WHAT'S AHEAD FOR RADIO IN 1932?

What outstanding radio development will occur in 1932?

With the advent of a new year, this question assumes prominence for every year of the past decade has seen phenomenal advances in broadcasting and in nearly every year some revolutionary accomplishment.

The year just closed offered as its contribution to radio progress the first world-wide broadcast from the Vatican City, on February 12, and was marked by substantial gains in the realm of television and in the field of receiving sets.

Ever since Station KDKA made its first broadcast, on November 2, 1920, the radio industry has been forging ahead with remarkable persistence. Some of the outstanding achievements of past years, many of them possibly of little importance in themselves but leading to the development of great broadcasting services, are now practically forgotten by all but a few who participated in what then were events of great moment.

Thus, in October, 1922, the first football game was broadcast, leading to the extensive sporting services now maintained by the broadcasting stations. In January, 1923, the first "chain" program was offered over a "network" of two stations, leading to the development of chains exceeding 100 stations. At the end of that year, the opening of congress was broadcast, giving millions of people their first direct contact with the body which makes their laws. In 1926 the National Broadcasting Company came on the scene, later to be followed by the Columbia Broadcasting System, the two organizations contributing tremendously to the improvement of programs.

The first coast-to-coast network was used on January 1, 1927, and today, only five years later, programs from the other side of the country are accepted as a matter of course. Six weeks later the people on the Pacific Coast for the first time heard the voice of a President speaking from Washington. The first formal international re-broadcast was offered February 1, 1929, and the past two years have seen steady improvement in the facilities for this service, culminating a few weeks ago in a Honolulu station contracting for a series of programs from the United States.

With this splendid record behind it, the broadcasting industry goes into 1932 determined to produce new and even greater accomplishments during the year. In all probability, television will hold the limelight, with the possibility of joint sight-and-sound programs. In the field of sound broadcasting the whole world has been covered and if programs are to be brought from new fields they will have to be secured in the stellar regions. The attention of the industry today is centered upon the picture broadcast and in this field startling developments are promised for the next few months.
PERSONAL PICKUPS
BY GYPSY

J. P., Vallejo. — Dick Ellers, NBC, is 5 feet 9% inches in height, weighs 158 pounds, has blue eyes, blond hair and the sunniest smile you ever saw. Just looking at him makes you forget one’s pet grievance. He was born in San Francisco, attended U. C. about the time that Dennis Farber was a student there, is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Kappa fraternities, taught history for a year and decided he was better qualified to be an actor. He had studied dramatics while in college and had played professionally during summer vacations so when an opportunity presented itself with the Henry Duffy players he thought no more of class rooms and weighty books but plunged eagerly into his new job. For three and one-half years he appeared in Duffy productions on the coast—and you may have seen him if you are a stock company patron—he was the juvenile lead in “The Best People Meet the Wife” and many others—toured Australia returned to the States, had more theatre and then about thirteen months ago was called to radio. He is single, displays unusually good taste and sense at all times, has written several plays, likes home-cooked meals and spaghetti. He weighs 170 pounds, has striking eyes and hair, regular features, and very strong likes and dislikes. His favorite author is Delaney and he will give you a demonstration, gladly and probably.

Ann Leaf Fans. — I had a note from Ann the other day in which she said CBS had discontinued the “Nocturne” broadcasts in an endeavor to get a program to test her fans, so, if you love her and want the program back you had better get in your letters.

A. C., San Francisco. — Eddie Albright (KNX) is about thirty-five years old. He was born in Olean, New York, is married and has a three-year-old son. Dr. Lawrence Cross (NBC) is the father of three children. Walter Damrosch (NBC) began conducting symphony concerts in 1883. Mel Peterson (KPO) is single. Tom and Jessie are both married.

Mr. G. E., Sacramento. — George Davis (KFRG, KPO) is not content merely to sample and then discard some new interest but goes about it systematically and never gives up until he has conquered. In his thirty-one years he has taught English, conducted classes in shorthand and business methods, written the lyrics to three or four dozen published songs, lectured on various profound subjects, is now assisting in court through his knowledge of graphology. He is a teacher of juvenile culture and has discovered a few genuine prodigies; starts his day at six in the morning and ends it. heaven knows when, with no visible signs of weariness and nerves. When he is not broadcasting he is busy gathering together his child prodigies and giving them tours of various cities, or selling pianos and with all that he still manages to wedge in social affairs, fishing and hunting expeditions and concerts. He is a native son, lives with his mother and is one of the most thoughtful, agreeable bachelors I have ever met.

