Broadcast journalism's own story:
Heroism and tragedy in Guyana

Every day at Five O'Clock
We move into a new neighborhood.

Folks all over Houston are rolling out the welcome wagon, taking us into their neighborhoods. We've been to Cinco de Mayo and Juneteenth celebrations on the east side, art fairs in the Montrose area, tennis tournaments in River Oaks, home restorations in the Heights, and chili cook-offs in Pasadena.

We're going places in the ratings, too. And that's a good reason to check into Ron Stone's Scene at Five, neighbor.

There's something new in the air.

1. Early Fringe. His appeal to young adults makes him a great lead-in for your Early News.

2. Prime-Time. The Rockford Files' perfect mix of adventure and whimsy makes it the ideal program to lead off an "action night" prime-time schedule.

3. Late Night. They love Rockford so much, now they're even staying up late to watch him. He's the top-rated hour of all the late night hours.

Up in arms
Expecting litigation to increase with new FCC regulation, National Association of Broadcasters will earmark fund—perhaps as much as $100,000—for swift court challenges. Proposal will be made to NAB board at its meeting at Maui, Hawaii, next Jan. 14-19, as key new item in NAB's budget of about $5 million.

On premise that FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris has charted what is essentially antibroadcast campaign, with political overtones, NAB board majority is committed to stout resistance to all projects in that mood. These include disclosure of station finances, reimbursement of so-called public-interest complainants, and ascertainties in programming, including new proposals on public service announcements.

Price of money
It hasn't happened yet, but station brokers are apprehensive that rise in prime lending rates can have slow-down effect on station sales. They point out that when prime is at 11 1/2%, level reached last Friday, actual rate to buyer can be 12% or 13%, figures that acquisition-minded broadcasters will find hard to accept. Brokers point out in 1973, when prime reached 12%, station trading volume fell off from 1972.

Stiff-armed
National Association of Broadcasters, conducting highly organized letter-writing and lobbying campaign against tentative FCC decision to make broadcasters rank employees by salary in annual EEO reports, can't get in for personal pitches to FCC Chairman Charles Ferris and Commissioner Tyrone Brown. Those two have indicated they'll rely on record of comments for decision. NAB, however, is skeptical any of commissioners will read 300 letters association has collected from broadcasters and bound into three volumes. It has made detailed presentations to five commissioners who would listen.

Facts of life
FCC Broadcast Bureau Chief Wallace Johnson's response to Chairman Charles D. Ferris' query as to whether commission has authority to investigate broadcasters' ad rates (BROADCASTING, Nov. 20) is said to have contained no surprises: Commission may investigate anything it chooses, but there would be no point looking into ad rates since it lacks authority to regulate them. Mr. Johnson is also reported to have said one action commission could take on anti-inflation front—chairman made inquiry after hearing President Carter exhort agency heads to do what they could about holding down prices—is to urge broadcasters to stay within President's price guidelines.

Response, which is said to have been initiated by General Counsel Robert Bruce and Nina Cornell, head of Office of Plans and Policy, also contained brief economic analysis. It reportedly includes recommendation that ad rates are function of supply and demand, that there is direct relation between size of audience and amount charged for advertising, that upward trend of television prices, has, if anything, laged behind general rate of inflation.

Runners

One prominent figure on list is Richard Chapin, Stuart Broadcasting, Lincoln, Neb., former NAB joint board chairman and Distinguished Service Award winner. There's also former NAB staffer, one-time vice president for station relations, Burns Nugent, now with KACI(AM) The Dalles, Ore., and one celebrity, Curt Gowdy, NBC sports commentator and owner of five radio stations.

Group next
Version of Communications Act rewrite isn't going to be entirely work of Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) and House Communications Subcommittee staff. During House Democratic caucus next week, Representative Van Deerlin plans to gather members who are likely to return to subcommittee next year to get their opinions.

It's far from certain whether subcommittee members will be back next year. Among more active, Timothy Wirth (D-Colo.) and Martin Russo (D-III.) are expected to return. Henry Waxman (D-Calif.) is making try for Health Subcommittee chairmanship, which would probably take him off subcommittee. He's up against stiff competition, however, and chances seemed to dim considerably when it was reported last week that he made contributions to other congressman's campaigns this year, including to Commerce Committee members who would be deciding whether he would become subcommittee chairman.

Finalists
It has simmered down to two-man race for next Distinguished Service Award that National Association of Broadcasters confers annually. In head-to-head contest are Stanley E. Hubbard, 81, chairman and chief executive officer of Hubbard Stations, headquartered in St. Paul-Minneapolis, and Jack W. Harris, 66, president of KPAC Inc., Houston, and its wholly owned subsidiary, WTVF-TV Nashville.

U-turn
Conflict between land mobile radio and television broadcasting over spectrum space is not confined to this country. If anything, problem is more severe in Europe. And long-range solution being discussed there would be enough to send U.S. broadcasting establishment up wall and through roof if it were even hinted at here: Abandon VHF to land mobile, and do all television broadcasting in UHF.

Precedent?
Citizens Communications Center may be in for miniwindfall of some $120,000 after FCC meeting this week. Citizens has had that much in escrow account as result of reimbursement provisions in agreements it reached with six broadcasters in behalf of citizen groups, but says it can't touch funds without losing tax-exempt status unless commission approves reimbursements. And commission's policy is not to approve or disapprove agreements between citizen groups and broadcasters.

However, there were indications last week commission may clear way for Citizens' use of funds, when it considers matter on Thursday. General Counsel's Office is understood to be recommending approval of agreements involving money in escrow—and suggesting that commission consider future reimbursement agreements on case-by-case basis. Chairman Charles D. Ferris and Commissioners Joseph Fogarty and Tyrone Brown are regarded as certain to accept that position. They're looking for fourth vote.

The Pierce piece
EDITOR: Broadcasting's new "Fifth Estate" series on prime movers ("The Upward Mobility of ABC's Fred Pierce," Nov. 13) represents another great innovation those of us in the industry anticipate from your excellent magazine. I can't think of a more deserving lead-off man than Fred Pierce.—Ralph E. Becker, executive vice president, Rust Craft Broadcasting Co., Pittsburgh.

Allegiance
EDITOR: I couldn't help being amused by your comment in the Nov. 20 clutter story calling it "an irony" that I was hired as a consultant to the Association of National Advertisers and American Association of Advertising Agencies "in that Mr. Swafford was formerly on the broadcasters' side of the fence..." I still am, and so, actually, are the ANA and the AAAA.

The fact is, that, like them—and so many others, including a lot of broadcasters—I was concerned about the proliferation of promos when I was at CBS, and spoke to that concern at meetings of the television code board. Later, during my somewhat truncated tenure at the National Association of Broadcasters, I expressed my own growing concern over the possible abuses of at least the spirit of the NAB code, and the certain abuses of the audiences' sensibilities by the flood of promos.

Actually, the real irony may be in your implication that it is to be critical of broadcasting is to have defected to the other side. The ANA and AAAA feel that, far from "being on the other side," they are indispensable partners in the broadcasting business. That fact would seem to be supported by the further irony that your ANA-AAA story in on the same page as your coverage of the Television Bureau of Advertising's annual meeting, with Chairman Marvin Shapiro's exhortation to "sell and re-sell the values and qualities achieved in reaching the consumer through television."

That's what this clutter business is really all about.—Thomas J. Swafford, Alexandria, Va.

(Mr. Swafford, a veteran broadcaster, was head of standards and practices for CBS before becoming senior vice president for public affairs at the NAB.)

The starting point
EDITOR: As writer and syndicator of From Another Point of View, mentioned specifically in "Open Mike" Oct. 23, please let me reply to two questions.

The headline asked, "Speaking for whom?" Each manager using our material retains complete editorial control. Our clients may omit a topic, delete portions, edit and rewrite to fit their own styles, timing and viewpoint. With the final product they truly are speaking for themselves, with "thought starters" provided by us.

Theodore Storck, a client of ours when he operated KTCH, asked in his letter, "Is it morally right for broadcasters to buy ' canned' editorials and pass them off as their own?" For the same reasons given above, by the time our clients hit the air the commentaries certainly are "their own," morally and legally. I certainly couldn't claim them as originals. They certainly can claim them after editing.

In traveling around the country, I too have heard From Another Point of View on many stations. I never heard a commentary word for word as I had written it. Some I did not recognize at all because managers are using the daily format to include local issues. We do provide a source of daily inspiration for topics, which the client is free to expand upon as he sees fit.

Most managers have found that a consistent, daily schedule of commentary is a must in order to be effective. Many are too busy for a daily session at the typewriter after researching and documenting the topic. We provide the necessary help for them to fulfill their responsibilities as a licensee and a vehicle for them to "speak for themselves" after editing.—Bob Cessna, president, Bob Cessna's Consultant Services, Daytona Beach, Fla.

Restoring the human factor to creative decision-making

Whatever happened to judgment? In business these days, it's becoming a lost art.

Remember when you could turn to people you trust and ask, "Do you really think that's right?" And they'd say, "Yes, I sure do." And you'd say, "Let's do it."

That simple exchange of courtesies and mutual respect seems to be going out of style. We have psychological tests to tell us who will be a good worker. We make the simplest decisions by committee. We invoke pre-testing and post-testing to tell us if we've created good advertising. We defer judgment and play percentages. And just as in pro football, when we've got fourth down and a yard to go, we seldom go for it; we punt. While there's no special courage in taking risks, playing it safe all the time does exact its toll.

Research followed fanatically is the mortal enemy of uniqueness and innovation. It can tell us effectively what has been, but it falters in the evaluation of the new and the never-before-tryed. It is, however, the new and unusual that we owe our clients and the consumer. Advertising that catches the public's imagination often causes great things to happen in the marketplace. Sure, even though people love those great old Alka Seltzer spots, the fizz failed to sell. But look at the great innovative advertising that did sell. Meow Mix cat food, Miller Lite beer, Dr Pepper, Levi's, Midas Muffler, Burger King, Harlequin paperback books, Sure antiperspirant. Proof that, if you cause a stir, sales will climb.

Advertising dictated by housewives assembled for the sole purpose of partaking of coffee, cake and a ten-dollar bill looks it. The product that often results is of the lowest-common-denominator variety and seldom excellent. By excellent I refer to the unusual and distinctive persuasive work that all ad agencies promise their clients.

Advertisers often measure creative work by something called 24-hour recall. A piece of advertising that will run daily for months is measured by someone reacting to it a day after seeing it. What about all those subsequent viewings? Could they build to a more persuasive sale? Nobody seems to know. Because ads that flunk 24-hour recall are seldom heard from again. Advertising executives, being smart people, simply found the way to win at 24-hour recall. The standard method of beating this game is simple: some conflict, noise and hollering in the first five seconds, a simple plot and lots of repetition.

The simpler and more repetitive the better.

There you have it. A guaranteed good score. And the formula for formula advertising. Good scores reap contentment among advertisers. But I worry. Does 24-hour recall offer any insight into the question: "Did those who remembered it really care?"

I once observed, in a 24-hour recall test of an automobile commercial, a 10-point difference in over-all awareness caused by the blast of an airhorn in the opening seconds. Should we then begin every car commercial with an airhorn? Research would indicate that might be a smart thing to do.

The "We Try Harder" campaign that gave Avis so much visibility bombed in research. Folks, research said, didn't really care that some company was going to try harder. Only the personal endorsement of William Bernbach, as the story goes, kept the campaign alive. And folks, as it turned out, did care.

Look at what the rating system has done to TV programming. Playing rating percentages gave us the raft of doctor shows of the 60's. Soon the lawyers appeared, who then gave way to cop shows. It wasn't long before a single homicide escalated to two or three wipe-outs, with maybe even a rape thrown in. All because research said doctors and lawyers and violence get ratings.

Now we're into "jiggle." I zealously await the overdoing of "jiggle." Under strict monitoring, program content has grown continually weaker. Few of today's programs ever make it through a full season. This in spite of millions spent on researching what people like to watch.

People like to watch good programs. Good programs are made by talented people. There's no other way to do it. It's the same for advertising. People will respond to solid salesmanship. They'll remember the good and the bad but they'll respond a lot better to the good. For my money, "good" is advertising that's human. Salesmanship with warmth and humor. Or drama or amazement. In this way good advertising besews a "thank you for listening." It could be nuance or a detail—some small thing that pleases or convinces. And very often it is that very small thing that makes it really exceptional. These are beyond the ability of research to measure. So research ignores their existence.

Research is a tool to help us target and evaluate our advertising. I wouldn't want to be without it. It can help us avoid wasting time and money. Not to mention embarrassing screw-ups. In its proper perspective, it's enormously valuable. It's only when it becomes an end in itself that I worry.

