NAB sticks to its guns on mandatory code membership
Court nails down Sept. 8 for PTAR III start

By popular demand... Warner Bros. Television's classic spoof on westerns is back and available for stripping in the fall of 1975.
Americans spent over 2,250,000 hours listening to their music.
Enough time to make 15,625 round trips to the moon.

They're the writers of the most played BMI songs in America during 1974. Last year they gave us more than 21/4 million hours of our favorite music.

Congratulations.

You may think that American history has been rehashed so many times there's nothing new to be said.

Think again.

We have a series of thirteen hour-long Bicentennial programs that are totally unlike anything anybody else is doing. Shows that make history. Make it palatable. Make it accessible.

This is history as it lived and breathed. Rare photographs and films that have never been on television before. History that you can relate to on a much more personal level. With some very interesting people relating it. Like Gloria Swanson. Theodore Bikel. Jean Stapleton. Ossie Davis. And James Whitmore.

We've already sold American Documents to a number of stations around the country. A lot of people are fired up about them. But that's to be expected. After all, they are revolutionary.

George Washington walked home through the streets of New York after his inauguration. He went unrecognized by most of the people out celebrating. That's the kind of history this is. All the funny, sad and very human things that happen to Presidents on their inauguration days. Thirty-eight Presidents in fifty-two minutes. Narrated by Alexander Scourby.

The story of determined, dedicated women arrested, roughed up, chained with their arms over their heads, and jailed for their beliefs in themselves. These incredibly brave women devilled President Wilson until he finally had no choice but to back women's suffrage.

There's also extraordinary footage of the English suffragette who threw herself under the King's horse because she believed the movement needed a tragedy. Jean Stapleton narrates.

You've probably never seen footage of the first American rocket. We've got it. And a lot more. In fact, we've got the whole film saga of the American who pioneered space. Dr. Robert Goddard.

Using new material acquired from Dr. Goddard's widow, diary notebooks and rare home movies, this film gives a new perspective to Goddard's incredible vision. It's all here. You've already seen man take his one small step. You should see him when I was crawling.
THE AGE OF BALLYHOO

The first decade in American history ever completely captured in film. The 20's. Paving the roads for the Model T. The first sound film ever made of a President. An extraordinary picture of life back then. Gloria Swanson. With photos and film clips from her private collection. As a special, it's already won two Gold Medals. Two Silver Medals. And four Emmys.

D.W. Griffith was filming "Birth of a Nation." At the same time black filmmakers were making movies for black people that most white people have never seen. Many of them have disappeared. But the ones we could find are here. Paul Robeson's "Emperor Jones." "Scar of Shame." Even a four minute segment from the one remaining print of a black "Body & Soul." Ossie Davis narrates "Black Shadows." First run. 50 years late.

We only had room to feature seven. Here are six more. They're every bit as compelling.
A MOMENT IN TIME. The history of photography.
PATENT PENDING. The story of American ingenuity.
JUST AROUND THE CORNER. The Depression.
The MOTION PICTURE BOYS AT THE FRONT. Or how we were galvanized into WWI by propaganda.
THE REEL WEST. How the movies glamorized the West.
WORKING FOR THE LORD. An exploration of American communes.

Here are the stations who have already jumped on the bandwagon:
WOR-TV New York, N.Y. KATU Portland, Ore.
KUTV Los Angeles, Cal. WHIO-TV Memphis, Tenn.
WNAC-TV Boston, Mass. KTAR-TV Phoenix, Ariz.
WTOP-TV Washington, D.C. WHIO-TV Dayton, Ohio
WPIC Miami, Fla. WJXT Jacksonville, Fla.
WFSA-TV Hartford, Conn. WPTA-TV Fort Wayne, Ind.

If American Documents looks good to you, Michael J. Gould is the one to talk to. Call him or write him at Gould Entertainment Corporation. 1564 Broadway. New York City. 10036. (212) 566-5760.

There's a lot more going on...

Searching for the lost kingdom of retail co-op funds

The whole nature of retail co-op advertising is a bit of a mystery to television. And until TV develops a closer and more productive relationship with retail in general, $3 billion in co-op funds will remain beyond its grasp.

During the first half of the seventies, television has established a small bridgehead to the vast retail potential. These new dollars, placed locally, narrowed the traditional TV station revenue gap—60% national, 40% local—to a point where now it is almost even.

For 25 years, the sales strategy of the television industry has been to concentrate on clients that have allocated dollars to TV. Television is the only industry in which the main sales effort is not to convince the prospect to use the product. Rather, television’s sales emphasis has been directed to the TV-oriented advertiser to use one station instead of another or one network instead of another. Television’s growth, therefore, has not been a function of our efforts in the industry, but the dynamic, exclusive nature of the industry itself.

The only way that TV will achieve its deserved share of the advertising dollar is if we station people can increase the enormous untapped dollar potential. There is $3 billion in co-op advertising. There is $7 billion in local/retail newspaper advertising. There is over $1 billion in national newspapers. And there is $1.5 billion in magazines. A total potential of over $12.5 billion dollars.

By contrast, the total TV industry—network, spot and local—is only $4.5 billion.

The TV station has begun to zero in on local retail newspaper dollars. Co-op, however, remains in broadcast limbo. Only a very few major advertisers—Marshall Field, Macy’s True Value Hardware and International Harvester—have used co-op dollars in television. On the other hand, newspapers have enjoyed considerably more success in this area, but even they are unable to attract the major share of co-op dollars, which continue to be guarded zealously by the advertiser and its retail outlets.

The key to finding retail funds is to locate television’s over-all commercial message change.

The spirit of accommodation did not arrive until our industry was besieged by a number of economic reversals in the early 1970’s—the establishment of the 30-second commercial as the industry norm, the loss of cigarette advertising and the bottom-line concern of profit-conscious advertising agencies that had gone public.

To generate co-op revenue a station must first understand and accommodate retail. Since retail only became a viable partner to TV in the early seventies, it is understandable that co-op is the next and normal development in this industry.

Co-op support is only partially directed to advertising. A substantial amount goes to promoting distribution and increasing store inventories, and to case allotments, sales contests and numerous forms of incentives. For those co-op dollars destined for advertising by the factory or the retailer, most end up in newspapers because print historically has provided a physical and economic accommodation—the ability to handle constant commercial changes. And since major retailers have annual space commitments at favorable rates, the co-op message easily becomes part of the bulk ad, not only paying for itself, but contributing to the over-all cost of the retailer’s total space commitment.

There is no question that major retailers are in the process of experimenting with a new media mix, i.e., less print and more television. In virtually all cases it appears to be working well, especially for retail food chains such as Lucky Stores, Alpha Beta, Pathmark, Albertsons, Colonial Stores and Kroger.

As is happening now, the retailer’s use of television will bring him finally to understand the power and sales leverage of TV; the fact that unlike any other form of advertising, TV enables him to sell the way he sells best—face to face. With growing success, he will begin more aggressively to redirect his co-op dollars to television.

On the national scene, we can help ourselves with increased exploratory efforts with those individuals and departments at major manufacturers that are responsible for co-op allocations.

In January 1974, Telerep initiated a one-year plan to determine whether a station representative firm could have a positive and effective role in developing these untapped revenues. Dick Noll was hired as director of sales development with a dual assignment—first, develop more national spot dollars from existing national advertisers, and second, to explore our potential role in helping station clients to participate further in retail and to help free co-op funds as part of their retail program.

The station department actually generated upwards of $1 million for our client stations—more than half of which was local—and another $2.5 million which spilled over into stations in non-Telerep markets. So gratifying were the results that it was decided to expand the department and to begin the second phase of operation: maximum efforts in retail and co-op development. Television Marketing Associates (TMA) opened its doors on April 1 this year and added Donald O’Leary as marketing director.

The breakthrough in co-op should come during the second half of the seventies as a working confidence is developed among TV stations, major retailers and their suppliers. After all, co-op is merely an additional form of advertising support for the retailer and, as he becomes more understanding and skilled in the use of TV, he will begin to influence the advertiser to direct more funds into his television effort. Hence, success in freeing co-op dollars for TV will result from a cooperative effort on the part of the TV station, working with the retailer locally, and a concentrated and specialized effort from national organizations—in our case TMA—working with the national advertiser who will finally have a positive and proven channel through which his co-op dollars may flow.

AM allocations. FCC's proposed relaxation of AM allocation rules is scheduled for commission discussion on June 25.

Antitrust/networks. Justice Department antitrust suit charging networks with illegally monopolizing prime time was filed in U.S. Court in Los Angeles in April 1972. Suits were dismissed on ground that networks were denied access to White House tapes and documents they said they needed to support their charge that Nixon administration was politically motivated in bringing suits. However, Judge Robert J. Kelleher permitted Justice to file suit after President Ford moved into White House, and it did (Case nos. 74-3599 RJK et al.). Network appeals contending Judge Kelleher should not have permitted rewriting of suits were dismissed by Supreme Court.

Broadcasting in Congress. There are measures pending in both houses of Congress to permit one-year experiment of broadcasting chamber proceedings. Main resolution in House is H. Res. 268 by Jack Brooks (D-Tex.). In Senate it's S. Res. 39 by Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.). House Rules Committee, which has alternately discussed and postponed further discussion of Brooks resolution, last week formed subcommittee to conduct hearings on measure. No action has been taken by Senate Rules Committee on S. Res. 39, but full Senate on June 9 voted for first time to permit broadcast coverage of debate on Senate floor—limited to one issue, contested New Hampshire Senate election. Coverage never happened, however, after negotiations between Senate staff and networks over lighting and other technical arrangements broke down (Broadcasting, June 18).

Cable legislation. FCC's proposed revisions in cable television legislation are scheduled for commission discussion on July 30.

Cable rebuild deadline. Comments were received in March at FCC on commission's rule ordering compliance with March 31, 1977, deadline for rebuilding CATV systems to new channel requirements (Docket 20363). No further action has yet been scheduled. Also, FCC has proposed easing requirements of 1977 deadline (Broadcasting, June 2) (Docket 20508). Comments are due July 25.

Children's TV. FCC's policy statement on children's television programing, adopted last year (Broadcasting, Oct. 28, 1974) has been appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington but action for Children's Television (Case no. 74-2006). And House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) has announced hearings in July on broadcast advertising and children.

Citizen agreements. FCC policy statement and notice of proposed rulemaking (Docket 20495) on citizen group-broadcaster agreements has been issued. Comments are due July 25.

Community ascertainment. FCC has instituted rulemaking (Docket 19715) designed to modify procedures commercial stations follow in ascertaining community problems (Broadcasting, May 12). Comments are due June 30.

Comparative renewals. FCC discussion on proposed policy on comparative proceedings involving renewal applicant and applicant seeking to displace him, originally set for June 12, has been postponed indefinitely.

Consumer agency. Senate passed bill to establish Agency for Consumer Advocacy after amending it to ensure agency may not involve itself in broadcast license renewal proceedings before FCC. Agency would have no regulatory powers; its function is to represent consumer interest in agency and court proceedings. In House, Jack Brooks's (D-Tex.) subcommittee of Government Operations Committee conducted hearings last week on consumer agency measure similar to that passed by Senate, but with one significant difference for broadcast industry. Bill, H.R. 7575 does not exempt proposed agency from involving itself in license renewal proceedings. National Association of Broadcasters, which fought for that exemption in Senate bill, is hopeful it will be included in House bill before it clears Full Government Operations Committee.

Copyright legislation. Omnibus copyright revision bills are pending in both houses of Congress, both establishing copyright liability for cable operators and public broadcasters. Senate Copyright Subcommittee has completed markup and cleared for full Judiciary Committee its bill (S.22), which is substantially same as bill that passed full Senate last year. House Judiciary Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and Administration of Justice, meantime, has been conducting hearings on House copyright bill, H.R. 2223, Grouping witnesses by issue, subcommittee has heard from FCC and Office of Telecommunications Policy, cable industry, broadcast industry (Broadcasting, June 16) and will hear from public broadcasters July 10.

Crossownership (newspaper-broadcast). FCC order banning newspaper-broadcast crosstownships prospectively and requiring breakup of 16 crosstownships has been appealed by various parties to three different circuit courts of appeals. Suits have been transferred from the Fourth and Eighth circuits to one in Washington, where they have been consolidated (Case nos. 75-1064 et al.). However, court has yet to designate circuit in which they will be argued. In addition, number of parties petitioned commission to reconsider its order, but the commission has denied them.

Crossownership (television-cable television). FCC has initiated rulemaking (Docket 20423) aimed at easing restrictions it had imposed on common ownership of cable systems and television stations in same market (Broadcasting, April 17). Comments were due May 19; replies, May 30.

Distant sports. FCC's proposed rule governing cable television's importation of distant sports programming is scheduled for commission discussion on June 24.

EEO guidelines. FCC is considering staff draft of proposed equal employment opportunity guidelines (Broadcasting, June 16).

Fairness doctrine bills. Senate Communications Subcommittee conducted five days of hearings on two bills intended to eliminate fairness doctrine, S.2 by Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis.) would delete Section 315 from Communications Act, section containing equal time requirement as well as statutory basis for fairness doctrine. Proxmire bill in fact would prohibit FCC from influencing broadcast programming or scheduling in any way. S.1178 by Senator Roman Hruska (R-Neb.) would do that and also address other practices which "discriminate" against broadcasters (lowest unit rate, cigarette ad ban, postal service and armed forces advertising). There will be more hearings, as yet unscheduled, on two measures. Proxmire bill has twin in House, H.R. 2189 by Robert Drinan (D-Mass.), and Mr Hruska's bill is duplicated in H.R. 4928 by Charles Thone (R-Neb). There is no sign of movement on two House bills.

FCC's fairness-doctrine report. FCC's new fairness statement exempting product commercials from application of fairness doctrine, rejecting concept of reasonable access to broadcast media, and otherwise modifying fairness doctrine (Broadcasting, July 1) has been appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. Appellants are National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting and Friends of the Earth.

Fee schedule. Various parties have appealed FCC's order modifying its fee schedule (Broadcasting, Jan. 20) (Case nos. 75-1053 et al.); some 30 appeals have been filed by broadcasters and others from commission's refusal to refund fees paid under previous schedule which was held by Supreme Court to be illegal (Case nos. 75-1064 et al.). Several parties seeking refunds have filed in U.S. Court of Claims (Case nos. 82-74 et al.).

KRLA (AM). Comparative hearing case, underway since 1964, is now on appeal to U.S Court of Appeals in Washington (Case nos. 74-1002 et al.). Six losing applicants are challenging FCC's grant of Pasadena, Calif. frequency to Western Broadcasting Corp. whose principals include Bob Hope. Decision awaited.

Leapfrogging. FCC has initiated rulemaking (Docket 20487) aimed at modifying or repealing rules that require cable systems to select closest stations in importing distant signals. Comments are due July 9, replies July 23.
License renewal legislation. At least 30 license renewal bills have been introduced so far in 94th Congress. Nearly all provide for lengthening renewal period from three to four years and give renewal applicant preference for license, or substantially living up to his license commitments. None, however, is yet on the agenda of communications subcommittee in either house. NAB has placed its stamp of approval on two renewal bills, H.R. 3575 by Representative Louis Frey (R-Fla.), which now has over 50 cosponsors, and another, yet to be formally introduced, by Senator Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.).

Network exclusivity on cable. FCC order substituting 35- and 55-mile zones for signal contours as basis of protecting television stations has been appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals (Broadcasting, April 21) in Washington by CBS Television Associates Association. FCC has also agreed to adopt simultaneous non-duplication in place of same-day protection for broadcasters in Rocky Mountain Time Zone. Decision followed cable/broadcaster panel discussion held at FCC last week. (see story, this issue).

Nutritional advertising. FTC has republished its proposed trade regulation rule on nutrition claims in food advertising in conformity with rulemaking procedures set out in Warranty-FTC Improvements Act. Comments on disputed issues must be filed by July 28; deadline for comments not proposing disputed issues to be announced.

Obscenity. FCC's declaratory ruling on indecent and obscene broadcasts (Broadcasting, Feb. 17) is being appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington (Case no. 75-1391) by object of ruling, Pacifica Foundation's WPCF New York. Specific ruling involved station's broadcast of George Carlin album cut that commission ruled indecent and obscene.

Pay cable; pay TV. FCC's modification of its pay cable and pay television rules (Broadcasting, March 24) is being opposed on two fronts. Broadcasters and cable operators have appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, and ABC and NBC have petitioned commission for reconsideration. Meanwhile Senator Philip Hart (D-Mich.) and his Senate Antitrust Subcommittee are looking into charges that broadcasters are "throttling" pay cable. Two days of hearings were held last month (Broadcasting, May 26). A second round of hearings will be held June 24-25.