L. H., Biggs. — Helen Charleston (Lofner-Harris, NBC) is a young and very pretty brunette who was born and educated in Chicago, began singing and dancing professionally while in her teens, and has been featured with her brother in musical comedy and vaudeville throughout the country. Broadcast weekly published a Silhouette of Phil Harris in the November 1 issue, and Carol Lofner’s story was printed in the November 29 issue. Tony Wons (CBS) will mail you a price list of his books on request. Address him in care of the Columbia Broadcasting System, New York City. As regards autographed pictures, the only suggestion I can make is that write personally to your favorites. More another time.

Jo, Vallejo. — Walter Beban (NBC) is 5 feet 8 inches tall, has one eye blue and one eye brown, one time blonde (yes, it’s quite true, his hair is just a memory) and is in his early thirties. He grew up with the Marines during the war and was so frequently baining exhibitions that he was half inclined to take up this “art” professionally, but, on returning home, the sight of his trusting, wistful, saxophone, waiting patiently to be once more blown, so touched his heart that he could not say it nay. “Ah me.” The Spotlight skits began when Walter was a lad of seventeen, although he did not then dream of commercializing them and had in fact forgotten their very existence until he came across some boyish scraps and marginal drawings a short time ago. He insists, swears and otherwise claims, that he writes in an overheated room with a pitcher of ice-cold something at hand, far, far into the mysterious wee hours, and further declares that though the strain sets his teeth and his voice tingling, he never loses his temper.

PERHAPS the pathos that “Marie, the little French Girl,” puts into her songs is the aftermath of many months of service driving an ambulance behind the lines in France during the World War—or perhaps it is the natural ability of the artist and her French ancestry, a race known the world over as an emotional people.

For it was this same little French girl who now thrills KPO audiences with her intriguing and plaintive voice, that drove many a wounded lad back from the front lines to the base hospital where his wounds were dressed. Many a pain-racked soldier recalls with tender appreciation the touch of her hand—or the songs she sang to ease his misery. The bloody fields of battle are now memories of yesterday, but into Marie’s songs, which are now gay, now sad, there creeps ever present pathos, heart throbs and understanding that are born of suffering.

A slender blonde now, with flashing brown eyes, five feet two and twenty-nine years of age, she tells one that she was 14½ years old when in the service of her country, a modern Joan of Arc.

Marie was born in Strassbourg, Alsace Lorraine, of Basque parentage, both father and mother having been born in Biarritz in the Pyrrennes Mountains, on the border between France and Spain. She is proud of her Basque ancestry and does not want to be known as “The French Babee from Gay Paree,” a name often attached to her in her theatrical appearances. Proud of the people from whom she has descended, because as she stated, touching a dainty handkerchief lightly to her sensitive lips, “we can trace our lineage back several hundreds of years and one has a right to be justly vain over the splendid reputation such as each succeeding generation has left gloriously imprinted in the annals of its history.”

A strange fact is that her people do not know from whence they came, but this they do know, they are there. No books are published to tell her people about their origin, but under the blue skies that top the lofty pinnacles of the Pyrrennes they live as sheepraisers that have maintained a purity of strain down through the centuries.

The first four and a half years of her life were spent in Strassbourg, where her father, Herbert De Veaux, taught mathematics at the Strassbourg University. At that age she was brought to the States, where the senior De Veaux secured a position as teacher of French at the Washington University at St. Louis, Mo. His dramatic ability soon elevated him to the presidency of the university’s Little Theater, and under the advantages thus afforded, little Marie aspired to a stage career. Her ability as a character comedienne earned her important roles in leading productions, and this, coupled with the fact that her songs were sung in the patois of the Pyrrennes, a dialect mixture of French and Basque, which makes her songs so unusual and beautiful, she rose rapidly to a position of prominence in the profession.