Too often, research numbers become the arbiter of right and wrong and success and failure. And eventually, the advertising gets written for research rather than the consumer. It happens very easily. Especially when there's a lot of money at stake.

And doesn't it seem that every time the stakes get high new experts show up? Oracles, who, with devices that measure sweaty palms, knee jerks and eyeball clicks, will tell us how to make things perfect. Like the guys who run the three-card hype on the street, they are just trying to make a living. We make the error by expecting them to give us truth and wisdom. If the truth be known, oracles make lousy creatives.

No research can or should take the place of good old experience, instinct and judgment. And though it's the first thing challenged, it's the last valuable thing an ad agency has to offer. Therefore, it's got to be protected and defended and exercised regularly. So, next time you have the opportunity to take old judgment out for a brisk run around the conference table, do it. It's my judgment that something wonderful will come of it.

Guyana tragedy claims two NBC TV journalists
Don Harris and Robert Brown among four slain in attack on Congressman Ryan's party investigating fanatic cult; NBC technician Sung wounded

NBC correspondent Don Harris, 42, and cameraman Robert Brown, 36, were shot to death Saturday, Nov. 18, in an ambush that took the life of Representative Leo Ryan (D-Calif.) in Guyana, South America.

Others killed in the first round of a macabre series of events that culminated in the suicides of hundreds were Gregory Robinson, 27, a San Francisco Examiner photographer, and Patricia Parks, 18, one of a number of members of the People's Temple sect that Mr. Ryan was investigating and who were trying to leave with the congressman's party.

Among the nine wounded were Stephen Sung, an NBC News technician/soundman, and Ron Javers, a San Francisco Chronicle reporter. Both were shot in the shoulder.

The slain newsmen joined a growing list of broadcast journalists who have lost their lives in the line of duty. Among them: CBS News's George Polk, in Greece in the late 1940's; Ted Yates of NBC News, in Israel; CBS's Gerald Miller and George Syvertsen and two cameramen and a driver, in Cambodia in 1970; ABC News's Terence Khoo and Sam Kai Faye, cameramen, in South Vietnam in 1972; Maurice Williams of WHUR(FM) Washington, during the Hanafi Muslim terrorist siege there in March 1977, and a long list of newspeople reported missing in action during war coverage, including NBC's Welles Hangen and two camera crew members in Cambodia, and CBS's Dana Stone and a cameraman and a sound technician, also in Cambodia.

The Guyana ambush was followed by an apparent mass suicide by more than 800 members of the People's Temple sect. The story, dominating the news last week, horrified both press and public as it was pieced together—beginning with the final minutes of tape Robert Brown had recorded when the ambush started and before he was killed. It showed a gunman and shooting.

Witnesses praised the television newsmen for their courage—in particular Mr. Brown. Ron Javers, in a first-person account in the San Francisco Chronicle, wrote: "Bob Brown stayed on his feet and kept filming what was happening, even as the attackers advanced on him with their guns. He was incredibly tenacious . . . ."

"I saw Brown go down. Then I saw one of the attackers stick a shotgun right into Brown's face, inches away, if that. "Bob's brain was blown out of his head. It splattered the blue NBC minicam. I'll never forget that sight as long as I live."

NBC News, which aired the tape first on its Nightly News Sunday, Nov. 19, also made it available to the other networks.

The Nightly News, via satellite from San Juan, P.R., interviewed NBC producer Robert Flick, who had escaped and offered this description:

"There were two shots as the plane was being loaded to take people out, and the left tire of the plane was shot away. And there were many more shots, 50, 75 shots, and people were being wounded, and falling to the ground. And as they fell, people with shotguns would walk over at point blank range, shoot the victim in the head."

"Congressman Ryan died in this manner, as did Don Harris, a correspondent, and Bob Brown, the cameraman . . . ." Mr. Flick reported that the attackers "killed only the Americans."

According to NBC, correspondent Harris had been working on stories from California about the cult led by Jim Jones, a former chairman of the San Francisco Housing Authority. He decided to accompany Congressman Ryan. Mr. Harris's last interview, the day he was killed, was with Mr. Jones, later to be found among the bodies at the cult's jungle camp of Jessetown, Guyana.

During a special NBC News broadcast late Sunday evening correspondent Jack Perkins reported that "Don knew when he left for Guyana last week it was a dangerous assignment. Several people at NBC tried to talk him out of going. He insisted." Cameraman Bob Brown was said to have had "fearful premonitions."

The NBC news crew traveled with Congressman Ryan and his group from Georgetown, Guyana, to Jessetown on Friday and toured the commune on Saturday. The group, leaving by midafternoon, was said to have increased by a number of sect members who urged that they be taken back to the U.S.

Before the departure, a man reportedly put a knife to Mr. Ryan's neck, but was grabbed by sect members. One of them was said to have knocked the assailant away, then turned the knife around and stabbed him.

Survivors reported a quick departure over the 30-mile dirt track to the airstrip where two planes were waiting. Before the blaze of rifle shots began, they said, a member of the sect thought to be leaving with Mr. Ryan started shooting into the group with a pistol, then was grabbed by a policeman.

Four Guayanese soldiers at the far end of the field reportedly did not intervene, fearing that they would shoot the innocent.

According to Mr. Flick, the ambush was set by American members of the sect. One of the suspects being held after the ambush was identified as Michael Prokes, a former employee of KXTV (TV) Sacramento, Calif. According to Jim Drennan, KXTV assignment editor, Mr. Prokes had been the Stockton-Modesto, Calif., stringer in 1970-72. Mr. Drennan recalled that Mr. Prokes initially had been skeptical of the People's Temple and became involved with them while working on a story. Mr. Prokes came back from his research "so impressed," Mr. Drennan explained, that he gave up all or most of his possessions, quit the station and became the cult's public relations man.

Following the ambush, NBC News President Lester M. Crystal said: "I am shocked at the tragic and senseless deaths that have occurred in Guyana. My sense of loss and grief over the deaths of Don Harris and Bob Brown and the wounding of Steve Sung is overwhelming. These men were among NBC News's finest and their families' loss is our loss."

"Don Harris was a reporter who always wanted to be where the action was. He reported for NBC News in Southeast Asia where he exemplified the skill and courage few reporters achieve."

"Bob Brown, also a veteran of covering the Vietnam War, has been with us less than six months. But as a freelance photographer for CBS and others he was widely recognized as one of the finest in his profession."

"My heart goes out to the families of these brave men. I shall not forget them, nor shall their colleagues at NBC News. The most meaningful memorial we can give them is to report the news with the determination and dedication they demonstrated in their careers."

Julian Goodman, chairman of the NBC executive committee, praised the deceased newsmen during a speech last Tuesday in Columbia, S.C., at a 25th anniversary dinner for WIS-TV there.

"The loss of Don Harris and Bob Brown," he said, "is a personal tragedy for all of NBC News and for all journalism, and a reminder that the freedom and protection we seek for reporters—which sometimes seems itself a losing battle—is more than empty rhetoric."

"It is a protection all free people need, if brave correspondents like Don Harris and Bob Brown are to continue to try to bring us the truth, from those who seek to hide it."

Frank Reynolds, in commentary on ABC's World News Tonight, expressed that network's grief over the deaths of Messrs. Harris, Brown and Examiner photographer Robinson.

"The two NBC men were particularly well known to us—as both competitors and colleagues in a profession that commands devotion and sometimes, too often, demands sacrifice . . . ."

"There is, as you will understand, a special fraternity among broadcast journalists—a fraternity that was enriched by the lives of Don and Bobby, and impoverished beyond measure by their deaths."

Don Harris (whose real name was Dar-\(\text{\textregistered}\) \(\text{\textregistered}\) win Humphrey) began his television career in 1958 as a weatherman at WUSN-TV Charleston, S.C. The following year, he moved to WPTA-TV Fort Wayne, Ind., as a producer and assistant program director. From 1960-68, he was in the news department at WTVT (TV) Tampa, Fla., before joining WTOP-TV (now WDIV-TV) Washington as a reporter and producer.

Prior to joining KNBC-TV Los Angeles as an investigative reporter in 1973, he spent three years as anchor at WFAA-TV Dallas.

In 1975, he became an NBC News correspondent in Southeast Asia, and was said to have volunteered for the most dangerous assignments prior to the fall of Saigon. In 1976 he returned to the U.S. for NBC News, based in Los Angeles.

A winner of various journalism awards including the DuPont-Columbia, Mr. Harris is survived by his wife and three children.

A memorial service for Mr. Harris was held last Wednesday at The First Baptist Church in Vidalia, Ga. He was cremated.

Robert Brown joined NBC News in April, previously having been a free-lance film cameraman with both CBS and ABC News. He also had worked, during the summer of 1977, at KNBC and for several years as a newsfilm cameraman in the San Francisco area. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

A funeral service for Mr. Brown was held last Friday at St. Ambrose Catholic Church in Los Angeles, with burial at Holy Cross Cemetery in Culver City, Calif.

NBC News, from its Burbank, Calif., center, has established memorial funds for both Messrs. Harris and Brown, including a scholarship fund Mr. Harris's three children. At Mrs. Brown's request, a scholarship program has been established in her husband's name for minority members studying photojournalism.
Three industry groups are unequivocal in support of children's ads

ANA, AAAA, AAF, in filing with FTC, contend that commercials directed to young are 'productive and constructive enterprise'

Among filings in the Federal Trade Commission's inquiry into children's advertising was a 64-page document from three groups detailing what they call "the positive case for marketing children's products to children."

In that paper—a supplement to legal filings which are due today (Nov. 27)—the Association of National Advertisers, American Association of Advertising Agencies and American Advertising Federation said advertising to children was not "an insidious, corrosive force preying on young innocents," but "a productive and constructive enterprise which is of genuine benefit to children themselves, their families and society at large."

The three groups said FTC reasoning is faulty in five assumptions about children's advertising—that products advertised to children are by nature bad or harmful, that marketers advertise to children only to create surrogate salesmen, that advertising to children inherently unfair, that the industry fails to control its practices and that nothing would be lost if the commission constrains advertising to children.

Children's advertising benefits children, the groups said, because it gives product information to the child to help him make his own mind, allows for greater diversity of selection, helps prepare the child for later adult roles in a society "based on individual choice and individual responsibility," and insures through advertising dollars that networks have the incentive and resource for continuing child programming.

Such advertising, the groups said, also benefits parents because it gives them confidence that what they purchase is what the child wants, it results in lower prices for many food and toy items, and it provides a "springboard for discussion and parental guidance."

Also, the advertising groups said, commercials for children as regulated by the industry reflect "good safety practices among children," encourage "sound usage" of food products, "position foods within the context of proper nutritional programs," and avoid suggestions of "indiscriminate and/or immoderate use of candies and snacks."

Besides all that, the groups said, children's advertising benefits retailers, who can determine which products to carry, and manufacturers, who can determine which to manufacture. Also, the advertisers said 180,000 employees directly derive their livelihood from the manufacture of toys, cereals, snacks and confections.

Before the flood. Many participants in the Federal Trade Commission proceeding on children's advertising took advantage of an extended deadline—from the day after Thanksgiving to midnight Monday (Nov. 27)—for filling comments. While many, major broadcast and advertising industry and consumer organization comments had not been filed by Friday afternoon, thousands of comments and letters from persons (including many children), groups and businesses from throughout the country were on file at the commission.

Among comments available were those from the National Association of Broadcasters, which said industry self-regulation works and the NAB television code addresses children's advertising with the notion that children should not be isolated from the world, but "cushioned in varying degrees to encourage their healthy development." At various times, the American Advertising Federation said in its comments, the FTC proposals are not based on "empirical evidence" but are based on "faulty premise." AAF also said the FTC had demonstrated "a completely one-sided and biased view..." CBS said the commission cannot legally adopt the proposal, but, besides that, the FTC proposals are "unsound, unwise and... undesirable." It is not the role of the commission to attempt to control people's preferences or values, CBS said. Metromedia said television has been responsive to children's needs and the commission cannot prohibit advertising without producing a decline in quality and quantity of children's programming.

Second season schedules still in starting gate

Networks not quite ready to reject birds in hand for those in bush; 'Lifeline' lame

The three commercial television networks decided last week to put their second-season deliberations on hold for just a little longer.

Programmers were still screening prime-time pilots over the holiday weekend—"some new film came in from Hollywood last night on the Red Eye," was one New York executive's comment as to how things were going—and they were planning to announce their changes this week.

