HELLO, OUT THERE IN RADIOLAND!!

Your response to our new Radio Theatre has been most encouraging and we know that station WCFL must like what we're doing, because after only four weeks on the air, we were asked to expand the two-hour Monday-thru-Friday program to three hours and, since October 10th, we've been serving up 15 hours a week on good old radio shows from 8 to 11 p.m.

When we add to this our Saturday afternoon four-hour get-together on WNIB, we find that we're sending you 19 hours a week of vintage radio material from our collection.

We couldn't be happier! As we've said so many times, part of our pleasure is in the planning of our broadcasts and the other is in the presenting of them. And, of course, the greatest pleasure of all is to hear from our listeners and to know that what we're doing is being well-received. That makes it all worthwhile.

We appreciate your support - support of our Nostalgia Digest, support of our sponsors, support of our program.

Do we dare ask for any more help? Yes. Please tell a friend about our programs on WNIB and WCFL. If every one of our listeners introduces just one friend to Those Were The Days or the Radio Theatre, we'll double our audience! And the larger the audience, the better chance we'll have to continue sending these great classic radio programs your way.

Finally, as the holiday season approaches and the new year begins, we express our thanks for listening . . . thanks for reading . . . thanks for your support.

Best Wishes to you and your family for a Merry Christmas . . . and for a Happy New Year filled with good old memories.

I REMEMBER & IT WELL

A SIX-CORNERED SHOPPING TRIP

BY DAN MC GUIRE

Anticipation gripped me as soon as I awoke and remembered. Yesterday school had let out for the holidays. Today Mom and I would go on our big Christmas shopping trip.

I reviewed my finances as I dressed. The bottom line hadn't changed. After months of saving half of my allowance, I had nine dollars. I needed ten.

There were two brothers to buy for, three aunts and uncles, three cousins, two grandparents and two best buddies. I allocated fifty cents for each. My parents rated a dollar each. The extra half dollar would cover tax and any purchases that went over my budgeted amount.

At breakfast, Dad agreed to advance me a dollar and deduct a dime from my allowance for ten weeks. That was relatively painless. But Mom exacted a further concession that I would wear my long johns on our excursion.

Mom only got pushy about the long johns on really cold days. But no matter how cold it got, those scratchy woolen drawers were akin to wearing burlap leg warmers. I often cut short my sledding or skating rather than endure the discomfort.

Today I had no choice; and it would be a long day. Slyly, I redonned my pajama bottoms under the long johns. Had we gotten in an accident that day, my mother would've been embarrassed to death at the hospital.

A four-block walk brought us to Irving Park Road. The wind was indeed icy cold as we stood at the open air bus stop. Briefly, at least, I appreciated the long johns.

A Chicago Surface Lines shuttle bus soon arrived and took us as far as Neenah Avenue. There we transferred to a waiting streetcar. Sitting by a window on one of the reversible wicker seats, I watched many familiar landmarks pass by: the Patio theatre, Andies Candies, Portage Park. More than half of our fellow passengers debarked with us at our destination -- the intersection of Irving Park, Cicero and Milwaukee, better known as "Six Corners."

A Sears, Roebuck store dominated the multi-cornered intersection. But Woolworth, Walgreen and a raft of less famous stores were within a block or two down one street or another.

We began our quest at Sears. A Salvation Army group sang carols at the entrance. Inside, we helped ourselves to two of the free (yes, free!) Hillman's grocery shopping bags. Mom's shopping came first, and I tagged along patiently for awhile. When I began getting twitchy, she steered me to the toy department to wait for her.

When Mom returned with one shopping bag filled, we headed for Woolworth's. I was glad to get outside for awhile. The long johns were starting to itch right through my pajamas.

Most of my purchases were made at Woolworth's. Brothers, cousins and buddies would receive such universally appreciated things as comic books, bags of marbles, paper doll books, Old Maid cards and "Big Little" books. Aunts got nail polish, powder puffs, hankies, even knitting needles. Uncles naturally got manly items such as razor blades, smokes or shaving soap (Burma Shave only, in appreciation of their roadside signs).

Mom helped me pick out two pairs of socks for Dad. While she was busy at another counter, I beckoned to a saleslady.

"That's my mother over there. Can you help me pick out some stockings for her?"

She smiled and said, "Sure, hon. Let's look at some of these here." We were in the halcyon years after World War II, and my dollar was able to purchase a pair of real nylons.

Lunch at the Woolworth counter was complemented by their generous cup of hot chocolate, topped with whipped cream. Then our shopping continued at several other stores until the second shopping bag was filled.

We arrived home in late afternoon. I carried the lighter bag the last four blocks. My first act was to dash to my room and shed the hated woolen underwear. Then, as Mom started supper, I carefully hid away my purchases.

Wrapping and tagging would be done on Saturday morning, as I listened to Smilin' Ed, Let's Pretend, Frank Merriwell, et al. On Christmas Day I would be rewarded by the over-acted joyfulness of adult relatives as they opened my gifts. It would be almost enough to erase the memory of those scratchy long johns.

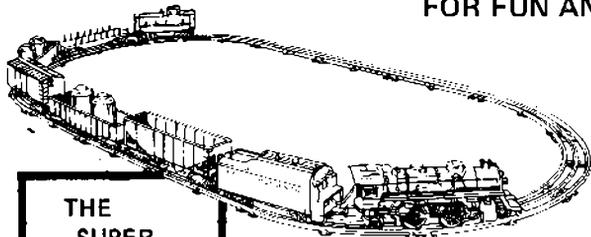

Editor's Note: Nostalgia writer Dan McGuire still gets the shopping itch at Christmas, and spends as lavishly as in his youth.

SPEAKING OF RADIO

Chuck Schaden's Conversation with

DON AMECHE

Don Ameche has been a star of, as they say, stage, screen, radio and television for over fifty years. Some time ago when he was appearing on the stage in Chicago, we had an opportunity to visit with him and discuss his long, successful career in movies and on radio. We asked him if he remembered appearing on a radio show called The Empire Builders.

Yes. Started September, 1930. Empire Builder was the name of a crack train for the Great Northern Railroad and we did stories supposedly (true) . . . I don't know if they were true or not, but they all had locales somewhere along the Great Northern route.

That show was then about the same time you were doing the First Nighter.

Yes. I started doing the First Nighter about March, 1931. I didn't actually start the program. A man by the name of Jack Doty started it November 11, 1930 and I took it over, if I am not mistaken, in March of 1931.