But the World War called her home in 1914, and with pluck born of courage she became an ambulance driver out of Base Hospital No. 2. And there under the booming cannon and screaming shell, little Marie, the fourteen-year-old Joan of Arc, underwent transition from girlhood to womanhood, just like thousands and thousands of American lads, who went “over there” with a smile, only to come back serious-minded men, and grim, for death and misery had imprinted on the irstoul an indelible haunting memory.

Following the war Miss De Veaux returned to the States, completed her schooling, and a year later began her profes
SIONAL STAGE CAREER, A CAREER that was to star her in Schubert musical comedies and vaudeville, and San Francisco patrons of variety entertainment will recall with pleasure her appearance there in her highly amusing and intriguing skit called "Oh Frenchy."

Her radio debut was made in 1928, when she appeared with the "Seventh Heaven" company over a Los Angeles station of the National Broadcasting Company. Marie came to KPO three months ago and has won approval at the hands of the station’s dialers. She is the leading light of "Charles, the Hairdresser" programs featured Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, at 12:10 p.m.; "In a Little French Cafe" programs on Tuesday mornings, 11:30 to 12 o’clock, and as "Marie, the Little French Girl" every Thursday afternoon, 4:15 to 4:30.

Following the usual hobby of the French woman, Marie is a fancier of smart pets, her particular pet being a wild dingo, or wild dog of Australia, which she brought to California from her father’s ranch in Australia, where he is at present running a sheep ranch. The dingo resembles a wolf and is seldom tamed, but Marie has overcome the unusual feat of taming him, and the dog is one of the few seen in the States outside of a zoo. The dingo does not bark, but Marie, determined that her pet should vocalize in American dog fashion, secured a bull dog, under whose training the dingo became proficient as a barker of the first degree.

Single, yes, Marie declines to enter the state of matrimonial bliss, in order that she may devote her entire time and care for an invalid mother, who was hurt in an accident four years ago.

SHE wanted to be a singer but they told her that her voice was too weak and so she adopted nursing as a profession. But radio came to the rescue and made her a star.

That is Hazel Warner of KFRC, whose crooning contralto voice has made her a favorite with many thousands of radio fans who appreciate simplicity and sweetness in a radio singer.

Hazel Warner

Iowa is Hazel’s home state. She left Burlington, Iowa, when she was twelve years old, following the death of her father, and located with her sister in San Bernardino. Her mother had passed away when she was only three. It was in San Bernardino that she went in training for a nurse, finishing her training at the Hahnemann Hospital in San Francisco. She worked as a nurse for several years in San Francisco before she started on her radio career in 1925. She has been with KFRC for about two and a half years, not counting a six months’ session with the sister station, KHJ, and a three months’ pleasure trip to South America. She had the time of her life on that voyage. It was her first time away from home for any distance or length of time. She skirted South America, coming up the east coast to New York from Buenos Aires. In New York she was guest artist on several Columbia programs over the network.

Hazel is just a sort of a person one would expect from listening to her voice on the air—sweet, cheerful, obliging, and friendly. But you realize definitely just what she is like when you know that Ralph Waldo Emerson is her favorite author. She keeps a volume of Emerson by her at all times. She is very fond of reading, especially poetry. Browning is one of her favorite poets.

Some day she hopes to settle down in the country with an acre, a dog, a horse, and a flower garden. That is her dream.

She is enthusiastic about sports and has only recently taken up horse-back riding. With a group of others of the KFRC feminine artists she spends much of her time riding. She is also fond of swimming and tennis, and bridge and dancing.

Her eyes are blue, her hair brown. She has a round, patient, good-natured face. She is about five feet seven and of average weight.

Hazel’s times on the air are rather indefinite, outside of her appearances on the Golden State Blue Monday Jamboree and the Happy Go Lucky Hour.

Another secret NBC romance was made public last week, when a picture of a housewife listening to the radio was required for use on a booklet.

"We want a picture of you as a housewife, the photographer told Miss Fern McChesney of the sales department, who blushed and exclaimed, "Why, how did you find out?"

She and Russell McNeill, of the NBC library, had been married for two weeks. Theirs is the eighth NBC wedding in the last three months.

Mark Warnow, Columbia orchestra pilot, had just finished listening to an audition in which several sopranos exercised their vocal cords. As he emerged from the studio, someone approached him: "How did the singers rank, Mark?" "They didn't," replied Mark; "they were."