If the programmers were hoping any of the decisions would be made easier by new signs of life from their struggling series, the most recent ratings held out little hope. During the sweep week of Nov. 13-19, there were no nights in which the networks scheduled regular competition—on only one night, Tuesday, was it even close to normal, in fact. Nonetheless, the series that did air generally performed in customary fashion.

Most notable in that regard was NBC-TV's Lifeline. The innovative medical series failed to take off in its three special, last-chance showings, and sources at NBC and the program's executive producer, Thomas Moore of Tomorrow Entertainment, felt its survival prospects were negligible.

On Tuesday, Lifeline scored a 24 share against ABC-TV's Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley and CBS-TV's Paper Chase. On Thursday it pulled a 22 against...
ABC's Mork and Mindy and What's Happening and CBS's The Waltons. Even at that point NBC was said to have been leaning against renewal, before that Mr. Moore called the "disastrous" telecast Saturday night. Facing Fantasy Island and on ABC and the conclusion of "The Bible" on CBS, Lifefline came in with a 9.5 rating and a 17 share, the least-watched show of the week.

Mr. Moore agreed there was some irony in the possibility that "reality television" might be finished off by a show entitled Fantasy Island. "There's something prophetic in that about the state of network television," he said.

There were prophetic ratings for other series during the week. It could be argued for most of them that they were unduly influenced by specials competition, but as ABC has aptly shown, the truly strong series tends to hold at least a core audience against even the mightiest special.

A good example of that was CBS's Barnaby Jones at 10-11 p.m. NYT time Thursday. Despite facing the highest-rated segment of ABC's Pearl, and despite having a miserable 22 share lead-in from Hawaii Five-O, Jones came in with a respectable 29 share. NBC's new entry in the same time period, David Cassidy—Man Undercover, showed less stamina. In its third outing, it plummeted to a 19.5 rating and a 17 share, 11 share points off Quincy's lead-in and the second least-watched show of the week above Lifefline.

Because it is still so relatively young, Cassidy will presumably have a spot when NBC's second-season schedule is announced; however, if it's performance doesn't improve, it might not be around when the second season actually starts. There may well be other shows in that category.

Series that showed weaknesses similar to Cassidy's included CBS's prestige entry, Paper Chase, the only show to lose its time period to Lifefline. It came in with a 21 share at 8-9 p.m. Dick Clark's Live Wednesday on NBC dropped slightly from its norm against two cartoon specials on CBS, coming in with a 21 share. Flying High didn't for CBS Friday; it delivered only a 19 share.

Two new series of special importance to their respective networks fell to 27 shares: ABC's Battlestar Galactica on Sunday and, NBC's Diff'rent Strokes on Friday. Strokes faced a special episode of ABC's Love Boat and showed some strength in only its third outing by holding up as well as it did. Some of Galactica's younger audience was probably stolen away by NBC's Mickey Mouse anniversary special, and a 17-share lead-in from the Hardy Boys Mysteries didn't help. Still, the 27 share represents a continued fading for the space Western, which was beaten soundly by CBS's All in the Family and Alice.

UNESCO declaration on news media is watered down a bit

Gone is outright call for state control of news media; Beebe urges press 'vigilance,' however

Western delegates to the UNESCO conference in Paris breathed a bit easier last week after passage of a compromise declaration on the news media that avoided any suggestion of the rights of governments to control press freedom. The endorsement of the new declaration by the 146 member nations of the organization is being described as a diplomatic setback to the Soviet Union and a victory, of sorts, for those Western governments and news organizations that had viewed the original UNESCO draft as sanctioning state controls on the press.

John E. Reinhardt, director of the International Communication Agency and the head of the U.S. delegation to the international conference, praised the result of two years of complicated negotiations as "a triumph of good will" and "common sense." He said that as far as the U.S. was concerned, "We see no lingering hint of state control." Ambassador Reinhardt added that "except for the form," the compromise declaration bears no resemblance to a draft text submitted to the conference in September by UNESCO Director General Amadou Mahtar M'Bow of Senegal.

George Beebe, the American chairman of the World Press Freedom Committee, a group that has monitored the events surrounding the UNESCO declaration, was somewhat less enthusiastic with the outcome of the conference, however. In a statement, Mr. Beebe said, "We do not consider this a victory." He warned that the press would have to be "vigilant" to prevent "abuse or misinterpretation" of the declaration. Other reservations were expressed by Swiss and Dutch representatives to the conference.

The 11-article declaration was the product of a number of compromises on language. Credit for reaching a text acceptable to all sides of the controversy was being given to Mr. M'Bow, who submitted the compromise text two days before the unanimous endorsement by the conference on Wednesday (Nov. 22). Mr. M'Bow was also the author of the original declaration that had been debated by the conference for the past four weeks. The vote last week all but ended nearly eight years of negotiations that began when the Soviet Union first proposed a declaration on news organizations, which strongly advocated government controls. A Soviet delegate, Yuri Kashlev, said that the earlier Soviet draft "would have been preferable" to the one adopted. A

In Brief

ABC-TV scored its highest average rating of season in third week (Nov. 13-19) of sweeps: 23.6 to CBS's 18.9 (its season high and also fourth consecutive weekly second-place showing) and NBC's 16.8. It was week made up mostly of specials, and ABC's three-part miniseries Pearl outdid them all with 47, 45 and 42 shares.

Test of on-air announcements urging keepers of diaries for audience measurement to fill them out fully and accurately showed diary response rates increased 10% but listening levels dropped 11% and time spent listening to average station declined almost 10%. On hearing those results, Arbitron Radio Advisory Council, which formerly favored such promotions, unanimously voted against them and said it would ask National Association of Broadcasters, National Radio Broadcasters Association and Radio Advertising Bureau also to oppose, Arbitron Radio, which conducted test in cooperation with San Diego broadcasters (BROADCASTING, July 17), already was opposed, as was Broadcast Rating Council.

Chinese delegate was quoted as saying that the compromise draft was filled with "ambiguous formulations."

The declaration, which must still be formally approved by the UNESCO general assembly, is not binding on any nation. U.S. and other Western nations fought against its earlier forms, however, in part, because they feared that a draft conditioning government controls would have encouraged countries wishing to impose restrictions on press coverage.

Among the declaration's provisions are a call for the mass media to aid in countering "aggressive war, racialism, apartheid and other violations of human rights." The document also endorsed the "establishment of a new equilibrium and greater reciprocity in the flow of information" and called upon the news organizations of the developed world to help in establishing "bilateral and multilateral exchanges of information among all states, and in particular between those which have different economic and social systems."

Fleming wants tighter CPB ship

The new president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting last week gave some indication of how he thinks CPB should be organized.

Robben W. Fleming, president of the University of Michigan, who becomes CPB president in January, gave the board and staff a "proposed organization" that drops three vice presidents from the present structure and incorporates an "executive council."

CPB sources made clear that the Fleming proposal was not a directive, but ideas from which the board and staff could work.

Mr. Fleming, who could not be reached for comment in Michigan, proposed CPB vice presidents of telecommunications, planning and research, management and administration, and a separate general counsel's office. The present set-up has six vice presidents—executive, human resources, general counsel and secretary, public affairs, finance and administration/treasurer, and broadcasting.

Under Mr. Fleming's proposal, reporting directly to the president would be special assistants for legislative and equal opportunity. Considered by some to be the key to the organization is the executive council, which would meet regularly and consist of the special assistants, the general counsel and the three vice presidents. The council would be something of a management tool, or policy development group, that would advise the president and aid in decision-making.

The new president, drawing from his experiences at major universities—the administration of which has become more complex during the last decade—appears to want to tighten CPB's structure and maintain a manageable council with which he could work.

Except for the satellite project, which would remain a separate entity reporting directly to the president, the rest of the organization falls under the three vice presidents.

Under the vice president of telecommunications, Mr. Fleming would place TV programing, telecommunications, radio and educational services and public affairs and participation. Under planning and research he has research and statistics, audience services, engineering research and planning. Under the vice president of management and administration, also the secretary/treasurer, he would place board services, grant and contract processing, budget, accounting, personnel, audit and general services.

Sources at CPB said there was no indication the plan called for massive staff cuts.

Blacks make deal with Gannett for merger with CCC

The proposed $379-million merger of the Gannett Co. and Combined Communications Corp. could mean greater participation for minority groups in the mass media. The National Black Media Coalition last week announced an agreement with the two companies that is designed to achieve that end.

Many of the proposals are similar to others contained in agreements reached between broadcasters and citizen groups.

But beyond those matters, the proposals envisage the merged company as playing an affirmative role in helping minority groups enter the ranks of media owners. Gannett will notify prospective minority purchasers of the availability of properties which it has no interest in acquiring (provided the proposed seller agrees to that procedure), and if it decides to sell any of its media properties, it will instruct the broker to contact minority purchasers.

Gannett will also make available without charge to minority groups its management expertise on a consulting basis in financial management and planning. And it will help arrange for financing up to $10,000 per year for three years—of training seminars for minority ownership.

Gannett is currently involved in a project that would expand black ownership of media—the proposed sale of its WHEC-TV Rochester to BENI Broadcasting, which is controlled by a black-owned company, Broadcast Enterprises Inc. That sale, pending before the FCC, is contingent on completion of the Gannett-CCC merger.

The merger would result in a media conglomerate of 79 newspapers (Gannett now owns 77) and 20 radio and television stations (all but two now licensed to CCC).

FCC gets earful on how to define those ‘others’ in ascertainment

Homosexuals want to be included specifically; broadcasters and church groups are in opposition

A request by the National Gay Task Force that the FCC change its ascertainment regulations to specifically include homosexuals has produced hundreds of letters and comments to the commission.

The commission, which has already decided not to include gays among the 19 categories on the community checklist (the 20th is “other”), instead asked for comments on a proposal to require broadcasters to insure that “all significant elements or institutions” which are “readily accessible” within their communities are ascertained.

Such expansion of the “other” category didn’t sit well with broadcasters, and homosexual groups indicated they would accept it only if they couldn’t have their own category—“organizations of and for the gay community.”

In asking for the change in rules, NGTF said the gay community is a “true subculture, which provides to its members a sense of community, as well as many social services which, out of fear, prejudice or ignorance, often are not made available to homosexuals by the more traditional community groups. . . . It is critical that . . . issues be recognized by broadcasters and incorporated into the programming process, in order to foster understanding of this minority group within the dominant heterosexual society.”

Among other groups supporting the expansion of the “other” category to include “all significant” elements of the community were the Epilepsy Foundation of America, the Council of Organizations serving the Deaf, the Gay Activists Alliance, Dignity/Chicago, the National Center for Law and the Deaf and the Gay Caucus of the United Church of Christ and others.

Broadcasters, for a variety of reasons, opposed including homosexuals on the community checklist and expanding the “other” category.

Metromedia said the commission was “apparently incapable of making a decision” whether to add gays to its checklist, so it “passed the buck” to licensees proposing “an amorphous” expansion of the “other” category. Along the same lines, the National Association of Broadcasters said: “Rather than come to grips” with the NGTF request, the commission has “sidestepped” the petitions by proposing to expand the “other” category. If a group can prove it is a “significant” element in a community and is not included among the other 19, NAB said the commission should entertain a formal rulemaking to include it.

Another common complaint was voiced by KEZY Radio Inc.: that adoption of the proposal would “open the floodgates” to litigation at renewal time, “resulting in the very sort of detailed commission involvement in the renewal ascertainment process which the commission sought to avoid when it adopted its revised renewal ascertainment procedures in 1976.”

Those procedures were designed to embody elements that could be added to or subtracted from particular communities and would be reasonable and sensible approach,” KEZY said. “If the commission were to adopt the proposed revision,” it said, “a court reviewing such action would be left justifiably to conclude that the commission is little more than a ship adrift at sea, with no clear perception of policy direction.”

NBC said the present proposal is unneccessary and repetitious, and “an unfortunate step backward.” The New Jersey Broadcasting Authority said its “vague and open-ended nature” makes for licensee uncertainty and invites increased litigation “by special interest groups, no matter how small or insignificant, which believe that their needs, problems and interests have been ignored by the broadast licensee.”

Asking, CBS said the proposal was “unwarranted,” “a burden” on licensees, commissioners and commission staff, would inject increased uncertainty in the renewal process and “needlessly resurrect the burdensome and superfluous compositional studies previously required of renewal applicants.” CBS and others said the present system worked well and should be kept.

Several comments, including those of the National Radio Broadcasters Association, said there was not enough information to determine the extent to which needs, problems and interests of gays are being ignored, or any inadequacy of the present checklist. Metromedia said gay leaders were being interviewed under the “minority” and “other” categories.

