Pioneer and still the Leader

WGAL-TV was the first television station in this historic area. Today, after more than twenty-five years, it is still first in that it delivers more audience than all other stations in the Lancaster-Harrisburg-York-Lebanon market combined. The result of this impact is increased sales results for advertisers.

Chance of action

Word of breakthrough on license-renewal legislation hearings in House went out last week. Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) approached subcommittee's ranking Republican, Lou Frey (R-Fla.), who sponsors principal renewal bill in House, on House floor last week and laid groundwork for start-up of hearings—maybe in March, although no date was agreed on. Mr. Macdonald's chief concern is over legal and paperwork burden small broadcasters, both radio and TV, must shoulder every three years to have licenses renewed. He embraces spirit of Frey bill and reportedly is talking about lengthening license term from three years to five for small radio and TV operations, leaving it at three for big stations. Mr. Macdonald makes clear that one thing broadcasters won't get is license in perpetuity.

Troublesome towers

Hassle between New York TV stations and Port Authority of New York and New Jersey over moving TV antennas to latter's World Trade Center goes on—and on and on. They're still negotiating on implementation of 1967 agreement whereby antennas would be moved there from Empire State Building. One sticking point reportedly is that agreement lacks guarantee for Port Authority beyond 1984—which is now nearly nine years nearer than when agreement was made. New antennas have been built, but broadcasters who originally expected to be on Trade Center tower in early 1970's now figure best they can hope for is to get there by spring of 1978. Interference to reception from Trade Center meanwhile has not abated.

Service call

Protest against Public Broadcasting Service's decision against gavel-to-gavel coverage of forthcoming political conventions ("Closed Circuit," Jan. 26) has been lodged with Senate Commerce Committee by J. Leonard Reinsch, chairman of Cox Cable Communications and retired president of Cox Broadcasting. Mr. Reinsch, who was broadcast adviser and later over-all manager of Democratic conventions from 1944 through 1968, has written Commerce Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and others to note that commercial networks tap their pool only for major events and emphasize specialized coverage. PBS, in his view, should provide full-text coverage—taken from pool at little expense—"as a true public broadcast television system."

Commerce Committee staffers say they know of little Senate can do in response to Mr. Reinsch's complaint, though PBS has been asked for reaction.

Equal to the end

FCC is considering rulemaking intended to prevent broadcasters from giving favored candidates advantages in waning days of political campaign. Rule, if adopted, would require any broadcaster who gives time to candidate within 72 hours of election to notify all rival candidates promptly so they could exercise equal-time right. Proposed rulemaking grows out of complaint to FCC about broadcaster who made 11th-hour gift of time to one candidate.

Jockeying

Electoral-year political talk is permeating FCC, with speculation centering on what could happen whichever way presidential election goes. Chairman Richard Wiley, Republican, wants to complete his term which winds up June 30, 1977, six months after new President assumes office. And then he looks to law practice, in native Chicago, Washington or possibly both. Assumption is that no President would replace incumbent when only half-year remains of seven-year term. If there's a Democratic victory, President could name new chairman from incumbent membership or nominate non-Republican successor to Mr. Wiley since balance of power (four to three) would shift to Democrats. Commissioner Ben L. Hooks, who aspires to bigger things, presumably wouldn't be averse to appointment as first black FCC chairman, step toward still bigger things.

Accommodation?

Private interparliamentary conference of members of U.S. Congress and Canadian Parliament in Key Biscayne, Fla., Jan. 29- Feb. 2, left some Americans with feeling Canadians may be softening on controversy over policy of requiring cable systems to delete commercials from American programs they import. If there's Democratic victory, President could name new chairman from incumbent membership or nominate non-Republican successor to Mr. Wiley since balance of power (four to three) would shift to Democrats. Commissioner Ben L. Hooks, who aspires to bigger things, presumably wouldn't be averse to appointment as first black FCC chairman, step toward still bigger things.

One go, all go

FCC and private attorneys say petition to disqualify Pierson, Ball & Dow as counsel for RKO General in comparative-renewal hearing involving RKO's WNAC-TV, Boston, could have explosive impact on entire communications bar if it were granted. Community Broadcasting of Boston, one of competing applicants, requested disqualification because former FCC Chairman Dean Burch is now member of firm and had participated in votes on Boston case while with commission. Fact that he is not on case with firm is irrelevant, according to Community. If that test were held to be valid, firms would have to give up cases on which any member or associate had worked while commission member or staffer—and most Washington law firms employ one or more ex-FCC members or staffers.

Jam their signals north of border.

Canadians reportedly talked of possible compromise, and although specific proposals did not impress Americans, fact that compromise was discussed was taken as encouraging sign. Representatives of U.S. border stations last week were said to be completing complicated task of putting together compromise plan of their own for submission to Canadian and U.S. governmental meeting later this month.

Aftermath

There was concern among broadcasters last week that largely pro-cable report issued by House Communications Subcommittee staff (Broadcasting, Feb. 2) reflected views of subcommittee chairman, Torbert Macdonald. Not so, said Mr. Macdonald emphatically. On cable legislation his mind is "a blank page." He ordered study but took no hand in its preparation and in fact hadn't finished reading it. Broadcasters will get fair shake in hearing, he insisted.

Death wish?

House Speaker Carl Albert's sudden assertion of authority over proposed radio and TV coverage of House floor proceedings (page 36) is perceived on Capitol Hill as move that might radically change or even kill resolution voted out of Rules subcommittee. There is suspicion that Mr. Albert has it in for networks, all mention of which Mr. Albert wants removed from resolution. Mr. Albert may want other source for broadcast coverage. There's also talk that request is just another tactic to kill measure, though Albert aides say otherwise.
Revlon □ James E. Duffy, president of ABC-TV Network (I), and Paul R. Woolard, president of Revlon U.S.A., New York, and senior executive vice president of Revlon Inc., discuss contract totaling more than $1 million for Revlon purchase into five award specials on ABC-TV this year. Via Grey Advertising, New York, Revlon bought into American Music Awards last month; Academy Awards, March 29; Second Annual Comedy Awards, April 10; The Tony Awards, April 18; and The Emmy Awards, May 17.

RCA Consumer Electronics □ Awarded $10 million account of RCA color receivers is Leo Burnett Co., Chicago. RCA Consumer Electronics, Indianapolis, picked Burnett from field said to include Ogilvy & Mather and Young & Rubicam. In change-over, RCA is terminating 18-year association with J. Walter Thompson Co., New York, on its receiver business. Approximately $8 million of account has been in broadcast. JWT lost black-and-white TV receiver assignment last year to N.W. Ayer ABH International, New York, but still retains RCA corporate advertising and Banquet Foods, wholly owned RCA subsidiary.

Monsieur Henri □ Yago Sangria is subject of five-week campaign by Monsieur Henri, Purchase, N.Y., with new creative theme. April start date in 25 to 30 markets will use fringe TV 30's with selective radio backing. Adults, 18 to 34, are target. Ogilvy & Mather, New York, is agency.

Yo Hoo’s agency, Weiss & Geller, New York, is spending reported $1 million. Twenty TV markets, including New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Atlanta, are involved (product is distributed only in East and Southeast), in 30-second spot aimed at young mothers and children. Supplementary spot-radio campaign will be geared to teen-agers, with contemporary-music stations as highest priority.

Ship’n Shore □ Four-week campaign for women’s blouses by Ship’n Shore, Aston, Pa., begins March 15 in 19 major markets. TV 30’s in daytime and fringe are targeted to women, 25 to 54. ACR, New York, is agency.

Union Oil □ Union 76 unleaded gasoline will be accentuated in spot-TV and radio campaign to begin in early March and continue for eight weeks in about 20 markets in West. Leo Burnett, Chicago, is aiming to carry time periods reaching men, 18 to 49.

Tetley □ Month-long campaign for Tetley tea begins March 1 in substantial number of markets. Extensive TV campaign is backed by limited radio spots. Daytime, fringe 30’s are geared to women, 25 to 64. Hicks & Griesz, New York, is agency.

Bachman Foods □ Various food products will be highlighted in spot-radio campaign to begin in mid-March for two weeks in 20 markets in Northeast, including New York, Boston, Pittsburgh and Providence, R.I. Lewis & Gilman, Philadelphia, is aiming for women, 18 to 49 and 25 to 49.

Bissell □ Carpet-sweeper company begins four-week spot-TV campaign in 18 markets on Feb. 16. Markets include New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Atlanta, Boston, Buffalo, N.Y., Cincinnati, Cleveland and Miami. Thirty-second animated spot points to convenience of simple, nonelectric appliance. Carpet sweepers, according to sources at Bissell’s agency, Norman, Navon, Moore & Biard, Grand Rapids, Mich., are coming back into vogue because of ballooning retail price of portable stick vacuums in recent years (up to $50, as opposed to $15 for carpet sweepers). Demographic target is women, 18 to 49. Bissell is based in Grand Rapids.

Frito-Lay □ Cheetos (cheese-flavored snack) will be advertised via spot TV in four-week campaign to begin this month in 68 markets. Young & Rubicam, New York, is aiming to reach women, 25 to 54.

Foley's looks to TV for that certain 'look'

Even by Texas standards, a TV buy of 4,000 GRPs a week, an average of 360 30-second spots weekly for a five-week period preceding Christmas, has a lot of clout.

That was the size of the time buy Foley's department store, a division of Federated, made in the Houston market between Nov. 16 and Dec. 22, 1975, on one UHF and three VHF stations in the Gulf Coast city.

Foley's has had a long-time love affair with televisions. We claim the second longest continuous sponsorship of a single program—the 10 p.m. news on KPRC-TV, the NBC affiliate in Houston. We've been doing it since 1951.

1975 was different, however, and not just because of the sheer size of the buy.

For the first time ever, Foley's was able to achieve something on TV we'd always taken for granted in our newspaper advertising. The missing link? A look. An identity. Instant recognition that Foley's and stores everywhere rely upon—when they buy newspaper space. But not on TV.

Even though you may not have a Saks Fifth Avenue in your city, or a Bloomingdale's or a Neiman Marcus, you'd probably recognize one of their print ads on sight.

But how about one of their TV spots?

Any store's TV spots?

That was the challenge Foley's threw at itself and its agency, Goodwin, Dannenbaum, Littman & Wingfield, a local Houston shop we think is the hottest agency in the country. We've been together for 11 years. They know Foley's, and Foley's knows them. Makes for instant communication.

When Christmas 1975 was over, Foley's knew it had achieved instant recognition from its TV spots, just as it had always come to expect from its newspaper ads. However, it wasn't the simplest thing we'd ever done.

Christmas started for Foley's in early May, when we started making time buys for the spots we'd already planned for November and December.

We met with our key merchants beginning on June 25 and held buyer's meetings through the first week of July. Production meetings began in earnest in early August.

On Aug. 14, Foley's agency people met with Jack Harris and his talented crew at KPRC-TV to outline our "impossible production dream" and book manpower and facilities.

Talent was booked during the first week of August, and work was started on new theme music with a music production house at the same time. We scouted film locations that would lend themselves to multiple looks and sites.

We employed 22 different key models, a half-dozen extras, two dogs and even a few ducks for our 51 film spots.

Two agency producers directed KPRC-TV's four-man film crew, filming four spots each day, often shooting two spots simultaneously.

In total, they had 14 shooting days and seven editing days. They shot 17,000 feet of film that was all "good"—nothing had to be reshot, nothing was ruined in the lab.

The weather held during 11 of the 14 days involved with exterior filming. And it was only on the last day that the rains began.

Fortunately, nothing "funny" happened, perhaps because it was all too serious to allow for relaxation. We did have a dog fight between a small Lhasa and an Afghan co-star during one of our fashion spots. And, during one of the best takes, the Afghan lifted his leg. Although all of our models were fitted at Foley's, the clothes that came for one of the girls was two sizes too large. We put her together with gaffer's tape. When we did a spot that called for a Ping-Pong game, neither of our models could play. (We faked it.) But everyone was able to dance the "Hustle"—after two hours of rehearsal.

Our New York star, who became the voice of all Foley's commercials, arrived one Sunday night, spent all Monday morning at the store being fitted, and all Monday afternoon recording voice-overs for the film spots. All day Tuesday through Thursday she was doing on-camera spots, and on Friday, she did some more voice-overs. In the five day period before her plane left for New York, she had done 50 voice-overs and 28 on-camera spots (for which we designed two studio sets).

For the KPRC-TV VTR spots, Foley's had a floor crew of four plus audio, VTR and technical personnel plus a great station director. Following the week with our star, we completed her spots, inserting product shots and super art. The week after that, film spots were transferred and completed.

The really remarkable thing is that only one of the 78 spots had to be corrected after completion.

Why the time compression? All the speed? It's the only way we know for a department store to make spots that are competitive with everything else that's on TV—and still look just as professional.

Great planning on the part of Foley's in-store broadcast advertising staff plus unbelievable coordination with the agency and KPRC-TV allowed us to do all the things we always do when we produce newspaper. Have control over what we look like, what we say, how we say it. And, developing a Foley sound-track for TV got us recognition that equaled anything we have ever done in print.

Was it worth the effort? We know it was. Not just because of the TV blitz, but because we mixed our media, using TV and radio and direct mail and newspaper as professionally as any national advertiser could do it. It paid off in the biggest Christmas season in Foley's history.

And it made us wonder. Why do great stores that have built great reputations by developing a "look" for their newspaper ads take anything that comes along from a resource for TV just because it's cheaper than producing their own commercials?

That isn't how the great stores of America became great.

They became great because they knew how to wear and they knew how they wanted to look to their customers.

Most stores have lost that edge with TV, but at Foley's we know they don't have to.

Foley's found a look, a sound, a voice, the in-store and agency talent—and KPRC-TV, a station that was willing to tie up its facilities for three weeks to let us prove our point.

And although every week isn't Christmas, we're going to find a way to make it "Christmas" in the TV studio every time Foley's makes a spot.

The hype

EDITOR: In the editorial entitled "The needle" in your issue of Jan. 19, your writer leaves the impression that nothing is wrong with "hypoing." Indeed, he asks "What's wrong with a contest that is honestly presented?"

The answer, of course, is "Nothing, as long as no one is deceived into thinking that the audience levels produced by the contest are typical of some time period longer than the period of the contest." In the same way, there is nothing wrong with special programming. And there is no objection to anyone including lean meat in a package of bacon. But there is an objection to putting all-lean meat in front of the cellophane window to make people think that the whole package consists of lean meat.

Fortunately, there is a way to get at the problem—merely lengthen the periods being measured (i.e., the sweep periods). This is akin to increasing the size of the cellophane window in the package of bacon. We will perhaps still be deceived about the part of the package we can see, but since that part would be so much smaller than it is now, the effectiveness of the deception would be much less. That is why, for example, the eight-week sweep proposal is appealing. It tends to eliminate effective deception no matter how it is now caused—programming or promotion—and it does it without involving anyone in government having to define the problem, to create regulations, or to police the situation.

It seems to us that continued opposition to eight-week sweeps or other suggested methods of enlarging the cellophane window, allows deception to flourish, and, therefore, invites the very regulation none of us wants.—D. Thomas Miller, president, CBS Television Stations, New York.

No thank you, Mr. President

EDITOR: I completely agree with your lead editorial of Jan. 20. However, an interesting public relations phenomenon occurs. A substantial portion of the American people feel, I guess in part because of tradition, that the President has an innate right to command universal attention of every broadcasting station in the country.

On several occasions in the last few years, we have deliberately delayed (or not cleared at all) certain presidential news conferences. We did so on two grounds: In some instances we felt the subject discussed was not that earth-shaking that it should be forced upon the people, as would largely be the case if every network affiliate cleared live. In other instances, we felt that the people should be given a choice and thus we delayed the presidential broadcast to a different hour when, perhaps, other people might be able to see it who had not had a chance earlier.

Public reaction to our decisions in these events was largely negative. Only a few people wrote in to commend us for these decisions, but fortunately they were the thoughtful ones and thus inspired us to continue making the very type of evaluation that your editorial calls for. The negative comments we received, though far more numerous, were basically of the abusive, nonthinking type.

In any case, I thought that it might be of interest to you that the suggestion that you have advanced relative to the television networks was one that at least some affiliates would welcome and in fact, so far as affiliate clearance is concerned, has already been tested and found acceptable.—William L. Putnam, president, WWLP(TV) Springfield, Mass.

Nothing new

EDITOR: Your editorial, "Nuttier than fruitcake," (Jan. 26) amused me no end.

