.

Without specifying what changes are in the ofing, Mr. Banner indicated a few small problems remain to be ironed out, but for the most part “the show has settled down nicely.” He’s confident it will have a second season on tv. Sponsors this season are Lever Brothers and Bristol-Myers.

Period of doubt • Messrs. Banner and Funt are indebted to Lever Brothers and Dan Seymour, vice president, director of J. Walter Thompson, Lever’s agency, for landing the program in the Sunday 10-10:30 p.m. slot on CBS-TV. The time period had been claimed by Bristol-Myers, via Young & Rubicam, for its new Pete & Gladys series after lever gave up title to the slot—preferring instead to buy the 9:30 p.m. Sunday slot for Jack Benny. (Near the end of the 1959-60 season, Mr. Banner approached Mr. Seymour with the idea or a Candid Camera weekly half-hour. Mr. Seymour became convinced and his client, Lever, approved.) They tried to reclaim the half-hour disposed minute documentary called The Living heart, a video-taped presentation of an pen-heart operation with heart-lung machines and the telecast cameras were focused on a surgeon’s hands as performed the delicate task of locating and correcting a heart defect in a 2-year-old patient. The program was nonterrupted for 45 minutes. Station manager Brent O. Guts received the agraded award on behalf of the station.

astro documentary • WPIX (TV) new York announced the completion of its fourth hour-long documentary, Cuba, Castro and Communism subtitled “Danger on Our Doorstep”), which is expected to be syndicated for their markets as was done with the station’s previous documentaries (Russian evolution, Secret Life of Adolf Hitler 3d Berlin Crisis). WPIX plans to televise it sometime before the new year, a spokesman said.

resident’s biography • United Press loviotone, N. Y., has announced a half-hour film, “The Kennedy Story,” covering the life of Sen. John F. Kennedy from boyhood to his election victory. T. R. Higginbotham, manager of “Candid Camera” guest Phil Silvers played the part of a barber in this scene from the Oct. 30 program. The made several concessions: Lever sold half of Candid Camera to Bristol-Myers and agreed to do no dentifrice advertising on the program; and it relinquished all rights to the series to another network without the express consent of CBS-TV.

UPMT, said the film had been planned some time, using footage from the service’s library. Sequences show the subject with his father, the ambassador to Great Britain before World War II, Sen. Kennedy tilting with James Hoffa and others in Washington investigations, Kennedy activity at the 1956 Democratic convention, scenes at home and shots of others members of the family.

Religious series • WFIL-AM-TV Philadephia has announced a new public service project, One Nation Under God, which went on the air Thanksgiving day, will continue through Brotherhood Week in February. The campaign will emphasize the religious basis of America’s foundation and growth. Representatives of the Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic faiths have suggested areas that could be emphasized in the project.

Free prop • The National Housing Center, Washington, D. C., has announced the availability of a $2 million “prop” to tv and radio producers and packagers—free. In a letter to film studios and broadcast producers, the center, headquarters for the National Assn. of Home Builders, describes its five floors of permanent exhibits, some of which have already been used as television backdrops. Anyone interested may contact the National Housing Center, 1625 L St. N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Seven more • Carlton Fredericks’ Living Should be Fun radio program, syndicated in 22 markets, has been sold to seven more. They are WTXU Wilmingtton, Del.; WFMD Frederick, Md.; WLAK Lakeland, Fla.; KGB San Diego; WDEF Chattanooga; WDXR Paducah, Ky.; and KFH Wichita, Kan.

Celebrities visit • Three noted public figures appeared for an hour each during a two-day period recently on the afternoon At Your Service program of KMOX St. Louis. On Oct. 31 Jackie Robinson, the first Negro in major league baseball, discussed racial relations. Charles P. Taft, chairman of the Fair Elections Practices Commission, was heard on politics Nov. 1. The same day Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was a guest on the talk program to discuss the United Nations and the world situation in relation to the presidential candidates. Each guest was interviewed for the first 15 minutes by host Jack Buck with the remaining 45 minutes devoted to answering questions phoned in by listeners. KMOX reported peak listener response.

Book rights = Screen Gems Inc., and Freddie Fields Assoc., both New York, have acquired the television rights to "Grand Deception" by Alexander Klein. The book, a volume of hoax stories gathered by Mr. Klein, will be developed into a one-hour television series for 1961-62.

Operations fund = Norwood Studios Inc., Washington, D. C., producer of nontheatrical films, has been selected by Greater Washington Industrial Investments Inc., that city, for an investment of $80,000. This will be in 5-year 8% debentures carrying detachable warrants of up to 16% of Norwood's total common stock. Norwood Studios was established in 1951 by Philip Martin, president. It has a permanent staff of 40.

African series = A one-hour adventure series, Safari, to be filmed in Kenya, will be produced for 1961-62 season by Screen Gems Inc., according to William Dozier, vice president in charge of west coast activities for the company.