Was this in Chicago? You did a lot of radio work in Chicago.

Yes. I stayed here until March 1st of 1936.

You really have the dates down pat, haven't you? Do you remember appearing in the cast of a program called Milligan and Mulligan?

Yes, that's right. That was on WGN. We did that for, I think, 26 weeks if I am not mistaken. A man by the name of Bob White wrote it and produced it. We were on late at night — I think 10:30 to 10:45 — five nights a week. A comedy-adventure type thing.

You were a detective.

Yes.

How about Betty and Bob?

I was on that also for, I would guess, at least two years. That was on NBC, a soap opera.

You were on Grand Hotel, which also originated here.

Yes, it did. That was sponsored by a product of Campana's Italian Balm and I can't remember . . . First Nighter was sponsored by Italian Balm . . . and I can't remember what that product was. It seems to me it was Drene, but — no, I don't think that's right.

Drene brings to mind a thing that you did with Frances Langford and Frank Morgan.

Yes, that's right. Actually, Drene started out about the Bickersons. Danny Thomas was a part of the show and I was a part of the show and the original Bickersons was started by Phil Rapp, who wrote them all and produced them all. And Danny Thomas was the first of two segments. The Bickersons would be one half and I would work with Danny in the other half. But the next year we went with Old Gold and that's where Frank Morgan came in.

You were very much involved with the sketches on the Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy Show and you did a lot with W.C. Fields when he was a guest.

Yes, I did. Bill was only on 13 weeks. I guess most people forget that . . . but for the whole 13 weeks.

As a guest or as host of the show?

No, no no. I was the host — always the host — but Bill was just a guest with Bergen and McCarthy. The four of us worked, everyone — that was the first spot that he did. Later it became just Edgar Bergen and myself and Charlie. But he was part of the first.

Yet it only lasted for 13 weeks.

Yes. Bill was pretty broken down by that time. He was almost senile.

You remember a famous show that I guess everyone refers back to all the time, with Bergen and McCarthy and Mae West.

I remember the Mae West episode, my goodness! I should say I do. I almost got thrown off the air for life because of that skit. The name of the sketch was — what was it? — Adam and Eve, I think was the name of it and Arch Oboler wrote it. Arch later became a very famous writer — radio script writer. And it had been done before on the air and I was worried about the things, many of the words that were in the script. So I called Danny Dankert who was then the head of J. Walter Thompson (the agency representing the sponsor of the show, Chase and Sanborn Coffee). Danny came down maybe sometime around 11 or 11:30 at night and I told Danny that "all these lines have got to come out or I am not going to do the show tomorrow. I am frightened of it." So Danny said, "You stay here." I was downstairs and Danny went upstairs and spent the time with Mae and came back down and said, "Go home. Go to sleep. Everything is out." I said, "Fine, thank you, Danny" and went home.

The next day I came down and we did the show. And while I am introducing (Mac West) I could see her preening, you know, getting all set for this thing. And she didn't put any of the lines back in. She read them in the regular Mac West style, which was fine by me, and then did a skit with Charlie McCarthy. I remember distinctly, walking over to have something to eat with Edgar between rehearsal and show time, and I said, "Ed, I think you're crazy . . . saying all these things you are saying. (He said,) "So what am I going to do now?" I said, "I don't know, Ed. I am really frightened for you."

Well, the furor came not over any of the innuendos or anything like that, it was over, they claim, making fun of the Bible. And this was what it was all about. And this was what started it all and, oh my, it got to be a real ruckus. It went to the House of Congress.

It did! Well, what was the ultimate —

It ruled her out! It threw her off (the air). I don't think she was on for 20-25 years. It was a big episode on the air.

How did you make the transition from radio to motion pictures.

I had had a little bit of legitimate theatre background prior to going into radio . . . not a great deal . . . but a little bit. But that doesn't mean anything because the techniques are so entirely different — stage from motion pictures. I never felt that I was as good in pictures as I was in radio, so maybe I didn't make it as gracefully as I might have thought one time I did.

You were certainly right as far as your appearance was concerned for the Silver Screen at the time . . . a tall, good looking, leading man type.

That isn't really what I am talking about. I just didn't think I performed as well. I don't think I had as good a technique in pictures as I did in radio.

Do you prefer doing radio over motion pictures?

No, it wasn't that at all. It actually doesn't make any difference. It never did make any difference to me other than what I thought was good or had the chance of being good. No, I never had any preference, really.

Your first picture for 20th Century Fox, and I guess that was your first appearance of all, was Sins of Man and released in 1936.

Yes, it was. It started on March 1st of 1936. That's when I got there, March 1st.

How did you get the role? Who introduced you to motion pictures?

I came out and made a test for Metro. I believe, in August of 1935. And I was handled by a woman by the name of Dina Hushbugger. Dina was head of NBC Talent Bureau. Now in those days, both Columbia and NBC had agencies where they hired you and you had to pay a commission to these agencies. And she arranged for this test at Metro and I made it and I saw it before I went back to Chicago and I didn't think it was any good at all. Some man on the West Coast by the name of Tom Oakey heard about the test — I don't believe he saw it — and he had a friend by the name of Scotty Dunlap. And Dunlap was part of an agency called Dunlap and Frank and George Frank was the other partner. George went over to Metro one day and took a look at this test and he thought he saw something in it.

I told Tom Oakey to go ahead and contact George and see what he could do. So I got a call from George who said that he had arranged for a test for me with 20th Century in New York, not on the West Coast, in December of 1935. So I flew to New York and made the test and flew back to Chicago. I believe it was probably in the middle of January they offered me a contract. It was for one picture and then five, one-year options after that. Forty weeks, they guaranteed you 40 weeks in those days out of 52, but it was a five year contract, which was unusual in those days because they were all seven year contracts.

But I had a radio show and it really didn't make a lot of difference to me whether I went or not. Although I really, deep inside of me, wanted to go in the worst possible way. And I also had a clause in the contract saying I could do two radio shows.

You stayed with 20th Century Fox for about eight years?

It was a little longer than that . . . it was about nine. I always think, but I am not sure.

What was your impression of Hollywood when you arrived on the scene?