Foote, Cone & Belding is only doing what comes naturally to any advertising agency: copying an old campaign proclaimed by J. Walter Thompson for client Readers' Digest back in the early '60's.

At the time of the Digest campaign, I reminded them (both Thompson and Digest) of the apparent contradiction, to say nothing of the sniggers of media tyros all up and down Madison Avenue. (Naturally the pros took it with a grand sense of humor.)

I took it with the same good humor as I recall scoffing it to Digest for our ARB reports since they were competitive with the TV industry, and I must say, our competitive prices were, as one Digest person put it, "ordinarily high."

Once more, the folks in adland are getting a kick out of a silly campaign, but as the old PR pros put it, "The names seem to be spelled right."

There is a season

EDITOR: Talk about a third season (BROADCASTING, Jan. 26) is nonsense. What would have been our plight if, say, All in the Family had been canceled after poor ratings the first few shows? Would we have been exposed to Sanford and Son, Chico and the Man, Maude, Good Times, The Jeffersons, etc.? To whatever fortune, we have to recognize this.—Pamela J. O'Neal, WKY TV, Cleveland.

Libertarian

EDITOR: BROADCASTING is to be commended for its excellent treatment of "The First Amendment and the Fifth Estate" [Jan. 5]. I found your survey of broadcast journalism fascinating and important reading. I hope this issue will be read by every member of Congress.

Your report demonstrates the outstanding record of journalistic achievement and public service by America's radio and television industry. It illustrates the necessity of maintaining a fully free press unfettered by government regulation and secure from bureaucratic whimsy. It is hoped that, during this Bicentennial year, the Congress will enact legislation to eliminate the fairness doctrine, repeal Section 315, and remove other unreasonable restrictions on electronic press in our country.—Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.), U.S. Senate.

New England broadcasters get first crack at ’76 political advertising—and vice versa

Record spending levels are in prospect after Supreme Court lets bars down; contributions running at ‘startling’ pace; new rules making life difficult for both stations and candidates; ‘It’s going to be a tough year for everybody,’ says media manager

The start of a long hot political year was beginning to heat up last week in Boston, the hub of broadcast campaigning for the nation’s first presidential primaries.

Presidential candidates were rolling out the commercials and strategies with which they hoped to knock one another off in campaigning that will be duplicated and amplified in state and local races across the country as the year wears on.

All current indications suggest that 1976 political spending will reach record proportions—a not altogether welcome prospect for many broadcasters since they are mandated to sell political time at their lowest commercial rates. This means that when other business is good, as now, the more political time sold, the less the profit.

Reports on file with the Federal Election Commission indicate that fund raising by presidential candidates has already reached $25 million—a figure described as ‘startling’ by the highly respected Citizens Research Foundation of Princeton, N.J., which monitors political campaigning. It’s estimated that Democratic presidential candidates alone, whose spending through all the primaries and Democratic nominating convention four years ago totaled $33 million, have committed more than $10 million this year—before the first primary is held.

The current wave of political advertising in New England is by no means the first of 1976, but it has to be the heaviest yet because the primaries are the nation’s first: New Hampshire’s on Feb. 24 and Massachusetts’s on March 2. Earlier and generally smaller campaigns included one in Iowa in advance of that state’s caucuses a few weeks ago and drives last week in Oklahoma looking to Saturday’s caucus. Coming up is the Florida primary on March 9, for which TV and radio campaigns have already begun to roll.

Six Democratic candidates and Republican Ronald Reagan are the principal broadcast buyers in Massachusetts and New Hampshire thus far, with expenditures in Boston alone ranging up to $100,000 or more each. President Ford is also expected to rely heavily on the broadcast media but his backers had not actually bought time as of last Thursday.

Some of the candidates were depending primarily on Boston’s five TV stations to reach New Hampshire as well as Massachusetts voters, but some were supplementing these buys with campaigns on stations in additional markets such as Springfield, Worcester and New Bedford, Mass., Manchester, N.H., and Portland, Me. Radio was being used extensively, too. Representatives of Jimmy Carter, for instance, said his radio commercials were “on nearly every station in New Hampshire.”

The New England campaign was also previewing some of the dissatisfactions—among both candidates and broadcasters—that seem likely to recur as the political season progresses.

Among broadcasters there was an occasional complaint that political ads were pre-empting conventional sales that could have been made at higher rates. More frequently they expressed unhappiness and frustration at the complexities of the FCC’s political broadcasting guidelines.

Among representatives of some of the lesser-known candidates there were also complaints about inability to get time (or enough time) in the longer units, such as five-minute and two-minute spots, that they felt they needed to properly introduce their man.

There were also complaints that many stations had taken too long to make up their minds about how much time to set aside for political advertising.
Boston TV's saturated with candidate spots

All five commercial television stations in Boston are getting a good play from most of the candidates.

Thomas G. Maney, vice president and head of sales for WCVB-TV, said his station had commitments totaling $80,400 as of last Thursday (Feb. 4). President Ford hadn't yet bought, and some who had not yet been back to the stations in New Bedford, Mass., and two in Portland, Me., according to Ms. Carl. She says radio, in addition to blanketeting New Hampshire's stations, will probably be added in Massachusetts as the primary approaches.

Ron Nunn of Morgan Advertising Inc., Montgomery, Ala., the agency for Governor Wallace's drive, says the campaign is using "a well-rounded schedule" of 30-second, 10-second and two-minute spots on Boston TV stations in hopes that these will be supported by radio spots the last week before the Massachusetts primary (Governor Wallace is not entered in the New Hampshire primary.) Mr. Nunn said Wallace strategists also are planning tentatively to use a 30-minute program—about half devoted to narration about Mr. Wallace, the other half featuring the candidate himself—but that they're having trouble clearing 30 minutes in the Boston market. Accordingly, he said, they hope to schedule it on stations in New Bedford, Worcester and Springfield, Mass., and perhaps in Manhattan that are broadcasting radio spots via the Wallco radio TV campaign in Massachusetts, he said, is "less than $100,000."

For the past two weeks radio and TV spots have been running in Massachusetts and New Hampshire espousing the candidacy of Morris Udall. John Martilla & Associates of Boston has been retained to run the advertising campaign. Costs have been running about $14,000 a week ($3,000 on radio and $9,000 on television).

Marco Trivich, a freelance political consultant, has been working with Martilla in the production of the spots, while media placement is being handled by Harriet Yellin.

Approximately 60 radio stations are being used. Boston's three VH-F TV stations cover Massachusetts and a substantial part of New Hampshire, Mr. Trivich said, and have been the backbone of the TV effort. Thirty- and 60-second TV spots have been produced and are carried in prime time and in periods next to news programs.
The test. The fortunes of both ABC-TV and NBC-TV may be riding on how well the Winter Olympics do in the early February Nielsens: ABC, because its ratings momentum of the past three weeks could be damaged if its coverage of the Olympics doesn't catch fire with a mass audience; NBC, because its ratings have already dropped sharply in the ratings, it would probably be mainly at the expense of NBC, which might then end up mired in third place for the rest of the season. IABC and NBC are tied for second in the season-to-date, with CBS far out in front (see page 40). The early Nielsen returns for the Winter Olympics on Tuesday (Feb. 3), a strong performance on Wednesday (Feb. 4) and, if the New York and Los Angeles overnights are any indication, an equally strong performance on Thursday (Feb. 5). After looking at Wednesday's 23.2 national and 37 share (9-11 p.m., NYT), Marvin Mord, ABC-TV's vice president for research services, said, "Our momentum is still there—I don't think we'll be embarrassed on any night with our Olympics telecasts." (Starting with Feb. 3, ABC has committed itself to 12 straight nights of prime-time coverage of the Olympics.)
It's beginning to look a lot like Chicago

Coming soon: March 21 and NAB's annual convention; this one will be a bit different with radio and television mostly going their separate ways; Wiley, Harvey, Macdonald biggest speakers

The National Association of Broadcasters taped the names of more notables to the marquee for the Chicago convention last week, including those of House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.), Senator Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) and Representative Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.). They join FCC Chairman Richard Wiley, CBS newsman Mike Wallace and radio commentator Paul Harvey among dignitaries prominently placed in the program.

The basic program blocks for the annual convention, to be held March 21-24 at Chicago's McCormick Place, have been cemented in place. The result is a schedule that in all but three time periods segregates the radio from the TV conventioners. The Radio Advertising Bureau and the Television Bureau of Advertising have made formal arrangements to take part in some sessions and for their participation will be reimbursed by NAB, with RAB to receive $50,000 and TVB to receive $20,000.

The convention opens at 9 a.m. Monday with a joint radio and television general assembly. As in the past the Distinguished Service Award will be presented then and NAB President Vincent Wasilewski will speak. In comparison to previous years, however, his opening remarks will appear abbreviated and he will instead give longer talks later to separate radio and TV assemblies.

The only other time the two halves of the industry will be joined, aside from the Tuesday luncheon at which Mr. Wiley speaks, will be at 9 a.m. Wednesday morning, when joint workshops on themes such as political broadcasting and equal employment opportunity. Later in the morning, both groups will face an FCC panel headed by Chairman Wiley for questions and answers.

Radio's program begins mid-morning Monday with an address by Mr. Wasilewski followed by a session entitled "Audio Odyssey," a look at music, trends in sound technology and engineering and perhaps with a psychologist talking about how sound appeals to the radio audience. After that will follow six radio programing workshops, to be repeated Tuesday morning at 9 a.m. Three of them will explore different music formats, one will be about radio talk, one about radio news and another about automated programing.

Radio evangelist Garner Ted Armstrong will deliver the invocation for the Monday radio luncheon, after which Mr. Harvey will speak. After that, the radio conventioners have the afternoon off, while their television counterparts go back into more sessions. TV has Tuesday afternoon off.

On Tuesday the radio program begins with a panel of congressional aides and perhaps congressmen offering tips on how to deal properly with Congress. Congressman Macdonald will speak afterward. Following lunch, there will be a "million-dollar management consultant" panel during which sales, engineering and programing experts will dissect problems raised by specific radio managers and prescribe relief. Later will be six workshops on sales, promotion and co-op advertising, to be repeated Wednesday morning.

The television program calls for a similarly mixed diet of sales, programing and news tips, beginning Monday morning with a panel of prominent individuals from the TV film industry.

Representative Van Deerlin will speak
Monday morning, and there also will be a series of workshops for TV, looking at new developments in syndication, at electronic news gathering and its effect on union labor, and at financial management for managers with little or no financial background. These workshops will be repeated at 8 a.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Monday luncheon for the TV convention will be shared with those attending the concurrent NAB engineering conference. At the luncheon will be a presentation celebrating the 20th anniversary of the video-tape recorder. The main performer will be the VTR itself with perhaps some commentary by news personnel.

The Monday afternoon session for television will begin with an hour-long simulated TV talk show, featuring Mr. Wallace, moderating a discussion, “Pay TV: Will it Supplement or Supplant?” Participants selected so far include Everett H. Erick, senior vice president and general counsel, ABC; William Carlisle, NAB vice president for government relations, and former FCC chairman Frederick Ford, now with the Washington law firm of Pittman, Lovett, Ford & Hennessy.

Then Senator Hartke, a member of the Senate Communications Subcommittee, will speak, followed by a 15-minute debate titled “In the Box,” on a controversial topic such as family viewing, news bias, or pay cable de-regulation. There will be four or five of these “In the Box” features interspersed throughout the TV program.

The Tuesday television program calls for a three-part session on short-term television economics, long-term TV economics and local TV sales. Also on Tuesday will be a session on issues that concern TV at the Federal Trade Commission, perhaps with some FTC directors on hand for Q & A.

Justice joins cable attack on FCC's siphoning rules

Antitrust division says pay cable is unfairly restrained by controls that broadcasters call too liberal

The tide of government opposition to the FCC's regulation of cable television continued to rise last week, as the Justice Department's antitrust division entered the court fight over the commission's pay-cable rules on the side of the cable industry.

To the division, the rules limiting the right of pay cable entrepreneurs to carry movies and sports events are not only anti-competitive in effect but they also lack economic and legal support. Accordingly, it said in a 38-page brief filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, the rules should be vacated.

The division's brief makes opposition to the rules virtually unanimous. Not only have cable interests appealed the rules, on First Amendment as well as anti-competitive grounds, but broadcasters have too. The broadcasters contend the rules are not sufficiently restrictive to protect broadcasting.

The division's brief was filed a week after the staff of the House Communications Subcommittee filed its report proposing legislative action to wipe out the regulatory structure the commission has erected for cable television; the staff said the structure was unduly restrictive (Broadcasting, Feb. 2).

The spirit if not the substance of that report has been endorsed by the chief of the Justice Department's antitrust division, Thomas E. Kauper, in a speech to the antitrust section of the New York State Bar Association (see page 30). Meanwhile, the White House Domestic Council's regulatory reform group is proceeding with the task of drafting an administration bill on cable television, one that would be expected to reflect the administration's call for deregulation.

Jonathan Rose, a deputy assistant attorney general in the antitrust division—and a member of the regulatory reform group—said in a press briefing that the administration might decide not to include any reference to pay cable in the proposed bill. "If the court were to throw out the rules, there would be no need for legislation," he said.

The FCC contends its pay-cable rules are needed to guard against the siphoning of programs now available to viewers of conventional television at no charge. Movies that will be shown on pay cable are limited as to their age.

Those that are less than three years old

Pay cable status report. Industry estimates indicate that pay cable subscribers passed the 500,000 mark in January, with over 300,000 of that number linked to Time Inc.'s Home Box Office Inc. The business became a coast-to-coast proposition on Dec. 11, 1975, when the satellite earth station for Teleprompter's Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., systems became operational. As of last week HBO service was reaching 25 cable systems in 14 states via 19 earth stations: in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Oregon and Washington. Iowa is scheduled to join the list with a Des Moines connection on Feb. 19. Some 30 other earth station applications are in various stages of processing at the FCC.

HBO serves five other states by microwave networks: New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Massachusetts and Vermont.

are available for pay cable, while those more than three years old but less than 10 are available only if they are under contract to conventional television. Five or more than 10 years old may be shown for pay if they have not been seen on conventional television in the preceding three years. "Specific" sports events, such as the World Series, are denied pay cable if they have been seen on conventional television in any one of the preceding five years. "Nonspecific" events are available on the basis of a complicated formula geared to the number of such events that have been seen on conventional television.

Mr. Rose and the division's lawyers who helped prepare the brief and who appeared with him to answer reporters' questions stressed their belief that the rules are designed to restrict pay cable's ability to compete with conventional television and that they actually deny viewers program choices—assertions made in the brief. They also contended, as the brief does, that the commission had failed to demonstrate that the protection being provided conventional television is necessary.

In that connection, they referred to what they called the punitiveness of the cable television industry. Kenneth G. Robinson Jr., who heads a new section in the division that deals with regulated industries, said that only some 450,000 to 750,000 cable television subscribers have access to pay channels or programing, and that only some 10 million homes in all are wired for cable television.

An industry of that size, the department officials indicated, was not likely to have the economic strength to outbid television broadcasters, including the networks, for the programs to which viewers have become accustomed.

If such a threat were to develop, they said, as they do in the brief, Congress and the commission could act swiftly enough to protect the public interest.

But the brief regards program siphoning as a legitimate concern only as applied to sports. The "worst" that could happen in competition with movies, the brief says, is that "there might be some delay" in the appearance of some films on conventional television.

As for the commission's expressed concern for the preservation of the "existing conventional television structure," the brief says, that is "not a goal cognizable under the Communications Act. Nothing in the statute makes conventional television as such the chosen instrument of Congress."

And as for the industry's profitability, the brief says, that is not a proper concern of the commission either. The commission would be required by law to be concerned about the decline in broadcast profits only if the drop could "be expected to lead to an over-all deterioration in public service." And the commission's decision, it adds, "makes no finding that the severe restrictions it imposes upon pay cable are necessary to preserve service for any significant segment of the populace."

In Brief

- FCC's Feb. 17 en banc open meeting will be wall-to-wall with broadcasters. National Association of Broadcasters, which wants to talk about cable regulation, has commitments from 97 members, will mount panel including Chairman Wilson Wearn of Multimedia Broadcasting, Greenville, S.C.; C. Wrede Petersmeyer of Corinthian Broadcasting, New York; Lawrence (Bud) Rogers II, retiring head of Taft Broadcasting, Cincinnati; Bill Bengston of KOM-TV Pittsburg, Kan.; Samuel Carey of WCOC-TV Salisbury, Md.; Robert Rice of WRAW-TV Peoria, Ill., and, tentatively, Don Gunia of Kaiser Broadcasting, San Francisco. Also scheduled is a hearing on Valenti of Molloy Associates and representative of National Black Media Coalition. Number of Washington communications lawyers are said to be "furious" after FCC sent stations they represent notices of apparent liability for broadcasting alleged lottery information in commercials for local pants store. Stations involved are WASH(FM), WHEELIAM, WHFS(FM) and WMAL(FM), each cited for $3,000, and WEMAM and WPGC-AM-FM, cited for $2,000. Lawyers contend there is dispute as to facts in case and that staff did not provide commission with their side.