New ABC-TV series = Directions '61, a weekly series of 36 religious programs, began Sunday, Nov. 13 (1-1:30 p.m.). Theodore Bikel, George Kicks and John Alcorn will represent the Jewish, Protestant and Catholic faiths, respectively, as hosts of the programs. The show is produced by Wiley Hance.

Around the world = NBC News' worldwide film coverage has been made available to Reuters, independent international news agency, which has become a shareholder in the British Commonwealth International Newsfilm Agency (BCINA). During the past two years, NBC has made available the resources of its TV network to provide the core of the BCINA U.S. report for world distribution. With the entry of Reuters into BCINA's ownership, the world resources of BCINA will be expanded and Reuters will be linked with the rapidly developing realm of visual news reporting, a Reuters announcement said.

EQUIPMENT & ENGINEERING

WSJS-TV's 'do-it-yourself' remote unit

When it comes to money-saving do-it-yourself projects, few things can top the ingenuity of WSJS-TV Winston-Salem, N. C., which converted a bus it bought for $750 into a remote unit that the station wouldn't trade now for a $35,000 custom-built job. It was utilized last year in 79 on-the-scene programs for a remote telecast total of 64 hours for public service in addition to a number of other remotes for promotion and commercial programs.

According to WSJS-TV, despite the fact that the bargain bus has more equipment and operating facilities than any custom remote unit, the over-all cost of equipment in the station-built unit is far under the cost of a "store-bought" remote. It's estimated that in its present condition the WSJS-TV bus contains $18,000 worth of equipment, while a custom-built unit with none of the extras installed on the bargain bus, would cost approximately $35,000. With materials they had on hand, WSJS-TV's staff adapted their gasoline-driven bus into their own version of what a remote unit should be. The bus was purchased from a used bus company that was about to ship it abroad.

The not-so-wayward WSJS-TV bus is a complete air-conditioned TV studio on wheels. Live TV programs can be created within the bus, which seats eight passengers besides the driver. It has operating positions for a full crew including a producer and a Telco representative. The bus has its own multiple-tape transformer, allowing the unit to be connected to almost any normally encountered power source, and it has complete communications facilities via an external-opening termination panel which offers multiple audio and Telco connections for business phones, PL lines, PA feed lines, radio loops, etc. It's equipped with two DuMont field camera chains, and another is to be added. Camera accessories include tripods, video control and switching equipment, a complete assortment of lenses, four 14-inch video monitors and audio input and control equipment system. Motor driven reels in the baggage compartment of the bus carry 215 feet of standard camera cable for each camera. There are 450 feet of extra cable for emergencies.

Among the many occasions when the remote unit has been shown off in public was an appearance in the auditorium of a local school during a special career series for students (see picture). The bus served as both a display piece and an actual operating TV studio.

WSJS-TV's satisfaction with the bus is expressed in the comment of Harold Essex, president and general manager of WSJS-TV, who said: "It's not the cost factor, but the fact that there are stil men in radio and television who can use their own creative skills and imagination to develop something like this that makes me feel as though we've really accomplished something."
New RCA transistor

J., has announced a new type, low-cost, transistor that makes possible for the first time production of all-transistor high-fidelity sound equipment on an economically practical basis. Now being sampled in the home-instrument industry, transistor will sell for less than $2 when it's commercially available early next year. The device is described as a developmental "driftfield" power type of transistor which incorporates special processing techniques and can deliver high audio power for monaural and stereo sound equipment when operated either from car battery or house current.

Texas get USIA contract

The United States Information Agency has announced that it has awarded a $12,173,000 contract to Alpha of Texas Inc., Richardson, Tex., and Continental Electronics Manufacturing Co., Dallas, for construction of a new Voice of America radio station near Greenville, N. C. (Broadcasting, Nov. 7).

Total cost of the project, expected to be completed by the end of 1962, has been estimated by USIA at $25,345,850. The agency says it will be the most powerful long-range broadcasting station in the world.

Technical topics...

Enlarged quarters • Broadcast Electronics Inc., producer of Spotmaster tape cartridge recording and playback units for the broadcasting industry, has moved into new and larger quarters at 3800 Brookville Road, Silver Spring, Md. (suburb of Washington). The new facilities will provide more than triple the company's original floor space, according to President Ross Beville, who added that further expansion is planned. National sales and distribution of the Spotmaster equipment is handled by Visual Electronics Corp., New York.

For recording engineers • Picker & Co., Plainview, L. I., N. Y., announces its new 381A Stereo Pickup, intended or recording engineers requiring "highly accurate pickups for calibrating recording channels in order to reproduce accurate records." In describing its earlier specifications, Picker Resident Walter O. Stanton says the 381A will track at two grams without peak at any frequency.

New Boston office • DECO (Developmental Engineering Corp.), Leesburg, Va., announces opening of a new Boston division to carry out theoretical and experimental studies in communications theory and information processing. Firm is a leader in advanced communications systems and antenna design and development.

