OKLAHOMA

Population 2,233,351 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma is bounded on the north by Kansas, east by Arkansas and Missouri, south and west by Texas. It is over 300 miles in length from east to west, and in width from north to south averages about 160 miles. Its land area is 69,031 square miles; rank in area (1950), nineteenth.

The surface is a vast, rolling plain, treeless in the west, but rising in the east to the Chautauqua, Wichita, and Ozark Mountains, which are heavily wooded. The Arkansas and Red Rivers are navigable for boats of light draft for some distance into the state. The prevailing type of soil is a deep, dark red loam. The climate is variable and the rainfall in the west is scanty, though it is generally sufficient in the east. Dry farming is extensively practiced in the western section. The Weather Bureau at Oklahoma City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 60.1; highest on record, 113; lowest on record, -17. The total annual precipitation is 31.65 inches.

The Indian Territory, which was combined with Oklahoma Territory to form the state, was the home of the Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole Indians. Their descendants in 1945 numbered 110,864, according to the census.

The development of petroleum in the state dates from about the beginning of the century. In 1948, Texas, California and Louisiana ranked higher in production of crude petroleum, Oklahoma occupying fourth place.

Among the institutions of higher education in the state are the University of Oklahoma, located at Norman, and the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College at Stillwater.

OREGON

State Capital, SALEM

Oregon is bounded on the north by Washington, east by Idaho, south by Nevada and California, and west by the Pacific Ocean. Its average length from east to west is about 300 miles; average breadth, about 260 miles; land area, 96,315 square miles; rank in area (1950), ninth.

It is divided unequally by the Cascade Mountains. East of this range the surface is generally undulating table land, with high, cone-like hills and deep canyons. Between the Cascade and Coast ranges is the Willamette valley, 60 miles wide by 150 miles long and exceedingly fertile; from the coast range westward the surface is mountainous, hilly, and broken. Dairying, wool growing, stock raising, and the growing of filberts, winter wheat, barley, oats, and hay all flourish. The state has every character of climate, soil and production known to the temperate zone.

The fruit industry is among the most important in the country, particularly the apples, which are shipped to eastern markets. Prune growing and drying is also an important industry. The Weather Bureau at Portland gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 53.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, -2; total annual precipitation, 41.62 inches.

Several irrigation projects are located in the stretches of semi-arid lands in the southeast. The Owyhee Dam, one of the highest in the world, is the key of a great reclamation project and provides water for 101,476 acres near the Idaho line.

The Columbia River, on the north, carries tonnage along the whole of its 400 miles from the Idaho line, and flows into the Pacific with a width of fourteen miles at its mouth, making one of the finest harbors in the world. The Snake River, on the east, also conveys much traffic. The salmon fisheries at Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia are among the world's greatest.

Oregon has almost half of more than one trillion feet of timber standing in the three coast states, Oregon, Washington, and California. For timber cut it ranks second only to Washington. Its great Columbia Highway, unexcelled for scenic beauty, Mt. Hood, and the unique Crater Lake, are points of tourist interest. The State University is located at Eugene; the State Agricultural College at Corvallis.

REPUBLIC OF PANAMA

Republic of Panama Population 801,982 (Census of Panama, 1950)

Canal Zone Population 52,822 (U. S. Census, 1950)

The Republic of Panama is situated between 7° and 10° north latitude and 77° and 83° west longitude. It is bounded on the north by the Caribbean Sea, east by Colombia, south by the Bay of Panama and the Pacific Ocean, and west by Costa Rica. The area is 28,575 square miles.

The climate is entirely tropical with warm days and cool nights, the temperature at Colon varying from 68° to 95°F. Under direction of American health authorities of the Canal Zone, whose authority is extended by treaty throughout the republic, modern sanitation has made Panama one of the most healthy spots in the tropics. The concentration of population is in the towns, chiefly Panama at the Pacific end of the Canal and Colon on the Caribbean.

There are some gold mines. Oil has been found and copper and iron have been located. There are also important salt mines. The Panama Canal brings to Panama the largest tonnage of shipping of any country in Latin America. In 1949, imports amounted to $62,927,409, and exports were valued at $11,050,305. Chief of the exports are bananas, pineapples and cacao, large companies controlling production of these crops. Rice, tobacco, rubber, coffee, sugar cane are also raised and stock raising is extensively carried on. Principal imports are foodstuffs and beverages, textiles and manufactures, machinery, chemical products and metals. Trade is chiefly with the United States.

The Canal Zone is situated between 8° and 10° north latitude and 79° and 81° west longitude. It is a strip of territory extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans, includes five miles of land on each side of the Panama Canal, and is under perpetual lease to the United States. Its land area is 372 square miles, its total area, 648 square miles.

Cristobal, formerly a part of Colon, is the Caribbean port of entrance to the Canal, and that at the Pacific entrance is Balboa. East of Panama is the residential town of Ancon, with a hotel and a hospital. The Panama Railway runs on the eastern side of the canal. The canal is 50.72 statute miles long.

All industrial activities within the Canal Zone are controlled by the Government, which holds the title to all land. The Zone is fortified and occupied by a garrison in addition to the civilian employees of the Canal and railroad. The army maintains airports at France Field on the Caribbean side and at Albrook Field on Balboa Heights on the Pacific side. A part of the territory is adapted to stock raising, growing of tropical fruits and sugar cane.

PENNSYLVANIA

State Capital, HARRISBURG

Pennsylvania is bounded on the north by New York and Lake Erie, east by New York and New Jersey, south by Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia, and west by West Virginia and Ohio. Its greatest length from east to west is about 302 miles; its greatest breadth about 175 miles. Its land area is 45,045 square miles; rank in area (1950), thirty-second.

The surface is varied, chiefly level and slightly undulating in the east and northwest, mountainous in the interior. The Appalachian range traverses the state from northeast to southwest. In these mountains are many of the state's popular summer and health resorts. The Susquehanna, Delaware, Alleghany and Monongahela are rivers important in drainage and navigation.

