Executive. e. University of Baltimore. Director of principal gifts for the Metropolitan Opera in New York in 1993. Served as director of development and alumni affairs for International House in New York, and as program development officer for the U.S. Committee for UNICEF. Kerger served for more than a decade at Educational Broadcasting Corporation (EBC), the parent company of Thirteen/WNET and WLIW New York, as Exec. V.P. and COO. Her tenure included WNET's completion in 1997 of the largest successful endowment campaign ever undertaken by a public television station. In 2002, Kerger was promoted to V.P. and station manager of Thirteen/WNET. Kerger oversaw local program acquisition, broadcast scheduling, communications, on-air promotion, and pledge production, she supervised individual giving, as well as Thirteen's volunteer program, viewer and member services, and government affairs. Kerger also directed the launch of four digital channels: ThirteenHD, Kids Thirteen, World and Create. The latter, launched in January 2006 through a partnership with WGBH/Boston and American Public Television, is public television's first 24-hour lifestyle channel. 2004, Kerger became Exec. V.P. and COO of EBC and a member of the office of the President. Joined PBS as its sixth president and chief executive in March 2006. Public Broadcasting Service, is the nation's largest non-commercial media organization with 356 member stations. Among her accomplishments are Ken Burns' and Lynn Novick's "The War," which earned the highest rating of any PBS series in the last 10 years; the debut of children's programs as "Curious George" (the number one show for children ages 2-5 since 2006), "Word World," "Super Why!," "Martha Speaks," and "Sid the Science Kid"; new primetime science and arts series; and comprehensive online sites for parents and caregivers -- PBS Parents -- and for educators -- PBS Teachers. PBS programs have been honored with 33 Emmys, including ten News and Documentary Emmys and nine Primetime Emmys; eight George Foster Peabody awards; and one Academy Award (for best animated short film). Innovative partnerships with companies as iTunes, YouTube, Microsoft's Xbox, Netflix, Amazon's Video on Demand, Hulu, and Vuze ensure that PBS programming is accessible across more than one platform and, increasingly, to a global audience. In addition to leading PBS, Kerger is President of the PBS Foundation, an independent organization that raises private sector funding for PBS, and a director of the International Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. For the since 2007, the Hollywood Reporter has included Ms. Kerger in the "Women in Entertainment Power 100." KING, GRAHAM

Producer, Executive. b. England, Dec. 19, 1961. Raised in London, King came to the U.S. in 1981 on a student visa to study at the Univ. of California in Los Angeles. A summer job in the international TV distribution wing of Twentieth Century Fox led to promotion in foreign sales of B-pictures during a time when the American film and TV industry was opening up to the foreign market. From 1987 -1992, he worked for international sales company Cori Films. King then transferred to the Beverly Hills Producers Group, where he met future business partner Cindy Cowan. The two formed Initial Entertainment Group (IEG) in 1995, and began producing such films as Robert Altman's Dr. T & the Women. King soon purchased Cowan's share of the company and began taking chances on pricier films. King currently is pres. & CEO of IEG. The independent finance, production, and distribution company, with King at the helm, was the force that brought Steven Soderbergh's Academy Award-winning Traffic to the big screen; he bought the foreign film rights to Michael Mann's Ali and underwrote Martin Scorsese's Gangs of New York for $65 million. All were critical and box office successes. His willingness to gamble and ability to deliver at the box office put him among today's most successful producers. At the 2007 Academy Awards, King won a Best Picture Oscar for the ensemble crime thriller The Departed. Currently also an executive for GK Films.

Klein began his TV career in 1980 as a news producer at WLNE in Providence, R.I., and the following year moved to a similar position at WPXI-TV/Independent Network News in New York. In 1982, joined CBS News as writer/news editor on the overnight broadcast, Nightwatch. He subsequently served as broadcast producer on CBS Morning News and then CBS Evening News Weekend Edition, where he won an Emmy Award for live coverage of the 1986 Reagan/Gorbachev summit in Reykjavik, Iceland. In 1988, Klein became field producer on prime-time magazine series 48 Hours, and won an Emmy Award for coverage of Hurricane Hugo and a Peabody Award for an hour he produced on the anti-abortion movement. Klein served as sr. producer for CBS' 1990 late-night series America Tonight with Charles Kuralt and Lesley Stahl as sr. producer for 1991 coverage of Gulf War; and later for the documentary Back to Baghdad. In 1993, Klein launched a prime-time documentary series, Before Your Eyes, with a two-hour movie-of-the-week format that explored social issues such as child abuse, AIDS and juvenile delinquency through the eyes of real people living through dramatic moments with the cameras rolling. The series, which Klein exec. produced and directed, was acclaimed for pioneering new forms of storytelling and received numerous national awards. In 1997, Klein conceived and executive produced the CBS documentary, Inside the Jury Room, in which network TV cameras were permitted for the first time to observe deliberations in a criminal trial. The documentary won a Columbia-DuPont Silver Baton. Klein also wrote the story for the TNT Original film, Buffalo Soldiers, a 1997 historical drama starring Danny Glover. In 1999, Klein became the pres. & CEO of The FeedRoom, a broadband video company he founded. Under his direction, the FeedRoom became one of the leading online broadcasters in the world, delivering more than 1 million video clips each day to customers including CBS, NBC, ESPN, Reuters, Tribune television stations and newspapers, USA Today, Business Week, General Motors, Cisco Systems, Sun Microsystems, General Mills and the U.S. Department of Defense. In Nov. 2004 Klein was promoted to pres. CNN/U.S. In 2010 Klein left his position at CNN.

KLINE, JACK M.

Executive. b. West Point, NY, Dec. 11, 1950. e. B.A. degree in psychology, Univ. of Tampa. Kline received engineering training as a Combat Engineer Officer, United States Marine Corps, 1972 - 1976, and was honorably discharged as Captain. Kline joined Christie Digital Systems USA, Inc. in 1979 as a national sales representative. He was promoted to v.p., sales and marketing in 1988. In 1992, Kline helped engineer the merger of Christie with Xenon lamp manufacturer Ushio, Inc., a move that transformed the $4 million organization into a $70 million corporation operating on an international scale. In 1997, Jack was named executive v.p. & COO and he was appointed to his present position as president & COO in 1999. Among Kline's major accomplishments were Christie's new acquisition strategies that helped to rapidly establish Christie as a major force in the digital projection arena. The acquisition of Canadian digital projector manufacturer Electrohome Projection Systems in 1999 further strengthened Christie's increasingly dynamic leadership role in the industry's global conversion from 35mm film to cutting-edge digital cinema technology. In 2000, Christie became the world's first licensee of Texas Instruments' DLP® cinema technology, a move that catapulted the company from a 35mm analog manufacturer to a global provider of high powered, high performance digital projection products and the global leader in digital cinema development. In 2005, Kline played a critical role in designing the industry's first practical framework for the installation of digital cinema, successfully creating strategic partnerships with major Hollywood studios, exhibitors, projector manufacturers and technology providers that helped launch the digital cinema revolution. Kline is a member of the Society of Motion Picture & Television Engineers (SMPTE), Motion Picture Pioneers, and International Theatre Equipment Association (ITEA).