'Savings' case. FCC decision holding that ABC violated fairness doctrine in connection with "Savings! The Broken Promise TV program was reversed by U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington on Sept. 27, 1974. Full court granted petitioner, Accuracy in Media, rehearing, but later reinstated original decision and referred to original court panel the question of whether, as commission urged, the issue had become moot (Broadcasting, March 24) (Case no. 73-2256).

Performers royalty. Senator Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) has attempted for some 30 years to push through legislation establishing performer's royalty to be paid by broadcasters. In last session of Congress, it was defeated as amendment to Senate's copyright bill. Senator Scott has subsequently introduced concept in separate bill, S. 1111. He has received promise of cooperation in hearings on measure from Copyright Subcommittee Chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.), but Mr. Scott has taken no further initiatives yet. Duplicate of Scott bill has been introduced in House (H.R. 5345) by Representative George Danielson (D-Calif.). Danielson's bill was taken up July 23, during hearings by House Judiciary Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice on over-all copyright reform measure.

Personal attack rules. FCC order asserting that WMCA (AM) New York violated personal attack rules has been appealed by licensee Strauss Communications Inc., which claims rules are unconstitutional (Case nos. 75-1083 and 75-1084) (Broadcasting, June 16).

Pole attachments. Since fall of 1970, National Cable Television Association and AT&T have been at stalemate in pole-rate negotiations. Most recent proposal by AT&T has been rejected by NCTA (Broadcasting, June 9). FCC has delayed asserting authority and imposing solution, but staff has been directed to prepare rate formula for review by both sides.

Prime time access rule III. FCC on May 14 modified rule in response to decision by U.S. Court of Appeals in New York which essentially affirmed rule's constitutionality (Broadcasting, May 19). Two appellants—National Association of Independent Television Producers and Distributors and Sandy Frank Program Sales Inc.—have asked court to reverse commission on effective date—Sept. 8, 1975. They want date extended. FCC, CBS and NBC have opposed motions seeking reversal of effective date ruling (Case nos. 75-4021 et al.).

Public broadcasting funding. Bills providing five-year authorization and appropriation for Corporation for Public Broadcasting have cleared commerce committees in both houses and await action by appropriations committees. Senate bill (S.893) and House version (H.R. 6461) provide some amounts of funds be made available over five-year period, but House bill has tougher "matching formula" for fourth and fifth years than does Senate bill. And House bill provides that "significant portion" of government money should be used for instructional programming, language not in Senate bill. Subcommittee of Senate Appropriations Committee has held hearings on bill, but has not yet scheduled mark-up. House Appropriations Committee, whose Chairman, George Mahon (D-Tex.), is opposed to concept of five-year appropriation, has yet to schedule hearings on House bill.

Section 315. Senate Communications Subcommittee Chairman John Pastore's (D-R.I.) bill to exempt presidential and vice presidential candidates from equal-time requirements in Section 315 of Communications Act (S.608) is being scrutinized during hearings on fairness doctrine bills. There will be further hearings before subcommittee takes action on it. House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) has introduced measure (H.R. 5600) which echoes Mr. Pastore's bill, but also provides that programs like Meet the Press be exempted from equal-time requirement, and that spokesman from opposing party be given opportunity to reply to any partisan broadcast address by President. No action has been scheduled on Macdonald bill.

Star stations. FCC order stripping Star Broadcasting of KISN (AM) Vancouver, Wash., KOIL...

WHEN YOU SLIP, IT HURTS . . . .

And when you fall, it's a disaster.

It's easy to get a little bored or a little careless when the ratings look good. Even when the ratings drop a few points, somehow it's rationalized; then suddenly, the station is in trouble. When you finally realize it, the reaction is often panic, and the changes that are made actually accelerate the decline.

If you study your audience in-depth every year, you know just what's going on, and we press you to make sure you don't get careless—we help make sure that the corrective action you take will be productive.

For clients who are second, third or even fourth in their markets and heading for Number One, their ability to always move constructively, with a sound knowledge of the strengths and weaknesses of their station and every other station in the market, makes the difference. Our use of social scientists for getting basic information from the audience helps immeasurably to keep decisions out of the personal opinion area.

It also helps that the Number One station in town often sleeps while he slips. It's unfortunately not just a game, but a deadly serious business, and mistakes can be worth millions. If you want to find out more about getting to be Number One or about staying there, please call us for a no-obligation presentation.

Free for all

EDITOR: I have just read the editorial in the June 9 issue of Broadcasting on the reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press. You are so right in saying that despite the differences in competition that exist between various parts of the press there are certain matters where, for the sake of the industry and of the nation, we must come together. I think your editorial serves that purpose.—Arthur R. Taylor,

Dissent

EDITOR: I object to the change in location of several of your sections. "Closed Circuit" is supposed to contain the most up-to-the-minute news of the broadcasting industry, yet is buried on page 19 of the June 9 issue. "Where Things Stand" is es-tentially static news and belongs in the rear of the magazine with "For the Records."

Give us the news—"Closed Circuit" and "Week in Brief"—up front where we can get to it. We'll read the rest on the train.—Arnold M. Huberman, manager, film program administration, NBC-TV,
New York.

(A change in production schedules required the relocation of "Closed Circuit" and the expanded
"Week in Brief," for which page numbers are published weekly on the magazine's front cover.)

Assent

EDITOR: I've enjoyed the new makeup of your magazine; it's a very provocative change and I'm sure is of greater service to the broadcast industry. You're to be congratulated.

I think one of the things that has stopped print media from becoming more dynamic is the resistance to change fornats or, for that matter, even a masthead.

Your changes are terrific. The magazine is easier to read; not necessarily more enyoyable because it's always been enjoyable, but all in all it makes for a better magazine.—Richard D. Dudley, president and general manager, Forward Communications Corp., Wausau, Wis.

The no-no songs

EDITOR: In the past year, records such as
The Bitch Is Back, The No No Song and
Only Women Bleed have been released by major record companies and have become
-op-10 nationally and sold unusually well.
We can probably expect more of the same.

WLAF has taken a definite stand against these records and does not play them.

I feel that the radio and record industries should examine this problem more and establish within the industry their own controls and code of ethics. A commission could be established to rate controversial subjects covered in records and a seal or logo established to identify record companies adhering to this policy.—
Blue Christ, music director, WLOF(AM)
Orlando, Fla.

Freshman English

EDITOR: My ears are so frequently stabbed by language bloopers by presumably well educated TV-radio announcers, both network and local, that I have compiled a list of the most common assaults on good
English usage on the air:

"Convince to," when persuade, not convince, may correctly be used as an infinitive, "Convince him that . . ." yes;
"convince him to . . ." never.
"New innovation." (Nova means new).
"General consensus," a redundancy, and, worse, "general consensus of opinion"—the super redundancy.

"Hopefuly," overused and mostly missed when it is hoped would be correct.
"Smithsonian Institute" when "Institution" is correct.
"From whence." "Raining outside.
"Final outcome." "Raze to the ground.
Redundancies all.
"Flaunt" when "flout" is meant.
"Six a.m. this morning" instead of "6 a.m. today." Just another redundancy.

Mispronouncing place names within the U.S., when a quick check could avoid annoyance to local audiences.—Albert W.
Bates, San Clemente, Calif.

Different Teague

EDITOR: In " Receivers called for interference" (Broadcasting, June 2), you dropped the marker on the wrong player.
The original bill, HR 3516, was introduced into the 93d Congress by the late Representative Charles M. Teague (R-Calif.), not Olin Teague (D-Tex.).

This bill could use some support from the broadcasting industry. It would evtually help broadcasters a good deal by cutting down on interference complaints from their "customers." Support of the bill won't generate any hot water at the FCC for broadcasters, either. A similar recommendation for legislation is working its way through channels at 1919 M Street, we understand.—Perry F. Williams, wiued, coordinator, regulatory services,
American Radio Relay League Inc.,
Newington, Conn.

Quarterly report

Speculation about meaning of new TV season's slow sales start is beginning to surface. Perhaps inevitably, there's talk that some big buyers are holding back in hope of getting better prices. Network officials—and at least some buyers—discount this notion, saying big buyers are making buys and that, as they've said all along, slowness is natural result of late schedules, many schedule changes and advertisers' normal recession-year caution. They appear confident fourth-quarter sales will begin taking off at some point—as, all hands agree, third-quarter sales have been doing past two weeks, after protracted doldrums. Expansion in third-quarter business has networks confident of-prime-time sell-out for that quarter and is also cited as excellent omen for fourth.

Though reports vary, spot TV's third-quarter outlook seems to be about where network TV's was few weeks ago: not spectacular. Some reps report unusual activity, but others say that after outstanding first quarter and good second, third looks to be about even with year ago or at most up 2%-4%, though others think, as one put it, that "it'll be late in coming but it'll be all right." They tend to agree fourth quarter should be good. One said, "I think we're heading into one of the strongest fall seasons we've ever had."

White House briefing

Regional indoctrination session on state of economy will be held at White House at 3:30 p.m., June 25, with some 70 invited broadcasters, editors and publishers from District of Columbia and half-dozen nearby states. Following briefings by cabinet officials and senior staffers at White House, President Ford will hold informal reception. Invitations to briefing went to executives in D.C., Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia late last week.

Lower profile

White House aides expect Office of Telecommunications Policy to play diminished role in policy-making—at least as far as radio and television are concerned—one ex-FCC Commissioner Robert Wells's expected appointment as director ("Closed Circuit," June 9) is announced and confirmed. Tom Whitehead experience will not be repeated, one source said, referring to first, and controversial, OTP director.

Aide sees OTP as concentrating on managing government side of spectrum, with White House itself making major policy decisions. He referred to Wells appointment as "just another job that had to be filled," and noted that White House last winter tried to dump OTP. That plan was blocked by congressional opposition that acting OTP director, John Eger, helped generate—with fatal results to his own hopes of getting director's job.

Drawing the line

Editorial as well as mechanical problems have held up release of text of FCC's anticrossing rulemaking, which was adopted last month (BROADCASTING, June 2). Commission staff reportedly ran into some difficulty in avoiding specter of censorship while making clear kind of activities that would be outlawed. There was no problem in proposing to outlaw special promotions during or preceding rating periods, but commission wanted to stay away from programming as much as possible, and that is where things got complicated.

Text is expected to make it clear that blockbuster films and particularly appealing segments of regular series will not be considered hypoing. Mechanical problems relate simply to getting document through commission's print shop.

Competitor

Peter A. Lund, vice president-general manager of KSDO(AM) San Diego, all-news station affiliated with both CBS and Mutual, moves to Washington July 7 as operating head of WTOP(AM), all-news station owned by Post-Newsweek Stations. He'll succeed Don Macfarlane, who's joining CBS Radio Spot Sales as director of development and planning on June 30. Mr. Lund is 34, was reared in broadcasting environment (he's son of Art Lund, former radio-TV head of Campbell-Mithun, Minneapolis) and has established unique identity in California city that has one newspaper (Copley's Union) but 20 AM and FM outlets plus five U.S. TV stations and two across border in Tijuana. Moreover, it has nation's largest cable system and is under guns of power radio stations in both Los Angeles and Mexico.

Vote of confidence

There's deeper significance to President Ford's reappointment of Abbott Washburn for full seven-year term as member of FCC than last week's formal nomination that went to Senate for confirmation (considered automatic) may imply. It is seen as assurance that Richard E. Wiley, who assumed chairmanship March 8, 1974, will remain at least until his own term expires on June 30, 1977. If it had been plan of administration to change direction of FCC, as Mr. Ford has done in several instances elsewhere since he assumed Presidency, opportunity would have come with expiration of Republican Washburn's one-year appointment June 30. It's President's prerogative to designate chairman at his pleasure. Thus, he could have selected new chairman in person he nominated last week, but in renaming Mr. Washburn he signalled his intention to retain status quo.

Times change

Kenneth A. Cox, former FCC commissioner, has been retained by National Association of Broadcasters to work on appeal of FCC's recently modified pay-cable antisingling rules, proving NAB is nothing if not eclectic in choosing outside counsel. For some time, Lee Loevinger, also former FCC commissioner, has represented association in its fight against FCC imposition of new restrictions on media cross-ownership. In late 1960's when Messrs. Cox and Loevinger were both on FCC, they were in constant disagreement on fundamental regulatory policy.

Though both are Democrats, Mr. Loevinger has long argued that broadcasting is entitled to freedom guaranteed the press by First Amendment, and for just as long Mr. Cox has favored strong government regulation of licensed media.

Head knocker

FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley is once more trying to bring National Cable Television Association and AT&T together on pole-attachment rates. Week after parties threw in towel in yet another failure to reach agreement (BROADCASTING, June 9) he called their representatives in for separate meetings, said he did not think they had really, really tried, and asked them to try again.

NCTA was asked to present data on variables in formula commission has suggested in effort to develop single price for each of AT&T's Bell subsidiaries. AT&T is free to do same. Failure to settle dispute this time—after two years of negotiation—would confront commission with question of whether to assert jurisdiction and settle matter itself. Chairman Wiley wants matter resolved—one way or other—before August recess.

A breath of fresh air in automotive technology.

The catalytic converter is a device for people and flowers and trees, for every living thing. It reduces exhaust emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide by about 50% from the already lowered levels of 1974.

The converter is also a device for pocketbooks and for energy conservation. According to EPA figures, it helped GM engineers to increase gas mileage in city driving by 28% on a sales-weighted average.

Not only will the converter save you money in fuel bills and maintenance costs over the years, it's one of those extraordinary technological advances that won't cause you any trouble under normal operating conditions. After a billion miles on the road, it's proved dependable. If you use unleaded gas and maintain your engine properly, the converter will last the life of your car.

Catalytic converters do add to the basic cost of a GM car. Part of that money goes for insulation that keeps the outer skin temperature of the converter in normal operation about the same as that of an ordinary muffler, and far lower than the temperature of the exhaust manifold.

A fuel-saving catalytic converter comes with 1975 GM cars as standard equipment. It's a breath of fresh air from GM, a world leader in automotive pollution control technology.

"The future is purchased by the present."

Myopia may be the universal problem of the 1970's. As we grapple with the day's pressing problems, our view of the future is blurred and obscured. Yet the future threatens. Energy and ecology, unemployment and inflation, health and housing, war and peace. Even as we debate such issues, we exhaust the means to solve them. We burn our oil, deplete our lands, endanger our health, all to get us through the day. Inevitably, the situation grows more urgent.

This urgency emphasizes the need for broadcasting to focus on problems distorted by our unwillingness to look at them directly. But it can do more. Broadcasting can use its powerful voice to take us beyond the issues of today, by informing, suggesting, arousing. By promoting change with a healthy diversity of new ideas and values. By acting as agent of both preservation and progress. By serving as the community's electronic prod.

Tomorrow must not be allowed to just happen. It must be planned, fashioned, and molded today. Broadcasting can contribute to this essential process. It will be too late to purchase tomorrow, tomorrow.
THE FUTURE IS PURCHASED BY THE PRESENT

Top of the Week

Mandatory subscription to code stays; independents get a break

NAB TV board goes contrary to conventional guesswork, approves required membership in code for television members; nonnetwork outlets get more commercial time; stations outside top-100 markets won't have to sign up yet

The week prior to its June meeting, the National Association of Broadcasters television board of directors had most people guessing it would rescind its rule requiring all NAB TV members to join the TV code by April 1, 1976. The rule has stirred a good deal of disension, particularly among the ranks of small market and independent stations and prompted one group owner to withdraw its stations from the NAB. The vote last Thursday was unanimous, but remarkably it went the opposite way.

The TV board reaffirmed its stance on mandatory TV code subscription, as it did at its meeting last January, and presumably this time the vote is final. In doing so, however, it adopted the Association of Independent Television Stations' commercial time standards for independents, different and more relaxed than those for network affiliates, and it exempted stations in the 100 plus markets from having to comply with the mandate when it first takes effect.

Wilson Wearn, president of the Multimedia station group, now joint board chairman, but still chairman of the TV board last Thursday, said the board feels its action "definitely will strengthen the code in the future," and that it will serve to "make self-regulation really work."

With the adoption of the new time standards for independents, Mr. Wearn said he hopes that "substantially more" independents will join the 18 that are already TV code members. He added that NAB will try to win over such independent group owners such as Westinghouse, Metromedia and RKO, that have consistently opposed mandatory code subscription in the past.

