Mel and Jesse talk at Black Rock; BET interested

Last week (9/22), Rainbow/PUSH coalition president Reverend Jesse Jackson met with CBS (N:CBS) CEO Mel Karmazin and CBS Corp. SVP Martin Franks. Accompanying Jesse were Percy Sutton, chairman, emeritus, Inner City Broadcasting, Chester Davenport, CEO Georgetown partners and Joe Garcia, EVP, SBS at CBS HQ to discuss the upcoming Viacom/CBS merger (RBR 9/13, p.6).

Jackson requested the meeting to explore whether CBS and Viacom (N:VIA) will divest stations to keep within the existing FCC 35% cap on TV market share ownership (the merger will give them 41%). But he [Mel] wants the law changed. He wants a waiver. And no doubt CBS/Viacom are both using their political strength, lobbying in Washington for the McCain bill (RBR 9/20, p.2) to raise the cap to 50%. That is where the point of departure takes place. We want the law enforced. If the law is enforced, then stations will be available...and there will be opportunity.

Karmazin, the leading gun on the Minority Investment Fund, immediately accepted Jackson's invitation for the meeting. "Mel had a good meeting with him and many of the issues were addressed. They agreed on some things—I don't think anybody disagrees—that minority representation at the top of a corporation is an important thing and that all corporations probably could be doing better in that regard," said Gil Schwartz, SVP Communications, CBS Corp. "We will obviously abide by the law and do what's necessary to close this deal, but we're going to push hard to keep as much as we can."

In addition to some TV stations, Viacom/CBS may be forced to divest its 50% of the money-losing UPN Network. UPN, with good minority ratings shares, is losing in the neighbor-

WW1's impending Hot Talk format

Now with the addition of yet two more all-Westwood One (N:WON), all-Talk stations leveraging an Infinity (N:INF) property—WNEW-FM NY, KYCY-AM San Francisco—RBR asked WW1 CEO Joel Hollander if indeed this is all leading to the launch of a new 24/7 Hot Talk net (RBR 5/31, p.3): "Yes. We look forward to growing the young Hot Talk format and we think we're getting the critical mass to do it."

Hollander says WW1 is currently thinking of a name for the new net. Would this net be aggressively offered to non-Infinity stations? "Absolutely," says Hollander.

WNEW's "Opie and Anthony" morning show may be the next to be offered up for syndication. Others slated for the net include Howard Stern, Jim Bohannon, Larry King, David Essel, Don Imus, Don & Mike, G Gordon Liddy, Tom Leykis, and "Loveline."

KYCY and WNEW bring Infinity/WW1 Talkers to six top-10 markets, including KRLA-AM and KLSX-FM L.A., WJFK-FM Washington, WCKG-FM Chicago and WKRK-FM Detroit.—CM

hood of $200M per year. We wonder what investor, minority or not, would be interested in any complete divestiture. If UPN is divested from Viacom, losing the studio and TV stations in the process, what will be left? Jackson offered a compromise, a partnership/shared ownership of UPN. "A partnership could be worked out. We are urging the FCC [to] support shared ownership."

Bob Johnson, Black Entertainment Television CEO, is one very likely candidate that could absorb any UPN divestiture. "I think the better play is a combination of BET and UPN into a venture. Their problem is they're producing shows that they can't recoup their costs on ad revenue. The combination of the two businesses—I haven't looked at all the economics yet—I think could be very attractive on the standpoint of amortizing programming costs and having more market penetration and market clout. What they really need is greater distribution and the ability to time-shift programming, to cross-promote, cross-market and create additional programming opportunities," Johnson told RBR. "I think it would be a very interesting partnership...to talk to Chris Craft (N:CCN) and Viacom to see if there is a deal that can be struck. It's better to see if you can explore a deal where a partner coming in would justify the FCC allowing Viacom to keep it. And I think we can make a case that if BET came in and had a stake. I think the FCC would look at a waiver that encouraged minority ownership and greater programming diversity."

