This year
the most watched news team in Northern California is also the most honored.

So far this year, KGO-TV, San Francisco, has captured more Northern California Area EMMYs (ten) than any other station. KGO-TV's "News Scene" is also the big winner in CAPTRA, the California Associated Press Television Radio Association News Competition. To date, News Scene has won seven CAPTRA awards in nine categories. No other station has taken more than three.

In most of the world in which we exist, the idea of simplicity has lost its place. Perhaps simplicity relates somehow or even springs from a truthfulness, an honesty.

Now there's a burden.

"Because as battered as we become through the complexity of what are today's perceived truths, we all, I think, still look and hope for the directness and understandability of communication that is simple.

"Perhaps, the reason for the loss of simplicity was not at all dramatic; perhaps it just wasn't very hip.

"Perhaps, as in the case of film communication, a need arose for us to caricature, but then the caricature continued until there was no longer any resemblance to the original: the caricature became the message.

"It's much safer to caricature, especially in the business of advertising films. After all, if you attempt simplicity, the exactness of your idea is exposed; and if that is weak, you stand a very healthy chance of failure. If you caricature it doesn't succeed, at least you have a little joke.

"That attitude is made graphic, in parallel fashion in commercial production, by that currently popular device, the fog filter, which has replaced the 8K as an adjunct for directorial ability.

"As an aside, in viewing some of the fog-filtered ideas on television, I believe that in several instances, behind the haze, I noticed an actor doing some absolutely wonderful business. Obviously, it's a beautiful accessory; obviously, it's not an idea. But then, neither is caricature.

"Simplicity allows for subtlety and I respond to that; I believe the quality of life is determined not by major events; rather, the minor ones. That's why film is such a beautiful material: it can be so human. Film is classic. It is different than videotape, but it has to do with the talent involved, too. It's like pencil and paper. If somebody can't write, it makes no difference what kind of pencil he has. Or whether it even has lead in it. It's the subtlety of the human brain, as opposed to the subtlety of the electronic brain. In film there is historically great respect for the director or cinematographer; in videotape, for the chief engineer.

"Eastman is film that everyone knows. When you pick up the film, you're not concerned. Do you check it? Do you test it? Since nobody does that, you have to assume the quality is at least reasonable. I've never had any trouble with it, and I don't expect trouble with it. The film is expected to be perfect, and we can make it what we wish. Another burden.

"Communication has lost so much clarity that we now even have books on body language: we totally ignore the rush of words and peer intently into the source hoping for some small sign. My God, isn't that how we started?

"Television advertising, once very innovative, has relegated itself to a very conservative position.

"It would seem to be a marvelous contribution, if indeed, this attitude-swaying medium were to lead the way in making the English language, once again, a simple, worthwhile, dependable source of communication."

C-PM going up. Networks were still screening pilots of new shows for prospective buyers last week and still fine-tuning their price structures, but there appeared to be no question about way rates were headed. Agency sources said they expect 1975-76 prime-time minute rates to represent 5%-6% rise from this year's cost-per-thousand homes, taking it to year-round average of $5 or more. Network sources tended to confirm those estimates but some said figure would be closer to 8%. In any case, new selling season was on, and first major buy to be reported - though unofficially - was by Ralston Purina Co., said to have given NBC biggest prime-time order in Ralston's history.

Detente? Is there portent of peace in TV-cable warfare if CATV copyright agreement evolves? Several TV licensees who had foresight to pioneer in cable perceive signs of thaw in long-prevailing chill. They recall same evolution when diehard radio broadcasters resisted TV competition generation ago. Several reasons are cited: elapse of time, recognition that cable is here to stay, sympathies aroused by hard times and tight money that have troubled bigger MSO's, more reasonable attitudes of some dissidents.

Another factor is realization that proposed short-spaced VHF station drop-ins could affect viability of cable systems as well as VHF and UHF stations. Some observers cautiously venture that Association of Maximum Service Telecasters, most vigorous of trade groups opposing drop-ins, may find basis to reappraise cable systems (without necessarily compromising opposition to pay cable or program siphoning) in revised definition of "maximum television service."

Signs of life. House Commerce Committee Chairman Harry O Staggers (D-W. Va.), who was blamed for death of license-renewal legislation last year, has told colleagues he wants "compromise" bill passed this year. Presumably, he means compromise on length of license term. His committee voted to extend present three years to four. Full House and Senate later voted for five, in bills that otherwise differed sharply. Word of Mr. Staggers' renewed interest came from Representative G. V. Montgomery (D-Miss.) at breakfast meeting with delegation of Mississippi broadcasters in Washington last week.

Another Mississippi Democrat, Representative Jamie Whitten, has suggested course that he says would expedite action on renewal legislation: Introduce in Senate and House exact bills each passed last year. That would obviate need for hearings and speed bills to Senate-House conference, where most controversial legislation winds up anyway. National Association of Broadcasters isn't cotonning to that idea, however. It found flaws in both Senate and House bills that passed and is now seeking what it calls perfected measure, introduced by Representative Louis Frey (R-Fla.) (Broadcasting, March 31).

Money counts. FCC Commissioner Benjamin L. Hooks, generally regarded as preoccupied with minority affairs, is out to make niche as independent force in FCC budgeting, which constitutes basic blueprint of agency's activities. He thinks present budget is inadequate, particularly in common-carrier field but also in broadcasting. Mr. Hooks sees need for more personnel to investigate complaints, more technical expertise, more long-range planning. He thinks FCC relies too much on other agencies and regulated industries for technical input. He also wants to provide resources, including legal counsel, to help citizens participate in FCC affairs.

Mr. Hooks had intended to present views in statement, separate from commission's, to House Appropriations subcommittee last week (see page 28) but was unable to prepare it in time. He'll submit it later.

ABC-TV's bench. High-level source at ABC-TV says network has begun production on Heaven Help Us and Viva Valdez, two sitcoms from Columbia Pictures Television, that just missed 1975-76 prime-time schedule and are showing for second-season berths next winter. ABC is also keeping options on seven other series for possible second-season use, source says. They include four 60-minute dramas - The Best Years of Our Lives (Lorimar), The Family (Spelling Goldberg), How the West Was Won (MG-M-TV) and Wonder Woman (Warner Bros. Television) - and three sitcoms: Charo (Aaron Ruben/John Rich Productions), Father O Father (Rich Eustis/Al Rogers) and The Last Detail (Columbia Pictures Television).

UHF drop-outs? Broadcast-industry spectrum watchers have spotted what appears to be interesting coincidence in appendix to report FCC's Chief Engineer's Office has issued on UHF-TV channel assignments program (UCAP). Appendix answered question of what UCAP would produce if 102 mhz of UHF space were removed. Watchers recalled that two years ago Clay T. Whitehead, then director of Office of Telecommunications Policy, wrote FCC that government could use about 100 mhz of spectrum now assigned to UHF broadcasting. Results of removing 102 mhz, according to UCAP: 36 occupied assignments in channel range 53-69 would be dislodged, but it would be possible to realign only 21. Fifteen would be lost. In addition, 151 unoccupied assignments would be lost.

Change of scene. Traditional series of TV network affiliate conventions that starts with CBS-TV this week, all at Century Plaza hotel, Los Angeles, won't be repeated next year. With two anniversaries to celebrate, nation's 200th and its own 50th, NBC will hold joint convention of TV and radio affiliates at colonial Williamsburg, Va., April 25-28, 1976. CBS Radio affiliates will also meet at Williamsburg (Sept. 18-20, 1976), but CBS-TV will return to Los Angeles. ABC-TV is considering San Francisco for next year. ABC Radio meets during NAB convention, next one in Chicago.
Top of the Week

The times in September. The networks have finally jigsawed their respective prime-time schedules for 1975-76 into place, and agency handicappers cautiously predict CBS will come in first again. But whichever emerges on top, it's costing all three a record $18.1 million weekly in production costs. Page 21. Night-by-night charts show how ABC, CBS and NBC will stack up against each other when the new season premieres. Page 22.

MacDonald's constructive criticism. Curbing sex and violence on television without abridging the First Amendment is tricky business, one family-hour critic says. But House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert MacDonald has some suggestions. Page 23.

Rodino off camera. While praising TV coverage of impeachment hearings, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino tells NAB meeting of state broadcaster association officers that television and radio coverage of Congress could create "events." He says private discussion among lawmakers is as necessary as broadcast coverage of floor proceedings. Another speaker at presidents' conference, FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley, is the popular favorite. Page 23.

It's only money. House Appropriations Subcommittee quizzed Chairman Richard E. Wiley on FCC stance in regard to Canadian pressure on U.S. TV, distant-signal sports, sex and violence and children's television. Money matters, namely the $49.8-million budget request, were secondary concern. Page 28.

Fairness, round two. Senator John O. Pastore again hears from both sides on the fairness doctrine. NBC's Bill Monroe and WMCA's Peter Straus comment on the inhibiting effects of the doctrine while one religious broadcaster calls it the "Magna Carta" of the electronic age. Page 30.

Roadblock? Cable liability, says register of copyrights at House hearing on copyright legislation, is the biggest sticking point in moving the bill along. Page 31.

Universal opens wide. Producer will make a big splash for the 500-theater premiere of its feature film, "Jaws," with a three-day prime-time network campaign that will cost at least $1 million. Page 38.

Conscientious objector. One of 20 radio stations to carry the Army's paid recruitment ads has dropped out of the test program. WMMS-FM Cleveland says "aggressive militancy" is antagonistic to its audience; N. W. Ayer offers rebuttal. Page 39.

Pay-cable protest. ABC and NBC claim FCC relaxation of the movie element of the pay cable rules would not increase programing diversity — it would decrease it. Page 41.

AIM shot down again. At NBC stockholders meeting, Accuracy in Media supporters criticize news operations, try to push through proposal for an ombudsman. Idea only gets 5.1% of the vote. Page 45.

FCC overrides local franchise, denies Teleprompter certificate after bribery in Johnstown FCC has taken unprecedented step of ignoring wishes of local cable television franchising authority and has denied application for certification of franchise. Its refusal last week came on Teleprompter Corp.'s request for authority to operate in Johnstown, Pa., and is based on conviction of Teleprompter and its then president, Irving Kahn, for bribery of local officials in obtaining franchise in 1966.

Commission, in order adopted by 4-3 vote, said it was acting to deprive "wrongdoer" of fruit of wrongdoing and to preserve integrity of commission's certification process established by rules adopted in 1972. Those rules are not retroactive, but commission said one ground for its action was that Teleprompter's Johnstown system was not "lawfully" carrying television signals and, therefore, its operation was not grandfathered.

Commission action, long expected (Broadcasting, Feb. 3), was on application Teleprompter was directed to file two years ago, well in advance of Dec. 31, 1975, expiration date of present franchise. Commission said it did not want to defer review of Teleprompter's qualifications. And action came month after city of Johnstown granted Teleprompter second 10-year franchise and Teleprompter filed new application for certification.

FCC acknowledged that its role in selection of franchisees is normally limited to insuring that minimum requirements of its rules are observed, and that local officials are responsible for determining legal, character, financial and other qualifications of prospective cable operators "as part of a public proceeding affording due process." But, it said, Teleprompter case was "extraordinary," requiring commission to enlarge its role. "When bribery corrupts the local franchising process," it said, "the foundation of our certification process is destroyed." Franchise illegally obtained had no official status before FCC, commission added.

Majority comprised Chairman Richard E. Wiley and Commissioners Charlotte Reid, Benjamin L. Hooks and Glen O. Robinson. Dissenters were Robert E. Lee, James H. Quello and Abbott Washburn. Mr. Quello, in statement in which Mr. Washburn joined, said action "has set precedent for radical departure from the existing regulatory scheme of permitting localities to review the character qualifications of cable television operators." Mr. Washburn added, in brief separate statement, commission "should not reach down into the local community and attempt to usurp the authority of the Johnstown franchising body." Mr. Lee expressed concern about financial impact of action on Teleprompter, whose Johnstown system has 13,000 subscribers: "By our action today, we seek to cripple Teleprompter by imposing a zealous and compulsive penalty upon the company, its officers, its stockholders and the public — none of whom today were connected with the earlier offense."

Teleprompter had argued that commission lacked statutory authority to deny it certification and that statute of limitations barred further action against company for actions that occurred in 1966. But commission said its action did not run counter to expressed legislative purpose. It also said it had not taken Teleprompter's past actions into account to punish company "but to frame a remedy that would insure the integrity of existing rules." Statute of limitations does not apply to that kind of retrospective evaluation of conduct, it added.

That may not be last word in case. Teleprompter's Washington counsel, Jay Ricks, said company will appeal decision. Commission's Cable Television Bureau may petition commission to reconsider. Bureau had argued that Teleprompter's application for certification should be denied but that commission should not disqualify company from seeking new franchise from city. FCC authorized Teleprompter to continue operating in Johnstown only through Dec. 31 -- or until 30 days after disposition of judicial appeal.

Ascertainment overhaul formally proposed by FCC

FCC has opened proceeding to overhaul procedures under which renewal applicants ascertain community problems. Principal proposed changes contained in notices of inquiry and proposed rulemaking include requirement that licensees ascertain throughout license period instead of within last six months as now. Stations in communities of less than 10,000 population and located outside Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area would be exempt from formal ascertainment procedures. (Some 1,900 radio and 14 television stations would be affected.)

However, commission is also proposing to require all radio stations -- as television stations are now required -- to maintain in public files lists of up to 10 significant community problems along with illustrative programing carried to respond to them, and to submit that material with renewal applications.

New proposals would not require, as present rules do, that interviews with community leaders be done only by station owners or management; other station personnel under supervision of principal or management-level employee could perform that job. In addition, interview process in proposed notice would permit variety of dialogue techniques -- community leader luncheons, joint consultations, among them.

Compositional study of community would not be required. Instead, renewal applicant would be expected to use suggested list of 19 "typical institutions" (government, labor, business, etc.) in conducting its community leader survey. "Absent a compelling showing to the contrary," interviews with leaders in each of those categories would establish prima facie case of compliance with ascertainment guidelines. As for general public, commission would expect broadcaster to make "reasonable and good faith effort to consult with a generally random sample at a period of his choosing during the license term."

Commission would require following documentation to be kept in station file:

Annual community leader checklist showing number of leaders interviewed in enumerated categories in preceding 12 months; reports (to be filed within 45 days of interview) on leaders checked and matters discussed; narrative description of manner in which members of public were surveyed, along with population characteristics of community. Only documentation submitted to commission would be certification on renewal application that all appropriate data had been placed in station's public file, annual community leader checklists, and annual lists of community problems and programing aired to meet them.

Comments are due June 23. Because issues were subject to previous inquiry, commission said, it is not inviting reply comments. Vote was 7-0.

Whether up or down on consumer agency, broadcast renewal process is beyond reach

Senate passed amendment last Thursday preventing proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy (ACA) from participating in FCC license renewal proceedings. Vote was 69-21 on amendment offered by Commerce Committee Chairman Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.). He argued amendment was needed to insure ACA not get "bogged down in the endless procedures of the FCC" dealing with renewals. Senator said ACA would not be deprived of participation in any other FCC activity, and that it would be better off with rulemaking affecting entire industry rather than spending "thousands of man-hours" on proceedings involving renewal of individual stations.

Meanwhile, Senator James Allen (D-Ala.) has begun filibuster on over-all bill, technique that successfully strangled ACA measure in Senate last year. Senate votes Tuesday (May 13) to break stall. Either way -- if bill fails or is passed with Magnuson amendment -- it's victory for National Association of Broadcasters, which stepped up campaign in recent weeks to find support for renewal exemption.

CBS Radio gets baseball in '76

CBS Radio Network has acquired radio rights to major-league baseball's three biggest draws, World Series, All-Star Game and complete league championship playoffs, with four-year contract to begin in 1976. Office of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn put radio rights figure "in excess of $300,000" for four years.

Contract apparently ends flurry of bargaining and reshuffling that will markedly change baseball's network broadcast picture by next year. NBC's hold on network rights, through four-year contract expiring this year, will be shared by ABC-TV, with Monday night games and alternate-year post-season coverage (Broadcasting, March 17), and now by CBS Radio. Tentative plans for Monday night radio game of week appear to have been scuttled.

Bidding for radio rights may have lacked some of vigor of TV bargaining. ABC, with its four-network radio structure not easily adaptable to baseball link-up, and NBC, about to debut its News and Information Service, seemed not to pursue contract as much as CBS and Mutual.

CBS contract will return World Series to that network for first time since 1936.