- Senator John McClellan (D-Ark.), speaking to chamber empty of all but presiding officer, opened floor debate on copyright bill (S. 22) last Friday. Senator John Tunney (D-Calif.) entered and amended he will introduce an amendment to shorten from 10 to seven years time between copyright rate adjustments (including those for cable TV) by proposed royalty tribunal. Amendment introduced last Thursday by Senators Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), James Buckley (C-R-N.Y.) and Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) would make compulsory license for public broadcasters apply only to musical works. Debate continues next week; Congress is in recess this week.

- Representative W. Henson Moore (R-La.), named three weeks ago to House Commerce Committee, joins Communications Subcommittee. He replaces Edward Madigan (R-Ill.), who moved to another subcommittee.

- Voice of Charlotte (N.C.) Broadcasting's Co.'s application for renewal of license of WSLUM (AM) there has been set for hearing by FCC. Issues include questions of licensee's technical qualifications, whether it exercised adequate control and supervision. In another disciplinary action, Administrative Law Judge James F. Tierney recommended one-year renewal for White Mountain Broadcast Co.'s WMWOU(AM) and WXLO(FM) Berlin, N.H., and ordered licensee to pay $10,000 fine and to make full restitution of all revenues he said it unjustly acquired over almost five years of fraudulent billing.

- CBS Sports will pay reported $1 million for live-TV rights to Muhammad All-Jean Pierre Coopman world heavyweight championship fight from San Juan, P.R., on Friday, Feb. 20 (9-11 p.m. NYT).

- Political tug-of-war between Corporation for Public Broadcasting and Public Broadcasting Service over administrative control of proposed satellite project (see page 50) may stall go-ahead decision, scheduled for this week's PBS membership meeting in Los Angeles. CPB has proposed dividing responsibilities for implementation of project; PBS Vice Chairman Hartford Gunn Jr. feels project requires one person in charge.

- FCC has admonished New Jersey broadcaster for threatening state legislator and governor that his stations would not editorially support state bond issue unless its backers purchased advertising time on New Jersey stations to promote it. Commission last week noted that Herbert W. Hobler's WHWH(AM) Princeton and WPST(FM) Trenton said he did not sient news concerning bond issue and did not base decision on whether to editorialize on placement of advertising. But commission said threat "was highly irresponsible and inconsistent with the public interest obligations placed on all licensees."

- Mr. Hobler told Broadcasting letter wasn't threat but "cry for help in behalf of New Jersey broadcasters," who, he said, are consistently ignored by state officials in dispensing news and buying advertising time.

- National Black Media Coalition has gone into three arenas to accuse National Public Radio of employment discrimination. It filed class-action suit in U.S. District Court in Washington and complaint with U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity, and sent letters to Senator John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) and Representative Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) chairman of Senate and House Communication Subcommittee. NPR President Lee C. Frischknecht denies allegations, claims 17.5% minority employment is consistent with proportion in work force.

- Search for number two man at National Cable Television Association continues after second candidate—Joseph S. Jenckes, administrative assistant to Senator Paul J. Fannin (R-Ariz.)—declined offer. Instead, he's joining White House as special assistant for legislative affairs. John W. Hushen, White House deputy news secretary, had also talked with NCTA President Robert Schmidt about position (Broadcasting, Dec. 22, 1975), but reportedly failed to reach agreement.

- Arthur Bernstein, chief of FCC's Rules and Standards Division, will retire March 1, after 21 years with commission.
While Nancy Spector is learning about finger painting, Mrs. Spector is learning about Nancy.

For Nancy, school is something to look forward to. It means growing up.

At Group W, we’re helping to prepare her for this great adventure by giving her a taste of school at home.

That’s the idea behind our new program, “Playmates-Schoolmates.” An innovative series of 65 half-hour weekday shows directed to pre-school children. And their parents.

Here’s how it works. A real class situation is created in the studio. In each program, the “class” is introduced to some new activity. Finger painting, storytelling, even cooking.

As the teacher works with the children in the studio, she also involves the children at home. As if they were all in the same class together. Soon, the pre-schoolers at home are learning and enjoying themselves right along with the kids on television.

Here’s another new concept.
Parents get involved, too.

There’s a segment in which the parents of the kids on the show discuss their children’s behavior with Dr. Louise Bates Ames, co-director of the renowned Gesell Institute of Child Development. So Nancy’s mother doesn’t just learn how children behave in school; she learns why they behave that way.

“Playmates-Schoolmates” is another example of Group W’s continuing efforts in the field of children’s programming.

Critics across the country responded enthusiastically to “Eleanor and Franklin,” placing it in the great ABC Theatre tradition of “The Missiles of October,” “Ceremonies in Dark Old Men,” “Love Among The Ruins” and “I Will Fight No More Forever” as another distinguished television achievement.

Even more important, viewers were equally enthusiastic. On Sunday “Eleanor and Franklin” was seen in 14,000,000 homes. And on Monday in 16,800,000. We at ABC applaud all those who contributed, and express special gratitude to IBM for its thoughtful sponsorship.

Kauper offers chilling words to foes of cable de-regulation

Antitrust chief addresses remarks to all industries, but offers some specific rebuttals to broadcasters' allegations

Broadcasters who may have hoped Ford administration talk about de-regulating industries is just that—talk—where cable television is involved, cannot have been reassured by a speech the chief of the Justice Department's antitrust division, Thomas E. Kauper, delivered at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association's antitrust section in New York.

Indeed, the speech, "With Friends Like These...The Case Against Regulatory Reform by Free Enterprise Advocates," was an appeal to the antitrust bar for help in protecting the "movement toward regulatory reform." He said it is "in considerable danger because of...shortsighted opposition."

And although the speech was general in its approach and dealt largely with de-regulatory proposals the administration had already translated into legislation—as in the case of the airline and trucking industries—it did not ignore cable television and broadcasters' concern with its de-regulation.

Mr. Kauper said that a slowdown in the drive toward de-regulation generally that has been noted in the press can be attributed to the opposition of business interests "to any tampering with the cozy regulatory environment in which they and the regulators have co-existed through mutual cooperation for so many years."

He added that industry spokesmen in opposing change deliver the same litany of arguments as to why the existing system is the best possible. And in citing an argument as to the impact on rural America, Mr. Kauper referred to broadcasters' expression of concern about the effect on viewers in sparsely populated areas of conventional television's loss of programing to pay cable, which would not find it economically feasible to serve those areas.

Mr. Kauper acknowledged that, although cable data indicates the problem of rural America may have been overstated, such problems do exist. But in any event, he suggested that broadcasting is not the perfect answer to the question of how rural America is to be served.

"Nowhere," he said, "in any documents submitted by the commercial television industry in its battle with the cable television industry can you find a proposal to provide broadcast service to the 1.2-million households that get no television, or the 2.4-million additional households that get one relatively poor signal, or the 2.2-million households that receive only two signals."

And in another passage that critics of the broadcasting industry might say could have been written with broadcasting in mind, Mr. Kauper said: "The difficulty with crediting broad claims of imminent disaster, of course, is that they have been made so casually and proved so false in the past. We must be very careful here not to fall into a semantic trap by equating the prosperity of particular firms with the public welfare."

Mr. Kauper's speech was delivered a few days after the cause of cable de-regulation was being heard before Capitol Hill, in the issuance of a report on cable regulation by the staff of the House Subcommittee on Communications. The report called for sweeping changes in cable regulation and abandoning reliance "on any particular technology as the chosen instrument of national communications policy" (BROADCASTING, Feb. 2).

Broadcasters get in their licks against pay TV in testimony on competition bill

Broadcasters had their turn before the Senate Antitrust Subcommittee last week to voice opposition to the Competition Improvement Act as it would pertain to the pay-cable dispute.

The legislation, co-sponsored by subcommittee members Philip Hart (D-Mich.) and Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), is broad in scope and is designed to force all federal agencies to foster greater competition in the industries they regulate. But despite Senator Kennedy's statement that the bill was not intended to de-regulate pay cable but to promote competition as an independent policy objective, broadcasters focused on the pay cable issue. Representatives of the cable industry had done the same two months earlier (BROADCASTING, Dec. 15, 1975).

"There are already antitrust tools in the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission," said John A. Schneider, president of CBS Broadcast Group. He said that additional concentration of antitrust powers in federal agencies would only frustrate a free and competitive economy. Denying independent agencies the ability to make independent decisions would diminish their ability to foster service to the public, he said.

Taking the antitrust issue down to the pay-cable level, Mr. Schneider claimed that without FCC restraints, the ability for CATV to outbid broadcast stations regularly for rights to events such as the Super Bowl and World Series awaits only a sufficient level of pay cable customers—about two to three million homes—a level that some experts predict by 1980.

Dr. Leo L. Beranek, president of WCBV-TV, Boston, warned that unstrained numbers of pay TV outlets, CATV and MDS will fractionalize the market and take away the revenue broadcasters need to produce good local news and public affairs programs. He pointed to the addition of UHF channels, particularly independent U's, to the trouble that not adding more channels would frustrate dramatically. Continued fractionalization of the market will "surely" cause broadcast television to lose its quality and better sports events to pay TV, he said.

Those not able to afford pay cable will be the losers, Dr. Beranek added.

Dr. Beranek also predicted that financial support for public television would "shrivel," since public TV's support comes from the same upper middle class whose subscriptions would support pay TV. Pay TV will soon discover that it will attract premium subscribers by purchasing the best drama, musical programs and science and culture series now seen on PTV, he said.

Samuel S. Carey, president of WBOC-TV Salisbury, Md., offered his experience as proof that cable television is already having a negative effect on over-the-air broadcasting. As a broadcaster in the 165th TV market, and serving an area that is also served by CATV systems, Mr. Carey said that he had found the budgets for one advertiser had been cut 40% for Salisbury because of a "spill-in" of outside stations on the CATV systems serving the market.

"It should be obvious we can't stand a 40% cutback by all advertisers and continue the services we are committed to offer," he said.

But NBC and ABC, in prepared statements submitted for the record, claimed the present copyright revision bills give cable an unfair advantage in obtaining film product. Unlike broadcasters that must negotiate for each program, CATV operators are promised a blanket compulsory license for a "token fee." That arrangement is "far more anti-competitive than any FCC rule or regulation," claimed NBC.

Businessmen urged to take their case to media and public

NBC's Goodman says television shares problem of public mistrust

Julian Goodman, board chairman of NBC, believes that business leaders who feel television news has not treated them fairly should not remain passive but should make their views known to the medium.

In a speech prepared for delivery tomorrow (Feb. 10) before the annual convention of the International Franchise Association in Palm Springs, Calif., Mr. Goodman contended that "responsible reporters don't make news where none exists." He claimed that some critics of business are "documenting their protest and presenting their case to the public persistently and thoughtfully." He felt the business community has not done nearly so much to present its case.

"In the face of criticism, businessmen too often are silent, defensive, segmented and far too inaccessible to journalists," Mr. Goodman asserted. "I hope this situation is changing, and I believe it can through the activities of such organizations as the Business Roundtable, composed of leaders of major corporations who seem determined to get across the positive story of American enterprise. This is an active recognition of some new realities, not merely a passive complaint of unfair news coverage, and there ought to be more of it."

Mr. Goodman said that people today not only mistrust business but other institutions, and "television is no exception." He said TV is highly visible and its policies and practices are "laid on the line in millions of homes," and added:

"In an era of changing values, the task for television is no greater or smaller than for any major institution. We must remain fully aware that there is no end to our responsibility to serve the public and show, again and again, that we mean it. If we pursue this ideal with inspiration and purpose, then I believe broadcasting will stay strong and keep growing."

Little objection to a faster FCC

Agency's ideas for cutting down on amount of time taken in arriving at decisions are greeted with mostly favorable comments

An FCC proposal to speed up its decision-making process has drawn generally favorable comments.

The commission suggestion best received was a proposal to shift responsibility for handling petitions to enlarge, modify or delete from the review board to administrative law judges. In addition, judges would prepare recommended decisions in rate-making cases. These “might well be the most significant of the proposed changes,” said the communications law firm of Farrand, Malti, Spillane & Cooper, adding, “The present procedures are a horrendous cause of delay.”

This greater use of judges was also applauded by GTE Service Corp., a common carrier. A result of the change, it hoped, would be the delegation to judges of power to adjust issues in cases before them.

Of concern to common carriers was the fact that the proposed changes were suggested mainly for broadcast matters—a separate common-carrier study will be undertaken later. This should be kept in mind, said American Telephone & Telegraph, and the commission should "make due allowances for the complexities of common-carrier hearings."

It urged, along with other firms, that the common-carrier study be conducted as soon as possible.

Another common-carrier concern was voiced by Southern Pacific Communications Co. In cases that are very complex, it said, the judge should be given "adequate staff assistance, completely separated from the bureau trial staff, in preparing the initial decision."

Urging the FCC to be more specific, the Federal Communications Bar Association wants it made clear that every alleged violation of FCC rules need not be designated for hearing “before any negotiated resolution is possible.” It also suggested that a committee be formed to regularly review proceedings at the commission and to make suggestions to reduce delays.

RCA Global Communications took exception to the proposal to refuse time extension for filing papers except in extreme circumstances. The present rule, it said, which bases such a decision on the showing of “good cause . . . unless the time for filing is limited by statute” is adequate. RCA also took issue with a change that would require a return of a pleading which exceeds the prescribed page length due to the attachment of a supplement or appendix. It noted that if the commission imposes “tighter requirements on litigants to reduce delay, it must also impose tighter sanctions on itself.”

Cottone plea rejected

The FCC has denied a petition by Washington attorney Benedict P. Cottone asking the commission to request a Justice Department investigation into charges of perjury against an FCC official during the renewal hearing of KAYE(AM) Puyallup, Wash., which Mr. Cottone was representing (Broadcasting, Dec. 15, 1975). The FCC said it is not appropriate to consider the matter now since a perjury inquiry should not begin until the end of the proceeding in which it allegedly occurred.

DST plan advances

A bill to lengthen the period of daylight savings time from six months to eight months a year for the next two years—from the first Sunday in March to the second Sunday in November—passed the Senate Commerce Committee last week. The bill gives the FCC the same authority it exercised during experimental daylight savings two years ago to grant presunrise authority to some daytimer radio stations that stand to lose valuable morning operating time. That includes authority to forge agreements with Canada, Mexico and the Bahama Islands for relief of American daytimers that occupy clear channels licensed to those countries. The vote to clear the measure was a voice vote,

NBC defends employment at its WRC-TV

Additional filing at FCC rebuts allegations by NOW, claims station practices compare favorably with other outlets in area

NBC's WRC-TV Washington has been accused of discriminating against women in its employment practices and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has found "reasonable cause" to believe the station violated the antidiscrimination section of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. But NBC has filed material with the FCC that NBC says shows its record in Washington and WRC-TV's in hiring and promoting women and minorities as "unsurpassed in the broadcast industry."

The FCC had requested the additional employment information after obtaining a remand from the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington of the case brought by the National Organization for Women, which is opposing the commission grant without hearing of NBC's 1972 renewal application. And the remand was sought after EEOC filed a brief in the case saying it would have nothing to add to its findings that NBC was in probable violation of the Civil Rights Act.

In its comments, NBC credited "vigorous implementation of the WRC-TV affirmative action plan filed with the 1972 renewal application" with achieving "striking results." For instance, NBC said the number of women employed at its "Washington location" rose from 87 (20.3% of all employees) to 161 (29.8%), an increase of 85%, at the end of 1975. The increase in the number of minorities employed by NBC in Washington rose from 79 (18.4%) to 137 (25.3%), a 73% increase.

NBC cited data reported by stations to the commission and summarized by the United Church of Christ in its report on television station employment practices in 1975. This showed that WRC-TV had higher numbers and percentages of full-time women employees and minority employees than any other Washington television station and more women and minority employees in the top four jobs than any other station in the city, and a percentage of women employees in the top four job categories "substantially the same as the unusually high percentages reported by two of the other four Washington stations."