Nona Campbell (KTAB) of the "Smilin' Thru" trio, is one of the most versatile artists around the studio. Nona can play for you, either piano or organ. She can sing most anything. Her voice has a marvelous range. 'Bout the time that you think she is a contralto, she sings a few ringing high notes that make you wonder!

They have them in medical schools, but now radio station KOA, key NBC station in Denver, has its own "dissecting room." It is used, however, not in physical but in vocal vivisection. It is the room in which the audition board of the station takes the radio possibilities of aspiring artists completely apart. And it received its name, as might be expected, from the bonmot-coinings station manager, Freeman H. Talbot.

The largest man in Meredith Willson's KFRC Concert Orchestra plays the smallest instrument—Rudy Logar weighs 220 pounds, his piccolo three ounces. Tommy Harris says his goal is Broadway musical comedy. Axel Axelson, the Jamboree Swede, rates among America's best percussionists—in other words, he is a drummer, and a good one—his real name is Clyde "Pete" Barlow. Murray and Harris, the hilarious harmony team, spent the Christmas holidays in Los Angeles, their home. It's getting so that where you see Edna Fischer you also see her new bull purr. Hazel Warner's favorite author is Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Bartley Sims, KTM's staff organist, just missed being a minister. But he preferred a musical training instead. His father is Dr. W. J. Sims, pastor of the First Methodist Church, South, in Long Beach.

The KJBS Pet Club conducted by Doc Millar is one of the most popular features on the station. Millar has spent the greater part of his life in the study of the care of various animal pets and birds. He answers from fifty to 150 letters a week from members of his pet club.

For once in their lives Van and Don, NBC's two professors, looked serious when they read a fan-mail missive not long ago. It was from the wife of one of their most ardent followers, who told them that her husband, an invalid incapacitated by the loss of a limb, had been removed to a hospital and was unable to hear their morning broadcasts because he had no radio in the room. The shut-in was an enthusiastic admirer of the professors and hated to miss their cheery morning sessions, the writer informed them. Van and Don lost no time telegraphing the hospital and having a radio installed. So their sick friend laughs with them again.

Alma La Marr (KTAB) suddenly decided to go to Salt Lake City—and in no time at all had her ticket and was on her way. "Bobby" and "What-a-Man," the two studio canaries, will certainly miss her. She fed them every morning!

Kate Smith and Nat Brusiloff, who directs the orchestra which accompanies her broadcasts, are both from Washington, D. C. They first performed together there at the Club Le Paradis, where Nat was the maestro and Kate sang as guest artist.
• • • Carl Haverlin, commercial manager of KFI KECA with an artistic soul, is a young man of 32, but already a veteran in the field of radio.

Haverlin completed a college education, spent six years in a theatrical environment, wrote fiction and was rewrite man with the Southland News Service.

David Belasco produced a play by Haverlin and this versatile young man was a member of the world's record relay team at Manual Arts High School, Los Angeles.

Seven years ago, Haverlin came to Earle C. Anthony, Inc., as general sales and advertising assistant. Within two years he had become advertising manager and in 1926 was made commercial manager of KFI KECA.

Haverlin has made the rounds of the United States, dipped into Mexico and Canada, and jogged quite a bit around Europe.

Haverlin's wife is Virginia Flohri, noted soprano.

• • • Just because a five passenger cabin plane couldn't get him to and from his 640 acre estate in northern Wisconsin fast enough, Wayne King, the famous NBC maestro, "junked" the cabin ship for a speedy three-seater with an open cock-pit. Wayne's new plane has a cruising speed of 135 miles an hour and is kept in a private hangar at a Chicago airport. The famous "waltz king" is a full-fledged pilot as well as one of America's outstanding orchestra leaders.

• • • No matter how low the temperature, Bing Crosby always appears at the first of his nightly Cremo programs dressed in the lightest of summer attire, including sport shoes. This is not to be attributed to habits acquired in sunny California, where he spent much of his time before coming to New York. The reason is that he has but fifteen minutes to get from the Columbia studios to the stage of the Paramount Theater. Singin' Sam is another who has to make a quick trip from the microphone to the stage. He must travel more than fifty blocks in twenty-nine minutes to be in time to catch his cue.