Was I awe struck? No. Did I enjoy being out there? Yes. Most of all to come from a climate like this (Chicago) in March, having gone through the winters that seemed to be much more severe in those days. I was never comfortable in cold weather. Never. Even though I was born in Kenosha, Wisconsin, I spent most of my younger life around here. I never really liked it. At the time, 1936, it was such a clean city. I guess this was probably the first impression you got when you drove from the airport. I landed at Burbank Airport and drove right to 20th Century Fox and went right to work, as a matter of fact.

And the palm trees! And the air was clean, the streets were clean, the houses were white or they were stucco and there was foliage galore and all this was quite impressive so far as I was concerned, anyway.

On the Lot, 20th Century, all the time that I was there, was a very friendly place. They were very good to you. They would do almost anything for you to make you comfortable. If you wanted your dressing room done over they would do that. I remember one time I was in New York doing a publicity thing on the Kate Smith Show for Swanee River and a forest fire came and it started down towards where I was living in the San Fernando Valley in Encino. Harry Brand, who was head of publicity, called me in New York and said, "Don't worry about the fire. We have two station wagons there 24 hours a day, so just put it out of your mind. Nothing will happen to your children or any of your possessions." And this is the kind of consideration.

They really took care of you!

Oh, they certainly did and Zanuck was a most considerate man. I never once asked to see Darryl that he didn't see me. He was completely at ease with you and wanted to do everything in his power to make it easy for you.

I don't think we could talk about the career of Don Ameche without touching at least briefly on the Story of Alexander Graham Bell which you made with Loretta Young and Henry Fonda. I would guess that most people would identify you with that picture more than any other film. Is that a fact?

I don't know whether most people . . . but a great number of people.

Would you tell us the reaction, initially, of the public to that film. I know it was a hit, but did you get letters as Bell?

I can't remember. First of all, none of us ever saw our fan mail.

Never did?

Oh no, heavens alive. If you were getting probably 1,500 to 2,000 letters a week . . .

You mean the photograph that I wrote for . . .

It was my signature, but —
. . . you didn't see it really?

What are you going to do with a thousand letters a month . . . ?

I am depressed now. Here I thought, all these years, that the Don Ameche photograph that I had on my mirror was really . . . that the stamp was licked by you . . .

No, no!

Well, what more can I say. Thanks very much for sharing some memories.

Thank you for coming.

* Reflections * * * * *

A BRICKHOUSE OF MEMORIES

By MICHAEL HAGGERTY

When Jack Brickhouse arrived in Chicago in the early 1940s, the local sports scene was far more colorful and flamboyant than it is now. Brickhouse, a raconteur of the first magnitude, gladly immersed himself in the winsome personalities of the day.

One of Brickhouse's cronies was Jimmy Dykes, as jaunty a personage as ever graced Chicago's sports horizon. His Sox of that era were not exactly overflowing with talent.

Brickhouse remembers the White Sox manager "constantly trading a shoelace for a pair of shoes and trying to outfox somebody to get a little edge here and there."

In 1945, the last time the Cubs won a pennant and the year Brickhouse did only White Sox games, Dykes had the South Siders on the winning track through the first month of the season, which had featured rainout after rainout.

The Sox had somehow achieved a perfect 5-and-0 record up to that point, so there were pictures in newspapers all over the country of a smiling Dykes in the Comiskey Park dugout with five fingers aloft, wearing a raincoat and clutching an umbrella.

How many of today's managers do you think would be that willing to participate in such a gag shot?

During an East Coast road trip the Cubs took in the 1940s, manager Charlie Grimm had caught free spirit Lou Novikoff breaking midnight curfew, an offense that called for the penalty of a $100 fine.

The next evening the gregarious Grimm was relaxing in his hotel room with Cubs traveling secretary Bob Lewis, another engaging sort, and they were listening to a live band remote on the radio. It was after midnight and the network pickup was from Frank Dailey's Meadowbrook.

Their ears perked up considerably when they heard the mellow-voiced announcer intone, "And tonight we have a special guest, the famous outfielder from the Chicago Cubs, Lou Novikoff, who will favor us with his rendition of 'Trees.'"

With visions of nailing Novikoff for another $100 fine dancing in his head, Grimm turned to Lewis and grinned, "Shall we catch the 1 a.m. show?" Novikoff, who wasn't dubbed "the Mad Russian" for nothing, was still singing when Grimm and Lewis walked in.

Another of Brickhouse's favorites was (and is) Bill Veeck, the two-time owner of the White Sox. According to the Baseball Hall of Fame broadcaster, "Veeck would probably rather argue than eat. I think that nothing bothers Veeck more than to have you totally agree with him."

One time Veeck, Brickhouse and some other regulars along the baseball beat were in Boston for a White Sox-Red Sox series. They were assembled for a full evening's jawing in the bar of the Kenmore Hotel. The discussions were so lively that the entire group was still there by the time the sun came up.

Bob Elson, another Baseball Hall of Fame broadcaster, was an inveterate joker. When he was at WJJD, the sports announcer delighted in distracting his colleagues while they were on the air by tickling them, setting fire to their scripts and committing a variety of other annoying pranks.

Staff announcer Chuck Bill was one of Elson's most frequent targets. One day Bill figured that he had endured Elson's highjinks long enough, so he decided to plan something that would disconcert Elson in return.

Bill took up a collection from other Chicago announcers — including Brickhouse and a young Mike Wallace — to finance an opportunity for repaying Elson in kind.

The next evening Elson was beginning his 6 o'clock sports program and little by little Bill, Brickhouse, Wallace and the others drifted into the studio. Elson realized that something out of the ordinary was in the offing, but he wouldn't let on.

Then a Chuck Bill — arranged Japanese stripper wafted into the studio. "I don't know where Chuck found her," Brickhouse recalls with a chuckle, "but she started doing her act right in front of Elson as he was trying to get through his sports script. Before she was through, she took off everything but her toenail polish."

"Elson had beads of perspiration as large as golf balls on his forehead, but he somehow got through that show. He did, however, make one allusion to it on the air. Elson said, 'Tokyo Rose is visiting the studio' or something like that."

The Commander had included Brickhouse on his hit list, as Brickhouse discovered in Iowa City one autumn Saturday when he was there to broadcast an Iowa-Illinois football game. Brickhouse found that he had been assigned the absolute worst hotel room in town, courtesy of you-know-who.

On another occasion Brickhouse was again irritated to find that Elson had been stealing the human interest information Brickhouse had been putting on the air during White Sox telecasts, when Elson was doing the Sox games on the radio.

