Spot tv clearing house

Long-held dream of central billing organization for spot tv may be near realization. Now in formation is new New York company, staffed by business systems experts formerly with Remington-Rand and by executives with experience in broadcast advertising. Already several major advertisers have made tentative commitments to use new service. Modern business machinery would be used to provide fast, complete and accurate billing for big or little spot tv campaigns. There won't be announcement for another month or so.

Advertisers next

Next group to appear in study of network program practices will be major, blue chip tv advertisers. Biggest spenders in industry will be called before Chief Hearing Examiner James D. Cunningham in late September, according to current plans. Locale undetermined. New York is indicated. Following advertisers, networks will be called in final phase of investigation.

Storer options

Storer Broadcasting Co., which has contracted to buy WINS New York for $10 million and concurrently sell WWVA Wheeling, W. Va., for $1.3 million, has entered new option agreements in light of FCC's recent action involving inquiry into WINS programming. It has extended option to purchase WINS from Elroy McCaw from July 10 to Oct. 10, and has procured two additional options which extend only to Storer from Oct. 10, 1961 to Jan. 10, 1962 and from Jan. 10, to July 10, 1962. Similar options were entered with Emil Mogil, Ira Herbert and Bernice Judis, principals of WWVA Inc. for their acquisition of WWVA.

Northwestern exposure

Indicative of interest aroused in symposium on Freedom of Broadcasting at Northwestern U. School of Law, August 3-4, is plan of ABC-TV to videotape entire proceeding as possibly historic debate between regulators and regulated in broadcasting. Ollie Treyz, ABC-TV president, last week offered to set up cameras and monitors to pipe two closed sessions into adjoining auditorium for press and invited guests (there will be one public session to be addressed by FCC Chairman Minow and NAB President Leonard Reinsch). ABC also plans to use newsworthy portions of videotape on spot basis.

CBS skyscraper

Top command of CBS last week gave celebrated architect Eero Saarinen go-ahead to produce detailed drawings for new headquarters skyscraper on New York's Sixth Avenue between 52nd and 53rd Streets. Decision followed temporary exploration of possibility of moving into new firm at 277 Park Ave. Last piece of building to be constructed by another property for Sixth Avenue site was acquired last week.

This will be first Manhattan building designed by architect Saarinen. He has already built model—square tower rising sheerly from its own surrounding courtyard. Wholly without interior supports (so floor space will be open except for center elevator-service core), building will rise on concrete columns that in themselves will be exterior "walls." Columns will be faced with granite that will weather to charcoal grey, and windows will be tinted lighter shade of same color. It promises to be like no other building in New York.

Model date delay

There's some uncertainty about automobile manufacturers' plans for broadcast advertising to announce new models this fall.Reason: Manufacturers still haven't firmly set introduction dates. They're worried about current negotiations with United Auto Workers, and some think there is possibility of strikes—which could delay production of new models.

Instant nationals

There's good chance American Research Bureau will produce overnight national tv ratings throughout fall, winter and spring. According to present plans, Arbitron—representing true national sample—will be offered daily from Sept. 24 through March 25. Information will be collected by mixture of coincidental telephone interviews and metered sets. In last season nationals Arbitron were made intermittently. If plans go through for 1961-62 season, more meters will be used than in 1960-61.

What did they talk about?

Preparatory to trip next month to Europe, including Iron Curtain Prague and East Berlin, J. Leonard Reinsch, executive director of Cox Stations and newly appointed member of U. S. Advisory Commission on Information, conferred last Thursday with Attorney General Robert Kennedy. On following day he luncheon with USIA Director, Edward R. Murrow.

Just checking

Since FCC Chairman Newton Minow launched his campaign to clean up television's so-called program "wasteland," broadcasters are finding it isn't necessarily enough to watch what they say. In at least one case FCC has called tv networks to account for statements made about them. Appearance of Television Magazine item reporting on number of network hours devoted to public-affairs programming was followed by calls to networks to justify those figures—although figures had not been attributed to networks in first place.

JFK's pickups

Jack Christie, Democratic National Committee radio-tv director, is working on arrangements for President Kennedy's report tomorrow (Tuesday) on Berlin situation. Mr. Christie aided Presidential News Secretary Pierre Salinger on President's broadcast last month after his return from Europe.

AFL needs tv

Court decision nullifying National Football League's contract with CBS-TV may or may not lead Justice Dept. to challenge other major tv-sports contracts (see page 61), but in legal inner circles there's speculation that one may be exempt. That's American Football League's contract with ABC-TV, and reasoning is this: Justice Dept.'s actions against NFL, going back several years, stemmed from intention to break up NFL's former monopoly position. With AFL now on scene, NFL is no longer monopoly. But AFL gets most of its revenues from tv contract and might not survive if that contract were invalidated. Hence blow at AFL contract just might restore NFL to its former monopoly position.

Burma Shave tv test

Despite reports to contrary, those roadside Burma Shave signs will not be discarded. They're part of Americana and will be retained, albeit curtailed, Burma-Vita Co. is to say this week in announcement of decision to put biggest hunk of its budget into heavy spot tv test for full year in Chicago and few other key markets. Sponsor also is expected to disclose its selection of new Chicago agency, switching from Bozell & Jacobs.

Frankly, it's easy on WINS, and we deliver far more than you imagined. Not just New York City, but 24 counties in 3 states surrounding it. Not just homes and offices, but over 2,800,000 cars on the road, as well. Over 17 million people of all ages, interests and incomes whose annual purchases equal those of the next 3 markets combined. Examples? Over 6 billion on food, 2 billion on apparel, 2½ billion on cars and automotive products. Yes, you buy all this when you buy WINStand, the mammoth market reached by Radio WINS. And summer brings you an extra bonus: 1 million radio-equipped boats that rely on WINS for official offshore weather and marine reports. Buy WINS to sell New York. It's as simple (and profitable) as that.

LIKELY IF RULING IN CBS GRID DEAL STICKS

National Football League was reported Friday (July 21) as almost certain to file early appeal from federal court decision invalidating its $9.3 million TV contract with CBS-TV and to “fight judgment all the way” (story, page 61).

If appeal is unsuccessful or undecided when season opens two months from now (and it’s considered unlikely that decision will be reached by then), teams probably will revert to provisions of last year’s TV contracts, according to NFL officials. They are: telecast rights for nine teams were held by CBS-TV.

Washington Redskins TV rights were held by advertiser (Amoco gasoline but games were telecast on CBS-TV facilities.

Cleveland Browns TV rights also were in hands of sponsor (Carlings Brewing Co.) with games carried by Sports Network. Baltimore and Pittsburgh games were televised by NBC.

Minnesota, 14th league team, is new and may be left in cold if league contract falls through. Informed sources indicated, however, that Minnesota will negotiate independently and wind up on CBS-TV—but probably for considerably less money than under overall league contract.

Spokesman for NFL questioned why Justice Dept. attacked its contract with CBS-TV but not NBC-TV’s with National Basketball Assn. and ABC-TV’s with American Football League and National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

Pros and Amateurs • He claimed “law should be applicable all the way down the line,” and wondered why there should be difference between televising professional and amateur events (as in case of NCAA-ABC-TV contract).

NFL spokesman said league is well aware of existence of controversial 1953 clause which was basis for Judge Grim’s judgment last week, but wants government “to rule on it again after eight years of changing economic conditions.”

Clause evolved from Dec. 12, 1953, judgment by Judge Grim in case involving legality of NFL’s bylaw giving member teams right to “black out” their home territory during home games.

Judge Grim ruled that “black out” bylaw was legal.

He said Friday (July 21) that clause was part of “long order” he issued in case. He explained that clause barred NFL and its teams from making any agreement “having purpose or effect of restricting the areas within which broadcasts or telecasts of games may be made.”

He said he could not recall why clause was added since in 1953 no league was engaged in negotiations for its member teams, but that his ruling was comprehensive and covered much ground.

This stricture, apparently thrown in casually, is now crux of government’s case against NFL.

Jack Dolph, CBS-TV’s director of sports, said CBS reaction “is wait and see” because company lawyers had not had opportunity to go over judgment. He indicated network would not file its own appeal, but would rest case on NFL’s appeal.

ABC-TV, which because of involvement in telecasts of AFL and NCAA games, has heavy stake in future of litigation, said through spokesman that it has not seen copy of opinion and has had no opportunity to consider matter.

NBC-TV, which owns rights to NBA games, had no comment.

NBC tops Trendex for space shot on TV

TV coverage of space shot by astronaut Virgil Grissom Friday morning was seen by 43 million viewers in 40% of U.S. TV homes, NBC estimated.

Figures for live TV coverage on all three networks were national projections from Trendex figures in 18 cities and were compared to first astronaut flight May 5.

Trendex ratings and audience shares by network: NBC-TV, 15.4 rating and 61 share, more than combined totals of other networks; CBS-TV, 6.5 and 26; ABC-TV, 3.4 and 13.

Special study of New York TV audience by A. C. Nielsen Co. showed tune-in slightly trailing that for May 5 flight.

Gannett criticized in WAVY-AM-TV sale

Gannett Co., Rochester, N. Y., was accused of past trafficking in broadcast licenses and antitrust violations in a petition to FCC to deny sale of WAVY-AM-TV Norfolk- Portsmouth-Newport News, Va., to Gannett.

Petitioner, Beachview Broadcasting Corp., was losing applicant in original contest for WAVY-TV (ch. 10).

Beachview claimed that 14 newspapers, 4 radio and 2 TV stations owned by Gannett puts company in precarious antitrust position.

Donahue & Coe gets $3.5 million from C&A

Donahue & Coe Inc., New York, will add $3.5 million in radio-TV billings Aug. 1 when majority of Cohen & Aleshire Inc.’s accounts and personnel merge with D&C.

Harry B. Cohen Sr., board chairman of Cohen & Aleshire, New York, announced merger Friday (July 21). He said D&C will acquire following accounts: Grove Labs Division of Bristol-Myers (4-Way cold tablets); Fitch hair tonic and shampoo; Amstel beer; Kiwi

How to kill an audience with culture

Cultural programming on television can create “wasteland” of its own—if wasteland is interpreted to mean place without people.

Comparison of New York Arbitron figures for two recent prime periods on New York TV tells story.

On Thursday, July 6, WCBS-TV drew low fifth place among New York stations with 9-10 p.m. broadcast of Sir Thomas Beecham and Toronto Symphony. Show had 5.8 rating average for hour against 16.5 for My Three Sons and Untouchables on WABC-TV, 10.5 for Bachelor Father and Great Ghost Tales on WNBC-TV, 10.3 for baseball on WPXJ (TV) and 6.2 for wrestling on WNEW-TV.

On Saturday, July 15 in 10-11:30 p.m. period WCBS-TV clobbered all competition with 46.8 rating on Miss Universe contest telecast, representing 70% share of total audience. Miss Universe vastly enlarged WCBS-TV’s normal audience for that time. Week before station averaged 26.8 rating in same period which started with its regular powerhouse, Gunsmoke (10-10:30), and included regular Sea Hunt, news and late movie.

WEEK'S HEADLINERS

Warren Schloat, vp and creative director of Compton Adv., N. Y., named vp and creative director of Robert Lawrence Productions, N. Y., producer of TV commercials. Mr. Schloat will serve Lawrence as producer, director, writer and pre-production consultant. He joined Compton Adv. in 1955. Earlier he had been executive TV producer for William Esty Co., N. Y.; TV commercial producer with Young & Rubicam, N. Y.; copywriter for BBDO, N. Y. and animator-story director for Walt Disney Productions on West Coast.

Carl W. Nichols Jr., senior vp, named president and chief executive officer of Cunningham & Walsh Inc., as part of major realignment of agency's top executives. Also involved in reorganization were John P. Cunningham, chairman, who was named chairman of executive committee, and Robert R. Newell, president, who was appointed chairman of board. Three new executive vp's were also named: Edward H. Calhoun, marketing services; Anthony C. Chevins, creative services; and Joseph D. Nelson Jr., account management. (For details and biographical material, see story page 22.)

Simon B. Siegel, financial vp of AB-PT, Inc., elected executive vp of ABC division. Appointment officially ranks Mr. Siegel as second in command at AB-PT and ABC next to Leonard H. Goldenson, president. He will continue as financial vp. Mr. Siegel began entertainment industry career in 1929 at Paramount Pictures, becoming comptroller of newly-formed United Paramount Theatres in 1950, and in 1953 became treasurer of AB-PT upon merger of ABC and UPT. In 1957 Mr. Siegel was elected financial vp and treasurer of AB-PT and ABC. In 1958, he was elected member of board and in 1959 to AB-PT board of directors executive committee.

Ted Cott, who resigned recently as vp in charge of broadcast operations for National Telefilm Assoc., N. Y. (WEEK'S HEADLINERS, July 10) appointed consultant on programming and production for CTV Television Network Ltd., new commercial network in Canada that is scheduled to begin operations in fall. Mr. Cott's duties will include advising CTV executives on operations and helping to stimulate and develop Canadian programming and talent. Before joining NTA in 1957, he was vp and general manager of now-defunct DuMont Broadcasting Corp. for two years and earlier had been vp in charge of NBC Radio, and vp for programming and operations of WNEW New York.

For other personnel changes of the week see FATES & FORTUNES

In asking for Senate action, Sen. Pastore described bill as non-controversial, and predicted its easy passage. (See earlier story, page 49).

Space communications money

There's $94.6 million for communications satellites in authorization signed by President Kennedy Friday to spend $1.784 billion on operations of National Aeronautics & Space Administration. Sum is $60 million more than first proposed in Eisenhower fiscal 1962 budget and $50 million more than first proposed in initial Kennedy budget. Overall, Congress passed space authorization bill $400 million above original Kennedy request, mostly for man-on-moon project.

AFTRA to back Minow

Delegates to American Federation of Television & Radio Artists convention in Detroit were expected to adopt resolution over weekend endorsing FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow's stand on station license renewals. Resolution was suggested in speech by Donald Conaway, AFTRA executive director, on opening day of convention Thursday (July 20, when he applauded Mr. Minow's determination to examine local station promises and performances in passing on license renewals.

Convention, which closed yesterday (July 23) featured talk by Herman Kenin, president of American Federation of Musicians, who urged "united" action by entertainment unions on broadcaster obligations.

RCA unveils new tube

RCA Electron Tube Division is introducing today (July 24) first commercial vidicon type camera tube with limiting resolution capability of 1,200 tv lines.

RCA said new vidicon (RCA-8051) is only one designed especially for 35 mm film camera optics. It may be used for high-quality black-and-white film or live pickup, closed-circuit TV involving remote reading of documents or instruments, or for color pickup in three-vidicon cameras.

RCA spokesman said development would result in improved pictures on standard TV receivers, but said new tube will not be used as direct replacement for present cameras. Number of companies, including RCA, are working on new cameras which would utilize RCA's new tube.

Media and programming: why their hearts beat as one at B&B

The mercurial state of television during the past couple of years has made it necessary for agencies whose clients have substantial network TV investments to establish a much closer working relationship between their media and programming departments than in the past.

We at Benton & Bowles have successfully accomplished a virtual wedding of the two departments and I'm sure other agencies have made similar moves, which in many cases represents a significant change because of the traditional feeling of rivalry between media and programming.

A great change started taking place in network television at the start of the 1958-59 broadcast season. This was the emergence of ABC as a strong contender for audiences along with NBC and CBS. Before this time it was relatively easy to plan and purchase network television because it was much easier to predict the performance of television programs. Also, prior to the 1958-59 season, programs were sold on either a full-half-hour or alternate half-hour sponsorship basis and more often than not you were locked in for 52 weeks.

Thus, planning and purchasing of network television was relatively uncomplicated. Under these conditions there was less need for frequent contact between media and programming than there is today.

Unpredictable Medium • Today television is about as unpredictable as anything in the advertising business can be. This can be illustrated by the great mortality rate of television programs from season to season. For example, here are the names of some of the shows which started but didn't finish the last broadcast season:

In addition, a long list of shows were on the air last season, but will not return next fall. Some of these are shows that have enjoyed long successful runs:
The Rebel, Shirley Temple, Tab Hunter, Loretta Young, This Is Your Life, Peter Gunn, Bringing Up Buddy, June Allyson, The Americans, Barbara Stanwyck, Hong Kong, Angel, Peter Loves Mary, Guestward Ho, Zane Grey, Bat Masterson, Ernie Ford, Groucho, M. Shayne, Deputy, Wyatt Earp, Stagecoach West, Tom Ewell, Harrigan & Son, Law and Mr. Jones.

Obviously, there were advertisers and agency people—including media and programming people—and networks and program producers who were betting that many of these programs would continue successful runs or become outstanding successes. Just as obviously, a lot of people were wrong, and there is no reason to believe that this high program mortality rate will not be with us from now on.

This means we are all going to have to get deeper and deeper into the problem of analyzing and predicting program performance. Today there is a more urgent need than ever before to develop new tools, both qualitative and quantitative, for program and time period analyses. To be used intelligently, these must be examined in combination and put to use jointly by media and programming.

New Patterns • Another development during the 1958-59 season: the networks started to offer advertisers for the first time thirds of half-hour programs and alternate-week thirds of hour programs so that an advertiser could buy a single network commercial minute on a weekly basis.

This practice has mushroomed to such an extent that a very large percentage of the program time during the evening can be purchased on a one-minute or so-called participating basis. In fact, today you can buy scatter plans that will give you a few minutes on any number of programs, and you can buy these long term or short term.

These kinds of buys are considered even by the networks to be basically media buys—and they are indeed—because their flexibility presents the kind of problems that rightfully fall into the media department's area. However, even this kind of buy can be made more intelligently through counsel with the programming department.

These are important and fairly drastic changes, and since necessity is the mother of invention, we saw a need for a change in our operation at Benton & Bowles.

The change that we made was simple but effective. The media and programming departments were brought together under the supervision of one person—Lee Rich, our senior vice president in charge of media and programming. Mr. Rich has always recognized, and still does, the importance of the media department's role in the planning, selecting and purchasing of network television programs.

So it was an ideal solution with the right man in charge. We think it has worked out so well that, considering today's network television situation, we just don't see how we could function properly in any other way. I report directly to Lee Rich as head of the media department, as does Grant Tinker, head of our programming department. Grant Tinker now knows a lot more about programming.

It's Mutual • How do we make it work? By working closely together. It's as simple as that. Instead of a feeling of rivalry between media and programming, there is a feeling of respect for each other's role at the agency and this results in the kind of cooperation necessary to do the best possible job for our clients.

Media and programming, in certain areas of responsibility, are like love and marriage—you can't have one without the other. Although we all know there is love without marriage and marriage without love, and there are media and programming departments that try to get along without each other, I submit that this kind of carrying on can only lead to complications and in some cases, grave consequences.

Lee Currlin joined Benton & Bowles Inc. as a media buyer in 1953. He was subsequently appointed as assistant media director, and became an associate media director in 1958. A year later he was made vice president and manager of the media department. He reports to Lee Rich, senior vice president in charge of both media and programming. Before joining B&B, Mr. Currlin was with the William H. Weintraub Agency (now Norman, Craig & Kummel) and Kenyon & Eckhardt.

PROGRAMMERS PICK TV FAVORITES

- Executives like drama, documentaries and news shows best
- Select astronaut shoot, presidential debates top programs
- View just over 13 hours weekly, most at home, some at office

The men who program television—the men accused of overloading it with crime and violence—prefer drama, documentaries and news shows for their own personal viewing.

They rate the 20th Century documentary series 2-to-1 ahead of The Untouchables—and indeed, if they had to nominate any current series for oblivion, The Untouchables would be their first choice. They rate the first astronaut shoot, the Kennedy-Nixon debate and related coverage of last year’s presidential campaign as the “best” television they ever saw, and if they had the power to call back one program from bygone years, the Playhouse 90 dramatic series would be their favorite by 5-to-1 over their second choice (the also non-violent Wide Wide World).

Like many other parents—perhaps more than most other parents—they take a positive hand in their own children’s viewing: Eight out of ten put limits on what or how much their children may watch. And like television’s most outspoken critics they think crime and violence are “bad” for youngsters to watch.

Decision-Makers These conclusions emerge as the dominant viewpoints in a survey conducted by Broadcasting among programming decision-makers in networks, agencies and program production firms. Approximately 175 were canvassed. These are the men regarded as primarily responsible for most network and much local programming, through their influence in the selection of programs to be seen or offered for selection.

Respondents were guaranteed anonymity in order to encourage frankness in their replies. Their answers as a whole showed a wide range of personal opinion and preference, with the experts at odds in many instances, but from the total this picture of the “average” television program executive may be drawn:

- He watches television 13 hours 4 minutes a week at this time of year—about average for him for the whole year, he figures, although in some cases it’s a little less than average because the pilot-screening season is over and the new one hasn’t begun.
- He does most of his viewing at home—10 hours 30 minutes of it, to be exact—but also puts in 2 hours 13 minutes a week in viewing at the office, and 21 minutes a week in “other” places.
- It’s sometimes hard to tell whether he is watching for business or pleasure, but he divides it as 5 hours 32 minutes

ABC’s top executives tell how they watch television

It takes three sets going simultaneously for some tv executives to get their television viewing done. Oliver Treyz, president of ABC-TV, is shown here with a specially designed three-channel set in his office.