KROLL, SUE

Executive. e. Glassboro State University in New Jersey, bachelor's degree, communications. Kroll worked seven years in New York for various Viacom divisions, including Showtime Networks Inc., The Movie Channel and Viewer's Choice. At Turner Network Television, she served as senior v.p. & managing dir. of TNT and Cartoon Network and headed up Turner's marketing dept., developing and directing marketing and promotional campaigns for the network and its programs. She joined Warner Bros. in 1994, heading programming & operations for its international channels. In this role, Kroll devised the strategy and launch of the studio's venture into the international branded cable channels business. Her success led to a promotion to the film group, where she became senior v.p., international marketing; she became president, international marketing in 2000. Since that appointment, Kroll has helped lead the division to seven consecutive years, 2001-2007, grossing over $1 billion, with 32 releases each grossing over $100 million internationally in that period. In 2004, Warner Bros. Pictures International crossed the $1 billion threshold in less than six months and went on to become the first studio ever to surpass the $2 billion dollar mark in a calendar year. In 2007, Warner Bros.' box office receipts shattered the record with a $2.4 billion total, both a Warner Bros. and industry record. Warner Bros. combined domestic and international marketing operations in 2008 and promoted Kroll to her current position, president, worldwide marketing, Warner Bros. Pictures. In this new post, she oversees the strategic creation and implementation of marketing campaigns in the U.S. and internationally, and directs all aspects of marketing, advertising, media planning, promotion, publicity and research.

Graduate School of Business, M.B.A. Before entering entertainment industry, worked with Wasserstein, Perella & Co., a NY-based investment-banking firm. Joined Sony Pictures Entertainment in 1991. During his tenure, he served in many positions including exec. v.p. of corporate development and strategic planning. Served at Sony as vice chairman of Sony Pictures Entertainment and also pres. of Sony Pictures Digital Entertainment, which Landau formed in 1999—2008, bringing together all of Sony Pictures' digital artists and software engineers from Sony Pictures Imageworks, Sony Online Entertainment and Columbia Tristar Interactive into one division. Sony Pictures Imageworks has grown into a leading digital animation and visual effects company creating computer-generated imaging (CGI) for motion pictures. Landau supervised production of Imageworks' first animated short, The Chubbchubbs!, which won an Academy Award for Best Short Film (animated) in 2003. Building on this success, he established Sony Pictures Animation to develop and produce all-CGI animated features for SPE. Sony Online Entertainment has grown into the worldwide leader in massively multiplayer online (MMO) gaming, building upon EverQuest, with Star Wars Galaxies launched in partnership with Lucas Arts in 2003. Through Sony Pictures Digital, Landau developed the technology and formed the five-studio Movielink partnership, the first major studio Internet movie download service, launched in 2002. Most recently, he reorganized Sony Pictures Digital Networks to focus on emerging mobile entertainment, broadband video delivery and media software. Today this group includes Sony Pictures Mobile, SoapCity, and Sony Pictures Integrated Network (SPIN), the studio's online promotional presence. 2008, he will start a new games and animation venture to develop and produce multiplatform content as an exec. prod. for Sony Pictures Animation. He also served as vice Chairman of Sony Pictures Entertainment and President of Sony Pictures Digital. 2010 he joined venture capital firm, MK Capital, as a partner.

LASSETER, JOHN

Executive, Director, Writer, Executive Producer.
 b. Hollywood, CA, Jan. 12, 1957. e. California Institute of the Arts in Valencia, CA. In 1979 won Achievement Award for Animation of Lady and the Lamp from the Student Academy Awards, USA. Lasseter is a much-nominated animator who has received numerous awards, including an Oscar for Best Animated Short Film, Tin Toy, in 1988 (shared with William Reeves). In 1982 Disney hired Lasseter as an animator. He wanted to pursue computer animation, so in 1984 Lasseter left Disney in order to be on the cutting edge, with the computer animation division of Lucasfilm's Industrial Light and Magic. In 1986, Steve Jobs, co-founder and chairman of Apple Computer, Inc., purchased the computer division of Lucasfilm and incorporated it as an independent company, under the name Pixar Animation Studios. Jobs gave Lasseter the freedom to direct, produce, write, and create models for many projects, many of which were TV commercials. Lasseter directed the studio's first short film, 1986's Luxo, Jr., which starred a desk lamp and its precocious child. In 1988, Lasseter directed the short, Tin Toy, which would make history as the first computer animated film ever to win an Academy Award. Pixar's Toy Story received four Oscar nominations and Lasseter was presented with a Special Achievement Academy Award for his part in bringing the first feature-length computer animated film to the screen. Pixar merged with The Walt Disney in May 2006. Pixar is now a wholly owned subsidiary of The Walt Disney Company, and Lasseter serves as chief creative officer for Pixar Animation Studios and Walt Disney Animation. He also is principal creative adviser for Walt Disney Imagineering. 2004 received ADG Award for Contribution to Cinematic Imagery.

MAYO, BUD

Executive.