The new code time standards for independents are provisional standards to take effect July 1, 1976, and to remain until June, 1977, at which time they will be revisited by the board. Under them independents would be permitted to air seven minutes of nonprogram material in every half hour of prime time, which is defined as any contiguous three hours between 6 p.m. and midnight, local time. That gives independents two more minutes in each prime-time hour than is allowed under the old code. Nonprogram material includes commercials, promotion spots and public service announcements, but does not include required credits, station identification and "bumpers." For all other times, independents can carry eight minutes of nonprogram material every half hour.

Network affiliates are permitted to carry nine and a half minutes of nonprogram material every prime time hour, under the code, and 16 minutes during other hours. For them, however, public service announcements and promotional announcements for the same program are not counted as nonprogram material.

Under the new independent time standards, where an independent station does not carry a commercial in a station break between programs, it can interrupt the program up to four times per half-hour program, seven times per hour program, 10 times during a 90-minute program or 13 times during a two-hour program. If it does carry commercials between programs, a station would be permitted no more than three interruptions in a half-hour program, six in an hour program, nine during a 90-minute program or 12 during a two-hour program.

No more than four nonprogram material announcements can be run together, generally, except that in a program lasting an hour or more, up to seven announcements can be run consecutively by independents.

The last two standards—regarding interruptions and grouping of announcements—do not apply to news, weather, sports or special event programs.

Small-market TV stations were exempted from the mandatory code ruling because the board "recognizes that certain problems may exist pertaining to the code and NAB activities that deserve further study with the NAB 108 Plus Market Television Committee and other spokesmen," the board said in its resolution. It added, "These discussions shall be scheduled at the earliest opportunity."

The resolution also said that beginning April 1, 1976, a TV member’s NAB dues will be paid in a single amount, equal to the sum of regular dues and code subscription dues.

And finally, the resolution urged that another resolution offered by A. James Eleb of KOLN-TV Lincoln, Neb., and adopted by the board at the Las Vegas convention in April, be implemented in time for the TV board's next meeting in January, 1976. That resolution directed the TV code review board to study ways to strengthen the code provisions.

The day before the board made its decision on code subscription it conducted hearings on the matter, at which presentations were made by five broadcasters—two for mandatory subscription, three against. The two for it were George Comte of WTMJ-TV Milwaukee and Lawrence Rogers of WKRC-TV Cincinnati, James Terrell of KVTV-TV Fort Worth, and chairman of INTV, William Duhamel of KOTA-TV Rapid City, S.D., and Earl Morgenroth of Western Broadcasting Co., Missoula, Mont., were against.

Speaking on behalf of Dale Moore, owner of Western, Mr. Morgenroth summed up the objections to mandatory subscription, calling it the "antithesis of self-regulation," in that it would create a Return engagement. Hoping to repeat this year's success, the National Association of Broadcasters will return to Las Vegas for its annual convention in 1978 and then on to Dallas in 1979 and New Orleans in 1980. There were the selections of the NAB joint board, meeting in Washington last week, on the recommendation of its convention site committee, headed by Richard Chapin of Stuart Stations, Lincoln, Neb. Next year's convention will be in Chicago on March 21-24 and the host city March 27-30 in 1977 will be Washington. There was talk of scrapping plans for Washington and instead going to Atlanta in 1977, because the planned expansion of the Sheraton Park hotel there and construction of an Eisenhower convention center never happened. But the board would like to stay with the Washington choice to give broadcasters a chance to mingle with their newly elected congressmen and possibly the newly elected President. The board will stick with the Washington site unless it finds there is not enough space for exhibits and luncheons. The convention site committee is currently investigating. Atlanta was recommended by the site committee for the 1981 convention, but the board deferred action on that until an unspecified later time.

It's Wearn, Krelstein and Bartlett for NAB board chairmanships

Wilson C. Wearn, president of Multimedia Broadcasting Co., Greenville, S.C., and until last week chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters television board, is the new chairman of the NAB joint board of directors. He will also serve as chairman of the NAB executive committee, which advises NAB President Vincent Wasilewski in the implementation of association policies.

Mr. Wearn was unopposed for the chairmanship and was elected unanimously. He succeeds Andrew Ockershausen, vice president of the Washington Star Stations, Washington, and began his one-year term last Friday.

Mr. Wearn's was the first election in five days of NAB board meetings last week.

On Wednesday the NAB radio board re-elected Harold Krelstein, board chairman of Plough Broadcasting Co., Memphis, as its chairman. Donald Thurston of WMNB-AM-FM, North Adams, Mass., gave Mr. Krelstein a real fight, however, polling 13 votes to Mr. Krelstein's 15. V. Kay Melia, general manager of KLOE-AM Goodland, Kan., was the victor in a three-way race for radio board vice president. His opponents were Virginia Pate Wetter of WASA(AM)-WHDG(FM) Havre de Grace, Md., and Edward D. Allen Jr. of WDOV-AM-FM Sturgeon Bay, Wis. None of the three had a clear majority on the first ballot, but Mr. Melia won a run-off against Mr. Allen.

Walter E. Bartlett, senior vice president, television, of Avco Broadcasting Co., Cincinnati, was elected chairman of the television board. Unopposed, he was elected unanimously. Another Cincinnatian, Robert Gordon, vice president and general manager of WCPO-TV, was elected vice chairman. He had been unopposed until the week before the election, when Kathryn Brom of Springfield (Mass.) Television entered the race at the urging of Peter Kenney, NBC Washington vice president and TV board member, and others who were displeased with a story appearing in a Cincinnati newspaper which aired Mr. Gordon's criticism of the family viewing period as an inadequate solution to TV sex and violence. In the election, he received nine votes, including CBS's, to top Mrs. Brom's six.
mended the radio board's eight at-large seats be eliminated and the 17 district seats be increased to 20, for a net loss of five seats.

The by-laws committee had also recommended that the TV board membership be held to its present 15 seats, deleting the by-laws provision that would permit the TV board up to 18 seats. That too was rejected by the joint board.

Although the radio board rejected the idea of changing the number of district seats, it did authorize the chairman to appoint a committee to study ways to redraw the present district boundaries.

The joint board did accept the by-laws committee recommendation that the immediate past board chairman not have a vote on either the joint board or the executive committee as he does now. But the board did decide that the past chairman should remain a member of both bodies. That by-laws change would not take effect until June, 1977, however, so that Andrew Ockershausen, now the immediate past chairman, will have a vote on both the board and executive committee.

The joint board also accepted a new definition for "network" so that it would be clear that interconnected program suppliers, such as AP Radio and UPI Audio, cannot qualify for network seats on the board (Broadcasting, May 19).

And the terms of the elective board members were altered slightly so that newly elected members who until now have taken office at the annual convention in March or April will not take office until the June board meeting, when new officers are elected and the makeup of the executive committee changed.

In addition the board voted to amend the by-laws to say that TV board elections will be conducted by mail, as was done this year.

The by-laws changes must now be ratified by a majority vote of the NAB membership.

Across the boards:

Action on number of housekeeping items

By week's end the National Association of Broadcasters radio, TV and joint boards had acted on a broad range of broadcast problems. Aside from the major issues of mandatory code subscription and by-laws changes, which because of their controversial nature and sweeping effects on the membership drew the most attention, there were also housekeeping chores, reports on government relations and regulations, engineering and finances. Here, in capsule form, are some of the other results of the June board meetings.

The joint board endorsed the idea of integrating the NAB fall conferences with those of the Radio Advertising Bureau. Discussions between the two groups will follow.

The joint board authorized the executive committee to spend up to $100,000 over the next four years to prepare for NAB participation in the 1979 World Administrative Radio Conference.

The television board amended the TV code to insert the word "age" in section IV of the special program standards to help eliminate the stereotyping of older people.

The TV board passed a resolution opposing the short-space VHF drop-ins proposed by the Office of Telecommunications Policy (Broadcasting, April 7).

The TV board also resolved to support the concept of long-range funding for public broadcasting. There is currently pending in both houses of Congress legislation to fund the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for five years.

The TV board also voted to change the dues structure of the Television Information Office so that dues for an individual station will be based on its market's share of total U.S. television revenues instead of on the network hourly rate as now. The change will increase TIO station revenues, which account for about half the TIO income, by about 40%. The result will be that smaller stations will probably pay less and larger stations will pay more. No station's dues will increase by more than 20% in one year, however. The changeover may take four to five years for some stations.

The TV board also appointed Thomas Bolger of WMVT-TV Madison, Wis., to replace James Ebel of KOLN-TV Lincoln, Neb. on the NAB Television Information Committee.

The dues structure for associate members of NAB was discussed by the joint board, which voted to form a committee to study and recommend adjustments, looking particularly at equipment manufacturers with sales over $1 million. The idea is to suggest a more flexible dues structure for each of the associate member. The same committee will also study the possibility of adding new categories of associate membership to perhaps incorporate legal consultants and engineering firms.

The radio board passed a resolution urging that music licensing societies begin to collect copyright fees from all cable systems which originate music programming. It also voted to appoint a committee to study the ramifications of cable distribution of radio signals.

The radio board also resolved that stations carefully screen contemporary music which is broadcast.

The radio board voted support of a "general type" broadcast license, a basic third-class license that would permit a person to function at a radio station without having to be familiar with merchant marine or aviation radio. It further resolved that the FCC should delay implementation of the proposed two-tone alerting system of the Emergency Broadcasting System from January 1976 to January 1977 to make time for the development of lower priced equipment. It further resolved that only primary stations should be required to install the alerting system.

The National Cable Television Association committee that has been searching for a new president for four months—since shortly after David Foster served notice last February that he would resign May 31—has found its man. He's Robert L. Schmidt, 36, Washington attorney and former lobbyist for International Telephone and Telegraph. Action on his nomination will be the principal order of business at this week's meeting of the NCTA board in Washington.

Mr. Schmidt is a relative newcomer to the field of NCTA presidential candidates. His name reached the committee about a month ago, and had he kept a close secret until security was breached late last week. Earlier speculation had centered on John Gwin of Cox Broadcasting and former Office of Telecommunications Policy General Counsel Henry Goldberg, among others ("Closed Circuit," June 16).

The eight-member selection committee, headed by Daniel Aaron of Comcast Corp., met in Washington's Madison hotel last Monday, then reached a tentative decision to go with Mr. Schmidt during a conference call on Wednesday. That decision was finalized in another conference call Friday afternoon.

Mr. Schmidt was director of public affairs for ITT in Washington from 1964 to 1974. He worked on the staff of the Democratic National Committee from 1961 to 1963. It's reported that he doesn't know the cable field well but that he does know communications. He's on a first-name basis on Capitol Hill and at the FCC.

Mr. Schmidt did his undergraduate work at Notre Dame and the University of Southern California, graduating from the latter with a bachelor's in business administration. He pursued a busy night school course while at ITT, earning a masters in international business from American University and a law degree from George-town. He was head football coach at Georgetown in 1963. He is married to the former Patricia Ann Godfrey (the daughter of Arthur Godfrey) and lives in suburban McLean, Va., with their three children.

Mr. Schmidt left ITT in 1974 to pursue the private practice of law. His offices are at 1709 New York Avenue in Washington. Prominent in that city's sports life, he counts a number of athletes among his clients. Among other activities, he is executive director of the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf and Tennis Tournament, which will take place in Washington today (June 23). In that connection he was at the White House last week to participate in the taping of a sports special being offered to U.S. TV stations by Mobile Television Services of New York (see picture in "Business Briefly," page 4).

The matter of presidential selection will headline this week's meetings. Unlike the previous three board meetings, copyright will be of secondary importance, limited to a discussion and review of the House hearings (BROADCASTING, June 16).

Other items on today's agenda include a report and update on the good news for cable in the FCC's decision to extend simultaneous nonduplication to the mountain time zone (see page 34).

Amos (Bud) Hostetter, Continental Cablevision, is expected to deliver a report on the latest deadlock with AT&T over pole-rate negotiations.

James L. Lahey, Muskegon (Mich.) Cable Television, and Delmer Ports, NCTA vice president for engineering, will raise the issue of whether 20-channel compatible receivers are practical as a means to bypass the present use of home-set converters.

Update reports are also scheduled on "project 77," which is the issue to be addressed by comments due at the FCC Aug. 18. The commission has proposed easing the cable rebuild requirements that must be made by 1977.

NBC's Weinblatt sees years of TV plenty

New executive vice president forecasts gains through 1980, cites medium's adaptability to budgets of small advertisers

Television billings will grow approximately 9% a year and exceed $7 billion annually by 1980, Mike Weinblatt, executive vice president of NBC-TV, predicted last week. Total TV annual growth could average as much as 13%.

He made the forecast, which he said was developed by the NBC research department, in a speech Tuesday to the New Orleans Advertising Club. NBC researchers estimate 1974 total TV billings at about $4.1 billion.

Mr. Weinblatt said NBC-TV has set new sales records in the last three consecutive quarters. He attributed the gains to several factors including aggressive salesmanship; advertiser maintenance of spending levels despite the recession; heavy use of TV by auto manufacturers, among others; development of new-to-TV clients and sharply stepped-up TV advertising by a number of categories including motion pictures, pet foods, retailers and corporate, financial and leisure-time advertisers.

Mr. Weinblatt, who was senior vice president in charge of sales before his promotion to broader responsibilities a few weeks ago (BROADCASTING, June 2), said that "one of the reasons we're so bullish about the continued growth of television is that even small-budget advertisers are attracted to the medium. Television provides day-parts whose rate structures are particularly geared to an advertiser with a limited budget and provide a prestigious national showcase for his product as well."

Robinson wants more open FCC

He proposes public meetings, logging requirement for contacts between industries and staff

FCC Commissioner Glen O. Robinson is for opening the workings of the FCC to the sunshine and letting the public look in. He would open most commission meetings to the public, and would require all decision-making personnel to log contacts with outsiders when they discuss matters of substantive importance to the commission.

In fact, he intends to propose a logging requirement for adoption by the commission.

Commissioner Robinson expressed his views on government in the sunshine in a speech prepared for delivery today (Monday) in, appropriately enough, Florida, which has the first sunshine laws.

And his address, before the Florida Association of Broadcasters, in Orlando, follows by less than a week the introduction in the House by Representative Torbert H. Macdonald (D-Mass.) of a bill to restructure the FCC and, among other things, require it to hold meetings in public (see page 31).

Commissioner Robinson called for openness on the part of the commission as a means of enabling it to meet part of its "responsibility for square dealing" with the public. Sunshine laws, properly administered, he said, can provide the public with the information they need to carry out "their prerogative and their democratic responsibility" to change their government until it suits them.

He sees these advantages in open meetings: increased public understanding of the regulatory process, higher quality meetings (by encouraging increased attendance, knowledgeability and preparedness of the commissioners), and "a more equitable distribution of hitherto fore 'secret' information."

In connection with that last point, he said industry representatives keep abreast of inside information through the trade press; often they learn of the way the commission is leaning on a matter early enough to put on a last-minute lobbying effort, he said. Only the public, he added, is locked out of the insider-information-gathering process.

The requirement that decision-making personnel keep a public record of those they see on matters of importance to the commission would, Commissioner Robinson said, enable the public to scrutinize our activities" without at the same time limiting necessary communication between interested members of the public and the agency. The requirement would, he said, encourage "legitimate lobbying efforts" and discourage "only improper advances"—including last-minute lobbying by industry representatives after word of a pending commission decision has leaked.

Commissioner Robinson, in airing his views on government in the sunshine and disclosing his plans for proposing a logging requirement, has gotten out in front on the issue at commission. The commission has been under pressure from Representative Macdonald and others to open its meetings to the public, and the staff has been developing "sunshine" proposals for the commission to consider. A meeting on the subject is scheduled for July 9.

Court says go in September on PTAR III

Sandy Frank, NAITPD lose effort to delay effective date of rule

The U.S. Court of Appeals in New York has removed any doubt that the FCC's third view of the pertinent rule on PTAR III will go into effect on Sept. 8, as scheduled.

The court, in a brief order last week, denied motions by Sandy Frank Program Sales Inc. and the National Association of Independent Television Producers and Distributors, that it review the commission's PTAR III decision as it relates to the effective date.

Sandy Frank and NAITPD said that the exemption attached to PTAR III severely limits the time available for nonnetwork productions. Sandy Frank said that the commission should have provided for a transitional period of at least one year.