BOB ELSON

Brickhouse correctly diagnosed the source of the problem: the thin partition between Brickhouse's booth and Elson's booth along press row at Comiskey Park. Because the wall was so porous, Elson could hear every one of Brickhouse's on-the-air comments; Elson was merely repeating them and passing them off as his own.

Brickhouse was livid and devised a scenario to get back at the Commander. This was at the time when Happy Chandler was in his lame duck period as commissioner of baseball and there was much speculation regarding the identity of his successor.

The next day Brickhouse was going along as usual during his telecast, with one exception. At one point he hit his microphone's cut-off switch, which meant that the television audience was seeing a picture of the playing field but hearing only crowd noise for the moment.

Without missing a beat, Brickhouse acted as if he were still on the air and, for Elson's benefit, delivered a custom-tailored tidbit of "news."

"Phil Wrigley, chairman of baseball's find-a-commissioner committee," Brickhouse stated matter-of-factly, "has just announced that at the next meeting of baseball's brass, Les O'Connor, the former general manager of the Chicago White Sox will be named the new commissioner of baseball."

Brickhouse then flipped on his on-air button and continued talking as if he had been on the air the whole time. He waited a few seconds and, sure enough, Elson had taken the bait.

In his high stentorian voice, Elson was saying, "Here's a bulletin from the WJJD newsroom . . ."

"To the day he died," Brickhouse laughs, "as many times as we were together, as much time as we spent in each other's company, not once did Bob Elson ever mention that to me."

"He didn't dare; he knew that he had finally been taken."

IN DECEMBER OF 1903 the first silent film to tell a story was registered for copyright. It was "The Great Train Robbery" and it featured Broncho Billy Anderson, the screen's first cowboy who went on to make 375 more western adventures.

HENRY FORD introduced his Model A on December 2, 1927.

THE MARX BROTHERS opened in "Coconuts" on Dec. 8, 1925 on the stage of the Lyric Theatre in New York and Broadway's bright lights were brighter for 377 performances.

THE FIRST SCENES of "Gone With The Wind" were filmed on December 10, 1938. Old sets from "King Kong" and "The Garden of Allah" and others were burned to recreate the burning of Atlanta. One year later, on December 5, 1939 "Gone With The Wind" premiered in the city of Atlanta which declared a 3-day holiday for the event.

The film, of course, went on to win 10 Academy Awards and it also had the distinction of being part of the first movie premiere festivities to be telecast. On Dec. 19, 1939, station W2XBS (NBC) carried the New York opening of Margaret Mitchell's novel-brought-to-the-screen. Two cameras, one on the sidewalk outside the Capitol Theatre and the other in the lobby showed emcee Ben Grauer interviewing celebrities.

PRESIDENT DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER became the star of the first radio broadcast from outer space on Dec. 19, 1958. A tape recording of his Christmas Greetings was broadcast from a rocket revolving around the earth.

DECEMBER RADIO DEBUTS include The Voice of Firestone (1928); The First Nighter (1930); Charlie Chan (1932); Ma Perkins (1933); Bill Stern's Sports Newsreel (1937); Can You Top This (1940); Mr. and Mrs. North (1942); The Crime Club (1946);

DECEMBER TELEVISION DEBUTS include Howdy Doody Time (1947); Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts (1948); Perry Como's Chesterfield Supper Club (1948); Who Said That (1948); To Tell The Truth (1956).

YOUR HIT PARADE — Big tunes over the years in December were Red Sails in the Sunset (1935); Once in a While (1937); The Trolley Song (1944); It's Been a Long, Long Time (1945); Near You (1947); Mr. Sandman (1954); Sixteen Tons (1955).

HOW TO READ THE RADIO GUIDE

The name of the vintage radio show appears in bold face type followed by the original broadcast date (in parenthesis).

Next you'll find, as appropriate, the title of the story, names of stars and other cast members, and a line about the content of the show.

If the show was sponsored, the name of the original sponsor appears next. If the show was unsponsored, it was known as a Sustaining program; if the show was presented on a station-by-station basis across the country, it was known as a Syndicated program.

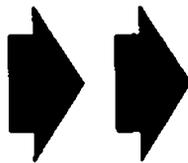

This information is followed by the network source of the broadcast: NBC (National Broadcasting Company), CBS (Columbia Broadcasting System), ABC (American Broadcasting Company), MBS (Mutual Broadcasting System), AFRS (Armed Forces Radio Service).

Finally, for your convenience we provide timing information on each vintage show. (9:45; 11:20; 8:50) means that we will present the show in three segments: 9 minutes and 45 seconds; 11 minutes and 20 seconds; 8 minutes and 50 seconds. If you add the times of these segments together, you'll have the total length of the show (29:55) for our example).

NOTE: The vintage radio shows listed appear in the order we expect to present them on our programs. Occasionally, we may delay or pre-empt a show to provide time to present other material of special interest. In such an event, the pre-empted program will be rescheduled to a later broadcast.

If you have any questions about our programming or if you simply want to share some information or a memory, please call anytime during our broadcast, at our studio number, (312) 965-7763.

And, thanks for listening.

SPECIAL NOTE FOR WCFL RADIO THEATRE LISTENERS

WCFL has an ambitious schedule of sports coverage — football, basketball, soccer — during the fall and winter months.

On a number of occasions, this sports coverage will pre-empt a portion of our three-hour Radio Theatre. When this happens, we will present an abbreviated edition of our program.

If a planned old-time-radio show is "bumped" because of a longer-than-expected game, we will reschedule at the first opportunity.

Stay tuned for further details.

PROGRAMS

Here's an informal look at some other radio programs in the Chicago area. This is by no means a complete list of the nostalgic or creative goodies that may be found up and down the AM and FM radio dial. In fact, we'll appreciate hearing from readers who have discovered other gems of broadcasting and we'll try to share those "finds" in forthcoming issues. Radio stations always reserve the right to change programming without notice.

ALL DAY - EVERY DAY

GREAT HITS (WAIT, 820 AM, 24 hours-a-day.) Personality and big band recordings from the 30s, 40s and 50s. Chicago's favorite disc jockey Eddie Hubbard leads the weekday parade with the morning drive-time show (5:30 to 10 a.m.)

MUSIC OF YOUR LIFE (WJJD, 1160 AM, 24-hours-a-day.) Big bands, big band vocalists and singing stars with Bernie Allen beginning the day (5:30 to 10 a.m.)