A. Dale "Bud" Mayo. Mr. Mayo is a founder of Digital Cinema Destinations Corp. and has served as chairman and chief executive officer since its inception in July 2010. The Company completed an Initial Public Offering (IPO) in April of 2012 and trades under the symbol DCIN on the NASDAQ. Also known by its brand, Digiplex Destinations, the Company is dedicated to transforming movie theaters into interactive entertainment centers and provides consumers with uniquely satisfying experiences, combining state-of-the-art digital technology with engaging, dynamic content including live sports events, concerts, conferences, operas, videogames, auctions and fashion shows in addition to major motion pictures. Digiplex is a partner in DigiNext, a unique, specialty content venture featuring curated content from film festivals around the world. As of October 2012, Digiplex operates nine cinemas and 85 screens in PA, NJ and CT. From April 2000 until his retirement in June 2010, Mr. Mayo was the chairman, president and chief executive officer of Cinedigm, a pioneer in the digital cinema industry. During his tenure, Cinedigm completed an IPO in 2003 and financings in excess of $600 million. Cinedigm led the way for the transition from film to digital, a revolutionary shift for the entire motion picture industry. Cinedigm continues to provide expanded content for moviegoers as well as enabling software and integration services for producers, distributors, and exhibitors. Mr. Mayo was a founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Clearview Cinema Group from December 1994 through January 2000. Mr. Mayo grew Clearview into the largest independent theatre circuit in the New York metropolitan area, completing an IPO in 1997. He was responsible for the sale of Clearview to Cablevision Systems Corp. for $160 million in 1998. Mr. Mayo continued as CEO of successor Cablevision Cinemas until January of 2000. From 1976 to 1993, Mr. Mayo was the founder, chief executive officer and sole shareholder of Clearview Leasing Corporation which completed more than $200 million in equipment lease transactions. He began his career with IBM as a computer salesman in 1965 and later co-founded more than a dozen computer services companies. During the 1970s, he served in various corporate finance positions on Wall Street. In recognition of his contributions to the motion picture exhibition industry, Mr. Mayo was inducted into the film exhibition Hall of Fame at the industry's Show East conference in October 2010. He is also the recipient of Ernst & Young's 2006 Regional Entrepreneur of the year award and a 2009 Telly award. A 1964 graduate of New York University's Stern School of Business, Mr. Mayo was recognized with membership in Beta Gamma Sigma, the international honor society for collegiate schools of business, in May, 2007. A resident of Ocean County, New Jersey, he is a member of the Bay Head Yacht Club and the University Club of New York. An avid patron of the arts, Mr. Mayo has had a decades-long involvement in the performing arts in New Jersey. He served for six years as a Board Member of John Harms Center, the predecessor of Bergen PAC and Community Theater of Morristown, where he was instrumental in the development of this important regional theater beginning in 1994 as a Board Member and holding various positions including member of the Finance Committee. In recognition of his valuable contributions of time, talent and generous financial support, the Community Theater was renamed the Mayo Performing Arts Center in 2011.

MURDOCH, ELISABETH

Executive. Murdoch founded Shine TV in 2001 and with a series of successful acquisitions, Shine TV is now The Shine Group and the United Kingdom's fourth largest indie producer. Shine Group Chairman and CEO Murdoch, who left billionaire father Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. organization and a senior exec. position at News Corp.'s BSkyB, is building a media empire of her own. Shine started out making shows in the UK for News Corp.'s Sky, a comprehensive multi-channel TV service in the UK and Ireland with nearly 10 million subscribers. Struggling in its early years, Shine's recent savvy acquisitions have made headlines. The Shine Group now includes: Shine Pictures, Princess Productions, Kudos Film & TV, Firefly (factual programs) and in 2008 Shine acquired one of the biggest U.S. indie producers, Revellie (of "Ugly Betty" and "The Office" fame), for $200 million. In Sept. 2009 Murdoch teamed with Joanna Shields, the former CEO of online social networking site Bebo.com, to launch a digital media content company, a move that will enable The Shine Group to join the growing cadre of companies racing to produce digital content that airs across multiple platforms. The Shine Group acquired the London-based social gaming startup, Bossa Studios in 2011. Shine Group was sold to News Corporation in 2011. Murdoch sits on the bd. of dir. of the UK Film Council. She resigned her day to day management in 2012 but will continue to remain focused on Shine's creative talent, culture and strategy.

MURDOCH, JAMES

Executive. b. United Kingdom, Dec. 13, 1972. Son of billionaire media tycoon K. Rupert Murdoch. Studied music at Harvard University. In 1995 with two partners, he set up Rawkus Records, an independent hip hop record label. In 1996, Rawkus was bought up by his father's company, and the younger Murdoch joined News Corporation (controlled by father, Rupert Murdoch). James Murdoch was appointed chairman and chief executive of subsidiary Star Television in Hong Kong in May 2000. At the time, the pan-Asian satellite broadcaster was losing money and the younger Murdoch was charged with turning the organization's fortunes around, which he did. He was appointed exec. v.p. of News Corp.'s 36.8 per cent-owned British satellite broadcasting arm, he became CEO of BSkyB, Nov. 2003. Is also the Chairman of SKY Italia and non-executive Chairman of GlaxoSmithKline. Currently is Chairman and CEO, Europe & Asia, News Corp.

MURDOCH, LACHLAN K.

Executive. e. B.A. in philosophy, Princeton University. Son of News Corp. Chairman Rupert Murdoch. After serving in an executive capacity for News Corporation since the mid-1990s, Lachlan Murdoch resigned all his executive positions within News Corporation in July 2005. He stepped down as deputy COO, a position he'd held since 2000, but remained a director of News Corporation with plans to advise the company in a number of areas. Previous positions with News Corp. included: pres. of Fox Television Stations, publisher of the New York Post, a director for Fox Entertainment Group, Inc.; involvement in other ventures included his role as deputy chmn. of STAR Group, a wholly owned unit of News Corporation since 1995, a non-executive dir. of NDS Group PLC since 2002, and a director for OmniSky Corporation. He also was a director of Gemstar-TV Guide International, Inc. from 2001-Dec. 2004. Murdoch set up his new company, Illyria Pty Ltd, on Aug. 3, 2005. In May 2007, Illyria Pty Ltd. (Australia) launched a 50:50 joint venture with Percept Holdings to launch Percept Talent Management. The company represents creative and technical talent in the fields of motion pictures, TV, fashion, music, sports & branded entertainment. He is Director of Ten Network Holdings Limited since 2010 and its acting CEO since 2011.