His boss, President Leonard Goldenson of AB-PT, has five black-and-white and two color sets, keeps three going simultaneously at home during new program introductory season in fall, watches all three networks but keeps two silent until on rotation basis, he has both seen and heard all new shows, both his own and his competitors, at least once. Says he also follows all of ABC’s new shows for at least eight weeks to make sure they maintain standards of openers.

Like Mr. Goldenson, Mr. Treyz has five black-and-white and two color sets at home. During fall introductory period he takes film prints of ABC-TV’s new shows home on weekends, reviews them in home screening room, then catches the competition on week nights. He says his own regular-series favorites are Untouchables (ABC), Danny Thomas (CBS), My Three Sons (ABC), Candid Camera (CBS), Real McCosys (ABC). Messrs. Goldenson and Treyz agreed to waive anonymity for this look at their personal viewing habits. Their counterparts at other networks preferred not to speak for the record.

a week for business and 7 hours 32 minutes for pleasure ("non-business").

- He has two black-and-white sets in working order—plus not quite one color set (two out of three respondents said they had at least one color receiver).

Asked to name the three program types they "generally enjoy most," some respondents named more than three and a few named less, but all principal program types got at least one mention. Those named most often were the following (showing the percentage of respondents naming each):

The cosmopolitan nature of the executives' preferences was demonstrated when they undertook to name (1) their "five favorite programs" and (2) five others which, if five prime-time network shows had to be deleted, they would nominate for oblivion.

In all they named 66 different programs as their favorites—plus such generic preferences as pro football, baseball, news specials and movies.

No single program was named a favorite by more than 22 per cent of the respondents. 20th Century (CBS-TV) made first place with that figure. Perry Mason (CBS) got the vote of 20 per cent and five shows—Huntley-Brinkley News (NBC), Andy Griffith Show (CBS), Perry Como (NBC), CBS Reports (CBS), and Thriller (NBC)—tied for third place with mentions by 17 per cent.

Tops with Programmers

Here are the programmers' top 20, ranked according to percentage of mentions (actually, it's top 22, because of ties):

1. 20th Century (CBS).
2. Perry Mason (CBS).
3. Huntley-Brinkley (NBC).
4. Andy Griffith (CBS).
5. Perry Como (NBC).
6. CBS Reports (CBS).
7. Thriller (NBC).
9. Untouchables (ABC).
10. Danny Thomas (CBS).
12. Twilight Zone (CBS).
13. Have Gun Will Travel (CBS).
17. Meet the Press (NBC).
18. Naked City (ABC).
20. Hitchcock Presents (NBC).
22. Jack Paar Show (NBC).

A total of 47 different shows were mentioned in response to a query asking the programmers which five they would nominate if five prime-time network programs were to be taken off the air.

This question also brought more sweeping responses—both pro and con. One executive voted to drop "an average of westerns." Another suggested dropping "every third one of each type—I want more choice (of program categories)." Another thought "most of the westerns could be dispensed with, and another "couldn't think of any I'd really like to save." At the other extreme, one voted to drop "none" because once in a while they are nearly all good.

Untouchables Vetoed

Leader in the oblivion hit parade was The Untouchables (ABC), nominated by 20 per cent of the respondents. It was followed by Whispering Smith (NBC), Adventures in Paradise (ABC), Surfside Six (ABC) and Hawaiian Eye (ABC), each of which was named by 17 per cent; Bringing Up Buddy (CBS), named by 14 per cent, and Roaring 20s (ABC) and Pete & Gladys (CBS), which were mentioned by 11 per cent.

Twenty-two programs were singled out in response to the question: "What program no longer on air would you like to see back (if any)?" These nostalgic responses included, among others, Mama, Sid Caesar, Kukla, Fran & Ollie, Philco Playhouse, Producer's Showcase, Comedy Hour, Omnibus, Studio One, Climax, Person To Person with Edward R. Murrow, Tales of Tomorrow and $64,000 Question and an

Top 100 spend 53.5% in tv advertising

Last year's top 100 national advertisers spent more money than ever before for network and national spot tv advertising—and more than in all other media combined— according to the Television Bureau of Advertising. Of the $1,695,353,369 spent by the group last year (marking a 5.6% overall increase in their budgets over 1959) 53.5%, or $906,467,950, was spent in tv (with the medium getting 62.3% of the overall budgetary increase). Network tv expenditures for the leading 100 advertisers rose 8.5% in 1960, while spot tv enjoyed a 3.6% increase.

Other favorable statistics for tv: 98 of the top 100 advertisers used at least some tv to carry their advertising messages (the only outsiders were liquor companies); 71 considered tv their basic medium; 51 spent over 50% in tv; 33 spent more than two-thirds, 19 more than 80%; and 9 more than 90%.

Current hubbub is

Despite all the criticism, "broadcasters are no less responsible, sensitive or intelligent than any other business executives—they are just more exposed."

This is the view of a veteran television program executive, Robert F. Lewine, programs vp of CBS Films, formerly with NBC and before that with ABC. He offered it in an analysis of the "current hubbub" in a letter accompanying his replies to BROADCASTING's survey of the viewing habits of leading program authorities (see page 19).

Mr. Lewine said:
"It is my considered opinion that the current hubbub about television is a typical excess just as the current trend of action-adventure programs is an excess and just as the last four years of westerns were an excess. Indeed, we seem to be a nation of excesses in eating, drinking habits, appliances, chromium on automobiles, above-knee-length dresses, Metrecal, Elvis Presley, the stock an excess—but it may serve a useful purpose market, rock ’n’ roll ad nauseam.

Never Ashamed • “I make my living in television and have done so quite comfortably for more than sixteen years. Never have I been ashamed of it; often have I been concerned about it. Much of it is second-rate; some of it is third-rate and more than we can possibly recall to mind is first-rate. I suspect that this ratio holds true in other creative endeavors whether it be publishing, the legitimate theatre, music, motion pictures, architecture or the arts. Those who would make wholesale condemnation of television should not blithely ignore its very unique pressures. The incredible appetite and the equally incredible logistics and economics. When these pressures cease to become factors in television programming, then we will have the equivalent of the BBC.

“Programming is far from perfect and it never will be; it is far from atrocious and it never will be. At the rate of having to provide ten thousand hours of information and entertainment each year, it is simply unrealistic to expect that television can avoid failures, bad taste, carbon copies, shoe-string productions and ill-inherent in mass production.

No Real Infancy • “I do not believe that the label of “Golden Age” applies to any period of television’s life unless those who claim a golden age are merely being nostalgic about those times when the television receiver was still a complete novelty which encouraged viewers to watch regardless of whether it was wrestling or the Kraft Television Theatre. Network television is a mere thirteen years old and it never really had an infancy—it was born an adult. I’m certain these investigations, hearings and speeches from on high will serve their purpose by reawakening responsible broadcasters to their obligation to maintain more diversity and balance in their programming. Legislation will not be needed. Wholesale condemnations by the industry’s dissidents are just as inappropriate as wholesale defenses by the industry. Broadcasters are no less responsible, sensitive or intelligent than any other business executives—they are just more exposed.”

unspecific quiz shows. But the winner far and away was CBS-TV’s trail-breaking Playhouse 90, named by 42 per cent of all respondents. Wide World of Sport, NBC-TV’s pioneering venture, took second place with mentions by 8 per cent.

Not all programmers wanted to call any particular program back from the past. As one observed, he didn’t “particularly” want to see any revived, because “I’d like to see some innovation . . . some imagination . . . something that is not formula.”

Shepard’s Show • Comdr. Alan Shepard’s ride into space was the dominant choice for the program or event liked best out of “All you have seen on tv.” A close second was last year’s convention and election coverage, including the historic Kennedy-Nixon debates. These were followed by Peter Pan (NBC), the Fred Astaire Specials (NBC), coverage of President Kennedy’s inauguration, and the Project 20 series (NBC). Nearly a score of other shows, mostly dramatic offerings, documentaries or special events, also were mentioned.

Respondents with children under 16 years of age gave widely varying answers when asked what programs, if any, they “particularly want your children to watch.”

Three said “very few,” “damn few,” and “can’t think of any,” while four others reported simply “none.” Several did not respond at all to this part of the questionnaire.

Most of those who did reply listed programs or categories generally considered in the children’s or all-family class—My Three Sons, Shirley Temple, Father Knows Best, Disney, Capt. Kangaroo, etc. “Documentaries,” “news and information,” Project 20, 20th Century and Play of the Week also got a few mentions, indicating that age of the children obviously is an influence.

Limit Viewing • A total of 80 per cent of those who answered this question said they do limit their children’s viewing in some way: Either by putting a ceiling on the amount of watching that is permitted, or by ruling certain programs off limits—or by both methods.

To get the views of programmers who have no children at home as well as those who are practicing parents, the questionnaire asked “which programs, if any, do you feel are good for children to watch?” The answers agreed generally with those given previously by parents with youngsters at home, with additional emphasis on such shows as Lassie, Mr. Wizard, Danny Thomas, Bugs Bunny, Flintstones, Leave it to Beaver, Shari Lewis Show, etc.

One respondent said “there are very few children’s shows on tv—this is our major disgrace.” Another thought that “generally all” tv programs would be good for youngsters.

A query about shows considered “bad for children to watch” produced a few program titles—Untouchables and The Three Stooges led the list—but most of the answers condemned violence, “rough talk,” “immorality,” “programs that scare them or deal with adult problems,” etc., rather than naming specific shows.

These answers ranged from the view that “none” would be harmful to the contention that 90 per cent of all drama, mysteries and westerns on the air today” would be bad for children. “A normal child can watch about anything available on tv without harm,” said one.

It “would take a book” to list all that would be harmful, said another. Most of the replies fell between these extremes but concentrated on violence as the biggest offender.

Parents who limit their youngsters’ viewing said they do so in various ways. Some put arbitrary limits on the number of hours that may be spent before the set; others name a specific cutoff time (bedtime, for instance), rule out television altogether on school nights or raise or lower the ceiling in relation to the children’s marks in school. The other primary form of limitation, sometime’s imposed in addition to the limit on time, is to name the programs—or types of program—that may be watched. Not all respondents went into detail on this point: one, asked “in what way” he imposed limitations, replied simply: “I cut off the set.”
C&W gets major surgery, transfusion

NEW MANAGEMENT BLOOD TAKES OVER AS CHICAGO OFFICE IS SOLD

Cunningham & Walsh, which this year has lost accounts totaling close to $20 million, reorganized its top echelon last week. At the same time the agency sold its Chicago office to a group of company executives who were running its operations, but C&W indicated it would open a new office in Chicago soon.

Chosen to help stem the adverse tide against the agency were four young company officers whose average age is 40 years (also see WEEK'S HEADLINER's, page 10).

Carl W. Nichols Jr., 37, a senior vice president, was named president succeeding Robert R. Newell, who was shifted to board chairman. John P. Cunningham, who had been board chairman, was appointed chairman of the executive committee.

Three vice presidents—Joseph D. Nelson Jr., 42, Anthony C. Chevins, 40, and Edward H. Calhoun, 41—were named executive vice presidents, a newly created title at C&W. Mr. Calhoun is in charge of marketing services; Mr. Chevins is top man in creative services, and Mr. Nelson heads the account management department.

In another management shift, Carl R. Giegerich, formerly senior vice president and chairman of the executive committee, becomes chairman of the plans board.

The executive committee now consists of Mr. Cunningham (chairman) and Messrs. Calhoun, Chevins, Nichols and Nelson. The plans board is now being reorganized under the direction of Mr. Giegerich.

The Chicago office was sold for an undisclosed price to Ivan Hill and three associates. Effective July 31, the new agency will be known as Hill, Rogers, Mason & Scott.

Mr. Hill will be president of the new organization; Laurence W. Scott, executive vice president; Sherman E. Rogers, vice president in charge of creative services; and Kenneth Mason, vice president in charge of marketing services. Mr. Hill was formerly executive vice president in charge of midwest operations for C&W; Mr. Scott was senior vice president and account supervisor; Mr. Mason was vice president and account supervisor; and Mr. Rogers was vice president and creative director.

At the beginning of this year, C&W had estimated billings of more than $54 million and ranked among the country's first 20 agencies in total domestic business. During the first six months of 1961, the agency lost Sears, Roebuck & Co. (national advertising account), billing more than $4 million last year; Crown Zellerbach Corp. (consumer product division), with billings of more than $1 million; Smith-Corona Marchant Inc., which billed some $1.5 million; Italian Lines, with approximately $1 million in billings; Revell Inc. (toy and game manufacturer), which billed about $150,000; and Texaco Inc., with billings, after discounts, of some $12 million.

The Texaco account, whose departure was a staggering loss to C&W, went to Benton & Bowles; the Revell business went to Fletcher Richards, Calkins & Holden; Ogilvy, Benson & Mather grabbed off the Sears, Roebuck billings; and the Italian Lines went to Kastor, Hilton, Chesley, Clifford & Atherton Inc. Crown Zellerbach and Smith-Corona Marchant are still shopping for new agencies.

C&W's total loss of business for the first six months of this year, more than $19 million amounts to about 37% of its total billings for 1960. During that period the agency hasn't picked up any appreciable accounts to offset the losses.

Mr. Nichols, C&W's new president, joined the agency in 1950. He worked in the research department for three years before transferring to the copy department, where he worked on such accounts as AT&T, Sunshine Biscuits and Folger's Coffee. In 1957 he was made a vice president, a creative director, and a member of the management committee.

Two years later Mr. Nichols was appointed senior vice president and account supervisor on the Johns-Manville and St. Regis Paper Co. accounts. In 1960 he was elected to the agency board of directors, and was placed in charge of the account management division.

Joseph D. Nelson Jr. joined C&W as a vice president and account supervisor of the Jergens-Woodbury account in 1957. For 17 years before that he was with Stockton, West, Burkhart Inc., serving as president of the agency for the last two years of that time.

In 1959, Mr. Nelson was appointed a member of the management committee at C&W, and also was named director of the account management division, elected a senior vice president and made a member of the agency's executive committee.

Anthony C. (Tony) Chevins joined the creative department of C&W in 1951, and was made director of the department eight years later. He formerly was a copy writer at BBDO, working on such accounts as American Broadcasting Co. and Lucky Strike cigarettes. He's a member of the board of directors and the executive committee of C&W, and also serves on the management committee.

Edward H. Calhoun joined C&W in 1950 from Chicago, where he was directed

Bulova's $1 million buy on NBC-TV

Bulova Watch Co. has spread a $1 million blanket of participations across NBC-TV's fall nighttime schedule, and additional buys are under consideration.

As Bulova's schedule stands currently, Sundays and Wednesdays are the only nights omitted from the prime-time orders for its consumer product advertising, all via Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles Inc., New York (watches, Accutron electronic timepiece, transistor radios, clock and table radios and portable stereo phonographs). The orders range across all night time periods and almost all types of TV program fare.

The six NBC-TV shows purchased to date are National Velvet (Mon.), Laramie and the Dick Powell Show (both Tue.); The Outlaws (Thur.); International Showtime (Fri.), and Feature Films (Sat.).

Except for two network specials last spring, Bulova has been a TV absentee in recent years. The company was one of TV's first commercial sponsors, with B-U-L-O-V-A time signals at $4 per announcement 20 years ago.

Get rich quick?

The average western advertising agency has increased its billings 22% since 1957, according to a survey of all advertising agencies in the western states conducted in May by John B. Knight Co., for the Western States Advertising Agencies Assn. But, in the same three-year period, gross agency profits have dropped 15.8%.

Median profit before taxes for the 78 agencies reporting was $9,288, which might be an eye-opener for those who envisage the advertising agency field as a get-rich-quick business. Yet 60% of the agencies reported increases in billings in 1960 as compared to 1959, with 20% reporting a decrease and 20% showing no change.

NBC seeks dismissal of $100,000 damage suit

NBC moved in New York Supreme Court last week to dismiss a $100,000 damage suit brought against it and two of its star performers, Jack Paar and Ralph Edwards, by a woman who once appeared on the Edwards' This Is Your Life program. Mrs. Elizabeth Hahn, of Connecticut, had charged that defamatory remarks were made about her when Mr. Edwards was on NBC-TV's Jack Paar Show.

Mrs. Hahn's husband, Abraham, also is suing NBC, charging that the This Is Your Life program had "falsely represented" his family life. Instead of being happily married as implied on the show, he said, he and his wife have been separated for six years and have started divorce proceedings.

In her complaint Mrs. Hahn said that Mr. Edwards referred to her as "a fraud and a phony" while he was a guest on the Paar show.

Chain saw chain

New TV venture for McCulloch Corp., Los Angeles, on behalf of advertiser's chain saws gets underway next Oct. 1. It will make use of approximately 90 markets located throughout U. S. excluding major markets in east (aimed for lumber-producing areas), will feature participations in Royal Canadian Mounted Police syndicated TV series in markets selected. Advertiser seeks tie-ins with its distributors because of advertiser's limited TV budget. Agency is Fuller & Smith & Ross, Los Angeles, which has six men in field to facilitate buying and tie-ins.

Beach taping nice work if you can get it

What looks like a leisurely day at the beach was just the opposite for the people pictured here, at Seabright, N. J., June 28. Videotape Productions of New York spent the day (8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.) there to produce five one-minute commercials for the National Biscuit Co., in two different beach locations. It was the advertiser's first video-tape remote, and the tight production schedule even required the chartering of a helicopter for Carol Reed (holding package of Nabisco crackers), who was featured in the commercials. Miss Reed is the weather girl for WCBS-TV New York's 6 p.m. weather show, and the helicopter arrived at 4:30 p.m. to fly her back to the city in time for her show. Supervised by George Weber, McCann-Erickson (Nabisco's agency), producer (r, kneeling and hatted), the last commercial was completed as the helicopter and a high tide arrived simultaneously. (A model at far right is unidentified.) The commercials are appearing on NBC-TV's Wagon Train and Concentration and CBS-TV's weekday Millionaire series.
MGM Telestudios rents farmhouse for summer as operational base for remote commercials

Commercially in the country—that's the pitch MGM Telestudios is giving to clients these days. For the MGM subsidiary, which produces taped commercials for TV, has gone rural for the summer and rented a 100-year-old, colonial-style farmhouse in New Hope, Pa.

Located in the heart of scenic and historic Bucks County, the seven-bedroom, fieldstone structure, which comes equipped with a combination housekeeper-cook, plus an outdoor swimming pool, serves as a base of operations for Telestudios' productions of taped commercials on location. It was chosen because it is within easy reach of several scenic areas—brooks, woods, fields, and hills—that are considered desirable settings for many TV commercials. Too, the interior of the house, and of several other homes in the vicinity, have provided Telestudios' clients with authentic and interesting settings for some of their messages.

Host of the house for the summer is George K. Gould, president and general manager of MGM Telestudios and a zealous advocate of taped-on-location commercials. He believes the era of location taping is here and that the future is "limitless."

Mr. Gould, who started Telestudios under his own ownership in 1957, the year Ampex introduced video tape, feels that tape has made long strides.

Quality • "In the early days," he says, "video tape methods were sold to agencies as being quick and cheap. Now we're selling quality."

But the factor that has made the use of tape so advantageous in the production of spot commercials on location is one that his company developed and used first, Mr. Gould claims. He calls it the A and B technique, and points out that it was made possible by the use of Ampex's Inter-Sync, developed to prevent the roll in the TV picture when a program or commercial cuts from tape to film (Broadcasting, Dec. 5, 1960, et seq.).

Working out of the New Hope house, Telestudios does its on-location productions using a small and highly mobile operation. The firm is currently using two custom built trucks—prototypes of MGM Telestudio trucks to be finalized late this year—which carry all equipment necessary for on-location production. One truck contains a 50 kw generator (which Mr. Gould says is too much power for his needs) and everything else goes into the other vehicle.

Telestudio's top man says that his company can do two commercials—of varying lengths up to 60 seconds—in a normal 10-hour shooting day, seven hours of which are actual shooting time. Telestudios charges approximately $4,900 for a day's shooting in a package that includes use of the New Hope house, which can accommodate up to five agency people. Mr. Gould thinks Telestudios's price for the on-location package is "highly competitive" with a film package, and that the unit cost is actually a little lower.

The production firm is paying $2,500 for the use of the Pennsylvania farmhouse during July and August, and Mr. Gould indicates that Telestudios will be back again next year. He says that during the winter his company may move its operations "to a nice, warm, sunny place like Miami or Puerto Rico."

Mr. Gould estimates that the production of commercials is currently a $50 million business, with video tape getting about $7 million of it. The further development of the A and B technique, he feels, should encourage a large increase, from 20% to 25%, in video tapes' business within the next year or year and a half. He also indicates that if the volume of business is large enough, Telestudios, which now only tapes in monochrome, will go into the production of taped color commercials.