Jackson has also requested meetings with FCC Chair Bill Kennard, Viacom Chairman Sumner Redstone and Congress.—CM

Extension number four for LPFM

The FCC says it has extended the LPFM reply comment period for the final time to 14 days after it submits rules for digital radio (IBOC DAB). The Commission is expected to bring up the rules at its 10/21 meeting—meaning the new reply comment deadline should fall on 11/5.

By providing this 4th extension, the Commission states it has "balanced our profound interest in developing a full and complete record against the need to avoid undue delay." The original deadlines were 4/12 and 5/12.

Opponents of LPFM, namely the NAB and Greater Media, have argued that a decision on LPFM would be ill-made if decided upon before the implementation of IBOC DAB. Last month the FCC granted a 16-day extension in response to the New York State Thruway Authority's claim that more time was needed to review comments that totaled over 7,000 pages (RBR 9/6, p. 2).

Reply comments already filed

Even though the FCC has extended the period for LPFM reply comments, groups such as the United States Catholic Conference (USCC) and National Public Radio (NPR) have already submitted their opinions, and it's no surprise who's on whose side.

Calling LPFM spectrally inefficient and inappropriate, NPR cautions the FCC that implementing LPFM is premature. "Even the testing performed by several LPFM proponents and by the Commission's Office of Engineering and Technology (OET) demonstrates at a minimum, the need for further analysis, laboratory testing and field testing," writes NPR in its filing.

NPR further writes that it supports the NAB's claim that adding LPFM to 2nd- and 3rd-adjacent channels would cause undue interference to existing stations (RDR 8/9, p. 2) and believes the FCC studies to be hypothetical and inconclusive.

Also adding their voices to the NAB's and NPR's fight against LPFM, several public radio stations in the states of Oregon and Washington jointly filed a reply comment, telling the Commission it has "relied upon assumptions and wishful thinking, rather than concrete technical and legal support."

"How does the staff imagine that all these new little NCE stations will be funded and financed," asked the public radio stations. "Where, in that (already) congested (NCE FM) band, is room to be found for a proliferation of underfunded inefficient low-power NCE stations?"

While USCC did not focus on the studies like NPR did, the group did urge the FCC to implement LPFM but asked the agency to issue "reasonable regulations" to ensure that LPFM stations are owned and operated by the people living in the area surrounding the station.—TS

Dueling lawsuits over KWOD

KWOD-FM Sacramento owner Ed Stolz has fired back at Entercom (N:ETM) for going to court in an attempt to make Stolz sell Entercom KWOD for $25M under a 1996 letter of intent. Stolz has filed a counter-suit in a Sacramento court accusing Entercom of fraud, deceit and breach of contract. In addition, Stolz has filed a federal court suit in San Francisco accusing Entercom CEO David Field of violating the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act—a law originally intended to target organized crime figures, but frequently cited these days in all sorts of litigation. Entercom's attorney denounced Stolz's press release announcing the lawsuit as "slanderous."—JM

NBG to rep "Wireless Flash," gets GSA contract

NBG Radio Network (O:NSBD) will be the new sales rep for "Wireless Flash" daily news fax service, replacing Premiere which sold the service since the beginning of the year. It can begin selling ads for the service, produced and syndicated with Fisher Entertainment, 1/1/00. Wireless Flash is delivered to 107 affiliates daily.

NBG's NBG Solutions unit also signed a "basic ordering agreement" with The General Services Administration (GSA) to provide interactive kiosk technology (Internet-based) in mall locations around the country. The prototypes, now being tested in San Jose and Boston, provide multiple government services to the public in convenient, highly-trafficked locations. "Hopefully, this is going to lead to a lot of orders and a lot of revenue for our company, and should put the kiosk division on the map very quickly," NBG President John Holmes tells RBR.