In terms of full-time workers, WRC-TV has 116 women employees (34% of the total) and 76 minority group members (30%); and in the top four categories, the figures are 39 women (21%) and 46 minority group members (25%).

What's more, these figures stand up against all other stations in the top 25 markets. WRC-TV ranks near the top among the 122 stations in those markets in terms of women and minority group employees, both full-time and in top-job categories.

NOW's petition to deny was based on disparities between male and female employees in 1971, when WRC-TV's performance in employment of women and minorities began to improve sharply. But even in that year, NBC said, the station's record "was far ahead of most other stations." And, it added, "no disqualifying finding" based on WRC-TV's employment statistics could be made unless a similar finding were to be made for the entire broadcast industry—and for all other industries and professions as well.

FCC modifies slightly station ID requirement

Licensee name can now be inserted between call letters and location; commission disposes of several other petitions regarding calls

The FCC in the past couple of weeks has disposed of a number of proposals concerning call signs. The net result of the actions is a change permitting broadcasters to insert the licensee's name between call letters and location during station identifications, rather than requiring the location to be announced after the call letters.

The proposal, advanced by Straus Broadcasting, was adopted by the commission last week. But at the same time, it rejected a proposal by William E. Loucks of KMGM(AM) Bellingham, Wash., that a promotional line, such as "the voice of," be permitted before the location.

In another matter, the commission rejected Storer Broadcasting Co.'s petition for reconsideration of a rule adopted in 1973 aimed at preventing "trafficicking" in call signs. Storer's proposed modification would have permitted multiple owners to retain call letters of a station sold by transferring them to another of its stations.

The commission also rejected a request for a rulemaking that would ban the use of the same call signs for commonly owned AM-FM and TV stations. The petition for rulemaking, by Suffolk Broadcasting Corp., owner of WLPFM(AM) Suffolk, Va., and Lincoln Broadcasting Co., licensee of WLD(FM) Detroit, contended that identical calls on commonly owned stations give them an advantage over other stations in their markets. The commission staff felt the suggestion worth airing in a rulemaking, but the commission did not.

More obstacles pop up as broadcasting in the House takes a step forward

Speaker Albert makes last-minute maneuver for piece of the action, Jack Brooks makes his opposition known to resolution that moves out of subcommittee, up to Rules unit

The House Rules Ad Hoc Subcommittee on Broadcasting last week passed by a 3-to-1 vote a resolution to permit the unprecedented live broadcast of House floor proceedings. The resolution, which had proceeded up to then without obstruction, developed a last-minute hitch. The resolution provides that a special advisory board of the House Rules Committee must approve the broadcast. Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.) said last week that was his job. Despite the speaker's challenge the subcommittee cleared the measure and made arrangements to place it before the full Rules Committee tomorrow (Feb. 10).

There was some well-cloaked annoyance at Speaker Albert for speaking up so late; he telephoned the ad hoc subcommittee chairman, B.F. Sisk (D-Calif.), last Tuesday (Feb. 3) on the eve of the subcommittee's markup of the resolution to tell him that traditionally the speaker has complete control of the House chamber. The subcommittee wrestled briefly with an amendment during its markup that would have the Rules Committee and the speaker working jointly to oversee the broadcast system, but decided in the end to put off the decision.

It was difficult to determine what effect Speaker Albert's concern would have on the resolution. Representative Sisk said during the markup that although "we're dealing in a sensitive area here I see no insurmountable difficulties with the Rules Committee working in cooperation with the speaker." Referring to negotiations between the subcommittee and the speaker's office last week, Mr. Sisk said, "We're close to reaching an agreement . . ."

The resolution, H.Res. 875, provides for live radio and television coverage of all regular House proceedings from beginning to end. The networks and the Public Broadcasting Service would cooperate in providing, paying for and running the radio and television equipment needed and would manage the five feed available to any broadcast station that wanted to pick it up live or excerpt from it. No restrictions would be placed on selection of materials for broadcast use. But the resolution would prohibit commercial sponsorship of live broadcasts and would ban the use of any material in political campaigns. In addition the resolution provides for a closed-circuit broadcast system, with TV monitors in the House leaders' offices and audio receivers in every congressman's office. The House would pay the networks for its use of the feed. Further, the measure provides that the Library of Congress would tape and store the broadcasts for use by congressional staff and the general public.

The networks would work under contract with the House, the contract to be renewed at the end of each year. They submitted a tentative rate card for users of the feed in 1976 to the subcommittee last week. It is detailed below for all but the radio networks and radio news services, the charges for which have not yet been determined.

These are tentative pool rates (daily, weekly, monthly, yearly). Commercial VHF stations: New York-$25, $150, $300, $3,000; Chicago, Los Angeles-$20, $75, $150, $1,500; next 10 markets-$15, $40, $75, $75; all other markets-$10, $20, $30, $300. Commercial UHF stations: all markets-$10, $20, $30, $300. Commercial radio stations: New York-$5, $22, $45, $450; Chicago, Los Angeles-$5, $12, $23, $225; next 10 markets-$5, $8, $11, $112; all other markets-$5, $5, $5, $45. Public broadcasters: television-$10, $20, $30, $300; radio-$5, $5, $5, $45. CATV (per franchise system, per community): over 50,000 subscribers-$20, $75, $150, $1,500; 3,500 to 50,000 subscribers-$15, $40, $75, $75; under 3,500 subscribers-$10, $20, $30, $300. Other audio monitoring (nonbroadcast) -$5, $5, $5, $45; audio and video monitoring (nonbroadcast) -$10, $20, $30, $300; United States Information Agency-$20, $75, $150, $1,500; Voice of America-$5, $12, $23, $225.

The resolution cleared the subcommittee with ease last week, but the one member who opposed it, Representative Del Clawson (R-Calif.), predicted that from now on "it isn't going to be that smooth sailing." A straw vote of the full committee had not been taken last week, but among those who oppose the bill is Rules Committee Chairman Ray Madden (D-N.Y.). Despite the chairman's opposition, however, Mr. Sisk said last week that Mr. Madden has agreed at least to cooperate in bringing the resolution to a vote.

Further down the line lies another formidable opponent of H.Res. 875, Representative Jack Brooks (D-Tex.). Mr. Brooks, chairman of the Joint Congressional Council that first recommended House floor broadcasts, and author of a resolution to implement that recommendation, opposes this version primarily because it would have the networks in charge of the technical and financial operation of the system instead of the House (BROADCASTING, Dec. 8). Mr. Brooks wants the resolution to provide for a period of several months to test the new system.

An aide to Mr. Brooks said last week that the congressman has several alternatives for pressuring for the changes he wants. He can, for example, ask that the bill be referred to another House committee with jurisdiction, such as the House Administration Committee. Or he can try to amend it when it reaches the floor. Or he can introduce a whole new resolution. The aide would not say if Mr. Brooks has any of the moves already in the works, only that "I don't think we've heard the last from him."

League of Women Voters takes advantage of new ruling on Section 315

It sets up five candidate debates and invites radio and television to cover; public broadcasting will carry prime-time events

Broadcasters are being offered their first opportunity under the FCC's revised administration of the equal-time law to cover debates among the major presidential candidates. The League of Women Voters Educational Fund is sponsoring a series of five debates to which it has invited candidates to argue political issues and radio and television to cover them live. The Public Broadcasting Service and National Public Radio have announced their intentions to broadcast the debates, titled The '76 Presidential Forum, gavel to gavel. The commercial networks are making no such commitment.

Last fall, the FCC reversed its longstanding opinion since 1962) that candidate debates are subject to equal-time requests. In its new ruling, the commission gave the OK to coverage of candidate debates and news conferences if the events were covered live and in their entirety and if they were not under the control of either broadcasters or candidates. That decision is being contested in court by the Democratic National Committee, Representative Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.), the National Organization for Women and the United Church of Christ (BROADCASTING, Dec. 22).

The Public Broadcasting Service plans complete live coverage of the forums, each of which is scheduled to run about 90 minutes in prime time. PBS's coverage is predicated on a production commitment from the local PTV outlets in the cities where the debates are to be held. Such commitments were not firm up last week, but most of the stations involved were planning coverage, funding being the question. Most hoped to obtain part or all of the money necessary from outside sources such as foundations.

National Public Radio is set up to cover all the debates. An ABC News spokesman said the net-
"VIEWPOINT," with Senator Barry Goldwater, is the people's choice and the advertisers', too. From Los Angeles (KABC) to Washington (WAVA), more than 200 stations broadcast his five-minute daily commentary.

There's no one else like him on the air. His tell-it-like-it-is comments will keep your listeners tuned in. All during this year of decision for America, Barry Goldwater will be talking about the critical issues, the events and the personalities foremost in our minds.

work has no intention of covering the forums live and in their entirety, but newsworthy developments in the forums would be covered in its evening newscasts. He also mentioned the possibility of requesting a waiver from the FCC to show tape delays of the entire debates at 11:30 p.m. Lawyers for CBS are studying the applicability of the new FCC ruling to the forums, and meanwhile are going to the first of them, in Boston Feb. 23, to “see if it’s a viable event for coverage,” said a CBS News spokesman. An NBC News spokesman said there had been “no formal approach” for coverage, and no decisions had been made.

All the major Democratic candidates, except for Alabama Governor George Wallace, have committed themselves to at least one forum appearance, said Ruth Clusen, president of the league. Neither President Ford nor Republican contender Ronald Reagan have signed up, however, she said. The White House has expressed interest in the second forum, in Miami March 1, she added.

The forums are scheduled to precede primaries in regions of the country. Boston starts off the series Feb. 23, followed by Miami March 1, New York March 29, Chicago April 26 and Los Angeles May 24. The forums will be held in halls that will hold up to 1,000 people. Mrs. Clusen said the public will have an opportunity to question the candidates.

The primary considerations: TV networks gear up for election coverage

ABC steers away from predictions toward analysis; CBS wants to deal with issues; NBC approaches it as a day-to-day news story; PBS goes for a weekly magazine-format show

The three commercial networks and the Public Broadcasting Service are planning different approaches to cover the upcoming primary campaigns.

Walter Pfister Jr., ABC News vice president in charge of special television news programs, favors “issue and candidate-oriented coverage” for ABC. “The days of the terrible race to get primary election results on the air first,” are no more, he said. The trend at ABC will be toward analysis and away from predictions, he said. “Accuracy is emphasized,” he added.

CBS News’s Sylvia Westerman, deputy director of news and political coordinator for news in daily campaign coverage, says, “Of course we’re always concerned about being first; that race will never end. But our concern is to put [the results] in the proper perspective.” For instance, she said, the Feb. 24 New Hampshire primary will not be portrayed as a “microcosm of the country,” but rather as an early primary with possible bandwagon effects. “It’s a different world since 1972,” said Ms. Westerman, who has been involved in election coverage since 1964 for CBS. The orientation is “heavily into issue coverage,” not to the exclusion of candidate profiles but with less emphasis on “charisma factors.” A good deal more economic coverage is planned since “it’s become obvious we can do it well on television and the public does care,” contrary to earlier reports. Public interests in complex domestic and economic issues “translate in a political year to how the candidates will solve these problems,” she said. The four-minute evening news interviews with candidates by Walter Cronkite (BROADCASTING, Nov. 10) will continue with efforts to keep them “hard news, not features.”

Plans for NBC News are described by Richard Fischer, vice president, news operations, as fluid. “Politics is a news story,” Mr. Fischer says, “We will cover it as such. We will be neither issue-oriented nor event-oriented nor candidate-oriented.” The network will follow the news dictates and try to explain a very complicated story simply and clearly.” Preceding a half-hour report on the New Hampshire results (11:30-midnight), NBC News will project election winners “shortly after polls close,” with help from a survey to be conducted among voters leaving polling places throughout the state.

NBC News will conduct polls in six to eight primaries and 10 to 12 telephone polls, expected to run a tab “easily in six figures.” Irwin Lewis is director of the election unit and NBC News poll, and Dr. Robert Riley is manager of the poll.

ABC News does not plan pre-primary surveys—Mr. Pfister thinks pre-primary polling is being “overdone” and says it will be more important at ABC to “report how the public did react and why,” ABC does subscribe to the Gallup and Harris polls, but Mr. Pfister likes to quote the axiom: “Beware of polls bearing polls.”

CBS News and The New York Times will collaborate on a series of polls beginning next month and continuing through the primaries and general election. In-person interviews at polling places and national telephone surveys will use a sample of about 1,500 people. Interpretation of results will be handled separately by CBS News and the Times (the two have collaborated on polls before, most recently on attitudes about New York City’s fiscal crisis, conducted last fall). Warren Mitofsky, director of CBS News’s election and survey unit, and Robert Chandler, vice president in charge of political coverage for 1976, will supervise the surveys for CBS News, with the stated purpose “to give changing views of the electorate rather than forecast the winners in specific elections.”

Primary-hopping anchors for each network will supply live reports from the field. John Chancellor and David Brinkley will co-anchor for NBC News on location in 10 primary states; Walter Cronkite will travel to at least four primary states for CBS News; Harry Reasoner will go to New Hampshire for ABC News and anchor the rest of the primary coverage from New York.

Public television’s major effort in primary and election coverage is USA: People and Politics, a joint effort of WETA-TV Washington and WNED-TV New York. USA is a magazine-style series that will begin on the eve of the New Hampshire primary and continue in 37 weekly half-hours through election eve. The series is budgeted at $2.3 million, drawn from the two stations, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Ford Foundation and reallocations from Bill Moyers’s Journal, which has been cut from 26 to 31 episodes.

Wallace Westfield, executive producer of USA (formerly a producer with NBC News), outlined the main features: Editorial, Bill will be on report from the networks commentary each week; regular contributions from correspondents Paul Duke, Lee Clark, Robert Sam Anson, Lisa Feiner and Charles Rose; a weekly photo essay by Magnum Photos; an unnamed humorist delivering two minutes of irreverence; weekly exploration of campaign rhetoric and news features and a “department of nonobjectivism,” in which political statements from citizens will be heard. Broadcast live from Washington, the series will be supervised by Jerome Toobin, director of news and public affairs for WNED-TV, and Gerald Slater, executive vice president for WETA-TV.

Mr. Toobin says public television’s coverage of election developments should offer a “challenging supplement” to the commercial networks’ fare, concerned “almost entirely with analysis.” The editorial, he says, will be on report from the networks—telling, for example “not how Reagan’s doing, but what the representative voter is getting from the candidate on the issues,” with some concern for the methodology behind the electioneering.

Press credentials for political conventions: deadline next month

The House Radio-TV Correspondents Gallery has set a March 19 filing deadline for applications for press accreditation for the Democratic and Republican national conventions. All broadcasters planning to attend must submit the following information: number of persons to be accredited, number of television crews, power and phone requirements, intention to do live broadcast or use radio frequency, citizen band or similar equipment, and parking or unloading permits in Kansas City. Applications should be sent to the Conventions Committee, House Radio-TV Correspondents Gallery, room H-320, U.S. Capitol, Washington, 20515.

The gallery will not accredit college stations and foreign broadcasters. Foreign broadcasters not participating in the network pool are asked to file directly with Vince Clephas, Democratic National Conventions Committee, 1625 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, 20036, or Michael V. Miller, Republican National Conventions Committee, 310 First St., S.E., Washington, 20003.

Housing requests should be made under separate cover and should specify choice of candidate, delegate, or headquarters hotels or other preference. These choices should be sent to Mr. Miller, Media Housing, 1976 Republican Convention at the First Street address, or to Convention Press Housing, 1976 Democratic National Convention, Democratic National Committee, at the Massachusetts Avenue address. All media representatives attending the Republican convention should include all housing and other arrangements without Washington bureaus are asked to apply directly to Republican local or state housing committees.

The deadline for requesting floor space at either convention was last Nov. 14 (BROADCASTING, Oct. 27, 1975). According to the gallery, all space has been reserved.

First ratings for NIS are gratifying to NBC

Fall Arbitron shows dramatic boosts in some markets, says network

An analysis of last fall's Arbitron Radio rating books shows significant increases in audience and market rank for many stations since they subscribed to the NBC News and Information Service (NIS), NBC reported last week.

The increases ranged up to 700% or more in some demographics, according to NBC's summary, while market rank improvement took some stations from 12th and even 28th position to second or third among certain target audiences.

For many stations Arbitron's fall ratings were the first available since the NIS all-news service was launched last June. Thus far some 65 stations have subscribed to NIS. NBC officials say they except that the ratings will accelerate the trend.