The rule, like PTAR I, prohibits affiliates in the top-50 markets from taking more than three hours of network programming in prime time. But children's and public affairs programs and documentaries are exempt.

Sandy Frank, owner of the distribution company said last week the order will seriously affect a number of his shows. He said stations that "desperately" want his new "Bobby Vinton Show" for the access period now say they cannot take it. He called the court's ruling "disgraceful," and said the commission's rule provided a forecast of "1984."

Mr. Frank's lawyer, Kenneth A. Cox, said he was "surprised and disturbed" that the court would dispose of what he said was a critical issue "without any explanation."

Furthermore, he said the three-judge panel had "totally ignored" the ruling of another panel of the same circuit, which had overruled the commission on PTAR II on the ground that the commission had
The FCC rejected eight petitions last week on its second monthly petition-to-deny-renewals day. But it also imposed the sanction of a short-term renewal on an AM-FM station and requested additional equal employment opportunity information from a number of stations, including one whose renewal application was kept in deferred status.

Two of the petitions denied were filed by Governor Brendan Byrne of New Jersey and by the Greater Newark Chamber of Commerce. They asked the commission to defer action on the renewals of New York City's WABC-TV, WNBC-TV, WABC-FM, WNEW-TV, WOR-TV and noncommercial WNET-TV, Newark, pending the conclusion of the rulemaking into the adequacy of television service in New Jersey.

The commission noted that the applications would remain in deferred status in any case, since they were the subject of petitions to deny. However, it said it saw no reason to defer action on them further in the event those other petitions were resolved in favor of the stations before the conclusion of rulemaking.

The short-term renewal, until Aug. 1976, was given to KNZU(AM) and KQUE(FM) Houston, and was conditioned on the licensee, Texas Broadcasters Inc., taking affirmative action to encourage minority employment.

The commission acted on the petition to deny filed by Black Citizens for Media Action. The petition was directed also against LIN Broadcasting Corp.'s KILT-AM-FM and Rusk Corporation's KTRH(AM) and KLOL(FM), all Houston. The commission renewed all four licenses, but conditioned renewal of Rusk's stations on their filing affirmative action programs designed to encourage minority employment.

An EEO complaint contained in a petition filed by a citizen group also proved a problem for Mediacast Inc., in connection with its application for renewal of KNDE(AM) Sacramento, Calif. The commission deferred action on the application pending receipt of additional information on the station's employment practices and policies.

In other matters, the commission denied petitions for reconsideration of approval it had given earlier to the renewals of KGGF-TV San Francisco and WPEN-AM-FM Philadelphia (and the sale of the Philadelphia station to Stewart Broadcasting Inc.). It also renewal WCMQ(AM) Miami.

The commission also rejected petitions to deny aimed at KSOL(FM) San Mateo and KXTV(TV) Sacramento, both California, and at commonly owned KULF(AM) and KYND(FM), both Houston. But of those four stations, the commission renewed only one, KULF(AM), on the others was deferred for various reasons not related to the petitions.

Besides acting on the petitions to deny, the commissioners discussed citizen group-station agreements for the first time since the FCC issued its proposed policy statement on the subject (BROADCASTING, June 2). And they are still working their way through to an understanding of how to implement the statement.

The staff had submitted a report on five agreements to indicate how they intended to treat agreements under the new statement. Four were deemed to be acceptable; but the staff held that in one case -- involving WAVD(AM) Auburn, Ala., -- the licensee would be improperly delegating some of his authority to a citizen group.

Commissioner Glenn O. Robinson felt the commission should neither approve nor disapprove agreements; that licensee can either lawfully negotiate a contract and that an agreement in which he did would simply have no force and effect. Commissioner James Quello reportedly objected to the commission indicating approval of these agreements meeting its standards.

The commission will consider the matter again in a week or two.

BBDO, Campbell-Ewald, Levine top Clio winners

Clío awards for advertising excellence have been presented to 74 winners in television and 27 in radio.

In TV, BBDO New York and Rick Levine Productions, New York, each won three Clios at the June 13 ceremonies in New York. BBDO scored for F&M, Chevrolel; for Co. TVB, reps spread more oil on waters

Disidents' proposal for added emphasis on spot favorably received at Friday session

A committee of the board of the Television Bureau of Advertising met Friday (June 20) with a delegation of TV station representatives to begin implementing the board's agreement to put more emphasis on spot TV (BROADCASTING, June 16).

The proposals of the group that raised the spot issue are the only proposals that the board had agreed to consider. The details of the proposals were still unclear. A committee was named to develop the procedure for putting the proposals into effect.

The reps were said to be fed that acceptance of these proposals would bring more lead-time to TV rep firms and stabilize TVB membership and stop talk of TV reps forming their own trade association to sell spot. At least five reps dropped out of TVB after the board decided a year ago to shift primary sales emphasis from national to regional and local TV, though one of the five has since renewed membership for at least one quarter. It is one of six rep firms currently members.

Both rep and network sources said they doubted that even an aggressive campaign to divert network business to spot would provoke the networks into resigning from TVB. A network owned-stations executive said network leaders had been canvassed directly and that most indicated they would not object. In his view, TVB "has always sold spot against networks, and now I guess they'll just emphasize it more."

The full TVB board had said after hearing the initial presentation that its committee would "move ahead and incorporate the station representatives' ideas and goals into TVB's previously reported plans."
Agreement reached between KQED, EEOC over CCMC petition

Station pledges to double percentage of minorities in top positions in two years

Noncommercial KQED(TV) San Francisco has reached a conciliation agreement with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under which the station is pledged to double the percentage of its minority-group employees in top-rated positions in two years.

The agreement, which provides for a detailed Equal Employment Opportunity program, is an outgrowth of a petition to deny the station's renewal application that a citizen group had filed with the FCC. The agreement was filed as an amendment to KQED's renewal application.

However, the citizen group, the Community Coalition for Media Change, has not withdrawn its petition. Two of the other charges in the petition raise key questions regarding public broadcasting: one, whether public broadcasting stations must, as CCMC says, seek public input into the selection of its programing under Public Broadcasting Service's new Station Program Cooperative System, the other, whether a noncommercial licensee may, as KQED does, maintain an unused second channel in the community.

And, despite the agreement that KQED reached with the EEOC, CCMC was not withdrawing the charges of discrimination based on the station's past performance that were filed with the petition to deny. Only one of four employees who filed charges signed the agreement with the EEOC.

The refusal to withdraw that complaint, however, becomes another issue in CCMC's dispute with the station. For William E. Osterhaus, president of KQED, in a statement accompanying the agreement that was filed with the FCC, said the agreement eliminates the discrimination charges as matters for commission inquiry.

Under the agreement, minority employment in the top three positions at the station is to more than double, from 6.5% to 15.6%. Overall, the percentage of minorities employed by the station is to grow from 22% to 32%, and would thus exceed parity: minorities account for 25% of the population in San Francisco's standard metropolitan statistical area.

The agreement does not contain a goal for employment of women. It notes that the station has established a record of affirmative action to employ and promote women, with the result that the number of women on the staff "has increased to a percentage substantially the same as that of females in the San Francisco work force" while the number of women in the top-paying jobs has increased to 24%.

In Brief

WIBG(AM) Philadelphia (990 kHz, 50 kw day, 10 kw night) bought Friday, subject to FCC approval, from Buckley Broadcasting group by Indianapolis-based Fairbanks Broadcasting Co. for about $3 million, plus fringes. CBS nosed out ABC and NBC for television rights to match race between undefeated filly Ruffian and Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure, from Belmont Park with $350,000 purse. CBS will pay more than $300,000 for privilege. Race will be telecast as part of special hour edition of CBS Sports Spectacular on Sunday, July 6. Network is pricing program at $60,000 per commercial moment, expects to sell eight. NBC's new News and Information Service went on air last Wednesday with assist from FCC. Commission waived rule prohibiting one company from operating two networks in same market simultaneously. NBC had asked for waiver to permit religious and public affairs programs on Sunday on NBC Radio network at same time stations in some of same markets were taking NIS programs. Named to House Rules Committee subcommittee that will hear testimony on resolution to permit one-year test of broadcasting in House chamber (story page 30) were Representatives Morgan F. Murphy (D-N.J.), Andrew Young (D-Ga.), John B. Anderson (R-Ill.) and Del Clawson (R-Calif.). Representative B.F. Sisk (D-Calif.) is chairman. Ad hoc group is expected to meet informally early this week. WGN Inc., which expects to be licensee of first black-owned station in country—WGPR-TV Detroit—has been turned down by FCC on request for waiver of $22,500 grant fee for construction permit. Commissioners Benjamin L. Hooks and James H. Quello dissented.

Cunningham & Walsh, New York, has resigned as volunteer agency for "Don't Be Fuelish" campaign on behalf of Federal Energy Administration, charging FEA with attempting to coerce it to write "politically oriented advertising." Robert F. Keim, president of The Advertising Council, through which volunteer campaign was handled, says action is unprecedented. He's looking for another volunteer, while FEA says it may pay for help next time.

Robert G. (Bud) Weston, engineering assistant to FCC Commissioner Robert E. Lee, retires at end of month after 39 years in government service, last 18 in present job.

Headliners

Washburn

Wolf (8) Jurgensen

FCC Commissioner Abbott Washburn has been renominated by President Ford to seven-year term beginning July 1. He was appointed to commission by former President Nixon (BROADCASTING, May 20, 1974) to complete term of H. Rex Lee. William R. Hesse, former president of Benton & Bowles Inc., New York, will become senior vice president in Washington office of American Association of Advertising Agencies on Sept. 1. Mr. Hesse left B&B in 1968, has since been marketing-advertising consultant. Post has been vacant since "Test" Clifton left it more than year ago. WTOP-TV Washington last week freed top-rated sportscaster Warner Wolf from last two years of five-year, $85,000-year contract and signed former Washington Redskins quarterback Sonny Jurgensen to sports team of parent Post-Newsweek stations. Mr. Wolf will be free to accept anticipated network berth after March 15, 1976, in meantime will be able to accept network assignments. Jurgensen contract is reported to be $250,000 over three years.
Much talk, little action on access to Congress

However, House Rules Committee does announce extensive hearings on Brooks resolution for test

Measures to open Congress’s chambers to radio and television are doing a one-step-forward, one-step-back dance in both houses. The House Rules Committee, after two hearings on its resolution, decided to send it to a subcommittee for more hearings. And the Senate, after voting to permit broadcast coverage of floor debate on the contested Senate election in New Hampshire, began the debate without cameras or radio microphones present.

Last Tuesday, House Rules Committee Chairman Ray Madden (D-Ind.) announced that extensive hearings are planned on Representative Jack Brooks’s (D-Tex.) resolution to permit a one-year test of broadcasting in the House chamber (H.Res. 269) (Broadcasting, April 21) and that an ad hoc committee of rules committee members is being formed to handle the job. Chairman of the ad hoc committee is Representative B.F. Sisk, a California Democrat who is on record as favoring the plan.

Mr. Madden said in a subsequent interview that even though a substantial hearing record already exists, his committee wants to gather all the information it can. He said installing the equipment needed to begin broadcasting from the chamber will involve a big expense, and “we don’t want any bloopers.”

The Brooks resolution is based on and essentially implements the recommendations contained in a 70-page interim report of the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations published last fall (Broadcasting, Oct. 14, 1974). That committee received six days of testimony during the first three months of 1974 from members of Congress, state legislators and representatives of the communications industries.

Despite its resolve to send the resolution to the ad hoc committee, the rules committee listened to Representative Don Fuqua (D-Fla.), who argued on the basis of the Florida legislature’s experience that the House should open its doors to radio and TV. He said the response from Floridians was overwhelming when the Florida legislature began broadcasting its proceedings in 1973. He added that 93% of legislators answering a questionnaire said they did not find the presence of cameras and microphones distracting.

Meanwhile, hopes that the networks might gain entrance to the Senate chamber to cover the debate on whether Republican Louis Wyman or Democrat John Durkin won last November’s New Hampshire Senate race were pretty much laid to rest last week.

The networks were waiting to hear more from the Senate, but one of the aides delegated to negotiate with them told Broadcasting “there is nothing to talk about.” The Senate had voted the week previous to permit broadcast coverage of the New Hampshire dispute, but only if the Republicans and Democrats could agree on a time limit for the debate (Broadcasting, June 16). One and a half weeks into the debate there was still no time limit agreement. Republicans, with a few exceptions, are agreed on the desirability of having cameras in the chamber for this debate. They are afraid the Democrats, who outnumber them 61-38, might “steal” the seat to which they think they are entitled. They figure their chances would improve if they were able to take their case to the American public via television.

The vote to permit broadcast coverage of the debate, contained in a resolution by Senator James McClure (R-Idaho), was unanimous—that is, in the sense that there was no objection to a unanimous consent motion to accept it. But there were only 14 or 15 senators present in the chamber when unanimous consent was called for. The following day, several senators, all but one Democrat, registered their objections to the resolution on the grounds that not all of the senators had been present and that consideration of the measure had been too hasty.

“We have had no chance for discussion at all,” Senator Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) said. He said he has no objection to letting some “sunshine” into the Senate chamber, “but the sun is only on the microphone and the cameras . . . With 100 of us, who is going to have the time? There are a lot of practical problems involved in this.”

Senators Bennett Johnston (D-La.) and Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) also argued for caution in proceeding with the floor broadcast. Senator Hatfield said “this is not the time nor the issue to launch the U.S. Senate into this particular focus and view to the total American public.”

All the while, Senator McClure repeated his argument that his resolution was called for an extremely limited experiment with broadcast coverage, to last the duration of debate on one issue. There would be ample time, he said, for extended discussion on whether to bring broadcasting in permanently.

Aside from the politics of permitting broadcast coverage, and the fact that the coverage in this instance is conditioned on agreement on a time limitation, there were technical problems that helped end the experiment before it began. It appeared that on passage of the McClure resolution, the senators believed cameras could function in the chamber with no additional light or at least with no more than was used for the swearing-in of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. But after discussions with the networks, it became apparent that was not the case.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) a co-sponsor of the McClure resolution, later told the Senate that the amount of light the networks wanted would raise the temperature of the chamber. He said he wanted the lighting kept to the level used at the Rockefeller ceremony and also wanted to limit the number of cameras. He said Republican Leader Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) on the other hand, favored full lighting so the proceedings could be covered in detail.

The networks, meanwhile, have offered to experiment with the lighting to see how much they can in fact get by with while the Senate is not in session, but they have had no reply yet from the Senate.

Ford wields plumber’s snake to unclog federal channels

President sets up meetings with members of Congress, regulatory agencies as first step in study for ways to eliminate unnecessary procedures, policies

President Ford has taken two steps in connection with his promise to ease the governmental burden on business and to strengthen competition in the marketplace.

He has arranged a meeting with 10 members from each house of Congress for June 25, and will follow it up in 10 days or two weeks with a meeting with members of 10 regulatory commissions.

And the President has appointed members to the Federal Paperwork Commission that was created by Congress for the purpose of simplifying and reducing what he described last week as “the enormous clog of federal forms and federal documents.”

The meetings with the 20 members of Congress and later with the regulatory commissioners are aimed at devising ways to eliminate unneeded regulation and stimulate competition, either through legislation or the adoption by the agencies of new procedures and policies.

The senators named by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) to attend the meeting this week with the President are John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), Vance Hartke (D-Ind.), Frank E. Moss (D-Utah), Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), Wendell Ford (D-Ky.), James Pearson (R-Kan.), Charles Percy (R-III.), Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.), Roman L. Hruska (R-Nebr.) and Robert Stafford (R-Vt.).

The House members had not been named by midweek.

President Ford announced that he had appointed members to the Federal Paperwork Commission in a speech to the National Federation of Independent Businessmen conference, in which he said he wanted "an end to unnecessary, unfair, unclear regulations and needless paperwork."

He said a total of 5,146 forms were sent out by Washington last year, and added, "Quite frankly, America is being buried by an avalanche of paper."

The members of the commission, which is to report its findings and recommendations in two years, are Commissioner Donald Alexander of the Internal Revenue Service; Gilbert Barrett, a county commissioner from Doughterty county, Ga.; Robert D. Benton, Iowa's superintendent of public instruction; Governor Otis R. Bowen of Indiana, Bruce G. Fielding, an accountant and the secretary of the small business federation the President addressed; Louis B. Knecht, international secretary-treasurer of the Communications Workers of America; Mark D. Littler, retired lawyer, and Esther Peterson, consumer adviser to Giant Foods.