Telestudios maintains permanent studios at 1481 Broadway in New York.

Agencies' agency • J-F Productions Inc., N. Y., has been formed by former advertising agency executives as a creative production firm to handle specialized assignments on a fee basis, and particularly for small agencies. Principals at J-F include Gene Foster, president, former vice president and art director at BBDO, and Jack Rome, director of the company's TV division. Mr. Rome was previously associated with Biow Adv., Leo Burnett Co., Mutual, and NTA film network. Located at 156 E. 52nd St. (telephone: Plaza 2-0993), the staff includes specialists in art, copy layout, package design, new business presentations, brochures, merchandising, premium promotion, TV and radio commercial creation and production. J-F offers to perform all agency functions except advertising placement.

Merger • Russ Brown, theater publicist, and Claud Morris, who operates Claud E Morris & Assoc., Hollywood, have joined forces to form Morris-Brown & Assoc., that city. The new firm will handle creative graphic arts, advertising and publicity campaigns and merchandising ideas. It is headquartered at 6425 Hollywood Blvd.

Establishes own firm • Charles L. Burrow last week announced the establishment of his own station representative firm in Portland, Ore. Mr. Burrow, formerly with WBZ Boston and WBZA Springfield, said the new company, to be known as the Charles L. Burrow Co., will represent a select group of stations in the Portland area. The firm is located in the Alderway Building, Portland. Telephone: Capitol 3-6690.

New office • Advertising Time Sales Inc., formerly the broadcast division of the Branhman Co., opens offices at 247 Park Ave., New York 17. Telephone is Murray Hill 7-5040. Thomas B. Campbell is president of the new firm.
ABC-TV NATIONAL SALES TOOLS UP

Ready to open for business Aug. 15th with staff of 57

ABC-TV National Sales Inc. will open officially for business on Aug. 15 with a personnel staff of 57. Its tooling-up operations, moving at a fast pace for the past month, in the next few weeks include two full days of intensive indoctrination sessions at each of the five ABC-TV stations the new company will represent.

The whirlwind tempo at ABC-TV National Sales began on June 22 when formation of the new sales arm was announced. Theodore F. Shaker, president of the unit, noted last week that since that time, hundreds of prospective employees have been interviewed and 57 chosen; office space has been rented in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco, and the schedule for the indoctrination meetings has been worked out with the five ABC-TV-owned tv stations.

Fast 'Tool-Up' - Mr. Shaker said the "excitement" of building up a new sales organization has been communicated to all members of the staff, and, apparently, to broadcast personnel throughout the industry who had approached him and other executives for employment with the unit over the past month. He expressed the view that the short time it has taken ABC-TV to "tool-up" has been "probably the shortest in history for an organization of this size." As he spoke, carpenters and masons were at work building adjoining offices, and Mr. Shaker observed: "Even the construction men sense our urgency; they've been going like the devil for the past few days."

There have been some rapid and sudden changes in titular ranks at ABC-TV National Sales. Mr. Shaker, initially named vice president and general manager, was elected president last week; Edwin T. Jameson, who had joined the unit as general sales manager, added the title of vice president, as did D. Thomas Miller, central division manager (Week's Headliner, June 26). Robert Goldman, who was appointed business manager late last month, has now been given the title of treasurer.

Other sales executives named last week are Harrison E. Mulford Jr., formerly with NBC-TV, eastern sales manager; John A. McElfresh, previously with CBS Spot Sales, sales manager for Chicago office; Richard Beesemyer, recently sales manager of KNXT (TV) Los Angeles, sales manager of Los Angeles office, and James R. Osborn, general sales manager of KXTV (TV) Sacramento, Calif., sales manager of San Francisco office.

From Other Networks - Mr. Shaker noted that sales and other personnel recruited by ABC-TV National Sales were drawn from the two other networks, stations and representative companies. He said: "Top management at ABC believe that in the future, the network will not have to go outside to fill executive posts at its various divisions; many of the people at the new unit are expected to go on to top jobs within the company."

Mr. Jameson, the top sales executive, pointed out that the one immediate objective is to "close the dollar gap between ABC-TV stations and those owned by NBC-TV and CBS-TV in the amount of national spot business placed."

The two-day indoctrination sessions begin in San Francisco on July 30 and end in New York on Aug. 11. Approximately 20 of the top officials at the new sales unit will meet with department heads of each station and will be briefed on salient and saleable characteristics of each market.

ABC-TV National Sales' new offices are at 663 Fifth Ave., New York; 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago; Madison Theatre Bldg., 1567 Broadway, Detroit; 1539 N. Vine St., Hollywood, and 277 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco.

ABC-TV National Sales Inc. will represent the following network owned stations: WABC-TV New York, WXYZ-TV Detroit, KGO-TV San Francisco, WBKB (TV) Chicago, and KABC-TV Los Angeles.

RAB adds new feature to management meetings

A new element will be added this year to the Radio Advertising Bureau's annual management conferences. "Top Management Selling," dealing with strategy and tactics of selling the heads of banks, retail stores, and other prospective advertisers, will be discussed at each of the eight regional meetings.

BRA ADS ON NBC-TV

Policy change lands

$4 million account

NBC-TV, which earlier this month lifted long-standing restrictions against bra and girdle advertising, grabbed off an estimated $4 million worth of International Latex business last week.

International Latex Corp., New York,

manufacturer of Playtex bras and girdles, will spend the money on a network saturation campaign that will include participations on seven NBC-

TV nighttime programs and one morning program. It marks the first breakthrough of a foundation garment firm into prime-time network programming.

Six of the Latex nighttime buys, the first of which starts in September, consist of alternate-week minutes. The 27-week campaign includes sponsorship on NBC-TV's new Saturday night, two-hour, prime-time, feature-film series

Saturday Night At The Movies (9-11 p.m.), starting Sept. 23 and continuing through Dec. 2.

Other NBC-TV programs in which

Latex will appear on an alternate week minutes basis are: Thriller (Mon., 10-

11 p.m.), Sept. 18 through Dec. 11;

Robert Taylor-The Detectives (Fri.,

8:30-9:30 p.m.), Dec. 22 through

March 1, 1962; Outlaws (Thur., 7:30-

8:30 p.m.), Dec. 14 through April 5;

Cain's Hundred (Tue., 10-11 p.m.),

Oct. 10 through March 27; and 87th

Precinct (Mon., 9-10 p.m.), Oct. 9

through Nov. 27.

In addition Latex has bought

28 program spots on NBC-TV's Today show (Mon.-Fri., 7-9 a.m.), from Sept.

18 through March 28, and 18 program

spots on the network's Jack Paar Show

(Mon.-Thur., 11:15 p.m.-1 a.m.) from Sept. 18 through March 21.

The concentrated campaign will promote the Playtex "Living" Bra, the Golden Playtex girdle, and three new cotton bras. Reach McClinton & Co.,

N. Y., is the advertising agency that handles the Latex bra account and Ted

Bates & Co. is the agency for the girdle account.

Business briefly...

Seeman Bros., N. Y., is conducting a

New York metropolitan area spot campaign for White Rose Tea, using spots on WNTA-TV, WNEW and WMCA.

Bell Telephone System and Associated

Bell companies are using 30-second radio spots on the four major networks for the summer vacation period. The spots, which have been running since early June, are placed through N. W.

Ayer & Son, N. Y.

Best Foods, Div. of Corn Products Co.,

New York, will launch an introductory network and spot tv campaign for its

Knorr Soups beginning Sept. 17. Campaign includes daytime participations on all three networks and spots in eastern and central markets. Agency:

Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, N. Y.

Nationwide Insurance Co., Columbus,

Ohio, today (Monday) begins an intensive two month, $350,000 advertising campaign on automobile insurance.

The theme will be based on a recently-completed survey showing that 90% of Nationwide's 2 1/4 million policyholders renew their coverages with the company. Major emphasis will be on spot radio with 237 stations taking part during prime time.

Avery-Knodel acquires rapid telephone system

An innovation in telephonic communication has been installed by a New York station representative firm to provide both agency buyers and stations with faster servicing of availabilities and confirmation of schedules.

Avery-Knodel said last week it is the first station rep to acquire the leased wire telephone service called Wide Area Telephone Service. The installation gives the company instantaneous and almost continuous telephone contact with represented stations in more than half of the U. S. Far west and south western states will be added when the service is extended to those areas. New York, as the originating state, always will be omitted from the service.

Thomas J. White, vice president of Avery-Knodel, explained that the service offers a one-way, non-reversible line which is available 24 hours a day. The monthly fee, he said, is $1,700, more than what the company has been paying for regular monthly long-distance service, but he said that the increased cost is worthwhile from the standpoint of better station service as well as lessening the monthly cost of sending wires and two-way service. Mr. White said the only problem encountered since the service was installed two weeks ago is the matter of spacing calls so that all rep salesmen don't decide to make calls at the same time.

New RAB fact booklet now being distributed

Radio Advertising Bureau last week laid claim to the "largest collection of facts on radio ever assembled," all published in a 40-page pocket-sized booklet entitled "Radio Facts Pocket-Piece." Now in distribution to RAB member stations, the compilation of data reflects "radio's growth as an information, entertainment and advertising medium," Miles David, RAB vice president, said.

RAB cites evidence of radio's increased size-of-audience as follows:

During 1960, 20.3 million radio sets were sold in the U. S., more than twice the number sold as recently as 1954, when sales totalled 10.1 million sets.

Auto radio sets in use are up 252.2% since 1949 (42.6 million in use on Jan. 1, 1961, vs. 12.1 million on the same date in 1949).

Annual portable set sales are up 310.8% since 1949 (8.6 million sold in 1960, vs. 1.7 million in 1949).

To point out the substantial growth in the number of people reached daily by radio, RAB's booklet includes Sindlinger figures for the period April 1960-March 31, 1961, showing an average daily reach of 76.2 million, compared to 68.9 million in the like period of 1957-58. The 11% increase is only part of the "reach" story, RAB said, because the average weekly reach total would be much higher.

AFA merger committee

John P. Cunningham of Cunningham & Walsh, chairman of Advertising Federation of America, and two past chairmen, James S. Fish of General Mills and Robert Fecmster of the Wall Street Journal, will serve as an AFA special committee to study the feasibility of the proposed merger of AFA with Advertising Assn. of the West.

The committee will also consider methods by which the merger might be accomplished, if approved. It will report to the AFA board at its meeting next February.

AAW has appointed a similar committee to study the merger proposal; this committee will report back to its own board, also in February.

Broadcasting's vaunted Voice of Democracy contest was abandoned by its father last week and left on the doorstep of another. There were murmur of "shame" from some of the father's kin when the news got around (CLOSED CIRCUIT, July 17) and there are strong indications that the opposition to the abandonment may grow in volume.

NAB announced that it, and the Electronic Industries Assn., a founding co-sponsor, are withdrawing from active sponsorship of the 14-year-old radio scriptwriting contest for high school students.

The NAB statement said that the contest had been offered to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. VFW became a co-sponsor of the VOD contest in 1958; before that the Junior Chamber of Commerce was the third co-sponsor.

A VFW spokesman said last week that the veterans' organization desires to continue the contest and is looking for co-sponsors to help foot the bill. The total bill yearly is estimated at $25,000. VFW is willing to underwrite up to $10,000 of this cost, it was explained.

VFW also asked that broadcasters continue to cooperate in the contest. NAB said that both it and EIA would endorse the contest and assist in the transitional stage from three national sponsors to a single one.

Oppose Cancellation - The first objection came from the Georgia Assn. of Broadcasters. George Patton, president of the Georgia group, wrote NAB President LeRoy Collins, "... we oppose the planned decision to discontinue co-sponsorship of the Voice of Democracy contest with the VFW. On the one hand we promise more public service through our industry, while you, the spokesman for the industry, cancel a worthwhile project."

Mr. Patton, WBML Macon, Ga., also criticized NAB's handling of the proposed cancellation. No NAB member was given any indication of the intention to withdraw, he said, or any opportunity to express an opinion.

The GAB statement said that James L. Howe, WIRA Ft. Pierce, Fla., NAB's Fifth District director, had not been advised of the proposal to sever connections with the contest. Mr. Howe opposes the move, the GAB statement said. NAB told state presidents of its decision July 17.

NAB has reported that it was asked by the VFW that no statement be issued until the VFW board of directors decided on the future of the contest. This, the GAB said, "still does not free NAB from the responsibility of communicating to its members and state associations its intentions. We should have heard something on this six weeks ago."

In response to NAB's position that lack of interest among broadcasters this year prompted the decision to withdraw; that only 23 out of 48 state organizations signed up to participate, the GAB indicated this could be a reflection on NAB's failure to push the contest.

GABA, the statement said, has notified the Georgia VFW that it will continue to cooperate in holding the statewide VOD contest.

Miller Sorry - Judge Justin Miller, the NAB president under whose tenure the Voice contest was begun, said he was sorry to see it go since it seemed a highly desirable project. Judge Miller's comment:

"Not knowing the considerations which went into the determination to abandon the Voice of Democracy program it is hard to make any intelligent comment concerning it. As one of the original sponsors of the program and as one with a continuing interest in it, personally I am sorry to see it go. It has always seemed to me a highly desirable project, one calculated to stimulate the interest of high school students in government and in ways of improving it at a time certain when there is great need for such stimulation."

Other broadcasters and those allied with the industry expressed their regrets at the decision and their doubts as to the wisdom of withdrawing from the contest at this time.

The NAB statement, issued July 20, said the decision to withdraw from active sponsorship was made after much consideration.

Gov. Collins explained that the NAB is currently undergoing a reorganization which calls for stepped up government relations, a re-direction of public relations and much more emphasis on the radio and tv codes and research. All of these, he added, will require a re-direction of staff efforts and reallocation of available association funds.

"We are greatly pleased that the VFW is giving consideration to continuing the contest," he said. "Should the VFW accept the national sponsorship, broadcasting stations will have the opportunity to participate in the Voice of Democracy very effectively.

National finalists of the 1960-61 Voice of Democracy contest pose with Associate Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark at the awards luncheon in Washington last February. The winners (l to r): William C. S. Mays III, Providence, R. I.; Carol Ogata, Pahoa, Hawaii, the national winner; Justice Clark; Briony Sharman, Troy, N. Y., Joseph G. Quill Jr., Raynham, Mass.
and, of course, we will all be happy for them to do so.”

Gov. Collins indicated that NAB hoped in the near future to develop a new youth program “which will attract much greater public and broadcaster interest.” He added that this will not be competitive with the VOD, if carried forward by VFW.

No details were given as to what the new program might be.

An EIA spokesman said that the organization had been for some time dissatisfied with its role in the VOD contest. It has been mainly a broadcasters’ promotion, he said, and they, and the VFW, received the lion’s share of the credit.

The NAB decision to withdraw was made July 7 and then communicated to EIA, it is understood. At the root of the decision, it’s believed, was the unwillingness of some state associations to shoulder their share of the work.

Only 23 out of 48 state associations signed up to participate this year, NAB said. It’s also estimated that the contest was costing NAB $20,000 a year—$11,252 in actual cash outlay, and more than $8,000 in manpower, mail, etc.

Postwar Baby • Brainchild of Robert K. Richards when he was public relations chief of NAB, the Voice of Democracy contest was begun in 1947. Mr. Richards is now a public relations counsellor. It was first operated in conjunction with EIA and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. In 1958 the Jaycees bowed out, and VFW came in as a co-sponsor. At that time, too, the state broadcaster associations took over the grass roots work. It has always had the endorsement of the National Education Assn. and U. S. Office of Education.

Although the total number of high school students who participated cannot be estimated, there have been over 700 state winners in the 14 years of VOD’s life. On the national level, there have been 56 national winners. Since 1957 the individual state winners have been brought to Washington and feted by the broadcasting industry, the VFW and EIA. Highlight of the Washington trip was a luncheon at which members of Congress and other high federal officials were guests.

Before 1957 only the four national winners were brought to Washington.

The four awards carried stipends beginning with $1,500 for the top winner, underwritten by NAB; $1,000 for second place, $750 for third place and $500 for fourth place. The last three sums were advanced by VFW. EIA gave the winners tv receivers.

The 1960 contest cost NAB $11,252 in cash outlay plus another $8,000 in manpower, mail, etc.; EIA $10,000 and VFW, $2,900.

Of the 56 national winners, several have gone into radio-television. Charles Kuralt, a 1949 winner, is now with CBS News. Robert Shanks, a 1950 winner, is associated with the Jack Paar Show. Robert A. Burnett, a 1951 winner, is an announcer-salesman with KADY St. Louis.

Mutual claims gains in its audience size

MBS-affiliated stations throughout the country last week were alerting station representatives and local agencies and advertisers to a network presentation that claimed that Mutual was the only radio network to make a substantial gain in audience size for the first five months of 1961.

Mutual stations acted following an announcement by network president Robert F. Hurleigh on July 13 of Mutual’s audience growth pattern, which, he said, has moved the company into third place ahead of ABC Radio and into contention for second place with CBS Radio. Using A. C. Nielsen Co. figures for the first five months of 1961 and 1960 as yardsticks, Mr. Hurleigh said that average audience figures (7 a.m. to 6 p.m.) showed that only Mutual made a substantial gain in audience size (plus 23%) and that NBC lost 3%, CBS lost 23% and ABC gained 4%.

Mr. Hurleigh’s remarks were carried by closed circuit to MBS affiliates. He praised them for “marked local audience gains” which, he said, “are being reflected by the Nielsen figures for the entire Mutual Network.” He attributed the gain largely to Mutual’s programming formula, which permits integration of network service into local programming. Other factors he cited were the addition of name personalities to...
New use found for old tv antennas

Children using the facilities of Greensboro Country Park, N. C., have found a 2-ton tv antenna to be quite the enjoyable plaything. Sixty-feet long and equipped with twelve batwings, the antenna lies in a horizontal position and is used as a jungle gym. The antenna, over which WFMY-TV Greensboro transmitted its first telecast in 1949, was formally presented to Oka Hester, (l) Greensboro park and recreation director, by Gaines Kelly, (r) general manager of WFMY-TV. Since the station moved its operations in January 1955, the antenna has been stored until appropriate use for it could be found. Doyle Thompson, (c) chief engineer, watches the proceedings.

MBS' staff, including Arlene Francis, Tony Marvin, Leo Durocher and Galen Drake; the affiliation of higher-power stations with the network, and expansion in the company's news, special events and public affairs departments.

Under questioning, Mr. Hurleigh said Mutual is running about 5½% over 1960 and said he is "very optimistic" about the rest of 1961.

About half fm stations plan stereo programs

Almost 50% of the nation's fm broadcasters plan to broadcast stereo programs—but more than 35% said they had no plans to join the sound-in-depth contingent.

These are the basic results of an NAB survey on the plans for stereo broadcasting by fm broadcasters.

The survey was based on a questionnaire mailed to 594 fm stations which are members of the association. On July 13, 381 responses were received. These showed that:

* 185 stations reported they plan to engage in stereo broadcasting. Two are already broadcasting stereo; 77 others said they plan to begin in 1961; 44 said they planned to commence in 1962 and seven, in later years. 140 stations said they did not plan to broadcast stereo, 32 were undecided and 24 said they were broadcasting stereo via am-fm, but did not indicate what their plans were for fm stereo operations.
* Stereo broadcasting will occupy anywhere from two hours weekly to a maximum of between 90 and 130 hours weekly (according to eight of the respondents).
* One of the main questions in the minds of fm broadcasters is the availability of equipment. Another is the small number of homes equipped to pick up broadcast stereo.

CBS News department expanded, reorganized

CBS News expanded and reorganized its news information and special services department last week. The information unit, which is responsible for maintaining CBS News liaison with all network operating divisions, now also has jurisdiction over news and public affairs research and transcripts, and is in charge of the news department's special projects library.

The expansion adds 15 people to the department, all of whom report to Josef C. Dine, CBS-TV information and special services director. As part of the realignment, May Dowell, manager of the CBS News Special Projects Dept., has been promoted to director of CBS News Special Projects. In this post she succeeds William C. Akerman, who resigned to join the State Dept. (WEEK'S HEADLINER, July 17).

It also was reported that Ernest Leiser will become assistant general manager of CBS-TV News, effective Sept. 1. Mr. Leiser formerly worked for several years as head of the CBS News Bureau in West Germany.

Currently he reports on the network's daily morning program, World News Round-Up (8-8:15 a.m.).

KQBY aimed too high, says chagrined Gordon

KQBY San Francisco, being sold to Frank Atlass and wife for $750,000 (CHANGING HANDS, July 3), went silent July 16 pending FCC action on its transfer application.

Sherwood R. Gordon, owner of KQBY, said he is closing down the station to cut losses. Mr. Gordon, who also owns KSDO San Diego and KBUZ-AM-FM Phoenix, blamed the plight of KQBY on rating services. He claims that KQBY has cost him a quarter of a million dollars.