High profile names to increase the profile of network radio

The biggest names and companies in the nation will hear from the biggest names from the radio networks at the Association of National Advertisers Annual Conference at Amelia Island, FL 10/11 (AdBiz 9/99, AB14). American Urban Radio Networks, AMFM Radio Networks, ABC Radio Networks, Westwood One Radio Networks and Premiere Radio Networks will jointly present the day called “Network Radio: Turn Up Your Brand Power.”

Mixed performance for RADAR 62 but audience up

10 advancers and 10 decliners; RADAR 62 is split down the middle. But compared to RADAR 61, 62 saw a 14.3% increase in audience. Two new networks from AMFM, Ruby and Sapphire, debuted, bringing a total of 22 networks reported in this book.

Westwood One held strong; its CNN Max held onto the number one spot in persons 12+ (up 0.4%), adults 18-49 (up 1.5%) and adults 25-54 (up 1.6%). The network’s Source Max also delivered a strong performance. It was number three in adults 18-49 (up 15.1%).

Although Source Max showed a healthy increase, it was edged out of its number two ranking in the 18-49 category by upstart Sapphire. Sapphire announced its arrival with a 2.3 rating, hot on the heels of WW1’s CNN Max, which had 2.5.

Premiere is proving the old adage “you win some, you lose some” to be true. As with 61, it is again the biggest winner and loser. For persons 12+, Focus was ranked number 10, up 22.4%. In the same demo, Core plunged 33.2% in audience to finish last.

For full-inventory networks, ABC Prime was number one in persons 12+ (down 1.6%) and adults 25-54 (down 1.4%). —KM

Catholic Family Radio—putting the family back in business

Inception

John Lynch said no initially when he was approached to start an all-Catholic radio network. He thought it would be an incredible task and an overwhelming challenge. After all, he was in semi-retirement with a pretty impressive list of accomplishments—a successful career as a Pittsburgh Steeler linebacker and an equally successful career in radio. Lynch was last Vice-Chairman at Jacor after selling Jacor his Noble Broadcast Group. Maybe he said no because the original plan of the founders was to “start small, then go big.”

The founders, which include prominent figures such as Tom Monaghan (founder of Domino’s Pizza), Frank Hager (Morgan Stanley) and Father Joseph Fessio (Ignatius Press), felt there was an incredible need for a values-based Catholic network for the 70 million Catholics in the country. The Pope had talked about the need to use the media to evangelize during a speech in Rome in 1997. The group thought the time was right to give back a little to the country. Besides, a Catholic radio network could be a real refuge and comfort to people—and not necessarily to win converts. Research showed that 20% of non-Catholics said they would listen to Catholic Family Radio.

A study was floated in early 1998 in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles to determine if there indeed was a market for such a network. It found that a Catholic radio station would generate between a two to three rating share in those markets.

With those encouraging results, Lynch thought, “Why not just start big? It’s just as easy to start big.” And with that auspicious declaration, Lynch (appointed President/CEO) left his momentary misgivings and plunged head on to what has been one heady first year for Catholic Family Radio.

Network takes off with a blast

Seven stations launched 1/4/99 in LA (KPLS-AM), Chicago (WAUR-AM), Philadelphia (WPWA-AM), Minneapolis (WWTC-FM), Kansas City (KCNW-AM), Denver (KKYD-AM) and Milwaukee (WZER-AM). Those seven stations were bought from Children’s Broadcast Corp. for $37M last year.

Lynch says the group plans to own stations in 40 of the top 50 markets by the end of the year. Thereafter, it will look for affiliates in the below-50 markets. The big picture is to ultimately become the “largest 24-hour talk network to be assembled.”

A religious network doesn’t spell non-profit for the group, many of whom are bottom-line-oriented by virtue of their jobs. “Do good and still make money,” is the mantra for Catholic Family Radio according to Lynch. “They’re not mutually exclusive,” he explains when asked if profit or philanthropy was more important to the network. Making money and doing good share equal standing in this network.

Family-friendly programming

To prove that, CFR has pursued its aggressive business plan and to date, has acquired 15 O&Os (see chart) plus an LMA with KDIA-AM (San Francisco), with an option to buy. The network is negotiating a sale of WAUR-AM in Sandwich, IL after its recent acquisition of WYPA-AM in Chicago.