GAF may buy WQIV, return to classics

Sources at GAF Corp., New York, said Friday (May 9) company is close to deal to buy WQIV(FM) New York from Starr Broadcasting and return it to classical-music format it operated under until it was converted to progressive rock last October. Rock format is making money for WQIV but spokesman for Starr said protests by classical-music lovers have been so unrestricting that Starr wants out. At $2.2 million asking price, sources say Starr will seek waiver of FCC's three-year station-sale-moratorium rule because no profit would be involved. (Starr paid $2.09 million for station in May 1973 but suffered heavy losses in first 18 months of operation as classical station.) GAF sources say company feels "a social responsibility" to give New Yorkers more classical music but is also convinced that "we can turn a profit on the format."

Three for another look at exclusivity

ABC, CBS and Association of Maximum Service Telecasters filed statements at FCC last week in support of rulemaking petition that asks commission to revisit its signal carriage and exclusivity rules. Rulemaking petition, submitted by National Association of Broadcasters, claims changes are necessary because National Cable Television Association has failed to support copyright legislation embodied in 1971 consensus agreement. NCTA last week defended its actions in statement urging dismissal of petition (story on page 42).

In Brief

Obsolete taboos. FCC is expected in next week or two to begin inquiry into whether all UHF taboos are still realistic in view of improved design of television sets. Commission staff reportedly is not looking to reduction of co-channel or adjacent channel separations, but if any of five other frequency combination taboos could be reduced or erased, spectrum would be richer resource — able to support more channels in same amount of space, or same number of channels in less space. Question of whether markets can provide financial support for additional channels is another matter, one that will not be considered in inquiry. Research project on future of television which commission has contracted out should provide help in answering that question, in another year.

Would nix WPIX deal. FCC’s Broadcast Bureau has urged commission not to approve agreement designed to end Forum Communications Inc.’s six-year fight to oust WPIX Inc. as licensee of channel 11 in New York. WPIX would reimburse Forum $310,885 for out-of-pocket costs in Waging contest, also provide up to $150,000 in cash and services for programming or projects, such as minority training, and make room on board for Forum’s largest stockholder. But bureau says applicants have not demonstrated “valid public interest considerations to offset public detriment” in denying commission potential choice between two applicants.

Free zone? Official from Justice Department said last week cable systems should not have to make copyright payment for programing retransmitted from over-air broadcast signal if cable system is wholly or partly within local service area of broadcast station originating signal. During second day of hearings before House Judiciary Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and Administration of Justice (see page 31), Irwin Goldblum, deputy assistant attorney general in Justice Department Civil Division, said transmission by cable system within local service area of station fills gaps or improves reception in service area. “Such transmission does not impair the primary transmitter’s market; in fact, it enhances it,” Mr. Goldblum said.

Point spread. Network TV rating point will be worth 701,000 homes in 1975-76 season, up from 685,000 this year. At least that’s outlook now, based on preliminary estimates by A. C. Nielsen Co. These anticipate 70.1 million TV homes as of September, or about 2.3% more than current 68.5 million. New figure represents 97.3% of all U.S. homes, compared with this year’s 97.1%.

NAB board changes in wind. By-laws committee of National Association of Broadcasters may alter proposals for revamping NAB board structure at Washington meeting Tuesday (May 13). It will stick with recommendation that eight-at-large seats on radio board be eliminated, Donald Thurston, WMNB-AM-FM North Adams, Mass., chairman, said last week, but there may be change in recommendation that radio districts represented on board be increased from present 17 to 20. There’s also talk about some change in network representation. With proposed reduction in radio board seats (from 30 to perhaps 25), some NAB members fear networks, with five seats, will have excessive representation. One proposal is to eliminate directorships from networks that aren’t station licensees. Another is to do something about voting power of three radio-TV networks that collectively hold six seats on joint board, three radio and three TV.

Bad news, good news. FCC has set for hearing renewal of Rust Communications Group’s WHAM(AM)-WHFM(FM) Rochester, N.Y., on charges raised by Action for a Better Community Inc. and Metro-Act of Rochester Inc., both local citizen groups. In separate action, FCC dismissed similar charges raised by Bi Lingual Bi Cultural Coalition on Mass Media against Avco Broadcasting’s KMLD-TV San Antonio, Tex., and granted renewal. Action should pave way for Avco’s proposed sale of KMLD-TV to 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. for $9.3 million (Broadcasting, March 3).

Headliners

Daniel T. Pecaro elected president and chief executive officer of WGN Continental Broadcasting Co., Chicago. Announcement was made by Stanton R. Cook, president of parent Tribune Co. Mr. Pecaro became acting general manager of company in February 1974 following resignation of Ward L. Qual, was named executive VP in April 1974.

Dwight Case, executive VP, RKO General Radio Division, named president, succeeding Bruce Johnson, resigned to become president of Sterling Broadcasting Division of Sterling Recreation Organization, Seattle-based conglomerate (radio stations, movie theaters and bowling centers). Case appointment was announced by Frank Shakespeare, new president of parent RKO General Inc. (Broadcasting, Jan. 27). Mr. Case also named chairman of RKO Radio Representatives, New York. Kathryn Lenard, VP-research and marketing, named VP and general manager of that organization, is believed to be first woman to head major rep firm. She succeeds John Brady, who has resigned.

James L. Greenwald, executive VP, Katz Agency, New York, elected president and chief executive officer of sales representation firm, succeeding Tod Moore. Katz officials said Mr. Moore resigned after more than four years in presidency to pursue personal business interests. Oliver T. Blackwell, VP and director of audience development for Katz Television, succeeds Mr. Greenwald as executive VP of parent company, will retain his TV audience development post. David S. Allen continues as president of Katz Television, Sal J. Agovino as president of Katz Radio.
WCKT News has been honored for the second time with television’s most prestigious and coveted prize . . . the George Foster Peabody Award.

In 1961 WCKT News was honored with the George Foster Peabody Award for exposure of problems incident to the Cuban crisis through three programs: “Compass Points South,” “Cuba On The Move” and “Gitmo: Leave Or Stay.”

The only Florida broadcast news operation ever to win this coveted prize, WCKT has again been cited for “Finders Keepers, Losers Weepers” — an explosive news series which explored the honesty and integrity of local police; “The Strike Force Probe” — an undercover probe of possible connections of public officials with underworld figures; and “Apathy Or Fear?” — an investigation into the failure of people to assist the victims of criminal attacks which followed a serious crime wave in the community.

Described by the Peabody National Advisory Board as “a superb series of investigative reports which brought considerable response and change in the community” the three award-winning reports were aired in 1974 as part of WCKT’s hour-long six o’clock news program — “The Big News with Wayne Fariss and Richard Whitcomb.”

Market research and the wayfaring fools: take a lawyer to lunch

Market researchers are faced with a very serious problem: Somebody is now paying careful attention to what we do. More specifically—in advertising disputes with the Federal Trade Commission, research is rarely accepted as part of a defense, but research can be, and often is, used as evidence supporting a complaint.

Why is this the case? The answer is quite simple. Evaluative research techniques are devised with simple purposes in mind; to help answer questions such as “what is the state of the market?” and “what is the likely effect of attempts to change that state?” Moreover, when using these techniques, the market researcher keeps in mind several important things: research is surveying people, not things; research procedures have limited reliability and validity, and the results are always subject to the interpretation of a skilled and experienced marketer.

In the end, we are willing to live with various sources of so-called error, bias and noise because we realize that this is the best we can do. But our best is not good enough for the FTC.

The FTC says that it doesn’t have to prove the existence of deception to find us guilty. It has ruled (and has been upheld by the courts) that it is not necessary for the commission to find that actual deception resulted from our advertising. The burden is on us to provide evidence that we are innocent of any deception.

If you think, however, that you’ll be free and clear by proving that no deception existed, you are wrong. You will find that trying to prove that something does not exist is quite difficult. Some researchers will even argue that this is impossible. For example, if you use research that shows that as much as 85% or even 95% of the population got your message right, the FTC will then ask about the remaining 15% or perhaps 5%. This noise shows up in all market surveys, but this is not noise to the FTC.

The FTC argues that while proof of no deception is of interest to it, any testimony showing that even a small percentage of the over 60 million households in the U.S. may have been deceived is conclusive evidence of a deception.

Your case is insufficient if you say that this is the best that you can be expected to do. We know that we are talking about communications with people not things. We are aware that our measuring techniques are subject to several kinds of error. We realize that 90% correct communication is very good. In fact, we know that we can never be certain that we have communicated clearly 100% of the time to 100% of an audience. Nor is it possible to be certain in advance that we will communicate clearly to all possible audiences. In spite of these limitations, research is used and is useful for our purposes as marketers. But that is not good enough for the FTC. The FTC expects us to be sure in advance that hardly anyone gets a misimpression from our advertising. Suppose in certain rare instances you could show that 100% of the people got your message right. You probably think that now you have sufficient evidence to prove your innocence. You are wrong. It makes no difference that your evidence shows that nobody was deceived. The FTC also contends that representations merely having the capacity to deceive are unlawful.

The first question is: How are we experts expected to determine a commercial’s capacity to deceive? We can’t even determine with certainty what a commercial actually did. We have a difficult time designing a study to figure out what it might do to a majority of the people. But how do we measure what it might have done to a few people? Our best techniques can’t do it. But our best it not good enough for the FTC.

The second question is: Who are the people deceived by the commercial? Whoever believes in segmentation is in trouble. The FTC contends that it makes no difference that your intended audience gets your message right, for the purpose of the law is to protect everyone. This includes those who, in the FTC’s words, are “ignorant, unthinking and credulous.”

In your last few studies how many ignorant, unthinking, credulous people did you include in your sample? If you think you can get around the problem of “credulousness” by asking a “believability” question, you are wrong again.

The Supreme Court has ruled that commercials must be taken at face value. Nothing less than the literal truth is acceptable. Furthermore, the FTC has the judicially approved expertise to examine ads and determine what those ads may imply to an ignorant, unthinking, credulous consumer. The court has ruled that the commission, if it chooses, may insist upon a form of advertising clearly acceptable, in the words of Isaiah, “wayfaring men, though fools, shall not enter therein.”

The commission has concerned itself with eliminating ads whose implied claims have “the capacity to deceive the wayfaring fool.” Again, these are the words of the commission.

Advertising experts cannot reliably judge the capacity of an ad or commercial to motivate members of an intended target audience. Yet the FTC considers that it has the judicially approved expertise to judge whether an ad or commercial has the capacity to deceive the wayfaring fool. It seems unfair that the FTC assigns to itself the advertising expertise that those with years of advertising experience don’t claim to have.

It’s time for every market researcher to get involved. How many market researchers are familiar with Sections 5, 12 or 13 of the FTC Act? How many have read the Charles of the Ritz, S&H, Firestone, Wonder Bread, Listerine, Hawaiian Punch and Ban decisions? How many are aware that the FTC is getting into the research business? In one recent case the FTC decided on an appropriate confidence level for comparative product testing. How many market researchers know what that officially approved confidence level is? In another case, a tracking study was included as part of an order on corrective advertising. How many are aware of the decision rules outlined in that FTC-approved consumer tracking study?

We can’t be disinterested parties on the sidelines. The time has come for research experts and legal experts to get together. Take a lawyer to lunch. Advertising research has an opportunity to make a very significant contribution to public policy.

WHAT IS A CONSULTANT?

There are as many answers to that question as there are consultants. It is the very nature of competent consultants to be highly individualistic and call upon not only their own professional life input, but that of their staff, in order to arrive at their recommendations. These recommendations come about only after assembling all the possible facts that research can uncover in a given market.

Despite what you read in books and articles, consultants cannot be lumped together as a generic entity.

As the oldest company in our field, and as the one most qualified, from the standpoint of the broadcast background of all members of our staff, we would give you a different answer to many questions than other companies. For example, we don't believe there is any single formula for success, and it is absurd to believe anybody can or should control your newscast. It's your station and your responsibility.

Our company consults only. We secure the finest research we can find, from the country's leading social scientists, to gather our background facts. But research is not our primary business. Objective analysis and specific recommendations based on monitoring, research and professional broadcast background, along with continuing consultation for at least a year, at all levels desired inside a client station, constitute our final product.

Our list of clients is not the largest in the field, but it is the most impressive, and no other company can claim to have served so many clients successfully and continually for as long as thirteen years.

If you want to know who we work for, how we work with them, what they think of us, and exactly what we think consultants should be, call us.

Pound makes point

EDITOR: On the theory that "you ought to know," I suggested to my area congressman that he request FCC forms required for renewing the license of a small town radio station. Attached is his reply.

If every broadcaster did this, some favorable action just might be taken.—Ed Mullinax, president-general manager, WLAG(AM) LaGrange, Ga.

Dear Ed:

In this morning's mail I received the ONE POUND package of FCC forms requested by my office last week. This paper maze for a license renewal does, indeed, seem needlessly formidible and I can understand the chagrin you and other station operators must feel. From a perusal it is obvious that one must have the combined talents of an attorney, a CPA and a whole firm of Philadelphia lawyers to properly complete these forms and I appreciate your bringing this proliferation of red tape to my attention.

You may be sure of my support for simplification. Another candidate for simplification is the field of taxation.

Sincerely,

JACK BRINKLEY
Member of Congress

Letter from London

EDITOR: This is in response to the March 24 letter from George Schwartz with reference to Senator William Proxmire's fight to abolish the fairness doctrine.

It amazes me that a man of the academic world can ignore the facts in front of him and find the equation of broadcasting with print "unnerving." Aside from practical arguments put forth by Senator Proxmire as to the fallacy of the scarcity proposition and the general reverse effect of the doctrine, there are sound constitutional reasons for abandoning it. The First Amendment makes no distinction as to methods of transmitting ideas, nor should it. As Mr. Justice Blackmun observed in last year's Miami Herald case, "...we have opted for free press, not free debate." In the Gertz case handed down the same day, the court consistently equated the broadcaster and the publisher. That equation was again reaffirmed in the recent Cox Broadcasting case.

But even if one assumes that free debate is a protected purpose of the First Amendment, to exclude all other information source inputs to the discussion forum is ridiculous. Mr. Schwartz ignores our national news plurality and in so doing makes a weak case for continuing under the fairness doctrine restraints.

The press, in all its forms, deserves

Only as old as they listen

EDITOR: Today I received a business alert from my national rep announcing a flight for radio station owners and travel agents. The target—25+, the format request—no contemporary stations.

What is 25-49? It's the buying years. Today's 25-year-old was about 5 when the new music started. The 40-year-old was 20 and so was Elvis Presley.

Many agencies and advertisers think that contemporary music plays only to the bubble-gum set. To those people, I ask: At what magic age does a person who has grown up with a lively sound automatically lose interest in his music and embrace the sweet sounds of the big-band era?

The time has come to test the fact that as much as we people over 49 hate to admit it, contemporary music has the left foot firmly in the stirrup, right leg swung well over and it is descending to a comfortable seat in the economic saddle.

Now is the time for contemporary station owners and their reps to sit out and tell the banks and other MOR buyers that the customers they are listening to want the music of their choice and not the music of the bank president's choice.—John P. Martin, president-general manager, KATA(AM) Arcata, Calif.

EDITOR: Recently our company made an offer to employes of a $200 cash allowance toward the purchase of a 1975 automobile. In our area new car sales are considerably off. It is our hope that other businesses might pick up the idea and provide the same incentive for their employes.

EDITOR: Your cartoon under "Open Mike" in the April 21 issue brought home a note of truth to small market men like me and others I'm sure. I presently serve as program director, sports director, music director, assistant to the chief engineer, sales director, production director, sales manager, play-by-play sportscaster, regular rock DJ.

Combo jobs as described in the cartoon are still alive and well.—Francis M. Nash, WGOH-AM-FM Grayson, Ky.

(?) April 21 letter commented on a March 24 Jack Schmidt cartoon of an employment counselor remarking: "Whit, he said he wanted a sales manager, chief engineer, traffic director, copywriter, news director and first phone MOR announcer. I thought he meant more than one man."

FRANK SINATRA: BIOGRAPHY IN SONG

NARRATED BY GENE NORMAN

A Brand New 8 hour radio documentary on the GREATEST SINGER OF POPULAR SONG is now available for WORLD-WIDE SYNDICATION!

Francis Albert Sinatra has entertained 4 generations of music lovers with his unparalleled singing artistry. On records, and in films, concerts, and night clubs around the world, the Sinatra name continues to generate major public response. Now, the Frank Sinatra story has been produced in 4 two hour segments for radio listeners around the world.

Your audience will hear the Sinatra sound from Hoboken to Hollywood, from California to New York, and from Las Vegas to Paris. Many rare recordings will be heard by your listeners for the very first time. All together, more than 100 of Frank's biggest hits are included.

Your audience will hear Gene Norman narrate the fascinating Sinatra legend from the Big Band beginnings with Harry James and Tommy Dorsey, through the Bobby Sox era when he was known as "The Voice", into the "Swinging" years, the "Retrospective" years, and right up to the present.

Your audience will hear "exclusive" interviews and comments by entertainers, musicians, and other personalities who have been associated with Frank through the years.