He said the station failed in the "Hooper-Pulse-Nielsen rating rat race," although it delivered the community leaders of thought.

Mr. Gordon bought what was KQBY last year for $700,000. He changed it into a quality music, news and editorializing station.

News of the sale, Mr. Gordon said, has aroused his audience. He said the station has been receiving 300-400 telephone calls a day from listeners who express their sorrow at his plight. His mail has reached over 3,000 pieces, he said. Newspaper columnists and editorial writers have also reacted, he said.

Metropolitan news setup

Metropolitan Broadcasting is establishing national news headquarters in Washington on Aug. 1 to provide the company's five tv and three radio stations with the latest in-depth coverage of news from that city. Martin Weldon, Metropolitan's news and special events director, will head the operation and will make his headquarters at WTTG (TV), company-owned outlet in Washington. Programming also will be available to WRUL New York, the short-wave radio station of Worldwide Broadcasting, a division of Metromedia Inc., parent company of Metropolitan.
Here's the cartridge tape system with something new—trip cue! This unique feature allows you to record a special trip-cue tone that, during playback, can be used to start the next device in an automatic or semi-automatic system, with split-second timing. (In TV operations it may be used to advance slide projectors.)

Delayed broadcast, spot announcement campaigns, production aids, themes, station breaks can be handled by the RT-7A with a minimum of effort. Cartridge is selected, placed in a playback unit, forgotten until "Air" time, then instantly played at the flick of a button. Cueing and threading are eliminated.

Check this handsomely-styled equipment against any other for compactness and design...Provides transistor circuitry, low power consumption, simplicity of operation! It's one more in a growing line of value-packed new products for radio and television stations from the pioneer in broadcasting. See your RCA Broadcast Representative. Or write to RCA Broadcast and Television Equipment, Dept. XD-22, Building 15-5, Camden, N. J.

Typical packaging is this attractive four-unit console with single BA-7 Cartridge Tape Record and Playback Amplifier and three Cartridge Tape Decks, as illustrated. Separate units of this system available are the Record and Playback Amplifier, and the Cartridge Tape Deck. A Cartridge Storage Rack is also available.
AFTRA STRIKERS PUT ON SQUEEZE

Announcers seek agreement with IBEW on picketing

More than a hundred Los Angeles area radio and tv announcers voted unanimously last week to ask the Los Angeles chapter of American Federation of Tv and Radio Artists to drop its ban relieving members from being required to respect the picket lines of other unions where the announcers work.

The motion for the vote to eliminate the rule, which has been in every AFTRA contract since the chapter was established some 20 years ago, came spontaneously from the floor and was not suggested by the union's executives, it was stated at a news conference following the meeting, which had been called to inform the members of the progress of the strike against KFWB (BROADCASTING, July 17). The strike is also the first the L.A. local ever called against a radio station.

The proposal was referred to the board of the local for approval. "Specifically," said a news release issued by the union, "this would be an appeal to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, that represents the engineers of the station, to respect AFTRA's picket lines with the pledge that AFTRA would respect theirs."

After approval by the board, the proposal will then have to be negotiated into the contracts with the radio stations of the area. Those with the 17 independent stations expired April 30 and a new agreement is now being negotiated, although no meetings have been held with the group since the strike was called against KFWB. At last Monday's meeting, the staff announcers present stated their willingness to take strike action against all the stations if that is necessary to secure its inclusion in the contracts.

Under the proposed new clause, AFTRA members could not be prohibited from respecting the picket lines of other unions at their stations, provided the strikes of these other unions are sanctioned by the Los Angeles County Labor Council, representing all AFL-CIO unions in the area. An AFTRA petition asking that its strike against KFWB receive such sanction is pending before the council.

Late last week, the strike was still in progress against KFWB and the engineers were still at their jobs at the station, despite the AFTRA picket lines in front of its doors. The station, its mikes manned by supervisory personnel, was continuing to operate as usual. On Wednesday afternoon, the KFWB management reported that not a single advertiser on the station had canceled his advertising because of the AFTRA strike. On the contrary, 17 new advertisers had been signed in the eight days since the strike had begun at noon of July 11.

Nor were there any signs of an early end to the strike. Both sides expressed a willingness to sit down and talk, if called on to do so, but neither seemed inclined to do the calling. Claude McCue, executive secretary of the local, is in Detroit attending the union's national convention. Before he left he said he felt that it was up to Robert Purcell, president of Crowell-Collier Broadcasting Corp., owner-operator of KFWB, to bring about a resumption in negotiations. He expressed a willingness to return "on a moment's notice, if called on to do so. The KFWB management expressed the view that they had made a liberal offer for a new contract and that there was nothing more to be said until the union chose either to accept it or to make a counter offer.

Meanwhile, Mr. McCue filed strike-breaking charges against five AFTRA members with the board, which has summoned them to appear Aug. 2 before the directors sitting as a trial board. The five are:

Veterans' day in Washington

The two most seasoned network representatives in Washington starred last Thursday at a testimonial luncheon.

One was master of ceremonies and the other the honored guest.

The guest was Earl H. Gammons (at right in picture above), Washington vice president of CBS from 1942 to 1955 and now consultant to the network and other broadcasting interests including Storer Broadcasting Co.

The m.c. was Frank M. (Scoop) Russell (at left), Washington vice president for NBC from 1929 to 1959 and now consultant to that network and other broadcast interests.

Some 200 representatives of Congress, the Supreme Court, the FCC, other agencies of government, broadcasting and the federal communicationssions bar attended the luncheon in the Mayflower hotel. It was a combined testimonial and premature birthday party (Mr. Gammons was to be 68 yesterday, July 23).

Featured speakers included Ted Koop, now the CBS Washington vice president and Paul Porter, CBS Washington attorney at the time Mr. Gammons moved from the management of WCCO Minneapolis, then owned by the network, to take up Washington residence. Mr. Porter later became FCC chairman and is now a Washington attorney.

Mr. Russell presented Mr. Gammons with several mementos including a book containing some 75 testimonial letters from political figures including Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mr. Russell said the letters were unique in Washington literature. Not one was written by a ghost.
Robert M. Purcell, president of Crowell-Collier Broadcasting Corp., has been taking a daily news shift at KFWB during the AFTRA strike.

of KFWB and an officer of Crowell-Collier Broadcasting Corp. Mr. Haw-thorne had also been doing a daily weather show on KTTV (TV) Los Angeles, but he gave up that employment at the time of the strike and was called to devote full time to KFWB, the station reported.

- B. Mitchell Reed, a disc jockey at KFWB who was sent to another Crowell-Collier station, KDWB Minneapolis-St. Paul, before the strike began. AFTRA has no jurisdiction at K DWB, which has no contract with the union.
- Charles Blore, vice president in charge of programming for the Crowell-Collier stations, which include KEWB Oakland-San Francisco in addition to KFWB and KDWB.
- Bill Angel, assistant to Mr. Blore.
- Don French, program director of KEWB, the Oakland-San Francisco station.

These five executives are taking their turns at the KFWB microphones, replacing the striking disc jockeys.

Radio listeners get up early in San Diego

San Diegans are early risers and early radio listeners, according to a Pulse survey made earlier this year with 1,000 adults in San Diego county. The results have been published in brochure form by (KFMB San Diego) (a Transcontinent Tv Corp. station). The study shows that most adults turn their radios on between 7 and 8 a.m., but that the 6-7 a.m. tune-in is almost as large as that at 7-8 a.m. and larger than during the two-hour 8-10 a.m. period. Similarly, more San Diego adults turn their radios on between 5 and 6 in the morning than in the 1-11 a.m. hour.

The chief reason for the morning tune-in is to get the news, the survey reveals, with music in second place with about two-thirds as many listeners for this reason. News accounted for 60.3% of the tune-ins and music for virtually all the rest, except for a small minority who tuned in for weather or time checks. Questions as to which San Diego station is usually dialed for news showed that KFMB and the other radio network affiliates are the most popular stations for news, but that the "top 40" stations rank well above the "soft music" stations as news sources.

The survey also shows that the network stations—with their "talk" programming—are more actively listened to than the music stations, with more people reporting they hear all of what announcers say on these stations. The "top 40" stations top the "soft music" stations in this respect, indicating that perhaps the latter are tuned in at low level for background music.

KING-FM steps away from stepchild status

How to get mileage out of fm? Give it the full treatment. This is what KING Seattle did beginning early this month when it cut away its fm station from duplication of the am schedule and inaugurated broadly diversified programming.

Beginning July 3, KING-FM began operating eight hours daily (4 p.m. to midnight) with such offerings as ABC's Third and Light programs, Broadcasting Foundation of America, NBC and CBC presentations. Other programs are produced locally. Included each week are two-hour dramatic presentations, five nightly newscasts and the more normal half-hour comedy and drama, public affairs and cultural and musical discussion programs. Music, long-hair, jazz and folk, still plays a prominent role in the new schedule.

Changing hands

ANNOUNCED • The following sales of station interests were reported last week subject to FCC approval:

- KLEO Wichita, Kan., and KQEO Albuquerque, N. M.: Sold by K. R. Greenwood and associates to George A. Bolas and group for $665,000, of which $365,000 is for KLEO and $300,000 for KQEO. Mr. Bolas, a Chicago advertising executive, is president of the buying company, Swaneco Broadcasting Corp., which last May received FCC permission to acquire KIOA Des Moines Iowa, for $600,000. Gilbert C. Swanson, Omaha, Neb., businessman, is chairman of Swaneco; Mr. Bolas is president. Mr. Greenwood, president of Dandy Broadcasting Corp., will become executive vice president of Swaneco. Mr. Bolas announced. KLEO is a fulltime station on 1480 kc with 5 kw daytime and 1 kw nighttime. KQEO is fulltime on 920 kc with 1 kw daytime and 500 w night. Mr. Greenwood and his associates, Lee Vaughn and Merritt Owens, formerly owned KDEO El Cajon, Calif. Broker in the Wichita and Albuquerque transactions was Blackburn & Co.

- WBNY Buffalo, N. Y.: Sold by Nathan Straus and family to Gordon and Barton McLendon for $650,000. McLendons own WYSY-AM-FM in Buffalo, and have reached a tentative agreement to sell the WYSY facilities (1 kw day on 1080 kc) to comply with the FCC's duopoly regulation which forbids a single broadcaster from owning more than one station in a community. McLendon stations also include KLIF-AM-FM Dallas, KILT-AM-FM Houston, KTSAN San Antonio, all Texas; KEEL Shreveport, La.; WAKY Louis ville, Ky., and KABL San Francisco, Calif. The Straus' bought WBNY in 1959 for a total consideration of $610,000. WBNY is 250 w fulltime on 1400 kc. It has applied for 1 kw power.

- KTUL Tulsa, Okla.: Sold by John T. Griffin and associates to Raymond Ruff and Charles A. Sammons for $450,000. The buyers own KTRN Wichita Falls, Tex. Mr. Sammons is a multiple owner of community antenna systems and headquarters in Dallas. The Griffin group retains KTUL-TV Tulsa, KATV (TV) Little Rock and owns 50% of KWTW (TV) Oklahoma City. KTUL is 5 kw fulltime on 1430 kc. Hamilton-Landis was the broker on the sale.

- KCKC San Bernardino, Calif.: Sold by C. R. Cheek, trustee for MVW Radio Corp., to Fred H. Goff and Beverly Hills investment banker, for $135,000 in bankruptcy sale. KCKC operates on 1300 kc with 500 w fulltime.

APPROVED • The following transfers of station interests were among those approved by the FCC last week (for other commission activities see For The Record, page 72).

- KFPP Oklahoma City: Transferred to Paul A. and Elizabeth Wolters, for $50,000.

- KLAK Lakewood, Colo.: Sold by Maurice J. and Julia W. DaVolt and Edythe G. Walker to Edward Smith Scott for $310,000. Mr. Scott is a radio-tv producer and personality. He was mayor of Englewood, Colo., and is presently a member of the Arapahoe County Board of Commissioners.

- KSYD Wichita Falls, Tex.: Sold by Sidney A. Grayson to R. E. Lee Glasgow and Bob H. Walker for $300,000. Mr. Glasgow has interests in WACO-AM-FM Waco, WTAW College Station-Bryan and KAND Corsicana, all Texas. Mr. Walker owns 51% of KWBA Baytown, Tex.

KBS stations heard in 85% of counties

Affiliated stations of the Keystone Broadcasting System reach listeners in 2,547 (83%) of the nation's 3,069 counties, according to a KBS survey.

Sidney J. Wolf, president of Keystone, commenting on the "grass roots" study, stressed the increasing importance of radio selling aimed at the local level —"the real and pinpointed point of persuasion."

"We reach even deeper than the 83% into those counties which comprise the bulk of the small town and rural areas. These are the so-called C and D counties (less than 100,000 in population)," he said.

While television may have taken the lead as the national air medium, depending on one's definition of the word national, according to Mr. Wolf, radio continues to have a pronounced and unique national character and does a superb job for advertisers.

Keystone stations by population breakdown: A counties (over 500,000 population)—19 stations; B counties (100,000-500,000) —106; C counties (30,000-100,000) —418; D counties (under 30,000) —553. And 29 stations have duplicate home counties.

According to the report, Keystone stations reach 55% of all people in the U.S., more than 98 million of an estimated 179.3 million persons.

BERATING RATINGS

Brown suggests broadcasters make own audience counts

Broadcasters should set up their own circulation bureau, Walter J. Brown, president of WUPA-AM-FM-TV Spartanburg, S. C., told his fellow broadcasters last week in a keynote speech to the South Carolina Broadcasters Assn. meeting at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Referring to what he called the "numbers game in tv," Mr. Brown said he doesn't believe in ratings: "the samples are too small and the margin for error too great."

He also decried what he described as advertising agency time buyers' practice of using the ratings on programs to determine cost per thousand without regard to a station's image or the quality of its audience.

"I don't see why broadcasters can't be as smart as newspaper publishers and set up their own bureau of circulation," Mr. Brown said. "I am firmly convinced that unless there is a new system for buying broadcast time in this country, we will never stabilize broadcasting and we shall continue to live in a jungle of rating warfare . . ."

In other points, Mr. Brown—

- Claimed that news stories and documentaries about the racial situation in the South are slanted and called on southern broadcasters to convince their networks and news services that "they should not be overly influenced by these minority blocs who are being pampered as they peddle their vendettas against the South."
- Charged that the good being brought to children by tv is overlooked, while the bad is whipped into sensational stories by newspapers attempting to "cripple broadcasting and get back the advertising dollars they have lost to a new competing media."
- Urged broadcasters to editorialize, but warned that the ownership and management must take an active hand in preparing the editorials.
- Expressed concern about the FCC's interest in programming as opening the possibility of the "camel getting his nose under the tent and wrecking the covering protection of free broadcasting."

The commissioners may not want to censor programs, Mr. Brown declared, but "whatever power the commission may adopt over programming will not be exercised by the members of the commission but by lesser people in government, many of whom will crave the power to have a hand in programming to promote their own political or sociological ideas."

More, Better News — The South Carolina association also heard Howard H. Bell, NAB vice president, urge broadcasters to upgrade their reporting staffs and techniques. Broadcasters, he said, face a challenge to provide the facts and knowledge "that will help us understand and cope with the problems we face in our communities and beyond our borders."

The South Carolinians also heard FCC Commissioner Robert T. Bartley call on stations to "recapture" control over programming from networks. He also urged that network affiliated stations carry more public affairs shows offered by their networks.

United to buy Friendly Group

United Printers & Publishers Inc., Boston, makers of greeting cards, gift wrapping paper, party goods and specialty items, is planning to buy the Friendly Group stations, which include 12 broadcasting properties—five am, two fm, and five tv stations—for $1,350,000 and transfer of an estimated 175,000 shares of company stock. This was disclosed in United's proxy statement which was mailed July 12 to stockholders in advance of the annual meeting to be held in Dedham, Mass., on Aug. 3.

The stockholders are being asked to approve the acquisition of WSTV Inc., Steubenville, Ohio, and WPIT Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa., the two broadcasting companies that make up the Friendly Group stations. WSTV Inc. owns and operates WSTV-AM-FM-TV Steubenville; KODE-AM-TV Joplin, Mo.; and WRGP-TV Chattanooga, Tenn. WPIT Inc. owns and operates WPIT-AM-FM Pittsburgh; WSOL Tampa, Fla.; and WRDW-TV Augusta, Ga. WSTV Inc. earned $134,254 after taxes last year. Net earnings after taxes for WPTIT Inc. in 1960 amounted to $25,086.

The proposed agreement calls for the transfer of a maximum of 175,000 shares of United stock for all the 1,540 shares of WSTV Inc. outstanding, which is valued at $3.5 million.

The agreement with WPIT Inc. provides that United will purchase all the 721 shares of outstanding stock of the broadcasting company for a total purchase price of $1,350,000. United will pay 29%, or approximately $355,000, of the purchase price in cash, and will issue notes for the balance, payable over a five-year period.

Some of the officers, directors and stockholders of United also are substantial stockholders and officers and directors of the Friendly stations.

Louis Berkman and Jack N. Berkman, through various companies they own or control, own about 220,000 shares, or some 40%, of United common stock. Louis Berkman is chairman of the board, treasurer and director of United, senior vice president and director of WSTV Inc. and executive vice president and director of WPIT Inc. Jack Berkman is vice chairman of the board of United, president and director of WSTV Inc., and chairman of the board and director of WPIT Inc.

John J. Laux, executive vice president and general manager of WSTV Inc., president and director of WPIT Inc.; and managing director of the Friendly Groups, owns 1,200 shares, or .22 per cent of United common stock. Mr. Laux is up for election as a director of United at the annual meeting on Aug. 3.

United is a publicly-owned company whose stock is sold over-the-counter.

It has marketing outlets in Mexico, the United Kingdom, France and Germany, and other countries.

Storer net-income report shows drop

Storer Broadcasting Co. last week reported earnings for the six months ended June 30 with net operating income after taxes amounting to 82 cents per share compared with $1.14 for the same period in 1960. Net income after taxes was $2,032,500 compared with 1960's $2,820,939.

Net income for the second quarter of 1961 amounted to $977,083 (39 cents per share) as against last year's second quarter figures of $1,397,860 (56 cents per share).

Per share earnings are based on a total of 2,474,950 shares of common and class B common stock outstanding at June 30, 1961.

Storer stations are WJBK-AM-TV in Detroit; W1W-AM-TV in Cleveland; WSPD-AM-TV in Toledo, Ohio; WITI-TV in Milwaukee; WAGA-TV in Atlanta; WIBG Philadelphia; WGBS Miami; WWVA Wheeling, W. Va.; KGBS Los Angeles. Storer also owns the Miami Beach Sun Publishing Co.

Collins calls for 'professionals'

NAB President LeRoy Collins called on broadcasters to become professionals—assuming all the responsibilities that implies.

In a talk to the graduating class of the NAB Executive Development Seminar at Harvard on Friday, Gov. Collins said that recognizes professional status for broadcasters requires competence, ethics, and "a high sense of public service responsibility."

"The teacher who is concerned solely with salary—the doctor whose primary aim is to collect fees—the lawyer who regards his work merely as a stepping stone to fame—are not true professionals. Neither are broadcasters who may be similarly motivated," Gov. Collins said.

The brickbats being thrown at broadcasting, the NAB president said, have meaning for broadcasters; "It means that people care about broadcasting. What we do, how we run our businesses and how we act are really important to them."

"Would any of us really want to be in a business nobody cared about, even if it were more peaceful and somewhat easier on the nerves?"

Kansas tribunal critical of radio trial coverage

A ruling by the Kansas Supreme Court which found fault with a tape recording by KJCK Junction City, Kan., of a kidnap case arraignment, has been protested by the president of the Kansas Assn. of Radio Broadcasters, Thad H. Sandstrom, manager of WIBW-AM-TV Topeka.

The state supreme court sharply criticized the Geary County district court for allowing the KJCK recording. The reprimand came in a ruling July 8 that reversed the lower court's conviction of defendant Eddie Cox—on grounds apart from the broadcast—and that ordered a new trial.

Mr. Sandstrom said broadcasters are aware of their obligation not to interfere in any way with court procedure or decorum and with modern broadcast techniques can cover any proceeding in a completely unobtrusive manner. He observed that "A basic foundation of our judicial system is that it shall be public."

FCC plagued by balky witnesses

BISMARCK, N.D., REVOCATION PROCEEDING OFF TO SLOW START

A seeming epidemic of witness trouble plagued the FCC Broadcast Bureau last week as it attempted to prove the license of KBOM Bismarck-Man dan, N.D., should be revoked because its licensee had conspired to effect an unauthorized transfer of control of the station. Unlike renewal hearings, revocation proceedings place the burden of proof on the commission.