MURDOCH, K. RUPERT

Executive. b. Australia, March 11, 1931. e. Oxford U., England. Son of Sir Keith Murdoch, head of The Melbourne Herald and leading figure in Australian journalism. Spent two years on Fleet St. before returning home to take over family paper, The Adelaide News. Acquired more Australian papers and in 1969, expanded to Britain, buying The News of the World. Moved to U.S. in 1973, buying San Antonio Express and News. Conglomerate, in 1985 included New York Post, New York Magazine, The Star, The Times of London, The Boston Herald, The Chicago Sun-Times along with TV stations, book publishing companies, airline, oil and gas companies, etc. In 1985, made deal to buy 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. from owner Martin Davis. Sold the NY Post, 1988, to conform with FCC regulations. Purchased Triangle Publications in 1988 (including TV Guide). Currently, Murdoch is chmn. & CEO at News Corporation Inc., where he has been the exec. director and chief executive since 1979. He has been a director of News Limited, News Corporation's principal subsidiary in Australia, since 1953, a director of News International, News Corporation's principal subsidiary in the U.K., since 1969 and a director of News America, News Corporation's principal subsidiary in the United States, since 1973. In the entertainment industry, Murdoch has been a director of Fox Entertainment Group since 1985, chmn. since 1992 and CEO since 1995. He is the chmn. of the bd. of The DIRECTV Group, Inc. MURRAY, JONATHAN

Producer, Executive. b. New York, 1955. e. Univ. of Missouri, journalism degree. Murray got his start in local television, spending six years at WLUK-TV, WXIA-TV and WKYC-TV in news, station management (WOKR-TV) and programming. He then worked with the TV rep firm HRP, Inc., helping local stations buy and schedule their syndicated programming. In 1991, Murray and Mary Ellis Bunim pitched their idea for an unscripted drama series to MTV executives over breakfast. MTV bought the show before lunch time, and the landmark success of Bunim-Murray Productions was underway. Bunim's experience in scripted dramas with Murray's documentary and news expertise broke all the rules of TV production. The result - The Real World - quickly dominated the youth market. From the Real World's 1992 launch, Murray has created and exec. produced more than 50 seasons and close to 2000 hours of unscripted TV. Despite the loss of Bunim to cancer in early in 2004, Murray continues to lead the company they founded together as his chmn. and pres.

NEWMAN, GARY

Executive. b. Los Angeles, CA, May 24, 1954. e. Yale. American Studies, 1976. J.D., USC Law Center 1980. Joined Lillick, McHose & Charles as attorney, 1980-1983. Newman joined Columbia Pictures Television as counsel in 1983-1984 before moving to NBC in 1984 where he held a series of positions over six years as manager, director and then vice president of business affairs. Twentieth Century Fox Television (TCFTV) in 1990 as senior V.P., business and legal affairs. From 1992 to 1999 he served as executive V.P., business and legal affairs. Became Co-President, TCFTV in November of 1999, a position he shares with friend Dana Walden. Since that time, Newman and Walden have been responsible for overseeing operations for the studio and have been instrumental in building TCFTV into a leading supplier of programming across all media from broadcast and cable television to syndication, mobile and broadband. TCFTV is home to writers and producers working in the industry including Seth MacFarlane, Shawn Ryan, Greg Garcia, Ryan Murphy, David E. Kelly, Goward Gordon and Joel Surnow and they maintain an exclusive relationship with Imagine Television. In addition to its roster of live action scripted comedies and dramas which under their tenure included "24," "Bones," "How I Met Your Mother," "Prison Break," "My Name Is Earl," "Raising Hope" and "Glee." TCFTV has become the leader in animated comedies for prime time with such hits as "The Simpsons," and "Family Guy," among others. Newman and Walden also oversee the studio's Licensing and Merchandizing division for their entertainment properties in areas including publishing, videogames, promotions, e-commerce, retail and themed entertainment. They also drive the Licensing and Merchandizing efforts of Fox Film, Fox Sports and the Microsoft Game Studios hit, "Halo." In 2002, Newman and Walden pioneered the now common industry practice of releasing television series on DVD immediately following each broadcast season, at the time, a revolutionary idea that helped drive the Fox drama "24" to blockbuster status in its second season. Newman and Walden have also been at the forefront of developing new production models, creating fox21 in 2004, a production house devoted to empowering writers to produce their "passion projects" by rethinking conventional television production economics. They have also produced a range of innovative content based on the studio's hit franchises for the worldwide wireless market. Gary Newman and Dana Walden were named Chairmen of TCFTV in 2007, a position they hold today.

O'NEILL, EILEEN

Executive. e. Bowling Green State University. Started at Discovery Communications as an unpaid intern while earning a graduate degree in popular culture from Bowling Green in Ohio. Having successfully developed a programming library, she was hired by DCI's networks operation department immediately upon graduation. O'Neill served as director of business affairs, responsible for all contract negotiations concerning co-productions, commissioned programming and original work for Discovery Channel, TLC and Animal Planet and also director of scheduling for Travel Channel. O'Neill then served as Exec. V. P. and general manager of Discovery Health Channel. Became President and general manager of Planet Green, the first and only 24-hour eco-lifestyle television network. She is credited with launching the network from the ground up in less than 12 months, and with more than 250 hours of all-original programming. She drew an authoritative and diverse group of celebrities and personalities to share their passion for the planet through a host of entertaining series and specials. In 2007, she simultaneously ran Discovery Health and TLC on an interim basis during a period of management transition at TLC. Under O'Neill, Discovery Health earned record ratings in all dayparts, including the strongest delivery ever during August 2005. Standout shows developed under her leadership include "Mystery Diagnosis", "Dr. G Medical Examiner" and "Jon & Kate Plus 8", then the top-rated series on the channel. O'Neill was named President and GM at TLC in 2008. She was promoted to Group President, a newly created position, of Discovery and TLC Networks in 2011. Key show launches since then have included "Cake Boss" and "Toddlers & Tiaras", "Say Yes to the Dress".

Executive. e. B.S. degree in journalism, Florida International University, 1980. Ostroff began her career in news as a reporter for WINZ, a CBS affiliate in Miami. She also worked in local news at WPLG and WTVJ in Miami. She then moved to the entertainment side of TV and from 1984 to 1989, Ostroff served as v.p., development at the Kushner-Locke Company. While there she developed a number of series for cable, as well as several miniseries and TV movies for all the broadcast networks. She became pres. of Michael Jacobs Productions, where she produced and supervised the production of comedies such as Boy Meets World and Dinosaurs for ABC and The Torkelsons for NBC. At 20th Century Fox Television, Ostroff was senior v.p., creative affairs, involved with the slate for the 1996-97 season: King of the Hill for FOX, Buffy the Vampire Slayer for The WB and the Emmy Award-winning The Practice for ABC. Ostroff joined Lifetime cable TV network in October 1996 as senior v.p., programming and production. She became Lifetime's executive v.p., entertainment in Aug. 1999. While at Lifetime, the network rose from the sixth highest-rated network in cable to the number one cable network in prime time and built its reputation as a dynamic outlet for Hollywood's most talented women in front of and behind the camera. During Ostroff's tenure, Lifetime's line-up boasted the top three original dramas on basic cable, including Strong Medicine, Any Day Now and The Division. CBS recruited Ostroff and in Feb. 2002, she became the UPN Network's entertainment pres. She was promoted to pres., UPN in Feb. 2005. When UPN and The WB announced in Jan. 2006 the two networks would fold and merge into a combined network dubbed The CW, Ostroff was tapped to become entertainment pres. for The CW. She resigned this position in 2011. She became president of Conde Nast Entertainment in 2011. In the new position, Ostroff will be responsible for development, creation, production and distribution of original television, film and digital initiatives based on the company's brands. Ostroff has received numerous awards and named to several "power lists" for the entertainment industry, including: an annual presence on Hollywood Reporter's "100 most powerful women in entertainment" since 2002 (no. 11 in 2006); for two consecutive years, Entertainment Weekly ranked Ostroff among Hollywood's top executives in their annual "Power List" issue.