Your audience will hear a fast-paced, exciting, and highly entertaining radio biography...a true "special" on one of the most phenomenal careers in entertainment history.

This unique documentary comes to you on Tape, compatible Stereo/Mono for Quality broadcast on AM or FM. Each 2 hour segment runs 98 minutes with 88 sixty second commercial avails in all.

Guest Interviews:

BING CROSBY • SAMMY CAHN • PERCY FAITH • GORDON JENKINS • ROD McKUEN
SY OLIVER • NELSON RIDDLE • JO STAFFORD • PAUL WESTON • KEENAN WYNN

Four plays of the current television season suggest an answer. Plays about a daughter of slaves, a founding father, a grandmother in love, a striving nun. What could be more different? And yet they shared this distinction: They combined innovative drama with appeal for mass audiences.

Innovation in the arts seldom reaches outside small circles of the "elite." But these full-length dramas on the CBS Television Network won audiences averaging more than 30 million viewers—and the praise of critics across the country.

Innovation happens in different ways. One of these plays re-created a century of social change through a vivid personality ("The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman"). Another rejected the tradition of wooden historic drama and made a founding father come movingly alive (the four-part "Benjamin Franklin"). Still another tested conventional thinking about relationships of the elderly ("Queen of the Stardust Ballroom"). And another broke an old stereotype and portrayed the life of a convent without sentimentality ("In This House of Brede").

Through pioneering and a tradition of quality, theater on the CBS Television Network builds the base of a nationwide cultural center. It probes changing values and wins changing audiences—on the creative frontiers of programming.
CBS expected to keep lead despite strong challenges from NBC, ABC

Fall line-ups to cost $18.1 million a week, with Universal TV, MTM, Tandem as biggest suppliers

Situation comedies and nonviolent melodramas dominate the formats of the 27 new shows, which NBC will introduce into their 1975-76 prime-time schedules beginning next September.

Nine new sitcoms and nine new "soft" melodramas (big-city doctors, con men on the side of the law, a woman lawyer, a TV news team and a super sleuth are among the characters that populate these action shows), contrasted with only four new series that could be construed as "violent," furnish unassailable evidence that the family-hour stricture has had its effect on the network executives who put together the line-ups.

In addition, spiraling costs and producers' demands for more realistic payments swelled total production costs of the three networks' schedules to $18.1 million a week plus one rerun each. (Last year, the networks shelled out $15.8 million for the shows on their 1974-75 schedules.) Half-hour sitcoms will cost as much as $140,000 for a first run and a repeat (the average is in the $110,000 range), and 60-minute series will soar as high as $280,000 for two runs (with the average price at about $250,000).

Universal Television, which will provide 13 shows (a total of 14 hours a week), plus a number of made-for-TV movies, continued far out in front of the other major studios in this category. MTM Productions, with six weekly series to its credit (all of them on CBS, for a total of three-and-a-half hours), stood out as the leading independent supplier of network programing (with Norman Lear's Tandem Productions' five half-hour sitcoms running second).

Network sources and ad-agency media executives, although hedging more than ever this year because the three networks shuffled 20 holdover shows into different time periods, were predicting that CBS would maintain its first-place lead over NBC, which would remain solidly ahead of an improving ABC. "Phyllis" (Monday, 8:30-9 p.m., NYT) and "The Metro Man" (Tuesday, 10-11 p.m.) were the new shows most often cited by insiders as potential top-10 hits.

NBC, which had engineered wholesale changes in its line-up late last month to counter CBS's surprise schedule (BROADCASTING, May 5) did some further tinkering last Tuesday. Emergency was returned to Saturday (8-9), where it has enjoyed steady success, swapping positions with The Invisible Man, which goes to Monday (8-9). NBC also moved its announced Thursday movie back to Monday (9-11) to avoid the CBS Thursday Movies. The shows dislodged on Monday were then moved to Thursday: Ellery Queen (9-10) and Medical Story (10-11).

Night-by-night, various industry sources were speculating as follows:

CBS figures to have a lock on Monday because it has three of the strongest sitcoms on the air. Two of them, Rhoda and All in the Family are wrapped around the Mary Tyler Moore show spinoff, Phyllis, which observers such as Peter Bardach, vice president and director of broadcasting at Foote, Cone & Belding, and Werner Michel, SSCKB's vice president and director of network programing, consider the best bet among all the new shows to make a place for itself in Nielsen's top 10. Runner-up spot on Monday will probably go to the network that has the better lead-in show (since ABC's pro football and NBC's theatrical and made-for-TV movies are at 9 to 11 pull fairly steady audiences). On that basis, ABC may have the edge because it will be programming Cash and Cable, the only western in prime time ("It's about time for the western to begin making a comeback," Mr. Michel said), whereas NBC is going with the science fiction/fantasy show, The Invisible Man, a genre that has seldom captured high ratings.

None of the industry insiders are predicting Tuesday night with any confidence, although the pivotal show that could win the night for CBS is its 8:30 sitcom, Joe and Sons. Richard McHugh, a senior vice president and the corporate director of network relations and programming at Neudam, Harper & Steers, who poses the question: "How many ethnic sitcoms are audiences expected to take?" is not high on the show. But if Joe and Sons can hold most of the 40-plus share that Good Times (at 8, and lead-in show) is expected to deliver (based on past performance), that factor would give CBS's 9 o'clock show, Switch!, a sort of modern-day version of "The Sting," a chance to lead the time period against its solid veteran competitors, ABC's The Rookies and NBC's Police Story. If Joe and Sons falls, Tuesday may then go to NBC because, as Marvin Antonowosy, vice president, program administration, NBC, puts it, "we'll deliver the audience flow with our three back-to-back male shows: Movin' On, Police Story and The Metro Man." Although agency men were predicting that The Metro Man would rule the roost in its time period, Joseph Warnbaugh, the creator of Police Story (which ABC's the Metro Man), was announcing in trade ads and letters to industry people that "I resent our series being used by NBC and Columbia Pictures Television as a springboard for 'action' cop shows." The new series, he concludes, is the "most profound social comment in mindless cliches of gratuitous gunfire, screaming tires and wailing sirens.

Opposite The Metro Man on CBS at 10 is the American version of Upstairs Downstairs, called Beacon Hill, the pilot of which drew raves from the agency men for, in Mr. McHugh's words, "the writing, performing and staging, which are beautifully done." But "its commercial prospects are doubtful," said Mr. Michel.

Wednesday night's key show may be NBC's 9 o'clock Doctors' Hospital, under the production aegis of Matthew Rapf and Jack Laird, who stitched together the old Ben Casey medical show. If Doctors' Hospital keeps the audience from the hit lead-in show, Little House on the Prairie, the unmaking of made-for-fors. For the first time in six years there'll be no regularly scheduled made-for-TV-movie time slot on either ABC or NBC. (CBS never had one.) The reason: ratings last season were marginal (ABC's Wednesday Movie of the Week and NBC's World Premiere Movie each averaged 29 shares, and ABC's Tuesday Movie of the Week (averaged only 27 share), and CBS's number-one position was attributed to the success of its bread-and-butter weekly series, with continuing characters audiences could identify with. Network programmers say, however, that dozens of these movies will still be churned out, although, for most part, in two-hour (or longer) packages rather than in 90-minute sections, and will be slotted in two-hour theatrical-movie time slots (Friday and Sunday on ABC, Thursday and Saturday on NBC, and Thursday on CBS). In addition, ABC announced that it will schedule its 12-hour mini-series version of Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man Poor Man" (parts of ABC's New Novels for Television concept) on six consecutive Monday nights (9-11 p.m., NYT) between the end of National Football League telecasts and the beginning of major-league-baseball telecasts in April.
from switching to Cannon on CBS and Baretta on ABC, then NBC will win the night handily. If not, the night will be up for grabs. Wednesday’s sleeper, according to agency men who saw possibilities in the pilot, could be ABC’s 8 o’clock When Things Were Rotten, a slapstick farce set in 12th century England and focusing on Robin Hood’s battle of wits with the Sheriff of Nottingham, which was created by Mel Brooks and Norman Steinberg. Its success, though, may hinge on how much of his valuable time Mr. Brooks is willing to devote to it. “He makes so damn much money making feature pictures,” says Richard Pinkham, the senior vice president of Ted Bates’s media and program department, referring particularly to “Blazing Saddles” and “Young Frankenstein,” “that it’s questionable whether he’ll have much input at all.”

CBS is in no real danger on Thursday night, insiders say, because its lead-in show, The Waltons, displays no signs of weakening, particularly against unproved sitcoms on both ABC and NBC. CBS rounds out the evening solidly with its one theatrical-movie night, which will become the showcase for features like “The French Connection” and “The Bible” and for made-for-TV movies like “Panic on Trial!” (about TV blacklisting, with George C. Scott) and “The Babe Didrikson Zaharias Story.” Even though CBS is acknowledged to have the weakest movie package of the three networks, ABC and NBC each attenuate their inventory over two nights (Friday and Sunday on ABC, Monday and Saturday on NBC). ABC should finish second on Thursday because its highest-rated series, Streets of San Francisco, provides a 34-share anchor at 9 for the Friday night ratings last season. Next fall, CBS is waging a frontal assault on NBC’s line-up with the shifting of three long-running hit shows—M*A*S*H (8:30-9), Hawaii Five-O (9-10) and Barnaby Jones (10-11)—from their Tuesday-night berth to Friday (same time periods). These entries are expected to eat into NBC’s numbers, but the agency men say CBS will be hampered by a relatively weak lead-in show, a sitcom called Big Eddie, which will probably be swallowed whole by Sanford. Fred Pierce, the president of ABC-TV, says he’s counting on Mobile Two at 8, a Jack Webb carbon of his other successful prime-time series, Emergency, to carve out a 30 share against the competing sitcoms, in circumstances similar to Emergency’s surviving for years against All in the Family on Saturday (by offering a counterprogramming alternative). And strong features on ABC’s Friday Night Movies, he continues, will keep the network from falling into the kind of disastrous Friday night it suffered all of last season, when it programmed series instead of movies.

CBS is given the edge on Saturday, but not by the margin it commanded when All in the Family was a fixture at 8. The Jeffersons, which inherited the huge All in the Family lead-in-week and weekend last winter, is being asked to go it alone at 8 and “the show may not have the intrinsic strength” for that task, according to Mr. Pinkham. The new sitcom that follows The Jeffersons next season, Doc, is “a nice, amiable show, but nothing more,” says Mr. McGillic.

Which is why ABC’s Fred Pierce thinks his network’s 8 o’clock Howard Cosell Show, a variety hour that will be patterned somewhat after the old Ed Sullivan Show, has a chance to succeed. “Howard will try to capture what’s happening in the entertainment world that week,” says Mr. Pierce. “It’s true that Howard is disliked as much as he’s liked by audiences, but he’s also a catalyst who can attract the kinds of stars and talent and celebrities from all fields that’ll make the show talked about.” Mr. Pierce also says he’s banking on the hit second-season cop show, S.W.A.T., and the new glamour-action series, Matt Helm, to make ABC more competitive on Saturday than it has been in years.

Sunday has been complicated somewhat by the extra hour of programming all three networks are adding, thanks to primetime access-rule changes by the FCC. The agency men are laying bets on NBC to capture the night, figuring that the new Waltons-type show, Holvak, at 8 will retain most of The Wonderful World of Disney’s extensive 7 o’clock audience and will then feed those bodies into the two-hour NBC Sunday Mystery Movie. ABC could end up second if its new lead-in show, The Swiss Family Robinson, gets the kind of early-evening Sunday family audience it's geared to. The Six Million Dollar Man has a steady, respectable audience at 8, and ABC is touting movies like "The Sound of Music," "Cabaret," and a couple of James Bonds for its feature-film time slot beginning at 9.

CBS affiliates meet for annual preview of coming attractions

Station and network execs convene to screen new pilots and discuss business at hand; Taylor, Schneider to address luncheon sessions

CBS-TV will give its affiliates a look this week at highlights of the prime-time schedule with which it hopes to stay ahead in the 1975-76 network race.

Screenings of pilots of new shows will be interspersed among reports and other business activities at the 20th general conference of affiliates Tuesday and Wednesday (May 13-14) in Los Angeles. A turnout of approximately 1,000—station executives, their spouses and CBS-TV executives—is expected.

Arthur R. Taylor, president of CBS Inc., will address the Tuesday luncheon. John A. Schneider, president of the CBS/Broadcast Group, will give Wednesday's address.

The business sessions, to be held at CBS Studio Center in North Hollywood, will open Tuesday at 8:25 a.m. with welcome from Charles B. Brakefield of WABC-TV Memphis, chairman of the CBS-TV Affiliates Advisory Board, and Robert D. Wood, CBS-TV president.

The Tuesday meetings will include a report on the network's 1974-75 performance by Arnold Becker, director of network programming; introduction of the 1975-76 schedule by Fred Silverman, vice president, programs; reports on specials by Oscar Katz, vice president, programs, New York, and on daytime and children's specials by B. Donald Grant, vice president, daytime programs, as well as screenings of five pilots.

The Wednesday sessions will start with a closed meeting of affiliates at 8 a.m., followed by screenings of four pilots and, in the afternoon, reports by Robert Wusler, vice president, sports; Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News; Frank M. Smith Jr., CBS-TV vice president, sales; Jack Cowden, CBS-TV vice president and assistant to the president; Barrie Richardson, CBS-TV vice president, press information, and Louis Dorfman, CBS/Broadcast Group vice president, advertising and design.

Windup business feature will be a session in which network officials field questions from affiliates, with CBS-TV President Wood as moderator.

The annual banquet will be held Wednesday evening at the Century Plaza hotel.

Playing to win. Two new game shows will move into CBS-TV's daytime line-up June 16: Musical Chairs, which will be network TV's first game show with a black host, singer-actor Adam Wade, will go into the Monday-Friday 4:43 p.m. NYT spot, and Spin-Off, with host Jim Lange, will take the 10-10:30 a.m. period. Tattle tales, now at 4-4:30, will move to 11-11:30 a.m., bumping Now You See It from the schedule, while Spin-Off trumps The Joker's Wild at 10-10:30. Musical Chairs, which will feature musical guest stars with a singing group and a live orchestra, will be a Jerome Schnur/Don Kirshner production from New York with Bill W. Chastain Jr. as producer. Spin-Off, pitting two couples against each other in a game of quick and skill, will be a Nick Nicholson/E. Roger Mur production from Hollywood with Willie Stein as producer.

Macdonald gets down to specifics on family viewing

Subcommittee chairman proposes whole new apparatus to control sex and violence in TV programs

House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) for several months has been making it clear that he does not think much of the family viewing period, written into the National Association of Broadcasters' TV code last month, as a means of curbing sex and violence on television. But until now his criticism has taken the form of brief broadsides, with observations such as "relying on the industry's good faith is like writing a letter to Santa Claus," or "the family viewing time is a masterful piece of public relations by the networks."

However, last week he amplified and extended his remarks in an article for the opposite-editorial page of The Washington Post. In it, he said the television industry has "misjudged the dimensions of the problem of televised violence and its impact on our children and youth." He said the surgeon general's Scientific Advisory Committee on Television and Social Behavior determined in 1972 that there exists a causal relation between television violence and antisocial behavior, but that it is apparent from the programs currently on TV that the industry is unwilling to accept this relationship.

Mr. Macdonald said the TV industry rationalizes violent programing by saying it is simply giving the people what they want to see. But this argument, he said, "overlooks the broader responsibility of television to provide high-quality programming that has profound value."

However, the answer is not to eliminate all violence from TV, Mr. Macdonald said. "It can treat violence themes in a manner that does not produce a negative
A LOT OF TEENAGERS ARE DYING FOR A DRINK.

Storer stations are doing something about it.

Alcoholism is on a rampage. Today 9 million Americans are considered alcoholics.

Alcohol is the cause of half of all traffic fatalities.

Appallingly, the biggest rise in drinking is among young Americans.

74% of today's high-school students drink—nearly double what it was just four years ago, according to the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

Arrests of boys 18 and younger for intoxication have jumped 250% in that same period. And, incredible as it seems, some 450,000 of the nation's alcoholics are between 10 and 19 years of age.

Clearly, there's a crying need for help. A need Storer Stations recognize and whole-heartedly support by devoting an increasing number of programs and editorials to the problem.

For example, WJBK-TV, Detroit, recently surveyed high-school students and found alcohol the number one abused drug of the young. So in their continuing series "Can We Win Against Drugs?" they turn the spotlight on teenagers and alcohol—including illegal ways they are able to buy it.

In another program, the station revealed how a prominent Detroiter drank himself out of a top job into the hospital. Through rehabilitation, he went on to become the hospital's administrator. (As a result of this interview, 8 new patients entered the hospital while inquiries poured in from all over the region.)