The National Religious Broadcasters were “appalled” at the proposal, “not because it is inherently bad, but because of the insidious effect it will have across the land.” In the “Judeo-Christian heritage, homosexual behavior is an abomination,” NRB said. “It is worse than five of the SevenDirty Words” [FCC v. Pacifica Foundation]. By adoption, the commission would be fostering a framework encouraging this offensive program.

Each broadcast licensee is presently free to devote as much or as little programing to homosexuality as it believes is in the public interest, NRB said.

NRB and others said that engaging in homosexual activities is illegal in more than half the states. WMPC(AM) Lapeer, Mich., said, “This would put broadcasters in the dubious position of consulting and programing to meet the needs of a group involved in illegal activities in order to maintain his or her own status as a law abiding citizen.”

There were three large volumes filled with emotional letters and cards from people throughout the country both for and against the proposal. Many were from persons who said they were homosexuals and that they felt there was not enough programming for them on television or radio.

On the other hand, one woman wrote, “. . . what do these folks need from television that the rest of us don’t? Do they want a quota system to be sure 10% of TV people are homosexual . . . ? It isn’t as though you could tell from looking at a person whether he is homosexual or heterosexual as you can with blacks and women (usually). What I want from TV is first, information. I get plenty of information about homosexuals in the news and an occasional talk show or documentary. Second I want good entertainment. Preferably clean entertainment without heavy emphasis on sex or crime. Why should this antagonize homosexuals? Why are their needs different from those of the rest of us?”

Public radio-TV worries about its turf

PBS asks FCC not to revise eligibility ground rules until results of current studies are made known; CPB cautious of changes since 1952; state licensees want to be sure they’re not dealt out

The Public Broadcasting Service has urged the FCC not to consider changing its eligibility requirements for public broadcasting licenses until various studies on the subject—including the Carnegie II report—are completed.

In its proposal, the commission solicited comments on five criteria it suggested as a basis for choosing who can get a license for educational or public broadcasting. PBS said it anticipates that the Carnegie Report on the Future of Public Broadcasting—due in January—will recommend a reassessment of the system structure, funding levels and mechanisms, the role of education and instruction in public television, the relationship between television and radio and the role of new technologies. Besides Carnegie, PBS is preparing a long-range report, as is Congress (with the rewrite bill), the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and National Public Radio. The PBS report is due in June and all the others sometime before that. If it awaits these reports, the commission will have the benefit of diverse and valuable resources of data, analyses and recommendations not presently available that will permit a more organized, coordinated and considered policy making process, PBS said.

In the interim, PBS said the eligibility requirements should be considered case by case as they are now considered.

The commission proposed that licenses be given to Internal Revenue Service-recognized tax exempt organizations, or to those recognized under Department of Health, Education and Welfare standards, or to all full-time general curriculum school, or to all public universities, colleges and aard diplomas or degrees. Two other criteria would be the nature of the educational programming to be offered or a public broadcasting/community service concept that would involve varied public representation. In its proposal, the FCC invited comment on each and any other eligibility requirements.

In its comments, PBS claimed the commission proposals are not in accord with “sound principles” of public television. Using the IRS or HEW classifications, it said, would be an unwise delegation of authority. Accepting just schools or colleges would be a drastic change from present policy, and reviewing programming a step that might bring the commission too much into station programming. The ascertainment approach with the varied representation is, PBS said, “a classic example of ideas which are good when developed naturally and freely, and bad when imposed as a national standard by federal government regulation.”

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting found much the same wrong with the commission proposals, and said three things must be considered—a strong base of financial support, strong community support and involvement and preservation of the noncommercial and nonprofit educational nature of the licenses.

Many of the comments, including those of CPB, stressed how much “educational” or public broadcasting had changed since 1952, when the commission reserved some channels for educational use. The idea has gone from “educational” to “public” and now “public telecommunications” to indicate that services provided by the stations “may go beyond broadcasting services,” CPB said.

“Today’s service goes far beyond the limited conceptions of in-school instruction and training for students that were dominant a generation ago,” the National Federation of Community Broadcasters said. “The competing uses of reserved channels; the demand for greater diversity, responsiveness and service; and the growing scarcity of spectrum space all suggest the need for clear standards of service and a policy of priorities for noncommercial educational radio,” NFCB said.

The organization, which has a large radio membership, said three objectives should be considered—effective public service, local control and representation of the “full range” of community interests.

The National Association of Educational Broadcasters said present commission rules suffice. “The various types of public broadcast licensees (state, local, community and university) have enhanced diversity of the programming presented on noncommercial educational broadcast stations and have fostered a close pattern of programming to the specific needs of the communities and areas served. The success of the commission’s flexible eligibility criteria is evident in the varied structure of public broadcasting in this country,” NAEB said.

Among 155 public television licensees in September, there were 60 community, 53 university, 24 state and 18 local schools, the organization said. In November, among radio licensees, there were 127 university, 40 community, 23 local school and eight state. In July of 1978 there were 933 educational FM stations (209 in 1962) and 260 television stations (75 in 1962).

Several of those filing comments said, as did NAEB, that flexible eligibility criteria are essential to the continued development of public broadcasting, although some did not. For instance, Brigham Young University said that, because of the limited spectrum space for educational broadcast stations, future allocations should go to post-secondary educational institutions (with existing licensees grandfathered).

Whatever regulations are made, the Georgia State Board of Education said they must “encompass the state educational television systems; the Alaska Public Broadcasting Commission said they must” allow local groups to get licenses, and the National Religious Broadcasters said no regulations should be adopted that exclude religious groups and schools.

Affiliates tell their side of the audience story

ABC-commissioned study shows that viewers have higher opinions of network-related stations than of independents

A study commissioned by the ABC Owned Television Stations asserts that viewers perceive programing and commercials on independent TV stations as inferior to those on network affiliates, and regard affiliates' commercial environment as more effective in motivating them to buy products.

The study was conducted at a cost of $150,000 by the Rowland Organization Inc., Greenwich, Conn., among 1,000 female heads of households throughout the country during the fourth quarter of 1977 and the first quarter of 1978. David Johnson, vice president of the ABC Owned Television Stations division, said the study was not designed as a response to one by the Association of Independent Television Stations which held that the same types of viewers watch independent and network television.

"We planned our study about two and a half years ago, long before we heard of the INTV study," he said. "And our study concentrates on what viewers believe to be true about programing and commercial differences between network and independent TV. These perceptions of differences have an effect on what people will buy."

Mr. Johnson said a few agencies have been exposed to a presentation based on the study and acknowledged that the reaction has been "hostile." He added that this response was predictable inasmuch as acceptance of the study's findings would limit agencies' flexibility in selecting media and probably increase advertising investments.

"We will be taking the study early next year to advertisers all over the country," Mr. Johnson said.

Herman W. Land, president of INTV, said "it is flattering to us that the number-one TV network has taken off against independent TV stations, rather than against their network competitors. It's a testament to our progress in all dayparts and is a recognition that advertisers are turning increasingly to independent TV."

Mr. Johnson reported that the study was undertaken because there was a prevailing attitude among the ABC staff that viewers regard the programing and commercial environment of network affiliates to be superior to that of independents.

"And our study proved just that," he said.

Among the highlights of the study: Viewers know the difference between network and independent stations, with 90% correctly identifying network affiliates and 84% the independent outlets; viewers distinguish "marked differences" between the viewing audience and program quality of the two groups (they believe affiliates are more widely viewed and their audience consists of "elite" viewers, in contrast with independents, whose "imagery" reflects "dullness, limited budgets and less intelligent or less educated audiences.")

Rule rails against the regulators

He claims that government agencies approach their jobs with preconceived notions

Business today is faced with "a new breed of super-regulator" who is "usually convinced that business is bad and that big business is very bad," and who frequently believes that people in general are "stupid."

That charge, coupled with a plea for continuing effort to show businessmen and citizens that "every regulation has a cost in innovation and productivity," was issued by Elton H. Rule, president of ABC Inc. Mr. Rule was addressing the New York chapter of American women in Radio and Television at a luncheon saluting the 25th anniversary of ABC's current ownership and management.

"I do not agree with those who say we could or should do away with all government regulation," Mr. Rule said. "A nation and an economy as big and as diverse as ours would be in chaos without some regulation. But too many of these rules are just plain silly."

He cited particularly the Federal Trade Commission's proposed restrictions on television advertising to children. And when a San Francisco radio station editorialized against the FTC proposal last summer, he said, an FTC economist took reply time on the station and in effect urged listeners to boycott the station. He quoted the FTC economist as telling the audience:

"If you agree that the FTC should help our children who are innocent victims of big business, register your vote by turning to another radio station. And don't turn back [to this station] until big business, in their unrelenting search for profits, is constrained from unilaterally determining the commercial wants and desires of the most innocent victims of big business—our children."

Mr. Rule declared: "The more you think about it, the more frightening that statement becomes. Can anyone regulate fairly and effectively with that strong a bias against the thing he is supposed to regulate?"

Mr. Rule's speech echoed views he expressed a few days earlier in Los Angeles, where he received the University of Southern California award for "outstanding achievement in business management."

Lionel Van Deeerin (D-Calif.), chairman of the House Communications Subcommittee, heads a list of congressmen who received honoraria and other fees from broadcasting and cable groups for speaking appearances last year.

Under a new disclosure law, congressmen must reveal more details of their financial situations than in years past, including income from speaking engagements.

As reported by Congressional Quarterly, Mr. Van Deeerin received $3,750 for appearances before the National Association of Broadcasters in 1977; $1,000 from the National Cable Television Association; expenses and airfare for an ABC meeting in San Juan, P.R.; $1,000 from NBC, and $750 from the California Cable TV Association (CCTA).

Senator Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.), chairman of the Senate Communications Subcommittee, also received broadcast and cable-related honoraria, including $2,000 from the NAB, $1,000 from the Florida Cable Television Association and $1,000 from CCTA. Mr. Hollings's superior on the Commerce Committee, Chairman Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), received $1,000 from NCTA and $1,000 from the CCTA.

The financial reports also show which members of Congress owned interests in communications companies in 1977, revealing, for instance, that Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee for 22 years, owned stock in Warner Communications, with its extensive cable system and TV program holdings. That interest, Mr. Magnuson reported, is worth between $100,000 and $250,000.

A spokesman for the senator said last week that he cannot say whether Mr. Magnuson still has the stock. The senator, although giving up the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee in January 1977 to become chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is still a member of the committee that oversees cable and broadcasting.

Regrets from ANPA to FTC for seminar on media concentration

After several weeks of discussions with the Federal Trade Commission, the American Newspaper Publishers Association has decided not to participate in the commission's media symposium, Dec. 14 and 15 in Washington.

"If you decide to go ahead with the symposium," ANPA executive vice president and general manager, Jerry W. Friedheim, said in a letter to the FTC, "ANPA will monitor it and perhaps will want to comment to you about it in writing later on."

The commission, as of last week, was indeed going on with the symposium, which ANPA had complained was "stacked" against the media (BROADCASTING, Oct. 23). Among some 30 speakers listed in the latest symposium agenda were representatives of the National Cable Television Association, CBS, National Association of Broadcasters and American Newspapers Inc.

FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk has said the meeting, which is open to the public, is an information-gathering device. "Mindful of the importance of a free press and of the significance of competitive issues in the media, we have undertaken in this instance not a law enforcement investigation, but simply a gathering of information from sources within and outside the media industry in order to shed more light on the issues involved."

The commission has been soliciting participation by the media (BROADCASTING, Oct. 9), but several of those involved have been disappointed with the response. The commission said it intends to insure that a "wide range of representative views on the subject will be included in a report of the proceedings." Following publication of the report, public comments will be invited.

Media Briefs

Payoff. National Association of Broadcasters executive committee decided to form committee to set up system for distributing broadcasting's share of cable's "copyright" royalties. Under new law, cable has compulsory copyright license, makes payments to U.S. Copyright Office, which then passes it out to claimants. New NAB committee will try to decide how much each broadcast claimant should get. It appears cable's annual payments will total $12 million. First checks won't go out to claimants, probably, until late 1979.

Count them up. Arbitron has released what it says is "largest broadcast audience research project ever." It's "Arbitron Radio Coverage Study" and is said to include 7,082 radio stations (86% of those in operation).

Buying back. Capital Cities Communications Inc., New York, has bought in open market 610,000 shares of its common stock, fulfilling purchases of shares authorized by its board of directors last June 27. Capital Cities now has 13,512,000 shares of common stock outstanding after giving effect to 1,881,443 shares held in treasury.