All the stations carry the same programming during the work week except short breaks for local news, sports, weather and traffic. The weekends are different for the individual stations. They are sold in block time to local programmers, mainly family in content. Apart from these programs, weekend shows also feature sports, fishing and gardening programs.

So the mainstay of this network is talk programs aimed at parents age 35-54. “Everyday problems and everyday challenges with a Catholic family values answer” is how Lynch describes his network.

A popular program is the “Dr. Ray Guarandi Show” featuring the Catholic “Dr. Laura.” The former stand-up comedian and psychologist is a parent of two adopted children and knows a thing or two about the challenges of raising kids. He comes on at 9-12 in the morning.

Starting the day is one of two politicos who provide an interesting contrast to the network—Ray Flynn. The former Mayor of Boston and Ambassador to the Vatican provides the liberal Democrat point of view. (He was recently in Northern Ireland covering the peace talks for the network.) Then at 12 noon, Dan Lungren, the former Attorney General of California, comes on for his shift for the conservative Republican take on issues.

Throughout the day are five short commentaries which are springboards to further discussions for the longer talk shows. Commentators for Catholic Family Radio run the gamut from church luminaries to corporate bigwigs. The cardinals include John O'Connor of New York; Francis George of Chicago; the Vatican’s J. Francis Stafford, President of the Pontifical Council for the Laity and Archbishop John P. Foley, President, Pontifical Council for Social Communication. Prominent Catholic business people have also done their rounds. One of them is Steve Forbes, who is off the air for now while he runs for President.

Centrality is key, for now
EVP/CFO Frank DeFrancesco tells RBR that Catholic Family Radio sells 14 minutes an hour—four of those are reserved for network and 10 are local spots. Network deals are negotiated in New York, LA and San Diego. Local spots are sold locally. Local sales executives write up an order and then enter it on-line or via fax and then it is logged into a central system—CBSI’s DeltaFlexII (they will switch to CBSI’s new offering DeltaFlexIII soon).

Spots are produced in three production centers—LA, Chicago and Boston.

Local copy writers send copy to the production centers where they are produced and sent back to the local stations to air. Billing is done out of San Diego.

Who buys?
Lynch says that when the network first started out, a whole new group of Catholic businesses were anxious to go on board as advertisers. Cemeteries, insurance companies, health care providers that were Catholic-owned were anxious to reach the Catholic consumer. One of the first national advertisers was El Al Airlines—the Israeli air carrier that flies to the Holy Land.

But Catholic Family Radio has not been overly-conscious or cautious of who should or should not be an advertiser. Lynch explains that the approach he used was to start off by defining what the network couldn’t have on air, then approach everyone else who’s left. Among the black-listed are X-rated and R-rated movies and reproductive devices such as condoms.

Religion and technology go hand in hand
The network may be religious and traditional in nature, but the operators are certainly not afraid to embrace the future and make technology work for them. The Catholic Family Radio Superstore will soon launch on the Web (www.catholicfamilyradio.com). This is no ordinary cyber store selling just Catholic Family Radio mugs and T-shirts. Lynch explains that the idea for a superstore came when manufacturers of Catholic products complained that they did not have national distribution. That was the impetus for the Superstore.

Lynch and company have expanded on that idea. A separate operation will run the Superstore. There will be a “Catholic Brides Section” to find out what is needed to be married in the church. The Catholic bride can even register on the site and friends and family can buy fine wares such as Waterford crystals as wedding gifts.

Lynch believes this site has a leg up on sites like Amazon.com who have to spend “millions and millions of dol-

You can't please all the people all of the time

Sadly, most of the criticism has been from Catholics, according to Lynch. "To some, we are too Catholic; to others, we are not Catholic enough," Lynch muses. But the network is not out to please everyone or to win everyone over to the Catholic faith. "This is not a Christian evangelical program," Lynch maintains. The network is a chance to stealth evangelize and to help offer solutions to everyday problems with a Catholic twist.