PARSONS, RICHARD

Executive. b. Brooklyn, NY, April 4, 1948. e. undergraduate at Univ. of Hawaii. Earned his law degree from Union University's Albany Law School and outscored all other test takers of the 1971 New York State bar exam. Parsons began his career as assistant counsel to New York State Governor Nelson Rockefeller in 1971 and later served as a senior White House aide when Rockefeller became vice president under Gerald Ford. He left Washington in 1977, and moved into the private sector, first becoming a managing partner at the New York law firm Patterson, Belknap, Webb & Tyler. In his eleven years with Patterson, Parsons gained recognition as a skilled negotiator. He also took on such high-profile clients as Happy Rockefeller, the widow of Nelson Rockefeller, and cosmetics giant Estée Lauder. In 1988, he left the firm to help steer former client, Dimes, out of a financial crisis. He was key to helping the thrift lower its debt and ultimately merge with Anchor Savings Bank in 1995. As a result, Dime Bancorp became the largest thrift institution on the East Coast and the fourth largest in the United States. Parsons then joined Time Warner as its president in Feb. 1995, helping negotiate its merger with America Online, which created a $165-billion media empire in 2000. As president, he oversaw the company's filmed entertainment and music businesses, and all corporate staff functions, including financial activities, legal affairs, public affairs and administration. He then became the company's co-CEO. In Dec. 2001 AOL Time Warner CEO Gerald Levin announced plans to retire in May 2002 and declared that Parsons would succeed him. Parsons became CEO in May 2002; chairman of the board in May 2003. January, 2008 Parsons retired from Time Warner but remained chmn. of the board. In its Jan. 2005 report on America's Best CEO's, Institutional Investor magazine named Parsons the top CEO in the entertainment industry. He was named Chairman of Citigroup, after serving as a Director, where he oversaw Citigroup's recovery after two Federal bailouts and the company planned to split itself into two entities. He directed the stabilization of Citigroup's financial system. He resigned from this position in 2012. Parsons' civic and non-profit commitments include Co-Chairman of the Mayor's Commission on Economic Opportunity in New York; Chairman Emeritus of the Partnership for New York City; Chairman of the Apollo Theatre Foundation and service on the boards of Howard University, the Museum of Modern Art and the American Museum of Natural History. He also serves on the boards of Citigroup and Estée Lauder.

SLOAN, HARRY E.

Executive. e. B.A. degree from UCLA, 1971. J.D. degree from Loyola Law School, 1976. From 1976 to 1983, Sloan was a practing entertainment lawyer with Sloan, Kuppin and Arment, a law firm which he founded in Los Angeles, CA. He purchased New World Entertainment in 1983 and served as chairman; led the company's initial public offering (IPO) in 1985; acquired Marvel Entertainment Group in 1986, and sold the business in 1989. Under Sloan's leadership, New World grew into a fully integrated, publicly traded media company releasing 30 films per year. It was also the third largest supplier of prime time TV programming to the U.S. networks and the largest U.S. independent film and video distributor. He then turned his attention to European broadcasting and started SBS in 1990. SBS became the second largest broadcaster in Europe with 16 TV stations, 21 premium pay channels and 11 radio networks, with a reach of 100 million people across Europe. He led SBS' IPO in 1993. In 1999, SBS became the largest shareholder of Lions Gate Entertainment, a premier independent producer and distributor of motion pictures, TV programming, home entertainment, and video-on-demand content. Sloan was Lionsgate bd. chairman until April 2005. In Oct. 2005, Sloan has named chairman and CEO of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc. (MGM). MGM is actively engaged in the worldwide production and distribution of motion pictures, TV programming, home video, interactive media and licensed merchandise. In 2008 Sloan signed a three-year agreement to continue in his position as chairman and CEO. In 2009 he stepped down as CEO but continued on MGM's bd. as nonexecutive chairman. He serves as an outside consultant to MGM and his agreement with MGM is due to expire in 2011. Became the Chairman and CEO for Global Eagle Acquisition Corp. in 2011. Along with Jeff Sagansky, Global Eagle Acquisition's purpose is to take advantage of the substantial deal sourcing, investing and operating expertise of its management team to identify and acquire media or entertainment businesses with high growth potential in the United States or internationally. He also serves as a director at ZeniMax Media.