Macdonald wants a tether on FCC, some fat trimming

Bill offered to restructure FCC, provide safeguards for independence; congressmen indicate it's time to re-evaluate Communications Act

Reform of Congress's regulatory agencies is an area that has been studied so much, Representative Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) said last week, that even though people agree change is needed, no one has any good ideas on how to bring it about. But Mr. Macdonald has a plan for reforming one of those agencies, the FCC, and he introduced it last week as a bill entitled "The FCC Reorganization and Reform Act" (Broadcasting, June 16).

In his introductory remarks to the House, Mr. Macdonald said he was concerned that the FCC, like other regulatory agencies, is drifting toward the executive branch and away from Congress, which created it, that to the discouragement of new competition, it is becoming dominated by the industry it was mandated to regulate, and that its constituency is not broad enough to include all facets of the public whose interests broadcasters are presumably serving.

With a mind toward cutting bureaucratic fat at the FCC, Mr. Macdonald's bill begins right at the top, recommending that the number of commissioners be reduced from the current seven to five. Terms would be extended to 10 years from the present seven.

Under the provisions of the bill commissioners could be removed from office on two grounds: "neglect of duty" or "malfeasance in office." Currently the Communications Act does not specify grounds for removal.

Also the bill stipulates that each commissioner be allowed four professional assistants and two secretaries. The law imposes no explicit limits on commission assistants now. In addition the bill would permit the FCC chairman to have one administrative assistant, as happens now in practice.

To insure the commission's independence from the executive branch, the bill has several provisions giving Congress more oversight muscle. For one thing, the President's choice of FCC chairman would have to be confirmed by the Senate. Legislative recommendations of the commission would be submitted directly to the Congress, instead of being screened first by the President's Office of Management and Budget as is now the practice. And budget estimates or requests submitted to OMB would have to be sent to Congress at the same time. Furthermore, the FCC would be required to make available within two days any document it possesses or has control over to any congressional committee requesting it. The FCC would also have to make a formal report of its activities to the House and Senate Commerce Committees every three months.

To enlarge the oversight capabilities of the Commerce Committees, the bill provides for the annual authorization of funds for the commission, in fact lists specific sums through fiscal year 1979. Under current practice, the budget request for the FCC and all other agencies goes from the Office of Management and Budget to the Appropriations Committees, without involving the legislative committees in the annual process. The bill would have the Commerce Committee

Question-and-answer time. Seven of the eight nominees to the board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting were quizzed last week by Senate Communications Subcommittee Chairman John Pastore (D-R.I.). The eighth, Colorado brewer Joseph Coors, will be the subject of a separate confirmation hearing, as yet unscheduled. The senator had just three questions for each witness: What is your party affiliation, do you have any interests which would conflict with a position on the CPB board and what is your interest in public broadcasting? To the last question, most replied they want to see public broadcasting live up to its promise of helping improve the quality of life. The nominees (l to r): Donald E. Santarelli (Republican), former administrator of the Justice Department Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, now a partner in the Washington law firm of Amram, Hahn, Sandground & Santarelli; Lucius P. Gregg Jr. (independent), president of the First Chicago University Finance Corp. and vice president, The First National Bank of Chicago; Lillie E. Herndon (Republican), president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Robert Benjamin (Democrat), current chairman of CPB; Amos B. Hostetter Jr. (independent), executive vice president, treasurer and director of Continental Cablevision Inc.; Virginia Duncan (Democrat), producer and director of kctrv San Francisco, a public broadcasting station, and W. Allen Wallis (independent), chancellor, professor of economics and statistics and trustee of the University of Rochester. The confirmation hearings continue this Tuesday (June 24) with testimony from outside communications activists.
Hailing to the chiefs. FCC Chairman and Mrs. Richard E. Wiley attended their first White House social affair last week as guests at the state dinner President and Mrs. Ford gave for West German President and Mrs. Walter Scheel. The guest list included a number of broadcast-related names—Dick Cavett; Donald H. McGannon, chairman and president of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.; Edward N. Ney, president and chief executive officer of Young & Rubicam International Inc. and Don S. Hewitt, executive producer of CBS's 60 Minutes. All attended with their wives.

first write legislation authorizing funds for the FCC, before the Appropriations Committees could draft the appropriations.

The numbers in the bill, $12.5 million for the FCC for July, August and September 1976 (to fill the gap between the end of the 1975 fiscal year on June 30 and the beginning of the government's new October-September fiscal year in 1976), $51 million for 1977, $53 million for 1978 and $55 million for 1979, in Mr. Macdonald's opinion generally anticipate the FCC's future needs based on its current expenditures.

To broaden the FCC's constituency, the bill would permit the commission to pay for attorney's fees and other costs of interested groups or individuals who would not be able to participate in proceedings without financial help. Determination of who would qualify and how much they receive would be up to the commission.

The Macdonald bill specifies, too, that all of the commission's meetings would be presumed open and could be closed to the public only by a recorded vote of the commission in an open session. Further still, records would have to be kept of any meeting between any commissioner or FCC employe and outsiders that concerned pending proceedings on policy matters.

Whenever the commission waived a rule or otherwise departed from established policy, it would, under the Macdonald bill's provisions, have to issue a statement of its reasons.

The bill, too, would make the FCC's equal opportunity office, now under the general counsel, directly responsible to the commission.

For the first time, if the bill were enacted, the FCC would be able to go to court with its own attorneys in any civil action in which it was involved. The commission is now represented by the Justice Department in some civil proceedings. The point of this provision, again, is to divorce the FCC from dependence on the executive branch. The bill stipulates, however, that the Justice Department would not be prohibited from intervening in a case as a friend of the commission or as the FCC's adversary.

Representative Macdonald said he expects some of the bill's provisions to be changed or dropped, but that he hopes it will stir debate. He plans to take the bill up in hearings some time in July.

He also indicated that the time is ripe for a re-examination of the entire Communications Act, enacted in 1934. He said the act "is the product of a time when telecommunications technology was in a relatively primitive stage."

Now Avco unloads WLWD(TV) Dayton
Grinnell College buys NBC affiliate for $13 million as an investment

Avco Broadcasting Corp. continued to liquidate its broadcast properties last week with the sale of its last television station, WLWD(TV) Dayton, Ohio, to Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa, for an estimated $13 million. WLWD(TV) will be the first commercial broadcast station owned by Grinnell, a coeducational liberal arts college with about 1200 students. The college has a portfolio of varied stocks and securities with an estimated $26 million value. It currently operates four commercial KDIC(FM) Grinnell on authorized 88.5 mhz with 10 w and an antenna 74 feet above average terrain.

Mrs. Carolyn S. Buckbaum, Grinnell board chairman, said no changes in programming and management at WLWD are expected. The purchase, she said in an announcement, is "a prudent investment yielding a return consistent with the escalating costs of financing a college."

WLWD is the eighth station to be sold by Avco. Only the week before the company sold WLWT(TV) Cincinnati to Multimedia Broadcasting Co., Greenville, S.C., a division of Multimedia Inc. for a price reported to be near $17 million (BROADCASTING, June 16). Avco's four remaining stations are WLW(AM) Cincinnati, KYA-AM-FM San Francisco and WRTH(AM) Wood River, Ill. (St. Louis). Avco Broadcasting's president, John T. Murphy, has said that they are on the market.

WLWD, an NBC affiliate, was put on the air by Avco in 1949. It is on channel 2 with 100 kw visual, 20 kw audio and an antenna 685 feet above average terrain. Station broker Howard E. Stark represented Grinnell College in the negotiations.

CPI decides cable is its cup of tea, sells radio stations and Texas Network

Communications Properties Inc., an Austin, Tex.-based multiple system operator, has sold KFJJ(AM)-KWXX(FM) Fort Worth and the Texas State Network to Swanco Broadcasting Inc. for a price in excess of $4 million cash.

According to Robert Hughes, CPI president, the company no longer intends to stay in the over-the-air broadcasting business. Four years ago, when CPI announced the purchase of the stations and network from Stan Wilson and others for $3,800,000 (BROADCASTING, June 21, 1971), further station acquisitions were anticipated. However, KFIZ and Kawasaki have remained the only CPI-owned stations. Mr. Hughes said last week that CPI’s expertise rests in cable and microwave and that the company has chosen to concentrate its efforts in those areas, although its two stations and network have proved profitable.

Mr. Hughes said that CPI is the eighth largest multiple system operator in the country, with 78 cable systems in 11 states and some 250,000 subscribers.

Through the Texas State Network CPI provides 130 stations with 14 five-minute and two 15-minute newscasts per day.

Mr. Hughes owns about 3% of publicly traded CPI and other stockholders include Fred Lieberman (43.6%), Jack Crosby (16%) and Benjamin J. Conroy Jr. (1.1%).

Gerock H. Swanson owns 82.3% of Tulsa, Okla.-based Swanson which currently operates KRMG(AM)-KWEN(FM) Tulsa, Okla.; KKNG(FM) Oklahoma City; KKYY(AM) San Antonio, Texas; KBOE(AM)-FM Albuquerque, New Mexico; KLEO(AM) Wichita, Kan., and WBYU(FM) New Orleans.

KFIZ operates full time on 1270 kHz with 5 kw. KWX is on 97.1 mhz with 98 kw. Broker: George Moore, Dallas.

Rogers II were Taft Broadcasting’s highest-paid officers in the fiscal year ended last March 31, with aggregate remuneration of $125,739 and $111,147 respectively, according to a proxy statement distributed to shareholders last week. Those figures included directors fees as well as salary but did not include compensation under a 1969 restricted stock plan which was said to represent $6,650 in Mr. Mechem’s case and $6,919 in Mr. Rogers’s. Nor did they include retirement and pension-plan accruals for the year, amounting to $14,271 for Mr. Mechem and $12,902 for Mr. Rogers.

John L. McClay, executive vice president for the company’s broadcast group, received $81,073 in aggregate remuneration and $9,816 in pension and retirement accruals; Dorothy S. Murphy, treasurer and assistant secretary, $58,307 and $7,804; and Roger B. Read, executive vice president of Taft-H-B Program Sales (formerly Rhodes Productions Inc.), who retired as a vice president in July 1974, received $41,787 but no pension accrual.

Taft’s annual report meanwhile showed that of $22,420,975 in net operating profits, up 12% from the previous year, broadcasting accounted for $16.7 million, up 5%; amusement park operations $7.2 million, up 28%; and TV and motion-pi ture production and distribution $1.8 million, up 38%, while losses and unallo cated corporate expenses deducted about $3.4 million. Of $89,945,171 in net revenues, representing a gain of 13%, broadcasting’s contribution was $42.5 million, a gain of 8%; amusement parks $22.5 million, up 24%; and TV and motion picture production/distribution $19.2 million, up 18%. Net earnings were put at $11,654,324, a 4% rise.

FCC ends same-day nonduplication protection for mountain zone

Commission acts after hearing from cable and broadcasters in the Rockies; door is left open, however, for waivers

The FCC last week adopted a new rule to end same-day nonduplication protection for broadcasters in the mountain time zone. The new rule allows those stations to bring Rocky Mountain broadcasters into the same day and the same nonduplication rules in practice throughout the rest of the country (Broadcasting, April 7), although the commission allowed for waivers for those stations not receiving same-day protection if they can prove a need for special relief.

The commission’s decision came immediately after a special panel discussion held at the FCC on Tuesday between Rocky Mountain broadcasters and cable operators. Both groups had not even been able to agree on whether their time zone has a unique effect on television operations, much less how that time zone should be accounted for under FCC nonduplication rules.

William Harrison, of Torrington Community TV System, Torrington, Wyo., contended that there is no justification for a specialized form of protection for broadcasters in the mountain time zone and any "uniqueness" attributable to the two hour difference from eastern time benefits broadcasters.

But, William F. Duhamel, of KOTA-TV Rapid City, S.D., claimed that geographical distances and small population densities make broadcasting more difficult there than in other areas. Specifically, he argued, the amount of two-station-markets require more than just simultaneous nonduplication protection.

Chairman Richard E. Wiley was willing to concede that there were distinctive characteristics to the mountain time zone and suggested that the solution may be a “mixed one” where small, marginal stations require a different approach, although it would not encompass all stations as the present same-day rule protection does.

Responding to that suggestion, Robert Towe, of Montana Video Inc., Billings, Mont., said cable would have “no difficulty” in accepting some special recognition for small and marginal broadcast stations. What cable wants, said Mr. Towe, is an “equalization of the law” that crosses the entire industry and does not single out mountain-time CATV operators.

Just how stations would fare without simultaneous nonduplication protection was a question that never really got answered during the two-hour panel session, however. Various commissioners repeatedly probed for hard facts on the impact to broadcasters of a shift from same-day to simultaneous protection, but the only consensus between broadcasters and cable people reached the whole day seemed to be that there weren’t any such figures available.

Stuart Feldstein, general counsel of the National Cable Television Association, called the FCC’s decision a “very fine win for the cable industry.” He did, however, suggest a “catch-22” to the victory. It comes in the commission’s indication that it will consider petitions for special relief. While the merits of those petitions are decided said Mr. Feldstein, the stations can continue to enjoy same-day protection. That could have the impact of delaying actual compliance with simultaneous nonduplication for as much as a year, he said.

Talks to begin on de-emphasis of American TV in Canada

FCC’s Wiley, State’s Waldman confer in Washington with Canada’s Juneau,

Pierre Juneau was in Washington last week, causing more of a stir than the chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission might ordinarily expect to create. For he personifies the effort to stem the flow of Canadian advertising dollars to American stations along the border.

And he returned to Ottawa on Wednesday, after talks with FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley and a State Department official who left him in no doubt as to the extent of American concern and urged him to reconsider his policies.

No minds were changed in the meetings. But the door was left open to future talks—between Mr. Wiley and Mr. Juneau and between the State Department and members of the Canadian government—that would be aimed at developing what Mr. Juneau described as a “mutually satisfactory” solution to the problem confronting the two countries. Raymond J. Waldman, deputy assistant secretary of state for transportation and communications, expressed the hope for an early start on the talks.

Mr. Juneau visited Washington to address the English-Speaking Union on the subject of Canadian-American relations. And he took the opportunity offered by that forum, as well as by interviews with the press and his meetings with the American officials to discuss and defend the policies troubling some Americans—the CRTC requirement that Canadian cable systems delete a substantial number of commercials from the signals of American stations they carry and the proposed legislation now moving through the House of Commons that would deny tax deductions for Canadian ads aimed at Canadian audiences but appearing on American stations or in American periodicals. (Mr. Wiley also discussed the matter of Canadian stations broadcasting American-produced programs before they are carried on U.S. stations. However, Mr. Juneau feels that to the extent that it is a problem, and he does not think it is great, it is one for the Americans to solve.)

Mr. Juneau said policies are aimed at preventing “economic domination of Canadian television” and ensuring Canada a “strong television service of its own.” Another policy reflecting Canada’s concern at being overwhelmed by U.S. television is a rule requiring Canadian stations to devote a minimum of 50% of their prime time, and at least 60% of their entire day, to Canadian programming.

Mr. Juneau estimated that $20 million in advertising revenue is drawn off from Canada by a handful of American border stations, whose signals can be received by 45% of Canada’s population of 22 million. (He said the dollar figure is 10% of the total revenues earned by Canadian television stations, and noted that American television would suffer a comparable loss only if $500 million were siphoned from it.)

Canada, he said, is determined “to divert some Canadian revenue back into Canada, so that Canadian private broadcasters do a better job in Canada, where they are licensed to perform a public service. . . .

"We feel that no group, national, regional or local, is alive, or breathes culturally if it only consumes imported entertainment and information and never creates its own, or sees itself authentically reflected," Mr. Juneau said.

"And let us remember," he said at another point, "that U.S. border stations that complain about Canadian broadcasting policies have not been licensed by anyone to serve Canada. They have been licensed by the FCC to serve a specific U.S. population."

Three of the stations primarily affected are in Buffalo—WBEN-TV, WGR-TV and WBKB-TV. Together, Mr. Juneau estimates they earn about $9 million in Canada. KVOS-TV Bellingham, Wash., which serves Vancouver, British Columbia, earns most of the rest of the $20 million—up to $8 million, according to Mr. Juneau.

Canada is served mainly by two television systems—the CBC, which operates networks in French and English principally on public funds but also on some advertising revenues, and the CTV, a privately owned English-language network that covers 85% of the country. Additional service is provided by smaller networks, both private and public, and a number of independent stations.