In David Sarnoff's memory. Establishment of David Sarnoff Award for outstanding achievement in radio or television by individual has been announced by University of Arizona's department of radio-television in College of Fine Arts. First award will be made in fall of 1979, according to university, which is sponsoring annual honors with support and endorsement of both Sarnoff family and RCA Corp. Late Brigadier General Sarnoff, who pioneered in communications, served as chief executive officer and board chairman of RCA.

Once again, please. FCC has asked U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to remand case in which Truth Publishing Co. is appealing commission's refusal to grant it tax certificate in connection with its sale of one-third of assets of Valley Cablevision, South Bend, Ind. Commission had denied certificate on ground Truth had received one in 1975 when it sold its co-located Elkhart, Ind., station, WSJV(AM), thereby breaking crosstownship between television and cable.

Strike hurts Times. Broadcasting revenues of New York Times Co. reached $7,883,000 for nine months ended Sept. 30, gain of 23% from same period of 1977, and operating profits rose 50% to $2,530,000. Company as a whole, however, reported net income of $13,067,000, down 28% from 1977 period because of 88-day strike against New York Times. During third quarter, when paper was closed for 52 days, paper reported net operating loss of $7,945,000 and company had consolidated net loss of $2,186,000. Publication resumed Nov. 6.

New degree. New York University's school of arts next fall will begin two-year master's degree program in interactive telecommunications. First class will be limited to 20 students and is said to be first program in country with curriculum combining "technical, theoretical and practical application of media used for interactive, rather than one-way communication." Program was developed with Rockefeller Foundation support.

Television to get treatment at ANA

Entire Tuesday morning agenda devoted to new trends in medium; FTC problems set for Wednesday

A morning devoted to "current trends in television programing" will be among the highlights of the annual meeting of the Association of National Advertisers, which gets down to business today (Nov. 27) at Cameback Inn, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Participants in the session are Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS/Broadcast Group; Win Baker, president of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.'s TV station group, and Lee Rich, president of Lorimar Productions. The session is scheduled Wednesday morning as the windup of the meeting.

Close to 500 ANA members and guests are expected to attend the meeting, which focuses this morning on "evolving perceptions of the role and responsibilities of business," after a Sunday spent in sports and tours. Speakers are William Bernbach of Doyle Dane Bernbach; R. Hal Dean, chairman of Ralston Purina Co.; Ben J. Wattenberg, author and editor, and Ellen Goodman, syndicated columnist.

A closed meeting of ANA members to elect officers and manage other business is scheduled Monday afternoon.

Tuesday's agenda opens with five "update clinics"—including one on current developments in television. This is expected to get into such subjects as "clutter," programing, new research on commercial effectiveness, cut-in charges, audience measurements, talent union contract negotiations and regional self-offs.

Harry Way of Colgate-Palmolive will be moderator for the TV clinic, and panelists will be David K. Braun of General Foods, Alden G. Clayton of Marketing Science Institute, A.B. Priemer of S. C. Johnson & Son, and Peter J. Spengler of Bristol-Myers.

Other clinics will explore subjects ranging from assessing the return on advertising investment to syndicated magazine audience research.

A special session on government affairs is scheduled Tuesday afternoon. Problem areas to be reviewed include the Federal Trade Commission's move to restrict TV advertising to children, congressional efforts to limit tax deductibility of corporate "issue" advertising, the FTC's nutritional advertising trade regulation rule and moves by the FTC and the Food and Drug Administration to regulate advertising claims for over-the-counter drugs.

Vitt branches out

Vitt Media International, New York-based independent media buying firm, has formed a wholly owned subsidiary to market what it calls a "revolutionary" new computer-based media planning system. The subsidiary is Williams Media Planning System Inc. and it is headed by David Williams, who developed the planning concept it uses.

The system is said to provide up to five alternate media plans for client-subscribers and to be capable of handling all major consumer media including spot and network TV and radio, national and regional magazines, newspapers, outdoor and direct mail.

Mr. Williams said his company will provide a full planning service to each subscriber and that this will include planning and consultation, plan interpretation and processing, in-putting materials, editing, report delivery, report evaluation assistance and assistance in construction of alternate plans. The cost: one-half of one percent of the gross media budget, with a $6,000 minimum charge.

Another law firm takes to the airwaves

Nationwide association begins New York campaign, may expand to other states if successful

A new TV advertising campaign by lawyers has broken in New York and may be extended to a dozen other states if it works.

The client is the Nationwide Law Firm, a voluntary association of lawyers who, without giving up existing affiliations, join NLF and agree to provide services for reasonable fees. NLF—and its advertising—are products of the 1977 U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down barriers to advertising by professional people ("Monday Memo," Nov. 13).

The 30-second commercial introduced by NLF was created by the Altman, Stoller, Weiss agency. It shows a troubled, middle-class white man while the voice-over says:

"This man needs a lawyer, but he doesn't have one. If you need a lawyer, call and become a client of the Nationwide Law Firm for a yearly retainer of $25. This entitles you to initial consultations in six legal areas, including matrimonial, accidents, real estate, criminal, wills. If you need more help, you'll be represented for a reasonable fee."

The last frame shows the firm name and phone number and concludes: "Now you have a lawyer!"

The commercial was scheduled on four New York stations: WABC-TV WCBS-TV, WOR-TV and WPIX-TV. NLF sources said that if it proves successful it will be scheduled in 12 other states where NLF has offices and where advertising by lawyers is permitted. Donald DuRoy, the firm's administrative director, said he hoped the campaign would help change the American Bar Association's reluctance about lawyer advertising. "I think it's fair to say," he asserted, "that the bar is not knowledgeable about the values of television at this time."

He declined to say how much NLF was spending in the New York campaign but noted that it consisted of 53 showings of the commercial spread across four stations in a week's time.
ABC unhappy with its other-night editions of pro prime-time football

Three Sunday and one Thursday versions of popular Monday games fail in the ratings; network will only do minimum allowable next year

ABC Sports, suffering mediocre ratings for some of the extra prime-time games in its new National League Football contract, plans next season to air the minimum number of such games possible under the deal, four, and to keep them away from Sunday night.

"It is our feeling and the feeling of the NFL that the number should be four in 1979," said James Spence, senior vice president of ABC Sports, and "I think the games would be of greater interest on other days than Sunday." More Thursday games would be "the most likely prospect," Mr. Spence said, although the specifics are still being negotiated.

The NFL deal provides for four to six of the extra games each season, at a price of about $3 million each ("Closed Circuit," Nov. 14, 1977). The number of additional games next year was to be determined after evaluating the performances of those this year, when one Thursday night game and three Sunday night games were scheduled.

The first Sunday game, on Sept. 24, aired during the premiere weeks of CBS-TV and NBC-TV and pulled a 16.3 rating and a 28 share, a distant third in its time period. The second on Nov. 12, pulled an 18.3/31, also a third-place showing. The Thursday game, on Oct. 26, pulled a 22.6/37 and won the night for ABC, but not by a greater margin than its series usually provide. (Those ratings are for the full duration of the games, which all ran prime time and in doing so increased their ratings averages slightly due to the local news competition on the other networks.)

The final Sunday game is to air Dec. 3, when Denver will meet Oakland in what Mr. Spence believes should be a high-interest contest. Sunday is the heaviest viewing night of the week and therefore the most competitive for the networks. CBS and NBC both have Sunday games and each week one of them airs a doubleheader.

ABC President Fred Pierce told Broadcasting that the NFL forced ABC to accept the extra game package during negotiations last fall. According to Kevin O'Malley, a vice president of CBS Sports and one of the ABC's most vociferous in the negotiations, the league at first put the package up for grabs to all three networks. But ABC wanted to keep its prime-time exclusivity while the other networks wanted to hold on to their rights to the play-offs and Super Bowls, he said, so the NFL changed its mind.

Football ratings are slightly off on all three networks so far this season. Through Nov. 13, ABC's Monday night games averaged a 21.1 rating, Mr. Spence said, about a half-point off their average at this point last year. NBC said it has an 11.7 average now compared to a 12.5 last year, while CNN's average is 14.1, down 6% from a year ago.

Sports executives at all three networks put part of the blame on the earlier start this season (13 days earlier), when lower viewing levels may have dragged averages down. A CBS executive also said the network's average dropped when NBC scheduled a World Series game against CBS's Sunday afternoon football. Last year the Sunday series game aired at night, he said.

ABC's Mr. Spence also said last week that his division is looking to cut back on the number of prime-time baseball games it accepts in the new contract now being negotiated with the professional leagues. Mr. Spence declined to give specifics on the discussions, but he didn't contradict Mr. Pierce's assertions that ABC wants between eight and 10 Monday-night games instead of the 18 telecast last season.

William F Turner, head of the ABC affiliates' sports committee and president of KCAU-TV Sioux City, Iowa, said it is his understanding that some Sunday Night football games are also being considered.

Mr. Turner also agreed with a number of other ABC affiliates, who said last week that there had been no affiliate poll concerning whether ABC should renew its baseball contract at all. Several newspapers have reported that such a poll found an overwhelming margin against renewal, but Mr. Turner and others said dissatisfaction with the games has been greatly lowered by ABC's moving up starting times of the games from 8:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Monday Night Football last season averaged a 12.7 rating, up slightly from the 12.5 record set in 1977, ABC said.

MPAA goading FCC to move on request to limit network power over producers

Almost a year and a half ago, the Motion Picture Association of America petitioned the FCC to limit the agreements networks could negotiate with producers. MPAA is still waiting for a response, so now, through its attorneys, it renewed its request, and this time asked for action within the next 30 days.

The original pleading, filed on June 1, 1977, requested changes in the FCC's financial interest ruling that would bar networks (1) from entering agreements that grant options to produce programs at preset prices, (2) from obtaining extended exclusivity rights against the showings by others of series episodes after the network exhibition rights in the older episodes have expired, and (3) from precluding producers from creating new and diverse derivative works based on previously licensed series and licensing the new programs to others.

Arthur Scheiner, counsel for MPAA, notes in his letter to Chairman Charles D. Ferris that MPAA President Jack Valenti wrote the commission late last year expressing concern about the lack of action. In February, Mr. Scheiner adds, Wallace Johnson, chief of the Broadcast Bureau, replied, stating that the petition would be "one of the first matters" taken up by the new network inquiry staff, then being reconstituted.

But, Mr. Scheiner said, when the further notice reopening the inquiry was finally issued, on Oct. 20, it said nothing about the petition. And the co-directors of the inquiry staff, Thomas Krattenmaker and Stanley Besen, said the staff was not working on the matter.

Mr. Scheiner noted that the petition has "languished" at the commission for almost one and a half years and is in "no better posture today than when it was originally filed." Accordingly, he added, "continued failure of the commission to act on a matter of such important and urgent concern is wholly unreasonable."

Warner TV acquires some big players for its producing team

Among those signed to contracts: Komack, Arnold, Byne-Einstein and Nicholl-Ross-West

Warner Bros. Television Distribution has signed 30 exclusive worldwide distribution rights from what it calls a "powerhouse of leading producers." Those who have signed their names to multiyear contracts for current and future projects—many of them situation comedies—include James Komack, Danny Arnold, and the teams of Don Nicholl, Michael Ross and Bernie West, and Alan Byne and Bob Einstein.

The signings, over the past several months, follow Warner Bros. TV's acquisition last year of David L. Wolper's organization, which has been producing Roots: the Next Generation for an ABC-TV airing early next year.

James Komack, executive producer of Welcome Back, Kotter and Chico and the Man, currently syndicated domestically by Warner, has development deals for the three networks for TV movies and pilots. Faculty Lounge, a situation comedy pilot, is in production for NBC-TV; Maxx, another sitcom, is in preproduction for ABC-TV.

Danny Arnold, producer of Barney Miller, is giving Warner rights to the vehicles he is pursuing for ABC-TV, including orders for six episodes of a new sitcom, Triangle, and five half-hours of National Graffiti, a current-events comedy send-up. Writing-producing team Don Nicholl,

New York seminar promotes idea of using TV to broaden children's cultural experiences

Participants in a seminar organized by Action for Children's Television concluded there are wide opportunities for both commercial and public television to expose children to various arts.

An estimated 100 representatives of broadcasting and culturally oriented organizations attended the seminar in New York on Nov. 9, the first of a series of regional workshops set up by ACT to encourage arts programing on local children's television. The New York conference was funded by the Gund Foundation, Cleveland.

David Rockefelder, Jr., chairman of Arts, Education and Americans Inc., New York, noted that TV today can be a vital tool in advancing the arts, substituting, in part, for the cutback in public funds to schools and other local community organizations. But Mr. Rockefelder raised some questions: Should television encourage children to develop themselves more creatively or should the programs teach children more about what adults call "great art?"