STERN, SANDRA

Executive. e. UCLA Law School. Stern began her career in the Columbia Pictures Television legal department, followed by a stint as a television attorney with the law firm that is now Bloom, Hergott, Cook, Diemer & Klein. She previously served as COO of Artists Television Group, where she helped create and structure the company and directed its business affairs, legal, finance, administrative and production operations. Prior to that, was Sr. V. P., then Exec. V. P. of the Columbia TriStar Television Group at Sony Pictures Entertainment, working closely with Columbia TriStar Television Group head Jon Feltheimer (now Chairman and CEO of Lionsgate). From 1986 through 1991, Stern was Sr. V. P. in charge of business affairs and international development at New World Entertainment, where she put together the first ever international co-production for a U.S. broadcast network. Stern joined Lionsgate Television in 2003 when she was named Exec. V.P., business and legal affairs. She became COO of Lionsgate Television in 2005. Stern's contributions have been pivotal to Lionsgate's emergence as a leading supplier of content to cable and broadcast networks. One of the industry's most forward-thinking strategists and creative dealmakers, she has been instrumental in forging new relationships and business models that have paved the way for such Lionsgate productions as the multiple Emmy and Golden Globe-winning series "Mad Men", AMC's first original drama series, "Crash", "Weeds" Showtime's series "Nurse Jackie", "Scream Queens" for VH1 and "Blue Mountain State". As part of Lionsgate's ongoing initiative to expand its television business, Stern created a television joint programming venture with Michael Hirschorn and Stella Stolper's Ish Entertainment, which entered into the partnership with a commitment for three TV series, including the reality competition series "Paris Hilton's My New BFF", "50 Cent: The Money and the Power" and "T.I.'s Road to Redemption" under a first-look deal with MTV Networks. She recently negotiated another new joint television venture with Lost Marble Productions' Marty Adelstein and Jon Kroll to produce original unscripted programming. She also helped guide Lionsgate into the emerging area of international format production. Stern has expanded Lionsgate's cost-efficient production opportunities by developing and managing relationships with the governments of New Mexico, New York, Pennsylvania, Louisiana and Canada. She also played a key role in forming the company's feature length documentary unit by creating the business model to finance these projects through co-productions with TV networks. The unit's first production was Werner Herzog's 2005 Sundance award-winning documentary "Grizzly Man", which debuted on Discovery Channel after its successful domestic theatrical run. Since then, Stern has served as an exec. prod. on all of the unit's subsequent productions. Other recent productions include "Guys 'n' Divas: Battle of the High School Musicals", produced with Spitfire Pictures and Showtime which aired on Showtime; and "Street Dogs of South Central", produced in partnership with Animal Planet. Stern has also been instrumental in launching Lionsgate's first foray into the area of live theater with the stage production of "Dirty Dancing". After sold-out performances in Australia, New Zealand, Germany, The Netherlands and on London's West End, the show began its U.S. tour in Chicago and made its West Coast premiere in Los Angeles in the spring of 2009.

STONE, HERMAN A.

Executive. Founder and CEO of Consolidated Theatres and lifetime film industry entrepreneur, has spent more than 45 years in the film industry, joining Consolidated Theatres in 1965 upon graduating from Pfeiffer College to handle booking, film buying and business development. A lifelong North Carolinian, he worked his way up through the ranks of the company to become president in 1986. After selling the business to Carmike Cinemas, Stone founded Consolidated Theatres, Inc. in 1990, which became the ninth largest theater chain in the U.S., operating 421 screens in 30 locations in North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Georgia, Virginia, and Tennessee. Stone then sold to Regal Entertainment Group in 2008; since then has formed a new theatre company, Stone Theatres, presently operating 44 screens in North Carolina and South Carolina. He was appointed to the NC Film Council by Governor Michael F. Easley in 2003 and in 2009 was re-appointed by Governor Bev Perdue to serve a third, three-year term on the council. And was recently re-appointed by again by Governor Bev Perdue to serve another term. Stone led the National Association of Theatre Owners (NATO) for two terms as Regional President from 1982-1986 and continues today to serve on the Board of Directors. He was named "Statesman of the Year" at the 2003 ShoWest Conference. December 2008, has been awarded the Order of the Long Leaf Pine, the highest civilian honor that can be bestowed by the Governor in the state of North Carolina. The prestigious award is presented to individuals who have shown outstanding service to the state through remarkable career achievement and public service. Stone's dedication to the theatre business mirrors his commitment to public service as he has been widely recognized for his significant philanthropic and financial support of many organizations over the years. A passionate supporter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, he helped organize many fundraisers for a regional chapter of the nonprofit organization and recently worked to help establish the MS Research Lab at the new North Carolina Research Campus in Kannapolis. He continues to support the MS Research Lab by the development of his website www.msgrants.org to help raise funds to find a cure for this disease that has affected over 350,000 in the United States. Stone's additional charitable outreach has included organizations such as the Charlotte Regional Film Partnership, the Make-a-Wish foundation, and numerous local churches and charities.

Executive. e. University of Southern California. Walden began her career at the public relations firm Bender, Goldman & Helper. She served at the studio's creative department as V.P. of Current Programming since 1994 and served as Sr. V.P. at Media and in Corporate Relations at both Twentieth Television and Twentieth Century Fox Television (TCFTV). She was promoted to Co-Pres. of TCFTV in November of 1999, a position shared with friend Gary Newman. Became Co-President, TCFTV in November of 1999, a position he shares with friend Dana Walden. Since that time, Newman and Walden have been responsible for overseeing operations for the studio and have been instrumental in building TCFTV into a leading supplier of programming across all media from broadcast and cable television to syndication, mobile and broadband. TCFTV is home to writers and producers working in the industry including Seth MacFarlane, Shawn Ryan, Greg Garcia, Ryan Murphy, David E. Kelly, Goward Gordon and Joel Surnow and they maintain an exclusive relationship with Imagine Television, in addition to its roster of live action scripted comedies and dramas which under their tenure included "24," "Bones," "How I Met Your Mother," "Prison Break," "My Name Is Earl," "Raising Hope" and "Glee." TCFTV has become the leader in animated comedies for prime time with such hits as "The Simpsons," and "Family Guy," among others. Newman and Walden also oversee the studio's Licensing and Merchandizing division for their entertainment properties in areas including publishing, videogames, promotions, e-commerce, retail and themed entertainment. They also drive the Licensing and Merchandizing efforts of Fox Film, Fox Sports and the Microsoft Game Studios hit, "Halo." In 2002, Newman and Walden pioneered the now common industry practice of releasing television series on DVD immediately following each broadcast season, at the time, a revolutionary idea that helped drive the Fox drama "24" to blockbuster status in its second season. Newman and Walden have also been at the forefront of developing new production models, creating fox21 in 2004, a production house devoted to empowering writers to produce their "passion projects" by rethinking conventional television production economics. They have also produced a range of innovative content based on the studio's hit franchises for the worldwide wireless market. Gary Newman and Dana Walden were named Chairmen of TCFTV in 2007, a position they hold today.

WALLACE, JOHN P.