Mr. Juneau believes the CRTC requirement that cable systems—which now serve 40% of the homes in Canada—delete commercials from American programs substitute public service announcements for them will be effective in keeping Canadian advertising dollars in Canada. "Canadian advertisers will find it's not profitable to advertise on American border stations," Mr. Juneau said.

The requirement, which is being imposed on cable systems as they come up for renewal of their five-year licenses, does not apply to all commercials, since the switching involved would be too burdensome; however, the CRTC expects systems to delete enough to make the policy effective. Systems in Calgary and Toronto are already deleting commercials from U.S. programs.

The Buffalo stations are challenging the commercial-deletion rule in the Canadian courts, so far without success. The Federal Court of Appeals affirmed the CRTC in a decision last January, however, the case will be heard by the Canadian Supreme Court.

The proposed income-tax law amendment assigned to keep advertising revenue in Canada would, in Mr. Juneau's view, serve as a complement to the commercial-deletion rule in shutting off the flow of advertising dollars south, even if American stations cut their rates.

Chairman Wiley and Mr. Waldman, in their meetings with Mr. Juneau, expressed sympathy for Canada's effort to protect its television industry and culture. But they said the commercial-deletion rule was unfair and inappropriate. They stayed away from the proposed tax amendment on the ground that that was an internal Canadian matter.

Mr. Waldman talked of "adverse consequences" that might flow from the commercial-deletion rule, and referred to reports that the Buffalo stations were considering jamming their signals to prevent Canadians from receiving their programs ("CLOSED CIRCUIT," April 28). However, Mr. Wiley has publicly stated his opposition to such retaliation, and the stations have yet to notify the commission of any jamming proposal. Nevertheless, Chairman Wiley told Mr. Juneau that pressure for action to counter the Canadian moves was growing in Congress. And he said that if Canada is concerned about preserving its culture it should not simply reject the American commercials and accept the American programs; it should bar the programs as well. But he also said he did not think erecting that kind of barrier would constitute a realistic policy for CRTC.

In any event, Mr. Juneau said shortly before leaving Washington that Canada's advertising-revenue loss is something with which "we are preoccupied. It's the very life of our broadcasting system," he said. "It's something we cannot take lightly."

Media Briefs

Justice modifies approach. Department of Justice is limiting itself to one side of issue in court case involving appeals of FCC's broadcaster-newspaper crossownership rule. National Association of Broadcasters had urged U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to dismiss Justice's appeal since department, by law, is required to represent FCC in appeals cases and, therefore, cannot attack commission orders in court. Justice maintains that Supreme Court rejected similar argument in 1949, in case in which department had sued Interstate Commerce Commission (BROADCASTING, June 16). However, Justice Department attorney who filed appearance in behalf of department and FCC, Robert B. Nicholson, has withdrawn as attorney for FCC.

Challenges denied. Washington's WTOP-TV and WTTG-TV came step closer to receiving their 1972 license renewals with FCC rejection of challenges by Aligned Citizens United for Television Equality. Petitions charged that two Maryland counties were no longer just "bedroom communities" of Washington and did not receive adequate news and public affairs programing from stations. FCC rejected similar petitions from group against Washington's WRC-TV and WMAL-TV June 5 (BROADCASTING, June 9). Stations' renewals, however, remain in deferred status since another petition against them is outstanding.

Flies opened. FCC has granted Freedom of Information Act request made by National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting for data concerning crossowners and markets affected by proposed relaxation of television-cable divestiture requirements (BROADCASTING, June 2). Commission released information identifying crossowners who filed petitions for waiver of present rule, said requested data on other crossowners does not exist.

Burglars remove most of KFTW's studio equipment; AM has to go silent for a time

A party or parties unknown forced KFTW(AM) Fredericktown, Mo., off the air last Wednesday by stealing most of the station's broadcast equipment.

John Davey, news director, came in early Wednesday morning to sign on the daytimer and found nothing in the control room but a bolted-down control board and a chair. All that was left in the production room was a chair and a microphone. Stolen were turntables, cartridge machines, production equipment, microphones and remote equipment.

Jack Gale, who owns the station with his wife, Lovey, estimated the losses at up to $13,000 in this burglary, the third in the past three months. He said that the previous thefts involved only office equipment and that the station could be robbery-prone because of its secluded location a mile outside of town.

KFTW went on the air for about an hour and a half Wednesday after taking advantage of an offer of help from KREI(AM) Farmington, Mo. Some albums were taped there and later played, as well as some news and commercials in between. Without cartridge machines, Mr. Gale said, con-continued operation was not possible. Mr. Gale said that equipment was expected to arrive Thursday and that he planned to have KFTW back on the air by noon that day.

Quello and Hooks: opposite poles on citizen agreements

The FCC proposed policy statement on citizen group-station agreements (Broadcasting, June 2) is an example of a commission statement being stretched wide enough to cover sharply conflicting views. Although Commissioners Benjamin L. Hooks and James H. Quello had serious reservations about the statement, both concurred in it. But both also issued statements indicating their concerns.

Commissioner Hooks, for instance, thinks the document is too tentative and cautious. In a separate statement, he said that some of the restrictions imposed on agreements "appear to be unduly protective," and expressed the hope that they are lifted in the final order.

He does not share the majority's concern, stressed in the statement, that licensees would sign away their responsibility to operate their stations to citizen groups. He said he could not understand how an agreement in which a broadcaster voluntarily joins could be said later to "curtail a licensee's discretion."

Commissioner Quello, a former broadcaster and the commission's sharpest critic of citizen agreements, said the commission should not make any official acknowledgement of private agreements unless it receives a complaint that a licensee has surrendered his responsibility under the terms of one.

He also expressed concern that the public is unaware of agreements stations reach with groups. Accordingly, he feels that the commission should only require, as it has, that agreements be placed in the station's public file, but that stations take "affirmative action" to inform the public of their existence. He would have stations publish "at appropriate intervals," the text of agreements in local newspapers.

College curriculums reflect growing interest in broadcasting careers

The number of universities, colleges and junior colleges offering radio and television courses has increased in the past two years, a study by the National Association of Broadcasters has found.

Results of the study were announced by Dr. Harold Niven, NAB vice president for planning and development and executive secretary of the Broadcast Education Association.

Of 228 four-year schools answering an NAB survey, 205 reported they offer bachelor's degrees in broadcasting, an increase of 25 in the last two years. Master's degrees are offered by 99 of the respondents, an increase of 12, and 27 schools offer Ph.D.'s, the same number as two years ago. Twenty-three four-year schools said they offer coursework in broadcasting but have no degree programs.

The results show there are 17,751 broadcasting majors at the 205 schools offering undergraduate degrees, 5,256 more than there were two years ago at the then 180 schools with broadcasting undergraduate degree programs. And although there are more schools offering master's degrees than two years ago, there are 87 fewer M.A. candidates in broadcasting. The 99 respondents with M.A. programs reported having 1,862 students enrolled.

WCFL makes it again

An FCC administrative law judge has ruled that WCFL(AM) Chicago did not deliberately misrepresent its public-affairs programing in its 1970 license renewal application and that, as a result, its renewal should be granted. The renewal has been challenged by three Chicago citizen groups asserting the misrepresentation in programing, among other things. The commission originally rejected the petition, but, after the groups appealed, concurred it had overlooked some matters the petitioners had raised, and designated the renewal for hearing.
New guidelines for children's ads

Advertising's own monitoring group says its standards and NAB TV code have many points in common

The National Advertising Division of the Council of Better Business Bureaus made public last week a revised and strengthened set of guidelines developed by its Children's Review Unit to govern advertising to children.

Robert F. Gertenbach, director of the NAD, the investigative arm of advertising's self-regulatory structure, said the revised guidelines already have the support of major children's advertisers. "This means we can put them into effect right away," he said, "and they are truly self-regulatory."

Mr. Gertenbach said that many of the provisions parallel those in the NAB television code, though there remain some differences. Children's unit officials said that, for example, their new guidelines urge caution in the use of fantasy and animation in commercials but do not forbid it, as the NAB code does except in a commercial's opening seconds. They also discourage comparative claims but do not ban them, as the TV code does. On the other hand, officials said, the new guides extend to any meal the TV code's requirement that depiction of breakfast should show foods appropriate for a balanced diet.

The children's unit's new guidelines were said to go farther than the original version in several respects. Emilie Griffin, director of the Children's Review Unit, said these include:

- They now apply to advertising clearly directed to children aged 11 and under whenever it appears in programs that have "substantial" child audiences even though those audiences are less than 50% of the total audience.
- They now clearly advise against child-directed advertising of medications, supplemental vitamins and drugs.
- They now call for reduced emphasis on premiums in advertising.
- They now clearly apply to print as well as TV advertising, but provide that "differences in the nature of broadcast media and print media should be taken into account."
- They hold that ads should, among other things, avoid "social stereotyping which is demeaning or derogatory to any group"; "encourage good use of language" (but "this does not preclude informal usage"), and should "avoid the implication that a parent or adult who purchases a given product or service for a child is better or more generous than one who does not."
- They contain a new preamble saying that the guidelines will be subject to further modification in the light of new knowledge and changing trends.

The new version of the guidelines was made public by the NAD in a report on the children's unit's first year. Roland P. (Steve) Campbell, senior vice president of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, said children's advertising had drawn relatively few complaints from the public: Of some 25 complaints and inquiries formally opened by the children's unit, he said, most resulted from internal monitoring rather than public complaints. He said about half of the cases have been "satisfactorily resolved" and the results made public in NAD's monthly reports, and the rest are still under review.

Mr. Campbell said major advertisers, who urged the formation of the children's unit and who support it financially, had voluntarily submitted approximately 500 child-directed commercials. In addition, he said, the unit has monitored and reviewed more than 2,000 on-air announcements through video-tape recording facilities. The 2,000 included promotions and public-service announcements as well as commercials, he said, and the monitoring not only covered the children's blocks on Saturday and Sunday mornings but also extended to other day-parts when substantial numbers of children are watching.

The ladies finger fireworks on TV

Action for Children’s Television announced last week it has alerted local TV stations throughout the country to the potential hazards to children from the advertising of fireworks on TV.

ACT’s move came after it said it had discovered that WDCA-TV in Washington had scheduled 34 commercials for the two weeks preceding July 4 to promote the sale of fireworks distributed by Eastern Import-Export Inc., Washington. Discussions were held between Peggy Charren, president of ACT, and Milton Grant, general manager of the station. According to ACT WDCA-TV agreed to withdraw the commercials, which had been scheduled to begin last Saturday (June 21) on a number of children’s TV programs.

ACT has notified its local representatives across the country to monitor children’s programs for advertising for fireworks, particularly during the July 4 holiday and other Bicentennial celebrations. ACT’s position is that stations advertising “hazardous products” to children may be accountable to the FCC during license renewal periods.

Good mileage. Fifteen thousand newscasts and 38 years later, Columbia Gas of Ohio and WSPD(AM) Toledo are claiming a record for longest continuous sponsorship by one firm of a radio program. What was then the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. began sponsoring the 11 a.m. news program (later the 8 a.m. news) on the station in May 1937. To mark the 15,000th news show, the station gathered the present newscaster and three former wspd newscasters. Seated are Jim Uebelhart (l), newsman from 1940 to 1972, and Don Edwards, the show’s newscaster since 1972, who made the 15,000th newscast. Standing (l to r): Albert F. Schneider, now manager of wczAM Grand Rapids, Mich., WSPD newscaster from 1941 to 1944; H.C. Taylor, vice president of a Columbia Gas subsidiary; John M. Pickens, district manager for the gas firm, and Edward C. Ames, who began the newscasts in 1937 and continued until 1940. Two other newscasters were not present—Jack Solon Jr., now vice president of Johns Manville Corp., was unable to attend; Edward C. Kutz died in 1973.

New hope for co-op funds

ANA develops standard form to verify broadcast exposure of ads for which manufacturers chip in; TVB and RAB OK it

A new claim-documentation system—a sort of broadcast counterpart of teatsheets—that is expected to ease and increase the use of co-op advertising on radio and television was announced last week by the Association of National Advertisers.

The system employs standard affidavit forms that a station, upon request by a retail client, stamps on broadcast commercial scripts or instructions sheets and sends with its invoice to the retailer, who forwards them to his suppliers for payment of co-op claims.

The radio and TV affidavits differ slightly in wording, but not in effect. Their common purpose is to provide a uniform way for the retailer to verify the content, number and total cost of commercials for which co-op allowances are available. They were developed in consultation with and have been approved by the Radio Advertising Bureau and the Television Bureau of Advertising, respectively.

Robert D. Wilcox of Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster, Pa., chairman of the ANA cooperative advertising committee, said the system should lead many advertisers to change their policies and allow the use of co-op funds for radio and TV. Many have disallowed it, he said, because they had no way of being sure that broadcast advertising had run as retailers claimed.

“They didn’t know it [deception] had happened, but they also didn’t know it had not,” he said, explaining that the new approach should remove the latter uncertainty. Pointing up the extent of that uncertainty, he said that in a survey of ANA members a couple of years ago—regarding radio co-op only—50% of the respondents said they felt that radio did not furnish sufficient documentation to justify their reimbursing retailers for radio co-op, and that half of that number said they had specifically excluded radio from their co-op plans.

The new system evolved largely from techniques developed by Mr. Wilcox on behalf of Armstrong Cork in recent years, and he credits a fellow Pennsylvanian, Charles C. Smith of WPDC-AM-FM Elizabethtown, with a big assist in its emergence.

Mr. Smith, who became involved when he called Mr. Wilcox about Armstrong Cork co-op involving a local client, says one of the plan’s chief values to him is that it lets a station use a single standard form instead of having to tailor its verification reports to suit the varying requirements of different co-op manufacturers. If it becomes accepted as the broadcast equivalent of print teatsheets, Mr. Smith says, it should also make more manufacturers’ co-op money available for broadcast media.

Mr. Wilcox expressed hope that the system “will eliminate a good deal of time and confusion” in the processing of retailers’ broadcast co-op claims and result in wider use of the broadcast media by retailers who can benefit from using them. He said the plan is “not foolproof but it’s a light year better than anything we have had before.” He also thought it unlikely that co-op manufacturers would insist on a different form of proof, he indicated his committee would be glad to consult with any who do.

The affidavit forms are reproduced below to be stamped and completed on the commercial script or instructions sheet (but only when requested by the retailer).

Abortion ad is protected by First Amendment, high court says

Lower court is reversed on ruling that freedom of speech and press applies to no commercial message

The Supreme Court ruled last week that the First Amendment covers at least some forms of advertising. The publisher of a now defunct underground newspaper that once circulated on the University of Virginia campus won the ruling in a case disputing his right to publish an advertisement for an abortion clinic in New York City.

Speech is not denied First Amendment protection simply because it is in the form of an advertisement, the court said in a 7-to-2 decision that overturned an 1878 state statute under which Jeffrey C. Bigelow had been fined $150.

The statute made it a misdemeanor to circulate a publication encouraging a woman to undergo an abortion. The Virginia supreme court upheld its application to Mr. Bigelow on the ground that free speech and press guarantees of the First Amendment do not apply to commercial advertisements.

But they do, or at least can. Justice Harry A. Blackmun, writing for the majority, said the court has noted in the past that a state cannot foreclose the exercise of constitutional rights “by mere labels.” And although the question of whether advertising is involved may be one factor to consider in weighing the First Amendment interest against a government interest in regulating speech, “advertising is not thereby stripped of all First Amendment protection,” he said. “The relationship of speech to the marketplace of products or of services does not make it valueless in the marketplace of ideas.”

The majority saw the ad published on Feb. 8, 1971, in the Virginia Weekly, as something more than an effort to sell a product. The ad announced—in a state where abortions were illegal—that abortions were legal in New York for residents and nonresidents alike, and carried the name and address of the abortion clinic.

The ad, Justice Blackmun wrote, “contained factual material of clear ‘public interest,’ and ‘conveyed information of potential interest and value’ not only to those in need of the services advertised but also to those interested in the subject matter of the law in another state, and to readers seeking reform in Virginia.”

Furthermore, he wrote, the activity involved was constitutionally protected. Accordingly, he added, Mr. Bigelow’s First Amendment interests “coincided with the constitutional interests of the general public.”

Justice Blackmun made it clear the court was not attempting to stake out precisely the extent to which the First Amendment permits the regulation of advertising that is related to activities the state may regulate or prohibit. He also said the court was not commenting on “the First Amendment ramifications” of the legislative ban on cigarette advertising or the FCC’s earlier application of the fairness doctrine to such advertising.