SUNDAY

SWING THING (WAIT, 820 AM, Sunday, 9 a.m. to Noon) Fred Hall hosts a program of popular swing music and interviews with those who made the music popular.

TUNE OF THE CENTURY (WBEZ, 91.5 FM, Sunday, 11:30 a.m. - Noon) Rich Markow offers rare recordings on early discs and Edison cylinders from 1890 to 1930.

GREAT SOUNDS (WAIT, 820 AM, Sunday, Noon to 4 p.m.) Dick Shepard presents music and interviews with personalities of the "great sound" era.

MUSIC MAKERS (WAIT, 820 AM, Sunday 4 to 5 p.m.) Host Skitch Henderson interviews a guest music maker from the big band era and plays his music during this hour.

FLOYD BROWN SHOW (WGN, 720 AM, Sunday, 8:30 p.m.) A mystery, comedy or drama from radio's golden years is offered each week at this time.

FILM CLIPS

THAT WONDERFUL MOVIE YEAR, 1939

By BOB KOLOSOSKI

The year 1939 was a year of tragedy. World War II began on Sept. 1 when Nazi Germany invaded Poland. This was the climax to a decade of depression and political and social turmoil. Movie viewers went to the movies to escape the harsh facts of the real world. The art of the cinema progressed in the 30's to a zenith in 1939 as the studios experimented and refined their art to entertain the masses.

As the world rushed toward war, Hollywood rushed toward greatness with an impressive list of fine films headed by the finest of that year "Gone With The Wind." Hitler's troops were laying siege to Poland and "GWTW" presented the Yankee siege of Atlanta. All the futility and waste of war was presented in a single scene at the Atlanta railroad station. Thousands of wounded men filled the screen as the camera pulled back to an endless sea of death and despair. This remains one of the cinema's most powerful images.

On Oct. 16, 1939 a German submarine was spotted off the coast of Florida. Warner Bros. released "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" starring Edward G. Robinson. This bold film done in documentary style, warned the American people that the Nazi threat was in their own back yard.

MGM's "The Mortal Storm" with James Stewart was a frightening account of Nazism in Europe meant to shock the American People into seeing the evil of Hitler and his followers. But it took Frank Capra's "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" to hammer home the message that democracy and freedom are frail commodities to be steadfastly embraced.

The horror of war was racing through Europe but in America horror took a different form in Universal's "The Son of Frankenstein." This 1939 monster movie featured an artificial monster that no longer grabbed for our sympathy. Now he was a cold-blooded killer created and nurtured by a Germanic scientist — a noticeable departure from previous "Frankenstein" films and a chilling parallel to the "New Germany."

On the funny side of terror, audiences flocked to see Bob Hope in "The Cat and the Canary". This modest film carried the "spooky old house" theme to new heights with highly stylized photography.

In June of 1939, the King and Queen of England visited America and were treated royally by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Hollywood's British colony of actors had a fine year recreating jolly old England in Southern California. The finest of these British actors was, of course, Laurence Olivier. The 1939 Samuel Goldwyn production of "Wuthering Heights" gave Olivier a chance to really brood (no one could beat him at brooding) as Heathcliff opposite Merle Oberon as his doomed lover. Goldwyn — a true perfectionist — imported eight British actors, a dialect expert, 1,000 authentic Scottish heather plants, and was tempted to send for Emily Bronte.

Meanwhile on the "Injuh" front, RKO Pictures brought together director George Stevens, Cary Grant, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Victor McLaglen for "Gunga Din". Laced with adventure, comedy, and drama this is one of the most entertaining films ever made. Not to be outdone Paramount released

"Beau Geste" with a great cast of non-British actors doing their best to slaughter the King's English.

The most under-rated British actor of all time made his finest film in 1939. Charles Laughton as the bell ringing "Hunchback of Notre Dame" gave a sensitive performance. The production as a whole was absolutely marvelous although curiously ignored today.

As Britain was drawn deeper into war with Germany, Roosevelt began putting into motion a commitment to aid Britain but remain neutral in the "European War." Hollywood helped by releasing "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Robert Donat won the Academy Award for best actor as the kindly old British schoolmaster. Americans could read the message that if Britain had a guy like Mr. Chips it was an O.K. country.

Eleanor Roosevelt is now recognized for the great lady she was and in 1939 67 percent of the people polled approved of her conduct as first lady. The role of women as a whole was changing in 1939 and MGM's "The Women" was an unusual film that focused on women rather than men as the main characters. Ginger Rogers as the "Bachelor Mother" played a working girl who decides to adopt a baby and meets with great social opposition. In the end she wins and so does womanhood.

Perhaps an even bolder attempt to present a woman as a hero was the "Wizard of OZ." Judy Garland as Dorothy is, after all, the central character in this fantasy odyssey. As the leader of a little band of misfits she is the one who destroys the witch. Women were on their way in 1939.

Hollywood, of course, was never without male heroes and 1939 saw the ultimate male hero emerge in the person of John Wayne as the Ringo Kid in "Stagecoach." This sagebrush morality play is a classic in every sense of the word and lifted the western from its "B" status to adult entertainment.

As Americans called for neutrality and pacifism in the face of global war James Stewart was in the saddle in "Destry Rides Again" as a peace-loving westerner who refuses to use a gun against the bad guys. Eventually he is drawn into violence just as America would be.

WUTHERING HEIGHTS

With democracy taking a beating in Spain, Hollywood released "Juarez" with Paul Muni and "Young Mr. Lincoln" with Henry Fonda to reinforce the greatness of the democratic way. As European soldiers fought and died, "Northwest Passage" with Spencer Tracy examined the mental and physical strains imposed on the men of war.

Worldwide, 1939 was a year of memorable events. It was a year underscored by turmoil and uncertainty and a year in which the "frivolous" art of cinema could easily have been overshadowed had it not been for the unusually prolific array of fine films produced.

Hollywood rose to the challenge of war with movies that will long be remembered for moving us not only to laughter and tears but to patriotism, pride, anxiety, terror and all the other emotions which so closely paralleled "life" in 1939.

Amos 'n' Andy

REPRINT from RADIO NEWS, April, 1930

AMOS 'n' Andy are two of the best known radio characters in America, and in the last six months—the time they have been on the National Broadcasting Company networks—they have made radio history in broadcasting at least 150 times, which is the equivalent of three years on the air for an ordinary weekly program.