Milwaukee's WITI-TV launched a concerted drive against alcoholism with a 13-week series of half-hour programs on such subjects as "Alcoholism and Youth," "Alcohol and Driving," plus a 90-minute special, "Is There a Life After Alcohol?"

In Toledo, WSPD-TV received the top award from the Ohio Associated Press Broadcasters Association for its series on alcoholism, during which it fought lowering the drinking age to 18.

Storer Stations see it this way: the more effective we are in our communities, the more effective we are for our advertisers, and the more effective we are for ourselves.

Broadcasting that serves.

TV's tie to behavior focus of 10 studies

In a letter to Senate Communications Subcommittee Chairman John Pastore (D-R.I.), the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) reported it has spent $491,133 this year to help support 10 research projects aimed at clarifying the relationships between television viewing and social behavior.

One of the projects, to be completed in two months, is a proposal on how best to quantify incidents of television violence and their effects on viewer behavior by the Commission and Behavior of the Social Research Council (SSRC). Dr. Bertram Brown, director of the institute, said early indications are that the SSRC will suggest expanding the approach used by Dr. George Gerbner of the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg School of Communications.

Dr. Gerbner published the sixth annual profile of TV violence last December, in which he concluded that although the incidence of violence on prime-time television was lower than in earlier years, the number of victims of violence had not declined significantly. Dr. Gerbner also concluded there is evidence of a television generation, people under 30 who because of heavy television viewing hold exaggerated notions about how much violence takes place in real life. Women under 30 who are heavy TV viewers, he said, are particularly impressionable.

Dr. Brown said Dr. Gerbner's results have been criticized because he generalized for all TV programming from a one-week sample of shows at the beginning of the 1973 fall season. He said the institute staff has discussed increasing the sample to include programming during the winter after some shows have been replaced. Other ideas would be discussed, he said, following the SSRC's report of violence indices.

Depending on what the SSRC reports, the Senate Communications Subcommittee may hold hearings on television violence some time next month, a subcommittee aide said last week.

Following is a list of NIMH-supported television research projects, their directors and the amount of funds they have received:

Albert Bandura, Stanford University: "Experimental Analysis of Vicarious Psychological Processes," $41,637.
George Gerbner, Annenberg School of Communications: "Cultural Indicators," $130,434.
Paul Ekman, University of California, San Francisco: "Emotion, Aggression and TV Violence," $44,774. Mr. Ekman has also received $51,470 for a project entitled: "Long Term Effects of Aggressive/Prosocial TV Programs."

Eleanor Sheldon, Social Sciences Research Council: development of indicators of TV violence, $64,915.
Ronald S. Drabman, Florida Technological University: Children's tolerance of real life aggression following exposure to TV violence, $44,771.

Program Briefs

Hillman honors. CBS Television Network and WNET(TV) Newark, N.J., were broadcast recipients of 25th annual Sidney Hillman Foundation awards presented by Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. CBS was honored for its documentary special "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," WNET(TV) was given special award for its entertainment and information programing over years.

King hits 30. Mission Argyle Productions announces sale of syndicated Billie Jean King show in 30 markets. Half-hour TV series, "King," starring tennis star, will premiere on KABC-TV Los Angeles and KGO-TV San Francisco. Among other stations that have bought show: WABC-TV New York, WLS-TV Chicago, WXYZ-TV Detroit, WBZ-TV Boston, WJZ-TV Baltimore, WPXM-TV Miami and KMBT-TV Kansas City, Mo.

That's life. Four-and-one-half minute, 52-week educational news interview series, Perspectives on Health, with medical experts and Bill Bentshaw is available free to radio stations. Series began May 4 on WNBC-AM-FM New York, according to Radio TV Roundup Productions. Contact: Art Foley or Dr. Rawland Cresser, College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, 100 Bergen Street, Newark 07103.

Offering for very young. Newly formed Children's Classics Cinema Corp., Los Angeles, has acquired all four animated films of Thornton W. Burgess's children's story books from Zuiyo Films, Tokyo. Children's Classics is having Burgess films re-produced with English dialogue and lyrics, new music and new sound effects, to be offered to networks next month under title, Fables of the Green Forest. Children's Classics future plans include feature films and TV shows for children, as well as recordings, books, song books and toys. Max Ruderman is president; Albert Spiegel, executive VP; and Sid Kuller, vice president and executive producer.

Financial advice. William Nickerson Broadcast Enterprises, San Francisco, has been formed to syndicate five-minute radio program, The Bill Nickerson Show, with George Newell, former Time-Life Broadcast executive, as director. Mr. Nickerson is author of book, "How I Turned $1,000 into $3 Million in Real Estate," and is in investment business in San Francisco. 2299 Pacific Avenue, San Francisco 94115.
Lots of talk. Tane Productions is offering free 30-minute radio talk programs to stations in U.S. and Canada. Shows include politically oriented Relevance, with Rolfe Auerbach as host; Radio Factory Outlet, with Bob O'Brien on current entertainment scene, and other series dealing with occult, sports, science and rock music. Ian Carlin, syndication director, Tane Productions, 15 East 40th Street, New York 10016: (212) 689-1555.

Good for business. World Entertainment Network, Detroit, offers Enterprise '75, new half-hour, five-days-per-week radio program beginning June 1. Program is aimed at black small-businessman and includes one-hour weekend wrap-up.

But not the Palace. Metromedia Television, Los Angeles, has signed four network stations for MM’s Vaudeville syndicated series of 13 one-hour variety specials. This brings total markets to 53. New stations are KXW-TV Philadelphia, KULR-TV Billings, Mont.; KGUN-TV Tucson, Ariz., and WLS-TV Roanoke, Va. MM also announnces that it has signed non-exclusive contract with Mort Green, producer-writer of Vaudeville. Arrangement provides MM with first rights on program ideas created by Mr. Green and his Kaymore Productions.

To the showers. S-P Productions. Los Angeles, is syndicating The Steam Room, five-days-per-week sports show before live audience moderated by Los Angeles TV and radio personality Bud Furillo (KABC-AM-TV), with Mazda Motors of America as national sponsor and with time left open for local sale. Program began last week on KHJ-TV Los Angeles. Producers-distributors are Robert Seiter and John Paley, former network executives.

Star trek. 641 Productions Inc., New York, is soliciting radio stations for new series of taped interviews conducted by Rex Reed, movie columnist for Chicago Tribune Syndicate. Mr. Reed has already recorded talks with George C. Scott, Elizabeth Taylor and Ellen Burstyn. Company said it would announce station line-up later this month.

Four tragedies revisited. CBS News will develop two-hour special, to air in November, on revival of questions concerning four assassinations or attempts, from death of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 to shooting of Governor George C. Wallace in 1972. CBS Reports: The Assassinations will be reported and narrated by the late Robert Kennedy, with production supervised by Leslie Midgley, and will also examine 1968 shooting deaths of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

Rodino urges go-slow approach to live coverage of Congress

At state-association presidents' meeting, House Judiciary chairman who came to prominence in televised Nixon impeachment hearings says cameras may cause drastic changes and caution is needed; FCC's Wiley finds an appreciative audience

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino (D-N.J.) said last week there are dangers in permitting unfettered broadcast coverage of floor proceedings in the House and Senate.

Addressing a National Association of Broadcasters-sponsored meeting of state broadcast association presidents and executive directors in Washington last Tuesday, Representative Rodino said “permission to televise proceedings, while part and parcel of the vital modern trend toward open government, ought not to be unlimited or to destroy the ability of those in government to deliberate and argue in private when the occasion demands.”

As presiding officer over hearings last July that ultimately led to a Judiciary Committee vote to recommend impeachment of former President Richard Nixon, Mr. Rodino owes his celebrity in large measure to the television cameras which for six days projected his image live into the homes of millions of Americans.

Last Tuesday he had nothing but praise for the manner in which the networks and his colleagues conducted themselves during those live telecasts. “I think it is impossible to overemphasize the importance of television coverage to the impeachment proceedings,” he said.

He said TV provided the only means of involving the people in the judgmental process of the hearings. Because the debates were carried live and in full, he said, the people were able to observe all the nuances of the events as they happened. Not just the President, but the committee members as well were on trial before the people; Mr. Rodino said, and rightly so. In the end the nation's faith in the constitutional process was renewed, he said.

In the case of the impeachment hearings, “it would have been grossly unfair to the American people to keep their eyes and ears out of the chamber of judgment,” he concluded, but he indicated he does not think that necessarily holds true for all future chamber proceedings.

Representative Rodino said live coverage of House and Senate proceedings (there are measures to implement such a program currently pending in both houses) would serve a “vital” purpose in promoting public understanding of major issues “in a way never possible in any previous democracy.” But he also said he knows from experience that much “robust, uninhibited questioning, argument and debate” are necessary before mere presence to the public is enough and “that such discussion is often necessarily private.” He added, that among other things, the protection of the rights of innocent parties commands privacy for many sessions.

He also said many of the formats of broadcast journalism, such as presidential press conferences and coverage of congressional committees, “have proved to be extremely vulnerable to personal manipulation by politicians of both parties.” “Serious thought,” he said, should be given to preventing this type of abuse.

Mr. Rodino said television has changed every institution it has touched, often creating events where none would have existed had cameras not been present. “Before we accept unqualifiedly the expanded presence of television in the Congress, we in Congress and you in the industry should make some realistic judgments about the kinds of institutional change it is likely to bring about,” he said. “And we should strive to formulate guidelines which will limit it to the coverage, not the creation of congressional events.”

was FCC Chairman Richard Wiley, who found an appreciative audience in the state executives before, during and after Mr. Wiley’s remarks and responses to questions, he was applauded and two or three of the executives stood to praise Mr. Wiley when he told them he was working hard to tighten up the administration of the agency, clear away the commission backlog and smooth the way for open dialogue between the FCC and broadcasters.

He drew hearty applause at one point when he announced that contrary to hints in the trade press that his job status is uncertain (“Closed Circuit,” April 7, April 28), “I do expect to be around in September and I do expect to be around for the next two years.”

Mr. Wiley highlighted for the broadcasters the events on the commission’s schedule for the next six months, touching on the planned “petition-to-deney day,” whereby the commission will take up all newly filed petitions to deny one day each month. And he touched on FCC’s ascertainment package, which he said the commission will soon adopt as a proposed rulemaking. On May 20, he said, the commission will discuss guidelines for equal opportunity employment, adding that “any broadcaster who doesn’t have an affirmative EEO program is in for a lot of trouble.”

Also on the state executives’ program last week was a question-and-answer session with the bureau and division chiefs of the FCC. Their answers from the broadcasters tended to spotlight individual local problems, but a shared concern was over the progress of FCC rulemaking on the proposed four-page radio license renewal form. Richard Shiben, chief of the Renewal and Transfer Division, said he was eager for response on the four-page form the FCC has issued for comment, even “if you think it’s a bunch of crap.”

He said he thinks it is a good form, but that there is “room for improvement.” One broadcaster in the audience testified it is a good form for him, saying that filling it out he was able to cut the time by one half or two thirds compared to what he has spent on the present form.

The broadcasters were also concerned about the high rate of failure on the third class operators test and were told by C. Phyll Horne, chief of the Field Operations Bureau, that the commission is working on making the exam available at more testing centers. But he said letters to the FCC have indicated that many think the test is not too difficult if a person will prepare himself for it. He said the new study guide, with a higher price (65¢), will be sent in a week to all government bookstores.

Also on Tuesday, the state executives were offered a short course on how to lobby their congressmen in Washington. They were given tips on what congressional staff people to avoid and which ones to talk to, when to write or phone them, and how to package their appeals for or against legislation and how to react when the votes go against the industry. The advice came from a panel of NAB government relations staffers.

One tool for gaining access to their congressmen, the executives were told, is money. And they were told NAB’s affiliate political action committee, the National Committee for the Support of Free Broadcasting, hopes to be able to spend twice as much next election on political campaigns as it did last election. The committee’s goal for 1976 is to raise $100,000.

Money the least
House concern in hearings on FCC budget

Wiley questioned on sex-violence, Canadian pressures against U.S. TV, cable import of distant sports and how much commissioners travel

A House Appropriations Subcommittee that FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley appeared before last week seemed more interested in the commission’s policies than in the President’s request for $49.8 million for the agency for fiscal 1976, $2.9 million more than it received for fiscal 1975. Some of the broadcast matters that were brought up were those that interest other members of Congress—sex and violence on television, children’s television generally and cable television.

But there was one new issue: a developing controversy with Canada over its policies aimed at discouraging Canadian advertising to broadcasters from spending money on U.S. stations near the border and reducing U.S. influence in Canada. And the discussion revealed that Chairman Wiley does not look with favor on suggestions by some Buffalo, N.Y., licensees that they jam their signals to deny them to Canadian viewers (“Closed Circuit,” April 28).

Representative Mark Andrews (R-N.D.) brought the issue up in the context of the agreement of KCND-TV Pembina, N.D., to go dark and sell its equipment to a Canadian group planning a station in Winnipeg. He attributed KCND-TV’s decision to Canadian pressures against the placement of Canadian advertising on American stations. “Isn’t there something we can do?” Representative Andrews asked.

Chairman Wiley said that the Canadian policy is "wrong" but that he did not have an answer, "Retribution," he said, "is not the answer. I don’t think jamming is in the public interest." He said it was a matter for the State Department to discuss with Canadian authorities. “It’s part of a larger problem with Canada.”

In strictly domestic affairs, no fewer than four of the nine subcommittee members who were present at one time or another during the day-long session inquired about the distant-signal sports proceeding. Representative Joseph D. Early (D-Mass.) was the first to raise the issue, and in a manner that indicated he did not think the proposal was in the public interest. The rule provides that, if a major league team is playing at home and the local television station is not carrying the game, a local cable system may not import a program of a game in the same

The ad on the facing page is one of a series appearing in 13 major business, newsweekly, and financial publications, including the Wall Street Journal, Fortune, Business Week and Time. The purpose of each ad is to describe Sun Oil Company’s controversial point of view on energy exploration and production.

The days of easy oil are gone. At Sun, we’re committed to meet the challenge of developing new energy sources. We’re doing things that weren’t technologically or financially feasible a few years ago.

The potential to solve our country’s energy needs is here. We’re taking the necessary risks to help make it happen.
WHY WE'RE HELPING
OUR TOUGhest COMPETITORS
FIND GAS IN THE ARCTIC.

The Canadian Arctic's Sverdrup Basin may be one of the last frontiers for a bountiful supply of conventional natural gas. Canadian government geological surveys estimate that as much as 198 trillion cubic feet of gas lies hidden under the Basin's icy cover. Enough to fuel Canada for the next 137 years at today's consumption.

POTENTIAL AND PROBLEMS
In spite of this tremendous potential, there are problems. The harsh environment and rising exploration and production costs have led many oil companies to question the value of their investment in the Basin.

A COOPERATIVE EFFORT
To help solve the problems, we proposed a timesaving plan calling for a cooperative seismic reconnaissance survey of the Basin's 38 million offshore acres.
Nine companies now in the Basin liked our plan and formed a group to carry it out.
They made us operator.

SHORTENING THE SEARCH
We expect to complete the survey in three years at an estimated cost of $42 million. Although it's the costliest seismic project ever conducted, it's a relatively small price to pay considering that it would cost each company $42 million to do a comparable survey of its own.
More importantly, it cuts years off the search for gas and promises to attract other oil and gas companies to the Basin.

EVERYBODY'S A WINNER
Working together, we should be able to realize the Basin's full potential. The time and money our plan saves could enable us, as well as our competitors, to start producing natural gas and turn a profit on our investment much sooner than we could without the plan.
Granted, our 20% share of the Basin's acreage means we've got a lot to gain by helping our competitors.
But the quicker and cheaper it is to find energy, the better it'll be for all of us.
You'll be hearing from us. Soon.

sport. The cable industry is waging a vigorous campaign against the proposal, on which comments are now being received by the commission, and Representative Early said he and several of his colleagues were “concerned” about it.

Chairman Wiley doggedly insisted every time the issue was raised that the commission would deal with it, and soon—the commission is scheduled to discuss it on June 24—though he did not know whether the rule would be adopted in any form or dismissed. “The commission will make a decision,” he said. “Congress is free to act. We would like congressional guidance, but in the absence of congressional guidance, the commission feels it must meet its responsibility and act.”

He noted that the proposed rule, originally issued for comment in 1972 (two years before he became chairman), was conceived as an attempt to follow congressional intent, as indicated in the statute permitting major league teams to agree to deny their games to local television. Since then, the law has been modified to deny the leagues that right in the case of sold-out games.

Several subcommittee members indicated they had doubts about the industry’s effort at self-regulation, through the so-called family viewing concept, as a solution to what some consider the problem of undue sex and violence on television at a time when children are viewing.