But the home camp is pretty pleased right now with the network. DeFrancesco says that Q2 revenue was double that of Q1's and Q3 is expected to double that of Q2's.

The future looks bright for the network. An IPO is planned for early next year to help finance the Superstore. When the dust has settled a little, and only then, will Catholic Family Radio worry about acquiring affiliates.

Indeed the birth of Catholic Family Radio is already itself a milestone. Karl Stoll, Director of Communications, National Religious Broadcasters, says that Catholic broadcasting has not been a major part of the religious broadcasting scene in the US. The NRB is very excited to see the growth of Catholic Family Radio. "One of the exciting things about their growth is that not only are they producing original programming, they're also securing, by purchasing radio stations, the ability to distribute that programming," he adds.

Citadel Communications has acquired Fuller-Jeffrey Broadcasting for $63,500,000

The undersigned acted as exclusive broker in this transaction and assisted in the negotiations.

Kalil & Co., Inc.

S&P Index adds WW1

Westwood One (N: WON) got a price boost after Standard & Poor's added the stock to its S&P MidCap 400 Index (9/22). WW1 had been in the S&P SmallCap 600 Index, but was moved up because of its acquisition of Metro Networks (formerly O:MTNT), which closed last Wednesday (9/22).

WW1 replaced Enesco Group (N: ENC), a seller of collectibles and giftware, which was bumped to the SmallCap 600. Metro Networks had also been a SmallCap 600 component. It was replaced by Laser Vision Centers (O: LVCI), a laser eye surgery company.

Newspapers grab BrassRing

Tribune Co. (N: TRB) and the Washington Post Co. (N: WPO) have combined resources to create BrassRing Inc., an Internet job site. Tribune is contributing $70M cash, its job fair business and thepavement.com, a Web recruiting site for new college graduates. Resources being contributed by the Post are its Kaplan Job Fairs and HireSystems.

Although a startup, BrassRing will start with $30M+ in 1999 revenues from the existing businesses and may launch an IPO next year.
As Jimmy de Castro continues his divestiture of AMFM Inc.'s (N:AFM) non-strategic assets (RBR 8/23, p. 13), AMFM is selling its eight FM stations in Puerto Rico to Raul Alarcon's Spanish Broadcasting System. AMFM will receive $90M for the stations which it bought for $75M last year (RBR 8/3, p. 12). An LMA will begin as soon as the deal gets antitrust approval.

SBS already owns three FMs in Puerto Rico and will become the island's top-billing radio group with this acquisition.

RBR observation: Even when AMFM (then Chancellor) announced its Puerto Rican purchases, many in the industry were wondering "why?" Other than giving it a presence in another top 20 market, the stations didn't appear to fit. AMFM has no Spanish stations elsewhere, although it is an investor in Z-Spanish Media. These stations clearly fit better in the SBS portfolio as the second-largest Hispanic radio group prepares for its IPO. By the way, AMFM has also transferred its Puerto Rico TV station to LIN Television.

NextMedia in first deal

Carl Hirsch's and Steve Dinetz's NextMedia Group LLC is no longer about to happen (RBR 9/6, p. 2), it's happening now. The new group created by the two veteran group heads has made its first purchase. It's paying $15M for Rambaldo Communications' WFLP-AM, WLKK-AM, WRKT-FM & WRTS-FM Erie, PA.

Richard Rambaldo won't be leaving radio after selling his stations. He'll take $3M of the $15M sale price in stock and sign on as Senior Operation Manager for Regional Broadcasting at NextMedia. There are several other recognizable names among NextMedia's investors: Peter Bordes Jr., Samuel Weller, Steven Smith, Matthew Leibowitz, Jacques Kerrest, Edward Bennett and Ricky Eytcheson.