The story of the program can be told in a paragraph. Amos 'n' Andy, two colored men, operate the Open Air Taxicab Company in Harlem. Each night a microphone picks up the highlights of their day as revealed in their discussions with their associates. Their business ventures, their amusements, even their affairs of the heart, are told in their conversations. The story goes on and on, and it has been asserted that if you listen in three nights in succession, you'll be an Amos 'n' Andy fan. The program is the first daily "comic strip" on the air.

Another paragraph will give all that is necessary of the history of the originators of Amos 'n' Andy. They are, in very private life, Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll. Gosden is Amos and Correll is Andy. Correll was born in Peoria, Illinois, and grew up with the ambition to become an actor. Gosden, a native of Virginia, was an actor when the two men met in North Carolina almost eight years ago. They became partners and for a while traveled about staging amateur revues for Junior Leagues and other organizations. Then they teamed together in a theatrical company. In 1925 they appeared for the first time before the microphone. In 1926 they introduced "Sam 'n' Henry" to the radio audience. Two years later they created "Amos 'n' Andy," popularizing them throughout the Middle West. In 1929, the N. B. C., on the lookout for outstanding radio talent, signed them up and subsequently put them on the air under the sponsorship of the makers of Pepsodent toothpaste.

Not even the sponsors realized how popular they were until a strange thing happened. When Amos 'n' Andy changed from the Columbia Broadcasting System to the N. B. C. network, their program was scheduled for 11:00 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. Parents and children protested. It was too late for the youngsters, and the youngsters who were Amos 'n' Andy fans were numbered in hundreds of thousands.

It was then arranged to present the pair at 7:00 o'clock in the evening (Eastern Standard Time), in order that youngsters might listen in. Then the squall broke.

Seven o'clock, Eastern Time, means 6:00 o'clock Central Time, 5:00 o'clock in the mountains, and 4:00 o'clock on the Pacific Coast. Fans who had become interested in the adventures of Amos 'n' Andy found out that they would either have to give up their jobs or give up Amos 'n' Andy. The storm broke in Denver, where there was virtually a mass meeting of irate listeners. Thousands upon thousands of letters and telegrams of protest were received by the N. B. C. and the sponsors. Something had to be done. The result was that a precedent was established in radio. Amos 'n' Andy continued to go on the air at 7:00 o'clock Eastern Time, but only in the Eastern Time zone. The same evening they went on the air over a Central and Western network at 11:30 P. M. This proved to be the solution of the problem, and while it cost more money there seemed to be no other way out.

Only the President is considered to have right-of-way over Amos 'n' Andy. When it became necessary to eliminate the program for an evening in order to re-broadcast Big Ben in London on New Year's, there were protests. Any rumor that Amos 'n' Andy are going off the air is followed by a flood of letters. Once when the program failed to go on, it was necessary to have the continuity for that night printed in newspapers.

What is the fascination of the program?

Smart showmen declare it is the continuity of interest. They point to newspaper comic strips as an example of the same technique.

Correll and Gosden have ideas of their own.

"It isn't a wise-cracking program," Correll said in discussing their success. Incidentally, both men are somewhat amazed by it all. "People don't listen in because of the jokes that are told. In fact, the program at times has a decided touch of pathos. Amos 'n' Andy are very human. They have more than their share of faults, and they have many likable characteristics. They are always blundering into scrapes and getting out of them. In other words, they are doing what anyone is likely to do under the same circumstances. The comedy is human. The Negro characterization and dialect merely point it more."

Gosden is very proud of the fact that their sketches aren't considered objectionable burlesques by members of the Negro race. The program is as popular with Negroes as with persons of other races. In fact, the belief is current that they really are Negroes, for, it is pointed out, how else could they so thoroughly understand the characters they portray? Both men, however, are decided blonds.

They make public appearances throughout the country and pack the theaters. It is on record that a member of President Hoover's cabinet personally requested that they make an appearance in Washington. They are almost mobbed if by any chance their identity is discovered on the streets or in public places. They get thousands of letters each week, and—well, the boys are good!

NOTES FROM THE BANDSTAND

EDDY HOWARD

By KARL PEARSON

The mere mention of the name of the late Eddy Howard to anyone who ever went to the Chicago Aragon or Trianon Ballrooms in their heyday generally brings about a nostalgic sigh. And rightly so — Howard spent a great deal of time in the Chicago area, originally as guitarist-vocalist with Dick Jurgens' band and later as leader of his own band. In addition to that, there were the countless broadcasts from the Aragon and Trianon.

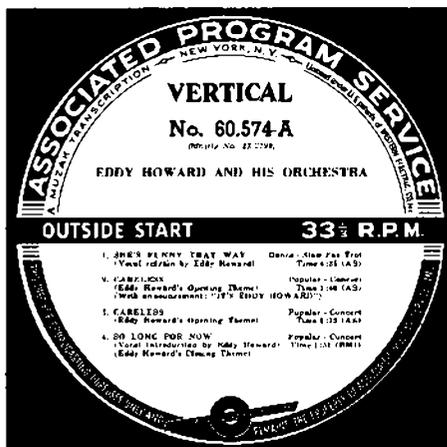

There are good reasons for Eddy's popularity (Howard records are still being issued today) — he possessed a fine singing voice, which was used to its full advantage, whether on ballads or rhythm tunes. Eddy just loved to sing, and he won praise from many critics for his singing, even jazz critics such as Metronome Magazine's George Simon. In addition to his fine voice, he led an equally fine band that played well-written arrangements in an intimate style that didn't use any of the tricks that the so-called "sweet" bands often used.

Eddy made his first mark as a singer with Dick Jurgens, but originally auditioned for the Jurgens band as a trombonist. Not being a good reader of music, he committed all the trombone parts to memory, auditioned, and got the job. By the time Jurgens had discovered Eddy's little trick, he had also found out about Howard's vocal ability, switched him to guitar and featured him prominently on vocals (Ironically, when Eddy led his own band later on, he would occasionally play trombone with the section on numbers like "Lassus' Trombone," one of the many Howard hits).

Those Eddy Howard vocals helped to make Jurgens' Vocalion records big sellers — numbers like "All I Remember Is You," "Ragtime Cowboy Joe," "I Concentrate On You," "Daydreams Come True At Night" (the Dick Jurgens theme), "My Last Goodbye" and "Careless," which Howard later used as his own bands' theme song (he also helped write the last two).