• • • Hurray for Leap Year. So says young twenty-one-year-old David Carlyle, tenor-announcer for KTM. He is the sole surviving bachelor in the station's announcing ranks. But it won't be long now.

• • • Hero and Zero, the new "hot" duo on KTAB, are two good-looking youngsters from Salt Lake City. One is Reed Pollock and the other J. Peterson. But try and find out which is "Hero" and which is "Zero"!

• • • When Paul Ash brought his gang to the KFRC Happy Go Lucky Hour recently he renewed an old friendship with KFRC's comedienne, Nora Schiller. Nora worked with him for sixteen weeks in San Francisco and later he sent for her to come to Chicago, where she was featured in his shows for several months.

• • • Isabel Jewell, blonde actress of the Eno Crime Club's series of mystery dramas (CBS), is another example of the strange transitions which are so frequent in radio. As were Irene Beasley and Helen Board, popular vocalists on Columbia's staff, Miss Jewell was a school teacher down south before she entered radio. She taught Latin in Kentucky—a rather far cry from the enactment of roles in murder yarns.

• • • Earle Hodgins, NBC producer, now answers to the nickname of "Steamboat." In a Split Second Tale presented on a recent Saturday night, he and Edward Lutis, sound effect man, and Carlton Morse, the writer of this series, labored long to find a mechanical effect resembling the sound of a steamboat's engine. The zero hour approached; Earle, in desperation, suddenly "chug-chugged" with his vocal cords before the microphone—and the effect was perfect!

• • • Eugene Eubanks, assistant production manager to Merle Matthews, KFRC, was one of the original members of the Bird of Paradise company, which starred Guy Bates Post and Bessie Barriscle. He played the part of "Honey Boy Wiggin" in the Virginian with Dustin Farnum. He has worked in pictures with Douglas Fairbanks, the Warner Brothers productions, and with many stage shows.

• • • Kate Smith's mail recently brought her a Christmas greeting card from a radio fan in Hamburg, Germany, more than 4000 miles away. On the back of the card, written in English, was "Though an ocean separates us, I always listen to you." When the "Songbird of the South" is heard in America it is 2:30 a. m. in Hamburg.

FUNNY 'bout radio, huh? Two men laugh and an entire nation laughs. I was thinkin' o' Amos 'n' Andy. Hope you didn't miss 'em on a recent Monday night. Even the misunderstood Andy broke down. First time I'd ever heard him give way. Clever those two. I'm still wonderin' 'bout that dream o' Amos'. D' you s'pose they had that angle in mind when they began those pathos episodes or—what?

NBC offers a restful interlude in Whispering Strings on Tuesday nights 'long 'bout 8 o'clock. Artistic program. Splendid arrangements. I'm powerfully keen 'bout strings when they're skilfully bowed. These are. One o' those programs where you c'n keep your eyes an' mouth shut simultaneously.

Guess there must be somebody by the name o' Mort on Disturbers of the Air. In less 'n' forty-five minutes I counted "Mort" twenty-four times.

Max Dolin went a-callin' a coupla weeks back. Took his fiddle along like a good li'l boy an' played all his pieces for the Merry Makers. Well, not 'xactly all—he left out "Swanee River" an' "Traumeri."

The Funnyboners on CBS are a tonic for laugh-starved ear drums. Hokum without restraint. Lively as a nutty gang 'round a frat piano.

Here I was bettin' on Medbury an' how it looks like he's gonna make a false prophet outa me. Last few programs 've been short circuits. Some words get me like sour notes. "Pat-a-roo-skee" is one of 'em Com on Med, you c'n do better 'n' that.

Mendel swears by her Woman's Magazine of the Air. If all the recipes she's used, recommended by these lady friends o' hers, were laid end to end they'd reach 'round the world an' back again. Lotta concoctions I don't care much about, but far be it for me to mention it. I hadda hard enough time the first year tryin' to look surprised each time my one an' only served Spanish omelette.

If I had my way, Edna O'Keefe'd stick to hoop-poop-de-doops. She will try to act. Not an ounce of merit in her emotional outbursts. Sounds like a small girl tryin' to play grown-up. Cute at first, but terribly tiresome after awhile. 'Nother, if I had my way—Norman Neilson'sd do duty as an announcer. He's a swell, straight man, no kiddin'. Think it over ol' man. You could give a lotta these regulars a run for their money.