Reps protest FCC's definition of same-service areas

Station representative firms last week opposed the proposed definition of “same-service areas” the FCC would apply in prohibiting separately owned broadcast stations with overlapping contours from joint selling with combination advertising rates.

The commission would define same service areas as those within which stations have overlapping contours—5mV/m for AM’s; 3.16 mV/m contour for FMs and city-grade contour for TV’s.

Those criteria, argued various reps in comments on the proposal, are unrealistic and do not take into account stations that are geographically close yet in separate markets.

The Station Representatives Association recommended a “three-fold” approach whereby the FCC overlap criteria would be used generally, but an exception.

would be provided in cases where two stations not in the same Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) have their transmitters within 20 miles of each other.

Broad Street Communications Corp., a group licensee, urged the FCC to adopt Arbitron’s “Metro Area” designation, which closely corresponds to SMSA’s. John Blair & Co., argued against the FCC’s contour criteria, noting that they would prohibit Blair from representing a TV station in Providence, R.I., because Blair owns two radio stations in Boston.

Cox Broadcasting Corp., group broadcaster and owner of Tele-Rep Inc. and Christal Co., advocated the use of Arbitron’s “Area of Dominant Influence” (ADI) as a better criteria for calculating same-service areas.

Alan Torbet Associates Inc., a national radio rep, claimed “any such general and all-embracing rule can only limit competition for national advertisers to large stations in large markets that generate enough independent business to warrant having a national rep.” Only combination advertising practices between same-service stations in the same area should be prohibited, Torbet concluded.

NOW protests laxative ad

Advertisements for Plough Co.’s Correctol over-the-counter laxative have elicited a request by the National Organization for Women to the Federal Trade Commission for a cease-and-desist order. The television commercials for the Memphis firm, created by the J. Walter Thompson Co., depicr “the gentle woman’s laxative.” NOW cites a Food and Drug Administration panel study on over-the-counter laxatives which “found no evidence for claims that any laxative has a particular advantage for individuals simply on the basis of sex, age or other demographic characteristics” (italics are NOW’s). Choosing women as the target audience, especially when, according to the FDA panel, there is widespread overuse of self-prescribed laxatives, was regarded by NOW as compounding an existing problem with “unfair, deceptive advertising practices.”

PBS turns out its fall schedule, views the future

Conference also gets advice on how commercial networks promote and complaints from women, minorities

Public broadcasting took inventory last week at its annual program/public information/development conference and saw itself on the verge of “another year of potential growth.”

The prospect was held out by Anders Yocum, coordinator of programming for the Public Broadcasting Service, in introducing the 1975-76 schedule (see below). Mr. Yocum said that PBS was concluding a “good year” in which “we had more to offer the public, and the public responded.”

In the new season, beginning next month, “we expect to enhance the opportunities for public benefit and enjoyment.”

A presentation by professionals from commercial broadcasting and advertising, “How the Bad Guys Do It,” was intended as an instruction in promotion of public broadcasting’s fall schedule. Amid much joking, there were serious pointers. Paul Klein of Computer TV, formerly an audience-analysis whiz at NBC-TV, charted PBS’s ratings and audience demographics, admitting he is stumped as to how public TV can compete for the “young, adult high spenders.” Louis Dorfsman, vice president-advertising and design, CBS/Broadcast Group, and Herb Lubalin, Graphics Design, traded compliments as the “world’s greatest designers” and gave visual presentations on how to communicate image. Vice president of advertising for NBC, Gerald Rowe, stressed the fundamental techniques used in commercial network promotion and said there is nothing inappropriate about public television exerting the same on-air promotion efforts. Cost-efficient promos for those shows with the most audience potential, aired without commercial clutter, can capture “that elusive audience out there.” Radio, Mr. Rowe said, is also “very smart buy for you,” to reach specialized audiences.

Drawing on the British experience, the conference heard from Aubrey Singer, controller of BBC II, after he was honored at a luncheon for his contributions to public television as an art form and source of entertainment. Mr. Singer explained BBC’s “tradition in the continuity of finance,” allowing long-term planning and “safety until at least 1979.” The license fee has become totally acceptable to the public, Mr. Singer said, making for “lively interest in BBC programming.” The difference between British and American TV programming, “women’s and minorities’ grievances were expressed in a general debate, ‘Should the PBS national program schedule serve target audience needs primarily through general programs rather than through narrowly focused special programs?’” Henry Goldberg, former general counsel, Office of Telecommunications Policy, citing the recent “Harlem: Voices and Faces” incident (BROADCASTING, May 26), warned of the censorship aspects of government controls saying, “It would be a crime to trade the constraints of a commercial system for the constraints of a politicized system.”

Douglas Cater, director of the Aspen Institute, warned against creating new black and woman stereotypes that would “cripple creativity” and said the way to debate the issue is “this type of forum, not before Congress.” Pluria Marshall of the National Black Media Coalition summarized the problem as “the exclusion of too many people public broadcasting is supposed to serve.” There is a need, he said, for a minority workshop on the order of the Children’s Television Workshop and National Public Affairs Center for Television to allow direct input from minorities. Kathy Irwin of the National Organization for Women, spoke of the need for PBS to make available programs that meet needs of women and to include women in the ranks of public broadcasters.

Representative Timothy Wirth (D-Colo.), who moderated the session, made a concluding plea to “organize a tremendous education effort, go home and write your congressmen,” to “put the heat on” Representative George Mahon (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, to break the lock-step pattern of year-to-year funding in favor of five-year funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

How PBS hopes to counterprogram the commercial TV networks

One could argue that you are appreciating more abroad than at home, a feeling with which I can sympathize."

In anticipation of a question from the floor, John Montgomery, vice president for programing, gave an account of "whatever happened to Zoom," the award-winning children's show hailed by citizen groups and critics for its originality and children's participation but not purchased in the cooperative bidding rounds in May. The show is "in a holding pattern," Mr. Montgomery said.

Noncommercial TV gives own awards

Fred Rogers gets biggest prize; stations cited for shows, promotions

Public broadcasting's highest honor, the Ralph Lowell Award, was presented to Fred Rogers, creator and star of Mister Rogers' Neighborhood, for uncompromising dedication for more than 20 years to the creation of significant public television programming for children. The award was presented by Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, at a banquet June 17 at Washington's Mayflower hotel.

Russians network hop, AAU cancels Kiev meet

Late arrangement made with ABC, despite agreement with CBS

A seeming mixup within the bureaucratic labyrinth of the Soviet Union may have jeopardized a long-standing arrangement between CBS and the Amateur Athletic Union for U.S. television rights to joint sports events featuring athletes of both countries.

The problem surfaced last week when Russia's State Committee for Television and Radio sold the TV rights to a July 4-5 U.S.-USSR track meet in Kiev to ABC for $50,000. This deal led to the AAU's announcement that it would cancel the track meet. Ollan Cassell, executive director of the AAU, claimed that the sale to ABC violated the union's long-term agreement with another Soviet entity, the USSR All-Sports Committee, which gives first crack at any event of this kind to CBS.

"The Soviet TV people asked us to do the track meet because they weren't getting any response from CBS as late as a month or so before the event," said John Martin, the director of program planning at ABC. "As far as we're concerned, the offer to us by the State Committee for Television and Radio supersedes any contract the AAU has with the USSR All-Sports Committee, which merely runs events of this kind."

Robert Wussler, the vice president for sports at CBS, denied that CBS was not interested in the track meet. "We've had it locked into our schedule since as early as December 1974," Mr. Wussler said. "But I have no desire to get into a dispute with ABC. This problem will have to be resolved by the AAU and the Russian All-Sports Committee."

Mr. Martin was still holding out hope last Wednesday (June 18) that the AAU would rescind its cancellation and that the track meet would come off as scheduled, with ABC televising the event. "Since our keeping the rights would deprive the AAU of any revenue from CBS," Mr. Martin said, "I've made a firm offer of $45,000 to cover the expenses of the 80 members of the American delegation to Kiev."

For their information

The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, has put together a batch of new informational radio strips featuring people such as Ralph Nader, journalist Clark Mollenhoff and nostalgia expert Joe Franklin. Spokesmen for the syndicate say that they haven't ruled out getting national sponsors and then bartering the package to radio stations. But the syndicate's strategy now, these spokesmen say, is to sell the entire package—or any part of it—to each individual station based on that station's rate-card price. One of the 18 items in the package—Will Rogers Today, two and a half minutes a day of readings from the work of the humorist with John Bartholomew Tucker doing Mr. Rogers' voice—has already been sold to 24 markets, including KSJJ(AM) Colorado Springs, Colo.; WBL(AM) Columbus, Ga.; KFDF(AM) Wichita, Kan., and WISR(AM) Butler, Pa.

Prelude to merger

The move toward a merger of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, informally urged by members of both unions over the last few years, moved a step toward reality last week when both the Hollywood and New York sections of SAG's executive board adopted a set of conditions to be met before an actual amalgamation takes place.

Conditions include such factors as studies to determine how best to mesh the separate pension-welfare funds, organization, membership, economics, etc. Details must be worked out first, before the

ASCAP loses out in high court ruling on restaurant radio

Justices hold that broadcasting in limited public area does not constitute a public performance subject to copyright payments

The Supreme Court ruled last week that music played over the radio in public places such as bars, restaurants and doctors' offices does not require payment of copyright fees.

The high court issued that ruling by a 7-to-2 decision in a case involving a fast-food restaurant in Pittsburgh. Playing an FM radio for the benefit of "George Aiken's Chicken" customers, said Justice Potter Stewart for the majority, did not constitute a "performance" under current copyright law.

The court thus sustained an opinion of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, which had held that under the Supreme Court's decisions in two copyright cases involving cable television—Fortnightly, in 1968, and Telepromoter Corp., in 1974—the restaurant was not required to pay copyright fees.

The Aiken case was brought by the owners of copyright on two songs, The More I See You and Me and My Shadow, which were played on WJFF-FM Pittsburgh, to which the Aiken radio was tuned. The station is a licensee of the American Society of Composers Authors and Publishers.

The decision can affect ASCAP and other music licensing organizations not only directly but indirectly as well, through its impact on Muzak as well as other wired music distributors. ASCAP estimates it receives about $250,000 annually from more than 5,000 businesses. And Muzak, which serves 73,000 customers with background music and pays ASCAP $2.1 million annually, has said that if businesses are permitted to pipe in music without paying royalties, it would be obliged to cut its fees to ASCAP to remain competitive.

However, the opinion may help to spur Congress to act on long-pending reform of the 1909 Copyright Act. The two dissenters, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William O. Douglas, said in a separate opinion written by the chief justice the Aiken restaurant was more than a 'passive beneficiary,' and called the majority's approach "simplistic." But beyond that, Chief Justice Burger complained that the court was forced to apply a law designed for "another era to a situation in which Congress has never affirmatively manifested its view concerning the competing policy considerations involved."

The issue presented, he added, "can only be resolved appropriately by the Congress.

AJC gripe against CBS to get council hearing

'Unresolved' issues to be aired July 9; news watchdog also sets independent review of its activities

The National News Council last week scheduled a public hearing for July 9 over the complaint by the American Jewish Congress against CBS News and a 60 Minutes segment dealing with the condition of Syrian Jews. The hearing will take place at the council's headquarters, at One Lincoln Plaza, New York.

The council scheduled the hearing on "Israel's Toughest Enemy," first broadcast February 16 and re-aired June 8, to allow both parties to present information on two issues the council saw as unresolved—the present treatment of Jews in Syria by that country's government, and the means by which the border village of Quneitra was destroyed. Sharp disagreement with 60 Minutes' view of those two issues formed the basis of the AJC complaint.

In other actions, the council found an unwarranted two other broadcast-related complaints and announced the appointment of a six-member panel to conduct an independent evaluation of the council's two years of operation.

The council dismissed complaints by

The evaluation is being sponsored by two of the foundations underwriting the council. The panel conducting the evaluation will consist of Dean Burch, former FCC chairman, now a Washington attorney; Judge George Edwards, U.S. Court of Appeals, Cincinnati; Pauline Frederick, public broadcasting press critic and former NBC News correspondent; Loyd Morissett, president, John and Mary R. Music

How Sweet It Is (To Be Loved By You) – James Taylor (Warner Brothers) – Pop radio is beginning to sound like an R&B renaissance: Tony Orlando & Dawn and the Doobie Brothers have just scored repeat hits with, respectively, He Don’t Love You (Like I Love You) and Take Me in Your Arms (Rock Me); and now James Taylor, who was on the charts last year with Carly Simon’s remake of Mockingbird, has rejoined the bandwagon. How Sweet It Is was a top 10 hit in 1964 for Marvin Gaye. The husband and wife Taylor-Simon combination is again featured on some vocal trade-offs, with the general result a sort of smoothed-out soul that should find a spot on many summer playlists. It has been added by KIMN(AM) Denver, KQV(AM) Pittsburgh and WLEE(AM) Richmond, Va.

Could It Be Magic – Barry Manilow (Arista) – Popular music has often turned to the device of adding lyrics to classical themes, a practice that has led to such standards as A Stranger in Paradise and, more recently, A Lover’s Concerto, Song of Joy and A Whiter Shade of Pale. Barry Manilow’s third charted single is based upon Chopin’s Prelude in C Minor, the combination of lyric and melody, while thoroughly pop, retains a respect for the original. Both Mandy and It’s A Miracle, his earlier hits, found wide acceptance at pop and MOR stations, and Could It be Magic seems likely to do the same. It has been added by WHYY(AM) Montgomery, Ala., in its first week.

Blue Sky – Joan Baez(A&M) – It’s no secret that financial difficulties had a lot to do with the recording of Joan Baez’s latest—and by far most commercial—album. Sales of the rest of her catalogue have been poor of late, but now are likely to rebound with the appeal of her familiar soprano applied to a relatively sure-fire group of songs. This single, her first to generate much response since The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down, is a remake of a Richard Bens composition recorded by the Allman Brothers Band. Blue Sky combines country and rock in a light, up-tempo way, and should be familiar enough from the original to boost airplay. It has been added by KIMN(AM) Denver.

At 17 – Janis Ian (Columbia) – Janis Ian would like as little mention made as possible of her startling mid-sixties hit, Society’s Child, released when she was still a teenager. After disappearing from pop radio for almost a decade, she now has begun to achieve a new success with two albums for Columbia. Her music is still uncompromising—and generally un-danceable—but this single may demonstrate that sensitive lyrics and an emotive voice still have an impact. At 17 is a personal statement on the realities of growing up, and has already found responsive listeners, at WORC(AM) Worcester, Mass.
These are the top songs in air-play popularity in two categories on U.S. radio, as reported to Broadcasting by a nationwide sample of stations. Each song has been "weighted" in terms of The Pulse Inc. audience ratings for the reporting station on which it is played and for the part of the day in which it appears. A[ ] indicates an upward movement of 10 or more chart positions over the previous Player List week.
Tracking the 'playlist'

America maintains first slot on pop chart; Soul City Symphony makes the biggest gain; country's first-place spot is Tanya Tucker's America's Sister Golden Hair again holds down the top spot on the pop "Playlist," but the week's biggest gain is made by Van McCoy and the Soul City Symphony with The Hustle, a bona fide dance-craze hit that returns Avco Records to a prominence it has missed for most of the past year.

Two country-tinged hits, Michael Murphey's Wildfire and Linda Ronstadt's When I Will Be Loved, continue to gain at three and four. The Captain and Tennille also are building, with MOR and pop stations increasing play on Love Will Keep Us Together, now at five.

Jessi Colter's I'm Not Liza, which may have had some trouble convincing pop programmers because of its quiet, downtempo beginning, has now convinced almost everyone, and moves strongly to 16. Alice Cooper breaks into the top 20 with Only Women.

Enough "Playlist" correspondents are also playing the album cut, Captain Fantastic, from Elton John's latest release, to bring that cut onto the chart at 43. Gladys Knight's medley of The Way We Were and Try to Remember appears to be her strongest release of the year, now at 39. The chart's strongest debut this week is made by the Bee Gee's Jive Talkin', something of a departure from their familiar style and also something of a comeback, now at 40. Also new to the list are Tony Camillo's Bazuka with Dynamite, a disco favorite, and Gwen McCrae's Rockin' Chair, a past number one record on many R&B charts, now crossing pop.