After six years with the Jurgens band, Eddy left in 1940 for a career as a single. He formed his own band late in 1941, and soon after that opened the first of the band's many engagements at the Aragon on December 2, 1941. Throughout World War II the band played many of the top spots in the country, with many stops in Chicago, which meant many broadcasts over WGN/Mutual. In 1944 the band landed a radio series of its own for Raleigh Cigarettes with Hildegarde.

But the big years for the Eddy Howard Orchestra were yet to come. Eddy formed a brand new band in September, 1945 and signed a contract with the Chicago-based Majestic Record Company. In April of 1946 the band recorded what was to be its biggest hit: "To Each His Own," backed by a new version of the Howard theme "Careless." Another favorite, "The Rickety Rickshaw Man", was also recorded that day. With these and other numbers, the band struck pay dirt. A radio program soon followed for Sheaffer pens. "The Sheaffer Parade" was heard on Sunday afternoons on NBC, with many of the broadcasts originating from the WMAQ studios in the Merchandise Mart.

Eddy continued successfully into the 1950's and the early 1960's, even though the size of the band was reduced. In the late 50's he had moved to Palm Springs and was in semi-retirement, leading bands for various engagements and tours.

The ever-youthful looking Howard died on May 23, 1963 at the age of 48, leaving a legacy of great recordings which are still enjoyed today.

WE GET LETTERS

MILFORD, OHIO — I am listening to your old-time-radio program over WCFL with fairly good reception. I hope it stays that way during the winter. — THOMAS HARDING

SPRUCE, MICHIGAN — First caught your program when visiting in Reading, Pennsylvania and can now get it in Northern Michigan. Surely do enjoy it! Thanks! -- JOE TUROWSKI

WESTCHESTER, ILLINOIS — I have been following your program over WCFL and really enjoy it. I pray that you'll be on the radio for a long, long time. During these times of very poor quality programs on TV and nothing better in the movie theatre, we need programs like yours to keep the ship from sinking too quickly. — GEORGE J. DEMETRALIS

EPHRATA, PENNSYLVANIA — My husband and I listen to your program every night and thoroughly enjoy the old time programs. — CAROL A. RICHARD

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILLINOIS — Though I've only received one copy of the Nostalgia Digest so far, I love it! Keep up the terrific job! — ANGELA M. JANNOTTA

HAMMOND, INDIANA — I enjoy your new WCFL program very much. It's great to have a choice between the great old radio shows and the stuff that passes as entertainment on TV. — EMILY FAJKOWSKI

GARY, INDIANA — Congratulations to you on the premiere of the Radio Theatre. Such a treat! And I'm sure I speak for everyone who went into a blue funk when CBS took their Mystery Theatre off the air. I'm one of your 30-year-old listeners and therefore did not experience this marvelous "Golden Age of Radio" firsthand. My mom told me stories about the Shadow and the Lone Ranger, which perked my interest, and then I discovered "Those Were The Days" and have been hooked ever since. When I switch on my cathedral radio (which I purchased at Metro Golden Memories and only use on Schaden Occasions) and curl up on the sofa in front of a nice fire, it's 1940 and I am THERE . . . — MARLA GEE

CICERO, ILLINOIS — The new Nostalgia Digest is just great! I have a question concerning your theme for the WCFL Radio Theatre. What is the title of that theme? I remember that you used to have it on your show for National Public Radio. — RICHARD BILEK

(ED. NOTE — Yes, we did use the same theme on our "When Radio Was Radio" series several years ago on WBEZ (NPR in Chicago). It's "On The Radio" and was written and used by Vincent Lopez and his orchestra during the good old days. The recording, now out of print, is from Columbia album CL 1613 "Radio's Great Old Themes" played by Frank De Vol and his Rainbow Strings. We've had many inquiries about this music which we feel is really perfect for our nighttime show.)

LOMBARD, ILLINOIS — Part of my early youth was spent listening to such programs, and your program brings back many good memories as well as providing good entertainment. Many a Saturday afternoon is spent with a "Walkman" type radio strapped to my waist, listening to your program as I work. I recently came into possession of an old Zenith (model 8A02) radio. Is it possible in these times to find the tubes, etc. to put such a radio back into playing order? If it is possible, I would appreciate knowing where to go to obtain the necessary parts.

— RICHARD J. KAPPEL

(ED. NOTE — We've had success in finding old radio parts, tubes, knobs, cabinets, etc. at the Radio-TV Lab, 5631 W. Irving Park Road, Chicago, 60634 (545-4740) or at Talking Furniture, 2820 N. Lincoln Ave., Chicago, 60657 (281-2795). Hope this information helps.)

HILLSIDE, ILLINOIS — I am a WW II veteran and I experienced the war years and the Aragon Ballroom, the Paradise Ballroom, Melody Mill, Merry Garden Ballroom and Riverview. Yes, Chuck, those were the days.

— JOHN W. SULLIVAN

BERWYN, ILLINOIS — I'm only 14, but I love to listen to you on WNIB and WCFL. You got me started in old time radio. Now I have a great collection of old time radio tapes. The ones I like are comedy, mystery and, well, most all the old shows. My all-time favorite show is when Jack Benny is held up and Ronald Coleman's Oscar is stolen. Also when Jack and Fred Allen fight. My favorite mystery is Sherlock Holmes, but my all-time favorite is War of the Worlds with Orson Welles.

— PATRICK OWENS

EVANSTON, ILLINOIS — I am delighted that you are broadcasting more hours per week and wish you great success. I have enjoyed shopping at Metro Golden Memories and, surprisingly, so has my 20-year-old college student daughter. Thanks for the pleasure you give.

— EVELYN SIEGEL

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — I was very happy to hear that you will be on the radio each night. As the months go by, I notice that I watch less and less television and listen more to the radio. But even the radio is boring. They seem to play the same songs over and over again. The thought of your new show makes the upcoming winter months easier to take knowing that I will be able to curl up next to my radio on those cold nights and enjoy (more) hours of great radio. — DONNA NORTHFELL

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — Please enroll me in the Digest; I enjoy your program very much and I listen every Saturday. I'm looking forward to listening to you during the week. I've waited so long for something to listen to during the evening that I would enjoy. Thank you so much for the excellent radio programs. My favorite program is The Railroad Hour.