Philadelphia is one of the principal ports for foreign and coastwise trade, one of the most important manufacturing cities, and with Chester, one of the chief ship-building stations. Erie and Pittsburgh are also great commercial centers. Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Reading and Scranton are the chief centers of iron manufacture, and Scranton is the greatest hard coal center of the country. The state produces more than one quarter of all the finished rolled and forged iron and steel in the country.

There is a wide diversification of agriculture in the state, the principal agricultural counties being Lancaster, York, Chester and Berks. Lancaster and York counties are the principal tobacco raising localities, Lancaster county probably producing more of it than any other county in the United States.

The Weather Bureau at Pittsburgh gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 52.5; highest on record, 103; lowest on record, -20; total annual precipitation, 36.53 inches.

In educational facilities the state ranks high, many of the important colleges and universities of the east being located here. They include the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology, both at Pittsburgh; Pennsylvania State College at State College; and Bryn Mawr, at Bryn Mawr.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), third. Urban population (1950), 70.5%. In 1950, of the 10,498,012 total population, 9,844,012 were white; 654,000 were non-white.

conjunction with the railroads, make it possible to transfer freight from any railroad point in the country direct to any steamship wharf in the city and vice versa. In 1948 there were 5,558 manufacturing establishments, which produced goods valued at $4,176,843,300. The more important are the petroleum and cane sugar refineries; textile mills; printing and publishing houses; clothing and worsted goods factories; foundries and machine shops; meat packing plants; paper mills; fruit and vegetable canneries; cigar factories; tanneries; textile dyeing and finishing plants. A large percentage of the Building and Loan Associations in the country are located here. Philadelphia is noted for its places of historical interest; the next to largest municipal park in the country, residential suburbs with beautiful homes, and as a medical and educational center. Here are the University of Pennsylvania and many other higher institutions of learning, including trade, business and medical and professional schools. Two suspension bridges connect Philadelphia with New Jersey and the seashore resorts. Forty-one banks. Federal Reserve Bank. PUERTO RICO

Population, 2,211,000, Census of 1950

Capital, SAN JUAN

Puerto Rico lies between 65° and 70° west longitude and 10° and 18° north latitude. San Juan, the capital, is 225 miles east of the Island of Santo Domingo-Haiti, and 1,399 miles southeast of New York. The Island is 95 miles long and 35 miles wide, has an area of 3,435 square miles, approximately that of Delaware and Rhode Island together, and a coast line of about 345 miles. The territory includes also a number of smaller islands, among them Vieques Island and Culebra Island, at the east and Mona Island at the west.

Few areas of the United States afford such a delightful climate as Puerto Rico. Being located within the trade-wind belt and its mountainous surface make it one of the most favorable regions in the tropics. The climate is warm, but excessive temperatures do not occur. The Weather Bureau at San Juan gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 78.0; highest on record 94; lowest on record 62. Total annual precipitation is 53.54 inches.

There are two good harbors: San Juan on the north coast, Ponce on the south.

POPULATION

The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1950 was 644.6, making it one of the most densely populated places in the world. The population of the Island has always shown a steady increase; 40.5 per cent being urban and 59.5 per cent rural. About 2,000 Americans reside here permanently, approximately two-thirds living in San Juan and its suburbs.

AGRICULTURE

The land sources of the island are not great. The census of 1940 reported a total of 1,885,874 acres in farms, or roughly one acre per inhabitant. Number of farms, 55,519. The Soil Conservation Service estimates that only 845,000 acres are well adapted to permanent agricultural use, of which three fourths require complex or intensive soil conservation practices.

Chemical fertilizer is used generally in the growing of sugar cane, tobacco and other field crops. Agriculture, nevertheless, is the most important source of income and employment for the island. Agricultural produce has contributed in all years more than 80% of the islands' total exports. In 1950, of the persons gainfully employed 35.6% derived their livelihood from agriculture.

Sugar cane production is the foundation on which the economic structure of the island is based. Sugar cane acreage constituted 31% of all land harvested in 1939 and in the years of 1942-43, sugar products made up 64.6% of the total exports. Sugar is the largest single source of employment. 54% of the gainful workers in agriculture are employed in sugar cane farming. In 1950 sugar cane production was 10,614,633 tons.

Tobacco continues to hold an important place in Puerto Rico's economy. It represents the only source of cash income for small farm growers. Cultivation of tobacco expanded rapidly up until market difficulties introduced a period of decline. In 1948, the tobacco crop, grown under quota, reached a total of 254,000 hundredweights.

During the year 1946-47 sweetened and grated coconut shipped to the United States was 5,708,367 pounds. In 1949-50 shipments of this product amounted to 1,486,715 pounds.

In 1950 the production of pineapples was 1,152,303 crates.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is chiefly with the United States. Close and frequent contact with the United States has done much to create a demand for American merchandise. Being an integral part of the United States, there are no tariff barriers and it is as easy to do business as it is in any of the states. The banking system is the same and there is no difficulty in obtaining credit ratings. Practically all the business men speak English. Puerto Rico buys more merchandise from the United States than any country south of the Rio Grande, leading Central and South America and the West Indies.

Shipments from the United States in 1950 were $317,954,309. Chief imports from the United States; vegetable food products and beverages; textile fibers and manufactures; machinery and vehicles, animals and animal products, edible; metals and manufactures (except machinery and vehicles); chemicals and related products; non-metallic minerals; vegetable products, inedible (except fibers and wood); wood and paper; animals and animal products, inedible; dairy products, fish, rice, wheat flour, dried beans, rubber products, cigarettes, manufactured cotton goods, paper, petroleum, glass, cement, electrical machinery and apparatus, motor vehicles, automobile parts and accessories, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations.