One witness was called to the stand three times on as many days and left without ever testifying. Another witness persisted in evading questions by FCC attorneys Virgil Tacy and James F. Marten. They asked Hearing Examiner Charles Frederick to declare the witness hostile, to which request the examiner agreed after first warning the witness.

Yet another witness, John K. Harris, former manager and president of KBOM, the subject of much testimony, never appeared. FCC counsel gave no indication they knew his whereabouts, but when KBOM counsel Thomas Sullivan applied for a subpoena for the witness, Messrs. Tacy and Marten told the hearing examiner that Mr. Harris had been in Bismarck for the past two days and had just left on a plane for Yuma, Ariz. The FCC attorneys did say they did not wish to call Mr. Harris but denied having kept him "under wraps."

The main issue in the hearing (which continues this week) is whether the licensee corporation, Mandan Radio Assn., through sale of stock not reported to the FCC, changed ownership since July 1, 1956. Over the protests of KBOM's attorney, Mr. Tacy offered volumes of station bookkeeping into the hearing record. The FCC counsel charged that there were numerous irregularities in the station's reports.

Hostile Witness - Charles E. Kempel, Minot, N.D., major stockholder and former director of Mandan Radio Assn., was questioned about his 1956 purchase of the assets and liabilities of MRA. He said he had bought the stock to help his son-in-law John Harris and Richard C. Johnson become established in business with the agreement they should pay for their equity over a period of time. He said he turned over responsibility for KBOM to Mr. Harris and to Mr. Johnson, who followed Mr. Harris as manager from 1958 until Feb. 6, 1961. Mr. Kempel said he had asked Mr. Harris to resign as manager late in 1957 because of his "incompetence."

Under further questioning, Mr. Kempel kept referring FCC counsel to the record which he said "speaks for itself." Mr. Marten asked the examiner to declare Mr. Kempel a "hostile witness." Under such a ruling a witness is no longer the witness of the party calling him and may be cross-examined, asked leading questions or impeached.

Finally, having directed Mr. Kempel to be more direct in answering questions, Examiner Frederick did rule him to be a hostile witness.

A July 30, 1956, FCC ownership report disclosed only the names of Messrs. Kempel, Harris and Johnson. The Broadcast Bureau attorneys introduced an exhibit of an ownership report filed at that time with the state securities commission which listed two additional stockholders. The attorneys said they would show transfers of stock to 20 other persons and their wives that had never been reported to the FCC.

Point of Privilege - Mr. Johnson was called to the stand by the bureau Monday and Tuesday. On both occasions he said he would testify under a point of privilege provided in the Communications Act, which grants immunity to those testifying before the commission under compulsion. Mr. Tacy did not wish to hear the testimony under those conditions. When Mr. Johnson waived the immunity Thursday and offered to testify, the FCC attorneys conferred briefly and said they would not call him to the stand until they had an opportunity to question him outside the hearing. This proved unsatisfactory to Mr. Johnson.

J. Philip Smith, attorney for the FCC Complaints & Compliance Div., testified he had gone to the station on Sept. 19, 1960, and asked Mr. Johnson why the corporation's minutes did not record a series of stock transactions carried in KBOM's most recent FCC ownership report.

Mr. Johnson, according to the FCC investigator, said he had discovered the irregularities after becoming station manager in 1958 and feared that if he told the FCC before it had renewed the station's license, the renewal would be "unmercifully held up" and that KBOM might "get into hot water" with the commission. Mr. Smith said the station manager told him that his plan was to wait until renewal was granted and then to "bare all" to the commission.

Under cross examination Mr. Smith said he had not discussed KBOM's reporting situation with any of the stockholders other than Messrs. Johnson and Kempel.

Thursday's witnesses, produced by KBOM counsel, testified to the character of the principals of Mandan Radio

'You can't regulate taste, curiosity or morals'

John W. Guider, president of WMTW-TV, N. H., was praised in the U. S. Senate last week for a speech in which he warned that it is both vain and dangerous for the government to attempt to regulate public taste.

In the speech, delivered before the Portland, Me., Rotary Club, Mr. Guider charged that the government is attempting to do this by threatening not to renew licenses and by requiring program formats to conform to Washington's idea of "what the public should see and hear."

"But . . . you cannot regulate taste or intellectual curiosity any more than you can morals," he said. "We tried to regulate morals with the Great Experiment, [prohibition] and it proved to be a colossal failure."

Censorship, he warned, is a serious threat, even through prior control over programming by government is not involved. "Threats that station licenses may not be renewed unless stations conform to the current thinking in Washington . . . is censorship by fear of subsequent punishment," he said.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N. H.), who inserted the speech in the Congressional Record, called it "an excellent analysis of the problems and dangers of one man or group of men setting" TV standards for 180 million Americans.

Another request that government go slow in seeking to impose additional controls on the broadcasting industry was voiced last week by Rep. Robert W. Hemphill (D-S.C.). He predicted more stringent government controls would mean greater expense to the public, poorer programs, and additional bureaucratic red tape.

A satisfied customer, of course. But, wherever you find a Spotmaster unit in use (you’ll find them in stations in every state in the U.S.A., Canada, Australia and Europe) the opinions of the broadcasters are the same. “Spotmaster is the finest cartridge tape recorder in the industry today.” And rightly so. Its pushbutton operation was designed and developed by broadcast engineers in an actual station operation using in excess of 300 spots per day. It is the most field-tested, most field-proven equipment available. Spotmaster is available in the BE500 combination recorder-playback model and BE505 companion playback model—both guaranteed for one year. Senate communications subcommittee sets hearings on space communications, frequency allocations

Congressional determination to put its stamp on the national space communications policy still to be developed was indicated anew last week with the disclosure that the Senate Communications (Pastore) Subcommittee will hold hearings on the subject sometime next month.

The legislation proposes the creation of a five-man commission to study and report on the manner in which the radio spectrum is allocated among government agencies. At the time he introduced the resolution, Sen. Hartke said it is "deplorable" that the U.S. has neither a high-level agency to resolve conflicts among government and non-government users nor a national communications policy. The act gives the FAA authority to make rules regarding radio towers and other obstructions which reach up into "navigable air space." And this includes, under the act's definition, "air space needed to insure safety in take-off and landing of aircraft."

The FCC regained some ground from FAA

Two federal regulatory agencies put their heads together last week and as a result the FCC and tall tower applicants gained a small bit of ground. The FCC and Federal Aviation Agency issued a joint statement Friday (July 21) noting that certain agreements had been reached on the latter's new tall tower rules which became effective: July 15 (Broadcasting, July 10).

Primary FAA concessions were (1) inclusion in the new rules of a statement that the FAA regulations do not affect the jurisdiction of the FCC over the radio-tv industry, and (2) deletion of the FAA requirement that new tower applicants submit their plans to the aviation agency 30 days before filing an application with the FCC.

Under the joint agreement, broadcasters would be able to notify the FAA of tower proposals simultaneously with the filing of an application with the FCC. The two agencies, in turn, adopted procedures for coordinating consideration of the application. The new FAA rules authorize that agency to establish antenna farms but no such farm will be specified which would interfere with the statutory responsibility of the FCC, last week's joint announcement said. Further agreements have been reached "to insure that the coordination of new FAA regulations on tall structures with FCC requirements would not result in any unnecessary restrictions on persons who propose structures... which may project upward into the navigable airspace," the notice stated.

After the new FAA rules were announced, the commission insisted on a conference with the agency to preserve the FCC's authority in the field. It was felt that the FCC has the final statutory authority in the area covered by the FAA rules and that the latter does not have the power enunciated without a congressional mandate.

The commission, however, received no support from Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), the man who wrote the Federal Aviation Act. He said last week that the act gives the FAA authority to make rules regarding radio towers and other obstructions which reach up into "navigable air space." And this includes, under the act's definition, "air space needed to insure safety in take-off and landing of aircraft."

The commission appointed a three-commissioner committee headed by Robert T. Bartley, to negotiate with the FAA. Friday's joint announcement was a culminating of talks between the two agencies.

Still remaining in the FAA rules, however, and troublesome to broadcasters are the exclusion of the aeronautical rules from protectors of the Administrative Procedures Act and the provision that a "no hazard" tower determinations will be effective for only 18 months. Both the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters and the Electronics Industry Assn. have asked the FAA to reconsider the new rules.
of the joint venture scheme being considered by the FCC and NASA to permit private companies to operate the proposed system.

Disclaimer - When clarification was sought from White House News Secretary Pierre Salinger, he disclaimed knowledge of the council's action.

If a top-level decision has been made, it wasn't evident in the testimony of several administration figures who expressed differing points of view in appearances before the House Science & Astronautics Committee, which concluded its hearings on space communications last week.

John H. Rubel, assistant secretary of Defense, said his department will cooperate with NASA in encouraging private industry to develop and establish an operational communications satellite system.

But Philip J. Farley, a special assistant to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and U. S. Information Agency chief Edward R. Murrow expressed doubts that the traditional private enterprise approach is applicable to space age communications.

Neither commented directly on who should operate the system. But both said the system must be "global," open to all nations. And "novel arrangements," said Mr. Farley, "may well be needed to deal with novel technology."

Interest Private? - Mr. Murrow said that "industry may have little interest in communications with Upper Volta, as there may be no profit forthcoming for years. Yet it is right that Upper Volta have as much potential use of the system as the United States. And if it is not the aim of private industry to serve the lean as well as the lucrative, then it must be the aim of government."

The apparent lack of a national policy on the private-vs.-government ownership question caused several members of Congress to express concern that private interests might achieve a monopoly in space communications activities.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), chairman of the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee, urged FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow and Lee Loevinger, the Justice Dept.'s antitrust boss, to see to it that the space communication system is developed in strict conformity with antitrust principles.

Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.), bluntly charged that American Telephone & Telegraph is seeking a monopoly in the field. He called on Congress and the executive department to formulate a policy for space-age regulation of communications facilities.

Going farther than either of his Democratic colleagues was Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.). He said ownership of the space communications system should be "vested in Uncle Sam," not thrown open "to possible monopoly by one or more of the giant communications corporations."

Virtue hath its reward

There are 196 radio and tv stations throughout the country pleased that the FCC has delegated certain of its powers.

These are the first stations to be granted license renewals by the Broadcast Bureau. Under a new provision, the bureau is empowered to pass on such matters as modifications, renewals and transfers which are uncontested and routine in nature, not involving policy-making or departures from existing rules (Broadcasting, July 10).

For a listing of these stations, which have been saved the trouble of action by the full commission, see next week's For The Record.

Type PF-10B Continuous Motion Projector. A unique "skew-ray" plate in the optical system breaks up the collimated light beam into random rays that illuminate film defects such as scratches from so many angles that they virtually disappear. Continuous motion projection eliminates the intermittent film advance mechanism that, when faulty, can cause picture unsteadiness and shorten film life. All controls are located on the front of the pedestal on a swing-out door for easy accessibility. The pedestal also houses the exciter power supply. A variac controls the lamp voltage.

Type PF-11-A Pneumatic Multiplexer is manufactured for General Electric by Eastman Kodak Company to relay the optimum image from film and slide projectors to the vidicon camera. Pneumatically operated high efficiency front surface mirrors travel in their own plane and normal to the optical axis. This unique mirror mechanism and a very rugged base cabinet result in a stable and accurate relay system. The mirror switching system can be controlled at the unit or from remote operating positions.

Film Camera Center

The new General Electric Film Center is designed to transmit high resolution pictures from any standard TV film or 2 x 2 slide. The Film Camera Channel Type PE-21-A features superior signal-to-noise ratio, outstanding resolution, and the ability to adjust for light variations of 100 to 1. The system provides maximum reliability with one-man operation. The continuous motion projectors will accommodate both optical and magnetic sound tracks on 16 mm film, and remote controls can be operated from several different locations. Inputs are directed to the vidicon camera through a fast-action pneumatic mirror assembly in the multiplexer, which may be operated manually at the bench or electrically from remote locations.
'Deceitful conduct' charged to KLFT

The "pattern of perfidious and deceitful conduct" displayed by Leo Joseph Theriot, licensee of KLFT Golden Meadow, La., "warrants only one sanction—that is the revocation of the license of KLFT," the FCC Broadcast Bureau claimed last week in its proposed findings to Hearing Examiner Jay Kyle. The license revocation hearing was held in New Orleans in May on charges of willful and repeated technical violations by the station and alleged misrepresentations made by Mr. Theriot to the FCC (Broadcasting, May 29).

Indeed Mr. Theriot had shown "a lack of attention to the requirements of commission rules," his own lawyer agreed in his findings, but added that an appropriate penalty would be a short-term license renewal.

KLFT's attorney argued that to deprive Golden Meadow of its sole community communications medium (there are no papers published there) would be unfair to the public. The Broadcast Bureau said Golden Meadow residents could tune in New Orleans stations and could get the weather warnings heretofore provided by KLFT from Coast Guard sources.

The bureau charged that KLFT had no first-class radio-telephone operator on duty from July 18, 1959 until April 17, 1961. During this period an FCC field representative had warned licensee Theriot repeatedly that he was violating FCC rules, the bureau said.

Engineer Issue The FCC field inspector referred several engineers to KLFT; Mr. Theriot told one of them that he wasn't going to employ a first-class operator and that "he would prefer shutting down the station before he would," according to bureau findings. The bureau further charged that he had given an involved companion to a local resident seeking an engineering job; had borrowed his operator's license and photostated it, telling the engineer he would check with the FCC whether the license was valid. No such check was received at any FCC office, the bureau said. (KLFT findings said Mr. Theriot had checked with the engineer's previous employer and had decided not to hire him after getting a bad reference.)

When an FCC field representative checked at the station he was told by employees that George Roundtree was the station's engineer and that he had performed maintenance during the past few days. The employees later rescinded their statements and said they had made them under Mr. Theriot's instructions. Mr. Roundtree was employed by a radio-telephone company in Houma, La., (50 miles away) and serviced KLFT only as a representative of that company, the bureau charged. He was paid $50 per month to "post his license" at the station, but was not required to perform duties for this money, the bureau asserted.

KLFT's attorney agreed that Mr. Theriot had, in good faith, instructed employees that Mr. Roundtree was the station's engineer. "Unfortunately for Theriot's interests, however, the same employees attempted to embellish on this statement when confronted by FCC inspectors, and were later forced to retraction their detailed statements."

FCC, Wilson protest Miami ch. 10 delay

Both the FCC and L. B. Wilson Inc., holding an FCC permit for Miami ch. 10, have protested to the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington against a request by National Airlines for a stay of that court's July 6 ruling.

The court upheld the FCC's determination to revoke the 1957 grant to National Airlines and to disqualify that company, plus North Dade Video Inc., another applicant, and to grant the Miami vhf outlet to L. B. Wilson. (Broadcasting, July 10). National Airlines asked the court to stay its decision because it is planning to ask the U. S. Supreme Court for permission to appeal (Broadcasting, July 10).

The FCC said a stay should not be granted because an applicant (National Airlines) found guilty of conduct amounting to fraud "should not be permitted to reap the fruits of that fraud." There is no substantial likelihood, the FCC said, that the Supreme Court will grant certiorari or reverse the appeals court. L. B. Wilson Inc. said it is ready to Congress resumes activity on FCC reform

SENATE, HOUSE COMMITTEES APPROVE SIMILAR BILLS

FCC-reorganization legislation to give the commission the flexibility it says it needs began moving through Congress again last week after temporary delay by the July 4 holiday.

The Senate Commerce Committee approved without objection the bill (S-2034) introduced by Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), and sent it to the floor. And the House Commerce Committee, which had previously approved a virtually identical bill (HR 7856) sponsored by its chairman, Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), filed its approving report with the House on Monday.

The House bill, however, still has to clear the Rules Committee before it can reach the floor for debate. The sometimes balky Rules Committee is expected to hold a hearing on the matter within the next two weeks.

Both the Senate and the House bills, introduced after the House killed President Kennedy's FCC-reorganization plan (BROADCASTING, July 19) follow closely recommendations submitted by the commission. But although the Senate Commerce Committee revised the language of the Pastore bill to make it agree more with the House version, differences remain.

The House bill would permit the FCC to rule out in advance the possibility of review for certain types of minor cases. The right of appeal in these cases would be limited to filing exceptions to initial decisions.

The Pastore bill would permit parties to any case to seek review. But both bills allow the commission to exercise discretion in granting review.

In addition, while both bills permit the commission to delegate any of its functions to individual commissioners or employees, the Pastore legislation requires only that the delegation of authority—or its withdrawal—be effected by a majority vote of the commissioners participating. The Harris bill requires that the action be taken by a majority of the commissioners "holding office."

The Commerce Committee kept this section of the Pastore bill intact at the request of FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow. In a letter to the committee, he said that, with one or more members of the commission often absent on official business, the requirement that a constitutional majority be mustered would prove too restrictive.
Revolt against FCC program controls

HYDE HINTS NAB SHIRKED EXPLANATION; IDAHO BLASTS COLLINS STAND

The Idaho Broadcasters Assn. last week officially disapproved the stand of the NAB and its president, LeRoy Collins, endorsing the FCC's proposed new program forms.

And, at the same IBA meeting which expressed official disapproval of the NAB action, FCC Commissioner Rosel H. Hyde told the broadcasters of his home state that industry spokesmen have not made radio-tv's position adequately understood. Commissioner Hyde also spoke out against the increased regulatory activities of the government along lines normally found only in the regulation of public utilities and in areas bordering on censorship.

Gale (Gub) Mix of KRPL Moscow, outgoing IBA president, said: "We don't go along with the NAB stand at all." The Idaho association, after hearing a luncheon address by James McKnight of the NAB's Los Angeles office, officially condemned the NAB position (Broadcasting, July 17). State broadcasters were urged to contact the NAB, FCC and members of Congress expressing opposition to the new program reporting forms (Broadcasting, July 10).

Commissioner Hyde reviewed recent official government actions, statements and policy declarations all looking toward more federal regulation of broadcasting. Pointing out the FCC now rules on the "legitimate and prudent" expenses of applicants seeking to drop out, he said this is the first instance where expenditures in a broadcast enterprise have been made a matter of government regulation. "The concept, of course, is familiar in public utility regulation," Commissioner Hyde stated.

Utility Censors - Referring to the new program forms, he said: "Detailed reporting and accounting are characteristic of utility regulation. It is said that efforts by others to employ microscopic detail inspired the observation of Justice Holmes that 'delusive exactness is a course of fallacy throughout the law.'"

He said the executive, legislative and the FCC itself are rapidly placing the agency in a position of regulating programming fare. "I think it is unfortunate that the public is being led to look to the FCC for fulfillment of its program interest," Commissioner Hyde stated. And, he maintained, advocates of this new trend have never considered whether close government supervision can give better results than a free enterprise system.

"It is particularly disturbing in the face of the clear declaration of policy [against censorship] in the Communications Act," he stressed. Citing several other prohibitions against censorship by the commission, Commissioner Hyde asked: "What possibility could we have of untoward regulation or interference in programming without doing violence to law? Perhaps there is such a thing as subtle violence. . . . The unattractive office of censor can be made to appear as an illusion of integrity."

The commissioner said that broadcasters will make promises designed to satisfy the programming wishes of the commission. "It does not take much imagination to find elements of prior restraint in such a system," he said. "I believe that in more thorough and temperate consideration of the fundamental issue, we may find that broadcasting's greatest opportunity and potential lies in the application of free enterprise principles, free of censorship."

"I should like to see the Communications Act interpreted in a forward-

Poop sheet on FCC's 'Rover Boys'

"Don't forget that the FCC has gotten additional money for more inspectors and they are determined to inspect."

So warns a special committee of the Idaho Broadcasters Assn. which has prepared and circulated a memorandum designed to help member stations prepare for FCC renewal inspections. The five-page document covers every phase of broadcast operations from the condition of employe rest rooms to the proper maintenance of towers.

In addition to the above, here are some direct quotes from the IBA advice sheet:

"Keep your mouth shut and . . . DO NOT VOLUNTEER ANY INFORMATION UNLESS ASKED A DIRECT QUESTION. You will talk yourself into a deeper hole by trying to talk yourself out of a smaller one."

"They will want to know—the minute they walk in the door—whether you are a member of the state association."

"If you have [rebroadcast a program from another station], you'd better pray you've got written permission from the originating station ON FILE. Don't try to talk your way out of this one. . . . You can't outscream them on this. They will nail you for an infraction AND DISHONESTY."

"They are murder on program and transmission logs."

"Is your Conelrad alert system in perfect operating condition? It better be."

"If you have ever given anything away over the air you're in for a long grilling session."

"Don't kid yourself on this one [payola], either. They mean ANYTHING by way of under the table benefits."

"If any of those third tickets have lapsed you had better do something about it the minute you put this down."

"They will go over your political broadcast activity with a fine tooth comb. . . . You better have a full file. . . ."

"They will ask in the community and if the community reaction or image differs from what you state it to be—LOOK OUT."

"They will double check your answer if they have reason to suspect it—and they indicate a reason to suspect everything."

"They will check your station for employee comfort facilities and with the employees as well as looking for themselves."