I must acclaim my joy over the CBS Modern Male Chorus. The word "modern" in this case must stand for improved. Talk about finess. These boys invented it.

Something about Christopher Morley that made me like him in spite o' his radio technique. I'm hopin' he's on again. Heard him thru National. His voice is downright appealin' an' his sincere manner warmed my heart.

One o' my weekly anticipations is the program offered by Fray and Bragiotti on CBS. Two piano boys. Grand combination. Mm mm... bet they do some wood-sheddin' (meanin' preparation) before they air their stuff. Not only do they know their black an' white keys but their heights an' depths of emotion as well. An' in-trick-ette! Lordy! Have me gaspin' half the time wonderin' how they're gonna untangle themselves. An' do they? Say—as skillfully as a first class liar.

NBC's Musical Miniatures on Monday night oughta be marked A-Plus. (I'm not familiar with a higher rating.) Condensed stories of lands an' customs written by a literary giant an' produced by somebody with brains. When the music's background, it is background. When it comes to the fore, it's the finished product. Anthony Smythe as the narrator is immense. 'Fact the entire broadcast is a knock-out.
THE legal fraternity, in the early years of our national history the outstanding influence in public affairs, no longer holds foremost rank in the guidance of the Government, due, among other things, to the development of broadcasting of business men as orators.

A return to the days prior to the World War, when lawyers far outnumbered all other professional and business groups not only in Congress but in the State Legislatures, is called for by Attorney General William D. Mitchell. For more than a century, the outstanding statesmen, orators and public leaders were men with legal training, but, Mr. Mitchell points out, "the practicing lawyers of this country are not as influential in public affairs as they were 50 or 100 years ago, when public speaking was the principal means of directing public opinion and lawyers completely dominated legislatures.

"The press, the cultivation of public speaking by business men, the radio and other things have wrought changes," he declared. "Nevertheless, there is no other single element of our population that has as much influence in legislatures and governmental matters as have lawyers."

To bring about the restoration of the lawyers' former glory, the Attorney General holds, legal education "must be so directed that our law schools send forth men trained for the active practice of their profession, but with inquisitive minds, not disposed blindly to accept things as they are, and with a vision and idealism to mix with their practical experience, which will make them effective instruments for improvement. Such men can be expected to give the final punch needed to accomplish practical results by concrete measures, which will gain the approval not merely of idealists, but of hard-headed men."

Broadcasting, which has made possible the expression of opinion by men not primarily engaged in public affairs, has increased manifold the opportunity for participation in politics and has enhanced tremendously the influence of leaders. Millions may be reached where mere hundreds could be addressed before radio made possible the linking of a hundred stations into one great rostrum but, in the absence of television, a new technique is needed to reach and hold the people. The fervid gestures of the old-time "spellbinder" go for naught and "making the eagle scream" falls flat over the radio; the radio orator today must appeal to the reason and not the passions, as many have found by painful experience.

The Attorney General's comment is of considerable interest in view of the demand in recent years for more business men in government, raising as he does the question whether the business man has the broad knowledge and experience required of those who would successfully make laws.

COMMON-SENSE revisions of the broadcasting regulations which will make programs more enjoyable will be put into effect by the Federal Radio Commission in February.

From the standpoint of the listener, the most important change is that in the time between station announcements. At present, stations are required to announce their call letters every fifteen minutes regardless of whether it is necessary to interrupt the program to do so. After February 1, however, they will be required to announce only "as frequently as practicable," but at least once every thirty minutes except where the call would interrupt an address, when it is to be made immediately after the conclusion of the talk.

The commission's requirements for station announcements have long been the subject of criticism. Often necessitating the interruption of a program, it has been contended that the present stable condition of the industry and the use of calibrated receivers made it sufficiently easy to identify most stations from the dial and permit a longer time to elapse between identification calls.

Need for the purchase of short-wave receivers in order to secure sound accompaniments to visual broadcasts is hoped by the commission to be eliminated as a result of a change in the frequency for this service from 1604 to 1550 kilocycles, just above the limit of the broadcast band. The television band also has been brought nearer the broadcast spectrum, moving from 2850-2950 kilocycles to 1600-1700 kilocycles, the new band formerly having been occupied by an aviation service.