Tanya Tucker has made her MCA debut a spectacular one, with Lizzie and the Rainman reaching the first position on the country "Playlist" and edging out heavily played singles by Don Williams and Merle Haggard. Johnny Rodriguez, another consistent chart performer, bids to regain some of the spotlight he has lost to Freddy Fender in recent months, with Just Get Up and Close the Door, now at six. Dave Dudley's Fireball Rolled A Seven makes another strong gain in its second week, moving to seven. Several chart stalwarts return this week, with singles that are likely to be top-10 items; among their number are Tom T. Hall's Deal, Charlie Rich's Every Time I Touch You, Dolly Parton's The Seeker, and the ever-present Olivia Newton-John with Please Mr. Please.

New formula OK'd for microwave rates

It factors in the mileage and people in areas served

Three years ago American Television Relay Inc., a microwave common carrier, took a novel approach in proposing rates for bringing television signals long distances to cable television systems. The rates would be based not only on distance but also on population in the areas to be served, with the aim being to attract customers in small communities.

The chief of the FCC's Common Carrier Bureau, in a recommended decision has now held that, with two exceptions, the revised rate structure is reasonable and lawful.

ATR, a subsidiary of Western Telecommunications Inc., relays the signals of four Los Angeles independent television stations to some 20 cable television systems in California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Under the revised rates, the level of ATR charges into cable systems in larger communities would be raised, and the net effect would be to increase ATR's monthly revenues 27%.

The structure involves two geographic zones and nine population categories—in all, 18 different monthly rates for the four television channels. The monthly rates ranged from $1,050 for a system in a community of fewer than 3,500 in Zone 1, cooler to Los Angeles than Zone II, to $9,870 for a system in a city of more than 350,000 in Zone II.

Common Carrier Bureau Chief Walter Hinchman said the rate structure creates the potential for more efficient use of resources and "provides the social benefit of allowing transmission of Los Angeles service into small towns regardless of size."

Comsat, IBM to look for domsat partner

FCC told that firms will accept one of proposals made last winter

Comsat General and IBM have advised the FCC that they will go along with the commission's recommendation on the corporate structure of the CML Satellite Corp., and will obtain an additional "partner or partners" who will be at least 10% owners.

The FCC last winter had ruled that the two giant firms—Comsat and IBM—could not alone establish a "vertically integrated monopoly" in the domestic satellite communication field (broadcasting, Jan. 27). At that time, they had proposed that IBM own 55% and Comsat hold the remaining 45% of CML Satellite Corp.

The commission then offered the two firms three alternatives: to compete against each other in the domestic satellite field, allow IBM to rent transponders from Comsat's system or bring in a third corporate partner.

The two companies in a June 12 letter to the FCC noted that a "comprehensive proposal" outlining intercorporate relationships, business plans and system design for CML will be presented within 60 days.

"Preliminary negotiations" looking towards the selection of a third partner (or partners) has begun, but a spokesman for IBM and Comsat would not mention names.

(Docs. 19666-1-9) — ALJ Thomas John Conlin's initial decision proposing granting of application of William F. Wallace and Anne K. Wallace for CP for new FM became effective June 6. Judge grants new CP for 96.7 mhz, $70,000, HAAT 1,500 ft. P.O. address: 4344 Clubhouse Dr., Camarillo, Calif. 93010. Estimated construction and first-year operating cost $37,565; revenue $24,000. Format: adult contemporary. Principal: William and Anne Wallace also own and operate KQIQA (AM) Santa Paula.

Ehrig denied application of KTVO Inc. for CP to relocate trans. site, increase ant. height and power and relocate its main studio. Judge ruled that granting application would impair ability of KCBJ(TV) Columbia, Mo. and prospective UHF station in area to compete effectively. FCC granted temporary relief from ruling that required KTVO Inc. to originate more than 50% of local programming from main studio, pending final disposition. Application June 2 and June 10.

Review and decided:
- WUHF-TV Baltimore, renewal proceeding: UHF Broadcasting Co. (Doc. 20387) — Review Board denied application of UHF Broadcasting Co. for extension of time to construct WUHF-TV. Board also canceled WUHF-TV CP and denied call letters. Action June 5.

FCC decision

Complaint
- NBC and KATR-TV Phoenix — FCC denied application by Robert Bolan for review of Board of Broadcast Bureau's denial of his fairness doctrine complaint against National Broadcasting Company and KATR-TV. In his complaint Bolan claimed that KATR-TV reported opposition of one to five percenters on a proposal earlier that day by President Ford. Bolan stated that interview, prepared prior to President's address, was presented in format that led casual listener to believe that it was in response to address. Bolan said that NBC should have informed its listeners that interview had been prepared before speech was made. FCC held that complainant had not presented extrinsic evidence of news distortion sufficient to warrant further commission action. Action June 3.

Other actions
- Broadcast licensees are reminded that some fundamental changes were made in Communications Act by enactment of Federal Election Campaign Act Amendment of 1974. 1974 Act amends Section 315 of Communications Act by deleting Section 315 certification requirements imposed in Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971. 1974 Act amended Sections 315-1 and 315-2 of 1971 Act defining "legally qualified candidate" and "candidate for presidential nomination."
- WTTG(TV) and WTOV-TV Washington — FCC rejected petitions of Aligned Citizens United for Televisio Equality to deny renewal applications of Metromedia for WTTG and Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., for WTOV-TV. FCC said citizens allegations that stations had failed to devote sufficient news and public affairs programming to two adjacent Maryland counties, needed and interested in raised substantial and material question of fact to show that granting petitions would be prima facie inconsistent with public interest. Since there is outstanding petition by Cynthia Clark Mathews against 1972 renewals of several Washington stations, including WTTG and WTOV-TV, FCC said stations' renewal would remain deferred status pending action on that petition. Action June 10.
- WGPR-TV Detroit and WXON-TV Allen Park, Mich. — FCC denied request by WGPR Inc. for waiver of grant for fee for CP for Detroit. In separate action, FCC denied request of WXON-TV Inc. for waiver of filing fee for modification of CP for relocation of WIXON-TV to change station location to Detroit. #### Actions

- FCC initiated rulemaking proceeding on ownership reporting and disclosure by publicly-held corporations owning interests in broadcasting stations. Proposed rules are on Model Corporate Disclosure Regulations issued by Interagency Steering Committee on Uniform Corporate Reporting tailored to meet ownership information needs of FCC. Proposed rules would require filing of annual ownership and disclosure reports for companies with 500 or more stockholders. Comments may be filed by Aug. 11, reply comments by Aug. 26. Action June 11.

- FCC proposed rule change that would set 5% limit on institutional ownership of broadcast and cable television companies. Proposed amendment rules relating to multiple ownership of AM, FM and television stations and cross-ownership of cable systems. Six parties filed petitions requesting amendment of rules which now set 1% limit for shareholdings in broadcast or cable corporations that have more than 50 voting stockholders. Comments may be filed by Aug. 11 and reply comments by Aug. 26. Action June 11.

Stations would have transmitters of approximately 10 watts output on either of two frequencies just above or one frequency just below AM broadcast band (1600, 1612 and 330 kHz). Since many AM broadcast receivers have capability of tuning just pass band edges, owners vehicles now equipped with AM receivers could immediately utilize this service when it becomes available. Roy Steinfort: AP's new man on broadcast

Roy Steinfort, the new head of the Associated Press's broadcast services, once handled sports publicity at the University of Kentucky when the resident football and basketball geniuses were Bear Bryant and Adolph Rupp. "They were two of the most competitive men in the history of the world," he recalls. "Rupp once wouldn't let his team accept a second-place award because he didn't recognize second place. Well, some of their spirit rubbed off on me.'"

He invokes another sports figure, D.C. (Peahead) Walker, a former Southern football coach of some note, in explaining what he wants from the men and women of his department. "Peahead used to say he wanted his football players 'hostile, agile and mobile.' That's what we want, too: Hostile in the sense that they're high- ly competitive, agile in their thinking and by mobile meaning aggressive go-get- ters."

Mr. Steinfort uses the sports idiom frequently—and naturally. Indeed, it was sports that got him started in the news business. Injured playing high school football in his native Covington, Ky., he turned to covering games for the local paper. That led in time to a job with the Cincinnati Enquirer, for which he also worked summers during his student days at the University of Kentucky. After that, there was little doubt about what tack his career would take.

There were a couple of diversions, however. World War II interrupted his schooling while he served almost three years as an enlisted man in the Marines in the Pacific, including the bloody battle of Iwo Jima. Out of the Marines in January 1946, he received his bachelor of arts a few months later from Kentucky, where he had majored in history and English, and then went to work for the Louisville Courier-Journal.

How he went to work for the Courier-Journal involved a good deal more enterprise than simply applying for the job. The Kentucky basketball team was playing in the National Invitational Tournament in New York, and the paper's sports editor offered him 15 cents an inch for coverage—if he got to New York. He did, hitchhiking, and Kentucky went on to win the tournament in double overtime. His coverage obviously was impressive because the managing editor telephoned and offered him a job—but, again, he had to get there on his own.

He did that, too, and covered Kentucky football and basketball, and sports generally around Lexington, until 1948 when Bear Bryant lured him back into publicity for the university's athletic department, where he had worked as a student. After that tour he returned to the paper as a reporter on the city side.

Roy Steinfort first joined the AP in 1949 in New Orleans. He worked there for four years covering a wide assortment of news, from Sugar Bowl football to the Kefauver crime hearings and the Louisiana legislature during the governorship of Earl Long. Then, in 1953, his AP career was interrupted by sheeres chance.

A New Orleans colleague, Keith Fuller, who is now an AP vice president and deputy general manager, invited him to go along on a ride to Aberdeen, Miss., pop. 5,240, to look at a weekly newspaper that Mr. Fuller was thinking of buying. He went. Mr. Fuller didn't buy, but Mr. Steinfort did. "I gave the guy a hot check for $500 and bought it," he recalls. Almost as fast, he had to learn to run the linotype "and everything else."

He also learned quickly another fact of small-town newspaper life: that, in his words, "all you've got to sell in a weekly newspaper is controversy, because the people already know all the news." So the new publisher of the Aberdeen Examiner went looking for controversy, in politics and elsewhere, and found it. Between then and 1961, when he sold it, the Examiner was selected three times as the best weekly newspaper in Mississippi.

Along with the profits in its pockets and the more varied perspectives that being a publisher had given him, Mr. Steinfort left Aberdeen with an enthusiasm for aviation that has not deserted him. During his years with the Examiner, he and three friends, two of whom were pilots, bought a plane, and the two pilots taught the two nonpilots how to fly. Flying remains his principal hobby, currently exercised whenever time permits in his own single-engine Piper Comanche.

When he sold the Aberdeen paper, Mr. Steinfort remembered Oliver Gramling, now retired but at that time the almost legendary head of AP's broadcast services, and gave him a call. "Gram told me to come to work," he says, and thus he started in 1961 as an AP regional membership executive, traveling to stations in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey and Connecticut. In 1964 he was moved to New York headquarters to work with group broadcasters, and two years later he was made deputy to Robert Eunson, who had been named head of the broadcast division the year before. Mr. Steinfort succeeded to the top post upon Mr. Eunson's death last month following a long illness (Broadcasting, May 26).

Mr. Steinfort's department currently serves more than 3,500 radio and TV stations throughout the country, and he has figured prominently in its reaching that total. As deputy director he was in charge of the sales force, among other things, and "he was himself a busy person calling on stations for years. He is able to say with some justification that "I think I understand broadcasters," because he has dealt with them and listened to them state their wants and needs in visits to "250-w daytime stations and major groups and everything in between, in all 50 states."

For the immediate future Mr. Steinfort wants to push the growth of AP Radio, which commenced operations last October and currently serves almost 300 stations; to expand the regional report as much as possible, in the belief that this is one of the basic strengths of the department, and, of course, to keep the competitive juices flowing throughout the department. For his own part, he has been traveling much of the time since he was moved up to number one, and he expects he'll continue to do so. It's a good way, he figures, to keep his hand in, shake up the troops if that's needed and by all means to "avoid getting the syndrome that the world ends at the Hudson River."
Editorials

Co-op in co-op

Radio and television stations stand to gain materially from a new co-op advertising verification system just approved by the Association of National Advertisers, the Radio Advertising Bureau and the Television Bureau of Advertising.

What the system does is provide co-op advertisers with assurance that they are not being bilked by their retailers, with or without the connivance of stations. That should encourage many manufacturers, which had written broadcast co-op out of their plans as unmanageable, to restore it, adding countless dollars to the radio-TV potential. In addition, by taking away the advantage that teashots gave newspapers as proof of performance, it puts broadcast media on an equal footing with print in the competition for co-op money.

The system, described elsewhere in this issue, seems both simple and sensible. It is largely the work of Robert D. Wilcox of Armstrong Cork, who is chairman of the ANA co-op advertising committee and who has agonized over the broadcast verification problem for years. Mr. Wilcox credits a Pennsylvania neighbor, Charles C. Smith of WPDC-AM-FM Elizabethtown, with furnishing special assistance, and of course he had the support of RAB and TVB officials in getting their approval of the plan. If its performance even approaches its promise, all who had a hand in it deserve thanks.

Collision course

The beginning of a new contest between the Congress and the Presidency for control of the regulatory agencies can now be seen in Washington.

For some time President Ford has been decrying the “over-regulation” of U.S. business and industry. He drew applause last April when he told the delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters: “You know at first hand how government regulations can stifle economic growth and creativity” (BROADCASTING, April 14). Last week he got a standing ovation at a convention of the National Federation of Independent Business where he predicted to cut federal red tape.

As a story elsewhere in this issue reports, Mr. Ford’s proposed conference of members of the regulatory agencies—at which a start on de-regulation is supposed to be made—is taking shape. The idea of assembling the affected bureaucrats to decide how to reduce their own power has never seemed promising to us, but perhaps it can serve the purpose of alerting the public and the Congress to Mr. Ford’s campaign. And his creation last week of a new commission on federal paperwork is another indication that he attaches some importance to the reduction of the government’s oppressive presence.

At the same time, however, something in the way of a counter program has been launched by Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) of the House Communications Subcommittee. A detailed understanding of the probable effects of the FCC reorganization bill he introduced last week awaits more careful study, but a first reading suggests expanded, rather than contracted, powers.

Mr. Macdonald would reduce the number of FCC members from seven to five, extend their terms to 10 years, make the chairmanship appointment subject to the confirmation of the Senate and effective for the balance of the FCC term of the appointee—all calculated to reduce presidential influence. Those devices, coupled with procedural changes to authorize the FCC to deal directly with Congress instead of through the White House or its Office of Management and Budget, as the law now requires, would firmly establish the agency as the ward of the Communications Subcommittees of the House and Senate.

Perhaps there is something to be said for isolating the FCC from the White House; the example of the Nixon tenure comes to mind. More confidence could be placed in the rearrangement, however, if Mr. Macdonald were not also advocating an enlargement of the FCC bureaucracy. Commissioners by law would be given bigger personal staffs. The agency’s budget would be substantially increased. The intercession of outside parties in FCC proceedings would be subsidized by government funds. It is the grand design for more rather than less regulation.

Here the fundamental conflict between philosophies comes to light. Broadcasters can feel totally comfortable siding with Mr. Ford. No need whatever has been proved for more regulation. The current state of the economy is its own best demonstration of the need for less.

Make work

The FCC has at last accorded a decent, if modest, burial to its study of conglomerates. It would have been to the advantage of U.S. taxpayers and 37 broadcast licensees if the interment had been conducted earlier—at, say, the crib.

It was back in early 1969 that the study was begun, largely at the urging of Nicholas Johnson and Kenneth Cox who, while members of the FCC, never hesitated to spend any amount of government money to pursue the devil they believed to be in charge at any broadcast company with more employees than its client and immediate family. Four years of FCC staff time went into the work. There is no way to count the money that was spent by the licensees who were investigated, although it was estimated at one point it would cost as much as $100,000 for each to answer one questionnaire that the FCC staff devised.

It has been nearly three years since the staff completed its report which proved there had been no reason to conduct the study in the first place. At the final disposition, made by unanimous vote, there was no mourning bench.

Good News from Goodwill.

Many of Kalamazoo's handicapped have had their lives changed for the better through the work of Goodwill Industries. Goodwill trained them in their workshop and placed them in paying jobs.

To do this, the Goodwill organization needed public support. So the local Fetzer radio station publicized their needs and produced worthwhile results. A recent letter from Goodwill said, "Our programs have been expanded, our services increased and many more people have given of their time and talent to help the handicapped help themselves."

Helping a good neighbor is all part of the Fetzer tradition of total community involvement.