Christopher Sarson, an independent producer responsible for Live from the Met on public television, described a project designed to foster appreciation of opera among school children. Opera performers have visited schools in the New York area, he said, presenting parts of operas for students and involving them by having them participate in the singing.

Gideon Chagy, vice president, Business Committee for the Arts, said corporate support for the arts is strong today. He suggested that if producing groups or cultural organizations approach corporations with projects appropriate to the proposed underwriters' interests and needs, including children's TV, there is a possibility of funding from these sources.

An afternoon session was devoted to case histories of arts programing for children. Participants were Lester Cooper, executive producer of Animals Animals Animals for ABC News; Henry Davis, vice president and general manager of WITI-TV Milwaukee, who described his station's music special, Kinderkonzert; Stephanie Meagher, a former producer of Call it Macaroni for Group W, and Sidney Palmer of South Carolina Educational Television, who was executive producer of Mr. Scrooge, an opera adapted from Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

At one point a number of persons in the audience decried the quality of children's television programs carried on weekends. Richard O'Leary, president of the ABC Owned Television Stations, rose to the defense of commercial television. "We are the enemy to you," Mr. O'Leary said. "According to you, we've created all the problems. Commercial television is flawed, certainly. But the real world of commercial television is led by men of good will and we have spent lots of money on quality children's shows. We're not the enemy—many of us have worked along with ACT, though we don't agree with ACT all the time. For some people TV programing may be mindless; for others, it can be relaxation."

Susan Greene, director of the FCC's Children's Television Task Force, urged symposium participants to cooperate with the task force by providing it with information about children's programing and advertising practices. She noted that the FCC's inquiry is focusing primarily on whether there has been TV station compliance with the 1974 policy statement dealing with standards and advertising on children's TV shows. She said the inquiry also will try to determine whether the policy statement has been effective, whether there are alternatives to children's TV on commercial and public radio, public TV and cable TV and whether co-op TV programing efforts among networks would be feasible.

ABC pours production dollars into N.Y.

Network is making heavy capital investments for facilities there for news, sports, daytime shows.

Prime-time program production may be on the West Coast to stay, but for all other dayparts production in New York is healthy and growing, particularly at ABC. Take, for example, the $30 million-40 million the TV network is spending to expand facilities there.

Offering those words of optimism to the New York chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences was Julius Barnathan, ABC's president of broadcast operations and engineering. For daytime, sports and news, he said, "New York remains the main production center."

The ABC construction dollars are going in three directions. Already renovated and expanded studio space for the hour versions of the soap operas, All My Children and One Life to Live.

And, the network's WABC-TV will be moving into its own quarters—approximately 6,000 square feet. Currently, ABC-TV’s news department shares studios with the network's Good Morning, America, also relocating.

Furthermore, a new technical building including tape, telecine and postproduction facilities is being built. For postproduction, a new facility is set to go on-line as of Jan. 1, with a second planned for July operation. Additionally, ABC is converting from two-inch tape to one-inch tape and replacing its color cameras.

As for a prime-time programming return to New York, however, Mr. Barnathan offered little hope. Given the life style and climate of Los Angeles, he said, "there is no desire on the part of the production community to leave California."

Sandy Frank pleased with first production offering, plans to do more in 1979-80

Sandy Frank Film Syndication, a television distributor that this year took its first production credit with the animated Battle of the Planets, is expanding its creative activities.

Spurred on by the success of its animated strip, said to have been already sold in more than 100 markets in the U.S. and abroad, the Frank company is preparing 52 new episodes for the 1979-80 season. That will bring the number of Sandy Frank/ Gallerie International Films co-produced episodes to 137.

Add to that company hopes for a Saturday morning Battle spin-off as well as prime-time network specials. And besides animated properties in the can or on the drawing board, the company is developing a weekly Stop the Music Revival and claims to be actively seeking contemporary action features. The Revolt, written by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, is being developed with EMI for ABC-TV.

After 14 years with his own company distributing other companies' product, Mr. Frank cited quality control and continuity of product as the major reasons for his production plans. He said the idea had been in the works, but that the success of Battle "accelerated it."

According to Irving Klein, a former ITC Entertainment executive, now a lawyer and business consultant to Mr. Frank, Battle represented an investment of more than $3 million and already more than four times that has been gotten back, and could go up to five times.

Battle animation begins with the work of Tatsunoko Productions in Japan and later is rewritten, rescored and has new effects added. Involved in production are Jameson Brewer (Disney’s "Fantasia" original scriptwriter), Alan Dining (Flintstones creator) and former NBC-TV programer David Lewis.

While the Frank company may have taken its first production credit with Battle, it has been active behind the scenes. It has put money into Ralph Edwards's Name That Tune it distributes, for example.
AP-Magid study defines wants of radio-news listenership

Audiences want reports of five or more minutes on the hour and look for good local coverage.

Most radio listeners want their newscasts to be five minutes long or longer—and on the hour.

They want them to contain a mixture of world, national and local news and prefer them with actualities.

In early-morning, late-afternoon and noontime dayparts they like them to be more detailed and more frequent.

Good local news coverage is one of the main reasons they pick one station over another.

These are among the findings of a far-reaching study conducted for the Associated Press by Frank Magid Associates. It encompassed 1,010 persons in 36 cities and is described by the AP as one of the most complete studies of radio news-listening habits ever made—and, according to Roy Steinfort, AP vice president and director of broadcasting, is the only recent one to be made available to a wide segment of the industry.

Local news coverage was usually found near the top among reasons for tuning a specific station, regardless of format.

When MOR listeners, for example, were asked why they chose a particular station, 35% cited the news and an equal number cited the music. Country-music fans listed music first and news second. Beautiful-music listeners put music first and gave equal weight to news and a low commercial load. Not surprisingly, news ranked first among listeners to all-news and news-talk stations.

Among top-40 listeners, 10% said news was an important consideration in station choice, while among rhythm-and-blues fans news was named by 14%, and among progressive listeners, by 5%.

"For the most part," Mr. Steinfort said, "this study backs up what most broadcasters have known for years—that few things are more important to a station than a good, aggressive news operation. A broadcaster can make his station essential to his listeners by doing the best news job he can, and this research shows that it will pay off for him."

Another phase of the study found that listeners overwhelmingly want news about what's going on around them—things that affect their "health, heart and pocketbook," as the Magid report put it.

Over 63%, for instance, said they were interested in a story about taxes, and virtually the same number—62%—reported interest in an environmental story and in a story about the weather. At the lower extreme, a story about entertainment appealed to 13% and one about fashions to 17%.

The study found that elements such as delivery style, personalization of stories and use of the present tense may raise the level of interest in a story—but only slightly, the report said, and only if the story is one the listener is interested in anyway.

The five-minute—or longer—newscast on the hour was preferred, the study found, by 69% of the listeners questioned. And they wanted it to contain national, world and local news. The preference for a complete newscast on the hour was over 70% for listeners to MOR, country, beautiful music and album-oriented rock stations, and was 60% or higher for top 40 and soul.

For early-morning newscasts the preference was divided evenly between five minutes and longer lengths. More than two-thirds would prefer longer newscasts during afternoon drive. Noontime reports were especially desired in smaller markets.

The survey also reported a strong preference for the inclusion of the actual voices of newsmakers in the newscasts—70% of the listeners who noticed the actualities in sample newscasts were said to have reacted positively to them. Even those who don't like radio news preferred newscasts containing actualities over those without actualities by a margin of 66% to 8%.

This liking for actualities cut across formats, from top 40 to beautiful music, according to the report.

"Of all the information this survey has produced," Mr. Steinfort said, "one thing is very clear. Good, strong reporting of important issues combined with relevant and well-produced actualities will sell news to the broadest possible audience."

The study also said to have found that 70% of those interviewed could not name a network-affiliated station in their markets.

Interviewers in the survey spent several hours with each respondent, AP reported, with neither the interviewers nor the interviewees knowing for whom the study was being conducted. The 1,010 listeners questioned were said to represent an accurate sample of the national radio public, with results applicable—within standard statistical limitations—to individual stations.

"This survey," Mr. Steinfort said, "is complete enough and detailed enough that there is something in it for every radio broadcaster in the country—and we think it will be a very important programing tool to the vast majority of our members."

AP said the 600-page report is being condensed for distribution to members and that a slide presentation covering highlights will be made available for broadcasters' meetings.

First Amendment under heavy fire

SDX report cites 'Stanford Daily' and Farber cases as most notable in a year when news media were fighting for their rights in court

The Freedom of Information Committee of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, has taken a look at 1978 and, not surprisingly, concluded it was a bleak year for press freedom.

The committee particularly noted setbacks at the hands of the courts—the Supreme Court ruling that the police have the right to search news offices for material bearing on a crime, regardless of whether the journalists on the scene are suspected of criminal involvement, and the contempt citations a New Jersey court handed down against the New York Times and its reporter, Myron Farber.

The committee noted that Congress may enact legislation designed to protect the press against the kind of searches the Supreme Court, in the Stanford Daily case last June, said are legal (Broadcasting, June 5). The committee's vice chairman, Robert Lewis of Booth Newspapers, said prospects for such legislation are "excellent." But he also said there is a "serious question" as to whether Congress will attempt to extend such protection to state and local agencies, where "the potential for abuse is greatest."

Mixed blessings for Florida courts

Study following year's experiment in allowing broadcast coverage finds worst didn't happen, but then neither did best

A survey conducted for the Florida Supreme Court in the aftermath of that state's year-long experiment with broadcast coverage of courtroom trials indicates that many of the objections to coverage voiced by the legal community are unfounded. But the survey also suggests that many of the good effects of coverage that were expected by the experiment's advocates did not occur either.

The survey, conducted by the Judicial Planning Coordination Unit Office of the State Courts Administrator, collected the views of 1,349 witnesses, jurors, attorneys and court personnel who participated in the experiment, which ended June 30 of this year.

According to the survey, those working in the legal system—as opposed to the jurors and witnesses—were, on the whole, less enthusiastic about the broadcast coverage, but on some key questions their responses were only slightly less favorable.

To the question, "To what extent did the presence of television, photographic or radio coverage in the courtroom disrupt the trial?" just over 70% of the attorneys answered either "not at all" (41.6%) or "slightly" (28.9%). Among jurors, however, 77.6% said the coverage did not disrupt the trial at all, and 14.3% said the presence of cameras disrupted trials slightly.

One court worker, answering a question on how the members of the news media conducted themselves, said: "The media went out of their way to be nice. But, I believe that once they have the right to be in the courts, they will be uncontrollable."

An attorney said he was distracted by "the continual flickering" of the red lights of the cameras, causing jurors "to occasionally 'peek' to see if their camera was on." But a witness said "lawyers became ostentatious and prima donna-like" before the cameras.

Prior to the survey, it had been suggested that the presence of broadcast coverage could lead to a more attentive attitude on the part of trial participants. But those surveyed overwhelmingly rejected that contention. Among the jurors, 80.1% said they did not at all become more attentive. Similar answers were given by 64.2% of the witnesses, 61% of the court personnel and 70% of the attorneys.

One witness, for example, said that in cases "involving sexual assaults or other highly sensitive matters" witnesses were likely to be "reluctant to testify." But one attorney admitted that a "certain amount of professional pride made myself and my adversaries somewhat more prepared."

One interesting set of answers was to the question: "To what extent did you feel the presence of television, photographic or radio coverage in the courtroom during the trial made the case more important?" Clear majorities of the jurors, witnesses and court personnel said "not at all" or "slightly" while an equally clear majority of the lawyers said "moderately" (26.8%) or "very" (23.5%). As one attorney wrote, "I believe the jurors are more apt to consider public opinion in deciding the merits of the case. It cannot help but increase the importance attached to the proceedings."

Finally, to the question: "Overall, would you favor or oppose allowing television, photographic or radio coverage in the courtroom?" 49.1% of the jurors were "completely in favor." Witnesses were only slightly less enthusiastic. Among the court personnel, 47.2% favored coverage and 41.7% opposed. A majority of the attorneys (56.5%) favored coverage, however, and 41.7% opposed.

One attorney said coverage "gives the public a true picture of the judicial system and restores its faith that it is a good, workable system." Another wrote: "The public will certainly get the message that we go to great lengths in this country to impart justice, and they need to know that it is not always like Perry Mason."

W.Va. press law goes to the Supreme Court

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to review a case involving the question of whether the state can prohibit newspapers from publishing the name of juveniles accused of crimes.