"They just hit one station and the manager said to pass this on: 'It is a white glove inspection of your equipment. You had better take a vacuum cleaner to your transmitter and other equipment then polish it up so it looks like new—Even take the tubes out and polish them.' He wasn't kidding."

"You can bet you'll get [at least one citation]."

"If the team hits your station YOU ARE IN BAD SHAPE."

"Just got another call—says to look out for logs that are made up too far ahead or too far behind. LOG IT WHEN DONE."
looking manner—the kind of interpretation which has made constitutional principles effective in meeting the requirements of our country from its beginning to its present status of world leadership."

Commissioner Hyde stressed that broadcasters should have the freedom and discretion essential to creative endeavor and to meet ever-changing conditions. "According to precedent, a conclusion may include an exhortation or a charge," he said. "I make the suggestion with concern for the future of broadcasting that operators of stations haven't made their positions adequately understood . . . or that their demonstration of the advantages of the free enterprise system should have improved attention. Perhaps both of these matters warrant further serious attention."

Duane Wolfe of KCTD Caldwell was elected president of IBA, succeeding Mr. Mix, at last week's meeting in Salmon. Henry Fletcher, KSEI Pocatello, was elected vice president and Ed Brainard, KORT Grangeville, secretary-treasurer. Next year's meeting will be held in Pocatello.

CCBS urges FCC: ignore 50kw request

Clear Channel Broadcasting Service last week asked the FCC to ignore the request of three limited-time Class II stations for 50 kw power and nighttime operation (BROADCASTING, July 17). Stations are KFAX San Francisco, KGBS Los Angeles and KXL Portland, Ore.

CCBS said the stations' comments were untimely filed and should not be accepted by the commission. In addition the organization said the comments were "without merit" and, if considered, should be rejected.

The three stations' situation is not "unique" as they claim, CCBS stated: any number of stations could advance similar arguments. Furthermore population increase in the communities served by the three stations would not justify their request because the purpose of the clear-channel proceeding is to provide service to "white" or underserved areas, CCBS maintained. These areas can be served only through improvement of the quality and power of nighttime skywave service, CCBS claimed, and the stations' proposal would reduce rather than improve such service.

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. also filed opposition at the commission, charging that the stations' request is "not entitled to consideration at the present status of the record at this docket." WBC said the petitioners should have their request returned with leave to refile it, if appropriate, at a later date.

Political funds bills sidetracked in Senate

Hope faded completely last week for passage this year of legislation to ease the burden of radio-tv costs for candidates campaigning for federal office.

The Senate Elections Subcommittee, which held hearings on two such bills, was reported ready to shelve both.

One (S 227), offered by Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), would require the government to pay up to $1 million for the radio and television time of major party presidential candidates. Minority party candidates would get $100,000.

The other (S-1555), introduced by Sen. Maurine Neuberger (D-Ore.) would provide federal payments to defray part of the cost of broadcast time of any candidate for federal office.

The subcommittee is considering a bill to raise ceilings on campaign expenditures, require public disclosures of contributions and provide a 50% tax credit on political contributions of up to $10. The legislation (S 604) is co-sponsored by Sen. Kenneth Keating (R-N. Y.) and Edward V. Long (D-Mo.).

PACKED (as usual) WITH MORE FACTS THAN ANY OTHER SOURCE BOOK:

- Complete directory of all U.S. television and radio stations.

AND hundreds of other reference sections covering virtually every up-to-date aspect of the broadcasting business — all assembled in a single definitive volume to answer the hundreds of basic questions for thousands of agency, advertiser and station users. In all, more than 600 pages crammed with current information! It's the ideal place to present your own facts, amplifying those which broadcasting's busiest people will be checking, month after month, in the 1961-62 BROADCASTING Yearbook.
agencies — where nearly 1½ billion dollars of TV and radio business is transacted annually — BROADCASTING Yearbook is adjudged first choice by more than 2-to-1 over the next-best reference yearbook of broadcast media facts! And by 3½-to-1 over the No. 3 annual!

BROADCASTING Yearbook for 1961-62 will again offer the most comprehensive round-up of information on today's broadcast media available anywhere. Like previous editions, it will enjoy a full and useful life in offices of agencies and advertisers throughout the nation ... ending up dog-eared and thumbmarked 12 months later when next year's volume appears.

FOR CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE and maximum exposure among the people who really count in TV-radio advertising, you can’t find a better place than BROADCASTING Yearbook to tell your own story. This year’s edition will be made even handier to use with special insert dividers between sections, tabbed for swifter reference.

Same rates, same page size, same space units prevail as for regular issues of BROADCASTING. Guaranteed circulation: 18,000 copies. Final deadline, for plates: July 29. NOW is the time for action. Reserve the position you want — TODAY — before somebody else gets it!
Congressmen oppose clear channel plan

HOUSE, SENATE BILLS WOULD BLOCK FCC PROPOSALS

A bipartisan attack on the FCC’s proposal to duplicate 13 of the 25 remaining clear-channel stations went off on schedule last week as five members of Congress introduced legislation to block the move.

The proposals—three in the House and one co-sponsored bill in the Senate—would prohibit the FCC from licensing more than one station to operate at night on any of the present 25 class I-A clear-channel frequencies.

The three House bills (HR-8210, HR-8211 and HR-8288) were introduced by members of the House Commerce Committee, which has jurisdiction over the FCC. They are Reps. John J. Flynt, Jr. (D-Ga.), John D. Dingell (D-Mich.) and John B. Bennett (R-Mich.).

The Senate bill (S-2290) was co-sponsored by Sens. Homer Capehart (R-Ind.) and Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.). Plans for the move in Congress came to light after a Senate speech by Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) criticizing the FCC proposal (BROADCASTING, July 17).

More Power for Clears • In addition to barring the FCC from implementing the duplication proposal it announced last month (BROADCASTING, June 19), the Bennett and Dingell bills would require the commission to authorize clear-channel stations to operate on power “in excess” of the 50 kw presently permitted by FCC rules.

The commission is now empowered to grant all U. S. stations increased power; that it hasn’t done so is believed due to a 1938 Senate resolution expressing that chamber’s view that the 50 kw limit should be maintained.

In statements that for the most part were identical, Rep. Bennett and Sen. Capehart said that keeping the remaining clear channels intact and increasing the power of clear-channel stations is “the only” way of improving radio service to rural areas.

They said this is shown “conclusively” in FCC hearings held in 1938 in 1945.

Rural Loss • The proposed FCC action, they said, “will lead to more service to cities which are already well served and to less service to the rural and remote areas which are now underserved.”

They charged that the proposed FCC action would “create an impossible roadblock” to the use of higher power by class I-A stations and “lead to a further degradation of service to rural areas.”

The legislators also used arguments involving the national defense and international considerations.

They said they were “convinced” it would benefit the military to keep the present I-A and I-B clear-channel frequencies intact and to authorize higher power for all class I-A stations.

And “our [foreign] neighbors,” they said, “could not be stopped from using our class I frequencies in their countries should we choose to desecrate their use in our own.”

WTVW (TV) rebuffed in ch. 7 struggle

WTVW (TV) Evansville, Ind., lost a major battle last week in its four-year fight to retain its right to operate on ch. 7 instead of on ch. 31—as ordered by the FCC in a February 1957 deintermixure decision.

Hearing Examiner Jay A. Kyle issued an initial decision recommending that ch. 7 be shifted to Louisville, as the commission proposed, and that WTVW be required to move to ch. 31. Mr. Kyle said there is a much greater need for the vhf channel in Louisville (28th market), which has two commercial vhsfs, than Evansville (108th market), which has WTVW and two uhf stations in operation.

At the same time, the examiner found that WTVW “has achieved a record of remarkably significant programming [and] has made a distinct contribution to the community life of Evansville.” He rejected the station’s contention that it would be ruined financially by a required shift to ch. 31 in the Evansville area.

Operating in the Indiana city are WFIE-TV (ch. 14) and WEHT (TV) (ch. 50). Mr. Kyle felt addition of ch. 7 at Louisville will result in advantages to ABC-TV which, he said, has been “starved out of that city because of the lack of an outlet.” The terrain around Evansville is ideally suited for uhf propagation, he said.

The case began in 1957 with the FCC’s order making Evansville all-uhf and intermittent hearings on the WTVW shift were held through Feb. 21 of this year.

Reconsideration plea by WHDH-TV denied

The FCC last week denied a petition by WHDH-TV (ch. 5) Boston for reconsideration of the commission’s order vacating the 1957 grant to Boston and ordering further comparative evaluation of the three applicants.

WHDH-TV’s contentions (BROADCASTING, July 3) “ignore the nature of the court remand” which ordered the commission to re-evaluate the applicants on the basis of the record, including ex parte revelations, the FCC said. The commission also refused to reopen the record, as requested by WHDH-TV, or to permit the station to introduce evidence relating to its ch. 5 operation the past three years.

The commission said that the present proceeding would not be underway except for the misconduct of WHDH-TV and to allow such evidence to be presented would “indirectly be permitting it to profit from such misconduct. It would not seem to require discussion to demonstrate the inequity of such a situation.”

WHDH-TV last week asked the commission to dismiss the competing ch. 5 application of Greater Boston TV Corp., following the sale of a 2.77% interest to Richard Maguire to John Quincy. WHDH-TV maintained that this constitutes a “significant change” in GBT because Mr. Maguire was the prime organizer of the application.

GBT also maintained that the Federal Communications Commission made much of the fact that each of its 36 stockholders owned an equal amount (2.77%) but now there are only 35, and Mr. Quincy owns twice as much stock (5.55%) as the remaining 34 stockholders. Mr. Maguire’s withdrawal destroys the usefulness of the existing hearing record, WHDH-TV said.

The third applicant for ch. 5 is Massachusetts Bay Telecasters.
WITT hearing moved to own community

Amid a flurry of petitions and objections last week, FCC Chief Hearing Examiner James Cunningham approved the Broadcast Bureau's request to move the site of the license renewal proceeding against WITT Lewisburg, Pa., from Washington, D. C., to the station's own community (At Deadline, July 17). The attorney for the station had opposed the move, holding that preparation of his case in Washington, where he has offices and access to FCC files, would be difficult enough and the move to Lewisburg would place an extra burden on him.

Since the Broadcast Bureau has argued repeatedly against delay of the case into September, it finds itself committed to a hearing during the FCC's vacation month, August, contrary to the FCC's expressed general policy against such proceedings during that month. The hearing is scheduled tentatively to start July 31.

The issues will include alleged unauthorized transfer of control of WITT and misrepresentations by WITT to the FCC.

The bureau last week asked the FCC to deny WITT's request for a bill of particulars, citing the commission's refusal of a bill to KWK St. Louis, and claiming the bureau has been willing to discuss the charges against WITT in prehearing conference. The bureau also opposed three other WITT requests: to turn the proceeding from a renewal to a revocation proceeding; to place the burden of going forward with evidence upon the Broadcast Bureau; to clarify or revise the issues.

Bigger Conelrad seen in Kennedy reshuffle

President Kennedy last week reshuffled the civilian defense activities of the United States.

He abolished the Office of Civil & Defense Mobilization and placed the bulk of its civil defense activities under the Department of Defense.

Censorship and telecommunications remain under the White House roof in a new staff Office of Emergency Planning (CLOSED CIRCUIT, July 17).

Among the missions given to the Secretary of Defense is one to maintain communications and a warning system for civil defense.

This is taken to mean that the Conelrad program, under review by the Joint Chiefs of Staff (BROADCASTING, April 10), will probably be retained—and perhaps even expanded.

Retained in the White House is an Office of Emergency Planning, which will handle planning and coordination. Frank B. Ellis, present OCDM director, is scheduled to head this office. He will retain his present responsibilities for telecommunications and censorship.

The President's executive order becomes effective August 1.

WOOD-TV circumventing FCC, charges WILX-TV

An "emergency" plea that the FCC prevent WOOD-TV Grand Rapids, Mich., from dismantling its TV tower site north of that city was entered last week by WILX-TV Onandaga, Mich., which had protested WOOD-TV's original move of its tower to the south. The case was carried to the U. S. Court of Appeals, which found the FCC had erred in permitting the move because this left some areas without TV coverage (BROADCASTING, July 17).

Four days after the court remanded the case to the commission, WILX-TV claimed, WOOD-TV started to dismantle its northern site. WILX-TV charged this action was an attempt of the Grand Rapids station to foil the FCC, since that agency could not order a tower re-erected in just a few days.
DAYTIMERS ASK INTERFERENCE TEST

Livesay suggests trial after hostile Hill questioning

Daytime AM stations received little encouragement last week that Congress would be any more sympathetic this year than in the past to their request for permission to extend their broadcast hours.

The House Communications Subcommittee held a three-day hearing on legislation to permit daytimers to broadcast from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. regardless of the hours of sunrise and sunset. But at the hearing's conclusion, even the author of one of the seven identical bills under consideration privately conceded that the votes for sending legislation to the parent Commerce Committee weren't available.

As in the past, opposition to the proposal was expressed by the FCC, which was represented by James E. Barr, assistant chief of the Broadcast Bureau; and the Clear Channel Broadcasting Service. John H. DeWitt, Jr., president of WSM-AM-TV Nashville, Tenn., represented the CCBS as chairman of its engineering committee.

In addition, sharp opposition was indicated by some of the subcommittee members who subjected J. Ray Livesay, board chairman of the Daytime Broadcasters Ass'n, and the only witness appearing in behalf of the legislation, to rugged questioning.

More Loss Than Gain - The FCC and CCBS statements argued that the interference caused unlimited-time stations by daytimers operating during nighttime hours would far outweigh the additional service daytimers could render their local areas. About half the 3,700 AM stations are daytime-only.

They also maintained the proposed legislation would conflict with U.S. international agreements involving broadcasting. The FCC said the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement and a bi-lateral agreement with Mexico are predicated on present U.S. regulations involving daytime-only broadcasting.

The CCBS even felt the hours of future daytime stations should be restricted more than present daytimers, since already the "present operation . . . causes objectionable interference during post-sunrise and pre-sunset hours."

The CCBS had its own recommendation for improving nighttime service to rural areas — increase the operating power of clear-channel stations above the presently authorized 50 kw.

Mr. Livesay, the owner of WLBI Mattoon, Ill., argued that, in opposing the legislation, the FCC is "putting too much reliance" on engineering data and not enough on the radio-programming needs of local areas which, he said, are best served by local stations.

The subcommittee's two California members, Rep. J. Arthur Younger (R) and John E. Moss (D) took a dim view of Mr. Livesay's arguments. Rep. Younger said the DBA representative is, in effect, "accusing the FCC of making prejudicial decisions."

If the FCC is acting in such a manner, he went on, "it's a matter for congressional investigation. But it's not Congress' function" to direct the commission to take actions contrary to decisions that are based on engineering studies.

Moss Repeats - Rep. Moss, taking a similar line, said Mr. Livesay is asking the subcommittee "to substitute a political judgment for an engineering judgment where these [daytime] stations are concerned." He indicated he is not ready to disregard the FCC's recommendations.

After a few minutes of this double-barreled treatment, Mr. Livesay retreated to a request that the subcommittee recommend "a fair and inclusive test" to determine whether daytimers broadcasting 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the winter would create serious interference to unlimited-time stations.

And he readily endorsed a suggestion that the proposed legislation be amended to provide for a temporary, 1-year extension of daytimers' hours.

Moline ch. 8 parties charge FCC inconsistent

In the face of three recent FCC decisions stressing the importance of surveying local program needs, the commission's announced plan to grant ch. 8 Moline, Ill., to Moline TV Corp. is "wholly incredible" if the agency understood the record, three other ch. 8 applicants charged last week.

Citing (1) the decision denying an Elizabethtown, N. J., FM application (Broadcasting, July 3), (2) the revised program forms and (3) the FCC policy statement in the KORD Pasco, Wash., case (Broadcasting, July 3), the three applicants said: "It would seem abundantly clear that the most clear-cut and emphatic" of the FCC's current policies is the requirement that local program needs be determined.

Yet, the petitioners charged, the commission has proposed to grant ch. 8 to Moline tv, the only one of five applicants which made no effort to determine local program needs. The record is clear that Moline deliberately adopted such a policy and that its president, Frank P. Schreiber, described such local surveys as “worthless” and “eye-wash.” Community Telecasting Corp., Midland Broadcasting Co. and Illiway TV Inc. said.

Staff instructions proposing a grant to Moline tv were issued by the commission June 29, (BROADCASTING, July 3)—the same day the Elizabeth fm application was denied. An initial decision had favored a grant to Community. The fifth applicant for the channel is Tel-View News Inc.

From the Chairman • The petitioners pointed out that FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow has “repeatedly emphasized” that applicants must determine local program needs and has been given wide publicity in his statements. They asked that these statements and the commission’s three recent decisions be compared with the lack of knowledge by Moline principals of local needs and local civic, religious and educational leaders.

“Petitioners sincerely believe that when the commission ... adopts two decisions and a rulemaking proposal which cannot be squared with a grant to Moline Tv, it is obvious that the instructions in this case were issued without a full understanding of the record evidence,” the applicants said. Therefore, they pleaded, a reargument of the case is necessary prior to a final grant to protect all the parties involved.

If the commission did understand the record when the instructions were given, Illiway, Community and Midland said, only one other conclusion is possible—“That the vote was not based on the record evidence but upon a distortion of the evidence and the commission’s established criteria in a fashion that justice could not condone.”

Since Moline Tv did not make a survey of local needs, its programming plans are skeletal in nature and the type proposal “that any communications lawyer could draft, singlehanded, without ever having seen the community involved,” the petitioners charged. They pointed out that the examiner described Moline’s proposals as leaving “much to conjecture.”

STEREO’S FUTURE PROGNOSTICATED

It’s seen as potentially bright if handled properly

The fall market potential in fm stereo receivers and color tv sets captured the attention of the annual convention of the National Assn. of Music Merchants in Chicago last week. The 60-year old national trade show attracted over 10,000 retail buyers who placed orders for everything musical from church organs, pianos and miscellaneous musical gear to G. LeBlanc Corp.’s e-flat flugelhorn.

Several speakers, including FCC Comr. Robert E. Lee, sounded warnings that fm stereo could die aborning if manufacturers failed to build sufficient quality into their product equal to the transmission standards and the public’s present high expectations for fm.

Both major and minor manufacturers and marketers of radio-tv sets, phonographs and tape recorders exhibited at the music show. Japanese and German importers, sprinkled through last year’s show, made a heavy impression this year, including Sony’s tiny portable television set (BROADCASTING, July 10).

Especially noticed were import models of transistorized am-fm pocket radios and small am-fm portables, many in the $69-79 range and some to be sold by U.S. manufacturers under their own brand names. The big console lines stressed the growing trend to fine furniture. RCA introduced its new fm stereo adapter to sell for $29.95 which will fit all its line of phonograph consoles with am-fm tuners that were introduced earlier this year, and most models introduced in recent previous years.

Color-tv interest was stimulated by reports of still more entries in the color manufacturing and marketing field, including Sylvania’s announcement early in the week and fall introductions planned by Delmonico International (using Japanese chassis with RCA picture tube), and Canada’s Dominion Electrohome Industries Ltd. (using RCA chassis, tube). Latter intends to invade U. S. market with high-priced cabinet line.

Observers at the show felt that by next year every console radio or phonograph would have fm stereo and that within the next two to three years nearly every table model radio would be an am-fm combination set. The emphasis appeared to be on the surge of promotion and interest in fm and how it could be made profitable.

The show talk on “fm stereo” (the
Go with Day-Glo

ABC engineers call a two-year experiment in paint on the WABC New York transmitter in Lodi, N. J., an "unqualified success," both in terms of airplane safety and cost. In 1959, ABC received FCC approval to paint the uppermost 100 feet of the 650-foot transmitter with special Day-Glo orange fluorescent paint. No sign of wear has been detected, while the remainder of the tower, painted with standard paint, will soon require repainting. Though special FCC approval is required, Frank Marx, ABC vice president in charge of engineering, has recommended the use of Day-Glo to ABC Radio affiliates. (Day-Glo is a product of Switzer Bros. Inc., Cleveland.)

term now preferred, with "multiplex" to be omitted to avoid further confusing the public) was spurred by demonstration broadcasts by WKFM (FM) Chicago and Zenith's WEFM (FM) there as well as by a symposium sponsored by Electronic Industries Assn. which featured FCC Comr. Lee and John F. Meagher, NAB's vice president for radio. EIA also introduced its new mass-distribution booklet on fm stereo which contains a brief introduction by FCC Chairman Newton Minow. "A serious word of caution is very well in order to this particular group," Comr. Lee said. "The commission is requiring the stations broadcasting this new technique to adhere to very high standards in order to provide the public with the type of service that they are entitled to expect from this new and probably relatively expensive equipment.

"All of this will go to naught if the receiving equipment does not match those high standards," Comr. Lee said. He hoped the "best of competition will not result in killing the goose that will lay a beautiful golden egg."