New sync • A new system for the automatic and instantaneous synchronization of audio and video tapes has been announced by the Skelton & Luftig division of Skelton Studios, Hollywood. Described by its creators as a major breakthrough in television recording, the system consists of a single-channel tape recorder which uses in lip synchronization with video tape machines. The new system is being used for the first time in current taping from Disneyland of Bell Telephone Hour's upcoming "The Sounds of America," by Red-Eo-Tape units.

Expansion plans • The General Electric electronics plant at Palo Alto, Calif., will be expanded and renovated beginning next month. A new 8,000-square-foot single story addition will be constructed on the present plant at 601 California Ave. The addition will be used by the engineering section for research and development work, releasing another 10,000 square feet of floor space in another part of the plant, which will be used for manufacturing.

A new type of tetrode • General Electric Power Tube Dept. has developed a new high-power microwave tetrode, designed for CW service, which produces 40 watts of useful output at 3,000 mc, with a gain of 7.5 db. The Type Z-5267 planar tetrode is designed primarily for grounded-grid cavity circuits, but can be used as a radio-frequency power amplifier for telemetry and other communications systems. It was developed under the sponsorship of the U. S. Army Signal Corps. A new design feature is a combination of small inter-electrode spacings with a thermally stable electrode structure, giving the Z-5267 high operating efficiency of 25 to 30% in the 3,000-mc region. The tube is available in sample quantities at an original equipment manufacturer price of $275.

SSB receiver • Kahn Research Labs, Freeport, N. Y., announces a new fixed tuned Model KSSB-59-1A Single-Sideband Receiver for AM broadcast use. Applications include off-the-air relay broadcasts, high quality monitoring in difficult reception areas and Conelrad. Completely transistorized, the unit permits upper or lower sideband reception and operates on 110 volts AC or self-contained automatic emergency DC supply. Price: $2,200.

Mike catalog • Vega Electronics Corp., Cupertino, Calif., has issued a six-page color brochure describing its wireless microphones. The brochure also carries specifications of the complete line of Vega-Mike accessories and illustrates a number of suggested applications. It is available free of charge.

Canadian radio next in line for new rules

BBG CONSIDERING LIMITATIONS ON SPOTS, PROMOTIONS

The Board of Broadcast Governors begins its public hearings at Ottawa tomorrow (Nov. 29). Included on the agenda are proposed changes in radio broadcasting regulations. On Nov. 17 Dr. Andrew Stewart, BBG chairman, announced that the board is considering placing limits on radio station promotions, timing of spot announcements, changes in program requirements to give listeners more choice, more Canadian content and separate regulations for fm stations.

Dr. Stewart stated the board feels radio station contests are harmful to the stations and the money could be better spent in improving programs. The BBG is of the opinion that stations are making too many spot announcements, leaving insufficient time for stations to properly perform other functions. Some stations are airing as many as 300 spots a day.

On the matter of program choice, the BBG stated that in multi-station metropolitan areas the variety of radio service seems to fail most conspicuously. It was felt that many stations were making little effort to build up programs of Canadian content and character. On tv, the BBG has ruled that stations must have 45% Canadian program content by April 1, 1961; 55% by April 1, 1962. The BBG felt that there should be greater use of live or syndicated Canadian programs.

Dr. Stewart said that not enough provinces have changed their regulations regarding advertising of beer and liquor. As a result BBG regulations in this regard will not be altered at present. In Ontario and Quebec, beer, wine and liquor advertising are now permitted by provincial authorities, and thus on radio and television.

As far as fm is considered, separate regulations are to be devised to limit advertising and maintain the present quality of programming. Fm is expanding in Canada, with a number of stations now programming separately from their am affiliates. Until a few years ago this was not permitted by the BBG.

At the Nov. 29 meeting only one applicant is expected to be heard for a second Canadian television network. The BBG has announced that Spencer W. Caldwell, Toronto program producer and film and equipment distributor, is the only applicant. Currently only the government-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp. has a tv network across the country. Second stations in eight Canadian cities now make a second network necessary.

Canadian program content rules which figure importantly in the operations of Canadian television stations may also be inserted in content of Canadian commercials on tv. The Assn. of Motion Picture Producers and Laboratories of Canada at their semi-annual meeting at Montreal in October reported having discussed the matter with the Board of Broadcast Governors. No decision was reported as to when a decision would be reached. Canadian tv stations must have 45% Canadian program content by April 1, 1961, 55% the following year.

Commercial tv planned for Ireland

Radio Eireann has announced plans to put Ireland's first television station, a state-owned, commercial operation, on the air in November 1961.

It was also announced that a former NBC international employe, William J. Roth, has been appointed director-general of the government-controlled Radio Eireann in Ireland.

The new tv station will be subsidized at the start by the Irish government with a grant of $3 million. Eventually, it will be supported through advertising revenues and $12 annual license fees to be paid by set owners. Radio Eireann, which has a monopoly on radio broadcasting in Ireland, plans to build five transmitters to provide coverage for 95% of Ireland from its tv station. The first transmitter will be built on Mount Kippure, just outside Dublin.

At the outset, the Irish station will program six minutes of commercials in each hour. All advertisements will be spots with the sponsors having no control over placement or programming. The station will program four hours daily.