Anderson: spread the blame

Representative John Anderson (R-Ill.) said in a speech on the House floor that if Congress is truly concerned about getting as much network exposure as the President, it should open its chambers to live television broadcasts. Mr. Anderson is a member of the House Rules subcommittee that has reached a resolution that would do just that, and he said he is hopeful that the full Rules Committee will pass the resolution early this month.

In reply to a recent congressional study that condemns the networks for allowing the President too easy access to air time (BROADCASTING, Jan. 26), he said, "I only regret that a more comprehensive and comparative study was not requested to indicate the extent to which networks have endeavored to present opposing points of view to those expressed by the President. It is certainly not fair to blame this all on the media."

More news groups argue against Neb. gag order

As in previous filings, they say that there are other ways to protect right to fair trial and not step on First Amendment

The Supreme Court is being besieged by scores of news organizations requesting a ruling barring courts from imposing prior restraint on the media that cover judicial proceedings. Their concern stems from a Nebraska court's order that barred reporting of testimony taken in open court regarding a confession given by Earl C. Simants, accused—and later convicted—of the murders of six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family.

Judge Hugh Stuart of the district court of Lincoln county, Neb., who issued the order, said it was necessary to preserve the defendant's right to a fair trial. But the news organizations seeking reversal of Judge Stuart's order contend that the First Amendment prohibits one branch of government from dictating to the press what information will reach the public.

Petitioners in the case are a group of Nebraska news organizations, including the Nebraska Broadcasters Association, the Associated Press and the United Press. They have been joined in friend-of-the-court briefs by such organizations as the publishers of more than 50 daily newspapers, the American Civil Liberties Union, the three television networks, the Tribune Co. and the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

CBS and NBC were parties to one brief that included a number of major newspapers last month (BROADCASTING, Jan. 26). ABC joined 24 print organizations a week later in a brief which said that unless courts were barred from imposing prior restraint, judges and "perhaps magistrates" would have the power to censor reporting and comment on their own conduct.

Many of the pleadings make the argument that the kind of issue Judge Stuart issued is not necessary to preserve a defendant's right to a fair trial—that a judge has a full panoply of measures to preserve that right. Judges can be sequestered, for instance, trials moved, or jurors brought in from other areas, the day.

But the major argument involved the alleged danger the judicial gag order poses for the First Amendment. The Nebraska state supreme court, in upholding Judge Stuart's order, said the Nebraska organizations in their brief, have made "too easy to air time. Not only this court's rulings but events over the last half century in other parts of the world, teach us that this can be the fatal first step in the censorship, subjugation or destruction of a free press."
for the music company format

"RAS-PRO" answers the need for a low cost automation system. Modular in construction, it expands as your station needs grow by plugging in additional inexpensive printed circuit boards. Basic system has 1000 master file events from up to 20 audio sources (reel-to-reel, multiple cart players or single cart machines). "RAS-PRO" will random access up to 8 multiple cart players. Each multiple cart source has a 256 event random access memory. Inexpensive "RS" memories may be added at any time to join the two random access memories that come with the basic unit. Network join/time corrects are included.

"RAS-PRO" is the dramatic low-cost programmer that's specifically designed for music company formatted stations. And, because it is made by the people who invented computer assisted broadcasting—SMC—you can be sure its operation is straightforward, simple and dependable.

ABC pulls even with NBC in season Nielsens

Third weekly win in a row makes for two-way second-place tie

ABC-TV, piling up points on the strength of four potential hit second-season shows (Laverne and Shirley, The Bionic Woman, Rich Man, Poor Man and Donnie and Marie), has finished on top in the national Nielsens for the third week in a row. ABC's rating for the 21st week of the prime-time season (Jan. 26-Feb. 1) was 20.8, compared to CBS's 20.4 and NBC's 17.4.

Even more important to ABC, the winning week propelled it into a season-to-date tie with NBC (identical 18.1 ratings) for the runner-up spot to CBS, which has chalked up a 19.7 rating.

Spinoffs of existing hits have transformed Tuesday and Wednesday for ABC to the point where the network may end up putting a lock on both nights. Laverne and Shirley's (Tuesday, 8:30-9 p.m., NYT) 35.1 rating and 49 share on Jan. 27 represented the biggest numbers racked up by a premiering show in 10 years. Happy Days (Tuesday, 8-9:30 p.m.), Laverne and Shirley's parent, was lifted by the latter's debut into its highest rating (32.0) and share (46) of the year.

On Wednesday, ABC's The Bionic Woman (8-9 p.m.), a spinoff of The Six Million Dollar Man, continued to make hay, winning its time period with a 26.9 rating and 41 share on Jan. 28. These lead-in numbers nudged Baretta (Wednesday, 9-10 p.m.) into its best performance of the year, a 25.8 rating and 39 share.

ABC also won Friday for the second week in a row, with the Donnie and Marie variety show (8-9 p.m.) holding its own against NBC's sitcom, Sanford and Son, and the theatrical movie, "Deliverance" (9-11 p.m.) winning each of the half-hours of its time period and further solidifying ABC's status as the network with the hottest movie packages.

And not only theatrical movies. Rich Man, Poor Man, the 12-hour made-for-TV movie, registered a 22.1 rating and 35 share on Sunday, Feb. 10 (9-11 p.m.), and an even better 26.2 rating and 39 share on Monday, Feb. 2 (also 9-11 p.m.), making it a strong candidate for a regular series berth on ABC next September. (The final eight hours will be dealt out over the next two months—ABC has scheduled it on Mondays, from 10 to 11 p.m.).

It's not all good news for ABC, though. Two of that network's shows appear to be headed for cancellation: the prophetically titled On the Rocks sitcom (Monday, 8-8:30 p.m.) and Almost Anything Goes (Saturday, 8-9 p.m.). Both of them fell below a 25 share on their last times out. And the holdover Swiss Family Robinson (Sunday, 7-8 p.m.) has suffered a steady decline over the last month or so; it, too, has fallen below the 25-share mark.

CBS programers were cheered by the huge audience that tuned in to see Sonny and Cher in their first appearance together since their divorce. Sonny and Cher Show (Sunday, 8-9 p.m.) harvested a 28.2 rating and 40 share. M*A*S*H (Tuesday, 9-9:30 p.m.), One Day at a Time (Tuesday, 9:30-10 p.m.) and 80 Minutes (Sunday, 7-8 p.m.) continued to perform well for CBS, whereas Happy Days (Tuesday, 8-9:30 p.m.) looks like a definite loser (12.0 rating and 17 share on Jan. 27) and Blue Knight (Wednesday, 10-11 p.m.) and Tony Orlando and Dawn (Wednesday, 8-9 p.m.) are falling into the borderline area of mid-high 20's that makes them uncertain bets to return for another season.

NBC came up with two second-season rays of hope last week: the debut of the Danny Thomas sitcom, The Practice (Friday, 8-9 p.m.), which delivered a healthy 21.7 rating and 34 share on Jan. 30, and Chico and the Man (Wednesday, 9-9:30 p.m.), which came up with a respectable 20.9 rating and 31 share in its new time period on Jan. 28.

On the negative side for NBC, Norman Lear's new sitcom, The Dampungs (Wednesday, 9:30-10 p.m.), got a poor sampling when it kicked off on Jan. 28 (16.2 rating and 24 share). On Monday, Feb. 2, The Rich Little Show (8-9 p.m.) got a less-than-adequate 19.4 rating and 27 share for NBC, the shifted Joe Forrester (9-10 p.m.) was squeezed by CBS's All in The Family and NBC's Rich Man, Poor Man, and managed only a 15.5 rating and 22 share, and the premiering Jigsaw John cop show (10-11 p.m.) came away with a sub-par 16.1 rating and 26 share.

Pasadena wants to turn the roses into greenbacks

Proposal to tax radio and TV coverage of New Year's Day parade draws promise of suit from CBA

A proposed Pasadena (Calif.) city tax on radio and television stations and networks covering the annual Tournament of Roses Parade there has drawn the ire of broadcasters and proved an inflammatory subject at last week's meeting of the California Association of Broadcasters in Newport Beach. The CBA said it will fight the proposed charge on coverage of the New Year's Day event, which the Pasadena officials have suggested as a way to earn additional revenue.

The event was covered last month by CBS, NBC and several local outlets.

The proposed ordinance would require a special business license for broadcasters, costing the equivalent of the highest amount charged for one-and-one-half minutes of advertising time during the parade. That was estimated to range anywhere from about $50,000 to $100,000 for the networks. Broadcasters covering 30 minutes or less of the parade would not be subject to the charge.

Harry Warner, CBA counsel, said he is preparing a brief for the city manager which will claim that such a tax on coverage of a news event is unconstitutional and that it would be prejudicial to broadcasters since print media would not be charged. He added that the networks too would fight to prevent the establishment of the tax because of the effect it could have on other special-event coverage.

BMI interprets victory in defeat

Judge rules music-licensing group cannot have interim rate adjustment, but says way is clear for recovery of losses if current suit against CBS is successful

A federal district judge in New York has ruled that Broadcast Music Inc. must wait a while longer—until litigation currently involved in an appeal is finally decided—before the court can consider adjusting the approximately $1.7-million-a-year fee that BMI receives from CBS.

Although Judge Morris E. Lasker turned down BMI's request for an early adjustment, BMI officials drew some comfort from the language he used in doing so: Since the litigation has kept BMI "frozen in position" for five years and will keep it frozen "for some further period," he said, BMI should be free to recover losses as well as seek a rate adjustment if the litigation ends in its favor.

BMI won the first round last fall when Judge Lasker dismissed the suit in which CBS was seeking to compel BMI and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to issue so-called "per-use" music licenses (Broadcasting, Sept. 29, 1975). BMI, whose payments from CBS had been set by the court on an interim basis pending outcome of the litigation, then asked Judge Lasker to enter a final judgment and adjust CBS's "interim" rate, which BMI contended was too low and did not reflect "the double-digit inflation" that had occurred since the rate was set in 1970 (Broadcasting, Dec. 8, 1975).

CBS subsequently appealed the dismissal of its suit, and it is in this connection that Judge Lasker has ruled it would be "inappropriate" to consider adjusting the CBS rate now.

BMI felt it had accomplished "one major result," even so.

"Judge Lasker recognized and clearly states our efforts on behalf of BMI writers and publishers to affect a proper fee for their music used by CBS-TV," a BMI spokesman said. "The judge points to the fact that BMI has taken all steps within its power to free itself to negotiate with CBS.' He underlined CBS's refusal to negotiate..."
and then properly compensate BMI writers and publishers for the great contribution they make to CBS programing and, consequently, to CBS income."

BMI is confident, he said, that the final determination "will result in the vindication of our position and financial recognition of CBS's constantly increasing use of the BMI repertoire."

WCKY protest adds new twist to issue of format changes

Listener group contends proposed sale of station and reduction by new owner in amounts of news and public affairs programing is contrary to public interest

The format-change issue troubling the FCC and broadcasters seems ever-present. Even as members of the public and the broadcasting industry ponder questions the FCC posed in its inquiry aimed at determining the kind of role, if any, it should play in format-change cases (Broadcasting, Jan. 5), the commission is confronted with a case— involving WCKY(AM) Cincinnati—that raises a new question: Does a station's format involve only a specific kind of entertainment programing, or does it include the total mix of programing?

And as the question was added to the commission's agenda, the staff was approving in a station sale that brings to mind the case that gave birth to the format-change issues—that of WKGAL(AM) Atlanta, from GCC Communications to Eathel Holley, owner of WNEA(AM) Newman, Ga., for $250,000.

There was no serious opposition to the sale, as there was in 1968 when Glenkaren Associates Inc. proposed selling WKA-AM-FM to Strauss Broadcasting Co. But then, Mr. Holley plans to retain the 1 kw daytime-only station's classical-music format. Strauss didn't.

It was the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals five years ago overturning the commission approval of that sale without a hearing that jarred the industry, shook the commission and established the principle that listeners have a right in a station's format that cannot be trifled with—not, at least, if the format is the only one of its kind in town.

The court's decision calling for a hearing also changed Strauss's interest in the stations. It accepted GCC's offer to buy the stations for $675,000 and to retain the AM's classical music format, an offer that the citizen group that had opposed the sale to Strauss supported. (Strauss and GCC each sweetened the deal even more for the local residents by agreeing to provide non-commercial WARE(AM) Atlanta with $40,000 to improve its facilities and program stereo classical music.)

GCC made news of a minor sort in connection with another format-change case last week. The record was closed in the FCC hearing the U.S. Court of Appeals in October 1974 had ordered in GCC's effort to acquire Zenith Corp.'s WEFM(AM)-FM Chicago. The court, acting on an appeal by a group determined to preserve the station's classical-music format, overturned the commission's approval of the sale because it had not held a hearing on GCC's plans to abandon classical music for rock.

The new question regarding formats was raised by a Cincinnati group, the Committee to Save Beautiful Music, in petitioning the commission to reconsider its approval without hearing of Post-Newsweek Stations' $3.6 million sale of WCKY(AM) to Truth Publishing Co. (Broadcasting, Jan. 5).

Although the committee was formed in response to Truth's announced intention to change the station's format from beautiful music to country and western, it filed its petition after Truth declared that the station would continue to play the same type of music it does now.

John F. Dille III, vice president of Truth, in informing the commission on Jan. 26 of the change in plans, cited two reasons. One was a wish to avoid a "conflict" with the station's listeners; Truth was aware of the "substantial" number of letters opposing the sale that had been received. The other was ratings; WCKY ranked second in the market in two Arbitron surveys of Monday-to-Sunday, 6 a.m.-to-midnight.

But the letter said nothing of Truth's plans to reduce the amount of nontertainment programing the station would broadcast: News would be reduced from 13% of total programing to 8%, public affairs from 7.1% to 3% and other nontertainment material, from 7.9% to 5.5%.

As a result, the committee filed its petition, although it was aimed to attack an application that included a switch in entertainment formats. For the committee contends that the proposed changes in news and public affairs programing would represent a change in format; not only that, but a change in a "unique" format that should not be permitted without a hearing to determine if it would be in the public interest.

"Uniqueness does not lie in [wcky's] beautiful music alone," the petition says, "nor exclusively in its excellent news or public service programing. Rather, it lies in wcky's particular combination and emphasis on these three categories of programing."

To some observers, GCC's experience with WPGA and WEFM represents the kind of real-life problem broadcasters fear as a result of court decisions that tend to freeze formats desired by vocal members of a community, even if they are not in the majority.

GCC is a substantial company. It has controlling interests in four FM's—WCFI Philadelphia and WGCL Cleveland, as well as WCFI-WCFK-FM Atlanta and WEFM—and WCXW Miami. It also operates some 300 motion picture theaters, most of them in shopping centers, 21 bottling and canning plants, and other enterprises.

Yet it felt compelled to give up on WGCL because of its "substantial operating losses," as it said in its assignment application, "in order to concentrate on the other broadcast interests." The station lost $352,858 in 1954 and $314,388 in 1973. (WGZC, which is being retained, is profitable as a rock station.)

As for WEFM, the story is similar. GCC took control of the station before the court stayed the effectiveness of the commission's order approving the sale. However, the court permitted GCC to continue operating the station provided it maintained the classical music format. GCC did, and, according to material introduced into the WEFM hearing record last week, the station experienced a loss of $1,450,000 between January 1973 and October 1975.

Grey has done a turnaround on barter programs

Agency used to avoid them, now it's involved with six trade-deal shows

Grey Advertising Inc., New York, which had held barter syndication at arm's length in the past, has now embraced the approach wholeheartedly and is involved with six such program properties during 1976.

Henry Siegel, senior vice president and manager of media for Grey, said last week that the agency and particularly two of its top clients—Procter & Gamble and General Foods—feel the timing is appropriate for the program barter concept. He explained that many TV stations need but cannot afford to buy quality programs while at the same time there are advertisers willing to finance such shows if certain advertising requirements can be fulfilled.

Over the past three months Grey has announced these projects: The Andy Williams Show, 26 barter-syndicated half hours of music-variety-comedy for prime-access in the fall, cleared in 80 markets and sponsored by P&G; The Spirit of '76, 104 four-and-one-half minute animated episodes for children, already in 93 markets for various Grey clients for time-credit purposes, and The Spirit of Independence, 104 four-and-one-half minute animated segments, dramatizing for children the history of the U.S., now carried in more than 70 markets and financed by GF, also for time-credit purposes.