Chairman Wiley developed the concept in consultation with broadcasting leaders as a response to a directive last year from the House and Senate Appropriations Committees and the Senate Commerce Committee that the commission act to shield children from such programming. Under family viewing, the hours of 7 to 9 p.m. are to be programmed with material suitable even for young children.

Chairman Wiley stressed repeatedly that the First Amendment and the no-censorship provision of the Communications Act make it difficult for the commission to adopt rules to regulate programming but that the self-regulatory approach that has been adopted seems promising. “In time, we’ll see whether the industry will meet its commitment in good faith,” he said.

Representative Bill Alexander (D-Ark.) said he had heard from station managers in his district, who favored family viewing, that some broadcasters were resisting it. He asked for a list of those who are resisting the idea so that they might be contacted.

Chairman Wiley managed to sidestep the request. He noted that various industry groups had endorsed the idea and that what opposition had been expressed was based on the contention that television “is an art form and should be allowed to deal with controversial issues,” free of government involvement. However, he said he did not think those reasons were sufficient to block industry effort at self-regulation, particularly since “television goes into the home.”

The FCC drew a new reporting assignment at the hearing last week. Representative Andrews, noting that the commissioners spent $24,000 on travel in 1972-73 and $20,000 in 1973-74 (Broadcasting, March 12, 1974), assigned to file travel reports with the subcommittee. The subcommittee wants to know where the commissioners go and to whom they speak. The commission was not being singled out for special attention, apparently. “I get this from some State Department,” Representative Andrews noted.

All’s love and war on fairness

Second round of hearings before amended Pastore features Monroe and Straus arguing against it, religious broadcasters for it

The pros and cons of the fairness doctrine were again debated last week in Washington before the Senate Communications Subcommittee, as Chairman John Pastore (D.R.I.) continued to ask how to square what he called the public’s First Amendment rights with the broadcasters’

Bill Monroe, NBC News correspondent and Washington editor of the Today Show, submitted that there is “something dangerously wrong” when Congress and the FCC apply rules to news media on how to report issues and political campaigns. Just because the electronic media require the government to allocate channels before they can operate, said Mr. Monroe, there is no excuse for government influence or control over news decisions.

Senator Pastore noted during an exchange with Mr. Monroe that he was “all for the First Amendment rights of broadcasters,” but could not see how those rules were being abridged by the fairness doctrine. “I do see the weakness on the part of some (broadcast) executives” to pursue controversial subject matter, he continued, acknowledging that he was uncertain how to alter the doctrine to counter such weaknesses. What Senator Pastore fears is striking the doctrine altogether, an act that he equated with allowing broadcasters a license in “perpetuity.”

Mr. Monroe, after being asked whether he would favor such a license, said unequivocally “yes” and claimed antitrust laws could prevent gross monopolization of ideas. Regarding broadcast executives who lack courage, Mr. Monroe contended that it was easier for newspaper people to have that courage, since they did not incur the expense in money and time that broadcasters face once they are hit with fairness doctrine complaints.

Further proof of the inhibiting effects of the fairness doctrine on news broadcasts was suggested by R. Peter Straus, publisher of WMC (AM) New York, who noted that the My Lai, Pentagon Papers and Watergate stories appeared first in print. “I cannot accept the thesis that print journalists are inevitably better investigative reporters,” said Mr. Straus. He said that if Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein had attempted to air their early findings on Watergate, a television editor would have killed the story.

Senator Pastore, however, saw other differences between print and broadcasting. Barring economic problems, he said, anybody could start a newspaper tomorrow in any city. But broadcasters, regardless of financial clout, must find an available frequency, and that difference is the reason for the fairness doctrine, the senator asserted.

Mr. Straus, unlike Mr. Monroe, did not urge lifting all obligations from broadcasters. “I accept the role of public trustee,” he said. But he added that experience with the fairness doctrine has not made for greater public dialogue, as it was intended.

Acknowledging that he did not have any ready-made solutions, Mr. Straus suggested two possible courses for revision of the present fairness doctrine. First he would allow the doctrine to continue, but only as “one important” criterion in the over-all license renewal process, thereby not making it ground alone for a broadcaster to lose his license. Second, Mr. Straus suggested the doctrine be applied to a community as a whole. The FCC would take into account the diversity of viewpoints aired over all stations in a given market.

Two witnesses in support of the doctrine were the Rev. Ernest Ryden and the Rev. Richard D. Fischer, both from the Rhode Island State Council of Churches. They are active in producing public affairs shows for Providence, R.I., area stations.

Mr. Ryden acknowledged the problem broadcasters face with requests for free time, but added that “no one has ever said that freedom comes cheaply. If this is what it costs, then that price must be paid,” he said.

Mr. Fischer called the fairness doctrine the "magna carta" of the electronic age. Four years of experience in producing Face the News, a public-service program aired over WPRI-TV Providence, said Mr. Fischer, has convinced him that he needs and welcomes such guidelines.

Another supporter of the fairness doctrine was Robert Sauber, a lecturer on communications at the Rhode Island School of Design, who lambasted broadcasters on various accounts including, "corruption of the election process" by the fees charged for political announcements and "selling violence to the American people and making a "mockery" of public service. Fairness to the public, not to broadcasters, should be the committee’s first priority, he claimed.

The Rev. Jim Nicholls, a fundamentalist minister and former principal in KAYE-(AM)-Puyallup, Wash., asserted that a broadcaster is on safe ground as long as he provides only entertainment and amusement. But when a licensee seeks to alert and inform people he stands to run into trouble with the FCC.

Kaye, now KUPY, has been in hearing at the commission for several years on charges that it had violated the fairness doctrine. Additional hearings on the fairness doctrine will be held, but as yet no date has been set.

Cable television is called sticking point in copyright bill

As House opens hearings, Scott's performer royalty also picks up some support

The U.S. register of copyrights testified last week that the dispute over cable television liability was the biggest stumbling block in the way of new copyright legislation. Barbara Ringer, the register, made that judgment to a House Judiciary subcommittee beginning hearings on H.R. 223, a bill comparable to one that the Senate adopted last session. The legislation is a wholesale revision of U.S. copyright law.

Three witnesses, Mrs. Ringer, John G. Lorenz, acting librarian of Congress, and Abraham L. Kamstein, former register of copyrights and honorary consultant in copyright at the Library of Congress, reviewed the 50-year history of efforts to revise the 1909 copyright act.

Mr. Kamenstein, who noted he has spent "almost a life's work" on copyright, suggested that the experience has convinced him that there are no easy shortcuts and no side can afford the "luxury of a complete victory."

Most of last Wednesday's testimony came from Mrs. Ringer. She forecast that testimony on cable liability will be "sharp," and she said nothing on the issue is "dark, white or even gray." But she also told the subcommittee, whose members, with the exception of the chairman, Robert Kastenmeier (D-Wis.), are new to the copyright issue, that the question remaining on CATV copyright is "how much to pay," not "whether to pay."

Mrs. Ringer qualified that statement by acknowledging that some cable operators oppose the inclusion of any cable liabilities in new legislation. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled there is none under present law.

Directors of the National Cable Television Association have voted to support "the principle of copyright licensing," although under pressure from some members and from nonmember cable operators to oppose it (BROADCASTING, May 5).

Mrs. Ringer also said she favored the principle of performer rights that have been insistently advocated by Senator Hugh Scott (D-Pa.). Senator Scott wants broadcasters to be subject to a scale of royalty payments to performers and manufacturers of phonograph records. A provision he introduced to that effect in the Senate copyright bill was rejected by the Senate last year. He has now introduced the legislation as an amendment to the 1909 Copyright Act. Mrs. Ringer said a performer right would be more appropriately included in the new copyright bill.

Hernreich's purchase of KGTO Co. given yellow light at FCC

The FCC has granted George Hernreich conditional approval to purchase control of Noark Investment Co., licensee of KOTV-Fayetteville, Ark., from Paul Milam Sr., Paul Milam Jr. and Jane R. Horne for $215,000 (BROADCASTING, June 18, 1973). Final approval rests on the outcome of a proceeding into Mr. Hernreich's applications for a license to cover a construction permit for KFPW-TV Fort Smith and for renewal of license for KAIT-TV Jonesboro, both Arkansas.

Both applications were designated for hearing involving Mr. Hernreich's character qualifications. At issue were Mr. Hernreich's payments to an ABC TV network employee and favorable changes in the KAIT-TV affiliation agreement with ABC. Possible misrepresentations to the FCC were also investigated. The Commission eventually granted the KFPW-TV application but denied KAIT-TV renewal. Mr. Hernreich later filed a petition seeking reconsideration of the KAIT-TV decision and that petition is pending.

Both Mr. Hernreich and Noark Investment previously had agreed to accept a conditioned grant.

KGTO-TV has been dark since Dec. 3, 1973, due to a lack of funds, and Mr. Hernreich said it will be operated as a satellite of KFPW-TV, which currently operates on channel 40. KOTO-TV and KFPW-TV are the only UHF stations in Arkansas and KGTO-TV (channel 36) is the only TV station in Fayetteville.

KNK is on 1280 KHz with 5 Kw KHz and 500 w night.

CCC expands into newspaper field

Venerable 'Cincinnati Enquirer' to be purchased in negotiations that could affect WSU-WJDO

Combined Communications Corp., the Phoenix-based group broadcaster and outdoor advertising firm, has agreed to buy the Cincinnati Enquirer from American Financial Corp., in a $55-million deal consisting of cash, notes and stock. If the purchase is consummated, the diversified financial services firm, which has assets totaling more than $2.5 billion, will become a 9% stockholder in CCC. American Financial's holdings in CCC may eventually more than double if 750,000 warrants included in the purchase price are converted to stock over the next 10 years.

The transaction raises questions under the FCC's recently adopted crossownership rules that prohibit acquisition of co-located newspapers and broadcast stations. CCC now owns WSU(AM)-WJDO(FM) Cincinnati. CCC said it would divest itself of the radio stations.

American Financial, based in Cincinnati, has interests in insurance, banking.

saving and loan and in home building. It acquired the 135-year-old newspaper in 1971 when it bought 60% ownership from E. W. Scripps Co. for $23 million; later it acquired additional ownership bringing its investment in the newspaper to $33 million. The Enquirer has a daily circulation of more than 200,000 and a Sunday circulation of more than 300,000.

The purchase agreement calls for CCC to pay American Financial $30 million in cash; $16 million in secured notes and 500,000 common shares plus 750,000 warrants. CCC had 4.6 million shares outstanding as of March 31. The agreement between American Financial and CCC is subject to the approval of CCC's directors and stockholders; AF's directors already have approved.

The agreement also brings new voices into both CCC and Enquirer management. Carl B. Lindner, American Financial president, will remain Enquirer publisher but also will join the CCC board. William Keating, Enquirer president and chief executive officer, and John J. Louis Jr., CCC chairman, will continue in their positions and also will become directors of the Enquirer. Mr. Eller and Mr. Louis and their families own about 40% of CCC outstanding stock.

CCC owns KTAR-(AM)-KBBC(FM) Phoenix; KTAR-TV Mesa-Phoenix; KARK-TV Little Rock, Ark.; KKKD(FM) Los Angeles; KSTV(TV) Denver; WXTA-TV Atlanta; WPTA(TV) Roanoke-Fort Wayne, Ind.; WLKY-TV Louisville Ky.; KOCO-TV Oklahoma City and WWDS(FM) Hackensack, N.J.

It is also buying KEZL(FM) San Diego from PSA Broadcasting Co. for $850,000, and AM(AM) Los Angeles from Eleventy-Five Corp., for 15,000 shares of CCC stock (valued then at $250,000) plus assumption of liabilities reportedly running in the millions.

Last year CCC merged with Pacific and Southern Co., acquiring five broadcast properties. Earlier this year CCC in a $35-million deal had contracted to acquire the Harlem Globetrotters and associated enterprises that included five radio stations. The Globetrotter deal was called off last month (BROADCASTING, April 28). CCC also owns outdoor advertising firms in the U.S. as well as a plant manufacturing electric signs in Canada. Several years ago when it announced its program of expansion, CCC noted that it was interested in acquiring newspapers as well as more radio and or TV stations and outdoor advertising companies.

FCC criticizes tactics against Harrisburg renewals

Citizen group's method comes under fire; WKBO is renewed, but commission wants further look at WFEC employment

The FCC in separate orders last week reprimanded a Harrisburg, Pa., citizen group for filing what the FCC called defective and duplicative petitions to deny against two Harrisburg radio stations.

But, at the same time, the commission said it was deferring action on the renewal of one of the stations until the licensee filed additional material on its equal employment opportunity program.

The commission said its staff's review of WFEC(AM)'s employment practices indicates that the station's EEO program is more conducive to maintaining station employment profiles as they are than to assuring compliance with commission rules. The station maintains a "neutral" rather than an "affirmative" program, the commission said.

The renewal application granted was that for WKBO(AM). The commission said that after reviewing the various pleadings that had been filed it concluded that the station merited renewal.

The petitions, which had been filed by David Lawson, chairman of the Ad-Hoc Coalition on Broadcasting of Harrisburg, had alleged that the stations failed to ascertain adequately the problems, needs, and interests of Harrisburg's black population, had failed to provide programming designed to meet the ascertainment problems, and had discriminated against blacks in their employment.

The commission consecutively dismissed and denied the petitions. It said the petitions were procedurally defective in that they did not include a notation that they had been verified—a declaration before an appropriate official that the contents were true—as required by the rules, and substantively defective in that the charges were not made with any specificity.

Furthermore, it said it was concerned that the pleadings, except for changes in the call letters and the licensees involved, were "precisely identical—verbatim . . . ." The commission said such "blanket" petitions "should not be submitted unless and until it is reasonably clear that the objections raised are directly and substantially applicable to each and every one of the applications it is directed against."

The commission, in its order renewing the license of wkno, said it was making no judgment regarding the coalition's motives and did not want to chill the public's participation in the license-renewal process. But, it said, it wanted to impress on potential petitioners the seriousness of filing a petition to deny.

But if the coalition's petition left something to be desired, so, the commission indicated, did wpec's EEO program. The licensee said it "would" place advertising for help in media circulating among minority groups and women, and "would" include colleges and schools with significant minority groups and women enrollments in its recruitment efforts. But, the commission noted, the station said it had never found it necessary to advertise for help or actively recruit prospective employees. The commission also said that wpec did not employ any full-time blacks as of the conclusion of its last license period (1969-1972).

The commission directed the station to take three steps to bolster its EEO program:

- It is to submit within 30 days a list of local minority organizations, agencies, community leaders, schools and colleges with which it will maintain contact whenever it wants to fill a position, and a list of local media that circulates among minority groups with which it will place help-wanted ads.
- Submit a statement how it encourages employees to refer minority applicants to it, and a detailed statement on the affirmative action it has undertaken to encourage minority applicants for each job opening filled in the year beginning April 1, 1974.
- Submit on Aug. 1 and Nov. 1 a statement detailing the affirmative action it had taken to encourage minority applicants for each job opening since the date of the order.

The commission vote in both orders was the same—7-to-0, with Commissioner Benjamin L. Hooks concurring.

Radio networks sag

FCC says rising expenses take toll on added revenues

Our Broadcasters Libel Insurance policy is nearly as crisp and concise as your evening news.

The language is that plain, the provisions that clear, the coverage that complete. It isn't what you would call great writing, but it sure is understandable.

That's what experience will do for you. Forty years ago, the ERC Broadcasters Libel Insurance policy had more exclusions than it did coverage. Today, there are no exclusions. If you have trouble, you're covered, even for punitive damages.

Here are the facts of life, about libel suits, as ERC has developed them in more than 40 years of underwriting Libel Insurance policies:

1. In any given month or year, it's probably not going to happen to you.
2. If you broadcast enough times, over enough years, it's bound to happen.
3. When you wind up in front of a jury, that group is going to try to sock it to you. They won't want to miss the opportunity to get even for your bad taste in programming.

These same facts of life make Libel Insurance one of the best buys in the insurance marketplace. It's an ideal setup for economical coverage: low incidence of claims, but very stiff expenses when you have to go to court...even if you win. Much like Major Medical. You'll probably only need it once or twice, but it's curtains if you're without it when the time comes. If you (or your insurance representative) will fill out and mail the coupon, we'll respond by mail with full details.

Please do it soon. Some malcontent may have you in his sights right now.

year, according to figures issued last week by the FCC. Revenues for the seven networks—Mutual Broadcasting, CBS, NBC and ABC's three AM and one FM—and their 18 stations rose to $104.4 million, but profits (before federal income tax) dropped to $2.3 million.

Other FCC findings showed:

- A 4% increase brought 1974 revenues to $64 million for the 14 AM and four AM-FM O&O combinations. Profits, however, declined 7.3% to $8.4 million. In 1973, profits had dipped 8.4% below 1972.
- Network operations for the seven networks suffered a $6.2 million loss on $40.4 million in revenues. In 1973, the networks lost $3.1 million on $40.7 million in revenues.