Cumulus consolidating Killeen, buying Cape Fear and adding in Green Bay

Cumulus Media (O:CMLS) has put together a potent new superduopoly in the Killeen-Temple, TX market with a series of deals to buy four FM stations. The total price tag is $9M and LMA's of the entire group began 9/15. Here's what Cumulus is buying in market #149: KLTD from Progressive Communications, KOOV & KOCO from Centrolplex Communications and KYUL from Stellar Communications. Broker: Bill Whitley, George Reed and Scott Knoblauch, Media Services Group

Group buy in NC

The entire Cape Fear Broadcasting Group is becoming part of Cumulus in a $47M cash and stock deal. The deal will add two stations to Cumulus' existing three in Wilmington, NC, as well as giving it a ready-made four-station superduopoly in Fayetteville, NC.

Bulking up in Packerland

Ben Laird has sold Cumulus a three-year option to buy WDUZ-AM & WQLH-FM, which would take Cumulus to a five-station superduopoly in Green Bay, WI. An LMA of the combo began 9/16.

If you're keeping track, Cumulus says it now owns, operates or is buying 261 radio stations in 48 markets.

Entercom entering Wichita

Entercom's recent SEC filings reveal that it has a letter of intent to buy the five Capstar/Triathlon spin-offs in Wichita which are now held by trustee
Henry Rivera (RBR 5/10, p. 6). Previous efforts to sell the stations to Marathon for $8M and Connoisseur for $7.5M didn’t get to closing. Now the price is back to $8M and Entercom says it is pursuing other purchases in the Wichita market.

Radio Unica sets IPO terms
Joaquin Blaya’s Radio Unica is close to pricing its IPO, which has been pending since July (RBR 7/19, p. 13). The All-Talk Spanish AM group will sell 5.7M shares at an estimated $14-$16 each. That will leave the company’s venture capital backer, Warburg, Pincus Ventures, with a 70.1% stake.

For the first half of this year, Radio Unica reported that its revenues increased 125% to $6.3M. Cash flow (EBITDA) remained negative, falling an additional $700K to -$10.7M. Underwriters: Salomon Smith Barney, Bear Stearns & Co., CIBC World Markets, Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette

Emmis soaring in radio & TV
Emmis Communications (O:EMMS) reported a 41% increase in revenues to $81.5M and a 37% gain in cash flow to $33.9M for its fiscal Q2, which ended 8/31. On a same station basis, revenues gained 13% and cash flow 22%. Radio same station revenues grew 16% and cash flow 19%.

CEO Jeff Smulyan noted that it was the company’s fifth straight quarter of double-digit revenue growth and added: “We don’t see any sign of abatement of double-digit growth.”

Look for Emmis to announce another overseas acquisition soon: “several stations in one very major market,” Smulyan said.

AMFM out of outdoor
AMFM Inc. (N:AFM) completed the spin-off of its outdoor division (RBR 6/7, p. 12). Lamar Advertising (O:LMAR) got DOJ approval to close the deal after agreeing to spin-offs in a few markets. In return for its 42,700 billboards, AMFM got $700M cash and 26.2M Lamar shares. AMFM officials happily noted that the value of those shares had risen by $300M since the deal was cut in June, making the total consideration $1.9B.

RBR’s deal digest
Don Crawford’s Crawford Broadcasting is buying WMKI-AM (but not the “Mickey” call letters) Birmingham, AL for $2.75M from Jim Thompson’s and Mike Craven’s Hibernia Communications, which owns a group of medium-market Radio Disney affiliates. Broker: Mike Bergner, Bergner & Co... After a proposed sale to AMFM (then Capstar) ran into FCC/DOJ problems and was abandoned, Jim Gibbons Radio Inc. is now selling WFIR-AM & WPVR-FM Roanoke, VA to Mel Wheeler Inc. Broker: William Schutz Jr... Rolland Johnson’s Three Eagles Broadcasting is buying KJAM-AM & FM Madison, SD from John Goeman’s Madison Broadcasting Co. for $1.2M. Broker: Jerry Johnson, Johnson Communication Properties.