It was reported that Mr. Roth received a five-year contract from Radic Eireann at $15,000 annually, plus $7,500 yearly allowance. Boston-born Mr. Roth served several years with NBC's overseas operations. He arrived in Dublin last week to assume his Radic Eireann duties.

British company acquires Telemeter pay tv rights

Paramount Pictures has announced that the British rights to the Telemeter pay tv systems developed by its International Telemeter Co. division have been granted to British Telemeter Home Viewing Ltd., a new company representing entertainment, communi cations and financial interests in Britain.

Louis A. Novins, president of International Telemeter, said that the new British company has an authorized capital of one million pounds (approximately $2.8 million), of which more than 10% is being taken up initially, principally by British interests. He added that the original subscribers include British Lion Films Ltd., an independent film producer-distributor, The Financial Times, a financial journal; Granada Group Ltd., motion picture theater operator and program contractor for commercial TV; The Manchester Guardian and Evening News; Schlesinger Investments Ltd., film producer, and N. M. Rothschild & Sons, investment banking firm.

A spokesman for the British company said: "It is important to note that British Telemeter Home Viewing Ltd. will be British-controlled, with Paramount having a minority interest. At such time as the government should approve pay television, equipment for Telemeter systems will be manufactured in the United Kingdom."

Canadian agencies report radio-tv rise

Final figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, for 1958 and 1959 show that 122 advertising agencies in those years reported television billings of $48,719,078 and $52,216,081, respectively. Radio billings were $24,953,674 in 1958 and $25,985,467 in 1959.

Television billings accounted for 21.3% of total billings of the agencies in 1959, as against 20.5% in 1958. Radio accounted for 10.6% in 1959 and 10.5% in 1958 of total billings.

Final figures on agency profits showed that 89 had an average net profit in 1959 of $37,887 as against $33,232 in 1958 with an average of $33,232.

Losses were sustained in 1959 by 33 agencies with a net average of $14,206 as against 30 in 1958 with $12,668.

Canadian broadcasters want pay-tv, catv rules

Community antenna TV systems and pay-tv should be regulated and licensed by the Board of Broadcast Governors. This is the conclusion of the Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters and the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

The CAB plans to present a brief to the effect before the Broadcasting Committee of the Canadian Parliament soon. It is supported in its stand by the government-owned CBC.

The CAB view, as expressed by its general counsel, executive vice-president, Ottawa, is that catv systems and pay-tv serve the same ends as the independent broadcasters and the CBC, namely, putting FM broadcasters: high receiver cost—the big drawback to expansion of potential FM audiences—has been licked. NOW you can boost your FM audience with this dynamic... Drift-Free... quality FM receiver from Sarkes Tarzian, Inc. If you have AM too, and go on reduced power at night, why not take advantage of this special offer and really promote FM to maintain, or increase, your night time audience. It's a natural.

ting a picture on the viewer’s home tv set. Therefore they should come under the same regulations.

Should the Parliamentary Committee agree with the CAB’s submissions it would mean that câtv systems would also have to produce programs with a high Canadian content, as do the Canadian tv stations. Most community antenna systems now feed their subscribers with U. S. programs. Few relay Canadian tv stations.

It is estimated that there are currently 164 câtv systems in operation in Canada, with 108 rebroadcasting U. S. stations.

Nielsen goes to Germany

Continental Europe will soon have meter-based measurements of television audiences.

The A. C. Nielsen Co., New York, in cooperation with the Attwood Group of London, has concluded an agreement with Infratest of Munich, principal German audience research firm, to form Infratest GmbH & Co., which will conduct continuous quantitative television audience measurements in West Germany.

One-third of the capital of Infratest will be held by Infratest, while two-thirds goes to Attwood and Nielsen in a new continental holding company, Eurobar Nb, which is being formed in Holland.

Abroad in brief...

Combo * More Canadian stations are conducting group rates. Latest is the group of three northern Ontario stations, CFCF North Bay, CJKL Kirkland Lake, and CKGB Timmins, which now have a combined group rate under a "Tronor" rate card. The rates are for programs varying from 15 seconds to 30 minutes, and for one minute saturation spot announcements in early morning, morning and afternoon time periods.

International interest * To accommodate sports fans overseas, NBC arranged a phone relay from New York to Paris to carry a description of the Washington (D.C.) International horse race from Laurel, Md. Leon Bendersky, commentator for Europe No. 1 Network and turf writer for Paris-Soir, gave the call during the race and post-race comments. Clive Graham of the London Daily Express taped the call and comment for British radio broadcast on a delayed basis. A delayed broadcast for Radio Eireann, Ireland, was provided by the Irish journalist Michael O’Hehir.

It doesn’t pay * James K. Ross, 33, a former television producer of McCann-Erickson Canada Ltd., Toronto, Ont., was sentenced to three years in the Kingston, Ont., penitentiary on 17 counts of fraud over a three year period totalling $65,000 from the agency. He was accused of giving checks as false talent payments to George Cuttell, a radio-tv announcer, and Gordon Roda. Messrs. Cuttell and Roda were each sentenced to two years less a day in the reformatory.