Excluded from the FCC's report are 14 owned-and-operated FM's of the networks. The 1974 revenues of those stations totaled $11.8 million and their expenses came to $13.9 million. This compares to $9.5 million and $12.4 million, respectively, in 1973.

Burch figures in Ford's future
Former FCC Chairman Dean Burch, who first achieved prominence as chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1964, is back in a political role. At President Ford's request, he has assembled a group of top Republicans to begin planning President Ford's campaign for election in 1976.

Mr. Burch, who is now practicing law in Washington, served as chairman of the FCC from November 1969 until March 1974, when he joined the White House staff as a top aide to then-President Nixon. Mr. Burch stayed at the White House through the Nixon resignation in August and left last December.

The group he got together last week included former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, White House assistant Bryce Harlow, Nebraska Republican leader Richard Herman, former Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton and Robert Douglass, a New York lawyer who is close to Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Since President Ford asked Mr. Burch to get the campaign planning started, there was speculation he would be named chairman. However, no one had been given that designation by midweek.

FCC rules out Philadelphia sweep
It denies minority requests for citywide probe of hiring

The FCC has declined to institute a marketwide inquiry into employment discrimination allegations against 28 of 36 stations in Philadelphia by the Communications Coalition, Council of Chairmen of African People, the Black Affairs Council and several individuals. The commission decided, however, to defer the license renewals of seven stations until they sub-

\[ \text{mit additional material on affirmative-action employment practices.} \]

The seven stations were WIBG(AM), WYSP(FM), WYLF(AM), WTAJ-TV, WFLN-AM/FM and WIOO(FM). Each was directed to file a job structure analysis describing all positions and their occupants, along with a detailed description of efforts to broaden the pool of applicants to give minorities an equal chance.

Six other stations, WHYV-TV (Wilmington, Del.), WPVI-TV, WIP-FM, WPHT-TV and WPIL-TV, were kept on deferred status pending resolution of petitions filed by other community groups.

In declining to press a marketwide inquiry, the FCC said that the entire thrust of its rules was toward individual licensees, and without specific allegations of particular instances of overt discrimination by licensees, a marketwide hearing would serve no purpose.

The commission further pointed out that in comparing 1972 (when the charges were first made) and 1974 it found that marketwide minority employment increased from 7.3% to 12.29% and that the percentage of minority members employed in "nonmenial positions" increased from 31.25% to 68.35%.

Those Jersey comments. FCC has changed signals again on length of time it will allow for filing of comments in inquiry and rulemaking looking to possible provision of VHF television service for New Jersey. Commission had originally extended deadline for comments for 40 days, to after receipt of petition from New Jersey Coalition for Fair Broadcasting, whose request for rulemaking initiated proceeding, commission reduced extension to 46 days; deadline for comments is now May 30. Deadline for replies, however, has been extended four days to July 15. Coalition which had asked that extension be reduced to 30 days, said its economic consultant would not be available for reviewing comments and preparing reply after July 1.

\[ \text{New.} \] NBC Radio has signed KQN(AM) San Bernardino, Calif., as its first in that area, effective today (May 12). Station also expects to continue as ABC Entertainment network affiliate. NBC Radio has also signed with WWUS(FM) Lafayette, Ind.

Opposing the opposition. KIRO Inc. has filed opposition with FCC to petition to deny brought by Citizens Institute against KIRO-TV Seattle, CI charged station with faulty ascertainment, deceptive advertising and inadequate children's programming and employment opportunities for women (BROADCASTING, Jan. 13). CI also claimed that KIRO's ultimate ownership with Mormon Church has led to religious propagandizing and news bias. KIRO is subsidiary of Bontonville Station group owned by Mormon Church. KIRO denied charges by claiming that it has "compiled a meritorious record of service" and that petitioner raises "no substantial or material issues" which showed license should be denied.

Broadcast Advertising

‘Jaws’ looks to TV spots for clincher

Universal plans blockbuster buy for three days for movie that will open in 500 theaters

The start of a national television campaign that bodes a potential revolution in motion-picture marketing and promises a concomitant benefit to TV is scheduled for next month when Universal Pictures opens its 500-odd theater showing of its new "Jaws" movie.

In what is seen as the ultimate move in saturation advertising for a movie, Universal has bought 30-second spots in virtually every prime-time TV network program for three full days before and on the June 20 opening day of the Zanuck-Brown feature.

Actually, the unprecedented TV campaign, that figures at more than $2.5 million on a gross rate schedule but will probably be closer to the $1-million level with discounts, opens June 17 with spots on two prime-time shows (Happy Days, ABC, and Adam 12, NBC).

The national, three-network buy is considered a watershed move in movie marketing since heretofore first-run movies have opened at major cities with subsequent openings soon thereafter in other markets to etch out the common 125-150 theaters for first run showings.

However, "Jaws" is opening in more than 500 theaters (the company last week had received final bids from exhibitors and was evaluating them).

Should the move be successful, it is expected to spell a new method of marketing by other movie producers to the extent, it is believed, that the six major studios may well follow. If this happens, it was explained, the involvement in television could easily amount to more than $25 million annually for this type of movie advertising. This is based on these suppositions: that each studio produces at least three major features a year; that the six majors would mean 18 such features annually, each of which would require $1.5 million. Eighteen times $1 million equals $18 million.

Normally the movie studios provide co-op money for use by exhibitors in promoting the first-run openings locally. The move by Universal to make it a national TV campaign is causing some anguish among exhibitors, it's understood, because the studio is requiring the exhibitor to share some of the costs of the TV buy; generally, it's been reported, up to 30% of the cost on an allocation basis among all the markets.

Clark Ramsay, Universal VP-advertising and publicity, put it delicately the other day when he assured exhibitors would not be asked to promote "Jaws" locally to the extent they would have been required to do under traditional marketing practices.

Mr. Ramsay compared the national TV
One sour note as Army starts radio test

Cleveland FM says commercials are too militant; Ayer disagrees

WMMs-FM Cleveland, one of 20 stations selected to participate in the Army's test of paid radio recruitment advertising (BROADCASTING, April 21) has dropped out of the program because it believes the Army's ads are "antagonistic to a significant portion of the WMMs audience."

In a letter to N. W. Ayer, the agency handling the Army account, Carl Hirsch, vice president and general manager of WMMs, said the station would prefer commercials stressing the need for a "force for promoting world peace, morality, enhancing the image of America as a force for good rather than aggressive militancy."

A spokesman for N. W. Ayer said: "Aggressive militancy plays no part in those commercials; that would be suicide." He characterized the commercials as "telling it like it is" about basic training and infantry training.

Also in a telephone interview, Mr. Hirsch said that the "forceful gung-ho" tone of the ads would turn off a majority of WMMs's "sophisticated youth" listeners. He said he does not object to the station running Army ads, just the seven 60-second spots provided for the paid radio test. "I wish they'd give me the opportunity to rewrite them," he said.

The Ayer spokesman said WMMs is the first station ever to object to the content of Army messages, paid or free. He said Ayer will not pick another station to replace WMMs in the test.

There have been some changes, meanwhile, in the list of other stations participating in the test. Ayer's revised list:

- WARC (AM) and WXLO (FM) New York
- WIBO (AM) and WPLJ (AM) Philadelphia
- WKWF (AM) Buffalo, N.Y.
- WPED (AM) Providence, R.I.
- WQCC (FM) Cleveland
- KDWB (AM) and WDDY (AM) Minneapolis
- St. Paul, WIST (AM) Milwaukee
- WSAI (AM) Cincinnati
- WFFE (AM) Indianapolis
- KGO (FM) Des Moines, Iowa
- KILT (AM) and KIRB (FM) Houston, and WOAM (AM) New Orleans.
- WKVY (AM) Oklahoma City
- KNDE (AM) Sacramento, Calif.
- KFIZ (AM) Phoenix

The copy strategy for the Army's paid radio campaign has this objective: to encourage "high-quality" youngsters to enlist in that branch of service. An Ayer spokesman said commercials portray the seven commercials portrays Army service following high-school graduation as an attractive alternative, particularly to young persons who are uncertain of their higher educational goals. Some of the radio spots focus on "Project Ahead," an educational program offered to Army personnel. Other commercials, according to Ayer, describe the challenges of the various branches of the Army.

The Army was given clearance several weeks ago to undertake a test of paid

Champale Inc., subsidiary of Iroquois Brands Ltd., Greenwich, Conn., is spending about $2 million, more than half in broadcast, to advance its new theme, "Get Ready for Living—Go Champale," on behalf of its sparkling malt liquor. Network and spot TV in 30 major markets include a commercial showing Champale being enjoyed by costumed models of a masquerade party. Spot radio also is being used in a campaign that will last until October. Agency is Richard K. Manoff Inc., New York.

radio advertising for 13 weeks in markets that have a high enlistment rate for the various armed services but a comparatively low rate for the Army (BROADCASTING, April 14). The cost of the campaign is said to be about $600,000.

The Army traditionally has used radio on a public service basis, and a spokesman said it is still asking for this type of support for its announcements.

Chrysler tries again

Radio-TV messages suggest customers couple tax refund with auto maker's $200 rebate

To coincide with the government's tax rebate program this month Chrysler Corp., Detroit, has started a massive, four-week radio campaign in network and spot to promote its $200 rebate on the purchase of Dart and Valiant models and the company's vans.

A Chrysler spokesman said that 1,700 stations will carry the radio message, which suggests that the government rebate be used in buying a Dart, a Valiant or a van and pointing out the purchaser can also save an additional $200. The spot-radio effort began on a limited basis and built up last week to all of the top-50 markets. In addition, the campaign will run on all four radio networks, and many local dealers are expected to tie in with the national drive. The agency is Young & Rubicam, Detroit and New York.

Earlier this year Chrysler and other major auto companies supported their rebate programs with substantial TV-radio sprees. Ford Motor Co., General Motors Corp. and American Motors Corp. have no immediate plans to follow Chrysler into the new rebate program and are taking a wait-and-see attitude.

Business Briefs

$3 million latter. Yardley of London Inc., New York, has assigned Yardley Old English Herbal Soap, Yardley Old English Lavender Soap and a new soap product, plus four other new products to The Marschalk Co., New York. Billings are approximately $3 million and are heavily in television.

Branching out. Trans-American Video, Hollywood, has established new division to produce TV commercials for agencies. Unit will be headed by Jack Mauck, TAV vice president.

Pro Time changes. Pro Time Sales Inc., New York, has bought assets of its associated company in Los Angeles from Bill Warren, who will continue with representative firm as manager/Pacific Division. Charles Smith has resigned as manager of Pro Time's Philadelphia office and will be replaced by Dick Harvey of WPEN(AM) Philadelphia sales staff.

Taxing situation. Finance Committee of Connecticut General Assembly (state legislature) has held public hearing in Hartford on proposed bill that would impose 7% sales tax on all media advertising, including television and radio. Speaking in opposition to suggested legislation were representatives of the Connecticut Broadcasters Association and of individual television and radio stations.

Insufficient information, postal problems blamed for Nielsen's questioned sample

Broadcast Rating Council said, after an audit of A. C. Nielsen Co., that the firm had been "only minimally informative" in notifying users that its January-February TV market reports involved some in-tab samples that were "substantially below our target" (BROADCASTING, March 10, et seq.). However, the council's auditors said, samples were not below Nielsen's stated minimum standards. A spokesman for Nielsen, which requested the audit after questions arose about the sample size, said the report of BRC's auditors, Ernst & Ernst, confirmed Nielsen's original position that the lower sample response resulted from Nielsen's experimental use of third-class mail and that it did not materially affect the validity of reports (BROADCASTING, March 31).

B&B gets even bigger

Benton & Bowles is opening a Chicago agency and has recruited four executives from Needham, Harper & Steers to operate Benton & Bowles Inc.—Chicago.

Named senior vice presidents of Benton and Bowles were these former NH&S executives: Robert Cohen, vice president and account director; Dale E. Landsman, senior vice president and creative director; Thomas F. Papanek, senior vice president and creative director, and John Pavasars, vice president and associate research directors.

John S. Bowen, president of B&B, which has offices in New York, Los Angeles and foreign countries, said the new agency does not yet have an office location and has no billing to announce. B&B had worldwide billings of $315,800,000 in 1974.

ABC and NBC fight relaxation of pay-cable rule on movies

They ask FCC to take another look at three-to-10-year provision, saying it will make for less, rather than more, program diversity.

NBC and ABC last week filed petitions for reconsideration of the FCC's new pay cable rules, claiming the commission's decision to relax the rules as they pertain to movies will increase siphoning and have a deleterious effect on the segment of the public that relies on free television for entertainment.

NBC said that the present pay cable rules—which have shortened the two-to-10-year period for exclusive free television exhibition of movies to three-to-ten (BROADCASTING, March 21) contradict the intended purpose of the pay-scale proceeding, which, it said, was to increase the number of program choices. "Encouraging pay cable to show programs that are already available on free television hardly increases the number of program choices available to the public or caters to minority tastes and interests," said NBC.

Furthermore, NBC claimed that the record has shown that most films conclude their theatrical runs in less than 12 months, and therefore pay cable has ample opportunity to use feature films both during the first and second years of theatrical release.

ABC challenged the FCC's "apparent assumption" that increased access to movies and sports by cable would help "bail out" the cable industry. The evidence, said ABC, is that pay cable is meeting its optimistic projections and recent plans for satellite interconnections will further spur its growth.

ABC urged the commission to revise the 90% rule, so that no more than 60% of the time available on a single channel may be devoted to feature films and sports, with exceptions for local amateur sports.

NBC also faulted the FCC for relaxations in the sports provisions for pay cable on similar grounds. ABC however, only noted the sports rules unlike the feature film rules, allow for "extensive" exceptions. ABC preferred to first see how those exceptions might work.

The two networks are not alone in their unhappiness over the commission's new pay cable rules. From the time the new rules came out, both broadcasters and cable people began to file court appeals.

The list of those taking that course of action include Home Box Office Inc., American Television & Communications Corp., along with five other cable groups and Metromedia Inc. (BROADCASTING, March 24, et seq.).

Things looking up. Premier Cablevision Ltd. of Vancouver, B.C., Canada's largest cable company accounting for estimated 15% of country's subscriber market, said it expects to start paying dividends in the 1975-76 fiscal year, which begins in September. Prerequisite for good news was $12-million loan from Toronto-Dominion Bank, according to Premier's chairman, Sydney W. Welsh. Loan was solicited to finance acquisition of Keeble Cable Television Ltd. of Toronto and cable expansions in Ireland.

Guide to Cable and New Communications Technologies." Nonprofit organization, initiated with grant from Academy for Contemporary Problems, plans to publish other texts on cable and telecommunications development. "Cable Handbooks by experts on legal, economic, regulatory, developmental, engineering, technical, and public policy aspects of cable communications." The Handbook will be available at $6.95 plus 40 cents postage and handling through publisher, Communications Press Inc., 1346 Connecticut Avenue, Washington 20036.

Bibliography. Communications Library has prepared "broad-scope" bibliography on cable television which includes 600 plus listings of books, magazine articles, doctoral dissertations, promotional materials and various other literature concerning CATV. Entitled "BCVT," bibliography consists of 45 pages of compiled data together with four supplements for $25 annual advance fee. Format permits insertion of quarterly additions.

Sourcebook. National Cable Television Association has published CATV Today, a 126-page book which includes papers by lawyers, economists and industry analysts that address latest issues confronting cable development. Topics covered include: legal and regulatory problems, construction and operating costs, FCC regulation and cable services. Book is available for $5 at NCTA: 918 16th St. N.W., Washington 20006.

Dover expansion. Telecommunications Inc., Dover, N.J.-based cable system with 14 franchise areas within state, has completed $3.5-million funding project with Heller-Oak Cable Finance Corp., looking toward two-year expansion project. Current 150,000 customers are served by 14,000 homes, and serving 9,000 subscribers is to be enlarged to exceed 500 miles and pass more than 50,000 homes. Samuel Kravetz, company president, estimated 25,000 subscriber level.

Sold. Mansfield Journal Co., publisher of newspapers, Mansfield, Ohio, Dover, New Philadelphia and Willoughby, all Ohio, and in Troy, N.Y., has purchased Jefferson Cable Corp. and Martinsville Cable Vision Inc. for $5.3 million from American Finance System Inc. Jefferson Cable operates systems in Charlestown, S.D., and Wayneboro, Va. Together with Martinsville (Va.) Cable Vision, three systems account for 21,500 subscribers. Sale is subject to approval of local authorities.

NCTA points finger back at NAB on consensus agreement

The National Cable Television Association says it has "nothing to apologize for" on keeping its commitments to copyright as set down in the 1971 consensus agreement. The non-apology was filed last week at the FCC in response to a request made last winter by the National Association of Broadcasters that the commission revisit its signal carriage and exclusivity rules, since they were based on an agreement which the cable industry, said NCTA, did and Wayneboro, Va.