Shipments to the United States during 1950 totaled $210,035,599. Of this figure sugar and its by-products; rum, alcohol, molasses, acetone, butyl alcohol, bay rum, accounts for more than 75% of Puerto Rico's entire export income. Other exports: raw Sea Island cotton, pineapples, coconuts, molasses, straw hats.

Coconut exports in 1950 reached $766,199. Fresh pineapple in 1950 exports reached $905,424; canned pineapple exports reached $2,639,988. Cucumbers, tomatoes and peppers are the principal vegetable crops exported from Puerto Rico.

Wages are lower than on the mainland, and the standard of living is low by Continental ways and means of doing things.

MISCELLANEOUS

Puerto Rico is making great strides in her economic and social life. The Island is almost encircled by a railroad system (passenger and freight), covering 306 miles. A network of over 2,000 miles of hard-surfaced roads serves all cities and towns of the Island. Not one of the Island's twelve ports is more than five hours distant by motor vehicle from any important community.

The unusual panoramas of mountains, valleys, tropical seas and white beaches provide a very fascinating attraction on a tour of the Island. Old-world splendor is found in almost all Puerto Rican cathedrals. Towns are of quaint atmosphere and old historic forts are of much interest. A considerable variety of tourist accommodations are available. First-class hotels furnished in modern American style, apartments with restaurants, and smaller but modern and well-maintained establishments are worthy of mention. Visitors to the Island need fear none of the illness of other tropical areas. Seventy per cent of all potable water used is filtered and chlorinated.

The majority of homes in and around San Juan are detached and built of reinforced concrete. Electric or gas cooking facilities are available. Telephone service is supplied at a reasonable rate. Number of post offices (1950), 107; gross postal receipts, $2,414,519. The United States Navy operates a radio station at San Juan. There are several commercial radio stations, communications made available through the facility of R. C. A.

The educational system is patterned much after that of the United States. Spanish and English are taught and spoken in the classroom. Higher education is also available in the Island. The University of Puerto Rico offers a great variety of courses and its credits are recognized by most American colleges and universities.

RHODE ISLAND

Population 791,896 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, PROVIDENCE

Rhode Island is bounded on the north and east by Massachusetts, south by the Atlantic Ocean, and west by Connecticut. Its extreme length from north to south is 47 1/2 miles; extreme breadth, 40 miles; land area, 1,057 square miles; rank in area (1950), forty-eighth.

The surface is mostly rough, hilly, and stony. There are no mountains and few hills of any altitude. Nearly one-fourth of the state is woodland. The Weather Bureau at Providence gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 49.8; highest on record, 100; lowest on record, -12. Total annual precipitation is 39.19 inches.

Newport, on Narragansett Bay, is one of the most famous of America's watering places and is noted for the palatial homes built there by wealthy patrons. Rhode Island's state college, located at Kingston, and Brown University, at Providence, are important among the state's institutions of higher education.

Rhode Island has the third largest per capita industrial output of all the states. It is more than ninety per cent urban, has the densest population of all the states, 674.2 persons to the square mile, and exerts influence out of all proportion to its size and population. Providence, the capital, Woonsocket and Pawtucket are the chief industrial centers. Nearly half the state's manufactures are devoted to textiles; the manufacture of jewelry is highly important as well. Providence is the center for heavy foreign and coastwise trade and passenger traffic, as well as a rail center.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), thirty-seventh. Urban population (1950), 84.6%. In 1950, of the 791,896 total population, 777,015 were white; 14,881 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 2,596. Farm acreage (1945), 264,734. Average acreage per farm, 73.5. Average value per farm, $9,888. Value of farms (land and buildings), $35,609,000.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1950): livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $16,054,000; crops, $5,661,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1950): potatoes, $1,482,000, rank, thirtieth; hay, $148,000, rank, forty-seventh; corn, $4,000, rank, forty-fifth. Cash receipts from truck crops, $902,000, rank, forty-third.

Farm value of animals on farms (1951): all cattle and calves, $6,642,000, rank, forty-eighth; hogs, including pigs, $294,000, rank, forty-eighth; horses and colts, $82,000, rank, forty-eighth; all sheep and lambs, $40,000, rank, forty-eighth.

Cash receipts from poultry (1950): eggs, $4,136,000, rank, forty-fourth; chickens, including broilers, $1,937,000, rank, forty-fourth.

Cash receipts from dairy products (1950): $8,361,000. Dairy products (1949): total milk production on farms, 140,000,000 lbs.; ice cream, 3,975,000 gallons.

FISHERIES

MANUFACTURES

Number of establishments (1947), 2,214; employing 146,850. Value added by manufacture, $658,420,000, rank, twenty-eighth. The final figures that show the value added by manufacture in each of the leading groups of industries are available and may be obtained by writing to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. The price for Rhode Island is 15 cents per copy.

MINERALS

Value, $929,000, rank, forty-seventh. Principal mineral products in order of value: stone, sand and gravel, graphite.

MISCELLANEOUS

Number of telephones (1951): 241,200, rank, thirty-fifth. Motor vehicles registered (1950): 250,869, rank, forty-first. SOUTH CAROLINA

State Capital, COLUMBIA

South Carolina is bounded on the north and northeast by North Carolina, southeast by the Atlantic Ocean, west and southwest by Georgia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 275 miles, and its greatest width about 210 miles; land area, 30,305 square miles; rank in area (1950), thirty-ninth.

The surface presents nearly the same features as North Carolina, a wide sand belt along the coast, then a tract of sand hills, then rising land westward to the Blue Ridge Mountains. The highest peak, Table Mountain, is 4,000 feet above the sea. The climate in the western section is comparatively cool, the central part medium, and the coast warm and humid. The Weather Bureau at Charleston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 66.0; highest on record, 104; lowest on record, 7. Total annual precipitation is 45.22 inches.

The coast is indented with several harbors, Charleston, the most important one, being a prominent coast-wise and foreign shipping point. Agriculture is the state's leading occupation, with cotton the principal money crop, followed by corn, tobacco, tame hay, oats, and sweet potatoes. The University of South Carolina at Columbia and Clemson Agricultural College, lead among the institutions of higher learning.