Combination * CKMI-TV and CFCA-TV Quebec City, Que., respectively English and French-language stations, are now selling time on a combined basis. Both stations are owned by Television de Quebec, Ltd. (Canadian Famous Players Corp. and others). Announcements will be used on both stations at the same time. All time availabilities will be submitted on this basis, A. P. Fitzgibbons, assistant general manager and sales manager, announced.

A physique contest in reverse at KSFO

The fat man has come into his own, with the help of KSFO San Francisco. Believing that under many a paunch and bulge lies the physique of a Greek god, KSFO d.j. Jim Lange conducted a "Fat Atlas" contest. Bay area listeners nominated their favorite Fat Atlas for a list of prizes which included a three-month membership at Vic Tanny's gym.

Over 11,000 votes were recorded in the spur-of-the-moment contest. The affair was termed "disorganized but exciting," and entries included newspaper columnists, sports figures, students from every major school, as well as fathers, brothers, sweethearts and acquaintances.

Letters of nomination were signed by at least ten people and had to be in within three days from the initial announcement. Voting in the contest took seven days.

Winner of the "Fat Atlas" award was Don Manoukian, the hulking guard of the Oakland Raiders pro football team. He garnered 2,912 votes edging out the runner-up by a mere 250 votes. Mr. Manoukian took home a long list of prizes including a 76-oz. steak, a throne, a magnum of champagne, two giant pizzas and a month's supply of popcorn, hamburgers and milk shakes from a local restaurant called the Hippo.

All prizes in the KSFO contest were offered by listeners.

RAB courts dairymen

It may be a coals-to-Newcastle approach, but the Radio Advertising Bureau thinks stations can fire up business by sending costumed milkmaids to serve dairymen their own product with cookies and a printed sales presentation.

Winner by a neck

Zsa Zsa, attired in her natural ostrich-feather plumage, raced last week against Gina and Bridgette, likewise attired, in a promotion staged by KFWB Hollywood, Calif. The lovely "ladies," in a long neck-and-neck contest, were raced by KFWB d.j.s at the Great Western Exposition and Livestock show in Hollywood. B. Mitchel Reed, using the only means of guiding an ostrich, wielded a broom to bring Zsa Zsa into line. Linking Zsa Zsa and a broom is hard on the imagination . . . and the ostrich doesn't seem to care for it either.

The study on the snack tray, "Radio Delivers More for Dairy Advertisers," carries the kind of information RAB thinks dairymen will be glad to swallow. It tells them that 97% of families use milk (96% of them own radios), that 73% of them serve ice cream for dessert (most homes have three radios), and one home in five has cottage cheese on hand (radio completely covers the market, while newspapers miss 13-60% of families and TV misses 8-30%).

Free rides for listeners

Three hours after the Los Angeles busses stopped running Wednesday (Nov. 16) because of a mechanics' strike, Gene Weed of KFWB, started appealing to motorists for rides to help citizens left stranded by the breakdown in public transportation. As calls came pouring in, KFWB set up a special switchboard to handle them. Sports and headline newscasts were replaced with the free ride service, telling people where they could get rides to work or school. The service will continue until the strike is ended.

Johnny Grant, KMPC Los Angeles d.j., whose 3-6 p.m. Freeway Club is aimed at drivers, urged them to share their cars with former bus riders, saying, "Remember, the guy you pick up might be your boss."

Peaceful coexistence

WHEB Portsmouth, N. H., has proved that radio and newspapers can get along very well together. The station proved the point with a twist of the radio dial.

Several months ago, Harold H. Segal, manager of WHEB, found out that there was no radio in the offices of the Portsmouth Herald. To remedy the situation, he offered to present the newspaper with a set with the wish that it be tuned, occasionally, to WHEB.

The newspaper accepted the offer at a Chamber of Commerce dinner, and the radio was dispatched, post haste, to the Herald office. If the radio is used in that office, it will be turned to WHEB. It has to be. The gift is calibrated so that the only station than can be tuned to is WHEB.

Mr. Segal promised to read the Herald every day.

Underwater music - When the nuclear submarine U.S.S. Patrick Henry departs on its next underwater mission, its crew will go about their tasks to the accompaniment of music, courtesy of WINS New York. In a letter to the station, the Patrick Henry's "Fire Control gang" explained that one of the crew's chief sources of entertainment "during the gruelling underwater trips" is its tape recorder. If the station would fill the craft's abundant supply of blank magnetic tapes with WINS music, it would be much appreciated, wrote the crewmen. WINS was happy to oblige.

Santa calling • WTCN Minneapolis-St. Paul and Clover Leaf Creamery Co. are teaming up to enable area youngsters to talk, "on-the-air," with Santa Claus. Children can participate in the Christmas season promotion by filling out forms provided by the sponsor and mailing them to the station. Every child who registers receives a letter from Santa, while as many as possible are telephoned during the Santa Calling program, Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 12 noon. Recordings of the conversations are presented to the children as souvenirs.