— MRS. VERONICA SPERA

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — Just want to congratulate and thank you for your new program on WCFL. The Radio Theatre is a very welcome sound to the evening's projects. I must admit that at 10 p.m. you have some competition with M*A*S*H at our house, but the rest of the time is sheer delight. It helps the knitting and crocheting projects for Christmas move right along. Handwork and old time radio programs go very well together in a very relaxing and enjoyable way. — MARCIA SCHMIDT

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — Terrific! My husband and I heard your Saturday show and you couldn't have given better news: WCFL, Monday through Friday! Wonderful! We will be regular listeners and I am already spreading the word around. Also, we'll post a note on the building's bulletin board so there will be listeners aplenty to your shows. Thank you so much for the pleasure you provide.

— MILDRED BLEIER

(ED. NOTE — We sincerely appreciate your help in spreading the word around. We can use all the help we can get. Thanks.)

WEST NEWTON, PENNSYLVANIA — I listen to your program almost every day. I was raised on radio, like it better than TV.

— MISS SARA ANN STORY

MT. LEBANON, PENNSYLVANIA — Just had to write and let you know what a great, great job you do with your radio feature. Of course, the signal drifts from time-to-time, but it is obvious that the transcriptions the shows were culled from were mint, and the transfer job as well is outstanding. Your arranging them is done in a professional and interesting format. — CHARLES A. KOVAL

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — It's high time your dedication and devotion to great radio paid off. You deserve WCFL's 50,000 watts. Sounds great! — ART HELLYER

GREEN LAKE, WISCONSIN — Several months ago on the Saturday afternoon program you mentioned that Wisconsin listeners would be able to receive the program. I called to find out how far north the sound would go and you said that (WNIZ), Zion was transmitting the show. That didn't help me since we were planning to move to Green Lake, which is 200 miles north of Chicago. Missing the show on Saturdays was one of the things I regretted about moving. Then — about two weeks ago we were visiting in Chicago for the weekend and, joy of joys, you said that you would be broadcasting over WCFL weekday evenings. Hurrah! We get that station very clearly and thoroughly enjoy the old time shows once again. Thank you for the years of pleasure you have given us.

— SHIRLEY HAMAISHI

ROMEOVILLE, ILLINOIS — I'm 15 years old. You may find this surprising that I enjoy your program, seeing what most kids listen to now days. I find it very entertaining. I've been listening in for a year or more and I hate to miss a program! I have one complaint, though. Why don't you have more western programs. I'm thinking of Gene Autry, Roy Rogers, Have Gun, Will Travel. You should have one whole day of Westerns. Well, I'm not really complaining, just wondering. — CRYSTAL MORRIS

(ED. NOTE — We play about the same percentage of westerns as were broadcast during the golden age. But your suggestion for a full afternoon of shoot-em-ups is a good one. We'll work on it.)

EAST MOLINE, ILLINOIS — I want you to know how very much I enjoy your new radio program. Too bad it wasn't on all summer. The TV was so bad. I remember most of (the old time shows) as I grew up on them. I have two children at home - 19 and 25 years old. So maybe they'll listen with me. They do homework and watch TV. It was much easier to do homework and listen to the radio. I remember some of the spookier ones and I used to listen to them alone, and I couldn't wait for my parents to get home — I'd be so scared!

— PATRICIA DOPLER

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — Am really enjoying the WCFL programs. Poor Johnny Carson, as if he were not having enough problems!

— DOLORES REYES

(ED. NOTE — Yes, and watch out, Mr. T!)

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — I tuned in tonight for your first broadcast over WCFL. What makes this evening so exciting for me is that I tuned you in on my Howard Model A5 Neutrodyne battery receiver made in 1922. I have this set hooked up to an Atwater Kent horn speaker Model M and the reception comes in perfectly, although it requires critical tuning. It is indeed a treat to listen in, especially with equipment of the period. I look forward to tuning you in nightly on my antique equipment.

— EDWARD C. BEYER, JR.

HIGHLAND PARK, ILLINOIS — I have been a regular listener to Those Were The Days for 10 years and am delighted that you are now on WCFL nightly. This is especially important for radio lovers like myself now that CBS Radio Mystery Theatre has been taken off the air.

I am one of those who was nursed, weaned and reared on radio comedy, mystery and drama and I absolutely love what you do on the air. I now have a pretty fair tape collection (taken mostly from your broadcasts), and the new WCFL format will help it grow enormously. My teenage son is now also a great fan of the old radio shows, so the great tradition is being passed on to the next generation.

Your enthusiasm and love for this material, combined with your knowledge of it, makes you the best in this field.

— ROBERT M. BERGER

(ED. NOTE — We're blushing a crimson red from all the kind words in our mailbag this issue. We're delighted to have such a great response to our new show on WCFL and to our good old TWTD program on WNIB/WNIZ, now in its 14th year. We promise to give you our very best effort. You deserve no less. Thanks for writing, thanks for listening.

OZZIE AND HARRIET AND DAVID AND RICKY

Ozzie Nelson had been leading a band since the age of 14 when Harriet Hilliard joined his orchestra as a girl singer in 1932. The bandleader and his singer made beautiful music together and they were married on October 8, 1935.

David was born on October 24, 1936 and Eric came along on May 8, 1940.

In Hollywood, Ozzie and Harriet joined the Red Skelton show in 1941, Ozzie as the bandleader and Harriet as vocalist and comedy foil for Red. She even portrayed the mother of Junior, the mean little kid, for a time. Then Red was drafted and the show broke up.

The radio Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet made its debut on the Columbia network on the Nelsons' ninth wedding anniversary, October 8, 1944. The show was a hit, a warm-hearted situation comedy mostly revolving around the incapacities or misjudgements of Ozzie, the man of the house. Slightly patterned after their real lives, the show featured two young actors portraying sons David and Ricky.

The kids wanted to be on the air with their folks, but Ozzie resisted until David was 13 and Ricky was 9. The boys proved to have a fine talent for radio and the Nelson family were welcome guests in the homes of listeners until 1954.

The Nelsons made an almost perfect, painless transition to television in 1952 and the spotlight shined brightly on them as David and Ricky grew up on camera before the eyes of America.

The TV series continued until 1966 and some 200 of the 425 video episodes are still in reruns around the world.

Ozzie died in 1975, Harriet continues to do some work on television, David works mostly behind the scenes in the entertainment world and Rick continues his successful singing career that began when a TV episode in 1956 had him forming a Rock and Roll band in high school.