Last week Grey announced three new barter ventures: The Hot Fudge Show, 17 half hours of children's shows with puppets, live action, animation and "high social values"; Hollywood Palace, 26 half-hours to be produced by Yongestreget, which produced the network version several years ago, and Coral Jungle, eight one-hour specials about marine life among Australia's Great Barrier Reef.

Hot Fudge has been on WXYZ-TV Detroit for some months and new episodes will be produced for the syndicated show by a young, independent production group in Detroit, according to Mr. Siegel. It will be available for an April 1 start on a barter basis via General Foods, with distribution handled by MG Films Inc., New York, in association with Grey. Mr. Siegel said Hollywood Palace is an attempt to bring a quality entertainment series into price access. It will be sponsored by a number of Grey clients ("we already have more than enough," he said). Mr. Siegel said Grey is now negotiating with two network-owned station groups and an announcement on stations and advertisers will be made shortly. The series is scheduled for a fall 1976 start.

The final project, Coral Jungle, is

One-time biggest Ford dealer revises TV blitz to sell Toyotas in Southeast states

A two-day, 33-market TV campaign that cost less than $250,000 produced $12.9 million in car sales for Southeast Toyota Distributors last month.

"This spot TV campaign is the most successful total merchandising effort in the history of the automobile business," said Al Hendrickson, Southeast Toyota's merchandising and marketing manager.

The campaign and its results were described by the Television Bureau of Advertising, which saw the 50-to-1 sales-to-advertising ratio as a highly promotable testimonial to spot TV.

The campaign, which covered 46 stations in Southeast Toyota's five-state area, was conceived by an old hand: Jim Moran, president of the Toyota group, who used TV to spectacular advantage in Chicago back in the early 1950's when he was head of Courtesy Motors, the number-one Ford dealer in the country.

To amass the funds for last month's campaign, billed as a Toyotathon, the 141 Toyota dealers in the group took a month's advertising budget and concentrated virtually all of it in TV on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 22 and 23. Approximately 40 commercials, all 30 seconds in length, ran from early evening to sign-off. In large markets two stations were used, in smaller markets, one station. The messages carried the names of all local Toyota dealers and emphasized big savings without mentioning specific prices.

Jess Duboy, president of Jess Duboy Agency, Richmond, Va., agency for Southeast Toyota, was on-camera spokesman, standing in front of a map of the five-state marketing area while cars were shown rolling off ships and onto carriers for movement to the dealers.

Afterward, Mr. Duboy had a tribute for spot TV. "Our target audience was adults 18 and over," he said. "With this concentrated saturation television campaign we reached not only our key buying group, but everyone—innumerable times. The payoff was the speed and the size of the response—3,000 cars sold at an average price slightly over $4,000."

And that isn't all, said Southeast Toyota's Al Hendrickson: "The initial sales were phenomenal but this is not the end. We expect more sales over the next three to four weeks based on the campaign's momentum. Additionally, the total exposure of our fine quality product on television will assist us even further in coming months."

The states in Southeast Toyota's marketing area are North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Advertising briefs

Legal minds changed. American Bar Association committee on ethics and professional responsibility has dropped plans to recommend easing of ban on lawyer advertising—at least temporarily. Committee decided to suggest only expanded directory and publication listings at Philadelphia ABA meeting which begins Thursday (Feb. 12), said it will make broader recommendations by August meeting in Atlanta.

X marks spot. Viacom Cablevision of San Francisco, Mission Cable Two of San Diego and Theater Cable of Beverly Hills, Calif., will air series of two-minute spots for Paramount Pictures' X-rated movie "Emmanuelle, The Joys of a Woman," which opens in those three areas on Feb. 11. Dick Inger, director of field advertising for Paramount, said company was in effect forced to go cable route because most TV stations rejected Paramount's ad out of hand on grounds that X-rated movie was being hyped. Two-minute ad, Mr. Inger said, is actual trailer which is shown as coming attraction in theaters, and that trailer has GP rating.
assume Don Andersson's duties in statistical services when he leaves for Turner Communications (BROADCASTING, Feb. 2).

Harry M. (Chip) Shooshan, chief counsel, and Andrew Margeson, staff economist, of the House Communications Subcommittee, appeared before the board to elaborate on the staff's cable report (BROADCASTING, Feb. 2). Their message to the board was that the subcommittee's recommendations on distant-signal importation won't stand a chance on Capitol Hill if the cable industry refuses to accept copyright liability.

The main purpose of the report, according to Mr. Shooshan, was not to promote cable, but raise the cable regulatory issue. He told the board that hearings on cable legislation before the subcommittee should begin in March. Mr. Shooshan reportedly assured the board that Representative Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.), chairman of the subcommittee, was seriously interested in legislation and this was not another report that will sit on the shelf. Messrs. Shooshan and Margeson viewed pay cable as the most significant new service cable can bring to the public and suggested the pay issue will be a rallying point for those opposed to the cable industry growth.

The board passed a resolution praising the staff study on CATV as "a major contribution to the debate on the proper role of cable television" in national telecommunications.

With the election of new officers, Barry Zorthian, Time Inc.; Nathan A. Levine, Sammons Communications; George Nichols, Clinton Cable TV; Bruce Lovett, American TV and Communications, and Alfred Stern, Warner Cable Corp., are due to go off the board. New at-large directors will be elected at the April convention, and reports of those in the running so far include: Richard Munro, Time Inc.; Bill Bresnan, Teleprompter Corp.; Marty Rifkin, American Television and Communications; Gustave Hauser, Warner Cable Corp., and Amos (Bud) Hostetter, Continental Cablevision Inc.

N.Y. pares public access

The New York City government has cut the amount of time available to any one producer on a public-access cable channel to one hour a week.

This move, according to Leonard Cohen, the coordinator of the New York City Office of Telecommunications, will open up the four mandated public-access channels (two each on Manhattan Cable, serving roughly the lower half of the borough, and Teleprompter, serving the upper half), to more users. Present rules allow producers to appropriate as much as seven hours a week.

In addition, the new rules say that public-access producers must change their programing at least once every two weeks to "prevent the endless repeats that some producers insist on showing," in Mr. Cohen's words.

An offer it can't refuse?

FCC suggests that cable system stop importation of radio signals into small market, even though there is no actual rule against it; commission says if CATV doesn't comply, it will come up with a rule.

The Mohave Cable Co. in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., is pondering a request from the FCC that it voluntarily quit carrying four Phoenix FM signals about which a local broadcaster has complained. Mohave's failure to grant the request could result in the commission's adoption of rules affecting not only Mohave, but all cable systems, or so the commission's Cable Television Bureau has warned the company.

The broadcaster involved is Shobloin Broadcasting Inc., licensee of KFWI(AM) and KBAS(FM) Lake Havasu. It contends that Mohave Cable is in violation of "interim processing procedures" the commission adopted in February 1972 pending the adoption of rules governing cable systems' carriage of radio signals. Under the procedures, the commission will not process applications for certificates of compliance which propose the importation of radio... signals more than 75 miles into a community of less than 50,000 already served by a local radio station. And Lake Havasu's population is 2,500.

Mohave, however, contends that violation of interim procedures is not among the actions against which the commission may bring a cease-and-desist order. Furthermore, it says that there is nothing in the interim procedures to prevent a cable system from adding distant or local radio signals to its list of services after receiving a certificate of compliance from the commission—which is what Mohave did.

The FCC, in a letter signed by Cable Television Bureau Chief David Kinley but written at the direction of the commission, agreed that nothing in the Communications Act or the agency's rules "explicitly prohibits" Mohave's carriage of the four Phoenix FM radio stations. But, it added, "the commission believes that the public interest is disserved by this type of radio signal carriage. Accordingly, the commission believes that a voluntary discontinuance of Mohave Cable's carriage of the Phoenix FM radio stations would be appropriate." If the system decides to continue its carriage of the Phoenix stations, Mr. Kinley added, the commission will consider another approach—"the adoption of rules to prohibit this type of radio signal carriage." Mohave's response is due next month.

The situation in Havasu City is not the first one to prompt the commission to request voluntary cessation of service by a cable television system. Last June, the commission asked a system in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, to stop carrying programs of the Armed Forces Television station at Roosevelt Naval Station in Puerto Rico. The commission noted that there was no law or rule prohibiting such carriage, but said that if the system did not comply with the request for voluntary termination, "the commission will consider the commencement of appropriate formal proceedings." The system complied.

Cable agrees with FCC: Do away with required local rate regulation

The abolition of mandatory cable rate regulation by local authorities (Broadcasting, Jan. 5) was well received by cable groups in comments that were filed in advance of the FCC's extended deadline of March 12.

The FCC proposal suggested rewording the rules to allow the franchisor to regulate cable rates only if it wants to do so. An alternate suggestion was to delete the section altogether.

The Florida CATV Association, supported in joint comments filed by Cox Cable, Sammons Communications and other cable operators, said the change would "solve numerous problems" since "it is quite clear that most local franchising authorities do not have the expertise to engage in what can be a complicated rate process."

While favoring the change, the New York State Commission on Cable Television was reported to have published the "flag step by the commission" toward a "prohibition" of local regulation. It agreed though that rate regulation is "properly a matter of state and local concern" and it "would be administratively clearer to leave these matters to the discretion of nonfederal officials."

Is FCC barking up wrong pole?

Utility says agency lacks power to regulate cable attachment fees as NCTA and Ohio system want

The cable television industry's effort to involve the FCC in the regulation of pole-attachment rates charged by utility companies is "frivolous" and constitutes "harassment" and coercion. It is also an attempt to insinuate the commission into regulation it has avoided.

Those are some of the reasons the Toledo Edison Co. gave the FCC last week to dismiss a petition filed by Continental Cablevision of Ohio Inc. and the National Cable Television Association to order Toledo to show cause why its industrial radio licenses should not be revoked (Broadcasting, Jan. 19).

The basis of the petition was a dispute over the rates Toledo wanted Continental to pay for using the utility's poles. The petitioners said that Toledo had used its "total monopoly" of poles in attempting to force an agreement that Continental felt was unreasonable. They said the commission's licensing power is an "appropriate and flexible" means for assuring that Toledo Edison's conduct does not adversely affect the commission's regulation of cable television.

Toledo Edison, however, said the commission lacks the jurisdiction to regulate the terms and conditions of pole attachment contracts between electric utilities and cable television systems. It said the commission in September "refused to regulate" in that area and that Chairman Richard E. Wiley said in a speech that if it had voted on the question, the commission probably would have declined to assert jurisdiction (Broadcasting, Oct. 6, 1975).

The commission cannot do indirectly what it lacks the jurisdiction to do directly, simply because it has "grip" on a particular company, Toledo Edison said.

The company also rejected the petitioners' argument that the anticompetitive issues involved justify the commission's entering the dispute. Any antitrust considerations entertained by the commission must be in areas in which it has jurisdiction, Toledo Edison said. And the regulation sought by the petitioners, it added, would result in FCC regulation of the nation's 3,000 electric utilities—which would be beyond the scope of the Communications Act.

Toledo Edison also said the relief sought—revocation of its industrial radio licenses—would not be in the public interest. That would mean the denial of "electric, gas and steam utility service to residences, businesses and farms in Northwest Ohio," the utility said. The request for the show cause order, it added, "simply highlights the specious and frivolous nature of the petition."

Virtual every dollar spent on national/regional spot starts with — and is influenced by — information agencies and advertisers alike, get from Spot Radio Rates and Data. So isn’t it logical that broadcasters use the SRDS climate — planning and buying activity — to reach, educate, make aware and sell those people responsible for the planning and buying of national/regional spot?

Whenever and wherever these actions occur — at closed door meetings, after hours, before the rep is called, on weekends, in closet buying, for example — Spot Radio Rates and Data is there and in use. Why not do as these successful broadcasters are doing? Put Spot Radio on your sales team. It could be your most effective, yet least expensive, “salesman.”

AM stereo group gets down to work on proposals

Three systems are submitted for test by industry committee; fourth will go straight to FCC

RCA, Sansui Electric Co. and Comm Associates Inc. of Hicksville, N.Y., have proposed AM stereo broadcast systems to a newly organized National AM Stereophonic Radio Committee, which will analyze and begin testing the systems for a report eventually to be submitted to the FCC. The committee expects other manufacturers or inventors to come forward.

The committee, formed as a joint venture of the National Association of Broadcasters, the Electronic Industries Association, the Institute of Electronic and Electrical Engineers and the National Radio Broadcasters Association, hopes to assess all AM stereo projects before writing its report on the feasibility of AM stereo broadcasting. The report is not expected for at least a year, but it could initiate an FCC rulemaking.

The RCA proposal is basically a modernized version of an AM-FM system proposed to the FCC some 15 years ago. When RCA took its AM stereo proposal to the commission in 1963, the FCC declined to undertake a rulemaking because it wanted to give FM stereo a chance to get off the ground before allowing AM to broadcast in stereo.

The Sansui system is a double-sideband operation using various phase shifts on the sidebands and input audio. In normal AM broadcasting, the lower and upper sidebands are in phase with each other and are created as a byproduct of the carrier. Sansui creates the sidebands independently and therefore can control the information that each carries, making a stereo signal. When the two channels are mixed, there is no center buildup. AM listeners with monaural sets will receive all levels in balance. Parts of the system have been built and tested, according to a spokesman, but, like RCA, Sansui has completed no prototype.

The third proposal came from William Hayes of Comm Associates Inc. in Hicksville, N.Y. Mr. Hayes's system involves separately generated upper and lower sidebands which are then filtered to give a total transmitted signal. The "frequency aperture modulation" system, devised in Mr. Hayes's basement, produces a suppressed carrier signal.

Kahn Research Laboratories, Freeport, N.Y., which has tested its asymmetrical sideband stereo system over WFBR(AM) Baltimore (Broadcasting, Nov. 10, 1976) made no proposal to the AM stereo committee. The company's president, Leonard Kahn, favors going straight to the FCC to avoid delays that he says are "built into" committees such as the AM stereo group. He plans to present a stereo AM broadcast proposal to the FCC within six months. "There is no question that we are going ahead with stereo AM," said Mr. Kahn, "after spending 15 years of difficult research to get where we are today."

Chairman of the AM stereo committee is Harold Kassens, of the Washington consulting engineering firm of A.D. Ring & Associates.

The National Quadraphonic Radio Committee, charged with a task not too different from the one facing the AM stereo group, spent four and half years preparing its recommendations to the commission.

PBS to look to skies in Los Angeles

Member stations will vote on proposal to replace present land lines with satellite network; better picture quality, extra transmissions, economy are cited as virtues for TV

When the annual membership meeting of the Public Broadcasting Service convenes in Los Angeles this week, the chief item of business will be whether the present terrestrial land-line interconnection should be replaced by a satellite network. If voted by the stations, it will be submitted to negotiation by the PBS and Corporation for Public Broadcasting boards, meeting separately a day later.

Lead applications for ground stations would be filed shortly thereafter with the hope that construction could begin in the fall of 1976 and the completion of a nationwide satellite network by the summer of 1978.

Contracts with Western Union to furnish the space segment and the Collins Radio Group of Rockwell International Corp. for ground equipment are 90% complete and could be finalized once the stations and respective governing boards approve the change.

Each station would be required to come up with $25,000 as its share of the total satellite cost. It is acknowledged that some smaller market stations may find such an expenditure difficult and, accordingly, PBS would guarantee local loans or provide a loan itself from a fund set up by taking $5,000 off each station's contribution.

As envisioned in the satellite proposal, each licensee would own and operate its own receive-only earth terminal. Any station that would not go along with the satellite plan, if approved, would have to be cut off from PBS feeds since the system could not provide both satellite and terrestrial service. Taped programming available from the PBS library would continue to be available.

Financing for the $38 million plus capital equipment costs for the proposed system is expected to be provided by Prudential Life Insurance and Equitable Life Assurance companies. Approximately $6 million will be put up front to insure the $32.5 million loan by PBS ($600,000), CPB ($600,000), the Ford Foundation ($1.2 million plus) and $3.3 million will be provided by each station's contribution of $20,000.

CPB voted several weeks ago (Broadcasting, Jan. 19) to commit $9.3 million annually over the next 10 years to provide for servicing the debt, satellite operating costs and transponder rental. That cost was agreed to because it represents no increase to the amount of money CPB annually commits to AT&T for maintaining their terrestrial long line interconnection system.

The advantages to public broadcasting in satellite distribution are several. For the first time it would enable more than one simultaneous program transmission, allow member stations to choose between three time slots and decide when to run a nationally fed program. (The PBS satellite plan calls for leasing three transponders on the Westar satellite to compensate for time zone differences. A fourth transponder is anticipated a year and half after the entire system is operational.)