Annual event • For the second year, KABC-TV Hollywood and the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve will team up next month for the untelevised presentation of "Chucko's Christmas Show for Toys for Tots" in the Los Angeles Sports

Bowling spokeswoman

Sharon Ritchie, Miss America of 1955, has been appointed director of women's activities of American Machine & Foundry Co., Bowling Products Group, New York. She will appear in advertising, at bowling clinics and promotions, making her television debut for AMF at the World's Invitational Tournament in Chicago. The company will sponsor tv coverage by WGN-TV there Dec. 11, 6-7 p.m. The appointment is evidence of AMF's interest in the women's market, which it also has been seeking this year with spot tv tests, using daytime announcements. AMF sponsors daily radio sportcasts by Bill Stern on Mutual and underwrote the Tomorrow specials on CBS-TV this season. AMF's agency is Cunningham & Walsh.

GEL FM MULTIPLEX SYSTEM

Can Be Used with Any FM Transmitter in the 88 — 108 mc Band

GEL's is the oldest, field-proven, successful Multiplex Equipment in operation. Typical of this proud family of fine instruments is the GEL Multiplex System, Series FMC — a frequency-division multiplex system providing for the integration of a main channel and one or two sub-channels into an allocated FM channel.

Wrote Mr. C. K. Chrismon of WHOO Radio, Inc.: "In operation the usual Multiplex difficulties have happily been of no consequence here. We sometimes run three separate programs on our two subchannels and main channel. Some of our sub-channel subscriber accounts are as far out as seventy miles. Cross-talk has been no problem with our GEL Exciter although our transmitter is twelve years old. First, the only maintenance necessary has been an occasional tube change. We have experienced no component failure whatever."

The only external connections required for the FMC Multiplex System are those made to existing FM Transmitter, to the main and sub-channel audio input equipments, and to a 110 volt, 60 cps, single-phase primary power source.

Ask any user in your area about the GEL Multiplex System. We will be happy to furnish names on request.

GEL makes available a complete FM line of 15KW and 1KW Transmitters, and Exciters for converting conventional FM Transmitters to Multiplexing use.

BROADCASTING, NOVEMBER 28, 1960
WE ARE LOOKING—ARE YOU?

Men and women are needed

We are one of the best broadcast operations in California and we have been scooting for months for the right kind of people to fill several vacancies in our expanding radio, tv, fm and muxak operations. Sure, we are hard to please. Our standards are high.

We demand mature people with the ability to use discretion and make intelligent decisions. We want men and women who love the broad cast field and who can creatively and energetically take pride in a job well done. The people we now have believe in “Doing a job”—not “Talking about it.” The people we want are always looking for a better way to do things—to improve and to grow.

If you think you are such a person and would like an ideal California medium market, (and you are positive you want to live in California), then here is what we need: Executive-type women who can fill positions in promotion, traffic, accounting and continuity; good announcers with 1st class tickets; a good radio chief engineer who can announce; a hard digging newsmens who can gather, write and broadcast news; top flight salesmen for radio, TVA and fm. Our people are paid well.

We have many fringe benefits, including the opportunity to grow with an organization which now includes stations, with more in the future if we can produce. Our plans include a profit sharing pension trust and our people have security. No politics in our organization.

If you are looking for an opportunity and are willing to work hard, then give us all the information in the first letter, plus a tape if you announce, and a photograph if you want tv. Address all replies to:

OUR RESPECTS to Harold Cutliff Stuart, president, KVOO-AM-TV Tulsa

A winner may practice his game in several fields

Harold C. Stuart is the kind of man you'd like to have with you on a dark night along the Marseilles waterfront.

Or on your side at a conference table.

He's that kind of person—vital, alert and capable in both the physical and mental sense.

The appearance of the square-visor 48-year-old president of KVOO-AM-TV Tulsa is matched by performance; he doesn't just look that way.

In his school days, he was captain of his college boxing team—and never lost a fight.

In World War II he was an Air Force colonel, in charge of the Ninth Air Force's operational intelligence in the European Theatre.

His great love now is bird-hunting, mainly ducks, but also quail and pheasant. He shoots golf in the mid-80s.

As a lawyer and a citizen, he has represented major corporations and has sat in high places. His law firm has offices in both Tulsa and Washington.

He served as assistant secretary of the Air Force under President Truman.

Campaigner ♦ In the last election, he was vice chairman of the national finance committee of the Democratic Party. He's a director of banks and businesses and serves his state as a highway commissioner.

Harold Cutliff Stuart considers KVOO-TV the number one station in his home community. This is stated simply, without false modesty or bragadocio.

The news department of KVOO-TV comprises seven men, the largest in the city, he'll tell you. Its farm department has six men fulltime, also the largest in the city, according to Mr. Stuart.