At issue is a West Virginia law which was invoked when the Charleston Daily Mail and Charleston Gazette published the name of 14-year-old boy who had been accused of fatally shooting a classmate in the corridor of a junior high school. The Gazette ran an editorial along with the story, saying the newspaper is ready to test the legality of the law. Both papers and executives and reporters for both were indicted.

The state's supreme court dismissed the indictments, declaring the law violated the First Amendment, but the county prosecutor asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case, arguing that the First Amendment should yield when confronted with a state's interest in protecting the identity of a juvenile. The law, adopted in 1941, does not refer to broadcasting, and three radio stations that carried the story of the shooting and identified the youth were not indicted.

Commerce's Devine warns cable operators of dangers involved in seeking federal regulation

The ranking Republican on the House Commerce Committee, Representative Samuel Devine (R-Ohio), told cablecasters last week that they "flirt with danger" when they seek regulation of their industry in the Communications Act rewrite.

Speaking to a meeting of state and regional cable TV association officials, sponsored in Washington by the National Cable Television Association, Representative Devine said, "I find it rather odd that in the time of Proposition 13 and the revulsion for government regulation shared by private citizens and industry alike, your industry's response to H.R. 13015 is to ask for federal regulation."

Representatives of cable, in frequent appearances during last year's hearings on the Communications Act rewrite, urged that the bill's omission of cable from the federal regulatory structure be changed to create a regulatory mandate for the industry. Their main concern, they said, was that absence of federal regulation would throw the industry to the mercy of 50 potential state regulatory bodies and hundreds of local authorities, and that federal regulation is needed at least to delineate areas, such as signal carriage regulation, where those state and local regulators would be prohibited from entering.

But opening the door to federal regulation is a move that could backfire on the industry in the long run, the congressman said. "There are many in Congress and elsewhere in our government who wish to see stringent multiple- and cross-owner-ship restrictions placed on your industry, as well as mandated public access to your systems and common carrier status for your systems to insure access by various programers," he said.

Representative Devine said he could understand cable's other major concern about the rewrite—that it would allow AT&T into the cable business—but he urged the industry not to make too much of the argument that the telephone company's sheer size posed questions of unfair competition against a struggling cable industry. "To conjure up images of AT&T swallowing numerous small cable operations is certainly less realistic than to picture Warner, Time Inc. or Teleprompter acquiring those systems," he said.

He also said that in his opinion there may be valid reason to permit telephone ownership of cable systems in rural areas where television service is spotty. He reassured his listeners, however, that "whatever cable/telephone industry competition occurs, it will be fair competition."

Representative Devine's comments were favorable toward the rewrite on the whole. He complimented the Communications Subcommittee leaders and rewrite co-authors Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) and Lou Frey (R-Fla.) for their fairness and patience in giving all sides a chance to comment on the legislation.

The same cable gathering heard from another Republican on the Commerce Committee, Communications Subcommittee member W. Henson Moore (La.), who said the industry is likely to get its wish for insertion of federal regulation of cable in the next draft of the bill. How much regulation there should be "presents us with a very difficult problem," however, the congressman said. "There is no easy answer." But he predicted that the original bill's deregulatory tone will continue in the second draft, including its approach to cable.

Representative Moore repeated his belief, expressed before a meeting of broadcast educators the week before, that the rewrite faces a tough political fight in Congress. "It ranks nowhere as one of the top 10 issues of the day," he said, and is not going to be well understood by most members when it gets to the House floor for a vote. "I'm not even sure the members of the subcommittee are going to understand it as well as they should," he said.

Consequently members' attitudes will be heavily influenced by any comments they have received from people in their home districts, he said. He wouldn't guess how well the bill will stand up in the final test.

Representative Moore said that under subcommittee Chairman Van Deerlin's timetable, a vote by the full House may take place by September next year. The plan is for reintroduction of the rewrite in late January or early February and then hearings followed by as many as 30 to 60 days of subcommittee mark-up. It should be ready for full committee attention by May or June, Mr. Moore said.

CBC proposes second national service, this one via cable TV

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. is in the midst of establishing a television channel for that country's cable television systems. TV-2, as the new channel is being called, is expected to start operating on an experimental basis in 1980 with both English and French versions. It will be noncommercial.

The plans for the new channel were related by A.W. Johnson, president of the public network, before the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission during the CBC's license renewal hearings in Ottawa. Mr. Johnson said the new service will "provide Canadian viewing alternatives—through more specialized programs than we are able to squeeze into our current services, and through alternative scheduling for important and quality programs originally produced for our main services."

The new cable channel will emphasize Canadian-produced programs. It will "provide natural scheduling opportunities for more frequent showing of Canadian films and for more programs from independent Canadian producers," Mr. Johnson said. Although it has been suggested that the new service could, possibly, lead to a reduction in the use of U.S.-made programs, Mr. Johnson said the evening-only service could "present some quality foreign films and some of the high quality television productions from other countries."

According to the CBC's submission to the CRTC in the renewal hearing, the decision to go to cable with the new service was prompted, in part, because "the capital costs of establishing additional networks of conventional television transmitters is very high." Over half of Canada's television audience has cable television, and, according to CBC, that percentage is expected to rise to 70% in the early 1980's. The CBC called the cable channel an "effective, lower cost" service.

Xerox wants to hook up country by satellite for data transmission

FCC is asked for spectrum space for digital message service

Xerox Corp., the nation’s largest manufacturer of photocopying equipment, has asked the FCC to allow the corporation to enter the common carrier field. In a petition filed two weeks ago, Xerox asked the FCC to open a “virtually unused” band of radio frequencies for use in a high-speed, satellite communications network—the Xerox Telecommunications Network (“In Brief,” Nov. 20).

XTEN, as the proposed service is called in the petition, would set up a digital electronic message service in the 10.55-10.68 ghz band. According to the corporation, at least nine other message networks could be accommodated in that band. The new services, it said, could allow for “electronic document distribution, digital data communications and teleconferencing.”

Other specialized business networks have been proposed by IBM and AT&T.

The Xerox proposal calls for XTEN to offer high-speed, end-to-end digital communications to approximately 200 metropolitan areas. Subscribers will have access to the system by microwave radio links between transceivers on the customer’s premises and local system “nodes.” The nodes will provide radio coverage to cells with a radius of about six miles, and the number of nodes and cells required for a metropolitan area will depend on local geographic conditions, subscriber distribution and growth requirements.

This use of nodal or cellular radio techniques will permit XTEN to reuse the same frequencies at different nodes in a given city. Local nodes will also be connected to a “main city node” where storage and processing will take place and where access will be provided for an earth station. Two network control centers will monitor traffic flow through the system.

Xerox has refused to comment on the cost of establishing the system, but informed estimates have ranged from $250 million to twice that. With prompt FCC approval, the service could be available in some cities as early as 1981.

According to the petition filed at the FCC, XTEN “will provide a major impetus for electronic document distribution. Although extensive additional services and more rapid delivery will be made available, the transmission costs of XTEN will still be competitive with the anticipated cost of first-class mail in the early 1980’s.”

In the area of teleconferencing, Xerox said the new system could be used to provide still-frame video, two-way voice channels and high-speed, hard-copy production. “The intent of this offering is to stimulate the introduction of terminal devices which will permit use in teleconferencing of the same audio-visual tools and techniques normally employed in business conferences—slides, transparencies, blackboards and oral discussion.”

The proposed network would employ leased satellite capacity to enable customers to transmit and receive, at low cost, digital information and high-quality graphics. The network would be able to handle data at rates as high as 256,000 bits per second. Networks that use telephone lines usually are limited to rates of about 4,800 bits per second.

How it works. Messages transmitted via the proposed XTEN system will pass through seven relays between origination and receive points.

Anticommercial device. Theme of Toshiba America’s upcoming print advertising campaign for its home video cassette recorder is to be “The video cassette recorder that lets you wipe out Mr. Whipple. Company says advertisements through DKG Advertising, will stress recorder’s remote pause control feature, which “allows users to edit out unwanted program material.”

Buy. ABC-TV has contracted to buy about $4 million worth of Ikegami HK-312 broadcast studio color cameras to add to 32 network now operates in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. First 17 new cameras will be delivered in early 1979. Five are to be equipped with coaxial cable adapters that allow for use at distances up to five miles from camera control unit. HK-312 series feature minicomputer that automatically sets camera up for action in less than minute.

For one, for all. Sony Video Products Co. has introduced video recorder capable of playing cassettes recorded on any of NTSC, PAL or SECAM television systems. New Triden VP-2030 player and VO-2630 player-recorder are designed for use with firm’s multisystem 12 inch Trinitron monitor PVM-1850PS. U-Matic units ($2,200 and $2,600, respectively) are sold only in packages with monitor ($1,350).

Big order. Forward Communications, owner of six TV’s, with headquarters in Wausau, Wisc., has ordered 15 portable and studio one-inch video tape recorders from RCA. RCA puts value at about $900,000.

Moseley asks for more

Moseley Associates Inc., a California equipment firm, has petitioned the FCC to open portions of the UHF spectrum for studio-transmitter links and intercity relays. The company petitioned the FCC to grant “unassigned UHF TV channels” for the STL operations “when frequencies in the 947 mhz to 952 mhz spectrum are unavailable.”

The company said the new spectrum space would be necessary if the FCC approves stereo AM broadcasting because “the additional need for STL spectrum will be immediate and great.”

“It is perhaps this condition that makes this request for rulemaking a matter of utmost urgency for the commission,” Moseley said.

The company asked the commission to allow for spectrum sharing on channels 21 through 68 as channels 70 through 83 are now shared with land mobile services. It said, however, that it believed the FCC would not allow the service to channels 21 through 39. It also suggested that the commission avoid assigning STL services channels adjacent to occupied UHF frequencies. That, Moseley said, would be necessary “to prevent overloading TV receivers.”

Keeping count. From 1974 through last June, when the FCC announced it was giving broadcasters and others a year to clean up the video blanking mess; the commission issued 244 violation notices to stations for blanking problems ("Closed Circuit," Nov. 20). Although Public Broadcasting Service stations lead the list of violators with 71 notices, the PBS stations, a commission official said, have a peculiar problem because of the great amount of foreign programs they broadcast. PBS has applied for a special waiver of the blanking rules.

- But the commercial networks aren't doing much better. Among them, ABC-TV outlets were cited 53 times. NBC-TV and CBS-TV affiliates logged 48 and 34 violations, respectively. Even the O&O's are having their share of problems. Two of NBC's—KNBC(TV) Los Angeles and WCYC-TV Cleveland—have been issued notices. And ABC's WXYZ-TV Detroit was cited for horizontal deficiencies.

- Nor is it mostly little guys. Major-market stations—affiliates as well as independents—have been issued notices. ABC affiliates WLA-TV Washington and WNEW-TV Cleveland had problems—the latter for both vertical and horizontal troubles. NBC's Detroit outlet, WTV-7 (now WJTV), was cited for horizontal blanking, and WWJ-TV New Orleans, a channel 4 CBS outlet, was notified of vertical difficulties. In the Big Apple. None of the networks' New York stations has been cited since 1974, but independent WPXITV there has had one horizontal blanking violation. Other New York stations cited included WNET(TV) and WNYC-TV—both of which are public broadcasting stations. And in the FCC's backyard. Two Washington independents—WTGTV and WDCX-TV—also have had violation notices from the commission.

- Where is the teletext? Hugging interval frontier, so to speak, is KSL-TV Salt Lake City—the Bonneville international station that is conducting teletext experiments in this country. That station's teletext signals are delivered on lines 15 and 16. Below that, there is considerable evidence that older television receivers, because they lack the fine tolerances available through solid-state circuitry, may not be able to produce an acceptable picture. There is some speculation that modern color sets could accommodate signals on lines 13 and 14, but it is unlikely that black-and-white receivers could. That's mainly because monochrome sets generally lack vertical re-trace blanking capabilities. But what about the other 12 lines? Line 12 is a possibility, an Electronic Industries Association official explained, but that would be cutting it close. The first 12 lines are dropped by the scanner when it moves from the bottom of the screen to the top. Satellite talks. The latest word heard on the matter has it that some time late this month the U.S. and the People's Republic of China will hold talks on the possible sale and launching of an American satellite for China's domestic communications system. There has been talk about such a joint venture ever since a group of Chinese technicians visited with a number of equipment manufacturers here ("In Sync," Oct. 16).