Executive. e. Providence College, bachelor's degree, English; Montclair State University, master's degree in political science. Began career at NBC in 1988 as a member of the NBC Page Program. Wallace then held various positions in the NBC network's affiliate relations, network operations, finance, and affiliate services departments. From 1998-2000 worked in sales mgt. at NBC 10 in Philadelphia. Wallace managed the local sales department after completing a two-year post as v.p. and chief quality officer for the stations division. During this time Wallace earned General Electric (GE) certification as a Master Blackbelt. In 2000, Wallace became senior v.p., broadcast operations, NBC Television Stations Division. While there, Wallace developed the broadcast hub model, which centralized the stations' master control operations into three regional broadcast centers. He then built a centralized graphics operation in Fort Worth, TX, which produces all graphics for the NBC and Telemundo owned-and-operated stations in a single location at lower cost with higher quality production capability. GE, NBC Universal's parent company, recognized Wallace for this innovative technological and operational achievement with the prestigious Edison Award in May 2005. Wallace helped the company achieve additional efficiency when he led the operational integration of NBC and Vivendi Universal in 2004, which resulted in $100 million of operations synergies for the new company. Also in 2004, Wallace became executive v.p., television operations & productions services of the merged company. He was responsible for broadcast operations across NBC Universal's extensive TV properties, overseeing the field, production, studio, on-air, and distribution operations for the NBC and Telemundo broadcast television networks, cable networks, and owned-and-operated TV stations. One of his most significant achievements was to integrate NBC Universal's operational and technical TV assets into enterprise-wide platforms, eliminating legacy broadcast silos. As a result, distribution of network and cable content is processed through one operating center and system, resulting in millions of dollars in synergies. In Jan. 2007, Wallace received the GE Chairman's Award in the Technology category for his innovative work using cutting-edge technology to improve performance and reduce costs. He was named president, NBC Owned-and-Operated Television Stations, in July 2007. He oversees NBC Universal's 10 English-language TV stations, which provide NBC network and local programming to nearly 30% of the nation's households. Became President of NBCU Media Works in 2011. As of 2013 Wallace became President of NBCUniversal's Operations & Technical Services. He is responsible for the company's studio and post production television and film operations. He also oversees the company's technical operations including the areas of information technology, media products and advanced technologies. Also included in his portfolio are environmental health and safety, global security and crisis management, and the facility management of NBCUniversal's real estate portfolio, which includes Rockefeller Center in New York and Universal City in California.

Syracuse Univ., bachelor's degree, business and communications. 1987, joined Genesis Entertainment as an account executive, Midwest division. 1988, promoted to vice president; 1990, became senior v.p., domestic sales. While at Genesis/New World Television, Wallach was executive v.p. of domestic sales and played a key role in the 1996 launch of "Access Hollywood" from NBC and New World Television. He then moved to CBS/Eyemark Entertainment and was executive v.p. of domestic syndication. He oversaw the launch and/or renewal of 27 programs during his four-year tenure with the company, including the off-net syndication sales of "Everybody Loves Raymond," "Touched By An Angel," "Caroline in the City," and the first-run daily series "Martha Stewart Living." Left for WorldNow, where he was executive v.p., distribution & marketing. He directed the expansion of the WorldNow Network, as well as all the company's marketing activities. Wallach then joined NBC Enterprises and as executive v.p., he was responsible for all domestic distribution sales of NBC-owned product, which included domestic first-run syndication sales, strategic marketing and ancillary exploitation of owned product in home video, merchandising, licensing, music and publishing, and also strategic production and co-production alliances and co-ventures. This programming includes all shows produced by NBC Studio, NBC News, CNBC and MSNBC. Wallach was named president, NBC Universal Domestic Television Distribution, in May 2004. In this role today, he oversaw all domestic sales and distribution for NBC Universal Television Distribution. The division currently distributes more than a dozen first-run strip and weekly nationally syndicated programs, including "Access Hollywood," "The Martha Stewart Show," "The Jerry Springer Show," "Maury," "Real Talk" and "The Chris Matthews Show." Walters is co-owner, co-executive producer and co-host of The View. The view premiered in August 1997 and is broadcast live from New York City. Walters' numerous and timely interviews read like a "Who's Who" of newsmakers. She did the first interview for American television with Russia's President Vladimir Putin and through the years has interviewed such world figures as China's Premier Jiang Zemin, Great Britain's former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Libya's Moammar Quadaffi and Iraq's President Sadaam Hussein. She has interviewed every American President and First Lady since Richard Nixon. She made journalism history by arranging the first joint interview with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin in November, 1977. Another of her "firsts" was an hour-long primetime conversation with Cuban President Fidel Castro — an interview shown all over the world. She has received national recognition for her work, including: The Overseas Press Club's highest award, the President's Award, 1988; induction into the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' Hall of Fame "for being acknowledged worldwide as one of television's most respected interviewers and journalists," 1990; the Lowell Thomas Award for a career in journalism excellence by Marist College, 1990; Lifetime Achievement Award, International Women's Media Foundation, 1991; Salute by the American Museum of the Moving Image, 1992; Lifetime Achievement Award, Women's Project and Productions, 1993; Honored by the Museum of Television & Radio for her contributions to broadcast journalism, 1996; The Muse Award from NY Women in Film and Television, 1997; Lifetime Achievement Award, National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, 2000. Walters is the recipient of honorary doctoral degrees from Sarah Lawrence, her alma mater, as well as Ohio State University, Temple University, Marymount College, Wheaton College, Hofstra University and Ben-Gurion University in Jerusalem. The Barbara Walters Summer Special (series, host), Currently co-host, exec. prod. of The View (2 Emmy Awards, 24 Emmy noms.). Guest: More than 60 appearances.

WINFREY, OPRAH

Executive, TV Talk Show Hostess, Actress, Producer, Philanthropist. b. Kosciusko, MS, Jan. 29, 1954. e. Tennessee State U. Started as radio reporter then TV news reporter-anchor in Nashville. Moved to Baltimore in same capacity, later co-hosting successful morning talk show. Left for Chicago to host own show AM Chicago which became top-rated in only a month; expanded to national syndication in 1986. In 1988, she established Harpo Studios, a production facility in Chicago, making her the third woman in the American entertainment industry, after Mary Pickford and Lucille Ball, to own a studio. Subsequently, Winfrey assumed ownership and production of The Oprah Winfrey Show, and is seen by an estimated 30 million viewers a week in the U.S. and is broadcast internationally in 109 countries. In 1990, Winfrey established Harpo Films, and struck a long-term deal with ABC Television to produce "Oprah Winfrey Presents" TV movies. Harpo Films' 2005 production was "Their Eyes Were Watching God," based on the Zora Neale Hurston novel and starred Oscar winner Halle Berry. In addition to on-camera interview skills, Winfrey debuted her acting acumen in 1985 in Steven Spielberg's "The Color Purple," for which she received both Golden Globe and Academy Award nominations. In 1998, Winfrey co-founded Oxygen Media, a 24-hour cable television network for women (NBC Universal paid $925 million for the Oxygen cable network in Oct. 2007.). In 2000, Winfrey and Hearst Magazines introduced "O, the Oprah Magazine," a monthly women's lifestyle magazine and has more than 2 million readers each month, making "O" one of the most successful new magazines in recent history. A follow-up to "O" launched in 2004 was "O at Home." In Sept. 2002 she debuted "Oprah After the Show," an original unscripted half-hour show taped immediately following "The Oprah Winfrey Show." The series airs on the Oxygen Network. Extending her reach beyond television, Winfrey also operates Oprah.com, a women's lifestyle website that offers comprehensive advice to women; in 2003 she launched an interactive multimedia workshop online, which was based on her "Live Your Best Life" sold-out national speaking tour. In the second half of 2009 the Oprah Winfrey Network, LLC will debut on cable TV. It will be 50/50 owned by Discovery Communications and Harpo. OWN staff and operations will be based in Los Angeles. OWN will be a multi-platform media venture available in more than 70 million homes, and on the award-winning digital platform, Oprah.com.