During the recent elections, the KVOO stations editorialized with hard-hitting messages on such local matters as reapportionment. But beyond taking a stand, the stations explained in simple but cogent language the pros and cons of other petitions on the ballot. Like most civic-minded broadcast stations it ran a sustained campaign to get you to vote.

For the last six years, the stations have operated a weekly three-day seminar for boys of the Tulsa service area at their ranch outside the city. There prominent local and national leaders have talked to the boys on local and national matters. The ranch accommodates 75 boys at a time and Mr. Stuart estimates more than 25,000 have been exposed to stimulating men and at the same time to the discipline of ranch life.

Experimental Ranch ♦ The obligation of KVOO to its audience is not far from the thoughts of its management. The station has just bought 3,000 acres about 25 miles east of Tulsa. This will serve as a model farm and ranch, where experiments will be undertaken in improving cattle and raising feed. The land cost $177,000 and Mr. Stuart figures the station will spend $25,000 to $35,000 a year in upgrading the facilities and carrying out the farm and ranch program.

Mr. Stuart represents the interests of the late William G. Skelly, Oklahoma oil baron, in the ownership and management of the KVOO stations.

He is married to the former Joan Skelly. The stations are also owned partially by the Kerr-McGee interests.

Because he's been busy in a larger field, Mr. Stuart has not been very active in broadcaster associations. He is, however, a founder and a director of the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters. He has been a director of NBC Affiliates. Some time ago he worked on NAB's labor committee.

The Stuart antecedents are notable. His grandfather was the first federal judge in what was then Indian Territory. His father was an Oklahoma City banker. Mr. Stuart was born there on the Fourth of July, 1912. He has two brothers.

Mr. Stuart attended the U. of Virginia and received his law degree from that institution in 1936. At college he was a member of the honor council, the highest student governing group.

He was a member of such select student societies as "The 13" and the "Ump." He is a Duke fraternity man.

Instead of returning to Oklahoma City he went northward to Tulsa. He was a founder of what is now the twocity law firm of Doerner, Stuart, Moreland, Campbell & Saunders.

He was appointed a common pleas judge in 1941, but resigned when he enlisted in the Air Force. He was mustered out as a colonel and wears the ETO ribbon with six battle stars, the Bronze Star, the Luxembourg Croix de Guerre, and Norway's Medal of Freedom and Medal of Liberation. He was invested with Norway's Order of St. Olav.

Scandiophile ♦ Mr. Stuart accompanied the Allied forces in the liberation of Norway in World War II and came to love the land and the people. This affection resulted in Mr. and Mrs. Skelly's adoption of two Norwegian orphans, now typical American teenagers. Mr. Stuart serves also as Norwegian vice consul in the state of Oklahoma.

It is the Air Force that is Mr. Stuart's great love.

He served with Stuart Symington as assistant secretary of war and his name is written in the history of military personnel who wish to attend the Air Academy. Besides business, the law, and his Air Force activities, Mr. Stuart is the good citizen in other areas: he's a director of the American Red Cross, the Oklahoma division of the American Cancer Society and the Hillcrest Psychiatric Foundation.

Men who reach their stature often have shown early signs of future eminence. Mr. Stuart fits this pattern: he was an Eagle Scout in his younger days.

Shell game

SHELL OIL and its new agency, Ogilvy, Benson & Mather, have made the headlines twice in recent days. First they announced that they were discarding the historic commission system of agency payment and were adopting, instead, a cost-plus arrangement. Then Shell announced it was swinging its entire advertising budget into newspapers.

The news in the new payment arrangement is not that it happened, but that the principals announced that it had happened. It is by no means the first time the media commission system has been breached and it will not be the last. A trend has been moving quietly in that direction for several years, pushed along most specifically by the Assn. of National Advertisers' exhaustive study that culminated in the famed "Frey Report" in 1957. The net effect of the Shell-Ogilvy arrangement, then, will be not to start a trend but probably to give momentum to an old one by generating more thought, more discussion and, one would guess, less inclination to hold unquestioningly to the old concept.

Ordinarily we would not quarrel with the argument that compensation is something to be decided between employer and employee. But this is not a bilateral matter. It is a third party's money—the media's—that is being pushed around. Media's rates were developed, basically, on the assumption that they were commissionable, with the commission going to the agency as payment for services rendered to media.

If an evolution is in progress that challenges the validity of this concept then at some point television and radio and other media must make some decisions of their own. Do they continue paving commissions that are rebated to the advertiser? Do they overhaul their rate structures to adjust or eliminate the commission element? Or does the fee arrangement, no matter how the commission is handled, really fail to change the commission concept as a practical matter?

If Shell and Ogilvy were swimming with the tide in going to a new payment plan, they definitely were swimming against it when they plunged everything they had into newspapers. The trend there is definitely the other way; in 1959, for instance, gasoline and oil companies gave television almost 40% of their advertising as against 30% for newspapers, and in 1960 television's share is rising while newspapers' is expected to drop to perhaps one-fifth of the total.