SOUTH DAKOTA

State Capital, PIERRE

South Dakota is bounded on the north by North Dakota, east by Minnesota and Iowa, south by Nebraska, and west by Montana and Wyoming. Its length, east to west, is nearly 360 miles; width, about 240 miles; its land area is 76,536 square miles; rank in area (1950), fifteenth.

The Missouri River, which drains most of the state, has depth enough for boats up to six hundred tons burden. East of the Missouri the state is mostly rolling prairie, and a succession of fertile valleys are highly productive in the growing of wheat, other grains and vegetables. West of the river the land is more broken, with rich mining and excellent grazing land in the southwestern or Black Hills region, a mountain district that is nearly 5,000 square miles in extent. It is largely forested and rich in mineral wealth. The Weather Bureau at Huron gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 43.6; highest on record 111; lowest on record, -43; total annual precipitation, 20.65 inches.

A feature of the state is the large area in Indian reservations—the Rosebud, Cheyenne River, Pine Ridge, and the Lower Brule. In 1940 Indians numbered 23,307.

Another feature is the Mount Rushmore National Memorial, of which the first unit, a sixty-foot head of George Washington was unveiled in 1930. The second unit, the head of Thomas Jefferson, was unveiled in 1936 and the third, the head of Abraham Lincoln, was unveiled in September, 1937. The Memorial includes also the head of Theodore Roosevelt, and a concise history of the nation. These are all on the face of Mount Rushmore (altitude, 6,200 feet; with 1,686 acres).

The Harney and Black Hills National Forests cover 1,134,167 acres, nearly surrounding Custer State Park, containing Game Lodge where President Coolidge established the summer White House in 1927. The state university is located at Vermillion.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), forty-first. Rural population (1950), 83.2%. In 1950, of the 652,740 total population, 628,504 were white; 24,236 were non-white.

TENNESSEE

State Capital, NASHVILLE

Tennessee is bounded on the north by Kentucky and Virginia, southeast by North Carolina, south by Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi, west by Arkansas and Missouri. Its extent from east to west is 432 miles; north to south, 109 miles; land area, 41,797 square miles; rank in area (1950), thirty-third.

The state is popularly divided into East, Middle, and West Tennessee. East Tennessee, in the Great Smoky Mountains, comprises the eastern mountain border, the beautiful East Tennessee Valley, and about half of the Cumberland Mountain plateau. Here are produced corn, cotton, apples, peaches and winter wheat. Middle Tennessee reaches from about the center of the plateau to the Tennessee River, and is a region of fertile terraces, including the vast elliptical basin of nearly 5,000 square miles, known as the Garden of Kentucky. It yields excellent grain, tobacco, and much cotton. West Tennessee extends from the Tennessee River to the Mississippi, and is somewhat broken in the east, succeeded by a rolling plain descending to the latter river. It is extremely fertile, and produces good crops of cotton and corn.

The Weather Bureau at Nashville gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 59.6; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, -13; total annual precipitation, 46.11 inches.

The forests of the state are extensive, covering nearly 30,000 square miles. The Tennessee Mountains are beautiful, and make delightful summer resorts. Lookout Mountain, site of a celebrated battle during the Civil War, is of particular interest at Chattanooga. Among the nine institutions of higher learning the University of Tennessee is located at Knoxville.

TEXAS

State Capital, AUSTIN

Texas, first in size among the states, is bounded on the north by New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas, east by Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, southeast by the Gulf of Mexico, southwest by Mexico, and west by New Mexico. Its greatest length is about 740 miles; greatest breadth, 625 miles; land area, 263,513 square miles; rank in area (1950), first.

The surface is greatly diversified. From the Sabine River to the Trinity River extends the great timber region of Texas, generally level and sandy in the south, rolling and fertile in the north. From the Trinity to the Colorado is prairie, timbered along the streams, with extensive forests of live oak, extending through central and western Texas to the Red River, called the "Cross Timbers." Four-fifths of western Texas, between the Colorado and the Rio Grande, is prairie.

Between the Colorado and the Brazos Rivers are the Comanche and Leon River Mountain Ranges. In the north and northwest are the Church and Double Mountains, the surface rising gradually until the Llano Estacado, or Staked Plains, are reached. These form a large portion of the section known as the "Panhandle," and the natural vegetation consists chiefly of grass. There is some farming in this district, but the chief industry here and in the whole northwestern part of the state is stock raising. Between the Pecos and the Rio Grande are several ranges, some as high as 5,000 feet. The Weather Bureau at Houston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 69.2; highest on record, 108; lowest on record, 5; total annual precipitation, 45.95 inches. At Fort Worth the annual monthly mean is 65.6; highest on record, 112; lowest on record, -8; total annual precipitation, 31.87 inches.

Almost every variety of plant grown in temperate and sub-tropical regions can be raised successfully in Texas. The principal crop, however, is cotton, its value amounting yearly to more than the rest of its crops together and more than the cotton crop of any other state.

Its mineral wealth is also great. Of chief importance is petroleum, which underlies vast areas of its surface. In recent years the annual output has averaged over 400,000,000 barrels. Oil refining forms the state's leading industry, followed by wholesale meat packing and the manufacture of cottonseed oil and meal. The gas wells in the Amarillo district are the chief source of helium supply in the country. Texas leads in railroad mileage with a trackage of 15,681 in 1946.

Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College is located at College Station. The University of Texas at Austin is well known along lines of research, especially in geology. With the United States Geological Survey, it was responsible for the discovery of potash in an inland salt sea in the northwest.

Houston, the converging point of railroads, Galveston, Beaumont, Port Arthur and Corpus Christi are important seaports.