- Overseas report. A New York market research firm, Frost & Sullivan Inc., has come out with a study declaring that by 1985, European sales of electronic video games will reach $300 million. The report says that more than 70% of the games will be sold in West Germany, France, Italy and Great Britain, but by 1985 the market share of those four countries will drop to 50%. And at home. The National Radio Broadcasters Association has spotted yet another potential headache induced by technology—home radio sets with digital read-outs instead of old-fashioned tuners. According to the association, the new receivers, which display the exact frequency of a station (106.8 for example), may not sit well with stations that have "spent years and thousands of dollars" promoting themselves as "FM 107." Says NRBA: "If and when digital read-out dials become standard, the old practice of promoting rounded-off dial positions won't work."

These are the top songs in air-play popularity as reported by a select group of U.S. stations. Each has been "weighted" in terms of Arbitron audience ratings for the reporting station on which it is played. A □ indicates an upward movement of five or more chart positions between this week and last.

Chaka Khan, best known for her billing with the group Rufus, is breaking out on her own—and in a big way. Her solo single, I'm Every Woman (Warner Bros.) from the album Chaka, takes a giant leap from 43 to 19 this week. The single has already topped R&B charts and is now making a swift crossover to contemporary. Being added at 16 at WRQAM New York this week, it's also on at WFSU Atlanta; WRQHM Boston; WMEU Memphis; WRQHM San Francisco; WOLRMA New York; WCAM Detroit; CKLW Windsor, Ont. (Detroit), and WSMW Charlotte, NC. Olivia's encore. Just coming off her Grease success, Olivia Newton-John is out with a new album, Totally Hot (MCA), and programers are hot on the single, A Little More Love. Jim English of WOR(CAM) Hartford, Conn., says "It's different for her. It's not the syrupy kind of thing she usually does. There's more of a base-line, more hard rock—not that it's an untempo-screamer, but she's more aggressive." And Tom Kay of WQAM St. Cloud, Minn., says "It has all the elements of what we're looking for: a hit artist and the song itself is there." Hot Chocolate's brewing. Hot Chocolate is out with a new single, Every I's A Winner, the first to be released on the new infinity label. It enters "Playlist" at 49, and Jim Golden of WBSW Pensacola, Fla., calls it "a very strong record. It's a very commercial sound. It grabs people right from the start." Coming Up. A lot's being heard from Nicolette Larson's Lotta Love (Warner Bros.) from her debut album Nicole. Although this is her first solo album, Ms. Larson is no amateur; she has sung with Neil Young (who wrote Lotta Love), Emmylou Harris and Jesse Winchester. Won't Mr. English calls the single "one of those pop songs that goes all the way. It's mass appeal, it will hit everybody."

In our specialized society, most people don't know what kind of doctor to consult for what illness!

There is confusion as to what doctor treats what. As a result, people often go to the wrong practitioner—only to be shuffled to a second or third specialist. This crowds the busy doctor's office and costs the patient needless money. Even worse, confusion sometimes causes patients to put off getting treatment until it is too late. This campaign defines health specialists in easy to understand terms. Audition the spots without obligation. Schedule them only if you agree with the merit of their public service message.

FINANCING

is no easy matter.

We've developed a tool which makes it easier: a computer investment analysis. It takes forward the station's income, variable and fixed expense, projects them on its growth rate and produces a concise 10-year tabulation of profit and loss, return on investment and cash flow. Bankers and financing sources have a way of wanting to know where the money is coming from to repay the loan.

One run: $100. Additional runs with lower down payments, different interest rates, mortgagorums and the like: $25 each.

Dan Ritchie and his roundabout route to the WBC presidency

Dan Ritchie, the relatively new president and chief operating officer of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., got his first close-up look at the company and its parent, Westinghouse Electric Corp., 10 years ago. He was representing MCA in the 1968 negotiations that led to the $360-million merger deal by which Westinghouse Electric was to acquire MCA.

That acquisition didn’t come off, blocked by the Justice Department (Broadcasting, April 28, 1969), but eventually Westinghouse got an acquisition out of it anyway: The rapport established between Mr. Ritchie and the man across the negotiating table from him, Westinghouse Broadcasting Chairman Donald H. McGannon, led to Mr. Ritchie’s being asked to join the company—and his acceptance—six years later.

It was a roundabout route, from North Carolina farm country to Harvard to the Army to Wall Street to Hollywood and back to New York. Dan Ritchie was born in Springfield, Ill., but grew up in China Grove, N.C., a hamlet that his father made the base of his farm machinery distributorship. He went on to Harvard for his AB and MBA degrees, but traces of his upbringing still linger in his talk.

After Harvard, the Army drafted him for two years, which he spent in Chicago. Then he took his MBA in marketing and finance to Wall Street and found a job with Lehman Brothers.

“I just walked in off the street,” he recalls. “They told me I wanted to work there and didn’t care what sort of work they gave me or how much they paid me.”

They didn’t take him literally about the pay, but they came close enough. “They didn’t pay me very much,” he says. He started in securities analysis, and in the course of the work he met and did some work for Jules Stein, the founder and head of MCA, whose public offering Lehman Brothers had handled the year before. Dr. Stein offered him a job, but the offer came at an awkward time. “Lehman Brothers had just doubled my salary—which still wasn’t much, but I felt I owed it to them not to leave, so I stayed on for a year and then joined MCA,” says Mr. Ritchie.

He started off “doing various things—looking at acquisitions, helping to manage the profit-sharing trust, working with Wall Street.” In 1965 he was elected vice president and two years later he was named executive vice president and chief financial officer. At the outset he had been based in New York, but with MCA in the movie business he “moved to Hollywood little by little until about 1967, when I moved completely.”

He left MCA in 1970 to form Archon Corp., a company dealing in natural foods and food supplements. He had become interested in the subject through his friendship with actor Eddie Albert. He took the company public in 1972 and remained with it until he got the call in 1974 to join Don McGannon in New York in running what was then Westinghouse Broadcasting, Learning and Leisure Time.

Mr. Ritchie was executive vice president of the group and his job was to head the learning and leisure-time units. Those included the Longines Watch Co. and direct-mail operations, a soft-drink business, the Host hotel chain in Pennsylvania, the Econocar auto rental firm and Westinghouse Learning operations. In a later restructuring, the headquarters for these units was moved from New York to Westinghouse Electric Corp.’s Pittsburgh base and Mr. Ritchie went with them as executive vice president of the parent company. There he remained until last February, when he rejoined Westinghouse Broadcasting as president of the corporate staff and strategic planning, a prelude to his present assignment, which came last August.

Mr. Ritchie says he spends over half his time on the road, visiting the company’s radio and TV stations and production and syndication units. He doubts there’ll be much let-up in the travel.

“I consider myself a hands-on type of man,” he explains. “My job is sort of to advise and consent, and to do that, I have to know what’s going on. I’m not going to run anyone’s job. I want them to do what they think is right, not what they think I think. People need encouragement; even if you don’t do anything, just the fact that you’re there lets them know you care.”

In New York his day is, if anything, longer. He uses a phrase to describe his workday, saying it extends “from you can to you can’t,” meaning it starts as soon as the day is light enough to see and continues until it’s too dark to see anything. He’s up around 6 or 6:30 a.m., jogs four or five miles almost every morning, gets to the office around 8:30 and sometimes returns for a night session after dinner. On the theory that “to manage this business you have to look and listen to a lot of your product,” his day at the office or at home also includes six hours or so of watching and listening to tapes.

Although he sees his job as being operations fundamentally, he’s also involved in other things. Among them: “We’re examining what we should be doing in UHF [where Westinghouse has no stations] and FM [where it has wof]—maybe nothing, but we’re taking a look at it.”

Because Don McGannon has been one of the more vocal critics of what he considers network encroachment on affiliates’ time and revenues, Mr. Ritchie suggests that “perhaps [he] explains ‘isotropic us as being antinetwork.’” Actually, he says, Westinghouse is in favor of networks and generally supportive of them, but sometimes they overreach and somebody needs to blow the whistle.

“We feel very strongly that the local station is responsible and must be community-involved. If the community realizes you’re interested and really care, you’ll have a better product. If we’re just a conduit for the networks, who needs us? But if you can marry the strengths of a network with first-class local involvement and production, you’ve got something good.”
Bigger daddy

If FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris reads his mail, he will find few fan letters in a batch delivered in the past week or so. Broadcasters from all parts of the country have been writing him to protest an FCC decision requiring licensees, in their annual equal-employment-opportunity reports, to rank all employees by order of their salaries.

True, the letters have been solicited by an alarm sent out by the National Association of Broadcasters (BROADCASTING, Nov. 20). And Mr. Ferris may be unfairly identified as Target No. 1 for criticism of an action taken by unanimous vote of the six commissioners present (Abbott Washburn absent). There is no doubt, however, that the FCC’s latest EEO incursion has struck a common nerve among broadcasters of every condition, big and small.

The principal complaints are that the publicizing of salary rankings would upset morale, provide competitors with valuable intelligence for the recruitment of employees, give unions a negotiating edge they now lack, add more paperwork to the piles that already encumber licensees and insinuate the government more deeply than ever into private business affairs. “I can’t believe,” wrote one broadcaster, “that this requirement is going to help anything but the employment situation in Washington.”

Not only Mr. Ferris but also his colleagues who voted similarly ought to skim through the real-world criticism that their action has precipitated. They would find persuasive reason to change their minds—unless, of course, their intentions go beyond the mere ranking of salaried employees.

“Sir,” wrote another broadcaster to Mr. Ferris, “let’s be done with such frivolous proposals that serve no purpose at all unless the FCC subsequently intends to force a radio station to pay a certain salary to a certain individual.”

Is that what Mr. Ferris, Margita White, Tyrone Brown, Robert Lee, James Quello and Joseph Fogarty were really voting for?

Cool it

A confrontation between buyers and sellers of television advertising time seems inevitable unless some accommodation can be reached on the issue of TV “clutter.”

The Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies, which represent television’s biggest customers, “strongly” oppose the clutter-control plan adopted by the National Association of Broadcasters television board (BROADCASTING, Oct. 16, et seq.). The television board and particularly the TV code review board, which developed the plan, insist that it will significantly reduce clutter and, moreover, that it was the best that could be agreed upon in the circumstances.

The advertisers and agencies were affronted by the plan’s provision for an extra, optional 30 seconds of nonprogram material per prime-time hour. They were further affronted, if not incensed, by the TV board’s adopting it on a mail vote rather than waiting to consider it, as had been expected, when the board meets in January.

To bolster its case, the ANA has produced a new study purporting to show that commercial effectiveness decreases as clutter increases. It is not a study of viewer tolerance to clutter, which we have long considered a desirable first step in attacking this issue, but we think broadcasters should examine it carefully. If it has merit, they should keep in mind that anything that dulls the effectiveness of their medium will hurt them in the long run.

ANA and AAAA should similarly take an objective look at the broadcasters’ position, recognizing that—as we believe to be true—the plan is a big step in the direction they want to go and that further concessions may indeed be more than they can reasonably expect at this time.

It might help if both sides realized that these changes are being written for television today, not cast in concrete for posterity.

Children underfoot

The three members of the Federal Trade Commission who remain in a position to vote on such things have decided to proceed with the inquiry into children’s television advertising, despite the enforced absence of Chairman Michael Pertschuk, disqualified for bias by a federal court, and voluntary absence of Commissioner Robert Pilotsky, who wisely disqualified himself because of previous associations with participants. The survivors could hardly have done otherwise, considering the pressures.

Peggy Charren, the head mother of Action for Children’s Television and a principal initator of the FTC inquiry, has rounded up a coalition that she hopes will generate support for Mr. Pertschuk’s and her, you should excuse the expression, baby. She claims to have teachers and dentists and auto workers and steel puddlers and who knows whom else cued in to harangue the FTC with complaints about television.

Mrs. Charren may be expected to play as large a role as the FTC permits throughout this proceeding, as she played a role in the FCC’s inquiry of recent years into children’s TV programming. Nor is her presence likely to diminish the revitalized FCC inquiry into children’s TV, going on now. As Leonard Swanson of WICN-TV Pittsburgh, a member of the National Association of Broadcasters television board, has pointed out to his fellows, the FCC and FTC inquiries proceed apace (BROADCASTING, Nov. 20). It is a two-front war.

At the FTC, a semblance of balance has been restored by the removal of Mr. Pertschuk. The three commissioners who will decide the case have displayed nothing like the intransigent aversions that Mr. Pertschuk exhibited.

At the FCC, none of the members has been grossly indiscreet in telegraphing possible conclusions, although Chairman Charles D. Ferris, when mentioning the subject, gives signs of a desire to move and shake.

At both agencies, broadcasters and advertisers will be well advised to muster the best cases possible.