From a technical standpoint, a satellite system promises better signal quality since it does not have to rely on a series of "hops" along the transmission route that ordinarily degrades signal quality.

Simultaneous programing could lead to the creation of a "second channel" for afternoon programing in cities served by more than one public TV station. One station could provide the regular children's and in-school instructional type programs, while another could provide live gavel-to-gavel coverage of congressional activities or develop a "university of the air" program.

Economy is another key element in the satellite picture. PBS estimates that approximately $11.5 million would be saved over the cost of using the present terrestrial system at the end of 10 years. (If PBS estimates are wrong and there should be cost-overruns, PBS will bear those costs.)

That last advantage does not apply to radio, however, and therefore has held up plans as to how National Public Radio could be served by the public satellite system. NPR now relies on a single, non-stereo, non-high fidelity terrestrial channel for interconnection at a cost of $700,000-$800,000 annually. Putting NPR on satellite would multiply those costs and what must be decided in the next several months is which plan would be
A proposal to implant radio signals on the same transponder that provides video and audio TV transmissions was rejected because of interference that could result. Currently, NPR, along with the Satellite Working Group (PBS, CPB, NPK and Ford Foundation consortium) is looking into other possibilities.

One clear option—and the most expensive—would be to have a separate transponder for radio. According to Henry Loomis, CPB president, NPR would go that route if no other option is feasible. The technical advantages for radio, such as stereo capability, are too great to leave radio on the ground.

In the PBS satellite scheme each TV licensee would own its own receive-only terminal. In cities where both public television and public radio outlets exist, the TV station would own the terminal and guarantee access to radio. Each entity would own its own receiver equipment.

In about one-third of the cities served by NPR there is no public television outlet and radio would own its own terminal. Such a terminal intended for radio use only is much cheaper than the approximate $100,000 required to build each TV receive-only terminal.

The proposed PBS satellite system envisions 165 PTV licensees with their own receive-only terminals linking over 260 stations with a master origination terminal to be located in the Washington metropolitan area. (The vendor for that terminal, estimated to cost about $5 million, has not yet been selected.) New public TV stations will be added to the system as they begin service. The 165 base figure already includes 10 more licensees than are presently operating in estimating for 1978 when the satellite system is completed.

In addition, the PBS proposal calls for five regional transmit stations to be located in each of five regional areas as the stations in that area decide. The total cost for such two-way capacity is estimated at $250,000 per region. Complementing those regional uplinks would be one transportable transmitter that could be used by any station wishing to originate programming. Additionally, PBS’s tentative agreement with Western Union—to the extent permitted by the FCC—would allow public television to use WU’s five ground transmitters located throughout the country on a scheduled basis.

Western Union also hopes to be able to use PBS’s ground facilities to extend its capabilities as part of the tentative agreement. That provision is secondary, however, and not part of the proposal for a PBS satellite network that is to be submitted to the FCC. Once the public broadcasting system is in place, Western Union will request FCC approval for its plan to use PBS facilities, and PBS has agreed to support that request with the provision that individual stations that own the ground facilities can refuse if they choose.

Under the proposed Western Union agreement, PBS would pay $800,000 per transponder per year. The additional fourth transponder would be leased for $750,000 annually. The initial seven-year contract being negotiated would allow PBS to renew for another four years at a transponder cost not to exceed $900,000. Should the commercial tariff rate of $1.2 million per transponder be reduced or increased above $2.2 million, then PBS’s contract would reflect those changes.

Ground stations would be co-located with station studios in as many cases as possible to realize increased savings. For about 45% of PTV outlets (75 stations), that will not be possible and microwave connecting facilities would be provided by Western Union.

Public broadcasting’s move towards a satellite network has been two years in the making. If the member stations give the green light next week, it will be two more years—1978—until a complete nationwide satellite system becomes a reality for PBS.

RCA splits domsat from Globcom

Domestic service set up as separate operation; Schneider is president of RCA Americom

RCA has formed RCA American Communications Inc. as a wholly owned subsidiary to own and operate its domestic communications satellite system.

Philip Schneider, executive vice president of RCA Global Communications, where he was responsible for development, construction and marketing of the RCA Satcom system, will be president of the new subsidiary, reporting to Howard R. Hawkins, president of the RCA Communications group. Harold W. Rice, responsible for RCA Satcom services and special projects at RCA Globcom, will be vice president, operations, of RCA American Communications, which will also be known as RCA Americom.

RCA sources said the subsidiary was formed as a result of a ruling by the FCC, which held that RCA Globcom, an international operation, should not operate a strictly domestic service.

The RCA Satcom I spacecraft was launched last December (BROADCASTING, Dec. 15, 1975). Officials said it is currently undergoing in-orbit testing and is expected to be ready for commercial operations in late February. RCA has been providing domestic satellite communications service since December 1973, using leased facilities on Canada's Anik II satellite and later on the Westar II spacecraft.

More DA latitude endorsed by engineers

Citing the greater flexibility afforded engineers, comments to the FCC from consulting engineers are in favor of the commission's proposed change in directional antenna limitations.

The revisions, suggested by the Association of Federal Communications Consulting Engineers in a FCC rulemaking petition, would permit the "in the initial design of the radiation pattern of a proposed directional antenna for a standard broadcast station, the effective field (RMS value) of the pattern may be set at some desired value" by reducing the power levels as long as the RMS of the pattern will not be lower than the 1-kw level for that class of station.

APCFJE said the change will give design engineers more flexibility in adjusting the initial pattern size than the present rules which require that the radiation patterns be constructed in a prescribed "standard" pattern format.

The present method, said Robert A. Jones, consulting engineers, sometimes requires the use of "towers of limited electrical length in order to meet certain radiation standards. The result is that the driving point resistances are unattractive and the problem of suppression of undesired skywaves at night are multiplied."

The changes will allow the RMS to vary between certain upper and lower limits with no required showing of the level of the power input to the array to produce a pattern less than the maximum size. "We feel," said the engineering firm of Hatfield & Dawson, "these proposals would allow a more realistic and practical method of adjusting pattern size than has hitherto been available."

Milton H. Blow, 83, pioneer advertising agency executive and founder/chairman of former Biow Co., New York, died on Feb. 1 in Mount Sinai hospital in New York. He built his agency from one-man operation in 1917 to one that billed more than $50 million in 1950's and ranked among top 10 in billings. He was credited with creating such catch-phrases as "Bulova Watch Time" and "Call for Philip Morris." His agency was said to be first to saturate airwaves with time-signal advertising message, for Bulova watches. He disbanded Biow Co. in 1956 after agency lost several large accounts and some of top executives had left. Survivors include his wife, Eleanor; son, Richard, and daughter, Patricia Broderick.

C. Bruce McConnell, 73, founder of WISH-AM TV Indianapolis, died Jan. 31 at his Indianapolis home of stroke. Mr. McConnell, who retired from broadcasting with sale of his Indianapolis properties and WANE-AM-FM Fort Wayne, Ind., to Corinthian Broadcasting Corp. for $10 million in 1956, was chairman of tobacco distributing firm at time of his death. Mr. McConnell was co-founder of Indiana Broadcasters Association, was at one time member of board of National Association of Broadcasters. Survivors include wife, Marlan L. McConnell; two sons, Robert B. McConnell, VP and general manager of WISH-TV, and C. Bruce McConnell Jr., of Indianapolis; and two daughters, Mrs. Robert A. Nelson of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Robert P. Dellen of Indianapolis.

Hilmer Robert Baukhage, 87, former network news commentator, died Jan. 31 at Washington (D.C.) Home for Incurables after long illness. Mr. Baukhage's career in journalism started in 1913 at Paris bureau of AP. From 1919 to 1932, he worked at old Consolidated Press Service with late David Lawrence. While with Mr. Lawrence's United States News (forerunner of U.S. News and World Report), he began daily newscasts as part of NBC's National Farm and Home Hour in 1934. With advent of World War II, he expanded his assignments for NBC's Red and Blue networks, broadcasting outbreak of war while in Berlin in 1939. When networks were split, Mr. Baukhage went with Blue, later ABC, until 1951. He was with Mutual Broadcasting System for three years. He subsequently was with U.S. News and World Report for short period. Mr. Baukhage is survived by his wife, former Marjorie Collins, who was co-worker at Consolidated Press.

William W. Firman, 54, VP, marketing, ABC Television, died Jan. 31 in Stamford (Conn.) hospital after long illness. He began his broadcast career with CBS Radio in Chicago and was assistant general sales manager there until he joined ABC-TV as director of news and special sales in 1963. He was named VP marketing in 1969, responsible for developing new business. Mr. Firman is survived by his wife, Helen; son, William W. Jr., and daughter, Mrs. Joseph Kelly.

Linton Wells, 82, who retired in 1969 as chief of Storer Broadcasting's Washington news bureau, died at his home there after long illness. Journalist since 1919, Mr. Wells is credited with first two-day broadcast from Latin America in 1935 for NBC. Prior to start of full commercial television, he pioneered in TV with half-hour newscast. He established Storer's Washington bureau in 1962. He is survived by his wife, Fay Gillis Wells, Storer White House correspondent, one son and two daughters.

Alan N. Cormack, 76, pioneer San Francisco radio engineer, died of cancer Jan. 27 in San Anselmo, Calif. Mr. Cormack engineered, constructed and operated 6XG, later KDN San Francisco, which operated from Fairmont Hotel. He was engineer at several California stations including KCBF(AM) San Francisco until his retirement in 1966. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

Andrew F. Lane, 53, former announcer/engineer, KDB-AM-FM and KGDU-AM-FM (now KTDF-AM-FM) Santa Barbara, Calif., died Jan. 27 at Pinecrest hospital there after brief illness. He left broadcasting in late 1960's. He is survived by his wife, Mary, and three sons.

These are the top songs in air-play popularity in two categories on U.S. radio, as reported to The Broadcasting by a nationwide sample of stations. Each song has been "weighted" in terms of The Pulse inc. audience ratings for the reporting station on which it is played and for the part of the day in which it appears. A (B) indicates an upward movement of 10 or more chart positions over the previous Playlist week.

Broadcasting Feb 9 1976
Antitrust/networks. Justice Department antitrust suits charging networks with illegally monopolizing prime time was filed in U.S. Court in Los Angeles in April 1972. Suits were dismissed on ground that networks were denied access to White House tapes and documents they said they needed to support their charge that Nixon administration was politically motivated in bringing suits. However, Judge Robert J. Kelleher permitted Justice to refile suits after President Ford moved into White House, and it did (Cases 74-3599 et al.). Network challenging Judge Kelleher should not have permitted retiling of suits were dismissed by Supreme Court. Networks have made new effort to have suits thrown out by filing motions for summary judgment and dismissal with prejudig (Broadcasting, Dec. 1, 1975).

Broadcasting in Congress. New resolution to permit daily live broadcasts from House floor has been voted out of special House Rules subcommittee on broadcasting and is now before full Rules Committee (see story, this issue). Subcommittee Chairman B.F. Sisk (D-Calif.) is optimistic about resolution's chances for passage; if all goes according to plan, system could be in operation by July 4, 1976. Resolution by Senator Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.) to do same thing in Senate is pending in Senate Rules Committee, but has received no attention.

Cable rebuild deadline. FCC has canceled 1977 deadline for cable systems to comply with (Broadcasting, July 14, 1975). National Black Media Coalition and Philadelphia Community Cable Coalition have appealed that action in U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, Commission also has outstanding rulemaking (Docket 20508) that is considering possible alternatives to 1977 deadline, comments on 20508 have been filed (Broadcasting, Oct. 13, 1975).

Canadian policies. Canadian policy that cable systems there delete commercials from signals of U.S. stations and proposed law deny Canadian advertisers tax deduction for time purchased on American stations are being fought by U.S. broadcasters assisted by FCC and State Department. Latest meeting with Canadians on matter resulted in some optimism on commercial-deletion matter, but not on tax law (Broadcasting, Jan. 19). Next meeting will be in Washington, before end of this month.

Children's TV. FCC's policy statement on children's television programming, adopted in 1974 (Broadcasting, Oct. 28, 1974), has been appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington by Action for Children's Television (Case 74-2008). House Communications Subcommittee has held four days of hearings on broadcast advertising and children, and one member of that subcommittee, Timothy Wirth (D-Colo.), has introduced bill (H.R. 8613) to establish national council to study effects of advertising on children and recommend regulatory reforms if needed (Broadcasting, July 21, 1975).

Commercial contracts. Negotiators for joint Policy Committee of Association of National Advertisers and American Association of Advertising Agencies have reached tentative agreement with American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and Screen Actors Guild on new three-year contract covering performers appearing in television commercials (Broadcasting, Dec. 22, 1975). Proposal has been approved by governing board of unions and is to be submitted to membership for ratification by end of this month.

Community ascertainment. FCC has issued new rules designed to modify procedures commercial stations follow in ascertaining community problems (Broadcasting, Dec. 22, 1975). Rulemaking (Docket 19816) for non-commercial stations has also been issued; comments have been filed (Broadcasting, Oct. 20, 1975).

Consumer agency. Both houses of Congress have passed bills to create new agency for consumer protection (consumer advocacy is Senate bill's focus), but two bills differ in one respect: significant to broadcasters, Senate bill (S. 200) has exemption that prohibits agency from becoming involved in FCC license renewal proceedings, but House bill (H.R. 7575) does not. However, committee report that accompanies House bill says agency's "active participation should be discouraged" in renewal proceedings. Agency would have no regulatory powers; its function is to represent consumer interest in agency and court proceedings. Bill will go to conference between houses to resolve differences, but veto by President is expected.

Copyright legislation. Omnibus copyright revision bill is pending in both houses of Congress, both establishing copyright liability for cable operators and public broadcasters. Senate Judiciary Committee has completed markup on its bill (S. 22), which is substantially similar as bill that passed full Senate last year. House Judiciary Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and Administration of Justice, meantime, has concluded hearings on House's measure, H.R. 223. Markup began last week (see story, this issue).

Crossownership (newspaper-broadcast). FCC order banning newspaper-broadcasting crossownership prospectively and requiring breakup of 16 crossownership has been appealed by various parties to three different circuit courts of appeals. Suits have been transferred from Fourth and Eighth Circuits to one in Washington, where they have been consolidated (Cases 75-1064 et al.). However, court has yet to designate circuit in which they will be argued. Negotiators have petitioned commission to reconsider its order, but commission denied them.

Crossownership (television-cable televisiby National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting and Friends of the Earth.

FCC fees. Sixteen parties have appealed (Cases 75-1053 et al.) FCC's order modifying its fee schedule (BROADCASTING, Jan. 20, 1975). Oral arguments have been held (BROADCASTING, Jan. 26). More than 70 appeals have been filed by broadcasters from.commission refusal to refund fees paid under previous schedule which was held by Supreme Court to be illegal (Cases 75-1087 et al.). Briefs have been filed in that case (BROADCASTING, Sept. 15, 1975). Over 30 parties seeking refunds have been filed in U.S. Court of Claims (Cases 82-1087 et al.) (BROADCASTING, Nov. 3, 1975). FCC has suspended collection of 1973, 1974 and 1975 cable fees pending final court decision on legality of commission order requiring payment of those fees (BROADCASTING, Aug. 4, 1975).

Format changes. FCC has instituted inquiry (Docket 20682) to determine if it can or should be involved in regulating program formats (BROADCASTING, Jan. 5). Comments are due Feb. 15, replies March 11.

Indecency. FCC's declaratory ruling on indecence broadcast (BROADCASTING, Feb 17, 1975) is being appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington (Case 75-1391) by object of ruling, Pacifica Foundation's WBAI(FM) New York. Ruling involves airing of George Carlin album cut. Commission is considering proposed legislation to include television and cable in federal statute banning obscenity on radio (BROADCASTING, Sept. 15, 1975). Commission also fined WXPX(FM) Philadelphia $2,000 for obscure and indecent broadcast, may set station's license for hearing on ground of license abdication of responsibility (BROADCASTING, Dec. 8, 1975).

License renewal legislation. More than 150 representatives and 20 senators have sponsored or co-sponsored license renewal bills so far in 94th Congress. Nearly all provide for lengthening renewal period from three to four or five years and give renewal applicant preference over challenger for substantially living up to his license commitments. None, however is yet on agenda of communications subcommittee in either house. Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.), chairman of House Communica-

Network exclusivity on cable. FCC order substituting 45- and 55-mile zones for signal contours as basis of protecting television stations has been appealed to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington by CBS, NBC and ABC television affiliates associations, National Association of Broadcasters and number of individual broadcasters. Commission has denied petitions for reconsideration of order.