UTAH

Population 688,862 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, SALT LAKE CITY

Utah is bounded on the north by Idaho and Wyoming, east by Wyoming and Colorado, south by Arizona and west by Nevada. Its length, north to south, is about 350 miles, its width about 200 miles, land area 82,346 square miles, rank in area (1950), eleventh.

Being in the Rocky Mountain region, Utah has a surface that is generally mountainous. It is, on an average, nearly 6,000 feet above sea level and much of it is a plateau broken by valleys and basins. The Wahsatch Mountains and the Uintahs divide the state into two portions, that lying to the north and west in the interior basin, from which there is no drainage, and that to the south and east which forms part of the scenic basin of the Colorado River. In the Uintah range some of the peaks rise to a height of 13,500 feet. Great Salt Lake, noted for its extraordinary high percentage of salt, lies in the northwestern part of the state at an altitude of 4,218 feet and with an area of 2,360 square miles.

The climate is dry, stimulating and the weather exceptionally clear with cloudless skies 300 days a year. The Weather Bureau at Salt Lake City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 50.9; highest on record, 196; lowest on record, -30. Total annual precipitation is 13.45 inches.

Mountains and grazing lands comprise about two-thirds of the state; the wooded area about 7,000,000 acres. Most of the latter is situated in the National Forests. The area of land under cultivation is relatively small; yet agriculture has become the state's chief source of wealth, gaining in recent years ascendancy over mining which formerly represented the greatest of the state's resources. Government reclamation projects have brought irrigation to nearly a million and a half acres, and "dry" farming has been practiced on land where rainfall is insufficient and irrigation not possible.

The mineral resources of Utah, which include every known mineral but platinum and radium, are highly valuable. Semi-precious stones are found in large quantities and high grade marble and onyx are quarried.

Three-fourths of all church members in Utah are Mormons or Latter Day Saints. This faith and the great Tabernacle in Salt Lake City are distinguishing features of Utah. Much of the early development of the state is due to the pioneering of the Mormons who fled to its religious security when it was little more than a wilderness. In Salt Lake City, also, is located the State University. Utah has two national parks of great scenic beauty: Zion and Bryce Canyon. The Great American Desert lies in the northwestern part of the state.

VERMONT

Population 377,747 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, MONTPELIER

Vermont is bounded on the north by Quebec, Canada, on the east by New Hampshire, south by Massachusetts, and west by New York. It is 143 miles long, from 40 to 85 miles wide, has a land area of 9,278 square miles and an area rank in 1950 of forty-second.

The Green Mountains, by whose name the state is so often called, traverse it from north to south, as do the Taconic Mountains. These are generally covered with forests but afford excellent pasturage, an important feature in Vermont, for here is found the highest per capita gross farm income from dairy products in the Union. In this state is found, too, the largest quantity of maple sugar, its millions of maple trees producing maple products that give it first rank in quantity and a reputation for quality. East and west of the central mountains lie beautiful stretches of countryside. The best soil is found in the valley lands of the Connecticut River and on the western slope of the mountains near Lake Champlain. This body of water stretches for a hundred and twenty miles along the state's west boundary, and its picturesqueness, along with the rugged mountains and many streams, attracts many visitors to Vermont annually who find it desirable as a summer residence region and an ideal vacation spot.

The chief mineral wealth of Vermont lies in its quarries. It leads all states in production of granite and marble.

The Weather Bureau at Burlington gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 45.1; highest on record, 101; lowest on record, —29. Total annual precipitation is 31.61 inches.

The University of Vermont at Burlington and Middlebury College are the leading institutions of learning.

VIRGINIA

State Capital, RICHMOND

Virginia, the Old Dominion State, is bounded on the north by West Virginia and Maryland, east by Maryland and the Atlantic Ocean, south by North Carolina and Tennessee, and west by Kentucky and West Virginia. Its greatest length from east to west is about 440 miles, its greatest breadth 192 miles, land area 39,893 square miles, rank in area (1950), thirty-fifth.

The surface is divided into several natural divisions: the Tidewater, comprising the south and southeast, its soil yielding large crops of vegetables and small fruits; an extensive tableland in the center part rising to the mountains in the west; the Piedmont, the Blue Ridge and the Appalachian regions noted for their grasses; and the Shenandoah Valley region which has a rich fertile soil adapted to the growing of cereal grains, particularly corn, wheat, oats and rye. Both the Piedmont and Shenandoah areas are noted for the high quality and variety of their apple orchards.

Much of the mountain region is uncultivated, being forested with a variety of trees. Among them are valuable hardwoods, and the export of lumber is large.

Of outstanding interest is Virginia's rich historical background. In the state are found the home of George Washington at Mt. Vernon, of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, Arlington National Cemetery, Appomattox, and Old Surrender Field at Yorktown where Lord Cornwallis laid down his arms in 1781. Thousands of visitors are yearly attracted to these shrines and to Williamsburg, the colonial capital, that has since been restored.

In Newport News is a large shipbuilding plant. In Hampton Roads the United States maintains a navy yard, and Fortress Monroe, between Chesapeake Bay and the James River, dominates the waterways.

The state has some noted as well as very old institutions of learning. Naming only a few, William and Mary College, second oldest in the country, founded in 1693, is located at Williamsburg; Washington and Lee University at Lexington and the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson, at Charlottesville.

Among watering places, Virginia's Hot Springs is famous as a center of year-round social activity. The climate of the state varies with the topography, the Weather Bureau at Richmond giving the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 57.5; highest degree on record, 107; lowest, —3; total annual precipitation, 42.02 inches.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

Population 26,665 (U. S. Census, 1950)

Capital, CHARLOTTE AMALIE

The Virgin Islands are situated about 40 miles east of Puerto Rico, and the capital, Charlotte Amalie, is 1,442 miles from New York. They consist of three principal islands; St. Thomas, area 33 square miles; St. Croix, 80 square miles; St. John, 21 square miles, and about fifty smaller ones.

They were purchased from Denmark in 1917, for $25,000,000, and, although they had been in the possession of that country for over 200 years, the language of the people is English.