Television's track record as a salesman is too good for Shell—or any other major company that wants to remain major—to ignore it for lone. Shell will be back. To the extent that newspapers do not hold that 100% commitment they will lose stature by exactly that much. The tide here clearly is in favor of television and against newspapers. Certainly television can look forward to this experiment—unfortunate as it seems at the moment—with far more confidence than newspapers can.

Rubber stamp FCC?

A BARE FCC majority too prone to jump whenever a few congressmen snort is about to deliver a crushing blow to free enterprise in broadcasting. Four members (Ford, Bartley, Lee and Cross) favor a new rule to prohibit transfers or sales of radio and television stations during the regular three-year license period unless there are extenuating circumstances. Two members (Hyde and Craven) oppose such a rule as contrary to law and an interference with free enterprise.

Unless the four-man majority is dissuaded by the logic of the dissenters, a proposed rule will issue—probably within a fortnight. Commissioner Bartley would go even beyond his three colleagues by requiring a showing by the proposed purchaser that he would render program service superior to that of the seller.

Admittedly there has been a lot of trading in stations in recent years. No one condones trafficking or the influx of speculators in broadcasting—the basis for sporadic congressional complaint and presumably for the majority FCC view.

If there have been transfers to unqualified people, the FCC must assume the responsibility. It is a prime function of the FCC to ascertain that qualified people are the licensees. It not only has the right but the duty to inquire into situations where trafficking or speculation is suspected. It can order hearings and, where the facts warrant, deny a sale to an undesirable purchaser.

The effect of the majority's proposed rule would be to freeze ownership for three years except where there would be substantial reason for relinquishing a license. Included in reasons for relinquishment might be death, incapacitation or bankruptcy. Apparently excluded would be situations where the owner is losing money or where he just didn't want to live in the community or stay in the business. In such circumstances the broadcaster against his will would be forced to remain in business for the duration of license or to fold.

Transfers have been a problem for years. Fifteen years ago the so-called Avco rule was adopted wherein, once a licensee proposed to sell, he was forced to advertise a station's availability on an auction basis, with the FCC as the arbiter. Four years later, the FCC repealed the Avco rule as unworkable. And in 1952, Congress legislated against this ridiculous procedure.

Station owners should not be discouraged from upgrading their holdings. To do so would be to limit progress and to penalize initiative.

The FCC is a discretionary body of great power. It was not meant to function with hard and fast rules covering every contingency. There are seven commissioners whose duty it is to determine individual cases on their merits. Circumstances and facts differ from case to case.

If the notion is that the FCC should adopt rigid rules on transfers, and in other areas, the need for a seven-man body is diminished. An administrator could do the job, saving the taxpayers substantial sums expended for the commissioners and their staffs.

A complicated rule isn't essential to handle the problem of speculation and trafficking in licenses. An alert FCC can spot the phonies and get at them through the hearing process. New blood and new competition of the legitimate kind are essential to the development of art and industry.

Station Reps: The Shifting Scene

Balance of power among tv rep firms is currently shifting as never before. There's been unprecedented switching of stations from rep to rep, and indications are it will be a while before the scene is fixed.

It's an open secret in Madison Ave. precincts that two long established firms are in deep trouble, primarily via station defections. While the very big firms are solid and static — the Blairs, the Katz's, the Petrys, the PGW's etc. — there's a lot of up and down activity in the second and third echelons.

One of the shops currently on the rise is Young Television Corp., which was set up five years ago by Adam Young as a separate corporation (different stockholders) from the radio wing. Shop idled for three years with a handfull of stations, but in the last 20 months or so has managed to knock off no less than 15 sitting ducks — and is gunning and close on several more.

Most reps are clearly divisioned by either big, medium or small station lists, but the Young one (which is young, for sure, with Ballentine as sales manager and Al Pargery as 34 the oldest exec staffer) has the full range in its list of 21, and an unusual variety of selling situations (U's against V's and vice versa, all three networks, and a Canadian outlet, CKLW, covering Detroit area). They can carry soap, vitamin or beer commercials, but still has managed to outbill one of the motor city's three stations.

Young TV's exec veep James F. O'Grady, who took over in New York two years ago after heading the Chicago sales office, has an ear planted against the Madison Ave. terrain, and any sort of a rumble of dissatisfaction will send him flying to a station for the hard sell. With the list growing and a good job being done in some odd situations, the reception out yonder is getting warmer. A couple of stations have actually invited the pitch based on recommendations from managements who have received the treatment but not yet signed on themselves.

Stations pacted in the last two years include California-Oregon Trio, KLEM and satellites KBBS and KOTI; Cascade Broadcasting in California; WTV, Chattanooga; WTVM, Columbus, Ga.; KTVR, Denver; WPTA, Fort Wayne; WHCT, Hartford; WTV, Indianapolis; WKYT, Lexington, Ky.; WXIX, Milwaukee; KMSP, Minneapolis; WNTA, New York; KEY, Santa Barbara; and KNTV, San Francisco. Groups and managements involved include RKO-General Martin Theatres, Tarzan, Taft Broadcasting, 20th Century Fox, National Television Associates, Tinsley and Balaban.