NCTA has contended that it had made concessions that helped formulate the FCC's cable rules, the concessions made by NCTA—specifically regarding copyright and network exclusivity—must also be kept or a new approach to those issues was necessary.

NCTA noted that in the 1971 consensus agreement it agreed to support legislation calling for arbitration for a negotiated copyright fee settlement.

But, NCTA said, it later became "apparent" that the negotiations were one-sided and never intended to achieve a result. In over one year of talks with the Committee of Copyright Owners, said NCTA, the only rate offer it received was for 16.5% of cable's gross revenues.

Equally invalid is the charge that changes subsequent to 1972 in the network exclusivity rules contravene the consensus agreement, said NCTA. Nowhere in that agreement, claimed NCTA, is there an "evasion" of the regulations for any given time period. Furthermore, NCTA argued, while NAB finds fault with cable's attempts to change the 1972 cable rules to be less restrictive, it and other broadcast groups have tried to tighten those restrictions.

"Punishment of NCTA for real or imagined slights is so unbelievably shortsighted and contrary to public policy," concluded NCTA, that NAB's petition to revisit the rules should be rejected.

Talk is again in sky at N.Y. cable session

Satellite cable networking, the hot item at the National Cable Television Association convention in New Orleans (BROADCASTING, April 21) drew attention again, but in a more regional context at the New York State Cable Television Association's spring meeting last week.

Gerald Levin, president of Home Box Office Inc., assured his audience of New York cable people that satellite service will "shift" the emphasis of HBO's Manhattan-based operation, but rather it would "expand and improve" service over-all.

"The name of the game," he continued, "has always been and will remain "diversity of programming." And what is good for the cable industry as a whole will be good for individual cable operators, Mr. Levin said, no matter where they are located.

Furthermore, Mr. Levin noted, the extensive parameters of New York state might suggest practical use of satellite earth stations by some New York broadcasters as well.

Also on hand for the satellite panel discussion at the Rochester meeting were: H. J. Schlauf, consultant, Transcommunications Corp., who took up the non-video applications of satellite service; Arthur Anderson, New York attorney, who discussed the legal aspects of satellite communications and told operators what they need to file at the FCC for authority to build an earth receive station; and Howard Crispin, vice president of Scientific-Atlanta Inc., who elaborated on the hardware necessary to build the downlink in satellite communications.

Panel date now June 17

Complying with a request by the Rocky Mountain Broadcasters Association, the FCC's Cable Television Bureau has rescheduled the date for its panel discussion on same-day network-program exclusivity protection that should be afforded by cable systems in the mountain time zone. The panel now will meet June 17, instead of the previously announced May 20. The bureau extended the date for the submission of data from May 5 to June 3.

Why SATELLITES and PAY-TV Now?

Home Box Office, owned by Time Inc., plans to feed its pay TV movies and sports to cable TV earth stations via RCA satellite channels. What is the significance of this announcement? Why, after two decades in development, has pay TV suddenly burst into the news? How many pay TV subscribers are there today, and how many are there likely to be five years from now?

These and other questions about the nation's newest entertainment medium are in a special report entitled "THE PROMISE OF PAY TV." I'm Not In Love—10 CC (Mercury) * 10 CC, with its last album, Sheet Music, seemed to have become the darling of the rock press, combining a compelling pop sound with sophisticated production and humorous lyrics designed to bring commercial as well as critical success. Its singles, most notably Rubber Bullets and Wall Street Shuffle, have failed to give the group the sales impact it has in its native England, but after a label change (from London to Mercury) it has returned with another effort. I'm Not In Love marks something of a change in style for the band, from the abrasive rock of Wall Street Shuffle to a smooth, stringed balled that may find listeners on MOR and pop stations. Early pop acceptance has come at KOWB(AM) Minneapolis; KOWB(AM) Fargo, N.D., and WTOP(AM) Winston-Salem, N.C.

I Dreamed Last Night—Justin Hayward and John Lodge (Threshold) * Most in-dustriewatchers sympathized with London Records' corporate wince when the Moody Blues broke up two years ago at the height of its commercial success, but a best-selling greatest-hits package and this single from a hit album by two group members should help the label (London distributes the group's Threshold product) make up for lost time. I Dreamed Last Night, like most of the Blue Jays album from which it is taken, is instantly recognizable to any Moody Blues fan, and its smooth, medium-tempo flavor and lush orchestration should make it popular among top-40 and adult contemporary audiences. It has been added by WCCL(AM) Columbus, Ohio, and WHY(AM) Montgomery, Ala.

Swearin' to God—Frankie Valli (Private Stock) * Mr. Valli returned to chart prominence after an absence of almost seven years, with My Eyes Adored You, which reached number two on the "Playlist" and topped national sales charts, establishing the fledgling Private Stock label in the process. His album, Closeup, is the label's first, and this single is edited down from a 10-minute disco-oriented cut on that album. This song has already been an airplay favorite in New York clubs and should show audiences that Mr. Valli remembers his dance-tune roots with the Four Seasons. It has been added by KWEI(AM) Topeka, Kan., WXYC(AM) Cleveland, and WCUE(AM) Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Extras. The following new releases, listed alphabetically by title, are making a mark in Broadcastings' "Playlist" reporting below the first 75:

- ATTITUDE DANCING, Carly Simon (Elektra).
- I DREAMED LAST NIGHT, Justin Hayward & John Lodge (Threshold).

Tracking the "Playlist." Philadelphia Freedom's fifth week at number one (and MCA's 10th) is in contrast to substantial "Playlist" activity, as 14 singles gain within the top 20. Ace's How Long jumps to five with Barry Manilow's It's A Miracle and the Blackbyrds' Walking in Rhythm also making their first top-10 appearances. Few records in recent months have entered the top 20 with as much authority as America's Sister Golden Hair, up 20 places to 13. Paul Anka's latest, I Don't Like to Sleep Alone, makes a large gain to 17, and new singles from Freddy Fender, Harold Melvin & the Blue Notes, and Grand Funk, all climbing rapidly, make initial top-20 appearances. Progressive country, a medium that, like progressive R&B, is just beginning to make substantial pop inroads, climbs toward top-20 status with Michael Murphy's Wildfire, now at 27. When Will I Be Loved, Linda Ronstadt's follow-up to You're No Good, is emulating the previous hit's success with MOR and country audiences and is now at 28. Alice Cooper's surprisingly earnest feminist statement, Only Women, makes another large gain, to 31. Major Harris's Love Won't Let Me Wait, in the smoothest of soul styles, soars to 33 from 67. Van McCoy is riding the latest disco dance craze to his first hit pop, The Hustle. The Double Brothers seem headed for another large hit with single far from their familiar style, Take Me In Your Arms (Rock Me), an old Motown hit and no relation to George McCrae's Rock Your Baby, at 37 this week, up from 62. Pilot, an English pop band, appears to have its first American hit with Magic, now at 41. Nell Sedaka's Immigrant makes a substantial gain after a few slow weeks and is now at 44. The Captain & Tennille, now topping some MOR lists, have Love Will Keep Us Together at 46. The Average White Band's follow-up to Pick Up The Pieces has not moved as quickly as some might have expected, but Cut The Cake seems to have picked up some momentum and is now at 50. Loggins & Messina also seem to be moving with their latest single, Growin', now at 58. A comeback hit for Joe Simon may be in the works, as his Get Down, Get Down climbs to 63. Led Zeppelin's first pop action from Physical Graffiti, entitled Trampled Underfoot, thumps to 65. Strongest among the new additions to the chart is Tanya Tucker's debut for MCA, entitled Lizzie and the Rainman (a Kenny O'Dell-Larry Henley collaboration), now receiving MOR, country and pop attention and breaking in at 60. Ray Stevens' version of Madame Cio-Cio-San, Shana Na Na's remake of (Just Like) Romeo and Juliet is at 73, and Dynamite, by Tony Camillo's Bazuka, is at 75.

News slanting charged to NBC by stockholders
But in the end ombudsman proposal is overwhelmingly voted down

NBC News was accused of bias and imbalance in half a dozen impassioned and sometimes bitter speeches from the floor at RCA's annual stockholders meeting last week. But in the end the stockholders gave the proposal for creation of an NBC News ombudsman—about which the speeches were made—the shortest shrift of all the losing causes on the day's agenda.

The ombudsman plan, proposed by Accuracy in Media (AIM), was supported by 2,768,090 shares, or 5.1% of the shares voted and opposed by $1.599,607 shares, or 94.9%. By comparison, 7.9% were voted for a motion to restrict executive stock options, and 7.4% for one to enforce corporate political neutrality. However, all three gathered enough support to be eligible for submission at next year's stockholders' meeting.

Reed J. Irvine, AIM chairman, contended in support of the ombudsman proposal that AIM had found it almost impossible to get NBC to respond to complaints that NBC News had failed to cover atrocities in Vietnam and had paid $12,000 to Communists for prisoner of war "propaganda" that the Communists, he said, should have been happy to pay NBC to carry. Murray Baron, who said he was an AIM board member, contended he had documentation of Communist atrocities in Vietnam about which "not a single word has been published or broadcast," and another stockholder said bias was evident not only in evening newscasts but also in daytime programs that "interview only the Shirley MacLaines, and never ask a hard-line question.” Several other speakers took similar tacks.

RCA Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff let them all speak—this segment took up more than half an hour of the three-and-a-half hour meeting (see also page 48)—and then replied that NBC's policy is to be "fair, accurate and balanced." In recognition that implementation of the policy is up to NBC management, he called upon NBC Chairman Julian Goodman, a member of the RCA board as well as a former head of NBC News.

Mr. Goodman dealt primarily with the broad question of an ombudsman rather than specific charges against NBC News. "We have an ombudsman—the executive management of NBC News," he asserted. NBC News has served "with objectivity and with accuracy to the best

It's that Peabody time of the year

ABC Peabody winners included (l to r) ABC News correspondent Peter Jennings, producer Carole Hart, actress Marlo Thomas and Av Westin, ABC News vice president and director of television documentaries. Mr. Jennings and Mr. Westin won for Sadat: Action Biography, produced under Mr. Westin's supervision with Mr. Jennings as reporter and co-producer. Ms. Thomas and Ms. Hart were honored for Free To Be... You and Me, entertainment special which they co-produced with Ms. Thomas starring. This year's were the 35th annual Peabody presentations for "distinguished and meritorious public service" in broadcasting.

Julian Goodman (c), NBC chairman, receives special Peabody for "outstanding work in the area of First Amendment rights and privileges for broadcasters" from Warren Agee (l), dean of University of Georgia's School of Journalism, and Harold Niven, vice president of National Association of Broadcasters.

Sam Cook Digges, president, CBS Radio Division, accepts Peabody from Dean Agee for CBS Radio Mystery Theater as Hl Brown (l), producer of series, shares in the plaudits (Mr. Digges later said he would turn over the Peabody to Mr. Brown, who "deserves it")

Accepting Peabody for documentary, From Belfast With Love, were Al Austin (l), writer-reporter of program for WCCO-TV Minneapolis, and Les Solin (r), cameraman, flanking (l to r) John A. Schneider, president, CBS/Broadcast Group; Fred Graham, CBS News correspondent, and Alan Wagner, vice president, program planning and development, CBS-TV. WCCO-TV is a CBS affiliate. In all, 22 awards were presented at Peabody luncheon in New York last Wednesday. Winners had been announced earlier (Broadcasting, March 24).

of our ability,” he continued, “and some have given their lives in that cause.”

In a statement distributed after the meeting, he said: “We think the public is best served when news decisions are made at NBC by qualified and experienced professional journalists. Substituting the judgment of a separate centralized authority, here called an ombudsman, could disrupt the effectiveness and responsibility of NBC News and interfere with our service to the public. “The way we can best continue improving our service is by hiring the best reporters we can find, encouraging them to do their best and having our news executives correct them when they think they’re wrong.”

Coors’s TVN loses over $5 million in two years

Prospectus for public offering, ‘Post’ series put spotlight on family-owned firm and its news-service subsidiary Adolph Coors Co., Colorado brewers of the country’s fourth-best-selling beer, made known its intention to go public last week and thus shed light on another of its products—Television News Inc.

Among the financial details made public with the prospectus are losses suffered by TVN of $2,185,000 in 1973 and $3,212,000 in 1974. The company attributes the loss to increased costs of transmitting its daily news service to subscribers, resulting in “serious marketing problems.” The company anticipates approximately the same loss in 1975 as in 1974.

TVN is investigating the possibility of feeding its news service via satellite, which could result in potential cost reductions, the company said, but it offers “no assurance” nor can it predict when cost reductions, if any, can be implemented (Broadcasting, Jan. 13).

There were other revelations about Coors and TVN last week. In a series of articles in the Washington Post prompted by a Federal Trade Commission order forcing Coors to allow its beer to be sold in the East, TVN came in for more scrutiny. According to the Post, “TVN is one of several projects [Joseph] Coors is financing in his effort to move the United States to the right politically.”

The article quotes several reporters—who have worked at and been dismissed by TVN—telling of the outfit’s conservatively slanted news. The story also documents a letter from Joseph Coors, executive vice president of the parent firm, to Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. In it, Mr. Coors said that if he is approved by the Senate for the board of CPB (he was nominated by President Nixon, nominated by President Ford), he intends to help steer public broadcasting away from programs critical of business.

In a registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the company says it will offer 4.1 million shares of nonvoting class B stock. If the initial trading price is $26 to $30 per share as expected, the offer would raise from $105 million to $125 million. The Coors family would retain 30 million shares of nonvoting stock and all 1,260,000 outstanding shares of voting stock.

Journalism Briefs

SDX hall of famers. New York chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, Society of Professional Journalists, named 10 journalists to Hall of Fame as part of 50th anniversary observance: Walter Cronkite and Lowell Thomas, both of CBS; Pauline Frederick, former United Nations correspondent, NBC; Julian Goodman, NBC; Homer Bigart and James Reston, New York Times; Bob Considine, cited for NBC and ABC radio and TV series; Wes Gallagher, Associated Press; Sylvia Porter, New York Post and Publisher’s Hall Syndicate and Roger Tatarian, United Press International.

From near the fuse. Mediterranean Report, hard news and feature radio reports taped in Athens, is being offered, effective Oct. 15. Programs will be airmailed on two-track stereo and consist of three news slots of one minute plus. Experienced newsmen in Near and Middle East will gather material that is to be narrated in English. Seven-per-week reports will cost $50 per week. U.S. sales contact: John Profitt, 57-39 Park Lane Road, New Milford, Conn. 06776; (203) 354-1049.

Discarded. ABC News on June 28 will discontinue its Saturday newsmagazine series, The Reasoner Report, and fill 6:30 to 7 p.m. slot with hard news program. Anchorman for that program has not been selected. Network gave no explanation for decision, but series’ failure to attract audience of magnitude of CBS’s Sixty Minutes during two-year run may be factor.

McGoff gets half of UPITN

The Sacramento Union Corp., owned solely by newspaper publisher John P. McGoff, has acquired Paramount Pictures Corp.’s 50% interest in UPITN, worldwide television news service. The sale price was not disclosed. United Press International and Independent Television News of Britain own 25% each in UPITN, which supplies more than 100 clients in 60 countries with daily tape and film news stories. Mr. McGoff is sole owner of the Sacramento (Calif.) Union and the Rantoul (III.) Press and is president of Panax Corp., which publishes eight daily and 28 other newspapers in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Florida. Mr. McGoff has been attempting to buy the Washington Star-News and has petitioned the FCC to deny the transfer of the Washington Star Communications Inc.’s radio and television properties to the new owner, Texas banker Joe Allbritton (Broadcasting, May 5).
Anik III flies over Canada

Telesat Canada launched its third communications satellite last week at Cape Canaveral. It will serve as a backup for its present satellites-Anik I and Anik II—and provide additional channel capacity for new customers.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Canada’s public network, leases three channels on Anik I and retains a fourth for “occasional use”—at least 1,000 hours a year. CBC relies on the satellite for 100% of its networking, with local distribution through terrestrial microwave relay. CBC buys transponder time at $3 million per channel per year.

Canada’s private networks are not using satellite communications.

The three Canadian satellites were purchased by Telesat from U.S.-based Hughes Aircraft Corp. for a total of $33 million. Most of the construction work was subcontracted out to two Canadian groups: Northern Electric Canada, Lucerne, Ont., and Spar Electronics, Toronto.

The first satellite was launched on Nov. 9, 1972; the second on April 20, 1973.