Despite their tropical location the Islands have an agreeable climate, due to their being fanned by the steady trade winds. They possess the physical beauty, charm and hospitality of the West Indies. The construction and operation of several hotels on St. Thomas and St. Croix has increased the tourist and resident possibilities of the island. The deactivated Marine Air Base and Naval Submarine Station has been converted into tourist facilities. The airfield is operated by the Municipal Government

The estimated population of the island of St. Croix was, in 1950, 12,096; of St. Thomas, 14,558; of St. John, 747. Nearly 95% are wholly or partly Negro.

AGRICULTURE

The farm land is about five-sixths of the area of the Islands. According to the census of 1950 there were 837 farms containing 63,753 acres. Land and buildings were valued at $6,492,720.

Agriculture is the chief economic activity, with sugar as the basic industry. The total cane crop in 1950 was 99,482 tons. In 1950, 548,087 gallons of molasses were produced. Rum and liqueurs are also produced and exported. Bay rum is another export product.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is carried on mainly with the United States, imports amounting to $9,967,225 and exports to $2,501,056 in 1949. Due to the fact that the Federal law chartering the Virgin Islands Corporation prohibits it from manufacturing or selling rum, arrangements were made during the year to dispose of the corporation's rum and molasses stocks, and for the leasing of the distilling to private enterprise. A total of 634,000 proof gallons of alcoholic beverages was exported from St. Thomas in 1950 as compared with 386,915 proof gallons in 1949.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Islands long suffered an economic decline. Marked advances have been made in public health, educational fields and in the economic and social life of the people through the expenditure of government funds. During the fiscal year 1950, a total of 335 commercial ships with a gross tonnage of 1,794,697 entered the port of St. Thomas, as compared with 298 ships and a gross tonnage of 1,603,374 in 1949.

A public highway system has been created and a public works program undertaken. Economic problems have been attacked and government is gradually becoming representative of American democracy. Weekly schedules are in operation on north and south bound air routes. Number of post offices (1950), 5; gross postal receipts, $75,461. There is daily air mail service.

WASHINGTON

State Capital, OLYMPIA

Washington is bounded on the north by British Columbia, Canada, west by the Pacific Ocean, east by Idaho and south by Oregon. Its average length, east to west, is 330 miles, width 220 miles, land area 66,786 square miles, rank in area (1950), seventeenth.

The Cascade Mountains divide the state into an eastern and a western section, which contrast markedly in characteristics. A distinguishing feature of the western section is Puget Sound, with 1,594 miles of shore line and many harbors, among them the important cities of Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and Olympia. From its ports go extensive shipping and much passenger travel, to Asia, Alaska and points reached by means of the Panama Canal. Lumbering is the leading industry, western Washington being heavily wooded. The state has standing timber of about 330 billion feet and leads all the states in the Union in timber cut. Near Puget Sound there are extensive coal mines. Another important industry is the fisheries. In 1947 the salmon pack had an estimated value of $21,420,000.

The valleys are productive in vegetables, fruits and hops; fruit growing being especially successful. East of the Cascades, most of the wheat is grown and in the valleys are the great ranges providing winter grazing. In the dry portions, irrigation is used, extensive developments having been carried on in this line. Two notable dams are the Rock Island at Wenatchee and the Grand Coulee. The base of Grand Coulee Dam, since it exceeds Boulder Dam, has become the largest masonry structure built by man. The base rises on the average 177 feet above the bedrock. The dam rises 550 feet high. It creates a reservoir 151 miles long, with a capacity of about 10,000,000 acre feet of water, aiding in the control of floods, the improvement of navigation, the irrigation of dry but fertile lands in the Columbia Basin, and a capacity of 2,190,000 kilowatt-hours of electric energy.

The shore resorts of the state are popular, especially along Puget Sound. Many of the mountain peaks rise to great heights. Mt. Rainier has an altitude of 14,408 feet and is the third highest peak in the United States and is in a national park frequently visited by tourists. The University of Washington is located at Seattle. The Weather Bureau at Seattle gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 52.0; highest no record, 100; lowest, 3; total annual precipitation, 33.28 inches.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), twenty-third. Urban population (1950), 62.9%. In 1950, of the 2,378,963 total population 2,316,495 were white; 62,468 were non-white.

WEST VIRGINIA

State Capital, CHARLESTON

West Virginia is bounded on the north and east by Pennsylvania and Maryland, east and south by Virginia, and west by Kentucky and Ohio. Its greatest length from north to south is about 240 miles; greatest breadth, 160 miles; land area, 24,080 square miles; rank in area (1950), fortieth.

The surface of West Virginia's rivers is estimated at 135 square miles, for many navigable tributaries of the Ohio River flow through the state. Transportation on the Ohio in the west is heavy. A large part of the land is mountainous and hilly; about two-thirds covered with forests. West Virginia ranks sixth in production of hardwood and has vast timber wealth. The soil of the mountain ridges is fertile to the tops, and the summits of many mountains are flat, natural meadows.

The valley of the great Kanawha is the finest grazing region in the state. No finer blue grass farms exist than those of the central, northern and Greenbrier sections. The soil is well adapted to the production of apples, peaches and other fruits, although agriculture in the state is not so important. The most valuable mineral resource of the state is its coal. The same Appalachian vein that supplies Pennsylvania gives West Virginia, too, coal of highest quality. Next to Pennsylvania it ranks highest among the states in the value of coal produced. The state also ranks high in the production of glassware, in steel works and rolling-mill products.