As for proposals to advance some form of stereo broadcasting in the regular am radio band, Comr. Lee let it be known he does not favor any such idea. It would take years of study and the frequency is inappropriate, he said, and "to put it bluntly, I can certainly say that I for one am in no mood to even study let alone approve stereo in the am band. I believe it would be contrary to the public interest if the term stereo were to be attached to less than high audio quality."

Mr. Meagher reported on NAB's survey of station fm stereo plans (see page 34).

GE develops fm unit for news gathering

General Electric Co., Lynchburg, Va., today (Monday) is announcing the availability of a new portable two-way radio that can be used to cover news and special events. It is described as the smallest, lightest and most-compact vhf-fm man-carried communications unit to be marketed to date with transmitter and receiver in a single case.

The sets will be manufactured for high band frequencies (132-174 mc) with 1 kw transmitter RF power output. Called the Voice Commander, the new unit is 9.5 inches high, 5.3 inches wide and 1.7 inches deep. It weighs slightly more than four pounds. More information is available by writing to the company.

RCA sales, earnings up for second 1961 quarter

RCA's second quarter earnings rose 10% above the 1960 quarter on a sales increase of 4%, the company announced Friday (July 21).

Profits after federal income taxes amounted to $5.6 million during the second quarter, compared with $5.1 million in the 1960 quarter. Sales of products and services reached a second-quarter record of $360.1 million, compared with $345.8 million in the like period a year ago. Earnings per share of common stock were 29 cents, the same as a year ago.

In the first half of 1961, RCA sales totaled $721.8 million compared with $707 million in the corresponding 1960 period. Profits after taxes were $17.7 million, compared with $18.1 million during last year's first half. Per share earnings amounted to 97 cents, as against $1.14 on a smaller number of shares outstanding in 1960.

Technical topics...

U. S. rep • The English Electric Valve Co. Ltd., Chelmsford, England, has appointed Calvert Electronics, N. Y., as U. S. distributor for all its products other than television camera tubes.

Fm stereo exhibit • Manufacturers of high fidelity components will show new fm stereo equipment to the public at the New York High Fidelity Music Show Sept. 13-17 at the Trade Show Bldg. It will be among the first exhibits of such equipment since the FCC's approval last April of the General Electric-Zenith system of fm stereo broadcasting. More than $6 million worth of hi-fi components will be exhibited.

RCA awarded government contract • RCA received a $423,967 government contract last week to study ways of minimizing radio frequency interference problems. RCA's aerospace communications and controls division, defense electronic products, will handle the research and development contract which comes under the U. S. Dept. of Defense radio frequency compatibility program. A feasibility study will be made by RCA to evaluate the compatibility of electronic equipment in specified electromagnet environments.

Closing down • Sylvania Electric Products Inc. will discontinue operations at its receiving tube plant in Shawnee, Okla., by the end of the year. The company said the closing was forced by a number of economic factors including reduced demand for receiving tubes because of increased use of semi-conductor devices in electronic equipment. Sylvania, which is a subsidiary of General Telephone & Electronics Corp., also operates receiving tube plants in Emporium, Brookville and Altoona, Pa., and in Burlington, Iowa.

Three new additions • The development of three additional all-glass lead-in var receiving tubes was announced last week by RCA. The tubes, with a pin-circle diameter of 0.687 of an inch, are the RCA-6BC3, RCA-17BH3 and RCA-22BH3.

General Artists to be Desilu sales agent

ARNAZ BLAMES WGA STRIKE FOR LOWER NET PROFIT

General Artists Corp. has become network sales agent for Desilu Productions, Desilu president Desi Arnaz announced Tuesday (July 18) at the annual stockholders meeting of the tv program organization. Expressing the feeling that "the sales staff for our new and residual product should be more closely allied to the market, the networks, potential sponsors of tv shows and the advertising agencies who recommend such sponsorship to their major accounts," Mr. Arnaz said that leaving that end of the business up to GAC "will enable us to properly concentrate on the most important jobs of creativity and programming."

GAC is expected to announce today (July 24) that producer Don Sharpe, who has been closely allied with Desi Arnaz on various tv productions, will join GAC in a top television capacity. GAC has scheduled a reception in New York today to introduce Mr. Sharpe and announce details of his new assignment.

Mr. Arnaz touched briefly on the net profits after taxes of $319,146 for the fiscal year ended April 29, 1961, equal to 28 cents a share, contrasted to 70 cents a share earnings for the previous year, already covered in his letter to stockholders in the annual report. What happened, he explained, was the strike of the Writers Guild of America which tied up tv production for the first half of 1960, increased operating costs as a result of new union contracts, writeoffs of development costs of new tv shows not yet sold and a substantial reduction in the production of syndicated shows.

Ready for Quality - Turning to the future, he said that the public is ready for quality programming like Playhouse 90, I Love Lucy and other programs of the kind that made tv great ("unfortunately not what we’ve had in the past couple of years") and he pledged that Desilu is ready to provide this kind of program fare. The company’s board passed the regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share, in May, he said, because "Desilu’s management team feels that the assets of the company, including its available cash, should be utilized to the greatest possible extent at this time to create top quality entertainment. . . ."

Fewer Pilots - Last season Desilu made only two pilots in place of the usual six or eight, Mr. Arnaz reported, because of the unsettled state of the market. The Untouchables had been renewed for another season on ABC TV and a minimum of 10 story properties are being readied for pilot production, he said.

New Areas - Desilu is also "seriously considering setting up its own foreign and domestic distribution organization," Mr. Arnaz told the stockholders. The company has a substantial backlog of programs ready for residual use but has been holding back waiting for the world market to develop.

Pay tv, which he said "is just around the corner for millions of tv viewers," offers special advantages to Desilu, which, with its three studios and 35
Corinthian stations to continue ‘Doerfer Plan’

The Corinthian tv stations next fall will continue with public-affairs "Doerfer-Plan" programs in prime time although CBS-TV, with which the stations are affiliated, apparently will discontinue the practice of turning back a half-hour of option time on a once-a-month basis. CBS-TV’s reasoning appears to be tied in with its plan to expand public-affairs programming on the network.

In Doerfer Plan programming, toward which all three tv networks have subscribed the past season, a half-hour goes back about every third or fourth week to stations to showcase a local public-affairs effort.

Prior to the CBS-TV affiliates meeting last spring, it’s generally known, the network made a check among affiliates on whether they wished to have the once-a-month half-hour again in the coming season.

The Corinthian decision apparently stems from C. Wrede Petersmeyer’s request of the five owned stations in late May that they let him know of their reactions to his belief that the stations ought to continue to produce half-hour public affairs shows and these be worked into a regular, once-per-month scheduling.

As it has been worked out, the stations will schedule their shows in prime time, preempting a network program (or syndicated program in some cases), but probably at different times each month to avoid preempting any one advertiser more than once in a season.

In the past season, CBS-TV turned back to stations a half-hour (Thursdays, 10:30-11 p.m.) once each month but in the 1961-62 period plans to provide an hour-long CBS Reports each week.

Peak Periods • It’s reported that the stations polled by Mr. Petersmeyer, who is president of Corinthian, have indicated they may consider spotting many of the shows in the peak viewing periods (8-10:30 p.m.).

Corinthian feels that continued local production of these shows will prove to be worth the effort, particularly because of the stations’ past experience. Mr. Petersmeyer, for example, has pointed to the fact that this type of programming in prime time has been stimulating to the stations’ staffs and desirable to the stations, to tv as a medium and to the communities of which the stations are important parts.

The Corinthian analysis of the situation:

- The stations as a group have had a “living laboratory” in which they’ve been able to test their abilities to showcase ambitious local program efforts.
- They’ve found that stations have access to a wealth of source material.
- That the stations can often get the quality as well as quantity necessary in such programming.
- That manpower can be made available at most stations but that management must give this particular area a chance to develop.

It’s apparent also that Corinthian is thinking of the prime-time public-affairs programming in still another light: by moving the show around the schedule from month to month it will enable the station to pick its competitive slot (as against network shows). This advantage would be to build the audience and also make such a series more saleable.

But primarily the Corinthian goal is to produce results in the area, enhancing the stations’ standing within the community. Corinthian stations are KHOU-TV Houston, WANE-TV Fort Wayne, WISH-TV Indianapolis, KOTV (TV) Tulsa and KXTV (TV) Sacramento.

$9.3 million CBS football pact held illegal

OTHER PLANS SEEN ENDANGERED BY JUDGE'S RULING

U.S. District Court Judge Allan K. Grim ruled in Philadelphia last week that the National Football League's record $9.3 million, two-year "package plan" contract with CBS-TV (Blair vs. Rozelle) violates a decision he handed down Dec. 12, 1953, and therefore is in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The Dept. of Justice questioned the legality of the new NFL-CBS deal which gave the network the right to telecast the 98-game schedule of the league's 14 teams. It was in response to this opposition that Judge Grim made his decision.

Under the terms of the NFL-CBS contract, each of the league's teams would receive for its rights slightly more than $332,000 this year and next. In 1960 the 13 teams of that time negotiated individually, and the result was an unbalanced distribution of finances ranging from $75,000 to the Western Division champion Green Bay Packers to more than $225,000 to the Pittsburgh Steelers, an "also ran" in the Eastern Division.

Rival Package • The rival American Football League, operating an eight-team league in its first season last year, has a five year, $11 million package plan with ABC-TV. Judge Grim did not refer to this agreement.

"By this agreement (selling of the pooled television rights in a package)," the ruling said, "the member clubs ... have eliminated competition among themselves in the sale of television rights to their games.

"Clearly, this restricts the individual clubs from determining from which areas the telecasts of their games may be made, since the defendants [the NFL] have by their contract given to CBS the power to determine which games shall be telecast and where."

NFL Comment • Pete Rozelle, National Football Commissioner, attacked the ruling in a statement:

"This decision will have far-reaching effect on televised sports events. The National Football League contract is the same type that has been employed by other sports leagues and heretofore has gone unchallenged. (Mr. Rozelle was alluding to the AFL "package" and a similar one between the National Basketball League and NBC-TV).

"I am keenly disappointed with this decision, and we are consulting our attorneys as to the possible future course of action."

Network Silent • CBS refused to comment on the action pending a study of the various legal aspects.

How powerful is the television aspect of pro football? Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League said earlier this year that his fledgling league exists solely as a result of its contract with ABC-TV. "Pro football," he said, "survived without television, but the sport's period of expansion, solvency and growth is directly equated to its entrance into the field of television."

Not affected by Judge Grim's ruling are the NFL championship game and runner-up game rights which were plucked off earlier this year by NBC-TV in a $1.23 million, two-year pact.

Program notes...

Jungle series • Banner Films Inc., New York, has acquired world-wide distribution rights to the Jungle Girl series from the estate of Edgar Rice Burroughs. Produced by Republic Pictures, the 15-episode series includes one segment running 28 minutes. Others are 18 minutes apiece.

Cochran makes choice

The decision facing CBS-TV newscaster Ron Cochran was whether to remain a member of the network's news department, or quit and become a performer. Mr. Cochran chose the latter alternative last week. Beginning Oct. 11, he will be host-narrator for CBS-TV's Armstrong Circle Theatre, a documentary series which will be starting its 11th consecutive season on the air.

Mr. Cochran replaces another CBS-TV newscaster, Douglas Edwards, who left the show last season after 10 years.

The network's rule forbidding members of the news department to appear on non-CBS news shows brought about his resignation.

SELF-NORMALLING JACK
NEMS-CLARKE TYPE 999*

This self-normalling jack is for use in applications where a "normal-through" condition is known to be of a semi-permanent nature. It accepts a Nems-Clarke 966-A or 967 series patch cord plug for sampling or temporary re-routing. So used, the rear jack connection is automatically terminated to 70 or 50 ohm impedance. Removal of plug or patch card automatically restores "normal-through" condition. VSWR of less than 1.25:1 at frequencies up to 260 mc. is guaranteed. Minimum interload capacitance is achieved by wide electrical separation of parallel conductors, bringing the figure well below 60 db down at 260 mc.

Game shows making strong comeback

FORMAT GAINS POPULARITY DESPITE STRINGENT NETWORK CONTROLS

"Game shows," the tv baby that almost went out with the bath water when the quiz scandals broke two years ago, are on the rise again. But they're being scheduled primarily in daytime, and precautions are being taken by the networks to police the programs and keep merchandise and money prizes at comparatively modest levels.

A check by Broadcasting last week showed the following:

* CBS-TV, which dropped all game programs in the wake of the television quiz scandals in the winter of 1959, is back in the field in a substantial way with four daytime programs—Your Surprise Package, Double Exposure, Video Village and Face the Facts (with a Saturday-only version of Video Village, aimed at the children's audience, to start shortly).

* ABC-TV, which had utilized few game programs up to 1959, currently carries five—Camouflage, Seven Keys, Number, Please, Who Do You Trust and Queen For a Day.

NBC-TV continued to schedule a full complement of game programs even after the quiz scandals but, a spokesman pointed out, controls at the network level are stringent to eliminate any possible criticism.

NBC-TV now schedules Concentration, The Price Is Right, Say When, It Could Be You, Play Your Hunch, Truth Or Consequences and The Jan Murray Show, with Price and Concentration also seen in nighttime versions once a week.

Network officials stressed there is a distinct difference between a game show (which offers merchandise or money to a contestant who participates in a game), a quiz program (which usually offers large sums of money for the right answers), and a panel show (which spotlights the panel, rather than the contestant). They added that game programs never were tainted in any way but that CBS-TV and ABC-TV became reluctant to schedule them because of the climate of opinion which evolved from the quiz scandals.

Networks also were sensitive to criticism which charged that they did not control the acquisition and distribution of merchandise and the length of the "plugs" for products offered on the programs. Shortly after the quiz scandals, the networks established units to "police" programs that offered prizes. Control was asserted by the networks in these ways:

* They now acquire the merchandise themselves, either directly from manufacturers or through a so-called prize agency and direct the distribution of merchandise to winning contestants. This move was aimed at eliminating criticism that the producer and/or the prize agency kept duplicate prizes for in GAC's television department for the past two years, will also join the new literary division.

New studies - Tele-Visual Aids, Miami, has opened a new 500-square-foot studio, complete with sound stage, sound control room and editing facilities. The firm specializes in audio-visual services for television, industry and education. It is headed by Bernard Blynder, president.

Giant schedule - Metropolitan Broadcasting's WNEW New York will carry the complete 19-game schedule of the New York football Giants this fall. A lineup of four sponsors is expected to be announced shortly. The station's exclusive New York area radio coverage will begin Aug. 12, the first of five pre-season games. The regular schedule includes seven home games which will not be covered by local tv (WCBS-TV New York) and seven out-of-town games. WNEW has a two-year deal, with options, with the pro-football team. Announcers will be Joe Hasel, sports editor of WNEW, and Al DeKogatis, former Giants' player.

1962-63 entry - Screen Gems Inc. reports that Clarence Greene and Russell Rouse, who produced Tightrope for 9G, are preparing a new half-hour tv film program, The Seekers, for the 1962-63 season. The series will depict the adventures encountered by a group of scientists undertaking the solution of problems which their clients cannot solve.

Opening for business - Taynod Productions, N. Y., has been formed by Sherrill Taylor and Jory Nordland as a tv program packaging and production company. New York office will be established in September at 330 E. 46th St. The company will produce half-hour Kuklapolitans, which have been scheduled for NBC-TV next fall, and is preparing another half-hour tape show, Dear Abby, featuring lovelorn columnist Abigail Van Buren. Other offices will be opened in Chicago and Los Angeles. Mr. Taylor formerly was radio-tv senior group supervisor with WALTER Thompson Co., Chicago; Mr. Nordland has been a radio-tv producer with various companies.

First series - Project III Enterprises, N. Y., independent tv production firm, is planning its first series, All That Jazz, a hour-long situation comedy to be fi-themselves. Networks claim they buy the prizes but receive a reduced rate because of a modified "plug."

- The plug itself, in conformity with Section 317 of the Communications Act, is brief and devoid of descriptive phrases.

- Network staffers work closely together with the outside producer on selection of contestants, devising of questions and in program production coordination.

- Producers sign warrants that they will not reveal the questions to any contestants or 'rig' the programs in any way.

Jerry Hammer, president of Jerry Hammer Productions, which packages ABC-TV's Camouflage, agrees with network officials when they say that game shows will not over-run the schedules in the future but will nevertheless play an important role. He points out that the programs which have come on the air in the past five or six months all have stressed "visual appeal, fun and entertainment, rather than big prizes, which were more common two years ago." There must be an element of participation in the games by the home audience as well as the contestant and the studio audience, Mr. Hammer asserts.

'Program Balance' * Mr. Hammer believes that game programs supply a balance to daytime schedules, providing the audience with a varied diet—dramatic serials, off-network programs as well as game shows. Their acceptance by the audience, he said, is justified by the ratings, with Camouflage tuned in each day by more than 3 million homes.

Network officials supported Mr. Hammer's view on program balance. Larry White, vice president and director of daytime programs for CBS-TV, stressed that this consideration was the nanced and distributed by MGM-TV. Project II plans to deliver three hour-long series and three half-hour series during the next tv season.

Fargo color * NBC-TV has added Tales of Wells Fargo to its schedule of color programs for the 1961-62 season. The program, produced at Revue Studios, is entering its fifth season on television. In addition, it is being lengthened to an hour and will introduce five additional characters to be featured with Dale Robertson, the series' star.

OCDM show * Stations desiring Retro-spect, film series offered by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, may be in for a short wait. The popular series, offered eight weeks ago by OCDM's radio-tv division, already has had in excess of 200 requests. The prograrn, with CBS-TV's Douglas Edwards as host, features such famous newsreel footage as the Berlin Airlift, Cuba in Turmoil, Pearl Harbor and documentaries on Churchill, Mussolini, Gandhi, and baseball and movie stars. Prints are furnished free but stations are required to carry the complete series of 13 programs.

New Ford show * Tennessee Ernie Ford, whose program was sponsored by Ford Div., Ford Motor Co. on NBC-TV, will star in a daily daytime program on ABC-TV in 1962, according to Giraud Chester, ABC vice president in charge of tv daytime programming. The Tennessee Ernie Ford Show, half-hour musical variety program to be broadcast at a daytime hour to be announced, may originate from KGO-TV San Francisco. The program will be produced for ABC-TV by Belford Corp.

ETV series * Mark Damen, special projects producer for WQED (TV), Pittsburgh's etv station, will visit every European country except Spain, producing a five-program series, Of Sixes and Sevens. The series, a study of the European economic community, will be distributed nationally by National Educational Television.

'Street' sales * Public Affairs Radio Inc., N. Y., received orders from 10 stations for its daily two-and-one-half minute business and financial news feature, This is Wall Street. Stations and sponsors, all member firms of the New York Stock Exchange, include: KABK San Francisco, Kiddie, Peabody; WPAT New York, Hayden, Stone; WNAC Boston, Goodbody; WBRK Pittsfield,
Advisory council guides programming

The Community Advisory Council of WBAL-AM-FM-TV Baltimore, established last September to help the station produce programming more suited to the community needs, is showing its teeth.

Results of the council's efforts will become reality this September when the station presents "Minus 1,000,000," the first of nine monthly documentaries. This particular one deals with teenagers who drop out of high school prior to graduation. The documentaries, in varying lengths according to subject, are part of the station's Perspective series.

WBAL-TV this fall also will present a weekly newscast of the activities of the youth in its area to be prepared, written, filmed and presented by teenagers. The station also will present a weekly program featuring outstanding musical and dramatic talent.

The council is composed of 14 prominent civic, religious and educational leaders in the station's coverage area.

Mass., Goodbody; WHEC Rochester, N. Y., Bonbright; WHYS Ocala, Fla., A. M. Kidder; WLBZ Bangor, Me., Hornblower & Weeks; WLLO Minneapols, Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis; KFMK Houston, E. F. Hutton, and KDAL Duluth, Minn., Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Time change - WCBS-TV Views the Press, the New York station's weekly program featuring an analysis of newspapers, will shift to Saturdays at 7:15-7:30 p.m. NYT, beginning July 29. It will stay in that time period until the end of September when the 15-minute series returns to its regular time, 3:45 p.m. Sundays.

UAA films sold in 20 markets

The A-O-KAY's from UAA, in their first twenty days of television release, have been sold in 20 markets, together representing a gross volume of over $1 million, United Artists Assoc. reports.

Markets buying the 32 United Artists features in the past week include Buffalo, Providence, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Denver and Phoenix.

Films include Twelve Angry Men, Paths of Glory, and Paris Holiday.

ABC INTERNATIONAL INVADES PANAMA

Will assist local company in building tv station

ABC International's next tv station affiliation in Latin America will be in Panama City. An agreement between ABC International and Televisora Nacional, S.A., announced Wednesday (July 18), calls for the latter to construct the new station, with assistance from ABC. Televisora is assigned channels 2 and 6 for coverage throughout Panama, where current tv set circulation is said to exceed 25,000.