Pay cable; pay TV. FCC's modification of its pay cable and pay television rules (BROAD-CASTING, March 24, 1975) is being opposed by broadcasters and cable operators in U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. Briefs have been filed by broadcasters. Commission order has to remove restrictions on the use of series-type programs by pay cable (BROADCASTING, Nov. 10). Meanwhile Senator Philip Hart (D-Mich.) and his Senate Anti-trust Subcommittee are looking into charges that broadcasters are "throttling" pay TV channels. Two days of hearings were held in May (BROADCASTING, May 26, 1975); more were held in July (BROADCASTING, July 14, 21, 1975) and last month (BROADCASTING, Dec. 15, 1975).

Payola. Grand juries in three cities have indicted 16 individuals and six firms on charges relating to payola, and another grand jury indicted Clive Davis, former CBS Records head, for income-tax evasion (BROADCASTING, June 30, 1975). Group of Brunswick Record officials are scheduled for trial before District Judge Frederick D. Lacey in Newark, N.J. Several others under investigation have pleaded guilty (BROADCASTING, Jan. 26).

"Pensions" case. FCC decision holding that NBC-TV program, Pensions: the Broken Promise, violated fairness doctrine was ordered vacated through successful U.S. Court of Appeals which--after request at full ninejudge circuit--vacated its own earlier decision (BROADCASTING, July 14, 1975). Petitioner, Accuracy in Media, has requested full-court rehearing of panel's order, but was turned down. AIM has asked for Supreme Court review of that decision (BROADCASTING, Nov. 10, 1975).

Performers' royalty. Copyright subcommittees in both houses have hearings on measures to create performers' royalty to be paid by broadcasters and other users of recorded works (BROADCASTING, July 28, 1975). Bill on Senate side is S. 1111 by Senator Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), who has been trying for some 30 years to push measure through. S. 1111 is being considered separately from pending copyright bill, S. 22. Subcommittee on House side is scrutinizing duplicate of Scott bill, H.R. 5345 by Representative George Danielson (D-Calif.), for possible insertion in copyright revision bill pending there (H.R. 2223).

Personal attack rules. FCC will not challenge court reversal of its order asserting that Warner- New York S. 15 violated personal attack rules. Court said commission substituted its judgment for that of licensee, Strauss Communications (BROADCASTING, Feb. 2).

Public broadcasting funding. First-ever long-range funding bill for Corporation for Public Broadcasting has been signed by President Ford (BROADCASTING, Jan. 5). Bill authorizes expenditure of federal funds for CPB for next five years in addition to $68 million in 1976 to $160 million by 1980. Funds would be matched with private money CPB raises on its own: one federal dollar for every $2.50 in private contributions. Parallel appropriations were stricken from bill due to objections of House Appropriation Committee, and will be provided for in separate legislation later. Appropriations Committee has said, however, it will appropriate funds for no more than three years.

Section 315. FCC has voted to change its administration of equal-time law. Political debates and press conferences by presidential and other candidates will be treated as "on-the-air" coverage of political candidate "exempt from equal-time requirements (BROAD-CASTING, Sept. 29, 1975). Decision is being ap-piled to U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington and oral arguments have been held (BROAD-CASTING, Dec. 1). House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) has obtained all FCC documents involved with commission's order; hearings may result (BROADCASTING, Nov. 3, 1975). Commission's action was also dealt with in oversight hearings before Senator John Pastore's (D-Ri) Communications Subcommittee (BROAD-CASTING, Nov. 10, 17, 1975). Also, Senator Pastore has bill (S. 606) that would exempt presidential and vice-presidential candidates from equal-time requirements which has been considered in hearings of fairness doctrine bills (BROAD-CASTING, May 5, 1975). Mr. Macdonald has introduced bill (H.R. 5600) that echoes Mr. Pastore's but it would also provide that pro-games like Meet the Press be exempted from Section 315 and that spokesman from opposing party be given opportunity to reply to any partisan broadcast address by President.

Sports antblackout. Legislation to renew sports antblackout law, which expired Dec. 31, 1975, was stalled when House-Senate conferences failed to agree on compromise (BROAD-CASTING, Dec. 22, 1975). Conference committee will try again when Congress reconvenes late this month. Experimental law provided that pro-essional baseball, football, basketball and hockey games sold out 72 hours in advance cannot be blacked out on home TV. Bill passed by House (H.R. 9568) would make law permanent. Senate-passed bill (S. 2554), on other hand, would extend law experimentally another three years. Both bills would reduce 72-hour cutoff to 24 hours for postseason games in baseball, basketball and hockey.

UHF FCC issued notice of inquiry in May 1975 on UHF taboos to determine if restrictions on proximity of stations could be reduced (BROAD-CASTING, June 2, 1975). In July, Council for UHF Broadcasting filed Action Plan for UHF Development and in August submitted to FCC petitions for rules on teleblackout, use of present levels of recording to and to require indoor UHF anten-as to be attached to sets permanently, as with VHF (BROADCASTING, Aug. 18, 1975). Both petitions are under study by chief engineer's of-ic.

VHF drop-ins. In April, FCC adopted inquiry (Docket 20418) into feasibility of dropping as many as 83 VHF channels into top 100 marks. Inquiry resulted from United Church of Christ petition which substantially embodied study by Office of Telecommunications Policy suggesting channels could be added if mileage-separation standards are reduced. Comments have been filed (BROADCASTING, Dec. 15, 22, 1975).

WPIX(TV). FCC Administrative Law Judge James Tierney has issued initial decision recommending renewal of New York license and denying competing application of Forum Comunications Inc., a decision contested by commision's Broadcast Bureau (BROAD-CASTING, Sept. 22, 1975). Case is moving toward oral argument stage.
As compiled by Broadcasting, Jan. 26 through Jan. 30 and based on filings, authorizations and other FCC actions.

Rulemaking

- FCC denied petition of Storer Broadcasting Co. seeking partial reconsideration of order commission adopted to rules dealing with assignment of new or modified call signs to AM, FM and TV broadcast stations. In part, rules specified that if station relinquished its call sign, that sign then would become available for use elsewhere on request of any interested party. This provision applied even to transfers between commonly-owned stations. In adopting that rule it hoped to end problems of call sign "trafficking"—in which by prearrangement (including payment of money) call sign would be relinquished by one licensee and at same moment requested by another. Storer urged the commission to modify this provision by adding clause to allow such transfers between commonly-owned stations without making them available to other stations (Doc. 17477). Lou Frey: carrying the fallen banner of renewal legislation

In a promotional announcement for its annual convention in January, the Florida Association of Broadcasters dubbed its keynote speaker, Congressman Lou Frey (R-Fla.), "Mr. License Renewal." Mr. Frey is ranking Republican on the House Communications Subcommittee, which deeply involves him in the entire range of communications issues that are before that panel. But for the moment, to broadcasters in the Sunshine State, he is indeed Mr. License Renewal.

Although Mr. Frey's interest in the renewal legislation that died in the previous Congress had been marginal, he now leads a group of 120 of his colleagues in the quest for a new renewal bill—his bill. The House-passed H.R. 5578, is a compromise bill. Provision for a five-year broadcast license—the provision that prompted House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley Staggers (D-W.Va.) to kill the bill in 1974—is not in the Frey bill, at least not outright. Instead H.R. 5578 would empower the FCC to increase the length of the license term from the present three years to five if it found such an increase beneficial to the public interest. The FCC is on record as supporting the five-year license. The Frey bill also urges the FCC to find a way to cut down on the paperwork, strictures that the Frey bill would remove the FCC to increase the length of the license term from the present three years to five if it found such an increase beneficial to the public interest. The FCC is on record as supporting the five-year license. The Frey bill also urges the FCC to find a way to cut down on the paperwork, strictures that the Frey bill would remove.

There is little chance a renewal bill will pass in this session. This is an election year, which means the members will be spending a large portion of their time away from Washington. The Senate is waiting for the House to make its move on renewal legislation, and House Communications Subcommittee Chairman Torbert Macdonald (D-Mass.) has no enthusiasm for it.

Faced with those obstacles, it is perhaps fortunate that the broadcasters have Lou Frey on their side. A man of seemingly boundless energy and optimism, he thinks his bill still has a good chance and says he has a promise from Mr. Macdonald to hold hearings. If the subcommittee can conclude hearings by early May, he says, he feels sure the measure can clear the House this year.

One question Mr. Frey wants to explore thoroughly in hearings on a license renewal bill is the whole question of community ascertainment, which he thinks is "a pile of baloney." "What you're really trying to find out," he says, "is whether the stations are doing a good job... I'm not sure how, but I hope we can find a better way of figuring out whether they're doing a good job without all the damn paperwork."

Mr. Frey has no stomach for a separate renewal bill for radio. "If we get a bill up that is radio-only," he says, "I'm going to do everything I can to amend it on the floor of the committee—which I think I can. If we're going to handle this thing, I think we should handle it in one package. If you break part of it off, you're going to have a hard time getting the other part through..."

Mr. Frey is a lawyer by profession, and a bright one. He was graduated with high honors from both undergraduate and law schools and practiced law for about seven years in Florida. Just a year out of law school, in 1962, he entered public service as assistant county solicitor for Orange county, Fla. In 1967, he was acting general counsel for the Florida State Turnpike Authority. Prior to his election to Congress in 1968 he had held numerous posts in the Florida state Republican party.

He won his first election with a 60% majority and has easily topped that margin in each of his succeeding re-election bids. He won his last with an overwhelming 77% of the vote. In Congress, he was a member of the Communications Subcommittee from 1971 to 1973, left it, then returned in early 1975 when the ranking Republican spot opened.

Lou Frey is an ambitious man, some say to a fault. During his third term in Congress, he was elected chairman of the House Republican Research Committee, becoming the youngest man ever to hold that position, ranked fifth in the House leadership. A prerequisite of the job is a seat at the President's breakfast table along with the other Republican leaders once a week. He is currently President Ford's campaign manager for the state of Florida. Among his many honors and one he is particularly fond of, was his selection in 1974 by Time magazine as one of America's 200 rising leaders.

But for making Mr. Frey to take one of two options for higher jobs in the near future, the governorship of Florida or, further down the line, a run for the Senate. Mr. Frey says only that he will play it as it comes, and that if he is back next year, he would like to remain on the Communications Subcommittee.

Generally regarded as a conservative, Mr. Frey's opinions on communications issues defy partisan labels. Like many, he is disturbed by the amounts of sex and violence on television. "I think sometimes that TV is in incredibly bad taste," he says. But rather than having Congress step into the fray, "I wish the networks would try to do something about it themselves," he says.

He is torn on the issue of the fairness doctrine: "I am not sure I agree with the Red Lion case," he says. "There's no question that the airwaves belong to the public and that the political writers are watching to be some form of regulation of that. But on the other hand, he says, "It's pretty hard to draw a line between your printed media and your other kind of media." He thinks the Communications Act's requirement that broadcasters give equal time to opposing candidates means, in practice, "no time" for either side. He favors repealing the equal-time rule for candidates for President, Vice President, congressman and senator.

Being ranking member of the modest Republican ranks on the Communications Subcommittee (there are two) is a little like being "executive officer of Custer's last stand." Mr. Frey jokes. In fact, in the last year, he has been more active on the subcommittee than anyone save Chairman Macdonald, with whom he is on good terms. Whether he will be able to make good on the title Mr. License Renewal given him by the Florida broadcasters—that tale will be told as the year unfolds.
More of the same

For broadcasters, whose problems with politicians have always been monumental in any election year, the Supreme Court's rulings on the new federal election law only bring chaos out of disorder. No matter how diligently broadcasters bone up on whatever the rules of the moment seem to be, they may safely assume that the headaches of political broadcasting will be worse than ever this year.

Section 315, of course, is still in effect and being interpreted to be a mile a minute by the FCC, the candidates and their supporters. The fairness doctrine, which is contained in 315, changes with the prevailing winds. Those conditions are left untouched by the Supreme Court's decision.

Whatever effects may have been anticipated from the new election laws must now be reconsidered—except for the residue left in the Communications Act in the form of an amendment requiring the FCC to take punitive action against any station that denies a federal candidate "reasonable access" to the air or refuses to sell "reasonable amounts of time" to any federal candidate who wants to advertise.

The Supreme Court's removal of ceilings on political expenditures contains the seeds of future difficulties for broadcasters. There is sure to be a revival of that old talk about quotas of broadcast time set aside for political propaganda. It is but a short legislative step from "reasonable access" to mandated blocks of free time to reduce the cost of modern political campaigning.

Broadcasters, however, are not wholly without friends. Senators William Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Roman Hruska (R-Neb.) have been advocating repeal of Section 315 and the fairness doctrine. The "Open Mike" department appearing elsewhere in this issue features a letter from Senator Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.) raising the hope that repeal can be had in this Bicentennial year and that Congress will "remove other unreasonable restrictions on electronic press in our country."

The Proxmires, Hruskas and Fannins deserve all the support broadcasters can provide.

Separation of powers

Acceding to the wishes of radio members, the National Association of Broadcasters board has voted to support license renewal relief exclusively for radio if legislation restricted to that medium is introduced. Acceding to the wishes of television members, the board has reaffirmed its "commitment to license renewal stability and a lengthened license term for all broadcasters." Thus some of the differences that have been troubling the association seem to be composed.

Radio broadcasters have made no secret of their belief that their own chances for renewal relief are dimmed by their association with television in the various bills that Congress has considered. Indeed they may be right. There is no doubt that television carries political liabilities.

In government, as an influential segment of the press and the academic world, television is perceived as a rapacious oligopoly that needs to be closely supervised. That attitude has been most recently expressed in the House Communications Subcommittee staff report that urges the creation of a national cable system, under the benevolence of government subsidy and nearly total freedom of operation, as an alternative to the "artificial scarcity" of television broadcasting (Broadcasting, Feb. 2).

Radio draws less feverish reactions. The sheer number of competing stations contradicts the basic rationale for television controis. (Not that the television rationale is rational: If scarcity is to be the reason for government regulation, newspapers ought to be encompassed in the Communications Act at once.)

Tactically it may be easier to attain for radio the longer license term that seems to be the radio broadcasters' main desire if television is detached from at least that part of renewal legislation. But, as the NAB board insisted, that must not dilute the association's efforts to attain the relief that was the original purpose of this legislative project.

As some broadcasters have forgotten, renewal bills were first proposed after a freak FCC decision in the WHDH-TV case exposed all multimedia owners to challenge for their facilities by applicants without other media ties and with integrated ownership and management. The need for legislative correction of the WHDH precedent is as great as ever.

If the NAB can get the relief that both its radio and television members want, it will earn its own Distinguished Service Award.

Blow time

Acquaintances recall that Milton H. Biow, who died last week at the age of 83, used to have a favorite word of advice for his agency's clients. "Dominate," he'd insist. "Dominate."

Milton Biow and the Biow Co. were specialists in the kind of dominance he had in mind: making clients' advertising dominate—or seem to dominate—that of their competitors in whatever medium was being used.

His radio time signals for the Bulova Watch Co.—a few seconds giving the hour, followed by "B-U-L-O-V-A Bulova Watch Time"—are still esteemed as classics. Indeed, he is credited with inventing the idea of buying the time between programs and using it for advertising—the commercial station break. His hotel bellman's cry of "Call for Philip Morris" kept that cigarette in the forefront of the public mind for years and years.

The history of spot broadcasting leads back to the Biow shop. The late Edward Petry, founder in 1932 of what then claimed to be the first national sales representative serving an exclusive list of stations, came out of the Biow firm, where he had been an executive on the Bulova account in charge of placing the Bulova time breaks.

The Biow Co. did not literally dominate the agency business, of course, but it ranked among the leaders for many years before it was disbanded. Certainly Mr. Biow was a predominant figure in the business that, in his words, "has been the greatest adventure of my life."

"Aren't you happy here, Tony?"

We hear our listeners.

Our listeners write some of our best commercials. Here, for example, is one received from a group of parents in the southwestern Michigan area.

"We, the parents of all school-age children and young adults in and around the Kalamazoo area, want to express to you and the able staff of workers at WKZO, our appreciation for keeping us current as to school activities, dismissal of schools because of inclement weather, and other factors involving our children. We sincerely . . . thank you all!"

Communicating with both children and adults is all part of the Fetzer tradition of total community involvement.