The University of West Virginia is located at Morgantown. White Sulphur Springs, in the eastern part of the state, is a popular health resort, with a famous golf course. The Weather Bureau at Parkersburg gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 54.3; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, -27; total annual precipitation, 39.41 inches.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1950), twenty-ninth. Rural population (1950), 34.6%. In 1950, of the 2,005,552 total population, 1,890,284 were white; 115,268 were non-white.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1950), 81,450. Farm acreage (1945), 8,719,579. Average acreage per farm, 89.3. Average value per farm, $3,494. Value of farms (land and buildings), $341,008,205.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1950): livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $89,671,000; crops, $23,298,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1950): hay, $1,688,000, rank, thirty-eighth; tobacco, $1,524,000, rank, sixteenth; corn, $1,207,000, rank, thirty-third; wheat, $1,007,000, rank, thirty-sixth; potatoes, $484,000, rank, forty-third; sorghum sirup, $173,000, rank, eleventh; oats, $57,000, rank, forty-second; barley, $38,000, rank, thirty-fifth; soybeans, $26,000, rank, twenty-sixth; buckwheat, $15,000, rank, fourteenth; rye, $9,000, rank, thirty-fifth. Cash receipts from truck crops, $1,155,000, rank, fortieth.

Value of sales of fruits (noncitrus) (1950): apples, $5,796,000, rank, eighth; peaches, $1,128,000, rank, seventeenth; grapes, $82,000, rank, eighteenth; pears, $72,000, rank, twenty-third.

Farm value of animals on farms (1951): all cattle and calves, $78,660,000, rank, fortieth; all sheep and lambs, $7,091,000, rank, twenty-seventh; hogs including pigs, $5,929,000, rank, thirtieth; horses and colts, $5,293,000, rank, sixteenth; mules and mule colts, $380,000, rank, twenty-first.

Cash received from poultry (1950): chickens including broilers, $16,450,000, rank, twenty-fourth; eggs, $12,577,000, rank, thirty-first; turkeys, $5,309,000, rank, seventeenth.

State Capital, MADISON

Wisconsin is bounded on the north by Lake Superior, northeast by Michigan, east by Lake Michigan, south by Illinois and west by Iowa and Minnesota. Its greatest length from north to south is 300 miles, greatest breadth 260 miles, land area 54,705 square miles; rank in area (1950), twenty-fourth.

The surface is generally an elevated plain with high bluffs along the rivers and lakes and elsewhere gently undulating, diversified with prairie, woodlands and numerous lakes. The northern part was heavily timbered, but there are now large tracts of useless cut-over forest land. However, the lumber cut is the greatest in the Lakes region. The principal rivers are the Chippewa, the Black and the Wisconsin, flowing toward the Mississippi, which forms the southern half of the western boundary.

The state's crops represent a varied list, for agriculture is exceptionally well diversified. The dairy industry is very important, butter, condensed and evaporated milk and cheese ranking high among the state's products. It has the largest number of creameries in the country. Wisconsin ranks high in value of commercial truck crops for canning and manufacture. Nearly half of the country's crop of canning peas is grown here.

Superior, at the head of Lake Superior, carries on extensive trade by rail and water, also considerable manufacturing of iron products. The University of Wisconsin located at Madison is especially known for its sociological research, domestic science, and practical arts. The Weather Bureau at Madison gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 46.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, -29; total annual precipitation, 31.15 inches.

WYOMING

Population 290,529 (U. S. Census, 1950)

State Capital, CHEYENNE

Wyoming is bounded on the north by Montana, east by South Dakota and Nebraska, south by Colorado and Utah, and west by Utah, Idaho and Montana; length, east to west, 365 miles; width, 274 miles; land area, 97,506 square miles; includes 2,973 square miles of Yellowstone National Park; rank in area (1950), eighth.

The mean elevation of the state is about 6,000 feet. The clear, dry atmosphere and the abundance of sunshine have made the state a favorite health resort, especially for persons afflicted with pulmonary diseases. Its surface is broken by mountain ranges, deep river canyons, and flat-topped hills or buttes, the latter a feature of south Wyoming, which rise from valley or plain like walled cities or mounds. In the northwest corner is Yellowstone National Park, one of the world's most famous scenic resorts. It was the first national park set up by Congress. There are over 8,500,000 acres in national forests and parks. The ranch life retains much of the old-time flavor of the West, the annual cowboy round-up at Cheyenne attracting many visitors.

Stock raising is the most important industry, the state ranking third in the Union for sheep husbandry. There are extensive areas of pine and spruce timber, widely distributed throughout the mountain regions.

There are few places, except in the eastern portion, where crops can be successfully grown without additional water supply. The many rivers flow in all directions providing valuable drainage for irrigation and making possible fine crops of alfalfa, sugar beets, vegetables, and small fruits. Over 1,500,000 acres are now supplied with water. There are now 1,000,000 acres successfully cultivated by dry farming methods.

The University of Wyoming is located at Laramie. The Weather Bureau at Cheyenne gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 44.6; highest on record, 100; lowest on record, -88. Total annual precipitation is 14.99 inches.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Population, 817,861 (Census of Canada, 1941)

Provincial Capital, VICTORIA

British Columbia is bounded on the north by the parallel of 60° north, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Alaska, on the south by the 49th parallel (the boundary of the United States), on the east by Alberta. The area is 355,855 square miles. This includes a number of islands, the largest being Vancouver, which contains the capital of the province, and has an area of about 14,000 square miles. The province is about 700 miles long and 500 miles wide. The rainfall, except in some limited districts in the southeast, is abundant. There is unlimited water power everywhere. The surface is mountainous and densely wooded with trees of enormous size. The wonderful scenery of the Canadian Rockies and of the lakes and rivers attracts thousands of tourists each year. Vancouver is one of the leading ports in exporting Canadian grain.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Population 321,177 (1947 Census)

Above includes the population of Labrador, 5,528

Provincial Capital, ST. JOHN'S

(For map see New Brunswick)

Newfoundland, a large island, lies to the eastward of the Dominion of Canada, in the Atlantic Ocean. It is separated from Canada by the Straits of Belle Isle, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Cabot Straits. It is the oldest English colony, is about the size of the State of Virginia. Newfoundland is bounded on the east, north and south by the Atlantic Ocean, and on the west by the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Its extreme length is 350 miles; average breadth, 130 miles; area, 42,000 square miles. The topography is generally rugged with many lakes and rivers. The central and eastern portion of the interior is thinly wooded and consists in part of elevated plains called "barrens." The river valleys and the western part of the Island are thickly timbered.