In addition to engineering, financial and administrative assistance, ABC will also act as program purchasing agent and sales representative for the Panama station, which is expected to start operations by the end of 1961. ABC International's other Latin American affiliations are the five-station VeneVision Network in Venezuela; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Guatemala City, Guatemala; San Jose, Costa Rica; San Salvador, El Salvador; Tegucigalpa, Honduras; Managua, Nicaragua, and Guayaquil, Ecuador. Elsewhere, ABC is affiliated with tv stations in Adelaide and Brisbane, Australia, and with a new station under construction in Beirut, Lebanon.

New bowling league aims for television coverage

The new National Bowling League, which will feature a regular schedule of inter-city matches commencing in October, is aiming for tv exposure. According to the NBL's Los Angeles office (1239 North Highland Ave., Sports Network of New York has been commissioned to make a television pilot of the league's first exhibition match inside a league stadium at Kansas City today (July 24).

League Commissioner Dick Charles said that sportscaster Chick Hearn will handle the commentary, Douglas Lawrence will produce the pilot and Phil Shukken will write.

Ten cities, including New York and Los Angeles, will have franchises in the NBL, which envisions a structure comparable to professional football and baseball leagues. League is to meet five nights a week for 26 weeks starting Oct. 13.

Mr. Charles said that several networks and sponsors have expressed an interest in the new NBL and that he had a goal of "well over 100 tv stations by the end of the first playing season."

Mr. Charles headquarters in the Curtis Bldg., 2301 North Akard St., Dallas, Tex.
Product comparisons ruled out by ITA

The British Advertising Assn. has recommended that manufacturers be allowed freedom to explain specific product advantages in television advertising. The recommendation was made after a recent ruling by Independent Television Authority that comparisons be stopped.

The BAA holds that product comparison is a strong selling point. The association also informed the Pilkington Committee (a committee established by the British Postmaster General to make an intensive study on television there and determine its future) by official memorandum of its "uncompromising" position against the new advertising tax established in England.

CAB radio tape exchange

Tapes of outstanding radio broadcasts will be exchanged by members of the Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters under a new plan approved at a recent meeting of the CAB board of directors in Winnipeg. CAB President Don Jamieson said only radio shows will be exchanged at first; exchanges may follow among private TV stations as well. He said the exchange system should help stations raise their Canadian content with the best productions of private radio programming.

No trend away from CBC-TV

Mass withdrawals from the CBC-TV network will not result on account of ruling by the Board of Broadcast Governors last week releasing CHCH-TV Hamilton, Ontario, and CJSS-TV Cornwall, Ontario, from their affiliation. The two stations were the only holdouts when CBC introduced a two-year contract at the start of 1961. Other CBC affiliates are committed to the network during the contract period, and under present regulations may not belong at the same time to the new private CTV network.

German governments buy tv

The West German Laender Governments announced last week that they had agreed to purchase Freies Fernsehen GmbH. and all its properties for about $4.5 million. Freies Fernsehen, a private television company, has been producing programs on tape and film in anticipation of a future television license from the government which was denied. The company is equipped with modern production facilities including American video tape recording units and mobile studios.

German Laender plan to use the facilities and the large program library for television stations of their own. They intend to establish a Laender Network this year or early in 1962.

Bigger program revenue seen from overseas sales

Revenue from the sales of U.S. television programs abroad should run between $35 million and $43 million in 1961 and can reach $50 million in 1962, John G. McCarthy, president of the Television Program Export Assn. reported last week.

Mr. McCarthy made these estimates to the U.S. government for use by American representatives to the current Geneva negotiations on tariff and trade. He pointed out that the rise in business to $50 million can be attained next year if restrictions in the United Kingdom and Brazil are lessened.

He offered the following breakdown on revenue for 1961: Continental Europe, Africa and the Near and Middle East—$3-$4 million; United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and other English-speaking markets—$23-$29 million; Latin America—$3-$6 million, and the Far East—$3.75-$4 million.

Nova Scotia liquor ads

Tv and radio stations in the Maritime province of Nova Scotia will be able to carry liquor advertising beginning Sept. 1, under liberalized regulations announced by the provincial liquor commission. But ads will not be allowed on tv before 9 p.m., and no brewer or distiller will be allowed to sponsor more than 90 minutes on any one station per week. This time limit may be extended to permit complete coverage of specific sports or cultural events. Family and drinking scenes, bottles and glasses are forbidden, but advertisers can show bottle labels, trademarks, brand names, slogans, recipes and descriptions of merits of their product within the "limit of good taste."

Abroad in brief...

New show • Housefurnishings Guild of Canada, Toronto, plans a 13-week tv series on interior design, likely to be carried over the new Canadian CTV network.

Summer fare • Westminster Paper Co. has signed Bringing Up Buddy, U.S.-produced show on the CBC English Network's summer schedule, for 13 weeks.
Who's on first in Detroit?

Any resemblance between the Detroit Tigers fighting for the American League pennant and the assembled lot pictured above is purely the figment of a promoter's imagination. The sporting lot above are Detroit DJs and sportscasters who produced 20 minutes of hilarity between games at a Detroit-New York doubleheader. 50% of the gate receipts were turned over to the Knorr Foundation building fund for Hillsdale College in honor of the late Fred Knorr, Knorr stations, who was scalped fatally in Florida early this year.

Radio course teaches safe boating practices

More than 100 youngsters, ages 10-14, are studying for their Coast Guard boating certificates via a Sunday-morning program launched June 25 on WGLI Babylon, N. Y. Titled Young Boatman's Safety Course, the seven-week, half-hour series is presented as an experiment in cooperation with the New York Conservation Dept. and the Coast Guard Auxiliary Massapequa (Long Island) Flotilla 13-2.

Previously, youngsters who studied for the certificate to operate motorboats in the state attended classroom sessions. Participants in the WGLI series will be qualified to take the Coast Guard test. The course, (8-8:30 a.m.), first of its kind in the state, is conducted by an officer of the Coast Guard auxiliary. The State Conservation Dept. will make the taped lessons available to any station requesting them, and WGLI will repeat the course next January to prepare young boatmen for next summer's boating season.

Hollywood stars help launch new CHUM d. j.

To introduce new announcer Bob McAdorey, CHUM Toronto staged a Hollywood Day in which five stars became CHUM disc jockeys for a day. While CHUM regulars leisured, Jim Backus (with Mr. Magoo), Jane Morgan, Pat Boone, Mitzi Gaynor and Bill (Jose Jimenez) Dana entertained the listening audience via pre-recorded tape.

Returning to their posts the five CHUM regulars put Mr. McAdorey through a 16-hour audition marathon, then unanimously accepted him as a member of their staff.

While fun pretty much was the key-note of the day, CHUM officials often think of the star-studded DJ cast and the larger-than-usual audience that day.

New York viewing guide

The three network-owned TV stations in New York are cooperating in the publication of a monthly bulletin, titled Previews, providing details of scheduled educational, religious, news, informational, music, interview, discussion and special programs. Following the example of stations in some 25 other markets, WABC-TV, WCBS-TV and WNBC-TV, all New York, have set up a joint mailing list. The project stems from the Television Information Office's proposal in April 1960 that stations promote their quality programs through special guides. Previews started with the July listings. New York's other four TV stations were asked to cooperate in the venture but declined for various reasons.

Graduation day at WTMJ-TV

WTMJ-TV Milwaukee graduated 317 persons July 9 who successfully passed examination at the conclusion of a series of first-aid-instruction telecasts aired by the station since April in cooperation with the American Red Cross. A three-hour exam was held at WTMJ-TV's auditorium studio. Of 1,671 who registered for the TV course, 345 appeared for the final exam, 317 passing.

Drumbeats...

Soldiers' choice = Expedition: Colorado, a TV documentary series produced by ABC-TV affiliate KBTV (TV) Denver, has been selected by the U. S. Dept. of Defense for showing to military personnel around the world. The series, produced in conjunction with Colorado educational institutions, was one of 71 local Expedition! series produced by the network's affiliates.

Old radios = As part of CFAC Radio Week in Calgary, Alberta, the radio station asked listeners to lend it any receivers dating back to 1931 or earlier, then displayed the old models in a downtown store window from which the daytime schedule was being specially broadcast. Visitors were asked to guess which model was oldest, and first three correct answers drawn at the end of the week got 10 lp recordings. The oldest factory-built model in the contest was a Westinghouse Aeriola of about 1921 vintage.

Floating luncheon • Timebuyers of Chicago advertising agencies were taken for a ride Wednesday for a two-hour lunch break aboard the S. S. Hollingbery on Lake Michigan. Host for the event was George P. Hollingbery, board chairman of the radio-tv station representative firm of the same name. Nearly 100 agency people turned out despite inclement weather.

Viewers on the run • To promote its Million Dollar Movie, WKTV (TV) Utica, N. Y., offered viewers free trading stamps for identifying coming shows. Every 20 minutes during each movie, viewers’ cards were drawn. Viewers thus selected, had 10 minutes to call the station after his name was mentioned; otherwise his prize—Triple S Blue Stamps—was forfeited. Only once during the six-week contest did the station draw a card that did not send the viewer running to the telephone.

‘Cool’ promotion • A summer promotion campaign built around “cool” sounds is being conducted by Westinghouse-owned WIND Chicago with station breaks and sound effects of running water, clinking ice cubes and similar temperature soothers. Listener contests are scheduled based on correct identification of the sounds.

Meet ‘Sam Dune’—WABC's beachcomber

Weekend sunbathers at New York area beaches are the target of a summer audience-builder promotion at WABC New York. A roving beachcomber named “Sam Dune,” a WABC creation who visits with portable radio listeners at a different beach each Saturday and Sunday, encourages a greater tune-in to WABC. “Sam” distributes puzzles which are to be sent to the station for a prize after proper completion. Nominal prizes such as beach hats and beach bags are awarded for accurate entries. In a series of WABC spots listeners are told to stay tuned to learn the exact whereabouts of the beachcomber.

How Bob Maciejczak earned an extra $18,827

Bob Maciejczak works at U.S. Steel’s South Works in Chicago, Illinois, and he’s the Corporation’s champion Employee Suggestion Plan winner. Over the last four years, he has had sixteen suggestions adopted—and he’s been awarded $18,827.

Thousands of U.S. Steel employees have received cash awards that are based on benefits generated by their suggestions. Since 1957, employees have sent in over 200,000 suggestions; and more than 46,000 have been adopted and put into operation. The Employee Suggestion Plan is one of the many ways U.S. Steel develops better techniques, better employees—and better steel.

OUR RESPECTS to Dr. Daniel David Palmer, president, Palmer Enterprises

Broadcasting and public service are family traditions.

Dr. Palmer was vice president of the Palmer interests, embracing the broadcasting stations and the Palmer School of Chiropractic, Davenport, as well as a printing plant, public and private clinics associated with the school and Clear View Sanitarium. He also holds the office of treasurer.

Citizens on the local scene point out that “Dr. Dave,” as he is warmly addressed by students and business associates, through these decades has been a principal influence for the encouragement of broad public service through broadcasting and personal participation. They observe that through his great devotion, service and involvement in local charitable and civic affairs he has by example led the way for the Palmer administrators and employees.

Radio Pioneer • Dr. Palmer has been in broadcasting ever since the early 1920s when he was a young but enthusiastic radio amateur in the “pigeon roost” of the family home on Brady St. hill in Davenport. It was here that he first heard Robert Karlowa broadcast talk and music on his amateur station 9BY at Rock Island, Ill., just across the Mississippi River.

Young David’s excitement over the new communications medium prompted his father to purchase the station in March 1922 and move it to quarters atop the Palmer school. Now WOC, it quickly earned its place as an Iowa institution. In 1930 WHO was acquired.

The Palmer stations subsequently pioneered fm and tv in their respective areas too, including color tv. WHO is a Class 1-A clear channel outlet on 1040 kc with 50 kw. WOC is on 1420 kc with 5 kw. WHO-TV is on ch. 13, WOC-TV ch. 6, both full power. The radio-tv outlets in both markets are affiliates of NBC, an association that began in 1927 when WOC became western leg of the early NBC radio network.

Part of Family • Growing up with WOC is the background that gives unique emphasis to Dr. Palmer’s sincerity when he explains how he feels about each of the Palmer stations. “This is a family obligation to me,” he states. The station associations “have given me a sense of real family responsibility to our community, because I know what a wonderful opportunity our radio and tv stations have to continue to help make our community healthy, live and prosperous.” He consistently has refused offers to sell the properties.

All of the Palmer stations long have enjoyed a record of program and public-service achievement, but Dr. Palmer is aiming still higher. “We must continue to be a deeply interwoven part of the life of our community and a vital force for good,” he believes, and “I intend to see that WOC and WHO are even increasingly dedicated to our local economic and civic affairs.”

Dr. Palmer puts his beliefs of close personal interest in the welfare of others into practice in the community of his employees as well as the community at large. He recently further expanded pension and bonus plan benefits for station personnel at WOC and WHO, the cost absorbed by the company.

Expansion • Dr. Palmer now is directing extensive modernization of the Palmer School of Chiropractic. He next plans to construct a new million-dollar color tv and radio studio for the WOC properties.

He foresees an eventful and successful future for color tv and his expectation is high for fm too. His plans include multiplex stereo operation in fm and expansion of fm programming separate from that on am.

Dr. Palmer predicts continuing growth for am radio also, particularly for its broad and basic service to the communities of mid-America and the vast, rich rural market there.

Native Son • Dr. Daniel David Palmer was born Jan. 12, 1906, in Davenport. He is named for his paternal grandfather who was the discoverer of the chiropractic technique and philosophy, which were fully developed by his late father, Dr. B. J. Palmer. The Palmer School of Chiropractic, founded in 1895, now has nearly 1,000 students on campus and 25,000 graduates.

He attended public school in Davenport and after the family acquired WOC he spent every spare hour at the station, first running errands, then later serving as announcer and a general helper in every department. Early year sheet music pluggers like Little Jack Little, Wendall Hall and Tom Small, and other name personalities, soon became close family friends during their stops at WOC.

From these experiences, through the years, Dr. Palmer can recall many stories of both humor and respect for many broadcasting pioneers, from network officials to talent. He can recall, too, early broadcasts of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, of Lindbergh, and of “Radio Rex” Willets’ cooking show for the ladies. He can’t forget early on-air benefits to buy crystal sets for shut-ins, because as a young man it was Dr. Palmer’s job to deliver them.

In high school he made his mark in “business” as well as in scholastics. He was advertising manager of the school paper and senior yearbook and twice he was elected president of his class, in both his junior and senior years. Dr. Palmer earned his B.S. degree in economics in 1929 at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the U. of Pennsylvania.

Family Honor • During the 1930s, after he had become vice president of Palmer Enterprises and out of respect for the Palmer family tradition, he enrolled in the Palmer School of Chiropractic for the full course (about 4,300 classroom hours) and was graduated with the D.C. degree. Three years ago he spent a semester at Harvard for graduate study in management.

Dr. Palmer married Agnes High at Davenport on June 27, 1943. They have three girls: Bonnie Joan, 12; Jenny Wren, 11, and Vicki Ann, 8. Mrs. Palmer joins her husband in wide interest in community affairs. The list of groups in which he is active fills a page. Dr. Palmer is a mason and a member of the Episcopal Church. His hobbies: golf, baseball and billiards.

Then why the hiatus?

LEGISLATION to reorganize the FCC to make it easier on the commissioners stands some chance of passage at this session—after the stunning defeat of the first administration-supported bill to give the chairman dictatorial power.

We hope the new legislation—perhaps modified—will become law because members shouldn't be burdened with miscellaneous and non-policy, non-adversary matters.

The FCC does carry a heavy load, particularly the chairman who is executive officer.

But we wonder why the FCC must take one-twelfth of the year off if it has such a horrendous backlog and if there aren't enough hours in one day. No other independent agency—not the FTC, SEC, CAB, ICC or FPC—takes a summer hiatus. Most arrange for at least a quorum all summer long. Vacations are staggered.

While the FCC vacations in August, most staff members do not. They have to catch up or work on budgets and annual reports. Practitioners can’t quit because, as of now several very important rulemaking procedures are outstanding, with comments due when the FCC returns immediately after Labor Day.

Commissioners do not and should not have to punch a time clock. It does seem to us, however, that the commissioners should be able to arrange to have a quorum present at all times and still have each commissioner get his month off. After all, Congress itself will remain in session until Labor Day.

Exposure in Chicago

FROM a standing start a few weeks ago unusual interest suddenly is being manifested in the symposium on broadcasting at Northwestern U. School of Law in Chicago next month.

The reason isn't difficult to discern. Broadcasting has been subjected to unprecedented criticism and the regulatory vise has tightened in the intervening weeks. The symposium, which first had the aspect of a prosaic, legalistic study of communications history now is being built up as a historic debate on freedom and responsibility of broadcasting—mainly television.

The participants are men prominent in law, communications and journalism. The event is a homecoming for the FCC's new, provocative chairman, Newton N. Minow, one of the law school's bright, young alumni who in five months in Washington has had more exposure on front pages and on the air than our first astronaut.

Mr. Minow is taking it seriously. He has a squad of FCC lawyers researching for him. He has retained a consultant on public relations who knows Chicago and has worked in broadcasting.

We can only surmise that the thrust of his homecoming thesis will be that the FCC can legally review programming without censoring and that newspapers are different, using the familiar cliche that anyone can start a newspaper or a magazine but a license is needed for television (and radio) and wavelengths are scarce.

Fortunately there are protagonists of free radio on the panel. A practical broadcaster, J. Leonard Reinsch, is the symposium chairman. W. Theodore Pierson, an eminent Washington attorney specializing in communications, has made an exhaustive study of constitutional law and censorship. John W. Guider, president of WMTW (TV) Portland, Ore., and an attorney formerly in Washington practice, can speak from practical experience as well as legal theory. Lining up with Mr. Minow will be Dean Roscoe Barrow, author of Barrow Report on network practices, and several other law school deans and professors.

Broadcasters will observe with interest the performance of NAB's new president, LeRoy Collins, who assumed office almost coincident with Mr. Minow. Their views in certain areas have coincided. But he has inveighed against "government thought control" in his most recent utterance.

The nation's press is interested too. Although most editors and publishers have gloated over the broadcasters' plight because of competitive instincts, the more discerning ones know that if censorship through program control strikes broadcasting, the press is only one step removed.

A shot in the head

THE annual Voice of Democracy contest in recent years may have failed to realize the expectations of its originators, but that is not reason enough for the NAB's decision—which was reported here last week—to quit as a co-sponsor.

It seems to us the NAB would have been wise to think of ways to improve and expand the contest and to associate it more directly with broadcasters.

No one knows precisely how many high school students have competed since the contest was begun in 1947, but their number certainly runs well into the millions. Among them the image of broadcasting must be presumed to have been enhanced.

There seems now at least a possibility that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a co-sponsor of the contest in recent years, will attempt to continue it and will seek the cooperation of individual broadcasters. This would not provide the benefits to radio and television that a well-organized sponsorship by the NAB would provide. From then on it would be a VFW contest, and stations assisting in it would gain only secondary recognition.

It is true that the NAB had increasing difficulty in persuading its members to do the admittedly tiresome work of organizing local contests, and we can understand why the NAB headquarters would conclude that the contest was losing popularity among broadcasters. But if improved public relations are a principal objective of NAB, the VOD should have been revitalized instead of dumped. The contest needed a shot in the arm. What it got was a shot in the head.

"It's way past sign-off time. I think somebody just forgot to turn things off!"

ABOVEBOARD ALL THE WAY

An agency messenger boy was suspected of stopping along the way for unbusiness-like purposes. But when asked why it took him two hours to get to 46th Street, or all morning to the West Side, he always claimed he had been lost in the subway. To keep him aboveground where he could read street signs, the agency bought him a bicycle. His first assignment on wheels was to pick up and return a paper of indescribable value*. The distance was one mile straight each way.

Madison Avenue being totally devoid of traffic, the messenger whizzed there in three minutes with the wind at his back. He returned in four minutes flat pedalling against the wind. Now the agency wants to know how long the same trip should take him when there is no wind (and no traffic). Assume that the terrain is flat and that he applies the same force to the pedals at all times.

Send us the answer and we'll send you a prize you're sure to enjoy in any weather. It may be round or rectangular, thick or thin, solid or flappy. Just let it come as a nice surprise.

THE MOST TRAVELLED BRIEFCASE IN BROADCASTING BELONGS TO AN HR SALESMAN

During the past year HR salesmen rolled up more than 400,000 air miles visiting HR radio and television stations. HR salesmen take planned station trips every year, so that all HR salesmen visit all HR stations. These travel schedules are carefully planned by HR management far in advance and on a comprehensive company-wide basis. Because of HR’s LIMITED STATION LIST each salesman thoroughly learns all the facts about EACH station he represents. When an HR salesman says: “I was there, I know,” you can be sure he was and does.