CBS Labs close; broadcast studies go to tech center

CBS Laboratories’ research in broadcasting and audio recording has been transferred to the new CBS Technology Center, following completion of the sale of the labs’ professional products department to Thomson-CSF (Broadcasting, April 7). The transfer, which presumably assumes CBS will find a purchaser for the labs’ government and industry contract business, marks the official end of CBS Labs. The Technology Center, at the labs’ quarters in Stamford, Conn., will be headed by Benjamin B. Bauer, as vice president and general manager, reporting to Harry E. Smith, CBS vice president, technology. The center will have four departments, all headed by CBS Labs veterans as directors: advanced TV technology under J. Kenneth Moore; high density recording technology under Robert A. Castrignano; audio systems technology under Emil L. Torick and sound reproduction technology under Louis A. Abbagnaro.

Color-set demand grows; prices slated to go up

There are signs that sales of television sets are rebounding from 1974 sluggishness and that new models to be introduced by manufacturers later this month will carry a higher price tag.

Jack Sauter, vice president of the RCA Corp., announced last week that the 1976 model line will be raised an average of 5.6% because of increased costs. He also said there were indications that color-set sales were improving and added that RCA had abandoned plans to close its Bloomington, Ind., plant temporarily at the end of April. Mr. Sauter ventured that industry sales in the latter half of 1975 would exceed those of the comparable 1974 period.

An official of GTE Sylvania, a subsidiary of the General Telephone & Electronics Co., said its new color TV set prices will be hiked at about the same percentage as RCA’s. Spokesmen for Admiral Corp. and Zenith Radio Corp. also said their price increases would be in the same range as RCA’s.

General Electric Co. would not comment on its pricing plans. A spokesman said there were signs that set sales in the second half of the year would be strong. In a separate announcement, GE said it would recall 600 production workers at its Portsmouth, Va., plant due to “a recent increase in TV sales and to the start-up of 1976-model production.”

Equipment needs of PTV evaluated in CPB report

An extensive analysis of cost and equipment needs to upgrade facilities at public television stations indicates that the required investment would be some $100 million.

The report, published by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting’s office of engineering research, detailed the needs to bring PTV transmission plants up to more acceptable levels and to solve their most serious problem, poor reception on home TV screens.

The analysis was undertaken at the request of the Educational Broadcast Facilities Program of the U.S. Office of Education. This program has provided $105,259,263 for PTV facilities since 1962; matching funds are provided by local stations.

The dates on drop-ins

The FCC has set July 11 as the deadline for comments and Aug. 11 for reply comments on its inquiry into VHF drop-ins (Broadcasting, April 7). The commission issued its notice of inquiry in response to a petition for rulemaking filed by the Office of Communication of the United Church of Christ. The church cited a study by the U.S. Office of Telecommunications Policy which said 62 new VHF television stations could be dropped into the 100 biggest markets. Later the OTP amended its study to put 83 new stations in.

Catalogue out. GTE Lenkurt has issued catalogue covering more than 60 telecommunications products, including technical data, illustrations and reference sources for further information. Company’s product line encompasses voice, video and data transmission systems. Catalogue is free.

Portable. Sony Corp. later this year will make available low-cost portable U-Matic color videocassette player, which utilizes three-quarter-inch, 20-minute cassettes (KCS-20). Player, designated VP-3000, is about size of portable typewriter and can be used with any standard television set with adapters. Unit features integrated circuits and freeze control for single frame study. Price is expected to be about $1,500. VTR Division, 9 West 57th Street, New York 10019.

Up down. Syntex Corp. has developed improved model of its SI-103B VHF frequency synthesizer, SI-103C, which is specifically designed for very low phase noise requirements of ground satellite downconverters. Unit is priced at $2,600 in single quantities. Improvements include phase-noise specifications that have been raised 2db over earlier units. 169 Millham Street, Marlboro, Mass. 01752; (617) 481-7827.

Digital automation. Audio/Video Products, Downey, Calif., announces availability of Digimation series 2000, com-complete digital automation system for AM and FM broadcasters, as well as for CATV and SCA operations. Unit features solid-state audio switching and built-in, 25-hz tone sensing. Up to eight sources may be connected in any configuration; unit provides up to 16-event memory. Device is $1,950 for stereo and $1,550 for mono.

New in TV. Move by TEAC Corp. of America, subsidiary of Japanese TEAC Corp., into TV broadcast equipment business was announced last week. Company said that beginning this fall it will offer two videocassette decks, one rack-mounted and one portable, for use with all three-quarter-inch U-matic cassettes. 7733 Telegraph Road, Montebello, Calif. 90640.

Roll it. Holland Electronics Inc. has made available automatic crawl unit for displaying titles in video presentations. Unit has both forward (up-motion) and reverse (down-motion) drive as well as automatic stops and remote operation ability. Motorized unit with speed control can be operated manually if needed. Speeds vary from 0-20 feet per minute and crawl roll is 11% inches wide. Standard units are priced at $2,895 and are available in six weeks. 970 E. 92nd Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11236. (212) 649-7330.

Success near. Three-year effort on part of WLCY-TV Largo, Fla., to increase its height gained ground last week in initial decision of FCC administrative law judge. Judge Byron E. Harrison ruled that proposed increase in antenna height, from 500 to 1,495 feet, will not impair ability of existing and prospective local UHF stations to compete effectively in Sarasota, St. Petersburg and Tampa areas, even though WLCY-TV’s service area will be substantially enlarged. WOOG-TV St. Petersburg, one of 11 profitable independent UHF stations in 1972, had opposed WLCY-TV’s application on ground it would cause economic hardship.

Worst is over, Sarnoff predicts

RCA expects recovery in color sales, continued strength in broadcast and mobile gear, growth in satellites

The decline in RCA profits has bottomed out. Robert Sarnoff, chairman, told a stockholders meeting last Tuesday (May 6) in New York. He said second-quarter profits would be stronger than the first quarter’s, which were 46% under the same period of 1974, and that second-half earnings should exceed last year’s.

Mr. Sarnoff said the recession has hit RCA hardest in color television sales and related areas but that in 1976 these should increase several times faster than the economy. “We expect industry sales [of color TV sets] to return to near-record levels by 1977,” he said, “and to new highs in the succeeding years into the 1980’s”—by which time, he said, RCA hopes its SelectaVision VideoDisk system will have taken a leading role in “a new billion-dollar market” for home video entertainment and information recordings.

He also projected a growth in satellite communications sales volume from $10 million last year to $400 million in 1980 and said: “We expect, of course, to have a significant share.”

RCA’s capital investments this year are expected to exceed last year’s $286 million, Mr. Sarnoff said.

Anthony L. Conrad, RCA president, said color-TV set sales should start trending upward, with latest estimates showing a 40% increase in industry sales of color sets to dealers in recent weeks. “We expect industry sales of color TV’s to return to near-record levels by 1977,” he said, “and to new highs in the succeeding years into the 1980’s”—by which time, he said, RCA hopes its SelectaVision VideoDisk system will have taken a leading role in “a new billion-dollar market” for home video娱乐 and information recordings.

AWRT's Jane Cohen: in, through and up in broadcasting

It's not every TV station program manager who can list "ultramicrobiology" as a past vocation, nor have many been published in medical journals. Those are two items on Jane Cohen's resume; two more are program manager of a network-owned station, WRC-TV Washington, and president of the American Women in Radio and Television.

Ms. Cohen spent five years in a laboratory at the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, where she says, she acquired the equivalent of a PhD in experience and the "discipline and ability to think for myself."

Perhaps it was those traits that propelled her in 12 years from the lab to her present post at a major-market television outlet and the recognition of other professional women in broadcasting who elected her president of AWRT.

She notes that her career has progressed in five-year increments. Her break into broadcasting came in 1962, when her father, who worked for the Philadelphia Bulletin, helped land her a job at the Bulletin-owned WPBS-FM Philadelphia. She was hired as summer help. But she learned radio from the grass roots, and as Ed Meehan, then general manager of WPBS-FM says, "It has been Jane's pattern to move in, through and up."

She was in at WPBS-FM. Then she began to move through. Her interest in semi-classical and classical music was her only background for her job, which started in the music library. But it led eventually to traffic, operations and production. And because she lived only a mile away and had the required third-class license, Jane was the one called in the middle of the night for various emergencies. During one memorable Christmas snowstorm she was on the air for 10 hours, the only staff member who could get to the station to relieve the announcer.

During her stint at WPBS-FM, she revealed her talent for programming. She produced two shows that won Freedom Foundation Awards: a documentary commemorating the 100th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg and Sweet Land of Liberty, a flag-waving montage for the Fourth of July. She was involved in the technical side also. As operations administrator, she oversaw the installation of an automated system for the station.

By 1967, she was program manager of the station, but she had been there five years and "it was time for a change," she says.

She went with WPHL-TV, one of three UHF's going on-air in Philadelphia almost at the same time, as administrative assistant to the executive vice president. Again, she says, "there was the opportunity to get in on the ground floor and get a fantastic education." Her boss, Len Stevens (now president of his own ad agency there), took her through the paces. She sat in on his meetings and phone calls, learned TV ratings analysis and became involved in arranging tower sites, contracts and program schedules for other U.S. Communications-owned stations in Cincinnati, Atlanta, Pittsburgh and San Francisco. After one year, she was named program manager at WPHL-TV. Ms. Cohen also did work as program coordinator for the five USC stations until one was sold and one went dark. She then returned to her program manager duties at WPHL-TV until 1972, when WRC-TV called.

She began there as manager of community affairs programming, anxious to expand her broadcast experience in a new area. Her philosophy on public affairs programming emerged quickly: "There's no reason it can't be entertaining. The goal is getting people to watch, which she believes is achieved through programming with a positive approach. She later became responsible for 14 programs, 22 hours a week, when she was named program manager in 1974. She emphasizes what she calls the "gray area" of public affairs—soft news giving exposure to positive community happenings or personal achievements, generally presented in magazine format and "upbeat."

According to the five-year scheme she has described, Ms. Cohen's next job should happen along in 1977. She admits she needs more background in program development to round out her credentials "so that some day, quite frankly, I might be able to reach my broadcasting goal of network programming executive."

Her long-range dream, she won't say how many five-year blocks hence, is to relax a bit as head of a small radio station in the Southwest or perhaps New England. Married life is not in the immediate future, she says.

She will not speculate on how, but is certain in her soft-spoken way, that she will get there.

As a woman making the climb, she admits there are special problems, but she says she personally is not touched by them. Her viewpoint is characteristically upbeat: Opportunities for women in broadcast management are now better than in many industries, she feels. She believes she was hired strictly on merit (although the National Organization for Women had filed against the station in August 1972 on sex-discrimination grounds) and has an obligation to set an example for other women on the way up. "I look at myself as an individual doing a job. I never thought being a woman was a hindrance," she says.

When she was installed as president of AWRT last month, Ms. Cohen noted the organization stands at a crossroads, debuting a future direction. But she approaches her leadership role as a mediator, conscious of AWRT's diverse makeup. She has, however, chosen an active role for AWRT's members stressing awareness of over-all industry problems. Ms. Cohen hopes the coming year will see AWRT as an "active, rather than a reactive, organization."

But at the same time, mindful that her AWRT colleagues have helped and encouraged her when the going got tough, she feels obliged to help qualified women advance in the industry and at the same time help women to qualify."

Keeping cool
By most accounts, television business has suffered little from the recession, and radio business has probably benefited from it. With economists now disposed to think the recession will bottom out around midyear, broadcasters seem sure to emerge in far better shape than could have been expected when the slide began.

That TV has remained strong is implicit in the FCC’s report that the TV networks and their owned stations last year climbed 15% in profits on a 9% rise in revenues (Broadcasting, May 5). The radio networks and their O&O’s didn’t do as well, as reported elsewhere in this issue, but this disappointment is eased by estimates that national radio is now running at least 15% ahead of a year ago, helped almost certainly by its special attractions for economy-minded advertisers. And 1976 should be a strong year all around. The combination of a presidential election year, extensive (and already sold-out) Olympics coverage on ABC-TV and special Bicentennial programing on all networks— all in a rising economy—promises to curtail network TV commercial availabilities, which in turn should produce spill-over benefits for spot TV and for radio.

The biggest danger we can see for broadcasters is that they may ease up in their sales efforts or, more likely, let their concern for the profit squeeze lead them into unwise economies that could weaken their programing or dissipate their selling. Having got this far, it would be a pity for them to blow it now.

The right has rights
The Washington Post ran a series of articles last week on the right-wing projects underwritten by Joseph Coors of Coors beer, which also owns Television News Inc. No doubt questions will be raised about Mr. Coors’s fitness to own the news service and to sit on the Corporation for Public Broadcasting board, to which he has been nominated.

Nothing we read in the Post’s articles disqualifies Mr. Coors from either role. We assume that the television news directors who use the TVN service will inspect it as they would any other for its accuracy and objectivity. We assume that conservatives are not to be automatically excluded from the CPB board. If Mr. Coors were to corrupt TVN into a propaganda instrument, station cancellations would kill the service. As only one member of the CPB board, he is hardly in a position to seize control of it, and perhaps it is well to have a spectrum of opinion represented in the noncommercial system.

Jam sessions
Television broadcasters in Buffalo, N.Y., are considering an act of desperation in their worsening relations with Canadian cable systems and the Canadian government. As reported in Broadcasting April 28, the Americans are talking about jamming their own signals at the Canadian border to end abuses on the other side.

For some time Canadian cables have been deleting the commercials from U.S. broadcast services they pick up. As a further attempt to de-emphasize American influence, the Canadian parliament has received a bill to prevent Canadian advertisers from deducting as a business expense the cost of advertising they place on American stations to reach Canadian audiences.

Jamming is under study as a tactical counter to the Canadian schemes. The thought is that a denial of their favorite American programs would cause Canadian cable subscribers to revolt. It is further hoped that some Canadian advertising could be salvaged, with the U.S. market as its target. Either way, of course, the American stations would lose. Canadian reception, by cable or off the air, has provided a substantial part of the U.S. stations’ audiences. Canadian advertising has been estimated at $20 million a year for Buffalo and other border television stations.

So far the American broadcasters have received little help from the American government, although the State Department has made representations on their behalf. The prospect of jamming, however, must get the FCC into the act—and that may escalate the government’s interest. There is a fundamental inequity in the continued use of American programing by Canadian cables that are taking out the commercials that support it. Surely the U.S. government is not without means to negotiate a settlement.

The message
Senators and representatives often complain about unfair treatment by the media. They say Congress is given a bad name because radio and television stations along with newspapers and news magazines show them in the worst light, playing up the sensational and ignoring the substantial.

There are hard working, dedicated legislators who attend committee meetings and floor sessions in their respective houses. But unless there’s major legislation or events likely to make the evening news or headlines, others stay away in droves.

Example: the Senate Subcommittee on Communications heard voluminous testimony over a two-week period on repeal or modification of Section 315 and the fairness doctrine. Only one member of the subcommittee, its chairman, John A. Pastore (D-R.I.), was present all the time.

Will all members of the subcommittee or the 18-member full Commerce Committee read this testimony before voting? Don’t bet on it. Our guess is that only the committee experts and attorneys representing licensees, the self-appointed public-interest groups and FCC will read the transcripts. Then majority and minority counsel will make recommendations. And a day will be set to mark up legislation, if any.

Section 315 becomes critical next year for a presidential election that also involves all of the House seats and one-third of the Senate. Action should come before candidates qualify to run.

Last week the presidents of state broadcaster associations went to Washington for annual indoctrination by the National Association of Broadcasters. It is important that the message on legislation be impressed upon all broadcasters in all 50 states.
Here are thousands of reasons to go from film to the Akai VTS-150. All of them dollars.

Tony de Haro, KRIS-TV
"We feel we got our 3 VTS-150 systems and Time Base Corrector for nothing because of the $40,000 they saved us in film costs last year. And they'll continue to save us about $3,000 a month."

James S. Fleming, WLOX
"The savings with Akai video equipment over film is about $2,000 a month. In a year's time, it will average out to that."

David Daughtry, WSM
"We are using one unit at the moment, and thus far saving about $140 a month. In the future we will be going more and more into video tape — and away from film."

Emerson A. Ray, WTOG
"We went right to the Akai, bypassing film. We are consequently not having to spend the $3,000 a month on film and chemicals."

Gordon F. Galbraith, WXLT
"We're really a very small news staff. However, we are saving $100 to $200 a week using the Akai instead of film. We're just about to phase out film completely."

Larry Estepa, WLYH
"We'll be saving about $11,000 per year in film costs with the Akai VTS-150."

C. Stephen Currie, WCBD-TV
"On film costs alone we're saving about $15,000 a year with the VTS-150."

Arnell Church, WOAY
"I'm looking forward to a tremendous savings by using Akais instead of film; it will save us many thousands of dollars this year."

(213) 537-8765
Call Akai Monday through Friday, 8:00 am to 4:30 pm Pacific Coast Time. We'll be glad to talk about what the VTS-150 can do for you.