Labrador is a Newfoundland dependency. It has a coastline of 850 miles, and approximately 5,000 inhabitants, mostly Eskimos. They are engaged in the cod and seal fisheries, and during the winter months in trapping.

The climate is healthful and more temperate than that of the neighboring continents. The Gulf Stream modifies the cold and the temperature is rarely below zero in the winter, and in the summer seldom exceeds 80° F. The heat from open fireplaces is sufficient to warm the houses. Winter usually sets in the first of December and lasts until the middle of April. The autumn, a period of fine weather, often lasts until November. Thunderstorms are rare, tornadoes unknown, and the fogs are confined to the shores and bays of the southeastern and southern coasts.

AGRICULTURE

Approximately 125,000 acres of land were farmed in 1947. It is estimated that there are an additional 500,000 acres of uncleared land suitable for agriculture, including grazing. The most fertile portions of the country are to be found in the Codroy Valley, the Bay St. George area, the Humber Valley and on the Avalon Peninsula. The number of full time and part time farmers in Newfoundland in 1947 is placed at 5,300. The principal crops grown are hay, oats, barley, potatoes, turnips, cabbage, beets, carrots, parsnips and small fruits. The livestock population in 1947 was: horses, 14,500; cattle, 22,000; sheep, 84,000; swine, 12,000; goats, 11,500; poultry, 343,000. The total value of agricultural production in 1947 is estimated at $12,500,000, practically all of which was consumed in Newfoundland.

FISHERIES

Fisheries constitute the principal industry of the Island. The most important fish, commercially, is the cod, and the Newfoundland cod fisheries are said to be the most extensive of their kind in the world. The seal fishery is also important and in 1947 the catch totalled 105,725 seals. Herring are in abundance while lobsters, salmon, haddock, halibut, mackerel, rosefish, smelts, etc. are caught on an extensive scale. The whaling industry is also carried on fairly extensively.

FORESTS

Of the total landed area of the Island about 17,145 square miles are forested, the chief components of which are spruce and balsam fir. Other species of lesser importance are white birch, pine, poplar or aspen, and larch (locally known as juniper). Within limited areas some hard maple and yellow birch are found. The forests furnish raw materials for an extensive pulp and paper industry consuming up to 900,000 cords per annum and employing up to 7,000 men. Gross value of production (1949), $2,080,842, rank, eighth. Number of mills, 536, employing 2,996.

MANUFACTURES

Gross value of products (1949), $67,264,282, rank, ninth. Number of establishments, 793; number of employees, 6,934. Leading industries: pulp and paper, lumber, saw and planing mill products, boots, shoes, clothing, nails, cordage, paint, furniture, fish and lobster canneries, shipyards.

MINERALS

MISCELLANEOUS

Number of post offices (1950), 550, rank, ninth. Gross receipts of offices collecting $10,000 and upwards, $894,012, rank, ninth. Number of motor vehicles registered (1950), 16,375, rank, ninth. Highway mileage (1949), 2,333, rank, tenth. Number of telephones (1949), 18,668, rank, ninth.

NOVA SCOTIA

Population 577,962 (Census of Canada, 1941)

Provincial Capital, HALIFAX

Nova Scotia consists of a narrow peninsula, connected with New Brunswick by a narrow isthmus about 16 miles wide, and off the island of Cape Breton. It is bounded on the north by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, on the east and south by the Atlantic Ocean, on the west by the Bay of Fundy and New Brunswick. It is 300 miles long and from 80 to 100 wide, with an area of 21,428 square miles, or about 13,000,000 acres. Of the entire area only 5,000,000 acres are tillable, the remaining land being covered with dense forests. The Cobequid Range extends through the northern interior of the province and on each side of this range are rich arable lands where the agricultural activities of the province center. The valley of the Annapolis is noted for its beauty and fertility. The capital city, Halifax, is the winter port for mail steamers and has direct communication with Liverpool, Boston, Baltimore, Quebec and the West Indies. The harbor, which is over one-half mile wide at its narrowest part, is one of the finest in existence.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Population 95,047 (Census of Canada, 1941)

Provincial Capital, CHARLOTTETOWN

(For map see New Brunswick)

Prince Edward Island is bounded on the north by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, east by Cape Breton Island, south by Nova Scotia proper, and west by New Brunswick. The greatest length is 130 miles; the breadth varies from 34 miles to 4 miles; area is about 2,184 square miles. The surface is undulated, and the greatest elevation is 500 feet. The climate is healthful, and milder than that of the neighboring mainland. There are fine beaches along the northern shore facing the gulf, and the island is becoming popular as a summer resort.

POPULATION

Province rank, ninth. Increase over 1931 of 8%. Rural residents in 1941, 75%.

AGRICULTURE

QUEBEC

Provincial Capital, QUEBEC

Quebec is bounded on the north by Hudson Bay, east by Labrador and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, south by New Brunswick, Maine, New Hampshire, New York and the Ottawa River, which separates it from Ontario, and west by Hudson Bay and Ontario. It is the largest of the provinces, its extreme breadth from east to west being 1,080 miles, its length from north to south, 1,280 miles, its area 594,434 square miles. The surface south of the St. Lawrence is generally hilly, further north it is mountainous and rocky and abounding in rivers and small lakes. The extreme northern part is an unexplored wilderness. A great part of the surface of the province is covered with forests. More than four-fifths of the people are French. The city of Quebec and the neighboring villages, noted for their quaintness and charm, attract great numbers of tourists yearly, netting the provinces a large income. Montreal, too, attracts tourist trade. It is the largest city and chief commercial center of the Dominion.