While advertising programs continue to be barred from the television stations, which are held to be strictly experimental, the commission has relaxed its regulations so far as to permit picture broadcasts simultaneously with commercial sound programs, provided, however, that no commercial announcements shall be made on the television frequency.

BECAUSE the signals from a 7½-watt transmitter located in western Pennsylvania failed to stop at the State line but were picked up by radio inspectors in New York and West Virginia, Lee Elton Spencer of Jeannette, Pennsylvania, fell afoul of the law and has been found guilty in the Federal Court at Pittsburgh of ten separate violations of the Federal Radio Act.

Admitting that he had no operator's license for his station, Spencer contended that he had not violated the statutes because his station was of such low power that its signals could not reach beyond the borders of the State. The Government, however, was successful in proving that his programs were picked up in two other States at points where they interfered with the signals of two stations, one in New York and the other in Kentucky.

Seizing upon a point which Spencer apparently had overlooked, the Government then proceeded to prove that within the State of Pennsylvania the station interfered with at least four other stations in other States in violation of the radio act.

The question of whether the signals from a broadcasting station can be confined within a given area has arisen from time to time, always so far to be answered in the negative. Following an exhaustive investigation of the subject, a Canadian commission not long ago recommended national control of radio in Canada in preference to provincial regulation because of the impossibility of keeping signals from crossing provincial lines.

Courts in the United States have held that it was impossible to confine signals within the borders of a State, on this ground basing a decision holding unconstitutional a South Carolina statute which sought to impose a tax on radio receivers, as an interference with interstate commerce. In Spencer's case the Government proved that signals from his 7½-watt station could be heard for more than fifty miles.
There's a Reason

A writer to the “Open Circuit” recently asked what becomes of radio dramatists. I happen to be in touch with a number of professional writers and frequently discuss the several branches of their craft, hence I may be able to present the dramatist’s viewpoint, even though I am not a dramatist myself.

I gather from such discussions that dramatic programs are increasing in popularity because of the demands of the listener and almost over the dead bodies of most of the program directors and station managers. This affects the writers of radio drama in various ways—none of them good.

Radio stations boast of contracts with crooners, dance bands, and harmonica players, and at the same time set a flat rate of from nothing up to not much higher for radio plays which are expected to furnish entertainment to thousands for thirty minutes. It should be pointed out here that to be acceptable, a radio drama must be about 5,000 words in length, be original, contain a clear, gripping plot and dialogue that can be read aloud. Quite an order, isn’t it? Some stations are actually offering as low as $2.50 for such a story. I ask you, what can you expect from such a drama?

In addition to low prices, my friends say, the average radio station retains a manuscript for weeks or even months before it is passed upon. It is usually weeks later before it is produced, and some of them don’t get around to paying for them even then. Professional writers regard their scripts as salable merchandise, and object to having them buried in some director’s files.

It is natural that writers should see possibilities in radio drama, and equally natural that, tired of such universal lack of consideration, courtesy, and profit, they turn to other fields, even though these fields are not so green as formerly.

What is the answer? Probably that an insistent demand upon the part of the radio public for better dramatic programs will force the more alert stations to reorganize the true entertainment possibilities in this form of program. The best of the present dramas are crude as compared with the possibilities for literary and artistic excellence, but radio will have to conform more nearly to the customs and rates of other manuscript buyers before the listener will get the high type of drama he would like to hear.

Your Voice, Hazel

I have been enjoying your little magazine for months, especially Dyal Turner. I have read so many nice tributes, given for the beautiful voice of Hazel Warner of KFRC.

If I may—I should like to express, in my way, just what I think of her voice:

YOUR VOICE

Your voice to me,
Is soft and low and sweet,
And filled with ecstasy.
It floats upon the air,
Like a soft caress
To my lips pressed.

Your voice reminds me,
Of the gentle cooling breeze,
As it whispers through the trees.
Of moonlights softest rays,
As they wind upon their way.

Your voice to me—
Is like the rose,
Whose sweet perfume—I know
Breaths the very soul of love,
And tells me—I love you.

Sincerely yours,