PHILANTHROPY: Formed The Oprah Winfrey Foundation in 1987, to support the education & empowerment of women, children and families in the U.S. and around the world. Winfrey has awarded hundreds of grants to organizations that carry out this vision. In 1997, Winfrey established "Oprah's Angel Network," a public charity to encourage people to use their lives to make a difference in the lives of others. One hundred percent of audience donations go to non-profit organizations around the world. Winfrey initiated the National Child Protection Act in 1991, which culminated in the establishment of a national database of convicted child abusers. On Dec. 20, 1993, Pres. Bill Clinton signed the national "Oprah Bill" into law. For all her efforts to enrich, enlighten, educate and entertain others, Winfrey has been the recipient of numerous awards and recognitions.

AWARDS/RECOGNITION: George Foster Peabody Awards, Individual Achievement, 1995; International Radio & Television Society Foundation, Gold Medal Award, 1996; TV Guide, Television Performer of the Year, 1997; Newsweek, Most Important Person in Books and Media, 1997; Time Magazine, 100 Most Influential People of the 20th Century, 1998; National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, Lifetime Achievement Award, 1998. (The following year, after accepting the lifetime achievement honor, Winfrey removed herself from future Emmy consideration and the show followed suit in 2000. Oprah and "The Oprah Winfrey Show" received nearly 40 Daytime Emmy Awards: seven for outstanding host; nine for Outstanding Talk Show; 21 in the Creative Arts categories; and one for Oprah's work as supervising producer of the ABC After School Special, "Shades of Single Protein."); the National Book Foundation, 50th Anniversary Gold Medal, 1999; the "Broadcasting & Cable" Hall of Fame, 2002; the 54th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, Bob Hope Humanitarian Award, 2002; Association of American Publishers, AAP Honors Award, 2003; National Assoc. of Broadcasters, Distinguished Service Award, 2004; Hall of Fame Honoree at the 36th NAACP Image Awards, 2005, Time Magazine, 100 Most Influential People in the World, 2004-2007. Executive. b. California, 1966. e. MIT, B.S. in electrical engineering; Stanford Univ. Graduate School of Business, M.B.A. Wong joined ABC in Aug. 1993 as a researcher for ABC News' "PrimeTime Live." In June 1994, named executive asst. to the president, ABC Television Network. 1995, appointed executive asst. to the president, ABC, Inc. In Sept. 1997, expanded duties with a promotion to vice president & executive asst. to the president, ABC, Inc. By 1998, she was appointed v.p., alternative series & specials, ABC Entertainment, and in 2000 was promoted to senior v.p. By May 2004, Wong was exec. v.p., alternative programming, specials and late night, ABC Entertainment. In that role, Wong's non-scripted programming for ABC received both critical acclaim and huge viewership. The first franchise Wong brought to the network which became a true pop culture phenomenon was the relationship reality series, "The Bachelor," and its sister show, "The Bachelorette." Since it launched in 2002, more than 14 editions of the franchise have successfully aired. In June 2005, she brought the UK phenomenon, "Dancing with the Stars," to American audiences — and the hit show has consistently topped the competition with record ratings. Another of her series, "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," has won two Emmys for Outstanding Reality Program. In the specials area, Wong led the team that brought country music's crown jewel to ABC in 2006 — "The CMA Awards." Wong was named president and CEO, Lifetime Entertainment Services in April 2007 and oversaw all the day-to-day operations for Lifetime Television, Lifetime Movie Network, Lifetime Real Women and Lifetime Digital (including myLifetime.com), including advertising sales, affiliate sales, research, programming, public affairs, marketing, business and legal affairs, and strategic planning and operations. 2010 Wong left this position after the acquisition of Lifetime by A & E Networks. She joined Sony Pictures Entertainment in 2011 and plays two roles as president of international production for Sony Pictures Television and based in London will have a second title as international president for SPE. She is on the Bd. of Directors for Liberty Media Corp.

She began her career in television at VH1 where she served as Sr. V. P., original programming and development. Named Pres. of Bravo in May 2004. Expanded her oversight in May 2007 with the announcement the formation of Bravo Media. Under her watch, Bravo has become the No.1 ranked entertainment cable network for upscale, educated and engaged television viewers. Since NBC Universal acquired Oxygen in 2007, under Zalaznick's oversight the network has shattered every previous ratings record and recorded its best year ever in 2008 across all demographic, on-air, on-line, and financial metrics. Previously, Zalaznick held the role of Pres. of the critically acclaimed Universal-owned TRIO arts and pop culture network from May 2002 to December 2005. She was named Pres. NBC Universal Women and Lifestyle Entertainment Networks in May 2008, when she added iVillage and announced the launch of Women@NBCU, a sales and marketing initiative designed to create custom solutions for advertisers seeking to connect with a highly targeted female demographic. Due to the merger of Comcast and NBC Universal, Zalaznick emerged as chairman, NBC Universal Entertainment & Digital Networks and Integrated Media in 2011. In her new role, Zalaznick oversees a wide array of the company's expanded media empire, including cable networks Bravo Media, Oxygen Media, and Telemundo, as well as digital properties iVillage, Fandango, and DailyCandy. Zalaznick is co-chair of Peacock Equity, a joint investment fund of GE Capital's Media, Communications & Entertainment business and NBC Universal. In addition, she chairs the Women@NBCU advisory board, comprised of senior executive women across numerous industries. Zalaznick also sits on Brown University Women's Leadership Council, as well as the Brown University Creative Arts Council. In 2009, Time magazine named Zalaznick "The Time's 100 World's Most Influential People." Vanity Fair named her on their "New Establishment" list and Fortune included her in their "50 Most Powerful Women" issue and she was ranked 18 in the Hollywood Reporters Most Powerful Women in Entertainment.
